Texaco shareholders agree to plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Pennzoil Co. said Friday that it had agreed with a committee representing Texaco Inc. shareholders on a proposal to settle the legal dispute between the two companies for $3 billion in cash and getting Texaco out of bankruptcy court reorganization.

Texaco's management criticized the plan late in the day, saying the proposed payment was too much.

The proposal would have to be approved by Texaco's creditors before it could be submitted to the court. If the court accepted it, the plan then would have to be backed in a stockholder vote by two-thirds of Texaco shares.

Texaco filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code in April to avoid having to post a $10.3 billion security bond in a suit filed by Pennzoil. Texaco contended the bond, which would have been required to appeal, could ruin the company.

The judgment stemmed from a Houston jury's November 1985 verdict that Texaco improperly interfered in a merger between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co. Texaco later acquired Getty.

In a telephone interview from Pennzoil's headquarters in Houston, spokesman Robert Harper said the proposal would be contained in a reorganization plan that could be filed by the end of next week.

"We think the Texaco creditors committee will also join in the reorganization plan," Harper said.

Joel Zweibel, an attorney representing the creditors committee, said the group was not ready to comment on the plan. He said members would study it over the weekend and meet Monday to discuss it.

In a statement from its headquarters in White Plains, N.Y., Texaco said Pennzoil had proposed the $3 billion settlement earlier this week but that Texaco believed further negotiations "could lead to a more economic settlement."

Texaco said the plan announced Friday had been prepared without its involvement, despite an order by the bankruptcy judge that the oil company's management be included in any such negotiations.

It also reiterated its support for a settlement formula that would include a non-refundable payment to Pennzoil in return for an upper limit on Texaco's liability if it lost an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Texaco said it planned to pursue the appeal despite the settlement plan.

Pennzoil's board voted Wednesday to accept the proposed settlement, Harper said.

"It was a business judgment of the board that this was in the best interests of Pennzoil shareholders," he said.

Although Pennzoil officials said they believed the judgment would stand up on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, they also were concerned about factors such as delays in payment, Harper said.

Reagan says SDI wasn't sidestepped

■ Related stories — Page 7A

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday that Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev agreed to drop demands for restrictions on the Star Wars program, but Secretary of State George P. Shultz said he did not sense any Kremlin departure from its insistence on linking long-range weapons cuts to a curb in the American missile-defense initiative.

Reagan denied that the issue of his Strategic Defense Initiative, which interrupted progress on arms agreements at the Reagan-Gorbachev meeting in Iceland last year, had been sidestepped at this week's Washington summit.

Asked whether his understanding with Gorbachev resolves or postpones the question, Reagan replied, "It resolves it."

"As a matter of fact by agreement we will go forward with our research and development of SDI...with whatever is needed in that development and then, after a certain point, if and when we have succeeded in putting together this initiative, then we will deploy," he said.

Shultz, in Brussels, Belgium, to meet with European allies on the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty that was signed Tuesday, seemed to take a far less optimistic view than that espoused by Reagan.

Despite progress at the summit, Shultz said, the Soviets had not assured they would sign a strategic arms reduction treaty without securing limitations on Star Wars.

The Soviets have linked the two issues in the past, "and I don't sense any particular delinkage," Shultz said.

In Washington, another senior administration official disagreed with Reagan's interpretation that the Soviets have dropped their demands for curbs on Star Wars.

"In my opinion, we have not resolved the issue," he said. "In my opinion, they'll come back to us. But they have moved in our direction."

The official, who spoke to a reporter only on condition of anonymity, said there was no Soviet "capitulation."

Reagan commented in a question-and-answer session with reporters and editors from Boston, Chicago and other cities.

Soviet spokesmen have suggested that, although the Star Wars program is not an obstacle in its present state of development, it could become one and would have to be discussed later.

Reagan, however, said, "I don't think there is any impediment there at all." When asked whether the Soviets would no longer require restrictions, he said, "No, that was eliminated."

Murdered woman's children get about $11,000 from fund

BEAUMONT (AP) — Eighteen years after their mother was gunned down by a stray bullet fired during a racial incident, four orphaned children Friday received more than $11,000 from a long-forgotten fund set up by outraged citizens who wanted to help care for them.

The initial $4,000 fund, which had been gaining interest in a Beaumont bank, earlier this year came to the attention of Beaumont Chamber of Commerce officials, who were not certain what had happened to it during the intervening years.

"It became part of our records but we really weren't involved," chamber spokeswoman Sandra Bradshaw said. "I guess that's how it got lost in the shuffle."

The four children, Kimberly Rubit, 21, her sister, Ida, 20, a brother, Joseph Montgomery, 23, and another sister, Patricia Wilson, 25, of Brooklyn, N.Y., each received $2,762 from the fund that grew to $11,047.

DEA agent will boost muscle of drug task force, Lamar Smith says

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

The assignment of an agent of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency to a just-funded task force designed to choke off narcotics traffic in West Texas will boost the group's muscle, Rep. Lamar Smith and lawmen agreed Friday.

Smith, R-San Antonio, told reporters in Midland that DEA officials in Washington Thursday had acceded to his six-month effort to bolster the effort with federal manpower.

"We've been working on this for six months," the congressman said. "This will bring needed federal help to this important regional effort to suppress drug trafficking."

The agent will be assigned to the task force on an as-needed basis from the Lubbock DEA office, which now has four agents. Midland has one DEA agent and could not spare him for the task force, Smith said.

Last week, the Permian Basin Regional Narcotics Task Force, a 17-county lawmen cooperative, was notified it would receive $525,000 in federal funds for a year. The money will be used to hire a commander, five drug investigators, office support and purchase a computer.

Task force agents will operate on an as-needed basis throughout the area, from Loving, Reeves and Pecos counties, west through the Midland-Odessa area to Howard County, and north as far as Dawson and Gaines Counties.

Federal help was something the task force board had been hoping for, according to Midland Police Chief Richard Czech, who represents Midland and Ector counties on the board.

Rep. Lamar Smith

"We are delighted, to say the least," Czech said. "We are happy to get that cooperation."

The agent will give area task force members instruction on state-of-the-art drug fighting techniques. If necessary, he will assist in investigations that go beyond the scope of the 17-county area, Smith said.

"I think obviously he cannot have anything but a positive impact, both from an experience level and a resource level," said Joe Cook, task force chairman and Big Spring police chief. "This goes hand in glove with the intentions of the task force — to intertwine itself in all areas."

The board hopes to have a commander hired, investigators available and be "in business" by Feb. 1, Cook said.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who helped organize the task force, said the DEA agent will enable area lawmen to operate anywhere in the country if necessary.

"It gives the task force far-reaching capability," the sheriff said. "The DEA agent has the authority to go anywhere in the country."

Shriners parade set for 2 p.m.

From Staff Reports

The annual Midland Shriners' Christmas Parade is set for 2 p.m. today.

It will begin at the Golf Course Street Church of Christ and continue down Andrews Highway, ending at Dennis the Menace Park.

The parade will include marching bands from the local public schools, antique cars, horse and motorcycles. Local Scouts also are expected to participate.

The special guests will be paramedics Steve Forbes and Robert O'Donnell. They will be representing all the volunteers who helped rescue Jessica McClure.

Prizes will be presented to the outstanding participants.

Judges will be Jerry Petrie, Conrad Coleman and Jose Cuevas.

Curiosity almost kills the cow

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — One look at the open shed door and the broken boards above the old well and farmer Dave Lahr knew the answer to the famous question: "Where's the beef?"

One of his cows, Bossy, had fallen to the bottom of the 25-foot-deep well and was standing in five feet of water, just barely holding her head above the surface.

Lahr had a problem. Bossy is an 800-pound Hereford. And pregnant.

"You could see that she was going downhill," said Bob Hamlin, one of the first rescuers to arrive at Lahr's Dry Creek farm Wednesday. "She was holding her head up and blowing bubbles. She couldn't have survived much longer."

Rescuers found a pump and began taking water out of the well. They also summoned Dan Morrison and Randy Adams, local contractors who had a backhoe at a construction site about three miles away.

'Juarez' portrays Hispanics as more than stereotypes

By HOLDEN LEWIS

EL PASO (AP) — Chico and Charo meet Rosendo.

Rosendo Juarez, that is. He's the main character in "Juarez," a series ABC-TV plans to introduce early next year as a mid-season replacement. The character of Juarez — unlike those of Charo, known as the "hoochie koochie" woman on "Hollywood Squares" or Freddy Prinze's Chico of "Chico and the Man" — is intended to be a more serious and realistic depiction of Hispanics.

"It deals with Hispanics as multi-faceted people," said executive producer Jeffrey Bloom, who also wrote and directed the pilot. "It doesn't deal just with stereotypes; the Hispanics aren't just all drug dealers."

Columbia Pictures Television recently finished filming the one-hour pilot's outdoor scenes in El Paso. Juarez, played by 24-year-old Benjamin Banda, is an El Paso County sheriff's detective and a first-generation American.

BANDA, AN actor with the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco, was discovered on the last day of six weeks of auditioning. The Peruvian-American actor had never been before TV cameras, Bloom said.

According to Bloom, "Juarez, is a moody, intense, deep-thinking guy who is concerned with keeping one foot in Mexico and keeping one foot in the United States."

Besides being set in El Paso and having a predominantly Hispanic cast, the series is unusual in that ABC plans to simulcast the show in Spanish, though details have yet to be worked out.

"Advertisers have gone to the networks and said, 'If you do a show we like and simulcast it, we'll advertise on it,'" Bloom said.

Hispanics are the fastest-growing minority group in the United States. That, coupled with the movie success of Columbia's "La Bamba" last summer, prompted ABC to ask Columbia Pictures Television to come up with a show featuring Hispanics, preferably set in the Southwest.

"I think everybody's looking at the fact that this is a rapidly growing population that's being ignored," said Columbia Pictures Television publicist Georgette Deveney.

"La Bamba," a theatrical film about the short life and career of rocker Richie Valens, grossed $54 million in its first four months, including $2.7 million from the Spanish-language version.

"I'm sure 'La Bamba' had a lot to do with it," Bloom said. "People sat up and noticed and said, 'Whew, look what's happening.'"

Until recent years, Hispanics typically were cast in comic roles or as maids or hoodlums. But four years ago, "Miami Vice" and daytime drama "Santa Barbara" began breaking those stereotypes by featuring serious Hispanic characters.

EDWARD JAMES Olmos plays the deadly serious and unflappable Lt. Castillo on "Miami Vice." On "Santa Barbara," A. Martinez, playing Cruz Castillo, has evolved to become the male lead.

"A. had made a lot of money playing the street punk Latino-type character," said "Santa Barbara" writer Chuck Pratt. "I think he had been waiting his whole career for a role like this...He's not playing an ethnic; he's just a great guy named Cruz Castillo."

Pratt said "Santa Barbara" has higher ratings in the heavily Hispanic Southwest than elsewhere. Bloom said ABC is counting on drawing a heavy Hispanic viewership for "Juarez," but he thinks the show will appeal to everyone.

"I'm not writing a show about Hispanics; I'm writing a show about people," he said. "The show is about a young Hispanic sheriff's detective in El Paso, his wife, his family, the people he works with. It's not a shoot-em-up 'Crime Story,' 'Private Eye,' 'Miami Vice.'"

The first show, which probably will be broadcast in mid-January, is about Juarez's investigation into the deaths of seven men who are locked in the back of a truck in the desert.

The production company spent about five days shooting scenes on film in El Paso. One day, several transients gathered to watch a scene shot in an alley near downtown, where Juarez discovers a man's body. Another day, a scene was shot on the downtown international bridge linking El Paso and its Mexican sister city, Ciudad Juarez.

THE NAME similarity is just a coincidence, said Bloom, who simply liked the name Juarez.

"And Rosendo is the name of my brother-in-law," he said.

El Paso was chosen over San Diego-Tijuana because it is less crowded and chaotic, according to Ms. Deveney.

"El Paso is a great city to shoot in for a number of reasons," Bloom said. "We got a tremendous reception from the people there, and the areas of El Paso that we're shooting don't look like anywhere else I've seen. The whole atmosphere on the border is unlike everything I've ever seen."

He said he was struck with the intensity of Mexican laborers trying to cross the Rio Grande. While filming atop the international bridge, he watched several Mexicans climb over a 20-foot barrier on a nearby railroad trestle to cross into the United States.

"At first, it seems like a game, but it's sad when you realize how hard they have to work to go to work," Bloom said. "Then you see people here (griping) about trying to find a baby sitter."

The production company has a contract to film six episodes, and the show's fate presumably will be decided after that. Bloom said the crew will shoot about three days in El Paso for each one-hour episode.

Affinity From Thomasville

A simple, straightforward style for the contemporary bedroom

Scandinavian settlers in America brought with them an appreciation for subtlety in the design of their furniture as well as function as an art form. Smooth, straight lines reign where heavy ornamentation once ruled. Thomasville celebrates the merging of Scandinavian and American influences in the creation of Affinity, a bedroom and occasional collection.

Affinity presents the deep texture of red oak solids and knotty oak veneers, hand-rubbed to a soft patina with a special finish called "Flax," a rich honey tone. Fingertip pulls are hidden beneath the handsome molding that frames each door and drawer, maintaining the integrity of the straight lines.

Bring Affinity into your home and discover for yourself the Scandinavian appreciation for true simplicity.

Dettman seeks re-election to county post

From Staff Reports

Mark Dettman Thursday announced he is a Republican candidate for re-election to the office of Midland County Attorney.

The 35-year-old Dettman, who is seeking his party's nomination for a second term, said "I enjoy serving the citizens of Midland County, and I believe the importance of this office requires an experienced and dedicated public official."

Dettman cited his efforts to equally maintain one of the highest conviction rates in the state and successfully defend the county on civil suits as his most significant accomplishments since taking office in 1985.

"During my tenure as county attorney, we have accomplished many of our goals...Through reorganization and computerization of our hot check division, we have more than doubled our collection of bad checks.

"We have enjoyed continued success in the defense of county officials, having successfully defended over $20 million in civil lawsuits against the county," Dettman said.

Dettman credited his "competent and dedicated" staff, individuals who he said try to serve the public well while consistently operating the county attorney's office under budget.

If re-elected, Dettman promises to continue to "guard the taxpayers dollars."

Dettman earned a bachelor of arts degree in political science from North Texas State University and is a graduate of Southern Methodist University School of Law.

Prior to being elected county attorney, he served as agent/attorney for the U.S. Postal Inspection Service in Seattle, Wash. from 1979-81; and was first assistant county attorney from 1981-85.

Dettman is a member of several professional organizations, including the American Bar Association, Federal Bar Association, Association of Trial Lawyers of America, State Bar of Texas, National District Attorneys Association, Midland County Bar Association and Midland County Young Lawyers Association.

Dettman also is involved in a number of civic activities, including the Midland County Republican Party, Midland Council Against Substance Abuse, Midland Republican Men's Club, Midland Downtown Lions Club, and the Permian Basin Road Runners Club.

He is a criminal justice instructor at Midland College, chairman of MC's Criminal Justice Advisory Committee and served as a delegate to the Texas State Republican Convention in 1984 and 1986.

Ramirez announces for Precinct 3 post

From Staff Reports

Stressing the need for more fiscally responsible county government, Petronilo "Pat" Ramirez Friday announced he is seeking the Democratic nomination for County Commissioner, Precinct 3.

In announcing his candidacy, Ramirez pledged to establish close ties with city officials to ensure that Midlanders receive the maximum amount of service.

Ramirez, 59, is vying for the seat presently occupied by Democrat Scott Welch. Ramirez cited efforts to solve the county's lingering jail problem as a top priority if he is elected during a four-year term of office.

"County commissioners have already spent over $2 million on renovating the county jail, and it still falls short of meeting current and future needs," he said.

If elected, Ramirez promised to work towards building a facility that will take growth factors into account, personally supervise county road repair and maintenance, and deal with the "serious drainage problems" occurring in the southern precinct near U.S. Interstate 20.

"I pledge my full-time effort to the job of county commissioner of Precinct 3," he said. "I am sincerely committed and fully qualified to work with all the citizens of Midland County."

Ramirez, a Midland County native, has more than 26 years of experience in operating local commercial establishments. He presently owns and operates Goodnight Trial Groceries on County Road 1226.

He and his wife, Josefa, have five children.

COW

As Wednesday night wore on, at least a dozen people gathered to help. It soon became apparent that someone was going to have to go down the well if the cow was going to come back up.

Hamlin, a captain in the Clallam County Sheriff's Department, also coordinates the county search and rescue unit. He called one of his top men, John Boesenberg, 61, a former Navy diver and a search and rescue team leader.

"Big cow," was Boesenberg's assessment. "And I'm not much of a cow man, either."

Morrison used his backhoe to pull away the shed's doorway and roof, and positioned the backhoe's boom over the well. Then Boesenberg, tied to a rope and wearing a climber's helmet, was lowered into the hole.

Sitting on the cow's back in three feet of water, he used a stick to push a two-inch nylon strap around Bossy's chest and behind her front legs.

"That's the first time we ever rescued a cow," Boesenberg said. "But we use the same technique for rescuing people."

Rescuers used a hook and cable to attach the backhoe boom to the nylon strap, which is normally used to pull cars and trucks out of ditches.

Once Boesenberg had climbed out, Morrison lifted the boom, and Bossy slowly cleared the lip of the well.

"The strap slid up around her neck and one arm," Morrison said. "Shoot, we thought we had a dead cow on our hands.

"I couldn't believe it," he said. "I told the guys to get a knife and cut her off. Now.

"We sat her down, and she looked like a sack of noodles."

But rescuers massaged Bossy's legs to bring back feeling, and in 30 minutes she was standing and eating.

Lahr summoned a veterinarian, who gave the cow a penicillin shot and plied her with pills. By Thursday afternoon, she looked a little listless and sported two scraped knees, but was back in the pasture.

Lahr said he plans to fill in the well. And Bossy needn't worry about the future, either.

"If she makes it, I'm never going to butcher her," Lahr said. "I'll keep her till she's 40 years old if she can make it through that."

TEXACO

"Pennzoil's gone for four years without seeing one red cent," he said.

Earlier in the day, rumors that a new settlement proposal was in the works sent the stock of both companies higher on Wall Street.

Texaco stock closed Friday at $35.87½ a share, up $3.87½, while Pennzoil's stock rose $6.75 a share to $79.75.

Analysts said Texaco's stock rose because the price had been reflecting the impact of the $10.3 billion judgment Pennzoil holds against Texaco.

Without that judgment, its value would be much higher — though opinions differ on how much, because of differing ways of calculating values.

Earlier this month, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Howard Schwartzberg gave Texaco a 40-day extension on its exclusive right to come up with its own reorganization plan.

But he said that if Pennzoil and the creditors committee agreed on a plan that included a settlement he would drop that exclusivity period in order to let Texaco shareholders vote on it.

Monday, Schwartzberg expanded his ruling, saying Texaco's shareholder committee would have to agree on the plan as well.

FUND

"I was shocked when my dad saw an article in the newspaper," Kimberly said. "He said they were talking about us. It is a surprise after all of these years."

Newspaper stories about the discovery of the fund by chamber officials prompted the search for the survivors of Mary Montgomery.

Ms. Montgomery, 22, a black woman, was fatally wounded May 4, 1969, when she was struck by a stray bullet fired from a carload of white men terrorizing a black man. She and another woman had gone out to get something for a headache. As Ms. Montgomery was standing outside a cafe, a shot fired from the carload of white men richocheted, striking her in the chest.

Two white men later were convicted of murder in the case.

The names of the children surfaced about a month ago, but payment was delayed while chamber officials verified their identities.

The 1969 shooting triggered several incidents of vandalism and fire bombings by angry blacks.

Deloris Berry, a relative of Ms. Montgomery, said the victim's grandmother saw the shooting and suffered a heart attack running to the fallen woman. The grandmother died two weeks later.

Man hospitalized after shooting

From Staff Reports

A unidentified man was undergoing emergency room treatment shortly after midnight Friday after being shot at an east Midland nightclub, a police spokesman said.

A Midland Memorial Hospital nursing supervisor said early Saturday morning she could not release any information about the man.

The shooting occurred at the Workman's Club located at 1100 E. Illinois Ave., the police spokesman said.

SMITH

"The agent will have access to intelligence information about suspects here and about suspects country-wide. DEA's resources will be relayed to the task force, and he can also contact his supervisor and get us some more federal agents if necessary."

As the task force apprehends suspected drug smugglers, the addition of the DEA agent also will allow flexibility in pursuing state or federal criminal charges, Painter added.

WEST TEXAS IN BRIEF

FCC approves sale of area AM radio station

From Staff Reports

Butter

The Federal Communications Commission announced Friday it has approved the sale and transfer of license of the AM 1410 radio frequency for Odessa-Midland. The FCC approval transferred the license from the former owner, Permian Basin Broadcasting Inc., to Clyde Butter.

The FCC also approved the use of new call letters, KRIL, for the station.

Butter, in a prepared statement, said, "KRIL will serve Midland, Odessa and the entire Permian Basin. When I say serve this area I mean a great deal more than just reaching this entire area with our signal.

"I mean covering the entire Basin with a top-flight professional news organization. I mean complete coverage of the governmental, business, civic and educational activities of this area. We will cover every newsworthy facet of the community, some of which we feel are perhaps not getting the coverage they deserve."

The former Permian Basin Broadcast facility at 1410 Crane Highway in Odessa is now being refurbished and prepared for going on the air. The building is being repaired and completely repainted both inside and out.

The two tower fences already have been rebuilt. The usable studio equipment is being checked out and supplemented by the addition of several new pieces of professional audio broadcast equipment.

Butter says KRIL will begin 24-hour-a-day operation on New Year's Day with a 1,000 watt daytime signal and a 500 watt nighttime signal.

Although news and information will be the backbone of KRIL's programming, there also will be a mix of music called "Eclectica" during certain periods.

Programming details for KRIL as well as the staff will be announced on about Jan. 1.

Snake still on species list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Stenholm of Texas tried and failed to bump the Concho River Water Snake from the national endangered species list, saying it is unfairly holding up construction of a West Texas dam.

The snake has become a pest for the Colorado Municipal Water District since the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services required the district spend an estimated $3.7 million on a habitat for the reptile before building the dam.

Stacy Reservoir, designed to serve the needs of 500,000 thirsty West Texans, would be created by the dam.

"Out of nowhere, the federal government intervenes and claims that the habitat of an obscure animal happens to be located the same place a badly-needed water project is scheduled to be built," said Stenholm, D-Stamford, in a House speech.

In seeking to have the snake dropped from the endangered species list, Stenholm cited information gathered by a herpetologist hired by the water district that shows the snake is living in lakes throughout the region.

"This summer the snake population was actually counted. Its habitat was actually researched. And what we have found is that the population is this snake isn't vanishing. It's being found in more abundance than ever," he said.

Although Stenholm's amendment to bump the snake was rejected, he did get a promise from the chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, Walter Jones, D-N.C., to seek a complete review of the conservation measures required to permit construction of the Stacy Reservoir project from the fish and wildlife service.

DEATHS

Lareen Angle

LUBBOCK — Lareen Angle, 78, of Lubbock, died Sunday, Nov. 29, in her home following a lengthy illness. She was the mother of Paula Randel of Midland.

Services were conducted Wednesday, Dec. 2, at the First Christian Church in Lubbock with the Rev. Dudley Strain officiating. Arrangements were handled by Sanders Funeral Home in Lubbock.

She was born on Sept. 14, 1909, in Meridian, Miss. In 1933 she married the late Clarence Angle in Longview.

She was an active member of the First Christian Church where she taught Sunday school. She was also a member of a women's business group in Lubbock.

Survivors include one other daughter, Anna McDonald of Texarkana; three sons, Bill Angle of Merrit, Penn., Jake Angle of Houston and Steve Angle of Washington, D.C.; two sisters; nine grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to the American Cancer Society.

Cecil Kidwell

DALLAS — Cecil Kidwell, 51, of Dallas, formerly of Midland, died Thursday at a hospital in Dallas.

Services were to be at 9:30 today at Restland Wildwood Chapel in Dallas with graveside services set for 10 a.m. Monday in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Restland Funeral Home in Dallas.

He was born March 12, 1936, in Odessa and was a resident of Midland from 1950-68. He was an employee of Gulf Building for several years.

Survivors include one son, Curtis Kidwell of Plantation, Fla.; one daughter, Robin Kidwell of Dallas; two brothers, Jim Kidwell of Knoxville, Tenn., and Garland B. "Gary" Kidwell of Fort Worth; and one sister, Jean Kidwell McDaniel of Brownwood.

Vera Blaythe Key

BROWNFIELD — Vera Blaythe Key, 83, of Brownfield died Friday in a Brownfield hospital following a lengthy illness. She was the mother of Geraldine "Jerry" Edwards of Midland.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Brownwood Church of Christ with burial following in Brownwood cemetery.

She was born on May 13, 1904.

Other survivors include two sons, Sammy Key of Brownfield and Tress Key of Phoenix, Ariz.; two sisters, Marie Blake of Lubbock and Margorie Nowell; two brothers, J.W. Moore and Don Moore; 13 grandchildren; 21 great-grandchildren; and three great-great grandchildren.

New Jersey firm recalls ornament fire extinguisher

AUSTIN (AP) — A New Jersey company that is voluntarily recalling from Texas stores an ornament designed to extinguish Christmas tree fires says the product is safe and predicts that its sale in Texas will be allowed next year.

The Texas attorney general's office said safety concerns over a fire-extinguishing chemical in the ornament prompted it to seek the recall at the request of the state fire marshal.

But Paul Binder, media director for Future Fire Suppression Inc. of Somerville, N.J., said earlier this week the ornament is being sold in many other states and has been certified by an independent testing laboratory, although not one accepted by Texas officials.

"Future Fire Suppression Inc. has an accredited third-party testing certification which is not recognized by the state of Texas. We are confident that this certification will be accepted in Texas in 1988," Binder said in a telephone interview.

Monday, Attorney General Jim Mattox announced that the company had agreed to recall its product, Fire Knock-Out, a Christmas tree ornament that contained the fire-extinguishing chemical Halon 2402.

Binder said Wednesday that the company agreed voluntarily to remove the product from stores in Texas, but he also said the company believes the product is safe.

"The company enjoys significant cooperation from the various state and local fire marshals. Occasionally, a fire marshal can be reluctant to accept Fire Knock-Out due to state regulatory requirements or testing data which they are not aware has been updated," said a statement issued by the company.

State taxes become even more complicated Jan. 1

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas taxes become more complicated Jan. 1, when sales taxes increase between one-half cent and 1 cent in dozens of areas around the state to generate additional revenue for property tax relief.

Taking advantage of legislation enacted last year to ease property tax burdens, voters in 60 cities and 87 counties have opted to increase the sales tax by a half-cent, shifting a portion of the tax load from property owners to retail customers.

"We've got some good news and some bad news. The good news is taxes are going down, and the bad news is taxes are going up," said Jack Hayden, a tax information officer for the state comptroller's office.

"Or you could say, you are getting a tax decrease, which you are paying for with a tax increase. It's a confusing situation," Hayden said.

The state sales tax rate is 6 percent. Most cities levy an additional 1 percent. Several larger cities charge another penny to pay for bus systems, bringing sales tax rates there to 8 percent.

Under the new law, cities without transit authorities and counties that do not have them overlapping their boundaries can add an extra one-half cent to the tax, driving it to between 7½ cents and 8 cents in many areas, officials said.

While the law was designed to replace one tax with another, it could backfire in areas with large amounts of absentee ownership, Hayden said. The absentee property owner will get a property tax break, even though he or she might not spend any money there on retail sales, he said.

The varying tax rates also could change shopping habits for consumers in the market for high-priced merchandise, such as television sets or furniture, when it might be cheaper to buy the items in nearby areas instead of their own.

The law is designed to provide property tax relief, but Debbie Wheeler, research and information director for the State Property Tax Board, said there is no guarantee that property taxes will drop.

Task force addresses 'fear-inducing disease'

HOUSTON (AP) — The staggering medical costs of AIDS patients will continue to increase, posing serious financial questions to state and private agencies, members of a legislative task force said Friday.

"AIDS affects us all, it's a fear-inducing disease," the Rev. Chris Steele, chairwoman of the 17-member task force, said at the group's first meeting. "AIDS affects us all, because it is, above all, a public health crisis."

The state Legislative Task Force on AIDS is responsible for assessing the current and anticipated economic burden of AIDS in Texas; studying ways to develop resources to care for AIDS patients; defining the state's role in financing the cost; studying alternative methods of financing; and reporting its findings to the Texas Legislature.

"Our charge is clear and it's awesome and there is much to be done," Ms. Steele told members meeting at the University of Texas Medical Center in Houston.

Included on the task force are state legislators and private health care officials. Many expressed the need for education to prevent further infection, as well as the need to help care for those stricken with acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The committee held its meeting on the same day that the nation's only hospital devoted to the care of AIDS patients officially closed its doors. The Institute for Immunological Disorders in Houston closed after losing $8 million in its 14 months of operations.

Dr. Adan Rios, who was director of the hospital's oncology department and is a member of the task force, said education, prevention and research are important, but so is patient care.

Rios, who became emotional while commenting to the panel, said AIDS also appears to be a human rights issue, and the group needs to discuss the right to proper care and insurance.

AIDS attacks the body's immune system, leaving it susceptible to life-threatening diseases. It is thought to be spread mainly through sexual contact, shared hypodermic needles and from infected mothers to their infants before or during birth, or through breast milk.

Dr. Robert Bernstein, commissioner of the Texas Department of Health and an ex-officio member of the panel, said the number of AIDS cases in Texas totals 3,413. About 60 percent of victims have died.

"Last February, with lots of 'ifs,' we forecast a total of 16,000 cases in Texas by the end of 1991, with about one-third of them still alive and in need of medical and social services," he said.

"I now believe that survival will improve, but that will mean even more persons in need of those services, but I am hopeful, with less intensity and cost than now."

Dr. Robert J. Awe, who works at Harris County's Jefferson Davis Hospital, said the 16-bed unit for AIDS patients is full and there are other AIDS patients being treated but not hospitalized. As more cases develop, the burden of caring for them will shift to county facilities, Awe said.

"We just don't have the beds or the money to do it right now," he said.

State Rep. Billy Clemons provided the most controversial remarks of the morning session, saying some people he had talked to were not anxious to care for victims afflicted with a disease that has been primarily spread through homosexual contact and intravenous drug use.

"Both of which (actions) are illegal in the state of Texas," Clemons added.

Clemons questioned if money was well spent on educating low-risk groups such as children in school. He also said he supported voluntary testing of high risk groups.

"Drastic and even radical steps may have to be taken," said the Democrat from Pollok, who said he did not favor mandatory testing, and supports some state financial help for AIDS victims.

But State Rep. Mike McKinney, the only physician in the Legislature, said he hopes the task force doesn't succumb to public opinion or become "bashers." He also noted that there are other self-inflicted health problems — such as smoking and alcohol-related diseases — that are covered by insurance.

TEAMS passing rate drops as passing score raised

AUSTIN (AP) — The passing rate on the state's high school exit-level exam dropped this year but only because the passing score was increased, an education official said Friday.

In 1986, 83 percent of 11th-graders passed both the English and math portions of the TEAMS test, which students must pass to get a high school diploma.

This year, only 72 percent of the students who took the test in October passed both parts.

Marvin Veselka, the Texas Education Agency's assistant commissioner for assessment and evaluation, said the change was anticipated when the State Board of Education in July raised the passing score on the math portion.

On last year's test, students only had to correctly answer 39 of the 72 math questions. This year, it took 50 correct answers to pass. The passing score on the English portion remained at 50 this year.

"The overall test performance actually did increase during the past year, but because of the much tougher passing standards the passing rate is down," Veselka said.

Overall, the average score on the English section remained at 785, the same as last year. The average math test score increased from last year's 760 to 769 this year.

The TEAMS test, mandated by the education reforms of 1984, is given in odd-numbered years.

DOE backs bill to sell federal-owned oil fields

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department sent to Congress draft legislation Friday to sell almost all of two government-owned oil fields in California and Wyoming.

Proceeds would be used to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

The two fields should bring about $4 billion, the department estimated. At current prices, that would buy 220 million barrels of oil — approximately the difference between the 540 million barrels now in storage in the strategic reserve and the 750 million barrels planned.

The administration has proposed selling the oil fields in its last two budgets, but this is the first time it has proposed the necessary legislation.

Spokesman Bob Porter said the department hoped its proposal could be used to meet part of the deficit reduction goals of the budget agreement the administration reached with Congress that calls for the raising of $8.5 billion through the sale of assets.

He said the House and Senate conference committees on the major spending bill should be able to consider counting sale of the oil fields if enabling legislation is pending.

The two fields are the Elk Hills field near Bakersfield, Calif., which produces more than 110,000 barrels a day, and the nearly depleted Teapot Dome field near Casper, Wyo., famous as the subject of a 1920s scandal that saw an interior secretary go to prison. The government owns 78 percent of Elk Hills and the field operator, Chevron Corp., owns the rest.

The legislation calls for earmarking sale proceeds for the Treasury account used to buy oil for the strategic reserve in salt domes on the Texas and Louisiana Gulf coasts.

The administration agreed earlier this year to support filling that reserve at 100,000 barrels a day, roughly three times the rate it had previously wanted and about half again as much as Congress recently had been requiring, if a source of financing could be found.

The legislation also calls for establishing a 10-million-barrel supply in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve under the control of the Defense Department. "This is the amount they asked for," said Porter.

Gorbachev 'stubborn' on rights, Wiesel says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The superpower summit yielded little to encourage human rights activists who had hoped that Soviet Leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev might use the occasion to signal a new policy toward Jews trying to leave his country.

"He was ready to listen, to change, become softer on certain issues. But when it came to the Soviet Jewish question, he was stubborn, refusing any gesture," Nobel laureate Elie Wiesel said in an interview Friday.

The joint statement issued by Gorbachev and President Reagan at the conclusion of the summit had only one line about human rights — a sentence that said the matter had been discussed thoroughly and candidly.

"I will be encouraged when I see some results. Right now I don't see any," said Vladimir Bravve, an ex-refusenik who is trying to win permission for his parents to join him and his cancer-stricken sister in Rochester, N.Y. "I can only hope that something will change," he said.

David Harris, the American Jewish Committee's Washington representative and coordinator of last weekend's massive rally on behalf of Soviet Jews, said there is some disappointment at "the apparent lack of progress."

But he said that U.S. persistence has made human rights an integral and routine part of high-level discussions among Soviet and American officials — an achievement in itself.

In earlier days, Harris said, former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and his successor, George P. Shultz, "faced a hostile foreign minister (Andrei) Gromyko who would not even utter a syllable on these human rights issues when the Americans raised the question. Now we're at a point where there is discussion — obviously at times acrimonious, and not always fruitful, but it is a step forward."

Reagan took the same tack at a meeting Friday with out-of-town reporters, telling them that U.S. pressure and discussions were helping to increase the numbers of exit visas granted and political prisoners released.

"At the same time, we've got a long way to go on this whole matter of total emigration," Reagan said. "They don't think they're violating any human rights. They think we are."

Harris placed the blame for any lack of progress "squarely at the doorstep of the Kremlin," but Wiesel said the United States should have taken a tougher stance and linked human rights to arms control.

"Because of the desire on both sides to reach agreement on the nuclear issue, I think probably the tragedy of so many Soviet Jews and other dissidents did not get a proper hearing," said Wiesel. "It was a matter of discussion, I'm sure. But how much pressure was applied? Once the two issues were not linked...the leverage was gone."

Wiesel said he was skeptical about Gorbachev's "new path" and zeal for arms control.

"Compassion for billions of people is very nice," he said. "But that's an abstraction. There are concrete cases. There are human lives, people who have names, faces, destinies. I would like him to have compassion for them, too."

He and others suggested there is no better way for the Soviets to prove themselves trustworthy treaty partners than to fulfill their international human rights obligations.

Bush won't apologize for taking Iowans to Gorbachev

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Vice President George Bush said Friday he won't apologize for inviting residents of early presidential campaign states Iowa and New Hampshire to meet Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"Let the political opponents take some shots," Bush said upon arriving here for a two-day presidential campaign trip.

Bush's comments came in response to a question about grumbling by rival Republican presidential campaigns that Bush had used his position as vice president to gain political advantage during Gorbachev's trip to Washington to sign a weapons treaty with President Reagan.

"I kind of resent it that because somebody's from Iowa and happens to be a friend of mine, that he shouldn't be included," Bush said.

Bush selected five Americans to meet with Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, at the Soviet Embassy on Thursday. Included were New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu, who chairs Bush's presidential campaign in that state, former Iowa Rep. Cooper Evans and Robert Brooks, principal of West Des Moines Valley High School.

Iowa and New Hampshire are sites of key early tests of the 1988 presidential nominating race, and some of the other Republican presidential candidates said it was no coincidence that those states were prominent on Bush's guest list.

"Iowans are not going to be taken in by this public relations campaign," New York Rep. Jack Kemp said at a Cedar Rapids news conference Friday.

In Des Moines, Bush said the five people he invited were there for reasons other than politics and each spoke with Gorbachev on a specific area of expertise. He said Sununu is chairman of the National Governors Association and an expert on energy issues; Evans is involved in grain export quality and farm trade issues; and Brooks told the Gorbachevs about U.S. education.

"I thought it was very good, and it gave Mr. Gorbachev a way of communicating with five people out from around the country that I don't think he got in any of those big business meetings," Bush said.

Bush said Iowans were perhaps more keenly interested than residents of other states in this week's visit by Gorbachev.

Chicken soup's ties with Jewish moms vindicated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Court of Historical Review and Appeals, which rules on such questions as the origins of the martini and the fortune cookie, has decided that chicken soup deserves its reputation as "Jewish penicillin."

Testifying earlier this week in defense of the favored elixir of generations of Jewish mothers, Dr. Michael Le Noir of the University of California Medical School said chicken soup indeed has medical benefits, especially when fighting colds.

"Although I am not sure if I got well because of the soup or because what my mother made tasted so awful I didn't want to drink anymore," he added.

Public Defender Jeff Brown, representing the opposition at the mock trial, argued that the Greeks, Italians and Chinese all used chicken soup in time of illness.

Municipal Judge George Choppelas seemed swayed, however, by testimony from Joel Brooks, executive director of the American Jewish Congress, who cited the 12th century physician and rabbi Maimonides as saying chicken soup was "very good for you, but bad for the chicken."

The chicken's side of the issue was dramatized by actor Wyman Spalding, who came costumed as a Rhode Island Red and pleaded with the audience to eat vegetables, not poultry.

He was asked by attorney Frank Winston, who argued in favor of the Jewish penicillin ruling, "Why did the chicken cross the road?"

Main Haitian presidential candidates demand resignation of junta leader

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The four main presidential candidates demanded Friday that Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy resign and they rejected his junta's election plans.

Namphy's interim government took control of elections when the first free vote in 30 years was stopped after only three hours of balloting Nov. 29 by men with machine guns and machetes who slaughtered 34 people and wounded 75. Soldiers did nothing to stop the killing, and some joined in.

The major presidential candidates, Marc Bazin, Gerard Gourgue, Louis Dejoie and Sylvio Claude, said in their first joint statement:

"The...measures taken by the government clearly show once again its intention to establish itself in power unconstitutionally, illegally and in total disregard of the public, and to lead the country into catastrophe."

"The four signed parties...demand the immediate resignation of the CNG (Governing National Council)...We have already begun talks to propose an alternate government that could ensure a transition to democracy," said the statement, which was broadcast by radio stations Friday.

In a brief message on state-run television Friday night, the junta said it named a new nine-member Electoral Council to supervise elections Jan. 17. None of the appointees appeared to be well-known and no biographical information was given. The three-man junta dissolved the independent Electoral Council that coordinated the Nov. 29 elections during the election-day violence.

The junta named Joseph Azor, a medical doctor; attorneys Jean Gilbert, Frederic Baudin, Max Michaud; agronomist Elie Laroche, and Jean Brito, Lucien Jean Bernard, Samuel Charles, Clement Maurice Barthelmy to the new electoral council.

Azor, 53, said in a telephone interview he did not know why he was chosen.

"I don't know the criteria used in selecting us, but in my case I know it must be honesty and incorruptibility they were looking for," he said. "If the government tries to influence me, I would resign. It would be easier to kill me than to buy me."

The four presidential candidates, the Roman Catholic church and members of the previous Electoral Council established as an autonomous agency by the new constitution blamed the election-day carnage on the army.

In St. Louis 'everything old is new again'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — As the song goes, "Everything Old Is New Again," and St. Louis has taken these words to heart and put them to work.

For example, St. Louis Union Station: Years ago, the magnificent Romanesque-style building was among the busiest train stations in the world. Today, it is a vibrant, bustling urban marketplace where people browse, shop and eat at the 120 shops and restaurants.

It's a place where visitors, drawn by the rich smell of chocolate, gather to participate in a seemingly impromptu show with employees of a fudge store, dancing, clapping and singing as they paddle huge slabs of chocolate on marble countertops.

Strolling entertainers, some recounting the history of the station, offer a less caloric form of entertainment. Outside, underneath an 11-acre train shed, couples take romantic boat rides across a man-made lake or unwind with music at the German Biergarten on the shores of the lake.

By day, the sun gleams off the shining hull of the S.S. Admiral, permanently moored on the bank of the Mississippi River. By night, the boat lights up the riverfront with multicolored neon.

The Admiral, like Union Station, is a part of St. Louis' heritage that recently has undergone an extensive renovation.

Inside, children marvel at the life-like animation of the piano-playing, banjo-picking birds in the Birdland Theater. Adults dance to big band music in the elegant Grand Ballroom.

Casually dressed people, headed for the 1920s-style radio show in Lindy's Cabaret, mingle with those a bit more dressed up going to dinner in the Admiral's Crystal Terrace, an elegant restaurant with a spectacular view of the St. Louis skyline and the Mississippi River.

"Awe-inspiringly fashioned after Hindoo Mosques of Old India, bewildering in their richness and dazzling in their appointments." That's how reporters reacted to the opening of St. Louis' Fox Theater in 1919. And today, after being restored to its former glory at a cost of more than $2 million, the Fox features classic movies, some with music by the theater's original organ, and live performances by top-name stars.

There is talk, too, of renovating some of the other historic theaters along Grand Avenue, which long ago was considered the "Broadway" of the Midwest.

Many other renovated attractions dot the entire St. Louis area, but this doesn't mean that St. Louis is concentrating only on bringing back the past, says Jack Walsh, president of the St. Louis Convention & Visitors Commission.

A multibillion-dollar expansion plan is in effect, he points out, one that already has realized the construction of many new attractions, hotels, corporate offices and shopping malls.

These join St. Louis' already lengthy list of visitor attractions.

Teen claims harassment after teacher kills himself

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A teen-ager says she is being harassed after the teacher she accused of making sexual advances toward her hanged himself.

"I get phone calls at night," the 15-year-old girl said in an interview published Friday in the San Antonio Express-News. "All my friends are telling me that they hear other students want to beat me up and kill me."

The teen-ager, in a complaint filed with police last week, accused science teacher Phillip Sharrock, 41, of making sexual advances toward her. Sharrock was found hanged Monday in a storage area of his classroom at Harlandale High School, hours before police were to talk to him about the complaints.

Man ordered to pay bank

LUBBOCK (AP) — A judge has ordered Lubbock cattleman Jim Kassahn to pay $421,000 to First RepublicBank Lubbock for a loan default.

In a summary judgment issued Thursday, 140th District Court Judge William Shaver ordered Kassahn to repay a $394,000 loan made in May to his cattle company, J.P.'s Family Inc., plus $27,000 in interest and attorney's fees.

Kassahn had signed a $1 million personal guaranty in 1985 covering his business debts, according to the bank.

Kassahn was sued in August by Amarillo's First National Bank for $13 million in a loan fraud case. He is accused of misrepresenting ownership of 37,000 head of cattle in area feedlots.

After the suit was filed, Kassahn's assets, estimated at more than $36 million, were placed in a court-ordered receivership. He filed for bankruptcy, and his case was transferred to Dallas because Kassahn is acquainted with U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Akard of Lubbock.

Arson cited in school fire

AMARILLO (AP) — Arson caused a raging fire that gutted the administrative offices of the Amarillo Independent School District, fire investigators said Friday.

After ruling out all accidental causes of the early Thursday blaze, officials said they believe the fire started in the northwest area of the building in an office reception area.

Greg Taylor, fire investigator with the city's fire prevention unit, said his office will begin investigating suspects Monday.

He said the fire, in which school officials estimate caused losses of between $2.5 million and $3 million, is the largest arson-related blaze since November 1984, when a shopping center burned.

Clean air deadline extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved an amendment Friday extending a Dec. 31 deadline for 70 metropolitan areas nationwide — including five in Texas — to meet federal air pollution standards.

Of the Texas areas, Dallas-Fort Worth is the only one under the threat of federal economic sanctions. Other areas not in compliance with the standards are Houston-Galveston, Longview-Marshall, Beaumont-Port Arthur and El Paso.

The measure, passed by voice vote, would extend for eight months the Clean Air Act deadline for cities to reduce emissions of carbon monoxide and smog-producing ozone to healthy levels.

The extension, to Aug. 31, 1988, would prevent the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency from imposing sanctions during the period against any of the 70 metropolitan areas and cities that EPA says will miss the deadline.

On the Senate floor, Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas sought and received assurances from the chairman of the environmental protection subcommittee, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, that he will "seek another short-term extension during this Congress if the Congress fails to enact clean air legislation during this short-term extension."

Record-high temperatures give way to cold

From Staff and Wire Reports

While a 39-year-old record high temperature was broken Friday when the temperature hit 84, snow is possible tonight through Tuesday, forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport said.

One year ago Friday, three inches of snow fell in Midland, according to the weather service.

Today should be cloudy and colder with a 20 percent chance of rain mixed with snow.

The high should be in the low 50s and gusty winds should be in from the northeast at 10-20 mph.

Tonight should be cloudy and colder with a 20 percent chance of rain mixed with snow. The low should be in the low 30s.

Sunday should be cloudy and cold with a 20 percent chance of rain mixed with snow. The high should be near 40.

The weather service's extended forecast for Monday and Tuesday calls for cloudy weather and snow.

NATION

Clear skies were reported over Texas on Friday after clouds and fog moved out of South Texas.

A slow-moving cold front dipped into Central Texas, but the cold air was well behind and didn't affect most of the state until Friday night.

Although the cold front has moved into the state, Friday's temperatures were more typical of spring. Readings in the 90s in deep South Texas were offset only by temperatures in the 50s in the Panhandle. Mid-afternoon temperatures ranged from 52 at Dalhart to 90 at McAllen and Laredo.

NATION

Unseasonably mild weather prevailed across much of the nation Friday, but a chill was in store for the weekend, including a forecast of crop-damaging cold in southern California.

The temperature climbed into the 60s and 70s over a broad area from the southern Plains to the southern Atlantic Coast.

Freeze warnings were posted through Monday night over the San Diego area, where temperatures were expected to drop to around 20 degrees by Sunday night, cold enough to cause significant crop damage.

A low pressure over southwest Ontario generated strong winds from Montana and Wyoming across the northern half of the Plains, where a gust to 62 mph was clocked at Riverton, Wyo., and to more than 50 mph at Bismarck, N.D., Rapid City, S.D., and Philip, S.D.

Slings and arrows find mark and hurt, Landry admits

By DAVID GINSBURG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Being criticized comes with the job, says Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. But that doesn't mean it doesn't hurt.

Landry has come under fire lately as his 5-7 team moves closer to its second consecutive losing season. Bum Bright, the Cowboys' principal owner, has openly questioned Landry's ability, and Dallas columnists have also started knocking the only head coach in the history of the franchise.

"It hurts anyone to be criticized," said Landry. "But you have to remember that a lot of people in Texas have suffered a lot of setbacks lately. Dollars are being lost by a lot of people."

And the Cowboys are losing more games than their fans are accustomed to. Dallas, once the kingpin of the NFC East, will try to snap a three-game losing streak Sunday when they face the Washington Redskins, who have already wrapped up the division crown.

Landry, who has been on the sidelines for each of the 55 previous meetings between the longtime rivals, still enjoys his job despite the headaches that accompany losing.

"You just have to learn how to handle the down side," he said. "It's a matter of how tough you are."

Dallas' difficulties reached a peak last week in a 21-10 loss to 2-9 Atlanta before the smallest crowd in Texas Stadium history. Afterward, one Dallas columnist predicted the Cowboys would lose the rest of their games and another called the team's situation "hopeless."

Washington, meanwhile, has enough problems of its own to feel sorry for Landry's plight. The Redskins are 9-3, but they appear to have fallen into a distressing habit of playing only one half of football per outing.

Two weeks ago Washington used a 23-point second-half rally to edge the New York Giants, and last week the Redskins fought back from a 17-10 deficit to beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Our football team has been the type that can lose to anyone on any particular Sunday unless we play extremely well," said Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs. "We want to play well and put together a full game, which we haven't done in a long time."

Washington needs victories in its last three games to have a realistic shot at hosting at least one playoff contest. That, plus the desire to build some momentum toward the playoffs, is plenty of motivation.

Redskin running back George Rogers, who enjoyed only his second 100-yard day of the season last week, is hardly expecting the Cowboys to merely go through the motions Sunday.

"They haven't won a big game in awhile and they got their feelings hurt last week, so they'll want to come in here and redeem themselves," Rogers said. "They think that if they beat us, they'll get back some respect."

The Cowboys, who lost to the Redskins in a replacement game, will be trying to avoid being swept by Washington for the first time since 1984.

Dallas, which has been plagued by injuries all year, lost middle linebacker Eugene Lockhart for the season when he broke his leg against Atlanta. His place will likely be taken by rookie Ron Burton.

And veteran Cowboys' defensive tackle Randy White may not start because of a pinched nerve. His replacement would be Danny Noonan, the Cowboys first-round draft pick from Nebraska.

Washington is also hurting. Wide receiver Art Monk is gone at least until the playoffs with a knee injury, and running backs Kelvin Bryant and Keith Griffin, who play in passing situations, both missed planty of practice time this week.

Danny White will start for the Cowboys in place of the injured Steve Pelluer. White has thrown 10 touchdowns this season, but has been intercepted 16 times.

Greenwood girls suffer first defeat

From Staff Reports

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Rangerettes suffered their first basketball loss of the season here Friday night as the Brownfield Cubs rallied in the fourth quarter to stage a 39-35 non-conference upset on foreign hardwood.

Greenwood is now 7-1 on the season while Brownfield is 7-3. Both are Class 3A teams. Brownfield will be back at Greenwood next weekend for Greenwood's tournament and the two could possibly face each other again.

Greenwood held a meager 16-14 lead at the half, but seemed to have things under control after three periods of play when the Rangerettes grabbed a 30-22 lead. Brownfield, however, outscored Greenwood by a 17-5 margin in the final period to take the win.

Cheryl Swoops led Brownfield with 15 points while Becky Chaffin added 10. Greenwood's Cheryl Martin had 14 points, but no other Rangerette got into double figures.

The Greenwood boys were idle Friday, but both the Rangers and Rangerettes will travel to Chaparral Center Monday for 6:15 and 8 p.m. matchups with Class 5A Midland High in a rare boys and girls doubleheader in Midland. The Greenwood boys are undefeated this year.

Brownfield (39): Becky Chaffin 5-0-10, Cheryl Swoops 6-3-15, Cindy Flood 1-2-4, Debra Williams 2-2-6, Suzanne Wheatley 1-0-2, Leslie Garcia 0-2-2. Totals: 15-9-39.

Greenwood (35): Sheryl Moellering 2-0-4, Denisa McMullan 1-5-7, Tina Blackwell 3-1-7, Cheryl Martin 7-0-14, Robbie McCollum 0-1-1, Tiffany Long 1-0-2. Totals: 14-7-35.

Mets, Yanks to play

DALLAS (AP) -- The New York Yankees and the New York Mets will resume playing each other during spring training in 1989, ending a four-year hiatus.

The teams have not played each other in spring training since 1985, just before the Mets began their resurgance and overtook the Yankees in attendance.

Plano vs. Permian

Kickoff today 2 p.m. at Ratliff

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

ODESSA — It's Plano Mystique versus Mojo Magic.

It's a battle of the state's two most legendary 5A high school football teams and it will all take place at 2 p.m. Saturday in Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

It's been a number of years since a bigger game has taken place right here in West Texas. And you could hardly ask for a better match-up. Plano, 14-0 and on the wings of a mystical 26-game winning streak, and Odessa Permian, 11-1-1, the magical underdog and overachiever.

Between them are nine state championships, 14 championship appearances and more legends, fables, myths, magic and mystique than a medieval fair. And it certainly will be a carnival-like atmosphere when these two Class 5A titans clash for the right to advance to the state championship.

"We're excited just to be in the semifinals, but to host a team with Plano's reputation is something special," said second-year Permian Coach Gary Gaines.

Both teams cemented their reputations for other-worldly powers with desperate, dramatic, come-from-behind victories in the quarterfinals last weekend. Permian in a 35-all tie with Arlington by advancing on first downs, and Plano with a length-of-the field last minute drive to nip Cypress-Fairbanks, 24-21.

But both Gaines and Plano's Tom Kimbrough would rather downplay their team's unearthly reputations, pointing instead to the talent that has helped them get this far.

"It's easy to come down off your cloud after watching some film of these guys," Gaines said. "Midland Lee and Arlington, the two teams we've had trouble defending, have both had big lines and power offensive attacks. And Plano is even bigger, so we're very concerned."

HISTORY TELLS us this game should be a defensive struggle. Mojo and Plano have met twice, both times in the semifinals, and both times neither side scored a touchdown. It was 3-0 in the 1977 game, and 6-3 in the 1978 contest.

But that could all change Saturday afternoon as both teams boast high-powered offensive machines.

What concerns Kimbrough most is the potent running back combination the Panthers have used to chew up opponents this season. Shawn Crow is District 4-5A's only runner in history to pass 2,000 yards with 2,153 and stablemate James Miles' 1,300-plus yards gave the Panthers their first-ever backfield of 1,000-yard rushers.

"Crow and Miles form the best backfield in the state," Kimbrough said. "Crow is as good as I've seen in high school football and I'm sure he'll be all-state. Miles will probably be all-state next year if not this year.

Lee, MHS girls advance

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

At least the ugly part is over as far as the Tall City Girls Invitational basketball tournament at Chaparral Center is concerned. Now attention can be given to some serious hoop action.

First round action Friday featured two exciting games and two games that shouldn't have been allowed to be played in the first place. But that's life in this tournament.

Midland Lee and Midland High advanced to today's championship bracket by beating up on their little sisters. Lee won a 63-18 punch-in-the-nose over the Lee junior varsity while Midland High took a 57-23 in-the-face-disgrace over the MHS JV. Certainly not victories to brag about. At least there wasn't an upset. Now that would have been embarrassing.

The two junior varsity teams helped fill out the eight-team field, and as expected, dropped out of the tournament later Friday with the MHS JV losing to Lovington, N.M., 81-24, and the Lee JV losing to El Paso Irvin, 67-35, in late games Friday night.

"We would certainly rather have all varsity teams in the tournament," said Lee coach Shirley Stephenson, "but there are a lot of tournaments this weekend and some teams have already started district play. We just couldn't get eight teams.

"Still, I feel like you really help these junior varsity kids when you play them against this kind of competition. They will learn a lot from the experience."

Tall City

But it would seem that this tournament should be used to get the varsity teams needed competition since District 4-5A play begins Friday.

"It's really hard to get your team up to play a junior varsity team," said MHS coach Jane Young. "Our girls didn't show much enthusiasm on the floor. However, I saw some good things from Elizabeth Ameel and Cathy Yerby."

The Lady Bulldogs didn't even play three players with Robin Landreth, LaShauna Bradley and Sheryl Spirling on the sidelines for disciplinary reasons. Landreth and Spirling are starters.

Ameel led MHS with 16 points while Kim Jackson and Yerby each had 12 points. That was a career high for Yerby. Patricia McMaryion, who had 10 points, was one of three of the MHS JV players to score in the game.

Lee's Lady Rebels got a game high 12 points from Monica Ramirez and 11 from Ronnie Sandoval as eleven of the twelve Rebels scored. None of the Lee JV players hit in double figures, but five players did score.

The other two games saved the day with some nail-biting performances. Del Rio nipped Lovington by a 50-47 margin with Laura Lissner leading the way with 18 points and Laura Brown with 11. Lovington go 16 points from Cathe Crow and 13 from Ruth Brown.

With Lovington trailing 15-8, coach Brad McCoy told his team during a timeout, "If you don't get it together, you'll be playing a JV team tonight."

Lovington didn't quite get it together, failing to catch Del Rio in a fourth quarter rally. And they did end up playing against the MHS JV.

Lutheran quits...

SEGUIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Lutheran College, a small school which captured two national football titles in the mid-1970s, has dropped its football program because of financial problems, school officials said Friday.

TLC President Dr. Charles Oestreich said the school would have needed an additional $100,000 to supplement its current $65,000 football operating budget and $186,000 scholarship commitment.

Glanville happy for Saints and fans, but Sunday....

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It's "laissez le bon temps rouler" for Cajun America's team, and Houston Oilers Coach Jerry Glanville said he could enjoy that on any other weekend of the season.

"I think I'm a Saints fan — down the road. I'm happy for them. Their fans really deserve this. We're going to have a heck of ball game on Sunday," he said in a telephone conference call.

The Oilers, 7-5, are tied for the lead in the AFC Central, needing to win every game to win a first-ever division championship. The Saints, 9-3, have clinched a first-ever playoff berth to go with a first-ever winning season and stand one game behind San Francisco in the NFC West.

Oilers

The Saints' six-game winning streak is the longest active streak in the NFL. The Superdome is sold out for the third straight home game, and, as the Cajun expression says, "Let the good times roll."

"The stadium's going to be rocking," Glanville said. "I'm real happy for the organization and the fans.

"When I was in Atlanta (as defensive coordinator) and used to go there every year, I used to think that if you're going to win, New Orleans would be the city to do it in, because they have great fans."

Glanville is in his second season of trying to restore the Oilers to the heady days of "Luv Ya Blue." Houston fans, who grew used to winning during that era, are waiting to see if he can do it.

"When we play, it doesn't matter what we've done, there's going to be a hard core of 30,000 people. The rest of the 3.5 million are waiting to see if we're for real. Our loyal fans come. The rest are waiting to see if we are any good," he said.

"It's different in New Orleans. When they were losing, they were going to be there and let you know they were for their football team. They haven't changed since I've been in the league, and I was coaching when they were in old Tulane Stadium."

The Oilers beat the Saints 16-13 in preseason, but Glanville said that really doesn't mean anything.

"Every time we play a Jim Mora team in the preseason, I think he works them very hard, and they're real tired," he said.

The Oilers are banged up. They were without so many defensive backs that they blitzed on almost every down in last week's victory over San Diego, and their receiver corps was so depleted that the Oilers could use their four-wide-receiver set only sparingly.

In addition, quarterback Warren Moon has a sore shoulder that has limited his practice time severely.

The Saints beat Tampa Bay last week, but gave up 389 passing yards to Vinny Testaverde in his first start.

"I think what happens is you get way ahead, and you play different coverages," Glanville said. "You're playing so you don't give up the big touchdown, so you let people go ahead and throw, and you want to run the clock down. I think everybody in the league does that.

"When the game's close, they're going to be playing different. Those holes and gaps aren't going to be there when the game's close."

Moon and his talented corps of receivers have the Oilers ranked 10th in the NFL in passing offense.

"I'm worried about their passing game," Mora said. "They have five really good receivers. You take the five, and I don't know if they'll all be active or not, but as a group, they may be the best group we've played against."

The Saints got a rush on Testaverde, hurried him often, but got only got three sacks. Defensive coordinator Steve Sidwell said he counted five times that the Saints got their hands on Testaverde and couldn't bring him down. After five, he said, he stopped counting.

Mora said Moon is as mobile as Testaverde, when he's healthy.

"Warren is an excellent thrower. He's an excellent athlete and he can run. He hasn't scrambled around as much in the past couple of weeks, maybe because of the shoulder," Mora said.

"He's dangerous."

Texas defeats Pan Am as Nassar hits for 27

AUSTIN (AP) — Junior postman Jose Nassar scored a career-high 27 points to lead Texas to a 75-62 win over Pan American in the first round of the fourth annual Texas Classic Friday night.

The Longhorns improved to 4-2, while the Broncos fell to 2-2. Utah State faced Murray State in the second game Friday night.

Nassar, a transfer from Brazil, led a Longhorn team that shot 60 percent from the field with a 12-for-20 showing from the floor.

Sophomore guard Travis Mays followed Nassar with 19 points and was a perfect 6-for-6 from both the field and the line, while Alvin Heggs added 16 points.

The Longhorns built a 12-point lead late in the first half, but the Broncos halved that by halftime, 34-28.

Texas went up 45-32 on a Nassar tip-in with only 4:06 gone in the second half, but Pan American, led by Lee Boddie, pulled to within four with 10:56 left in the game.

Boddie paced the Broncos with 18 points, including 4-of-6 accuracy from 3-point range.

After a pair of 10-foot jumpers by Mays and a steal by point-guard Courtney Jeans, the Longhorns went up again by 12 with 7:55 remaining and Pan American could get no closer than nine the rest of the way.

Dimmitt rally nips Rebels

From Staff Reports

LEVELLAND — Midland Lee dropped its third straight game here Friday night as Class 3A Dimmitt rallied in the fourth quarter for a 74-68 win.

The Rebels, who fell to Class 4A Lamesa and Andrews earlier this week, were tied with the Bobcats heading into the final period. But James Alexander keyed a 26-20 fourth-quarter splurge to give Dimmitt its 10th win against two losses.

Alexander led Dimmitt with 24 points.

Damon Clay's 25 points led Lee while Calvin Gary scored 17 and Darren Dortch added 14. The Rebels fell to 6-4. Lee will return to action Tuesday night at Chaparral Center against Seminole.

Indiana rips James Madison

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Rick Calloway scored 10 of his 16 points in the first nine minutes to spark No. 6 Indiana over James Madison 84-52 Friday night in the opening game of the 14th Indiana Classic.

Indiana, 4-1, will play either Washington State or Indiana State in Saturday's title game as it seeks to win the tournament for the 14th time.

Ex-Rebs at ENMU honored

From Staff Reports

PORTALES, N.M.— Eastern New Mexico University defensive backs Mike Wallace and Andre Mayfield, a couple of Midland Lee High grads, were picked on the All-Lone Star Conference football team.

Wallace, a 6-2, 200-pound senior, was a first team pick for the 9-2 Greyhounds. He had 50 tackles, two quarterback sacks, one blocked kick, seven pass deflections and seven interceptions.

Mayfield, a 5-11, 185-pound junior, was an honorable mention choice. He had 55 tackles, a fumble recovery, six pass deflections and five interceptions.

Between them, Mayfield and Wallace contributed 12 interceptions to ENMU's school record 23 for the season.

HSU wins, 85-67

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Eric Adams scored 21 points to lead Hardin-Simmons to an 85-67 victory over Dallas Baptist Friday night.

Hardin-Simmons improved to 4-1, while Dallas Baptist fell 5-5.

Lutheran abandons football program

SEGUIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Lutheran College, a small school which captured two national football titles in the mid-1970s, has dropped its football program because of financial problems, school officials said Friday.

TLC President Dr. Charles Oestreich said the school would have needed an additional $100,000 to supplement its current $65,000 football operating budget and $186,000 scholarship commitment.

"The college did not have funds that we could move to it or had funds available and the amount of money needed was very great," he said at a news conference Friday attended by about 100 football players and other students. The board of regents made the decision late Thursday.

Bulldogs fall to Hobbs

From Staff Reports

HOBBS, N.M. — Midland High's effort to avenge an overtime loss to the powerful Hobbs Eagles here Friday night went up in a torrent of Eagle shooting smoke as Hobbs ran to a 112-75 victory.

Hobbs is now 4-2 on the season while MHS fell to 4-5.

The Eagles outscored the Bulldogs by a 24-13 margin in the first period and never looked back. Hobbs led 50-33 at the half and then went on a 35-point scoring binge in the third quarter to salt away the victory.

It's never easy to beat Hobbs in Hobbs, and this was no exception. The Eagles sank 31 free throws in the game while MHS hit only 11.

Michael Ball's 16 points represented the Bulldogs' only player in double figures while Hobbs go 24 from Matt Wolske, 20 from Jerry Thompson, 13 from Patrick Hutchings and 16 from Norman Haynes.

Midland High returns to action Monday at Chaparral Center against undefeated Class 3A Greenwood.

Midland High (75): Tracy Baskin 1-2-4, Eric Boyt 2-3-7, Kyle Lusby 5-2-12, Gary Nathan 0-1-1, Bart Sadler 4-0-8, Eric McDonald 3-0-6, Michael Ball 8-0-16, Greg Lewis 4-0-8, Andra Shaw 1-2-4, Clyde Govan 4-1-9, Ben Wilson 0-0-0. Totals 32-11-75

Good. And getting better.

The Department of Transportation's latest report shows that over 84% of our domestic flights in October arrived within 15 minutes of schedule, excluding delays for mechanical reasons. That makes Continental #2 among the 10 largest airlines. Our baggage handling has improved so much, we're now ahead of airlines such as American and United. And while all this is gratifying, we have no intention of stopping here.

See for yourself. For less.

Skepticism is only natural. So we want to make it as attractive as possible for you to try us now. With incredibly low sale fares.

Just buy your tickets by December 15, 1987, stay over a Saturday night, and return by February 10. Fares shown are one way based on round trip purchase, not available on every flight, and carry a 25% cancellation penalty. Airport surcharge applies from Boston, Chicago and Florida. Fares are subject to change, and not available for travel December 16 through January 4. Seats are limited, and your round trip must start in Midland/Odessa. Other restrictions may apply.

Try us now. Let us know what you think. This whole revolution began because we heard what you were telling us. No way we're going to stop listening now.

For reservations call your travel professional or Continental at 915-563-5668.

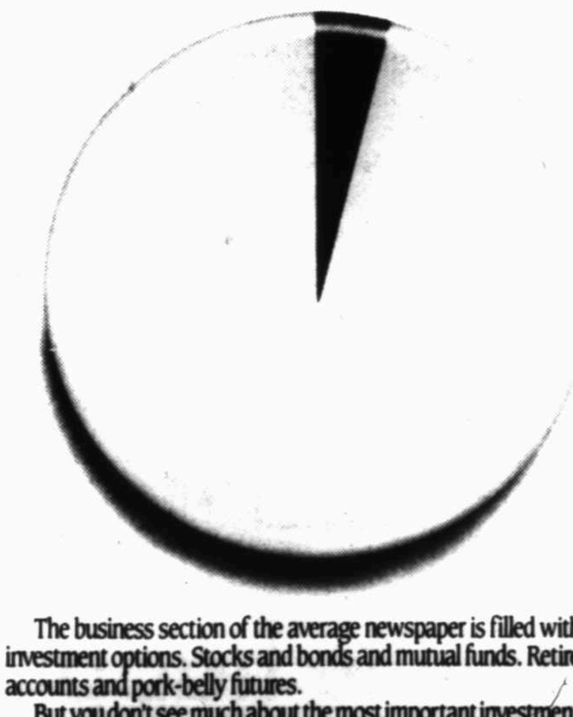
What you give is five. What you get back is immeasurable.



The business section of the average newspaper is filled with investment options. Stocks and bonds and mutual funds. Retirement accounts and pork-belly futures.

But you don't see much about the most important investment of all.

Almost anybody can afford it. Just five hours a week. Just five percent of what you earn. If we all gave that much, to the causes we care about, it would be like mobilizing a force of more than 20 million full-time volunteers. With an operating budget of over $175 billion.

And what we could accomplish, with numbers like that, would pay dividends for generations to come.

So take a look at what you're doing now. For your community, your religious or political group, health research, whatever really matters to you. Then see if you can't find a way to do just a little more.

It's an investment that could pay you back for the rest of your life.

Lovington's Rose Baxter loses the ball as she is guarded closely by Del Rio's Helen Kusenberger in Tall City tournament action Friday. Del Rio advanced to the tournament semifinals with a 50-47 victory.

TALL

District 4-5A foe Odessa Permian held on for a 55-50 win over Irvin, despite a first round high 27 points from 6-2 Jennifer Anderson. A three-point shot by Kelly Burrows with 2:06 left in the game gave Permian a 50-48 lead and ignited Mojo to the victory. Rosanna Subia led Permian with 20 points.

Irvin took a 46-45 lead with 3:06 left in the game, but Burrows' key three-pointer and eight fourth quarter points by Subia kept the Rockets at bay. Anderson had nine of her 27 points in the fourth period. Permian led by as many as 10 points in the game.

Action starts early today with Lee facing Permian at 9 a.m. while MHS takes on Del Rio at 11 a.m. The two winners move to the 7 p.m. finals while the two losers will play for third place at 5 p.m.

Lovington and Irvin will play for consolation honors at 1 p.m.

Magic's buzzer shot beats Celts, 115-114

Associated Press

BOSTON — Magic Johnson hit a long bank shot at the buzzer after a disputed call cost Boston the ball Friday night, giving the Los Angeles Lakers a 115-114 NBA victory over the Celtics.

Boston went ahead 114-113 on a free throw by Danny Ainge and appeared to wrap up the victory as Kevin McHale grabbed the ball from Johnson after Ainge missed the second free throw.

With McHale holding the ball and Johnson calling time out, referee Mike Mathis blew his whistle, granting the Lakers time. Mathis told the Celtics he had blown the whistle before McHale got the ball.

With the clock still showing three seconds, Johnson took a pass from midcourt, took a couple of steps and threw up a jumper on one foot.

The shot capped repeated comebacks for the Lakers in their first meeting with Boston since dethroning the Celtics in a six-game NBA final last June. Los Angeles trailed 111-105 with 2:33 left.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 23 points. Byron Scott and Michael Cooper had 21 each and Johnson 18 points and 17 assists.

Larry Bird led all scorers with 35 points.

Pistons 114, Bullets 108

PONTIAC, Mich. — Joe Dumars scored eight of his 22 points in the final 4:25 as the Detroit Pistons held off the Washington Bullets for a 114-108 victory and the best start in the club's NBA history.

It was the Pistons' fifth consecutive victory, improving their record to 12-5, bettering their previous best of 12-6 in 1985.

A 30-16 spurt by Washington cut a 15-point deficit to 98-97 with 6:36 remaining, and the Bullets still trailed only 101-100 when Dumars started his spurt.

Adrian Dantley led Detroit with 29 points and Bill Laimbeer added 25 points and 11 rebounds for the Pistons. Terry Catledge had 26 points for the Bullets.

NBA

Mavericks 108, Suns 104, OT

DALLAS — Sam Perkins scored six points in overtime, including two game-clinching free throws with two seconds left, to carry the Mavericks over the Phoenix Suns. It gave Dallas Coach John MacLeod a triumph over the Suns in his first meeting against the team that fired him in February after 14 years with the club.

Perkins had two field goals and hit two free throws in the overtime period. Phoenix missed its first seven shots in overtime but trimmed its deficit to 105-104 on baskets by Jeff Hornacek and Mike Sanders.

Perkins hit his clutch free throws after he rebounded a Derek Harper free throw and was fouled in the melee under the basket.

The game was tied at 99 at the end of regulation, thanks to Rolando Blackman's running 10-foot shot with nine seconds to play.

Aguirre was high scorer for the Mavericks with 28 points, and Blackman had 24. James Donald collected 20 rebounds, including a club-record 11 offensive boards.

Bucks 125, Trail Blazers 112

MILWAUKEE — Jack Sikma scored 25 of his 35 points in the second half and Terry Cummings added 28 points Friday night as the Milwaukee Bucks pulled away from the Portland Trail Blazers 125-112.

Portland, which has lost three straight after winning nine in a row, trailed only 94-93 on a three-point play by Steve Johnson with 9:35 to go, but Randy Breuer responded with a basket to start the clinching spurt.

Two Portland players were ejected in the third quarter. Clyde Drexler was tossed after he bumped referee Bernie Fryer, and 90 seconds later Maurice Lucas was thrown out after arguing with Jess Kersey.

OHS tops Andrews

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Lester White hit for 17 points and Ed Rheams added 12 as Odessa High rallied in the second half to overtake Andrews for a 49-44 non-conference victory Friday night.

The Bronchos, 8-3, jumped to an early lead in a slow-moving first quarter, 12-6, but the Mustangs recovered to tie it at the half. Andrews then took the lead in the third quarter, but White and Rheams led an OHS comeback.

Andrews, 8-3, is now off until the District 2-4A opener Tuesday night against Sweetwater.

The Bronchos lost earlier in the week to 2-4A's Lamesa after beating them in their first meeting.

Wheeler blanks Munday, 18-0

VERNON, Texas (AP) — Wheeler shut down Munday running back Anthony Stinnett and scored three first-half touchdowns to upset Class A's No. 1-ranked Moguls, 18-0, in a semifinal playoff game Friday night.

The victory, Wheeler's first in three playoff games against Munday, lifts the No. 7-ranked Mustangs to 12-2 and sends them into the state championship against the winner of Saturday's Bremond-Tenaha game.

Munday, which has been ranked No. 1 all year, ends its season at 13-1.

Wheeler used only 19 plays to score on drives of 71, 66, and 72 yards in the first half for all of its points.

The Mustangs defense sparked the win, shutting down Stinnett and two Munday drives inside their own 10-yard line.

Stinnett, who came into the game as one of the state's leading rushers, finished the night with 85 yards on the ground. Stinnett finishes the season with 2,468 yards and 37 touchdowns.

Wheeler was led by senior tailback Bubba Smith, who had 20 carries for 109 yards and threw a touchdown pass.

Wheeler, which didn't complete a pass in its playoff wins of the two previous weeks, used the pass to score one touchdown and set the other two against Munday.

Moody takes two-stroke lead

KAANAPALI, Hawaii (AP) — Orville Moody tied a course record Friday by firing a 7-under-par 65 to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $300,000 Kaanapali Senior Classic.

Moody had one bogey and five birdies on the front nine, including birdies on the sixth, seventh and eighth holes, before making an eagle on the 15th of the 6,704-yard Royal Kaanapali North Course.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus set the course record in 1964 while playing in the Canada Cup, now called the World Cup.

"I played well throughout the round," Moody said. "I hit it close to the hole, and overall it was a good putting round. Some of these greens will fool you, but I was able to keep my concentration."

Colts in Super Bowl would be biggest heist since Brink's

Murray

INDIANAPOLIS — If the Indianapolis Colts go to the Super Bowl — and that may be the way to bet — will it be the biggest heist since Brink's? Should these guys wear ski masks or carry burglars' tools? Is there a part in here for Redford or Newman?

Willie (the Actor) Sutton never made a score like these guys. They should be on every post office wall in the country. The FBI should make them all 10 of their most wanted.

Whatever you do, don't get in a card game with them. If they raise, fold.

Never mind that they lifted an entire football team out of the center of Baltimore in the dead of night and had it rolling halfway out of Clarksville before the alarm went off.

The real sting is, this outfit abducted Eric Dickerson out of L.A. in a modern version of the pigeon drop. When L.A. opened the bag, all they had was a whole bunch of pieces of paper. The Colts should have at least had the decency to write "Ha! Ha!" on some of them.

RON MEYER does not look like a member of a stagecoach robber gang. It's hard to picture him with a bandanna over his mouth and a black hat saying, "Your money or your life."

The face is handsome, unlined. It glows with health. The eyes, though, are a bit hawkish. They have the look of a guy who might shoot first.

As you might expect, he laughs a lot these days. He's got lots of hair, he wears an expensive deep-blue suit, a two-toned shirt and a home-colors blue tie with a handkerchief peeking out of a breast pocket. You half expect him to sell you a lot or tell you to pick a card. He has the look of a guy who just stole Christmas.

Ron Meyer is the coach of a team that just dealt itself aces.

The Indianapolis Colts, when Ron Meyer came to them, were funnier than the Marx brothers. They had just managed to lose 13 games in a row without working up a sweat. They had scored 147 points — to 339 for the opposition.

Meyer had come west to accept the coaching job at his alma mater, Purdue University. But, en route, he passed through Indianapolis. And he pooh-poohed Purdue.

COACHES are kind of complicated migratory workers. They stop to pick wherever the car breaks down and the beds are soft.

Some say Ron Meyer dropped anchor in Indianapolis because he saw that the Colts were the best 0 and 13 team in the business. They were, in fact, a pretty good team — as Meyer was shortly to prove when they won the last three games under his direction.

Not as good as they were to become.

Giving the Indianapolis Colts Eric Dickerson was like giving a tiger another claw.

No one knew this better than Meyer. He reacted to the news of Dickerson's availability as if he had just got news that the White House was for sale. Or the Super Bowl.

"I couldn't believe it," he admits.

Busy with team preparation for an important game with the Jets that week, he resisted the impulse to fly to L.A. and bring Dickerson home on a short rope.

It would not have been the first time Ron Meyer had recruited Eric Dickerson. The first time, he had to fight off half the universities in the country to land Dickerson for Southern Methodist University when he was the coach there.

Hurons face San Jose in Cal Bowl

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Eastern Michigan has the tough task of ending a string of one-sided losses by Mid-American Conference football teams in the California Bowl when the Hurons play San Jose State on Saturday.

Pacific Coast Athletic Association teams have rolled up 118 points while winning the last three games and have limited their MAC opponents to just 27 points.

That was in sharp contrast to the first two games in 1981 and 1982 at Fresno State's Bulldog Stadium. Both were decided in the last minute with the MAC winning the first game and the PCAA the second.

Eastern Michigan's Hurons, 9-2, will have an experience handicap in this year's game against the San Jose Spartans, 10-1. The Hurons have never been in any of the six previous Cal Bowls, while the Spartans will be appearing in their third, the most recent a 37-7 thrashing of Miami of Ohio last year.

The Spartans are the nation's top passing team with quarterback Mike Perez throwing for 3,260 yards in 1987, good for 22 touchdowns. San Jose's Guy Liggins led the nation in receiving yardage with 1,208.

NOW APPEARING BARBARA HUMPHREY

The best way to describe this beautiful, blonde entertainer is style...And maybe energetic, sensitive, animated, creative, flirtatious, and last but definitely not least, talented.

Miss Humphrey's repertoire extends a vast selection of material from the 40's to the 80's. Perhaps her forte is the gusty blues and jazz tunes of such greats as Billy Holiday, Fats Waller, Nat King Cole, Dinah Washington and Gershwin. But her style translates equally as well on renditions of her favorite Motown artists: Sam Cooke, Marvin Gaye, Odis Redding and Aretha Franklin, not to mention such country greats as Patsy Cline and Hank Williams. Barbara loves to sing the soulful sounds of the 80's from artists like Whitney Houston, Anita Baker, Al Jarreau and Sade. Undoubtedly though, Miss Humphrey shines her brightest when performing her own original material. Lyrically moving and musically "finger-snappin' and foot-tappin'" good.

MOJO

"Our defense probably isn't as good as Arlington's and Permian ran right through them. So we're going to have to try and contain them as best we can."

One of those ways is to consume the clock with sustained offensive drives as Arlington proved last Saturday. The Colts scored touchdowns on their first four possessions, driving 60, 74, 77 and 58 yards on an average of 10 plays to take a 28-7 lead.

Once the Panthers stopped Arlington defensively, they mounted a comeback that will go down in the annals of Mojo history.

QUARTERBACK Steve Needham triggers the Wildcats' option attack as the big ground-gainer. A starting linebacker on last year's state championship team, Needham has the toughness, speed and strength to run at or around defenders.

A 1,253-yard rusher in 14 games, Needham has also thrown for more than 1,000 yards, a combination that can drive defensive coordinators crazy.

"Needham is our biggest concern," Gaines says. "He seems to be a real heady player and he puts a lot of pressure on the perimeter defense with his option play. He also has a very strong arm that lets him throw the ball downfield."

He also has an offensive line that averages 226 pounds across and includes 6-9, 280-pound Justin Hall at guard. The Wildcats like to roll out and follow Hall and 246-pound tackle Lance Proctor upfield.

No one has stopped them in almost two years. Saturday, Permian, 178-pounds across their defensive front, will have one final, magical, mystical chance to do it.

NLRB hits NFL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has charged the NFL teams with discrimination and ordered them to pay between $21 million and $25 million in wages and bonus incentives to striking football players.

Carolinian shatters prep mark with 47 touchdowns

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Anthony Barbour rushed for 262 yards and scored four touchdowns, breaking the single-season national prep record with 47 rushing touchdowns, as Garner defeated Charlotte Harding 40-21 Friday to win the North Carolina 4-A high school football championship.

Barbour's scores of 60, 55, 50 and 4 yards broke the mark of 44 rushing touchdowns set last season by Randy Simmons of McKinney, Texas.

Barbour also upped his rushing yardage to 3,122, giving him the fifth best single-season total in prep history. Barbour passed former Detroit Lions' running back Billy Sims, who rushed for 3,080 yards while in high school in Hooks, Texas.

The Trojans capped a perfect 15-0 mark with the victory, while Harding suffered its first loss in 15 tries.

Barbour carried the ball 23 times.

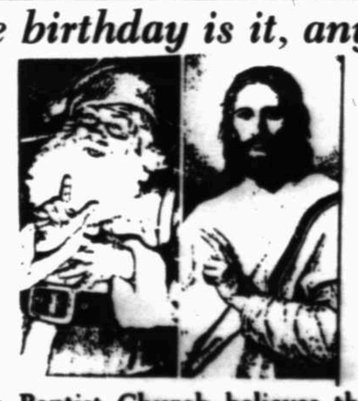
Woman has to sign dotted line twice

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — Sharon Lemke had to sign her marriage license twice — once as a bridal applicant and again as La Crosse County clerk.

"I called the state to verify if this is the legal way to issue the license," she said. "They said 'yes, you are the one to sign licenses.' "

Mrs. Lemke, who has worked in the office since 1962 and who is serving her second elected term as clerk, said she also had to pay the license fee of $40 to clear the way for her Dec. 20 wedding to Peter Mahlum of West Salem.

Whose birthday is it, anyway?



Northwestern Baptist Church believes the important news at Christmas is not who comes down the chimney, but who came down from heaven. We invite you to come and celebrate with us the birth of Jesus Christ in word and music as The Adult Choir presents the Christmas musical "King of Love". Sunday, December 13 at 11:00 a.m.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

The Thouvenel String Quartet

Crestview church to present 'Christmas Carol Celebration'

"Christmas Carol Celebration" will be presented by Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., at 7 p.m. Sunday and Monday.

The program includes works by Handel, Vivaldi, Sandi Patti and Mark Hayes as well as traditional carols.

The music will be presented by Crestview's 90-voice Sanctaury Choir and 50-voice Children's Choir. The concert also features performances by The Thouvenel String Quartet and members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

No admission is charged; an offering will be taken.

Special communion service set

St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., will celebrate Holy Communion Christmas Eve at 11 p.m. in the sanctuary.

The special communion service includes carol singing and a candle lighting ceremony.

The combined Chancel Choir and Chapel Choir will perform Paul Sjolund's arrangement of "Silent Night" with alto soloist Jackie Payne. The youth of St. Luke's will surround the buildings and grounds with more than 1,000 luminarias for the celebration.

The Rev. Jarrell H. Sharp, senior pastor of St. Luke's, invites the public to attend.

Choir to sing Handel's 'Messiah'

Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by the Sanctuary Choir of First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The choir will be accompanied by a chamber orchestra. A nursery will be provided.

The public is invited to attend.

Story of Hannukah to be told

The story of Hannukah will come alive when amateur archaeologist Alvin Adelman presents slides of the locations of battles pertaining to the biblical story of the Maccabees today.

Adelman will make his presentation at the Airport Best Western, formerly the Executel, at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Morning worship to be musical

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., is presenting a Morning Worship Service of Music at 10:45 a.m. Sunday.

The Chancel Choir will present a Christmas Cantata and the Youth Chime Choir will perform.

Then, at 6 p.m. Sunday a covered-dish dinner and singing of "Christmas Carols" will be held in the church's Fellowship Hall. This event is sponsored by the Spice of Life circle of St. Mark's. A special visitor will be present for the children.

The Rev. Earl E. Ball, pastor of St. Mark's, invites the public to attend.

Children's choirs to do musical

The Children's Choirs of Kelview Heights Baptist Church will be presenting a special Christmas musical program at 10 a.m. Sunday.

After a rendition by both the Pre-school Choir and the Primary Choir, the Junior Choir will present the musical, "It Must be Christmas." This musical, published by Gaither Music Co., takes a humorous look at a family during Christmastime. As the children plan and practice a yuletide play, they see beyond the seasonal distractions of decorations, trees and gifts and realize the true meaning of Christmas.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson, invites the public to attend. The church is located off North Big Spring at Scharbauer Drive.

Candle Lighting Service set

ODESSA — Unity of West Texas Candle Lighting Service will be held 7 p.m. Sunday at 810 N. Dixie Blvd., Odessa.

The Candle Lighting Service will be narrated by Dan Kalenak and is a symbolic representation of the Christ and the 12 powers found in each human being. Each of the 12 candles represents one of Jesus' disciples and how that disciple demonstrated this in his life.

"This service serves as an effective means of prayer for a specific need in a person's life," states a news release from Unity. "Unity teaches the practical application of Christianity in everyday life."

The local Unity of West Texas Study Group meets at 10 a.m. Sundays at 810 N. Dixie. "The Foundations of Unity and Beginning Again" by Frank B. Whitney is being studied.

The public is invited to attend.

Children celebrate Christmas

The combined children's choirs of St. Luke's United Methodist Church will present a service of traditional Christmas music at 7 p.m. Sunday.

More than 100 children, ages 3 to 6th grade will participate in this special celebration. The choirs are under the direction of Bert W. Bostic, minister of program/music, and Nancy Cunningham, student director.

Included in the service is Eugene Butlers "Sing Carols of Joy." This work includes carols representing different countries, accompanied by piano, handbells and flute.

The Rev. Jarrell H. Sharp, senior pastor of St Luke's UMC, invites the public to attend this special Christmas presentation. The church is located at 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

'O Holy Night' to be presented

The Chancel Choir of First United Methodist Church is performing John Rutter's "O Holy Night" at 10:35 a.m. during the morning worship service.

The choir will be accompanied by members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

The piece is an arrangement of several favorite Christmas carols with Scripture inbetween.

The church complex is located at Main Street between Illinois and Ohio Avenues. A nursery will be provided.

Youths to light luminarias

About 1,000 luminarias surrounding St. Luke's United Methodist Church will be lit by youth beginning at 9:30 p.m. Dec. 24.

The event will precede the 11 p.m. Christmas Eve Service of Holy Communion led by the Rev. Jarrell Sharp, senior pastor, and the Rev. John Wedgwood Greenhow, visiting Anglican priest.

St. Luke's, which recently celebrated its 35th anniversary, is located at 3011 W. Kansas Ave. The public is invited to attend.

Final lunch concert Wednesday

The Ministry of Music of First United Methodist Church at Main Street and Illinois Avenue, has been presenting its annual Lunch Hour Concerts of Advent and Christmas music performed by local musicians.

These concerts, featuring favorite music of the holiday season, are planned especially for members of the downtown business community as a soup and salad lunch available for a nominal charge one-half hour before and after each performance.

The program Wednesday, which is the final concert of this Christmas season, will be Les Ackerman, organist, from 12:05 to 12:35 p.m. Ackerman is the director of music at First Presbyterian Church.

No admission is charged for the concerts and child care is provided for infants and toddlers. The public is invited to attend.

'Candlelight Carol' service set

The Choristers of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., will present its annual "Candlelight Carol" services at 5 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

"The service represents music and carols dating back to the eighth century and to the present contemporary genre," says Darryl Knapp, organist and choirmaster at Holy Trinity.

Pre-service music for harp, flute and handbells begins 30 minutes prior to the "Candlelight Carol" services.

The services are open to the public and seating is on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Ball preaches 'Beatitudes'

The Rev. Earl E. Ball is preaching on the "Eight Beatitudes of Jesus" as they are presented in the fifth chapter of the Gospel of Matthew, at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St.

The series, which began Nov. 8 and runs into the beginning of the New Year, will skip Christmas Sunday.

Each of the beatitudes will be paraphrased by Ball as a way of highlighting the essential meanings, states a news release from the church.

Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. and worship at 10:45 a.m.

Family night supper scheduled

Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfiend St., is having its monthly family night supper 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The program will include a "Silhouette Nativity Pageant" and an Advent play, "It Was in the Stars," by the Youth club.

Priest keeps tradition of Polish parish

By MICHAEL ELWELL

Father Kurzaj

PANNA MARIA (AP) — America's first Polish-Catholic parish is grooming a priest from Poland to keep its tradition alive.

The Rev. Frank Kurzaj, 36, is from the same Silesian district as Panna Maria's original 100 families who came here in 1854.

Although the town has seen many changes through the years, one thing remains: Most of its citizens still speak in their forefathers' Silesian dialect.

"It's very unusual that the people of this town still speak in the Silesian dialect," said Kurzaj, who has been in the United States for about a year. "One of the reasons I was chosen to come here is that I speak the same dialect."

Nearly all of the town's 300 residents attend church at the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary Church, where Kurzaj is an apprentice under the Very Rev. Canon Bernard Goebel.

"I am getting old. I need some help," said the 82-year-old Goebel.

"We need to have somebody here who can take over after I'm gone."

Panna Maria is one of seven tiny, predominantly Polish-Catholic towns in an area about 50 miles southeast of San Antonio and more than 100 miles north of Corpus Christi.

"Some people think it's a waste to be a priest of a small parish," Kurzaj said. "But this way I know the people who go to church here. I know his problems. I'm not an animal here like in a big parish."

Kurzaj said some churches are big business in America. "All this preaching saying, 'send me your money' is a lie. If this happened in the Catholic church then it would be over."

Kurzaj is one of two Poles sent to offer relief for pastors in this area. He and the Rev. Jon Klak, 33, were sent to the United States without knowing English.

Part of their training has been to attend English classes at San Antonio College in San Antonio.

"If you learn this language, you are in a big world, from Japan to England. Everyone wants to know English. It gives you so many opportunities," he said.

Kurzaj, who has been a priest for 11 years, spends three days a week helping Goebel and four days in Falls City helping out at Trinity Church. He also attends college on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for five hours a day.

"As a priest — for me — this is an excellent place," Kurzaj said. "There are so many nationalities here. It is truly a gift."

Kurzaj said he enjoys speaking with people from South America, and if his bishop from Poland doesn't keep him in Panna Maria, he would be interested in working there.

Although Kurzaj is working as an understudy in Panna Maria, he said a priest's future is never definite.

"I am here to see if I can be helpful in this area," Kurzaj said. "I like it here, but you never know what might happen to change things."

Treaty laid out boundary

A treaty signed by the United States and Britain in 1846 agreed on the boundary between Canada and the U.S. in the Pacific Northwest.

LIFESCOPE

Going To Church Out Of Habit? Your Lifescope Says, "God Judges Motives!"

To man belong the plans of the heart, but from the Lord comes the reply of the tongue. All a man's ways seem innocent to him, but motives are weighed by the Lord!

Commit to the Lord whatever you do, and your plans will succeed. The Lord works out everything for His own ends.

The Lord detests all the proud of heart. Be sure of this: they will not go unpunished! When a man's ways are pleasing to the Lord, He makes even his enemies live at peace with him. In his heart a man plans his course, but the Lord determines his steps.

The Word of God is living and active. Sharper than any double-edged sword, it penetrates even to dividing soul and spirit, joints and marrow; it judges the thoughts and intents of the heart. Nothing in all creation is hidden from God's sight. Everything is uncovered and laid bare before the eyes of Him to whom we must give account.

Therefore, since we have a great high priest, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold firmly to the faith we profess. For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who has been tempted in every way, just as we are - yet was without sin. Let us then approach the throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need.

Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. The Pharisee stood up and prayed about himself; "God, I thank you that I am not like all other men - robbers, evildoers, adulterers - or even like this tax collector."

But the tax collector stood at a distance, beat his breast and said, "God, have mercy on me, a sinner."

Jesus said, "I tell you that this man, rather than the other, went home justified before God."

NATION IN BRIEF

FDA says shellfish from Atlantic coast may be toxic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration alerted Americans late Friday to avoid eating mussels, oysters and clams from the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Canada.

Officials emphasized that the particular type of toxin prompting the warning persists even after being cooked.

The warning was issued shortly after Canadian health officials advised their U.S. counterparts that about 70 illnesses and one death in Canada have been linked to contaminated mussels.

Oysters and clams were included in the two-nation warning as a precaution, although no reactions have been associated with them. The FDA said illnesses to date are thought to be associated only with the mussels.

Shrimp, lobster and prawns are specifically excluded from the advisory.

Bakker ordained again

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Former PTL leader Jim Bakker has been ordained as a minister in a Tulsa-based church group and has been accepted as a member of an affiliated church in Lancaster, Calif., officials said Friday.

"I've known Jim for over 20 years, and this was not some flippant, casual thing," said Doyle "Buddy" Harrison, president of Faith Christian Fellowship International.

Robert Lemon, national director of the charismatic group, said Bakker was ordained about a month ago during a meeting of ministers at the affiliated church in Lancaster, Springs of Life. Harrison said announcement of the ordination was delayed while church leaders consulted with church elders.

He said Bakker will not function as a pastor in a church affiliated with the fellowship, at least for now.

"That's all up to God. We don't know what the future holds," said Lemon.

Most illiterate adults white

WASHINGTON (AP) — The majority of adults who need help learning to read are white, not minorities, according to a survey released Friday by a state education group.

Plant closings, new technology and other changes in the workplace are forcing workers to achieve higher levels of literacy and creating new demands for adult literacy services, the Education Commission of the States said.

The survey report, released at the National Forum for Youth at Risk, challenged what it called the "popular wisdom" about adult illiteracy in America.

"The majority of adults in need are not minorities, on or off the welfare rolls. The majority are white Americans," it said.

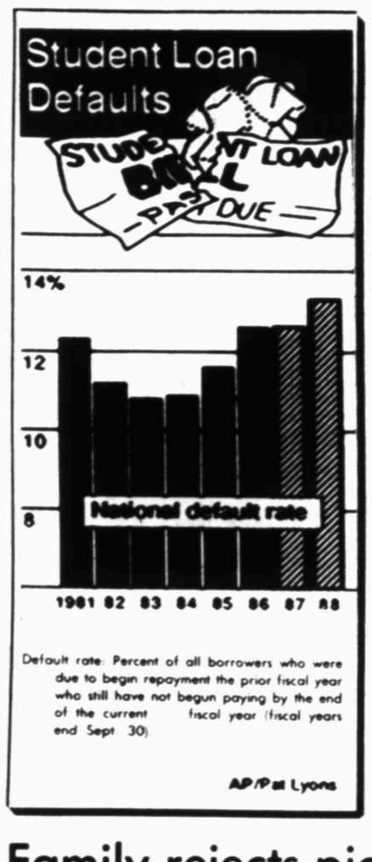
Most educators working in the adult literacy field "are not untrained, casual volunteers. They are, more often than not, professionals from a variety of fields," it added.

Firm to set aside $2.5 billion

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A.H. Robins Co. must set aside $2.5 billion to settle injury claims against the Dalkon Shield birth control device, the judge hearing Robins' bankruptcy case ruled Friday.

U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. said at a two-minute hearing that the money would be paid over a reasonable period of time, but he did not specify how long.

James C. Roberts, an attorney for Robins, said afterwards he believed seven years would be a reasonable time for settling the claims.



Education official's charge angrily disputed by Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal education official, defending a crackdown on student loan defaults, said Friday some profit-making business schools recruit barely literate students out of unemployment lines.

That charge by Bruce Carnes, deputy undersecretary of education, at a Senate hearing drew an angry retort from Sen. Edward Kennedy, who accused the Reagan administration of aiming its budget ax at "the most vulnerable young people in our society."

Kennedy accused Carnes and his boss, Education Secretary William J. Bennett, of making "an indictment of all the proprietary schools in this country."

Bennett, defending his plan to expel colleges and trade schools from the federal student aid programs if their students' future default rates exceed 20 percent, called Kennedy's statement "nonsense."

Carnes said 80 percent of the institutions with default rates above 20 percent were trade schools run for profit, including beauty colleges, travel schools and data-processing programs.

The defaulters "tend to be low-income students. They tend to be students who are divorced or separated," Carnes said. "There is a high proportion of minorities."

"They are often indeed recruited right out of unemployment lines. Schools will send recruiters right into unemployment offices to drag people out and go into their academic programs, sign them up for federal student aid," Carnes said. "If you can read or write at all, you're in."

Kennedy, the Massachusetts Democrat, charged there has been "a dramatic reduction" in grants during the Reagan years.

"We're moving in on the most vulnerable young people in our society — minorities, divorced kids, children of divorced families," the senator said.

"Now what we hear is we're going to save all these kids because we've got all these hucksters that are out there pulling kids out of unemployment lines, throwing them into proprietary school, trying to make a buck," Kennedy said. "If you've got evidence for that, let's have it, Mr. Secretary, let's have it right now."

Family rejects picture of Burke as vindictive killer

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — David A. Burke was not a vindictive murderer, despite evidence suggesting he killed a planeload of people to get even with a boss he believed was out to get him, his brothers say.

"To say that he was a distraught employee who lost his job and wanted to kill everybody, that's crazy," said his brother, Altamont Burke, 27, of Atlanta.

Both he and Allan Burke, 37, of Rochester, N.Y., have come to Long Beach to try to learn what happened to their brother.

Federal investigators believe Burke used a gun and possibly explosives to cause the crash of Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 1771 on Monday. The jet smashed onto a hillside near Cayucos in central California midway through its flight from Los Angeles to San Francisco, killing all 43 on board.

Burke, who had worked for USAir, parent company of PSA, for 14 years, was fired by his supervisor, Raymond Thomson, on Nov. 19.

Burke's discharge apparently climaxed a five-month feud between the men. Burke, who was black, had alleged to state authorities long before he was fired that Thomson had passed him over for promotion because of race. The two met several times after Burke was fired, including the day of the crash, but Burke was not reinstated.

FBI officials said Burke, armed with a .44-caliber Magnum and possibly explosives, boarded Flight 1771, knowing Thomson was on it. During the flight, he wrote Thomson a death note on an air sickness bag, apparently shot Thomson in the cabin, entered the cockpit and killed the pilot and perhaps the co-pilot.

"They're trying to solve a case and he's the logical one to hang it on," Altamont Burke said Thursday. "How do you find a note like that on a plane that smashed into a million pieces? I don't believe any of that."

The brothers also disputed the accounts of friends who described Burke as a woman beater and drug smuggler.

Since August, Altamont Burke said he and his brother had discussed several business opportunities, including a franchise on condom vending machines.

But the most promising venture was a check-cashing franchise in Los Angeles, and David Burke had already invested at least $4,000 in it, his brother said. The deal was supposed to have closed next Tuesday.

"He was the backbone of the family," Altamont Burke said. "He was a very generous person. He always looked out for the well-being of the family."

Although Burke had talked to several family members during the last month, he told none that he had been fired or that he had broken his engagement to Jacqueline Camacho of Hawthorne, the brothers said.

Burke had transferred to Los Angeles a year ago.

Mother-to-be wants part of baby to live on

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brenda Winner has become a reluctant pioneer in medical ethics, winning a battle for the right to have her doomed baby kept alive by machines so its organs can be donated to others.

Her baby, due Monday, has anencephaly, or a severely underdeveloped brain. Anencephalic babies often are stillborn, and if born alive die within days or weeks.

The decision by Loma Linda University Medical Center to accept the child for temporary life support ends a lonely crusade for Mrs. Winner, whose proposal was rejected by 118 hospitals across the country and who was confronted by emotional opponents to the plan.

"My husband and I can't conceive that it's such a big issue," Mrs. Winner said Thursday in a telephone interview from her home in Arcadia.

Loma Linda physician Joyce Peabody "says the medical breakthrough that we have stirred is one that they have been trying to achieve for years," Mrs. Winner said.

Mrs. Winner got final approval Thursday to deliver at Loma Linda, where surgeons who have conducted a series of infant heart transplants will put the infant on life-support systems.

Under a new medical protocol developed in response to Mrs. Winner's plea, the baby will be put on a ventilator and given oxygen for up to seven days.

If it is found to be legally brain-dead during that time, any organs needed for transplant will be removed. If it survives the full seven days, the machines will be shut off and nature allowed to take its course, said Loma Linda spokesman Dick Schaefer.

Miccosukee Indian tribe retains ways of their forefathers

MIAMI (AP) — Their homeland is 25 miles west of here, a swampy wilderness the white man calls "The Everglades." They speak a language heard nowhere else in the world and they subsist as their forefathers did on fish, wild boar, turkey, alligator and deer.

They plant pumpkin, corn, sweet potato and beans and harvest native fruits at nearby hammocks; many still cook by wood in palmetto-thatched huts called "chickees."

These are the Miccosukee Indians, a tribe that fought three wars in the 1800s against the U.S. Army and never surrendered; a tribe the federal government refused to recognize until 25 years ago when Cuba and some Central American nations offered the Miccosukees diplomatic relations as a sovereign nation.

"The white man tries to classify us with all Indians," said Tribal Chairman Billy Cypress, 37. "They label things they don't understand, but we don't care what they call us, we know who we are."

Floridians and tourists get only a superficial view of the Miccosukees as they traverse U.S. 41 (Tamiami Trail) between Miami and Naples. The tribe owns 76,000 acres of reservation land and leases another 125,000 acres from National Park Service.

Travelers come in contact with tribal members only at a cultural center, service station or Miccosukee Restaurant, which the tribe owns. Indians also provide airboat rides through the Everglades.

The 368 registered members of the tribe, however, live almost in obscurity off parallel roads on both sides of the highway. Also out of sight are the tribe's school, health clinic, administrative offices, library and police department.

This was done by design.

The Miccosukees are traditionalists adhering to centuries-old customs and believing in tribal legends. For them, the Miccosukees fell from heaven into a lake and swam ashore to build a home.

The tribe originated around what is now Tallahassee. When Spanish explorers arrived in the 16th century, several tribes, including the Miccosukees and Seminoles, formed the Creek Confederacy.

After Spain sold Florida to the United States in 1821, the white man, explained Cypress, began to crowd the Indians farther south until the tribes were ordered moved to Oklahoma. The Miccosukees and Seminoles refused and joined in three Seminole Wars against the United States.

Indians who survived did so by fleeing into the Everglades where soldiers were unable to track them down.

Time brought on an undeclared truce which exists today and while the Seminoles received recognition from the government, the Miccosukees did not. U.S. authorities had lumped the two tribes together.

When the tribe sought and obtained recognition from foreign countries, the U.S. formally recognized the Miccosukee Tribe Jan. 11, 1962.

"We would like to be left alone. The white man says Indians can't think for themselves or govern themselves, but we are civilized," Cypress emphasized, "and want to help make the rules for the Miccosukees."

Schooling, said Cypress, is not mandatory. Children may attend the reservation school "or be taught Indian ways by their parents."

The medicine man is still one of the most important individuals in this tribe. Ailments are cured either with folklore medicine or medications received at the tribal clinic.

A communal society, Miccosukees share in the proceeds from tourism. Each member receives $100 every six months.

Cypress admits the tribe cannot survive without the white man's money.

Cuts are being made in the $1.5 million funding sent from Washington each year.

"The money provides only 56 percent of our needs," said Cypress. "We have to make up the difference."

The tribe is building a service plaza on a new stretch of Interstate 75 in Collier County and has decided to do as their Seminole brothers have done.

"Our only salvation is bingo," he admitted.

Demonstration farm to feature pistachios

ALPINE (AP) — What started four years ago with a trip by state land commissioner Garry Mauro to Israel is actually now culminating in the hands of a 67-year-old Alpine farmer.

Bruce Hackett, a retired engineer who spent many years of his career in the business of manufacturing and selling chemical tanks in the United States and in Australia, is working closely with Sul Ross State University on what will someday be a 350-acre demonstration farm just northeast of Saragosa.

Pistachio trees are growing in greenhouses at Sul Ross, and land at the Saragosa site is being prepared for spring planting.

As the primary investor in the project, Hackett plans not only 60 acres of pistachios, but also 40 acres of Christmas trees and about 30 acres of herbs, chilis and asparagus crowns.

What Hackett did was downscale the Israeli plan, which was to spend $2.5 million to raise 350 acres of pistachios and asparagus, crops that a team of analysts determined would be ideal for this part of the country.

"We're going to set up a farm," Hackett said. "Oh, it'll be a demonstration farm all right, but we plan to make a profit."

Hackett moved to Alpine about seven years ago and developed his small farm there, then leased the land commission acreage in the Saragosa area.

"Farming was lousy — we didn't do much with it," he recalled. "Then along came the Israelis."

The land commission contracted with a team of Israeli farming specialists who in conjunction with the University of Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech, studied the arid lands in this Trans-Pecos region to see what crops could use their methods of farming and irrigation.

About 750,000 of the 900,000 acres of Permanent School Fund property that the land commission manages is in the region from the Pecos River to El Paso, according to deputy commissioner Frank Morgan.

Two years ago, the study concluded by identifying the Saragosa site as having the land and water most adaptable to the Israeli farming methods.

"Now, we have Sul Ross involved as well," Morgan said.

That was part of Hackett's plan.

Last year, when legislators talked of closing down the university at Alpine, Hackett wrote Mauro of the possibilities in this area of working the land with the university.

Now, the university greenhouses are growing 7,500 trees that will be planted in late February or early March at the Saragosa farm.

One of the biggest threats to your heart is right under your nose.

"Great," you say to yourself. "Here they come with more bad news."
Okay, so we do have some bad news for you. But you need all the facts you can get when it comes to making a decision about smoking.
Like the fact that if you smoke, you're twice as likely to have a heart attack as a nonsmoker. And if you do have a heart attack, you're more likely to die suddenly.
But here's the good news. Regardless of how long or how much you've smoked, your risk of heart disease will begin dropping rapidly the day you stop. Which means that 10 years after quitting, it can be almost the same as if you had never smoked at all.
So take the good with the bad, but take our word for it: it's never too late to quit.

Kansas farmer discovered planet on farthest edge of galaxy

By KATHLEEN MYLER
Hearst News Service

In the history of mankind, only four people are known to have discovered planets.

In 1781, British astronomer Sir William Hershel discovered Uranus. In 1843, John C. Adams, another British astronomer and mathematician, and French mathematician Urbain J.J. Leverrier plotted Neptune's position.

But not until 1930 was the farthest edge of our solar system charted. On Feb. 18 of that year, a 24-year-old Kansas farmer with no formal training in astronomy, math or physics picked tiny Pluto out from among the hundreds of thousands of stars, asteroids and other objects in our neighborhood of the Milky Way.

Clyde W. Tombaugh, now 81, recalled the moment during a visit to Houston as a guest of the Houston Astronomical Society and Whole Earth Provision Co.

"It was the most intense thrill. I remember it as if it was yesterday," he said.

Tombaugh has returned to the lecture circuit after 13 years of retirement to raise funds to establish the Clyde W. Tombaugh Scholars Program for postdoctoral research fellows at New Mexico State University at Las Cruces, where he worked and taught from 1961 to 1973. His comeback seems to have delighted astronomy buffs, awed at meeting the only man living who's discovered a planet.

Randy Wilson, a 38-year-old engineer, tracked Tombaugh down to request he autograph the Introduction to Astronomy textbook Wilson had saved since taking Tombaugh's class at NMSU in the late 1960s.

PATSY, HIS WIFE of 53 years, shook her head, smiling. "This happens all the time," she whispered to a bystander.

The couple met after Tombaugh's discovery, when he returned to Kansas to earn his astronomy degree from the University of Kansas. They married in 1934 and have two children, four granddaughters and three great-grandsons.

They work as a team on Tombaugh's lecture stops, Patsy collecting contributions to the scholarship endowment, while Clyde cheerfully signs posters depicting his grinning face among the stars and the planet he named after the Roman god of the underworld.

"Most of the good names by this time had been given to asteroids," Tombaugh said. Otherwise, Pluto would be known as Minerva.

Tombaugh found the ninth planet only after months of painstaking work in the unheated dome of the Lowell Observatory, atop a 7,000-foot mountain near Flagstaff, Ariz. He had been invited to Lowell in 1929 on the basis of some sketches he'd made of Jupiter and Mars as viewed through his homemade telescope back on the farm.

As a schoolboy, Tombaugh became enthralled with the idea of charting the heavens and taught himself to grind lenses and build his own observation equipment. He made one 9-inch telescope from a cream separator, a shaft from his father's 1910 Buick, a spring from the seat of a mowing machine and another part from a straw spreader.

At the Lowell Observatory, his job was to photograph the section of the heavens where astronomers suspected a ninth planet might be. The observatory's founder, Percival Lowell, searched in vain for "Planet X" from 1905 until his death 11 years later.

HIS ASSISTANTS resumed the search for Planet X in 1929, hiring Tombaugh for the all-night task of charting the skies through their new 13-inch telescope. After six months, they gained enough confidence in Tombaugh to turn over to him the added duty of "blinking," or comparing the photographic plates.

Using side-by-side plates taken several days apart of the same section of the sky, he would compare some 400,000 specks on each to try to find the one that had moved, indicating a planetary orbit. The tedious process is still considered the best way to hunt non-star objects. And to make even the largest of them easily seen, Tombaugh had to view them through the eyepiece of a specially designed microscope.

Planet X turned out to be much smaller than astronomers had anticipated, adding a degree of difficulty to Tombaugh's already daunting task. But when he spied the tiny dot that had moved 3½ millimeters over the six-day period the two photographic plates represented, Tombaugh said he "knew instantly" he had found the long-sought planet.

Vesto M. Slipher, director of the observatory, wanted additional photographs taken immediately to recheck the findings.

"Naturally," Tombaugh told his understanding audience of astronomy hobbyists, "it was overcast that night."

CLEAR SKIES the next evening allowed for the confirming photos the scientists required. After determining as much as they could about the planet's size (1,900 miles in diameter, about a fourth that of Earth) and distance from the sun (4.6 billion miles at farthest point of its elliptical orbit, about 10 times the Earth's distance from the sun beyond Neptune's orbit), the scientists told the world of their discovery on March 13, 1930.

The announcement was greeted with excitement none had anticipated. The solar system had proved larger than anyone had imagined — and an unschooled farm boy proved it. The Associated Press voted the discovery one of the year's top 10 news events.

Tombaugh went on to "blink" 65 percent of the heavens in an effort, as Slipher put it, to find "what else is out there beyond Neptune." Among his findings: 3,969 asteroids, 1,807 variable stars, a large globular star cluster some 100,000 light years away, a couple of comets and 29,548 galaxies.

Having a nice day?

Roh, the government's candidate, was protected by hundreds of riot police and plainclothes agents after he was showered with rocks and bricks during campaign appearances Thursday.

American hostage may be freed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A weekly magazine said Friday one of the eight American hostages held in Lebanon will be released soon because of illness.

The seven-line report in Ash-Shiraa did not name the hostage but said his condition has "deteriorated and he is facing the threat of death."

There was no way of verifying the report. Ash-Shiraa gained international recognition by breaking the story in November 1986 of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran, but not all of its reports on foreign hostages held in Lebanon have been accurate.

"Beirut will witness soon the release of an American hostage after his health condition has deteriorated and he is facing the threat of death," the report said.

"Negotiations to release him have reached advanced stages in which the kidnappers' demands have all been met," it concluded.

Beirut University College celebrated its 63rd founders' day by paying tribute to four professors — three Americans and an Indian — who were kidnapped Jan. 24.

Dean Raja Hajjar spoke of the college's "confident...journey into the future" and praised the "steadfastness of our four professors.

Most foreign hostages are believed held by extremist Shiite Moslem groups loyal to Iran. One calling itself Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine claims to hold the BUC teachers: Robert Polhill, 54, of New York, a lecturer in accounting; communications instructor Alann Steen, 48, of Boston; computer science professor Jesse Turner, 40, of Boise, Idaho, and Mithileshwar Singh, 60, a professor of finance.

In addition to the eight Americans, 12 other foreigners are missing and believed kidnapped in Lebanon.

Held longest is Terry A. Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press. He was abducted March 16, 1985, and marked 1,000 days in captivity Thursday.

WORLD IN BRIEF

57 killed when busload of children struck by train

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A bus carrying schoolchildren on a holiday outing was struck by a train and ripped apart Friday in a disaster that killed 57 people and injured 58, authorities reported.

They said most of the victims were around 10 years old.

A senior police officer said 50 children, six teachers and the bus driver perished in the accident on Cairo's northeastern outskirts, about three miles from the Cairo airport.

The officer said 58 people, almost all children, were injured and taken to two hospitals in nearby Heliopolis. Many were seriously hurt and in surgery, he said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"The train, coming from Suez to Cairo, crashed into the bus as it crossed the one-way track," the officer said.

He said the train's engineer and fireman left the scene of the accident. The engineer later turned himself in at the Cairo railways headquarter, the officer said, and police were searching for the fireman.

Sandinistas release data

SAN JUAN DEL NORTE, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista soldiers who captured James Jordan Denby, an American accused of ties to Nicaraguan rebels, said he gave no explanation of why his flight from neighboring Honduras took so much time.

Maj. Oscar Mojica said Denby left La Ceiba, on Honduras' northern coast, in his Cessna 172 at 8 a.m. Sunday and did not arrive over Nicaragua until 2:15 p.m. Sandinista soldiers hit the light plane with rifle fire and he landed on an isolated beach.

"It's normally a 2½-hour flight, at most," Mojica told reporters Thursday at the site of the capture. "The mercenary couldn't explain why it took so long."

He claimed Denby was spying on Sandinista troop positions. "Documents that he carried link him directly to the mercenaries," Mojica said. "We are convinced he was spying."

The leftist government claims Denby, 57, of Carlinville, Ill., has connections with the U.S.-supported rebels, known as Contras.

Ethiopia's needs discussed

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ethiopia will need more than 1.3 million metric tons of food in 1988, almost the same amount of food aid it received during a 1984-85 famine that prompted the biggest relief effort in history, a U.N. agency said Friday.

"Only sustained international assistance in the coming weeks will avert widespread famine and loss of life especially in those areas most seriously affected," said Edouard Saouma, director-general of the U.N. Food and Agriculutre Organization.

Non-governmental relief groups, the Ethiopian government and various U.N. agencies have been appealing for two months for immediate relief assistance for Ethiopia, which is threatened with famine because of drought and widespread crop failures.

The Ethiopian government has appealed for 1.05 million metric tons of food aid for 1988 to feed 5.2 million of its 46 million people.

Pledges of food aid amount to 420,000 metric tons and there are unconfirmed pledges of 80,000 metric tons, Saouma said in a statement released in Nairobi.

Arab guerrillas fire on Israeli boat, killing officer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Four Arab guerrillas aboard a fishing vessel fired on an Israeli patrol boat off Lebanon and killed an Israeli lieutenant before the troops sank the vessel and killed all aboard, the army said Friday.

In violence elsewhere, Israeli soldiers shot and killed three Palestinians Friday after protesters hurling bottles and shouting "God is great!" clashed with troops outside a mosque in the Balata refugee camp in the occupied West Bank, the army and witnesses said in Nablus.

In Washington, the State Department said it was "deeply saddened" by recent killings in the Israeli-occupied territory.

"These deaths confirm once again that violence breeds further violence, and underlines the need for both sides to avoid further confrontation," said department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley.

The United Nations Security Council, meanwhile, met Friday night to discuss PLO allegations that the Israeli army engaged in a "massacre" at the Balata camp.

"Ambulances have been prohibited from reaching the camp," the PLO said in a letter to the president of the Security Council, Soviet Ambassador Aleksander Belonogov, who called the meeting.

The guerrillas on the fishing vessel intended to either infiltrate Israel or ambush the patrol boat, according to the Israeli navy commander in Haifa, who spoke on Israel radio and was identified only as Brig. Gen. A.

The sea battle took place Thursday night 12 miles north of the Israeli coastal town of Rosh Hanikra, the military said.

The pro-Iranian Islamic Resistance released a statement in eastern Lebanon saying it was responsible for the clash and that its mujahedeen — holy warriors — killed 35 Israeli sailors and demolished an Israeli frigate.

The Voice of Islam radio broadcast the claim in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley in eastern Lebanon. The statement was repeatedly blared from minarets throughout the predominantly Shiite Moslem Bekaa Valley, south Lebanon and the slums of south Beirut. Crowds of people who gathered to listen cheered the news.

Vans with loudspeakers toured the areas, boasting of the first Arab naval attack on an Israeli patrol in the Mediterranean.

The dead Israeli was identified as 21-year-old Lt. Amit Sela of the collective settlement Kibbutz Nachsholim near Haifa.

Sela was buried Friday before the start of the Jewish Sabbath. He was the 11th soldier to die in clashes with Lebanese-based guerrillas this year and the second this week.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You will be surprised to find that success comes more quickly when you take a more laid-back approach. Look, browse and price things before making a purchase. Thrilling changes will occur in spring! Be flexible. Once you make a declaration of independence in 1988, your personal life will become more fulfilling. Do what you can to make family ties more rewarding. Solidify a business relationship. Form a new company.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Christopher Plummer, Secretary of State George Shultz, actor John Davidson, first lady Mary Todd Lincoln, producer Richard Zanuck, actor Dick Van Dyke.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A perfect day for family get-togethers. Your enthusiasm drives you on. You speak up even though you are shy by nature. Mate or partner is unusually helpful now. Show your appreciation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A wonderful day to decorate your home for the holiday season. The Sunday papers give you ideas for last-minute gifts. Use telephone to avoid crowded stores. Exercise caution when driving.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone who has your welfare at heart goes out on a limb for you. A domestic change makes you happy. Television specials provide relaxing entertainment for the young and young-at-heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The cost of travel could put a crimp in your holiday plans. Home life becomes more rewarding when you spend quality time with each family member. Change your schedule to help loved ones.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Privacy is especially important to you and your loved ones. Count your blessings! Do not become impatient with a loved one who is overtired. Pitch in and help as much as you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your poise helps avert disagreements over household matters. Do some bookkeeping so you will know where you stand financially. A telephone call brightens your evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spend a pleasant day at home with your loved ones. Deal with holiday matters. A personal relationship could be building up to a "yes-or-no" situation. Do not force a decision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A church service proves inspiring. You are delighted by the way a relationship is intensifying. Friends continue to play a major role in your life. Use the evening to tie up loose ends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not try to launch anything important. Others will be wrapped up in their own projects. Make a list of people you still have to buy gifts for. Reduce household clutter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An old problem is solved when the pieces of a puzzle fall into place. Give loved ones more attention. Romance soars! You need to know how much cash you have on hand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not try to conduct business over the telephone today. You should not allow friends to influence your decision-making. Romance is a bit rocky. An authority figure pops back into your life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Turn your attention to your personal life. You may have to make an important decision about your future. An out-of-town visitor adds excitement to your evening plans. Wear something glamorous.

Sinatra Jr. says woman left threatening messages

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman suing Frank Sinatra Jr. for $1 million over an alleged nightclub confrontation had left threatening messages on his answering machine and wanted revenge after their relationship soured, the entertainer has testified.

Charmain St. Cyr, 43, of Houston, contends she was injured in a fall after Sinatra pushed her. The entertainer, the son of singer Frank Sinatra, testified he pushed her away from him because he was afraid she might hurt him.

In State District Court here Thursday, Sinatra said he met Ms. St. Cyr when she gave him her business card after a performance he gave in Houston in January 1985.

"As an old saying: 'You walked well,'" Sinatra told the woman, who is representing herself in the case. "I was impressed to see a lady with stature. I had seen the outside. I wanted to see what was inside."

"When you say what was inside, do you mean the heart and soul?" asked Ms. St. Cyr.

"I was going to start a little higher up, in the head," answered Sinatra. "That's where the thinking was."

Sinatra said he and Ms. St. Cyr spoke by phone in the ensuing weeks, and became intimate after Sinatra returned to Houston for a five-day stay in March. After the relationship went sour, he said Ms. St. Cyr called his Beverly Hills, Calif., home and left threatening messages on his answering machine.

Sinatra testified he saw Ms. St. Cyr again as he was waiting to perform in a Houston nightclub in July 1986, when she walked up to a table where he was sitting with friends.

"You looked at me with a smile on your face," Sinatra said. "You walked toward me in a straight line. I had a thought to look to heaven and say 'Why me, God?'"

Sinatra said the women began embarrassing him in front of his acquaintances, so he left the table, but she followed him. He said he finally gave her two minutes to talk to him, during which time she said she could not stand rejection and wanted revenge and an apology.

Sinatra said he tried to walk away again, but she followed him. He said when he turned around, they were "nose-to-nose." Sinatra said that because he could not see her hands, he became afraid of what she might y to do, and pushed her away to arm's length.

Official praises perseverance of steamboat's inventor

1787 Constitution Daybook

Associated Press

Wednesday, Dec. 12, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

State Treasurer David Rittenhouse, himself a scientist and mechanic of note, wrote Franklin concerning John Fitch:

" ...the Subscriber has frequently seen Mr. Fitch's Steam Boat which with great labour and Perseverance he had at length compleated and has likewise been on board when the Boat was worked against both wind and tide with a very considerable degree of velocity by the force of Steam only. Mr. Fitch's merit in constructing it to so useful a purpose will no doubt meet with the encouragement he so justly deserves from the generosity of his Countrymen, especially those who wish to promote every improvement of the useful Arts in America."

Jacob Hiltzheimer wrote in his diary: "Cloudy & Raw. to day Our Convention Ratified the Constitution of the United States. Votes in its favor 46, against it 23, just six days after the State of Delaware."

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Congress still lacked a quorum.

RATIFICATION TODAY

At 10 a.m., the New Jersey ratifying convention met pursuant to adjournment. Mr. Beatty reported for the committee to receive and examine the certificates of members that the members present had been duly elected. The convention then elected John Stevens, of Hunterdon County, president; Samuel Witham Stockton of Hunterdon, secretary; and William Rogers, doorkeeper. Messrs. Brearley, Hardenbergh and Neilson were appointed a committee to draw up rules, and the convention adjourned until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

In Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania convention met at 9 a.m. and William Findley closed his arguments in opposition. The convention then adjourned until 3:30 p.m. At that time, after some debate, the convention rejected a motion made by Albert Whitehill and seconded by William Findley that the convention adjourn while 15 proposed amendments were considered by the people, and voted to ratify the document as it stood.

The Philadelphia Freeman's Journal printed the fourth letter signed Philadelphiensis (probably Benjamin Workman, a tutor at the University of Pennsylvania) opposing the Constitution.

"The Federalist, No. 21" by Alexander Hamilton, appeared in the New York Independent Journal.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington rode to his plantations. He noted the killing today of 90 hogs with a total weight of 11,377 pounds. He also noted a rare occurrence when he was home — a dinner out, at Lund Washington's.

Nathaniel Gorham (Mass.) wrote Rufus King (Mass.) urging him to return to Boston.

The New Hampshire state Senate voted to pay the accounts of John Langdon amounting to 139 pounds, 10 shillings as a delegate to the Convention at Philadelphia.

Mary White Morris wrote from Philadelphia to husband Robert, in Virginia on business.

"As you know that I am something of a Politician & therefore could not forbear informing you that the Federal Government is agreed to by our Convention. They finished last evening. Great demonstrations of joy were expressed by the Populace. They did not forget you. We had three cheers."

LOOKING BACK
Ratification in Pennsylvania

Two hundred years ago today Pennsylvania, became the second state to ratify the new Constitution, by a 46-23 vote. Connecticut, Georgia and New Jersey had also elected pro-ratification conventions.

However, Federalist leaders expected and were organizing for a series of bitter fights. Some of the urgency they felt is evident in Nathaniel Gorham's letter to Rufus King:

"No considerations applying to this World, or I had allmost said the next, can be any inducement to stay at N York after the first of Jany. (Mrs. King, at 17, was expecting the couple's first child momentarily; King's friends expected him if a choice was necessary, to attend her confinement rather than the Massachusetts ratifying convention). You can have no idea how much depends on your presence. The Elections in this (coastal) part of the Country have generally been favorable, but a black cloud will come down from the three Western Counties.

"The choice was to have been made at Cambridge on Monday last but the Constable never returned his warrant...so the meeting was lost & a New one is summoned for next Monday. Gerry would not have been chosen. I cannot tell how his prospect may change the next meeting. On the whole I think the prospect had mended since you left us & looks rather encouraging...Sedgwick has beaten Bacon (in Stockbridge) & after a long dispute before the Town, Bacon has signed a recantation of his error."

Dear Sue,

I received your letter asking for a new apartment with a good location, lots of room, friendly neighbors, and rent that is easy to live with.

What an easy Christmas wish to fill, Lakewood Apartments has all this and more. They are within walking distance of the mall, and a one bedroom is just $165. Tell them Santa sent you and they will give an extra Christmas bonus.

Have a happy holiday and I'll change your address for next year's Christmas to Lakewood Apartments

Love
Santa
