All Arms Of Services Called Into Play In Advance Which Carries Chinese Opposition Down In Defeat

(By The Associated Press)

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 28.—The goatskin-clad soldiers of Japan swept northward from Yingkow today, brushing aside in sharp fighting every barrier raised by the Chinese, and tonight they rested in Tawa, the first-day objective in a large scale military operation that may end with the fall of Chinchow, China's last stand in Manchuria.

Every arm of the Japanese military—cavalry, airplanes, infantry and artillery—took part in the sweep to the north. Fighting in bitter weather, with the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero fahrenheit, they came into direct contact for the first time in weeks with the regular forces of China.

Resistance Stubborn

The resistance they met was stubborn, but they handled the regulars as readily as they have handled the Chinese irregulars in numerous brushes recently in the Mukden area.

Kowpangtze, which stands on the Mukden-Peiping railway at its junction with the Yingkow-Kowpangtze line is the principal city lying in front of the Japanese columns, but there has been no indication the advance will stop there.

At army headquarters a spokesman declared the purpose of the big push was to eliminate all "undesirable forces" from the area west of the Liao river.

"This may include Chinchow," he said. Chinchow is about forty miles southwest of Kowpangtze.

Adverse Conditions

The day's fighting—the heaviest since a similar sweep cleared the Chinese out of the Aganchi-Tsitihar area several weeks ago—was carried on under most adverse conditions.

Snow and ice made the terrain difficult. Weather conditions brought

Cullen F. Thomas Is Elected President Of Committee And March 2 Set As Date For A State-Wide Rally

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Dec. 28.—A Texas centennial exposition in 1936, commensurate with the size and wealth of the largest state in the union and in keeping with the romantic and glamorous history of the southwest, was set as the goal at an organization meeting of the Texas centennial committee here today.

Cullen F. Thomas, leader in a centennial movement for several years, was elected president of the committee. Election of an executive vice-president and other officers was deferred.

Rally Is Set

March 2, the anniversary of the date on which Texas won her independence from the rule of General Santa Anna and Mexico, was selected as date for a state-wide patriotic rally at Austin in the interest of the centennial exposition.

The centennial committee was appointed by Governor R. S. Sterling. Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt and Fred Minor, speaker of the house, under statutory authorization of the legislature. It will make recommendations to the next legislature.

Famous Actor Fined $500 By Federal Judge

Richard Dix Pleads Guilty To Being Delinquent In Income Tax Payments For Two Years Of 1927 And 1928

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28. — The smile of Richard Dix grew a bit forced as the film star faced a federal judge and pleaded guilty today to income tax evasion. He was fined $500. In addition the case has cost him nearly $90,000 in back taxes and penalties.

"I'm guilty," he said with a trace of shyness as Judge Paul J. McCormick, famed jurist and a member of the Wickersham commission, asked for his plea.

"I left my taxes up to one of these experts," he added, "and here I am. It's the first time I've ever been in trouble. In fact, I never was in court before in my life."

Looks Like Newcomer

Dix looked the part of a court newcomer. He shifted nervously from one foot to the other as he ended his plea.

The government in bringing Dix to court, charged he had earned $241,827 in 1927 and paid but $28,835 on a tax which should have been $43,317. The following year, he earned $305,075 and of a tax of $58,882, he paid but $40,339. There also was a misunderstanding about his tax for 1926 and the government claimed he owed, in all, $58,502 in back taxes and $29,251 in penalties all of which has been paid.

Gandhi Will Not Flinch In Losing Human Lives

Liberty Of India Is To Be Purchased At Any Cost

(By The Associated Press)

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 28.—Mahatma Gandhi declared today he would not flinch in sacrificing the lives of a million people to purchase the liberty of India.

The Mahatma made this statement to 50,000 white-capped nationalist gathered in an open field to hear his first speech since his return from the London round table conference. He spoke from a lofty platform made of stout bamboo poles, festooned with the nationalist colors—white, red and green — and surmounted by a spinning wheel.

Crowd Is Smaller

The crowd was considerably smaller than the audiences Mr. Gandhi addressed before he left for London, and some observers said he had lost in prestige because of the failure of the round table conference.

The listeners broke into applause infrequently, and there were no displays of the old fervent and militant revolutionary spirit.

"If the fight is inevitable I will expect every son and daughter of Mother India to contribute his mite," the Mahatma said.

Fight For Nation

"However, I will not abandon attempts to save the nation from a fiery ordeal. If, on the other hand, there is no single ray of hope, I shall not hesitate to call upon you to bear any amount of suffering."

Speaker later before the Welfare of India League Mr. Gandhi declared he could not expect to be able to exercise the same amount of restraint as he had if it came to taking a strong step.

"In the last fight you had to face lathis (Staves)", he said, "and in this fight you will have to face bullets."

Two Men Are Exonerated In Harlem "Baby Killing" Case

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP)—Self-repudiation of testimony by the state's ace witness led to a directed verdict of acquittal today for Vincent Coll, reputed gang leader, and his associate, Frank Giordano, accused of murder in the "baby killing," which excited Harlem's "Little Italy" last summer.

The order of the court, however, freed neither of the men from custody, Coll being taken to the Bronx to be booked and fingerprinted as a suspect in a $17,000 diary company holdup in 1928, and Giordano being returned to Sing Sings death house to await execution for a previous first degree murder conviction.

New York Mining Engineer Is Shot To Death In Automobile On Streets Of El Paso; Car Crashes To Curb

(By The Associated Press)

EL PASO, Dec. 28.—Bethman H. Mohlar, 34, a mining engineer of New York and formerly an officer in the Canadian air forces, was slain in El Paso tonight while riding in a car in the downtown district. His companion in the car, Hurshel Smith, 52, was held.

Guests at the hotel where Mohlar and Smith lived said Mohlar had taken Smith for an auto ride in Smith's car following a trip to Juarez. Police said Smith had been drinking. Mohlar was driving the car when he was shot. It crashed into a street curbing and Mohlar leaped to the street. He died almost immediately without saying anything.

Smith told police he shot in self defense. He claimed Mohlar was trying to kill him by wrecking the car. Police said Mohlar held a major's commission in the United States organized reserves.

(By The Associated Press)

BEAUMONT, Dec. 28—A million dollars damages is asked by Mrs. Sol Elisha in a suit filed in 58th district court here today, stating her house was battered by baseballs and her ears were battered by profane language prior to 1922 when she lived near the baseball field of the Beaumont Exporters.

She alleged that before 1922, while the team was at practice, baseballs were knocked against her house, breaking windows, and that once she was "laid up" with injuries. Mrs. Elisha also alleged she was abused with profane language.

Prohibition Will Be Tested Today

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 28. (AP)—A blizzard which swept across Finland today threatened to be the deciding factor in the prohibition referendum which will take place tomorrow and Wednesday.

Prohibitionists have counted on farmers and workers to continue the 13-year old dry regime. A falling barometer and the blizzard caused depression at prohibition headquarters, for leaders explained that with country roads impassable, many of their supporters would be prevented from voting.

The voters will decide whether prohibition shall be continued, repealed outright, or modified to permit medium strength wines and beers.

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 29. (Tuesday)—The contract bridge team of Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby parted in a dispute this morning after they had taken 250 points off the lead of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Although the Culbertsons won five of eight rubbers they suffered heavily in sets, Culbertson once going down 1,400 points when doubled and vulnerable. The series rubber standing became 59 for Culbertson and 44 for Lenz, Culbertson ending the fourteenth session with a plus of 16,840.

At the end of the session, Jacoby said:

Hundreds Of Well-Known Persons And Firms Profit By Checkup; Prairie Oil And Gas Has Heaviest

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Exactly 145,925 times the treasury decided it was wrong last year and passed out $69,476,930 in tax refunds to cover the errors.

That was the substance of Secretary Mellon's annual report to congress today on taxes which the treasury agreed had been illegally collected. The $69,476,930 was repaid in cash. The report did not list credits and abatements, which were deducted from taxes assessed but not yet paid.

In the 1930 fiscal year, refunds were $126,836,333, abatements $176,398,377 and credits $36,535,245.

But while the treasury was making these changes, it also added $382,788,076 to the taxpayers' outlay for the 1931 financial year.

Among those who profited by the treasury's second thought were hundreds of well-known persons and firms. The Prairie oil group—including oil and gas offices at Parco, Wyoming, and Independence, Kas., and the pipe line headquraters at Independence—drew $2,348,158 in refunds.

Another return in the million dollar class, of which there were twelve in 1930, was that of $1,056,675 to the Illinois Central railroad.

The third and last recipient of more than a million dollars in 1931 was the United Verde Copper company which, through its offices at Clarkdale, Arizona, and New York City, got a total of $1,047,398.

Among the other better known beneficiaries were:

Douglas Fairbanks $12,391; Senator Robinson of Arkansas $671; Senator Kean of New Jersey, $806; Secretary Mellon $85,022; Secretary Lamont $10,964; Sir Charles L. Ross, Scottish baronet, $8,601; Walter Hagen $902; Mrs. Elizabeth Morrow $1,175; John D. Rockefeller $31,324; and John D. Rockefeller, jr., $1,807; Paulino Uzcudun, $645; Texas Guinan, $2,469.

Residents Of Town Driven To Safety As Water Creeps High

Thousands Of Fertile Acres Of Farm Land Are Inundated By Streams; Business Area Under Six Feet

(By The Associated Press)

GLENDORA, Miss., Dec. 28.—Flood waters of the Mississippi delta country struck this small town today after a break in the Tallahatchie river levee, inundated the business section and drove residents to higher ground.

About daylight two night watchmen reported to the flood fighting committee at Glendora the protection levees were safe with its wall of water from the Tallahatchie river, but about an hour later 20 feet of the dike caved and the business street of the town went under six feet of water.

Convicts Called Out

Immediately, Parchman state prison farm rushed 500 convicts into the battle against the ever-widening crevasse and the toil to mend the break went on until late in the day the crevasses were nearly closed and the danger was lessened. The convicts were aided by every able-bodied man in Glendora.

During the day the water was coursing through the towns and inundating thousands of acres of land to the south in the direction of Ruleville and Cottondale.

The flood surrounding the Tallahatchie county towns of Glendora, Sumner and Webb, was nearly at its crest. The break at Glendora gave slight relief to the strained levee conditions at the other towns and along Cassidy bayou.

Starvation Of Millions Now Is Threatened

Only Federal Appropriations Can Save Situation, State Committee Of Leaders Before Senate Group

Ask $700,000,000

Senator Costigan Speaks For Measure; States "Americans Must Not Starve While We Quibble Over Words"

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP) — A desperate relief program which can be met only by federal appropriations was pictured to a senate committee today by welfare leaders from the nation's three largest cities.

The politically potent issue of direct federal appropriations for assistance to the jobless was placed squarely before congress by their testimony. It included an estimate that from $600,000,000 to $700,000,000 will be needed in the next year.

City To Run Out

This estimate came from Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of the Jewish charities of Chicago, who emphasized the problem by telling the committee that city would run out of relief funds by February 15.

The welfare workers testified before a senate manufactures subcommittee which opened hearings today on bills introduced by Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Costigan, Democrat, Colorado, to appropriate $250,000,000 and $375,000,000, respectively.

Starvation Threatens

Wm. Hodson, executive secretary of the welfare council of New York, testified that 800,000 are unemployed in New York City and said that "the spectre of starvation faces millions of people.

J. Prentice Murphy, executive director of the children's bureau of Philadelphia, testified that 970,000 were unemployed in Pennsylvania and asserted people in some states would get no relief unless it comes from the federal government.

Costigan, who is a member of the subcommittee, opened the hearing with a statement that "distress will have exacted an incalculable toll unless emergency relief on national lines is promptly enacted by congress."

Must Not Starve

Answering objections that his bill proposed a "dole," Costigan said "Americans must not starve while we quibble over words." He added

Night Riding Parties Make Initial Bow

NIGHT flying is a comparatively unexciting event now in Texas but a night horseback riding party is an innovation—even in this western section.

And to make a unique affair completely unusual, refreshments were served from an elevated table at the Wester Riding academy at Fair Park Monday night to 18 guests, all of whom were mounted on their favorite horses.

A night canter of five or six miles was topped with games on horseback inside the large Fair Park livestock building. The contests played were ones requiring skill in horsemanship.

Young Sheep Herder Injured By Fall Of Horse On Monday

Jimmy Branch, 15, sheep herder, suffered a broken leg when his horse stumbled and fell on him one-half mile from County Line late Monday.

The horse was unable to rise unaided and his weight pinned the boy to the ground for 15 minutes until Lee Irish, a passer-by, rescued him. Branch's left leg was broken twice, once below the knee and at the knee. He was being treated last night at Lubbock sanitarium. The youth, an orphan who came from Corpus Christi last fall to work for Lawrence Rice, Abernathy sheep rancher and farmer, was given emergency treatment at County Line and brought to Lubbock by Rice.

Man Is Held As Slaying Suspect

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 28. (AP)—Three little girls stood before a police lineup today and unhesitatingly pointed to one of two suspects held in connection with the brutal kidnaping and slaying of 6-year old Marian McLean as the man who molested one of them last June.

Hopeful that this latest development may lead to the capture or identification of the fiend who attacked and killed the McLean child, police plan to take the suspect before a man who reported seeing a nervous stranger appear before his home with a clothes basket covered with oil cloth.

The three children said the suspect tried to lure the youngest, age seven, to a cellar. When she screamed, the man fled, but later reappeared and offered the child money and candy to accompany him.

Retiring Officers In First Methodist Societies Are Honored Monday

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

SEVERAL years ago when we had little else to do except complain about the high cost of living and ask the boss for another raise, it was a popular pastime to sit around and talk about the "good old days" when things were cheaper and the family managed to survive on about half the salary that Dad was now drawing.

Now that your Christmas shopping is all over and you realize that a lot of things really were as cheap as in the "good old days", it might not be a bad idea to do a little thinking about that. At our breakfast table the other morning, talk turned to eggs and those who were buying eggs and housekeeping several years ago were remembering the days when eggs cost 75 cents a dozen at Christmas and no one expected anything different. They recalled, too, that occasionally one paid as much as $1 for a dozen eggs. This Christmas the price has been about three-fourth that amount. Oranges, bananas, nuts—a lot of other things that sold for 60 cents a pound or even—dropped to 25 cents this year for a regular price.

During last week, one florist told us his business had been as good this year as usual—in spite of his fear that people would not be able to buy as much in the way of flowers this year. Orders were not as large as they have been during the years, he explained, but there were more of them and that evened things up. Another said that business had been better than usual this year. We were looking at shrubs there and found that plants selling for 50 cents last year at this time are now selling for 25 cents and in some cases for 15 cents.

These "good old days" that people thought they were so anxious for to come in a lot of lines now, and of course, we wanted to draw the same salaries we had been drawing while the prices went down—that was where the rub came in.

FEELING THE PINCH

THE pinch of hard times had been keenly felt in one rural home of Lubbock this year and the family had discussed depression frequently. This fall when things got cold and it was decided that the living room stove must go up again, the 5-year-old of the family struck a pose and announced that he "guessed they would have to do without the stove this winter as his expenses couldn't take care of anything else.

POTATOES ARE CHEAPER

THE song, "Now's the time to fall in love," must have had some effect in Lubbock this fall, judging by the number of Christmas weddings of which we were told down here. Cupid probably was doing a big fall persuading on the basis of potatoes are cheaper, tomatoes are cheaper. . . .

A GOOD CHRISTMAS

ISN'T Christmas good this year? Everyone I have seen had a better time than usual. Lots of folks had visitors; many others were visiting and the weather that has been so threatening a few days before Christmas cleared off and favored us what real sunshine can be during the week-end. Even the moon worked overtime of nights.

Apparently, every needy family or individual that could be found was given food and gifts.

The live-at-home program of which we are hearing a lot these days has been exemplified by a lot of Lubbock county women during the past year. Almost 12 months ago, they planned year-round gardens—gardening according to a budget that would fit their food needs for the year. Their poultry flocks were culled and cared for according to scientific methods. Milk and butter needs of the family were arranged. Cattle were used to meet the family demands for food.

During the year, fresh vegetables were picked from these gardens and the surplus was canned according to methods that have been worked out by specialists. In this way, every thing needed by these farm people was had not now in their pantries and cellars.

These club women and girls who did not realize a profit from poultry and did not have success with their gardens were the ones who did not follow directions, according to a report from the home demonstration agent, Miss Ruth Stockton. Mrs. Pounds of Acuff, who has been successful in this business of being a farmer's wife for all these years, made a greater profit from her chickens than any other club member in the county. Mrs. Pounds probably knows better how to manage a farm home than any other woman in the county, yet she continues to have a part in home demonstration club work — indicating that the successful person continues to learn about his business.

Just how much the home demonstration work has meant to Lubbock county women during the last year, I cannot estimate. Safe From Beasts

Mrs. Gladys McCleary Day

BY LILLIAN CAMPBELL

Friends of Mrs. Gladys McCleary Day, former Washington, Pa. society girl, recently learned of her narrow escape from tigers and herds of wild elephants.

Mrs. Day was making a world flight with her husband, Charles H. Day, airplane designer and builder, when their ship was forced down in the Indian jungle.

The Days, who live at Ridgewood, N. J., departed from New York on May 8, in a new type airplane designed by Day in his Paterson, N. J., plant, and had flown across Europe and Western Asia, when forced down in the jungle. They were saved by natives, who at times carried Mrs. Day through a jungle morass two or three feet deep.

Their plane was salvaged from the jungle, reassembled and then flown to Shanghai, from which place Mrs. Day wrote her family of her experiences.

They have now returned to the United States, reaching San Francisco the middle of November, and finishing their flight across the continent to their home.

Airplane Falls But Women Passengers Don't Know It

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 28. (AP)— Two women passengers, flying with E. C. Dodson, Oklahoma City pilot, did not know that the airplane's motor stopped yesterday while the ship was above the business district, necessitating a dangerous glide to the nearest landing space.

Dodson said his long glide proved that an airplane won't always fall the minute its motor quits. This ship was 2,000 feet above the Ramsey tower when the motor "died."

To help the unemployed of Adelaide, N. S. W., Rev. T. P. Willason raced to Geelong, bought a fifty-ton steamer at auction, added 10 motor boats to the fleet, and put the jobless to fishing.

MAD MARRIAGE

A Woman's Intuition

IF it had not been for Gypsy McBride, the wrong woman would have been convicted of murder. Even Gypsy's husband, who was the lawyer representing the defendant, admitted there was no chance of an acquittal.
But Gypsy played a hunch—perhaps you would call it feminine intuition. And by means of it she solved Forest City's most sensational murder case and obtained a confession from the real murderer.
This is just one of the thrilling episodes in "Mad Marriage," Laura Lou Brookman's latest serial. It's not a mystery story; it's the story of a young girl's heart. But you'll find it the most interesting serial you've read in months.
It starts Sunday, January 3, in the Sunday Avalanche-Journal and continues in daily installments thereafter on the editorial page of

Rain Prevents Heavy Workout By Green Wave

Tennis Shoes Ordered And Tulane Works Out Indoors For Rose Bowl Game With Southern California Friday

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 28. — A heavy rain swept the Green Wave of Tulane indoors today and practice for the Rose Tournament game here New Year's Day with the University of Southern California football team was held within the confines of Pasadena civic auditorium.

Coach Bernie Bierman ordered tennis shoes for his squad and then sent the team through some dummy scrimmage on defense and a signal drill on offense. He said the precipitation greatly cramped the style of the team, and disrupted plans for a heavy drill out of doors.

A dozen miles away on the Trojan campus, Coach Howard Jones also kept his Southern Californians out of the rain, giving them only a bit of skull practice, going over Tulane's plays and formations as well as those designed to upset the Green Wave defense.

The weather forecast for tomorrow is expected to continue rain but Coach Jones of the Trojans, impatient over the interruption of his schedule, indicated he probably would give the men of Troy outdoor work regardless of conditions.

The Southern California team hopes to get the feel of the Rose Bowl sod Thursday, if conditions permit, running through a signal drill of short duration. Tulane also is expected to go to the Rose Bowl the day before the contest.

65,000 Tickets Sold

Sixty-five thousand tickets have been sold and if the skies clear a day or two before the seventeenth annual classic a capacity crowd of 85,511 persons is probable.

But East-West Teams Drill On Dry Field

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28. (AP)—For the first time in a week, football stars who will meet here New Year's Day in the annual East-West charity game, worked out today on a dry field.

Eastern and western coaches took advantage of the turn in weather to send their charges through heavy practice. Passing plays came in for considerable attention, with the ball fit to handle the players able to toss it distances without danger of wild heaves. Andy Kerr of Colgate, head coach of the Easterners, sent the boys through their paces at Palo Alto while his assistant, Dick Hanley of Northwestern, was recovering from a cold.

At Berkeley, the Western pigskin warriors dashed through their plays with a snap that brought smiles to the faces of Dana Bible, of Nebraska and Percy Locey of the Olympic Club, co-coaches. Outweighed by their eastern rivals and outnumbered in the matter of individual stars, the western players, nevertheless, will have the advantage of speed.

S. M. U. And Texas All-Stars Prepare For Charity Game

DALLAS, Dec. 28. (AP)—Practice was started today for the New Year's Day football skirmish here between the S. M. U. and Texas all-stars. Proceeds will go to charity.

Choc Sanders and Louie Long looked good as they prepared to perform with the Southern Methodist all-stars.

Gene Tunney Wins Yacht Race In Court; Rents Boat, Fails To Get Benefit, Owner Sues

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 28. (AP)—Gene Tunney today won the first round of a battle over a yacht.

Supreme Court Justice Joseph Moreschauser granted an application of the former boxing champion to compel Henry Bacon of Scarsale to arbitrate a dispute over the rental Tunney should pay for a boat he did not use last summer.

Tunney signed a contract agreeing to rent the yacht for one month for $900. Then, he said, he gave notice he would not need it. Bacon insisted he pay the full $900. Tunney pointed to a clause in the contract providing for the appointment of three arbitrators if a disagreement arose. Bacon refused to arbitrate. Tunney went to court.

President Of N.B.A. Looks For Active Season Of Good Boxing

Schmeling's Defense Of Title To Be Headliner; Logical Contenders To Meet Champs In Every Weight Division

(NOTE: This is another of a series of sports roundups written by American sports leaders for the Associated Press, combining reviews of 1931 with prospects for the new year.)

BY GENERAL JOHN V. CLINNIN
President National Boxing Association.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28. (AP) — Boxing should be a lively industry in America in 1932.

Several important matches are pending, including defense of the world's heavyweight championship by Max Schmeling. While the era of the million-dollar gates has passed, at least until the return of business prosperity, the sport has prospects of one of its greatest years, both from a competitive and box office standpoint.

The year of 1932 looks favorable because champions in every division will be forced into action against the logical contenders. As a result there will be more interesting bouts.

Schmeling Proves Popular

Max Schmeling has proved himself a real champion and a popular one. Nevertheless, he must defend his title, like every other champion through the policy of the National Boxing association, in demanding that champions fight.

Boxing is in a highly favorable condition in public opinion. There have been no scandals, no legislation against it. In fact, during the past year five additional states legalized the sport. There is an increasing movement to stage longer bouts; that is, to pass legislation to permit 15 round bouts instead of ten. Three states decided to increase the number of rounds within the last year. In Illinois we hope to do the same thing, so we can be on a more even competitive basis with New York in championship affairs. The law in New York provides for 15 round bouts.

The outstanding achievement of the National Boxing association in 1931 was the formation of an international committee with full power to approve or disapprove all world's championships and international contests. This committee consists of one member from the National Boxing association, one from the Canadian Association of Boxing commissions, one from the international boxing union, and one from the British Boxig Board of Control.

Rules Become International

As a result of closer co-operation with our neighbors in Canada and across the sea, international boxing rules are becoming standardized.

As regards Jack Dempsey, I hope the old "Manassa Mauler" will be able to come back, because he is an idol with the American public. The exhibitions in which the former champion is now engaging may round him into condition. However, his fitness for a championship fight must be decided at the time the question comes up.

The National Boxing association has been materially strengthened during 1931, with the affiliation of the states of Tennessee and Indiana. There has been no loss in the original membership and the association continues to be a dominant factor in controlling boxing in America.

Complete Good Year

The association, in 1931, had the most successful year in the history of the organization. The rolls show twenty-nine states of the United States, Montreal and Quebec, Mexico, Cuba and Porto Rico as members in good standing. This organization is also a member of the International Boxing union and affiliated by a working agreement with the British Boxing Board of Control of England, the combined strength of the three organizations making for the greatest regulating and controlling body of athletic sports in the world.

The report of the championship committee of the National Boxing association showed their titles during the year 1930-31 with the exception of Maxie Rosenbloom in the light heavy-weight division. Rosenbloom, having failed to defend his title within the six months period fixed by the rules of the association, had his title vacated, and the National Boxing association proceeded to hold an open tournament to select the light heavyweight champion of the world. The tournament is now in progress in Chicago. Forty-six entries were received from the leading fifty contenders in this class.

Another tournament to decide the world's middleweight championship is in progress in Milwaukee.

The sixth seeded player, Kendall Cram of Tulane University, was eliminated Saturday by an unknown contender, Edward Bordin, of Temple University.

E. Ramsey Donovan, Fordham University entrant, seeded second, defeated David Geller of New York University, 6-0, 6-3.

Bernard Friedman, fourth seeded player from west Philadelphia High school, swamped Walter Woernie of Fullerton, Md., in love sets.

New Traps, Bunkers, Added To Lengthened Post Golf Course

POST, Dec. 28. (Special)—Thirty one new traps and bunkers are being built on the Post Country club golf course, one of the oldest in this section, and it is being lengthened 330 yards, A. J. ("Ham") Holman, president, reports.

Par will continue to be 36, although the course will be 3,402 yards long.

Membership in the club has increased from 30 to 34, Herbert Jones, secretary-treasurer, reports. Eddie Warren is chairman of the tournament committee and George Samson of the membership committee.

Charles A. Quails, present West Texas golf champion, is a member of the club and one of the active leaders. The champion visits the course almost daily, except when snow covers the ground, and plays a few holes to keep in practice.

Members have raised about $600 for the improvement of the course. Post has won the Caprock golf league championship two successive years and it is expected the coming year will see the league increased from four to six or eight towns.

Gulf Mark Set For Smallest Tarpon With Regular Tackle

BROWNSVILLE, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Andrew Cueto, Brownsville sportsman, has had a record thrust upon him.

He has caught the smallest tarpon ever landed with regular tarpon tackle in the Gulf of Mexico, so far as records in this section show.

The tarpon measured exactly nine inches. Close behind him is T. T. "Sally" Haines, state game warden, who recently landed one in this section which was only 13 inches long.

Haines also has a second high record for the largest tarpon, having caught a tarpon a short time ago which measured seven feet, one inch.

Black Panther Gridders Down Amarillo Team

Sedberry Brothers Carry And Pass Mail To Distant Parts As Local Blacks Take 13-12 Win Over Amarillo Tigers

The sweet spirit of revenge hovered about Texas Tech Field yesterday afternoon and the Lubbock Black Panthers of the Dunbar School for colored defeated the Douglas Tigers, a colored school organization from Amarillo, 13 to 12. While the score was close, it was enough to send the Tigers down to their first defeat of a hitherto unbeaten season and to give the Panthers vengeance for a 27 to 0 defeat plastered upon them at Amarillo several weeks ago.

A crowd of approximately five hundred fans witnessed the first football game between colored teams in Lubbock, keeping time to the synchronized if not melodious notes of a jazz orchestra the while passes were flung with more or less abandon but with startling results and while each side went through a complete revue of offensive and defensive formations.

Various Formations

There was a formation for nearly every play, yet the teams clicked with a unity that was unexpected Minus the usual roughness and toughness of a game of its kind, the contest yesterday goes down as one of the cleanest played gridiron battles of the year on Tech Field. The Tigers were assessed three five-yard penalties during the course of the conflict, there being no penalties for rough playing.

The Panthers came back to overcome a 6-point lead and win their victory with two touchdowns in the second quarter. The Sedberry boys, four of them, were stars for Lubbock and Toby Johnson and Frank Monteller played in the glimmer of the spotlight for Amarillo.

May it be mentioned here that the Tigers have won five games this season before coming to Lubbock. They defeated Lubbock once, San Angelo once and Vernon thrice. The last game was played Saturday and resulted in a 112 to 0 victory for Amarillo over Vernon. In the first game of the season, the Tigers played Lubbock to a scoreless tie.

Lubbock's Second Game

It was Lubbock's second venture on the gridiron this season, the first at home, but Coach Sedberry's work throughout the fall has not gone for naught. His boys were badly outweighed yesterday but they had the old fighting spirit and were not to be halted once Amarillo had taken the lead.

Early in the game, Whitmore, end, broke around his right end and scampered 29 yards before he was run out of bounds on the Lubbock 1-foot line. Monteller went over for the counter. A pass for extra point was no good.

Two penalties, a fumble and the dashing of "Lightning" Searcy and Chock Patterson led the Black Panthers to the Amarillo 11-yard line with a first down as the first quarter ended, and early in the fourth, on two plays, Patterson went over for the counter. Chock then cut through left tackle for the three yards and extra point which eventually won the game.

Several plays later the Amarillo safety fumbled after receiving a punt and Lubbock recovered on the Amarillo 26-yard line. Then there was executed one of the most beautiful pass plays seen on the field all season, white or black. Just one Sedberry to another, S. C. to Scott, a long, wobbling pass sent from a southpaw to the star of the game, Scott Sedberry, resulted in a touchdown, the Panther left end leaping high to snare the agate and sprinting the few remaining yards for the counter.

The third period saw no scoring, but Lubbock intercepted a pass on its own goal line and Patterson ran it back to his 5-yard line before booting out of danger.

Midway of the fourth, the Lubbock center made a bad snap back, the ball rolled into the end zone and 22 gridsters fumbled and kicked it around until finally a Tiger lineman covered it for a touchdown. A pass was completed as Amarillo tried to convert the extra point and tie the old ball game, but the receiver was between the goal posts and the New Mexico state line when he received it.

Coaches From All Parts Of Country Arrive In New York For Big Session

Chick Meehan Busy With Details As Body President

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP) — The amalgamated football master minds of America today descended upon the city for their annual clinic.

Big, over-coated fellows, with the imprint of sun and wind in their faces and nothing but football on their minds, they cluttered up the lobbies and private rooms and talked football. By nightfall several hundred of the nation's leading mentors had entered the forum, and every incoming train was bringing more.

Only the steering committee, headed by Chick Meehan, president of the National Association, was unable to get in on the general conversation. That body spent the afternoon and early evening outlining the program for tomorrow's session. It had nothing to report, except the 1931 pow-wow probably will exceed any of recent years in volume of sound.

Although today's preliminary convention was, for all its enthusiasm, entirely unofficial, it was possible to reach one pretty definite conclusion from the general tenor of conversation, to wit:

Will Discuss Deaths

The country's coaches, much as they regret the 48 known football deaths in the past season are not likely to recommend any drastic changes in the existing rules of the game.

There doubtless will be much conversation on the subject, with ringing indictments on the flying wedge, proposals that defensive linesmen not be permitted to use their hands on the heads or necks of charging rivals, and a movement to restore the tee on the kickoff, but it is evident the men who teach the game will not seek any radical changes.

What is more probable is that they, like eastern officials at their meeting yesterday, will ask their rules committee to make a thorough analysis of the situation and to tell the national rules committee what it thinks in February.

Of the various reports to be made at tomorrow's meeting, one prepared by a committee headed by Coach Lou Little of Columbia, promises to be of the most national interest. Little and his associates sent questionaires to more than 400 colleges and universities, seeking data on the time the average player devotes to football in comparison to other sports and campus activities. It is football's first answer to the cry of over-emphasis, and the revelations are said to be little short of sensational.

Veterans Of Legal Battles To Fight For Eight Negroes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 28 (AP)—Clarence Darrow of Chicago and Arthur Garfield Hays of New York, veterans of famous legal battles, will go before the Alabama supreme court Jan. 18 in defense of eight negroes sentenced to die for an attack on two white girls near Scottsboro, Ala., last March.

The two announced their retention in the case by the Society for the Advancement of Colored People yesterday after arriving here to confer with Birmingham atorneys.

The sentencing of the negroes brought hundreds of protests from all over the world. Several agencies, including the International Labor Defense league, have interested themselves in the case. The girls were attacked while "bumming" a ride on a train.

Favorites Advance In Mid-Winter Tourney At Pinehurst; Dunlap In

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 28. (AP)—Favorites advanced in the opening round of the annual mid-winter golf tournament here today, but several had narrow escapes.

Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, the medalist, stood four down to John D. Smith of New York, at the turn, but sank an 18-foot putt on the eighteenth hole, to win one up.

George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, the defending champion, had a comparatively easy victory over John D. Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., United States senior champion, whom he defeated 4 and 3.

In one of the most sensational battles of the day John S. Chapman, of New York lost to R. G. Morrison, of Pittsburgh, on the 20th hole, Chapman losing one up.

Richard Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., carded a 75 to trim Jack Rudel, of Montreal, by a one up margin. Rudel's medal score was 76.

Francis T. Keating of New York, defeated C. E. Prodie, of Chicago, one up; Halbert J. Blue, of Aberdeen, N. C., eliminated Tom Rudel of Montreal, one up; Phillip S. P. Randolph of Hempstead, L. I., won over C. B. S. Marr, of Carnoustie, Scotland, 6 and 4, and E. D. Thompson of Springfield, Mass, advanced by virture of a 3 and 2 ictory over Donald Parson of Youngstown, Ohio.

Winning Isn't All-Important, Littlefield Tells Longhorns

AUSTIN, Dec. 28. (AP)—There is more to a football season than the mere winning of games, Coach Clyde Littlefield, head coach of the University of Texas, told graduating lettermen and members of the 1931 squad at the annual banquet tendered by the coaches.

"At this time last year gold championship footballs, engraved fountain pens and the like were being passed out to the team and we were being congratulated on winning the Southwest conference championship," Littlefield said.

"This year it is a different story. But the season has not been a loss to us. Defeat brings lessons which in victory are overlooked. I do not think this season has been an unsuccessful one for us. I believe the lessons learned this season will help make a better team next year."

Pretty Young Woman Found Wandering Tulsa Streets

TULSA, Dec. 28. (AP)—Apparently the victim of amnesia, a pretty young woman was found wandering in the streets early this morning and brought to police headquarters where efforts were made to identify her.

The woman, apparently 23 to 24 years old ,was clad only in a light pongee coat thrown over silk undergarments, and "mules." She seemed exhausted and dazed.

There were scars on each knee and between the eyebrows, the results of an auto collision, details of which she did not remember. She could remember nothing of her people or home.

Sideline Razz Is Rapped By Investigators

"Escort Those Out Who Shout, 'Kill The Referee'," Says Speaker At Coaches Meeting In New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP)—A suggestion that ribald criticism of officials at school and college sports contests be curbed by ejection of those responsible was introduced in a discussion of the intangles of sportsmanship at the annual Sportsmanship Brotherhood luncheon today.

The suggestion was made by John T. (Terry) McGovern, co-author of the celebrated Carnegie Bulletin No. 23, who has been making a survey of the sportsmanship of the crowds at school and college athletic events.

"To my mind this unsportsmanship conduct from the stands is more harmful than all the subsidization and recruiting of athletes ever done," McGovern said, adding that to his knowledge no fewer than four tradition college athletic rivalries had been broken off as a direct result of unsportsmanlike conduct by spectators.

The remedies were suggested to curb this "dangerous degeneracy of conduct." First, McGovern said, he would have the incoming freshmen at a school instructed in what their conduct should be toward officials and visiting athletic teams. Next he would appeal to the older students at a school to set a better example and thirdly he would promptly bounce out of a gymnasium or football stadium the first person to raise the cry of "kill the referee" or "throw that big bum out!"

Hits At Gamblers

The chief offender in sportsmanship, McGovern found, was the "cigar store or barbershop administrator of college athletics" who places a small bet on the home team and goes to a game prepared to protect his investment with all the invective at his command.

Among those discussing the more intangible phases of sportsmanship was Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of Riverside church and widely known radio speaker, who spoke on the value of "playing the game."

James G. Blaine, president of the Marine Midland Trust company of Buffalo and a member of Owen D. Young's committee of mobilization of relief resources, reported charity football games promoted by the committee had grossed probably $1,250,000 for the unemployed.

"Alfalfa Bill's" Big Boom

ONE might think from glowing articles appearing in such national publications as The Saturday Evening Post and Collier's Weekly that Oklahoma's governor, William Henry Murray, is a strong contender for the Presidential nomination of the Democratic party.

Yet, as a matter of fact, Governor Murray has been repudiated by the voters of his own state, in a special election held ten days ago, and close political observers in Sooperland are of the opinion that he would have difficulty in carrying his own state, were he to receive the nomination and go into the Presidential derby.

As usual, Oklahoma is conducting its public affairs in a fashion which rivals the comic opera settings of the Balkans. Governor Murray, swept into office on a wave of popular ballots, now finds enemies on every side, howls to high heaven in language both profane and otherwise, and the cry of "Impeach! Impeach!" again rolls over the hills and dales of the one-time Indian country.

On the other side stand the Murray supporters, doing their share of whooping, too, and Oklahoma, as usual, is in the midst of a political turmoil which will not die away until Murray's successor takes office and begins his own fight to hold the governor's chair.

Someone has said that "you can't throw a brick in Oklahoma without hitting someone who would like to see Alfalfa Bill as the President." Someone else has countered that "if that's true, let's start throwing bricks! I can think of no more fun than using bricks to drive sense into people who would like to see Alfalfa Bill in Washington!"

The Morning Avalanche is not in close touch with politics in Oklahoma. It makes no difference to us whether Governor Murray is a good or bad executive, whether he holds his office or whether he loses it. But those who figure the gentleman with the handlebar moustaches as a Presidential possibility are basing their figures upon a very efficient publicity campaign which has placed Governor Murray in a much better light outside his own state than he is within it.

As a matter of record, Oklahoma classes him as "just another governor" and whether that is a slam or a compliment depends upon how the individual in Oklahoma and its methods of choosing and supporting governors.

Thus far, the chief charge brought against Alfalfa Bill is that he is insincere. He plowed into office on the shoulders of the masses. At home he dresses heavenly, dodges the razor, serves tea on the floor and cuts of his love for and connection with "the common peepul." But when he leaves Oklahoma on one of his numerous junkets and to push—according to his enemies—"his one man Presidential boom," he wears the most formal of formal attire and the papers publish his pictures!

All in all—and whether Murray is a hero or a bum, depending upon the individual point of view—Alfalfa Bill's Presidential aspirations cannot be taken seriously, Collier's and the Saturday Evening Post not withstanding to the contrary.

He probably will be heard from; he'll probably make plenty of noise and draw more than a generous share of cheers. But Mr. Murray won't be nominated by the Democratic party—at least unless there is a great change all over the country.

It is assumed that when Mr. Pope, a fair thinker of his day and age, remarked "A little learning is a dangerous thing," the subject uppermost on his mind was not the Atlantic is beaten with monotonous regularity by aviators. The Pacific, on the other hand, seems to be Lefty Grove of oceans.

AILABLE records indicate that from 40 to 50 young men died during the current season from results of accidents during football games. These ents took unusual forms, largely depending on manner in which they occurred.

McFadden Support Seen

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Just at first it may look as if Representative Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania, who compared President Hoover to "an oriental potentate, drunk with power," has no friends at all.

Louis T. McFadden.

It presently will appear, however, that plenty of support is ready to rally to him—if he demonstrates his ability to make out half or a quarter of the case implied by his speech attacking the moratorium to America's war debtors.

The truth is that McFadden always has been known as an orthodox, conservative Republican. To be sure, for a long time he has made no secret of his opinion that Washington officialdom has been letting international bankers get away with murder, for their own benefit, in settling Uncle Sam's financial claims against foreign governments.

EVEN BEFORE the market crash in 1929, the Pennsylvanian made several speeches and published a number of articles, forecasting a period of terrific stringency throughout the United States, as a sequel to the overseas commitments into which he complained that the country was being drawn, in connection with the old world powers' post-war readjustments of their fiscal affairs.

His language, however, always was parliamentary, prior to his recent outbreak in congress.

Moreover, his subject being highly technical, politicians undoubtedly believed that not many folk were capable of understanding him anyway; indeed, probably they did not understand him very well themselves—consequently did not pay much attention to what he was saying.

BUT THEY did understand his recent reference to the presidential moratorium as an "infamous proposal."

In fact, it knocked the wind out of them.

If it had come from one of the ultra-progressives, the G. O. P. regulars would not have been so badly disorganized by it; the typical progressive attitude toward the present administration would have discounted it to some extent.

But never hitherto has McFadden been supposed to have the smallest modicum of progressive-ism in his make-up. Possibly he has not now. This may be something different, and as yet unknown—a new element.

THE SUDDENNESS of the thing left the standardized progressives gaping. They had not the presence of mind to fly to the Pennsylvanian's assistance.

He will get all he needs of it a little later, from their group in the senate. If he really can substantiate his story of pending secret negotiations between Washington and foreign capitals, for the moratorium to lead into further debt reductions or cancellation, the body for him to substantiate it before is the senate finance committee, now investigating this very matter under the Johnson resolution.

The regulars profess vast confidence that there is nothing more for him to tell, but, strictly sub rosa, a few of them admit that they would feel easier on this point were it not for McFadden's profound acquaintance with the banking business.

HE HAS BEEN in it all his life. He is an ex-president of the Pennsylvania Bankers' association. For 10 years he was chairman of the house of representatives' committee on banking and currency, and would be its chairman now, but that he is a Republican and that Democratic control of the house put Representative Henry B. Steagall of Alabama in the chairmanship at the beginning of this congressional session.

It seems almost incredible, various worried administrationists confess, that an individual of his experience and unemotional hard-headedness will prove to have gone off entirely at half-cock on a proposition which must ruin him politically unless he can make convincingly good on it.

Incidentally, Democratic Representative John J. O'Connor of New York is receiving warm congratulations on his quick-wittedness in beating all Republicans to spring to Mr. Hoover's defense.

Thus the Jeffersonians simultaneously are cleared in advance of any suspicions even of sympathy with the attack, if it turns out to have been unwarranted, and on record as pointing to it as furnishing ground for impeachment if justified.

It takes two men to make ambition; one to dream dreams, and another to inspire the envy that causes the dreams.

As Clem Hawley used to say, in reference to his own case, heredity seems to run in the Kennedy-McPherson family.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARY HARKNESS plots to ensnare The Fly, who "framed" her brother, EDDIE, with the murder of MRS JUPITER and ran him down to keep him from telling. She is aided by MR. JUPITER and BOWEN of the Star. Mary's fiance, DIRK RUYTHER, believes Eddie guilty and breaks with Mary when she will not give up the investigation.

Mary sails for Miami on the Jupiter yacht to follow The Fly. BRUCE JUPITER and a questionable friend, COUNTESS LOUISE, go along. They vow to rout Mary, who they consider a gold-digger trying to steal Bruce's inheritance. Bruce quarrels with Louise over a diamond bracelet she says belongs to Mary. De Loma gave it to her as security for a loan. Bruce makes her give up the bracelet to Mary, who discovers it was stolen from Mrs. Jupiter the night she was killed.

Louise introduces the party to COUNT DE LOMA, who Mary learns is The Fly. Using the Jupiter necklace as bait, Mary dances with him. He gets the necklace from her by a ruse, then kisses her. Dirk knocks him down.

Injured and unconscious, Dirk is taken on board the yacht the "Gypsy." The Fly goes along and tries again to steal the necklace. Bowen gives Mary proof that the countess is an adventuress. The "Gypsy" sails with all on board. The Fly realizes he has walked into a trap. The "Gypsy" goes aground on a reef.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

J. J. Jupiter was the first man on deck. Although it was past his usual early retiring hour, he was still dressed. He was there when Captain Hendricks came hurrying down from the bridge, and together the two men retired to the port rail. Bates and Mary followed.

"What's the matter, captain?" Bates inquired somewhat nervously. He had a landsman's inordinate fear of accident on sea, and even Mary felt a childish impulse to rush to the captain and cling to his hand until the danger was over.

"We're fast on a reef," Captain Hendricks was explaining to Mr. Jupiter. "She's apparently not hurt—the engineers say she's making no water below—but she seems to be well struck."

"Can you get off by yourself?" Mr. Jupiter asked.

"We'll have a try at it tomorrow morning. I'm afraid we'll have to have a tug out of Key West though to give us a pull."

"Do what you think best," Mr. Jupiter answered mildly.

"I shouldn't have come in tonight," the captain continued, "but the moon made it almost like day, and I've been around here so much I thought I could make it even in a fog. This channel isn't used except for small fishing craft, and apparently some of the buoys have drifted over. See that mid-channel buoy there?"

He pointed to what looked like an upturned funnel to Mary. It was floating almost in the shadow the ship cast on the water.

"Mid-channel buoy, and it's sticking right up on top of a reef with only about five feet of water over it! Fortunately we were coming in slow, just barely turning over."

"Where are we?" Bates asked.

"Just a half mile from the old pier at Fort Jefferson where I intended to make fast. In another five minutes we'd have been there. That's Dry Tortugas there a couple of miles off the starboard beam."

They turned to look, and the ray of the big lamp in its white tower swept across their faces and off into the moonlit night.

"I'm going fishing in the morning then," Mr. Jupiter said cheerfully. "How about it, Bates?"

"Fine."

"We'd better be getting a little sleep. Ought to be out by six anyway. They bite better early in the morning. Everybody back to bed now. There's nothing we can do to help, and we'd only be in the way."

The day that followed was one of unutterable tedium for those left behind while the fishing party cruised happily about. Mary sat in a desk chair, a book in her lap, watching the unexcited labors of the distant fishermen through a telescope loaned by the captain. It was not very entertaining but it was better than nothing.

The burning sun drove Bruce and Louise downstairs, where they played interminable games of solitaire. De Loma prowled the ship like a caged animal. He had run out of cigarettes long since, and his nerves were all a - jangle. He roved from one end of the ship to the other, leaning on the rail and studying the prospect in every direction. They were all very much the same, which must have been discouraging.

He avoided the landward side, Mary observed, but whether this was due to her presence there, or to the view—which consisted of glassy sea out of which old Fort Jefferson prison reared its ugly head—she did not know.

Presently, to give him the range of the boat, and also because his restlessness had begun to get on her nerves, she resolved to go below and take a nap. She met a steward with a tray, headed for Dirk's stateroom, and stopped him. She rearranged it a bit to make it more inviting. Then she had the steward wait while she wrote a note. It was only three words.

Mary pulled a book from the rack on one side of the salon and sent that along, too. She promised herself that she would drop in and see Dirk after he had lunch.

Once she heard an altercation out on deck. De Loma was berating a steward because he had locked up the liquor cabinet, at Mr. Jupiter's order, as it turned out. Mary dismissed it from her mind, until a violent knocking at her door forced her to take notice of it.

De Loma was in a towering, white-hot rage.

"What's this all about?" he snarled. Am I a guest on this damn fishing-smack or am I not? Why can't I get service from these deaf mutes you've got for waiters on this tub? I want a drink, and I want it now, do you hear! Tell this cub to toss out that key! What does he think I am, a baby?"

"Take your troubles to Captain, Hendricks. He's in command," Mary replied.

"Yes? Well, there's something else I want to know—why doesn't that radio operator send my messages?"

"Doesn't he?"

"No. If he did, I'd have had an-

Letters To The Editor

Lubbock Man Asks Questions On Cancellation Of Loans

Editor, The Avalanche: It seems that the big money lenders are bent on cancellation of foreign war loans—not bankers' loans, but United States government loans; so I beg permission to ask a few questions of grave importance to American tax payers.

Where did the money come from that our government loaned to other nations? Didn't our government issue interest bearing bonds and collect this money from the American people on these bonds and in other ways? And will not the American taxpayers have to pay every dollar of these bonds and every cent of interest on these bonds?

Do the American taxpayers want this big load of "Liberty" bondage doubled back onto them again, in order to relieve foreign taxpayers and those who got the money from paying it back to relieve or reimburse American taxpayers? Do bankers do that kind of business—loan money and then cancel the indebtedness?

Rather, do they not take the farmer's land, stock and produce? Isn't every expense and profit collected from the producers, consumers and taxpayers?

What did the American taxpayers, a few excepted, have to do with the cancellation of these enormous loans of the taxpayer's money? Will our generous government cancel these bonds and interest to relieve the American taxpayers from this great burden of taxation, heaped on their shoulders?

Will the big financiers cancel any of their loans to either foreign or American taxpayers? Why do they want these government loans to other nations cancelled at the expense of the American taxpayers? Is it for the American public interest or the interest of the bankers? Why does the government issue bonds and bank notes, and borrow money from the big gold and bond holders? What makes United States bonds and bank notes good? Isn't it the stamp and security of the government? Then why couldn't the people's government issue non-interest-bearing United States currency to run the people's government and also to retire interest bearing government bonds?

Why is ours the only government now, France excepted, that runs on a gold standard basis? Is this to make it possible for the financiers to corner the gold bonds and demoralize business and production, and produce just such conditions as we now have?

Give us more William Jennings Bryans, free silver and honest United States currency without interest and good for all debts in the United States. Give us "Golden Rule" instead of the Rule of Gold. Now, Mr. Taxpayers, Mr. Producer, Mr. Politician and Mr. Law-Maker: This will do to smoke, chew and meditate on for a while.

T. J. ESTES.

Clues Sought After Slaying

Extensive Search Is Started After Finding Of Body Of Weatherford High School Boy In Weed Patch

WEATHERFORD, Dec. 28. (AP)—Officers were seeking clews today which would lead to the identity of the slayer of William Vardeman, 17, and were hopeful they would be revealed at an inquest by Justice W. R. Hawkins. Vardeman's body was found in a ditch two miles east of here late Saturday. He was an athlete of the Weatherford high school.

Physicians who examined the youth had been slain. Two skull fractures were found. It was considered improbable he had been struck by an automobile.

That robbery might have been the motive of the killing was revealed in the fact the youth's pockets were turned out. One fact that puzzled officers was that Vardeman's shoes were missing. It was believed they might have been taken by robbers.

The youth was last seen alive Christmas night in Weatherford as he was planning to go to his home. It is believed he met his death that night.

Hawkins Trial Is Set For January

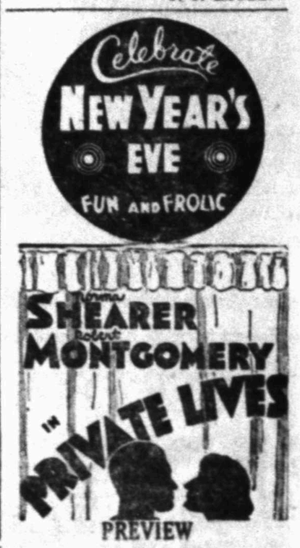

Joe Hawkins, Crosby county farmer, charged with murder in the slaying of his father-in-law, S. M. Watkins, in Crosby county in October, 1929, will face trial in the Hale county district court January 25 Durwood Bradley, district attorney, said Monday.

Meade F. Griffin, Plainview district attorney, will lead the prosecution. The scheduled trial will be the third of Hawkins on the charge. The first trial, in Crosby county, resulted in a sentence of 50 years, but an appeal to the state criminal appeals court resulted in the verdict being reversed and the case transferred to Floyd county. At a trial in Floyd county last February, the jury was unable to agree. After a special venire of 100 men was exhausted at Floydada this past term and a jury not completed, Judge Kenneth Bain transferred the case to Hale county.

PRISONER DIES

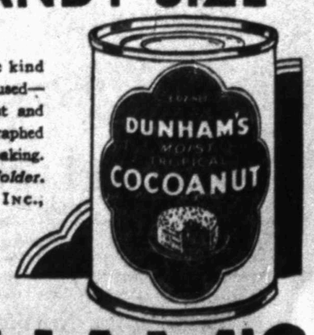

TEXARKANA, Dec. 28. (AP)— Bart Watson, 53, awaiting trial on a charge of murder, died today in a hospital of pneumonia. He became ill in jail several weeks ago.

He was accused of shooting Ed Smith, 33, after an argument on a Corley, Texas, street August 10. His trial had been set for early in December but his illness caused it to be continued.

HOTEL IS BURNED

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP)—The stock market virtually completed today the cancellation of the mid-December rally. Bonds, especially rails and United States government obligations, also reacted.

Tax selling doubtless was the chief influence in both markets, and since investment buying of any consequence has yet to appear, the result was a steady chipping away of prices. Stocks firmed slightly in the late trading, but the closing average of 60 issues used in the Associated Press-Standard Statistics Co. compilation showed a net loss of 1.6 points, reducing that average to 61.4, against the December 17 bear market low of 61.2. Transfers totaled 2,009,380 shares.

The industrial composite duplicated its previous low, while utility and railroad stocks closely approached their minimums. Such leading issues as American Telephone, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse and General Motors reached into new low ground. U. S. Steel dropped to 36, the old low, but gave stubborn resistance at that quotation and closed at 36 7-8, making the net loss 7-8. Telephone came back about a point from the bottom.

Rate Increase Now Scheduled

Emergency Rail Freight Rate Increase On All Except Agricultural Commodities To Start January 4

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. (AP)—An emergency increase in rail freight rates on all except agricultural commodities will go into effect Jan. 4.

Permission to make the temporary increases, ranging from six cents a ton to two cents a hundred pounds depending on the class of freight carried, was granted (Thursday) by the interstate commerce commission in order to help the carriers earn interest on their bonds.

The Christmas present to the roads was in the form of an order permitting them to file a blanket tariff if surcharges, with authority to put them in effect on five-day's notice instead of the usual 30 days. Notice was given by the railroads that the new rates will be posted Dec. 30 to become effective Jan. 4.

Proceeds from the surcharges will be pooled by the railroad credit corporation, recently organized in Delaware, for loans to the neediest lines. Roads now bankrupt or deriving more than 50 per cent of income from passenger tariff are excluded from the increases. All the money eventually will find its way back to the roads collecting it.

The emergency increases are to be eliminated as soon as the condition of the roads permits and must end before March 31, 1933, at the latest.

The coroner returned a verdict of death by gunshot wounds at the hands of an unidentified person.

Officers believed the boy might have been slain accidentally by another hunter. Tracks in the vicinity were studied in hope of being able to identify the slayer.

Owners Of Gas Royalties Ask Hoover's Help

Panhandle Group Urge President To Carry Proposal For Federal Control Of Powerlines Little Further

AMARILLO, Dec. 28. (AP)—Gas royalty owners of the Texas Panhandle are asking President Hoover to carry his plan for federal control of interstate power lines a little further and make it include interstate pipelines.

"Operations of the pipeline companies have been with regard for the the equities of the citizens of the Panhandle," the letter states, "and we believe it is of national interest to place them under the same supervision you propose for power lines.

Letters Mailed

In the letter, copies of which were mailed to every member of congress, the plan was outlined as follows:

"There is in the Panhandle of Texas the largest known body of natural gas in the world. . . . The people of Texas regard this gas reserve as an important national asset. They have passed laws prohibiting the waste of natural gas and permit its use for light and fuel only. The interstate pipelines have the only market for these purposes. They and their allied companies will make whatever profit there is in the transporting and distributing of the gas. The state had expected the popelines would recognize the help the state was giving and would so conduct their operations as to merit continued cooperation and good will.

"These expectations have been disappointed. The operations of the pipeline companies have been without regard for the equities of the citizens of the state. They operate in Texas as private corporations. They are draining the gas from adjacent properties without compensation.

"We feel that a market monopoly should not be so used as to oppress royalty owners and small operators. The producing departments of these pipelines should be placed on an equality with other producers. Under federal supervision this can be easily brought about."

The letter was signed by members of the committee representing gas royalty owners in their fight for higher rates. M. T. Johnson, Hutchinson county landowner, is chairman.

out some new ideas in camouflage.

The principal action during the day occurred at Sanchiatze Tsaipoachan and Tawa.

A headquarters communique said that at Sanchiatze the army encountered a force of 2,000 Chinese regulars and irregulars. For several hours they fought it out and finally the Chinese were in flight.

Engagement Brief

The engagement at Tsaipaochan caused the attackers less difficulty, and at its conclusion they swept ahead to the village of Niuchuang which they took after a short brush with the enemy.

Army headquarters withheld information about the number of Japanese troops participating but in Yingkow it was learned that about 5,000 men were involved. This included three regiments of infantry, a battalion of artillery and two troops of cavalry.

General Jiro Timdnn, the conquerer of Tsitsihar, was in command of the whole operation, with Major General Omano directing in the field.

Miss Salaman, seeking a "thrill" to break the monotony of society life, succeeded in smashing the old mark by thirty-five and one-half hours.

Floydada Utility Fight Carried To Fort Worth

Hearing Scheduled On Order Before Judge Wilson

NEXT step in the clash of the City of Floydada and the Texas Utilities over utility rates will be in a hearing Friday at Fort Worth before Federal Judge James C. Wilson to determine whether a temporary restraining order granted the Utilities company to prevent Floydada's enforcing an ordinance for lower electric rates will be made permanent.

Papers in the case were received by Deputy U. S. Clerk Olive Fluke here Monday. Judge Wilson granted the temporary injunction at Fort Worth Saturday. Mrs. Fluke has approved $10,000 bond, made by the utilities company and ordered by Judge Wilson.

Effective Dec. 20

The new ordinance, passed December 8, sets up rates approximately 20 per cent lower than now are charged. The ordinance was to have been effective Dec. 20, replacing one passed by the Floydada city council May 4, 1916.

The petition of the utilities company said it served communities in Panhandle, South Plains and New Mexico. Total property values at Floydada is set at $272,859.61 in the petition, which sets out that the company earned 1.9 per cent on the investment in the nine-month period ending Nov. 30, 1931.

Rate At 17 Cents

Under the ordinance passed in 1916, the residental light rate was set at 17 cents per kilowat hour, less two cents per KWH for prompt payment. Minimum was $1.50 for light customers. A minimum charge of $1 per horse power for power customers was allowed.

The utilities company at present charges a residential scale of 11 cents per KWH for the first 25 kilowat hours and three cents for consumption in excess of 50. The business scale ranges from 11 cents to three cents for all energy used in excess of 2,000 kilowat hours. Initial charge for power consumption is $1 per kilowat connected. The scale then ranges from five cents per KWH to one cent.

The rates proposed in the ordinance are:

Residence: From nine cents per KWH to three cents.

Business: From nine cents to three cents.

Power: Initial charge of 75 cents per kilowat connected, an energy ranging from four cents to one cent.

Relief Funds

that throughout the country's history public money has been used to provide for the poor.

Goldsmith said there are 1,100,000 unemployed in Illinois, and 97,000 families are being aided by charity in Chicago. He estimated the number of families would reach 150,000 by March.

Half of the $10,000,000 emergency relief fund has been expended and it will be exhausted by February 15, Goldsmith said.

Goldsmith estimated that Chicago would need $25,000,000 in 1932 whereas it has only $5,000,000 available and a possible $10,000,000 additional from the state legislature.

Definitely Need Help

"We definitely need the help of federal funds," he said.

Hodson estimated 250,000 families or unattached persons in New York were in need, of whom only 100,000 were getting help. The $45,000,000 available for relief is inadequate, he said, though no one will starve to death.

"But we have got to remember something more than just keeping the body and soul together," he added.

Murphy said a federal appropriation of from $125,000,000 to $200,000,000 would do much to encourage raising funds which would not otherwise be forthcoming.

Hollywood's Pot Of Gold Located

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28. (AP)—An 18-year-old Fort Worth, Tex., school girl, Florine McKinney, has found her pot of gold at the end of the trail of her decrepit automobile. A Hollywood studio has given her a contract calling for $750 weekly salary, according to the records of superior court, where official approval of the contract was made because Miss McKinney is a minor.

"Everytime we hit a bump we dropped something, either a bolt or a nut," said the young actress, telling of her trip by automobile from Texas. "My teacher, Mrs. Eva Brown, who accompanied me, kept urging me on. 'Hollywood or bust,' she repeated. And that's what kept up my courage."

ticized me. I am resigning as your partner."

"Well sir," said Lenz, "all right."

"After such a stupid play yourself—" Jacoby continued, but Lenz stopped him with a wave of the hand.

"Why talk about it?" he asked.

"Doggone," said Lenz heatedly to his partner. "Why do you make those rotten bids? I can't read your cards. You are having a lot of fun in this game. Give me a little. Give me a chance to bid!"

Jacoby's lips tightened. He had bid one of his famous psychics.

"Shall we play another rubber?" asked Culbertson. The time was 12:28. The rules say the last rubber shall be cut before 12:30.

Jacoby leaped up. His face was red.

"Not with me you don't play another rubber," he said.

"Under the rules you must play another," said Culbertson's referee, Alfred J. Leibendorfer.

Jacoby stood for a moment, uncertain. Then he sat down and made his cut without another word.

At the end of the session there was talk about "stupid plays" and then the resignation.

Mrs. Culbertson was back in the match after a holiday vacation and once acted as peacemaker between Lenz and Jacoby in one of their many discussions of the session over bids and playing.

"Darling, don't you know what happens when you interfere in a family quarrel?" asked Culbertson.

Mrs. Culbertson played well but had inferior cards much of the time.

Lenz declared he would be on hand with a new partner in time to play tonight. But he refused to name his new partner. He was asked if Commander Winifred Liggett, jr., was being considered.

"I'm not saying," he said.

Lamesa "Printer's Devil" Gives His Views Of Newspaper Life In Article Appearing In International Weekl

National publicity for a South Plains newspaper, the Lamesa Reporter, was given in the December 26 issue of Editor and Publisher, international weekly magazine for all branches of the newspaper industry by Marlin E. Pew, editor in his editorial column, "Shop Talk at Thirty." Mr. Pew was formerly editor of W. R. Hearst's news service, I. N. S., and before that was editor of one of the Philadelphia newspapers. He is one of the best known writers among the fraternity.

Lanham Evans, son of Walter W. Evans, county agent of Dawson county, who is learning the newspaper business on The Reporter, was given personal mention because of an article he had written for his paper some months ago. Lanham is the "devil" on the Reporter and as such is now an expert on "type lice," the "key to the press," "left handed monkey wrenches," and other items too numerous to mention. Mr. Pew calls Lamesa "LaMesa" in his article. He says:

"Lanham Evans, aged 15, is learning journalism on the Lamesa (Tex.) Reporter, and I predict for him a worthwhile career. At present he is only on the first rung of the long ladder, but the boy possesses a rare gift which often carries far. He knows how to write with sincerity and doesn't pull the punch. I base this judgment on the following article written by Lanham, recently appearing on page one of the Reporter:

"BY THE PRINTER'S DEVIL"

"The printer's devil is started with the hardest, hottest and dirtiest work at first. After that, it is not so hard. The presses are interesting to watch, but the heck to oil and keep clean. When I started in I was told to sweep the shop. It is one of the worst jobs of all, as the shop is swept once each week and cleaned from back to front once a year. When it is cleaned nearly everything that has been lost during the past year is found.

"The working hours of the day are stopped at ten, two and four to refuel with watermelon, cantaloupe, soda pop, etc.

"I would not like to be the reporter for this paper, because of the big yarns he is told.

"This office is very high toned. It has paper towels. Very few printing offices have them, I am told.

"Sam Smith lintoype operator, and I sympathize with each other because we do most of the physical labor around the shop, but he even gives me orders at times.

"I wouldn't want to be the manager for this paper, because he gets the blame for everything that happens.

"I wouldn't want to be the society editor because some people get sore if you don't put their articles in the paper and some get sore if you do. And it's hard to please everybody.

"After all, the main part about this printing business that I like is the noon hour.'"

Bishop Cannon Warns That Smith Will Dominate Party

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 28. (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, said here today that unless John J. Raskob was ousted from the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith would dominate the party in next year's presidential election.

"Smith will either be the nominee or will decide who will be the nominee," the bishop said in an interview. "He is going to fight, as is apparent to everybody, for a wet plank in the Democratic platform, just as he always has—in San Francisco, in New York and in Houston. The only way to prevent it is to eliminate Raskob from the chairmanship."

swers before now. What's happening to my trunks? Damn it, if that hotel seizes them, I'll hold you responsible!"

Mary smiled shakily.

"You flatter me. As I said before, Captain Hendricks is the man to see."

"That——!"

From his choice of expletives it was apparent that Captain Hendricks had already been seen, and added his refusal to that of his subordinates. De Loma was appealing to Mary as a last resort. He was almost beside himself, and his bravado was fast crumbling. Mary shut the door and an instant later she heard the captain's low steady voice.

"We've a sick man in that cabin down there, De Loma. I suggest you lower your voice. Better still, stay up on deck. What were you bothering Miss Harkness about? Miss Harkness is not to be annoyed!"

De Loma obeyed without a word. There was something about the sturdy figure of the captain that was impressive, particularly to a man whose courage was not of the physical sort. Mary, listening to the encounter between the two with a loudly beating heart, opened her door a trifle when De Loma had gone. Captain Hendricks was still standing there.

"Keep your door locked", he said very low. "The steward just surprised him trying Mr. Jupiter's door. That's what he's so hot and bothered about. Though I reckon he'd like to have a drink, at that. Good thing Jupiter's got the only boat—I think he'd try to row to shore?"

"Are we off the reef yet?" she asked hopefully.

"All morning the crew had worked at the job of dislodging the strand- "Gypsy," first dropping an anchor off the bow and trying to pull her forward with a winch and then repeating the performance off the stern. But the lovely white-and-gold yacht was firmly seated upon the rock, and there she remained, as alluring a sight as Circe of old to the tired and grubby fishermen now toiling toward her.

"No luck. We're here till we can get a tug to pull us off." The captain shook his head. "He'll be balmy before then. You know what I think?" He whispered almost gleefully. "I think it's that old prison rat gets his goat! He's so jittery now he can't eat. And when appetites fail on shipboard, a man's either seasick or got the fear of hell-fire in him."

In mid-afternoon the fishermen arrived, and even the sullen De Loma was at the rail to watch their coming aboard. Any kind of activity was better than the stillness and utter lack of human association from which he had been suffering. "Oh, what marvelous luck!" Mary called out involuntarily as the boat came alongside and she saw several shining fish in the bottom. "What are they? I never saw such beautiful fish before." Both Mr. Jupiter and Bates were grinning as they climbed out, albeit rather stiffly, as I came up the gangplank.

"Kingfish," Bates replied, "and they're rightly named, too. What a shot one of those fellows gave me! I knew I was an amateur so he left the works."

"Didn't you get any barracuda?"

"No. No luck there." Mr. Jupiter called a deck hand to bring their things up from the dinghy. "I would-n't want to try to bring one of those on a cockshell. Got the boat it when Mary went down to see him. His stony unresponsiveness was beginning to wear her spirits down at last. It was not human, she felt, to be so stubbornly resistant even to the ordinary claims of friendship. He must hate her. There was no other explanation.

She almost ran to her own cabin, locked herself in and let the tears come. Then, realizing that she could not go up on deck again without exciting curiosity, she sent a steward to ask Bates to loan her his half-complete "picture puzzle." If she must be a prisoner she could at least be doing something useful.

For two hours she labored over the heap of paper scraps, fitting them together expertly, until she had the finished poster. It was almost impossible to gain a clear idea of the man's looks until another hour's labor had succeeded in pasting the scraps in place. But beyond a doubt it was De Loma—a younger De Loma, almost a boy, in fact. The same thin, hawk-like face, the beady black eyes, the arrogant head. He wore a white shirt open at the neck, and white trousers curiously clipped in at the ankles, as if for bicycle riding, and what appeared to be a pair of old tennis shoes. The curiousness of this get-up was heightened by his pose—arms folded across the chest, the feet at right angles in the "first position" of the ballet dancer.

Below was printed: "Harry Hill, the Human Fly." Mary pondered this for some time. The name was not familiar, and she had no idea what a "human fly" was. Leaving it for Bates' interpretation, she went up on deck.

Night had settled down as she joined the rest of the party, grouped on the main deck just forward of Mr. Jupiter's cabin. A half mile or so to the east, gleaming ghostly clear in the moonlight, the prison rose abruptly out of the sea. A gold moon swam in the deep blue tropical sky. The whole scene was like a vivid lithograph or a highly colored postcard picture.

Louise was talking as Mary joined the group, describing an old castle she had visited the year before. "It had the most marvelous stained glass windows, made in Italy by the monks during the Renaissance and transported over the mountains on donkeys. I remembered particularly a deep crimson . . . the glass was so finely colored it looked like precious stone . . ."

She turned to Mary.

"What reminded me of it were your rubies. What have you done with them? Do you have them on the yacht? I should love jjust to look at them again."

"I have them here." Mr. Jupiter spoke up, before Mary could decide what answer to make to this amazing request. He reached into the pocket of his dinner jacket and pulled them out holding them up to the eyes of the others. There were several sharply drawn breaths at the unexpected glory of the stones.

"Try 'em on Mary, do." he urged. "It's a sight worth seeing." he told the others with naive pride.

He rose and laid them in her hands. Fumbling with nervousness, Mary reached up to fasten them about her neck, but they slipped from her fingers. She made a frantic grab for them, but only succeeded in striking them with her hand. They fell flashing into the sea.

"You fool! Oh, you fool!" De Loma screamed at her insanely. "Now see what you've done!"
