Cardinals Hear Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)-Pope John Paul II told the College of Cardinals today it demonstrated the "authentic universality" of the Roman Catholic Church by electing a non-Italian pope for the first time in 455 years.

"It has been an act of faith and at the same time one of great courage to make a non-Italian the Bishop of Rome," the 58-year-old Polish pontiff said in an address to the cardinals who named him the 264th ruler of their church on Monday.

Only ⅓ Will Vote

By The Associated Press

Only about a third of Texas' seven million registered voters are expected to vote in next month's general election, and Secretary of State Steven Oaks says it's "an absolute disgrace."

"Texas will have the highest percentage of registered voters in our history and a higher percentage than any other state, but the registration figures are totally meaningless unless these people vote," Oaks said.

Oaks said his prediction of 2.3 million voters on Nov. 7 may prove too optimistic, and he said only about 1.6 million are likely to vote on the nine proposed constitutional amendments.

Raids In Mozambique

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)-Rhodesian troops launched more cross-border raids today against black nationalist guerrillas in Mozambique - the second major thrust within the past four weeks, the military reported.

A terse communique said only: "Rhodesian security forces today launched a self-defense operation against Zanla bases in Mozambique. Additional communiques will be issued later on."

ZANLA is the Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army headed by guerilla leader Robert Mugabe. It is the larger of the two insurgent armies fighting to topple the biracial transition government.

The SDN Column

We haven't had time to digest it thoroughly, but the Old Farmer's Almanac for 1979 is out.

Naturally, we first turned to the weather forecasts and old Abe Weatherwise didn't promise us anything much different from the weather we had last winter. However, he did hold out some hope for a white Christmas in this area, although no heavy precipitation is expected.

In fact, the winter of 1978-79 is expected to be on the dry side, but we are promised plenty of cold from November through February. January is expected to be five degrees below normal and February is due to be 12 degrees below normal in the almanac's Oklahoma-Texas region.

We are promised a little rain in March, very little in April and three inches or more in May. A dry summer is forecast, but it is expected to be a little different from last summer because rain--up to three inches--is predicted in July. If we had received a general three-inch rain in July this year, it would have made quite a difference in the agricultural picture this fall.

Abe Weatherwise can cite a good record in weather forecasting over the years, although you have to make a few allowances on timing. For example, he takes full credit for predicting a blizzard in New England last winter. He forecast a snowier than usual winter and that the big storm would come at the end of January.

"As we all know, the storm that eventually became the Great Blizzard of '78 started on its course January 28-29, but was delayed while gathering strength. It then hit New England on February 6, 1978, by which time it had joined with the big spring tide, with the moon in perigee and the result was a northeaster which no one who has lived through it will ever forget," says Abe.

If you want all of the details from the almanac, you can get your own for $1 at most newsstands and book stores.

Local Chamber Plans To Push For Road Projects

Interest in possible new developments in highway construction has mounted in this area since legislation was approved in Congress providing federal funding for two roads labeled "demonstration" projects, and Snyder will actively pursue designation of U.S. 84 for both of them.

Bill Warner, Snyder Chamber of Commerce manager, said this morning that he had been in contact with agencies in several towns located on possible routes for a connecting road which would be located south of Lubbock and extend to Interstate 10 in South Texas. This is a project provided in a bill introduced by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, which calls for 90 percent federal funding as a demonstration road.

When this project was first suggested, some interests immediately concluded that it eventually would become an extension of Interstate 27 and possibly also carry the "Port-to-Plains" designation.

However, Warner said that information he had obtained indicated that the Port-to-Plains road still is considered a separate project. Also, he said that, although it apparently has not been spelled out, the connecting road mentioned in the Bentsen Bill is expected to serve San Angelo, the largest Texas city without Interstate service. But it still appears doubtful that the connecting road will ever get an Interstate designation.

Warner said that geography alone should be in Snyder's favor if the road extends from Lubbock to San Angelo, because the shortest route linking those two cities at present is U.S. 84 from Lubbock to Snyder and Texas 208 from Snyder to San Angelo via Colorado City.

As for the Port-to-Plains road, which Snyder and other cities actively sought some three years ago, the logical route to serve the most people still appears to be through Snyder and on to the southeast to Austin and Houston. When hearings were held in 1975, it was indicated that connecting military bases and educational institutions would be a factor in selection of a route. Since that time, Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring has been closed, and Goodfellow AFB at San Angelo has dwindled in size and has been mentioned for possible closure in the future.

Thus, connecting bases in to the northwest with Dyess AFB in Abilene and with Fort Hood near Killeen could enhance the U.S. 84 route's chances for future Port-to-Plains designation.

Warner said that information he had obtained indicated that hearings would be held before route designations are made for either project and that Snyder would be pushing U.S. 84 for both routes.

Smithsonian Gets A Cotton Picker

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Smithsonian Institution, often described as the "nation's attic" full of old airplanes and other bric-a-brac of U.S. history, also includes the first machine that successfully picked cotton commercially.

Dubbed "Old Red" by its users, the machine will be dedicated Friday as an Historic Agricultural Engineering Landmark.

The International Harvester Co. developed and built Old Red in 1943. Producers Cotton Oil Co. restored the machine and donated it to the museum where it has been on display.

Officials said Tuesday that Old Red picked more than 8,000 bales of cotton in 16 seasons before being retired in 1959. It bears "little resemblance" to the first crude cotton-picking machine patented in 1859, they said.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers' Washington, D.C.-Maryland Section has been the prime mover to get the machine formally recognized as an agricultural landmark.

Notices Sent On Job Fair

Letters are going out from the Governor's office to area business firms encouraging them to participate in the job fair scheduled for Nov. 18.

Plans for the job fair were made here last week at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce office. The Texas Industrial Commission will coordinate the fair, with assistance from the Texas Employment Commission, the West Central Texas Council of Governments and the local city-county employment office.

The job fair will be held between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 18, at the National Guard Armory in Towle Memorial Park.

Also in preparation for the job fair, the Snyder Chamber of Commerce is compiling additional detailed information from business and industrial firms concerning their personnel needs and classifications.

The chamber is checking lists of cities and areas which have high unemployment ratios and notices of the job fair here will be sent into communities where there appear to be a surplus of people available to fill jobs.

The job fair plans grew out of a chamber survey which indicated that some 30 local business and industrial firms have around 200 jobs available which they had not been able to fill. Openings were listed in industrial, retail and service areas. Information being compiled now will further refine the figures as to the types of jobs that are open.

For Independence...

South Africans Express Doubt

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)-South Africa's Foreign Minister expressed doubt today that Western foreign ministers and his government can agree on independence plans for South-West Africa despite reports that President Carter has invited Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha to a Washington summit conference on the disputed territory.

"Yes, there will be further discussions," Foreign Minister R.F. Botha told reporters, "but the problems have now reached such serious proportions that there is doubt whether we will be able to overcome them."

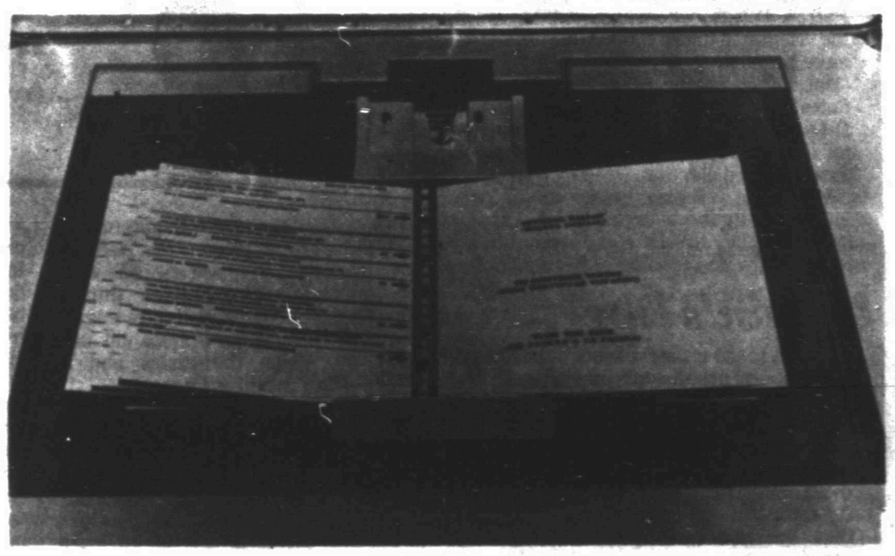

Carter's invitation to South Africa's prime minister was reported by the Afrikaans-language newspaper Beeld and French Deputy Foreign Minister Olivier Stirn.

"President Carter envisages a conference like the successful one he recently held with Israeli and Egyptian leaders at Camp David," the newspaper said.

But Stirn, who is representing France at the meeting on South-West Africa of Five Western allies with South African leaders, said Carter invited Botha to Washington only if he agreed to keep the door open to serious negotiations.

Beeld said diplomatic sources reported the invitation was extended in a letter Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance delivered to Botha Tuesday.

The report did not say who else would attend the conference, But presumably Carter would invite Sam Nujoma, the head of the leftist South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO.

A CHANGE---A change is in store for those voting in the Nov. 7 election and in the absentee voting period beginning today. The county has switched from the paper ballot system to machine voting. In machine voting, a punchcard is inserted into a slot and voters select their candidates by punching a hole in the card beside the candidate's name. The ballot is attached to the machine. Ask Us

Q--How come the county commissioners rented the old airport building, which I understand is owned by the county, to a private individual? Isn't this undemocratic unless it's put up for bids on rent? The Palette Club and Boy Scouts are two fine community organizations which were meeting there. What's going to happen to them?

A--County commissioners voted to put the old airport terminal building up for lease. Then, they advertised for bids. A decision on an actual lease has not been made but likely will be soon, possibly next week, we are told. We have received no information yet on plans of those who were meeting in the building.

Situation Eases In Texas Prisons

HOUSTON (AP)-The director of the Texas Department of Corrections said today that the tense situation in the prison system had eased, but disclosed there has been one violent clash between inmates and guards at the Coffield Unit near Palestine.

W.J. Estelle Jr. told a news conference here that 34 inmates and several officers were injured when the prisoners barricaded themselves in day-room areas and armed themselves with broken pieces of furniture, mops, brooms and brush handles.

Estelle also said although the situation was quiet, there are still 470 men in the Ellis Unit refusing to work. These inmates are confined to their cells.

Estelle's statement ended a week-long news blackout of a strike by inmates in support of eight other prisoners who have filed a civil rights suit against the TDC, claiming "cruel and unusual punishment," and a lack of proper medical care.

The case is now being heard in federal court here, before U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice.

The judge recently warned that the strike by inmates could impede the court case and that he looked with disfavor on any actions of violence by the prisoners.

Estelle said about 1,500 prisoners were involved in a work stoppage at the Coffield unit and all but 130 of them were barricaded in the day-room area.

"It was necessary to use tear gas and riot batons to control the hostile inmates and return them to their cells. This action was completed in three hours," Estelle said.

He said 28 inmates were treated for minor injuries and six other were transferred to the Huntsville unit hospital.

One of those later was sent to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, for diagnosis, but his injuries were not serious enough to require admission.

All of the injured were treated for scalp wounds, and two for additional injuries.

One prison officer suffered a broken hand, two were cut by broken glass, and 15 other were hurt by either scalding water poured on them by inmates or from foreign objects lodged in their eyes. All the guards have been treated or released.

Complex Dairy Scene Confusing Ag Experts

WASHINGTON (AP)-Agriculture Department analysts say the dairy situation right now is so complex they can't really say whether farmers will begin to expand milk production early next year or continue a "readjustment phase" that has lowered output in 1978.

The background is this: After holding steady at about 115 billion pounds a year in 1973-75 because of high feed prices and other production costs, milk output jumped to 120.3 billion pounds in 1976, the most in 11 years.

Production, encouraged by softening of feed prices and improved milk prices, rose again to almost 123 billion pounds in 1977.

But through the first three-quarters of this year milk output was about 1 percent below the first nine months of 1977, and it looks as if production for the entire year will be down slightly.

A new dairy situation report issued this week by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperative Service said reductions in milk cow numbers "have been remarkably stable" so far this year, despite their marking the longest sustained decline since early 1974.

scandals overlooked

What's a little scandal among friends? Nothing to get excited about, it would seem, at least when an election is at stake.

Of seven House Democrats involved to one degree or another in highly publicized legal or ethical difficulties this year, only two appear likely to suffer at the polls next month.

Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., who has just been convicted in U.S. District Court here of all 29 counts in a kickback indictment, is considered a shoe-in for re-election despite his newly acquired status as a felon.

Diggs, the senior black member of the House, has represented his inner city Detroit district for 24 years and will, as one disgruntled national GOP strategist put it, "probably get re-elected from jail."

Likewise, Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., a 30-year House veteran from Wilkes-Barre who is currently under federal indictment for perjury, seems guaranteed another easy win at the polls. His colleague, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., who is merely under investigation by federal authorities, is one of the two congressmen in serious political difficulty this year—even though his legal jeapardy is nowhere near as serious right now.

The other endangered incumbent is Rep. John McFall, D-Calif., facing a possible House reprimand in the "Koreagate" scandal. Rep. Edward J. Patten, D-N.J., who was cleared of wrongdoing by the House Ethics Committee, may nonetheless have some election problems.

But Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., who also faces a reprimand, and Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., recommended by the Ethics Committee for censure for his Koreagate involvement, appear assured of re-election.

On balance, it seems that voters are generally less influenced by the so-called "post-Watergate morality" than they are by a congressman's reputation for the care and feeding of his constituents.

britain's liberties

Britain is the citadel of individual liberty, right?

Person and privacy are inviolate, a man's home is his castle, not to be trespassed without due process of law, right?

But apparently not always the practice, as the ultrarespected magazine, The Economist, reports firsthand. The connection was so bad during a recent telephone conversation of the editor's wife that she had to ring off. When, after several attempts she managed to replace the call, she found herself listening to a recording of her previous conversation.

The incident was reported to the phone people, troubleshooters restored service and a head office representative promptly called to deny that there was or ever had been anything wrong with the line.

Which leaves the editor wondering how to explain the incident to his wife, whom he had been assuring for a year that the line definitely was not tapped, the strange noises and bad connections being merely what was to be expected from typically British equipment.

As for the recorded conversation, it was with a cook, concerning the menu of an upcoming dinner party.

"Yeah, well ... er ... it's still about 60 percent of what he gets, but we ... ah ... figure that ... uh ... men are ... er ... better equipped to handle those ol' heavy pay envelopes."

at wits end

When my son entered the first grade, his teacher asked to see me. She said, "He verbalizes during class, periodically engages in excursions up and down the aisles and in general is immature."

"Are you trying to tell me he's 'goofing off'?" I asked.

"I wouldn't have put it in quite that way," she said.

When he was in the third grade, a teacher at Open House told me he "did not work to capacity and was definitely an underachiever."

In the fourth grade, he was still "goofing off" but he was described as "lacking in basic skills as he was not working at his level of competency."

In the sixth grade, I had a long talk with his teacher who said, "Your son has potential, but he is incapable of any viable feedback. You tell me. What are we going to do with a child who does not relate to social interaction?" (I don't know what she did, but I ran home and got out my dictionary.)

In the eighth grade, my husband answered the phone one night. When he hung up, he turned around and said numbly, "Bruce is not motivated by curriculum innovation. They don't want him to stagnate in a lockstep system and they're trying to stimulate his awareness. What does all that mean?"

"It means they're trying to stop him from 'goofing off.'"

Bruce was in his sophomore year when he was diagnosed as having problems modifying his behavior. They decided to put him in a modular-flexible schedule.

At the beginning of his senior year a few weeks ago, Bruce's adviser summoned me to her office and said. "Well, we're at that time where we have to consider the conundrum (she laughed nervously). It's hard to say where the burden for the lack of motivation and apathy lies, but before Bruce's achievement levels polarize, I thought we ought to have a little talk.

"This year will hopefully open up options for Bruce so he can realize his potential and aim for some tangible goals."

I leaned over to the secretary on my way out, "Do you speak English? (She nodded.) What was she talking about?"

"Bruce is goofing off," she said flatly.

I don't know if education is helping Bruce or not, but it's certainly improving my vocabulary.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Contributors' personal reasons for making donations to politicians' campaign funds will always be impossible to ascertain, but prior to the 1970s there weren't even any clues available.

In theory, financial supporters of candidates for House and Senate seats are generous, public-spirited individuals motivated principally by the high-minded desire to share the costs of maintaining a democracy.

There indeed are many such donors, but they account for a far smaller share of all campaign contributions than do individuals whose prime motive is to subtly advance the cause of their corporation, industry, labor union, trade association or other special interest group.

But a major overhaul of the statute seven years ago required the disclosure of two important additional pieces of information relating to contributors—their occupation and principal place of business.

Despite the availability of that data, most of the public attention paid to special interest giving in recent years has focused on political action committees (PACs), which solicit money from officers, directors and members of interest groups, then use those funds to contribute to favored candidates.

But there's another, more sophisticated technique: Officials of a corporation agree to participate in a voluntary but coordinated effort to make sizable personal donations to a legislator expected to be sympathetic to the firm's interests.

The collective impact of those gifts is not lost on the politician, but the contributions are difficult to find in the financial reports available for public inspection because they're purposely scattered among the names of thousands of other donors.

An unprecedented effort to identify those giving patterns now has been undertaken by a respected Washington-based journalist, Edward Roeder. The first results of his work will appear in a forthcoming issue of the magazine Politics Today.

Roeder initially focused on the 1978 campaign of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and the 1976 campaign of Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev.

Thurmond is the ranking minority member of the antitrust subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which must approve any legislation requiring horizontal or vertical divestiture of the nation's petroleum companies.

PACs affiliated with firms in the oil, coal, energy and mining industries have contributed $133,600 to Thurmond's campaign, but Roeder found another $23,000 donated by individuals associated with those companies.

Thurmond also is the ranking GOP member of the health subcommittee of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee. In addition to $24,600 given to his campaign by PACs related to medical and pharmaceutical interests, Roeder identified $9,300 from individuals in those fields.

Cannon now is chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, but when he ran for reelection two years ago he headed only that panel's aviation subcommittee. Roeder found more than $32,300—almost 10 percent of all Cannon's campaign funds—donated by individuals affiliated with the air transportation industry.

Locating and isolating such contributions through the painstaking examination of thousands of pages of public financial reports is a tedious but invaluable undertaking because it more fully identifies the legislators' "second constituency."

Those constituents aren't the voters who live in the lawmakers' home states and congressional districts, but rather individuals whose work is directly affected by the decisions made by House and Senate committees—and who are willing to pay dearly for "access" and "friendship" on Capitol Hill.

gift or correction?

NEW YORK (AP)—The tax bill passed by Congress appears to include a gift for homeowners, especially those over age 55, who would be able to avoid capital gains taxes on profits from selling their homes.

Under the bill, homeowners of at least that age, would be able to sell their home and avoid taxes on "profits" from the sale. While the exemption would apply only once in a lifetime, it could involve sizable dollars.

But a gift. Some will view it instead as the correction of an old abuse. They feel they have been sending gifts to Uncle Sam for years, and that ungrateful Sam has only asked for more.

They are inclined to give illustrations such as this:

The home was bought in 1950 for $11,500. Now, 30 years later, it is sold for $48,000, or $36,500 more. Improvements worth $10,000 were made, however, so they are deducted from the purchase price.

That still leaves a $26,500 gain. Even after subtracting the broker's $2,880 commission from the selling price, the homeowner appears to have a profit of $23,620. Not bad, he says.

For many years Uncle Sam said the same thing, and applied to that "profit" a capital gains tax. It meant that one-half the $23,620, or $11,810, was assessed at the seller's ordinary income tax rate.

Assuming a 25 percent tax bracket, the seller therefore owed Uncle Sam $2,952.50. But by more rational standards, the seller really owed Uncle Sam nothing. Not a dollar. Not a penny.

In those 28 years, the purchasing power of the dollar declined almost steadily, and in recent years, rapidly, so that today's dollar is really worth something like 35 percent of the 1950 dollar.

Relatively speaking, therefore, the seller did not obtain $48,000 for his house but probably $17,500 in real - that is, comparable - dollars. Deduct $1,000 for the commission, and we have $16,500.

Steady improvements over the years cost perhaps 5,000 in terms of the 1950 dollar, rather than the $10,000 worth of receipts the seller accumulated. Those improvements, remember, were in current dollars.

Still, deducting $5,000 brings the real price down to $11,500, the same as in 1950. It means no real profit for the seller. And if the new legislation is signed, it will mean no tax payment to Uncle Sam.

For years, however, capital gains have been taxed as real rather than imaginary. Sellers who did not reinvest in another home of at least the same price within 18 months, paid taxes on "profits."

Assuming President Carter signs the legislation, it would seem these homeowners will be receiving what they should have received a long time ago: simple justice.

But, while the problem is perhaps the most serious for homeowners, the same illogic exists for all capital gains. The value of various investments seem to have soared when they have moved very little.

my turn

by jo ann nunley

Just as there are shampoos made for different kinds of hair and soaps for different types of skin, I have just noticed we have available to us different kinds of facial tissues for our personal need.

Last year, American consumers reached for a facial tissue 180 billion times for a multitude of tasks from wiping a running nose to cleaning spectacles. That's quite a few boxes.

They can be bought from the dainty handkerchief size in pocket packets to the man-sized, colored, and even scented tissues in one-ply, two-ply, or more.

Manufacturers knew what they were doing when they made a tissue for all kinds of sneezes.

There are sonorous sneezers who practice their art with gusto, and there are bashful types who tend to stifle their act of nature, and then there are those who almost go unnoticed and shouldn't even bother.

Like everything else, tissue prices have risen fairly steeply the last few years. When shopping for tissue you might keep these facts in mind. From tests made it was found that generally, the supermarkets' private label tissues are cheaper than name brands. The more tissues in a box, the lower the price per hundred, while those containing fewer tissues, the cost is more. The little pocket sized packets are handy, the scented ones are pleasant and the colored ones pretty, but as you know, you pay a premium for the convenience, color and scent. Scented and colored ones may not be worth the extra nicety since they may increase the possibility of an allergic reaction, according to allergists.

This is one little convenience I don't know how they ever got along without. They go to school with little children with the sniffles, and are found almost in every room of the home, and sit along side the telephone on almost every desk in the office.

Paper goods, in general, are not cheap anymore and' a penny saved is a penny earned" so I'll take care in shopping for this product that is in so great a demand this time of the year.

Enrollment Rising At UT Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - President Lorene Rogers of the University of Texas says she will support a proposal to raise admission standards to the university if that is what the faculty wants.

UT's enrollment this year reached a record 43,000, and associate English professor Warwick Wadlington said his department had 500 too many freshmen.

"The result was that 21 additional sections classes had to be created in chaotic haste," said Wadlington. "At the last minute, temporary instructors were hired who had had no opportunity to prepare for the course and become familiar with the texts; textbooks were lacking and had to be rush ordered.... In short, more than one tenth of the total freshman English enrollment had a very rude, confusing introduction to the university."

Mrs. Rodgers said, "There's certainly been no decision to increase enrollment. In fact, I've been saying that we should try to roll the enrollment back to somewhere around 40,000 to 41,000."

Young Advocates Women's Rights

ATLANTA (AP)-United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young says Americans need to take a closer look at human rights problems at home, especially those involving women.

Speaking during services Sunday at the Ebenezer Baptist Church - where the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. preached - Young used himself as an example of the sometimes hypocritical attitude he says Americans have about human rights.

"The disadvantaged of the disadvantaged is the black woman," Young said. "We participate daily in the denial of their human rights even as white men structured the society of the South to deny us our human rights. My wife and three daughters have raised so much hell with me that they upset my household like I upset the South a decade ago. And you know, it's right."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The bidding was not scientific, but it was a fast, exciting, shoot-for-the-moon sort of auction that ended in a sound contract.

A beginner would think the contract depended on a diamond finesse, but a more experienced player would realize that the discard of his club loser on the opening lead opened up a second possibility — playing A K of clubs and ruffing the third club in the hope that the suit would divide 3-3.

But declarer on the diagrammed hand made the slam even though the diamond finesse was offside and clubs were divided 4-2.

He immediately attacked trump, driving out East's ace. East returned a spade which declarer ruffed. South then drew East's remaining trumps, played a diamond to dummy's ace, played the A K of clubs and ruffed a club.

Most declarers would now take the diamond finesse and complain bitterly when it lost. South was made of sterner stuff. He realized he had one extra chance, and he took it.

He ran off all his trumps. When he led the last trump, South had the trump he led plus the jack-eight of diamonds. West had the queen of clubs and two diamonds. Dummy had the king-10 of diamonds and club seven. East's hand was immaterial.

West had to discard a diamond on the last trump lead. To do otherwise would establish dummy's club as the 12th trick. Declarer countered West's discard by pitching dummy's now worthless seven of clubs.

Declarer led the jack of diamonds at trick 12, and when West played low declarer immediately played dummy's king of diamonds, dropping the queen. Declarer had not seen East's cards, but he had "seen" West's. Since West's last card was known to be the queen of clubs, the diamond finesse could not succeed. By running the trumps and delaying the finesse, declarer had given himself the slight extra margin that in the end proved decisive.

Local Delegates Go To State HD Convention

Mrs. Ben Weathers, Mrs. J.D. Blankenship and Mrs. H.M. Bruner, representing Scurry County, traveled to Dallas by chartered bus, along with 34 other women from the West Texas area, to the Baker Hotel for the 52nd Home Demonstration State Convention.

The women were entertained by the singers from the Christian Academy of Oak Cliff followed by an address by Glen Scott, Dallas, who gave a short history of the Bell Telephone system.

Door prizes furnished by the Dallas Clubs were given throughout the convention. The Texas Extension Service presented a Centennial quilt to the Historical Society which was established in 1976 and now has more than 2,000 items.

Mrs. Harold Preston, State president, presided at the general assembly in the Crystal Ball Room of the hotel. Invocation and devotion was given by Rev. Stanley Meyer of the Lutheran Church, Greenville.

Dr. Wm. Entzimenger, Professor of Texas Woman's University talked on the family life. He said women should be knowledgable, have good communications, and be positive in their thinking and action and say "I" once in a while.

Gil A. Stricklin of Dallas also spoke on family living and said women should have motivation, hold hopes high in a changing society. He said to have laughter, flexability, have a love affair with love and take time to live now one day at a time.

Mrs. Blankenship was THDA delegate and Mrs. Bruner was a County delegate who had voting rights. The following State officers were elected: Mrs. Charles Warminski, president; Mrs. N.E. Holloway, vice president; Mrs. Lucille Whitten, secretary; Mrs. M. Richards Jr., treasurer.

Workshops were attended on Cultural Arts & Recreation; 4-H; Family Life; Safety; Health; and Citizenship.

At the banquet, the group was entertained by the "Sweet Ciders" and installation of officers which was centered around changing the leaves on the old oak tree, directed by Mrs. Clinton Wright, immediate past president.

Due to the resolution to change the name of Texas Home Demonstration Clubs it shall henceforth be called "Texas Home Makers Association."

Mmes. Weathers, Blankenship and Bruner are all members of the Knapp Home Demonstration Club.

Elementary 4-H Food Group Meets

The elementary group of Snyder Jr. 4-H Club met in the East Elementary School Cafeteria Tuesday. Two officers were elected. They are Thelma Garza as president and Letha Baldwin as secretary.

The program on baking brownies was presented by Miss Ruby Butts, adult leader, and gave each one a chance to help measure and mix. A pan of brownies baked in advance gave each member a chance to taste the finished food.

New members were Rebecca Stansell, Kammie McNew, Debbie Orona, Natalie Lynch, Neka McCowen and Ange Smith. Also attending were Melinda Pesina, Joanna Proctor, Trina and Letha Baldwin.

Mrs. Irving Gives Altrurians Program

Mrs. Giles Bowers hosted the Altrurian Club recently at Martha Ann Woman's Club. Eighteen members answered roll call in response to Mrs. Roland Irving's program topic "The Power of Social Action."

Mrs. Irving told the group that the responsible use of power for social change begins with a group of persons who are supported by a common concern.

As a young child before starting to school she remembers women of different churches working together to raise money for their com...unity projects. She recalled one group of women who picked cotton, two of whom were former Altrurians. Mrs. C.C. Higgins and Mrs. H.R. Curnutte.

Relating her first knowledge of Women's Suffrage she said her father, one of Snyder's pioneer doctors, when to Mayo Clinic for a course of study accompanied by her mother. When they returned home her mother was wearing a very mannish tailored hat and talking about women getting to vote. Her father leaned over and whispered, explaining, "Your mother is now a suffragette."

Mrs. C.C. Miller conducted the business session. Members volunteered to work at the Martha Ann Woman's garage sale to be held at Towle Park Barn Nov. 4. She announced in conclusion that Christmas gifts to Big Spring State Hospital will be due at the next club meeting.

CLASS VIEWS FILM-Mrs. Sandi Miller, instructor for the Hope For Tomorrow Weight Control Class, right, is shown introducing Miss Melisa Baker, instructor for Anatomy and Physiology at WTC. She showed the group a film entitled "Man: The Incredible Machine." The class meets each Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the Academic Science Bldg. C, room 103.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Women's Lib As In Libido

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: I am sick of reading about "dirty old men." How about dirty old women?

I am a retired bachelor of 63, and, take my word for it, a man who isn't in a wheelchair isn't safe alone anywhere.

Last year I went on a cruise for relaxation, and the women wouldn't leave me alone. One woman, who admitted to being 60, propositioned me for afternoon dates, evening dates and even late dates! When I told her I was "tired," she dropped the key to her room into my pocket and told me to get some rest and pay her a visit.

A 71-year-old widow kept writing me love notes and sending me presents. Even the young ones made passes at me. One gal in her 30s asked me to dance. Then she whispered, "Let's get together, Pops. What are you saving it for — the prom?"

I may be old-fashioned, Abby, but I still think the man should do the asking. Or have times changed that much?

OLD-FASHIONED FELLOW

DEAR FELLOW: If my mail reflects the times accurately, most men enjoy being pursued. And what's this "dirty old" business? There's nothing "dirty" about a romantic encounter. And nobody's "old" anymore — they've just been around for a long time.

DEAR ABBY: A young neighbor of mine has a beautiful, adopted 8-year-old daughter I'll call Cindy. She adopted her when she was 5, so Cindy knows she's adopted.

When Cindy gets out of hand, her mother threatens to take her back to the orphanage! Naturally, this terrifies the child into behaving.

I think this is a very poor way to discipline a child. Should I say something to the mother, or keep my mouth shut?

FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: For goodness sake, SAY SOMETHING! But remember that you are dealing with a very ignorant woman. Don't criticize her for her cruel tactics — instead, try to make her understand that a child adopted at 5 has an even greater need to feel secure, and should never be threatened with rejection or abandonment.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13. I recently met a 13-year-old girl and I think I'm in love, but I don't think it will last long if she ever finds out that I can't dance.

This girl just loves to dance. So far, I have been able to keep her interested just talking. What should I do?

BILLY THE KID

DEAR BILLY: There's no shame in not knowing how to do something. The only shame is refusing to learn. Admit to the girl that you never learned how to dance, and ask her to teach you. Her response will tell you all you need to know.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Provisions Challenged By Hill

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General John Hill says he will challenge key gas-pricing provisions of new federal energy legislation in federal court.

Hill, Democratic candidate for governor, said Monday he questions the federal government's right to supervise pricing of gas produced on state-owned land and gas used within Texas whether produced on public or private land.

"We think we have a strong case with regard to the public lands, since Texas reserved those lands when we came into the Union," Hill said. "We are testing an important legal principle that should be decided at the highest level. If the government can supervise pricing of gas used entirely within the state, the same ordinance could be used for controlling prices of wheat in Kansas."

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Hypoglycemia defined

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know about hypoglycemia. What are the symptoms? I have been hearing so much about it lately. I wondered if this could be my problem. I asked my doctor if I might have it and he said some doctors don't even believe in it and that he is one of them. But yet, he says I have low blood sugar. I don't understand. Isn't hypoglycemia the same thing as low blood sugar?

DEAR READER — You probably have a communications problem with your doctor. Low blood sugar is the public's term for hypoglycemia. Technically speaking, hypoglycemia means low blood glucose, and low blood sugar could include some other sugars besides glucose.

Your doctor probably means your blood glucose level by a laboratory test is low, but that he doesn't think that low level has anything to do with any symptoms that you might have. We know that perfectly normal, healthy young people can have fairly low blood glucose levels and have no symptoms or impairment of body functions at all. You can see this in top-notch athletes. That's one reason why doctors don't always get excited just because a laboratory test shows a relatively low glucose level.

The other problem is that the symptoms of nervousness or anxiety, sweating, tremulousness and sometimes a fast heart rate are all just symptoms. They can be caused by several different things. The mechanism that causes many of these symptoms can be the release of adrenaline in your body. Adrenaline is the "fight or flight" hormone. Whenever your blood glucose level is too low, it will stimulate the formation of adrenaline. In a sensitive person this might produce symptoms. However, a person who has simple anxiety, with a perfectly normal blood glucose level, can have an excess production of adrenaline and have nervousness, sweaty palms, tremulousness and a fast heart. The diagnosis, in this instance, would be an anxiety reaction, not hypoglycemia.

When you accept the fact that these are symptoms, not a diagnosis, and that many of these symptoms can be caused by anxiety and other problems, you then realize that you can't always attribute these symptoms to simply having a low blood glucose level. It is not that simple.

For the reasons I have mentioned, the usual approach is to not make a diagnosis of hypoglycemia unless you can demonstrate that the blood glucose is low at the same time the person is having symptoms. The combination of the two, simultaneously, is the basis for the diagnosis.

There are a lot of people who are diagnosed as having hypoglycemia who really have anxiety and don't deserve the diagnosis at all. There are many other people who do have fluctuations in their blood glucose level in sufficient amounts to cause symptoms. Some of these people can change their lifestyle, particularly their diet habits, to improve the way they feel. Low blood glucose is also just a finding and may be caused by several different disorders. To help you sort out all of this, and to give you some information on what you can do about diet, I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Coal Mining Laws Helped By Grant

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas will receive $196,089 in federal monies to cover costs incurred by the state in administering and enforcing regulations under a new law aimed at alleviating the harmful suface effects of coal mining operations.

The grant was announced Tuesday by Department of Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus.

The federal funds will go to the Texas Railroad Commission's Surface Mining and Reclamation Division which will use the money to hire additional personnel and equipment needed to implement the program.

Andrus also noted that last year more than 16 million tons of coal were surface-mined in Texas from 1,462 acres.

Ruling On Speedy Trial Act

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas' new Speedy Trial Act applies to cases that were pending when it took effect on July 1, 1978, the court of criminal appeals ruled today.

But time that elapsed between the filing of charges and July 1 does not count against the state's 120-day deadline for going to trial, the high court said.

The decision came in an Austin drunken driving case. The defendant, Linzy Wade, was convicted and received a suspended three-year prison sentence.

Wade was arrested on Feb. 5. On July 5 he tried to have the indictment dismissed because more than 120 days had elapsed without proseoutors announcing they were ready for trial.

The court said the Speedy Trial Act passed by the 1977 Legislature contains does not say expressly whether it applies to cases pending on July 1.

"The general rule is that in the absence of an express intention to the contrary, procedural statutes...apply to both pending and future actions," the court said.

"...We hold that in accord with the general rule, the Speedy Trial Act applies to appellant's Wade's and other criminal cases pending on July 1, 1978, as was to criminal cases commencing on or after that date."

It said that the 120 days in Wade's and other cases began running on July 1.

PROMOTED--Dr. Tom Lowe, who recently was named Deputy Area Dental Branch Chief of the Navajo area of Indian Health Service, his wife, Patsy, and son, Dylan, are showed during a visit here with Mr. and Mrs. James Lowe.

Dr. Lowe Named To New Position

Dr. Tom Lowe has recently been advanced to the position of Deputy Area Dental Branch Chief over the Navajo area of Indian Health Service.

Dr. Lowe, his wife Patsy, and son Dylan have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Lowe of Snyder.

The Navajo area is the largest in population and programs of 20 Indian Health Service administrative areas. In his new position, Dr. Lowe will have administrative responsibility over programs in 12 Indian hospitals and clinics. An avid supporter of Indian self-determination, Dr. Lowe is one of few people in the Indian Health Service with practical experience in establishing tribal-run health programs under Public Law 93-638, the Indian Self-Determination Act. He hopes to continue working on the implementation of Indian self-determination in his new position.

Previously, Dr. Lowe was stationed in Minnesota, where he served as director of the health center on the Mille Lacs Reservation, one of six reservations of the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe. He trained a local tribal member with previous health training and administrative experience to become director of the health center. He also served as a special advisor to the President of the Sovereign Minnesota Chippewa Nation and as a division director over one of the Mille Lacs Reservation Business Committee divisions and as a governing board member to several reservation social programs. He also was an associate member of the medical staff of a nearby private hospital.

Last summer, Dr. Lowe served as a member of the planning committee for the annual Mille Lacs Reservation Pow Wow. While in Minnesota he also began work toward a specialty in epidemiology, the study of disease in human populations, at the University of Minnesota Medical Center.

Although he no longer clinically practices dentistry, Dr. Lowe continues active in the area of dental public health. He holds dental licenses in Texas and New Mexico and is a member of the American Association of Public Health Dentists, the Association of Military Surgeons and the American Dental Association.

Foam Brick For TV Frustrations

HOLLYWOOD (AP)-Attention, all you TV critics out there: Now you can do something about all the things on television that annoy you.

It's called the TV Brick and it's made for you to throw at your set when you want to let off steam. Don't worry, it's only foam rubber and won't really hurt the set - unless you pick up your Pet Rock by mistake.

Jim Christ dreamed it up and is turning it out in a backyard factory near San Diego along with Greg Schredder. So far they've made 150.

"I've seen so many uses for it," said Christ, a free lance design artist and part-time cook and waiter. "TV can be so frustrating at times. I enjoy TV a lot more now that I have a TV Brick handy."

They say the brick is non-sectarian, non-ethnic, non-political. One thing it's not is non-expensive - it costs $4.95, enough to make you throw a brick.

Christ suggests the brick can be thrown at such things as sickening commercials, politicians who pre-empt your favorite shows, and bad calls by the referee.

"There's a real need for this," said a viewer who participated in an impromptu poll of the most annoying things on television.

Tying for first place in this unscientific survey were Howard Cosell and "happy" newscasters.

"I don't want to just tell Cosell to shut up - I want to throw a brick," said one person. Another said, "He may be a walking book of knowledge, but he just makes me so mad."

Those happy, jolly newscasters who act like they're sitting in the living room swapping stories made just about everyone's list. Just the facts, ma'am.

Programs mentioned as most annoying were "The American Girls," "Charlies Angels," Mork and Mindy," "Gilligan's Island" reruns and anything connected with Chuck Barris. One said, "I want to throw a brick every time Boxiey loses his 'mechanical dog on 'Battlestar Galactica,' which happens about six times a show."

Other "brickable" offenses mentioned:

-Old movies so badly edited to fit in all the commercials that they no longer make sense.

-Jiggle shows that exploit women, and sexist comments, particularly in commercials where the male announcer has all the answers and the women are concerned only about a whiter wash.

-Repulsive commercials for laxatives, stomach soothers and feminine products, which usually come on at dinner time.

-Predictable situation comdies with no basis in reality, such as "The Waverly Wonders." Kids who talk like adults, as in such shows as "Who's Watching the Kids" and "Good Times."

-Commercials that use "people off the street" when it is painfully obvious they are actors.

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap

A minor traffic accident was investigated Tuesday by police.

The collision involved a parked 1974 Ford owned by Deborah Inman and a parked 1964 Buick owned by Larry Neil Crawley. Reports show that one of the vehicles accidently slipped into gear and struck the other.

The collision occurred in the 2400 block of 27th St. about 8 p.m.

The so-called Betsy Ross flag of 13 stars on a blue field and 13 red and white stripes was made in May or June of 1776.

Karpov Keeps Chess Crown

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) - Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi's comeback drive foundered in the 32nd game of the world chess championship, and young Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union retained the crown he won by default from Bobby Fischer three years ago.

The 27-year-old champion, who will collect a record $350,000 for his 6-5 win, was asleep when his 47-year-old opponent conceded about 11:30 a.m. today, his interpreter said. Ninety minutes later, aides spirited him away to a private villa, and Western reporters were not allowed to speak to him.

Victory went to the first player to win six games, and there were 21 draws in the three-month match.

Although Korchnoi gets $200,000 as runnerup, his chief aide, British grandmaster Raymond Keene, said the defeated challenger would file a protest with the International Chess Federation against "the intolerable conditions which Viktor has been subjected during the match."

The match, longer in number of days than any of the 12 previous world championships, began on July 18.

Surprising Yanks Win Game 6; Take 2nd Straight World Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The miracle New York Yankees capped the most improbable of all baseball comebacks by winning the final game of the 75th World Series with a pitcher who was supposed to be washed up and a puny infielder who was written off as a major leaguer.

Catfish Hunter found one more victory in his relic of a right arm, while second baseman Brian Doyle made major offensive and defensive contributions, leading the Yanks to a 7-2 triumph over the Los Angles Dodgers Tuesday night for their 22nd World Championship.

By winning Game 6, the Yanks beat the Dodgers in the Fall Classic for the second year in a row. And the team that was 14 games behing Boston July 20, beat the Red Sox in a one-game playoff Oct. 2 and defeated Kansas City for the American League pennant won the World Series the hard way, of course.

The Yankees became the first team in World Series history to win four straight games after dropping the first two.

"Nobody's ever done what this club did," said Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, who has won three AL pennants and two world titles since taking over the club in 1973. "This is as great a Yankee team as there ever was. I don't care about the '27 Yankees or any other of the great Yankee teams. This team overcame everything."

That Hunter could start the sixth game, pitch seven innings and win the final game of the 1978 season was a medical miracle. His right shoulder, so painful in June that he swore he would never pitch hurt again, was manipulated by Dr. Maurice Cowan. The treatment, a stab in the dark at best, worked, allowing Hunter to fuel the Yanks' late-summer comeback with a 9-3 record down the strech.

"All I had was control," said Hunter, who was relieved by Rich Gossage in the eighth after giving up six hits, including Davey Lopes' leadoff home run. Catcher Thurman Munson came out and told me I didn't have anything, that I should just hit his target."

Hunter zeroed in on the target and allowed his double play combination of shortstop Bucky Dent and Doyle to do the rest. Doyle's backhand stab began as inning-ending double play, with Dodgers on first and second and trailing only 3-2 in the third.

"That was the biggest defensive play of the game," said Dent, the Series' Most Valuable Player, who batted .417 with seven runs batted in, including three in the finale. "I'm very happy for the little man (Doyle)."

"I feel like Cinderella," said the little man who toiled six years in the minors and was only added to the Yankee roster because Willie Randolph was hurt.

"Brian Doyle made us not miss the best second baseman in the AL," said Reggie Jackson, who smacked a two-run homer against Bob Welch, the winner of the classic Jackson-Welch confrontation in Game 2.

Doyle's double, his first extra base hit in the majors and only his second RBI, tied the game 1-1 in the second. The next batter up was Dent, hitting in the ninth position, and he singled in two more runs.

Dent and Doyle both drove in runs again in the sixth and Jackson creamed Welch's first pitch for a two-run homer to end the scoring in the seventh. After touching home, Jackson tipped his cap twice to the Dodger fans who had booed him. The homer, his ninth in World Series competition, moved him into sixth place on the all-time list.

Grid Duo To See Action

Besides the annual Snyder-Lakeview varsity game held here Friday at 7:30 p.m., only two Tiger grid teams will see action this week.

Snyder eighth grade Gold opens the week's play by hosting Big Spring White 5:30 p.m. Thursday at the Junior High Field.

Saturday, the Cat junior varsity will play Lake View in San Angelo at 1 p.m.

Other upcoming contests promise to show plenty of action Oct. 26. Snyder eighth Gold will host Sweetwater here at 5:30, followed by a junior varsity versus Sweetwater game at 7:30 p.m. Meanwhile, Snyder eighth Black will play in Sweetwater at 5:30, followed by a freshman game at 7:30.

Public Invited To Meet WTC Basketballers

Western Texas College will stage its annual 'Meet The Athletes' night, Thursday at 7:30 in the WTC gym.

All basketball players, coaches, and cheerleaders will be introduced to the public. No admission will be charged.

Men's and women's teams will be split into four groups of White and Green. Faculty representatives Mike Otto and Mike Thorton will coach the White teams, while student body president David Gavan and vice-president Joe Dunn will coach the Green teams.

A drawing will be held at halftime to determine two free throw shooters from the crowd. The "shooters" will compete for a cash prize.

Chiefs Hold Title, But Tigers Have Liberation In Mind

By BILL McCLELLAN

"Put on the kettle, Ma, and fill this here jug with some hot coffee. Then round up the kids and get 'em in the Ford 'cause we're gonna' go watch them Tigers win theyselves a district champeenship."

"Johnathan, you know what that doctor told you about your oggling them cheerleaders and twirlers and such. It's bad for your blood pressure, he said."

"No. Ma. I mean I'm REALLY gonna' go watch them Tigers. They's playin' those fellers from Angelo what beat 'em last year. I heard the Tigers was gonna' whup 'em this year and take back that champeenship. Honest!"

"Well land-o-goshin, Johnathan, let's get a move on. Here, give me that kettle!"

Ma and Johnathan won't be the only fans at Tiger Stadium come 7:30 Friday night. In fact, one could well expect an overflow crowd as Snyder and Lake View meet in what promises to be the 3-3A football highlight of the year.

"It's an extremely big game for us," agrees Tiger Coach Mike Jenkins, whose Tigers concluded a 4-2 pre-season last week. "We're opening district play and our record goes back to zero and zero (0-0). Lake View has a very good ball team. They've won it the past two years and we feel like they are the champions until they're knocked off the throne. And that's what we intend to do."

All the excitment about the game being of major importance isn't just talk either. Other loop rivals - Sweetwater, Lamesa and Brownfield - are in the process of rebuilding, and while Jenkins flatly refuses to count them out of the picture he will comment:

"I think that the winner of this game will have a part of the crown at least. They will be in the driver's seat and get a share of it."

The game may as well be rated a tossup. Lake View has tradition, experience and speed on its side, while Snyder can call on a rapidly improving offense, familiar turf, and hungry appitite which hasn't been fed, title-wise, in a while.

Both come into the contest with similar records. Lake View is 3-2, having sat out a week of action while Snyder is 4-2. The Chiefs lost to ranked teams Brownwood and Kerrville Tivy (though Tivy was not ranked at the time), while Snyder lost to ranked Pecos and could-be ranked Midland Lee.

As Coach Jenkins sometimes notes, "I'l'll be a barn burner."

And as Johnathan would say, it's important enough to keep you looking at the field.

See ya' there, Ma.

Bass Club Sets Annual Fish Fry

An annual fish fry, election of officers and an upcoming tournament highlight news from the Snyder Bass Club.

The fish fry will be held Oct. 19, 7:30 p.m., at Towle Park Barn. A fish dinner will be $3 for adults and $2 for children.

The final Bass Club tournament of the year will be held Oct. 21-22 at Lake Stamford with a three-fish maximum and a 12-inch minimum length. Tournament hours will be from daylight until 5 p.m. Saturday, and daylight until 3 p.m. Sunday. Headquarters for the meet will be at the Anchor.

It has also been announced that election of officers will take place during the Nov. meeting. President, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer as well as three directors will be selected.

Secretary Van Rigby reports that the September tournament went well for bass club members. Twenty-two fish were weighed in from 18 fishermen on Saturday, and 19 from 18 fisherman were checked Sunday. Hack Hicks took the Big Bass trophy for his 5-5½ catch, and won first with a 7-11½ stringer. Second was Earl Perser, 5-9½, while Tommy Hood, 4-14 took third.

Standings after the latest tournament are: 1. A.C. Floyd 882, 2. Manny Ware 811, 3. Tommy Hood 805½, 4. Don Parsons 846, 5. Jerry Brooks 581.

JV Tourney begins Friday...

Spikers Action Here And Away

Flying volleyballs will be thick both here and in Seminole as Snyder spiker teams resume court action beginning Thursday.

In a tri-header which opens with ninth grade teams at 5 p.m., Snyder will visit tough Seminole Thursday. A junior varsity match will follow at 6, and the evening will be highlighted by the varsity tilt at 7.

At home Thursday, Snyder eighth grade Gold and Black teams will host Seminole at 6 and 7 p.m. respectively.

Play continues on into the weekend as Snyder stages one of the largest junior varsity tournaments in the state.

The two-day tournament will pit 16 teams from throughout the area. Friday's schedule includes:

High School Gym: 9 a.m., Midland High vs. Sweetwater; 10 a.m., Snyder vs. Odessa Permian; 11 a.m. Fort Stockton vs Abilene Cooper; and 12 noon, Monahans vs Plains. Junior High Gym: 9 a.m., Big Spring vs Seminole; 10 a.m., Colorado City vs Abilene High; 11 a.m. Denver City vs. Odessa High; and 12 noon, Brownfield vs San Angelo Central.

Games will continue Saturday, with action beginning at 9 a.m. in both gyms. Consolations finals will be held at 6 p.m. and the championship finals will be held at 8. All semi-final and final matches will be playsd at the high school.

There will be no admission charge for Friday's play. Concessions will be available.

Back to Seminole then, as Snyder eighth Black and an all-star seventh grade team go into tournament play Saturday. Both teams' first game will be at 11 a.m. against Monahans.

Improving Cougars To Face Mustang Mania

HOUSTON (AP)-Eleventh-ranked Houston already has dismantled one passing team this season but UH Coach Bill Yeoman says Saturday's date with Southern Methodist and their Mustang Mania following definitely will be tougher.

The Cougars, 4-1 and ranked 11th nationally after last week's 33-0 victory over 12th-ranked Texas A&M, defeated pass-minded Florida State 27-21 earlier this season, although UH had to hang on after taking a 27-0 lead.

SMU, 3-1-1, is led by the volatile passing combination of quarterback Mike Ford and receiver Emanuel Tolbert. They lead the Southwest Conference in passing and receiving and have kept Yeoman from celebrating last week's victory.

"Tolbert is better than Florida State's good receiver (Jackie Flowers) plus they have more team speed and they have a physically bigger quarterback," Yeoman said.

Yeoman said Houston's defensive performance against the Aggies was the first time this season that the Cougars had really come together as a unit but he's not ready to go overboard on predictions.

"People too often try to base how good you are on one game and you can't do that," Yeoman said. "We've played two good games out of our last three but you can't just play two good games.

"If we don't play outstanding pass defense and have a good rush against SMU it's going to be a long tough game for us."

If Tolbert is a better receiver than Flowers as Yeoman assesses, the UH defense will have it's work cut out. Flowers caught six passes for 165 yards and one touchdown against the Cougars.

Fat Lip Deserved, Humorizes Landry

DALLAS (AP) - You get a fat lip if you mess around with Coach Tom Landry's play selection.

At least that was the message the Dallas Cowboys coach conveyed to quarterback Roger Staubach - all in good fun - Tuesday.

Landry was discussing his offensive line and said they couldn't be blamed for a blow that knocked Staubach dizzy in Sunday's 24-21 National Football League victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Staubach also suffered a bloody lip.

"He took a hit and it was his fault," said Landry, a big smile on his face. "He switched off (the play that Landry had sent in) and he shouldn't have...every time he looks in the mirror at that split lip it will remind him."

Landry has been remarkably loose this season, unleashing quip after quip at his weekly press luncheons.

Example: Question - What do you think about Paul Harvey's broadcast when he erroneously reported that Danny White had been traded to Chicago?

Answer - "It just shows Paul is human, too. I got a letter (telegram) from him. It said, Sorry, Tom."

Question - Just what do you plan to tell your kickoff return team which ran out of bounds twice inside the 10-yard line last week?

Answer - "Judgment. We're going to practice judgment."

Question - How does the rest of the season look to you?

Answer - "Well, we've got nine more games to go - I think. I've kinda got lost this season."

Before the Cowboys captured their first Super Bowl, Landry was sometimes tense and terse at his weekly press conferences.

Now, the 18-year veteran of National Football League wars is more relaxed than his questioners.

Crenshaw's 65 Leads '78 Texas State Open

MARBLE FALLS (AP) - Ben Crenshaw's best competitive round was a 64 he shot on the final day to win the 1975 Texas State Open golf championship.

Crenshaw almost equaled that Tuesday, when he birdied the first five holes for a 7-under-par 65 that gave him a two-stroke lead after the first round of the 1978 Texas State Open.

His 6-under-par 30 on the front line equaled the Horseshoe Bay Country Club record. He picked up only one more birdie on the last nine holes and had to sink a four-footer on the 18th hole for a par that let him stay two ahead of Miller Barber and club professional Tommy Aycock of Kingsville, who were in at 67.

Tour veterans Don January and Orville Moody shot 68s, along with Guy Cullins of Denton, and Jeff Mitchell of Lubbock.

Defending champion Bobby Walzel was one of five players at 69. In all, 22 players broke par. Also at 69 were Randy Petree, Dwight Nevil, Tom Chaim and Dave Eichelberger. Ken Knoll and Rocky Thompson were another stroke back with 70s.

Carter Steps In On Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has stepped in personally to referee the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks, but he and his aides deny there is an impasse.

"There is no particular problem. There is no crisis," the president told reporters Tuesday in the Cabinet Room at the opening of his meeting with the Egyptian delegation.

Before Tuesday, the peace talks were described as going smoothly. The possibility that they had hit a snag arose when Carter scheduled separate meetings with the two delegations.

In earlier talks at Camp David which resulted in a framework for further negotiations, Carter used the tactic of meeting separately with the leaders of the two countries when their positions were so far apart that direct talks between them were fruitless.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan fueled speculation in remarks to reporters as he emerged from the White House Tuesday.

"We have come against some difficulties in our negotiations with the Egyptian delegation," Dayan said. "When we came here, the president told us whenever we are stuck, we should turn to him.

"So we used this opportunity, and we have met with him. Now we are waiting for his meeting with the Egyptian delegation. Then we'll find out how constructive we have been, how much he managed to solve and to help us go ahead and advance with the process," Dayan said.

Neither Dayan nor anyone else would elaborate publicly on the "difficulties" that required Carter's mediation.

Administration officials, speaking privately, said they were relatively routine problems, primarily involving the terms of the proposed treaty between Egypt and Israel. They were plainly upset with Dayan's remarks, which broke the American-imposed ban on substantive comments on the negotiations.

Prior to Dayan's remarks, the State Department's spokesman on the talks, George Sherman, said the meetings between Carter and the delegations were not caused by any problem or "hurdle" that had arisen.

He said they would be simply sessions to review the progress which had been made and discuss the issues which remained to be resolved.

Plea Heard In District Court

A guilty plea in 132nd District Court was entered Monday afternoon.

The plea was entered by Ronnie Clarence Morris to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested Aug. 19 by city police officers.

He received a two-year prison term probated for two years.
