Full house

A standing-room-only crowd which flowed into the adjoining halls of the Gray County Courtroom were in attendance this morning at the county commissioners meeting. Most of the audience came to either listen to discussion or voice an opinion concerning the commissioners' recent decision to fire Robert Monogue, hospital administrator.

Heated county session results in no action

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

A standing room audience which included many hospital employes present to voice their support for the Highland General Hospital administrator, Robert Monogue, filled the Gray County courtroom this morning for a meeting of the commissioners court.

Following about 45 minutes in executive session this morning, the Gray County Commissioners Court unanimously requested that the hospital board meet with the court at 10 a.m. on Sept. 1 to discuss personnel matters.

The court also approved grade raises approved by hospital board for hourly employes but cut a proposed raise of $100 monthly for the purchasing agent to $50.

A letter requesting that the county be redistricted immediately was discussed at length with Jean Martindale, attorney for Ralph Prock and other interested citizens. No action was taken on the redistricting request.

In an Aug. 2 meeting of the commission, Monogue's resignation was requested. He did not resign and the hospital board members voted five to one to retain the administrator in spite of the resolution from the commissioners court.

A lengthy session, which included comments and reactions from members of the audience, began when A.G. Roberts of Lefors was recognized by Gray County Judge Don Cain.

Roberts presented a petition bearing 705 signatures which stated:

"We, the undersigned, as tax paying citizens for Gray County do respectfully request that the Gray County Commissioners Court headed by County Judge Cain take immediate action and terminate from Highland General Hospital the administrator, Robert Monogue. We also request that the resignation of Hospital Board Chairman Fred Neslage be demanded. We make these requests in the interests of returning efficiency to the county hospital."

Following the presentation of that petition, Dr. Joe R. Donaldson, a hospital staff physician, said he also had a petition which requested that the county commissioners state in writing the reasons for the resignation request and if they do not, to rescind the resolution.

Donaldson made no mention of the number of signatures on his petition, but apparently it is the same petition he discussed at the hospital board meeting of Monday which, at that time, reportedly has been signed by 190 persons.

He said that the "printed press ... created controversy here in our community ... The only thing we've done is create headlines and sell newspapers. And I understand their circulation is down 2,000."

Dr. Donaldson did not say where he obtained his circulation figure. If his comment was directed at The Pampa News, it is incorrect, according to Tim Hoiles, publisher of The News. Certified figures for circulation show that in July 1975 there were 7,135 paid subscribers to The News. The figure for July 1976 was 7,334.

Donaldson made comparisons of Highland General Hospital to hospitals in Clarendon, Borger, Philadelphia and Chicago.

He said, "The greatest thing to happen in the practice of medicine since I've been in Pampa has been securing a radiologist and a apthologist. If you think that those two people have to stay in Pampa, they don't. They can go anywhere, anytime they want to."

Donaldson added that he would "certainly be reluctant to stay in Pampa" without a radiologist and a pathologist.

"This isn't a threat," he said. "I've been here 27 years. I don't think there's been anybody that's worked any harder in the community than I have. I'm not saying this to pat myself on the back."

Continuing his lengthy comment, Donaldson said, "My personal feeling is the only thing that is wrong with Bob Monogue is he has guts to tell the newspaper that they aren't running the hospital. I think the only thing wrong with Fred Neslage and the board of managers is they've had the guts to tell the newspaper that they weren't running the hospital board of managers."

Donaldson then urged the county commissioners to "pass a resolution having a joint meeting, an executive meeting with the hospital board of managers ... and get this situation straightened out."

Commissioner Don Hinton responded with, "The last thing we want to see is our hospital destroyed. A lot of this controversy that's been brought up is possibly our fault, some things that we have passed by, looked over in order to keep things running smooth. And a lot of it is just little old nitpicking stuff, but the pickings have gotten so deep, there's a point where something needs to be done."

A man asked from the audience when the last time was that the hospital had operated at a loss. "About 1967," was the answer from the commissioners.

"Has Mr. Monogue been the administrator all those years," the man asked.

The answer was no.

It was brought out at the meeting that the hospital bonded indebtedness will not be paid off by the taxpayers until 1978.

Roberts spoke again and said, "I want to answer somewhat Dr. Donaldson. Dr. Donaldson gave me a shot one time. He may never want to do it again, or I'd be afraid for him to. Let me say, simply, that the efficiency of our doctors has never been questioned."

He then emphasized that "Mr. Monogue, Mr. Neslage are not indispensable men. There are no indispensible men."

April St. Clair, Monogue's secretary, told the commissioners court that if they expected the employes of Highland General Hospital to back their decision to fire Monogue, "You're going to have to give us reasons."

Commissioner J.C. McCracken said of Monogue, "We do have a problem. And we know where it started. Almost monthly we've had some sort of a problem. We don't want to be involved in the day to day operations of that hospital. But it seems like over the years, almost from the day he (Monogue) started work, we've had some kind of little problems."

An employe and a former employe of the McLean Hospital both spoke out at the meeting, criticizing the administrator for infrequent visits to that facility and for looking into whether or not the McLean Hospital could be closed.

Neither Robert Monogue nor Fred Neslage were present. Horace Williams, administrative assistant, said that the many hospital employes present, many dressed in uniforms, were either on their day off or were clocked out of the hospital.

Miss Top O' Texas to be chosen tonight

Thirty-five area young women will vie for the title of Miss Top O' Texas at 8 p.m. today in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

The contestants will parade across the stage before a panel of three judges. Each will be scored on a point system according to beauty, poise and personality.

After two major competitions, in swim suits and in formal gowns, ten semi - finalists will be announced. That number will be reduced to five finalists, each of whom will answer the question in the final phase of competition.

Finally will come the announcement of the four runners-up and the 1976 Miss Top O' Texas.

The reigning queen, Tambre Payton of Borger, will give a farewell speech and announce the winner of the Miss Congeniality award.

Master of ceremonies for the event will be Richard Fatheree of Ada, Okla., a former Pampa resident. Organist will be Sue Higdon, with entertainment at intervals by Richard and Wanetta Hill. Director is Ann Horton.

Judges for the pageant, none of whom are from towns sponsoring contestants, are Sheral Strecker of Amarillo; R. Byrn Bass, Jr. of Lubbock, and Don Hileman of Amarillo.

Miss Strecker is the reigning Miss West Texas State University and was a contestant in the Miss Texas pageant. A graduate of Tascosa High School, she is a member of Chorale and Schola Madrigalis choirs at WTSU. She has worked as a clothing model on television.

Bass is a Lubbock lawyer and son of the mayor, Roy Bass. He worked as co-campaign manager for his father and was a delegate for Jimmy Carter at the Democratic National Convention in July in New York City. A graduate of Baylor University and the University of Texas law school, he is a deacon at the Second Baptist Church in Lubbock.

Hileman is executive vice president and general manager of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce. A former president of the Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers, he currently serves as a director of the Southern American Chamber of Commerce Executives Association. He has been manager in Amarillo since 1961.

The latest entry in the contest was Debbie Davis of Claude, sponsored by the Claude Chamber of Commerce. The other 34 contestants, who will be numbered on stage according to alphabetical order, and their sponsors include: Melanie Arrington, Pampa, Behrman's; Halcyon Back, McLean, Mother's Club Inc.; Claudia Bailey, Miami, Miami Chamber of Commerce; Darla Baird, 1300 N. Russell, Top O' Texas Hereford Association; and Susie Botkin, 2547 Duncan, Gilbert's.

Others are Terri Brandt, 2725 Aspen, Panhandle Savings and Loan; Penny Bright, 1320 Mary Ellen, Top O' Texas Rodeo Association; Jody Brock, Canadian, Canadian Chamber of Commerce; Cindy Brooks, Canyon, Canyon Study Club; Tammy Cameron, Stratford, Stratford Chamber of Commerce; Kim Chittenden, 2540 Christine, Pants West; Tina Clawson, Gruver, Gruver State Bank; Katrina Dickey, 1901 Grape, Wright's Fashions; Dee Ann Gray, 1701 Duncan, Montgomery Ward; and Rhonda Hayes, Woodward, Okla., Spoonemore Oil Co. of Spearman, Tex.

The rest are Selena Scoggin, 2136 Dogwood, Security Federal Savings and Loan; Glenda Sherrell, Mobeetie, Little Theater; Brenda Smith, 1208 Christine, Field's Mens Wear; Stacy Smith, 1829 Holly Lane, Celanese; Fran Steel, 1900 Grape, Fatheree Insurance Agency; Donnese Taylor, Shamrock, Shamrock Chamber of Commerce; Delfine Ulibarri, Hereford, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce; Frankie Watt, 1947 Nelson, Hi-Land Fashions; and Cindy Young, 420 Jupiter, Steele's Art and Frame.

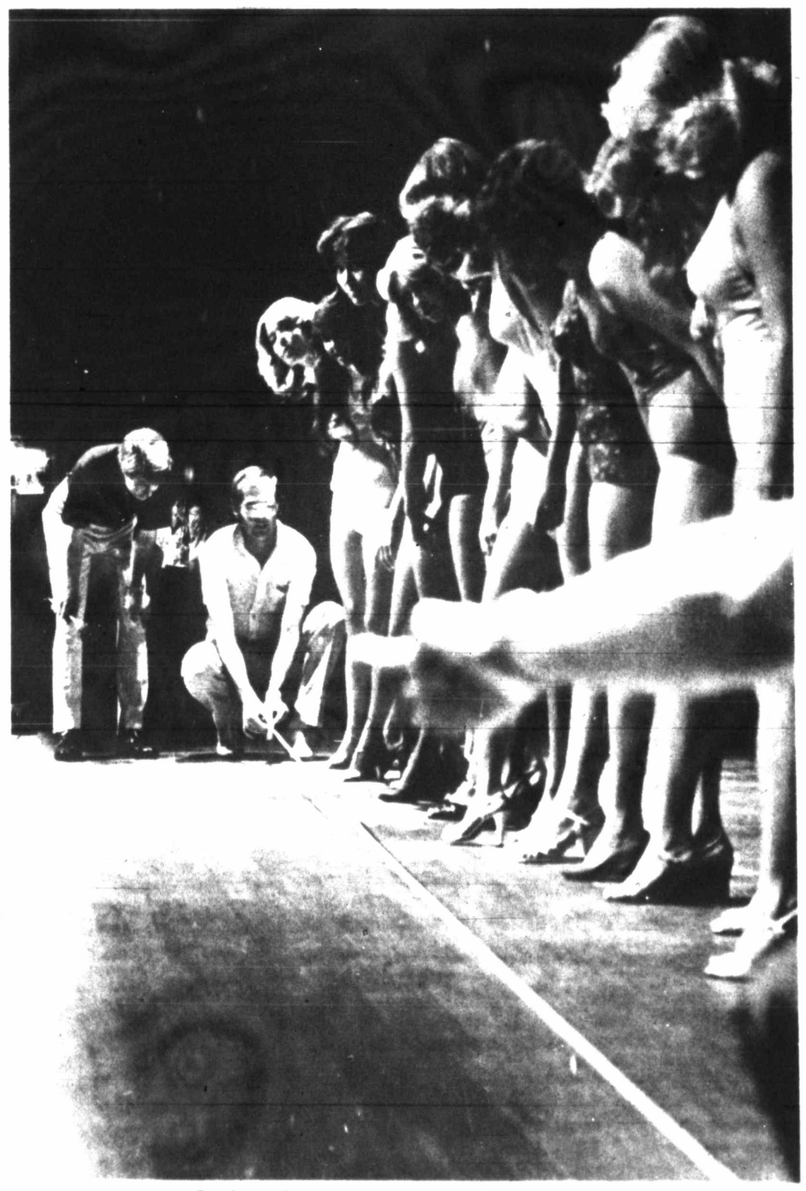

Winner of the title will receive $250. First runner-up will receive $100, with $50 going to the second runner-up.

Pampa's highest ranking contestant will be named Miss Pampa. She will compete in the Miss Wheatheart of the Nation pageant Aug. 21 in Perryton. Miss Pampa 1975 is Dana Rogers.

Tickets may be purchased at the door, at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, from any contestant or from their sponsors. They are $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The ninth annual pageant is sponsored by the retail Trade Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Rehearsing tonight's show

Preparation for the Miss Top O' Texas beauty pageant continued with rehearsal Thursday night. Directing the event is Ann Horton. Contestants stand in line while Richard Fatheree, emcee, and David McDaniel stretch tape across the stage to ensure a straight line of contestants at the pageant tonight. The contest, featuring 35 girls from Pampa and the surrounding area, will begin at 8 p.m. in M.K. Brown Auditorium. Tickets for the ninth annual event cost $2 for adults, $1 for children. The winner receives $250.

Hays won't run again

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne L. Hays, whose relationship with Elizabeth Ray sparked a congressional payroll-sex scandal, today dropped his bid for re-election, citing health reasons and "harassment."

On Thursday, he said he was considering ending his campaign if he thought it would wipe out Miss Ray's chances for more publicity.

The 65-year-old Democrat submitted his campaign withdrawal statement to the Columbiana County Board of Elections here.

In a statement released in Washington, Hays said "I do this with a heavy heart" and said he had planned to retire in 1978.

"However, the current state of my health coupled with the harassment my family and I have taken from the Washington Post have led me to conclude that I should step down at the end of my current term," he said.

The Post broke the story on Miss Ray's charges that Hays kept her on a House committee payroll at a $14,000 a year salary solely to provide him with sex.

"The polls show I'd win, but I don't want to give that woman another chance to make an appearance," Hays said.

Fair set Saturday

Entries ranging from sorghum heads to arts and crafts exhibits will be on display during the Gray County 4-H, Senior Citizens Fair Saturday in the Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavillion, according to Layton Barton and Marilyn Shirley, assistant Gray County agents.

Exhibitors should have their entries in place between 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. Friday, with the exception of baked goods and animals which are due by 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Judging will be Saturday morning and the doors will open to the public at 1 p.m. Saturday. An awards program at 4 p.m. will conclude the fair.

Entries are limited to Gray County 4-H members and Gray County senior citizens (aged 55 or older) and ribbons will be awarded through fifth place.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Regulators push up prices

All costs of producing goods and services are eventually paid by the consuming public in the form of prices charged by the firms producing them. Were this not so, such firms, unable to recoup their costs, would soon go bankrupt and the jobs they provide would disappear.

Nor, given a free market, is there anything wrong with this. After all, if production costs must be paid, what could be fairer than their being paid by the individuals benefitting from the consumption of the goods or services involved? This is the objective and infinitely just law of the free market. Those who benefit defray the costs.

However, the effect is the same when costs are artificially raised by the imposition of taxes and regulations upon the business community. Although such impositions are not, properly, a part of the productive process, they, nevertheless, do add to the costs of production and, consequently, to the prices consumers ultimately pay.

This is an economic fact of life which lawmakers who enact taxes and impose regulations, along with the bureaucrats who administer them, appear unable, or unwilling, to comprehend. Every tax or regulation imposed upon the business community adds to the cost of producing goods and services and, ultimately, to the prices paid by the using public. And, when these tax and regulation - caused costs and prices mount to the point where the buying public begins to rebel, the economy begins to stagger. This, in a nutshell, largely describes our current predictament while helping fire our widespread unemployment.

Grasping this fact, and addressing himself to the impact of regulations alone, professor Murray L. Weidenbaum of Washington University at St. Louis charged last year that government regulation of industry safety and consumer products fuel inflation by adding billions of dollars in costs each year.

Just the cost of paying the regulators, themselves (some 61,000 of them), runs to nearly $2,000,000,000 a year, Weidenbaum pointed out. But that is just the beginning, he went on to add.

Far higher and even more damaging than this $2 billion taxpayer - paid tab, the Washington University professor emphasized, are the costs of complying with the regulations which, amounting to untold billions of dollars, are passed on to the consumers.

Contributing to this enormous cost spiral, the professor said, pointing to just two of the many causes, are over 5,146 different government forms the business community must fill out and submit each year, plus the wasteful practice indulged in by regulators of destroying mislabeled products, rather than having them correctly relabeled.

"It is no exaggeration to suggest," Weidenbaum noted, that "the commission (the Federal Trade Commission) may turn out — unwittingly of course — to be the most anti - consumer organization of all time.

"This paradoxical result would be brought about," the professor concluded, "by the commission forcing such expensive complexity on the manufacturers of consumer products that poor and even middle - income families would be priced out of the market."

Cold? Turn color up

People have long been vaguely aware of how colors can influence their moods. Only recently, however, has much scientific attention been directed to the subject.

One manufacturer of paint and wall coverings, for example, has just completed a study on the psychology of color which it hopes will be an aid to those who make decorating decisions in offices and such institutions as hospitals.

According to United-DeSoto, Inc., the study "shows conclusively" that yellow is cheerful, red is exciting, green is relaxing, blue is restful and violet is just plain depressing — to most people, anyway. Beyond setting a mood, the correct colors can also create the illusion of size in a small room or intimacy in a large room.

Color and room decor have other psychological effects. During a series of tests at the Institute for Environmental Research at Kansas State University, scientists noticed that people said they felt colder in a small, white-painted and starkly furnished chamber than they did in a large chamber, even though the temperatures were identical.

When the small chamber was remodeled with wood paneling, a rich red carpet, indirect lighting, pictures on the walls and upholstered chairs, a second test group felt warmer than the first group. In fact, the remodeling was equivalent to raising the temperature 2.5 degrees, estimates Dr. Frederick H. Rohles, director of the institute.

"The people were not actually warmer," he says. "They just felt warmer — a type of psychological warmth."

The finding, he thinks, may have "tremendous implications" in terms of energy conservation.

Delegate's hunt for impossible

By TOM TIEDE

RICHMOND, VA. (NEA) — The way it began was that members of the Washington County Republican Committee were sitting around last winter and somebody wondered: "Who will we run for delegates?" Half in jest, Miz Eliza Sprinkle said she would volunteer. The joke turned serious two weeks later when she made her offer formally. Her only condition was that she must run uncommitted. The party agreed, she was placed on the ballot, and won convincingly.

So it is that when the Republican party convenes later this month several hundred undecided primary voters from the southwestern corner of Virginia will be represented by the oldest, and one of the most important GOP delegates in the nation. Born last century, Miz Sprinkle is a few weeks shy of 80. As for her significance, she is one of about 100 uncommitted delegates whose votes could decide not only the party's nominee but the nation's next president.

The early gag has thus become "a terrible responsibility," as she says. And thus her burden may be lightened considerably by events, perhaps a pre - convention rush of pledges to one candidate or another. Miz Sprinkle insists she will not make her own decision until all the evidence is in: "I want to make the right choice. I want to know everything I can about each candidate. I read all the papers, I watch the 1 o'clock, 6 o'clock and 11 o'clock news on TV. The way I feel now I may not decide until the first ballot begins." Miz Sprinkle's sobriety concerning her vote comes in part from her appreciation for having it. As a child at the turn of the century, she is one of a dwindling number of women who remember when only men had the franchise. The 19th Amendment was not made law until 1920, when Miz Sprinkle was 23. "I remember I went out that first year and registered. Then a few months later I voted for my first president (Warren Harding). I've been voting regularly ever since, except one time — when I was giving birth to my eldest son."

All her votes have been for the GOP. "My daddy was a Republican, and you know how it is — kids always follow their daddy." She says this with some remorse, actually, admitting that her husband is a Democrat and her four sons "just blindly go along with him." Thank God she's got a daughter as well, she says; the dear girl sides with mom in thinking the party of Lincoln is the supreme political calling.

For all of her early problems in being recognized by the Republicans, and for all the flak she now gets from the Democratic wing of her family, Miz Sprinkle has done well with the GOP. During her voting lifetime there have been 11 presidents, seven of them Republicans. Two of them, Harding and Hoover, do not rate well in history, and another, Nixon, is best forgotten, but in all Miz Sprinkle feels "the Republicans have always offered the best of the bunch." (Well, except when Roosevelt ran. She remembers FDR as "a fine man.")

As for Jerry Ford and Ronald Reagan? She feels both candidates have strong qualities, but she is quite stingy with specifics. She doesn't want to make hard comparisons until the convention caucuses are ended, the platform is established, and both sides have had their final say. "I'm still searching," she confesses, "I'm still not sure which one would be the best man to straighten things out."

As for the issues, crime, welfare, government spending: When Miz Sprinkle was a girl, a murder in New York would make news in Richmond — now it's not even news in New York.

On the subject of welfare she says, "I've got a garden that needs some work but I can't get people off the public rolls to do it." Government spending — in the 80 years of Miz Sprinkle's existence, the federal budget has grown fromm $457 million in 1897 to $325 billion this year, or by an approximate percentage of 700.

So she will travel to the convention, in effect, searching for the impossible. But that's all right. After 80 years, Eliza Sprinkle finds that she is still of importance to her party and her nation, she is still part of the action, she is still with hope, and, as she says it, this makes looking for the impossible somewhat easier.

Ford manipulating delegates

By WILLIAM RUSHER

WASHINGTON — If the desperate behind - the - scenes efforts of the Ford forces are any indication, they cannot be quite so confident of winning the nomination for their man as they are telling the media (and the media are suavely telling us). Despite flat denials by official administration sources, huge federal expenditures are being dangled before areas of the country that still possess even a handful of uncommitted or shaky delegates, and heroic efforts are being made to break previously sacrosanct unit rules in order to euchre two or three more Ford votes out of overwhelmingly pro - Reagan delegations.

Take Suffolk County, the eastern half of one of New York's most intensely conservative suburban areas, Long Island. Suffolk in 1970 went by a huge margin to James L. Buckley, running for the Senate on the small Conservative party's line against the liberal Republican incumbent, Charles Goodell. Nobody disputes that, in an open referendum among Suffolk's Republican voters, Ronald Reagan would swamp Gerald Ford. That is undoubtedly why Suffolk's Republican leader, Edwin Schwenk, put forward a blandly "uncommitted" slate at the time of last spring's GOP primary, while most of the rest of the state's Republican politicians were openly lining up behind Ford at the direction of former Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

But President Ford's managers are not overly concerned about the popular will if they can find some means of getting around it, and they seem to have found one in the case of Suffolk's seven delegates.

The first problem was to turn Schwenk himself around — which probably wasn't too difficult, since he is expected to retire next year and move to South Carolina, well beyond the reach of vengeful Suffolk County conservatives.

But how about the delegates themselves? That, cynics say, is where Grumman Aerospace Corp. comes in. Grumman is by far the biggest federal - contract employer on Long Island, and a large number of its many thousands of employees at all levels are active in their local Republican politics as leaders, committeemen, etc.

Now, call it a funny coincidence if you insist, but on July 17 a local Long Island newspaper reported that Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld would shortly receive and pass upon upon a "staff recommendation" that Grumman be allowed (as it has long desired) to speed up its production of F-14 swing - wing fighters for the Navy. Former Defense Secretary Schlesinger had insisted on stretching out the $5-billion program until 1990, to keep the assembly line open in cases of emergencies. If Rumsfeld (one of Ford's closest advisors) consents to the speed-up, the line will close down in 1982 — at an enormous saving (and hence, profit) to Grumman, albeit at some risk to the country.

Exactly three days later, on July 20, the seven Suffolk unanimous support for Ford, unanimous support for Ford. Rumsfeld's decision is expected soon.

Or take Mississippi, where the Republicans are so conservative they practically sleep with their shoes on. The leader of Mississippi Republicanism, Clarke Reed, has long enforced the traditional unit rule upon its delegation to Republican national conventions. In 1968, for example, Reed grimly fought off all opposition and delivered the votes of the entire Mississippi delegation to Richard Nixon, despite Reagan shrinks within it that fell just short of a majority.

This year, however, Reed breezily included a few Ford supporters among Mississippi's otherwise staunchly pro - Reagan 30-member delegation — "just for the sake of unity," as he reassuringly told the Reagan managers.

But would you believe it, now that the deed is done, Ol' Butterfingers somehow just can't keep his fractious delegation together for Reagon. "Unity," my eye! Three of Reed's delegates have already announced they will flout their state's time - honored unit rule and vote for Ford, and the suspicion is growing that several more, perhaps including Reed himself, may be found in Ford's corner before it is all over. "Popular will," anyone?

Wiretapping declared 'must' in Crime War

By CLARK MOLLENOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Seven years of legalized wiretapping has resulted in the National Commission on Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance concluding that it "is indespensable" in fighting organized crime.

But the report is buttressed with warnings of the need for continued vigilance "to afford the greatest possible protection to individual privacy."

In recommending that legalized wiretapping be continued, the commission's majority felt that federal and state law enforcement should be permitted to intercept telephone conversations "only when authorized by a court of competent jurisdiction" and that the wiretapping "should remain under the control and supervision of the authorizing court.

"Interception of wire and oral communications should further be limited to certain major types of offenses and specific categories of crimes with the assurance that the interception is justified and that the information obtained thereby will not be misused," the commission said.

The commission rejected suggestions that would have expanded the number of crimes subject to wirtapping, and another extreme view that would have sharply restricted the categories of crimes in which wiretapping would be legal.

Members of the commission who questioned the validity of the conclusion that wiretapping is "indispensable" in fighting organized crime did not recommend abandonment, but only suggested a review by Congress.

Federal officials were commended for their regard for the detailed review procedures when wiretaps are used, but it was found that record keeping by prosecutors of the results of the court - authorized wiretapping was "inadequate."

It was suggested that the Department of Justice is better equipped to collect wiretap records than the administrative office of the U.S. courts.

There was some pressure from a minority of the commission to reduce the time of the initial wiretap period from the 30 days in the present law to 15 days, and to limit law enforcement officials to one 15-day extension.

However, the majority of the commission prevailed on continuing the present 30-day period, and unlimited 30-day extensions as long as the court can be convinced there is justification for continuation.

The commission found that "most court - authorized surveillance has not been unduly long, although a few have been unnecessarily extended."

It was related that only one federal wiretap out of 547 included in a survey period ran longer than 60 days, but 102 out of 762 state taps lasted more than 60 days.

"Because different offenses require different periods of time, and because unduly lengthy surveillance can be prevented by requiring the extension application to show additional facts justifying the requested extension, the majority concluded that it would be unwise to shorten the period of the initial tap or to place an arbitrary limit on the length and number of extensions," the report said.

The minority of the commission recommended abolition of the "emergency provisions" of the law which permit electronic surveillance without a court order on cases involving national security or organized crime, providing that court authorization is sought within 24 hours.

The majority of the commission recognized the potential for abuse of the "emergency" tap, but found that it might be essential in some instances involving the possibility of "death or serious bodily injury."

The majority recommended that the "emergency provision" be continued, with the requirement for oral notification of a judge prior to installation of the emergency tap.

The failure of former Attorney General John Mitchell to follow the procedures of the law requiring the personal approval of the Attorney General has jeopardized several hundred federal prosecutions based on wiretap evidence, the commission noted.

The majority of the commission felt that the present six - stage review is too time consuming and cumbersome, and suggested that the authority to approve wiretaps be delegated to U.S. attorneys or the chiefs of federal strike forces used against organized crime.

A minority of the commission wisely recommended against any further delegation of the authority to tap telephones or engage in other electronic surveillance activity, resulting in the majority cautioning that if wiretapping is decentralized that it "should be closely scrutinized by the Attorney General."

Certainly, the problem of protecting the privacy of individual ctitizens while conducting an effective war against organized crime is one of the major delimma's of our democracy.

Law enforcement officials who wish to continue with legalized wiretapping, and believe it is an "indespensable" tool for fighting crime, have a great responsibility to act fully within the letter and intent of the law or jeopardize the continuation of the "indespensable" tool of wiretapping.

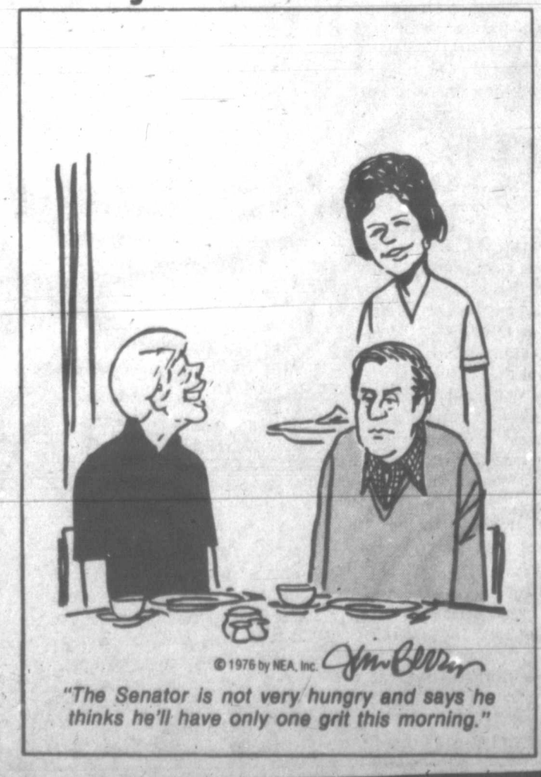

While there have been a few abuses in continuation of wiretaps where the record did not justify it, and there has been laxity in the record keeping of prosecutors, the commission believes that on balance the present law is effective.

It is up to federal and state law enforcement officials to avoid willful abuses or lax administration that could create pressure for abolition of court - approved wiretapping.

Fashionable 4-Her's

Leading the senior division competition in the District 4-H Dress Revue in Amarillo Thursday was Sue Smith, 17, left. Wearing a rust and navy polyester and cotton blend tailored blouse and wraparound skirt, she was named best model in the day - long contest, and recipient of the best cotton garment award. She was one of five senior winners named to compete in the State 4-H Dress Revue in San Antonio Sept. 17-18. Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Smith of Pampa. Thirteen - year - old Bobbie Skaggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Skaggs of 805 N. Christy, center, was one of five top winners in the junior, 12-13, division and Penny Miller, 11 - year - old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe D. Miller of 415 N. Sumner, was among the top five entries in the junior, 9-11, competition. Marilyn Shirley, assistant county Extension agent, said 19 girls were entered in each of the three divisions. "I think we might have been the only county with three winners," Shirley said. Only senior division winners compete in the state contest.

Buckley declines to be symbol

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. James L. Buckley said today that if he enters the Republican presidential race it will be as a serious candidate and not merely as a symbol of conservatives' dissatisfaction with the two major candidates.

There also have been suggestions that a Buckley candidacy might be aimed at preventing President Ford from winning a first-ballot victory, thereby giving Ronald Reagan a chance to take the nomination on later ballot.

But Buckley said today, "If I allow my name to be put in, it would be a candidacy, pure and simple."

But he continued to insist that he has done nothing to encourage any movement to make him a possibly deadlock-busting candidate at the GOP National Convention which begins Monday in Kansas City.

Buckley, on the NBC "Today" show, said he had "zero commitment" to go any further to advocate his own candidacy, and added, "I have done nothing to promote this, to search out support or anything like that."

Outside of Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, who has mentioned Buckley as a possible third candidate, Buckley continued to keep in confidence those Republicans in both the Ronald Reagan and President Ford camps he said urged him "not to slam the door" on a possible candidacy.

Meanwhile, Rep. Peter Peyser, his Republican primary opponent in the New York State senate race, saw the Buckley candidacy move as "a very deliberate attempt to split and destroy the Republican party" by the Conservative party, which first nominated Buckley for election to the Senate six years ago.

"The Conservative party has taken the same action in New York State that is very effective and is now moving on the national scene," Peyser insisted.

Buckley, a strict conservative, is the first New York State Republican in the last 15 years to be mentioned as a presidential possibility whose name is not Nelson A. Rockefeller.

And top officials of the state GOP, still largely controlled by the former four-term governor and now vice president and which supports Ford's presidential bid, were busy Thursday trying to pressure Buckley into killing any further presidential speculatio.

Veiled threats came from party chairman Richard Rosenbaum, a Rockefeller appointee, state Atty. General Louis J. Lefkowitz and others.

Rosenbaum and Lefkowitz both warned Buckley that a presidential move could cost him party support in his Senate re-election race.

None of the party leaders seemed to take Buckley's move seriously. But they disliked the "upsetting" nature of it and the possibility that enough delegates might vote for Buckley on the first ballot to force a second where Ronald Reagan's chances against President Ford might be stronger.

Buckley said Thursday that he would not comment on the remarks by Republican leaders. "I am not a spoiler," he said.

100 blacks injured in Cape Town riots

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Gunfire was heard today in nearby Nyanga township and a large crowd of dissident blacks tried to set fire to a medical clinic as racial violence broke out in the Cape Town area for the third straight day, police said.

At least 29 blacks have been killed and some 100 injured in rioting that began Wednesday in the segregated black townships around Cape Town.

They have been the worst disturbances since bloody riots in mid-June throughout South Africa took at least 176 lives, almost all of them blacks. Black demonstrators have been protesting the white government's apartheid policies of racial separation.

"We have patrols out in the area and a radio message just received said crowds were gathering at the clinic at Nyanga and there have been attempts to set it alight," a police spokesman said. Police said gunshots were heard in the area.

There was no immediate word on possible new casualties.

Earlier in the day, a general calm had been reported in the townships. A railway official said commuter trains were bringing black workers from the Nyanga, Langa and Guguletu black ghettos to work in Cape Town without interference.

After the first two days of violence, arms and ammunition dealers reported a rush by whites to buy weapons.

A police spokesman said there were no major incidents in the three townships during the night. But the national police commissioner, Gert Prinslo, said a nationwide police alert remained in force.

The police announced that six blacks wee killed Thursday, raising the toll from racial violence to at least 218 dead since violent black protests began June 16 in Johannesburg's Soweto township. All but three of the dead were black.

At least 176 persons were killed during the first wave of violence, which lasted for a week in black districts around Johannesburg and Pretoria. Thirteen more persons were killed in the Johannesburg area between Aug. 4 and Aug. 9, and then the violence broke out Wednesday for the first time in the Cape Town area, 800 miles southeast of Johannesburg.

Police on Thursday arrested about 80 white students from the University of Cape Town as they marched from their campus to one of the townships to demonstrate their sympathy with the blacks. The government said they were held for violating a ban on public assemblies.

Three of the blacks who died Thursday were shot at a police roadblock on the outskirts of the Langa township. It could not be learned how the others were killed.

New Hampshire became the ninth state to ratify the U.S. Constitution on June 21, 1788.

Policemen get tactics training

Five detectives and officers of the Pampa Police Department have undergone training in special weapons and tactics, according to Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills.

The five — Assistant Police Chief George Wallace, Det. J.J. Ryzman, and Officers Mike Hartsock, Randy Stubblefield and Travis Rowland — were one of eight teams to participate in the four - day school.

Mills said the course included training in hostage situations, removing people from barricaded buildings, selected weapons firing and operation of gas equipment.

"We hope never to have to use this training," Mills said.

"But if we do have a man in a building, it's not the time to learn. The time to learn is before that situation develops."

Instructor at the course at the Amarillo Air Base was Joel Howerton, FBI agent from Dallas.

Mills said the training was possible through a grant from the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Four law enforcement agencies in the Panhandle large enough to provide their own teams were Potter County, Deaf Smith County, Amarillo and Pampa, Mills said.

Four other teams were formed by various law enforcement agencies in the Panhandle joining forces.

Stock scheme probed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio authorities say they are attempting to extradite from Louisiana two persons wanted in connection with an alleged stock fraud scheme.

A spokesman for the Bexar County sheriff's department said officials in Shreveport, La., arrested William P. Maroski and Beverly Marroquin.

A Bexar County grand jury returned sealed indictments against Maroski, Mrs. Marroquin and a second man charging them with selling unregistered securities, sale of a security by an unregistered salesman and fraudulent sale of a security.

A spokesman for the Bexar County district attorney's office said the scheme allegedly operated in 20 states and involved sales of stock in a proposed oil and natural gas well to be drilled inPecos County in West Texas. At least 63 persons invested $140,000 in the deal, the spokesman said.

The stock allegedly was offered through companies doing business as Oil and Gas Producers Inc. and Apollo Oil and Gas, with offices listed in El Paso and Shreveport.

Mrs. Marroquin is listed on company stationary as an officer of the two companies and manager of the El Paso office.

Maroski is listed on company documents as president and owner of both firms, officials said.

The third suspect in the case is a salesman, officers said.

Greek, Turkish ministers to vent oil dispute today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Greek and Turkish foreign ministers come face to face today in the United Nations Security Council to vent their dispute over the oil that may lie beneath the Aegean Sea.

Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil missed the opening of the debate Thursday. Speaking then, Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios urged the council to prevail on Turkey to halt what he called the "provocative" activities of a research ship probing for evidence of oil.

Caglayangil was expected to argue that Bitsios' government was trying to turn the Aegean into a "Greek lake" by claiming possession of virtually the entire Aegean continental shelf.

Seeking to mediate between the two easternmost members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger asked the two ministers to meet separately with him on Saturday morning while he is in New York to visit the Law of the Sea Conference.

Greece and Turkey have for years had rival claims to sovereignty in the Aegean, which is dotted with Greek islands, some within miles of the Turkish coast. The Greeks say these islands give them jurisdiction over almost the entire Aegean continental shelf; the Turks say the islands off its shores sit on the Turkish shelf.

The latest flareup in the dispute was caused by the dispatch of the Turkish research vessel Sismik I on Aug. 6 to make seismological soundings for oil under the Aegean.

Both nations badly need the oil that may lie beneath the sea, and the dispute is aggravated by the Turkish military occupation of the northern 40 per cent of Cyprus. Bitsios referred to this before the council Thursday when he charged that "Turkey decided coldly to jeopardize peace in the area while the crisis created by the Turkish invasion of Cyprus in the summer of 1974 is still unsettled."

Turkish Ambassador Ilter Turkmer replied that "from the very beginning it has been the Greek government with its impossible dream of making the Aegean an exclusive Greek lake that has created dangerous tensions in the area."

He accused the Greeks of harassing the Sismik I and of militarizing the Greek islands off Turkey's shore.

Longview grand jury probes voting charges

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Odis Hill has set Aug. 24 as the day for the Gregg County grand jury to start probing voting irregularity charges stemming from the May 1 primary and June 5 runoff elections.

The DA said he has subpoenaed 14 pesons who signed 15 affidavits alleging the irregularities, but when asked if he would subpoena any or all of the 60 persons who signed a June letter to the Texas Secretary of State office, Hill replied, "I've got no comment on how many (subpoenas) there are going to be. Some people think numbers create credibility."

The two-page letter signed by persons in Longview, Kilgore and Gladewater asked for the Secretary of State's office to probe alleged voter coercion, bribery, voter registration and absentee voting irregularities and voter hauling in the primary and runoff.

The district attorney said last week he expected Timothy James, assistant to Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill, in Gregg County for the investigation.

At that time, Hill said James will advise the grand jurors on points of law and will scrutinize findings of the district attorney's investigation.

Explosion mashes men, metal in Tenneco refinery tower

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) — An explosion ripped through a 30-story tower at the Tenneco Oil Co. refinery, mashing the men and metal inside it. Eleven workers were killed and at least 10 injured.

Authorities said they believed two more men were dead in the wrecked tower after the Thursday night explosion, but their bodies had not been recovered. A crew worked through the night moving metal plates by hand, searching for the bodies.

A spokesman for Tenneco said the cause of the blast was not known. One workman said welding was being done and there might have been a gas leak.

It was the second explosion in the tower within a week, the St. Bernard Parish sheriff's office said. However, a Tenneco spokesman said today there had been no explosion last week and the men were doing routine maintenance work. At least two dozen men were working in and around the tower Thursday night, the sheriff's office said.

"There's no way of telling what happened to the guys inside," said Larry Cupit, who was working in the area of the explosion. "It looked like it blew at the top and everything just came down inside it."

The shock of the explosion was felt as far as two miles away. There was no fire.

"Some of the victims were just blown apart," said Dr. Hewitt Thian, chief of surgery at Chalmette General Hospital. "It was impossible to identify some of them."

The victims were employed by Tenneco and Delta Field Erection Co., a subcontractor at the plant.

The silo-like tower, or "vessel," is used in the refining process to separate petroleum into heavy lubricating oil and lighter fuels.

The refinery is about 10 miles down the Mississippi River from the center of New Orleans.

The tower in which the men died is one of a field of similar structures jammed together and linked by catwalks and pipes in a complex that stretches a half mile along the river.

The tower was partitioned by 200 metal plates 18 inches apart like the floors of a hotel. Men were working from the top to the bottom of the tower repairing and replacing the plates when the blast occurred.

Paul Montelepre, administrator of the the Chalmette hospital, said the names of the dead would not be released until positive identification could be made of all of them. He described that task "almost impossible."

"Their clothes were blown off. Many of them are barely recognizable as human," he said.

Dr. Thian said three of those brought to Chalmette General were in critical condition with burns of the lungs.

"Apparently something in the tower ignited," he said. "An explosion doesn't have to last long to cause burns of the lungs. The job now is to get them through the first 24 hours.

'Energy stamps' could help pay fuel bills

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — The idea came during a sleepless night. Food stamps help people who can't eat, reasoned Charles Hopkins, but what about people who go cold because they cannot pay fuel bills?

The answer was "energy stamps," and the Lorain County Community Action Agency, which Hopkins heads, now is taking applications.

Low income residents pay $25 for stamps worth $75. The money comes from a $7,500 trial grant from the federal Community Services Administration. The grant will provide stamps for 150 to 200 persons.

Fifteen people signed up Thursday, the first day of the program. Quite a few other "obviously ineligible" people showed up, said Hopkins.

To be eligible, one first must meet the federal low-income standard, an income of less than $5,500 a year for a family of four. The next decision is whether an actual emergency exists, Hopkins said.

For example, he said, there is an actual emergency when a family has shutoff notice in hand or a major overdue gas bill that means shutoff is just around the corner.

The stamps will be accepted at their $5 face value by Columbia Gas of Ohio, which provides service in this largely rural and agricultural county of 28,000 on the Lake Erie shore. They will be sold in booklets of 15 for $25, but those who cannot afford that will get them free.

Many of those who will receive the stamps will be elderly, as were about half of the first applicants, Hopkins said.

"I think they are the hardest hit," he said, recalling a woman getting Social Security benefits of $220 a month and a gas bill of $110.

Hopkins said the energy stamp idea stemmed from two winters filled with calls for financial help in meeting fuel bills. His agency could provide no assistance.

"So one night I thought of the food stamps that help people who have trouble paying for food, so I figured we needed something like an energy stamp," he explained.

The Community Services Administration agreed it was worth a try. The agency, a unit in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, directs the program that remains from what was formerly the Office of Economic Opportunity.

GOP platform to support ERA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Republican Platform Committee reversed a preliminary decision and voted to support the Equal Rights Amendment. Now it is under pressure to switch again in favor of tougher stances on such issues as the Panama Canal and diplomacy in Africa.

Ronald Reagan supporters and others dissatisfied with platform subcommittee actions on defense and foreign policy have their last chance to get their views into the document being drafted for the convention opening Monday. The draft platform must go to the printer today so delegates can have copies on arrival. The convention has the final say on the platform.

The committee has worked into the early morning twice to meet the deadline. A subcommittee decision to omit a call for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment — a platform fixture for 36 years — brought furious reaction from feminists and their supporters. The full committee voted 51 to 47 Thursday night to include the endorsement.

The committee voted to retain a statement supporting "the efforts of those who seek enactment of a constitutional amendment to restore protection of the right to life for unborn children."

Even after the abortion plank was nailed down, members continued to argue as to exactly what they had committed their party to do. Advocates of the plank said it is broad enough to accommodate the positions of both candidates. President Ford has said he opposes abortion but would leave the decisions to the states and Reagan has advocated an amendment against abortion in all but extreme cases.

Moderate and conservative Republicans shared successes Thursday.

The platform writers recommended consideration of ending federal aid to education and instead eliminating federal taxes on tobacco so the states could pick up that revenue, estimated at $2.3 billion annually.

They came out against busing children to schools on a basis of racial balance and for a constitutional amendment if needed to stop the practice.

Another constitutional amendment was proposed to allow local communities to have prayer in schools.

Compulsory registration of firearms was opposed in another plank.

Farm leader questions where meal profits go

PARK RIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz should find out why beef producers aren't sharing in retail meat sales profits, the president of the nation's largest farm organization says.

Allan P. Grant, president of the 2.5-million-member American Farm Bureau Federation said in a statement that "feed cattle prices have been depressed for 2½ years, with feeders suffering losses which currently run as high as $100 or more per head."

Grant said he asked Butz in a letter to step up an investigation to learn why cattle raisers are getting less at the market than it costs to raise the animals.

"Prices for live fed cattle are seriously below the cost of production, particularly for animals which started their feeding period as yearlings," the letter says. "This situation has been reflected back to the cow-calf producers, who are also in a loss position."

Grant said the USDA had reported in June 1976 that a selling price of $46.44 per 100-weight would be required to cover all feeding costs on ach-oice-grade feeder steer placed on feed in the corn belt at 600 pounds and finished at 1,050 pounds, U.S. Choice Grade, during the January-August 1976 feeding period.

"Yet," he wrote Butz, "U.S. Choice Grade steers weighing from 1,050-1,225 pounds were selling for $36-$37.50 per 100-weight on Aug. 9, 1976" in the Midwest.

"USDA estimates of production costs indicate that feeding losses are even higher in the Great Plains than in the Midwest," he wrote. "Some forecasters are now saying that cattle feeders will continue to lose money through 1976, unless demand improves, and a greater effort is made to sell fed beef."

He cited questions farmers have asked the federation.

"Do food retailers reflect lower prices paid for animals as quickly as they increase the prices at the meat counter when prices for live animals move up?" Grant asked.

Grant asked for a General Accounting Office or a Justice Department investigation of beef prices and asked Butz what could be done to eliminate labor rules by some meat cutters' unions which prohibit supermarkets from selling meat cuts after 6 p.m.

Palestinians threaten to avenga fall of Tal Zaatar

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestinians and their leftist Moslem Lebanese allies threatened today to avenge the fall of the Tal Zaatar Palestinian camp and vowed that Lebanon's civil war would continue.

Palestinian leader Farouk Kaddoumi said his men would "avenge Tal Zaatar elsewhere in Lebanon." Leftist papers said the Moslems might "escalate fighting in Christian-held mountain areas," through which Moslem villages are still scattered.

"Lebanese will have to brace for a protracted war," said Kamal Jumblatt, the Moslem leader of the Lebanese leftists. "We must brace ourselves for more shocks, similar to that of Tal Zaatar.

"Our prime duty now is to set up a strong popular army to resist the Syrian invasion and to liberate captured areas. We will have to resist partition, because a Christian state in our midst would turn out to be another Israel in the heart of the Arab region."

The fall of Tal Zaatar Thursday removed the last Moslem stronghold from Christian East Beirut and consolidated the area with the Christian hinterland north of the capital.

Christian militiamen fought mop-up actions today against isolated pockets of defenders in the 74-acre camp. Palestinian sources said scattered hand-to-hand fighting continued but admitted that the camp had been conquered.

Hours after Tal Zaatar fell, Moslem gunmen of the Ambushers militia laid siege to the Assyrian quarter in the heart of Moslem West Beirut. The Ambushers accused the quarter's 3,000 Christians of supporting "Christian atrocities" against refugees from Tal Zaatar.

Five killed

BRADY, Tex. (AP) — Five persons, including four members of a Pecos family, died early today in a head-on collision near this Central Texas town, authorities said.

The Department of Public Safety identified the dead as Alford Clifton McIntire and his wife, Frances Whitman McIntire, both 36, their two children, Debbie, 10, and Ray, 13, and Samuel Ervin Morris Jr., 31, of Brady.

Highway patrolman said the cars driven by Morris and McIntire collided on U.S. 87 nine miles southwest of Brady.

Services for Frank W. Duff, former Pampa resident, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in N.S. Griggs Pioneer chapel in Amarillo. The Rev. A.G. Turner, pastor of Bethel Assembly of God, will officiate. Burial will be in Llano Cemetery with full military honors.

Mr. Duff was born in Childress and move to Amarillo 21 years ago from Pampa. He was employed with the Texas Employment Commission. A member of the Bethel Assembly of God, he served in the United States Air Force during World War II.

Survivors include the widow, Clara; two daughters, his mother, a stepdaughter, a stepson, a brother, three sisters and six grandchildren.

HENRY L. WILDER

Graveside services for Henry L. Wilder will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at Citizens Cemetery in Clarendon.

Mr. Wilder died Thursday morning at Highland General Hospital. He was a resident of Spring Hill, Fla.

Survivors include the widow, Velna; two daughters, Mrs. Julia Stewart of Berea, Ohio, and Mrs. Ruth Magann of Catharpin, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Johnson of Pampa and Mrs. Carrie Stallings of Tuls; a brother, William, of Akron, Ohio; and five grandchildren.

Arrangements are by Duenkel Funeral Home.

Mainly about people

Mr. and Mrs. H.E. McBride of Dallas are the parents of a daughter, Shannon Kay, born Aug. 4. Mrs. McBride is the former Marilyn Steele of Pampa. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. N. Dudley Steele of Pampa. The great grandmother is Mrs. Katie Vincent, also of Pampa.

Due to unforeseen circumstances, services at the First Baptist Church Sunday will be in Fellowship Hall at 8:30 and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., according to George Warren, minister of education.

William C. Campaigne of Pampa was awarded a doctor of veterinary medicine degree recently from Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine. He is the son of W.E. Campaigne of 1824 Chestnut.

Willis Price of the Texas Alpha Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and a sophomore at Texas Tech University is taking an active part in the fraternity's 42nd National Leadership School at the Levere Memorial Temple in Evanston, Ill. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Price Jr. of Pampa. Willis is an honor pledge elected by his chapter to be initiated during leadership school. He is majoring in business administration and is on the deans honor roll.

Police report

Police activity reports Thursday included a criminal trespass complaint, the burglary of a coin-operated machine, a hit and run accident and one accident with injury.

Two men and two women reportedly went to 905 E. Scott and wanted to come in the house. When the resident refused them entry, they tore a screen and broke the glass in the door. The resident told police that he was threatened.

A cigarette machine at Tom's Country Inn Steak House, 1101 Alcock, was burglarized and approximately $60 in change was removed.

Officers investigated an accident with injury at Frederic and Henry. Drivers involved were Juan P. Vargas of Pampa and Rayburn D. Cook of Shattuck, Okla. Patsy Lynn Cook, also of Shattuck, was taken by ambulance to Highland General Hospital where she was treated and released.

An unknown vehicle struck an ice machine at 309 N. Hobart and left the scene.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and have a terrible problem. I nagged my mother to get me contact lenses (I wore glasses), and three months ago she finally got me some.

Now I can't wear the contacts because they are just too hard to get used to. They irritate my eyes and I can't keep them in. (They are the hard kind, not soft. It is just terrible, Abby. Kids shouldn't be allowed to get hard contacts because they hurt too much.)

I don't know how to tell my mother. She will get mad at me because she spent a lot of money on them and she didn't want to get them in the first place, but I begged so hard she gave in.

Please help me, but don't write back because my mother might get the mail first. Thank you.

RED EYES

DEAR RED EYES: Tell your mother. She'll take you back to the place you bought your contacts for a consultation. Others have become accustomed to the hard lenses, and you probably can, too, if you follow instructions. But first see your eye doctor to find out whether your problem is with your eyes or the contact lenses.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a guy for three years off and on. I've tried to break up with him, but every time I make the attempt, he cries, begs and carries on. He's even threatened to commit suicide, so I get soft-hearted and change my mind. If he were to kill himself because of me, I'd never be able to forgive myself.

I have begged him to go with other girls, but he won't. I've even gone out with other guys, hoping he'd date other girls just to get even, but it hasn't worked. He says if he can't have me, he doesn't want anyone.

Now he's pressuring me to marry him. I don't really want to, but I feel so sorry for him, I'm tempted to say yes. He's not a bad guy. In many ways he's really nice, and I'm sure some girl would feel lucky to have him.

I have told him that I am not in love with him. But he says he doesn't care because he loves me, and after we're married I'll learn to love him. He's 26 and I'm 22. What now?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Do yourself (and him) a favor and tell him it's not fair to either of you to continue the relationship. Then break it off, once and for all. If you allow him to play on your sympathy, he may eventually wear you down to the point of marriage. Then YOU will be the one who will need the sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since my mother died 10 years ago I have been wearing her wedding band on my key chain. It will fit my little finger, but I am wondering if it would be proper for me to wear it.

I'm afraid it might provoke a lot of questions. Then what would I say? I don't want to appear a sentimental fool.

MAMMA'S BOY

DEAR BOY: Go ahead and wear it. And what's wrong with being sentimental? If anyone inquires, tell them the truth. I think it's a beautiful idea.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm writing to you because I want to know how to get rid of my big tummy. I'm overweight. I have lost 13 pounds but I still have a big stomach. What can I do? I have a big backend too. What can I do for both?

DEAR READER — You probably need to lose more weight. There is no such thing as spot reducing despite the extravagant claims you may have seen advertised. When you have too much fat in the middle or on your seat you need to go on a general weight reduction program if you want to lose it from these locations.

Exercise with your diet will help you to lose the calories and at the same time maintain your muscle mass. Walking is a good daily exercise to promote this.

In addition to losing excess pounds of fat you may need to firm up your muscles. For your seat muscles, the old-fashioned bumps and grinds from the burlesque show are as good as any. You want to do exercises that contract your seat muscles.

For the stomach you will need to do exercises that work your abdominal muscles. This means voluntary contractions, the leg lift group, and sit-ups. Walking won't use your abdominal muscles much, so you need these exercises. Sit-ups are primarily for the upper abdomen and will not help much for that lower pot that people develop.

To give you more information on what to do about that big tummy I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding The Big Middle. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read that heart and high blood pressure medicine makes a man impotent. Is this true? Also do they have medicine to build a man's sex life? Why have hormones for women and why not for men?

DEAR READER — Some high blood pressure and heart medicines do interfere with the nerve mechanism and can cause impotence. Others do not. One medicine used in treating high blood pressure delays orgasm and is used by some men in other societies to prolong the sex act. Some, young men in particular, use amyl nitrate (a medicine used to relieve heart pain) to increase the intensity of the response they have.

Male hormones are available and used. The difference is in their need. Most men continue to have adequate amounts of male hormone well past 60 and sometimes past 80 years of age. There is a gradual decline in the amount. The lack of male hormone is seldom the cause of impotence.

In women the decrease in female hormones may be abrupt, at the time of the menopause, and in some of these cases the judicious use of female hormones is beneficial.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would be interested to know if coffee is a diuretic. It seems coffee, especially in the morning, has this effect when other fluids, even in large amounts, do not.

DEAR READER — Yes, it is a mild diuretic and has a direct action on the kidneys. Caffeine, the drug in coffee that stimulates the brain, is responsible for the action. This action of coffee is in no way harmful.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I do hope you or some reader can tell me how to remove water stains from the gray marble window sill in my kitchen.

DEAR S.W. —One installer of marble sills says there is a marble polishing kit available. It has putty powder in a burlap bag that one dampens with water and vigorously rubs on such stains. The harder the rub the better it will look. But if the spots have been there a long time, this may not do the job. Another such supplier said water marks are etched in so the sills would have to be removed and polished professionally. So, there are two answers to the same problem and from those "in the trade". — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns dress patterns that are simply not made for tall woman. Tall women are longer from the shoulder to the waist and from four to six inches longer in length than average sizes. I like to sew and would rather make pants suits, gowns, etc. for my daughter than to buy them if the sizes were right. — IRENE T.

'Patting my back, ripping me off'

The Fonz talks about money

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I wish you would print that Henry Winkler is not leaving 'Happy Days.' Pepple all over the country have been hearing rumors that I was walking out. I wouldn't do that. I know where I was before the series started, and I know where I am now. I do not take that lightly."

These were Henry Winkler's opening words as he reported for an interview during a rehearsal lunch break at Paramount Studio. After a two-day absence, he had appeared for the start of the fourth season of ABC's hit comedy, "Happy Days." He seemed content, but not noticeably happy. In fact, he did not smile during the entire conversation.

The actor talked about the incident that prompted rumors of his departure from the series:

"I was gone for two days but I did not hold up production; they were able to work around me. I did not report at the start of the season because I held a position which was morally correct.

"I realized that certain executives of the company (Paramount) were patting me on the back at the same time they were ripping me off. What they were paying me was a drop in the bucket compared to the earning power of the show.

"All I need is my self-respect and my life. Unfortunately, respect in this town comes from earning power, not ability. A craftsman no longer exists by his ability, but by the paraphenalia that surrounds success. So I decided to take a stand. What I did was correct."

Winkler said that he stayed away from negotiations, letting his lawyer do the work. His contract was improved, adding a larger share in the merchandising of products bearing his likeness.

"Before, I had very little say in the merchandising," he said.

Things are happening fast for the 30-year-old New Yorker. He has signed a contract with Universal Pictures for a movie, "Heroes," which he'll make after the "Happy Days" season ends in January. He is also close to a movie deal with his newly reconciled employers at Paramount.

This summer he broke records in Ohio with a threeweek run in "Room Service" at a reported $30,000 a week. He was still glowing over the experience.

"It was like shifting into second gear at 50 miles an hour and blowing out all the carbon. I soared like an eagle. It was the best thing that could have happened to me at this time."

He is a serious, articulate man, totally unlike the hedonistic Arthur Fonzareiii he plays on the Tuesday night show. The crown of unruly brown hair makes him seem higher than his 5 feet, 6½. He is narrowheaded and slender, but strongly built.

Henry Winkler is no dropout. Son of a lumber corporation president and refugee from Nazi Germany, he studied in Switzerland, Emerson College in Boston and Yale Drama School, where he was awarded a Master of Fine Arts in 1970.

"Mostly I did TV commercials before I started 'Happy Days,'" he said. "I appeared on Broadway in a play that lasted one night, I did two films ('The Lords of Flatbush,' 'Crazy Joe'), appeared in six plays for free, took part in an improvisational theater. I always earned a living, mostly because of commercials (American Airlines, Closeup tooth paste); I never had to take a job as a waiter or anything else."

He came to Hollywood in 1973 and within a month landed the Fonz role in "Happy Days." He didn't even appear in the pilot film, had only seven lines in the first show. During the first two seasons he was merely one of the characters in the 1950s comedy, but he knew something was happening.

"The show went on the air in January," he recalled. "In May I arrived for an appearance in Little Rock and there were 2,000 people. In January this year I appeared in Detroit before 175,000 people. Some stood in line for three or four hours to enter the stadium. There were grandmothers and there were 2-year-olds. The appeal of Fonzie crosses all ages, all walks of life."

Winkler himself helped develop Fonzie, adding the leather jacket and boots, the thumbs-up salute, the self-confident "Aaaaayyy." The character really took off during the past season, when Fonzie moved into the Cunningham household with pal Richie (Ron Howard). Filming changed from a one-camera movie method to a three-camera show before an audience.

"I'm stage-trained and I like a live audience," said Winkler. "In a one-camera show you can play the nuances, while you go for the laughs with three-camera. I got large when we first went to the audience show, now I'm playing in-between."

The coolness of Fonzie struck a chord with American TV viewers and created a cult that has rarely been seen since the Davy Crocket rage of 1955. It created an outpouring of Fonz T-shirts, buttons, posters, bedsheets, beanbags, jackets, jeans and — panties.

Winkler analyzed: "There is a lot of fantasy in Fonz; no one can be that cool. But I also gave him integrity, loyalty, a sense of morality, a feeling of owning his own space. Self-respect is the cornerstone of life; self-respect equals joy. I think that's why people find Fonz appealing."

National scholarship

Kris Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennith Richardson of 429 Jupiter, won a six-week scholarship for study at the Luigi Jazz Centre in New York City. Miss Richardson won the award through her first place finish in the Miss Dance of America Pageant Aug. 1-8 in Washington, D.C. at the National Dance Masters of America Convention. The Pampa High School senior competed with dancers from the United States and Canada. She is a student of Madeline Graves in Pampa and represented Oklahoma Chapter No. 27 of the Dance Masters.

The larger the turkey, the more meat there is to the bone. Leftovers, after roasting, will be fine frozen and used in "made" dishes.

Cheddar cheese that has mild flavor usually is cured for 2 or 3 months. Cheddar cheese with very sharp flavor needs much longer curing — 8 to 12 months.

Social Notebook

Former members of the Fidelis Sunday School class of Haile Baptist Church met Aug. 7 for a covered-dish luncheon and reunion in the social rooms of the church.

Attending were Corrinne Wheeler, Pampa; Zela Campbell, Canyon; Frances Culp Finch, Amarillo; Hazel Cox, Little Rock, Ark.; Leona Grissom, Sadie March and Louise Maloney, all of Borger; Jackie Cooper, Lennie Shair, Alta Movatny and Clara Mills, all of Skellytown; and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Flue, White Deer.

The class meets every two years for the event. It was first organized in 1942.

Mrs. March was the first teacher of the class. Other charter members include Mrs. Grissom, Mrs. Shair and Mrs. Finch.

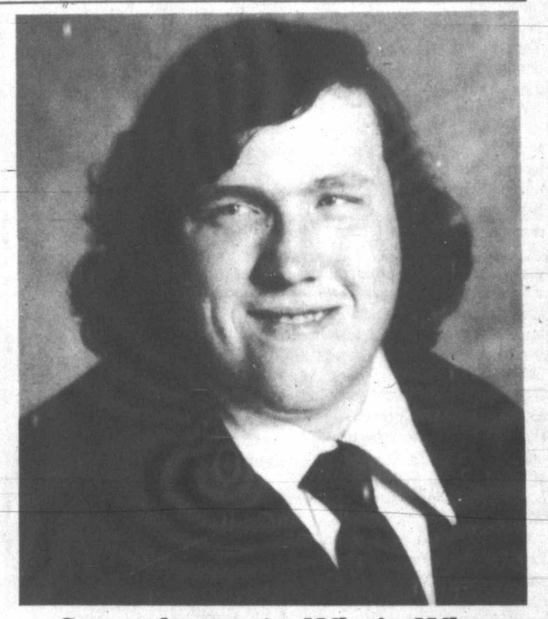

Carson County residents will honor the 100th birthday of the county at the annual Square House Museum barbeque Sept. 18 at Panhandle.

Activities will include the dedication of the Temple Houston Marker on the museum grounds. The historical marker will honor the fourth and last son of Sam Houston. Temple Houston came to Panhandle in 1881 as a lawyer and citizens elected him state senator two years later.

The Carson County pioneer families will be guests of honor at the barbecue. Classes of years ending in "1" and "6" will be honored at the high school reunions.

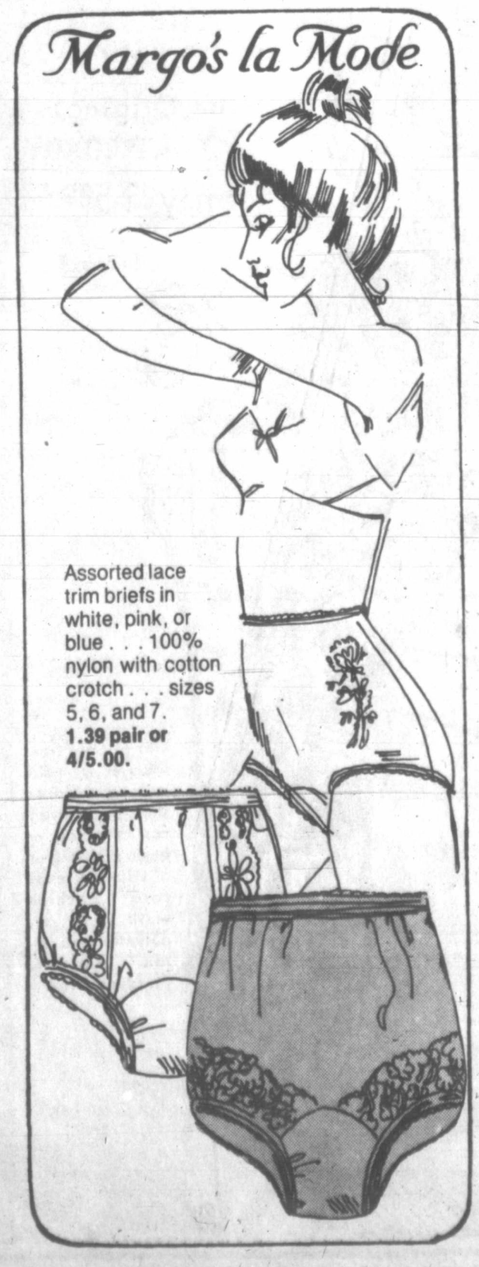

Samuel Price Carson, first Texas Secretary of State and signer of the Texas Declaration of Independence, created Carson County in 1876.

Kitchen fun for children: give them some wrapping paper or slit bags and some fancy-shape cookie cutters plus crayons. The youngsters will enjoy drawing around the cutters and filling in the shapes with the crayons of different colors. If appropriate paper is used, the kids can make place-mats for the family table in this fashion.

Second year in Who's Who

For the second consecutive year, the biography of Bobby Eugene Broadbent will appear in Who's Who Among American High School students. A 1976 graduate of Pampa High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Broadbent, 1214 Finley. Broadbent is now eligible to apply for scholarship grants that total more than $35,000 this year.

Campaigner gets 'plum'

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A real estate developer who serves as a campaign fund-raiser for President Ford is being handed a "plum" job on the Postal Service board of governors, five years after politics was supposed to have been eliminated from the Postal Service.

Hung Wai Ching, finance chairman for Ford's campaign in Hawaii, is being named to the board at least partly because of his efforts on behalf of the Republican party, according to Sen. Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, who recommended him for the postal job.

The post could pay Ching, a Honolulu developer, up to $13,600 a year for attending 12 meetings. Ching was confirmed by the Senate without debate last week.

Fong, asked about his part in the Ching appointment by Ford, said, "I did recommend him. That's politics. I have known him since high school and I know him to be a man of integrity."

Fong, who five years ago was one of the supporters of a bill designed to remove the Postal Service from the influence of politics, was asked if politics had anything to do with the selection of Ching as a member of the board of governors.

"Oh, yes," Fong replied. "He's worked very hard for the party. That was one of the things I thought of, along with his other activities."

Fong, in urging Senate approval of the bill to reorganize the Postal Service in 1971, vowed in an Aug. 30, 1970, Senate speech that "this bill will eliminate politics from the Post Office Department as we have seen it operate."

Since then, Fong, the ranking Republican on the Senate postal committee, has acknowledged selecting White House nominees to the board and to the Postal Rate Commission.

Fong, in a January speech, boasted of "recommending and helping place qualified people from Hawaii in high government posts."

He included in this group Dr. John Y. Ing, a Honolulu dentist and real estate developer who served two stints as a Postal Service governor. Ing failed to attend 17 of the 20 board meetings during his tenure, board records show. The meetings he did attend totaled 14 hours and 15 minutes, for which he was paid $17,066, records show.

Ching replaces Ing on the board.

One of the stated goals of the postal reorganization of 1971 was to remove politics from the mail service. Previously, members of Congress controlled appointments of postmasters in their districts and the job of postmaster general frequently was a reward that went to the president's campaign manager.

The Postal Reorganization Act also established the board of governors.

Police report killing guerrilla

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police say Mexico's most wanted guerrilla has been killed in an unsuccessful attack on the sister of President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo.

Police spokesman Carlos Santini said the body of David Jimenez Sarmiento, the leader of the 23rd of September Communist League, was identified by fingerprints. Police are searching for two men and a woman who with Sarmiento attacked the car of Margarita Lopez Portillo on Wednesday.

"It was a miracle Mrs. Lopez Portillo escaped without a scratch," said Santini. One of her bodyguards was killed and three others were wounded. Her car was riddled with bullet holes and its rear windshield was blown out.

Police said a taxi pulled in front of the woman's car Wednesday morning in a residential section near downtown Mexico City, and three men and a young woman jumped out firing submachine guns and pistols.

Mrs. Lopez Portillo's driver was wounded and lost control of the car, which bounced off several other cars before crashing into the door of a drugstore, police said.

A carload of bodyguards following the president-elect's sister roared up with guns blazing. Police said Sarmiento died with a .38-caliber pistol in one hand.

Two cars and a taxi were found a few blocks away shortly after, and police said they apparently were the guerrillas' getaway cars. They said a .45-caliber revolver and explosives were found in one of the cars.

Authorities believed the guerrillas were trying to kidnap Mrs. Lopez Portillo, who although married uses her maiden name. Her brother was elected July 4 and takes office Dec. 1.

Neither Lopez Portillo nor President Luis Echeverria were available for comment.

The 23rd of September League is the most active of about a dozen urban guerrilla groups in Mexico. It has been blamed for killing at least 17 policemen in the past year, kidnaping the Belgian ambassador's daughter last May, and robbing several banks, including a theft of $500,000 last June in Monterrey.

Bentsen backs letter carriers

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, supporting a postal subsidy bill, has told delegates to the National Association of Letter Carriers (NACL) convention, if the federal government can put a space ship on Mars, it should be able to deliver the mail on time.

Delegates to the NACL convention nominated Joseph Vacca, executive vice president of the union, and Vincent Sombrotto, president of the New York City Branch 36, for president of the 240,000-member organization, in other action Wednesday.

"If they can send the Viking to Mars, they can pick up a letter in Muleshoe, Tex., and deliver it to Houston on time," Bentsen told the 6,000 NACL delegates.

"The postal subsidy bill isn't going to solve the problem but will keep the postal service afloat while we analyze the problem," Bentsen said. "I also oppose any crippling amendments to that bill."

The subsidy would provide $500 million in appropriations for the postal service in 1977 and again in 1978. The measure is sponsored by Senate Post Office Committee Chairman Gale W. McGee of Wyoming.

"I'm with you and will fight for you in the Senate," Bentsen said. "We can bring the American people the kind of postal service they deserve."

Election of the organization's new president will be conducted by mail, beginning this month. Results will be announced in October and the officers installed for a two-year term next January.

Vacca represents the union's current administration in the race against Sombrotto, who claims the union leaders of being too soft with management.

James Rademacher, president of the union for eight years, said he is quitting the $39,000-per year job because the economic problems of the U.S. Postal Service "have brought such hardships on union members that the finger points at me. We must have a strong union and avoid unnecessary dissension."

Sobrotto said Rademacher and his administration, including Vacca, has been "too comfortable with management and has sought to achieve political expedient decisions rather than come to grips with the overriding issue of the survival of the Postal Service."

Frank Conners, a Philadelphia letter carrier, spoke for Vacca. He said the executive vice president would "vigorously enforce the union contract, speed up the process of arbitrating contract violations and would work in Congress to prevent a dissolution the postal service and take-over by private enterprise."

The NACL convention ends Friday.

Charles Stafford will speak to the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Senior Citizens Center, 500 W. Francis. The non - denominational meeting is open to the public.

Nazarene student to deliver sermon

Gregory M. White will fill the pulpit during the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray.

He has selected "Christian Power" for his sermon and he will be assisted by Elder Charles M. White. Text will be from Eph. 3:19.

White is from Lakewood, Colo., and is a minister of youth at the Faith Church of the Nazarene. He is a junior at Nazarene Bible College in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Sally Green and Doris Goad will provide music during the service.

A class will meet in Calvin Hall at 7 p.m. Sunday to learn how to make Chrismons and at 7:30 p.m Thursday a concert will be offered by The Lord's Joyful, a singing group from Long Beach, Calif.

The concert is open to the public and will be in the church sanctuary. A reception in Calvin Hall will follow.

College singers set concert

The West Coast Bible New Life Singers will appear in concert at the Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn, at 7 p.m. Saturday.

The West Coast Bible College which sponsors the singing group is supported by the Church of God and "prepares young people for careers in Christian service." Dan Petty is director.

The concert is open to the public.

India nun's fame grows

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — To Mother Teresa, the poor are the great ones, the courageous, noble and kind. "Such dignity, such goodness," she says. In them she sees the Divine image. They suffer, yes, but that, too, she says, is like God.

"He made Himself the hungry one, the homeless, naked, unwanted one," she says. "We meet Him in disguise in the faces of the poor."

Mother Teresa, a small, fragile, slightly stooped nun of 67, whose work among the "poorest of the poor" in Calcutta, India, has grown into the worldwide Missionaries of Charity, seems to radiate that same selflessness which she finds in those who have nothing.

A grieving compassion lines her face, and when she smiles, it seems as if the light wells up from some shadowy, unforgotten place of tears.

She was repeatedly referred to as a "saint" at last week's International Eucharistic Congress here and crowds of people trailed her about, seeking to press her hand or simply to touch her white sari, the habit of her order.

Through her, that customary Eastern impulse to share or absorb the "karma" of some holy person by getting near them seemed to have been transported into the West.

"The poor do not want your pity," she says. "They want your love. But do we see them? Do we know them? Are we with them? When we come before God, He will judge us on what we have been to the poor, on what we have done to the poor."

At the Congress, a global gathering of Roman Catholics centered on faith in Christ's real presence in the bread and wine of the eucharist, or holy communion. Mother Teresa gave several talks and interviews.

The Time of CHRIST'S RETURN

Many generations from the time of Christ have witnessed the predictions and speculations of men about the second coming of Christ and the end of the world. Especially has this been true in the last two centuries. History reveals that many men and some women have predicted the date of his return but every prediction has been a failure. This is very apparent.

Beginning in 1843, we find the historical record of a man setting that date on March 21. It was changed to March 21, 1844; then to October 22, 1844. Obviously all these dates were wrong.

Later 1914 was set as the date for Christ's return. Following that failure, 1918 was then selected; then following that, 1925. In more recent years the fall of 1975 was predicted as the time of Jesus' return. Even though a claim is made for divine inspiration of the prophet, the date set again was wrong. Others, even now, are predicting the return before the end of this century.

Most if not all of these predictions are based on men's reasonings about the things written by Daniel, Ezekiel, Zachariah, John and some things Jesus said. But here is a fact that should be carefully considered. Jesus knew what the prophets had written; he knew what John would write and he knew what he said himself. Yet he declared: "Heaven and earth shall pass away but my words shall not pass away. But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." Matthew 24:35–36

Isn't it amazing that men, modern speculators, claim to know something which Jesus said is known to God only? Notice too, Jesus said of that day "NO MAN KNOWETH." Yet men and women continue to set dates for the Lord's return and the end of the world.

Do not allow yourself to be alarmed or deceived by such foolish predictions of men; but learn to trust in God's revealed word. It teaches us that now is the only time to make preparation for that day and hour regardless of when it occurs.

An investment in Your Future

...ATTEND CHURCH

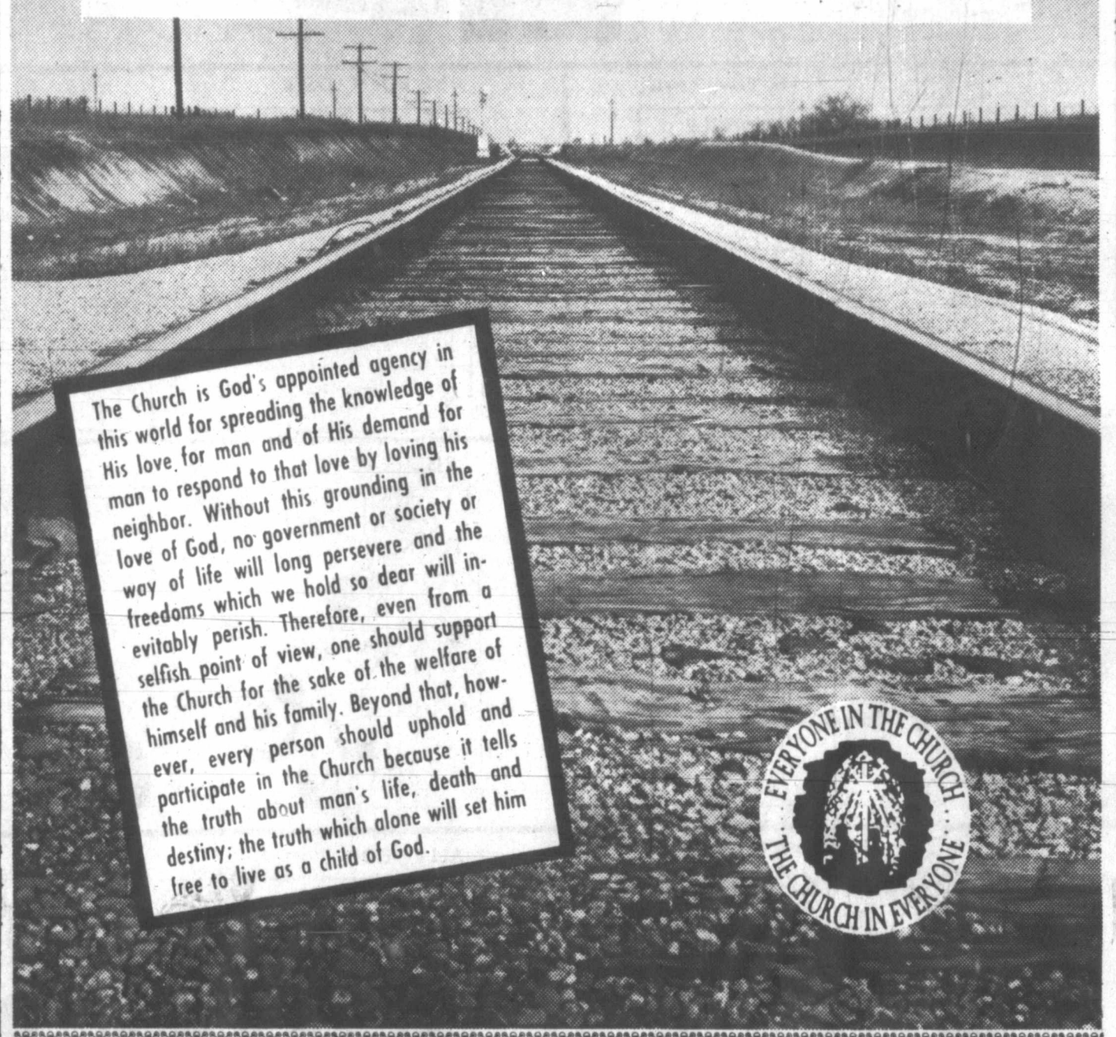

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

where to...?

Did you ever look down railroad tracks and wonder where they went... or put your ear to the track, listen to the hum, and try to guess when the train would reach you? These questions we may have asked when we were children, but as adults it is time to ask... Are we headed in the right direction? Are we prepared for things in the future regardless of when they will arrive? Choose now the path you will take. Let the church help guide you.

"Oh that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes!"

Robinson wins tilt for Tribe

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The situation called for a clutch hitter and Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson knew just the man for the job.

"It was a tough situation but I knew the pressure wasn't going to bother me," Robinson explained. "I was the man for the bottom of the ninth inning against Texas Thursday night. And he made himself look good with a line single to give the Indians a 5-4 victory over the Rangers.

"If you're going to be a winning ballclub, these are the games you have to win," said Robinson. "I just felt I could make contact."

Elsewhere in an abbreviated American League schedule, the New York Yankees pounded Minnesota 12-5, Oakland shaded Milwaukee 4-3 and Boston edged California 2-1 in 10 innings.

Boog Powell ripped a three-run homer in the third inning to help the Indians to an early 3-2 lead, but two walks, a pair of errors and a sacrifice fly by Roy Howell accounted for two runs and put Texas on top 4-3 going into the ninth.

The Indians tied it on a double by John Lowenstein and a single by Larvell Blanks. Then Rick Manning doubled, Rico Carty was intentionally walked and Robinson came up against Mike Bacsik. After failing on a squeeze bunt that just kicked foul — "That's the first time I've tried a squeeze bunt in 21 years," said Robinson — he lined the game-winning hit.

Lefty Dave LaRoche fired two innings of hitless relief to gain his first victory of the season. "I'm glad I finally got one," said LaRoche. "Some guys gave me a hard time for making the All-Star team without a win."

Jeff Terpko, 3-3, the fourth of five Ranger pitchers, took the loss.

Yankees 12, Twins 5

Chris Chambliss drove in three runs and Mickey Rivers and Carlos May had three hits and two RBI apiece as New York upped its lead in the AL East to 10 games. Catfish Hunter, 13-12, posted his first victory since July 21. The Yanks pounded Steve Luebber, 3-3, and four successors for 16 base hits.

A's 4, Brewers 3

Pinch-runner Larry Lintz stole second and scored the tie-breaking run on a single by Gene Tenace in the eighth inning as Oakland pulled within eight games of front-running Kansas City in the AL West. Doubles by Billy Williams and Phil Garner helped the A's score three runs in the fift. Rollie Fingers, 8-7, won it and Bill Castro, 3-2, lost it, both in relief.

Red Sox 2, Angels 1

Fred Lynn's broken-bat RBI single in the 10th won it for Boston and Luis Tiant. Tiant, 12-10, bested Nolan Ryan, 9-15. Rick Burleson scored the first Boston run when he raced home on the back end of a double steal in the third. Bob Jones' sacrifice fly in the seventh drove in the lone California run.

Longley leaves camp after belting Staubach

THOUSANDS OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The "Mad Bomber" has struck again.

Reserve Dallas Cowboy quarterback Clint Longley, who gained the nickname after an errant pass bounced off a coaching tower, aimed a not-soerrant right at the head of team captain and starting quarterback Roger Staubach Thursday.

Roger said he reeled against the standup scales in the training room, sustained a gash requiring stitches over his left eye. He called Longley's assault a "gutless deal."

"He waited 'till I had my shoulder pads up over my head and couldn't even see him," recalled Staubach from Dallas' training camp. "He hit me over the eye . . . I got the cut when I hit the scales. I was stunned, then some teammates held me back from going after him."

Staubach said Longley's frontal assault was strictly a hit-and-run affair.

The "Mad Bomber" immediately left camp and Cowboy officials said he was suspended "without pay or benefits."

"It was his way of saying goodbye for now. He had his bags already packed and all his money with him," said Staubach. "It's unbelievable and it was premeditated. He had refused to attend a team meeting earlier and had refused to answer any questions."

Longley had been quoted as saying Staubach provoked Thursday's one-punch fight by pushing some chairs at him.

"That's a complete lie," responded Staubach.

The two strong-armed quarterbacks had also engaged in a round of fisticuffs Tuesday, with Staubach declared the winner. He was on top of Longley when assistant coach Dan Reeves intervened.

Staubach said Tuesday's encounter occurred because of something Longley said to Drew Pearson, a wide receiver.

"I wouldn't even repeat it," said Staubach. "Drew couldn't even hear him and I confronted him (Longley) about it. That's when it really started."

However, Staubach revealed that the storm clouds had been gathering for some time between the two literally battling quarterbacks.

"Clint started off in June and refused to communicate with me or Danny White," revealed Staubach referring to the firststring punter and the now second-string quarterback. "He wouldn't work out with us in Dallas and he refused to communicate with me."

Staubach said Longley went through the non-communication routine with other players last season.

"This year he pulled it on myself and Danny White," said the former Navy star and Vietnam veteran.

Staubach said he thought Longley might be affected by pressure from White.

"This guy's going to be one of the premier quarterbacks in the National Football League," said Staubach.

White will get a chance to strut his stuff Saturday night when the Cowboys entertain Denver in Dallas' home opener.

Cowboy Head Coach Tom Landry said Staubach, sporting stitches, will start the contest, with White scheduled to replace Longley as the second-half qurterback.

"Danny White will, of course, play the second half instead of Longley," stated Landry before commenting on Longley's immediate future.

"Longley has apparently made his feelings clear as to what he wants, that is, to be traded," said Landry. "If that is so, I will try to accomodate him."

As he stormed out of camp, Longley said, "My fight is with Roger Staubach not with the Dallas Cowboys. Staubach's a player just like I am. He's not a coach. He's been on my case since camp started.

"All I've got to say to the Cowboys is play me or trade me."

Weiskopf fires 65 to nab PGA lead

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf said he was stalking off the course in the Westchester Classic last month — his fourth pullout of the year — when his attention was arrested by a small boy walking behind him.

"There was this kid — it wasn't anything he said or did," explained the talented but highly volatile pro from Columbus, Ohio, "but I made a vow to myself right there I would never walk out of another tournament unless I was very ill or badly injured.

"I thought of my two kids — 5 and 3 years old. I realized I was a man in a fishbowl. I am in the public eye. I have to be careful what I say and do.

"I made another resolution — I would never backhand a putt again as long as I live."

It's a new Tom Weiskopf — all the tempests, temper tantrums and blowups behind him, he says — who carried a one-stroke lead into the second round of the 58th PGA Golf Championship today over the long and exhausting Congressional Country Club course.

"I don't know whether I will win or not," he said. "But I assure you I am playing this tournament with an entirely different attitude. I have prepared in a different way. I have not practiced much. I have worked on my concentration, armed myself with positive thoughts."

Playing brilliantly but making a couple of what he called "silly shots," the 6-foot-3 former British Open champion fired a five-under-par 65 to edge young Tom Kite of Austin, Tex., and little known optometrist Dr. Gil Morgan from Wewoka, Okla., tied at 66.

On a muggy day which saw Congressional's par 70 broken 11 times and tied by nine men, Lee Elder, the first black to play in the Masters, pleased his sometime golfing partner, President Ford, by tying Charles Coody and Jerry McGee at 68.

Five players were at 69, including rookie Jerry Pate, the reigning U.S. and Canadian Open champion; former U.S. Open king Hale Irwin; Mark Hayes, and rank outsiders Bob Zender and Mike Morley.

Volleyball play slated

An organization meeting for fall volleyball leagues in Pampa will be held at 8 p.m. Aug. 23 in the Pampa Youth and Community Center building.

Leagues for men, women and mixed teams will be organized at the meeting. Entry fee is $25 per team.

All teams wanting to participate must either have a representative at the meeting or notify George Smith, Youth Center director, prior to Aug. 23.

"We will make arrangements for you to play at certain times as much as possible. We will also help you find a sponsor," Smith said.

In addition to the team entry fee each player must either be a member of the Youth Center of pay a players' fee of 75 cents on each night of play.

League play will begin Sept. 2. Court reservations for practice may be obtained by contacting Smith at the Youth Center.

"All independent teams are invited to participate," Smith said. "This could be church, business group, civic club, youth groups or any organization."

Dallas to host Denver in 3rd exhibition game

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

"I guess it was his way of saying 'goodbye,'" said Dallas starting quarterback Roger Staubach after he was slugged by teammate Clint Longley.

Longley, the Cowboy's No. 2 signal-caller, was suspended after the one-punch fight that resulted in stitches over Staubach's left eye.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Staubach "will be able to play Saturday night" when the Cowboys play host to the Denver Broncos in a National Football League preseason game.

"Danny White, of course, will play the second half instead of Longley," said Landry.

White, who chose to play in the World Football League after the Cowboys made him their No. 3 pick in the 1974 draft, connected on 10 of 21 passes for 101 yards in last week's loss to the Los Angeles Rams. He also appears to have solved part of Dallas' kicking problems, punting four times for a 47.5 average last week.

Before the Longley-Staubach episode, the Cowboys, a perennial contender in the National Conference, have had their problems. Dallas has yet to win in two outings. But they have been playing the cream of the NFL crop.

Denver has posted a 1-2 record, losing last week to San Francisco 17-7 as Broncos rookie Craig Penrose impressed with six completions on 11 passes for 75 yards, including a 22-yard TD strike to Bill Van Heusen. Denver starter Steve Ramsey was nine of 15 for 113 yards in the first three periods.

The long NFL weekend begins tonight when the New York Jets play their second game in 48 hours, taking on the Oakland Raiders at Yankee Stadium. The Jets, 0-2, lost 16-14 to the New York Giants Wednesday night on a 34-yard field goal with 16 seconds remaining in the game. The contest had been postponed from Monday because of Hurricane Belle.

In another game tonight, New Orleans, 1-1, travels to Buffalo, 0-2.

Besides the Denver-Dallas collision, Saturday games will pit Pittsburgh at Washington, Los Angeles at Seattle, Baltimore at Chicago, Detroit at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at Miami, the New York Giants at Houston and Tampa Bay vs. Atlanta at Jacksonville, Fla.

Sunday, Kansas City travels to San Francisco and Green Bay plays at New England.

On Monday, the St. Louis Cardinals and San Diego Chargers will play the first NFL game to be staged outside North America. The two teams will meet in Tokyo at 6:30 p.m., Japan time. It will be 5:30 a.m., EDT.

Also Monday, Minnesota will be at Cleveland.

The Raiders will continue to trot in their stable of quarterbacks against the Jets. Starter Ken Stabler will begin, but Oakland will take long looks at Dave Humm, Larry Lawrence, Mike Rae and Jeb Bfount. The Jets will start Joe Namath, who went all the way in the loss to the Giants, but Coach Lou Holtz says rookie Richard Todd will play "90 per cent of the game."

New Orleans Coach Hank Stram got his first victory at the helm of the Saints and a slap on the wrist from owner John Mecom for his liberal spending on "non-football related items." The Saints are looking for their first preseason victory over the Bills, who are still looking for someone to replace O.J. Simpson at running back.

Pittsburgh and Washington will square off in NBC's nationally televised game Saturday night. The defending Super Bowl champion Steelers are 3-0 while Washington is struggling with a 1-1 mark after losing to Baltimore last week.

Jeff Jancek of Westwood, N. J., and Stan Ford of Dayton, Ohio, will co-captain Army's 1976 football team at West Point, N. Y.

37-pound catch

Dale Everson and Jerry Baten of Pampa caught these five channel and blue catfish Wednesday afternoon while fishing with shrimp, waterdogs and liver at Greenbelt Lake. The largest cat weighed 10 pounds; the total weight was 37 pounds.

Kuhn gives okay for DH's in Series

PHOENIX (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn cast the crucial vote in a decision to permit use of designated hitters for the first time in the 1976 World Series.

Then Kuhn came up with an encore later Thursday with another tiebreaker vote at the summer baseball meetings here to endorse bonus payments for the players, "subject to discussion with the Players Association.

Kuhn's first shot came when American and National league club owners emerged from their separate caucuses with opposite views on use of designated hitters. The AL, which has used an extra hitter for the pitcher since 1973, wanted to use them not only for the series but for all postseason, all-star and exhibition games with NL clubs. NL owners opposed it altogether.

Kuhn couldn't buy the whole AL platform, but he went along with the DH rule for the World Series in alternate years.

"I cast a vote with the American League proposal to use designated hitters in alternate years in the World Series, beginning in 1976," said Kuhn.

Kuhn named a six-man committee consisting of the league presidents and four others from both leagues to "come up with a formula for uniform use of the designated hitter throughout both leagues."

The AL owners had proposed using the designated hitters in World Series games in their own parks.

"Designated hitters will be used in every game of the 1976 World Series," Kuhn declared.

He said the DHs would not be used in the 1977 series, but would return in 1978 and in alternate years thereafter.

Greenwood wins AAU 200

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After beating Olympic hero and Southern California teammate John Naber in the 200 meter freestyle, Mark Greenwood felt good. And that's the big reward for any swimmer.

"Swimming, if you don't do good, is a waste of time," the 20-year-old Greenwood said. "It's only good when you do good because so much sacrifice is involved."

Greenwood's sacrifice paid off Thursday night at the AAU National Swimming Championships at Kelly Pool here. He swam the 200 in 1 minute, 52.21 seconds in the outdoor long course championships to make up for a dismal performance in the Olympic trials.

Only one championship record fell. The Central Jersey Acquatics Club, clocked in 4:22.99 in the women's 400 medley relay, erased Misson Viejo's old mark of 4:24.07 set in 1975.

Olympic Kim Peyton, competing in her last national tournament, won the women's 200 freestyle and 14-year-old Jesse Vassallo defeated Brian Goodell to win the men's 400 individual medley.

But Greenwood's defeat of Naber was the biggest surprise of the night as times again were well below the world record paces.

Greenwood, swimming seven-tenths of a second faster than he had ever done before, turned in a 1:55 in the Olympic trials and failed to make the team.

"I bombed out at the trials," said Greenwood. "I just wasn't mentally prepared. I was thinking too much about the other swimmers and not enough about myself. Tonight I swam my own race."

Paced by Wendy Boglioli and anchored by Kathy Heddy, the Central Jersey team raced to a comfortable victory. And helping the team was the big motivation for the 21-year-old Boglioli, the winner of 100 butterfly on opening day.

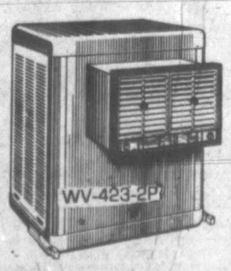

Peyton was clocked in 2:03.01 in the 200 freestyle. Brenda Borgh of Newtown Square, Pa., was second in 2:03.82.

Vassallo, timed in 4:28.34, beat Misson Viejo teammate Goodell by 2½ seconds.

In other action Thursday, Donnalee Wennerstrom of California's West Valley Swim Team took the women's 400 individual medley in 4:57.74.

The Santa Clara A team took the men's 400 medley relay. With Dan Stephenson swimming anchor.

The ninth annual pageant will begin at 8 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Retail Trade Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Rep questions Connally roles

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News'
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A liberal Massachusetts congressman will ask both President Ford and the newly created Senate Committee on Intelligence to investigate whether the public and private roles of former Texas Governor John Connally pose a possible conflict of interest.

Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., has told the News' Washington bureau that he is sending letters to Ford and committee chairman Sen. Daniel Inouye noting Connally's position on both a federal intelligence panel and his position on a private group designed to influence politics in Italy and the Mediterranean area.

Reportedly under strong consideration by the President as his runningmate, Connally was appointed last March by Ford to serve on the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. Additionally, the former Texas governor and Treasury Secretary formed a group this spring called the Citizen Alliance for Mediterranean Freedom, which by its own admissions in full - page newspaper advertisements was organized to oppose Communist efforts in Italy.

Through its advertisements, the group hopes to prompt Americans to write letters to friends or relatives in Italy to support non - Communist candidates. It also asks for individual and business contributions.

Moreover, an investigation by the News' Washington bureau has determined that both Connally's Houston law firm and several members of the private group's steering committe have financial ties to the Italian economy. The law firm has clients with business interests in Italy, while several committee members themselves have such interests.

The Citizens Alliance for Mediterranean Freedom (CAMF), which Connally heads, has not asked the Internal Revenue Service for tax - exempt status, therefore its records are not public. However, prior news reports indicate that the start-up funds for the organization came from last summer's "Salute to John Connally Dinner" which raised almost $400,000.

Although Harrington said he was not raising a question of wrong - doing on Connally's part, the Massachusetts lawmaker claimed in an interview that the Republican's public and private roles are "incompatible."

A member of the House International Relations Committee, Harrington theorized that Connally, as a member of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, could receive confidential information that would be of interest to members and financial supporters of the private group, as well as some of his firm's clients. In order to avoid the appearance of any impropriety, Harrington maintains Connally should either resign one of the two posts, or be removed by Ford from the President's advisory group.

The President's intelligence panel, created by former President Nixon in 1969, reviews foreign intelligence activities of the Central Intelligence Agency and other government departments. Connally and six others were appointed to the board as part of Ford's efforts to beef up intelligence oversight in the wake of investigations into CIA activities.

The citizens organization, which has offices in the Washington law firm of Corcoran, Foley, Youngman and Rowe, has declined to release its list of contributors. Harrington says when his office asked William Gill — executive coordinator for the group — for the list, Gill hung up the phone.

Both Gill and Connally failed to reply to several attempts to reach them by the News' Washington bureau.

Connally's law firm, Binson, Elkins, Searls, Connally and Smith, also would not disclose what clients it represented that had business interests in Italy or the Mediterranean area.

However, information supplied by Secretary of the Senate records, by the Italian Embassy, and by U.S. business publications shows that:

—John Capoton, a member of Connally's law firm and also a trustee and incorporator for the Citizens Alliance, represented Quintana Petroleum Corp. of Houston, a domestic and international oil and gas explorer and producer in 1975. While the firm has no oil interests now in Italy, a spokesman said the company is considering initiating Mediterranean operations.

"The Mediterranean and North Africa are areas we are involved in as far as looking for oil and gas ventures," said John Brock, an executive vice president of Quintana. "We do have a potential future interest in the Mediterranean."

—Another attorney in Connally's firm, Marvin Collie, has represented both Brown and Root, Inc. of Houston and Arthur Andersen & Co., of Chicago, in the past. The Andersen firm, international management consultants, has at least two offices in Italy while Brown and Root's parent company, Halliburton Co., has at least three offices for servicing the petroleum industry.

Additionally, Connally had served as director for the Halliburton Co. from February, 1969 through January 1971, and then again during 1972, a spokeswoman for the firm said.

At least four members of the announed 17-person steering committee for the citizens alliance are either corporate executives or directors of firms having business ties in Italy. They include:

—O.C. Carmichael Jr., chairman of the board of a South Bend, Ind. bank, who is a director for W.R. Grace Co., an industrial chemicals corporation based in New York. The firm has five Italian representatives.

—Dr. Pierre A. Rinfret, president of Rinfret - Boston Associates, Inc. Rinfret is a director of Genesco Inc. of Nasvhille, which at one time had extensive operations in Italy. However, Michael Brandon, director of public relations for the firm, said "a couple of" Genesco plants were sold in 1973, although the corporation still does "a little bit of business" in Italy.

—Charles Bluhdorn, chairman and president of Gulf and Western Industries, which has two subsidiaries in Italy.

Food stamps for elderly drop, increase for youth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proportion of elderly persons buying food stamps dropped during a recent survey period while the proportion of younger, unemployed purchasers increased, the government reports.

A new Census Bureau study on social and economic characteristics of families participating in the federal food stamp program shows that in July 1975 about 17 per cent of households buying food stamps were headed by persons 65 or older, compared to 24 per cent in May 1973.

At the same time, the food stamp households headed by persons under 35 increased from 30 to 39 per cent, the report shows.

John Coder, a statistician in the Census Bureau income branch, said, "There is no question that some of the increase (in food stamp use by those under 35) is because more of them are unemployed."

Coder added that another reason why the proportion of food stamp purchasers dropped may be because there were substantial increases in Social Security payments in 1974. That would have raised the monthly incomes of persons 65 and older, meaning some of them would have qualified for fewer stamps.

A household's eligibility to buy food stamps is based on monthly, not annual income. For this reason a household with a relatively high annual income may be eligible to purchase food stamps if its monthly income drops below a certain level.

For example, the report shows that while 60 per cent of those households purchasing food stamps had annual incomes below $4,000, there were 5 per cent with annual incomes of $10,000 or more.

The government defines a household as a person or group occupying a single room or group of rooms constituting one housing unit.

Food stamps are coupons that can be purchased by economically needy households and redeemed for more than their purchase price at retail food stores. Eligible persons, such as those on welfare, can purchase for about 40 cents a coupon worth $1 at grocery stores. The federal government picks up the other 60 cents.

Other aspects of the report show:

—About one in five black households — or 1.6 million — purchased food stamps in July 1975.

—About one in 25 white households — or about 2.8 million — purchased food stamps during the same time period.

—About one in seven Spanish households — or about 423,780 — purchased food stamps in July, 1975.

—More Southerners purchased food stamps than persons from any other region of the country. About 8 per cent of all Southern households purchased food stamps, compared to about 6 per cent nationwide.

The report shows 4.4 million of an estimated 71.4 million households purchased food stamps during July 1975. It said this is about 42 per cent higher than the 3.1 million households buying stamps in May 1973 when the first Census Bureau food stamp survey was taken. The jobless rate in May 1973 was 5 per cent. It was 8.4 per cent in July 1975.

The Census Bureau says the main reason for the increase is that an amendment to the Food Stamp Act expanded the program to the entire nation in 1974. But the report adds that higher unemployment and food prices in late 1974 and early 1975 also contributed to the increase.

Proposes rules on respirators

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Officials of a Harvard teaching hospital have proposed formal rules that would allow doctors to remove life-sustaining equipment from hopelessly ill, unconscious patients whose families approve the action.

The rules would allow terminally ill patients still capable of making the decision to decide for themselves whether they wanted to be kept alive by such machines as respirators. If they choose to die, their relatives would not be allowed to overrule the decision.

The proposed rules were drawn up by the director of Boston's Beth Israel Hospital, Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, and two of the hospital's laywers. They were drafted for he Harvard School of Public Health as a proposed policy for Beth Israel and the 10 other Harvard teaching hospitals in the Boston area.

They have not been formally adopted by Beth Israel or any of the hospitals affiliated with Harvard, but were published today in the New England Journal of Medicine as policy guidelines hospitals might want to consider.

The issue of sustaining terminally ill patients by artificial means has received much attention this year becase of the Karen Anne Quinlan case in New Jersey.

To this time, however, no state or federal laws have been passed defining the rights of patients and families and the obligations of doctors in the treating the terminally ill. Few hospitals have considered adopting formal guidelines.

Miss Quinlan had been comatose for several months when the New Jersey supreme court appointed her father her guardian with powers to end "extraordinary support measures" if doctors agreed she had no hope for recovery. She was transferred to a nursing home where she has survived for more than two months without a respirator.

The rules in the policy proposed by Rabkin and the Beth Isreal lawyers would place doctors in a pivotal position in deciding whether terminally ill people should be allowed to die.

If the patient is unconscious, the rules say the doctor should take up the case with a committee made up of other physicians attending the patient, nurses and at least one senior staff physician who is not working on the case.

Then, if the committee agrees death is imminent, the patient's doctor would still have to obtain permission from the dying person's family before stopping any treatment. The approval would have to come from the same family members whose consent is required for an autopsy.

Woman with cancer receives new drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman afflicted with breast cancer is the first recipient of an experimental drug that researchers hope will fight cancer without destroying the patient's bone marrow.

The Food and Drug Administration has given Georgetown University's Lombardi Cancer Research Center permission to give the drug, chlorozotocin, to humans for the first time. The breast cancer patient at the Lombardi center already has begun taking the drug.

The center said Wednesday it expects to put from 9 to 27 advanced cancer patients on the drug during initial clinical tests that could last six to nine months. Afterwards, more extensive human tests may begin at Georgetown and possibly several other institutions.

"We hope chlorozotocin, the compound we developed with studies at the National Cancer Institute, will prove a most effective cancer treatment without major toxic effects on bone marrow," said Dr. Philip S. Schein, chief of the center's division of medical oncology.

Current anticancer drugs, numbering about 30, often damage delicate bone marrow as well as cancerous cells. Bone marrow produces the white blood cells necessary to the body's defense against disease.

Schein said studies with leukemic mice show that the new drug is highly effective against cancer without causing noticeable bone marrow damage. Laboratory tests with human bone marrow cells also show the lack of toxicity, he added.

The first patients who will receive chlorozotocin are considered incurable by standard therapy. After starting with low doses and watching for side effects, the doctors gradually will increase drug levels to determine the maximum effective doses.

Schein, other NCI researchers and the Southern Research Institute in Birmingham, Ala., developed the synthetic compound in 1972.

Harris jury sympathized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A juror in the William and Emily Harris trial has given an inside view of deliberations among jurors who felt sorry for the "attractive couple" but convicted them of two crimes.

"There was a certain amount of sympathy involved," Richard Addison said of jurors' views of the Symbionese Liberation Army defendants.

"They are an attractive couple. They were not offensive in the courtroom. They were ordinary people," said Addison, 27.

Another juror, white-haired postman George Fields, said: "I think they were nice people. I saw nothing to disprove it."

The jury, which convicted the Harrises of kidnaping and robbery but acquitted them on six counts of assault, was not fazed by the couple's revolutionary ties, Addison said.

"Everyone is a revolutionary of sorts," he noted, "and we all do it in different ways."

The role of absent codefendant Patricia Hearst apparently was rarely discussed by the jurors, and they tried to ignore her part in the crime spree leading to the Harrises' indictment.

"We tried not to consider that," he said of Miss Hearst's actions. "We just kept our ideas on what was given to us through evidence."

Miss Hearst has admitted her part in a machine-gun assault and subsequent events in the Harris indictment.
