LOS ANGELES — Evidence is growing that estrogen may help protect women against Alzheimer's disease, though researchers caution it's not yet time for menopausal women to run to their doctors for prescriptions. Supplements of the reproductive hormone may improve mental function of elderly women with Alzheimer's or help patients respond to an Alzheimer's drug, several preliminary studies indicate. Page 8A.

— Sgt. David Garcia, Midland police

Police to begin crackdown on traffic violations

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Drivers beware of bad habits because Midland police will be stepping up their efforts to nab traffic-law violators during the next few weeks.

Through the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), officers will begin spending more time in future weeks looking for drivers running red lights and breaking other serious traffic laws, said Midland police Sgt. David Garcia.

The extra manpower and expense is necessary because "there has been an increase in traffic violations," Garcia said. "So our purpose is to target specific areas. We will be working all hazardous violations with a priority placed on red-light violations."

The City Council allocated the funds "because they saw the need for traffic enforcement," Garcia said. The work will be done by off-duty police officers who will be getting paid overtime, so no regular patrols will be affected by the project.

Garcia said if drivers follow the basics of driving and follow traffic laws then they won't be affected by the increase in officers on the street.

He said there have been several accidents, plus a lot of "near accidents from not paying attention or not obeying the laws." He said these close calls were part of the reason for the program.

"There is an increase in traffic during the holidays with folks coming here from out of town to shop. This Friday and Saturday, after Thanksgiving, we will target the area around the mall.

"During the holidays, people's minds are not on driving but on Christmas shopping, and if two people are not paying attention then they are going to meet in unhappy circumstances," Garcia said.

"The Police Department urges the citizens of Midland to exercise caution and obey all traffic laws when driving anywhere in the city, but specially through the areas targeted for vigorous enforcement on the specific days listed," Garcia said.

Police said they are going to give "fair warning" to drivers about

Clinton mulls new GOP offer

Republicans call 1-day recess of House despite earlier vote against it

■ In new proposal, president would have to commit to seeking balanced budget in seven years as measured by Congressional Budget Office.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Republicans sent a new offer to the White House Saturday for ending the partial federal shutdown as a nervous House rebelled against GOP leaders and voted against taking a day off during the crisis.

"Work, work, work," Democrats chanted, after they spearheaded an embarrassing 361-32 rejection of an effort by GOP leaders to formally adjourn the chamber until Monday.

Angry Republicans who command the House later decided to put the chamber into recess until Monday anyway, something the majority can do unilaterally.

But the roll call, taken during a rare, raucous Saturday session, vividly displayed how nervous members of both parties are about the public's reaction to the five-day-old closing of large swaths of government. It also represented a Democratic attempt to paint Republicans as indifferent to the shutdown and its consequences for civil servants and people needing federal services.

Amid the tumult in the House, Republicans transmitted a new offer to the White House for ending the shutdown that beginning Tuesday idled 800,000 federal workers. President Clinton would have to commit to seeking a balanced budget in seven years as measured by

Independent petroleum group to reorganize with focus on membership, industry image

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

SAN DIEGO — The Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) revealed at its annual meeting Saturday a sweeping reorganizational plan that is aimed at creating a single voice for the petroleum industry.

"The goal of the reorganization was to retain the best of what is and couple it with the best of what could be," said George AIcorn, IPAA chairman.

The 1995 strategic plan — drafted by a task force that was headed by former IPAA chairman Gene Ames — focuses on grassroots membership and the image of the industry. Alcorn said reorganization is needed to position the IPAA to meet needs of its members, while positioning the oil and gas association to meet a rapidly changing future.

There are four key elements of the new plan, according to IPAA officials:

■ Reorganization to insure a stronger voice by grassroots members in the decision-making process;

■ Provisions for marrying the political clout of the small producer with the resources and interests of the large producer;

■ Expansion of programs, services and member benefits;

■ Recognizing the need to speak as one voice for independent producers.

Ex-Midlander moves into Information Superhighway fast lane

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff Writer

Michael Mauldin bought himself a pocket calculator in 1975 with some loose change and bills he had scraped together from mowing lawns and painting.

Twenty years have passed, and Mauldin's knowledge and interest in computer-related devices has ... well, let's just say it has grown somewhat.

Mauldin, the 1977 valedictorian at Midland High School, is widely recognized as one of the most brilliant and innovative scientists on the Information Superhighway.

Mauldin, a research scientist at Pittsburgh's Carnegie Mellon University, is the creator of Lycos, the most extensive cataloging system, or "spider," on the World Wide Web. The WWW is a graphical interfacing system that allows computer users to easily access information through hypertext, or key words that are common to many documents, also known as homepages.

Midway through his high school career, Mauldin had intentions of becoming a lawyer until "I got the impression I was better at math and science," he said last week.

His intuition regarding what he would excel at in the future led Mauldin to a career in computer research. As a result, he can now be given sole credit for Lycos, which may have the ability to access up to 92 percent of information available on the Web.

Mauldin's creation can access 10.75 million Universal Resource Locators (commonly referred to as URLs), unique Internet addresses — akin to a person's street address and Social Security number combined. Yahoo, the next largest spider, indexes just 13 percent of the Web, according to Yahoo's own pub

Admiral's comments make for choppy waters at APEC meeting

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Pacific Rim leaders meeting to approve a free-trade deal struggled to ease regional tensions Saturday but their old grievances were overshadowed by a new fray involving an American admiral.

Before he left Washington, Vice President Al Gore knew his Japanese hosts and other members of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum felt slighted because President Clinton stayed home to deal with a budget showdown.

But while he was making the 17-hour trip to Japan, another political bombshell was plopped in his lap: the damage to U.S.-Japanese relations over an admiral's callous comment about the abduction and rape of a 12-year-old Okinawan girl, allegedly by U.S. servicemen.

Adm. Richard C. Macke, commander of all U.S. military operations in the Pacific, agreed to early retirement Friday, hours after saying of the servicemen: "For the price they paid to rent the car, they could have had a girl."

Walter Mondale, the U.S. ambassador to Japan, did the initial damage control with an apology. Gore will have to deal with the situation in more depth Sunday when he meets privately with Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama.

The vice president arrived and headed right into one-on-one meetings that included a 40-minute chat with President Jiang Zemin of China, whom Clinton had promised to meet here.

A senior U.S. official said Gore stressed the importance of halting nuclear testing. China has detonated two bombs this year.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Chinese indicated they were seriously studying the matter.

In addition to discussions on China's bid to join the World Trade Organization, Gore told Jiang that Washington wants to resume human rights discussions with Beijing as soon as possible.

The Chinese president's response was receptive but not conclusive, the U.S. official said.

Gore apologized to Jiang for Clinton's absence, and to Murayama when they shook hands before a dinner for the leaders.

But while Japan was receiving apologies from the United States, China and South Korea have been urging Tokyo to apologize for comments about its wartime past.

During a private meeting Saturday, President Kim Young-sam of South Korea scolded Murayama for a series of remarks by Japanese ministers tending to justify Japan's colonial rule or wartime atrocities.

Kim said South Korea and Japan should put those tensions behind them — provided that Japan look squarely at its history of colonialism from 1910-45, according to a Japanese official who attended the meeting.

The South Korean leader questioned whether Japan had acted correctly in negotiating rice aid for impoverished North Korea, suggesting the North was using the issue as a wedge to divide its neighbors. North Korea accepted rice from both countries, then rebuffed a second shipment from South Korea while accepting another from Tokyo.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher held talks with his Japanese and South Korean counterparts on Friday, and the three pledged to work closely in monitoring the North Korean situation, especially implementation of a nuclear pact.

Jiang, in a separate meeting with Murayama, also brought up wartime remarks by Japanese politicians, saying a "correct understanding" of history was essential.

Murayama, in turn, repeated Japan's opposition to Chinese nuclear testing, Japanese officials said.

The prime minister also met with Malaysia's prime minister, Mahathir Mohamad, who told him the strong yen was making life difficult for other Asian nations, even if it is helping trim the U.S. trade deficit. The Japanese leader said Japan is trying to expand domestic demand and deregulate its economy.

Murayama brought the leaders' focus back to the economy and trade issues with his dinner address, pointing out that they have to look beyond the goals of liberalization set down in the agreement they are to endorse Sunday.

"Working to eliminate bottlenecks to economic development, APEC also has an important responsibility for attaining sustainable growth and equitable development," Murayama said.

"The increased burden that the region's population growth and rapid economic development will put on the environment and on food and energy resources is a major concern not only for our region but for the entire world," he said.

Ivory Coast bars two opposition leaders from national election

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — The government has barred two of the country's most prominent opposition leaders from running for Parliament next week.

The announcement Friday was the latest in a series of clampdowns by President Henri Konan Bedie since September, when he banned opposition rallies during campaigning for the Nov. 26 elections.

Opposition parties boycotted the presidential election in October in which Bedie was re-elected to a 5-year term, but agreed to take part in the parliamentary vote.

However, the official list of candidates released Friday omitted the names of the two main opposition leaders, Laurent Gbagbo and Djeny Kobina.

No reason was given for the rejection of Gbagbo, who heads the Ivorian Popular Front. The government said Kobina, head of the Rally of the Republicans party, was rejected because of questions about his ethnic background.

Under a law passed after Bedie took office, candidates must prove they have lived in the country at least five years prior to an election and have two Ivorian parents. Bedie's critics said he pushed for the law to prevent the presidential candidacy of Alassane Ouattara, a popular opposition figure who is of mixed heritage.

Kobina and Gbagbo called the moves an attempt to wreck the opposition. The governing Democratic Party "is seized by panic. It's shameful," Gbagbo said Friday.

Ivory Coast has been led by the Democratic Party since independence from France in 1960. Bedie became president in December 1993 after the death of long-time President Felix Houphouet-Boigny, and his dictatorial style has cost the party support.

Bedie claimed victory with more than 90 percent of the vote. There are 667 candidates from 26 parties running for seats in the 175-member Parliament, where 163 seats currently are held by Democrats.

Morning fog to turn to sunny skies

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for patchy early morning fog turning mostly sunny by mid-morning with a high in the mid-70s and south winds 5-15 mph, according to a forecaster at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight should be clear with a low in the lower 40s.

Monday's forecast calls for sunny skies and cooler with a high in the mid-60s.

After an overnight low of 39, Saturday's high reached 68, compared to the record high for that date of 84 set in 1981. The record low was 19 set in 1980.

STATE

Skies cleared in Northwest Texas.

Some showers were scattered across West Central Texas and along the coast into South Texas.

Winds were light and variable from Wichita Falls to Abilene to Del Rio.

The forecast for North Texas is for decreasing cloudiness today with a slight chance of rain in the south. Highs around 70. Fair tonight with lows in the 40s.

South Texas is to be mostly cloudy with a chance of showers and thunderstorms. Highs will be in the 60s and 70s. Lows will be in the 50s and 60s.

NATION

Winds swept through the West on Saturday, while rain soaked Texas and spread east to become snow in the mid-Atlantic states.

Strong winds buffeted the Pacific Northwest, raced east and picked up along the front range of the northern Rockies, where 60 mph gusts hit Livingston, Mont.

Off the Washington coast, the wind blew even harder, with Tatoosh Island at the mouth of the Strait of Juan de Fuca measuring an 81-mph gust and Destruction Island on the coast reporting one at 78 mph.

Heavy rain across southern Texas overnight and into Saturday saturated the ground, especially in the southern tip, and led to local flooding. Some 24-hour rainfall totals as of Saturday morning include 1.95 inches in Corpus Christi, 1.97 inches in Galveston and 1.68 in Cotulla.

Light snow fell across the central Great Lakes and into western New York and western Pennsylvania.

The wind was expected to keep blowing from the Pacific Northwest into the northern Plains as a cold front swept into the country's midsection.

There was a chance of rain and higher-elevation snow showers from the Pacific Northwest to the northern Rockies and the adjacent High Plains, with an inch or so of snow expected above 4,000 feet in the Washington Cascades, northern Idaho and northwestern Montana.

Rain and storms were possible from southern Texas to the central Gulf Coastal and into southeastern Florida.

Snow or rain was expected from Michigan to the Appalachians and north to the East Coast, with some freezing rain possibly mixing in from Michigan and Pennsylvania to New York.

The early afternoon high around the Lower 48 was 78, in Brownsville. The low was 10, in Rosseau, Minn.

OFFER: GOP, Clinton to discuss proposal today

the Congressional Budget Office, after "thorough consultation and review" by White House and other government and private experts.

That represented slight movement from the longtime GOP demand for a seven-year balanced budget using CBO estimates, without any outside input. Clinton has said he wants a longer timetable that uses the administration's more optimistic economic assumptions, which would allow smaller spending cuts than Republicans want.

GOP leaders said they would discuss the offer with administration officials today, and agencies could reopen Monday if it is accepted. But asked whether the administration was likely to accept the proposal, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said: "I doubt it. It's a good offer."

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said administration officials would consider the offer overnight.

In an earlier interview with NBC News, Clinton said he was trying to figure out a way to return federal workers to their jobs on Monday. "If I can find a legal way to get them back to work."

He also acknowledged that, as long as this crisis goes on, I will pay some sort of popularity premium." But he also tried to drive a wedge between congressional Republicans, blaming the crisis on "the most intransigent members of the House" and saying that Senate Republicans would "resolve this on honorable terms if they were free to do it."

During the House vote, about 100 lawmakers who initially voted to adjourn, mostly Republicans, changed their votes when it became clear that the motion would be defeated.

After the vote, with the House technically in recess — and the television cameras off — Democrats remained riveted in their seats and commenced a series of speeches, demanding that the chamber stay in session until it could send a bill to Clinton reopening federal agencies.

"Thank all of you for staying here, being here during the work of Congress, trying to get the federal government up and running again," Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., told his gleeful rank-and-file.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., told reporters later, "They aren't helping anything, they aren't helping balance the budget. If they want to stay on the floor and make noise, then that's fine. At least it keeps them out of trouble."

Earlier, the House voted 416-0 to approve a bill returning $5,000 workers who process Medicare, Social Security and veterans' claims, easing the shutdown's impact on two of the most politically active segments of voters — the elderly and veterans.

But Senate Democrats, aiming to keep public pressure on Republicans, blocked consideration of the bill in that chamber for at least a day.

Seeking to shift the blame to Republicans, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said Clinton would request that lawmakers keep seeking a solution to the stalemate. Leaders planned to take a day off today, return to work Monday and take a Thanksgiving recess sometime during the week.

"This is not a time to leave on recess," Panetta told reporters after meeting with House Democrats. "This is not a time to cut out of this town when we are trying to resolve a very real crisis in this country. There are a lot of people being impacted by the shutdown."

Both sides are feeling pressure to solve their deadlock, reopen agencies and move onto the looming, larger fight over the GOP's balanced-budget bill. Dole said he wanted the dispute resolved.

"Now's the time for serious negotiations," he said. "I hope we can resolve the current partial government shutdown so we can focus on coming together on the historic balanced budget over the next seven years."

But Gingrich indicated he was of little mind to yield, saying, "There's no compromise on seven years and on having an honest number scored in an honest way."

Clinton used his weekly radio talk to promise once again to kill the GOP balanced-budget bill when it reaches his desk. He condemned it for heaping tax cuts on the rich while inflicting "extreme cuts" on Medicare, education and environmental programs.

"This budget's dead on arrival when it comes to the White House," Clinton said.

CRACKDOWN: City police to target specific areas

which areas will be targeted.

"Weekly lists of locations will be provided to the media by Thursday listing the following week's locations," Garcia said.

He said the extra officers will be at those areas at various times of the day.

"The emphasis here is on compliance of all traffic laws to reduce accidents and save lives," Garcia said.

Police are encouraging drivers to "drive carefully, drive defensively and always wear your seat belt."

The following are the targeted areas for this week:

- Monday — Andrews Highway and Cuthbert Avenue.
- Tuesday — Andrews Highway and Illinois Avenue, Andrews Highway and Texas Avenue, Midland Drive and Andrews Highway.
- Wednesday — Ohio Avenue and Andrews Highway.
- Thursday — none.
- Friday — Midland Drive and Loop 250, Cuthbert Avenue and Andrews Highway, Midkiff Road and Wadley Avenue, Midkiff Road and Haynes Drive, Midkiff Road and Loop 250.

REORGANIZE: Group announces plan at annual meeting

(From 1A)

In the new structure, which will be complete by 1997, IPAA regional vice presidents will be replaced by regional governors who will be elected by members of the region in which they serve. A vice chairman will be named to provide more leadership, and a small excecutive committee will replace the present management committee. The dues structure will be modified to reflect corporate revenues.

Don Sparks, IPAA regional vice president from Midland, supports the plan and thinks it would be a first step in moving the oil and gas organization torward increased efficiency.

"The problem with the old structure was that it was disjoined and you never knew who to talk to. Now it is very clear who you come to with problems."

Bob Kiker, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said he thought the reorganization was a good move for IPAA, which is the national umbrella organization for most of the nation's regional associations.

Kiker and Sparks said they are jointly studying the possibility of offering combination memberships in both the IPAA and PBPA, at a cost less than that of two individual memberships.

In other business, IPAA leadership said the association would offer an industry check-off program, which would allow members to contribute a fraction of their revenues toward a national public relations campaign aimed at improving the image of the oil and gas industry.

The campaign could be similar to that of the beef and plastics industries, which have advertised on television.

Lew Ward, an oil and gas producer from Enid, Okla., was elected 31st chairman of IPAA, which represents 5,300 producers nationwide. Ward is the president and chairman of Ward Petroleum Co. and is director and chairman of Rambler Well Service. Ward Petroleum was listed as one of America's fastest-growing private companies by Inc. 500 in 1991-93.

Ward, a member of IPAA for 28 years, has served as a director and regional vice president. He also was elected as president of Oklahoma Independent Petroleum Association and as a member of the Interstate Oil & Gas Compact Commission, the National Petroleum Council and the Energy Advocates.

WEB: MHS graduate takes computer knowledge on-line

lished numbers.

"It sounds kind of flippant but it took me about a month to write the basic system," Mauldin said. "The program for the search engine (or spider) was written literally in an evening. The hard part was the year I spent keeping the service going and adding more hardware and features."

Mauldin's creation went live on the Internet in July 1994. Within 11 months, usership was at 2 million a month, with "something close to a million dollars in revenue" in that time.

"The hardest part was working 70-, 80-, 90-hour weeks putting in software and doing sales," Mauldin recalled.

Now, Lycos' volume of information is at 20 gigabytes, roughly equivalent to 20,000 encyclopedia volumes, Mauldin said.

It is not information overload but capacity that most concerns Mauldin about the Internet. The research scientist draws an appropriate highway comparison.

The Internet, he said, is like having "the country crisscrossed with two-lane roads and everyone has just been given a free car. You're gonna have huge problems with traffic jams. And (the Internet) is going to face a continual growth in capacity. The World Wide Web got people onto the Internet prematurely. What happened was the Web is so easy to use, you have all this premature demand for global communications, and every afternoon the Internet gets very slow."

The name Lycos is derived from the first five letters of the Latin name for wolf spider. The company employs two dozen writers, evenly split between administration, marketing and technical development.

Upon graduating from Midland High 18 years ago, Mauldin earned a bachelor's cum laude at Rice University in 1981. That was followed by a master's in computer science from Carnegie Mellon in 1981 and a doctorate from CMU in 1983.

An avid private pilot with an interest in aerobatics, Mauldin is married and has two children. Titles of two of the three books he has authored — "Conceptual Information Retrieval: A Case Study in Adaptive Partial Parsing" and "Information Retrieval by Text Skimming" — reflect his specialty and expertise in information retrieval.

Confusion may exist in the minds of some "newbies" — the term for those computer users new to the Information Superhighway — regarding the difference between the Web and a spider. Who better than Mauldin to differentiate between the two?

"The World Wide Web is a collection of information on the Internet," he said. "It's a browser, a tool, such as Netscape, Mosaic, Spyglass or others. A browser is a tool that allows you to start at one point on the Net and jump from page to page and view information on the Web. A search engine (such as Lycos) is a tool that allows you to make that connection and go directly to that page."

Without a search engine, "it's kind of like saying 'Find your way from Midland to Dallas by following the roads that go east.' With a search engine, if you type the word 'Dallas,' a search engine brings up all words with 'Dallas' common in the search," allowing the user to find his or her destination with relative ease.

Lycos' strength, Mauldin said, lies in its simplicity. "If you want to find stuff, you put in a number of words and Lycos will find documents that match most of those words. If, for instance, you enter 'Midland Reporter Telegram City Editor,' five words, you find a reference to 'Editor' and 'Reporter Telegram' that matches three of your words. If no other documents in 11 1/2 million (the total number of documents Lycos has access to) are found, it will sort those documents to the top.

"There's none of that complicated cosine stuff. The ease of use for Lycos is based on the fact that I can explain — without resorting to math — how we do it."

To further enhance the Lycos system, the company just acquired Point Communications. Point allows users to connect with the best 5 percent of sites on the Web. Lycos has had quantity; Point will now allow it to pinpoint quality as well.

"If someone wants to know all the sites in the world on raising iguanas, Lycos can tell them where to go," Mauldin said. "If they want to know where the best site on the Web is for how to raise pets, Point has gone through and chosen those sites to answer those questions."

What differentiates Point from other services is that it is staffed by journalists who are experts in various fields.

"(With Point), it's not about volume," Mauldin said. "Yahoo is a valuable service. They carve up the world into several categories and then carve those categories into categories. Their pieces of text are not written by professional writers, so as a result (Yahoo's) reviews are not of very high quality. That's the thing that Point does much better. Point has fewer entries than Yahoo, but it ranks them by content. Point is the best of the best."

Mauldin said within the year, he expects Lycos' database to grow from 20 gigabytes to 160 gigabytes, roughly 160,000 encyclopedia volumes. As a result, numbers that already stagger the imagination — 35-million user queries per month — will only multiply dramatically.

And that's a far cry from saving pennies for a pocket calculator 20 years ago.

Spain chooses to forget dictator Francisco Franco after 20 years

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Twenty years after the death of Gen. Francisco Franco, Spaniards hear and read more about the social life of his favorite granddaughter than about the man whose grip on Spain once seemed eternal.

Spain's authors and journalists write little about him or his 36-year dictatorship, and university courses all but ignore him. Except for a shrinking hard-core of rightists, few will mourn him Monday on the anniversary of his death.

"For my students, Franco is very distant history," said Juan Pablo Fusi, a history professor at Madrid's Complutense University and author of several books on Spain's transition to democracy. "For Spaniards today, Franco is an anachronism who has no bearing on contemporary Spain."

As they have every year since his death on Nov. 20, 1975, those still tied to the Franco legend, including gangs of young skinheads, are expected to gather at his grave 30 miles northwest of Madrid on Sunday.

Eight German skinheads armed with knives who had come to attend the rally were rounded up Friday and Saturday and were being deported immediately, police said.

Several thousand people were also expected to gather Sunday for an annual demonstration against fascism and racism. Clashes between participants of both rallies are common.

Franco lies in a somber, massive basilica in the Valley of the Fallen, a monument designed by the general himself. Most Spaniards are likely to view any pilgrimages to the site with little more than a shrug.

"There has been a profound rejection of Franco by Spanish society," said Joaquin Arango, director of the Center for Social Research, a government-financed think tank. "Today, our political culture is largely progressive. Very few Spaniards would identify themselves as being conservative, or from the right wing."

Spanish intellectuals have shied from the man known to generations as "El Generalisimo." More books have been written about Franco by foreigners than Spaniards, including a mammoth biography last year by British historian Paul Preston.

"That's a strange and sad thing, but it is probably because people wouldn't think a Spaniard would write something impartial," said historian Fernando Diaz Plaja.

Indeed, the more typical way of keeping in touch with Franco's legacy is scanning society magazines for tidbits about the marriages, break-ups and social activities of the dictator's eldest granddaughter, Maria del Carmen Martinez-Bordiu Franco.

Young people have only a fleeting idea of what life was like after Franco's right-wing rebels defeated the forces of a leftist government in the 1936-39 civil war and followed up their victory with vengeance.

Diaz Plaja, whose works were routinely censored during the Franco era, said Spaniards lived in fear for decades.

"Franco was cold and cruel," he said. "People were taken out and shot, and no one could do anything about it."

Resistance was limited to a Communist underground that fought until the early 1960s to overthrow the dictatorship. Later, police smashed student demonstrations in favor of democracy.

Minority languages like Basque and Catalan were suppressed, and the hated paramilitary Civil Guard held powerful sway in the countryside.

Franco's defenders like to point out that the economy grew while he was in power. Bridges and highways were built, and tourism blossomed.

His critics argue that would have happened with or without Franco.

By the time he died, Franco's system had been largely discredited.

"Spain had become secular, open and dynamic, while the regime had continued to be authoritarian and anti-democratic, isolated from the rest of Europe and the world," said Fusi, the history professor.

Leaders of the right and left came together under the urging of Juan Carlos, who became king two days after Franco died. Although he was Franco's chosen successor, the young monarch worked to bring about an open political system.

Independent labor unions were recognized, regional autonomies were granted, and even the Communist Party was legalized.

Just seven years after Franco's death, Spaniards elected Socialist leader Felipe Gonzalez as prime minister. Thirteen years later, Gonzalez remains in office.

Rodolfo Martin Villa, who was interior minister in the center-right government formed after Franco's death, said he isn't bothered that most young Spaniards have no concept of who Franco was or of how the country has evolved since his death.

"Sure, I could say they should know more," Villa said. "But the positive part to this is that they are able to enjoy, with a certain peacefulness and normality, the benefits of a democracy."

Burma's main opposition leader draws large crowds at home

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Police erected barbed wire barricades in front of the home of opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi on Saturday, apparently to keep the crowds who gather for her weekend speeches from blocking traffic.

Suu Kyi is a leader of the National League for Democracy, the main opposition to the military government which took power in 1988. She won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1991 for her opposition to military rule.

Since her release in July from six years of house arrest, she has spoken frequently to supporters outside the blue iron gate of her home, which is located on a four-lane road.

More than 1,000 supporters usually gather on two lanes of the road to listen to the charismatic daughter of Burma's late independence leader, Gen. Aung San, as she speaks over the gate on Saturdays and Sundays.

An intelligence officer stationed inside the compound at Suu Kyi's request told a reporter that the barricades were put there so her listeners could hear her lectures without obstructing traffic.

Egyptian government tries to rally support for Mubarak

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The hour-long show "Mubarak's Achievements" on state-run Channel One was anything but subtle.

There was the president in Washington, the president with Yasser Arafat, the president opening a museum and the president cutting short a visit abroad to comfort Egyptians in crisis.

Democracy in Egypt? The credit goes to Hosni Mubarak. A revival of the arts? The same. Peace between Israel and the Palestinians? Even that was the work of Egypt's president.

"A man of peace and legitimacy," the narrator intoned.

It is election season in Egypt, and government-owned newspapers, television and magazines have wasted no time trying to rally public support for Mubarak and his National Democratic Party ahead of parliamentary elections Nov. 29.

The ruling party, personified by Mubarak, touts its virtues. Thirteen opposition parties and Islamic activists dissent.

No matter. All agree the ruling party — either through its vast patronage network or crude rigging — will win in a landslide. All they can hope for, opposition candidates say, is a handful of seats in the People's Assembly that will give Egypt's much-maligned democracy some technical credibility.

But as Mubarak enters his 15th year in power, what the election slogans do not say about Egypt's state of mind may be far more important.

The Arab world's most populous country — and America's main Arab ally — is in trouble, intellectuals, government opponents and even some supporters of the regime say. And nothing is more indicative of the malaise, they say, than the gap between the regime and those it rules.

"Many think the government is not up to the challenges around. Meanwhile, there is a government that thinks its doing a perfect job — not even a good job, a perfect job," said Saad Eddin Ibrahim, a sociologist at American University in Cairo.

"You can't have any more discordance than that," he said.

Mubarak does have some things to brag about. His government upgraded Cairo's antiquated telephone and electrical systems. And he regained Egypt its prominence in the Arab world after it was ostracized for making peace with Israel in 1979.

But despite more than $18 billion in U.S. economic aid, the economy slumbers, with nearly one in five Egyptians out of work. Economic growth the past two years was — by official estimates — just 1 percent to 1.5 percent. Others say the economy may have even shrunk.

Because of inflation, government employees find that their salaries — the equivalent of $90 a month for a midlevel bureaucrat — buy half as much today as they did 20 years ago. After big jumps in the 1970s, per capita income has steadily declined for a decade.

More daunting is the feeling of deprivation in a country that has for decades prided itself as the cultural, military and political axis of the Arab world. Whatever their faults, Mubarak's larger-than-life predecessors — Gamal Abdel-Nasser and Anwar Sadat — were dynamic leaders who promised Egypt a future.

Now the country and its 60 million people are in a funk. Egypt is subservient to its wealthy, oil-exporting neighbors, overshadowed by Israel's emerging political prowess and left behind as Jordan, the Palestinians and even Persian Gulf countries rush to profit from Israel's entrance into the region's economy.

The small, secular opposition parties — some headed by leaders whose careers began before the 1952 revolution — offer tired promises to tiny, ineffectual audiences. More portentous, critics say, the government is unable to offer a vision of Egypt's future, doggedly determined to stick to a status quo that is wanting.

Said el-Naggar, a former World Bank official and head of a private think tank in Cairo, complains that Mubarak does not see the desperate need for change.

"If he enters a room and finds it arranged in a certain way and it's working, fine, leave it the way it is," el-Naggar said.

The Cabinet — appointed in 1986 — is the longest-serving government in Egypt's modern history. The average age of the ministers is 63.

Mubarak's virtue as interlocutor between America, other Arabs and Israel is rapidly disappearing, worrying Egyptian officials that Washington's $2.1 billion in annual aid may soon vanish as well.

Even more ominous to the government's credibility are the frequent articles in opposition newspapers that refer to the transgressions of "sons of high officials," a not-so-cryptic reference to Mubarak and several ministers. Corruption, which is by all accounts rife, threatens to tarnish the one quality that gave Mubarak a degree of support — personal integrity.

The government itself seems aware of its lackluster appeal.

Through glowing tributes to Nasser in government newspapers and even a film about his 1956 nationalization of the Suez Canal on state-run television, the government has tried to mine the strong vein of support for Nasser and nostalgia about his era.

Also telling is its crackdown on the Muslim Brotherhood, which seeks to replace Egypt's avowedly secular regime with Islamic rule through peaceful, democratic means.

Although officially outlawed, the Brotherhood has been allowed to operate openly for years and its supporters have won seats in Parliament under the banner of other parties.

Studies suggest estrogen may protect women from Alzhiemer's

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Evidence is growing that estrogen may help protect women against Alzheimer's disease, though researchers caution it's not yet time for menopausal women to run to their doctors for prescriptions.

Supplements of the reproductive hormone may improve mental function of elderly women with Alzheimer's or help patients respond to an Alzheimer's drug, several preliminary studies indicate.

Within a year, researchers expect two much larger studies to yield more definitive evidence. One is following thousands of women on estrogen to see if they develop Alzheimer's; the other is examining estrogen replacement and Alzheimer's therapy in women who had hysterectomies.

"We will know within the next year or so from these large studies whether there is a significant effect that is worth using the drug in treatment," said Steven DeKosky, director of the University of Pittsburgh's Alzheimer's Disease Research Center.

Doctors believe estrogen improves the function of brain cells that produce acetylcholine, a chemical that lets cells talk to each other. They are also the cells most damaged early in Alzheimer's.

Women produce estrogen until menopause, while men's bodies continue converting testosterone into estrogen into later life. Researchers believe this could give men a natural protection against Alzheimer's — and explain why women are three more times likely to develop the disease.

Alzheimer's is a degenerative brain disorder that affects more than 4 million Americans and destroys memory, thought and bodily functions. There is no cure.

But researchers caution that estrogen therapy has potential risks. While research has shown estrogen supplements strengthen bones and drastically reduce heart attacks, supplements can increase risk of endometrial and breast cancer in older women.

"I think (estrogen) does promise to significantly reduce the incidence of Alzheimer's disease in women," said Stanley Birge, clinical director of the aging program at Washington University in St. Louis.

Birge — who moderated a discussion on estrogen and Alzheimer's at Saturday's Gerontological Society of America meeting in Los Angeles — added that estrogen replacement "is not like going out and taking some herbal tea. Estrogens do have some risks."

In an interview before Saturday's session, Birge said preliminary results from a small estrogen study he's conducting in elderly women with mild to moderate Alzheimer's hints at estrogen's potential.

Of 20 patients, 10 received the drug and 10 got a dummy pill, but neither the women nor their doctors knew who got the drug.

After nine months, eight estrogen recipients showed improved mental function, according to assessments by their doctors or caregivers.

Of the placebo group, half showed deterioration of mental function, half showed no change.

Because the study group is small, "you cannot, should not, draw substantial conclusions," Birge said. "Our message and one of the reasons for reporting this is that clearly we need to do additional research."

Symposium panelist Dr. Lon C. Schneider, an associate professor of psychiatry and neurology at the University of Southern California, agreed.

In a study to be published in the journal Neurology, he reports that women who take estrogen and tacrine — the sole approved Alzheimer's drug — do better than with tacrine alone.

Black leaders define new goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organizers of last month's Million Man March issued a "National Strategic Action Agenda" on Saturday that calls for creating an economic development trust, a national health plan and an international black communications network, among other ambitious goals.

At a news conference that was part religious revival, the Rev. Benjamin Chavis Jr. and Nation of Islam Leader Louis Farrakhan outlined how they hope to maintain the momentum from the rally of black men.

"It is our contract as social change agents that we're going to transform all our movements to be God-centered movements," Chavis said told reporters. "There's no debate about a need for our movement to be God-centric because the Million Man March was God-centric."

The nine-point agenda, adopted at the end of the fifth annual National African American Leadership Summit, also calls for a national black political convention in 1996, a moratorium on the death penalty, statehood for the District of Columbia and financial reparations to blacks for the injustice of slavery.

Diplomats burn midnight oil at peace talks

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Balkan leaders held marathon talks Saturday with Secretary of State Warren Christopher as Bosnia's foreign minister quit and a U.S. spokesman declared that negotiations to end a 43-month war "remain balanced on a knife's edge."

Amid speculation that a deal was within reach, to be sealed by President Clinton, there was a stream of disclaimers from the State Department spokesman.

"We are still not on the verge of an agreement," Nicholas Burns said at day's end. "They clearly are not there."

With the assertion, the spokesman blended in what also has become a redundant admonition that "these talks cannot go on forever."

Christopher and chief U.S. mediator Richard Holbrooke took turns trying to bridge differences on key issues among the Serbian, Bosnian and Croatian delegations.

Their aim was a comprehensive accord, not a piecemeal or framework agreement, to be initialed here if the talks succeeded and formally signed at an international conference in Europe.

The unresolved issues included the scope of two proposed ethnic republics and whether Bosnian Serbs, who launched the war in April 1992 after the United States and the European Union recognized the former Yugoslav republic's independence, would gain control of part of Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital.

Declaring he was making his "own sacrifices," Foreign Minister Muhamed Sacirbey resigned, saying Bosnian Croats should be given more authority in administering a joint Muslim-Croat federation. The American-educated diplomat also was holding out for a strong central government.

A senior Bosnian government official said in Sarajevo that Sacirbey was dissatisfied with the talks. Burns said "we admire him," while another U.S. official, insisting on anonymity, said "it's more of a power play than anything to do with the negotiations."

At a news conference Sacirbey said "my resignation in no way reflects my view on the peace talks."

"My view is that the (Muslim-Croat) federation is the foundation of peace in Bosnia-Herzegovina," he said. "It is the foundation of multiculturalism and democracy."

At the opening of the talks Nov. 1 at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Sacirbey had expressed hope the Muslim-Croat and the Serb ethnic zones would be only administrative, with Bosnia's unity preserved. But the Muslim-Croat republic has been given a wide range of powers, leaving the central government in Sarajevo a virtual shell, in charge of foreign affairs and little else.

On another controversial front, Bosnian Croats were infuriated by an apparent plan to give the Serbs a pocket of Croat-held land around Orasje on Bosnia's northern border with Croatia in the region known as Posavina.

The Serbs have insisted that a corridor linking their holdings in eastern and western Bosnia be widened at its narrowest point south of Orasje.

Kresimir Zubak, president of the Muslim-Croat federation and representative of the Bosnian Croats at the talks, sent a letter to Holbrooke complaining that he was not included in the discussions of the maps and warning that he would not sign a peace document that gives Orasje to the Serbs.

In the letter, sent Tuesday and obtained by The Associated Press in Zagreb on Saturday, Zubak said he was expressing his "personal dissatisfaction with the final phase of the talks in Dayton" and expected more support from the United States and Europe in achieving "a democratic country."

Christopher, who flew here Friday from Japan, stepped up his already strenuous effort to conclude an agreement on a new map, constitution and elections for Bosnia.

GOP candidates flock to Florida to test nation's waters in straw poll

ORLANDO, Fla. (NYT) — Dispensing gifts, issuing fresh appeals and even engaging in a bit of arm-twisting, the Republican presidential candidates converged here Saturday to compete for backing in the most crucial test before the caucuses and primaries early next year.

Nearly 3,400 Florida Republicans, delegates to a state party convention here this weekend, lined up to vote in a straw poll that has been aggressively contested by the major contenders, all of whom are eager to strengthen their positions in the three-month run-up to the primaries, a crucial period for soliciting donations and building organizations.

Senate majority leader Bob Dole of Kansas flew here Saturday from the budget negotiations in Washington to make one last plea for support to the delegates, assembled at the Orange County Convention Center.

Sounding triumphant after the Senate's passage of a budget-balancing bill Friday night, Dole asserted: "We have turned revolutionary rhetoric into legislative reality. We passed a budget that will eliminate the deficit and balance the federal books for the first time in a generation."

Before flying back to Washington, he also held private meetings to put the final squeeze on uncommitted delegates.

Dole was hoping for a decisive first-place finish to quash any rumblings that his status as the front-runner for the nomination was in danger, and indeed the contest here was shaping up as an all-out competition for runner-up.

In addition to Dole, former Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee and Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas invested heavily here, each looking to Saturday's voting to vault him into position as the primary alternative to Dole.

All three campaigns lavished delegates with gifts like Godiva chocolates and tried to win them over by inundating them with mailings and telephone calls, some of which conveyed bitter attacks on rival candidates.

Patrick Buchanan also had an eager corps of backers here but did not put in nearly the effort of the three others.

Presiding over the event was Jeb Bush, son of former President George Bush and onetime candidate for Florida governor, who overstated matters when he told the delegates, "You can get to choose who the next president of the United States may very well be."

In fact, the results have no direct bearing on the selection of delegates to the Republican National Convention.

That said, though, this event — called Presidency III — has taken on unusual significance. Unlike other popularity polls this year, campaigns could not rig the results by stocking the event with their supporters or transporting backers from outside the state. To become a delegate, Florida Republicans had to attend local county caucuses, and most were picked at random.

Knowing that the results would be widely viewed as a measure of appeal and organizational strength in an important state, some of the candidates have made Florida a second home in recent months, wooing delegates as vigorously as in Iowa and New Hampshire, sites of the first two pivotal contests of 1996.

Author's estate accuses seven studios of price fixing, collusion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An author's estate is suing seven major movie studios, charging that Hollywood's arcane accounting methods amount to collusion and price fixing.

The class-action antitrust lawsuit was filed Friday by the heirs of Jim Garrison, whose book "On the Trail of the Assassin" was the foundation of the 1991 movie "JFK."

According to the lawsuit, the Kennedy assassination conspiracy film has worldwide grosses in excess of $150 million, but Warner Bros. says the movie has not earned any money under its "net profits" accounting formula, and Garrison's estate has not received a dollar of net profits income.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of anyone who entered into a net profits contract with the studios after January 1988. It names Warner Bros. and six other studios as defendants, claiming they all use the same accounting methods and nearly identical contracts.

"It is absolutely clear that the studios have joined together to prevent the real talent from getting their fair share of the profits," said attorney Joseph Cotchett, who represents Garrison's estate.

In recent years, the studios behind "Forrest Gump," "Batman," "Indecent Proposal" and "Coming to America" have argued their films have lost money, according to the accounting method.

A judge ruled in a 1988 lawsuit by columnist Art Buchwald against Paramount that the net profits accounting practices are "unconscionable," but there has been no legal action of this scope since.

The accounting method, which varies little from studio to studio, allows a film company to assign costs to a film including distribution, advertising and overhead fees, which often have no real bearing on actual expenses. These costs are deducted from gross receipts before there is any net profit.

Only a handful of top stars, including Tom Hanks and Arnold Schwarzenegger, are able to negotiate "gross profit" contracts in which they earn a share of each dollar a film generates before any studio deductions.

After all those years of socks, neckties and sweaters, don't you wish you could find the perfect gift for your parents?

Your wish is granted.

Computer mogul Gates predicts future of technology in new book

LONDON (AP) — Bill Gates predicts in his long-awaited book, "The Road Ahead," that future technology will enable people to customize movies, give up paper currency and play bridge with faraway friends.

"There will be a day, not far distant, when you will be able to conduct business, study, explore the world and its cultures, call up any great entertainment, make friends and show pictures to distant relatives — without leaving your desk or armchair," Gates, the billionaire chairman of Microsoft Corp., wrote.

"None of this is intended to take away from you the first-hand experiences and personal pleasures of life, of lying on a beach, say, or walking in the woods. But just as physical tools speed up work and rescue people from hard labor, so informational tools amplify the intellect."

The Sunday Times of London published the first excerpts from Gates' book on the information highway. Newsweek magazine is expected to publish excerpts Monday. The book goes on sale Friday.

Gates' book is being marketed with an arsenal of high-tech gadgets, including a companion CD-ROM containing links to information on the Internet.

"When you hear the phrase 'information highway,' rather than seeing a road, imagine a marketplace where all manner of human activity takes place, from billion-dollar deals to flirtations. Think of the hustle and bustle of the stock exchange or a cattle market or of a bookstore full of people looking for fascinating stories and information," Gates wrote.

Say you're thinking about trying a new restaurant. You'll be able to see its menu, wine list and specials of the day; find out what your favorite food reviewer had to say about it; and get the health inspector's verdict. Still interested in going? You'll be able to book a table and get driving instructions based on current traffic conditions.

Away from home, the portable laptop computer will be replaced by pocket-size computers.

New councilman fills District 4 seat

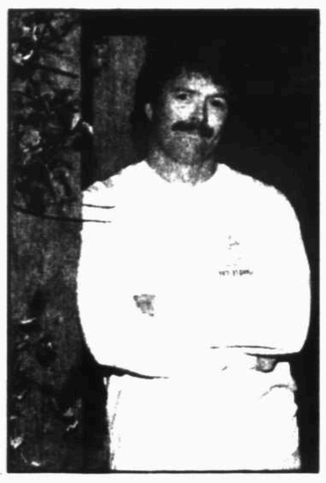
Simpson favors new airport, retail development of Loop 250



New City Councilman Berry Simpson

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The business of government has long intrigued 39-year-old Berry D. Simpson.

As a result, thoughts of seeking a local elected office lingered in the back of Simpson's mind but he never took any action. That changed recently when the City Council sought applications to fill an unexpired term after representative Claudia Egan resigned.

"Mainly, I was living in the district, and I had some friends that called and said, 'Why don't you apply?'" he said.

The petroleum engineer was among 10 applicants, seven of whom were publicly interviewed by the council. Simpson said he was a bit apprehensive after he applied but that subsided after the selection.

The new council member will represent District 4 — which generally covers southwest Midland — until the term expires in June. He will officially be sworn in at the Nov. 28 council meeting.

Simpson said he plans to run in the May election to secure that position.

For now, Simpson said he looks forward to helping make the city's decisions. His service comes at a time when plans are being made for a new $31.5 million airport terminal and retail development is booming on Loop 250.

"I think the Midland airport is one of the best things about living in Midland," he said.

In light of some opposition about plans for a new terminal, Simpson said a quality airport is needed to maintain growth and follow the direction of becoming a regional center in West Texas.

And although he hasn't been in the position to scrutinize the need for a new terminal — as opposed to renovation of the existing one — Simpson said, "I trust the people who have been making decisions so far."

Simpson's position on the council may require some tough decisions of his own. In the past, retail developers building along Loop 250 have had some clashes with adjacent residents.

So as development along the loop winds southwesterly — into District 4 — Simpson expressed his willingness to help smooth out any future problems with neighbors and developers.

In addition to the more publicized issues, Simpson said he has an interest in some specific needs of his district.

"There are some things that came out in the application process that I want pursue," he said. That includes the need for some street paving and street construction brought up by another applicant during the council interviews.

Simpson — who has served on the Midland Parks and Recreation Committee — also has a particular interest in parks, both in his district and throughout the city.

Non-profit agency may accept some of veterans' office workload soon

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

A local non-profit agency has offered to help carry out functions of the now-defunct Midland County Veterans Service Office, but officials are waiting to see how well federal personnel can handle Midland's caseload.

Because of budgetary consideration, the county-funded office was recently closed, since many believed the one-man office was a duplication of services.

Officials with Community and Senior Services of Midland have offered to accept some of the office's workload, but county officials already have another plan in the works, explained County Auditor Carole Wayland.

Ms. Wayland explained that County Judge Jeff Norwood was overseeing the matter. Norwood was not available for comment Friday.

"I know that there are several different things we're trying to work out," she said.

The Midland Vet Center, 3404 W. Illinois Ave., which is operated through the Big Spring VA Medical Center, is increasing its hours of operation to take up the slack.

Carl Knappe, Texas Veterans Commission service officer at the Big Spring VA, will be in Midland 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Mondays — except holidays — to tend to local veterans' needs.

Veterans or family members will be seen by appointment, which may be made by calling the center at 697-8224 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Those veterans who are just opening a claim file must bring a copy of their military discharge, a Department of Defense Form 214 (DD-214), or a certificate of discharge.

Veterans who already have a benefits claim in progress should arrange to pick up their files from the former Midland County Veteran Service Office by contacting the county judge's office, according to center personnel.

"We're going to see how this works out," Ms. Wayland said.

Local storytellers, including Ritzi Williford, above, shared their craft Saturday at Midland County Library during "Tellebration — A World-Wide Celebration of Storytelling." Tellebration, with the theme "A Magic Carpet Ride Around The World," was an effort by storytellers around the world to promote their ancient art. Some of the Midlanders who listened to the stories were Christine Erb and her daughter, Kira, 5.

Radio station takes airwaves by storm

■ 95X plays alternative rock and uses the Digital Audio Delivery System.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

GARDENDALE — Permian Basin radio listeners have a new location on their FM dials at 95.1-KQRX — the area's first alternative rock music station.

"It's not your daddy's radio station," said Frank Hall, program director and part owner of KQRX. "That is one of our themes and it's true."

Listeners will be hearing many bands for the first time on the radio in this area. Among the bands played on the new station are Presidents of the United States of America, Smashing Pumpkins, the Offspring and Bush, as well as Nirvana and Pearl Jam.

Not only is 95X the first totally alternative rock station for the Permian Basin, but, Hall said, it is the first totally digital radio station in the area.

The station uses the Digital Audio Delivery System, in which compact discs are entered into the hard drive of the computer and played from it. Commercials are also played from the computer as opposed to radio stations' traditional use of carts.

"When we decided to do the station, this was the way to go," Hall said.

The disc jockeys use the "board" to control the microphone, and utilizing a touch screen, they can build the play

Typical office banter often focuses on fellow workers

Ott

As anyone who works in an office environment knows, you tend to establish a one-on-one bantering relationship with the person whose desk is located closest to your own.

You develop a certain kinship, a mutual trust, a lasting bond.

During the course of the day, the two of you will exchange stories — and opinions — about your personal lives, your shared interests and, if all else fails, your fellow workers.

In order for this relationship to truly flourish though, it obviously helps if you have common views on such topics as music, reading material, politics, sports, humor, Mary Tyler Moore reruns, religion and O.J. Simpson's guilt or innocence. But even if you don't you can always join forces to pick apart the flaws of your co-workers, which is almost as much fun as trying to determine what kind of hideous punishment awaits O.J. in the afterlife.

As you probably know, the most common way to discuss the shortcomings of your fellow employees is to wait until they walk past your desk (and are safely out of earshot range) and then glance at your office buddy and say, "Jeez, what did (fill in the blank) do to her hair? It looks awful."

"No kidding," your friend replies in hushed tones. "She has no taste whatsoever."

"Tell me about it," you whisper. "Remember that outfit she wore last week?"

Then you both start giggling and turn your attention to another co-worker, who has had the misfortune of gaining a few pounds.

And the laughter returns.

Still, all good things must end, and eventually you both run out of people to critique. So you go back to your original subjects, but after another 45 minutes or so you have solved all of the world's economic problems, thoroughly dissected the Dallas Cowboys' most recent performance, exchanged the latest O.J. jokes and concluded that Ted Baxter ranks second only to Barney Fife as TV's all-time best supporting actor in a weekly comedy series.

Thus, a period of silence results, as the two of you decide it might not be a bad idea to actually get some work done. So you plug away ... for, oh, a good 10 minutes.

Then your partner glances up and says, "Did I tell you what my youngest did last night?"

Donated civic books are to help students in history, geography

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Nineteen instructional civic books — which focus on how municipal governments in Texas operate — have been donated to the Midland Independent School District by the city and the League of Women Voters.

The books — titled "Our Town, Texas" — are lesson manuals for teachers to help educate middle school students, specifically seventh-graders, in Texas history and geography.

"I have reviewed this material and it's outstanding," said Patty Smith, MISD's coordinator of social studies. "This is a perfect complement to the materials teachers have now to use in the classroom."

The book includes material for 17 activities on municipal government; concentrates on thought-provoking techniques, problem solving and decision making; and sets up experiences for students to examine issues from political, economic and social perspectives, according to Ms. Smith.

"Our Town, Texas" was written by Texas teachers who have expertise in the field. The publication is sponsored by the Texas City Management Association and the Texas Foundation for Local Government.

Half of the books were donated by the Texas Municipal League to the city of Midland, which in turn donated them to the school district, according to Gloria Lara, management assistant for the city of Midland.

The League of Women Voters of Midland subsequently purchased 10 additional books to donate. The local organization requested funding for the non-partisan, educational project from the League of Women Voters of Texas Education Fund.

"It's just a perfect project for the League of Women Voters," said Pat Stanley, a vice president with the League of Women Voters of Midland. "The purpose of the league is to encourage active and informed participation of citizens in government and that's what the manuals are all about."

Jury convicts man of capital murder

DALLAS (AP) — Toronto Patterson has been convicted of capital murder by a jury for shooting his cousin's 3-year-old daughter to death in a Pleasant Grove triple slaying.

The 18-year-old showed no emotion Friday upon being pronounced guilty of the crime, which prosecutors said was motivated by his desire for custom car wheels.

A hearing to determine his sentence — life in prison, or death — is set to begin next week.

The Dallas County jurors did not comment on their deliberations, which took nine hours.

But before reaching the verdict, they had sent out two notes asking about the timing of Mr. Patterson's activities the day of the killing.

Police and prosecutors accused Mr. Patterson of killing Ollie Jean Brown along with her sister, 6-year-old Jennifer Brewer, and their mother, Kimberly Brewer, 25.

Each was shot once in the head June 6 at the home of Ms. Brewer's mother. Three chrome and gold-plated wheels were taken from a car in the family's garage.

He was only tried for one of the murders.

SEAT: Simpson supports Midland as sports center

(From 1B)

"I'm a runner. I think that's what got me interested in being outside and in the park. That and my kids," he said.

Simpson applauded plans for hike/bike trails along the city's draws. "I would like to see the same thing across town," he said.

And he said he would like to work toward construction of more parks in his district. The city has plans to have a community park in each quadrant of the city and the southwest lags behind.

Simpson's enthusiasm for parks and recreation, coupled with his concern for economic development, make him firmly support Midland as a sports center.

"I think we have a potential to be a real regional sports center," said Simpson, who has served on the Midland Chamber of Commerce All Sports Committee. Attracting more sporting tournaments to Midland increases tourist dollars and add to the local economy, he said.

Simpson's interest in Midland isn't as a newcomer but as a West Texan.

"I was born in Big Spring. My dad worked for an oil company, so I lived in Kermit, Monahans and Hobbs (N.M.), where I went to high school," he said.

Simpson attended the University of Oklahoma, where he received a bachelor's of science degree in petroleum engineering in 1979. He said he was not sure why he studied petroleum engineering except that he was good at math and was raised around the oil industry.

He has lived in Midland since 1982 and works for Ref-Chem, on assignment to Mobil Facilities Engineering Group.

Simpson and his wife, Cyndi, have two children: Byron, 15, and Katie, 12.

Among his interests is running. He's run in five marathons. The smallest consisted of 17 people in Hobbs, N.M.; the largest included 22,000 in New York City.

A week ago he ran the 26 miles in the San Antonio marathon with his wife. She finished 45 minutes ahead of him.

Simpson picked up running in 1978 after he came home from college and a girl he had gone out with — now his wife — was dating a "track-and-field guy."

"I thought I had to do something to compete to get her attention," he said.

So he took up running. "And I just got to enjoy doing it," he said.

The two were later married — not necessarily because of his impressive running — and she subsequently took up the sport in 1986, he said.

These days, Simpson said, he runs for relaxation, exercise and to clear his mind and enhance creative thought. He's also a member of the Permian Basin Road Runners Club.

In addition to time spent running, working and with his family, Simpson teaches adult Sunday school at First Baptist Church, which he's done for five years.

And he plays trombone — which he's played since sixth grade — for the Midland Community Jazz Ensemble.

Simpson also admits to being an avid reader. He was reading "Holidays in Hell" by P.J. O'Rouke while waiting for his interview appointment.

MUSIC: Radio station is first to play alternative rock in area

list, the station identifications and commercials, Hall said.

Hall said an alternative rock station, in the works for about eight years, was the idea of Dave Cardwell, the majority owner and morning disc jockey.

"It had been his dream to own a station," Hall said.

Cardwell likes rock music so he and Hall talked about what kind of format to use and they decided to go alternative rock.

"There was definitely a hole for it," Hall said. "The response has been remarkable."

The station has been on the air for less than a month and Hall said he is hearing more positive feedback daily.

"It's been really unusual, but advertisers have been calling us," Hall said.

Local music stores agree that the word on the streets is positive.

"We've been hearing from a lot of people that it's about time to have a choice," said Hasting's music manager Serge Amato. "Now people have the option of listening to something different."

Amato said the only drawback he has seen or heard is that a lot of people don't recognize the songs or artists because the music is new to them.

CD Warehouse Store Manager John Pitts Jr. said he is hearing similar things.

"A lot of kids like it and are asking for the bumper stickers," he said. "All the feedback has been positive and I think it's doing pretty good. A lot of people are listening and interested in it."

Hall said the station is still building its music library. He said the staff, who work out of a small building at the base of the radio tower in Gardendale, is made up of a four-person sales staff and five on-air personalities.

Targeted at 18-34-year-olds, the station has a 50-mile radius reaching Lamesa and Big Spring, Hall said.

Among the promotions the station already has in place are guest disc jockeys once a week and the Basin's Best Rock spotlight, featuring local artists, at 10 p.m. week nights.

"We thought a local radio station ought to support local groups and give them air time, especially since there is no forum for them here to get exposure other than playing at bars," Hall said.

Afternoon disc jockey and self-proclaimed computer guru John Owens is excited to be involved with the new station.

"I love the music and this has been my dream for a while," said the 20-year-old. "I wanted the radio experience."

Owens said he has been working on the computer system to get it up and running efficiently, while getting oriented to being on the air.

Hall, who has been a disc jockey for a number of years on different types of stations, said he has always been a fan of rock 'n' roll music.

But the more he listens to the alternative rock the better he likes it.

"I believe it is the next wave of music," he said, likening the alternative movement to that of the arrival of the Beatles and the Rolling Stones.

"It is the music of the next generation," he said.

He said he believes the new station can compete with other established rock stations.

"We plan on kicking their butts," Hall said with a chuckle.

"The response has been overwhelming. There has been a big need for this type of radio station. We expected a good response, but nothing like this," Hall said.

Our Hearts Overflow
With Sincere Appreciation for all who expressed their love and sympathy in so many comforting ways during our recent sorrow and loss of G.H.
We are deeply grateful to all of you.

Thank you, Midland, for truly caring!

It was a fantastic finish to an unbelievable campaign for United Way of Midland as items ranging from a customized Chevy van donated by Jack Sherman Chevrolet-Geo-Buick-Mazda to cellular phones, jewelry, airline tickets and much more were put on the auction block Saturday in the interest of bringing more dollars to United Way.

The dollars poured in and United Way's total climbed.

The rousing finish was a stark contrast to the mood at United Way on Aug. 28 after a fire raced through United Way's headquarters in Midland, turning important files and records into ashes, and making the outlook bleak for this year's campaign.

But if there is one truth in Midland it is that the people who call this community home and strive tirelessly for the good of all the people who live here and the institutions that serve the populace, will not merely roll over and play dead when adversity raises its ugly head.

Campaign Chairman Bob Irelan, literally hundreds of other dedicated volunteers and thousands of good Midland people rolled up their sleeves and did what was required to make this year's campaign a staggering success. The total raised this year was $2,735,126 which, when compared with the amount raised in comparably sized cities, was staggering.

What can one say when viewing this type of success in a year when all the odds pointed to dismal failure? How about this? Thank you, Midland. You care and it shows — the United Way!

Dems are pessimistic on '96 elections

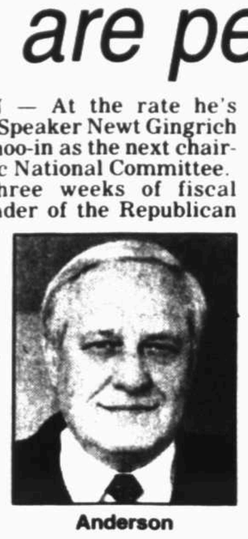
WASHINGTON — At the rate he's going, House Speaker Newt Gingrich should be a shoo-in as the next chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

During the last three weeks of fiscal brinkmanship, the leader of the Republican revolution has done more to unify Democrats than President Clinton has managed during the first three years of his administration. By trying to balance the budget on the backs of Medicare beneficiaries — while cutting taxes on the rich — Gingrich has given Democrats a mission, a message and a modicum of hope for 1996.



Anderson

But interviews with the major players on both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue indicate a pessimism about the future relationship between congressional Democrats and the White House. Most sources believe that Gingrich has provided fractured Democrats a respite more than a reconciliation. Even as Democrats marched in lock-step over Medicare, congressional sources were talking about Clinton's drag on Democratic challengers next year.

"The Democratic challengers will be given a green light to say whatever they have to say to get elected," one Democratic strategist involved in the 1996 congressional elections told us. Sources say the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee is bracing for another drubbing next year — which is why party leaders will fund challengers even if they criticize the commander-in-chief.

"The last thing they are going to do is tie their (challengers) hands and say you can't criticize one of the most unpopular figures in the country, the president, especially in the hinterlands," said this source.

Even White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta, who has been the point man against Gingrich's government shut-down gambit, told us during an interview last month that it may boil down to every-Democrat-for-himself come next year.

"There are times when they're going to have to zig and we're going to have to zag as we go through these issues," Panetta told us. "The minority in Congress can afford to do things that a president can't afford to do. ... There are some who think the best thing to do is just throw a lot of grenades. That can not be what the president is about."

On advice from his pollsters, Clinton has been lurching back to the center, disavowing much of his own domestic agenda and distancing himself from congressional Democrats and Republicans. Although Clinton and congressional Democrats are pummelling Republicans for slashing domestic spending, Panetta acknowledged that some of the seeds of today's fiscal woes were sown by Democrats unwillingness to tackle tough spending choices.

"Had Democrats recognized that, even in light of their concerns about people and education ... that at the same time they had reflected some greater discipline about the deficit and tightening up on those programs making sure that they work, they would have been ahead of this and probably would not have seen the results of the polls (last November)," said Panetta, who spent 16 years in the House before joining the Clinton administration.

Panetta noted that a strong showing by Clinton next year would yield dividends for all Democrats, but he also doubted whether "Congress has coat-tails for the president" because members "still have to fight their races in their individual districts."

In addition to representing one of those districts, Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., is also the de facto dean of the liberal wing of the party. Like many Democrats, his complaint against Clinton illustrates that he can't seem to live with — or without — the president.

Rangel has rebuked Clinton on issues ranging from welfare reform and drug policy to cutting too many deals with conservatives. He's also nursing a grudge over something less substantive but symbolically potent: The fact that House Democrats have not been invited to the White House as a caucus since last year's Republican rout. Rangel is taking it as an insult, and suggesting that Clinton is trying to distance himself from congressional Democrats.

Corporate welfare budgets need to feel Congress' ax

At a time when Congress is voting to wean welfare mothers, hungry children and the aging poor from the federal trough, how can it justify maintaining costly subsidies to private enterprises that are doing just fine?

Except for some reductions in agriculture subsidies, lawmakers have left untouched a host of "corporate welfare" goodies, many of them at least as deserving of the ax. ...

The Marketing Promotion Program, which helps trade associations and cooperatives pay for overseas advertisements, promotional tours and market research, is a prime example of a subsidy that, in an era of retrenchment, may no longer be affordable.

Yet, while Congress is slashing other budgets left and right, corporations participating in the program have seen their trade subsidies not only maintained, but increased by 30 percent to $110 million next year. Since 1986, the program has spent $1.25 billion to promote such products as E&J Gallo Wines, Sunkist juices, Chicken McNuggets and Hiram Walker liquor to markets abroad.

A congressional majority has shown it is ready to say no to thousands of poor children who used to get free breakfasts every school day through the Head Start program, which this year will probably see its budget cut significantly.

How in good conscience can it continue to say yes to prosperous California vintners, fast-food companies and the makers of cat food?

Televised suffering may diminish compassion

WASHINGTON — Balkan savagery is forcing Americans to think through a moral dilemma that brings to mind one of the great comic figures of English fiction — Mrs. Jellyby in Charles Dickens' "Bleak House." She makes a brief but telling appearance in a brilliant essay soon to be published in The National Interest quarterly. The essay is "Compassion and the Globalization of the Spectacle of Suffering," by Clifford Orwin of the University of Toronto.

Will

Mrs. Jellyby was the ditzy do-gooder who practiced "telescopic philanthropy." Her children were neglected and London's poor went unnoticed outside her window because her gaze was fixed on the suffering natives of Borrioboola-Gha. She had, Dickens wrote, handsome eyes but "they could see nothing nearer than Africa."

Today, writes Orwin, because of television, everyone's gaze can be fixed on — can hardly avoid being fixed on — the plight of distant people. This television "window on the distress of fellow human beings" is often thrown open as the suffering is actually occurring, and humanitarians hope that the instantaneous global dissemination of heart-rending pictures of agony will soften hearts and prompt humanitarian interventions. Orwin has doubts.

Compassion, he says, depends on imagination, which is why children manifest little of it. It is axiomatic: One death is a tragedy, a million deaths are a statistic. We can imagine the former. Television pictures of real victims are "pegs on which to hang our imagination." However, before "looking to television to effect universal moral regeneration," Orwin warns, note that "images of televised suffering trade at a substantial discount."

They can be turned off, or tuned out by people for whom television, always on and rarely noticed, is akin to audible wallpaper. Note the rhythm of the typical newscast, which begins with gravity and, long before 30 minutes have elapsed, is lighter than air, offering bulletins about the effect of beets on balding, and Julia Roberts' views on judicial review. Television audiences, emphatically including audiences of news broadcasts, want to be entertained, "and the right amount of suffering is entertaining — but only the right amount of it."

Television has a large menu of sufferers to choose from, and viewers can choose which to feel compassion for, until compassion exhaustion sets in. There is, as Orwin says, an "interchangeableness of the sufferers" that prevents powerful affective links between the viewers and the viewed and prevents television from developing permanent constituencies for any suffering group.

Mere humanitarianism toward distant victims, as distinct from communal identification by viewers with similar people similarly situated, is, writes Orwin, "fickle and highly unstable. To find, as the Good Samaritan did, a single victim by the roadside is one thing. To confront a succession of them on television, all very far from us and widely scattered around the globe, is something else entirely."

Which brings him to the heart of the matter: "Our humanitarian impulses may fire, but they will also tend to sputter. On the one hand, we wish that we could help; on the other, we are only too likely to feel ourselves absolved by the fact of this very wish."

Humanitarian intervention is noble precisely because it is not urgent — not closely connected to vital national interests. So there is a mixture of high moral content and low practical content to humanitarian commitments that nations make. And Orwin says we resolve this ambiguity by saying that humanitarian interventions justify the expenditure of treasure but not lives. The result is a compound of interventionism and isolationism, expressed in multilateralism, which is analogous to nonpartisanship in domestic matters deemed not serious.

A German commentator says Western initiatives in the Balkans have been intended primarily to ease the sufferings of onlookers. A European diplomat, explaining his country's policy of neither intervening forcefully nor altogether refraining from intervening, cites the "CNN factor." As Orwin explains that, the Balkans are a television tragedy to be coped with on television by using images of symbolic concern to neutralize images of actual suffering.

Recalling Rousseau's dictum that "it is by dint of seeing death and suffering that priests and doctors become pitiless," Orwin warns that "the new abundance of televised suffering" may desensitize rather than sensitize viewers, who become "voyeurs of the global village." Compassion's horizons become broader, but compassion becomes thin gruel.

'Spookspeak' is rampant in Deutchland agency

Neither the NIO for warning nor any of the SIBlings knew that this article was being prepared for publication. Transmitted outside the WASHFAX, it has not appeared in the latest SNIE and was done with no knowledge in Deutchland.

Safire

"Deutchland" is what the surly set at the Central Intelligence Agency calls the mole-shocked agency in its post-Ames era. John Deutch, the new DCI (director of central intelligence), is a hearty fellow from MIT and the Pentagon, given to hugging and back-rubbing insecure case officers, who suspiciously refer to such physical reassurance as "the hug of death."

As the agency staggers from being penetrated by the KGB to being rigorously examined by CODELS (Congressional Delegations), one element of its culture remains sacrosanct: spookspeak. In the land of acronyms, we now have FUSS (Fleet Undersea Surveillance System) and FORMICA (not the counter-top material, but Foreign Military Intelligence Collection Activity). But initialese — without the creative acronymic word-formation — is rampant.

Take it from the top: within the NIC, or National Intelligence Council, there are NIOs, or National Intelligence Officers: the guy who tries to keep the government from any blindsiding by the competition or the media is the NIO for warning. He is in close touch with members of the Strategic Intelligence Board, or SIB, whose brothers under the skin are SIBlings, and they all share SNIEs — Special National Intelligence Estimates.

A WASHFAX is a secure, encrypted telephone fax line that nobody in the intelligence community trusts. If the communication was until recently labeled WNINTEL/ORCON/PROPIN, the spooks felt better hand-carrying it over. WNINTEL meant that remote sensing technology — like a long-distance bug — was used to gather the information. ORCON meant "originator controlled," with the writer to be consulted about future clearances. PROPIN meant "contains proprietary information," like the formula for Coca-Cola syrup or the sketches for a French designer's collection.

The INT, for "intelligence," is a standard acronym-former: HUMINT is "human intelligence," SIGINT "signal intelligence," which includes "KEYHOLE," the code word for data derived from an imagery satellite, and MASINT, "measurement and signature intelligence," the telltale clues to identity picked up by acoustic, nuclear, and seismic sensors, hand-carried over (not the WASHFAX, stupid) to the ASD (C3I) who is assistant secretary of defense for command, control, communications and Intelligence, who was hugged by Deutch and survived. An unofficial usage is RUMINT — for "rumor intelligence," the gossip and scuttlebutt that often proved more reliable than the HUMINT sent in by one of the KGB or Stasi double agents who the DDO (deputy director for operations) thought was working for us. (A House Intelligence staff member has pledged to review the CIA "INT by INT.")

The word from DODIPP (the Department of Defense Intelligence Production Program) is that PROPIN is no longer used. The intelligence community's sort-of-secret budget ($28 billion and change) will depend on how well it does on the economic stuff; because its plan is to set up more "front" companies to run agents abroad, future phony corporate entities like the Deutchland Seismic Sensor and Escort Service will be sourced in agency documents with a word that does not indicate anything to do with "proprietary." I do not include the new code word here because I am not eager to help French counterintelligence.

The key element in many intel estimates is probability. Within the community, the word used for the lowest probability is conceivably. A less-than-50 percent chance draws a possibly, and just over 50 percent a probably. In the 60 to 70 percent range, spooks use likely, and in the 80's it gets to almost certainly. An estimated sure thing is no doubt, a rarity.

One member of the community, not in the Defense Intelligence Agency, defines conceivably this way: "Nobody but DIA believes this, but if we didn't put it in, they wouldn't coordinate, and we figured it wasn't worth the fight because no sane reader would take it seriously."

LETTERS

Department doesn't deserve bad rep

I would like to address some of the misconceptions raised by the article and letters recently published concerning our Customer Service department.

We are not demi-gods who reign over all water services in this city. Nor do we gleefully stand poised to disconnect our customers' water service. When water service is disconnected for delinquency, that customer could be two months or more past due on their water bill. Like any other utility, if the service is not paid for, the service must be turned off.

Customer Service reps are human, and humans make mistakes. If we are contacted about a mistake or problem, we try every avenue humanly possible to find a reasonable solution. If we cannot find one, a customer has every opportunity to go to a higher office.

In recent weeks, we have been taken to task about the attitude in our office. We do not answer the phones with an attitude of "Let's be rude." On the contrary, we answer the phones with a positive attitude. Additionally, it is extremely difficult to assist a customer that has an "I'm-fighting-City-Hall" attitude with yelling and cursing mixed in. Try to keep a smile on your face when a customer has threatened your life because they don't agree with city procedures. Our positions as Customer Service reps do not entitle a customer to yell, scream or curse at us. We would like to be treated with the same respect and dignity that the customer would expect from us.

It is human nature to "beat up" the utility companies that make us pay for the services they provide. Let us hope that the citizens and the politicians of this city remember that we are water bill paying customers, taxpayers and voters, also.

Even though it is something I am paid for, I enjoy working in Customer Service at the Water Department and hope to for many years. I believe my supervisors are professional, and I am proud to be on their staff.

Scrooge abolishes veterans' assistance

There is no doubt that American war veterans love this land. God bless the United States of America. I served in the U.S. Merchant Marines in both World War II and Korea. I enlisted when I was 16 and was proud to serve my country for 15 years.

I never thought I would see Scrooge, but now I have. As shown in our county budget, our county judge makes a salary of $60,000, and with fringe benefits, it is over $76,000. Each of our county commissioners makes a salary of $31,962 or $40,286 with fringe benefits for a part-time job.

Yet they deny an American war veteran the technical administrative assistance of a Veterans Service Office in Midland County. The Veterans Service Office benefited a large number of Midland County's 10,258 war veterans. To receive financial assistance from the U.S. Veterans Administration, a needy war veteran cannot have a monthly income, including his assistance from the VA, of more than $669.75. A needy American war veteran and spouse cannot have more than $877.25 in monthly income, including assistance from the VA. Most of the needy veterans receiving assistance are over 65 years old. A serviceman serving in World War II and Korea was not even covered by Social Security. To receive retirement from the U.S. military, a person must have served at least 20 years in the military. Is it the fault of the American war veteran that the U.S. government downsized the military and they were unable to serve 20 years? In private industry, workers are funded with a retirement income if they work for a company 10 years.

I am told that in 1994, our veterans brought $5,397,759 into Midland County. According to a research paper by Elena S. Phelps, dated Aug. 12, 1992, this had an economic impact in Midland County of more than $35 million. The sales tax on $5,397,759 is $418,326.32. Assuming three-quarters of a veteran's income is spent on non-taxable items such as food and clothing, that still amounts to $104,581.58 in sales tax paid in Midland County.

I label the Midland County judge and members of Midland County Commissioners' Court Scrooge .

Veterans deserve much gratitude, aid

Congratulations to the teachers and administrative staff of DeZavala Elementary School on a most impressive "Veterans Day Celebration" Wednesday, Nov. 8. I appreciate the freedom and the sacrifice our servicemen fought for. We have freedom of speech and freedom to choose our occupation and live at the location of our choice.

This program was composed of the presentation of the flag, pledge of allegiance, patriotic songs, speeches by the children and several servicemen. Recognition was given to our American war veterans. Special recognition was given to World War II veterans injured while fighting for our country.

There is a big difference between serving in the military and having been in combat. I have seen brilliant men go into the service and come back so shellshocked from combat that their ability to think and make a living is severely impaired. Doctors have told me that these injured veterans' medical problems increase as the veterans grow older. The American war veterans need a lot of credit and any technical and/or administrative help we can give them.

Our schools and news media have a special obligation to teach patriotism. DeZavala Elementary School certainly led the way with an impressive patriotic program on behalf of our great country and school system. They gave the feeling of patriotism and loyalty to the United States of America. Ending with the song "I love the USA" provided a nice finishing touch.

Readers' views on: New airport terminal

Planners should see Norfolk airport

I see in the news media that plans are moving ahead for our new airport. About three weeks ago, I was in the new airport in Norfolk, Va., and I would certainly recommend to our planners that they take a look at that facility.

The lobby is a large square atrium with shops along one side. Next to the entrance is a large, attractively furnished smoking lounge that opens onto the lobby. Each of the two concourses that lead to the gates are clearly marked 1 through 16 and 17 through 32. After the security check point are ladies' and mens' restrooms. Approximately in the middle of each concourse is a large smoking lounge with entrances of large sliding glass doors. Near the end of each concourse is another set of restrooms, and at the end is a nicely furnished snack bar with a good variety of snacks, soft drinks, beer and cocktails.

You might say the Norfolk Airport is well planned as it has something for everyone.

New terminal can affirm city's position

As a once reluctant and now enthusiastic supporter of the new airport terminal building, I would like to urge the citizens of Midland to stand behind our city government officials in their efforts to provide us with a first-class facility. We have a unique opportunity to affirm Midland's position as the geographic and economic focus of the Permian Basin. As an example, the building plans include an expanded media and conference center that can be reserved by the public for meetings, presentations, press conferences, etc. This facility, if designed and promoted properly, could serve as another engine for commercial growth, powering the current shift to a more diverse service and retail economy.

There appears to be some concern that the federal dollars received by the city amount to a government "giveaway." I believe this type of investment is one of the primary elements of a good federal program — an infrastructural program likely to return its cost many times by the likely broadening of the local ad valorem tax base.

Cowboys haven't learned very much

Trick me once, shame on you; trick me twice, shame on me. Barry Switzer and his coaching staff apparently didn't learn much from their NFC Championship game with the 'Niners in January. This last game was almost a carbon copy of that earlier shellacking. The "crippled" Forty Niners outplayed the "obviously superior" Cowboys in every department in the big one last Sunday.

Question: Are the 'Niners' players that much better than the Cowboys or are their coaches just that much smarter? Whatever, I sure do miss Jimmy Johnson!

Observation: The monkey is still on Jerry Jones' back for firing Johnson. And, oh yes Jerry, when will Deion start making a difference?

Doctors need to hire better office staff

I had been looking for a physician for myself, and after asking several trustworthy friends, selected one. I kept my first appointment, signed in with the receptionist and waited an hour and 45 minutes in the waiting area. I then went to the desk and asked the lady about the delay; she said that the physician had an emergency at the hospital. I understood and respected the reason, but what I could not understand was why that physician's office staff never came to me to explain the delay. I continued to wait to see the physician, but I chose never to go back.

Then, today, a couple of months later, I tried a different physician, one who was just as credible as the first. This physician told me himself to come in for an earache. I signed in with the receptionist at 1:30 p.m., let her know my name and why I was there. I sat down in the waiting area and was the only patient there. Finally, at 2:30 p.m. I went back to the window where the two girls were talking. One slid open the glass window and asked if she could help me. I asked if the physician was there today. She said, "I'll check." I sat back down. In a few moments she opened the window and told me he was in surgery and could not see me until 7:00 p.m. Had I not asked, there is an excellent chance I would have been expected to wait from 1:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. I shall not return to that practice.

I would like to let any physicians who may read this letter know that although they may be excellent in medicine, please realize that their office staff may be quite incompetent. The role of receptionist seems to be much more important than what these two different, excellent physicians realize. The staff needs to be selected more carefully and trained. One cannot see the trees if one stands inside the forest.

School board members make correct decision

At a recent meeting of the MISD school board, a discussion was held regarding a proposal to implement accelerated block scheduling for grades nine through 12. The board received a report from the District Education Improvement Council recommending implementation in the '96-'97 school year.

As concerned parents, we have investigated the potential benefits and negative impacts on our school district. It was gratifying to see the entire board individually express many of the same concerns and reservations the proponents of accelerated block scheduling have failed to alleviate. The board, in unison, clearly expressed to Superintendent Joseph Barressi that they were not interested in pursuing this proposal.

We compliment the board on taking a clear stand opposing the proposal. The board recognizes that, with the challenges facing this district, we do not need to begin an experimental restructuring program.

The board has fulfilled its obligation to the District Education Improvement Council by dutifully receiving the recommendation. The board also has considered appropriately the concerns of those who feel the recommendation was inadequately prepared. The basic premise of accelerated block scheduling fails to live up to its billing as a solution to poor test scores, the dropout rate and improved learning for MISD.

We thank the school board members for their insight in this matter.

Adoption center gives teens alternative

By Susan Atchison

Susan and Craig Atchison are the parents of Caroline, 6, and Kyle, 2. Craig, a native Midlander, has been very involved in fund-raising efforts for Gladney. Susan is a past president of the Permian Basin Auxiliary of Gladney and recently has been elected to Gladney's Board of Directors in Fort Worth. Susan and Craig enjoy their volunteer involvement in First Presbyterian Church and Young Life, among other organizations.

We've never even met four of the most important people in the world to us. Yet, as we bow our heads in thanks on Thursday, these people will be at the top of the list.

You see, these individuals gave us our future as a family. They gave us what we thought we'd never have. Through the selfless gift of placing their newborns for adoption, two very special sets of birth parents have entrusted us with the awesome privilege of loving and raising their children.

Today begins National Adoption Week, and in light of all the negative publicity surrounding some recent adoption cases, we felt compelled to share the much-more-common positive side of adoption.

In a society where teen pregnancy is at the very least acceptable, if not downright cool, it is refreshing to see young women making a win-win decision for adoption. What they are saying through adoption is, "I've weighed the pros and cons for both myself and my baby, and, painful as it is, I want more for my child than I am able to give. I want my baby to have two parents who live together and love each other; I want my baby to have material things that I would not likely be able to afford,; and, most of all, I want my baby to be wanted, not only by his mother, but by the extended family as well."

Statistics show that Texas has the second highest teen pregnancy rate in America. Right here in Midland, 407 babies were born last year to mothers under age 20. Seven of those mothers were under age 14. Of the 1 million unplanned teen pregnancies in the nation last year, 480,000 chose abortion. Five hundred thousand kept their babies, and only 2 percent chose adoption. It is a sad fact that 85 percent of the teen-agers who keep their babies end up on welfare and that parenting is the most common reason given by young women for dropping out of high school.

Because both of our children's birth mothers looked to an agency — The Gladney Center in Fort Worth — they had the option of living free of charge on the Gladney campus during their pregnancy and were able to continue their schooling while receiving professional counseling, as well as on-site health care. Those who do not choose to live on campus have the benefit of remaining at home while still receiving the counseling and guidance of licensed social workers who stick with them not only throughout the pregnancy and birth but also after the child is born. All sides of the adoption triad — the birth parents, the children and the adoptive parents — are considered by Gladney to be clients for life, making their post-adoption department one of the largest and most active in the United States.

In Midland, a group of 22 concerned families determined in 1991 that we wanted to do more to encourage adoption plans among teens. It was then that the Gladney field office was established as an outreach mechanism for the community. Last year, Director LaNell Honeyman spoke to approximately 1,000 teens about teen pregnancy and adoption, making Midland the most successful of Gladney's five field offices.

The local outreach efforts for Gladney, which is a non-profit organization, are entirely supported by individual donors and foundations. The Permian Basin Auxiliary of Gladney, made up of adoptive parents in the area, will host a fund-raising dinner at the Petroleum Club on Thursday, April 18. It will include a children's style show with fashions by Swartz for Kids. The keynote speaker will be author John Trent, who co-wrote "The Blessing," among many other popular books on family relationships.

Unlike six years ago when our daughter was born, adoptive parents and birth parents at Gladney today actually have the option of choosing the amount of openness they desire throughout the placement of their child. Some prefer a confidential approach while others have wonderful experiences meeting face to face or by phone either before or after placement. In either case, birth parents have the final decision about into whose arms their precious child is placed.

As adoptive parents, we are admittedly flattered when people who don't know the marvelous story of how our family was formed comment on how much our children favor us, both physically and through their speech and actions.

Our family is, after all, just like everyone else's.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered for publication.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations. The briefer the letter, the better its chance of publication.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis. Letters which are difficult to reduce in length will be returned to the writer to be edited before being re-submitted.
- We do not publish 'open' letters, copies of letters sent to others or multiple signatures.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, TX 79702.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Nov. 19, the 323rd day of 1995. There are 42 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 19, 1863, President Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg Address as he dedicated a national cemetery at the site of the Civil War battlefield in Pennsylvania.

On this date:

In 1794, the United States and Britain signed the Jay Treaty, which resolved some of the issues left over from the Revolutionary War.

In 1831, the 20th president of the United States, James Garfield, was born in Orange, Ohio.

In 1887, American poet Emma Lazarus — who'd written "The New Colossus" to help raise money for the Statue of Liberty's pedestal — died in New York at age 38.

In 1919, the U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles by a vote of 55-39, short of the two-thirds majority needed for ratification.

OPTIMIST YOUTH APPRECIATION

OPTIMIST YOUTH APPRECIATION WEEK.

WE SALUTE THE YOUTH OF OUR COMMUNITY

The Optimist Club of Midland came together to honor our young citizens for their outstanding service to the community. The Youth Appreciation Week is for the recognition of those 95% of our young people who are following the "juvenile decency" road to adulthood.

For the past forty years, Optimist Clubs nationwide have set aside the second week of November to pay tribute to the vast majority of youth often over-looked and unrecognized.

On November 16, 1995, at 7:00 p.m., in the Midland Center, the Optimist Club of Midland sponsored a banquet to honor young people who represent schools and organizations which provide a learning experience of good citizenship for our youth. Parents and friends attended the banquet along with the leaders of our community to honor these young people.

OTT: Parents insist on sharing 'precious moments'

(From 1B)

That's when you let out a silent, but heartfelt, groan and think, "Good Lord. He's actually going to tell me ANOTHER kid story."

No matter how fond of, or how much you have in common with, your office buddy, it all comes to a crashing halt when the conversation turns to the subject of children and their cute antics, especially if you don't have, or want, any kids of your own.

Believe me, it makes all the difference in the world.

If you are a parent, for example, something as routine as your kid picking his nose for the first time can be "delightfully witty." If you are childless, on the other hand, such an act would be deemed "incredibly gross."

Still, parents insist on sharing these "precious moments" with the rest of us. You would think our rolling of the eyes and heavy sighs would send a message of outright boredom, but noooooo. The "darling stories" continue to be told.

It is enough to make you beg Mr. Tubby Gut to waddle by your desk so you can politely, but forcefully, change the subject.

Museum to be closed during Thanksgiving holiday

From Staff Reports

The Museum of the Southwest will be closed on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, but will reopen on Friday at 10 a.m.

"This is a new policy," said Thomas W. Jones, director of the museum. "Since we want families and visitors to Midland and the Permian Basin to enjoy the exhibits at the museum and to allow their children play opportunities in the Children's Museum, we will be closed only the one day for the Thanksgiving holiday." In the past the museum was closed both Thursday and Friday.

Exhibitions on display are "Needlework: Blending Art & Craft," "Under Starry Skies: Defining the Southwest" and "The Search for Ancient Plainsmen." The Children's Museum features "Under Starry Skies" with computer components, a chuck wagon and freight wagon, and art works by children and adults.

The museum is located at 1705 W. Missouri Ave. Public hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and 2-5 p.m. on Sunday. For additional information, call 683-2882 or 570-7770.

Lawsuit against Dallas 'repo' man is wrong identity case, paper says

DALLAS (AP) — A lawsuit against a so-called "repo" man turned out to be a case of mistaken identity, The Dallas Morning News reported.

An article in the newspaper's editions for today covered the history of the case involving Forrest Thomas of Dallas.

Seven years after Thomas' company was sued, his failure to respond in a timely manner has triggered an expensive legal battle which some experts say should never have gotten as far as it did, according to the copyright report.

Thomas, who failed to file an answer within a month after the 1988 lawsuit against his Interstate Adjusters Inc. and another company, has since filed an $18 million countersuit against the group that originally sued him.

The lawyer who filed the initial lawsuit has testified that Thomas' company was named in the pleadings because it was the only Interstate Adjusters listed as a Texas corporation.

However, the correct company, located in Fort Worth, was listed in an index of business names.

Moss said ethics rules and the law require a reasonable effort to ensure that claims have merit and forbid attorneys from pursuing claims that they know are groundless.

"If the plaintiffs know they have the wrong person, their one and only and sole duty is to drop their case against the wrong person," Fred Moss, an associate professor of law at Southern Methodist University, told the newspaper.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of Nanette Young and her husband, Kenneth, whose car had been repossessed.

When Thomas failed to file an answer in the lawsuit against him, Grapevine attorney Stephen "Buddy" Luce obtained a preliminary judgment against Interstate Adjusters, according to court records.

After Thomas received notice of the judgment, he drafted a motion explaining the misidentification and sought to set aside the judgment. He sent his motion to Luce, who continued to pursue a final judgment and never informed the court about the motion.

Luce did not return telephone messages left during the week by the newspaper and Saturday by The Associated Press.

Moss said ethics rules and the law require a reasonable effort to ensure that claims have merit and forbid attorneys from pursuing claims that they know are groundless.

The Youngs, in sworn court filings, said it had never occurred to them to inform the court that they had sued the wrong party. The couple, a month before winning a final judgment, accepted a $5,000 settlement from Wells Fargo Credit Corp., the lender that had ordered the repossession.

Auto repossession firms, under such agreements, are usually released from liability when the lender settles its claim. Thomas' lawyer said that should have put the plaintiffs on notice that they had sued the wrong repo company.

An appeals court in 1993 ruled in Thomas' favor, ending the Youngs' lawsuit.

"This case is extreme, but it's symptomatic of an attitude that sometimes affects litigators, hired fighters, champions of one side," said Moss. "It's tunnel vision. Their only goal is to recover money for their clients — and perhaps themselves, too."

Commissioner fights textbook because of political contributions, some say

DALLAS (AP) — Environmentalists say the Texas agriculture commissioner's fight to keep a textbook out of classrooms in the state is motivated by political contributions from big farming and ranching groups.

Rick Perry is writing requests to presidents of all 1,050 Texas school boards that the book, "Environmental Science: Ecology and Human Impact," be withheld from educational use.

But state records show that Perry has taken more than $125,411 since 1990 in campaign contributions from the book's opponents, including farm and ranch groups and their current and former officers.

Perry, a Republican who has testified against the book before the State Board of Education in Austin, claims that it contains "junk science" and equates agriculture with "pestilence and death."

"This is unheard of," said Joe Humphrey, director of academic programs for the Abilene Independent School District, which has ordered the book. "Normally, the people who lobby us over textbooks are professional lobbyists at the statewide level. We've never received a letter from an elected official like this in Austin."

But conservationists contend that Perry's activity is simply a payback to his political contributors.

"Mr. Perry is confusing his role as an advocate for ... (agriculture) with the fact that he's supposed to represent all Texans," Jim Marston, a former Texas Ethics Commission vice president and director of the Texas office of the Environmental Defense Fund, told The Dallas Morning News.

Education officials said the battle over the book began last fall when some farmers and ranchers told Perry that the Texas panel was considering adopting the work in its first edition.

But Perry wrote the board members that the book should be rejected for "misleading and erroneous statements" about farming and ranching.

Board members agreed to let the publisher, Addison-Wesley Publishing Co. of Menlo Park, Calif., submit changes to the book to meet Perry's approval.

But Perry continued to help the Texas Farm Bureau and other farm and ranch groups oppose the book because the changes were "very minor."

Despite the opposition, board members approved the Addison-Wesley book in July. At least 85 Texas school districts have since adopted the book, said Lozano.

Opposition to the book has nothing to do with political contributions, according to Perry.

But some government watchdogs contend that he should avoid textbook disputes, especially those involving his contributors.

"Deciding textbooks is not one of the duties we think of when we think of the duties of the agricultural commissioner," said Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause's Texas chapter. "But contributions do matter, and large contributions matter a lot. ... In politics, you dance with 'who brung ya.'"

Officials criticize Houston Metro's decision to buy 128 diesel buses

HOUSTON (AP) — Backing away from its natural gas-powered bus program, the Metropolitan Transit Authority has voted to buy 128 new buses with diesel engines in a move that state officials have criticized.

The Texas General Land Office maintains that Metro is acting illegally in continuing to emit diesel fumes over Houston.

"I think that's too bad. I guess they believe that in this (regulatory) environment, they can flaunt the law," said Scott Polikov, staff member in charge of the land office's alternative fuels program.

State law now requires transit fleets to purchase only buses that meet strict emission standards — stricter than can be met by diesel. But it also allows a transit authority to claim that over the life of a vehicle, an alternative fuel bus would be more expensive to buy and operate.

If that is the case, the authority can excuse itself from the law, which is what Metro did with its $31 million purchase Friday.

Metro staff members produced a study showing that liquefied natural gas — LNG — buses are more expensive to purchase and to keep fueled than diesel.

Metro owns 294 buses that can run on LNG. In the study, it projected its entire 1,200-bus fleet either with LNG engines or with the latest model diesel engine.

It found that going with LNG would cost it $8.6 million extra per year in operations and depreciation. The cleaner LNG fleet would reduce ozone-causing emissions by 24 percent, but hike Metro's total transit operations budget by 4 percent.

It would make only a minute difference in Houston's overall pollution, the report said.

Polikov said even if the numbers were correct, Metro is violating another section of the law. Transit fleets were required to be 30 percent converted to alternative fuels by last year, and must be 50 percent converted by 1996.

Metro has about 25 percent of its fleet converted to LNG, with no immediate plans to purchase more. It believes the cost-exemption also applies to the fleet percentage requirement.

"Right now the (financial) numbers are just not there. ... . This gives us a chance to refine our technology," said Metro board chairman Billy Burge, citing maintenance difficulties with the LNG engines.

In July, Metro first inspired Land Commissioner Garry Mauro's wrath when it changed an order for 30 LNG buses to diesel.

"We're trying to educate them (the land office) to our problems, but they still think we're overreacting," Burge said.

Residents trade guns for vouchers, gift certificates

HOUSTON (AP) — In exchange for guns, residents of a southwest Houston neighborhood were given gift certificates and rent vouchers on Saturday.

The gun-buyback program was proposed by City Councilman Ray Driscoll several months ago to raise awareness about gun violence.

Such programs have had mixed success elsewhere. Dallas and Fort Worth gun buybacks have flopped in recent years. However, Los Angeles, Buffalo, N.Y., and Boston each had hundreds of guns turned in by citizens.

Organizers of the Houston program said participants wouldn't be questioned or face any law enforcement scrutiny. Guns were handled by civilians, not officers, said Jane Kelso, a steering committee member of Texans Against Gun Violence.

Participants received gift certificates of $50 or more for merchandise at Fiesta or Target. Residents of nine participating apartment complexes could choose a voucher for $100 off their rent.

Anyone turning in a gun also received two tickets to a Houston Aeros hockey game.

Ms. Kelso, a former network coordinator at Handgun Control Inc. in Washington, D.C., said gun buybacks are important in cities such as Houston, where many residents are armed.

"Living in this gun culture like we do, buyback programs make people aware of the danger guns pose in the home," Ms. Kelso said. "It's a difficult argument to make to a kid that it's OK to have a gun in the house, but not to take it to school."

Critics of such programs — including, initially, Houston Police Chief Sam Nuchia — have argued that buybacks are feel-good exercises that have little impact on gun violence. Dangerous criminals, they say, are not likely to proffer their guns for coupons.

Cities such as Baton Rouge, La., have offered cash for guns, leading some participants to buy cheap weapons and redeem them for greater than their value at buyback centers, said Dianne Clements, executive director of Zero Accidental Killings.

But, she said, overall the programs have attracted participants to turn in unwanted household weapons, which gun opponents say contribute to the likelihood of accidental shootings.

Goff knew, didn't tell

ATHENS, Ga. — Ray Goff said Saturday he had known for two days that he wouldn't retain his job as football coach at Georgia and apologized that the news broke before he could tell his assistant coaches and players.

"I was asked not to say anything and I didn't," Goff said at a news conference with athletic director Vince Dooley, who made the formal announcement of what he called a "negotiated resignation" for Goff.

"It was tough because I had to lie to some good people," Goff said. "I hope they'll forgive me."

Word surfaced Friday that Goff had been fired. He frequently used the word "fired" during the news conference, apologizing saying he meant "resignation."

"I didn't even have a chance to tell our coaches or players," he said.

Coaches who could draw attention from Dooley in his search for a successor include former Auburn Heisman trophy winner Pat Sullivan of Texas Christian, Gary Barnett of Northwestern and George Welsh of Virginia. Also mentioned are assistant coaches Wayne Hall of Auburn and Ray Sherman of the Minnesota Vikings.

Dallas: The measuring stick for Oakland

■ The Radiers expect to see how good they are when the 'Boys come rolling into town today at 3 p.m.

By Rob Gloster
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. — It was midsummer, the start of the NFL regular season weeks away. Oakland's new coaching staff was trying to teach Raiders players a different offense and assimilate new players on defense.

Instead of secluding themselves behind fences at a remote training camp, the Raiders flew to Austin, Texas, to train with the Dallas Cowboys for a week. Coach Mike White wanted his players to see how they measured up against one of the league's elite teams.

"I don't know to what degree we earned their respect, but it was good for us," White said. "It was a key part of our puzzle as we approached the season. The week we spent with Dallas was a tremendous learning experience."

Half a season later, White and his players get to find out exactly how much they learned when the Cowboys visit Oakland on Sunday. Both teams have 8-2 records, second best in the NFL.

Sunday's game is the start of a round-robin among the league's best teams. After the Raiders and Cowboys clash, the Kansas City Chiefs (9-1) visit Dallas on Thursday. And then the Chiefs play at Oakland on Dec. 3.

"(The Dallas game) is a measuring stick. We're going to see how we act and react," White said. "It really is a gauge for our team."

The Cowboys will use the matchup as a way of measuring their psyches a week after being battered by the wounded San Francisco 49ers. Though the Cowboys still are two games better than any NFC rival, they were stunned by the 38-20 loss at home to the 49ers.

"We're trying to put it behind us. We hope this week we can erase that bad memory," said Emmitt Smith. "We're getting ready to play a tough opponent, and if we don't put it behind us we'll be hurting again."

Both quarterbacks come into the game hurting and listed as questionable, though Troy Aikman and Jeff Hostetler are expected to play. Aikman has a bruised knee tendon, while the Raiders' Hostetler, a right-hander, has a broken bone in his left hand and a sore left shoulder.

The game will feature a Dallas offensive line considered the league's best against an Oakland defensive front that also might be tops in the NFL. Dallas is averaging 381 yards a game, including 155 on the ground. Oakland is allowing 305 yards a game, 102 on the ground.

"The defensive front seven is a great group, they're great on run defense," said Smith, who with 1,237 yards has outrushed all but four NFL teams this sea-

TALL CITY INVITATIONAL

Midland High won round one, but this fight is far from over.

The Lady Dawgs turned on its pressure defense in the second quarter and held on to beat Lee 54-48 Saturday night in the championship game of the Tall City girls basketball tournament at Chaparral Center.

"I was happy about the way we played except that we were absolutey killed on the boards," Midland High coach Jim Raughton said. "We just did not do a good job on the glass. Lee was very physical out there and they're a real good team."

In other tournament finals, Lubbock Monterey (3-1) beat El Paso Bowie 61-21 to take third place as Amy Wells scored 13. Monterey lost to Midland High 55-50 early Saturday in one championship semifinal while Lee beat Bowie 71-43.

El Paso Andress got 25 points from Sunshine Avila as it went on to beat Greenwood 55-40 in the fifth-place game. The Rangerettes (1-2) were led by Cassie Henkel's 14 points.

In the seventh place game, Prescilla Rampone scored 11 points to lead Andrews (1-2) to a 39-30 win over Austin Lanier (0-4). Donna Coffee led the Lady Vikings with nine points.

The Lady Dawgs (4-0) were outrebounded by the Lady Rebels (3-1) but Midland Lee never seemed to get the key basket when they needed it, and hit less than 50 percent from the foul line.

"We were trying so hard to do things right that I think we just froze out there," Lee coach Elise Kail said. "They (the Lee players) feel like its the end of the season, but it isn't. They really wanted this game, but it's just one game. Good things will happen to this team this season.."

The two teams meet twice later in the year in District 4-5A play, but for now, the Lady Dawgs can rel-

Andrews hits full throttle with win over El Paso High

ANDREWS — Andrews players treated their newly-acquired bi-district trophy like it was made of gold Saturday. But even more valuable may be the respect the Mustangs say they earned in a 20-0 playoff win over El Paso High at the Mustang Bowl.

Andrews (5-6) backed into the playoffs with two district losses and a postseason berth made possible by a Big Spring forfeit. They may have finished tied for second on the field in District 4-4A on the field, but they're bi-district champions and that's all that counts now.

"We felt like we had to come out here and prove something to all the people doubting us being in the playoffs," Andrews defensive back Jim Bob Cloud said. "Really it was just us coming out and making a statement."

That statement was that an undersized Andrews defense could shut down the Tigers running game. And that the Mustangs rushing attack, led by freshman break-away artist Shaud Williams, could run over El Paso (7-4). The Mustangs play Pampa, a team they lost to 34-6 Sept. 29, Saturday at 2 p.m. at Texas Tech's Jones Stadium in a Class 4A area round playoff. Pampa beat Borger 24-9 Saturday to win District 1-4A championship.

"We told our kids all week we needed to prove ourselves Saturday," Andrews coach Mike Lebby said. "This win helps."

By Chip Brown

AUSTIN — For the second straight week, the 10th-ranked Texas Longhorns came out flat in the first half. This time, it almost came back to haunt them.

Texas routed Houston 52-20 last week after trailing 20-10. But the Longhorns almost blew it Saturday, needing Shon Mitchell's second touchdown of the game with 2:08 left and an inspired fourth-quarter defensive effort to hold off Texas Christian 27-19.

"When you're dealing with human beings, it's not easy to get a peak performance all the time," said Texas coach John Mackovic. "This was not a peak performance, but we did what we had to win the game."

Texas (8-1-1, 5-0 Southwest Conference) trailed 16-13 midway through the third quarter as the offense struggled against an inspired TCU (6-4, 3-3) defense, making fans fearful of a repeat of the Horned Frogs' 23-14 upset of the Longhorns in 1992.

Texas, which appeared to gain momentum after a controversial fourth-quarter fumble call that went against the Longhorns, stopped TCU on its final dri-

Lady Chaps become a real 'Payne' in 112-72 win

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Sports Writer

It's a good thing Western Junior College Athletic Conference play starts on Tuesday because another game like Midland College's 112-72 women's basketball win over the Howard Payne Junior Varsity Saturday night at Chaparral Center might put the fans asleep.

The Lady Chaparrals took a 39-point lead by halftime and basically cruised through the second half for their seventh win of the season as they remained undefeated in their second season of existence.

And the theme on Saturday was the same as it has been through all but one of the Lady Chaps first seven games — a double-digit victory in which coach Ron Jones' team has had to struggle to keep up the intensity in the second half against teams that just don't match up with MC's depth, speed and talent.

Midland has outscored its opponents 697 (99.6 points per game) to 491 (70.1) and was only challenged by Tyler Junior College in its fourth game of the season when the Lady Chaps escaped with a one-point win. Most of the games have been over by halftime.

So when the Lady Chaps host Western Texas Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to start what will be a newly-adopted 18-game WJCAC schedule, it will be a welcome relief.

"I think we're ready but we've got to be ready to play tough," said sophomore Stacie Johnson, who scored six points and had a team-high 9 rebounds as the Lady Chaps out-rebounded the

Sampras learns hard lesson in loss to Chang at ATP Championship

By Nesha Starcevic
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFURT, Germany — Pete Sampras learned Saturday just how much Michael Chang's game has improved.

Chang upset the top-ranked Sampras 6-4, 6-4 to reach the final of the ATP Championship for the first time. Sampras has won the tournament twice and was the defending champion.

In Sunday's final, Chang will play Boris Becker, the 1992 champion and fan favorite, who defeated Thomas Enqvist 6-4, 6-7 (5-7), 7-5 in the other semifinal.

"If Michael is able to beat Pete 4 and 4, he must be playing extremely well and I have to make sure I play on the same level I did today," Becker said.

Chang had won only two matches in four previous appearances at the annual season-ending tournament of the world's top eight players.

Sampras had won his previous six matches against Chang, was 4-0 indoors against him, led 8-6 in career matches and had not lost to Chang since 1992.

It all meant nothing Saturday against the fourth-ranked Chang, who won in 1 hour, 16 minutes, appropriately the match with a service winner.

"I knew his serve improved quite a bit over the past couple of years," Sampras said. "(At key points), he was coming in with the big ace. That is something he didn't have four years ago.

"He is coming in, attacking the short ball. I think he realized that if he was going to get to the top four or five in the world, he was going to have to do that. And he has done that."

Sampras was too erratic against the steady Chang, who chased down seemingly irretrievable balls and served with

Houston feels at home on the road

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ironically in this age of franchise free agency, Arrowhead Stadium packed with 78,000 Chiefs fans may not be the best place for Kansas City to play Houston on Sunday night.

The Oilers, with their own followers in an uproar over a possible move to Nashville, seem to prefer the road, where they're 3-2. They're just 1-3 in the Astrodome, where fewer than 33,000 watched a 32-25 loss to Cincinnati last Sunday.

"Sometimes it feels like you're playing in a cemetery," said quarterback Chris Chandler.

The loud, noisy bunch in Arrowhead will definitely belong to the Chiefs (9-1), who've unexpectedly bolted to the NFL's

No. 2 Ohio State rolls over Indiana 42-3

By The Associated Press

Second-ranked Ohio State and No. 3 Florida kept their national championship hopes alive Saturday and remained undefeated going into showdowns against their archrivals next week.

Eddie George rushed for 130 yards and two touchdowns as Ohio State beat Indiana 42-3, while Chris Doering caught 11 passes for 169 yards and two scores in Florida's 38-7 victory over Vanderbilt.

At Columbus, Bobby Hoying threw two TD passes to Terry Glenn and broke Ohio State's record for passing yardage in a season with 2,737. Hoying was knocked out of the game with a concussion in the third quarter, but team doctors said he should be available for next week's game at No. 12 Michigan.

Ohio State improved to 11-0 for the third time in school history, but the Buckeyes must beat the Wolverines to get the Big Ten's Rose Bowl berth.

A victory would give Ohio State a share of the conference crown with Northwestern, but the Buckeyes would go to Pasadena because they'd have a better overall record than the Wildcats (10-1), who closed their regular season with a 23-8 win over Purdue.

An Ohio State loss would send Northwestern to the Rose Bowl.

At Gainesville, Florida's Danny Wuerffel threw for 299 yards and two TDs, giving him 29 this season and a share of the SEC record. But he failed to complete 50 percent for the first time all year, going 17-for-35 with one interception.

Florida is 10-0 for the first time in school history. The Gators can secure a spot in the Fiesta Bowl, most likely against Nebraska, with a victory against No. 6 Florida State next weekend.

No. 4 Tennessee 34, Kentucky 31

At Lexington, Peyton Manning passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in the second half as Tennessee rallied to beat heavy underdog Kentucky. The Volunteers (9-1) overcame a 24-9 deficit in the third quarter to defeat the Wildcats for the 11th consecutive season.

No. 5 Northwestern 23, Purdue 8

At West Lafayette, Darnell Autry gained a career-high 226 yards as Northwestern clinched a share of its first conference title since 1936. Purdue fullback Mike Alstott became the Boilermakers' career rushing leader by gaining 71 yards on 16 carries.

No. 6 Florida St. 59, Maryland 17

At Tallahassee, Danny Kanell set an ACC record for career TD passes as Florida State (9-1) tied Virginia for the league title. Kanell was 24-of-34 for 346 yards and two TDs, giving him 56 in his career. Maryland's Jermaine Lewis caught nine passes, raising his career total to an ACC-record 193.

No. 9 Colorado 27, No. 7 Kansas St. 17

At Manhattan, John Hessler threw a 20-yard scoring pass to James Kidd with 1:04 left, giving Colorado a comeback victory and a trip to the Cotton Bowl. Both teams finished 9-2 overall and 5-2 in the Big Eight. Colorado sealed the victory when Kerry Hicks recovered a Kansas State fumble in the end zone with 45 seconds remaining.

UCLA 24, No. 11 Southern Cal 20

At Los Angeles, Jim McElroy set up one touchdown with a reception and threw for a TD as UCLA beat its crosstown rival for the fifth straight time. The victory kept the Bruins (7-4) in the running for postseason play. The Trojans (8-2-1) had already clinched the Pac-10's Rose Bowl berth.

No. 19 Penn State 27, No. 12 Michigan 17

At State College, Wally Richardson threw two TD passes and Penn State scored on a fake field goal with 2:40 remaining. Stephen Pitts, a little-used senior injured for much of the season, ran for 164 yards. If Penn State (7-3) beats Michigan State next week and Michigan loses to Ohio State, the Nittany Lions should be invited to the Outback Bowl in Tampa.

No. 20 Virginia Tech 36, No. 13 Virginia 29

At Charlottesville, Jim Druckenmiller threw a go-ahead TD pass to Jermaine Holmes with 47 seconds left and Antonio Banks clinched it with a 65-yard interception return on the final play. Tech (9-2) clinched at least a share of the Big East title, and remained in contention for a bid to the Orange or Sugar bowls.

LSU 28, No. 14 Arkansas 0

At Baton Rouge, redshirt freshman Kendall Cleveland rushed for 102 yards and three touchdowns as LSU (6-4-1) became eligible for a bowl game. Arkansas (8-3) had previously clinched the SEC Western Division title and will play Florida for the league championship Dec. 2.

No. 15 Kansas 22, Oklahoma St. 17

At Stillwater, Mark Williams threw for one touchdown and ran for another as Kansas (9-2) reached nine wins for the first time since 1968. Williams completed 11-of-17 passes for 141 yards, and ran 12 times for 74 yards.

No. 16 Oregon 12, Oregon St. 10

At Eugene, freshman Joshua Smith kicked four field goals as Oregon earned a berth in the Cotton Bowl and handed Oregon State its 10th straight loss. Oregon quarterback Tony Graziani had an off-day passing, but he rushed for 108 yards on 15 carries.

No. 21 Auburn 31, No. 17 Alabama 27

At Auburn, Fred Beasley's 22-yard TD run and a late defensive stand lifted the Tigers (8-3) over the Tide (8-3). Alabama drove to the Auburn 22 in the closing minute, but quarterback Freddie Kitchens' fourth-down pass fell incomplete in the end zone.

No. 22 Washington 33, Washington St. 30

At Seattle, John Wales' 21-yard field goal with 1:02 left gave Washington a share of the Pac-10 championship. The Huskies (7-3-1 overall) tied Southern Cal for the league title at 6-1-1.

No. 23 Syracuse 58, Boston College 29

At Syracuse, Rob Konrad scored three touchdowns in the first quarter and the Orangemen (8-2) kept alive their chances to tie Virginia Tech for the Big East championship. Former Syracuse great Jim Brown watched from the stands as the latest No. 44, Konrad, ran for two touchdowns and scored on a 20-yard screen pass.

No. 24 Clemson 38, South Carolina 17

At Columbia, the running of Emory Smith and Raymond Priester helped Clemson beat South Carolina. Smith rushed for 102 yards and two TDs and Priester, shaking off a pulled hamstring, ran for 80 yards and a score. Clemson (8-3) is headed to the Gator or Peach bowls.

No. 25 Miami 17, West Virginia 12

At Miami, the Hurricanes made a goal-line stand with four minutes left and overcame several squandered scoring chances to beat West Virginia. The Mountaineers drove 69 yards to the 1-yard line before Jimmy Gary lost 6 yards on third down and Chad Johnston threw incomplete on fourth down. Miami (7-3) can tie for the Big East title by beating Syracuse next week.

Texas A&M avoids upset bug, blows out MTSU

COLLEGE STATION — Too many times this season, No. 18 Texas A&M found itself in close games against less talented teams. On this Saturday, the Aggies weren't about to give Middle Tennessee any upset hopes.

Albert Connell caught a 61-yard touchdown pass on the second play of the game and Leeland McElroy ran 58 and 5 yards for touchdowns during a 28-point first quarter that led the Aggies to a 56-14 victory.

The Aggies (7-2) had to score on the final play of the game to beat SMU on Oct. 14 and had to hold on for a 17-10 victory over Rice last week.

But the Blue Raiders (7-4), a Division I-AA team, had no chance against the Aggies, who extended the nation's longest home winning streak to 31 games.

It was the Aggies' final non-conference game. Now they close out their association with the Southwest Conference with games against Texas Christian and Texas.

The Aggies needed only 6:55 of the first quarter to build a 28-0 lead against the stunned Blue Raiders. It was 35-0 at the half.

After Ray Mickens returned Middle Tennessee's first punt 32 yards, McElroy outflanked the defense for a 58-yard touchdown run, longest of the season for the Aggies.

The defense got into the act, ending Middle Tennessee's next three drives with interceptions, including a 22-yard TD return by Reggie Brown.

A&M's big first quarter equaled a team record for most points in a quarter. The Aggies previously scored 28 points against Missouri in 1993.

A&M's first-quarter precision fell apart amid a series of penalties that had coach R.C. Slocum screaming on the sidelines in the second quarter. The outmanned Blue Raiders couldn't capitalize, however.

Quarterback Jonathan Quinn fumbled during a pass attempt and defensive end Pat Williams grabbed it and ran 47 yards for a touchdown with two seconds left in the half.

Texas Tech explodes for a 45-14 win over SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Byron Hanspard scored five touchdowns and racked up 260 yards of total offense as Texas Tech beat Southern Methodist 45-14 Saturday in the Cotton Bowl's farewell to the Southwest Conference.

The Mustangs (1-10, 0-7) never found a remedy to Hanspard, who caught three passes for TDs and ran for two more. His 180 yards of rushing tied a career high and a matched a school record for TDs in a game in barely more than three quarters of work.

Texas Tech (7-3, 4-2) scored touchdowns on five of its first six possessions as it enhanced its chances at a third straight bowl appearance with the victory.

It was the last game between the schools as rivals in the soon-to-be-defunct SWC. SMU, which becomes a member of the Western Athletic Conference next season, finished the season with a 20-game conference winless streak.

Tech will play in the Big 12 next year.

An announced crowd of only 11,738 showed up to watch the Red Raiders atone for their last appearance in the historic stadium, a 55-14 loss to Southern Cal in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2.

The Red Raiders got all they needed in the first half out of Hanspard, who ranks among the school's all-time sophomore offensive weapons. He already had 124 yards and two touchdowns on 12 carries and 72 yards and two more touchdowns on three catches through two quarters.

Quarterback Zebbie Lethridge also punished the team against which he made his first start last season. He rushed for 83 yards and a touchdown on top of 137 yards and three TDs on 12-of-25 passing.

SMU managed just 89 yards rushing, forcing it into the air with mixed success. Three Mustangs quarterbacks combined for 228 yards and two touchdowns to Kevin Thornal on 17-for-42 passing, but Tech snared three interceptions.

Lethridge scored Tech's first touchdown on an early 1-yard dive set up by a 19-yard run on Hanspard's first carry. Then Hanspard took care of the scoring himself with TD runs of 23 and 2 yards and receptions of 41 and 25 yards as the Red Raiders vaulted to a 35-0 lead with 10:20 left in the first half.

Baylor readies for Texas, drills Rice 34-6

WACO — The curtain dropped Saturday on the historic 80-year rivalry between Baylor and Rice, but for the Owls it was more like an executioner's ax.

"It wasn't a fond memory today," sighed Rice coach Ken Hatfield after Bear running back Jerod Douglas splintered the Owl defense for 197 yards and two touchdowns in a 34-6 Baylor rout.

The victory kept the Bears (7-3, 5-1) in the thick of the final Southwest Conference title chase and propelled them into a nationally televised Thanksgiving night showdown with Texas (8-1-1, 6-0).

"I just told the guys in the locker room that this is why they came to Baylor, to have a chance to play for the conference title on national television," said Bears coach Chuck Reedy.

"This is what we've been working for all year."

A triumph over the Longhorns in Austin would assure the Bears no worse than a share of the SWC title for the second straight year and could earn them a berth in the bowl alliance.

With the SWC breaking up, Baylor moves to the Big 12 next year while Rice joins the Western Athletic Conference. It was perhaps the final meeting between the two teams that played in the first SWC game ever, a 26-0 Baylor victory on Oct. 8, 1915.

The 5-foot-9, 174-pound sophomore racked up his fifth 100-yard game of the season as he burned the Owls (2-7-1, 1-5) on touchdown runs of 28 and 6 yards and nearly broke for a couple more.

He collected his 197 yards on 28 carries and was summoned to the sidelines with 6:18 left.

His 28-yarder capped a 7-play, 77-yard drive that staked the Bears to a quick 7-0 lead and his second TD early in the third quarter all but wrapped things up.

With Douglas scoring twice and Shawn Washington slashing 3 yards for another, the Bears took a 21-6 lead into the fourth period and watched the Owls self-destruct.

Safety Adrian Robinson scooped up a Rice fumble and returned it 26 yards for one Bear touchdown in the final quarter and tailback Dexter Ford picked up teammate Jermaine Alfred's fumble and raced 8 yards for another.

The Owls got a pair of Mike Ruff field goals in the second period, the first after Jeff Sowell's interception of a Baylor pass and another after Tillman scrambled 67 yards on a broken pass play.

HORN: Texas improves to 8-1-1 for the season

ve. Tony Brackens, who led Texas with 12 tackles, sacked Horned Frogs quarterback Max Knake, jarring the ball loose and recovering it at the Texas 25 with 24 seconds to play.

Wane McGarity scored on a 1-yard run with 1:17 left in the third quarter, putting Texas up for good at 20-16. The score capped a gutsy 71-yard drive that included four third-down conversions, two on passes from James Brown to Mike Adams.

The Horned Frogs battled back behind Andre Davis, who had a career-high 35 carries for 141 yards and eight receptions for 51 yards in his first game back from a four-game suspension for alleged contact with an agent.

Michael Reeder kicked a 23-yard field goal to pull TCU within 20-19 with 11:51 left to play.

Mitchell finished with 20 carries for 109 yards, including TD runs of 24 and 2 yards, to help overcome a poor performance by Brown, who was 0-of-6 in the second quarter and finished 12-of-29 for 127 yards with one interception. Brown left the game late with a sprained left ankle. His prognosis wasn't immediately known.

Reeder kicked field goals of 20, 39, 22 and 23 yards for TCU, whose offense failed to score a touchdown despite two trips inside the Texas 5 and four inside the 22.

Phil Dawson added field goals of 24 and 43 yards for Texas.

Bulldogs climb to 2-0 start

DEL RIO — The Midland High basketball Bulldogs won for the second straight day with a 69-68 win over Victoria to start the 1995-96 campaign at 2-0.

Kirby Lemons led the 'Dog charge with 22 points while Terry Johnson and James Whitfield each had 12 points. Victoria's E. J. Brown led all scorers with a game high 35 points.

"We got out to an 18-point lead in the first quarter when we had the press going and then got away from some of the things we do best," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "We're young, but we're going to get better. I saw a lot of kids improve on this trip which gave us a chance to play in a foreign gym. We played a lot of kids."

The Bulldogs step up the pace next Friday when they travel to Fort Worth for the Pepsi Cola Super 10 tournament. MHS faces Fort Worth Keller at 11 a.m. If they win, they will meet Fort Worth Dunbar later that day.

Mayors to discuss NFL franchise shifting

CLEVELAND (AP) — Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley said he plans to join other mayors at a meeting next month in Cleveland to discuss the issue of NFL franchise shifting.

Daley said Friday that he was attending the meeting at the request of Mayor Michael R. White. White has been working to stop the Cleveland Browns from moving to Baltimore in 1996.

White spokeswoman Nancy Lesic confirmed Saturday that White has been calling mayors, but said she had no further details.

A message seeking additional comment was left at her home Saturday night.

In the past week, the Houston Oilers signed an agreement to move to Nashville, and a group of northwestern Indiana businessmen unveiled a proposal to lure the Bears out of Chicago and into nearby Gary, Ind.

Daley said he hopes to come out of the Cleveland meeting with a consensus plan for lobbying Congress against what he said were monopolistic practices by the NFL.

Stoudamire shoots Toronto to victory over Washington

By The Associated Press

LANDOVER, Md. — Damon Stoudamire's off-balance 13-footer with 2.5 seconds left gave the expansion Toronto Raptors their first road victory, 103-102 over the Washington Bullets on Saturday night.

Stoudamire had 23 points and 10 assists as Toronto won its second straight game after losing seven in a row.

Washington took 102-101 lead, its first since the first quarter, with 47.1 seconds left when Juwan Howard hit a short jumper.

Heat 93, Magic 90

MIAMI — Bimbo Coles hit a 3-pointer with 19.9 seconds remaining to lift Miami over Orlando, snapping the Magic's six-game winning streak.

Dennis Scott scored 22 points. Anfernee Hardaway, the league's leading scorer averaging nearly 29 points a game, was held to just 18, scored only two in the second half and left the game in the fourth quarter with a leg cramp.

Alonzo Mourning had 19 points and 12 rebounds for the Heat.

Cavaliers 93, Pistons 90

CLEVELAND — Terrell Brandon had 27 points and 12 assists, including a key basket and assist in the last two minutes, as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Detroit Pistons.

The victory was the Cavaliers' second in two nights after they started the season with seven consecutive losses. The Pistons have lost two straight.

Pacers 118, SuperSonics 104

INDIANAPOLIS — Reggie Miller returned from a one-game suspension for fighting to score 35 points as the Indiana Pacers beat the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Pacers made 10 3-pointers, one shy of the team record.

The SuperSonics played almost the entire second half without coach George Karl, who was ejected with 10: 11 left in the third quarter following his second technical foul. Indiana went on a 16-7 run after Karl's ejection.

Nets 95, 76ers 79

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Armon Gilliam had 24 points and 12 rebounds and the New Jersey Nets remained perfect at home by limiting Philadelphia to a season-low 33 first-half points.

Kevin Edwards added 13 points for New Jersey, which outrebounded Philadelphia 30-15 on the offensive boards. Jayson Williams had 13 rebounds for the Nets and Chris Childs had 14 assists.

Jazz 126, Timberwolves 102

MINNEAPOLIS — Karl Malone had another big game against Minnesota, scoring 15 of his 31 points during a six-minute span in the second quarter to send the Utah Jazz over the Timberwolves.

Malone, who has averaged almost 27 points against the Timberwolves, missed the first six minutes of the second quarter after falling hard on his ankle late in the first. But he came back to score 15 in the last half of the period, going 6-for-6 during a 28-18 Utah spurt that gave the Jazz a 56-46 halftime lead they never relinquished.

Celtics 99, Bucks 93

MILWAUKEE — Dino Radja scored 21 points, including 15 during a key run in the third quarter, as the Boston Celtics beat the Milwaukee Bucks.

Rookie forward Eric Williams had 18 points, 16 in the first half, and Sherman Douglas added 18, 10 in the fourth quarter.

Rockets 101, Nuggets 97

HOUSTON — Clyde Drexler had 21 points and converted a key three-point play late in the game to help the Houston Rockets hold off the Denver Nuggets.

Robert Horry led Houston, which won its fourth straight, with 22 points.

After Drexler's three-point play with 1: 15 left gave the Rockets a 98-91 lead, the Nuggets made it 98-95 with 41 seconds left. Sam Cassell then hit a basket and a free throw in the final 20 seconds to secure the win.

Spurs 109, Hornets 107

SAN ANTONIO — Sean Elliott made two free throws with 4.0 seconds left as the San Antonio Spurs edged the Charlotte Hornets.

Elliott was fouled while driving to the basket by Glen Rice.

David Robinson led the Spurs with 27 points and 14 rebounds. Elliott had 21 points and Avery Johnson had 18 for San Antonio.

Larry Johnson led Charlotte with 28 points, but missed a 3-pointer at the buzzer as the Hornets remained winless on the road.

Suns 107, Trail Blazers 102

PHOENIX — Wesley Person scored 26 points, the last two on free throws after he got a defensive rebound with 4.7 seconds left, and Phoenix defeated Portland.

The return of Suns playmaker Kevin Johnson after four games off because of a strained knee tendon offset a 30-point night by Portland's Clifford Robinson and sparked the Suns to their sixth win.

TALL: MHS beats Lee for tourney title

ish its win over their cross-town rivals.

"We really wanted to win (the championship) because it was Lee," MHS senior post Toya Zachery said. "Lee rebounds really aggressively and they always play us tough."

Nisha Washington led the Lady Rebels with a game-high 15 points while Angie Seibold added 10.

Tia McCutcheon, Laura Childress and Toya Zachery all had 10 points each to lead Midland High.

The Lady Bulldogs erased a six-point defecit in the second quarter and kept Lee at at all through the second half. Lee got as close as two points when Angie Seibold hit a layup with 3:56 left in the third to cut MHS' lead to 32-30, but Midland High never surrendered the lead. A 12-5 run at the end of the third quarter gave the Lady Dawgs a nine-point lead going into the fourth quarter, its biggest lead of the game.

"That's what happens when our pressure works," Raughton said. "We got some turnovers and pumped in a few points and them it just snowballs from there."

The Lady Rebels' offense finally found some of the spark which helped them win their first two tournament games by an average of 39.5 points midway through the fourth qurater. Washington hit a 10-foot jumper to bring Lee within 50-44, but the Lady Rebels could not hit free throws down the stretch.

The Lady Rebels hit only nine of 20 free throws in the game, but more importantly, missed six of 11 in the fourth quarter in key situations.

Rangers, Buffaloes get vindication, now sets sights on history-making victories

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

Friday night, the Greenwood and Stanton football teams faced rematches against two of the state's best in their respective classifications. Both teams avenged earlier losses with playoff victories.

The wins put the teams into this week's area round with a chance to make some history, but getting this first win of the 1995 playoffs proved to be sweet indeed.

"It was big to win a bi-district game," said Greenwood football coach Bob Purser, whose team defeated Alpine 24-19. "With our (previous) game being so close, we felt like we could play with them. The problem was the familiarity."

District 8-3A runner-up Greenwood, who lost to the Bucks 30-23 in the regular season, improved its record to 9-2 for the season while Alpine, who came into the game ranked at No. 9 in Class 3A and champions of District 7-3A, suffered its lone loss in 11 tries.

However, coach Purser said the rankings and record didn't affect his team as much as the familiarity that the two teams have for one another.

"It seemed like neither team could do much offensively except for a big play," said Purser. "Both groups played hard. It (the win) is bigger because it is Alpine and because of our rivalry with them."

Greenwood, who lost in the area round to Ballinger in 1994, will have another chance to go farther than any team in Ranger history with a win versus Abilene Wylie at 2 p.m. next Saturday at San Angelo Stadium.

Stanton, 9-2 for the season, took advantage of eight Iraan turnovers en route to its 28-6 bi-district win Friday in San Angelo.

In the team's first return to the playoffs since 1988, the Stanton defense, which has now allowed under 10 points a game over the last seven games, bent but didn't break to keep the Braves, 10-1, out of the end zone for most of the game despite allowing over 300 yards total offense. Iraan had been outscoring opponents by 36 points per contest.

This meeting was rematch of a Week 5 Stanton loss to Iraan. The Buffaloes turned the ball over five times in the 28-0 loss. For Stanton coach Mark Cotton, who hadn't beat Iraan in five previous meetings (four as an assistant coach), said the victory is a good one for the program.

"We wanted to get that playoff monkey off our back," Cotton said. "You reflect on it for a long time. We had a lot of kids suited up. They see what it is all about."

Stanton, the runner-up of District 6-2A, will also go for its first-ever win in the Class 2A area round when the Buffs take on Hamlin, 9-1, at San Angelo Stadium on Friday at 7:30 p.m. In 1988, Stanton beat Winters before falling to in the area playoffs. Cotton says he will have them ready for Hamlin, where Cotton started his coaching career.

"Their (the players) confidence level is sky high," said Cotton who coached at Hamlin from 1978-84. "You walk with a little spring in your step.

"I only had three hours sleep and still haven't felt it."

In other area action, Rankin, who beat the Tornillo 53-13 Friday in a Class A bi-district game Friday in Alpine, also advanced to the area round. The Red Devils, 9-2, will play Sudan, 6-4, Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Seminole.

Midland Christian, in its "Drive for Five," won its first game in the TAPPS six-man playoffs 58-8 over Granbury Happy Hill Farm. The Mustangs, 10-1, will play the winner of Saturday's Waxahachie Cornerstone-Quinlan Boles Home game.

Sorenstam increases lead to six at Australian Ladies Masters

The Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

GOLD COAST, Australia — Swedish star Annika Sorenstam, seeking her sixth victory of the year, shot a 6-under-par 67 today to increase her lead to six shots after the third round of the Australian Ladies Masters.

AP Laserphoto

Lee Janzen blasts a shot out of the bunker on the first hole of the Shark Shootout Saturday.

Sorenstam had seven birdies and one birdie as she moved to 18-under-par after 56 holes in damp, gusty conditions over the Royal Pines course.

Liselotte Neumann, Sorenstam's compatriot and winner of last week's Australian Open, had a 69 for second at 207.

American Jane Geddes, a two-time champion, was another stroke back at 208 after the best round of the day — a 65.

Shark Shootout

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Steve Elkington and Mark Calcavecchia combined to shoot an 11-under-par 61 on Saturday and took a two-stroke lead after the second round of the $1,100,000 Shark Shootout.

Elkington, the PGA champion and Calcavecchia, a former British Open champion, posted a two-day total of 125, 19-under.

Two back was the team of Tom Lehman and David Duval, which also shot 61 and was at 127.

Lee Janzen and Chip Beck's 9-under 63 put them at 128, two clear of a four-team jam.

At 130 were the teams of Hale Irwin and Bruce Lietzke, tournament host Greg Norman and Ray Floyd, defending champions Fred Couples and Brad Faxon, and first round co-leaders Tom Kite and Jay Haas.

Pebble Beach Invitational

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Bob Ford, seeking to become the first club pro to win the Pebble Beach Invitational, had a three-stroke lead over former PGA Tour player Ronnie Black after Saturday's third round.

Ford, from the Oakmont Country Club near Pittsburgh, shot a 1-under 71 on the Spyglass Hill course for a three-round total of 12-under 204. He also had a three-shot lead after the second round.

A club pro has never won the $250,000 tournament, which is in its 24th year.

Black had the day's best round with a 65 on the Del Monte Course.

RESPECT: Mustangs will face Pampa

(From 1C)

The Andrews running game amassed 338 yards with Williams getting 190 on 14 carries. The freshman halfback ran 28 and 78 yards for scores in the third quarter, the only tallies of the second half. He now has 351 yards in his last two games.

The Mustangs had only 74 yards rushing in the first half. But some halftime lecturing from Lebby helped changed that.

"(I told them) that they were pitiful, that we stunk the field up offensively," Lebby said. "Then we did play lots better in the second half."

El Paso's offensive line outweighed Andrew's defensive front by about 60 pounds per man. But once the Mustangs showed they could stop the Tiger's running game, El Paso couldn't come u, with a passing attack to save themselves. Tiger quarterback Frank Rivera competed only three of 13 passes and threw two interceptions.

"Their size kind of intimidated us at first," Andrews tackle Chisum Moore said. "But we knew what we had to do and we did it."

El Paso rushed for 18 yards in the second half.

"I think they wore us down," El Paso coach Carlos Lowenberg said. "Our size didn't help at all. I was scared to put the ball up because we hadn't had much success all year throwing."

A Rivera interception ended the Tigers best scoring threat, which came on their first drive. El Paso got three first downs to move the Andrews 29 but Mark Kidd picked off Rivera's pass on third and eight.

"Our kids up front are pretty strong and that's been the strength of our defense all year," Lebby said. "If we keep playing defense like that, we have a chance. We have a big-play threat (now)."

Williams wasn't playing for the Mustangs when they lost to Pampa earlier. He may not be able to make a difference in the rematch, but he definitely helped swing the game in Andrews favor this Saturday.

"We knew Williams was a good running back," Lowenberg said. "We needed to contain him but we didn't get it done."

Williams had only 46 yards in the first half. But his first carry of the second went 28 yards for a touchdown on a drive set up by Justin Strickland's 18 yard return of an El Paso punt.

On his 78-yard score, Williams took a pitch left, ran around end and then cut back at the Tiger 40 yard line, leaving El Paso players in his wake.

"I saw that I pretty much had a chance and I turned on the jets," Williams said. "I knew I had to get to the zone."

Williams 28-yard touchdown was on the Mustangs' first possession of the second half. After that El Paso either punted or turned the ball over on its last five drives.

The Mustangs also took advantage of a short field for their first score. Strickland's 19-yard return set Andrews up at the El Paso 24 and Caleb Waller capped a four-play drive with a one-yard touchdown run. And the Mustangs were on their way to some vindication.

Eder snatches first career title

BEAVER CREEK, Colo. (AP) — Elfi Eder of Austria packaged two solid runs to win a women's World Cup slalom Saturday for her first career victory in six seasons on the circuit.

Eder, whose best previous finish was fourth in 1994, negotiated a steep, icy course in 39.11 seconds for the first run — .16 seconds faster than Edda Mutter of Germany.

Mutter missed a gate in the second run, and Eder had the fifth-fastest time in the second heat for an aggregate time of 1 minute, 22.49 seconds. Norway's Marianne Kjoerstad came from eighth place in the first run to wind up second, .71 seconds back, despite doing a face-plant across the finish line.

Gabriela Zingre-Graf of Switzerland was third at 1:23.29, followed by teammates Martina Accola at 1:23.31 and Karin Roten at 1:23.55.

Germany's Martina Ertl, who won a super-G at nearby Vail on Thursday, was seventh after the first run but missed a gate on the second run.

The race figured to award a first-time winner, since five of the top six finishers in the first run were winless.

Eder, 25, is the sister of World Cup veteran Sylvia Eder, who retired last summer.

CHAP: Team is heathiest it is has been all season

(From 1C)

Lady Jackets 45-30 for the night.

And Johnson said it's been hard for the Lady Chaps to stay intense and focused in their early-season games.

"Because we're so far ahead at halftime we know we don't have to do much to win," said Johnson. "We wanted to hold them (Lady Jackets) to 40 points but we slowed down too much. We weren't concentrating as much."

It must have been especially tough against Howard Payne as Midland made use of the severe height advantage freshman post Ndaisse Ndaiye (6-foot-1) had over her defender, post Tamika Sutton (5-9). The Lady Chap guards had little trouble passing a lob over Sutton into the paint to Ndaiye, who had 22 of her game-high 32 points in the first half.

Sophomore guard Shannon Jordan had the best eye at finding Ndaiye in the middle as she finished with a team-high eight assists.

The Lady Chaps had four players in double digits as Greenwood sophomore Brandy Wright had 13 while freshman Fatou Cisse' and sophomore Malyssa Thorngren each added 12.

But despite the lack of pre-conference competition, Jones likes the way his team looks heading into Tuesday's game.

Thorngren, who had surgery this summer, has played in every game even though Jones had not wanted to use her as much so soon. Her knee, however, is almost completely healed. Also, back into the lineup on Saturday was returning sophomore Pam Hicks after she missed the first six with a stress fracture in her foot.

"We've played good at times but I think they're ready for conference," said Jones. "The non-conference games don't mean anything except for getting us used to playing with each other."

CHANG: Sampras loses in 76 minutes

new-found authority. Each had seven aces.

"A lot of things worked well for me," said Chang, who broke Sampras once in each set. "It was just one of those great days for me.

"It's always nice to win matches when you go out and you win them, rather than the other person losing them for you."

Sampras said Chang's return of serve also was critical.

"He was serving well on big points. I never found my range and he won the important points. That was the difference."

Sampras won the tournament in 1991 and 1994, and this year took the Wimbledon and U.S. Open titles for the third time each. Despite the loss, he will finish the season as No. 1 for the third consecutive year.

Chang has won four titles this year.

Becker will appear in his seventh final this year. He also won this event in 1988, when it was known as the Masters. Since 1985, he has played in all of the 11 year-end events except in 1993, when he failed to qualify. He lost to Sampras in last year's final.

Enqvist, playing in his first ATP Championship, was the only player to finish the round-robin portion of the event undefeated.

But he met his match in Becker, who was cheered loudly by the capacity crowd of 9,000 in the Festhalle.

Graf, Huber make WTA finale

NEW YORK (AP) — Steffi Graf was unhappy, Anke Huber was delighted. Together, they'll give the German taxman another $750,000 to worry about.

That's how much the top two finishers will pocket after Sunday's WTA Tour Championships finale, with the winner collecting $500,000.

Graf, the top seed and heavy favorite, grabbed a spot in the title match of this season-ending tournament by beating Natasha Zvereva 6-4, 6-3 in Saturday's semifinals. Huber then joined her German compatriot by blunting the power of Brenda Schultz-McCarthy 6-3, 6-3.

About the only thing that has bothered Graf this year has been the taxman. She has been questioned at least twice, and her father, Peter, currently is in jail for alleged tax evasion.

Despite her off-court problems, including a bad back and sore foot, Graf has been nearly unstoppable. Saturday's victory ran her 1995 match record to 46-2.

Zvereva, making a rare semifinal singles appearance in a major tournament, became the first player this week to break Graf's serve. It stirred her up.

That was when Zvereva, after losing the opening set, raced to a 3-0 lead.

Graf began the fourth game with an ace, her third of the match. After a double-fault, she served two more aces, then held serve by rocketing a forehand passing shot down the line.

She pulled even by breaking Zvereva's serve at 30, held at love, then broke Zvereva again, this time at 15. She was on a roll, one that didn't end until the match did.

Graf won six straight games to move within one victory of her fourth Championships title. In those six games, Zvereva won only six points.

Huber, who was labeled "the next Graf" when she first came on the tour six years ago, pulled off her first surprise when she won the coin toss and elected to receive.

Schultz-McCarthy, after all, has the biggest serve in women's tennis, a man-size shot that travels at speeds up to 120 mph. She also displayed a blazingly fast backhand in this tournament in beating seventh-seeded Magdalena Maleeva and No. 2 Conchita Martinez.

Huber, however, wouldn't be denied.

Zvereva suffered another loss later in the day when she and partner Gigi Fernandez were defeated in the doubles title match by the second-seeded team of Jana Novotna and Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 6-2, 6-1.

The winners share $200,000, while the losers, who were seeded No. 1 and seeking their third consecutive season-ending doubles crown, will split $100,000.

Whitaker gets knockout over Jake Rodriguez

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Pernell Whitaker knocked out Jake Rodriguez and Felix Trinidad knocked out Larry Barnes on Saturday night.

Then the two talked about fighting each other in a battle of welterweight champions.

"I am very intrested in fighting Whitaker, and he is very interested in fighting me," Trinidad said after he stopped Barnes in the fourth round in defense of the IBF 147-pound title at the Convention Center. He then watched Whitaker give a boxing lesson to Rodriguez before knocking him out in the sixth round in a WBC title defense.

"Everybody wants a Trinidad fight, so let's do it. Let's do it right now," said Whitaker, who said he didn't watch Trinidad's victory. "I'm sure my wife, Von, watched it and she'll give me a report when I get home (to Norfolk, Va.)."

To make such a fight, an agreement would have to be reached between Dan Duva, Whitaker's promoter, and Don King, Trinidad's promoter. Trinidad fought Barnes on a Duva card Saturday night because the Duvas won a purse bid for the mandatory defense.

Rodriguez had sparred with Whitaker before, but those sessions did not prepare Rodriguez to fight him for real. Whitaker outboxed Rodriguez for five rounds, then knocked him out in the sixth before an announced crowd of 5,112 to retain the WBC's 147-pound title.

Whitaker's knockout victory was his first since he knocked out Ben Baez in the first round Dec. 1, 1992 — eight fights ago. It was his first championship knockout since he beat Ron Nazario in the first round of a lightweight title bout Sept. 11, 1990.

Whitaker controlled the battle of left-handers from the outset, pounding Rodriguez's face lopsided with strong jabs and punishing 1-2s. In the sixth round, Whitaker landed six or seven shots to the head and body at the 1:20 mark, then knocked Rodriguez down with a four-punch combination. The former IBF junior welterweight champion struggled up at five.

Whitaker, who weighed the class limit of 147, then hit Rodriguez, 146 1/2, with a left to the head and a right to the body. Rodriguez took the 10-count at 2:45 of the round.

"I was able to get a good jab going, which set up the head shots, which set up the body shots, which helped me get him out of there," Whitaker said.

"He caught me with a good shot. What can I say? He's quick. He throws quick punches," Rodriguez said.

"Sparring with Jake didn't give me any advantage," Whitaker said. "That's with 14-ounce gloves, and you don't always spar like you fight."

Whitaker, a former lightweight, junior welterweight and junior middleweight champion, ran his record to 37-1-1 with 16 knockouts.

POWER POINTS OFFICIAL RULES

1. Object of the game is to amass as many of the 136 possible points as you can. Simply review the week's schedule of games, listed on entry form, and decide which game you are surest of picking a winner in. Write the name of your projected winner on the 16-point line. If that team wins its game that week, you win 16 points. Write the name of your second-surest winner on the 15-point line, and so on down to the 1-point line, which game you figure to be a toss-up. Next, fill in Tiebreaker 1, the total points scored by both teams in the week's Cowboys or Oilers game. If this step fails to produce a winner, the judges will apply Tiebreaker 2, total offensive yardage from scrimmage in this game. If a winner still doesn't emerge, a drawing will be held among those contestants still tied. Decisions of the judges are final. The weekly winner of the contest will receive $1,000.
2. Any entry form that does not contain a legible name, address, etc., will be disqualified.
3. Entries that fail to forecast a winner from each and every game will be disqualified, as will entries that fail to distinguish between the Jets and Giants of New York and, when necessary, between the Houston Oilers and the Houston Cougars.
4. No points are awarded on tie games or in case any game is not played for any reason during its scheduled week.
5. Entering POWER POINTS constitutes permission by contestant for his or her name and photograph to be used for news and reasonable promotional purposes at no charge.
6. Employees of this newspaper and their immediate families are ineligible to participate.

9. Neither this newspaper nor any co-sponsor will be responsible for illegible entry forms or those lost, stolen or damaged in any way.
10. Limit: one entry per person per week. Each entry must represent the original work of one entrant; "group" entries, "systems" or other attempts to enter multiple entries will be disqualified. Filling out extra forms and putting your friends' and relatives' names on them violates this rule. Any such entries are destroyed prior to grading.
11. Contestants must have reached the age of eight (8) years by the Sunday of any week's play.

KIA

It's about time everyone had a well-made car.

A rugged off-road vehicle for under $16,000*? Just how old is this ad?

You'd think the folks in accounting never talked to the ones in engineering. Especially since the Sportage has a tough 2-liter DOHC engine, shift-on-the-move 4-wheel drive and rugged full-box ladder frame you'd expect to find on a more expensive 4x4. It even has "a junior Range Rover feel" according to Road & Track's Open Road†. Yet the Sportage starts at only $15,695. Perhaps you should visit your local Kia dealer before anyone notices.

Introducing the Sportage 4x4. Starting at $15,695.

Kia's special introductory offer: Cash rebate of up to $1,250 on select Sportage models.

Kelly Grimsley Kia, 2603 East 8th Street, Odessa (800) 580-0441

*MSRP $15,695 for 1995 4WD Sportage DOHC with manual transmission, rear ABS and alloy wheels. Includes freight. Excludes registration, taxes, title and options. Actual prices set by Dealer may vary. †Used by permission. Reprinted from Road & Track's Open Road, June, 1995.
Limited time offer on new 4WD Sportage EX automatic DOHCs. Dealer participation may affect cost. Dealer sets actual prices. See Dealer for details. Always Tread Lightly!™ on public and private land and always wear your seat belt. © 1995 Kia Motors America, Inc.

The large kitchen offers plenty of work and storage space within a light and airy design. The center island adds flexibility to thte floor plan, as the does the sleable utility room.

The formal dining room and the living room are demarcated by a low wall. This allows each area to retain its own identity while opening up the floor plan.

Text and Design by Kes Gilhome, Photographs by Joe D. Williams

The Odessa based building company Whitehead Construction and Midland realtor Norma Pine have teamed up together to offer a new concept in local home sales.

The basic premise of their new arrangement is to offer home buyers the chance to build their own homes for less than $50 per square foot.

The rational behind the idea is simple. Whitehead Construction has a number of floor plans that can be built on sites on Whitman and Bluebird streets in Midland. Each of these floor plans offer the latest in energy efficiency, style and convenience and each comes with a number of different options that can built in.

The result is a home that is very up-to-date and flexible which means that home buyers can tailor their new home to their budget and lifestyle.

The first of these houses has already been built and is serving as a model for the new development. Located at 3933 Dorado in the Mission Pines subdivision, this charming four bedroom home offers a tremendous amount of space within a design that is certainly 'user friendly', as it combines practical features with original and elegant design elements.

This two story family house boasts four bedrooms, 2 1/2 bathrooms, two living areas as well as a large second floor game room.

The ground floor is consists of the formal and family areas and the kitchen. Surprisingly large, the kitchen is very light and airy and is full of all of the modern convenience one would expect from a much more expensive property. The emphasis here, as with the rest of the house, is on simplicity of line, energy efficiency and low maintenance. For example, all of the appliance have energy saving features built-in and the flooring is easy to care for. A sunny breakfast area and large air conditioned utility room complete the suite.

One of the particularly nice design aspects on the ground floor is the way in which the formal front room and the dining room have been demarcated. A low wall with accompanying column divides the two spaces. This results in a large, almost open-plan, suite with each area retaining its own identity.

The bedrooms and game room are found on the second floor. This large open space at the top of the stairs could be used as another living area or as a study. Large enough to hold a pool table this is an attractive room which offers plenty of flexibility.

Norma Pine of Chaparral Realtors will be holding an open house between one and five o'clock this afternoon to explain the new partnership and show prospective homebuyers this attractive property.

To get to the open house from Midland, take Highway 191 towards Odessa. Turn left (south) on Faudre Road and take the first left at the signs for Mission Dorado - this is Dorado. The open house is a few hundred feet up on the right.

For more information about this property, or to arrange an alternative appointment to view it, call the Chaparral office at (915) 686-7000.

The breakfast area (left) is awash with natural light and is a very pleasant place to spend the morning. The entrance hall (right) offers very practical tiled floor and an attractive - and imposing - front door.

The time to buy

Q: Is now a good time to buy real estate?

Jackson

A: In the current buyer's market, where available homes outnumber buyers in most areas of the country, the quick response is yes. Due to relatively low home mortgage rates and a variety of creative financing programs, this is probably one of the best times to find the "American Dream." Interest levels have dropped back down to lower levels, with 30-year, fixed rate mortgages just below eight-percent, and 15-year mortgages, (a popular option for people refinancing) in the 7.5 percent range.

Just a few short months ago, interest rates were in the eight percent plus range. The half-point difference can make a significant difference in monthly payments.

Based on a $150,000 mortgage, a good rule of thumb to remember is that every half-point reduction in a 30-year, fixed rate mortgage saves about $50 per month, or close to $600 per year. Obviously, lowering rates by just a percentage point or two can result in major savings.

For example, the buyer who financed a $140,000 loan last December when the rate was nine percent has a $1,126 monthly payment. That is $1,764 a year more than the buyer whose payment is $979 a month because the same $140,000 was financed at 7.5 percent eight months later.

Regardless of the interest rate you get, today's market is still good because of the huge inventories of product stockpiled across the country. Buyers are able to select exactly the home they want - within their price range - and sellers tend to be more flexible since they are competing with many other listings.

The government recently gave home buyers an additional boost by relaxing federal escrow requirements to reduce mortgage closing costs. This means more affordable housing.

And, of course, there is one other thing that continues to work for home ownership - the mortgage interest deduction that's available to owners - not renters.

Who is involved?

You have undoubtedly heard the jokes about how many people it takes to change a light bulb, but have you every wondered how many people are involved in the sale of a home?

Garrett

The obvious answer might be three. The buyer, seller and real estate agent. In fact there are probably many more - up to 10 or 15 individuals in various lines of work.

In the average real estate transaction, consisting of a single home, you may find a mortgage loan officer, a loan underwriter, an appraiser, a surveyor, a home inspector and a pest control company. In addition there may be repair companies, the tax assessor, a title insurance company, a home warranty company, utility companies, insurance companies and attorneys.

The process of being approved for a mortgage alone may involve dozens of creditors, several employers and banks, all of whom may be required to verify information provided to the mortgage company.

Who coordinates all of the relationships? The real estate agent. Just think of all the phone calls and personal meetings it takes to keep all of those business relationships moving along smoothly toward a surprise-free transaction closing.

To complicate matters, the sellers may be purchasing a home to which they plan to move at closing. That home may be occupied by a couple also planning to move at closing. Can you imagine the number of people it will take to complete a series of home transactions?

This is where real estate agents do their best work. They are trained in all aspects of a transaction. In many cases they already have professional relationships established with the lenders, attorneys, inspectors and appraisers involved.

Agents understand and work within the complex circumstances of real estate transactions on a daily basis. Trouble-free sales are the agent's mark of excellence. When you are ready to buy or sell real estate, call a realtor and put their experience to work for you.

Insulation tips

One of the primary areas in the home where heat is lost is the roof. Adding an extra layer of insulation is a job that can be done by the average 'do-it-yourselfer' in an afternoon.

Sutton

The first step is to determine how much insulation your attic will need. Check to find the thickness needed to obtain the R-value - the measure of insulating capacity recommended for your area. Then measure the thickness of any existing insulation by inserting a ruler between it and the joists. The difference between that measurement and the recommended amount will give you the thickness of the insulation you need to add.

Now multiply the length of the attic floor by the width to get the total number of square feet and subtract the area of any areas (such as trap doors) that should be left free.

Now measure the distance between the joists. Depending on whether these are 15 or 23 inches apart (these are standard widths) multiply your earlier figure by either 0.90 for the narrower distance and 0.94 for the wider distance. This will give you the amount in square feet of insulation you need to buy.

Fit the new insulation between the joists, following the manufacturers instructions, working from the outside to the middle of the house. The excess length is simply cut off where the sections meet. Wear protective clothes: gloves, a long-sleeved shirt and a face mask.

Call your local realtor for all your real estate needs.

Dressing Up the Turkey

It's almost Thanksgiving Day, and it is time to talk turkey.

Sure, the succulent roasted bird is supposed to be the traditional king of the Thanksgiving feast, but turkey is no longer cooked just for this special occasion.

Fact is, turkey has become a common year-round meat, often used in place of chicken or ground beef; therefore, a little of its novelty has worn off.

But a dressed turkey ... that's a whole different bird.

Dressing — or stuffing as some people call it — has always been the most important part of the meal for some gobblers.

However, how dressing is made varies from region to region, or for that matter, from family to family.

The first stuffings ever made may have been as simple as a cook stuffing the cavity of a bird with wild vegetables or herbs before roasting it over an open fire. Current-day stuffings are based more on flavored breads and can be stuffed in the bird's cavity to cook or baked in a casserole dish.

Some recipes call for bread, others for cornbread. The remaining ingredients are as varied as the cooks who make it.

There are even stuffing mixes available now to make the creation of the Thanksgiving feast easier on the cook.

For those cooks who still actually still stuff their turkeys — versus cooking their dressing in a separate pan — it is important to follow some safety measures. There is a proper way to go about it, according to Butterball's Turkey Talk-Line.

The Talk-Line recommends the turkey be stuffed just before roasting, not the night before. Stuffing the bird the night before could create contamination.

The recommended amount of stuffing is ¾ cup stuffing per pound for turkeys weighing up to 10 pounds, and for turkeys weighing more than 10 pounds, use ½ cup of stuffing per pound.

Brian Black headlines Diabetes Association fund-raising event

By Marilyn McKnight-Harrison

The Midland Chapter of the American Diabetes Association held its annual fundraiser, Holiday Festival, last weekend, with country-western performer Brian Black headlining the event.

McKnight-Harrison

More than 400 guests enjoyed hors d'oeuvres and beverages, along with dancing to preconcert music by DJ James Whitmire.

The silent and live auction was hosted by Mike Lawrence and Dana Carroll of KGEE FM, with Ernest Kiker as auctioneer. Seen bidding on auction items were John Redfern III, Verne Dwyer, Ned and Paula James, Kel Becker, Spencer and Tammy Bennett and Pat Monacelli.

Brian took the stage after the successful bidders were announced, and he surprised Midland Carrie Schreiber by inviting her to sing a number with him. During the break, Brian visited with several of the attendees, among them Jim and Elizabeth Madison, Scooter Tilley, Leslie Wood and Wayne Cain.

Brian and his band made a surprise appearance at The Cactus Moon, a local country and western nightclub, after the event. He also was accessible for an autograph session at Luskey's Western Store that morning.

Chairpeson for the fundraiser was Christina Little, and Lyndon Marquez was entertainment chairman. ADA president is Clair Koetitz.

CONGRATULATIONS and best wishes to newlyweds Heather Fergeson and Todd Conklin, who were united in marriage Saturday morning at Dallas's Highland Park United Methodist Church.

Festivities this weekend incuded a luncheon and manicure party at Maudee's for the bridesmatrons and a rehearsal dinner at Brookhollow Country Cub hosted by the groom's parents, Carolyn and Danny Conklin of Amarillo. The wedding reception was hosted by the bride's parents, Midlanders Donna and Ted Fergeson, at Dallas Country Club.

Parties held earlier in Midland included a Fiesta at the home of Nancy and Richard Gibson, a recipe shower in Midland Country Club's Garden Room, and a Celebration Supper at the home of Frances and Dr. Charlie Younger. Each of the parties was co-hosted by a number of close friends of the Fergeson family.

Other parties were held in Amarillo, Tulsa and Dallas.

The couple will make their home in Tulsa after a trip to Phoenix, Ariz.

THE MIDLAND WOMAN'S CLUB held its second Festive Fundraiser of the year, "The Mad Hatter Luncheon," recently at the clubhouse in Hogan Park.

To carry out the theme, tables were decorated with hat boxes and hats draped in clouds of tulle, from the collections of Hazel (Mrs. W.W.) Smith, Leona (Mrs. Walter) Smith and Allis (Mrs. W. Earl) Chapman.

After a luncheon featuring Chicken Crepes with cheese sauce and Chocolate and Lemon Layered Delight, members and guests participated in a hat competition. Winners were Neta Dill, funniest; Patsy (Mrs. E.J.) Garner, silliest; Nancy McKinley, prettiest; Ruth Newton, most creative, and Nancy (Mrs. Jim) Burford, for the ugliest.

Much to the audience's delight, vocalist Jane George entertained with a selection of Golden Oldies.

Among the guests were Mickey (Mrs. Alan P.) Hewitt, Elizabeth (Mrs. Jack) Glenn and Joan (Mrs. Richard) Zimmermann.

MIDLANDERS FLOCKED to Lubbock last weekend for two favorite pastimes — theater and football.

DRESSING: Dress up holiday bird

(From 1

Butterball's advice is to lightly stuff both cavities of the bird. Begin by stuffing the neck cavity first, then turn the wings back to hold neck skin in place or skewer if skin is too short. Then stuff the body cavity, but do not truss or skewer it closed.

All extra stuffing can be placed in foil or a casserole dish and cooked alongside the turkey during the last hour of roasting or until the stuffing's center is at least 160 degrees.

For any questions about holiday turkey or dressing, the Butterball Turkey Talk-line is open 8 a.m.-8 p.m. weekdays, 8 a.m.-6 p.m. today and 6 a.m.-6 p.m. Thanksgiving Day at 1-800-323-4848. The service is available in English and Spanish. An after-hours automated service also is available at the same phone number. For hearing or speech impaired assistance, call 1-800-TDD-3848.

If you've joined cyberspace, "Butterball Turkey On-Line" offers informative, entertaining and interactive information yearround, including a direct link to the Talk-Line's specially trained home economists, who will be online through December to respond to the world's turkey traumas. If you have access to the World Wide Web section of the Internet, check out http://www.butterball.com. Butterball's new home page.

The Turkey Talk-Line will continue to operate weekdays through Dec. 22.

If making dressing from scratch, or even from a mix, sounds like more work than you care to do, frozen stuffed turkeys can be purchased. These birds go from freezer to oven, usually with no thawing. But if you purchase a prestuffed bird or make your dressing from a mix, don't expect them to taste like mom's. Call mom and get her recipe.

Or if you're looking for a new flavor, here are a few suggestions on how to dress up your turkey dinner.

TRADITIONAL DRESSING

¼ pound bacon
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 quart white bread, crumbled in small pieces
¼ cup butter, melted
1 teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon poultry seasoning (use more if you like)
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg

Dice the bacon and fry with the onions until crisp. Add parsley, crumbled bread, butter and seasonings. If you like a moist dressing, add enough cold water to moisten. Beat and fold in the egg; stuff the fowl with it or bake in a buttered casserole until brown. For a drier crunchy dressing, do not add any liquid or egg.

From "Ma's In the Kitchen: You'll Know When It's Done!" the recipes and history of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, first woman governor of Texas, compiled by Carl McQueary & May Nelson Paulissen, Ph.D.

CORNBREAD DRESSING

1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
¼ butter
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon sage
4 cups dry, cubed bead
4 cups crumbled cornbread
1 egg beaten
2½ cups chicken broth
Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to moderate temperature; grease 7x12-inch pan. Saute celery and onion in butter; stir in seasonings, mix bread cubes and cornbread; add sauteed vegetables and egg; add broth, mix well. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes. This will stuff a 10 to 12 pound turkey. Approximately 16 servings.

From "Seconds of A Pinch of This and a Handful of That" compiled by The Daughters of the Republic of Texas District VIII.

LOW-FAT CORNBREAD STUFFIN' WITH APPLESAUCE

2 6-ounce packages of cornbread stuffing
3cups applesauce
½ tablespoon chopped tarragon (optional — adds tartness to applesauce)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ to 1 cup apple juice or water

Mix applesauce, tarragon (opt.) and cinnamon in a large bowl. Add the stuffing mix and mix thoroughly. Only add enough liquid to get proper moisture consistency, a half cup should be fine as the applesauce adds considerable moisture. Prepare stuffing just prior to roasting.

To make stuffing the bird even easier, use a stuffin' sack to make sure that stuffing removal is safe, clean and leaves no waste. Makes 12 servings.

1 4-ounce can diced green chilies, drained
¼ cup onion, chopped
1 16-ounce can cream-style corn
1 egg, lightly beaten
½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Butter or margarine, as needed, melted

In a large bowl, toss together all ingredients until well mixed. If a moister stuffing is desired, add melted butter. Turn mixture into a lightly greased 9x5-inch loaf pan or baking dish, or use as a stuffing for chicken, turkey or duck. Bake, covered in a 325 degree oven for 30 minutes; uncover and bake 10 minutes more to crisp top. Makes 6 servings.

Opinions vary on what is best stuffing for Thanksgiving turkey

Associated Press

For some people, stuffing is the best part of Thanksgiving dinner.

Mike Garnero, lecturing chef-instructor at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., says he and his sister always try to make the most original turkey stuffing.

"Over the years this sibling rivalry has produced some unusual combinations of ingredients," he says. "We have covered a wide range of ethnic and regional themes like apple-walnut stuffing from New England, an Italian sausage and fennel stuffing and an oyster and wild mushroom stuffing from the Northwest."

Garnero says his most unusual stuffing was a medley of grits, corn bread and country ham. But his favorite recipe is Northern California sourdough bread stuffing, his sister's recipe.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA SOURDOUGH BREAD STUFFING

1 pound sourdough bread, cut into large croutons
3 large onions, chopped
4 tablespoons butter
4 cups mushrooms, sliced
5 stalks celery, chopped
16-ounce jar roasted red peppers, cut into strips
Two 8-ounce jars marinated artichokes, split
2 tablespoons fresh thyme, chopped
2 tablespoons poultry seasoning
2 tablespoons fresh sage, chopped
4 tablespoons parsley, chopped
2 eggs, beaten
4 cups turkey stock
Salt and pepper, to taste

Place croutons in a large bowl.

In a saucepan, saute onions in butter until translucent. Reduce heat and add mushrooms. Continue to cook until the mushrooms begin to release their juices.

Add celery, peppers and artichokes; cook a few minutes more. Pour mixture over croutons and cool to room temperature. Add thyme, poultry seasoning, sage and parsley; combine thoroughly. Mix in eggs and enough stock to moisten. Season with salt and pepper. Transfer stuffing into lightly greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Cover with aluminum foil, and bake in preheated 350-degree oven until stuffing is heated through, about 30 minutes. Uncover stuffing and bake until top is crisp, about 20 minutes. The dressing may also be stuffed into the cavity of the turkey.

APPLE-WALNUT STUFFING

1 pound day-old loaf bread, cut into large croutons
3 large onions, chopped
4 tablespoons butter
5 stalks celery, chopped
2 cups leeks, sliced
4 large Granny Smith apples, diced
2 cups toasted walnuts
2 tablespoons celery seed
2 tablespoons fresh sage, chopped
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
2 eggs, beaten
4 cups dark turkey stock
Salt and black pepper, to taste

Place croutons in a large bowl.

In a saucepan, saute onions in butter until translucent. Add celery, leeks and apples. Continue to cook a few minutes more. Pour mixture over croutons and cool to room temperature.

Add walnuts, celery seed, sage and poultry seasoning to cooled mixture; combine thoroughly. Mix in eggs and enough stock to moisten. Season with salt and pepper.

Transfer stuffing into lightly greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Cover with aluminum foil; bake in preheated 350-degree oven until stuffing is heated through, about 30 minutes.

Uncover stuffing and bake until top is crisp, about 20 minutes. The dressing may also be stuffed into the cavity of the turkey.

ITALIAN SAUSAGE AND FENNEL STUFFING

1 pound day-old loaf bread, cut into large croutons
1 pound Italian sausage, cooked
3 large onions, chopped
4 tablespoons butter
2 heads fennel, chopped
1 pound shiitake mushrooms, sliced
5 stalks celery, chopped
2 tablespoons garlic, chopped
1 tablespoon fennel seed
2 tablespoons oregano, chopped
1 tablespoon marjoram, chopped
2 eggs, beaten
4 cups turkey stock
Salt and pepper, to taste

Place croutons in large bowl.

Coarsely chop the Italian sausage.

In a saucepan, saute onions in butter until translucent. Reduce heat; add fennel and shiitake mushrooms.

Continue to cook until the mushrooms begin to release their juices. Add celery and garlic, cook for a few more minutes.

Pour mixture over croutons and cool to room temperature. Add fennel seed, oregano and marjoram to cooled mixture and combine thoroughly.

Mix in eggs and enough turkey stock to moisten. Season with salt and pepper.

Transfer stuffing into lightly greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Cover with aluminum foil, and bake in preheated 350-degree oven until stuffing is heated through, about 30 minutes.

Uncover stuffing and bake until top is crisp, about 20 minutes. The dressing may also be stuffed into the cavity of the turkey.

Yard waste can be transformed into valuable mulch for plants

By Deborah A. Benge-Frost

As fall freezes start coming, we have leaves, grass clippings, garden refuse and other dried-up, expired plant tissue to deal with. It has been a practice of most home owners to rake, gather and dump these materials in the dumpster, except for the enlightened gardener who knows how valuable this organic matter is for soil improvement. Instead of throwing it away, we can compost it, greatly improving our soils and plant performance, and saving valuable space in the landfill.

Benge-Frost

Composting isn't an easy task. You must be attentive and persistent to accomplish the resulting "black gold." Composting is defined as the biological degradation or breakdown of organic matter by a managed process. Let's take this textbook definition of composting and look more closely:

Biological simply means the method of breakdown of raw organic matter. Several biological life forms assist in the breaking down of organic matter. Most of the organism are too small to see, but some are large enough to see.

Some of the life forms involved in this natural degradation process are bacteria, actinomycetes, fungi, mites, millipedes, centipedes, sowbugs, snails, various insects and earthworms. Because these biological organisms exist in plentiful supply on the organic matter and in the soil, the addition of "store bought" innoculants such as enzymes, hormones, living organisms and starters are not really necessary.

Degradation is a gradual and complex operation in which chemical and biological processes act on raw organic matter, changing it into a stable form referred to as humus. The life forms we looked at in the previous paragraph are some of the decomposers necessary for this degradation to take place.

Organic matter is the matter that comes from living or once-living organisms that gradually can be broken down to yield important plant nutrients composed of materials which contain carbon-to-carbon bonds and are biodegradable. Although there are many examples, some are paper, wood, some food scraps, yard trimmings and leaves. Organic matter content is the key to a soil's fertility, structure and plant yielding ability.

We live in an area where lots of easy-to-come-by organic matter just doesn't exist. As successful gardeners we must be creative in looking for and utilizing sources of organic matter. That means taking advantage of grass clippings, leaves, sawdust, straw, pine needles and other items of yard waste.

A managed process means taking nature's example but manipulating it for quicker results. This managed process requires certain ingredients such as air, moisture, particle size temperature, and a sufficient source of carbon and nitrogen. If any one of these ingredients is missing or in too large a quantity, the efficiency of the decomposition will be slowed or stopped.

Oxygen is necessary for microbes to decompose organic matter. Oxygen throughout can be enanced by air flow, bin construction, amount of moisture and turning. If a pile or a portion of a pile goes below 5 percent oxygen, it will begin to smell. This action is referred to as anaerobic decomposition, which is another name for rotting. Generally oxygen is not a great problem in our area because we are so arid.

Maintaining moisture is going to be a more difficult to maintain at a proper level. Adequate moisture is essential for microbial activity. Not enough (or too much) moisture will cause microbes to die off. Compost piles in our area must have water added to them periodically to maintain moisture. Keep compost piles damp but not soggy. If one should get too wet, turn it until it begins to dry out.

For faster composting, keep particle size as small as possible. Grinding and chopping organic matter into smaller pieces will greatly shorten the decomositon time. A chipper/shredder is especially useful for this purpose. Leaves that have dropped can be raked into windrows and mowed several times. Mowing with a grass catcher can reduce particle size for quicker breakdown.

Temperature of the compost pile is very important for optimum microbe activity. Cold (or excessively high) outside temerature slows the process down. Since we live in a relatively mild, warm climate, we have a long season in which to compost.

Carbon and nitrogen are important ingredients in the pile, but their proportion or ratio to one another is even more so. The relationship is called the C: N ratio, which is a by-weight ratio, not volume. Both carbon and nitrogen are needed by microbes, but carbon is needed in a greater quantity. Carbon to nitrogen ranges are best kept at 25: 1 up to 35: 1. Carbon levels below or above this will slow decompositon. C: N ratios for common forms of organic matter are: food scraps, 15: 1; grass clippings, 12-25: 1; coffee grounds, 20: 1; alfalfa hay, 18: 1; horse manure, 25: 1; oak leaves (fresh) 26: 1; straw, 80: 1; pine needles, 60-110: 1; and weathered sawdust, 625: 1.

Generally speaking, coarse, dry materials such as wood chips and straw are high in carbon and low in nitrogen. "Green" materials such as grass clippings, food scraps and manures tend to be the opposite. Obtaining the ideal 30: 1 ratio is impossible, but with experience — developing recipes and blending materials — better C: N ratios will result for quicker, more efficient composting.

Composting can be difficutl and trying, but it is an excellent method of adding the much-needed organic matter to our deprived soils. It is also an excellent method of recycling yard wastes. For more information on home composting, contact the local County Extension Office.

DEAR ABBY

Christmas spirit pulls girl in different directions

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 years old and the mother of a 4½-year-old daughter I'll call Tracey. I have a problem getting into the Christmas spirit, and here's why:

Van Buren

I worry about how to please everyone, since many people want to spend time with Tracey during the holidays.

My parents live next door. They want Tracey to wake up in their home on Christmas morning. Her biological father and his wife want time with her, and my husband's parents, who are divorced, each want to spend time with their granddaughter. Her father's parents also want to see Tracey and shower her with gifts.

All of these people love Tracey very much and are involved in her life, but she's only one little girl, and I can't split her into six pieces. Please don't suggest that I invite them all to my home. It would never work.

What should I do? — PERPLEXED MOMMY

DEAR PERPLEXED: Make five slips of paper with the days of the week preceding Christmas (reserving the sixth day —Christmas Day — for you and your husband). Ask each relative to draw a day from the hat, and that will be THEIR day to celebrate with your daughter. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, I accepted a full-time job after working part time for 10 years and juggling all the household chores and cooking.

When I accepted full-time employment, I sat down with my husband and told him that I would be working until 5:30 p.m. every weekday, and by the time I finally got home, it would be too late to start cooking dinner.

My husband agreed to do the cooking every week night, and I would do the dishes. On weekends, I would cook and he would do the dishes. He also pitches in with other household chores.

Abby, my husband could be an example for the mother who was burned out with motherhood. If her husband would help her, she would have more time to nourish the "self" she feels she is losing.

We have been married for 19 years, and compared to most husbands I've read about in your column, I've got a gem. Don't you agree? — PROUD WIFE, BUFFALO, N.Y.

DEAR PROUD WIFE: I couldn't agree more. In any marriage, if both parties are willing to cooperate, few problems are insurmountable. Your husband sounds like a winner. Take good care of him.

DEAR ABBY: Some letters you have printed recently regarding the problems of a 70-year-old man who is impotent remind me of a story that you might find amusing.

An elderly gentleman who was becoming impotent asked his doctor if there was medical help for his condition.

After an examination, the doctor told the patient there was hope and explained that he had two choices.

The first was a medical procedure that doctors had found was effective in 75 percent of the patients and cost $10,000.

The second was a surgical procedure that was a guaranteed cure for impotence and cost $30,000.

Because of the money involved, the patient asked for time to discuss the choices with his wife.

A week later, when the doctor asked if the patient and his wife had made a decision, he replied, "Yes, we've decided to remodel our kitchen." — WALTER S. GRAULICH, CHERRY HILL, N.J.

Even mustard has sunk to new low

By Erma Bombeck

You can tell (as my grandmother used to say) when the world is going to hell in a handbasket.

Bombeck

Language becomes coarse (see above), manners are nonexistent, and there are no rules for taste.

The last bastion of tasteful advertising, wedged between Calvin Klein's nude bodies and a woman bloated up with gas at the dinner hour, was Grey Poupon mustard.

No more. It has become common.

I always felt regal when I held a jar of the condiment in my hand. When I approached a red traffic light, I fought the temptation to roll down my car window and ask, "Pardon me, would you have any Grey Poupon?"

Somehow it wasn't the same sitting in an '85 Wagoneer and talking to the occupant of a cement truck.

Then the promotion of the mustard took a turn. Actors were shown using it on hot dogs! (Ugh.) This was followed by butlers in rented tuxedos and five leased Rolls-Royces in Manhattan's Central Park serving samples at lunchtime to the masses.

Finally we watched the last blow against culture as we know it. The elegant man in the back seat of a Rolls-Royce squeezes the bottle, making a sound that could be construed as something you do behind a closed door. The passenger apologizes to his driver, but it is too late to convince him that the mustard did it.

Some people will say it's the times we live in. That's the way the mustard spreads. I say first it's the mustard, then "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter" put in the hands of the bourgeoisie.

France has not exported such elegance since snails. Even designer water was never held in such high regard.

In Dijon, the capital of the province of Burgundy, one resident was quoted as saying, "We have the airs of the wealthy — without the wealth. The mustard museum is open by appointment only on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons." (I'll bet. "When do you open?" "What time can you get here?")

There is one thing Europeans should know about Americans. We are basically snobs and will buy any cosmetic from a spokesperson with a foreign accent that means nothing to us. We will pay twice as much for clothes that have washing instructions printed in a language we cannot understand.

Mustard is such a cheap shot. With its color and texture, it is hard to resist being tacky. But we have dignity and class at stake here. Let's put Grey Poupon back in the hands of the elite and out of the realm of "Married With Children" people.

Books can be 'just the thing' for coming gift-giving season

Associated Press

Publishers go all out at holiday time with lavishly produced coffee-table books, on subjects both universal and arcane. Some picks:

■ "The Encyclopedia of New York City" (Yale University Press, $60 hardcover), edited by Kenneth T. Jackson, is 1,372 pages of things you may never have thought to ask about the Big Apple. For example, Cartier, the upmarket jewelers, bought the Fifth Avenue Renaissance mansion of banker Morton F. Plant in exchange for a pearl necklace. Cobble Hill, in Brooklyn, still has a wealth of pre-Civil War church buildings and a fine collection of 19th century buildings. The Bronx derives its name from an early Scandinavian settler and community leader, Jonas Bronck, whose stone house was in the area.

■ Also celebrating New York City is "Manhattan, With Love" (Glen House Communications, $50 hardcover), with paintings and text by Dorothy Rice.

■ It's the 100th anniversary of the motion picture, and film addicts will be able to wallow in nostalgia with "Chronicle of the Cinema" (Dorling Kindersley, $59.95 hardcover), with stills, posters, mini-reviews, profiles of actors and directors, vignettes about the studios, theaters, the business, and a chronology of how it all happened, starting with the introduction of Thomas Edison's kinetoscope and the first movie showing in Paris.

■ Science fiction fans have their treat, too, with "Science Fiction: The Illustrated Encyclopedia" (Dorling Kindersley, $39.95 hardcover), by John Clute. The imaginary worlds with galactic empires and alien monsters are relevant to reality, argues the author: "It is, after all, the only genre of fiction that directly addresses the true nature of the times we live in, and describes the powers we now wield."

■ Stephen Lyman is an environmentalist who has made at least 35 trips alone into Yosemite National Park. He also is a skilled painter and photographer, and the result is "Into the Wilderness" (Artisan, $40 hardcover), a portrait of the parkland.

■ "Secrets of the Dark Chamber" (Smithsonian Institution Press, $55 hardcover), from the National Museum of American Art, is a collection of daguerreotype pictures of people and places in the 19th century — images from the beginning of photography.

■ Dog lovers will love "The Encyclopedia of the Dog" (Dorling Kindersley, $39.95 hardcover), by Dr. Bruce Fogle. It's a good guide with information about each breed's history, physical characteristics and behavior. Fogle also explains why dogs behave as they do and tells owners how to groom, feed and care for their pooches.

Publishers open holiday season with new books for cooks

Associated Press

Something's cooking at the booksellers:

■ "The Thanksgiving Cookbook" (Macmillan, $12 paperback), by Holly Garrison, pays culinary tribute to America's fall feast.

This collection is a record of traditional dishes (including an entire chapter devoted to buying, handling, cooking, roasting and carving the turkey), but there also are recipes for those who want to try something different.

■ "The Perfect Thanksgiving Book" (Lorenz Books, $8.95 hardcover), edited by Lindley Boeghold, offers some sophisticated alternatives, including a vegetarian medley baked in a pumpkin shell, spiced parsnip soup, Cornish game hens with cranberry sauce, and rosemary bread.

■ "The Whole World Loves Chicken Soup" (Warner Books, $22.95 hardcover), by Mimi Sheraton, makes the point that this comforting potion crosses national and ethnic boundaries and is a truly international, ecumenical dish.

The author includes recipes for basic "Jewish penicillin," Louisiana's Creole chicken and okra gumbo, Scotland's cock-a-leekie, China's wonton, and many others.

■ "Classic Home Cooking" (Dorling Kindersley, $39.95 hardcover), by Mary Berry and Marlena Spieler, is a basic, with 1,000 recipes illustrated by the step by step photographs that are characteristic of this publisher.

■ "Reader's Digest Down Home Cooking" (Reader's Digest Books, $28 hardcover), created by Beth Allen, revisits lots of old favorites updated with nutritional smarts. Some examples: Indian corn stew, potluck pasta, ladies luncheon chicken salad, San Francisco sourdough.

■ "Perfect Preserves" (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, $35 hardcover or $24.95 paperback), by Nora Carey, has captured two types of treats: instructions and recipes for preserves, pickles, vinegars and purees, and photographs (by Mick Hales) of gardens and landmarks in Great Britain where the produce is grown.

■ The jokes about English and Irish food are due for retirement, says Gwenda L. Hyman, author of "The New Cooking of Britain and Ireland" (John Wiley & Sons, $18.95 paperback). A new generation of cooks has elevated the fare across the board, from the cozy country pub to elegant hotel restaurants, taking advantage of the islands' natural abundance of produce and pasturage. Hyman offers new recipes from the kitchens of these cooks as well as for comforting traditional favorites.

An American passion forms the backdrop for the exhibit at Gallery 1114 — "Painted Wheels: Cars and Art."

"Everybody can relate to cars," said artist Travis Beckham. "Cars are powerful visual and symbolic objects in their own right.

"They can convey prestige and wealth and power and sex and any number of things that motivate us as social animals. When they come off the line, they're sort of corporate sculpture that's had a lot of thought given to it aesthetically. That can produce good results or bad. Some cars are very, very beautiful objects. There are cars in museums because they are so well done aesthetically."

Cars have held a fascination for Beckham "all his life.

"I was a car nut when I was a little kid. I drew cars ... and thought at one time I might be a designer — when I was still a kid in my teens, before I became serious about art in general."

The show, which remains on view through Nov. 30 at 1114 N. Big Spring St., features works by three artists — Beckham and Santa Fe, N.M., residents, former Midlander Polly Jackson and Jane Shea. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Thursday through Sunday. All works are for sale.

The idea for "Painted Wheels: Cars and Art" developed out of Beckham's interest in cars and his feeling that the works of three different artists on a subject that has such an allure for Americans would appeal to the public.

"It seemed to me that an expressive object like cars would be a good starting point for

Julio Iglesias

ODESSA — The odds are that a Julio Iglesias song is playing at this moment somewhere in the world. More than one song will be played for area residents when this international star performs at 8 p.m. Nov. 28 at Ector County Coliseum.

Iglesias has recorded 70 albums, sold more than 200 million copies and been awarded more than 1,500 gold and platinum records worldwide. He's listed in the "Guinness Book of World Records" as having sold more records in more languages than any musical artist in history.

Yet, he didn't start out in life to be a singer. His dream, when he was young, was to play soccer.

"First, I'm lucky because I never expected my life to be a singer," said Iglesias, a native of Madrid, Spain. "I was born like a normal kid to be a student. I was studying at the university of law, I'm a lawyer. And I was playing soccer for a good team in my country."

An automobile accident, which left Iglesias paralyzed from the waist down, dramatically altered the course of his life. At the time, he was the goalkeeper for Real Madrid, then one of the finest soccer teams in the world.

The diagnosis wasn't promising. The doctors predicted he wouldn't walk again. During his three-year recovery, Iglesias discovered an uncommon willpower and music.

"So I describe myself as a lucky man who had one opportunity one day, the doors open for me, and I went out" and they Fantasy will fill ClayDesta Atrium Dec. 1 and Dec. 2 when the Midland Symphony Guild hosts "Mistletoe and Music Gala" featuring Le Masquerade.

The eighth annual event is for the benefit of the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale Inc.

"It's a fabulous party," said Beverly Philbeck, project ball chairman. "It brings New York City to Midland. The costumes, the music — it's like taking part in a Broadway musical and being one of the actors because they get you involved.

"They bring to the party pizzazz and the energy that ensures a good time," Ms. Philbeck said. "Party-goers may find themselves faced with a decision, thanks to Le Masquerade performers — should they tango with the actor dressed as a banana daiquiri, waltz with a telephone booth or line dance with Elvis? The world of fantasy comes alive and you're a part of it."

The black-tie ball, set for 7 p.m., will include presentation of the 1995 Senior Belles. The dinner buffet will be catered by Tastebuds Catering. Tickets are $300 for two reserved seats, $175 a couple for general seating, $87.50 a person general seating, $115 for the belle and her date and $60 for a belle.

Then, "Mistletoe and Mink" — luncheon catered by Foods Fantastic and style show by Julian Gold, featuring fashions by David Hayes — is planned for 11 a.m. Dec. 2 at ClayDesta Atrium. The Freshmen Belles will be introduced at the luncheon. Seating begins at 10:45 a.m.

Brunch and style show is $40 a person, $20 for a debutante and $450 for a sponsor, who receives a reserved table for eight.

The Symphony Belle Ball featuring Le Masquerade is set for 8 p.m. Dec. 2 at ClayDesta. "Le Masquerade is so dynamic the actors hold the kids' attention the whole four hours. Last year I think there were 850 kids here at ClayDesta," Ms. Philbeck said.

"Every set that they do, they come out with party favors. They might bring a boa, sun glasses, mistletoe, reindeer antlers. They've brought masks before. They bring an assortment of party favors. They come out and do their little Broadway production, and then they go into the audience and each of the actors gets somebody to dance. That's how they get everybody involved."

The Symphony Belle Ball is free to the belles, who each get to bring two friends at a cost of $10 a friend. But "it's not a free ride" for them, Ms. Philbeck said. "The kids raise their own money (with) fund-raisers. They have to pay for their own ball. We don't pay their way. All the belles have to work 40 hours of volunteer work for the symphony."

Replies for all events are requested by Friday and may be mailed to Midland Symphony Guild, P.O. Box 7255, Midland, Texas 79708.

Benefactors are Frances and Jack Brown, Cain Electrical Supply, KLMG Peat Marwick, Sandra and George Staley, Lissa and Cy Wagner and Modesta and Clayton Williams.

Bridge is not an easy game to play well. To start with, during the auction you have only 15 words available (the numbers 1 through 7, the four suits and no trump, pass, double and redouble) with which to describe zillions of hands. As defenders in the play, you might have only one chance with which to direct the defense, and if you don't seize it, it could be too late. East-West gave a stellar defensive performance on this deal.

After North's Negative Double, which showed the unbid suits, East did well to force the opposition to guess at a high level by jumping to four spades. Since the vulnerability was favorable, the game could not be hurt badly and, in fact, with best defense will fail by no more than a trick.

West led the ace of spades. Since West was marked with a five-card suit for the overcall, East knew that there was only one trick to be had in spades. If you take a look at the full diagram, you will see it is imperative that West switch to a heart now. After any other return, declarer can win, draw trumps and discard a heart loser on the fourth diamond.

East found an excellent method to convey this to partner — under the ace of spades East dropped the king! That could not be a come-on for spades; East could have conveyed that message by following with a middling spade. Instead, it had to be a suit-preference signal, showing values in the higher of other two plain suits — in this case hearts.

West, showing touching faith in partner's signal, made life easy for East by switching to the king of hearts, followed by the jack. The defenders took the first three tricks for down one.

Painting hangs

AUSTIN — Gov. and Mrs. George W. Bush recently honored El Paso artist Tom Lea by re-hanging his painting, "Ranger Escort West of the Pecos" in the governor's private office.

The painting was first displayed in the governor's office during Gov. John Connally's administration and was taken down during the State capitol restoration.

Lea's murals are displayed throughout Texas. In Odessa, his mural, "The Stampede," is displayed in the main post office.

Top poster named

The poster for the 1995 Celebration of the Arts has been named the top poster in the state by the Texas Alliance for Education and the Arts.

The poster was entered by the Arts Assembly of Midland in the same category as posters from arts councils from Texas' largest cities, including Dallas and San Antonio.

An oil by Midland artist Mary Rasmussen was featured on the poster. Titled "The Blue Container," the art work focuses on a blue and white base with pink carnations.

The basic layout for the award-winning poster was arranged by artist and volunteer Tom Ryan, who has been in charge of the celebration poster for the last eight years. Texas Commerce Bank was the sponsor.

In addition, the T-shirt for Celebration of the Arts won second place in the printed merchandise category and the preview party invitation won third place in the invitation and announcement category. Both were designed by Darrell Dunton of Admarc and Becky Bailey of the Arts Assembly.

Both the poster and T-shirt will be on display at the Texas Alliance office in Austin until the 1996 conference.

CONCERT: Singer Iglesias to perform in Odessa

closed and another door opened, Iglesias said in a telephone interview from Miami. The singer was to perform in New York that night and Paris the next evening.

"I'm not a natural singer," said the Grammy Award-winning entertainer. "But I think God's been very generous with me. He gave me a little talent, and I work my talent is all. Like Oppenheimer said, 'Talent is 1 percent. Ninety-nine (percent) is sweating.' So I sweat 99 times a day and have a little talent one time a day."

Tickets, which range in price from $17 to $52, are on sale at Ector County Coliseum and Dollar Western Wear in Midland and Odessa. His West Texas performance is sponsored by K-LITE 100.3, KWES 9 TV, The Odessa American and KMRK.

Iglesias, who was born Sept. 23, 1943, made his American debut in 1984 with the Willie Nelson duet, "To All the Girls I've Loved Before." Although he performs in Spanish, Portuguese, French, Italian, English and even Japanese, he prefers to sing in Spanish. "I love Spanish first because it is my own language. I like Italian. Portuguese.

"And I like English now a little more because I express myself more in English now than before. I like to sing. That's what I like."

Despite his reputation as a Latin lover, Iglesias' passion is his work, particularly performing before a live audience. "That's what I love. To have the contact with the people. I'm singing for the generations, and I don't even need the money anymore. Believe me, I make more money than I spend. I sing because I need it. It's like an addiction."

What he most likes about singing is "to reach people. To reach people with the eyes completely. To communicate with them. To make love to them. They make love with you... You go on the stage, they make love like crazy. That's perfect."

When he speaks, his accent is charming, his laugh, frequent. Although he's speaking in a language that is not his native tongue, his answers are quick, direct. While he may switch his words around, their meaning remains clear.

He has not considered a career in the movies. "No. I'm the worst actor in history. They offer me very often a lot of movies, and I always say no because I don't want to look ridiculous in front of people."

When it was pointed out to him that other singers have tried their talent at acting, he quipped, "Oh, yes. They are better actors than me."

To Iglesias, the word success means "a lonely road with millions of people." He is "happy when he wakes up," before all the questions and problems of life overrun his day.

When he thinks back over his career, he sees three distinct turning points. "It started when my mom was pregnant. I couldn't get any birth. They had to make a caesarean. That was the first help. The second time important was I had the accident, and I was in bed for three years, and they gave me a guitar, and I started to write a song. And the third point is today and still alive."

The father of two sons and a daughter, Iglesias is proud of his young adult children. "They are nice kids. Very healthy. Very typical. One wants to be a singer. He has a record already doing great in Latin America. The other is in California studying communications. The third, the girl, is in love. When you are in love, you lose control. She is in Spanish television. All the kids are interested in and have seen the life of show business."

The stories that precede him indicate he has an extraordinary amount of experience with love. He scoffs at the idea. "Don't believe what you read.

"Life's been generous, but I work a lot. When you read that Latin lover thing — what I do, I make love from the stage, and I make love in the studio recording. All my life, I record 70 albums, which is a lot of albums. And I promise you, you cannot make love on the table in the studio. But is OK.

"Sometimes legends or the little stories makes people dream. It is OK. Reality people work for. It's not very great. The fantasy is much more accepted."

What has Julio Iglesias not done that he wants to do? "I want to make love five times a day in the next 20 years. On the ocean in cold water." He laughed. "It's a joke. What I want to do is do better songs. Do better albums. Have a great album and have a great concert from it."

SHOW: 'Painted Wheels: Cars and Art' features work of three artists

an art show, and I happened to know three people who painted or had painted cars," said Beckham, noting that the other gallery members also were involved in creating this show.

"It struck us that people could relate to the show as a show about different approaches to painting from three different painters. And they are very different. Or they could relate to it as paintings about cars."

The paintings reflect the personalities who painted them, Beckham said. "Jane Shea paints controlled, little, pristine portraits. They're basically about objects that life has passed by or abandoned. I think she paints derelicts of all kinds, not just cars. She has these beautiful little gems, finely rendered little portrait paintings done in opaque watercolor.

"Polly Jackson has an expansive personality, and she loves those cars of the '50s and '60s from her childhood and teen-age years, and that's basically what she paints," Beckham said. "And she paints them in a very colorful and upbeat way."

The cars Beckham has painted for this show are, he said, "The cars of my childhood. The approach is similar to Polly Jackson in that I'm painting cars that had meaning for me in my younger years.

"It's an honest move I needed for my own paintings. I didn't paint these just so we can have a car show. I wanted to bring more of the world back into my paintings, and cars being such expressive objects. I felt they would fit into where I've been in the last 10 years. With these paintings, I am exploring the expressive and symbolic qualities of the car."

For the past decade, Beckham, who describes himself as an expressionist, has painted the sky and weather of the West Texas and the Southwest. Before this show, he last painted cars in the early 1980s. "So I've come back to investigating the car again, and its expressive power and put them in these expressive settings."

Like Beckham, Ms. Jackson, who just had a showing at Marathon, also had stopped painting cars. She paints New Mexico landscapes and interiors.

"Travis asked me to do the cars," said Ms. Jackson, who received her degree from Trinity University in San Antonio after graduating from Midland High School. "I haven't done the cars since 1990. I didn't know him (Beckham), but I guess somebody told him I did cars. He asked Jane and me to do the cars for this show."

Of the three artists, Ms. Shea is the only one currently painting cars. "She has an extreme enthusiasm for seeking out these derelict cars," Beckham said of Ms. Shea. "Even if she can't get up to them for some logistical reason, she'll use a telescopic lens to see what something looks like that she wants to paint. She's got a real passion for the abandoned."

Ms. Jackson's original interest in painting cars was fueled by a relative. "My youngest son was totally interested in cars, and he was going to high school here in Santa Fe at a private school," Ms. Jackson recalled. "He got me interested in them. Santa Fe doesn't have any humidity, kind of like Midland, so there's a lot of classic cars. They are everywhere."

She began painting cars when a friend requested that she paint his vehicle. She recalled the scene — "'Paint my pickup,' he said, and my youngest son (was) urging me on." Today, that son has a 1976 Malibu station wagon that seats nine comfortably, and which Ms. Jackson considers a classic. She likes cars from the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s with a "really good '57 Chevy" being her "absolute favorite."

An impressionist painter, Ms. Jackson said, "I work with oils, and when I can't afford canvases, I work with chalk pastels on paper — good expensive paper."

Ms. Shea, whose work can be found in Munson Gallery in Santa Fe, is a realist. "You have to really look to be able to tell the difference between a photo and her work because they look like photographs," Ms. Jackson said. "She's excellent and fun."

Ms. Shea, who doesn't consider herself a regional painter, likes painting finely tuned renderings of architectural details and unobtrusive corners. She described her paintings as giving "the effect of locating a quiet beauty in the unspectacular."

In summing up the show, Beckham said, "I think the idea of the American infatuation with cars is common to all three artists, but I think for all of us the show is as much or more about painting as it is about cars. A painter thinks about the issues of painting a lot and not necessarily his subject matter, although he is certainly fascinated with that, too."

Drilling steady

Drilling activity was steady for the week ended November 10, according to Baker Hughes Inc.

The Permian Basin rig count slipped one rig to 125. A year ago the count was 109.

Lea County, N.M. was most active in the Basin with 20 rigs, followed by Eddy County, N.M. with 17 rigs and Crockett and Midland counties with eight rigs each.

The national rig count rose five to 769 for the week, below last year's 833.

Prices rebound

Crude futures rebounded past the $18 level this past week, buffeted by rising demand, tightening supplies and next week's scheduled meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Sharp rise in demand for gasoline boosted all energy futures on the New York Mercantile Exchange, analysts said.

Late in the week, West Texas Intermediate for December delivery closed at $18.19 a barrel. The posted price closed at $16.50 a barrel.

Natural gas futures closed at $1.96 per thousand cubic feet.

1995 EXPLORATION EDITION

Exploration still alive in the Permian Basin

■ Exploration managers say outlook for Basin is good.

Oil Editor

The exploration outlook for the Permian Basin is good, says one exploration manager.

Jim Demarest, Division Exploration Manager for Santa Fe in Midland, says his company continues to have good success in exploration. The company's Galaxy Project has yielded 20 plus grade A prospects and two for two discoveries. It is the second major exploration sweep the company has completed in Basin.

"If we keep batting 100 in the drilling department, the number of prospects could go up significantly," said Demarest.

The 260 section, Galaxy Project, is similar, but not the same as its Mother Lode Project drilled several years ago with Collins & Ware.

"Everything belows the Woodford is a target on the Galaxy," said Demarest, "with the Fusselman and Ellenburger being popular targets. Also, the structures are larger, and the resolution has improved significantly."

Shot by Western Atlas, crews were in the field for three months, and processing of data was finished in February. The first prospect, drilled in April, had an initial potential of 577 barrels per day and the second well recompleted had an IP of 350 barrels.

Demarest said Santa Fe had improved its understanding of 3-D seismic in the Galaxy Project by using a well already drilled in the area to test differt source arrays. "We placed various arrays around the well to see which one worked the best, then we designed our 3-D around it."

One of the most active explorers in the Basin, Santa Fe said it is participating in three other shoots in the Permian Basin and expects to utilize it capital budget which was doubled this year to drill 14 exploratory wells this year and 20 next year.

He said the company has done very little seismic work in New Mexico, that it usually preferred to correlate

3-D REVIEW

Decker Dawson is a pioneer in seismic operations in the Permian Basin.

A look at 3-D and 4-D seismic

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

"We don't call it 3-D anymore — its just seismic; 3-D is the norm," says Decker Dawson, president of Dawson Geophysical.

Few would disagree with this assessment. For all practical purposes 2-D is dead. As an exploration tool it is still sometimes used for reconnisance, but 3-D is the standard, and some are already talking about 4-D.

"Eventually, 3-D will just drop from the language," says Dawson, because it is the rule rather than the exception. "It has taken a few years, but the evolution is complete."

Dawson says that 3-D is nothing new, but actually goes back to "Adam and Eve." "It was the way seismic was intended to be shot, when the science was first conceived, but we got side tracked by 2-D because it was so fast and so cheap — even though it was only partially correct."

Dawson says the high speed computer and minature electronics have made 3-D the success it is today, and they are making it work even better year after year.

"Tomorrow's 3-D may be so advanced that we will have to re-shoot the entire Basin again."

Dawson says Crosswell tomography will definitely have a place in exploring mature fields, even though it is still expensive and restricted to short distances.

"There seems to be a problem of getting enough energy from one wellbore to the next, without tearing up the wellbore," Dawson said. "I think tomography is now restricted to about a quar-

The focus may be on development, but that doesn't mean there isn't a significant amount of exploration going on.

Moreover it is widespread exploration, that extends from New Mexico to San Angelo and Hockley County to the Val Verde Basin. Several of the hot spots include: Lea County; the fill area of Lea, Loving, Ward and Winkler counties, the Val Verde Basin and everything below the Spraberry.

In New Mexico exploration companies are looking for Delaware sand prospects, Penn anomalies and perhaps some Morrow. Western Atlas has a 400 square mile spec shoot in Lea County that looks at every thing from 3,000 feet down including: San

Marathon drills new life into old field

Oil Editor

One of the most successful exploration stories in recent months is about Marathon's Indian Basin. It is a story of how area exploration became the catalyst in froming new geological concepts that led to the discovery of a new prolific reservoir, and how teamwork and and corporate strategies made the field profitable.

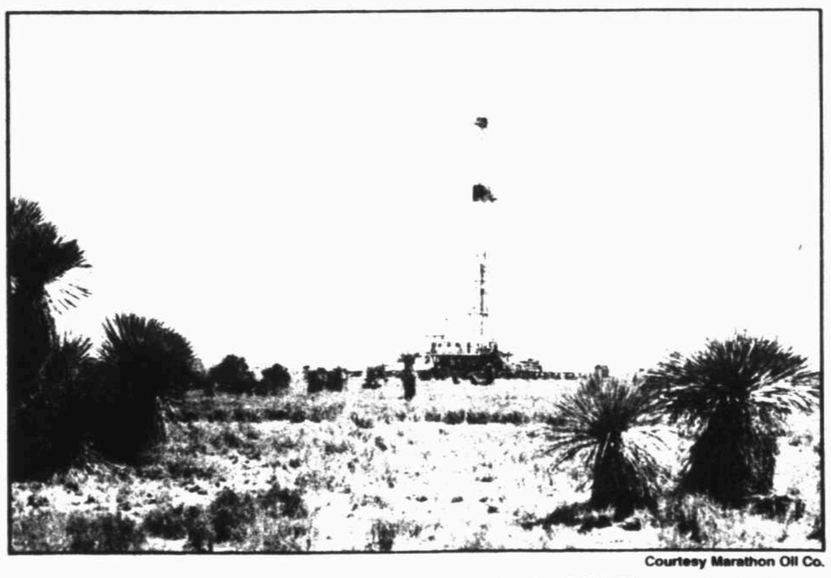
The dramatic transformation of Marathon's Indian Basin field from a sizable gas field facing a predictable long-term production decline into a booming oil and gas play, with still more gas, is quite a story indeed. In just under two years the field has gone from a property on its predictable way down to one of Marathon's top five fields. All because of a new geological concept and an exploration play initially kicked off in the Dagger Draw field.

According to Marathon officials, this remote field between Carlsbad and Artesia, has yielded 23 consecutive wells without a dry hole, and has gone from a property producing negligible oil in 1993, to one now producing nearly 6,000 barrels per day. New drilling has also increased natural gas production from 135 Mmcfd to 180 Mmcfd, while natural gas liquids have nearly doubled to 8,500 barrels a day.

Behind the drilling story, however, is an organizational and strategy success story ro match.

"The accomplishments at Indian Bend involved the principles of Multidisciplinary teamwork, open communication, the useof innovative, low-cost drilling technology and perhaps especially, questioning the status quo," said Mike Dixon, spokesman for Marathon.

According to an article in Marathon's company publication Messenger which details the history of the field, If one were to look back at Indian Basin just two years ago, it was the classic example of a stable, predictable business operation suddenly facing a host of challenges and problems. Along with this were numerous undefined opportunities that remained to be pursued.



Courtesy Marathon Oil Co.

A rig drills well number 17 in Marathon's Indian Basin field. New geological concepts kicked off the exploration play that has made the field one of Marathon's top five properties.

Discovered and developed in the 1960s, the field was a substantial gas producer with a processing plant that extracted NGLs for market and compressed the gas for shipment into local and interstate markets. Oil production was minimal.

Marathon was field and plant operator, but there were eight other companies with either interests in the field or with production from nearby leases, most of which sent their gas to the plant for processing. This was essentially how Indian Basin had operated for 30 years.

Two factors changed that status qujo. First, the market for natural gas liquids and the gas processing arena began to change. Then there was the issue of exploratory drilling in the Dagger Draw fields to the northeast.

Several companies were finding oil north of Indian Basin, and Marathon was having limited success drilling for oil in the northern extent of the field. In positioning for expanded oil development activity, Marathon needed to pursue acquisition of strategically located acreage.

Data processing key to better interpretation

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

As computer-aided exploration becomes more prevalent in the oil and gas industry, improved data interpretation can make the difference between a good producer and a major discovery.

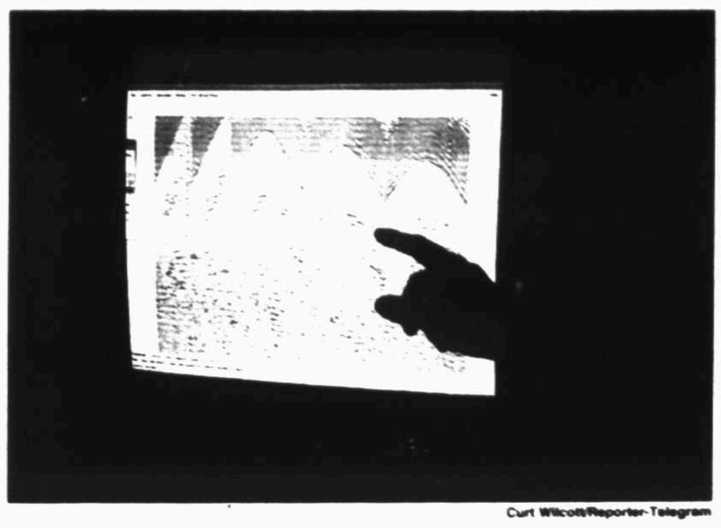
"We can make a difference with our processing on whether a prospect is a good prospect or no prospect," said Chuck Keller, a founder of Interactive Seismic Imaging Ltd.

The Midland company, begun in June 1994, provides 3-D seismic data processing for both independent producers and the major operators.

"We started this company 18 months ago because we saw opportunities in the technologies coming available in workstations, the same technological interpretation geophysicists have been using for the last several years," Keller said.

Added Bob Montgomery, also a founder of the company, "Three-D seismic processing is one of the largest users of computer power in the world and it has historically required super mainframes to process. Only recently have workstations been developed that can process that data and allowed vendors to write software to process 3-D data on workstations. We have the capability here to process 100-plus square miles of 3-D seismic data that in the past was restricted to only a handful of companies in the world. And this technology is not cheap. Our workstations cost about $200,000 and the software was another $200,000."

The company's workers - Keller, Montgomery and partners Larry Chasen and Peter Hallmeyer, each have over 10 years data processing experience with such companies as Halliburton Geophysical Services and Western Geophysical. The software they use incorporates more than 300 geophysical applications and utilities, including 3-D refraction statics, 3-D residual statics, 3-D DMO, 3-D velocity modeling, 3-D depth migration and interactive velocity analysis.



Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Chuck Keller with Interactive Seismic Imaging, points out data on a computer screen.

Said Montgomery: "3-D seismic gives you a map view of what the structure is doing. That's why it's been so instrumental in cutting finding costs. We're making the oilman more competitive in a marketplace where they have to cut costs anyway possible."

Keller pointed out that "Seismic data processing is a very small part of the exploration and development expense; when you consider the costs of leasing, seismic acquisition, drilling, production and depletion. This is one place where we can really make a difference and we've seen that with the data we've reprocessed." He added that one client plans to reprocess his data every three to five years and that reprocessing data is a big part of the company's business.

"If you reprocess 10 square miles at $1,000 a square mile, that's $10,000. But drilling a dry hole can cost between $250,000 to $500,000 so this is a very good return," Keller said.

The company's services are affordable to independents and majors alike because Interactive Seismic has invested in the hardware and software. "They're buying our services," Keller said.

Montgomery noted that the independents don't have or want the interpretation expertise that his company has, that such service can be easily outsourced. And the majors perform interpretation in-house and outsource it as energy prices fluctuate.

"This is considered a luxury to do in-house. As companies right-size, they find they don't need this kind of expertise year-round," Montgomery said.

Keller compares the company's technology to that used in sonograms, CAT scans or MRIs.

But that is only a part of the puzzle, his partner points out.

"Like a sonogram," Montgomery said, "we can produce a clear, accurate picture. But it takes a knowledgeable person to interpret it."

He said processing and interpretation are becoming more closely tied, and clients can take advantage of the real-time interaction the company's technology offers to make quick, well-informed decisions.

"It's important that our clients be able to come into our office and look at the processing early on. Interaction lets them work with us in real time, and shortens the cycle of time, getting data from the field to the client. The client frequently shoots leases that have an expiration date and it's important that he make decisions quickly on whether this is a prospect or not and meet that expiration date. That's real money to him."

In conjunction with traditional 3-D interpretation, the company has signed a contract with Coherence Technology Co. of Houston, licensee for Amoco's Coherence Cube technology. Interactive Seismic will be a preferred provider of the technology in this area.

"However, we will do our first shoot in New Mexico next year."

Demarest said it was able to put together shoots in Texas, but not so in New Mexico where most of the land is state and federal. "There are a lot of proprietary shoots in Texas, where individuals own the rights to minerals."

Demarest puts great stock in the the ability of 3-D seismic to continue to find more prospects. He said it could find many stratigraphic traps that have not yet been proven up.

"I don't think we will see much improvement in data acquisition, but I do think there will be considerable improvment in processing. The secret of 3-D technology is knowing where to shoot. If you shoot in the right place, it will look like you have the best technology in the world."

Demarest expects exploration in the Permian Basin to remain constant at current oil prices, but says activity could fall off if gas prices don't improve.

"Too many people have been betting on 'the come' for an awful long time. The question is how long can you bet on the future." He said it all came down to price: "The industry is now making less per barrel of oil in real dollars than it was in the 1960s."

He said that about 25 percent of the independent oil company's exploration activity was in the Permian Basin and 50 overseas.

"That means 50 percent of our domestic exploration is concentrated in the Permian Basin. On a risk-reward basis, the Permian Basin is still the best in the U.S. This is still an active exploration area, and the companies that don't have a position in the Basin are trying to find a way to get in."

DRILLS: Numerous problems cropped up

(From 1G)

Furthermore, the U.S. Bureau of Land Management was stipulating that any new development along the eastern edge of the field come under a unified Environmental Assessment Plan. Principal interest owners in this section comprised Marathon and several other operators.

That's when Marathon looked at a new structure to address the problems of exploring and developing Indian Basin. "Many of these issues were interrelated," says Bob Unger, Midland Operations production manager, Mid-continent region, Midland. "There was truly no way that all of these issues could be handled effectively through our conventional business structure and its separated responsibilities. In fact, we had a list of about 30 significant issues of various types, including these, that needed to be addressed. The key challenge to us was to be able to draw upon the specialists and disciplines needed, yet to have their efforts focused from a unified perspective."

According to the Marathon Messenger, the result was the formation in February 1994 of a multi-disciplined team to guide Marathon's handling of all of the strategic issues affecting Indian Basin as a business unit. Appointed to lead the team was Midland Operations Superintendent Bob Biernbaum, who became project manager for the Indian Basin Business Unit. The group - eventually renamed the Indian Basin Asset Team - included representatives from the reservoir, operation and facilities and construction engineering components; geology, natural gas and finance and accounting, later drawing assistance from drilling engineering and commercial services.

A masterstroke? In the long run, yes, but it didn't seem so at first.

"We had a pretty aggressive set of objectives, and at first blush it seemed awesome, almost insurmountable," said Biernbaum. "For the first six months, we didn't see a whole lot of progress. Then about nine or 10 months after inception, things took off. We were finally succeeding in turning conventional thinking inside out, and new ideas were coming forth.

"What we had hoped would happen in a relatively short period took longer. But when progress did occur, it exceeded our highest expectations. The message here is obvious: Allow a team the freedom and sufficient time to develop new direction. Results will follow."

Biernbaum's office was actually switched to a conference room that became known as the "war room." His seat was in the center of it, the wells were covered with geologic maps, and IBAT members would enter and leave at will.

"Instead of multiple parts of the organization trying to resolve their pieces individually, we were working together," Biernbaum said. "When a problem arose, everybody knew about it right away. When people left the war room, everybody was on the same page. It became such a dynamic situation that we almost grew to expect the unexpected. Communication and support from field personnel became critical. Only through constant interaction would we respond to the multitude of issues that arose."

Ever since the earliest drilling activity there, wells had encountered a water zone right beneath the gas in the central part of the field. This prompted Marathon geologists originally to view Indian Basin as essentially a gas field. Bill DeMis, a geologist with Rocky Mountain experience, decided to test his theories about the aquifer. DeMis, who emphasizes the importance that many years' worth of geologic data compiled by others played in his analysis, advanced his theories.

Based on this analysis, a well was drilled on the east edge of the Indian Basin fields in hopes of establishing Pennsylvanian reservoir production substantially downstructure from the previously assumed limits. The result was the discovery of oil reserves well beyond anyone's expectations.

"It would be hard to pin this to a single discovery," DeMis said. "It was more a matter of our ongoing drilling progressively increasing our understanding, based on our new concept of the reservoir. The IBAT framework provided us with the synergy and focus we needed to understand what really was going on. Thus, we were most effectively able to put the geology, reservoir analysis and logging data together to build a cohesive model for the field."

If there was a turning point, however, it was the February 1995 completion of the Federal No. 7 well at an initial production rate of about 1,200 barrels of oil per day.

"In our mindset up until then, success was a well we could bring on at 200 or 300 barrels a day," Biernbaum said.

Since then, additional wells have been brought on at initial rates as high as 1,600 barrels a day, with the average well's first production coming on at about 800 barrels a day. Large amounts of associated gas are also being produced, with the average well producing more than 2 Mmcfd.

In drilling Indian Basin's new wells, a change in procedures, spearheaded by Midland Operations Drilling Superintendent Dave Nordt, has resulted in savings of six figures. Instead of using a full-sized rig to drill the entire hole, Marathon has contracted, at a fixed price, for the use of a small, far less expensive rig for air drilling and casing the first 1,200 feet and then brought on the necessary large rig to complete the job.

"The small rig is much more economical for drilling the 'surface hole' section, and the fixed price eliminates any financial risk to Marathon," Nordt said. "This way, we only have the big rig on site for 12 days instead of 18, and save $20,000 to $25,000 a well."

The productivity of the new wells was not simply a matter of finding a sizable reserve. Key innovations in completion procedures, resulting from IBAT dialogue internally and with contractors, have enabled Marathon to produce far more oil than was previously thought possible.

Armed with these improvements in reservoir definition, IBAT members were able to develop more effective completion techniques. In acidizing the wellbore to stimulate production, Marathon specified smaller treatments, instead of much wider intervals normally selected. This maximized the reservoir's ability to allow the flow of oil in large volumes by ensuring contribution from very interval. It resulted in a nearly threefold increase in both interval contribution and well productivity. To make it possible to lift high volumes out of the wellbore, large submersible pumps were installed, capable of moving nearly 2,500 barrels a day of fluid.

With the oil production from the new wells has come a lot of water. Being equipped to handle high volumes of water was a necessity. The IBAT responded to this problem by securing low-cost saltwater disposal operations. Several new saltwater disposal facilities are capable of handling not only Marathon's water but that of third parties as well. For environmental protection, the water is injected into a deeper geologic zone that assures containment.

The latter fact points to a larger change. Indian Basin is no longer just a field with a gas plant amid a collection of leases; it's now a business development area, built to handle the new production being brought on stream.

The Indian Basin Gas Plant, aided by a 1993 capital improvement program that has significantly enhanced liquids recovery and boosted on-line availability to almost 100 percent, is now the largest in southeastern New Mexico and the sixth largest in the state, said Noel Garza, Indian Basin Field and Gas Plant superintendent. The plant and field are also closing in on seven years without a lost-time accident, "a phenomenal record in light of the extremely high level of field and plant activity in recent years," Garza said.

Further evidence of the positive direction at Indian Basin is the association Marathon maintains with regulatory and state personnel. Marathon has become very active within the state and has been recognized with awards of excellence from governmental bodies on several occasions. The most recent instance was from the BLM an award commending Marathons participation in developing the Environmental Assessment plan for Indian Basin's eastern flank. The BLM approved the plan in 1994.

In all of the efforts centered on Indian Basin, successful communication proved indispensable, not only within the IBAT group but at all levels, says the Marathon Messenger.

"Open and effective communications between IBAT and field operations personnel sustained a level of trust and commitment that ultimately made the difference," Biernbaum said. "Only with that commitment, and the willing investment of endless hours by field personnel under Noel Garza and Pat Hederman (field foreman), could the objectives have been met."

According to Bob Kukla, Midcontinent region manager, Midland, "Indian Basin serves as an example of the outstanding success that can be achieved when different disciplines get involved in the process. The Indian Basin Asset Team has made an impact. Collectively, people have been able to contribute more than they ever could have individually."

What a change today from the atmosphere of question marks and doubts that were closing in on Indian Basin just two years ago. Successful drilling continues, and no one is yet sure just how much additional production will come forth. But there's no doubt that the IBAT has yielded a satisfying work environment.

"It's been exciting, a lot of fun," said Bill DeMis. "Definitely an amazing ride."

LOOK: 3-D now considered the norm

(From 1G)

ter mile. But there is a lot of research going on in this field and I expect it will eventually become effective and economical — just like 3-D has become."

Dawson says there will also be a place for 4-D seismic. "There's no real magic to 4-D, it is just time lapsed 3-D. But I don't think we will see a lot of it until the price of oil improves."

He said multiple dectectors may be needed for noise cancellation in 4-D, and said that monitoring reservoirs could become a new source of income for seismic companies.

"With the cost of CO2 being what it is , it might be advantageous for companies to monitor fields several times a year to make sure the CO2 is going where it should."

As to placing geophone permanently in a field to get regular reading and track water and CO2 floods in a reservoir, Dawson said it make take $100 oil before that happens.

"You are talking about burying as many as 20,000 geophones and all the cables. That's involves a lot of money. However, I know they do leave geophones in place in some offshore installations so I am not going to say it's not going to happen. I may live to see it even as old as I am, but in the end it all boils down to the price of oil. You can't spend $100 to find a $17 barrel of oil."

SPREAD: Several plays are hot in various areas of Permian Basin

(From 1G)

Andres, Tubb, Drinkard, Devonian and Wolfcamp.

"There are about four or five plays going on within the shoot area," said Richard Drake, Manager for Western Atlas Geophysical in Midland.

Two of the hottest areas, the Val Verde Basin and the Fill Area, are a seismic nightmare — the Val Verde because of the rugged terrain and the Fill Area because of the complexity of the geology. But both hold the prospect of fabulous finds.

The Val Verde Basin boom was kicked off originally by dual swath seismic, which uses high channel 3-D technology to acquire data in a sort of "2.5 mode." Marketed by Permian Exploration in Roswell, in Oil & Gas Journal and other industry publications, Conoco was the first to use the new seismic technique to explore in the Val Verde.

The Ellenburger was the first target for Conoco. Now there are seven plays that range from the very shallow to the Ellenburger at 22,000 feet. Among the popular targets are the: Ellenburger, Devonian, Strawn, Wolfcamp and Canyon Sand.

Wells have completed from 200 to 1,000 bopd, and, since this is raw frontier country, the prospect of large fields is not unreal.

The fill area is another story of the same color. Stretching from southern Lea County, through Loving, Winkler, Ward, Reeves and into northern Pecos County, this geologically confused area that has a long history of unsatisfied seismic work, this complicated geological province holds the promise of undiscovered major reserves.

Theories abound as to how the fill area, full of gravel and freshwater, was formed. Some have said the area is where glaciers made cuts, which were later filled by soft debris. Others say it an ancient river bed that has filled with gravel. Not so, says Bascom Mitchell, a geophysist and independent with extensive experience in the Permian Basin.

"It is an anhydrite collapse. Water percolating through into the salt formations created caverns which collapsed." The collapse area is 500 to 2,200 feet deep, and according to Decker Dawson 15 miles wide and 60 miles long at its main area of interest in Ward and Winkler counties.

Whatever the geological reasons for the fill area, as it is known, remains one of the most geological complex areas of the Permian Basin.

"It is hard to get enough energy through it to get accurate data," says Richard Drake with Western Atlas Geophysical. "A grave yard of many dry holes. A lot of people have shot across it with 2-D and 3-D for a long time, trying to figure it out, but nobody has until now."

Now, says Bascom Mitchell, operators seem to be getting a better understanding of what's beneath the low velocity materials by shooting perpendicular to the area. The fill trend is north and south, but seismic crews are now shooting east and west across it.

What explorers hope to find in the fill area are more gas fields like the Apollo field and Cheyenne gas fields. Once prolific producers the fields discovered several decades ago are still commercial producer. According to Nash Books, the Cheyenne had 1.3 million cubic feet of production in the last six months reporting period and the Apollo had 875,599 mcf. Both were drilled in the fill area, but neither was found by seismic.

George Staley, now with Titan Resources, helped in the discovery of the Apollo field when employed by HNG. "There will be some smaller fields found, but I don't think there will be any Coyonosa fields under the fill, as some suspect."

Regardless, no one is convinced there is nothing beneath the fill. Among those optimistically working the fill area are: Mobil, Chevron, Enron, Ultra Petroleum and Dusty Mac Resources.

In addition to the fill area, the entire Delaware Basin with all its complexities remains favorite exploration grounds for Basin wildcatters.

Exxon is reportedly getting ready to do shoot in the highly complex area between the Gomez and Coyonosa and that effort could lead to deep targets, plus a better understanding of deep targets.

Other exploration areas of interest include: Nolan and Howard counties, where seismic crews are looking for deeper targets. Beneath the Spraberry is another area of interest. It has been a problem since so much of the acreage was held by shallow production, but some operators are now looking beneath the Spraberry, even though they don't have deep rights.

"The beauty of the Permian Basin is that it has so many horizons that are potential producers, all the way from 100 feet to five miles", says Decker Dawson. "Every foot of the geological column produces oil somewhere."

Richard Drake says the busiest part of the Basin seems to be New Mexico. In the last two years almost 200 wells have been drilled on the Lea County and Eddy County line, in an exploration play started by Pogo, Santa Fe, Devon Energy and Yates Petroleum.

Enron drilling its Red Hills, Bone Springs field on Southern tip of Pitchfork field, 18 miles due west of Jal, has opened another successful play, which originated from a reentry on the southern flank of the Pitchfork (Atotka-Morrow) field. Reporting has been tight in the field, but it is estimated that over 20 producers have been drilled in the field.

To date 3-D has had no effect on the Morrow, but word has it that several companies will attempt to map the elusive formation. If the Morrow can be mapped by seismic it would present a major breakthrough.

The Delaware Sand which was opened by Pogo and a new multi-stage frac technique that uses polymers to hold sand in place is also still a valid play in New Mexico.

When one tallys the extend of exploration in the Permian Basin the logical conclusion seems to be that exploration is still a viable industry in the Basin for a lot of reasons.

Tom Brown reports net income for quarter

Staff Reports

Tom Brown Inc. reported net income of $1.5 million or 9 cents per share on revenues of $12,082,000 for the third quarter of 1995.

This compares to a net loss of $257,000 or 2 cents per share on revenues of $5,034,000 for the third quarter of 1994.

The company recorded a net gain of $4.3 million on the sale of its Arkoma properties in the third quarter. Cash flow was $2 million, coimpared to $1.6 million in 1994.

Natural gas prices received by Tom Brown averaged $1.31 per thousand cubic feet compared to $1.54 per Mcf for the same quarter in 1994. Also impacting the current quarter's cash flow was interest expense of $1 million on the company's outstanding bank debt.

The company recorded dry hole costs of approximately $900,000 due to its participation in the drilling of an unsuccessful exploratory test well in south Texas. The well targeted the Fifth Hinnant sand at 15,000 feet.

Gas production for the quarter averaged 27.6 Mmcfd, compared to 15 Mmcfd for the comparable quarter last year. Wind River gas production was curtailed approximately 56 percent or 13.5 Mmcfd net to the company, due primarily to voluntary curtailment throughout the quarter and due to compressor maintenance in September.

The Val Verde Basin continues to be a successful play with average gas sales of 10.5 Mmcfd net to the company for the third quarter. A recently completed Strawn test, the No. 1-3 Alex Mitchell, began production in November and isu-currently producing 9 Mmcfd and 600 barrels of oil or 3.6 Mmcfd and 240 barrels of oil net.

The company's public offering was completed in November with the additional sale of the underwriter's overallotment of 600,000 shares for a total of 4.6 million shares sold. Net proceeds to the company of $47.7 million will be used primarily to retire outstanding bank debt of $46 million.

$CO_2$ PERMIAN BASIN CONFERENCE & EXPOSITION

THE FUTURE IS HERE

For decades the Permian Basin has spoken of the day when independents would have to share the responsibility of putting ailing fields on $CO_2$ - - that day is here

Through a chain of events the day when independents must assume responsibility of putting many of the Permian Basin's declining fields on CO2 has come sooner than expected.

The majors are selling out of non-core properties, meaning more and more properties that are potential C02 candidates have fallen into the hands of independents. At the same time many of the fields that are on waterflood have almost reached their economic limits. They must either be placed on CO2 in the very near future or abandoned.

A number of positive factors have evolved that make CO2 a real opportunity for independents and majors.

First, the cost of CO2 has come down and the majors with CO2 supplies are willing to negotiate its sale, through production payments or other financing means.

Second, the cost of installing and operating CO2 projects has come down dramatically, since the first pilot projects were initiated in the 1970's, as major oil companies learned that the "Cadillac" approach is not always the best approach. In many cases off-the-shelf equipment is used. In other cases custom designed components can reduce both installation and operating costs.

Third, major oil companies are now willing to pass on all the lessons they have learned, giving independents an opportunity to capitalize upon two decades of experience..

Fourth, over the past two decades, a CO2 infrastructure has been solidly placed, with pipelines connecting nearly all corners of the Permian Basin. Pipeline operators are ready to negotiate the construction of delivery lines to those leases that are viable economic CO2 prospects.

Now is the time to think about $CO_2$ and plan for its eventuality.

THE WINDOW OF OPPORTUNITY IS WIDE OPEN.

If you plan to be a part of the Permian Basin $CO_2$ future as an operator, supplier, service company or in any other capacity you will want to attend the largest and most comprehensive $CO_2$ conference ever.

Parker & Parsley reports narrower loss in quarter

Staff Reports

Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. announced a net loss in both the third quarter and the first nine months of 1995.

For the third quarter, the company reported a net loss of $6.9 million or 20 cents per share on revenues of $122.2 million, compared to a net loss of $9 million or 29 cents per share on revenues of $146.3 million in the third quarter of 1994.

Net cash flow provided by operations increased 36 percent to $49.1 million from $36 million in the third quarter of 1994 and the company had 35.3 million weighted average shares outstanding compared to 30.7 million weighted average shares outstanding in 1994. As of November 2, the company's long-term debt was $534 million, down $175 million from $709 at the end of 1994.

Daily crude oil production fell 4,951 barrels or 13 percent to 33,323 barrels, compared to 38,274 barrels in the same period of 1994. The company's third quarter daily natural gas production fell 19 percent to 231.4 million cubic feet from 286.7 million feet in 1994. The decrease in oil and gas production is attributed to the sale of over $160 million of non-strategic assets in 1995.

During the first half of 1995, the oil and gas properties sold accounted for 6,000 barrels of oil per day and 30 million cubic feet of gas per day. Parker & Parsley's average crude oil price rose 49 cents per barrel or 3 percent to $16.75 per barrel compared to $16.26 per barrel in the third quarter last year. Natural gas prices fell 4 percent to 41.73 per Mcfd from $1.81 realized last year.

Also in the third quarter, Parker & Parsley's Australian daily crude oil production averaged 4,471 barrels of oil per day and daily natural gas production averaged 27.5 million cubic feet. IN Australia, the company received average third quarter prices of $18.38 per barrel of oil and $1.86 per Mcfd of natural gas.

Despite reduced levels of production, the sale of non-strategic assets resulted in a 31 percent improvement in third quarter results compared to a year ago, directly attributable to the company's continuous efforts to reduce expenses.

For the nine months ended September 30, the company posted a net loss of $84.1 million or $2.39 per share on revenues of $410.2 million compared to a net loss of $5.1 million or 17 cents per share on revenues of $350.1 million for the same period in 1994. The net loss for the period includes several nonrecurring items:

A $65.8 million after tax charge associated with the early adoption of Statement of Financial Accounting Standard No. 121, "Impairment of Long-Lived Assets;"

A $4.4 million after-tax charge for financing fees associated with the company's acquisition activities which had previously been capitalized and expenses associated with existing legal matters included in other expenses;

A $6.4 million after-tax charge relating to the amortization of deferred compensation awarded in 1993 and organizational realignment charges included in general and administrative expenses and

A $10.9 million after-tax gain on disposition of non-strategic assets.

Net cash flow provided by operations increased 27 percent to $132.9 million from $104.5 million in 1994.

For the nine months, the company's daily crude oil production rose 4,831 barrels or 16 percent to 35,818 barrels compared to 30,987 barrels for the same period in 1994. The average crude oil price rose $1.68 per barrel of 11 percent to $16.91 per barrel compared to $15.23 a year ago. Daily natural gas production jumped 18 percent to 238.2 million cubic feet from 202.6 million cubic feet in 1994. Natural gas prices fell 7 percent to $1.78 per Mcf from $1.92 realized a year earlier. Australian daily crude oil production averaged 4,344 barrels of oil per day and daily natural gas production averaged 24.1 million cubic feet.

In the first nine months of 1995, Parker & Parsley has spudded 419 of the 550 wells budgeted in its 1995 drilling program. To date the company has achieved an overall success rate of 95 percent. The company's 1995 drilling program has focused on oil development in the Permian Basin of West Texas with specific concentration in the company's core area in the Spraberry units. In September 1995, the Driver, Shackelford and Merchant Spraberry units produced 6,087 barrels of oil per day, an increase of 3,092 barrels of 103 percent from levels achieved in December 1994.

In addition, internationally the company participated in the Bayu-1 well operated by Phillips Petroleum and located in the Zone of Cooperation between Australia and Indonesia. The well had initial production test results of 93.5 million cubic feet and 5,417 barrels of condensate per day from four zones. The company has a 22.5 percent working interest and plans for the discovery are undetermined pending further evaluation. Currently, BHP is drilling the No. 2 Undan, an appraisal well to No. 1 Undan which exhibited similar initial production rates as No. 1 Bayu. In the first quarter of 1996, the company will participate in the first of two wells scheduled for Zone of Cooperation 91-13.

Valero forms subsidiary for marketing of electricity

SAN ANTONIO —Valero Energy Corp. announces the formation of its wholly owned subsidiary, Valero Power Services Company, based in Houston. The company will market electricity to wholesale and retail power customers.

EOTT Energy to acquire gathering system

HOUSTON — EOTT Energy Partners, L.P. has signed a definitive agreement with Amerada Hess Corporation to acquire a 265 mile crude oil gathering system and a 349 mile common carrier crude oil pipeline extending from a terminal in Mobile, Alabama to Liberty Station in Southwestern Mississippi as well as certain associated crude inventories.

The purchase price is approximately $54 million, not including certain Amerada Hess crude oil inventories, and is subject to normal regulatory approvals. The transaction will be effective and is scheduled to close at year-end 1995.

The crude oil system gathers volumes of approximately 32,000 of lease purchased barrels per day (Bpd) from approximately 630 leases. The pipeline system is used to transport the gathered crude, crude delivered to and from the Mobile terminal and crude received from other common carrier systems to refining customers located near the system and to the Capline Pipeline System. Tank storage associated with the systems is approximately 3.6 million barrels.

"The acquisition of these assets will expand EOTT's market and geographic presence and will add net incremental earnings and cash flow immediately upon closing," said Philip J. Hawk, president, EOTT Energy Corp., the general partner of EOTT Energy Partners, L.P.

Enron Corp. will assist EOTT in arranging bridge financing and expects that the loan would be retired as soon as possible in 1996. EOTT will retire the loan with either a loan from Enron or from the purchase by Enron of approximately 3.3 million common units.

EOTT has been serving the petroleum industry since 1946 and is a major marketer of crude oil and refined products in the United States and crude oil in Canada. EOTT also gathers and transports crude oil in major U.S. oil producing areas through a network of trucks, pipelines and barges. EOTT and its general partner, EOTT Energy Corp., are headquartered in Houston, Texas.

American Exploration awarded Brazos block

HOUSTON - American Exploration Co. has been awarded Brazos Block 478 by the U.S. Minerals Management Service. Block 478, which encompasses 3,815 acres, is located in shallow federal waters offshore Texas and was acquired at a cost of $189,000 net to American's 75 percent working interest.

Mark Andrews, chairman and chief executive, said the acquisition brings the company's leases in the Texas State Waters to over 20,000 gross acres. American is participating in a 350 square mile 3-D seismic survey and is currently drilling two wells in close proximity to the Brazos 440 field based on 3-D data interpreted two date. One well is targeting an undrained fault block within the currently productive Upper Miocene interval and the second well is targeting a deeper Lower Miocene exploratory prospect. Additional drilling is planned for 1996.

United Petroleum cancels warrants

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. —United Petroleum Corp. announced that earnings for the third quarter of 1995 were $8,697 as compared to $27,621 for the same period last year.

Revenues for the third quarter of 1995 were $3,331,980 as compared to $3,299,144 for the third quarter of last year. Revenues for the quarter were lower than expected due to a decrease in the volume of gasoline sold. The company attributes the lower gasoline volume to an increase in competitive pricing.

The Company further announced the successful completion of a limited offering to its warrant holders. On Oct. 13, 1995 the company extended an offer to existing holders of Class A, Class B and Class C warrants to exchange the warrants for restricted common stock in the Company.

Under the terms of the limited offering the warrant holders are to receive 40 percent of the number of shares that the warrant holder would have received had the warrants been exercised. All warrant holders have accepted the offer extended by the Company.

United Petroleum Corporation operates 21 full service auto centers and convenience stores in Tennessee and Georgia through its Calibur Systems, Inc. subsidiary and owns natural gas and oil mineral rights to approximately 61,000 acres in eastern Kentucky through its subsidiary, Jackson-United Petroleum Corporation.

American Exploration, Dominion form venture

HOUSTON - American Exploration Co. and Dominion Reserves Inc., a unit of Richmond, Va.-based Dominion Energy Inc., formed a joint venture to explore for and develop gas reserves in the Gulf of Mexico.

Under the terms of the joint venture agreement, Dominion Reserves will participate for one-third of American's net working interest in drilling prospects developed using 3-D seismic data within a 240 square mile area located offshore Louisiana in the West Cameron area. American currently has rights to explore and develop seven blocks with working interests averaging over 50 percent. Enron Oil & Gas Co. holds the majority of the remaining working interest.

Enex Resources reports quarterly earnings

KINGWOOD, Texas — Enex Resources Corp., a company which acquires and manages producing oil and gas properties, reported financial results for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1995.

Net income for the third quarter was $277,451 or $.20 per share on total revenues of $1,628,071. This compares with net income of $264,052 or $.19 per share on total revenues of $1,523,237 for the same period of 1994.

Gerald B. Eckley, president of Enex stated, "Low oil and gas prices continued to detrimentally affect earnings. Although we were unable to influence the market price of oil and gas, through the effective optimization of production and control of costs, we have been able to consistently produce profits. This will serve us well. As demand for energy grows, our earnings should grow even more."

Plains Resources posts jump in income

HOUSTON - Plains Resources reported net income of $483,000 or 3 cents per share on total revenue of $103.6 million for the third quarter of 1995. This compares with net income of $209,000 or 2 cents per share on total revenue of $66.2 million reported for the third quarter of 1994.

Cash flow from operations increased 6 percent to $4.6 million as compared to $4.3 million last year while earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, depletion and amortization rose 8 percent to $8 million as compared to $7.4 million in last year's third quarter.

Ashland board declares quarterly dividends

ASHLAND, Ky. — The Board of Directors of Ashland Inc. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 27.5 cents per share on the company's common stock. The Board also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 78.125 cents per share on the company's $3.125 cumulative convertible preferred stock. Both dividends are payable Dec. 15, 1995, to shareholders of record at the close of business on Nov. 27, 1995.

Southwest Gas acquiring pipeline builder

LAS VEGAS —Southwest Gas Corp. has agreed to acquire Northern Pipeline Construction Co. (NPL), a privately held full-service underground gas pipeline contractor, for approximately $24 million. The agreement involves a stock-for-stock exchange in which Southwest will acquire 100 percent of the outstanding stock of NPL in exchange for common stock of Southwest. Because NPL is an existing successful business, it is expected they will make an immediate contribution to earnings after completion of the acquisition.

NPL, headquartered in Phoenix, Arizona, provides local gas distribution companies with installation, replacement and maintenance services for underground natural gas distribution systems. The principal focus of business operations centers around main and service line replacement and new business installation of mains and services. NPL serves approximately 25 customers in numerous locations throughout the United States. Annual revenues are approximately $100 million.

The acquisition is expected to be completed in the second quarter of 1996 upon receipt of various governmental approvals.

Triton receives consents from noteholders

DALLAS —Triton Energy announcedthat it has received consents from a majority of the holders of each of its Senior Subordinated Discount Notes due 1997 and 9 3/4 percent Senior Subordinated Discount Notes due 2000. As a result of the consent, the covenants of the 1997 Notes indenture will be essentially identical to those of the 2000 Notes.

The consents were sought to provide greater flexibility for modifying the corporate structure and to reduce administration of two separate sets of financial covenants.

As a result of the modifications, the amount of debt Triton can incur may amount to as much as 25 percnet of the Company's market capitalization, and the "net worth" test in the 1997 Notes indenture was eliminated.

Noteholders of record on November 1, 1995, will receive consent fees of $5.00 in cash for each $1,000.00 principal amount of the 1997 Notes and $3.00 in cash for each $1,000.00 principal amount of the 2000 Notes.

Gas prices sink HS Resources results

DENVER —HS Resources, Inc. announced that its operating results for the third quarter were adversely affected by substantially lower natural gas prices which resulted in a net loss of $400,000 or 3 cents per share compared to net income of $1.7 million (14 cents per share) for the prior year period.

Operating cash flow for the quarter totaled $5.6 million (49 cents per share), compared to $9.3 million (79 cents per share) for the prior year. Operating results in 1995 were favorably affected by reversal of previously accrued production taxes and recognition of previously deferred income in the approximate amounts of $450,000 and $400,000, respectively, net of income taxes. Oil prices were essentially flat with the prior year at $16.06 per barrel, but natural gas prices declined 32 percent from $1.61 per Mcf to $1.10 per Mcf. Production for the quarter was 1.2 million equivalent barrels (MMBoe), down from 1.3 MMBoe in 1994, but production for the nine months of 1995 was 4.0 MMBoe, compared to 3.7 MMBoe in 1994, an increase of 7 percent.

For the third quarter, the company's net income was $2,500 on revenues of $1.1 million, compared to net income of $188,000, or 1 cent per share, on revenues of $1.3 million in the same quarter last year.

For the nine months ended September 30, 1995, net income was $138,000, or 1 cent per share, on revenues of $3.4 million, compared to net income of $619,000, or 4 cents per share, on revenues of $3.7 million in the same period of 1994.

Larry C. Oldham, President, commented that oil and gas production, expressed in equivalent barrels of oil (EBO), increased to 101,078 EBO during the third quarter, compared to 99,173 EBO in same period a year ago; however, the average sales price received per EBO declined by 16 percent. Natural gas is converted to oil at the rate of 6 Mcf per barrel to calculate EBOs.

For the nine months ended September 30, 1995, the company produced 291,850 EBOs, compared to 297,282 for the same period a year ago. Average sales price received declined to $11.72 from $12.38 per barrel.

Pennzoil signs second venture in Azerbaijan, with Lukoil and Agip

By N.Y. Times News Service

Houston — Pennzoil Co. said it signed an agreement with Azerbaijan for its second big oil venture in the Caspian Sea, this time with partners LUKoil of Russia and Italy's Agip.

Pennzoil will have a 30 percent stake in the new Karabakh prospect, which is located near a 3-billion-barrel oil project that Pennzoil and 11 other companies are developing for $8 billion.

Houston, Texas-based Pennzoil didn't say how much oil may be at Karabakh, although its partner in the other project has estimated the reserves at 750 million barrels.

Scotland-based Ramco Energy Plc, Pennzoil's partner in the other Caspian project, has sued Pennzoil in the U.S. to get a piece of Pennzoil's share in the Karabakh project. Pennzoil said Ramco has no legitimate claim.

Pennzoil said LUKoil will have a 7.5 percent stake in the venture, Agip will have 5 percent and a subsidiary of the two companies, called Lukagip, will have 50 percent. An affiliate of State Oil Company of Azerbaijan Republic has 7.5 percent.

Terms of the agreement, signed in the Azerbaijan capital of Baku by the nation's president, Gaidar Aliev, call for the partners to explore with wells and geologic surveys for three years, with an option to extend that another 18 months.

If enough oil is found to be produced profitably, the partners will have the right to develop and produce the petroleum for 25 years, with a possible five-year extension.

The agreement, which covers production sharing terms with the government that weren't disclosed, will become effective once adopted by the Azerbaijan parliament.

Pennzoil took a 30 percent stake in Karabakh from the Azerbaijan state oil company as compensation for $60 million owed for work by Pennzoil and Ramco on a natural gas project, according to Ramco.

Ramco said the two companies had agreed that both would participate in any projects that resulted from their joint gas venture.

Pennzoil's relationship with Ramco began in the early 1990s when it bought into Ramco's share of the Gunashli oil field in the Caspian and agreed to pay Ramco's share of development costs.

The two companies began a $150 million project to recover gas that was being burned at existing oil platforms in the Caspian.

A pipeline system was built, and over the past year 1 billion cubic meters has been transported ashore. Pennzoil has paid operating costs that are shared by Azerbaijan, which still owes about $150 million.

Since then, Gunashli has been merged with two other fields in the Caspian in a joint project being developed by a consortium of companies led by British Petroleum Plc and Amoco Corp.

Karabakh is located north of the Azeri-Chirag-Guneshli fields and is about 50 miles offshore in 185 meters off water.

How the Fed uses interest rates to control the economy

Raul Benavides

There's a lot of interest in interest rates.

Financial experts, consumers, the media—just about everybody, it seems, is constantly monitoring interest rates. And no wonder; interest rate trends have a direct impact on virtually every segment of the U. S. economy.

Interest is the price you pay for borrowing money, or the price you get for lending money. In today's column, we'll focus on the borrowing side of interest.

A small change in interest rates can make a big difference to a borrower. For example, a 30-year, $90,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate has a monthly payment of about $630. If mortgage rates rise to nine percent, that monthly payment increases to $724. Over the 30-year life of a loan, that adds up to nearly $34,000 of additional interest.

So who decides whether interest rates will be 7.5 percent or nine percent? Short-term interest rates are determined by the Federal Reserve System, known to most people as the "Fed."

The Fed is an independent government agency that regulates the nation's banking and monetary systems. It is governed by a seven-member board. Board members, who serve 14-year terms, are appointed by the president and confirmed by the U. S. Senate.

The Fed's decisions about short-term interest rates depend on many things, including the level of inflation.

When rates are low, borrowing is attractive. As Americans buy more goods and services, prices may rise, and so may inflation. When rates are high, the reverse happens: consumers spend less, which slows the economy, and, as a result, inflation usually declines.

Adjustments in interest rates can help control runaway inflation or stimulate a lagging economy.

The Fed directly or indirectly controls three interest rates. The federal funds rate is charged on overnight loans between banks. The discount rate is charged on loans from the Fed to banks. And the prime rate is the amount of interest banks charge their most credit-worthy customers. Banks also use the prime rate to set other rates for consumer and business loans.

So how do the Fed's actions affect the economy? Assume interest rates are currently low, and consumer borrowing his high. If economic growth begins to flirt with inflationary limits, for example, four to five percent, the Fed may raise the federal funds rate. Banks, in turn, pass their higher costs to customers by raising interest rates on loans. Borrowing should slow down and inflation should ease.

However, if an increase in the federal funds rate does not slow inflation, the Fed may then increase the discount rate. In turn, banks typically raise their prime rates, and the costs of borrowing rise further. Often, the Fed may have to raise the federal funds and/or discount rates several times before the desired economic slowdown is achieved. In slow economic times, the process is reversed: the Fed reduces interest rates, borrowing is encouraged, businesses grow, consumers spend and the economy improves.

So, if you thought interest rates were simply a random factor of the economy, left on their own to do as they please, think again. They're important tools used by the Fed to prolong healthy economic growth, limit recessions and control inflation.

Texaco, Petroleum Geo-Services to offer new 3-D technology

HOUSTON — Texaco and Petroleum Geo-Services AS (PGS) have announced the signing of an exclusive alliance for the commercial application of vertical-cable seismic, an exciting new petroleum exploration technology.

The proprietary technology, developed by Texaco's Exploration & Production Technology Department (EPTD) in Houston, yields data with higher resolution than that acquired through conventional 3D seismic. Additionally, the data is acquired in a truly three dimensional sense rather than the conventional series of two-dimensional lines. As a result, more complete and accurate analysis of the seismic information is obtained.

The alliance with PGS, a leader in 3D seismic services, will allow for this technology to be offered to the industry worldwide.

"Vertical-cable seismic is a significant step forward in our ability to more accurately image the subsurface," said Ronald J. Robinson, General Manager of EPTD. "The integration of data acquisition and data processing provides true three dimensional information faster and cheaper than before. In so doing, it expands opportunities for evaluation of exploration and producing properties."

PGS has applied this technology on a production scale for the first time at Texaco's Strathspey Field located in the North Sea. The final processed data set will be available in the second quarter of 1996. Another vertical-cable seismic survey is planned for Texaco's recently announced Fuji discovery in the deepwater Gulf of Mexico. The Fuji survey will begin in the fourth quarter of 1995, with final results in the second quarter of 1996. An early experimental implementation of the vertical-cable seismic technology led to the definition of Texaco's Gulf of Mexico Gemini prospect, also announced recently as a major deepwater discovery.

"This alliance with Texaco allows PGS to deploy an entirely new technology allowing customers to gain thorough information about their exploration and production sites," said Sven Havig, Vice President, Business Development of PGS. "Our knowledge of marine 3D seismic positions PGS to apply vertical-cable seismic to a broad range of projects."

'Vertical-cable seismic technology is a signifcant step forward in our ability to more accurately image the subsurface.'
— Ronald J. Robinson, general manager, EPTD

The primary difference between a conventional seismic survey and the new vertical-cable survey is the way in which the hydrophones (seismic energy detectors) are deployed. In a conventional marine survey, the hydrophones are attached to long streamers, pulled behind a boat horizontally. The boat also pulls the seismic energy sources (high-pressure air guns), which periodically send pulses of compressed energy into the earth.

In a vertical-cable survey, hydrophones are attached to cables which are located vertically at specific locations on the sea floor with a heavy anchor at one end and a strong buoy at the other. The boat then fires high pressure air guns in a large pattern above and around the cables. The cables are then redeployed to another location and another swath of data is acquired.

A proprietary data processing computer program, specifically for use with vertical-cable seismic, has been developed by Texaco and is licensed to PGS as part of this alliance. This program economically and efficiently processes 3D information acquired in the vertical-cable fashion.

"The combined acquisition and processing technique is promising in its ability to provide accurate, timely and cost-effective information. The Strathspey vertical-cable seismic survey is an exciting step toward more widespread application of this technology," said Bjarte Bruheim, President and Chief Operating Officer of PGS.

PGS, specialists in marine 3D seismic services, conducted the vertical-cable seismic survey in the Strathspey Field. PGS also will conduct the Fuji survey and process data from that survey using Texaco's proprietary program. EPTD will process the data from the Strathspey survey using the same program.

PGS principally acquires, processes and markets marine 3D seismic data and performs related services that are used by oil and gas companies in the exploration of producing fields. PGS operates worldwide, and is headquartered in Oslo, Norway, with offices in Houston.

Occidental chairman predicts higher earnings

LOS ANGELES — Occidental Petroleum Corp., helped by improved performances in oil and gas and chemical operations, said it expects total recurring earnings from operating divisions this year to almost double those of 1994.

"As significant as this progress has been ... we intend to do better," Dr. Ray R. Irani, Occidental's chairman, president and chief executive officer, told financial analysts in New York.

Occidental expects recurring earnings in its oil and gas operations to more than triple this year and be in the range of $225 million to $250 million, then to reach $500 million in 1997, Dr. Irani said.

Referring to a reorganization of Occidental's worldwide oil and gas unit announced in October, Dr. Irani said, "We have developed a workable plan to aggressively improve margins in our existing operations and to develop profitable new projects based on the assumption that we are living in a flat $18-per-barrel world for the foreseeable future."

In chemicals, Occidental has taken steps to lessen its sensitivity to business cycles by exiting two cyclical businesses — high-density polyethylene and agricultural products — by significantly reducing costs and building a larger, more profitable specialty chemical operation.

"We expect this business to continue to generate strong earnings in 1996 and 1997," Dr. Irani said. "Demand for our chemical products remains strong, and the election-year factor in 1996 should help keep the economy growing."

Dr. Irani said Occidental's natural gas transmission and marketing unit, MidCon Corp., "has been, and continues to be, a stable source of earnings and cash flow."

Occidental's 1996 capital spending budget is comparable to this year's, with approximately two-thirds allotted to oil and gas, 20 percent to chemicals and the remainder to MidCon.

Regarding the company's debt-reduction program, Dr. Irani reiterated Occidental's goal to reduce debt by $1 billion by the end of 1996.

By the end of this year, net debt will be down by at least $800 million, and Occidental will have eliminated almost $2 billion in contingent liabilities at a cost of $300 million in litigation settlements and operating lease buyouts, Dr. Irani said, adding, "Clearly, we are well on our way to exceeding our target."

Texas Pacific Group signs agreement to invest $40 million in Newscope

FORT WORTH — Texas Pacific Group has signed a definitive agreement to invest $40 million in common and convertible preferred shares of Newscope Resources Ltd., a Calgary-based energy exploration and production company with operations in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

Upon completion of the transaction, which is expected to close next month, Texas Pacific will own approximately 45 percent of the fully-diluted equity in the company. Concurrent with the closing, the company will be renamed Denbury Resources Inc. to reflect the current name of Newscope's wholly-owned U.S. subsidiary. The investment requires both regulatory and Newscope shareholder approvals.

"Denbury is one of the leading companies in the junior oil segment with a strong track record and an excellent management team," said Bill Price, managing director at Texas Pacific Group. "This is an industry going through considerable restructuring and Denbury will be well capitalized to take advantage of growth opportunities."

Texas Pacific will receive 8.333 million units comprised of one common share and .15 warrant to purchase an additional common share with a combined value of $3 per unit; and 1.5 million convertible preferred shares ($10 par) which can convert into approximately four million shares. The company currently has approximately 13.86 million shares outstanding.

Texas Pacific will also have the right to nominate two of the company's six directors and Ronald Greene, chairman of the board of Renaissance Energy, will also join the board. The company intends to use the proceeds from the transaction for ongoing property acquisitions, oil and gas exploration and development activities, and the reduction of bank debt.

"Denbury represents the first of what we expect to be several investments in oil and gas. We're excited about the overall prospects for Denbury and the industry," Price said.

Texas Pacific Group of Fort Worth is a $720 million private investment partnership that specializes in corporate acquisitions in a wide range of industries. Its principals include David Bonderman, James G. Coulter and William S. Price. The partnership has completed acquisitions in the airline, healthcare, food, entertainment, telephone and waste management industries.

Union Texas Petroleum set to replace 150 percent of 1995 worldwide production

HOUSTON — Union Texas Petroleum Holdings, Inc. expects to replace approximately 150 percent of its 1995 worldwide production, Chairman and CEO Clark Johnson told analysts at a meeting in New York.

The independent oil and gas company estimates its year-end 1995 worldwide proved reserves will increase to approximately 434 million barrels of oil equivalent, up from 411 million barrels at the end of 1994. Johnson attributed a substantial portion of the increased reserves to Union Texas' acquisition of a 15.5 percent working interest in the U.K. North Sea's Alba oil field, which accounted for about 45 million barrels of oil equivalent in proved reserves net to the company as of July 1, 1995. Johnson said that Union Texas expects to record further 1995 reserve additions and revisions from its other interests in the U.K. North Sea, Indonesia and Pakistan.

During 1995, Union Texas' production from its international operations is anticipated to set a record, increasing to about 46 million barrels of oil equivalent, up from 45 million barrels in 1994.

Over a three-year period of 1993-95, Union Texas said it expects to replace approximately 185 percent of its worldwide production.

One of the largest independent producers located in the U.S., Houston-based Union Texas Petroleum Holdings, Inc. explores for and produces oil and gas overseas primarily in the U.K. North Sea, Indonesia and other strategic areas. The company has petrochemical operations in Louisiana.

ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTS

The rigs on the map above show counties in which significant drilling activity has taken place, as reported in the Activity Highlights below.

Midland County yields Bend gas discovery

Staff Reports

Midland County has gained a Bend gas discovery, 15.5 miles south of Midland.

MANZANO OIL CORP. tested the No. 3 S.V. Windham for a calculated absolute open flow of 10,350 Mcfd from perforations 10,994 to 11,006 ft. The interval was acidized with 7,500 gallons of 20 percent NeFe acid.

Permitted as an 11,100 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 11,092 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set and plugged back to 11,061 ft.

Formation tops, on kelly bushing elevation of 2,868 ft., include the Clearfork at 6,100 ft., Spraberry at 7,800, Wolfcamp at 9,250, Canyon at 10,138, Strawn at 10,344 and Bend at 10,658 ft.

Location is 2,018 ft. from south and 1,256 ft. from east lines of Section 32, Block 40, T-3-S, T&P survey, Abst. 1297.

Devonian oil strike tested for 227 barrels

BROWNING OIL CO. INC. has completed a Devonian discovery in Gaines County, a mile northwest of the Russell, Northwest field, 10 miles southwest of Denver City.

On potential test, the No. 1 Jones Ranch flowed 227 barrels of 42.1 gravity crude and 35 Mcfd on a 12/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 210 psi. The well flowed from open hole interval 11,109 to 11,165 ft. with no treatment reported.

Scheduled as an 11,350 ft. test, the well was drilled to 11,165 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 11,109 ft.

The well topped the Devonian at 11,109 ft. on ground elevation of 3,609 ft.

Location is 713 ft. from north and 819 ft. from east lines of Section 11, Block A-7, PSL survey, Abst. 552.

Baytech completes 54-barrel Strawn find

A Strawn discovery has been reported in Mitchell County, four miles north of the well opening the Jasmine field, 11 miles northwest of Silver.

BAYTECH INC. potentialed the No. 1 Nail "44" to flow 54 barrels of 49.3 gravity crude and 85 Mcfd on a 12/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 100 psi. The well flowed from perforations 7,106 to 7,114 ft., which had been acidized with 500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Total depth was 7,400 ft. and the well was plugged back to 7,160 ft.

Formation tops, on kelly bushing elevation of 2,166 ft., include the Noodle Creek at 4,290 ft., Strawn Sandstone at 6,362, Canyon Limestone at 7,064, Mississippian at 7,074, Strawn Limestone at 7,106 and Ellenburger at 7,201 ft.

Location is 600 ft. from south and 1,593 ft. from west lines of Section 44, Block 12, H&TC survey, Abst. 911.

Baytech opened the Jasmine field in June of this year with completion of its No. 1 Nail "16" to flow 88 barrels of 49.3 gravity crude from perforations 7,095 to 7,101 ft.

Pecos field gains new Grayburg pool

A new Grayburg pool has been opened in the Horsehead Crossing field of Pecos County with recompletion of an abandoned well, 13 miles southeast of Imperial.

AVRA OIL CO. reentered the No. 1 Big Sky, testing it to flow five barrels of 29 gravity crude and two barrels of water on a 24/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 25 psi. The well flowed from perforations 2,008 to 2,162 ft., which had been acidized with 3,500 gallons of 15 percent NeFeHCL acid and fractured with 7,500 gallons of gel and 2,500 lbs. 16/30 sand.

Originally drilled to 2,245 ft., the well was reentered and cleaned out to 2,250 ft. and plugged back to 2,185 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 2,180 ft.

The well topped the Yates at 1,025 ft., Grayburg at 1,995 and San Andres at 2,220 ft. on ground elevation of 2,342 ft.

Location is 1,880 ft. from northwest and 1,650 ft. from southwest lines of Section 6, Block 2, H&TC survey, Abst. 8523.

The well was originally drilled as a wildcat and abandoned in March 1993 at 2,245 ft.

Clayton Williams Energy breaks record for dual horizontal well

MIDLAND — Clayton Williams Energy, Inc. announced that for the fourth time in a year the company has broken its own World's Record for the horizontal length of a dual slim-hole horizontal well.

The Merka Unit 1 located in Robertson County, Texas, was completed in the Austin Chalk with dual-stacked laterals of 6,015 feet each. Prior to CWEI's recordbreaking slim-hole program, the longest slim-hole lateral was 4,200 feet.

In related news, Clayton Williams Energy, Inc. earned first place in Hart's Oil and Gas World's Best of the Gulf Coast contest for the Best Field Improvement Project for lowering its drilling cost by 25 percent in the Austin Chalk with the use of slim-hole technology. CWEI implemented slim-hole technology in 1994, completing single lateral wells for a cost of approximately $670,000. In February of 1995, the company began drilling dual-stacked, slim-hole horizontal wells and almost doubled the length of the laterals using this technology for an average cost of approximately $900,000.

Clayton Williams Energy, Inc. is an independent energy company located in Midland, Texas.

Chevron announces Congo discovery

SAN FRANCISCO — Chevron announced a new discovery in waters off the coast of the Republic of the Congo.

The exploratory well, Moho Marine 1, was drilled in the exploration permit Haute-Mer concession, located 9 miles west of the N'Kossa field. Two production tests have been carried out over two intervals in the well. These tests on a 28/64th-inch choke have produced 3,500 barrels of oil per day (BOPD) and 2,200 BOPD, respectively. Additional work is being done to appraise the discovery.

Chevron acquired the exploration rights in this area as part of joining with Elf in the development of the N'Kossa field. Construction and installation of the N'Kossa facilities are proceeding on track for first production in mid-1996. Peak production from N'Kossa is expected to reach 110,000 BOPD in late 1997.

"We are pleased that our plan to acquire both revenue generating assets and adjacent exploration opportunities in the Congo is working well," said Richard Matzke, president of Chevron Overseas Petroleum Inc.

Chevron Overseas (Congo) Limited, a subsidiary of Chevron Overseas Petroleum Inc., holds a 30-percent interest in the Elf-operated Haute-Mer concession.

Benton Oil says Venezuelan production passes 20,000 barrels daily

CARPINTERIA, Calif. —Benton Oil and Gas Co. announced that production from the Uracoa oil field, in eastern Venezuela, has achieved a sustainable rate of over 20,000 barrels of oil per day (BOPD) from 40 wells. This compares to an average of 11,500 BOPD during the first six months of 1995 and an average of 6,900 BOPD during 1994.

"The 75 percent increase in production over the average for the first half of 1995 is a result of our aggressive development drilling program," stated A.E. Benton, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer. "Since July, two drilling rigs and one workover rig have been working full-time. This has resulted in successful completions such as the UM-41 and UM-42 horizontal wells. The UM-41 well is currently producing at a rate of 1,898 BOPD on a 28/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 280 pounds per square inch. The UM-42 well is currently producing at a rate of 1,315 BOPD on a 32/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 220 pounds per square inch. Both of these wells were drilled to a true vertical depth of 4,290 feet with horizontal sections of 1,737 feet and 1,240 feet, respectively, in the Oficina C sands."

Benton Oil and Gas Company, through its 80 percent owned subsidiary, Benton-Vinccler C.A., has an operating service agreement with Lagoven, S.A., an affiliate of PDVSA, the Venezuelan national oil company to develop the South Monagas Unit.

Chief L. W. Long (right), a Yuchi Indian, visits with Trinity school students inside a tee-pee. Long, who lives in Andrews, was speaking to Trinity students about Native Americans, and the Yuchi tribe. Students dressed as Native Americans, sat inside a tee-pee and ate lunch that was cooked over a campfire. Trinity student Ashley Davis, (below), sporting face paint, listens intensely as Long tells about the "People of the Sun," his native tribe of Oklahoma.

Yuchi sheds light on People of the Sun

Native Americans in the Permian Basin are few, and their history is often an unfamiliar one to area children. Chief L. W. Long of Andrews is trying to change that.The full-blood Yuchi (yew-chee) Indian visits classrooms and organizations across the Permian Basin to speak about his culture. He annually visits Trinity School children during a day of basket weaving, eating Indian foods cooked over an outdoor campfire, and learning an Indian dance."One of the objectives for our students is to learn of the beauty in the lives of the Plains Indians," said Trinity School primer grade teacher Pat Freeman. "They held the family circle sacred — full of harmony, respect and tradition."

"I am most proud of my identity as a Native American," Long said. "Our forefathers have told us that Yuchi Indians came from the sun (tso-na in Yuchi). The sun is our mother, so we call ourselves tso ya has. In Yuchi it means 'People of the Sun.'"

Long allows that he is often the first Native American some young children meet. "There's just not that many Native Americans in Midland, regardless of the tribe they originate from. My ancestors came from Oklahoma and I strayed out here since the area was good for work during the (1980s) oil boom."

Long has since retired from the oil fields and lives in Andrews.

He said his tribe is dying out. "Our tribe is not very big, and the younger generation is not learning the language."

He said culture and language are interwined. "If you save the language, you save the culture Unfortunately, our Yuchi-speaking elders are disappearing and the younger generation seems to have no desire to learn the language."

He said, among 1,500 Yuchis, there may be 25 who speak their language fluently. "Our language is being lost. But I am one of those 25 Yuchi-speaking people, and I am teaching my children and grandchildren the language," Long said.

He said people often think all Native Americans speak the same language. "But there are as many dialects as tribes," Long said, noting that he is audio taping stories to teach his grandchildren about their ancestors.

Some of the his relatives continue rituals in Oklahoma, such as the sacred Green Corn ceremony, which honors God for harvests.

"There is so much history about our people. I love to tell it all," Long said. "It's been hard, but I've learned to live in two cultures, both the red and the white cultures. I tell students to be proud of your identity, and don't try to change it. God made me a Yuchi, so why would I want to change? Why try to change something God has created?"

"Chief Long has been coming to our campout at Trinity for five years," Ms. Freeman said. "He tells stories of the past and speaks to the children about caring for Mother Earth."

Long said he would like to hear from other Native Americans in the area. But in the meantime, he will continue to preserve his history and culture by taking it to various classrooms and people under the West Texas sun.

Writing reaps rewards

When Midland Christian High School student Hillary Schuessler embarked on an English assignment, she never expected to open her mailbox and find her name on the cover of a magazine. Even better, the class assignment was published in the magazine.

"It was totally unexpected," Miss Schuessler said. Her article, "Society's Reaction to AIDS" was featured in the September 1995 issue ofChristian Bible Teacher" magazine.

"I sent the article in and got no reply. Then one day the magazine came in the mail. I thought: 'we don't take this magazine.' Then I saw my name on the bottom of the cover."

Although her payment was only some free copies of the magazine and a subscription, Miss Schuessler said seeing her words published and her name in print was thrilling enough.

Although the high school junior said her "first love is music," and she was one of the vocalists representing Texas in a national choir that performed in Europe in June, she also has a knack for putting pen to paper.

"I keep a journal and write in it about three or four times a week. And I write poetry for the school newspaper," Miss Schuessler said.

The task that got her name in print, however, was researching and writing on a topic that concerned her. She chose to write about AIDS and its impact on society. In researching her article she interviewed a member of Midland Area AIDS Support, and she polled about 100 of her peers at Midland Christian School.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Christian School junior Hillary Schuessler wrote a classroom assignment and got it published in a national magazine.

Her English teacher, Rhonda Sawyer, challenged her students to write an article for publication in a magazine. The students used Writer's Market, which lists publishers and their criteria, as a guide.

"I trained in the New Jersey Writing Project and learned that students could look at writing for a different audience,"

'Death stalks our nation. No longer can we hide. No one remains safe from this killer. It steals youth, dreams, and happiness. It currently threatens to claim the lives of over one million people in the United States alone.'

WRITING: Student succeeds first time out

(From 1H)

Ms. Sawyer said. "In the past, I was the audience, and they got bored writing to me with no one else reading their work.

"With the traditional research paper, students hated writing them, and I hated reading them," Ms. Sawyer said, laughing. "The New Jersey Writing Project really changed my perception."

In making writing more attractive to students, Ms. Sawyer said she tossed out the staid research paper, and replaced it with a sense of adventure. "Now, the students write 'discovery papers.'

"Once they picked their topics, I said: 'Now, find an audience,'" the teacher said.

"Students perused Writer's Market, Christian Writer's Market and markets for short stories and poetry.

"I thought they would pick publishers who accepted short articles, 200-300 words. Instead, they tended to pick larger articles because they were looking at which ones paid the most."

MS. SAWYER then told students that tailoring work to pay wouldn't work as well as tailoring it to an audience. Besides, they had a small chance of breaking it to the bigger magazines, such as Newsweek, Redbook, or Time magazines, she said.

As a class project, students prepared their articles, weighed them for mailing in the office and sent them off. "Then we shared their replies," Ms Sawyer said.

She said it was a disappointment for students to discover, from the replies, that the respondent didn't even read their article. However, some students fared better, receiving words of encouragement or suggestions of other markets to submit their work. The teacher said all the students achieved "just in getting their pieces out there."

Miss Schuessler proved the exception to the rule that first-time submitters seldom get published.

"I think Hillary also showed that the perception that teenagers can't be experts on anything is wrong," Ms. Sawyer said. "They can have opinions and can back them up with facts."

The Midland Christian junior said she learned, from her research, "that sex education has gone too far. The only answer is abstinence."

"Personally, I have to stay pure."

She said she tries to live by the scripture I Timothy 4: 12. "Let no man despise the youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in work, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity."

DESPITE HER first blush of success in becoming a published author, Miss Schuessler said writing still plays second fiddle to music.

"I gave the first copy of the magazine I got to Ms. Sawyer. And my family probably wants to frame a copy. But I don't plan to send a whole lot of things off (to publishers)," Miss Schuessler said.

Peers voice concern about AIDS

From Staff Reports

Midland Christian School students allowed they don't interact with any students who they know have the AIDS virus and that they would be hesitant to be in the presence of someone with AIDS.

Midland Christian junior Hillary Schuessler surveyed about 100 of her peers. She said she found that 96 percent said HIV-infected people don't have a right to privacy — that the public has a right to know when they are working or going to school with someone who has AIDS.

"I believe that it is unfair to conceal the lethal weapon of HIV when, by doing so, it could endanger the lives of unsuspecting innocents," Hillary wrote in the article, "Society's Reaction to AIDS."

She said 100 percent of the Midland Christian students polled were also in favor of mandatory testing for health-care workers.

"I believe that mandatory testing has become necessary so that we can identify the carriers and protect ourselves," she said.

Miss Schuessle said that after researching the subject, abstinence should be taught, rather than "safe sex" practices.

Many AIDS educators are teaching both abstinence and the precautions that should be taken.

Name change reflects use of 'cutting edge' technology

Pointing to the two classrooms of drafting tables whose only purpose now is to serve as computer tables, Midland College instructor Curt Pervier, said the need for a name change was obvious.

Beginning this spring, MC's drafting technology program will be Computer Graphics Technology. So what's in a name? In this case it is an acknowledgment that "drafting is no longer—it's all computers," Pervier said.

Pervier and fellow instructor Joe Nye knew that they were teaching cutting edge technology but they were concerned that the name "drafting technology" failed to let students know that "we are staying current," according to Pervier.

The name change reflects the recent trend toward an exclusive use of computers in the work place to do any drafting or graphics. The change also reflects the current job skills required and the technology used in the industry, Pervier said.

Keeping the program current means that the instructors have incorporated a CAD/CAM component into the existing drafting program with two new courses—Computer Aided Manufacturing—Milling and Computer Aided Manufactuing—Turning—and the purchase of specialized software.

Also, students who complete 15 semester hours of specialty courses will be awarded a Computer Graphics Certificate of Completion based on these courses: Engineering Graphics, Computer Graphics I, II, and III, and Special Problems. Students can then earn an advanced skills certificate in: Desktop Publishing, Architectural Graphics, Exploration Graphics, Computer Aided Manufacturing and Piping.

CorelDraw software will be taught in Computer Graphics 1310.

Humanities course contemplates impact of revolutions

America is proud of its own revolutionary heritage, but we barely recognize how Mexico's revolution at the beginning of this century still continues to shape the future of that country. In a world where violent political change is staple for the nightly news, what is true revolution and how does it extend beyond political change?

Coombes

These are the issues and questions that will be the subject of a new course offered this spring. Humanities 1302, taught by Jerry Franks, will focus on the topic "Hopes and Fears: the Potential for Disappointment in the Concept of Revolution."

The revolutionary topic for this semester is one Franks said he hopes will get students to contemplate the broader nature of revolution and how political upheaval manifests itself in a country's art, music and philosophy.

Franks is developing the class as part of the new honors curriculum, but he stressed that the class has no prerequisite, is open to all students and will meet the humanities requirement for MC's degree programs. Franks will continue to offer the Humanities course each semester although the theme will change.

The honors program brings together faculty and highly motivated students, developing a more challenging curriculum.

Courses offering honors credit for the spring semester are: General Biology I taught by Paul Mangum; General Biology II taught by Tomas Hernandez; Principles of Economics I taught by Chloice Shofner; Two sections of the Latin American Novel in Translation taught by Russell Goodyear; and Franks' Humanities II.

For more information or to apply for the Honors program, contact 685- 4641.
