GULF TO BUILD 235-MILE PIPE LINE

Mrs. Collier Not Guilty Says Governor in Issuing Pardon

FRIENDS SEEK CLEMENCY FOR FRANK COLLIER

COLLIER ON FURLOUGH

Pardon for Former Mayor Now Up for Action By Governor

Mrs. Frank Collier, wife of the former Wichita Falls mayor, will not be required to serve 10 years in the state penitentiary as a result of the death of Elzie Logan Robertson, her 19-year-old son-in-law.

A full pardon was issued Saturday afternoon to Mrs. Collier by Gov. Miriam Ferguson, and with it came a proclamation asserting the governor's belief that Mrs. Collier "was not guilty of the charges against her and ought never to have been convicted." The proclamation goes on to give a lengthy statement of the governor's views of the case.

Nothing On Collier.

Nothing has been done in regard to Frank Collier himself, who is now under a three-year manslaughter sentence in connection with Robertson's death. He is now at home on a 30-day furlough, granted by the governor because of ill health. It is understood that efforts have been made to secure a pardon for him also.

Granting of Mrs. Collier's pardon came a short time after Mrs. Hattie Robertson, mother of the boy for whose death the Colliers were indicted, tried and convicted, had made a personal plea before Governor Ferguson and her husband, former Gov. James E. Ferguson. Mrs. Robertson appeared before the governor in Austin to protest any act of clemency in behalf of Mrs. Collier. She presented her side of the case and was given a thoreugh hearing.

Issuance of the pardon closed another step in what has come to be a homicide case generally conceded the most dramatic in the city's history. On the night of February 14, 1925, Elzie "Buster" Robertson was shot and instantly killed at the corner of Seventeenth and Bluff streets. Frank Collier, at that time mayor of the city, surrendered immediately. A first degree murder charge was filed against him and he was freed under heavy bond after a score or more of the city's leading business men had signed it.

Indicted Later

A few days later he was indicted, re-arrested and confined in jail for three days while his attorneys, W. F. Weeks and C. I. Francis, instituted habeas corpus proceedings for his release. These were successful after a vigorous

Water for Diversified Crops, That's Pointer for Texas Progress With Key In Wichita Valley Keep To Lead Way

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Cotton is the topic uppermost and will be until the crop of 1926 has disappeared. There are many problems for the builders of Texas to solve. Joseph A. Kemp and his associates are going to do their best to solve one of the problems by practically abolishing the growing of cotton in the irrigated districts ot Wichita county. In the Magic Valley, they grow cotton in the irrigated districts and this cotton is largely produced by Mexican labor. Congressman John C. Box appears to be determined to outlaw the Mexican, that is, to prevent his coming from Mexico by applying the quota to the Aztec nation. Statesman Box says that 87,000 Mexicans landed in the United States last year. If the immigration quota of two per cent is applied, not more than 17,000 will enter in 1927. Statesman Box is the maker of the figures.

In the Magic Valley in the Gulf coast country, cotton produced by Mexican labor is picked and ginned and marketed in August or early September. In the West Texas cotton fields the crops mature slow because it is planted late and the result is that the cotton in the lower country is marketed before picking begins in the upper country, and continues until the snow drives the pickers from the field.

Box Says Cotton Farmer Must Do Own Work

Statesman Box is of the opinion that the man who grows cotton should do his own work with the assistance of members of his family. This will keep out the Mexican and no doubt result in a large reduction in the acreage planted to cotton. Truth is that the farmers of foreign countries are kept out of this country by the immigration act. This is one of the reasons it is difficult to obtain scientific farmers in irrigated districts or to sell land to farmers who are real farmers. They are not coming to America now.

If Statesman Box shuts out the Mexican, then the lordly white man must do his own hoeing and picking as the negro is leaving the country to find himself a place in the city, except in cotton picking time when numbers of the family of Ham think it is a lark to invade the cotton patch and make a few extra dollars. There are a vast number of small holdings in the Magic Valley irrigated districts, and these new comers are mostly practical farmers from the north and east. They practice the Kemp idea of the cow and the sow and the hen, and sheep to keep down the rank grasses and make the entire place resemble a closly shorn lawn.

Closed Ports Keep Out Many Practical Farmers

Closed ports keep out the practical farmers of Europe. Boys and girls on the farm desert the home place for the city and town. This is another problem for the thinkers and builders to solve for themselves and their state. Statesman Box would solve it by shutting out the supply of Mexican labor and compelling Texans to do their own rough work, their own clearing of forests, their own shearing of sheep and goats, their own plowing and hoeing and reaping. Joseph A. Kemp would solve it by inviting or inducing the bright young men who love the soil and like to be close to nature to acquire small holdings and by the proper methods in time to make themselves independent of credit systems, cotton crises, antiquated methods of agriculture, slipshod customs and practices or in the last analysis proud citizens and wealth makers of an imperial commonwealth which is marching forward bent upon becoming some day the first of American states in population and wealth, in intelligence and patriotism, in manufacturing and agriculture, as it is in territorial domain or magnitude.

Croppers are the drifters of southern civilization. They are part of a pathetic system which has civilization. They are part of a pathetic system which has no place in the new civilization. It must be true that the system which has no place in the new civilization. It must be true that the system, hoary wtih age, has made them what they are. There children may get away from it if given the proper educational facilities.

The Example of Wisconsin: Road To Prosperity

Speaking of irrigation and the visit of Mr. Kemp to European countries, it is not necessary to go to Holland or Denmark for practical object lessons. Thirty years ago Wisconsin was not one of the prosperous states of America. Then came the champions of the cow and the sow and the hen. Then came the apostle of dairy industry and the making of butter and cheese. Now the farmers of Wisconsin are said to lead all others when it comes to the making of these products as well as the making of wealth for themselves and their state. They lead the American world. They lead the European world, with the exception of Denmark.

Why not Texas? Why not the vast irrigation districts in the valley of the Wichita river? A gifted writer has said: "Texas has had many romances. It has had the romance of the Indian and pioneer. It has had the romance of the cowboy and its cattle. It has had the romance of the building of the railroads. It has the romance of the discovery of oil, but the greatest romance of them all is just beginning. It is the romance of irrigation and flood control."

And why not finish this series of articles with the Bibilical quotation, "And the Lord planted a garden in Eden—and a river went out of Eden to water the garden."

Industrial and residential building in Wichita Falls for the year 1926 passed the $9,000,000 mark last week when a steady filing of building permits for the week totalled $116,500. 'Gentleman Farmer' Frank O. Lowden Coolidge's Most Formidable Rival For Control of Republican Cohorts

Politicians Sure He Has Eye On Republican Toga At 1928 Convention

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD.

Mr. Political Bellhop, please page former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. Political Bellhop, "he is not here sir, he is attending a conference at Saint Louis—a conference of the grain growers of the west and the cotton growers of the south. Mister Lowden is what they calls a gentleman farmer, sir. He is away most of the time."

Frank O. Lowden is known to the reading public as the former governor of Illinois, an ambitious candidate for the republican presidential nomination in 1920, a statesman who spurned second place on the ticket with Calvin Coolidge in 1924 who has been a success as a business man as well as a farmer, who has been a backer of farm relief legislation without committing himself to any particular bill in recent years and who hopes to be the choice of the national convention of the republican party in 1928 should Calvin Coolidge step aside of his own volition or be thrust aside by the powerful coterie of spokesmen for the manufacturing and financial interests of the country if the conditions are not propitious for his nomination for a third term.

Lowden, a Farmer.

Frank O. Lowden is a gentleman farmer. He admits it. He owns farms in Illinois, Arkansas, Missouri and other western states. He is said to have extensive holdings in Texas. He prides himself on being a farmer, a tiller of the soil, a lover of nature, a man who is in sympathy with the lowly who live on the land, a keen witted and large visioned American who knows which way the wind is blowing and is ready to blow with it along legitimate lines if its velocity is not destructive and its fury is not of a cyclonic nature. Farmer Lowden's face and oratorical gestures have appeared in every farm weekly in the land."

There is a vast difference between a gentleman farmer and a farmer who grows corns on his hands, wears one gallus, drives a Ford car of the vintage of 1918, chews plug terbacker, cusses Wall street, finds fault with the weather whether it is wet or dry, is par-

Oil Worker Dies In Derrick Crash

O. J. Stallings of Olney In Fatal Accident Near Holliday

O. J. Stallings, 28, was instantly killed Saturday at 12:15 p. m. o'clock while working on an oil derrick one and one-half miles south of Dad's Corner when the heavy pipe being pulled from the well caused the derrick to pull in, and a part of it struck Stallings, fracturing his skull and breaking his left leg in two places.

Two doctors from Holliday were rushed to the place of the accident, but they found the man had been killed almost instantly. The body was brought to Wichita Falls by the Burris-Dalton Undertaking company where it is being held pending funeral arrangements.

Stallings was working on a Texas company lease, Parish No. 17, where the accident occurred.

He is survived by his parents of Rattan, Okla., two brothers and one sister.

SEEK TO MOVE MA'S STATUARY

Bust of Woman Governor Placed in Texas Capitol Arouses Ire

FORT WORTH, Nov. 20 (AP)—Efforts to force removal of the marble bust of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson from the state capital rotound will be carried to the floor of the 40th legislature, George Kemble, senior representative from Tarrant county announced here Saturday.

Kemble declared that he will introduce a resolution before the January session calling for removal of the bust on grounds that no living governor has been so honored, and investigation of the source of funds providing the piece.

"This unveiling is without precedent in the state of Texas," the representative said. "The fortieth legislature undoubtedly will appropriate money to have a painting of the governor hung in the main rotunda. This has been the custom and was followed in the case of former Governor Jim Ferguson.

"No living governor has a bust in the rotunda. In fact, this idea of honoring governors was discouraged by the Fergusons themselves when they led a fight to change the name of the highway named in honor of ex-Governor Neff."

Pump Blood From Man's Lung Into His Arm To Save Life

To be brought from the shadows of death probably to face trial for his life is the fate of W. M. Hoover who was found lying in the home of H. H. Goodman, 1108 Lamar Avenue, Tuesday, near the body of Mrs. Goodman who had been shot four times. Hoover, while improving in a local hospital, is facing a charge of murder in connection with the woman's death.

With a bullet wound above his heart, the man was found apparently dead, his tie burning from the close contact with the exploding shot, and was rushed to a local hospital immediately. Within a few minutes after the shot had pierced his body he was placed on the operating table. There was no sign of life, apparently there was no pulse, and the operation began.

A local surgeon opened Hoover's chest and he found a bullet had grazed the heart but had not penetrated it, but had penetrated the base of the lung cavity, and a massive hemmorage had taken place. The bullet could be felt just underneath the skin on the back.

The blood was withdrawn and mixed with a chemical to prevent clotting and was transfused back into the body through a vein in the right arm. The surgeons were able to control the hemmorage, and the patient's blood was replaced in his own body. By this means his life was saved which under ordinary conditions could not have been done, it was said by the attending doctors.

Approximately three and one-half pints of blood were taken from the cavity around Hoover's lung. Of this amount, two pints were put back into his body, and the remainder of his blood was saved, being also mixed with the chemical to keep from clotting and kept on ice. It was to be used should another hemmorage take place, but it was not necessary to use it.

Hoover is reported doing well and has a good chance for recovery.

PANHANDLE OIL REFINERY HERE JOINS IN DEAL

Reports Trace Line To Run From Ranger Station To Panhandle

WICHITA MAN NAMED

Walter D. Cline Named As One of Parties In First Move Recently

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Gulf Pipe Line company is unofficially reported here as planning immediate construction of a 235 mile pipe line of 30,000 barrels daily capacity from the Ranger station on the Gulf's present system to the company tank farm at Panhandle City in the Hutchinson oil field at a cost of about $5,000,000.

Local officials of the Gulf Production company and the Gulf Pipe Line company were cognizant of the report but refused to confirm or deny it.

Report that the Gulf had ordered two pipe laying machines from a St. Louis manufacturer and a rumor in supply circles that the company is planning to inquire for a large order of 10-inch pipe, supported the report of early constructions plans. Further color to the plans is furnished by the fact that probable pipe line construction figures in the contract by the Gulf Production company with Panhandle Oil and Refining company and Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls when holdings of all three in the Hutchinson area in the Panhandle were consolidated under Gulf operations. The contract made provisions for supply of the Panhandle's refinery at Wichita Falls.

CLINE NOT LOCATED SUNDAY NIGHT

Efforts to locate Walter D. Cline, prominent attorney and oil operator, to obtain a statement concerning the reported contract involving the Panhandle Oil and Refining company and the Gulf Refining company in a contract for construction of a 235-mile pipeline linking West Texas oil fields were without success Saturday night. Credence in the authority of the dispatch from Fort Worth was placed by local oil men who declared that the contract negotiations had been pending for some time.

GOV. FERGUSON FREES WOMAN

Collier was tried in one of the most spectacular court hearings in the county. The trial was prolonged and bitterly fought, but it finally resulted in a manslaughter verdict with a three-year penalty. The state asked for a death sentence and the defense plead for a suspended sentence, admitting that Collier should be found guilty. It was contended that his past record, unimpeachable and serviceable, entitled him to this consideration.

Mrs. Collier was not indicted until after her husband's trial. Her indictment came as something of a surprise. The case was sent to Haskell county on a change of venue, it being held that wide publicity given the case in Wichita county would make an impartial jury impossible to obtain. The case was tried there in an action that dragged out nearly a week when an important state witness was taken ill. The jury, composed mainly of Haskell county farmers, deliberated less than an hour and brought in a verdict of guilty with a sentence of 10 years. The jury in the Collier case deliberated three days.

Facts unfolded immediately after the shooting of Robertson and developed further at the trial revealed that Robertson and Mary Francis Collier, only child of the mayor and his wife, were secretly married in Oklahoma several months prior to the tragedy. This fact was learned by the Colliers just a week or so before Robertson was killed. Displeasure over this was aroused, it was found, and Collier and Robertson had had difficulties at the Collier residence before the shooting. On the night of the shooting, evidence introduced at the trial indicated, Mary Francis, denied an audience with her husband, desperately declared her intention of meeting him anyway, phoned her husband to come and get her and was waiting for him when her father and mother intercepted Robertson and his mother on the street corner a block from their home. The shooting followed.

The governor's reasons on her proclamation were:

"Mrs. Frank Collier, wife of Frank Collier, who was indicted in the district court of Wichita county, Texas, and upon change of venue tried and convicted of murder in cause number 1629 in the district court of Haskell county, Texas, at the April term, 1925, is granted a full pardon.

"The main reason for such action is that after a careful investigation and consideration of the facts I have come to the conclusion that the defendant is not guilty of the charge against her and therefore ought never to have been convicted.

Charged With Murder.

"Mrs. Collier was charged in the indictment with having "with malice aforethought shot Elzie Robertson with a gun in Wichita Falls, Texas, on February 14, 1925. As strange as it may seem the state never claimed or even attempted to show that Mrs. Collier ever shot Elzie Robertson or anybody else, or killed anybody or ever tried to shoot or kill Elzie Robertson, or anybody else. On the other hand the state proved that Frank Collier, her husband, shot and killed Elzie Robertson and he was convicted of manslaughter and given three years for so doing. The state then inflicts a verdict of murder on this unfortunate woman with a 10-year sentence in prison, although she never cocked a gun, let alone shot anybody. It would be a sad commentary on justice to give a poor woman 10 years for an act which she did not commit and give the man only three years for the act which he did commit.

"If by a legal fiction it is contended that Mrs. Collier planned, encouraged or conspired with her husband to commit the killing, then I must insist that there is not one line of testimony in this record that supports this contention and for this reason mainly I deem it my duty to pardon this woman. The arresting officer who saw the shooting says that he arrested Mrs. Collier's husband but that he never thought of arresting Mrs. Collier, showing that she had done nothing to cause any one to accuse her of any crime. The mother of the deceased testified that Mrs. Collier said just after her husband had shot her son, and while she was holding her boy in her arms, 'roll the car back Frank so she can see he is dead.' This certainly is not any evidence of any conspiracy to hurt or kill anybody and was a suggestion of aid to have the light on the car to see the condition of the wounded boy. Such expression was not evidence of any past, present or future agreement to commit crime or kill.

Make As a Joke.

"Another witness testified that Mrs. Collier said one year before the killing that 'if Elzie Robertson did not leave her daughter Mary Frances alone, I am going to have Collier shoot him or kill him.' This witness, however, said that the remark was made in a joke. But whether it was a joke or not it was not any evidence that Mrs. Collier and Frank Collier had entered into any agreement to kill the deceased or had ever discussed it. It is at least not sufficient to convict her for an act committed by her husband.

"Another witness testified that Mrs. Collier said, 'we think we were justified,' and that she also said that Mrs. Collier said, 'Wait till you hear our side.' Putting the most acid construction on the remarks they cannot be said to be any evidence or admission of an agreement to kill anybody by Mrs. Collier of Frank Collier. He alone did the killing and there is not one word of testimony in this record that even squints at the proposition that Frank Collier, who did the killing, ever agreed or even discussed the idea of killing Elzie Robertson. To hold Mrs. Collier guilty when she did not do the killing and took no part in the shooting, the state must prove that she knew of the unlawful intent of her husband to kill, and that she then aided by her acts or encouraged by words or gesture her husband in the shooting of the deceased. Search this record from one end to the other and there will not be found one single fact to prove that Dorothy Collier knew or thought that her husband intended to kill the deceased. All the evidence shows that Collier lost his head and when under great excitement, did the killing perhaps unconscious of what he had done, but in event shot the deceased without any aid or encouragement from his wife, the defendant.

"Summed up, the undisputed record shows that the defendant, Mrs. Dorothy Collier, never shot or killed anybody and never agreed with anybody to kill anybody and never aided or urged anybody by words or gestures to kill Elzie Robertson. Therefore she is not guilty of the charge in the indictment that she shot Elzie Robertson with a gun in fact or in law.

SOLONS TO STUDY PARDONING POLICY.

AUSTIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—The pardon policy of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson will be investigated when the house committee of nine resumes Monday its work after a week's recess, Chairman Lee Satterwhite said Saturday.

Representative W. M. Fly of Gonzales, vice-chairman of the committee, and Carl Phinney, assistant secretary, have been engaged this week in analyzing the pardon records filed with the secretary of state. Some of the pardons have been studied minutely.

The house of the 39th legislature, which at the September call session authorized the inquiry of state departments, specified that the committee investigate the highway commission, textbook commission and pardon board. Heretofore the committee has given but slight attention in its hearings to pardons, but it is expected much of next week will be devoted to this angle.

CITY URGES TAX PAYMENTS

M'Broom Voices Plea For Early Settlement Of City's Indebtedness

Tax payers of Wichita Falls can save the city, and indirectly themselves a considerable sum of money by paying current year's taxes at once, City Clerk McBroom stated Saturday, and asked that all tax payments be made as soon as possible.

The city is paying 6 per cent interest on $280,813 at the present time and the current year's taxes amount to $405,900. If as much as half of this amount were paid in, the city could pay off its obligations and stop interest payments.

Quite a few are already paying their taxes, and all are requested to pay as promptly as possible.

Taxes now due for bond interest amounts to $135,976.64, and principal on the bonds now due is $44,424.00. The tax rate is $1.30 and the total taxes now due the city amounts to $586,378.

LOWDEN EYES G. O. P. HONORS

tial to hand-me-downs and prefers a jumper and overalls while guiding the plow, planting the seed, gathering the crops, doing the chores, milking the cows, currying the horses or the mules and letting the world go by.

University Man.

This former governor of Illinois is a finished product of public school and university. As has been stated he has been a success in life and a close student of politics, politicians, economics, the tricks of the political game inside and out and has never known the pleasure of fighting to keep the wolf of poverty from the cabin door or adversity. In youthful manhood he made a very successful start when he espoused the charming daughter of the late George M. Pullman, founder of the Pullman sleeping Car company and one of the great industrial captains of his time. It was not a marriage of convenience. It was love on both sides, according to the historians of the past, and yet it did no harm to the Lowden fortunes just because the daughter of Magnate Pullman inherited something like 10 or 15 million dollars. This made farming easy and the game of politics an interesting persuit. A gentleman farmer of the Lowden type finds it easy to adapt himself to the club life of the great cities of the world as well as to make himself at home at the cottage of the tanned son of toil who tickles the earth in order to win a livelihood.

Splendid Mixer.

Farmer Lowden is a splendid mixer. In all fields of endeavor and in all walks of life. He knows the inside of the palaces on the Gold Coast on the fringe of Chicago where the rich abide and is ever welcome there. He knows the side of the clubs of Chicago and New York and London and Paris where he appears as well groomed and as perfect in his gestures as any sartorial son of nobility that the old world or the new sends forth to add to the beauty of the landscape or to contribute to the gaiety or edification of his fellow. A man of many parts and a vast deal of real merit is Farmer Frank O. Lowden of Illinois which has 29 votes in the college of electors, is the home state of Vice-President Charles G. Dawes and the burial state of Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant and Joseph Gurney Cannon.

Farmer Frank O. Lowden served four years as governor of Illinois and when he finished the leading newspapers and the foremost men and women of the state who are not hide-bound in their politics, declared that Lowden was the best governor the state had ever had. It was then he became a candidate for the presidential nomination. Indeed, he had been a receptive candidate for a year or two before the coming of June, 1920. He had the nomination within his grasp. General Leonard Wood was his leading rival.

Cash Spoils Chance.

Then the stories were published while the convention was on of expenditure of money in Missouri and elsewhere. This happened to Wood and it happened to Lowden. His manager had sent to a Missouri boss a certain sum of money to be used for legitimate purposes. This Missouri boss pocketed the money, but the fact leaked out. Just as the republican bosses anticipated when they gave out the poison, Wood lost and Lowden lost and Warren G. Harding was picked by the combine of senators and office holders and big business chiefs as the standard bearer of the party of Lincoln and Grant.

All agree that Lowden made a great governor during the four years that he served. He forced the adoption of a budget system. He forced the pay-as-you-go system, he found his state heavily in debt. He retired leaving a handsome balance in the treasury and no outstanding obligations. He gave the people of Illinois a business government, an honest government, an economical government and it was the irony of fate that after enjoying the Lowden administration the republicans of Illinois elected Lenn Small for a term of four years, admittedly the worst governor and the most costly that Illinois has ever known.

Lowden Not Dismayed.

Lowden's defeat for the presidential nomination in 1920 did not dismay or discourage him. He retired in good order, he did not sulk, he supported the regular nominees of his party, he continued his farming operations, he attended all conventions of farmers and farm gatherings and then the unexpected happened. Warren G. Harding died and Vice-President Calvin Coolidge stepped into the vacant shoes. In 1924 Lowden was so highly thought of by the convention managers and makers of the republican party that he was practically tendered the nomination for vice-president. He declined most emphatically to take second place. This was notice to all concerned that the Illinois farmer had his eye on the nomination in 1928.

When the wheat price slump came in the ranks of the republican farmers and the corn slump came in the grain producing states, Farmer Lowden lifted his voice for farm relief legislation, not of the radical or uneconomical kind, but "relief legislation." He told them the woes of the farmer, the wrongs of the farmer, the hard life of the farmer and the absolute necessity for the republican leaders to do something for the farmer to better his conditions without delay or else the farmer, ever loyal to the party of Lincoln, would desert the reservation and down to the earth would tumble the republican house of sand with its tariff walls.

Borah Has Bee

There is a session of congress coming, the short session of the 69th. Senator Borah of Idaho, who is said to have a presidential bee of his own buzzing, is urging the insurgents of the senate to return to the citadel of the regular organization and Non-Partisan Frazier of North Dakota has agreed to return if all his important committee assignments are restored to him. Borah is a brilliant man, one of the great lawyers of the country, but as a presidential possibility he is not as close to the people as Lowden and hasn't the drag that Lowden has with the producing masses of the vast section west of the Alleghany mountains.

Farmer Lowden is watching his step. If Coolidge steps aside or is thrust aside, he sees the standard of leadership which goes with the nomination within reach of his right hand. He thinks he can hold all the republicans of the middle west and the northwest as well as the Rocky mountain states and the Pacific coast states.

President Coolidge is next to all this. He has no fear for New England of New York or Pennsylvania. He knows that he has the money power and Wall street behind him, unless the western wheat and corn growers are on the rampage on account of low price products. It all depends on what happens at the final session of the short congress. It all depends on the prices of wheat and corn in 1927 and the early months of 1928. It all depends on the attitude of the insurgent senators and their followers.

Farmer Lowden is one man who would not need a fashionable hair cut should he visit Wall street. He is one man who the men who pull the strings or invisible wires for the republican party feel would be acceptable to the farmers of the west in states which have never failed them in the years gone by until Theodore Roosevelt turned the Bull Moose loose in 1912 and gored the life out of the Taft elephant.

All the sign gestures indicate that Coolidge will be a candidate in 1928. He has a program to put over and those who know him best say that he is willing to meet the insurgents half way and farm relief legislation of some sort may be enacted before the adjournment of the short term and a tax cut promise in 1928, should the regular republicans and insurgent republicans agree with the president and his secretary of the treasury that an extra session of the 70th congress would spell disaster and perhaps ruin for the party in the presidential election to come.

SUIT IS FILED

Suit was filed in 78th district court Saturday by Mrs. Maggie C. Hyatt against the Mutual Benefit, Health and Accident association for collection on an insurance policy alleged to have been issued to her husband shortly before his death last August.

Mrs. Hyatt alleges that her husband's death was caused by injury incurred while he was riding in the rear seat of a car she was driving.

The injury is claimed to have occurred on the road between this city and Lubbock. Mrs. Hyatt states in her petition that her husband became violently ill while on the trip and was taken to a hospital where an operation indicated that he had suffered a ruptured appendix. Hyatt died shortly after the operation and his wife claims the insurance was applicable to this case on the basis of death due to accidental rather than natural causes.

MAGNOLIA TO INVADE FIELD

Erects Six New Retail Filling Stations in The City

The Magnolia Petroleum company, which has maintained a filling station in Tenth street for several years, has evidently entered the retail field in Wichita Falls in earnest with the proposal to build six new filling stations in the city.

Building permits were taken out by the company last week for the construction of six stations, their locations being designated at the following places:

FIRE STATION MOVE BLOCKED

City Still in Quandary As To What to Do With House Number 4

The proposed removal of fire station No. 4, now located on the site proposed for the new city auditorium, to a place somewhere on the extreme edge of the city limits on Seventh or Eighth streets is practically abandoned, Fire Chief McClure stated Saturday. There is little liklihood of the station being moved at all just now, and if it is moved it will be placed on the lot at the northwest corner of Sixth and Broad streets which the city now owns.

Production Again Registers Slump While Montague Sets Another Peak

Crude runs to pipelines in the Wichita Falls district slumped again in the past week despite gains made by the fields of Montague, Wilbarger, Jack, Clay and Baylor counties. Montague county continued its record breaking climb and gained 530 barrels for a daily average of 11,210 barrels. Wilbarger county also made a nice increase due to Phillips Petroleum company's big well and others. Baylor, Jack and Clay counties showed higher figures, each gaining less than 100 barrels.

The decreases in Electra, Burkburnett, Iowa Park, Archer county offset the gains of other fields and the district as a whole lost 785 barrels in daily production.

VASELINE WELL

Oil Congeas, When Exposed To The Air; Now Flowing.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 20.—Oklahoma's famous vaseline well, the W. C. Newman and others No. 1 Hawthorne, in the northwest corner of 31-8-12, northeast of Lamar, in Hughes county, is again a flowing well.

It made 120 barrels the last 11 1-2 hours to noon yesterday after it had been agitated. The total depth is still 3,710 feet.

On Jan. 21, 1923, the Newmna well was completed for 200 barrels of better than 40 gravity oil, but which congealed when it hit the air, and won for it the name of the "vaseline well". It had declined to around 15 barrels a day, and a week ago Newman began to agitate the well, causing it to make 60, 70, 80 and 90 barrels on successive days.

Although Germany was helping more than 2,000,000 unemployed not long ago, the number now has dropped to less than 1,400,000.

MURCHISON AND FAIN-ROXANA WILDCAT FEA TURES BUSY WEEK

EXTENDS SOUTH VERNON POOL 3 MILES TO WEST

Extensions Also Made in Clay And Young County By Wildcats

Several wildcat tests were the cause of excitement during the past week in the Wichita Falls district. Murchison and Fain and the Roxana Oil corporation's No. 1 Fluhman, a rank wildcat in section 30, block 9, H. & T. C. survey, three miles west of the south Vernon pool was the cause of much speculation when it topped a sand at 1,480 feet and with the drill one foot in, made several flows, keeping the hole full of oil. Officials of the interested companies declare that the well is a producer of some caliber but decline to make an estimate. It is said that very little acreage is obtainable in the immediate vicinity of the strike and that which has changed hands has brought down a fancy price .The sand was being drilled as the week ended and much interest is being manifest by the oil fraternity. The 1,480 foot sand is a new pay horizon for Wilbarger county.

Extension In Young.

A half-mile extension was made to the Dunagan pool in Young county by M. D. Goldsmith's No. 1 J. R. Wilson which is swabbing 200 barrels from a depth of 987-90 feet. It is in section 162, T. E. L. survey and southwest of Olney.

Southern Clay county was the scene of another wildcat completion which will direct some attention to that sector in the future. The Western Oil corporation's No. 1 in section 2623, T. E. L. survey is estimated good for 50 barrels daily and extends the old Batex pool approximately two miles north.

The proven areas of Archer county furnished the usual large number of new producers, the Turbeville pool especially showing new life. There were eight good wells finished there, the largest of which was Simms Oil company and Burns No. 3 in block 146, Carson survey, which is swabbing at the rate of 350 barrels daily. The Texas company completed three producers and one duster. Marland Oil company's No. 11 is swabbing 175 barrels. Another setback for that pool was Petroleum Producers and United Producers No. 8 which was abandoned at 1,865 feet. There were approximately 25 wildcat or semi-wildcat locations announced for Archer county during the week.

Cooke County.

Two nice wells were brought in in the Cooke county pool. American Refining company's No. 2 Dennis swabbed approximately 75 barrels from the sand at 1212-88 feet. John Hooser finished his No. 11 as a 75 barreler. Cooke county still magnetizes the wildcatters, no less than six tests started there last week.

The crude price reduction instituted originally by the Humble Oil and Refining company and later adapted by the Texas, Magnolia and other purchasers was made unanimous the past week when the Prairie, Sinclair and Gulf companies yielded to the pressure and posted the new schedule. The opinion has been expressed by persons authoritively informed on the oil situation, however, that the present price structure will be short lived. This opinion is based principally on the approach of bad weather and the decline of several of the major districts.

As compared with the previous seven days the past week was a hectic one. New locations were on the increase, a new pool was discovered, several semi-wildcats were completed as oil wells and many new wells were added to the older pools.

JONAS TALKS AT U. CLUB

Tendencies in Psychology Are Discussed by College Professor

"Recent Tendencies in Psychology" were discussed at the University club by Richard Jonas, professor of education in Junior college, who explained psychology as a study of the mind, and expressed in behavior. He gave numerous illustrations to prove his points of superstitious tendencies, the power of suggestion as brought about in the experiment by Dr. Pillsbury of the rabbit, duck and diamond.

He explained the use of psychology in the business world, how it relates to advertising, news values, salesmanship. "Psychology is as old as the human race and it touches every phase of activity," he said.

Presentation of a gift of appreciation from the club was made to J. H. Allison, past president, with Mrs. J. S. Pitman making the presentation. Judge B. D. Sartin read the motto to the club. Little Miss Mary Alice Andrews entertained with a reading, "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," and answered the applause with two readings.

Goodner Class To Be Re-organized

Bible Unit Members Will Meet Monday Night At Duff Home

The Goodner Bible class which has been meeting for the last five years is to be recognized Monday night in a meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. E. T. Duff at 1306 Austin street. Any one interested in the study of the Bible is invited to attend, and an invitation is extended also to former members and those of the class under Mrs. Alva Willgus last year.

Five years ago a revival meeting was held in the city and as an outgrowth, the Goodner class was organized by Mr. and Mrs. Haynes and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Goodner. Shortly after the organization, the Haynes family moved from the city, and Mrs. Goodner remained teacher of the class until the family moved to California in 1925, and the class was taken by Mrs. Willgus last year. Interest was created in the city by the class which had a large attendance.

THE REAL HONOR

Indignant Woman Spurns Party Herriott Graces.

PARIS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Because she discovered that her noble name adjoined that of M. Herriot on the list of patrons of the "Franc Salon," the Dowager Duchess d'Harcourt indignantly withdrew from the committee. Even in these democratic times in France, the old spirit of the feudal families of Normandy dies hard.

The story is going the rounds that the dowager called up the organizer of the patriotic art exhibition and demanded that M. Herriot's name be dropped forthwith from the list.

"But, my dear duchess," the perplexed organizer tried to explain, "I really can't do that. You see, M. Herriot is minister of fine arts as well as of education, and he has simply got to be one of the patrons because of his official functions."

"No matter," snapped back the titled lady. "You can drop off my name, then! I want to have nothing in common with that person."

All of which did not prevent the Countess de Noailles, bearer of a no less honored name, from gracing the exposition by her presence. The countess, a poet of ability, admired M. Herriot, literary critic and biographer of Mme. Recamier as well as radical politician.

BANK GUARDED

Historic Institution Watched While Reports Go On.

LONDON, Nov. 20.(AP)—The historic Bang of England building has been practically demolished to make way for a new structure, and all the bullion and valuables removed to Finsbury Square. Only the outer walls of "the old lady" of Threadneedle street remain intact but the site is more carefully guarded now than at any time in its long history which goes back to 1694.

Plans of the interior of the building to be erected are known to only 20 persons and each one of the parties of especially selected artisans do not know what the other is doing. Workmen's entrances are guarded, and every man carefully scrutinized on arriving and leaving. Detectives are about everywhere inside the old walls and at night there is a constant patrol of armed watchmen.

At every few yards of the ground on which the new Bank of England will be built, alarm bells have been fixed so that any foreman can summon help within 30 seconds of an alarm being given.

THEATERS INCREASE

Large Number of Movies Make Their Appearance.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—The far-famed classical kultur of Munich is fast succumbing to the movies. There are 17 new screen theaters under construction with a seating capacity of about 12,000. With the movie palaces already running there will be room for 10 per cent of the population in the theatres at one time. With the exception of the Municipal opera the legitimate stage and music halls are complaining about film competition with classical entertainment.

GATEWAY BAND ELECTS

Iowa Park Musical Organization Offers Its Services.

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Nov. 20.—Iowa Park's premier musical organization, The Gateway band, held its annual election of officers in business meeting following regular rehearsal Monday night. The new officers are W. G. Shipman, business manager; Paul H. Sisk, director, and "Bud" Black, assistant director.

The band will be prepared to play for any public occasion in the city, according to Mr. Shipman, the new manager, and [illegible] are being made to be in shape for the band contest at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held in Wichita Falls next spring.

AS TIME FLIES

Palatial Carriage Barn Becomes Tennis Court.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Frederick the Great and his contemporaries probably would rub their eyes in wonderment were they to see what has happened to the palatial carriage barn at Potsdam in which the gorgeous state equipages and carriages of the wealthy were kept during their time. The so-called royal "kutschenstall" has been converted into an indoor tennis court. The transformation bears testimony not only to the passing of horse-drawn and highly embellished state conveyances, but also to the progress of athletics in republican Germany.

TO SAVE MONEY

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—A square meal for 15 to 20 cents is the aim of Cologne's Burghers. They have started a campaign to induce restaurants, hotels and bars to serve so-called half portions for persons who want to save money while keeping slender. The average single portion German steak is big enough for two persons, so that half a portion fould just fill the bill. A number of eating houses have already adopted the idea and more are expected to follow.

MANY TENANTS SEEK TO RENT WICHITA LAND

Acreage in This Section In Big Demand; Most Of It Taken

Contrary to opinions formed by many persons who read their interviews of a week ago in the Record-News, County agent Guy Jones and J. M. Baber, local realtor, stated yesterday that the object of their statement at that time was to show the numerous instances of farming success and the all convincing evidence of agricultural progress in this section, rather than to try to leave an impression of failure.

"As a matter of fact, I am having more calls for tenant farms than I can supply," Mr. Baber stated, "and many of these farmers are coming in here from other sections of Texas and Oklahoma. I attempted in the previous article to show that the low price of cotton had caused a feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction in the cotton growing sections of the south, and that this condition was working to the advantage of Wichita county because it would bring hundreds of good farmers into the irrigated valley lands where they could most successfully diversify, and thus be relieved of the risk of a one crop system.

Tenants Coming Here

Tenants are coming into this section at the rate of two or three per day, and many of these men are in the market to buy farms. One man has just applied to Mr. Baber for a farm here. He is a big cotton farmer of central Texas, having farmed a 1,500 acre cotton crop this year, but he is through wtih that system and wants to rent a farm here this year and try the country and next year intends to buy a good farm here. He stated that he would bring his entire outfit, which consists of several negro families that have been with him for many years.

Guy Jones, as county agent, has been closely connected with the development of this section for a long time, and he would probably be the last man to in this city indicate a falling off of farming demands here. On the contrary Mr. Jones has found that the demand here has been much stronger this fall for farms, especially the irrigated valley farms, than ever before.

Abandon One-Crop Idea

"There is to be sure a feeling of disgust and discouragement among our farmers in regard to the cotton situation, but is working for the betterment of the section, because it is driving these farmers away from the one crop idea, and practically forcing them to diversification," Mr. Jones said.

"In my previous statement," Mr. Jones added, "it appeared that I had noticed a feeling of unrest among the farmers in this section whereas I called attention to the general unrest of the cotton belt of Texas as a reason for the influx of farmers from that section to the Wichita county area.

"We produced in this county more cotton, more corn, more feed stuffs, more small grain this year than ever before, and generally the farmers are better off than they have been, but that condition does not prevail in south and central Texas where cotton has virtually bankrupted whole sections of the state. This county is not suffering, on the contrary, is prospering, and the realtors are doing a rush business in finding rent farms for the many new tenants coming here.

Some Tenants Shift

"It is true that the same tenants of the county are shifting about. They always do. But the bulk of the farmers of this section will remain on their farms and make another crop here, however, other sections of the state will have quite the opposite condition this year."

As an indication of the general prosperity and confidence of Wichita County farmers, Mr. Jones called attention to the hundreds of hogs and milk cows that are being shipped into the section and sold. I believe there are more head of livestock in this section now than ever before, and they are coming in very fast now as the farmers here are buying them as fast as they can get them.

A man recently brought a truck load of pigs in from Montague county and sold every one of them within a few minutes at $10 a head. Milk cows are in great demand and many are coming in from the crop failure belts of the south.

Irrigation Preferred

As to the irrigated lands, Mr. Baber stated that he had noticed a pronounced preference for irrigated farms. They are hard to find, and "I could rent a half dozen good irrigated farms right now, if they were available," he said.

Usually a farmer who has tried the irrigation consistently will not have any other kind of a farm. He knows the value of the everlasting water and has learned that it will pay big dividends year in and year out.

There is also a tendency to cut down on the amount of acres farmed in the irrigated belt and to intensitfy on smaller tracts. This calls for more thorough diversification, and means a great step in the progress of the valley.

"The low price of cotton has indeed been discouraging to every farmer who raised cotton this year, but the effect has been negligible here in comparison to the regular cotton sections. And with the enormous grain crop produced here and other crops such as onions, potatoes, and garden crops, the cotton debauch has been, if anything, a benefit to this section." Mr. Jones stated, adding that at no time has he ever felt any doubt as to the prosperity and general progress of the farming industry in this section.

It is only a matter of a few years until every foot of Wichita Valley irrigated lands will be under intensified cultivation, and the quality of its products will demand a market worth while.

Banks To Open 'Selling School'

County Institutions Seek To Educate Public In Use Of Funds

With the double purpose of "selling" bank accounts to those who do not keep their funds in banks, and of persuading those who already have accounts to use them in such a way that the bank will be compensated for the service and convenience given, the banks of Wichita county are inaugurating an unusual advertising campoign, starting today.

All ten of the banks in the county, four in Wichita Falls and two each in Electra, Iowa Park and Burkburnett, are joining in the campaign.

The several advantages of "paying by check" are set forth in the advertising, which explains that the bank's compensation for the advantages it gives is obtained by loaning a portion of each depositor's money. It is pointed out that where the "loanable balance" in an account is too small to earn enough to pay the bookkeeping costs of the account, the bank receives no compensation for the service it gives. The advertising will urge each depositor to maintain his account at a figure that will compensate the bank.

Enjoy Undistorted Music!

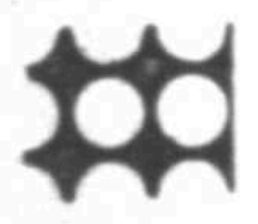
TO AVOID distortion in radio reception, the source of the "B" current must have low internal resistance.

For a "B" power unit that offers the least internal resistance, eminent radio engineers recommend Ray-O-Vac batteries. These batteries have only from one-sixth to one-third as much internal resistance as other sources of "B" current.

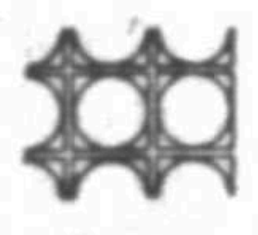
At the same time they have longer life. A new type of construction—exclusive with Ray-O-Vac batteries—gives them from 10% to 15% more staying power than ever before, and Ray-O-Vacs have always been famous for their staying power.

Now no hot pitch is poured over the unit cells. So its excessive heat does not devitalize the electrolyte . . . and there are no bulging tops . . . no cracked seals or broken connections . . . no internal short circuits . . . no needless weight.

You can buy Ray-O-Vac batteries at the better radio and electrical dealers, hardware and music stores, department stores and auto supply shops everywhere.



Section through old-style construction. Solid pitch fills spaces between cells, allowing no room for expansion of the electrolyte. Short circuits usually result



In Ray-O-Vac batteries each cell is in a square carton, with waterproof, acid-proof sidewalls, top and bottom. Expanding electrolyte cannot contact with other cells because the corners of the square compartment allow it room for expansion

WICHITA FALLS WINS THREE GAMES ON GRID BUT LOSES THEM IN COMMITTEE ROOM

BY BLONDY CROSS

Wichita Falls with the most powerful football team that has worn the Crimson and Black spangles in years has been eliminated from the Texas high school championship race.

Wichita Falls, after having whipped Electra, Vernon and Quanah, her only class A opponents in the eastern section of District One, University of Texas interscholastic league, in sturdy moleskin warfare on north Texas fields of gridiron strife, has succumbed to sweeping defeat in a district committee room.

Wichita Falls, one of the leading challengers for the state championship, a challenger by right of conquest on the grass-burred turf of Electra, a contender by right of conquest on the sand-barred field of Vernon, a semi-district champion by right of conquest on the clay-bogged gridiron of Quanah, has been stripped of its victory laurels, not on the field of battle, but on the floor of the Quanah high school building where sat in a court of appeal over the week-end District One team representatives.

Passing on protest entered by Vernon school officials, all games played by Wichita Falls the current season were ordered defaulted in a three-to-two representative vote.

The point of contention was that in accepting the services of Brown McCallum, Coyote line coach and brother of A. Y. (Bud) McCallum, Coyote head coach, Wichita Falls violated section 17, article eight of the interscholastic league rules, which is as follows: "The football coach must be a full time employee of the school board."

Thus has Wichita Falls lost what had been a probable district championship and the right to strive for the highest athletic honor in the broad domain of the great state of Texas—lost in a school room, not on the field of battle. Lost unless the district will countenance a rehearing of the case and in doing so reverse its decision.

Has Fair Verdict Been Given? Should Innocent Athlete Suffer?

Is Wichita Falls completely out of the running for sure, do you ask? Will Bud McCallum's stalwart lads not be given a chance after all these weeks of gruelling preparation for the title swing, after invading rival fields, fighting all their battles on foreign territory without a single league game played at home, see their championship hopes go glimmering in a mandate issued from a district committee room? Will these lads be made to suffer because officials of Wichita Falls high school have erred, if in reality they have erred? Is it the innocent that suffer, these youths who have given their all toward bringing a championship to Wichita Falls and north Texas?

That's a difficult question to answer.

Just as an observation from the writer:

It is hardly conceivable that such fair-minded men as C. E. Davis of Quanah, E. G. Rogers of Electra, W. T. Loffland of Vernon and the representatives of Amarillo, Plainview and Lubbock after reconsidering will not rescind the decision.

Plainview, Vernon and Electra voted against Wichita Falls. Amarillo paired its vote with Wichita Falls in the Coyote favor. The Quanah vote with Davis as district chairman was reserved to be cast in case of a tie. Lubbock was not represented at the session and refused to vote by telephone. In other words, three teams already eliminated voted against Wichita Falls. Lubbock and Amarillo were still in the championship running.

Interscholastic League Director Gave Okeh Before Race Started

You naturally ask, what defense has Wichita Falls.

Anent the full-time employment coach edict of the league, made, incidently, just this year:

Head Coach A. Y. McCallum sought and obtained advice on the situation from league headquarters this fall before league competition began.

Roy B. Henderson, interscholastic league athletic director, in reply to McCallum declared that Brown McCallum's activities as an assistant to Bud McCallum was not and would not be a violation of the coaching rules.

Dean S. H. Rider of Wichita Falls filed Henderson's reply with the district chairman and, Mr. Rider said, also sent copies of the letter to all schools in the district.

There follows reproduction of A. Y. McCallum's missive to Director Henderson and Director Henderson's reply:

McCallum's Letter

October 2, 1926

Mr. Roy B. Henderson,
Interscholastic league,
Austin, Texas.

Dear Mr. Henderson:

Is it a violation of the interscholastic league rules for a person not connected with the school to help coach the football team, provided he is not being paid for his services?

My brother, Brown, has been here about a year and he is helping me practically every afternoon after 4 o'clock. He is giving his time because of his interest in the team.

I believe this matter was taken up at the league meeting last spring, and it was decided that a team could accept outside help provided the outside help was given absolutely free.

Kindly advise me in regard to this matter at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely yours,
Bud McCallum, coach.

Henderson's Letter

Oct. 4, 1926

Mr. Bud McCallum,
Coach, high school,
Wichita Falls, Texas.

Dear Bud:

Replying to your letter of October 2, it is NOT a violation of the coaching rule for your brother, Brown, to assist you in coaching the team.

Yours very truly,
Roy B. Henderson,
Athletic director, League Bureau, Division of Extension.

Roy Henderson Commends Brown McCallum For "Fine Public Spirit"

Brown McCallum, according to officials of Wichita Falls high school, receives no remuneration for his services, but aids his brother, the head coach who is on full-time pay at the high school, because he has been asked to do so and likes to do so and because he wants to see Wichita Falls go as far in the championship drive as humanly possible.

In other words, according to the district ruling, any citizen who out of an altruistic spirit would tender his aid toward coaching his city's team into a possible title or in anyway tender training or coaching advice does so at the risk of seeing the team knocked from the race by order of a district committee. Yet many other teams over the state have assistant coaches of exactly the same status as Brown McCallum, but they have lost no games in a district court room.

A. Y. McCallum communicated with Director Henderson Saturday morning by telephone. According to McCallum, Henderson said he had written Superintendent Loffland at Vernon telling him the coaching rule applied only to head coaches.

Henderson, also, is said to have commended Brown McCallum highly for the "fine public spirit in a man that leads him to give his time as your brother has done in trying to bring a championship to his home city when there are so few men who would devote their time to such a cause unless the incentive be far stronger than that."

Right Or Wrong, District Has No Ground To Stand On, Says Coach

Had Wichita Falls really broken a law of the interscholastic league, under these particular circumstances the district has not one inch of ground to stand on in ruling the Coyoes out, Head Coach McCallum contends, because the league rules that any protest other than that of ineligibility of a player, to be recognized must be filed within 24 hours after the game played by the protesting team. McCallum says Vernon's protest was made 13 days after the Vernon game on October 19.

S. H. Rider, the Wichita Falls district representative, was asked four questions, he says, by the committee. They were:

Does Brown McCallum assist A. Y. McCallum in coaching every afternoon? The answer is yes.

Does Brown McCallum make all trips with the team? The answer again is in the affirmative, unless there be a conflict in his or A. Y. McCallum's plans.

Is Brown McCallum employed by Wichita Falls high school and if not where is he employed? The answer is no; he is employed at Pink's pharmacy.

Is there any official relation between Wichita Falls high school and Brown McCallum? The answer is no. A. Y. McCallum is looked to for everything of an official calibre.

That just about completes the situation as laid before the writer, how Wichita Falls lost three football games in a district committee room. There appears no reason to believe we have been misinformed. Perhaps there is a mistake. On the face of it, surely district representatives will go more into detail this week, give Wichita Falls a rehearing with ultimate results the Coyote slate will be wiped clean and the McCallum brothers continue their pursuit of a championship to be won on the gridiron and not on the floor or a committee room.

ARMY TRIMS URSINUS

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 20. (AP)—Army won from Ursinus today 21 to 15 in the Cadets' last game before meeting the Navy in Chicago next Saturday. Although Army had a reserve list of players on the field during most of the afternoon, the visitors made more points than Army's substitutes and it was only while the Army regulars were playing that the Cadets looked stronger.

Instead of Punishment He Should Be Commended, Says Official

BROWN M'CALLUM

Wichita Falls High school has been "kicked" out of the current Texas interscholastic league football race by vote of representatives from the schools in District One. The district contended that by allowing Coach A. Y. (Bud) McCallum, head football coach of Wichita Falls, to use the assistance of his brother, Brown, as line coach, Wichita Falls high school broke an interscholastic league law.

Such a decision was rendered by a three-to-two vote and Wichita Falls' three victories in the eastern half of the district were annulled.

Yet just yesterday morning a league official at Austin is quoted as declaring:

"Why, such a move is ridiculous! Instead of Wichita Falls being censured, in fact, punished, Brown McCallum should be commended highly for the spirit he has displayed and the good work he is doing with the young athletes he has had under him. His work is a fine example of sportsmanship and endeavor you cannot find just anywhere."

Had not Wichita Falls been ruled out the Coyotes automatically would have been scheduled with Lubbock high school this week in battle for the championship of north Texas. Lubbock defeated Amarillo yesterday, 12 to 7, and won the right to meet the champions of the eastern half of district one. The game in all probability would have been played in Wichita Falls.

If the district stands pat on its seemingly unfair ruling against Wichita Falls, the Vernon Lions will be chosen to play Lubbock for the title. Vernon defeated Quanah and Electra, but lost to Wichita Falls.

It hardly appears possible district committeemen will allow such an obviously unjust ruling to stand. Appeal to the league offices appears to be out of the question. The matter is left entirely up to the district to pass on.

Wichita Falls has asked for an immediate re-hearing of the case.

BURK FIGHTS ARCHER CITY TO 0-0 TIE

McDonald, Wolf, Black And Hickem Wage Great Battle

BY R. O. JONAS.

ARCHER CITY, Nov. 20.—Archer City's Wildcats and the Bulldogs of Burkburnett failed to decide the championship of this half of the district class B race when they battled to a scoreless tie on the local gridiron Saturday afternoon. The two teams were evenly matched, the Wildcats having the best of it in the first half and the Bulldogs in the final half.

Another play-off was made necessary by the result of the game, which was the semi-final contest of the district, the winner to play Decatur, winner of the southern half of the district. No decision or arrangements had been made last night as to the method of deciding the tie.

The whole contest turned out to be an interesting spectacle to the crowd of fans who braved the bitter cold that swept over the field all afternoon. It was an odd affair in which Archer City annexed the most first downs through the major part of the game and in which Burkburnett did most of the gaining and most of the real threatening. Burk lost a number of first downs and a good chance to score through penalties and fumbles at inopportune moments.

Burk Menaces.

Burk got the first break of the game near the start of the contest when an Archer City fumble was gathered in on the Archer City 29-yard line. Burk smashed the Wildcat defenses to their two-foot line and then the Bulldog ferocity was subdued as Archer City held the visitors a mere two feet from the final chalk-line.

Archer City retaliated in the second quarter by negotiating a steady march from near midfield to the Burk five-yard mark, but here the Bulldog grip tightened and held the locals for downs, the final attempt of the Wildcats being a pass over the goal that was wide of its mark. The first half ended scoreless, with Archer City having earned five first downs to one for the Bulldogs.

In the third quarter, McDonald uncorked a beautiful 24-yard run that had the earmarks of a possible score for a while. But the Wildcats braced and then started a march all their own, Quarterback Black taking the ball on a quarter-behind-center formation on practically every signal and getting away for good gains. Burk stopped the parade on her own 35-yard line, forcing Archer City to kick.

McDonald Smashes.

Early in the fourth period, McDonald smashed through for a 17-yard gain and followed it by 40-yard dash for the goal around the Wildcat left side. He was loose and seemed to have a score assured, when an onrushing Wildcat tackler spilled him with such force that he dropped the ball, Archer City recovering on her own 18-yard mark and returning five more before stopping. It was a hard break against the Bulldogs, who seemed to be developing the goal line punch. McDonald was hurt but stayed in the game several more plays.

The Wildcats completed a 20-yard pass but on the next play McDonald covered a Wildcat fumble and stopped the threat. The ball was soon back at the other end of the field as Burk suffered a 15-yard penalty and also was downed for several losses. Archer's attempt to gain did not get anywhere, Burk taking the ball on her own 20-yard line and beginning the final march that seemed to carry scoring possibilities when the game ended soon after. Wolf led a series of line plunges that earned four first downs in a row, bringing the ball to Archer's 31-yard line and finding it little trouble to gain, when the final whistle stopped the contest with no score.

Black and Larkin in the backfield and Lewis and Hull in the line featured the Wildcat attack, while McDonald and Wolf in the backfield and Hickman, Gilmore, and Goodwin in the line seemed to pack the most punch on the Bulldog ledger.

Burkburnett	Po.	Archer City
Hickem	Center	Hull
Woods	Left Guard	Gholston
Gebhart	Right Guard	Love
Vance	Right Tackle	Cross
Gilmore	Right End.	Robinson
Dilbeck	Quarterback	Black
McDonald	Left Half	Hutchison
Hurd	Right Half.	Larkin
Wolf	Fullback	Morrison

NO DOPE TURNOVERS

The football season in its finale for many teams yesterday developed no startling surprises. Yale's 12 to 7 victory over Harvard was expected by the bulk of critics. Navy's lopsided win over Loyola was true to form and if anything, stood as another warning to Army cohorts who downed Ursinus, 21 to 15, using reserves nearly all the way.

* * *

Brown's 40 to 14 drubbing of New Hampshire was expected. Bo McMillan's Geneva eleven found Alleghany tougher picking than doped, winning by a 15-0 score.

* * *

NEAR UPSETS

Michigan and Northwestern fought their way into a deadlock for the Big Ten championship just as oracles prophesied they would do. But both came very near to faltering. Michigan was outplayed by Minnesota and would have lost but for the conversion of a Gopher fumble into a touchdown by Oosterbaan. The Wolverines won, 7 to 6. An inspired Iowa eleven came very near to kicking over the Purple. Northwestern came through with a bare 13 to 6 victory.

* * *

Nebraska's Cornhuskers continued in the role of giant killers, toppling the hitherto undefeated New York university machine in the big intersectional game of the day, 15 to 7. Perhaps it was an upset.

* * *

Notre Dame stuck to form, smashing Drake, 21 to 0. Oklahoma won as expected over St. Louis, rolling up a 47-0 count. The Kansas Aggies were surprised by a fighting Ames eleven and went down, 3-2, a last-minute rally failing within inches of the Ames goal.

* * *

Locally, or rather in this district, there was a bit of a dope kick-over when Captain Johnny McDonald, Wolf and the rest of Eaton's Burkburnett team fought Wilson's powerful Archer City eleven to a scoreless tie on the Wildcat gridiron.

* * *

And yes—don't let us forget, there was quite an upset when Wichita Falls lost three football games in one afternoon to district committee representatives from Plainview, Vernon and Electra.

* * *

As Cece O'Hara, the well-known local football impressario, remarked after glancing at a newspaper last night: "After seeing those two stories I am now sure there isn't such a thing as justice!" One of the stories was an announcement Wichita Falls had been thrown out of the football race.

* * *

The Coyotes have forfeited their rights to play for a championship under ruling of the district committee over a technicality which in reality is no technicality. There never was any reason why Brown McCallum should not assist Bud McCallum coach the Wichita Falls team. And if there was the entire district, according to McCallum, should have been cognizant of such before the competitive drive began and should have said so, for, according to McCallum, each district representative was informed by Wichita Falls that Brown would serve as assistant coach.

Vernon Downs Plainview, 7-0

Lions Score Early Then, Hold Hard-Fighting Bulldogs

VERNON, Texas, Nov. 20.—Outplaying their opponents throughout the last three quarters of the game, the Plainview Bulldogs were forced to accept defeat at the hands of the Vernon Lions on the local football field Saturday afternoon. A touchdown and kick for the extra point by Vernon near the middle of the first quarter constituted the only scoring of the game.

The touchdown and kick for point marked the end of the Vernon offensive which started out brilliant enough. During the remainder of the game the visitors held a slight edge over Baggett's charges and penetrated the Lion's 10-yard zone on three occasions only to be held at the line and lose the ball with passes over the goal line. The visitors attempted one kick from placement which was batted wild by Captain Gelhausen.

Passes featured the work of the visitors, and accounted for practically all their gains. The Bulldogs took to the air 29 times, and were successful five times. Their aerial attack enabled them to record 15 first downs to eight made by the Lions.

78,000 Fans See Crimson Go Down in Defeat As Bulldogs Triumph

YALE BOWL, NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20. (AP)—Yale conquered Harvard Saturday 12 to 7 in a see-saw battle before a crowd of 78,000.

Two field goals, one from the 25-yard line by Jerry Wadsworth in the third period and the other by Captain Bunnell in the fourth period from the 43-yard line, gave the Elis an uphill victory.

Wadsworth's kick provided what proved to be the winning margin after Harvard had rallied to score a touchdown early in the third quarter on a 30-yard pass, Chauncey to Saltonstall, who ran 19 yards to Yale's goal line.

Chauncey's dropkick for the extra point put the Crimson in front, overcoming the six-point margin gained by Yale in the second quarter when Richards, Eli tackle, blocked a punt and Sturhahn fell on it behind Harvard's goal line for a touchdown.

Yale outplayed the Crimson in a tightly fought defensive battle. Both teams employed the forward pass for most of their gains.

ODDS FAVOR VARSITY MACHINE BUT THEY MEAN VERY LITTLE IN ANNUAL TURKEY DAY CLASH

Nelson Says Both Aggies and Longhorns Just As Strong As Mustang Eleven If Not Wee Bit Stronger

BY BASCOM NELSON

The eyes of the southwest are turning toward Austin where Texas university and Texas A. and M. meet in the classic football contest of the season at the stadium Thanksgiving. Last year these two teams fought for the championship and this year they will practically be fighting to keep out of the cellar. Despite this fact the contest is predicted to be one of the greatest that has ever been waged between the two teams. Despite the fact that both teams have been defeated by S. M. U. and Baylor both have strong elevens—some contend the strongest in the conference. One point that argues for a strong well-fought game is the fact that there is little to choose between the two elevens. Texas played S. M. U. a great game—a game that was snatched away from them in the last five minutes of play when the S. M. U. team trailing by a 17-7 count converted a defeat into a great victory by some wonderful passing—a great reserve—and a heartbreaking fumble by "Ramin" Rufus King. Many contend that Texas played above their heads that day but the fact remains that they launched one of the greatest offensive attacks that has ever been witnessed on a Texas football field. This attack began on the first play of the game when Texas made a touchdown by the way of the pass route and continued to the final whistle blew.

Just a week before this game was played Texas A&M went down in a great defeat at Dallas before the S. M. U. aggregation. The final score was 9-7 and many contend that A&M outplayed S. M. U. but the fact remains that S. M. U. won the game.

Both Texas and A&M were defeated by Baylor and the writer was fortunate enough to witness both contests and he contends that either team has a stronger eleven than Baylor. It is no easy matter for two elevens to snap out of a defeat of the nature that they suffered at the hands of S. M. U.

Your Paper Statistics

On paper the odds are strongly in favor of a Texas victory Thanksgiving but paper dope means little when these two teams trot out on the field. Texas scored 17 points against S. M. U.-Baylor, A&M, and Missouri combined could only score 19 points. Texas was beaten by Baylor by the score of 10-7, Baylor defeated A&M by the score of 20-9. Both Texas and A&M defeated Rice by the same score, 20-0. Those are actual figures. Now comes the psychological side of the question. Texas has not forgotten that 28-0 defeat they suffered at the hands of A&M last Thanksgiving when Leo Baldwin, of Wichita Falls, fought a lone fight against the Aggie eleven. His work was the only outstanding light in the bitter defeat and Texas is determined to wipe out that defeat. Again Texas will be playing at home before a crowd of 40,000 people and this will count strongly in their favor.

Little To Choose

There is little to choose in the actual power of the two teams. Texas has a great line, A&M also has a great forward wall. Texas has no Joel Hunt but they have a Mack Saxon and a "Ramin' Rufus King. A&M cannot boast of a great defensice back as Texas does in Mack Saxon but they have the edge on Stallter in the matter of returning punts. In the matter of punting Texas is again overshadowed but if Texas can use their passing as they did against S. M. U. they will have the edge over A&M in this department.

Taken all in all there is little to choose between the two teams but if the odds favor either team it will be the Texas eleven.

AMES WINS, 3-2

Kansas Aggies Upset by Toe-Work of Coe in Hot Melee

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 20. (AP)—The Kansas Aggies today in the fourth quarter came within four inches of what was to have been a thrilling last-minute victory over the Ames eleven, only to have the Cyclone line stiffen and prevent a score. The game, the last of the season for the Aggies ended 3-2 in favor of Ames, a decided upset in the dope.

After the two teams had battled through three periods without scoring Coe, Ames captain, started things near the middle of the final quarter by booting a long field goal, giving his team a three-point lead. A second later this same lad dashed 50 yards to the Wildcat goal only to be called back because one of his teammates was off-side on the play.

Opening a desperate offensive onslaught the Aggies drove to the goal line only to be halted and Ames resorted to the strategy of downing the ball behind the goal line for an Aggie safety carrying two points, rather than risk a fumble and a possible Wildcat touchdown.

The blue of S. M. U. waves majestically over the conference field for the season of 1926. It is now beyond the realm of possibility to erase the championship sparkle of the banners, which represent the North Texas institution, but no football season in the southwest is complete without the annual Texas-Aggie game. No championship combat can dim the lustre of this game which serves as the climax of every season in the southwest. It is th erichest in tradition in the entire southwest. It is a spectacle flaming in color—one grand reunion of the fans of the Lone Star state. The graduates of the nineties will mingle with the alumni of 1926, bringing to life the deeds of stars of old, reviewing the proceedings of other great Aggie-Texas tilts of the past. Each year the traditions between the two state institutions becoming richer, and despite the fact that no championship will be involved, there will be a spectacle in Austin Thursday, which will stand as a new achievement in the gridiron game for the southwest—perhaps for the entire south. Austin will be the Mecca of the football populace of the Lone Star state Thursday. Converging in Austin will be a football crowd unparalleled in numbers in the history of the game in the southland. Over 40,000 fans are expected to jam their way into the Memorial stadium to witness this annual spectacular gridiron battle. A few short years ago, a crowd of 40,000 was a record-breaking attendance for a world series baseball game with its millions to draw from. The advance sale of tickets for the game between the Texas team, which has lost two conference games this season, and the Aggie team, which has also lost two conference games this season, indicates a record-breaking attendance this year which exceeds the wildest dreams of those most interested in the game 10 short years ago. Never in a sane football man's wildest fancy a decade ago would he predict an attendance of more than 40,000 fans at a football game between the two state teams with no remote hope of a championship involved. L. Theo. Bellmont, athletic director of the University of Texas, a man of much vision—a man who can look into the future and come close to telling you what will happen to intercollegiate athletics, and a man who must be recognized as one of the greatest promoters in the south, saw in a measure what was coming. He realized that the interest in the game was outgrowing the facilities for handling the crowd. The Memorial stadium which on Thursday will seat the largest crowd in the history of football below the Mason and Dixon line is a child of the fancy and forethought of L. Theo. Bellmont. Texas university would have probably had a stadium sooner or later had the Texas athletic director chose other work as his life's vocation, but there is a great possibility that had it not been for the influence of the far-sighted Bellmont, Texas might not have had that stadium ready to accommodate the huge crowd, which the hotels and business life of the capital city will be unable to accommodate Thursday.

Victory Means Much to Both

Yet even with his great vision, Bellmont did not picture such a throng as will be on hand this week. He had the stadium built to care for the growth of the game, but the mushroom growth has even exceeded his vivid imagination of a few years ago. There will be a Texas A. and M. club Thursday afternoon battling a Texas university eleven with no championship reward. Both will merely be endeavoring to salvage something from a disappointing season. The winner will wear only the laurel wreath of victory for the day, but the winner will have the satisfaction of knowing that it has added much to the sacred tradition of its institution.

A victory Thursday by either club will do much to remove the sting of other defeats for the year. A victory before such a crowd as will throng the stadium will mean much to the determined sons of Texas university and Texas A. and M. who will battle with tear-stained cheeks and all the fury that patriotic alumni and old grads can instill in their ranks. An attendance of 40,000 is in itself a very fountain of inspiration. So as the state teams prepare for their annual battle which will be a renewal of relations started 32 long years ago they have forgotten for the moment the reverses of other games. Their sole object is to win the Thanksgiving day game—the game of all games in the southwest—the game which will be staged before a wildly jubilant, enthusiastic, colorful throng such as the south has never before known.

All the old tricks are being brought out to get the boys in the proper mental condition of the game. Psychology is a prime factor in this game. That's why in the past the underdog for the day has risen to such a fine fighting pitch that it has with subblime determination fought its way to the top. Bental poise in this game is half the battle, for the team with the most determination usually wins. "Doleful" Doc Stewart, as he has been dubbed by scribes, is on trial Thursday. Anyway that is the manner in which the picture has been painted to the team for Stewart is loved by all his pupils. They have been told that if Texas does not win this game of Thursday after a series of disappointments this year and last, that he will go. Whether there is any truth in the assertion means absolutely nothing so far as the point we are driving at is concerned. Stewart may or may not go whether his team wins or loses on Turkey day, but you can rest assured that the Texas team will fight with every ounce of its physical ability, and when the fagging muscles refuse to respond as they should the same team will derive from the inspiration to help Stewart, a reserve power which bodes no good for the Aggie cause. The aged mother of Doc Stewart may be one of those at the game, and she has never seen her son's eleven lose a football game. That will be another source of inspiration for the Longhorn team of 1926. The Texas club will be mentally alert and primed physical to obtain revenge on the Farmers for the catastrophe of 1925 when on the College Station gridiron the Aggies inflicted on the Longhorns the most overwhelming defeat a Texas team has suffered in the history of relations between the two clubs.

Teams Grew Up With Grid Game

The football relations between Texas university and Texas A. and M. are among the best known in the entire south. These teams were meeting annually before the game was scarcely known away from the campus. These teams have grown up with the game and while the institutions during this year and the last few years have seen other teams rise to power in this section such as Baylor and S. M. U., they have not viewed the situation with alarm. Seems that nothing can take away the glamour, color, ardent enthusiasm and impressive spectacle characteristic of the annual Aggie-Texas combat. Ten thousand fans attend the annual Texas-Aggie game who do not witness any other clash during the year. Championships with these fans mean nothing. They live to see the Texas-Aggie game, witness it and then hibernate until the next Thanksgiving day. With these the sterling achievements of the stars in other games mean absolutely nothing. It is what they do in the Texas-Aggie game that counts.

There are football fans in Texas—a few of them—who have seen every game played between the two institutions beginning back in 1894. There are hundreds of fans who have witnessed every game played, beginning in 1900, and there are perhaps 1,000 fans in the state who have witnessed every game, beginning with the 1915 clash which marked the renewal of relations between the two institutions.

The relations between the Longhorns and the Aggies have been rivalry developed to such an inflammable witch that it was necessary to sever athletic relations between the institutions for a period of three years. And from the embers of the most bitter spirit known to two student bodies in the southwest, there has glowed a sportsmanship which has now prevailed for 12 years and which bids fair to burn brighter than ever in the history of the two institutions Thursday afternoon. Gone forever are the sarcastic, insulting yells and songs known to both institutions in the long ago. Texas also has its well wishers from the Aggie faction when it is playing other rivals. The Longhorn followers are, as a rule, pulling for a Farmer victory when the pupils of Dana Bible take on other worthy rivals. It is the dream of the followers of the two institutions to witness in action once more an undefeated Texas team and an undefeated Aggie team. It has been six years since a Thanksgiving day dawned upon two immaculate records for the state institutions although five years ago neither had met a conference defeat when the two clubs battled on Kyle field.

Way back in 1894 when Dos Stewart was a quarterback, and Dana Bible was best known as Squire Bible's young son, trying to get along with the problems in the classroom of a country schoolhouse in the mountains of Tennessee, long before he left his home to come to Texas to "fool with this ball business" as the natives of his Tennessee home still call it, Texas A. and M. and Texas university decided to have a football game. Little did they dream that they were taking the first step toward building the foundation of the massive spectacle which will be unreeled Thursday afternoon.

Longhorns Win First Encounter

Texas did not know much about the game in those days, but Texas knew much more than did the farmer boys of A. and M., and the first game was an overwhelming victory for the Austin institution, the score of 47 to 0 being so decisive that the A. and M. boys wouldn't play with the Austin boys until four years later. That was the beginning of a long, unbroken string of games between the two institutions, each game adding to the traditions until the contest has blossomed into just what it is today.

The year 1898 was a war year, and the Aggies were put to complete rout by the Longhorns, the score being 48 to 0. Neither knew much of the game, and a brilliant high school team of today would have made mince meat of the victor of 1898, but the boys of that year were doing their share toward building the foundation of the massive Memorial stadium of today.

In 1899 the Farmers, for they were not known as the Aggies then, and the only nickname was Varsity, had a brilliant eleven. Hopes of victory in the Aggies were high. This game was the bud of the rivalry between the two institutions which was due later to bloom into a flaming furnace of discontent and antagonism. The game was played on the historic Clark field gridiron, and the Farmers were nosed out by a score of 6 to 0. It was a hard-fought football duel all the way and not decided until the final whistle.

With the interest in the game beginning to grow it was decided to play two games in 1900. Both teams had highly improved aggregations in 1900 and for many years the 1900 team was hailed as the best in Texas' history. Defeating some of the southern leaders, the Orange eleven went into the Aggie games without a blemish on its season record, defeating the Farmers, 5 to 0, and then 11 to 0.

In 1901 Texas flashed another powerful team and caused a period of depression at Texas A. and M. with two stinging defeats of the Farmers by scores of 17 to 0 and 32 to 0. The Farmers, having seen their brightest hopes fade before the Orange tide in 1900 and then completely engulfed in 1901, began to wonder if the game was worth while inasmuch as it brought only misery to the A. and M. students annually.

There, however, came a silver to the Farmer cloud of gloom. There came to Texas A. and M. in 1902 a formidable array of gridiron material, including Robert DeWare, older brother of a star that later flashe din Aggie spangles. This DeWare, now deceased, was a fullback, a tower of strength defensively and offensively. The first game of the year was fought in Dallas and was a scoreless draw. The second game was played in San Antonio, and created the most interest that the contest had known—interest which because statewide for the first time. The Aggies went to the Alamo City and won their first game from the Texas team, the score being 12 to $. With no free rides on the highways the cadets crowded into freight cars, it being several days before a number of them arrived back on the campus.

That victory, however, was merely one sparkling achievement in a drab background. It was only one golden star in a cluster of Longhorn achievements. The year 1903 saw the Longhorns with a new team which swept the Farmers back with a stirring 29-to-6 victory only one game being played that year. With every man back, Texas planned a great schedule for 1904. Texas matched a game with the University of Chicago, a team featuring Walter Eckersall, one of the most remarkable gridsters of all time, and a team which ranked with the leaders of the country. The 1904 club was a remarkable aggregation. It went to Chicago, and on a strange field in a strange state under conditions a Texas team had never faced before, the Longhorns took the ball and by sheer power of attack advanced straight down the field to the mighty Chicago club's five-yard line. Then there came a heartbreaking fumble. Eckersall, as fast as a deer, and as elusive as a rabbit, scooped up the pigskin and while the Texas club gaped in amazement, he ran 105 yards for a touchdown, and that was the beginning of the tragedy which started out to be a drama. When Eckersall sprinted almost the distance of the field for the score, the Texas club cracked wide open and Chicago won a victory by a score of 63 to 0—the largest any team has ever made on a Texas university eleven.

Other games for the season were mere setups for this Longhorn machine, and the Texas A. & M. team was among the number, the score being Varsity 34; Farmers 6.

1905 Season A Texas Year

The year 1905 saw the Longhorns flash brilliantly from the beginning of the season. It was an alert team that represented Texas this year and which completely overwhelmed a brilliant Sewanee team. The Haskell Indian aggregation, boasting of a team the equal of which that school had never known, came to Austin and and inflicted on the Longhorns the only defeat of the season. Texas met Haskell on a number of occasions thereafter, but that was Haskell's only victory. The Aggies were completely routed by a score of 27 to 0. They did not have a chance before the unrelenting drive of the Texas eleven.

Texas lost a host of stars by graduation in 1905 and had what might be termed a green team in 1906. This was the year that the forward pass was given to the teams in an endeavor to save football from the reformers. The pass was incorporated into the rules in an endeavor to open up play a bit and do away, if possible, with the old mass play. Heretofore, it had been necessary to gain only five yards in three downs, so in opening up the game to make it a better offensive spectacle the rules committee made 10 yards the necessary distance to be gained, and gave the clubs one more down in which to make it. It was quite dangerous to use the pass, however, under the rules and it was used largely as a threat. If the eligible men or opposing players touched the pass before it hit the ground, it was ruled complete and belonged to the team recovering the ball, but if the pass was not touched before hitting the ground, the ball was brought back and the offensive team penalized 15 yards from the line of scrimmage. A team could not stand many 15-yard penalties in those days.

That was Charlie DeWare's first year at A. and M. He came from Allen academy where he had starred as a quarterback, but inasmuch as the Farmers had Choc Kelly, one of the most brilliant stars Texas has ever seen as the field general, DeWare was shifted to a wing position, and he became the greatest man at the position the Lone Star state has ever seen. A dashing, smashing, fighting star of about 160 pounds was DeWare, and he could step the century in 10 flat. Texas trounced the Aggies 24 to 0, but two great football teams were in the making that year. The next year saw them in their true stride. The clubs went back to the 2-game arrangement in 1907, and the first contest was played in Dallas in connection with the State fair.

The game between two fine fighting teams resulted in a scoreless draw, but the critics say that the Farmers had the advantage in the play. Penalties played havoc with the Farmers' scoring chances, while Texas did not have an opportunity to put over a counter. That placed the issue squarely up to the Thanksgiving day game in Austin with the Farmers ruling favorite. The Farmers and their followers were quite peeved over the exhibition in Dallas. They felt that the officials had deprived their team of a victory. The Farmers had quite a backfield, composed of Choc Kelley, Louis Hamilton, Puckett and Joe Utay (if one can pitcure the Utay of today as a speedy backfield star). DeWare was at a wing position, playing great football.

There had been continual rains prior to the Turkey day game in Austin and a liberal coating of sand covered the gridiron. This was a stirring battle won by the Longhorns when Fred Ramsdell, one of the great halfbacks of all time in the southwest, and one of the fastest men that ever trod a Texas gridiron, sped through the Aggie defense for a score which concerted a 6-to-5 defeat into a 11-to-6 victory. Kelly had shot through the Longhorn defense for the Aggie score. Touchdowns in those days counted five and field goals four.

The feeling between the two student bodies was quite bitter, but fortunately no real fight developed as many had predicted.

Student Bodies Clash in 1908

In 1908 Houston authorities in behalf of the No-Tsu-oh carnival, an annual attraction in the Bayou City, swung a deal which made the annual classic part of the celebration in that city. It was arranged to stage the game on opening day of the carnival each year, which, by the way, was Monday. The Farmers had a new team this year with the exception of Hamilton and DeWare, while Texas had a brilliant veteran organization.

This was the year of the fight between the student bodies of the two schools—a fight which paved the way for severance of relations for three years. The Texas students came to Houston armed with brooms, indicating a clean sweep for the year. The brooms were used as a burlesque on the gun drill the cadets were forced to go through. It was an easy Texas victory, the final score being 24 to 6, the Farmers hardly having a chance during the game. Between the halves the cadets started their usual parade on the gridiron. Seemed that the authorities had neglected to make arrangements regarding which school should have the field first between the halves, so the Texas students began their time-honored snake dance at the other end. Naturally the two student bodies met in the center. And a pitched battle was staged. Brooms flew in every direction, but the well-drilled cadets had the advantage. The Texas followers were routed, and the brooms were burned by the enraged cadets.

The game in Austin on Turkey day was quite orderly, but heartbreaking from an A. and M. point of view. From a Texas standpoint it was a remarkable comeback of an eleven which seemed hopelessly beaten by an inspired team. The game was played in a downpour, and in that rain, Hamilton, the most remarkable drop-kicker the southwest has ever known, booted three field goals in the first half for a total of 12 points, and all were from a distance farther back than the 40-yard line. The sensational individual defensive brilliance of DeWare had kept the Aggie goal line uncrossed.

Both DeWare and Hamilton were carried from the game injured in the second half. Then the Longhorn drive started. There was one continual parade of orange spangled stars down the field. In the closing few minutes of play Texas scored a total of 27 points in one of the most sensational comebacks in football's history, the final count being Texas 27; Aggies 12.

That was the last straw, so to speak. The Farmers and their followers were completely disgusted. They lived with only one hope and that was to defeat Texas. The latter stages of the 1908 season saw Charlie eMoran succeed Merriam as the A. and M. Moran has made a nationaal reputation as a football coach and as a big league umpire. There was no doubt of his ability as a football coach, but his methods could be seriously questioned. At A. and M., however, Moran received much of the blame which dideen't belong to him. Moran came along at a time when the Farmer followers were determined to have a winner at any price. There were no tranasfer rules in those days, the tramp athlete rule was unheard of.

Norman Purchases Football Machine

So it is an admitted fact today by those who know that A. and M. went out and bought an eleven to defeat Texas university. And in 1909 Charley Moran presented a team on a Texas gridiron with devastating power, a team composed of sensational seasoned stars, Choc Kelley had gone to Carlisle in 1908. He was brought back in 1909 after making the All-American grade in 1908. With him came Mike Ralenti, another All-American star, who was later one of the Baylor coaches. Shippe, an All-Southern end, and Brown, another sensational wing of All-Southern ability joined the Aggie colors, while shortly before Thanksgiving day, DeWare returned to A. and M. There also was Doggy Ward of Beaumont, a wing as sensational as many of the greatest.

Hamilton, the speedy backfield star, Dutch Hohn, who never misses a Texas-A. and M. game, now, Hooker and Cretcher were star linemen of this team Thompson was another. Arnold Kirkpatrick was a youngster on the Texas team that year, but a star nevertheless.

This great Aggie machine, recruited from among the nation's best rocked along until the date of the contest with Texas in Houston. It even allowed Trinity a scoreless tie, while the Longhorns had trounced the Tiger team. Rain fell in torrents just prior to the Houston battle. It was a typical coast rain. But the Aggie lanad paraded the field, blaring an Aggie air. Red and white parasols which were brought to Houston for a colorful effect were used to a better advantage as old Jupiter refused to leave.

Texas had a splendid football team, but no machine to match the prowess of the Farmer aggregation. In the driving rain the Farmers marched down the field for a touchdown, and when Texas elected to kick, Hamilton caught the ball on the 5-yard line. With great interference by the speeding Kelly and Balenti, the trio of 10-second stars swept down the field like a giant maroon wave. A total of 105 yards did Hamilton carry the ball, crossing the Orange goal line for the second touchdown of the game. The final count was 23 to 0.

Aggies Win Two In Two Weeks

The teams met in Austin Thanksgiving day, and once more the bitter rivalry was manifest. The students were in an enraged mood, and they took supreme pleasure in doing what they could to insult the other. Prior to the game a big banner waved over the Texas bleachers, which gave the scores of all Texas-A. and M. games, and which stated in big letters "Once in Seven Years." The gridiron duel itself was a fine fight. . Early in the first half the speedy Hamilton got away for a 75-yard run and an apparent score, but the ball was brought back. He had stepped out of bounds. Throughout the first half the Farmers fought against a stiff norther, for Texas had won the toss. In the second half, favored by the wind, the Aggies scored early, a pass being completed to Kelley, and under the rules of those days, the teams changed sides after the score, the battle being fought on fairly even terms the rest of the way, the final count being Aggies 5; Texas 0.

On the night of this game Austin was one big battle ground. Students fought over the entire city. Street cars were removed from the tracks. Everybody seemed to be in a belligerent mood, and it was the last contest staged between the two institutions in the capital city for six years. The fact that the teams met in 1910 and 1911 was because they had a 3-year contract with the No-Tsu-oh authorities in Houston which had two more years to run. Following the engagement, which was indeed a brilliant game of football, the cadets confiscated the "Once in Seven Years" banner, and on the other side painted in bold relief, "Twice in Two Weeks," carrying it down Congress avenue at the head of a night shirt parade. And in the meanwhile sarcastic Longhorn rooters would gather in clusters, and give 15 rahs and other cheers for Sewanee, Carlisle and all other institutions from which the Aggie stars had come. Moran was a hero in College Station. In Austin he was the blackest villain the southwest had ever known.

And then came the season of 1910, a sort of a calm to the storm. Gone were the Balentis, the Kellys, the Shippes, the Browns. Gone were DeWare and Hamilton. It was a new team, a green club which Moran presented that year, and it was hardly accorded an outside chance of victory, but in this game Moran demonstrated that he was quite a coach for featuring Gristy Beasley, a brilliant plunging back, the Farmer tore the famed Longhorn line to shreds and won a stirring 14 to 8 victory. Longhorn followers, however, continued to complain of the tactics used by Moran.

The season of 1911, which marked the last year of the Houston contract, dawned with Charley Moran and the Aggies boasting of a powerful veteran eleven. Texas wished to win this contest above all others played against A. and M., for all concerned realized that it would be the last battle between the two teams. Texas supporters said there would never be another game between the institutions until Moran was removed as coach. The Longhorns had in Dave Allerdice a splendid coach. In fact, the Steers have never replaced him. He had a fighting team, which was accorded no chance whatever for victory over the Farmers.

Every sarcastic yell that the brains of the two student bodies could produce was used that day. The Aggies had a traditional sarcastic yell they always gave when the Texas team appeared upon the field—"Well, well, well — Is that Varsity—Oh hell!" but that day before the last sarcastic note had had time to die out, there came the following sharp, barking note from the Texas section:

To hell, to hell with Charlie Moran
And all his dirty crew .
If you do not like the words of this song.
To hell, to hell with you!"

Varsity Dumps Bucket in 1911

The teams met on a muddy gridiron and on the first play an Aggie back cracked through center for 40 yards, but the ball was brought back, the Farmers penalized and Tom Holliday ejected from the game for slugging. This seemed to make demons of the Texas team, and led by Nelson Puett, a twisting, dodging, speedy quarterback, and Arnold Kirkpatrick, a sensational punter and kicker, the Longhorns won a 6 to 0 verdict over the Farmers. a victory which still stands as the greatest in the history of the University of Texas. Poor headwork on the part of Quarterback Kerns, a Smithville product, was perhaps the chief defect in the Farmer machine that day—a machine which was expected to grind the hopes of the Longhorns under a top-heavy count.

In 1912 Texas A. and M. had an even better team—a club which many regard as the best in the school's history, but it was a drab season with no Texas-A. and M. game. A strike in the spring of 1913 ruined the Farmer prospects of 1913, and the same strike had its effect on the 1914 team. It was in 1912, 1913 and 1914 when the Longhorns and the Aggies did not play. Texas had a brilliant team in each of these years, matching a game with the great Notre Dame team in 1913, and holding that team which had slaughtered the Army to a 7 to 7 score for the first half, but finally lost 31 to 7. A blue norther which came in the second half, rejuvenated the team from the north, which featured Knute Rockne, present Notre Dame coach at end, Dorais at quarter and Eichenlaub at fullback.

After the season of 1914 the fiery Moran faded from the Aggie spotlight. He was replaced at the first move for the renewal of relations between the two state institutions. The authorities got together and the first game to be played on a College Station field between the two teams was staged in November of 1915. The Aggies had a fair team that year, but not a great one. Texas had one of its brilliant clubs and was an overwhelming favorite. The Simmons brothers, Paul and Bob, Pig Dittmar of Houston, a center, and Pete Edmond of Waco, an end, were the outstanding Longhorn stars. The Aggies had Rip Collins, an Austin product, and a punting sensation, Fannie Coleman, a place kicker of much merit. Garrity and Kendrick, two great ends, big Jim Crow, present Baylor line coach, and Settegast, two sensational tackles.

Aggies Upset Dope in 1915

It was a game where sportsmanship prevailed. Gone was the bitter feeling of other years. The Longhorn yell leaders went over and led the cadets in a series of cheers. The Farmer yell leaders led the Texas students in a number of yells. But prior to the game a telegram from Charley Moran, who was still loved by the Aggie players, made of the Farmers a set of inspired demons, who lashed with unabated fury from the opening whistle to the final shot. As Rip Collins sent high, twisting spirals for 50 yards and more into Texas territory—spirals which could not be handled by Ray Williams or Bob Simmons, the Texas safety men, and as Kendrick and Garrity charged down under the punts with blind football rage, the Aggies emerged from the drama with 10 to 0 victory. Fannie Coleman booted a field goal from the 42-yard line early in the game, and in the first half scored another one from a much closer distance. Rip Collins went over for the only touchdown of the game. He had been called "yellow" by fans in his home city, and it was a great day for the Austin product. His punting was as sensational that afternoon as any seen in the history of the conference. Incidentally this was the first conference game between the two teams. The defeat of Texas meant a successful season for the Aggies even though they had lost a game to Rice, and had later lost another on Turkey day to Mississippi A. and M., a team which was not doped to have a chance against the Farmers. The Longhorns met Notre Dame again on Thanksgiving day and this time suffered a defeat more decisive than in 1913.

Whitaker Beats Dana Bible, 7-3

In 1916 the two teams met in Austin and it was the first Thanksgiving day encounter between the two teams in seven years. Texas had a splendid punter in Rip Lange, a brilliant young broken-field runner in Trabue and Pig Dittmar was back at center. "Irish" Dolan was a star wing. The largest crowd that had ever gathered for a game in the southwest crowded the Clark field gridiron and saw the Longhorns get away to an early lead in the first half with a touchdown but the Aggies came back and tied the score with a pass over the goal line which was batted about quite a bit. Early in the second half Lange broke through the Aggie line for a long run and touchdown while Trabue received a punt in the last quarter and raced about 30 yards for a score, the final count being Texas 21. A. and M. 7. Between halves "Bevo," the famed orange and white steer, was presented to Texas university. Later, however, a number of cadets slipped out of College Station, went to Austin and branded the Steer, 13 to 0, the score of the 1915 game.

Dana Bible, present Texas A. and M. coach ,became head of the Aggie team in 1917. This year was a lean one for Texas, but the Aggies had a brilliant unscored-on and undefeated club. The Longhorns went to College Station and lost a 7 to 0 game. The Texas team also lost to Rice, making the Thanksgiving day game between the Owls and the Aggies a championship affair which was won by Bible's club by a 10 to 0 score. Collins was again with the Aggies in 1917, while Roswell Higginbotham made his first appearance. Dunny McMurray was one of the outstanding stars of the maroon team of 1917 as was Jack McClintock of Waco.

In 1918 Coach Bible of the Aggies joined the colors and in this war year there was little or no interest in the Thanksgiving day game in Austin, Texas, won the verdict by a score of 7 to 0 before a very few fans, comparatively speaking.

Bible returned to Texas A. & M. and produced a brilliant eleven, featuring Roswell, Higginbotham, Jack Mahan, Knickerbocker, Drake, Wilson and others. Texas had Big Falk, a brilliant tackle, as its all-conference man. The game was played on Turkey day, the first Thanksgiving day combat on the College Station gridiron. On the first play of the second quarter, Higginbotham smashed over for a touchdown, the only one of the game, the Aggies winning by a score of 7 to 0.

The Farmers had a veteran team in 1920, although Knickerbocker was declared ineligible prior to the beginning of the season. Texas had a club featuring Tom Dennis, a tackle, Dominguez, a plunging fullback, Rats Watson and Ikey Elam, two brilliant quarterbacks. The teams met in Austin on the Clark field gridiron before a crowd of about 18,000, a record-breaking number at that time. The Farmers scored early by the field goal route. Bugs Morris kicking the goal from placement in the first quarter. They decided to sit back on the lead, and for three quarters held the Longhorns at bay. In the final period the Farmers stopped a drive in the very shadow of their goal, and Higginbotham kicked out of danger in a beautiful manner, but right back came the orange tide. On the four-yard line, Tom Dennis leaped high to grab a forward pass and a moment later Dominguez dived over the Aggie goal line for a score. For the first time in Bible's coaching regime at Texas A. & M. his team had been scored on. The touchdown gave Texas a 7-to-3 victory, and Berry Whitaker, the new Texas coach of that year, was hailed as a wonder man. Practically all of the stars of the 1920 Texas team returned in 1921. The 1920 Texas Frosh team had been hailed as better than the varsity, so the critics told the world that Texas would have a "wonder" team in 1921. The Aggies were not accorded an outside chance of victory before the season opened, but the Texas followers came back to earth when Vanderbilt inflicted on the over-confident Longhorn team a 20-0 defeat. At College Station the Longhorns roundly outplayed the Aggies but could not score. the contest resulting in a scoreless draw, George McCollough, the sensational Texas end, a remarkable pass receiver, reached over and took a pass from a group of Aggie players in the final quarter, racing to the five-yard line before he was chased out of bounds by Buckner, but Texas did not have the punch to carry the oval over. It was hailed as a moral victory for the Aggies.

The season of 1922 was the last of Whitaker's coaching reign. The Aggies won the first victory in their history on the Clark field gridiron, defeating Texas 14 to 7 in a game which was featured by the passing of King Gill of Dallas. The defeat came as quite a surprise to the Texas followers, and the season of 1923 found E. J. (Doc) Stewart, a new coach, at the helm.

Stewart took his great array of material in 1923, which featured Oscar Eckhardt, developing it into a machine which was powerful enough to snow away practically all opponents under an avalanche of scores. Baylor tied Texas in an unexpected fashion, the only blight on the Longhorns record that season. At college Station, the Longhorns scored their first touchdown and won their first game. Oscar Eckhardt got his foot under a high 65-yard punt, which was fumbled by the Aggie safety man, and recovered by the Longhorns for the only touchdown of the game, the count being 6 to 6. The game was played on a heavy field, and the Aggies did not have a chance against the stubborn Texas defense. This was Mule Wilson's first year at Aggieland. The Longhorns also threatened on several other occasions to score. Eckhardt playing one of the greatest games of his sparkling career.

Texas Wins By Accident In 1924

From a series of disappointments in 1924, the Texas team emerged from the Thanksgiving combat in Austin in a blaze of glory. While 33,000 fans looked on in the new Memorial stadium, which was dedicated that day, the Aggie team was stopped at the Texas goal line early in the contest and never threatened thereafter. Just when it seemed that the game would end in a scoreless tie, Texas tried a long pass. The Aggie safety man in covering the ball batted it into the arms of Allen who was racing up the field, receiving the ball without slowing up, and continuing on his way for the only score of the game. It was the greatest moment in the athletic life of Allen, and it made the day a big one for Texas university, but it was a heart-breaking accident to the Aggies.

Doc Stewart carried his team to College Station last year, and on the Kyle field gridiron a vengeful Aggie team, featuring the brilliant Joie Hunt and Mule Wilson, crashed and slashed their way to the most overwhelming victory an Aggie team has ever known over Texas university. It was a better game than the 28-0 score indicates. In the third period the Longhorns advanced to within the shadow of the Aggie goal. A short lateral pass was intercepted by Sikes, A. & M. end, who raced 90 yards for a touchdown, and that score really broke the spirit of the Texas team.

The Texas players of 1926 remember well the College Station tragedy of 1925. Many of the players of the club of this year were also stars on the 1925 Texas team. It is a determined set of young men working out under the direction of Doc Stewart daily, getting ready for the invasion of the Farmers this week. Mack Saxon, the brilliant star of the Texas team of last year, is captain of the club this year. Joel Hunt, who had much to do with the Texas defeat of last year, is back at Aggieland, and is half of the Farmer offense.

The play of the Steers and Aggies indicates that there is little to choose between the two teams. In the past the dope has always given the Farmers the better defense and the Longhorns the better offense. This year the situation is reversed. The Aggies have one of the best offensive clubs Bible has ever produced. It is weak only in reserve strength. The Longhorn club is primarily a defensive machine.

The Aggies and the Longhorns also have much in common. Each lost a heart-rending decision to S. M. U., one by two points, the other by four points. Each outplayed the Mustangs and should have won. Each played the ambitious Baylor Bears after losing to S. M. U., and each lost to the Bruins. The Longhorns won from Rice by a score of 20 to 0. The Aggies won from the Owls by the same count. The Aggies barely nosed out Sewanee. Texas lost to Vanderbilt by a touchdown, and Vandy is more than a touchdown better than Sewanee.

So according to the dope which, of course, means nothing in this game the teams are evenly matched. There will be no outstanding favorite on Thanksgiving day and that's unusual. Knowing that the Aggies will have their full strength Thursday, and having seen the Farmers at their best, we believe the Aggie team will have a very slight advantage, but the margin is not sufficient enough to make it an odd or a point bet. The Longhorns, inspired to great heights, and playing at home may have more determination than the Farmers can muster. In that event it will be another bad day for the Farmers.

Whatever the result may be it is certain to be a typical Texas university-Texas Aggie game, colorful, thrilling, spectacular. It is going to be the sort of game which will make the 40,000 present feel delighted that they are there, for never this year has there been more determination in the Longhorn camp, and the flaming spirit of Aggieland is burning brightly once more.

The curtain will be drawn on this nerve-racking season, which has produced thrills in unparalleled numbers, as twilight envelopes the Memorial stadium gridiron Thursday evening. The curtain will descend on a waving field of bliss and color, but whether the color scheme of this sensational climax will be maroon or orange cannot be answered just now. Perhaps this question will be quite doubtful five minutes before the time set for the drop of the curtain, but whether they will cheer with the winner or weep sympathetically with the loser, 40,000 will be on hand, and that makes the football attraction of Thursday afternoon in Austin an athletic event without an equal in the history of sport of any sort in the entire southland.

TOUCHDOWN IN FINAL MINUTE FAILS TO WIN

Illinois Goes Down Before Brilliant Drive Of Ohio State

CHAMPAIGN, Ills. Nov. 20.(AP)—Ohio State snatched a thrilling seven to six victory from Illinois in the final game of the western conference season today but the 35,000 shivering spectators were given the thrill of their lives when in the last 90 seconds of play, Illinois came within an ace of tying the score.

Failure of "Frosty" Peters, the Montana mercury, to boot the ball between uprights after Russell "Pug" Daugherty, the Illinois fullback, had scored a touchdown on a pass, cost Illinois the lost of a tie.

Basketball in Air At Junior College

With Crites and Stephenson Back Prospects Look Bright

R. O. JONAS.

Hardly will the thud of clashing pigskin toters have died down when the call to the worshippers of the moleskin will resound through local gymnasiums and school halls. Already the sport bees are buzzing 'round the halls of Wichita Falls Junior college the query as to basketball possibilities this winter.

From last year's powerful basket combination Crites, rangy center and forward, star of the team, is the only regular to return. But Crites seems in better condition from appearances than last year and should make the season the banner one of his career. Crites has been a figure in local basket circles for some time. His career started in earnest in 1923 when he graduated from the position of a considerable reputation in sandlot and school ground athletics to a reserve berth with the famous high school team of Baldwin as that player's understudy at center. The next year he won a regular letter as a forward on the Coyote eleven.

Skinny Has Stuff .

In '24 Crites remained out of athletics until winter when he joined the Indian squad and promptly made a real figure on the Tribe five coached by Bubs Mosley. Last year, the season of '26 for basketball, the tall and powerful "Skinny" proved the mainstay of the team. This year, if Crites can persuade himself to cut some of his lax training habits, and followers of the sport believe that he will come across, there should be few or none ahead of him in the conference.

Stephenson May Flash.

Stephenson, guard, is another full letterman back from last year's squad, who, although not one of the first five, was the sixth man and in the latter part of the season held down a regular assignment in play. Steve in basketball is a fast, sure, and aggressive guard who makes up much in spirit for lack in height.

Of the reserves from Frazee's group last winter, Wolf, tall center and Harvey, diminutive but speedy and efficient guard, both may be counted on to show much improvement this season and with Crites and Steve should form a good nucleus around which to build a team from the new men to come out.

Probably the best prospect among the college freshmen is W. J. Howard, fast and tall in build, who in both '25 and '26 was one of the surest score-producing forwards on the Coyotes of Bud McCallum. It is also strongly rumored about the college building that Perkins Ray, whose high school athletic career ends with football this fall, will don the Maroon and Gold uniform. If Ray should come out he will add a veteran man at the sport. Ray lettered with the Coyotes in '22, '23, was out of school a year, came back for another letter in '25, and captained the Coyotes of '26. Ray is a hard-playing forward, a sure shot at the basket, and a seasoned performer in every way.

Plan Holiday Trip.

This group would present a good start for the team with Howard and Ray at forwards, Crites at center, guard or forward; Wolf at center, and Stephenson and Harvey at guards. Enough reserve material should come out of the new and unknown men to furnish a winning combination. Fans are anxiously awaiting what Ludgate can do with the team. His accomplishments with the football team have already earned him a high respect among people of the school and the city for his ability as a mentor of athletics .

Ludgate is already making plans to take the team on a practice trip during the Christmas holidays, to give the candidates as much varied experience as possible.

OLD BLUBBER.

Christy Flannagan, of Notre Dame, is stevedoring's gift to football fame. Ever since he could toddle he has been a regular son of the sea. In spite of the fact that the Port Arthur, Texas, oil, docks, ships and all belong to Christy he learned to scoot up reeling masts, carry oil kegs and lumber on his shoulders.

DOUBT ABOUT SWIM TITLE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20. (AP) Probability that W. G. Taber, self acclaimed conquerer of the Catalina channel would not be officially recognized as having swum the waterway cropped up today in the absence of sufficient confirmation that the feat had been performed.

Maft Mann is getting his team into trim by ordering them to run a mile a day at the Yost field house before any regular practice in the swimming pool.

"DOLLAR A YARD"

Thats' Price Scalpers Made For Game at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20.(AP) Scalpers were selling tickets to the Minnesota-Michigan game at a "dollar a yard" here Saturday.

Harry Hall, unwittingly disclosed the prices to a detective who arrested him. Hall told officers the seats on the five-yard line were $5, on the 10-yard line $10 and $50 on the 50-yard line.

His scalping cost him $25 a minute in municipal court. It took four minutes to explain the case so Hall parted with a $100 fine.

YAQUI ON DECK ALL SET FOR GRIP BATTLE MONDAY NIGHT

THE CARD

Chief Wow Wow, Chickasha, versus Jack Woods, Los Angeles. Junior middleweights, two falls to a finish.

Place: Majestic theater.

Wichita Falls' Indian mat sensation, Yaqui Joe, arrived in the city yesterday from San Angelo where he has been training the past week or so with two objectives, one a match with Jack Reynolds, claimant of the welter title, the other a revenge bout with Charley Grip who defeated him at catch weights here two weeks ago in a hard match, the outcome of which was in doubt until in trying for the deciding fall Joe lost balance and fell backwards while endeavoring to smash Grip with a body slam. The tumble with the weight of Grip's body landing on the Indian's chest knocked him out. Grip turned over and pinning him, winning the match.

Coach Ludgate's Junior college football squad has been extended an invitation to attend the matches as guests of the promoter and the wrestlers. Tickets will be issued the football players Monday afternoon.

* * *

Quite a bit of difficulty was entailed in arranging the return match, declared Matchmaker A. Ross. Jack Gorman refused to have anything to do with the Indian when effort first was made to match him up, according to Ross.

Grip ignored overtures for several days, Ross said, until the Indian finally agreed to wrestle under Police Gazette rules.

Grip is said to have agreed to weigh in at 145 pounds, ringside, but said there would be no match unless the rough New York commission rules were banned.

Charley objected to use of jiu jitsu tricks, saying, "It's no use wrestling a man you can't keep a hold on." He alluded to Yaqui's "button - pressing" activities brought into use whenever an opponent obtained a headlock or punishing leg hold.

* * *

The Indian said yesterday that he will weigh under 145 pounds at 8 o'clock Monday night and that he is sure of beating Grip if the latter comes in at that weight. Grip is said to have placed a forfeit to insure his making the weight. He lost $100 to Yauqui two week ago because he came in two pounds over weight at 3 o'clock and probably five or six pounds by the time of the match.

Grip, if he beats the Indian at the welter limit, intends to claim the championship and defy Reynolds, he says.

Tunney Razzes Bernard Shaw

Champ Says George Made Fizzle of Pugilist Story

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.(AP)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, and the only man who ever stood up against Jack Dempsey and then delivered himself of interviews on Samuel Butler and other litegory lights, today took a poke at George Bernard Shaw.

"The character of Goshel Byron is badly drawn,' 'said the champion, "and the story is silly. Frankly, I had not read the book until there was some talk of my making the picture and I was very much disappointed in it."

Rumors in the news that Jesse L. Lasky intended to star Tunney in the film, if Shaw would take $75,000 for the movie rights, were commented upon by Gene with the statement that he would not lend himself to filming of the book as it is written.

"I regard Shaw as the possessor of one of the greatest minds among living men—possibly the greatest—and 'Cashel Bryon's profession' must be viewed only as a product of his immature years. When he conceived the idea of writing a novel around a boxer he had a splendid opportunity but he missed it.

"He understands neither the temperament nor the psychology of the professional boxer, with the result that Bryon is made to appear as no more than a blundering vulgarian. That a girl reared in culture and refinement should fall in love with a man whose only appeal was a magnificent body is absurd."

MICHIGAN WINS

Wolverines Cop Fumble to Score Lucky 7-6 Victory.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 20. (AP)—Michigan went into a tie with Northwestern for the 1926 western conference football championship when the Wolverines defeated Minnesota in the Memorial stadium here 7 to 6.

It was the two famous Bennies of the Yost team that brought victory to the men from Ann Arbor, Oosterbaan grabbing a Minnesota fumble and racing 55 yards for a touchdown in the fourth period, and Friedman kicking goal.

It was a "hard luck" defeat for Minnesota. Throughout the game Dr. Spears' Gophers had sprinted and run through the Yostmen clearly outplaying them, scoring a touchdown in the second period on straight football, only to lose the advantage late in the game on a fumble in Michigan's territory.

GRANDFIELD OUTLOOK GOOD

Grandfield turned out a good basketball team last year, and they have an equally good chance this year with Leo Speckman as captain, and Harry Chambers as coach.

Terrors Scrap Fort Sill Today

Famous Paddy Driscoll In Soldiers' Backfield Lineup

The Thrift Terrors last night were declared in great physical condition for their titular gridiron melee this afternoon with the Fort Sill eleven on the Thrift athletic field.

The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp, it was announced.

The Terrors will be on deck in full strength.

With Fort Sill, acclaimed the semi-professional champs of north Texas and south Oklahoma, comes Paddy Driscoll, famed ex-Northwestern university backfield star. Driscoll in his college days was one of the greatest players who ever trod a gridiron and recent years have taken little if any from the lustre of his accomplishments, it is said.

CORNHUSKERS WIN

Powerful New York Eleven Stumbles Defeat, 15 to 7.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20.(AP)—The eastern invasion of a western gridiron was unsuccessful here this afternoon when New York university, previously undefeated, went down before the onslaught of the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers 15 to 7.

Playing on a rough, frozen field blanketed with a steadily falling snow, the Huskers displayed their best brand of Missouri valley football, while the powerful Violets took their first defeat in nine straight games. Although the visitors showed enough speed to bear up the enviable record with which they came into the fray, the Nebraska team outplayed them throughout.

CANNED

Head Coach McCracken of Lafayette, has dismissed Harold "Bill" Cothran, star tackle and leading goal kicker. He broke training rules by celebrating following the game with Susquehanna. Cothran is a junior and the most likely candidate to lead the Leopards in 1927.

TO COMPETE.

The coast guard training school at New London, Conn., has grown so rapidly that it is planning to enter athletic competitions. They have selected for their mascot, a bear, in honor of the celebrated coast guard cutter by that name.

DUKE TO BOX BILL DEMPSEY

Wednesday Bout Elimination Affair for Mitchell, Says Don

Duke Tramel, Fort Worth welter, meets Wild Bill Dempsey of Los Angeles in the first of a series of elimination contests at the Majestic theater Wednesday night to select an opponent for Pinkie Mitchell, said Don M. Wofford ,local boxing promoter, Saturday.

The bout is to be a 10-rounder, Wofford said, put on under auspices of Co. L, 142nd infantry Texas national guards, as a benefti affair.

Mitchell fights in Fort Worth, Nov. 30, according to Wofford, and intends to make his next appearance following the Cowtown affair in Wichita Falls early in December.

Buckshot Peoples and Johnny Hilliard will meet in the Wednesday semi-final, said the promoter.

Proceeds received from the program are to be used for the purpose of equipping a gymnasium and club room at the national guard armory, according to Wofford.

Northwestern Defeats Iowa

Winners Tie for "Big Ten" Title as Iowa Fails To Halt March

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 20. (AP) Northwestern defeated an inspired Iowa football team, 13 to 6 today and finished its conference season without a defeat for the first time in history. Touchdowns in the first two quarters won for the Wildcats, although Iowa scored in the second period and failed only by a goal kick to tie the score at that stage. The victory placed Northwestern in a tie with Michigan for the big ten championship.

ROTARIANS SAD

Feel Out of Luck When Dining Room Burns.

Special to The Record News,

ELECTRA, Nov. 20—The Rotary club was in a sad plight Friday, their regular luncheon day, the club having held their luncheons in the banquet hall or private dining room of the Marriott hotel since the organization of the club, when the entire group gathered in front of the ruins of the hotel which burned to the ground early in the morning and discussed a place to dine in mournful tones. No arrangements have as yet been made for a place of meeting, so Friday, after a few remarks by the president, W. P. Slaton, the band dispursed to get luncheon either at their respective homes or any available cafe.

The board of directors is composed of Gardner, Weaver, R. O. Harvey, E. P. Bass, W. E. Huff, L. H. Cullum, C. E. McCutchen, E. G. Hill and Fred Weeks.

DOBIE FALSE PESSIMIST

"Gil" Dobie knows the deeper the pessimistic tone the better the reaction among his boys. Dobie is known to his favorites as the Apostle of Grief. But this great coach has learned that salve and much petting makes the boys over confident. Under the mask we know that Dobie is not one held as pessimistic as he would have the world believe.

DO YOU APPRECIATE YOUR BANK ACCOUNT?

No one who has ever enjoyed the advantages of a bank account would ever be willing to do without that privilege.

Yet plenty of people who don't have bank accounts don't realize what they are losing; and many who do have them don't really appreciate the convenience and benefits.

What are the advantages of a bank account?

First, it provides a definite, accurate statement of income and outgo, enabling you to control your expenditures, to know where you stand. It encourages and facilitates saving, which is nothing more or less than spending less than you receive.

Second, it removes any chance of dispute as to whether a bill has been paid. A cancelled check settles all arguments.

Third, it saves you time and money. Time, because you can sit at your desk and pay your bills. Money, because you would have to pay a fee to make a remittance by money order instead of by check.

Fourth, it gives you a certain financial standing and prestige. "He has money in the bank" is a popular phrase to designate a prosperous individual. It is a factor in your credit standing.

Fifth, it entitles you to full and free use of the wise and experienced counsel of bank officials in your investments and in financial matters generally.

Sixth, it makes you a factor in the community's prosperity—in which you share. A certain part of your average balance is loanable, under proper safeguards, by your bank. It puts your money to work in the community. And if your balance is maintained at a figure that provides a reasonable sum for the bank to use, you are enabling your bank to compensate itself some extent for the convenience, the security, the prestige, the service, that your bank account gives you.

THE ARITHMETIC OF IT

If your average balance is so modest, if the loanable portion of your deposit is so small, that your bank can't earn enough with it to pay for taking care of it, there's the hint of something inequitable about it, isn't there?

We feel that we are entitled to ask you to maintain your account at such a figure as will enable us to make it pay its way.

If your average balance is $100, that means that about $70 is loanable. And $70 at eight per cent earns $5.60 a year, which must go to pay for the time and energy of trained employes, for the use of the equipment and facilities involved in handling your account. We want your account to earn enough to pay its way. Build up your balance. Keep it at a figure that provides a financial "cushion" for yourself, against the bumps of unexpected need. Keep it at a figure that enables your bank to make it pay what it costs your bank.

Cotton--Latest Market Quotations--Cattle

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.(AP)—Speculative interest in today's stock market centered largely in Baldwin Locomotive which was bid up in sensational fashion to the highest price in seven years at 148¾, and then eased to 146, where it was up 5¼ points on the day. While the buying coincided with the announcement that the company had received an order for 75 locomotives from the Pennsylvania railroad some brokers also discerned a drive against an overcrowded short interest. Trading in this one issue approximated 50,000 shares, or approximately one-tenth of the day's entire volume of business.

The general market continued to show irregularity with standard industrials and rails inclined to move upward in sympathy with Baldwin, but with a number of specialties succumbing to a renewal of bear pressure. There was nothing else in the day's trade news to influence the price movement, although some surprise was expressed at the decline of over $45,000 in the net operating income of the Kansas City Southern railroad for October compared with the same month last year.

U. S. Steel common closed fractionally higher at 144⅝ after fluctuating within a range of two points. General Motors closed ¾ lower at 137⅝, although it has been as high as 139. Mack Trucks was bid up over three points to 96⅝ but lost part of its gain. Case Threshing which had been under pressure earlier in the week, rallied nearly seven points to 147¾ and then eased to 146½. Sharp gains also were recorded by Commercial Solvents "B," Continental Baking "A," Philadelphia company, Universaal Pipe and Woolworth.

Renewal of selling pressure against Electric Refrigeration forced the issue down more than two points to a new 1926 low at 39¼, as compared with a high of 78½ earlier in the year. Goodrich Rubber dropped two points to a new low at 44¾ and Ludlum Steel broke three points to 25.

A jump of nearly six points in Pittsburgh and West Virginia which touched 113¾ was the outstanding development in the railroad group.

A sharp 15 point rise in French francs to just below the 3¾ cent level most of which was later cancelled featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly firmer at $4.84½, but Italian lire ruled nearly five points lower around 4.15 cents.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.(AP)—The cotton market was a typical pre-bureau affair today as there was little disposition to enter upon new commitments in advance of the bureau due Monday. Following a slight recession of four to five points in the early trading on over night selling orders the market gradually improved and near the end of the short session showed recoveries from the early lows of six to eight points which brought the price level two to four points above the previous close. The rally was due mainly to a little trade buying and price fixing. The close was a shade under the best, showing net unchanged to three points up for the day.

Liverpool came in as due, or a shade under, first trades here showing no change to one point advance. Prices eased off in the early trading to 12.53 for December, 12.59 for January and 12.72 for March or four to five points under the previous close. These prices were the lows of the day.

The subsequent rally carried prices up finally to 12.59 for December, 12.66 for January and 12.80 for March, or six to eight points above the early low and two to four points above the previous close. The close was a shade off from the best.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—The cotton market was active again today, but showed a generally steady tone with January contracts selling up from 12.56 to 12.62 and closing at 12.60. The general market closed today at unchanged prices to an advance of four points.

The market opened steady at a decline of two points to an advance of one point. Southern selling, as well as realizing and liquidation in preparation for Monday's government crop report, forced active months one to four points net lower during the early trading. December eased off to 12.50 and March to 12.76, but the offerings were light and were absorbed readily. Brokers with spot house connections were again buyers of December against sales of later deliveries while there was some price fixing in the spring months and week-end covering.

Trading continued quiet, but the demand was sufficient to work prices up to 12.57 for December and 12.84 for March in the late trading. The close was a few points off from the best under renewed realizing.

Another private report was issued, placing the crop at 17,696,000 bales which was below the average of previous figures but was evidently without much effect on the market. The government report is scheduled for publication at 11 o'clock Monday morning and according to opinions expressed here during the day is expected to show a crop indication of close to 18,000,000 bales, and ginnings of between 13 and 13 1-2 millions prior to November 14. The average of the private reports published during the past several days would suggest a crop of about 17,970,000 bales.

Private cables reported trade calling and covering in the Liverpool cotton market but said the demand for cotton goods from India was less insistent. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at about 190,000 bales against 140,000 last year.

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR SPECIAL TRAIN TO PLAINVIEW PARTY

WICHITANS TO HELP OUT IN RAILWAY FETE

C of C May Run Special Pullmans to Panhandle Next Friday

Extensive plans are being made by the chamber of commerce to run one or more special Pullmans to Plainview next Friday to join in a huge West Texas celebration to be staged there commemorative of the success of the Fort Worth and Denver railway in its fight to extend its rails from Childress to Plainview and nearby points.

Definite plans for the trip, it is expected, will be mapped out Monday afternoon at a meeting called for 2 o'clock at the chamber of commerce. All who can attend are urged to be present at the session.

J. W. Chatham, industrial and traffic commissioner of the chamber, was in Fort Worth Saturday making efforts to secure a special rate for the occasion.

Tentative plans as now outlined call for the special cars to leave here at midnight Thursday on the West Texan of the Denver road, arriving in Amarillo about 6 o'clock Friday morning and reaching Plainview about 9:30 the same morning. On the return trip the cars would leave Plainview at 6:30 p. m., leave Amarillo at midnight on the southbound West Texan and get back to Wichita Falls about 7 o'clock Saturday morning. One day and two nights would thereby be lost.

Plainview is making pretentious plans for a celebration, said to be without precedent in the annals of West Texas civic festivities. Representatives of practically all the larger communities on the Denver between Fort Worth and Amarillo will be represented, while the smaller towns in the upper reaches of the lower Panhandle country will attend 100 per cent. A crowd rivaling that of a West Texas Chamber of Commerce is expected to put in an appearance.

Hon. E. C. Hall of Oklahoma City, former vice-president of Optimist International, is to be the principal speaker at the Father-Son banquet to be held at Junior college the evening of December 3, when at least 500 fathers and sons are expected to be present, according to announcement yesterday. The banquet is being sponsored by the Optimist club with the co-operation of other civic clubs of Wichita Falls.

Other features have been arranged for the program and especially the menu, which is being planned according to things boys like, the committee stated last night.

MISS BENTON HERE

Miss Alief Benton of Macon, Ga., national secretary of the American Rangers, an organization for the education in Christian civics, will speak Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Floral Heights Methodist church, according to announcement Saturday. Her lecture will outline the genius of the American government, its enemy forces, how to meet them and woman's part in the destiny of the nation, it was said.

Business Men Endorse Plan For Big Celebration at Plainview

Leading business men of Wichita Falls joined Saturday in endorsing the proposed excursion to Plainview next Friday when a huge celebration is to be held over the permit granted by the interstate commerce commission to the Fort Worth and Denver to begin construction of its new rail lines in West Texas.

Some of the comments were as follows.

J. C. MYTINGER.

"It would be one of the greatest things we could do. We ought to know those people out there and they ought to know us. It opens a great trade territory that rightfully belongs to Wichita Falls. Nothing just now is of more importance than to show Plainview and along the line that we rejoice with them in this great project. Every Wichita Falls man who can possibly do so ought to plan now to be in Plainview next Friday for it is as much our victory as it is theirs."

FRANK KELL.

"We can hardly estimate the value of this railroad extension to this city. We should join the people of Plainview in their celebration. It opens to us a vast territory, a virgin field, you might say and it behooves us to do our part to let that entire section know about Wichita Falls and the possibilities here as a jobbing center."

J. A. KEMP.

"We must get in touch with those people as soon as possible and there is no better way to do so than to join them in their great celebration. This new road means much to that entire section of Texas. It means more to us than we can realize at a glance and as many of us as possible should join them in their rejoicing."

JACK BARNARD.

"It is a fine opportunity to meet the people of that section. It means much to Wichita Falls in the future."

BURTON STAYTON.

"This is a project worth while. In days to come it means much to the entire city, wholesale and retail. Its a fine idea and we should join hands with the Plainview people in their celebration."

J. E. FRILEY.

"This new railroad opens a vast new territory for Wichita Falls in certain jobbing lines and the sooner we know those people and the sooner they know us the better will it be for both."

J. L. MAXWELL.

"This offers us a great opportunity. We ought by all means to go in force to Plainview and tell them that we, too, are glad of this project."

H. H. MAY.

"This will offer us a great opportunity to meet our neighbors. We must cultivate their friendship and I see no better way to do so than to meet them face to face."

R. E. PENNICK.

"By all means we should go. It is a great territory for the wholesale houses of this city and we ought to begin now to show the people of Plainview that we can supply their demands in many lines."

BERT BEAN.

"Plainview is in the heart of a great country and as many as possible should join them in the celebration. This new territory ought to mean much to Wichita Falls."

The meeting called for Monday is for the purpose of discussing in detail the desire of those interested in the proposed trip. Should it be passed upon at that time with favor, efforts will then be made by the traffic department of the chamber of commerce for the special cars and the trip.

C-C Campaign To Be Opened Again

Follow Up Committee Will Meet Monday To Discuss Plans

The follow-up committee of the chamber of commerce to complete the 1927 budget has been called to meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The budget for 1927 has been placed at $75,000 of which $65,000 has been pledged. The meeting will be held in the directors rooms of the chamber of commerce.

Members of this committee, who are expected to attend are the following: C. E. Basham, P. A. Rogers, R. H. Dargan, C. E. Smith, E. C. DeMontel, Wm. Couch, G. N. Monroe, James King, A. M. Biedenharn, R. C. Priebe, Lester Jones, C. Abernathy, A. A. Spencer, W. U. McCutchen and G. T. Buchanan.

In the three-day campaign, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday last, approximately $65,000 of the 1927 budget was pledged. There is enough in sight, it is announced if all the members renew to meet the full budget. Every effort possible will be made during the first few days of the week to complete the budget.

Enthusiastic response was given the workers last week. Many of the members were out of the city at the time and their pledges for another year could not be secured.

Whitney Will Be College Speaker

Nationally Known Reader To Appear Thursday In Reading

Edwin M. Whitney, nationally known dramatic reader and interpreter of modern plays, will be presented here at the Junior college auditorium on Thursday night, Nov. 25, as the first of a series of programs to be sponsored by the local city teachers association.

Whitney is recognized by dramatic critics as the outstanding stage reader in the country. His dramatic career started in 1902 on his graduation from the Emerson school or oratory of Boston, Mass., when he commenced his licture and reading tours which have continued uninterruptedly until today.

In the past 20 odd years Whitney has read and interpreted plays before almost 6,000 audiences, a record in public appearances.

A. K. Presson, president of the teachers association, announced Saturday that tickets would again be sold to the public at 50 cents, or less than half the price usually charged for Whitney's programs. The senior class of the high school is assisting in the ticket campaign for a portion of the proceeds to go to the Coyote, high school annual publication. Teachers will be admitted on their membership cards.

CITY READY FOR FREEZE

Winter Weather Puts In An Appearance Here Over Week-End

Freezing weather that dropped from a lowering sky held north Texas in its grip Saturday night at the end of a partly cloudy and frosty day. There was little wind and the frigidity was of a type that cut like real winter.

A minimum of 24 to 30 degrees was forecast for this section by early Sunday morning. Amarillo reported a minimum of 22 degrees at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, while the maximum reading for the state was 66 at Brownsville far down on the southern point.

Snow flurries were predicted for the northern part of the Panhandle Sunday.

HOME DESTROYED

The home of James T. Haggerdy, 1513 Tenth street was practically destroyed by fire about 7 o'clock Saturday morning. The city fire department arrived in time to save several pieces of furniture and the garage. No one was in the dwelling at the time, the alarm having been turned in by a neighbor.

Plans have been made to have these programs weekly on Monday mornings, and the one this week was the second to be held in the new auditorium. On these occasions the birthdays of great Americans and national holidays will be featured.

Psalms of Thanksgiving were given by a group of the first grade children, followed by a Thanksgiving playlet, in costume, "Then and Now," by pupils of the third grade. Miss Nan Scott's department gave a group of harmonica numbers.

The reading of Gettysburg address and the planting of the white flower, symbolic of peace, sprinkled with soil brought from the battlefield of Gettysburg by a teacher in the history department, Miss Morgan, who recently toured the east doing historical research work, featured the Lincoln program. Thanksgiving Festivities, Queen Marie's Visit to America, Pre-Nuptil Gossip Give Peggy and Kitty Real Thrills

DEAR KITTY:

What a life someone jocularly remarks, but I say, what a football season, for at the present writing football interest is at fever heat, and Junior College Redskins and Bud McCallum's Coyotes, as the sports writers say when telling of the two local teams as they sweep across the fields, make throats dry and hoarse with their rah! rah! rahs for the victors. And do you know, folks take far-away trips to see a football game now, same as they do to attend the world series of baseball or go to an exposition?

• • •

THE big football game for Thanksgiving Day which will draw many fans from Wichita Falls is the T. C. U. Horned Frogs and S. M. U. Ponies, in Dallas. And while many auto loads will go to Dallas on the festal day, others will remain at home for the family dinner and not forgetting the bird of prey—the Thanksgiving turkey and social functions which are always sure to take place with the homecoming of college students, will draw crowds, and one will be given for members of the younger set, when Mary Agnes Riley entertains with a big dance at the Country club, Thursday evening.

College girls, as well as bridal couples and others are enthusiastic about football games, too, and Wichita Fall's girls attending State university, Baylor and S. M. U. as will as those at O. U. evidently do not feel that their educational program is complete unless they attend the football games on the week-ends.

OF course, you have had no eyes for anything but Queen Marie of Rumania since I saw you last. However, I know of one happening of her visit you will be interested in, and that you probably have not heard about, and that is the fact that a Wichita Fall's girl, Frances Boyd who is a student at Miss Mason's school, The Castle, attended the gala performance at the Metropolitan opera given in honor of the queen. Frances undoubtedly now has the distinction of being the only local girl to have the pleasure of attending a royal function, and probably is the only girl in Texas to receive this honor.

Her principal, Miss Mason, was appointed one of the eight hostesses to Queen Marie, there being in the committee seven ladies in New York City, and one, Miss Mason, outside of the city. The committee of eight was later enlarged to include 24 hostesses. Then the governors of the states were requested to appoint two delegates to represent their states, and Miss Mason entertained the state delegates by request of the committee, at her school, the Castle, Tarrytown-on-Hudson, New York.

• • •

SEVERAL years ago Miss Mason received a knighthood from King Alexander, the son-in-law of Queen Marie. She is belived to be the only American woman who has been knighted by two countries, the second knighthood making her Grand Officer of the Knights. She is the only woman who has ever received that honor, either in the United States or Europe. She has also received a diploma of honor from Italy and her school has been decorated. The prime minister himself brought the decoration to the school. They were brought to Tarrytown in a special coach, arranged by the New York Central railroad, the committee of Westchester ladies formed by Miss Mason met them and escorted them to see the historic places by automobile, a police escort preceding their party to clear the traffic. Those assisting to make the day memorable were Mrs. Percy Rockefeller who entertained the party at luncheon at the beautiful Rockefeller Country club (the former estate of William Rockefeller) John D. Rockefeller, Miss Elsie Janis (owner of the old Dutch Castle erected in 1680) the Irving family at the home of Washington Irving, and Mrs. Helen Gould Shepherd, all of whom opened their beautiful estates to the party. They returned to the Castle for the reception at which the students sang the welcome song, the national hymn and the Rumanian national hymn.

• • •

MISS Mason was fortunate in securing invitations for her older pupils to attend various functions given the queen, including the banquet, the gala performance at the Metropolitan Opera and the entertainment for the Princess Ilena. The queen won all their hearts by her democratic friendliness and perfect simplicity of manner.

Two of the autumn brides-elect are certainly having a good time. And these are Gay Gwynn and Janie McCalister. Scarcely a day has passed this week that hasn't had it's social calendar dotted with something for one of them, and the week-end was particularly well filled. Among the hostesses entertaining for Janie were Mrs. C. H. Evans, Mrs. M. H. Benson and Mrs. Ed Napier and affairs for her promise to continue right up to Tuesday, the nuptial day, with Helen Snider hostess Monday afternoon, and Mrs. W. T. Willis, her mother-in-law to be, complimenting the wedding party Monday night.

ONE of the many delightful affairs honoring Gay, was on Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Clarence Moore and Mrs. Jack Barnard entertained at tea, at the home of Mrs. Moore, and the buffet supper given by Mrs. Charles McGaha on Saturday evening. Ethel Moran entertained her bridge club which is composed of the bride-elect's most intimate friends, on Thursday afternoon, especially honoring her and Marguerite Duncan will compliment her at luncheon Monday, while Roma Tandy will give a dinner dance in the evening. Other affairs for her will be given by Mrs. C. E. McCutcheon, Mrs. Abe Marcus, Mrs. Ben Bell and Mrs. Jouette Bonner, that I have already heard rumors of, and I know I am safe in saying that new hostesses will be added to the list every day until December 1.

• • •

SO far in reading my epistle you will think, I am afraid, that we have done nothing but go to parties. But here, my friend, you are mistaken, for the past week we have had with us two of Texas most accomplished literary women, Florence Sterling of Houston, editor of the Woman's Viewpoint and Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner, well known writer of constructive articles on the extension of club work into the small towns and rural districts. While so far as I know, this is Miss Sterling's first visit to Wichita Falls at least in recent years, Mrs. Warner comes every once in a while and her visits and lectures are always looked forward too with much enthusiasm by local women. As both women are writers of note, members of the writer's department of the Woman's Forum and gleaned a store of practical hints from both women in short stories, one act plays and other present day literature.

• • •

ONE friend of mine, says she hates that word "Thrill." But nothing expresses better that exultant feeling around the heart: those creepy chills down your spine when something really thrills you, now doesn't it?

And I had plenty of them this week when the Reader's club under the auspices of the dramatic department of the Woman's Forum presented the highly dramatic one-act play, "Where the Whirlwind Blows," which is a story of Russian peasant life in revolutionary times.

So come to Texas, Kitty, and thrill with—

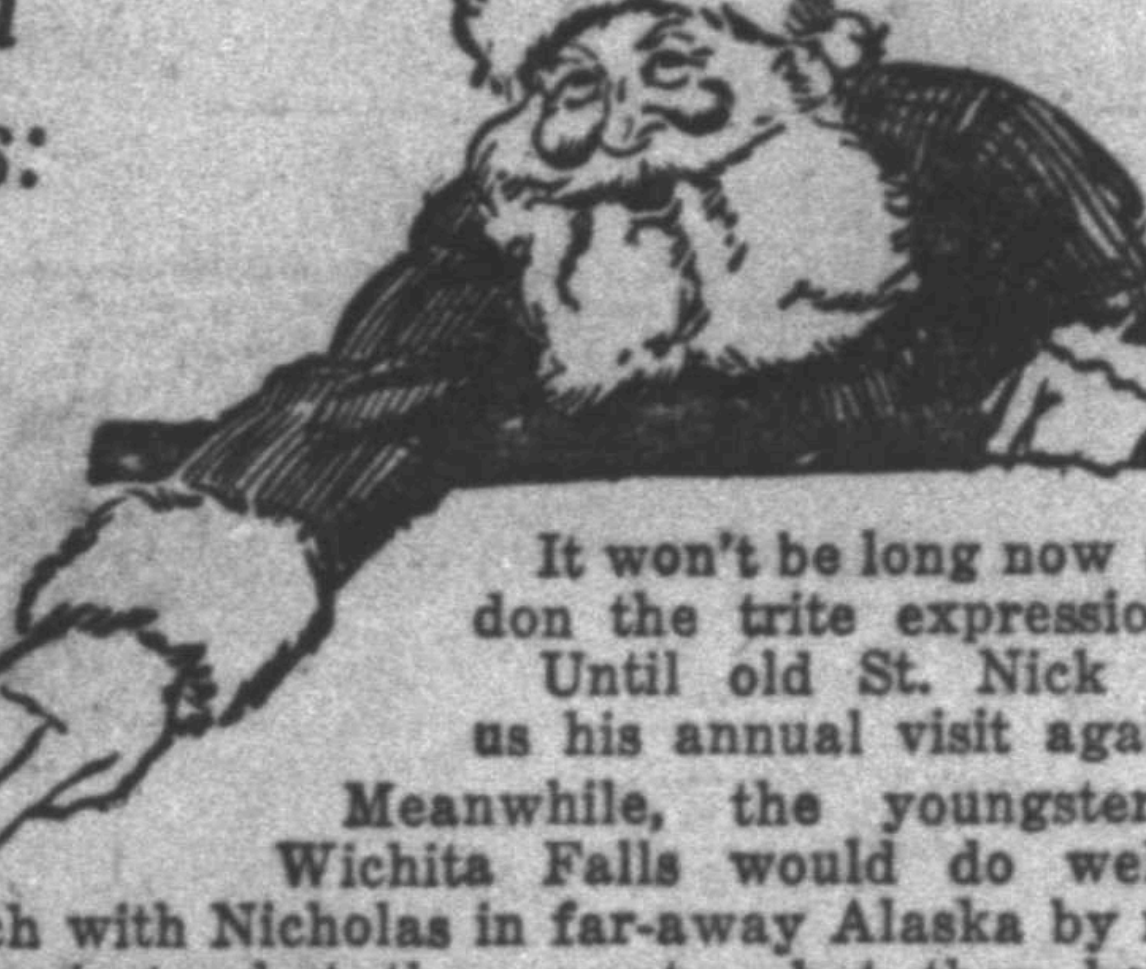
RADIOGRAM

NORTH POLE, NORTHERN HEMISPHERE, Nov. 20. One of the Santa Claus' famous reindeers developed a severe case of influenza today, and grave apprehension is felt that the team will not be able to make the annual Christmas Toy tour this year. However, Santa Claus has promised to charter an airplane for the trip and to make use of the United States air mail service in event old Dancer is unable to travel when Yuletide arrives.

Dear Santa Claus:



It won't be long now (pardon the trite expression)! Until old St. Nick pays us his annual visit again.

Meanwhile, the youngsters of Wichita Falls would do well to get in touch with Nicholas in far-away Alaska by mail, telling him just what they want, what they believe they deserve and why, in the way of Christmas gifts this year.

And The Record News will serve as Mr. Mailman.

Beginning with Monday, Nov. 29, The Record News will publish daily the best letters written Santa Claus by children 12 years old or under. A special prize of $2 will be awarded each day for the best letter. Honorable mention will be given for the next best missives.

All set? Let's go! The contest lasts two weeks.

The foregoing radiogram from a North Pole correspondent was received here Saturday morning, and with much concern for hundreds of boys and girls of Wichita Falls and vicinity, the Record-News made a thorough investigation of the situation.

Last year Santa Claus came right on schedule time, his reindeers were fat and sleek and the old man had a sleigh so full of toys and good things that even grown folks profited. Can it be that all of this festivity and holiday joy will be missing this year? Will Santa Claus be delayed or snow bound in his big toy factory of the north?

The wires were warmed up. A powerful radio station offered its help and the Record-News communicated with Old Santa direct.

"What about the toys for our boys and girls?" it asked.

"What about the Christmas trees and the sleigh bells?

"What about the stockings that will be hung up for Christmas cheer?

"And what about old Dancer?"

The Story Comes

Saturday night the whole story was being clicked out from our telegraph department at the furtherest north station in the land. Santa Claus was reassuring.

"There will be plenty of Christmas in Wichita Falls, and in every other town in the United States," he said. "Of course it all depends on the boys and girls themselves, as it always has done. If they have been good, their names will be on my list, but if they have been bad through the year, it may be that I won't see them. That is a problem. Sometimes I won't leave things for a real bad boy or girl, because I don't like them."

"I don't believe Dancer and Prancer will be able to make the trip, but I already have several big aeroplanes and I am sending a whole lot of my presents ahead to different towns so that I can gather them up there and distribute them.

"You can also tell the people through your paper that I have introduced a number of American workmen in my factory and they have brought in some new ideas that will make this year's toys and gifts far more enjoyable than ever before. I have so many new kinds of gifts, and I am sending lots of them ahead.

"I have made a contract with several merchants of your city to take these presents and display them for everybody to see.

Some Funny Things

"In toys I will bring some of the funniest things you ever saw. Jumping jacks, wiggly animals, skeeters, velocipedes, real steam engines and electric cars; and you ought to see the baby dolls. They are perfect—real babies with little topnots of hair and chubby toes. Some of them can go to sleep and some can talk a little and cry a great deal.

"I am going to do better by Pop and Mom and the older children this year. They are pretty good folks, anyway, and since they don't seem to like toys, I am sending some really exquisite gifts for them.

"There will be handsome dresses and adornments, jewelry and toilet articles, gifts for the house and gifts for the body for all the young ladies, and many new designs of clothing and dress apparel for the men.

"Dad may get something to wear or he may get a good box of smokes or a watch, or something, and Mom ma yfind a brand new luxury in the way of furniture, clothing or jewelry when Christmas morn breaks.

"Every little girl and boy who has been good and sweet to everybody will be happy Christmas morning, because Old Santa hasn't forgotten them and is going to be right there Christmas Eve, whether Dancer and Prancer can come or not.

"I surely want to bring the reindeers and the sleigh, and maybe if every good little girl and boy in the whole country would just speak to God about it when they say their prayers tonight, they may be able to come."

TWO MEN BURNED

CALLS CHURCH 'SOFT-SOAPER'

Baptist Pastor Denounces What He Calls 'Winking' At Dancing

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Charging that the churches are "soft soaping" and allowing people in the church who dance and practice other diversions frowned upon by the church, the Rev. W. Y. Pond of Dallas declared that dancing, mixed bathing and the motion picture show are the greatest evils of the day, before the general Baptist convention of Texas here Friday.

"Tens of thousands of homes are broken by divorce, and tens of thousands of young women are ruined annually because of these social evils, dancing, motion picture shows and mixed bathing," he declared. "The church must take an unyielding stand. There was a time when dancers were barred from the church, now they are allowed membership. The churches are soft-soaping on these issues."

To Submit Resolution.

Dr. Pond promised that he would introduce resolutions "against the social evils" at Saturday's session of the convention.

One of the most important actions taken by the present convention was its acceptance of the report of its executive committee here today, and with it a program of ecenomy and retrenchment. The program was adopted to meet what leaders have termed one of the gravest crises of the church. Reports have shown that the institutions owned and controlled by the general convention are more than $6,000,000 in debt.

Under the fiscal policy adopted today all new institutional projects will come before the executive committee for approval and the policy will be to frown upon such enterprises until the obligations of the institutions already established have been met.

Delay Two Projects.

This probably will block or delay at least two big projects that have been in the process of organization, a Baptist hospital for this city and Carroll college at McAllen.

Mrs. Annie Shofe is teacher of the Beginner's class and has been for the past 13 years. She is one of two remaining charter members of Floral Heights Presbyterian church which was organized in 1913.

Mrs. O. Lusk, better known to the congregation of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church as Grandma Lusk, is one of two charter members of the church and has been active in the church's activities since it was organized 13 years ago.

Story's Studio.
Mrs. B. B. Woodall is president of the Woman's Missionary society, and is pianist for Floral Heights Presbyterian church.

Mike Newman, teacher of the adult Bible class of Floral Heights Presbyterian church and has been superintendent of the Sunday school the past 11 years.

Organizations thrive only when those who make up its members are doing things, working in the interest of an aim in view and a definite goal to be sought for. Through struggles that have at times threatened to break it up, the membership of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church has come out ahead now optimistic over a pleasant outlook and with renewed endeavor and vigor is starting a program of far reaching influence in its community.

From a mission Sunday school established in 1913 with 15 members, a church has been a result which since early in 1926 has made a 65 per cent gain in membership; a 50 per cent gain in the Sunday school and 300 per cent gain in Christian Endeavor.

The Floral Heights Presbyterian Sunday school was organized in the spring of 1913 at 1813 Polk street in the three-room home of Rev. Howard Moody Franks with 15 charter members, including Bible class of three pupils with Rev. Franks, teacher; meeting in the living room; the intermediate class, four pupils with Mrs. Franks, teacher; the junior department was held in the bedroom with three pupils. The beginners, five little children, met in a group on the doorstep with Mrs. Annie Shofe as teacher, and has continued her work since that time.

Charlie Wentz was the first superintendent.

Kemp Gives Lot.

A campaign was started the latter part of July, 1913, to build a chapel to house this small group. Their efforts were generously rewarded when a lot was donated by J. A. Kemp. By the first of October, 1913, the building, 30x24 was completed and paid for and was dedicated October 19, 1913, at 1901 Kemp where appropriate ceremonies were held.

Time passed and the mission prospered. A Presbyterian church was organized in 1916 through the efforts of Dr. Nat F. Grafton of the First Presbyterian church, and others, and the church was accepted by the Amarillo presbytery. Rev. Haggard was called as the first pastor.

Under his pastorate a move was made to 1701 Kemp boulevard where the lot given by Mr. Kemp, was returned to him and he and Mr. Springer gave another lot. In addition to the first building erected, Rev. Haggard had another building 24x32 feet to accommodate the larger congregation. This church was a pioneer in the community for it was the first church to be built in the Floral Heights addition of Wichita Falls.

The church growth has been gradual through the struggles from a membership for 10 years, from 1916 to 1926. It has grown from seven members to 87 and a Sunday school enrollment of 142. One of the hardest years of its existence was in 1920 when the glass factory closed down and the congregation was so depleated that the Amarillo presbytery dissolved the congregation and the remnant was transferred to the First Presbyterian church.

All that was left of the membership met one day to sell the property and to dissolve the Sunday school. The vote was cast and there was an equal number for and an equal number against. The moderator, Dr. Nat F. Grafton, voted the tie off and the church continued to go on her mission of love and sympathy in this part of the community. This church found it had a distinct part to play because it has always reached a group that the other churches did not touch. The wisdom of continuing the Sunday school was demonstrated and soon the church was reorganized with 16 members. Rev. E. C. Dooly became pastor.

Through the help of the First Presbyterian church, it has been possible for this work to be done. By financial assistance of the First church a new five-room manse was built in September of 1925 when Rev. Tom Rockett was pastor. The First church has assured the congregations of Floral Heights and East Side churches of its aid in erecting substantial buildings at an early date and the program is a part of Dr. Grafton's plan for establishing Presbyterianism in all sections of the city.

Newman Superintendent.

Mike Newman is superintendent of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church and has been for the past 11 years. He holds a position of love and trust and his influence has helped keep the Sunday school together. His place in the Presbyterian Sunday school is unique, for he is a member of the Floral Heights Methodist church. He was interested in the little Presbyterian community and early in its history was a Bible teacher. From that he became superintendent and his love for the children in the community whose welfare he has at heart has kept him yoked in service in the church.

Since Rev. E. F. McGaughey became pastor in February, 1926, two new elders and the election of two new trustees have been made and a general reorganization has come about under his ministry.

The official board is composed of Ralph Dick, clerk of the session and treasurer of the church; E. B. Horrow, J. R. Eason, Mike Newman, trustees; Mrs. J. G. Elpper, trustee; Mrs. Annie Shofe, Mrs. J. R. Eason, deaconesses; Miss Velma Pearce, secretary of the Sunday school.

The Sunday school officers and teachers follow: Mike Newman, teacher adult Bible class; Ralph Dick, teacher of the Ralph Dick Bible class; Mrs. E. F. McGaughey, teacher of young people's Bible class; boys' class, Mrs. B. B. Woodall; girls' class, Mrs. J. G. Elpper, teacher; Miss Ruby Nipper, teacher of junior class; Miss Guyrene Rettig, teacher of primary; Mrs. Annie Shofe, teacher of Shofe beginners' class. Christian Endeavor officers are: J. T. Morrow, president; Miss Valta Wilson, secretary of Christian Endeavor; Miss Lonia Ray, treasurer. Junior Endeavor society: Jack Roy, president; Geneva White, treasurer; Lorena Griffin, secretary; Miss Guyrene Rettig, superintendent.

Mission Officers.

The Missionary society officers are: Mrs. B. B. Woodall, president; Mrs. E. F. McGaughey, vice-president; Mrs. E. B. Morrow, secretary and treasurer.

"The future of our church is greater now than ever before in its history," Rev. McGaughey said in speaking of Floral Heights Presbyterian which will soon launch its campaign for a new building to be erected on its new plot of ground at 1914 Buchanan.

"This community is to serve mankind, and our only purpose is to build the kingdom of our Lord and make your homes happier and your lives better. We are planning a new church in the future and ask your prayers and your co-operation in our efforts to serve you."

Grafton, will deliver the sermon. Music will be furnished by the chorus choir, which will be directed by Mr. Alva R. Willgus. All members and friends of the church are asked to be present and celebrate this occasion. The evening service is at 7:30, and special music will be given by the choir and Mrs. C. N. A Thanksgiving play entitled "America's Roll of Honor," will be given at the First Presbyterian church at 9:30 Sunday morning during the opening exercises of the Sunday school. The story represents a minister in his study, played by O. R. Hartt, who is being called on by four young people of his congregation, represented by Larry Robertson, Douglas Von Allman, Mildred Schaeffer and Clairce Pitnian. These young people have come to ask his advice as to some Thanksgiving work that they can do in the community. They have an idea that all of the pioneering work in the community has been accomplished, and through the things suggested to them by the minister they are brought face to face with the wonderful work the church has done, and its possibilities for the present time. Adventures In The Shops

AS TOLD BY

Jacqueline

COLLEGE girls and matrons alike are fond of frilly boudoir pillows, and the very prettiest are among the many lovely, handmade things the French Shoppe, 706 Tenth street, is featuring for Christmas gifts.

* * *

NOSSETT'S Studio of Artistic Photography is executing the most exquisite of tinted miniatures. Framed in polychrome, or encased in a quaint old-fashioned daguerreotype case lined with red velvet and gold—a Christmas gift of more intrinsic charm than one of ossett's miniatures cannot be had.

The revival of this form of portraiture has been cordially received, and it is not surprising that it should be when you regard the combination of quaintness and unmistakably modern beauty in these photographs. Men are especially fond of the daguerreotype cases which are so easy to carry or stand on a desk.

Nossett's other types of photography are equally individual and lovely.

A SNAKE in the grass is a fearful, loathsome thing (as Eve can testify)—but a reptile bag is fascinating and to be envied. McClurkan's is showing this season's pouch and folder bags in all the new shades at $4.95 and $5.95.

DANCE sets as party-like and slenderizing as one could wish, can be found at McClurkan's in crepe de chine and jersey, lace and rosebud trimmed.

REPLACE the morning "Coke" habit with a dish of Colvert's new malted chocolate ice-cream, and watch the change in your constitution. One dish is in itself a meal and the enticing flavor is sure to become a favorite.

Colvert's real ice-cream foods have culminated in this wonderful product. It will be something different to order at the fountains (it will be served at all drug stores) and will stand out as one of the most delicious of desserts.

The richest and purest milk and malt are used in its making, in full accordance with Colvert's standards. How nice that it will be sold in time for Thanksgiving—many will take advantage of such a fitting climax for that most important dinner of the year!

AT Lovelace's Book Store are books from all publishers—the latest and the old friends, for those who know the great joy of reading.

Books are incomparable Christmas presents for people of every age, and among the wide assortment at Lovelace's you are sure to find the proper volume. The children's book department is larger than ever before—large print and beautiful illustrations make these copies irresistible.

WICHITA STATE BANK AND TRUST CO.

THE Wichita State Bank and Trust company, in the Waggoner building, is the source of some of the most substantial Christmas gifts—ones which will really brighten the New Year to come.

This company's department of interest-bearing accounts pays four per cent, and many people, knowing the absolute security of this bank, take out interest-bearing accounts at this time of the year in readiness for Santa Claus.

If you are in doubt about what to give any member of the family, go in the Wichita State and discuss these interest-bearing accounts. Parents find them advisable presents for children, and an increasing principal is sure to please and to prove of great value to any recipient of your gift.

The established position of this institution is ample recommendation for all its departments.

FOR thousands of years, while dynasty succeeded dynasty, the Chinese have clung to the chrysanthemum as their favorite flower. Gorgeous white and yellow blossoms at the Wichita Floral Company, 706 Ninth street, reveal the wisdom of the oriental choice.

From button pompoms to large Turner varieties, the chrysanthemums are ready to lend their stately beauty to your drawing-room or Thanksgiving table.

As flowers are indispensable to the hostess, they are no less wonderful in expressing the appreciation of a guest after pleasant entertainment, and you will find unusual suggestions and beautiful flowers at the Wichita Floral company.

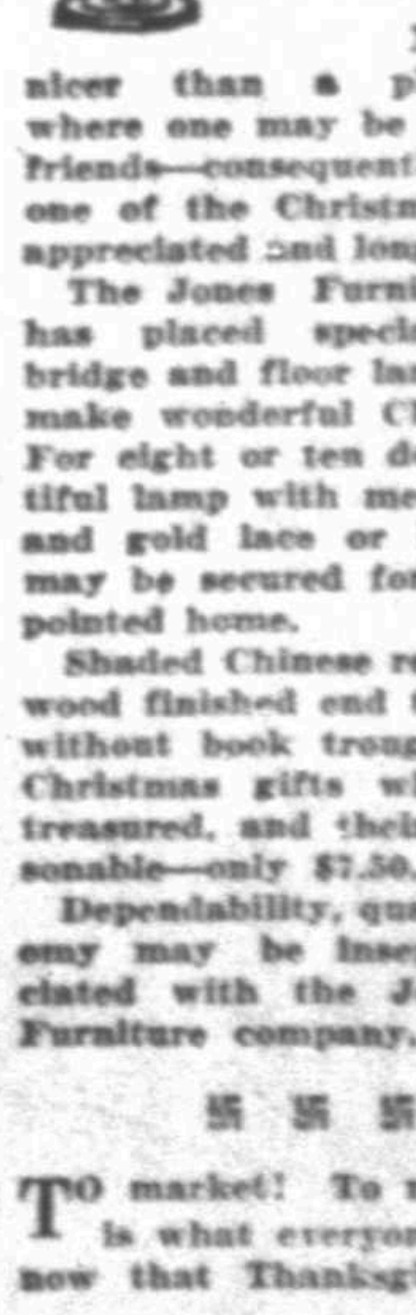
NEW YORK women now have a flower for every costume, and Joza Dickson's beautiful golden and bright organdy creations, touched with tinseled frost that Jack Frost himself must be jealous of, explain the fad's popularity.

* * *

THE John L. Jones Furniture company, 710 Seventh street, offers furnishings of the highest grade at prices far less than you would expect for the quality.



The well known Pullman living room suites are shown here in finest wood and taupe cut velour at exceptionally low prices. The same applies to Jones' Superior Kroehler living room suites.

Nothing is nicer than a pleasant home where one may be proud to take friends—consequently furniture is one of the Christmas gifts most appreciated and longest enjoyed.

The Jones Furniture company has placed special values on bridge and floor lamps which will make wonderful Christmas gifts. For eight or ten dollars, a beautiful lamp with metal stand, silk and gold lace or beaded shade, may be secured for the well appointed home.

Shaded Chinese red lacquer and wood finished end tables, with or without book trough, also make Christmas gifts which will be treasured, and their price is reasonable—only $7.50.

Dependability, quality and economy may be inseparably associated with the John L. Jones Furniture company.

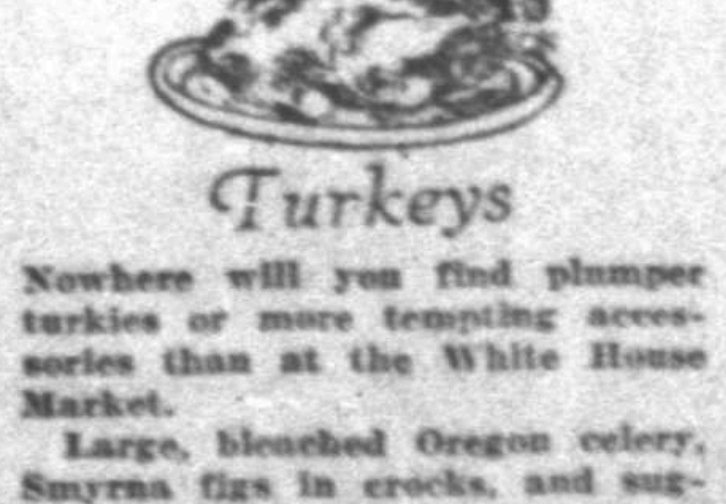
TO market! To market! That is what everyone is thinking, now that Thanksgiving is here.



Nowhere will you find plumper turkies or more tempting accessories than at the White House Market.

Now, I've saved the very best until last—brandied fruits, as of old, have arrived in time for your Thanksgiving table. The offering of this old-time delicacy, recently revived, is another laurel to the White House Market.

NEVER have the silk quilted robes, which make such perfect Christmas gifts, been more beautiful than those of this season shown at Miller-Fergusons. Among the intriguing designs from orient and occident, are an adorable baby-blue satin robe quilted in flower design with a cunning boutonniere on the shoulder, and a handsome old-rose velvet. A Chinese type in black with metallic and colorful trim, and a delicate orchid moire are also outstanding.

The combination of luxury and service which is embodied in Miller-Ferguson's robes, makes a Christmas gift that will be long and doubly appreciated.

"THE House Beautiful" is a theme close to every woman's heart, and "The Sherwin-Williams Company," 818 Scott Street, should be almost synonymous, for a can of paint can do most of all toward freshening and cheering a home.

The Sherwin - Williams Company is featuring the famous Roger's Brushing Lacquer — a paint which dries in thirty minutes. In this way you can brighten sun-parlor, breakfast room, or woodwork without inconvenience. Roger's Brushing Lacquer is fine for odd pieces, too—fancy a Chinese red desk or a cool green on your old dressing table! In all colors and easy to use, this paint is most appealing to home lovers.

The Sherwin-Williams Company has hand-painted nut bowls, bread boards, magazine holders, waste baskets and ice bowls in natural finish for those anxious to decorate unusually pleasing Christmas presents personally, and Roger's Brushing Lacquer is the very thing for this hand-work. These articles may also be obtained here already decorated.

DINNERS, dances, luncheons teas are crowding the pages of engagement books for Thanksgiving, and Milady must, of course, give special attention to her gowns.

The Orchid Shop, the Peacock Alley of this city, is prepared, as usual, for the occasion with marvelous frocks from the foremost designers of Fifth Avenue and Paris—among them the well known Milgrim creations.

Perfect beauty of color, line and material characterize the gowns upon gowns that hang in the French room of this shop, so high in the favor of our smartest and most fastidious women.

A gorgeous evening wrap of love-bird green panne velvet, lined with silver brocaded metal cloth, and with a profusion of white monkey fur as sole trim, seems la derniere cri in sophisticated elegance!

A glittering evening gown in the all sequins, which is so highly favored this season, staggers the imagination and challenges the vocabulary. The stars themselves will look down and sigh in despair of ever achieving such brightness! It is shaded from flesh to deepest old-rose and is cut in a becoming decollete. Silver sequins and pink satin combine to make another charming dance frock.

The most distinctive dinner dress ever conceived is of rich wine-colored georgette, tucked from the velvet flare of the same color which foots the short skirt to within about six inches of the neckline—thus achieving the yoke effect which is so good. Clusters of velvet flowers, also in the wine shade, form the only elaboration.

An afternoon dress of unusual merit gives a two-piece effect with its white satin sleeveless blouse and flaring black skirt, though it is cleverly cut to reveal the figure. A deep V neckline, and red-and-black beading add attraction to the blouse, while the hem is scalloped and faced with tomato georgette.

Oh! you can simply revel in exquisite gowns and wraps at the Orchid Shop, which are as far beyond description as moonlight is beyond the province of the painter.

HOW nice it would be to have a dozen Christmas gifts selected and put away by tomorrow noon! Deaton-Billingsley Hardware Company, 712 Ninth street, has such a lovely assortment of novelties on sale at the amazing price of one dollar, that it is possible to do that very thing.

Smoking stands valued at five dollars are especially reduced to one for this real sale. Dresser sets in the new amber and green glass, cigarette jars with jeweled tops, and tea trays are some of the articles which will make unusual gifts.

Many other novelties included in this remarkable $1 sale are displayed in Deaton-Billingsley's windows.

ONLY shining silver can add that touch of completeness which is so necessary to the Thanksgiving table of taste. Bailey-Moline's China Shop is showing Tudor and Community Plate in a variety of beautiful patterns. Twenty-nine piece sets with buffet tray, in Tudor Plate, are decorated in four designs—Duchess, Baronet, Queen Bess and Mary Stuart which suggest by their names the atmosphere of ancient lineage they bring to a table.

Sugar, creamer and tea pot in these designs would tempt the roughest pioneer to become English for tea-time at least! Bread trays, meat platters and gravy bowls of distinguished line and delicate ornament, are other pieces of simple beauty.

WHAT is the most used article in your home? The kitchen range is, and it should therefore be the most efficient and attractive that can be obtained.

McConnell Brothers are selling a New Method gray enamel gas range which claims five points of distinction: It is economical, durable, sanitary, convenient and attractive. The various models are suited to every purse, space and family. The New Method Apartment Ranges in white and gray enamel are suitable for the bride—their dainty appearance and the ease with which they may be handled, will make her cooking experiences an adventure.

McConnell Brothers also have a wonderful line of New Method Radiant heaters in a variety of designs and prices. A model with andirons, designed for heating larger rooms than the standard size Radiant Heaters, in brass or bronze, antique or bright finish, is one of the many attractive styles.

* * *

FEMININE eyes are on the look-out for unusual gifts for men at this time of the year, and the A. C. Ludlam Company is showing handsome dressing gowns which will make the most suitable of Christmas gifts.

Persian patterns in such attractive color combinations as old gold and dull violet, are among the best looking of the ever-welcome ties at Ludlam's.

BEAUTIFUL Christmas cards are nice little gifts themselves, and the custom of using them is a very happy one, as it enables you to send remembrances to such a wide circle of friends.

Of course, you will want tasteful, engraved cards—they are really no more expensive than the cards which call for an ink signature.

Martin Printing and Stationery company, 911-13 Eighth street, is the very place to have your Christmas engraving done, and do place orders early, for the early bird is certainly the fortunate one in getting Christmas cards which express the sentiment and personality of the sender.

HONEY LOU—The Story of a Modern Girl In a Modern Setting—By Beatrice Burton

"Do You Ever Do Anything to Your Hair?" She Asked.

READ THIS FIRST:

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against her will.

JACK WALLACK, who comes to his father's mills to learn the business, falls in love with Honey Lou the minute he sees her. Brought up by an old-fashioned mother, Honey Lou is a mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

Honey Lou goes to work with Margaret in the office of Holy Cross hospital. One day she goes to tea with the wily Angela and meets Jack's mother, whom Jack calls The Head, because she manages everything at home. She tells Honey Lou that "Grumpy" is not satisfied with his new secretary, ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp. Jack asks Honey Lou to work for his father, who is at home [illegible] with lumbago, and Honey Lou promises that she will.

Honey Lou meets Angela, who tells her that Jack Wallack is taking her out to dance that evening. Honey Lou calls up TIM DONEGAL, determined to have him take her to the same place.

Honey Lou goes with Tim to the restaurant and he has been drinking. The place is raided by dry agents and Honey Lou escapes with Jack Wallack. Jack tells Honey Lou that he thought she was tricking him and ends by telling her that he loves her and wants her to marry him.

Honey Lou tells her mother that she is to marry Jack Wallack the next day but her mother asks her to wait and have a wedding. Honey Lou's engagement is announced and plans are made for the wedding.

She meets Angela downtown and she persuades her to open a charge account under the name of Mrs. Jack Wallack, Jr., and to put the shoes she is buying, along with some lingerie, on the account. But at home with Margaret, who sees through Angela, she decides to take back the lingerie and Margret pays for the shoes for a wedding gift.

Jack and Honey Lou have a quiet home wedding and spend their honeymoon camping at Lake Tamay. In the meantime Steve visits the flat and breaks under the realization that Honey Lou is lost to him now.

Jack and Honey Lou return from their honeymoon and stay with the Wallacks while looking for a flat for themselves. Honey Lou tells Angela that they are anxious to start housekeeping. They find a seven-room flat on the next street to the Wallacks and The Head says Angela told her Honey Lou could not wait to get away from them. This angers Honey Lou and she cannot understand why Jack's mother is so cool toward her. Honey Lou starts shopping for furniture. She stops at the Wallack Mills office to see Ann Ludlow.

Jack and Honey Lou return from their honeymoon and stay with the Wallacks while looking for a flat for themselves. Honey Lou tells Angelia that they are anxious to start housekeeping. They find a seven-room flat on the next street to the Wallacks and The Head says Angela told her Honey Lou could not wait to get away from them. This angers Honey Lou and she cannot understand why Jack's mother was so cool toward her. Honey Lou starts shopping for furniture. She stops at the Wallack Mills office to see Ann Ludlow.

Ann tells Honey Lou why she sent for her. Honey Lou sees Joe Meadows and tells him he must marry Ann Ludlow at once and he agrees to do so.

Honey Lou and Jack settle down in their own flat with Mary Delaney, the cook. Margret comes home with Honey Lou for dinner and Steve Mayhew calls to take her home.

Angela comes over to help Honey Lou prepare dinner on Mary's night out. Jack phones he will not be home and Angela says she will call Tim Donegal and ask him to play cards with them, much against Honey Lou's wishes.

The Head shows Honey Lou the bill for the shoes and lingerie she charged to Mrs. Jack Wallack, Jr., before her marriage. She scolds Honey Lou for the money she has spent furnishing her house. Honey Lou makes up her mind she must not spend so much, but the next day Honey Lou goes to the beauty parlor to have her hair done.

(NOW GO WITH THE STORY:)

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Yes, that's what we use to bleach hair. That's white henna," Marie said, shaking out a white linen towel and pinning it around Honey Lou's shoulders. "Why, you don't want to have anything done to your hair, Mrs. Wallack. Yours is just lovely, I think."

Honey Lou shook the cropped curly head that made her look like a beautiful boy.

"No, I'd never have mine bleached—not in a hundred years," she firmly declared. "If it turned as gray as an elephant's trunk, I'd never have a thing done to it."

In the glass she could see Marie smile to herself. "Oh, yes, you would, Mrs. Wallack," she said out of her wisdom. "You wait 'til you start getting old, and you'll be like all the best of the women. Dieting and bleaching and painting themselves up—trying to keep some man in love with them."

The girl wondered about it, as she watched clever reflection of Marie's deft clever fingers rub some kind of sweet-smelling ointment into her hair.

"My mother never uses anything but a little rice powder to take the shine off her nose," she began. And then, all at once, she wondered to what lengths her mother might have gone to keep her youth and good looks, if her husband had lived—the handsome, devil-may-care husband who had squandered a fortune on cards and racehorses and swift living.

"But Jack would love me just the same if I looked like the last day of a week-end party," she told herself. "I'm not afraid of growing old. Perfect love casteth out fear!"

Marie's shop, the Powder Box, was almost as fussy and feminine as a powder box could be. There were pearl-gray carpets on the floor of the waiting room, and pearl-gray silk walls, and little lavender chairs with lavender smoking stands beside them.

Before the glass case, when Honey Lou stepped into the room on her way out of the shop, stood Suzanne Clemens and Daisy Deane.

Honey Lou looked blank. "I don't know," she answered. "I haven't heard from her all day."

"She was coming down here this afternoon," Suzanne was saying, when Marie's contralto voice called out from the room behind them.

"She just left," she told them. "I took care of her just before Mrs. Wallack came."

Honey Lou's thoughts flew to the empty box that had stood on the dressing-table in that room when she went in. Could it be that the wonderful color of Angela's pale gold hair came out of a box marked "White Henna?" She wondered.

"Sit down while we have our nails done and we'll go to a movie together," Suzanne proposed. "Or shall we trot down to a restaurant and put on a couple of pounds of weight instead?" Or what have you?"

They wound up by going shopping instead.

"I can always buy things," Suzanne said at half-past five when they carried their bundles to the parking place where she kept her car. "No matter how tired I am of everything else in the world—men, movies and married life—I never get tired of shopping."

She and Honey Lou drove home through the February darkness.

"Do you know, I'd give anything in the world to be in your shoes." She gave Honey Lou a keen glance as she spoke, and nodded her head convincingly.

"Why?"

Suzanne laughed. It was not a happy laugh, but a sharp, bitter one that crackled like ice.

"You have everything that I want," she said.

"What?" Honey Lou was puzzled. "It seems to me you have everything there is to have, Suzanne. You're pretty and smart and brainy—"

"Well, I wasn't brainy enough to keep my husband happy when I had him." Suzanne's voice cut in like a knife. "When he wanted me to have children I told him I wasn't going to turn my house into an incubator. And we never had any time to ourselves. I packed the place with people and had parties all the time, until he just got good and sick of it, I guess. Anyway we had one awful row and he cleared out. You see, Honey Lou, he was the quiet, serious kind like your Jack, and I was doing the big parade all the time—always on the jump. If he'd come back to me I'll bet I'd settle down like a pricked balloon. You hang on to Jack, Honey Lou."

"Do you think Jack's quiet and serious?" Honey Lou asked.

"Oh, sure. Most men are the sit-by-the-fire kind," Suzanne answered, taking one hand from the wheel to reach for a cigarette in her silk handbag.

"I always thought he'd marry Angela Allen," she said in her blunt, honest way. "I'll bet Angela could knock you for a couple of Gene Tunneys because you beat her to it. She was always crazy about Jack, and still is, if you ask me."

For the hundredth time, Honey Lou thought how much Suzanne was like One-Armed Annie. Suzanne had more money and more education and better clothes—but, under her skin, she was Ann's sister, just as Rosie O'Grady and the Colonel's lady are sisters under their skins.

She laughed, and then her face sobered suddenly.

"If Angela cares about Jack it's the way a sister would love a brother, I think," she answered, thoughtfully. "And, of course, she and I are the greatest kind of friends—we're like sisters, almost."

She waited for Suzanne's reply. But Suzanne merely blew a long jet of cigaret smoke from her lips, and began to hum "Horses" in her light voice.

"That reminds me. I want to see Angela about something," Honey Lou went on. "Drop me at her house instead of my own, will you?"

She found Angela dressing to go to the theater with Timothy Donegal. She was sitting before her silver-littered toilet table in a white kimono, and rubbing toilet water into her scalp. Her gilt hair was all around her in a shining cloud.

"What wonderful hair you have!" Honey Lou's eyes were full of admiration as she dropped down on a cushoned stool beside her. "But tell me something—do you ever do anything to it?"

She was startled by the look of fury that flashed into the gentle face between the wing of shinning yellow hair. It was a look that stung like a cupful of ice being thrown full in her own face.

"What do you mean?" Angela asked. "Is that why you stopped in to see me? To ask me if I bleach my hair like a burlesque queen?"

She looked as if she were going to burst into tears, and Honey Lou jumped up and put her arms around her. "No, no, Angel, dear," she tried to soothe her. "But you know it is—almost too beautiful to be real."

Excellent Books of Non-Fiction Class Added to Kemp Library

A number of books, described as "not fiction but as good as fiction," have been added to the Kemp public library shelves this week. A discussion of them as given by Miss Lucia Powell, librarian, is as follows:

"Dependent America," by W. C. Redfield.

A study of the economic bases of our international relations. The former secretary of commerce authoritatively surveys America's position as an importing nation, showing its dependence both for national defense and for daily life on articles brought from overseas.

The carefully prepared footnotes and references shows an enormous amount of research and the author's sources must have been government and business reports. Interesting as well as informative.

"Doctor Looks at Biography" by Joseph Collins.

The author of "The Doctor Looks at Literature" still occupied with taking the literary pulse looks at "biographies and autobiographies studying them as revelations not only of personality but of the life of the times that produced them.

Dr. Collins, whose criticisms in the past have dealt principally with fiction, has in biography a subject especially suited to his tastes and equipment. His long experience as a neurologist and medical psychologist gives him an unusual insight into the secrets of personality.

"Joseph Pulitzer—His Life and Letters" by Don C. Seitz.

Eigrteen years of personal association with the late Joseph Pulitzer and 30years spent in the service of the New York World has enabled Mr. Seitz not only to give us an admirable piography of one of the most interesting figures in American journalism but a most valuable and instructive work on the journalist's craft.

"The Kaiser's Memoirs" by Wilhelm II, Emperor of Germany, 1888-1918.

The book, written during four years of exile, is the ex-kaiser's personal review of his career as emperor of Germany from the beginning of his reign to the end in November, 1918. The book contains detailed accounts of the writer's feeling about such important matters as the Causes of the Great War; the Versailles Treaty of Peace; America's early attitude; Germany's policy in China and in the Near East; concluding with a forecast of Germany's future as he sees it.

"Life and Letters of John Burroughs" by Clara Barrus.

This two-volume "Life and Letters" by Dr. Barrus who was Mr. Burroughs' friend and physician for 20 years, comes very near to a completeness as a biography. It contains many pages of autobiographical material which had been collected but never published.

Throughout the story Dr. Barrus has kept her own personality in the background—so far as is possible she has permitted Burroughs himself to tell the story, and as he was so constant a letter writer and so ardently devoted to his journal, the task of Dr. Barrus was largely that of sorting and chronologically placing the material.

"Our Times" by Mark Sullivan.

This is the first of a four-volume work on the social and political history of the first 25 years of the present century of the U. S.

Mr. Sullivan tells us the purpose of his narrative is "to follow an average American through this quarter-century of his country's history, to recreate the flow of the days as he saw them, to picture events in terms of their influence on him, his daily life and ultimate destiny." Not a connected history but rather the raw materials of history, as shown in a panarama of the life of the times, leaders and issues, fashion amusements, the books people read and the songs they sang. Well illustrated and will be useful for reference as well as interesting to the average reader.

"Pursuing the Whale" by John A. Cook.

A quarter-century of whaling in the Arctic. A recent revival of interest in whales and whalers has brought into print many personal narratives of whaling. Captain Cook's stories seem to have been partly from a diary and partly from the ship's log. Lavishly illustrated and contains a foreword by Allan Forbes.

"Tolerance" by Henrik Wilhelm Van Loon.

The story of man's struggle for the right to think. Intolerance and not tolerance is the subject of Mr. Van Loon's book—in particular, religious intolerance. The first half of the book traces the development among Christians. The other half is concerned with such leaders in the fight against intolerance as Erasmus, Montaigne, Voltaire and Tom Paine.

CHRIST IN A CAP

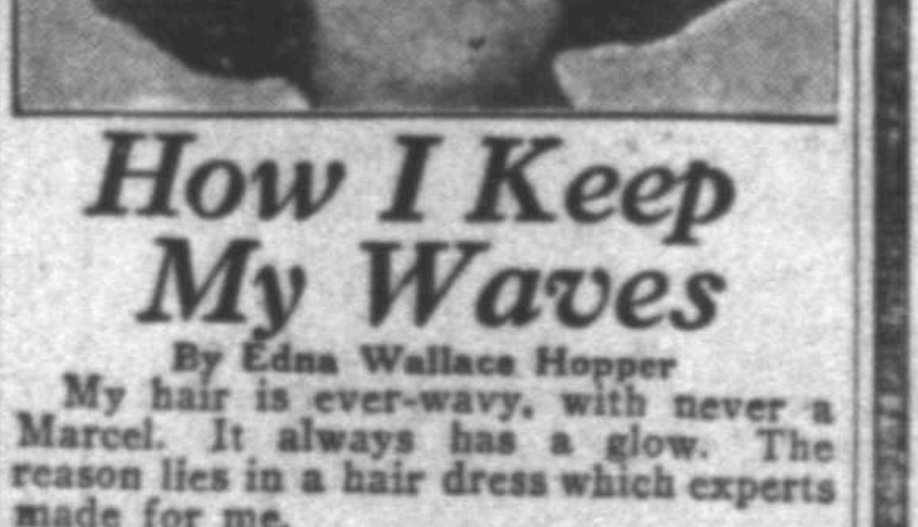
Storm of Criticism Comes From Latest Picture.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Portrayal of Jesus Christ in a skull cap has raised a storm of comment among the critics who have seen W. Roberts' picture "Christ and the Money Changers in the Temple" which is on exhibition at the new Chenil galleries.

The Biblical story is depicted in a modern manner. There are the 12 money changers, but unlike the popular impression of these Biblical characters, they are attired only in black loin cloths. All are clean shaven and carry the very latest thing in ledgers and cash books under their arms. Christ stands, a distorted figure, hairless, wearing a sleeveless Cambridge blue costume, his head is covered with a ckull cap. In his clenched hand is a knout with which he is driving out the usurers.

MAY BE IMPEACHED

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Official of th village of Waldeck, Prussia, are threatened with impeachment. This because they rejuvenated a 19th century town ordinance which decreed that in cases of necessity every able-bodied man could be drafted for road-dragging service.



How I Keep My Waves

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is ever-wavy, with never a Marcel. It always has a glow. The reason lies in a hair dress which experts made for me.

I apply it on a brush twice a week. To fluff my hair I comb it backward, and the fluff remains. For a curl, use combs or fingers in the usual way, and the curl will last. It keeps a permanent wave in the same way. Or it keeps hair sleek and smooth for those who want it, and does it without grease.

This remarkable hair dress is now supplied by all toilet counters. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75 cents.

No girl or woman will go without it when she once sees what it does. It multiplies the beauty of the hair and keeps it in the style one wishes. You will be delighted with it.

NERO AN ARTIST

Latest Developments Show That He Played Bagpipes Too.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Nero not only played a fiddle but he also was a player of the bagpipes, an instrument illustrating a very ancient use of compressed air, declared William Reavall in his presidential address to the Institution of Mechanical Engineers. The subject was "Compressed Air." Besides Nero's bagpipes, Mr. Reavall said organs with piston bellows were described by Vitruvious and Nero, while such instruments were also known to Archimedes and Plato.

The speaker also described how, before those periods, the Egyptian priests made use of compressed air to work "miracles" in their temples.

STRAND HAS "THE FAR CRY"

Much Talked of Picture Brought to Local Film House This Week

One of the "talked about" pictures of the season is "The Far Cry." The story was directed by Balboni, the young Italian, who was given a directorship at the suggestion of June Mathis, head of the scenario division of First National Productions.

Balboni succeeded in making something worth while of this story of modern European life, critics who have seen the picture state, because he possesses a colorful background and many years actual camera experience abroad.

The film brings to movie patrons a combination of unusual interest—Blanche Sweet and Jack Mulhall. Both have been given important roles and handle them in excellent manner.

SURE HIT IN OLYMPIC FILM

"Kid Boots" With Eddie Canton Comes Back To Olympic

When Paramount cast about in search of a new comedy and a new comedian, "Kid Boots" was on the glib tongue of the theatrical world.

"Kid Boots" took blase Broadway by storm and fun-thirsty New York supported Florenz Ziegfield's production for three years. Now, Paramount's film version, advertised for showing at the Olymphic theater today, is heralded as the mirth provoker of the season.

Eddie Cantor, ace of musical comedians, the "Kid" of "Kid Boots," enacts his original colorful role. A supporting cast of remarkable talent arrays itself with the scintillating star. Opposite Cantor is Clara Bow, alluring portrayer of flapper characterizations, whose recent triumph in "Mantrap" was the talk of filmdom.

East Side Storm.

Lawrence Gray, handsome leading man in Paramount pictures with Gloria Swanson and Bebe Daniels, plays the youthful heir who succumbs to Billie Dove but is already entangled with alluring Natalie Kingston.

New York's picturesque east side where second-hand stores reign supreme and keen competition develops strange methods, offers wide scope for the opening scenes. Cantor, as the "come-on" finds himself up to his neck in difficulties. Through a rapid sequence of riotously funny situations, Eddie is thrust into an exclusive golf club as a caddy—and he has never even seen a golf ball!

His predicament becomes more involved with the entrance of Clara and her villainous would-be lover. Further color is lent by the conflicting loves of the Lawrence Gray triangle. Frank Tuttle directed.

Cowboy Knight In Chain Mail

Buddy Roosevelt Dons Garb Of Armour in His New Picture

A new and most novel angle in action pictures will be seen when Buddy Roosevelt comes to the Gem theater in "Thundering Through," today.

There are fights and fast riding and jumping out of third story windows, a beautiful girl and much romance in the picture. The novelty is that Buddy Roosevelt does much of the action in an ancient suit of armor which he has put on in order to be present at a meeting between two crooked men. He is discovered when he shifts his position and goes to the telephone and a three cornered fight is started. Buddy gets away after a hard struggle and then rides after a man while in the suit of armour and overtaking him drags him off his horse. A fist fight ensues and Buddy takes the suit or armour off and puts it on another man who is picked up by mistake.

There are many exciting incidents which it would not be fair to tell in this story. Those prospective audience for this picture can be absolutely sure that it will get more than its money's worth in this new Buddy Roosevelt feature.

The elast reel is just packed with stunts one of which occurs when the heroine jumps out of a third story window and into Buddy's arms as he hits on his horse.

FLEES FOR LIFE

Ludendorff One Escaped In Disguise of Minister

BERLIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—An amazing story of how general Erich Ludendorff fled from Germany when the revolution impended in 1918, in the guise of a then recently deceased finish diplomat is told by Dr. Edward Hjelf, former finish minister to Berlin.

Ludendorff, fearing for his life at the hands of revolutionists, quit the army and appealed through the foreign office to Dr. Hjelf for protection. Dr. Hjelf said he obtained for the general a diplomatic passport in the name of Ernest Lindstrom, "counsellor of the ministry" He then prescribed, that Ludendorff shave off his mustache and dress himself in a smart business suit, felt hat and colored horn-rimmed glasses. The disguise would make him look exactly like the late Finish diplomat Lindbloom, whose death was not generally known and whose name, though well known, would certainly be mistaken by border authorities for "Lindstrom" slovenly written.

BOOTLEGGING COAL

Great Britain Having Trouble With Winter Fuel.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Coal bootleggers are causing the government much annoyance since the pinch of winter began.

Owing to the miners' dispute with the mine owners government restrictions permit householders to have only a hundred-weight of coal every fortnight, and bootleggers, who buy coal through secret channels, have been selling four to six sacks at a time to housewives in all parts of the city. The government has organized flying squads of inspectors to break up the practice.

Chamber Music, The Aristocrat of Melody

Chamber-music is the most artistocratic, as it is the purest form of music. It is aristocratic in its musical form, for each instrumentalist must be an artist so far as his own particular instrument is concerned. It is aristocratic in origin, for it had for a long time the patronage of princes and nobles who supported the art for their personal enjoyment.

In our democratic times the colorful and romantic title of 'patron' has been reserved for the wealthy amateur, using the word in its specific meaning of 'lover of art.'

De Coppet Is Patron

For years Mr. de Coppet had been interested in chamber-music. It had been his custom during his sojourn in New York to engage a string quartet for the sole enjoyment of himself and his friends. For this purpose he engaged musicians of the highest rank. In 1902 his first violinist was forced to relinquish his post. Mr. de Coppet happened about this time to meet Alfred Pochan in Europe, and proposed to him that he come to America and join the other artists of his quartet.

Mr. Pochon gave up his position as professor at the Rolay Conservatory of Brussels and came to America. He found before long that the outside demands on the members were deterimental to the best interests of the quartet. Insufficient time for rehearsals was the greatest drawback. Therefore, Mr. Pochon proposed an idea which gradually developed into the present organization. He suggested that if four men could be found who would devote their entire time to quartet playing, who would be great enough idealists to forego all thought of personal interests, to be willing to work for the good of the quartet as an entity, herein would live the germ of its future greatness.

Value of Suggestion.

Mr. de Coppet immediately recognized the value of the suggestion. But it was no easy task to find artists willing to make this sacrifice. By the summer of the next year however four such musicians were gathered at last at the Villa Flonzaley, Mr. de Coppet's Swiss summer home, to discuss the steps toward the formation of what has since become the foremost string quartet in America and Europe.

The musicians were, besides Mr. Pochon, Adolfo Betti, an Italian, who gave up his position as professor at the Royal Conservatory in Brussels to undertake the new work; Iyan d'Archambeau, a Belgian 'cellist of the Conservatory of Luxembourg, and Ugo Ara, an Italian, who made the decision to devote himself henceforth exclusively to the viola, and as a first sacrifice put away his violin forever.

The name 'Flonzaley' was adopted in memory of the first meeting of the newly formed quartet in the home of its founder. The word is a combination of Italian and old French, which may be translated as 'brooklet' ('flon' in the Swiss Vaudois dialetc meaning 'river' and 'flonzaley' being its diminuative).

First Came In 1904

The quartet came to America and after playing in private for a year, gave its first public performance in 1904.

The marvelous ensemble which the Flonzaley quartet displays can doubtless be attributed to the fact that three of the original four members have worked steadfastly together since the formation of the quartet—a matter of 22 years. Duties of war caused Ugo Ara to leave the group, and his position in the organization is now held by Nicholas Moldavan.

'DUDE COWBOY' ON AT MISSION

Bob Custer Picture Here Declared to Be a Riot Of Fun

Humming with the speed and action that is characteristic of all Bob Custer's pictures, his newest FBO release, "The Dude Cowboy," is showing at the Mission theater. A new and original theme is the basis of the plot, with the manager of a "dude ranch" as the villian, and Bob as the new owner of the property, who arrives at the ranch in the guise of a valet. The story is filled with exciting moments and races swiftly through to the gripping climax, without a single dragging moment in it. Plenty of daredevil riding, some remarkable gunplay and a delightful romance are features of the film, which, along with some fine photography, raise it far above the usual "Western" class and make it very worth-while entertainment Custer's work is even more admirable than in his former efforts, and he is excellently supported by Flora Bramley, Billy Fletcher, Bruce Gordon, Howard Truesdell and Amber Norman. The direction, by Jack Nelson, is uniformly effective, and especially good in maintaining suspense in the fast climax. Paul M. Bryan wrote the continuity from James Ormont's story.

Tom Tyler In Far West Film Coming

Gordon Offers "Out of The West" As Film Attraction

The Western Whirlwind, Tom Tyler, is playing today at the Garden theater in his F. B. O. picture, "Out of the West." Tom is seen to advantage in the type of role that has brought him a tremendous fan following and made him one of the most promising players on the screen. The part demands some very clever riding, the most spectacular being a daring "pony express" from his horse to one of the racing team. Aside from the thrilling equestrian stunts, the picture contains some rich humor and a delightful romance. Frankie Darro and "Sitting Bull" are much in evidence and add immeasurably to the entertainment value of the story. Others in the cast are Ethan Laidlaw, Alfred Hewston, Gertrude Claire, Barney Furey and J. O'Connor.

German City Puts Up Monument To Ccraggly Porter

BERLIN, Nov. 20. (AP)—The city of Lueneberg has erected a beautiful monument to a lean, scraggly pig. The memorial, a bronze reproduction of the now famous animal was put up out of gratitude for the great increase in the city's wealth, growing out of a discovery made by the pig.

About five years ago the owner of the porker noticed its peculiar pranks in the grazing yard. He investigated and found it licking a deposit of salt. The deposit has since been exploited and is one of the richest table salt mines in Germany.

HUNT NOSED IN

GEORGE WYLIE PAUL HUNT of Arizona is a political wonder of the mountain state. He was a candidate for re-election. He was given the fight of his life. He nosed in by 300 majority and thus for the sixth time the voters of Arizona have made him their governor.

He is the democrat who hit Arizona when it was a territory. His pin money vanished and he needed a job. A cafe owner needed a dish washer. George Wylie Paul needed the money and he accepted the job.

He did not keep it long. He found another job more to his liking. This was in the long ago. George Whylie Paul prospered. He became a business man and a ranchman.

He became a democratic leader. He served in the lower house of the legislature, he served in the senate, he has served in the constitutional convention and was president of that body which gave to a new commonwealth a constitution that made the old guarders of politics stand aghast.

Statehood came and George Wylie Paul was nominated by the democrats and elected. Woodrow Wilson gave him several jobs. In the closing years of the Wilson reign George Wylie Paul was sent to far away Siam to officiate as American minister. Wilson went out and Harding came in. George Wylie Paul was thrown out of his ministerial job. He returned to Arizona, ran for governor and was elected. And every two years he has gone before the people on the platform that one good term deserves another.

Yes, he has been governor six times or will be after his inauguration the coming January.

Personal integrity has a firm grip on the safe and sane voters of America. This is one reason why the people like Calvin Coolidge; it is one reason why the voters of New York keep Al Smith at the helm of the state; it is the main reason why the voters of Ohio continue to keep Vic Donahey at the head of their state government; it is the reason why the voters of Arizona never turn down George Wylie Paul Hunt who made his debut in Arizona territory as a washer of dishes, because he needed a job and dish washing was the first job he could find.

Coolidge is not a wealthy man; Al Smith is a poor man; Vic Donahey is a poor man; George Wylie Hunt has enough to keep the wolf from the door. These men never sell themselves for golden fleece. All four came up from the ranks of the people.

All four fought their way to the top. One is a republican and three are democrats. There is no royal road to greatness, and the path called straight is the path where the early footprints are to be found.

SPEAKING OF VELVET

GENERAL MOTORS has voted an extra $34,800,000 to its stockholders. This makes a dividend paying for the quarter exceed $50,000,000 and $110,000,000 for the year. According to an eastern correspondent, this special dividend of $4.00 a share just announced, "was out of the fattest profits ever earned by any American industrial organization." There must be money in motors. There is money in oil. Business is business. Get in on the ground floor. A side door entrance to an unknown concern should be avoided.

WAR ONLY A SECOND HELL

ACCORDING to a Washington bulletin in the last 20 years 165,000 persons were killed as a result of automobile accidents. These fatalities represent a number greater than the losses of the United States armed forces during the great World war from wounds, disease and other causes.

There were 21,627 killings in 1925. According to the bulletin automobile deaths increased steadily from 1920 to 1025, every year showing an increase in the past 20 years over the next preceding year. This estimate of 165,000 deaths in the past 20 years includes all fatalities in which automobiles were in any way involved.

Automobile drivers should be licensed by the state, and a license should not be granted to an incompetent person. A man who makes a pint of whiskey is sent to the penitentiary. Why shouldn't a reckless auto driver responsible for the death of his fellows be sent to the penitentiary?

Human life is cheap in the United States. A man who steals a chicken faces the pen in this Texas of ours. A man who steals a hog goes over the road. A man who makes a mistake in a brand on a steer is given the limit. Law is a funny proposition after all.

KICKING ASIDE OLD LAND MARKS

ON November 2 the voters of Oklahoma City declared for a business manager form of government by a large majority. They have had the commission kind of government. Now they have taken another step forward. They are going to engage the service of a business manager who will run the municipality as a careful business man directs his affairs.

They are looking for dividends in the shape of well paved streets, an efficient police and fire system, sane law enforcement, sane enforcement of sanitary laws and ordinances, the banishment of all honest graft and honest grafters and to get all the modern accessories for the benefit of all the people of their city. Chickasha, another Oklahoma city, voted the managerial form of government.

Chickasha property owners, like those of Oklahoma City, had their fill of machine politicians, machine business methods and machine office holders.

Going are "the good ole days" when the petty boss ruled and his henchmen were given the jobs.

IN A NUTSHELL

THE tax refund proposition as brought forward by the president and amended by nearly everybody else in Washington is, as a matter of fact, quite simple. It is a question whether the taxpayer shall receive a rebate of 12 per cent on his 1925 taxes payable in 1926 and equivalent to a refund or 48 per cent on the last quarterly installment still due; or whether the 12 per cent rebate on his 1925 taxes payable in 1926 shall be credited to him on the first installment of his 1926 taxes payable in March, 1927; or whether the rate on his 1926 taxes payable in 1927 shall be so adjusted as to be equivalent to a rebate of 12 per cent on his 1925 taxes payable in 1926; or whether the taxpayer, feeling that his first duty to his family is to keep himself from going insane, would prefer to let the United States Treasury keep the money.

CHAPTER VI.

MARINES AT BLANC MONT.

The battalion groped its way through the wet darkness to a wood of scrubby pines, and lay down in the slow autumn rain. North and east the guns made a wall of sound; flashes from hidden batteries and flares sent up from nervous front-line trenches lighted the low clouds; occasional shells from the Boche heavies whined overhead, searching the transport lines to the rear. It lacked an hour yet until dawn, and the companies disposed themselves in the mud and slept. They had learned to get all the sleep they could before battle.

A few days before, this battalion, the first of the Fifth Regiment of Marines, a unit of the Second division, had pulled out of a pleasant town below Toul, in the area where the division rested after the Saint-Mihiel drive, and had come north a day and a night by train, to Chalons-sur-Marne. Thence, by night marches, the division had fathered in certain bleak and war-worn areas behind the Champagne front, and here general orders announced that the second was detached from the American forces and lent by the Generalissimo as a special reserve to Gourard's Fourth French army.

The dawn came very reluctantly through the clouds, bringing no sun with it, although the drizzle stopped. The battalion rose from its soggy blankets, kneading stiffened muscles to restore circulation, and gathered in disconsolate shivering groups around the galleys. These had come up in the night, and from them, standing under the dripping pines, came a promising smell of hot coffee. Something hot was the main consideration in life just now. But the fires were feeble and something hot was long in coming. This matter finally being disposed of, however, the men cast incurious eyes about them.

North from the edge of the pines the battalion looked out on desolation where the once grassy, rolling slopes of the Champagne had stretched away like a great white sea that had been dead and accursed through all time. Near at hand was Souain, a town of the dead, a shattered skeleton of a place, with shells breaking over it. Beyond and northward was Somme-Py, nearly blotted out by four years of war. From there to the horizon, east and west and north and south, was all a stricken land.

The second-in-command, peering from the pines with other officers of the battalion, could see nothing that moved in all the desolation. Men were there, thousands of them, but they were burrowed like animals in the earth. North of Somme-Py, even then, Gourard's hard-fighting Frenchmen were blasting their way through the lines that led up to the last strongholds of the Boche toward Blanc Mont Ridge, and over this mangled terrain could be seen the smoke and fury bursting shrapnel shell and high explosive. The sustained roar of artillery and the infernal clattering of machine-guns and musketry beat upon the ears of the watchers. Through glasses one could make out bits of blue and bits of green-gray, flung casually about between the trenches. These, the only touches of color in the waste, were the unburied bodies of French and German dead.

"So this, Slover, is the Champagne," said the second-in-command to one of his non-coms who stood beside him. The sergeant spat. "It looks like hell, sir!" he said.

The lieutenant strolled over to where a French staff captain stood with a knot of officers in the edge of the pines, pointing out features of this extended field, made memorable by bitter fighting.

"Since 1914 we have fought hard here," he was saying. "Oh, the French know this Champagne well, and the Boche knows it too. Yonder"—he pointed to the southwest—"is the Butte de Souain, where our Foreign Legion met in the first year that Guard division that the Prussians call the 'Cockchafers.' They took the Butte, but most of the legion are lying there now. And yonder"—the Frenchman extended his arm with a gesture that had something of the salute in it—"stands the Mountain of Rheims. If you look—the air is clearing a little—you can perhaps see the towers of Rheims itself."

A long grayish hill lay against the gray sky at the horizon, and over it a good glass showed, very far and faint, the spires of the great cathedral, with a cloud of shell-fire hanging over them.

"All this terrain, as far as Rheims, was dominated by Blanc Mont Ridge yonder to the north. As long as the Boche holds Blanc Mont, he can throw his shells into Rheims; he can dominate the whole Champagne sector, as far as the Marne. Indeed, they say that the Kaiser watched from Blanc Mont the battle that he launched here in July. And the Boche means to hang on there. So far, we have failed to dislodge them. I expect"—he broke off and smiled gravely on the circle of officers—"you will see some very hard fighting in the next few days, gentlemen!"

Savage Fighting in the Woods at Soissons.

It was the last day of September, and as the forenoon went by an intermittent drizzle sent the battalion to such miserable shelters as the men could improvise. Company commanders and seconds-in-command went up toward ruined Somme-Py for reconnoissance, and returned to profane the prospect to their platoon leaders.

The second-in-command and the captain, that afternoon, were huddled under a small sheet of corrugated iron, stolen by an enterprising orderly from the French gunners. The captain was very large, and the other very lean, and they were both about the same length. They fitted under the sheet by a sort of dovetailing process that made it complicated for either to move.

A second-in-command is sort of an understudy to the company commander. In some of the outfits the captain does everything, and his understudy can only mope around and wait for his senior to become a casualty. In others, it is the junior who gets things done, and the captain is just a figure-head. In the 49th, however, the relation was at its happiest. The big captain and his lieutenant functioned together as smoothly as parts of a sweet-running engine, and there was between them the undemonstrative affection of men who have faced much peril together.

"As for me," rejoined the captain, drawing up one soaked knee and putting the other out in the wet, "I want to get wounded in this fight. A bon blighty, in the arm or the leg, I think. Something that will keep me in a nice dry hospital until spring. I don't like cold weather. Now who is pushin'? It's nothin' to me, John, if your side leaks—keep off o' mine!"

So the last day of September, 1918, passed, with the racket up forward unabated. So much of war is just lying around waiting in more or less discomfort. And herein lies the excellence of veterans. They swear and growl horribly under discomfort and exposure—far more than green troops; but privations do not sap their spirit or undermine that intangible thing called morale. Rather do sufferings nourish in the men a cold, mounting anger, that swells to sullen ardor when at last the infantry comes to grips with the enemy, and then it goes hard indeed with him who stands in the way.

Advancing Under Heavy Fire On the Champagne Front.

On the front, a few kilometres from where the battalion lay and listened to the guns, Gourard's attack was coming to a head around the heights north of Somme-Py and the strong trench systems that guarded the way to Blanc Mont Ridge. Three magnificent French divisions, one of Chassours, a colonial division, and a line division with a Verdun history, shattered themselves in fruitless attacks on the Essen Trench and the Essen Hook, a switch line of that system. Beyond the Essen line the Blanc Mont position loomed impregnable. Late on the first of October, a gray, bleak day, the battalion got its battle orders, and took over a mangled front line from certain weary Frenchmen.

Gathering the platoon leaders and non-coms around them, the captain and the second-in-command of the 49th company spread a large map on the ground, weighing its corners with their pistols.

"You give the dope, John," ordered the captain, who was not a man of words, and his junior spoke somewhat in this manner:

"Here, you birds, look at this map. The Frogs have driven the Boche a kilometre and a half north of Somme-Py. You see it here—the town you watched them shell this morning. They have gotten into the Prussian trench—this blue line with the wire in front of it. It's just a fire trench, mostly shell-holes linked up. Behind it, quite close, is the Essen trench, which is evidently a hum-dinger! Concrete pill-boxes and deep dugouts and all that sort of thing—regular fort.

"The Frogs say it can't be taken from the front—they've tried. We are goin' to take it. On the other side of that is the Elbe trench and a little to the left the Essen Hook, and in the centre the Bois de Vipre—same kind o' stuff, they say. We're to take them. You see them all on the map... Next, away up in this corner of the map, is the Blanc Mont place. Whoever is left when we get that far will take that, too. Questions?... Yes, Tom, we ought to get to use those sawed-off shotguns they gave us at St. Mihiel—though when we get past the Essen system, we'll be in the open, mostly. The old Deuxieme Division is goin' in tonight—it's goin' to be some party! Move out of here as soon as it's dark. That's all."

The road here was screened on the side toward the enemy by coarse mats of camouflage material erected on tall poles. Through this screen the German flares, ceaselessly ascending, shone with cold, greenish whiteness, so that men saw their comrades' faces weirdly drawn and pale under their helmets. The files talked as they went—

"I've seen the time I'd have called those things pretty—but now—reckon hell's lit with the same kind of glims!"... "Remember the flare that went up in our faces the night we made the relief in Bellew Woods? Seemed to me like everybody in the world was lookin' at me." "Bois de Belleau! mighty few in the battalion now that remember them days, sonny...."

The road passed into the desolation and wound north, kilometre after kilometre. Presently the camoflage ended and the battalion felt exceedingly naked without its shelter. Then a slope to the left screened the way, the crest of it sharply outlind as the flares ascended. Beyond that crest the machine-guns sounded very near; now and again the air was filled with the whispering rush of their bullets, passing high toward some chance target in the rear.

The upper air was populous with shells passing, and the sky flickered with gun-flashes, but the road along which the battalion went enjoyed for the time an uneasy immunity. The rests were all too short; the sweating files swore at their heavy packs; the going was very hard. Presently the road ceased to be a road—merely a broken way across an interminable waste of shell-holes, made passable after a fashion by the hasty work of French engineers, toiling behind the assault of the infantry.

The files plodded on each side of the tumbled track, and as they neared Somme-Py a pitiful stream of traffic grew and passed between them, the tide of French wounded ebbing to the rear. They were the debris of attacks that had spent themselves through the day—walking wounded, drifting back like shadows in stained blue uniforms, men who staggered and leaned against each other and spoke in low, racked voices to the passing files; and broken men who were borne on stretcher, moaning—"Ah, Jesu!..." "Doucement, doucement!...."

The column went quickly through the town of Somme-Py into which shells were falling, stumbling over the debris of ruined walls and houses. There was a very busy French dressing-station there, under the relic of a church. It was too dark to see, but each man caught the sound and the smell of it. They cleared the town and went on to a crossroads. French guides were to have met the battalion there, for the line was just ahead, but the guides were late. There was a nerve-racking halt. The next battalion in column closed up; a machine gun outfit, with its solemn, blase mules jammed into the rifle companies.

The 49th was the leading company, just behind the battalion headquarters group, and the second-in-command went up to where the major and his satellites were halted.

"Crossroads are always a dam' bad business, Coxy," the major was observing to his adjutant. "Just askin' for it here—no tellin' how late our Frog friends will be—get the men moved into that ditch off the road yonder—Ah! thought so!"

A high, swift whine that grew to a shrieking roar, and a five-inch shell crashed down some fifty yards to the right of the crowded road. Everybody except the mules were flat on the ground before it landed, but wicked splinters of steel sung across the road, and a machine-gunner, squatting by his cart, collapsed and rolled toward the edge of the road, swearing and clutching a this thigh.

Ring First Married In Central Park

Mayor Walker, Altrock, and Schacht All Present When Scribe Took Lapland Lady for Bride

We now come to my first marriage. The girl was a born Laplander and landed in my lap during the course of a quiet week-end party at the Curley estate on Long Island. I suppose I was fascinated by the music of her broken English as much as by the blonde perfection of her 212 pounds of bubbling youth.

"Listen, hon'," were her first words: "Ise mahty thusty. Is you-all goin' to fetch me some mo' dat dere gin?"

As she Lapped the fresh made spirits, I made her tell me of herself. Her name was Hugga—Hugga Much—and she was the daughter of an Eskimo society woman who had fallen in love with her family's Lap dog trainer.

A High Powered Best Man.

"Mah mammy was sho 'nough 'folks'" she said proudly.

When the party was over and I had gone back to New York, she obtained my address and began showering me with mash notes, written in the same stertorous drawl. She was the most persistent of all the women who have ever marked me as their goal and it soon became evident that fighting her off was a waste of time. I finally said yes, and the scene that followed defies description. Dignified men marched the streets ringing cowbells and fairly reeking with confetti; women tore each other's clothes, and even little children asked, "Where is nurse?" and "What is all the hullabaloo?"

Now followed preparations for the wedding. I was for having some of my friends as ushers and got as far as selecting Robert Benchley and Robert Sherwood, two beggers of "Life," but Hugga, always strong for system and efficiency, insisted on my engaging the ushers from Madison Square Garden. I wanted the ceremony held at Old Trinity; Hugga said it was below her station—she usually got off at Columbus Circle. So we decided to put it on in Central Park, which was convenient for both of us and big enough to accommodate most of our buddies.

(Editor's note: "Buddies" is not in any dictionary and may be a colloquialism meaning, perhaps, clowns or funny men).

My best man was Paul Whelton of the Boston Wheltons. He was then employed at Sing Sing prison as an electric chair tester, his duties being to sit in the chair just before an execution and inform the electrician regarding the current, whether it was just right or too strong or not strong enough. "Volts" Whelton, his buddies called him.

(Editor's note: There is that word again).

Hugga's bridesmaid was Texas Guinan and her maid of honor was Elizabeth Barrett (Peaches) Browning.

Chauffeur Differs With Groom.

(Author's note: At this point I wish to correct an error that was made by the New York newspapers in their account of the wedding. I was repeatedly referred to as the groom, though I have had nothing to do with the care of a horse since I was twelve years old, and then only as a favor. The mistake probably was due to a misunderstanding by an Associated Press reporter, who, when my engagement was announced, called up Hugga's mother, Sitta Much, and asked if she was satisfied with me as a son-in-law. Mrs. Much replied: "I certainly am. He is a hustler." The reporter, no doubt, though she said "hostler." The two words "hostler" and "hustler" sound a great deal alike, especially in Eskimo).

(Editor's note: Another amusing incident is told concerning that same telephone conversation. When the reporter first got the bride's mother on the wire, he said: "Mrs. Much?" and she replied: "Yes. A great deal.")

The Girl Was a Born Laplander.

It rained the night before the wedding, but the park had been covered with tarpaulin and when this had been removed, Judge Landis examined the turf and ruled that the ceremony must go on. Hugga was greeted with commingled boos and cheers. She seemed perfectly calm. I learned afterward that this was the sixth time she had tempted Hymen. Mayor Walker of New York and Dudley Field Malone presented her with the keys to Key West and McKeesport and everybody stood up and bared their chests while the band played Lapland national anthem.

(Editor's note: A custom. The anthem referred to begins, "Lap and the world Laps with you.")

Nick Altrook and Al Schacht next put on their comical burlesque channel swim and then I entered, leaning on the arm of a taxi driver. It was all he could do to hold me up.

(Driver's note: I never held nobody up).

The one ring service was read by an official of the Lotus club and we adjourned to the wedding breakfast, consisting of half a grapefruit, cereal, choice of bacon or ham and eggs, or country sausage and wheat cakes, toast, rolls or muffins, coffee, tea, milk, cocoa, Kaffee Hag, open 7 to 9:30. Sundays, 7:30 to 10.

RING LARDNER.

Divorced Wife of Ex-Kaiser's Son Earns Own Living

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Princess Sophie Charlotte, who recently obtained a divorce from Prince Eitel Frederick, second son of the ex-kaiser, has gone to work for a wall paper factory in Hanover. She is in the designing department and is said to be extremely clever. She draws most of her ideas from her knowledge of military affairs. Riders on horseback in the uniform of Frederick, the breat's Hussars are among her novelties. Another design shows a tournament of the Teutonic knights of the Crusades. The princess in turning her talents to advantage has given new impetus to the feminist movement.

Town Talk - - - By H. F. J.

IT'S IN DALLAS

The question of Wichita Falls' official slogan has apparently been settled, for the time being, at least. "The City That Faith Built" has been tried and found not wanting.

The argument over it, however, recalls the turmoil into which Dallas was thrown not so long ago when some brilliant mind in Fort Worth confounded the Dallasites by twisting their favorite saying into a sardonic boomerang. Oddly enough, however, out of the dismay was coined another phrase that Dallas is now employing with marked success.

For a time, it will be remembered, Dallas was loudly proclaiming to the world "DALLAS, THE CITY OF THE HOUR."

This did very well until Fort Worth went and construed it as "Dallas, the city an hour from Fort Worth."

The idea caught the popular fancy in Tarrant county and was ballyhooed so effectively that Dallas, in desperation, dropped it and cast about for something new.

Success came when The Dallas News suggested the slogan in use, "It's in Dallas."

With all due respect to the effective slogan Wichita Falls is using and to the many other effective and some not so effective employed by other communities "It's in Dallas" stands out as a model for a terse and all-embracing civic label.

What's in Dallas? Opportunity? Business possibilities? An inviting place to live or an up-to-date stock of string beans, automobile tires, can openers or peanuts? Are any of these the thing the prospective incomer is seeking?

THESE FROSTY MORNINGS

These are the mornings.

July and August with their wilting heat from mid-morning until far into the night; January with its blizzards and near-zero temperatures that sink the lowest just before rising time—all the others have their disadvantages and advantages—but once again, these are the mornings.

Now, if ever, come perfect days—for sleeping. Hunt where you will; hunt when you will, no where can you find a time and place in which two feet of cover is more inviting than around here in Wichita Falls about 7 a. m. in late November, 1926.

Whose turn is it to get up, grope through the semi-darkness, slam down a window, find a match box and get the fires going. That's a question of importance these days.

When does the spectre of being late for work loom more ominously than when sleep does its most industrious courting just after daylight? And when is the spectre challenged with more impunity?

When throughout all the seasons do the kids show more perversity and exhibit more evidence of being closely related to a famed Missouri quadruped with long ears than on these mornings when the school bell's time for tolling seems to leap ahead with mercurial speed.

Well, brother, there isn't any other time. These nipping, snapping, glittering, stimulating frosty mornings, just defy 'em all.

ELECTRIC RAIL MEN WATCH MOTOR BUS AS EFFICIENCY AID

GOOD USE IS BEING MADE OF GAS CARS

Rubber Tires Taking Up A Big Part of Trouble For Operators

"Tire men paid close attention to every development at the convention and show of the American Electric Railway association, at Cleveland last week," says Wm. O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber company. "Everywhere electric railways are adopting the bus and coach as auxiliary carriers and to prevent the laying of additional rail lines. Some places, in fact, tracks are torn up and all the traffic carried on rubber, making comfortable bolevards of formerly congested streets and giving people individual transportation service.

"The electric rail men are more or less laughing at some of the steam railways, who are still trying to delay the progress of the motor coach by means of hampering legislation and regulations. The electric men see that the steam operators must also adopt the bus as an auxiliary, and any success their present efforts at restriction may have will only react to make their own bus operations more difficult in the future.

"Special attention was called by one of the most prominent speakers to the fact that railways are and can use the truck in freight transportation, economically and well. 'An excellent example of where this is being done in a scientific manner, said Mr. Swayne, one of the leading speakers at the convention—'a truly co-ordinated rail and road service—is from Boston to Worcester and Springfield. Containers loaded with freight at the merchant's door are moved by motor truck and electric railway flat car to the door of the consignee. The advantages to all concerned of this class of service is very apparent.'

"Another statement by high authority was that 300 electric railways now operate more than 6,000 motor busses over 12,000 miles of routes. It is reported that out of $300,000,000 being spent by the electric railways this year $23,000,000 is for motor bus equipment and facilities. Local transportation demands have changed.

"There can be no motor bus or coach development without adequate tires. Rubber tires are taking the place of street rails, smoothing out rough roadways, providing comfort and cushion and safety, doing a wonderful work when the original frailty of tire elements are considered. Without the rubber tire there can be no bus, and our progress rides on rubber.

"The fact that we have been studying and making tires for carrier service since the beginning has enabled us to reach and maintain an outstanding position in this rapidly growing field of modern transportation."

Chrysler Records For Sales Break

Production and Shipment Marks Also Crack In October

All production, shipment and sales records for Chrysler cars were broken in October, according to figures announced today by J. E. Fields, vice-president in charge of sales of the Chrysler Corporation.

Shipments for the month reached the new level of 22,124 cars. This was a gain of 19 per cent over September, when the former plant record of 18, 761 cars was registered, and a gain of 51 per cent over October, 1925, when 14,632 cars were shipped. The high water mark for 1925 was reached in September, with shipments 17,810, but this has been overtopped by the figures for both September and October of the present year.

The phenomenal rise made by Chrysler in the last three years can be gauged by the remarkable advance of the company from eighteenth to fourth place in the ratings of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Evidence that this pace is not only being maintained consistently but is even being accelerated in recent months is found in the latest available figures from the same source on production ratio increases, in which Chrysler now ranks second.

DUMB SLANDER

Deaf Mute Files Slander Charge Against Another.

PARIS, Nov. 20.(AP)—Can the fast-moving talking fingers of a deaf mute commit slander, is a problem the solons of the police court at Bordeaux have been called upon to decide. Paraphrasing Omar Khayyam, the court ruled that "the moving fingers talk, and having talked" made slanderous remarks.

Following a violent quarrel in a cafe one deaf mute filed a charge of slander against another. Defendant pleaded there was no case to answer, since the law required that the slanderous statements must be uttered and hear.

Complainant insisted that the required effect could be perfectly well achieved by gestures accompanied by more or less articulate cries. Before the court both parties without speech, argued their points so well, that the judge had no difficulty in finding that slander could exist in pantomine.

"FLYING BUNGALOW"

Great Britain Christens New Aerial Monster.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Great Britain's nweest sea plane has been nicknamed "The Flying Bungalow." This is because of its cooking and sleeping accommodations. The paine, carrying a crew of five, and driven by three high powered engines has been designed to carry out experiments in connection with opening up a flying service to Australia and New Zealand. Bed hammocks are slung in a part of the cabin which in the day time is the living room. The galley is aft, and 18 to 23 passengers may be carried.

Maintenance Head

N. R. GARZA.

Announcement is made by McFall Brothers that they have secured the services of N. R. Garza as superintendent of their maintenance department who will have complete charge of all services connected with McFall Brothers, the Dodge Brothers distributor at Wichita Falls.

"Mr. Garza is considered one of the best posted service men in the southwest and comes very highly recommended, says Mr. Cornelison, local manager of the company. Mr. Garza has been connected with the Packard organization in the capacity of service manager and comes here from Waco. Prior to his connection with the Packard company, Mr. Garza has owned and operated some general garages in which he has done all classes of automobile work, garages having been located at Houston, San Antonio and Waco, but he has disposed of all his interests in these businesses and will devote his entire time and attention to the service department of McFall Brothers at Wichita Falls."

Mr. Garza is apioneer in the automobile business having started in it as far back as 1910 and has attended automobile schools held by different educational organizations in Detroit and other eastern cities which equips him to handle any kind of a service proposition that he may attempt.

"Wichita Falls is considered lucky to get a man of Mr. Garza's ability and especially is McFall Brothers fortunate in securing a man of this type sevrice for he is superior in his line to the average service man regardless of where he may come from," says Mr. Cornelison.

MARMON IN ZONE SPLIT

Expansion Program Continues With Country Marked Out

Another definite step in the expansion program of the Marmon Motor Car company has been taken by dividing the United States into three sales zones, each under the supervision of a sales manager. These zones, in turn have been divided into nine districts so that the factory in Indianapolis may be kept in direct touch with dealers and distributors throughout the entire country.

Under H. H. Brooks, general sales director, are S. A. Zweibel, Ottis Lucas and H. W. D. Brown as zone managers. R. W. Greulich, Porter Smith, H. C. Edwards, J. K. Gregory, John Tainsh, Paul Morford, L. F. Johnson, John Boe and George F. Green are the district managers. The foreign division under Frank L. Winner In Ford Fuel Contest Covers 49.3 Miles On One Gallon Of Gasoline

The results of a competitive gasoline consumption test for standard Ford cars, recently held at Charlotte, N. C., make it more certain than ever that the Ford car, for fuel economy, ranks at the forefront of motordom.

There was a class separation in the Charlotte test. The winning car in the opencar class, driven by R. B. Deal, of Kannapolis, N. C., made a mileage of 49.3 on a single gallon of gasoline; the second prize in the same class went to D. T. Barringer, of Concord, N. C., whose score was 48.8.

In the closed-car class G. F. McGinnis of Charlotte won first place with a mileage of 46.9. For second place, L. R. Pinninger, of Charlotte and Miss Sska Baker, of Marshville tied with a score of 41.86 each.

The Charlotte test was remarkable not only for the high mileage of the leading cars but for the average for all the cars entered, which was 38.7 miles per gallon of gasoline. It is the opinion of many that the generally excellent scores made are due largely to the Ford gasoline tank, which is shaped to deliver every drop of gasoline to the carburetor.

The contest was promoted by 18 dealers from Charlotte and nearby towns. Each dealer contributed to the cash prize, which totaled $300. As in the Augusta, Ga., test, elimination contest were held by the dealers incolved, and the winners of these contests in each car class were entered in the test at Charlotte.

The conditions of the test admitted only 1926 model Ford cars with standard Ford equipment, driven by their owners. Before the start of the test the tanks, carburetors, sediment bulbs, and feed pipes of all contesting cars were completely drained of gasoline. A measured gallon of gasoline was then poured into each tank, and the tank sealed. Each hood was also sealed on both sides. Three disinterested judges, Thomas McP. Glasgow (Glasgow-Stewart company) Joseph G. Fitzsimmons (Carolina Auto company), and Thomas J. Pierson (Charlotte Observer), supervised the draining, filling and sealing. The cars had previously been inspected by trained mechanics, to insure that only standard Ford equipment was being used. The distances traveled by the contesaants were measured on a speedometer which had previously been checked with the speedometers of Officers Blake and Overcash, Charlotte police department.

PERFECT CAR MAKERS' AIM

American Manufacturers Are Anxious to Develop Better Product

American automobile manufacturers are striving as never before to develop the perfect automobile from the standpoint of fuel economy and efficiency and that emphasizes the importance of proper carburetion, according to F. G. Houghten, director of the research laboratory of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers in the bureau of mines at Pittsburgh.

Basing his conclusions on experiments made by the bureau with scores of different cars under all kinds of conditions, Mr. Houghten declared that the automobile this year is much less wasteful than those of a year or five years ago. This doubtless explains the tendency of American manufacture towards smaller piston displacement and greater care in carburetion.

The bureau of mines, under the leadership of the society's laboratory, started experiments in this direction primarily to determine the air conditioning of tunnels and ways and methods of reducing or eliminating carbon monoxide gas, the deadly poison coming from the exhaust of motor cars. This presented a problem in scientific ventilation which the scientists were confident could be handled by electrical air control. The research work also developed much important data valuable in conditioning or ventilating public garages.

NEW NASH CRANKSHAFT MAKES FOR SMOOTH PERFORMANCE

7 BEARINGS GIVE SHAFT GREAT POWER

Well Balanced, Supported, It Eliminates All Vibration

The new smoothness and quietness in performance qualities which is gaining widespread popularity for all the new Nash models has been made possible by the introduction in all Nash cars of the 7-bearing crankshaft.

In this connection it is noteworthy that Nash makes these crankshafts in their own plants. Thirty-five operations are required and the closest limits of precision are rigidly adhered to, a degree of accuracy which gives them their "machine tool" perfection.

This engine design reduces distortion in motor action to the very minimum by holding the crankshaft rigid throughout its entire length. Seven bearings are the maximum number of bearings it is practical or even possible to use on a six-cylinder motor crankshaft. This makes certain that the crankshaft is supported at every necessary point—not merely on the ends or at one or two places in the middle—by sturdy main bearings. constant downward motion in the pistons and connecting rods, a motion incident to every power-stroke, and produces a resulting smoothness which is characteristic only of the 7-bearing type of construction.

For it is the crankshaft which receives the pressure exerted on the pistons and transmits the power through the propeller shaft and the rear axle to the rear wheels, which propel the car.

Oakland Models In Unique Test

Eight Cars of Ancient Vintage Run the Limit On Measured Gallon

Eight Oakland Six Cars—one model from each successive year since 1919, engaged in one of the strangest economy tests recorded in recent months when R. Knox Roberts of Portland, Ore., pitted each against the other to renew this car's claim as the champion economy car.

In this unique test, both open and closed cars were used. Each was filled with a measured gallon of gasoline, started over the same route, which embraced up and down grade, and was driven until the last drop of gas sputtered and the engine stopped. The oldest car was a 1920 model produced in 1919, and each successive year was represented, the Greater Oakland Six sedan carrying the banner for the 1927 Oakland line.

All cars were under the official observation of Ernest W. Peterson, automobile editor of the Oregon Journal. All the gasoline was emptied and then a measured gallon of the fuel was placed back in each. The observer followed the strange motorcade in an Oakland Landau sedan, starting with the speedometer set at zero. As the gasoline supply of each car in the line gave out, the car was stopped. Thereupon the observer read from the speedometer of his own car the mileage that had been run on the fuel and made his computation accordingly. The gasoline mileage of the various cars in the run ranged from 21.9 to 26.5 miles. The average for the eight cars was within the slightest fraction of 24.7 miles to the gallon.

HE WAS AT THAT

Prince of Wales Once Apologized For Having His Title.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Prince of Wales once humorously apologized for his royal title, according to one of several new stories about him in Major F. E. Verney's book. "H. R. H.—A Character Study," which has just appeared.

The prince, as a junior midshipman on the battleship Hindustan, was found by a lieutenant in the wardroom, sacred to the ranks of sub-lieutenant and upwards.

"What's your name?" demanded the lieutenant, "and what the deuce are you doing in the wardroom?"

The prince slid to his feet. "Wales, sir," said he. "The captain brought me in here. I hope you don't mind frightfully."

"W-h-a-a-t? You cheeky young devil; get out of this before I kick——" he paused and took a good look at the offender. "Dammit! I believe you are Wales."

The prince grinned apologetically. "Sorry, sir, I believe I am, too—but I can't help it."

SHOPPING EARLY

King George, Queen Mary Get Ctarted On It:

LONDON, Nov. 20. — King George and Queen Mary have set the pace, for early Christmas shopping. Close on their heels are Stanley Bruce of Australia, J. G. Coates of New Zealand, General Hertzog, South Africa, and Mackenzie King, Canada, prime ministers of their respective countries, attending the imperial conference here, who began buying Christmas presents for relatives and friends at home early in November and posting them so they would arrive in time.

The king's first Christmas purchase this year was a South African jumping-jack for little Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York.

"I inspected and investigated a number of trucks, but the Graham appears to be the best for my needs," Rev. Davis said. "The cab is enclosed so it keeps comfortable the driver in any kind of weather," and he enumerated the merits of the machine.

Rev. Davis drove the truck to El Campo where he is conducting a revival. He was accompanied by Vernon Shirey of this city who has gone to assist him in keeping the tent.

STAR SHOWS COOL MOTOR

San Antonio Dealer Puts Machine Through A Stiff Test

During the month of July, under a burning Texas sun, a Star car without a stop was driven 100 miles in low gear.

The car withstood the test in a remarkable manner. The motor ran normally cool during the entire distance, during which no oil or water was added.

At the conclusion of the run, the motor took a pint of oil and the same amount of water filled the radiator.

As a matter of fact, no water watsoever was actually consumed, for the expansion of cold water when heated in a motor and radiator and the tendency of water to flow to the low points as the radiator of a car is pointed down an incline unquestionably caused an overflow that entirely accounts for the pint of water lost during the gruelling 100-mile run.

"This," said Colin Campbell, vice-president, Durant Motoss, Inc. commenting on the run, "is convincing testimony that the Star Four cooling systems is more than equal to any demands that may be imposed upon it by unusual road conditions."

PUZZLES POPULAR

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The crossword puzzle competition first introduced from America has now become a craze and runs closely in favor with football competitions especially amongst the poorer class of people. Small sums have to be sent to the newspapers with each solution, and these are so numerous that the general postoffice has been forced to establish a special competition division at headquarters for handling the traffic.

Just as transportation in Colombia was resumed recently, following a long drouth, and boats began to carry freight to the interior railroad, one of the leading inland roads had to suspend operation for lack of fuel.

Turkey and Beans For Chevy Contest

Sales Organizations in Unique Delivery Battle Over Whole Country

Turkey or beans—which?

Win and you feast on turkey—lose and you diet on beans.

This is the novel inspiration in the nation-wide sales contest being conducted this month within the great sales organization of the Chevrolet Motor company.

Winners will be those who deliver the largest percentage of their November quota. In thousands of cities throughout the country, those who have won the right to dine on turkey will sit directly opposite their less fortunate bean-eating brethren.

The contest involves two assistant sales managers, C. E. Dawson and H. J. Klingler, six regional sales managers, 34 zone sales managers, 400 Chevrolet representatives, 8,000 direct and associate dealers, and 14,000 salesmen.

In addition to the regional contest, every Chevrolet zone within the regions is matched against another zone, and every dealer organization within the zone is matched against another dealer.

The turkey-bean banquets of the dealer organizations will be held early in December, while the assistant sales managers, together with the regional and zone sales managers, will eat turkey or beans at the regional and zone sales managers' convention in Detroit about Feb. 1.

WILLYS SEES GOOD OUTLOOK

Manufacturer Expects Big Season Ahead for The Auto World

With dealer sales reaching the 15,000 mark for October and net profits for the third quarter at $2,229,329, John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland, Inc., sees an excellent outlook for the future, according to a statement issued by him at Toledo.

Commenting on the healthy business condition of the Willys-Overland company and the bright outlook for the future, Mr. Willys declared:

"Price reduction policies of the Willys-Overland company have been justified by the encouraging volume business during the fall months and all indications point to continual growth and expansion of business during the winter.

"The Whippet car is a distinct success and its immediate acceptance by the motoring public represents one of the major achievements of the present year in the automotive industry. By virtue of current plans even greater promise for the Whippet looms for the coming year than it has already shown after four months.

"The company is now in a strategical position to meet with equanimity any trade changes that may come during the winter."

SKIES RAIN MUD

France Gets a Taste of Climatic Disorders.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—With the skies raining mud, and large hailstones breaking thousands of windows on the Riviera, southern France had a taste recently of the climatic disorders that have been sweeping over the world. The damage is estimated at 150,000 francs in broken glass, and several score of people cut and bruised by the hail.

The rain of mud was the first since 1892. This phenomenon happens when an especially violent sirocco, or hot wind, from north Africa, heavily laden with fine particles of sand, reaches France at a low altitude and passes under the rain clouds. The rain then carries the dust to the earth. Mud deposits an inch deep have been discovered in some sections.

Facing the possibility that the electric lights of Dalreada hospital, Ballycastle, Ireland, will be cut off, owing to the coal shortage, the trustees are planning to install their own lighting plant.

GIRLS DISPLAY REAL SKILL IN RULING ROOST

BY ELEANOR FLEMING
The Record News Editorial Staff

Miss America, the pulchritudinous maiden from Tulsa, had better look to her laurels, judging from remarks heard in the Junior College corridors lately. The large number of beauties in the school this year is exciting considerable comment, and one conversation heard a few days ago, in which neither of the boys participating were in love or especially optimistic, showed particularly, the feeling of the school boys in this respect. "I'll bet any amount," said one, "that I could pick out 25 girls in this school that would show Miss America up so bad that she would go back to Oklahoma."

"Boy, that's the truth," was the other's response, "I just know that there's no other school of this size that can boast half as many really pretty girls as there are here."

Beauty Not Alone

However, beauty is not the only quality noticeable in the Wichita Falls damsels; there are fully as many Minervas as Venuses. Probably the most indicative proof of the capability, pep, and qualities of leadership so prevalent in the girls is the fact that there is no club in the school which does not have a girl for its president. The two classes, freshmen and sophomores, are the only two organizations that are led by boys.

Isadore Cohen and Fred Couper have the honor of being the only boy presidents in the college, and they are not club leaders, but the presidents of the sophomore and freshmen classes respectively. Miss Dolores Peavy, president of the Spanish club, Miss Mildred Mays, president of the Blue Curtain Players, Miss Elna Stovall, president of the Commercial club, Miss Ruth Turner, president of the Writers' Club, Miss Imogene Roberts, president of the French club, and Miss Mary Beth Martin, president of the Hiking club, constitute the battery of girls who are, as one boy expressed it "running things out here this year." Even the two college publications, the Wai-Kun, the annual, and the Wichitan, weekly paper, have girls as the editors-in-chief, Miss Eleanor Fleming being the editor of the Wai-Kun, and Miss Dorothy Reed the editor of the Wichitan.

They Rule Iron Hand

The reign of the feminists is not so powerful in the high school, or even in the clubs for the high school and college, but although it may be a short one, the rule of the girls in college is as powerful as that of Mussolini. The boys may as well be cheerful, however; they had their turn last year, and they will probably be in control again soon. Even the proportion shows the absolute sway the girls have. Twenty-nine girls and 13 boys constitute the graduating class, and girls also outnumber the boys in the freshman class.

Even along athletic lines, the girls are taking hold as never before. A casual visitor to the school would probably be shocked at the practices of the girls track team, sponsored by the Hiking club. Every day, several of the braver girls take their daily run around the campus and they don't wear the old-fashioned bloomers and middy so long held up as the only modest athletic costume for girls—no, sir, they are attired in the niftiest of sport togs, similar to abbreviated track suits worn by track men in the past. If the boys don't have a regular track team, the school won't be hampered in its reputation as far as athletics are concerned, for what the boys leave undone in the way of putting Wichita Falls Junior college on the map will be accomplished by the girls. At least, that is the belief of the members of the Hiking club.

Make 'Em Like It

Do the boys deplore the situation? No, the girls are artists in their line, for they take the important positions away from the boys and "make 'em like it, too." And then, their cheerfulness regarding the situation may be partly due to the fact that—well, they don't like to prophesy, exactly, but they do say "just wait until another year or two, and see how many girl presidents we have."

Junior College Students Make Good Scholastic Records Here

An average of nearly one more course passed than students of the Texas university was the record made by Junior college freshmen the first six weeks of school, according to statistics compiled by A. K. Presson, registrar at the college. Since the stressing more of quality work as well as quantity work, the state university has been sending out reports estimating the number of courses passed not only by the actual count of the courses but also by the grade made in those courses, in order that the student who passed with five A's should receive more credit than that one who passed with five D's. Using five D's as the grade required for one course, it was estimated that the average number of courses passed by freshmen for the first six-weeks was 4.63. Students of the same standing in the local college made an average of 5.6 courses passed. Strange to say, the mark made by the sophomore class was exactly the same, making 5.6 the standard for the entire school. Five is the regular number of courses carried.

Girls showed a decided advantage over the boys so far as grades were concerned in the High school. An average grade of 81.2 per cent was the record of the girls, while the boys only made 75.5 with the average for the entire school was 78.5 percent. Five hundred girls and 444 boys constitute the student body of the school.

COPS ROUTED

"Noiseless" Auto Horns Make Too Much Racket.

PARIS, Nov. 20. (AP)—The terrific din made by so-called "noiseless" automobile horns which probably will replace the squawking type now in use in Paris caused a special police committee attending a demonstration of them to clap their hands to their ears and flee the scene.

Salesmen representing numerous firms desirous of supplying the automobile trade, presented several scores of their "silent" samples. In the effort to prove how noiseless they were, however, they tooted the horns so vigorously and constantly that the police had to beg for mercy and fled into the buildings.

NOISY GHOST

Shakespearean Character Appears In Forest.

LONDON, Nov. 20. (AP)—The ghostly sounds of Herne, the hunter mentioned by Shakespeare in the Merry Wives of Windsor, have been "heard" by the wife and daughter of Walter Legge of Farmhouse, Old Windsor.

Mrs. Legge declares that on two occasions she heard the clock of old Windsor tower chime the midnight hour and immediatelyy afterward the sound of baying hounds, as if of a pack in full cry.

On the second occasion her daughter came into her room, she says, and asked: "Did you hear them? They must have been Herne The Hunter's hounds." Mrs. Legge asserts that during the many years she has lived at Old Windsor she had never heard the sounds before.

NAME REDUCED

George Bernard Shaw Finds Publicity Too Much.

LONDON, Nov. 20. (AP)—George Bernard Shaw's name, which glared in letters two feet high in front of one of London's largest music halls showing one of his plays has been reduced in size at the author's request. The letters now are smaller than those of the stars actually appearing there.

The play is "The Showing Up of Blance Posnet." It is being acted by Sir John and Lady Martin Harvey and a company of 30. For years the Lord Chamberlain banned this story of a horse thief on the ground that it was blasphemous. However, after braving the derision of cultured play-goers, he relented.

DRINK WATER FREELY, WARNS HEALTH HEAD

Red Cross Worker Says That Liberal Use of It Is Recommended

This is another of the series of articles being prepared each week for The Record News by local Red Cross officials. The one this Sunday is written by Miss Mary E. Sutherland, Red Cross Nutrition worker.)—Editor's Note.

Isn't it rather silly to tell people to drink water? Don't they drink it anyway, some one asked me last week.

"It may sound silly, but it is not. Few people drink enough water. Did you ever think of all the things your body needs water for? Water,

1. Quenches thirst.
2. Regulates temperature.
3. Keeps body moist.
4. Helps keep the body clean inside.
5. Aids digestion.
6. Keeps the mouth clean.
7. Helps keep the blood in good condition.
8. The body is more than one-half water. The amount it loses each day in evaporation and elimination of waste must be supplied by drinking at least four glasses every day. Four glasses is the least one should drink. It is better to drink more.

Pays To Be Careful.

Since water is so necessary to the body, and since the chances are that you do not drink enough, it will pay you to watch this habit carefully. Drink at least one glass before breakfast every morning. If you are at all bothered with constipation, drink two or more glasses before breakfast.

Then drink a glassful in the morning and one in the afternoon; more if you like.

Many people say you should not drink water with your meals. Of course it is a bad habit to wash your food down with water. Chew yoyr food well, swallow it, but then if you want a drink, it is all right to take one. I believe it is a good plan to drink water with our meals. We often get busy between meals, or are where we cannot get water, but if we have a glassful every meal and one before breakfast, we can still easily get in our four glasses a day.

Must Be Careful.

It is necessary to be careful to help our children form the habit of drinking enough water. Babies need water. Give them about an ounce of boiled cooled water twice a day between feedings, after the first month. As the child grows older, insist that drinking water be part of his daily program — as regular as eating. Children often get so interested in their play that they forget, unless they have a regular time for it.

Trick Shotgun Fells Intruder

Fort Worth Girl Who Goes Into Wrong Camp By Mistake, Shot

FORT WORTH, Nov. 20. (AP)—A trick shotgun set for burglars at a Lake Worth camp cottage near here, lacerated the legs of a feminine victim with rock salt and bird shot last night.

Mrs. Juanita McAlister, 17, one of a party of four on an outing, suffered painful but not serious flesh wounds in the calves of both legs when she stepped in the back door of the camp, investigating officers said. The officers found that the gun was tied to slats of a bed and connected to the door by a string. Owners of the camp had been troubled recently with burglaries it was said. No charges were filed.

Otho Coat, 18, and C. L. Brown, 18, boys accompanying Mrs. McAlister and another girl named Lilly, are said to have claimed they thought the party was destined for a camp owned by a relative of Mrs. McAlister. The latter said she was mistaken about the camp's location.

CITY STILL HOLDS FRONT RANK AS CENTER OF OIL ACTIVITIES

COMPTROLLER'S FIGURES SHOW FIELD'S SCOPE

More Than $5,000,000 In State Taxes Paid Out In Three Months

After 15 years of intensive oil exploitation Wichita Falls today stands supreme as the oil center of Texas, boasting more individual refineries and independent operators, and having more head offices for oil companies and operators than any other city in Texas. Notwithstanding the fact that the several large fields surrounding this city have declined in production due to a normal exploitation of the supply, the city remains as oil headquarters for Texas. No other city can boast or bear the prestige this city holds with oil men, except Houston which has in addition to rich fields a heavy movement of export oil and oil products.

The latest report from the state comptroller, S. H. Terrell, shows that for the preceding three months reported Wichita Falls operators and producers paid state taxes on more than $5,000,000 worth of oil, representing a total of more than 2,000,000 barrels of oil.

Big Value Listed.

The actual value of oil on which Wichitans paid taxes was $5,491,424, which represented a total of 2,264,048 barrels of oil produced during the three months. At this normal figure the oil concerns and operators of Wichita Falls will pay takes on approximately 9,000,000 barrels of oil which will value approximately $22,000,000 every year.

These figures do not include the returns made by offices and operators in other towns of the county. Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park each have a good showing, and much of their business is included in the Wichita Falls returns. Following are the tax reports from those cities:

Electra continues to be an oil center of prominence with local offices reporting 74,454 barrels, valued at $173,389 for the three months' period.

Southwest Headquarters.

This town is looked upon as oil headquarters for the southwest, according to O. W. Presnall, special agent for the state comptroller's office, who is in the city this week, checking up refineries and operators here. Mr. Presnall stated that the oil business had grown to an enormous proportion in the past 15 years and that as yet the comptroller had only been given authorization by the state legislature of two men to check up on the oil and production tax.

"It is physically impossible for one man to check up the more than three thousand oil operators and refineries in the state," Mr. Presnall said, "and I am convinced that the state is losing as much as a million dollars a year on this one tax alone. Authorization for more men in this service must come through a special act of the legislature, and it is probable that more men will be added to the force, by the next legislature."

S. H. Terrell, who is a son of the former state comptroller, H. B. Terrell, has organized careful survey of the oil industry and is making every effort to see that a full tax is collected on every barrel produced.

Pays Three Taxes.

The oil industry pays three separate state taxes on its production. One is called the production tax, another the gasoline tax and another the pipeline tax.

The production tax consists of 2 per cent of the value of the gross production. Three-fourth of this income goes into the permanent state school fund and one-fourth to the general revenue.

The gasoline tax, which is 1 cent per gallon, amounts to about $5,500,000 a year, and three-fourths of this amount goes into the state highway fund, while one-fourth goes to general revenue.

The pipe line tax consists of a one-twentieth of 1 per cent of gross value, which goes to pay the oil supervisors stationed in all important oil bearing district.

Every refinery and operator, as well as producer and wholesaler, is required to report the sales or production every three months and these compilations are recorded with the state comptroller.

The state comptroller is allowed six men to check up county auditors and tax collectors, but only two men are available for the oil industry which represents one of the state's greatest sources of revenue. More men are needed and the legislature will be asked to provide additional men for this line of work, Mr. Presnall stated.

Bandits Battle Way To Liberty

Two New York Police Shot When They Halt Car Under Suspicion

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—One patrolman was killed and another perhaps fatally wounded in an attack upon them today in a busy Brooklyn street by six men who leaped from an automobile the policemen had stopped and opened fire with revolvers.

Witnesses told detectives that Byrngs had accosted the driver of an automobile in which the six men were riding. Dasekiewichez was walking his beat and seemed to take no part in the conversation between Byrngs and the driver.

Suddenly the six men leaped to the pavement and drew their revolvers. Byrngs fell with a bullet through his head. Daszekiewichz was shot in the abdomen. The men escaped.

GIVES HIS BLOOD

Frenchman Gives Up 5 And Half Gallons For the Sick

PARIS, Nov. 20. (AP)—The world's record for blood transfusion by one person is credited to Raymond Briez. He has just submitted to the operation for the hundredth time. Since November, 1924, Briez has given five ane one-half gallons of his blood for suffering human beings, without recompense of any kind except the satisfaction of having done a good deed.

Briez is only 29 years old and devoted to outdoor sports. He entered upon his career as a blood given quite by accident. While visiting a sick friend, he heard the doctor say that the only hope of recovery was in blood transfusion. Immediately he offered himself. Briez is so strong and healthy that the operation has little effect on him. He continues work in his office as usual before and after each transfusion operation.

CONTINENTAL HOLDS HIGH STATE RANK

Takes Seventh in Point Of Gas Tax Paid in Last Report

The Continental Oil company of Texas, formerly the Texhoma, ranks seventh in size in Texas in point of taxes paid on its product, according to O. W. Presnall of the state comptroller's office who finished up Saturday on the huge task of checking up on big industries here. In its last report the Continental showed 148,897,800 gallons of gasoline refined, on which it paid $14,889.78. The Continental, it seems, still renders its production tax under the name of Texhoma and for that reason this name appears in the following list of seven largest refineries in Texas as compiled by Presnall. The figures given shows the amount of gas tax paid at the one cent per gallon rate:

Gulf Refining company, Houston, $111,363.9; Magnolia Petroleum Co., Dallas, $105,662.75; Texas Company, Houston, $88,159.30; Pierce Petroleum Co., Dallas, $40,870.07; Humble Oil & Ref. Co., Houston, $27,811.81; Sims Oil Co., Dallas, $17,576.62; Texhoma Oil & Ref. Co., Wichita Falls, $14,889.78.

Other local refineries listed by Mr. Presnall are:

American Refining company, $10,549.46; Panhandle Ref. company, $1,428.76; Boardman Oil company, $932.57; Orient Petroleum company, $888.63; Dale Oil & Ref. Co., $750.07; Exchange Pet. company, $422.71; Woody Oil & Grease company, $394.81; Hines Oil company, $343.12; Zihlman Auto Supply company, $237.50; Highway Oil & Gas company, $155.41; Union Oil Products Co., $81.17.

There are a total of 208 independent operators and refineries reporting under this gasoline tax and Wichita Falls shows a much greater activity and progress than any other section except that of Amarillo, which is a new oil country now enjoying a heavy boom.

There are more than 300 operators, producers, refiners, and wholesalers in the Wichita Falls oil district reporting to the state comptroller and paying state taxes on crude, pipeline and gasoline production.

Many Ills Have Fled

"SINCE I took Cardui it has strengthened me, and my general health is so much improved that many of the ills from which I suffered for years have fled," says Mrs. Deala B. Hawks, who lives at 106 South McFarland Street, Florence, South Carolina.

"I had been going through the change of life and it seemed to me that everything got wrong. I suffered from shortness of breath and I could not go up the steps without stopping to rest several times. My sister-in-law had taken Cardui and she thought it might do me good, so she told me to try it. I got a bottle (of Cardui) and began to take it by the directions and I began to improve after a few doses. My general condition was so much better after the first bottle that I got another, and another, until I had taken six. Now I am a well woman.

"Cardui is a great medicine. Since I took it I feel like a new woman. Once for six months I was flat on my back. I am glad to recommend to other women a medicine which has helped me."

Archer, Baylor—Twin Counties of Progress

Farmers 'Talk Turkey' When Cotton Prices Hit Slump--Grow Them Too

State Highway No. 30 Links Four Thriving Communities

California's famed vegetable gardens supply America's households with every variety of produce. Irrigation and diversification plus orderly marketing of their produce has given California growers their place in the sun and fattened their coffers.

Just below Wichita Falls there lies a great agricultural district, in Archer and Baylor counties where development of irrigation and the adherence to the principle of diversification promises to create another garden.

Irrigation—Index To Progress

Principally is this true of Baylor county in which lies Lake Kemp, the heart organ of the great Wichita valley irrigation project, which is the seventh largest artificial lake in America. Through the middle of this district, lying south and southeast of Lake Kemp and the Wichita river, runs State Highway No. 30, which links a number of thriving towns. Pictures taken in four of these towns are printed on this page. Others, it is here announced, will be printed later so that readers in towns of Archer and Baylor counties which are not included in this article will not feel that their communities have been overlooked. Limitations of space prevent treatment of all the thriving centers in these two counties in one article.

The pictures printed herewith are of views in Seymour, the capital of Baylor county; Bomarton, a thriving cotton and produce center of Baylor; and Holliday and Dundee, prosperous communities in Archer county.

Elsewhere on this page is printed in detailed information on Archer and Baylor counties, listings of their resources, agricultural and mineral, as well as statistical pictures based on the last official census.

Oil and cotton are the big money makers for Archer county. Cotton is the main source of income for Baylor county with livestock contributing its share.

Lower cotton prices this season have dampened the one-crop ardor of many of the farmers but the result has been that they are talking turkey. And that's written to be read in a strictly literal sense. Lots of the farmers haven't confined their turkey activities t6 talking either and many Baylor and Archer county turkeys will this week grace Thanksgiving Day festive boards in Wichita Falls and points east. Only a week or so ago, Seymour, the county seat of Baylor, shipped out a carload of gobblers. More are to be shipped for the Christmas season.

Four Busy West Texas Towns

Of the four towns given attention in this article, Holliday. situated nearest Wichita Falls, places its main dependence on the nearby oil field. The Holliday field is growing steadily and has been a good producer for a number of years.

Bomarton places its main dependence for wealth on cotton, but other farm produce is also shipped to markets. A big future in turkey and poultry production is before the farmers of this section and they are demonstrating their realization of this by going in for this industry. Fat hogs and fine blooded cattle also have brought Bomarton folks money for Christmas spending in past years and will do so in increasing amount this season.

Seymour is the biggest town in Baylor county. Contiguous to it are located thousands of acres which can be made to produce a variety of crops with the aid of the Wichita valley irrigation system. It is one town in the Wichita Falls area that does not depend on oil for its income.

Dundee, located between Holliday and Seymour on Highway No. 30 is growing rapidly. Citizens of this town pride themselves upon its fine school facilities. The biggest building in town is the three-story stone school building of which a picture is shown herewith.

BAYLOR COUNTY

Lies southwest of Wichita Falls in the heart of the fertile North Texas Plains region. The altitude is about 1,400 feet, the county being situated well below the foot of the "cap rock," but well above the level of the Central Texas section. The rainfall will average about 28 inches annually; the winters are mild and the summers are not exclusively hot. Created and organized from Fannin County in 1879; named for Henry W. Baylor; population in 1920, 7,027.

The terrain is gently rolling and three-fourths of the county is covered with fertile soils, largely a sandy loam, especially adaptable to production of cotton, wheat, oats and grain sorghums. A variety of vegetables and fruits are grown also, but there is not a large production for out-of- county markets. Products of this county have taken prizes on many different occasions at the State Fair of Texas at Dallas.

Lake Kemp, the largest artificial lake in Texas, is situated in the northern part of the county. This lake has a capacity of 171,000,000,000 gallons of water, being the seventh largest lake in America. It will irrigate when the system is completed more than 100,000 acres of land in Baylor and Wichita counties in addition to supplying water for Wichita Falls, capitalists of which city were responsible for its construction.

Baylor county is no longer primarily a ranching county, but it has an extensive livestock industry, much attention being devoted to dairying, swine raising and poultry.

Seymour, the county seat is a city of 2,121 population (1920 census), situated at the intersection of the Wichita Valley and Gulf, Texas & Western Railroads, giving it ample outlets toward the north, south and east. The city has a large water supply, being situated on the Brazos river and having in addition an inexhaustible underground supply at shallow depths. Two main designated highways intersect at Seymour, and $400,000,000 in bonds have been issued during recent years for improvement of roads. Within the city there are twelve blocks of brick paving.

Though fairly well settled there is still much virgin land available for cultivation. The price of good unimproved and improved land will range from $50 to $100 an acre.

IN THE PICTURES

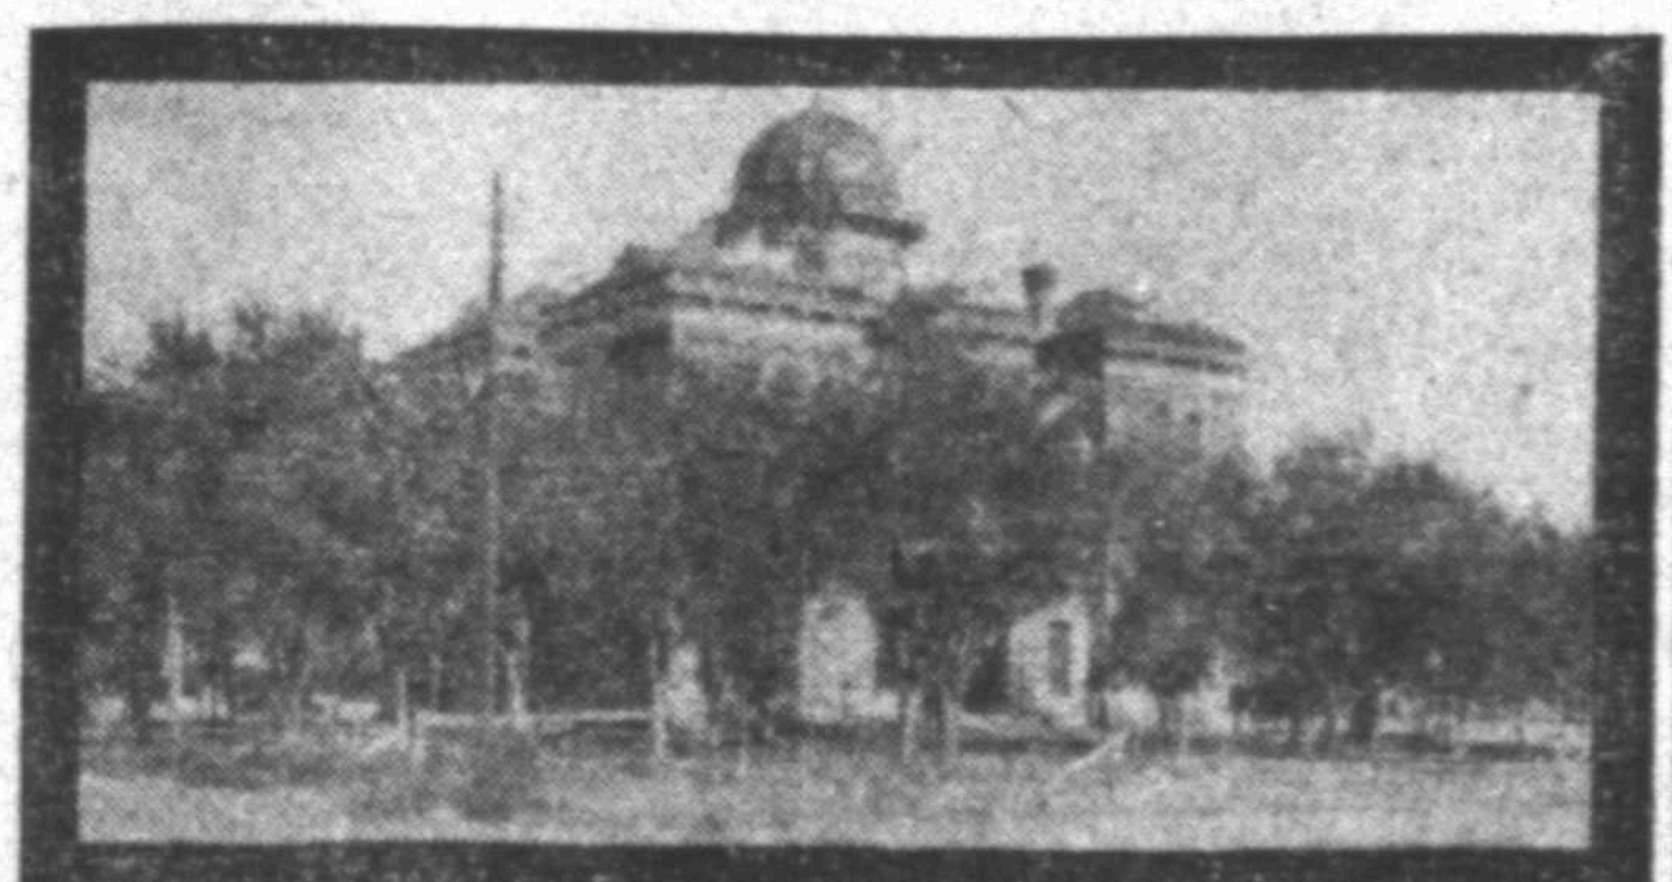
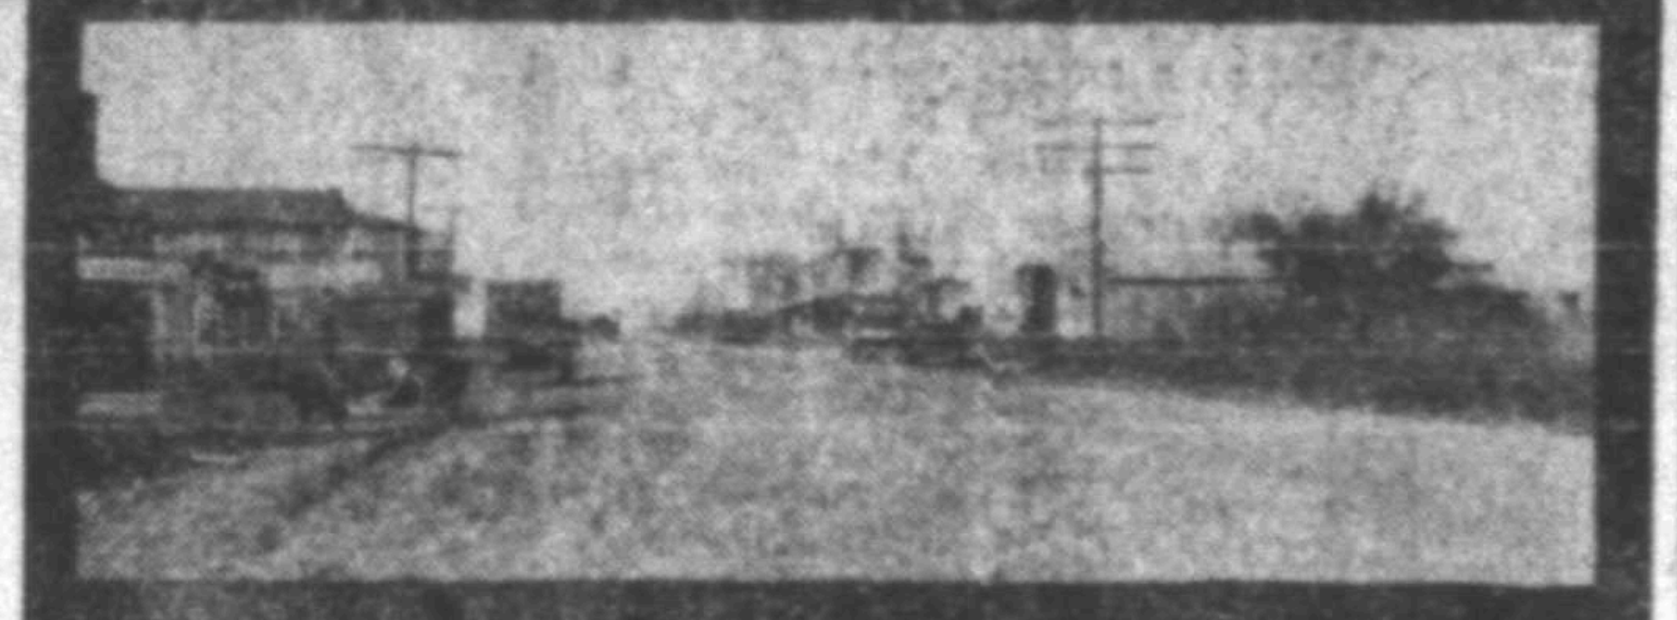
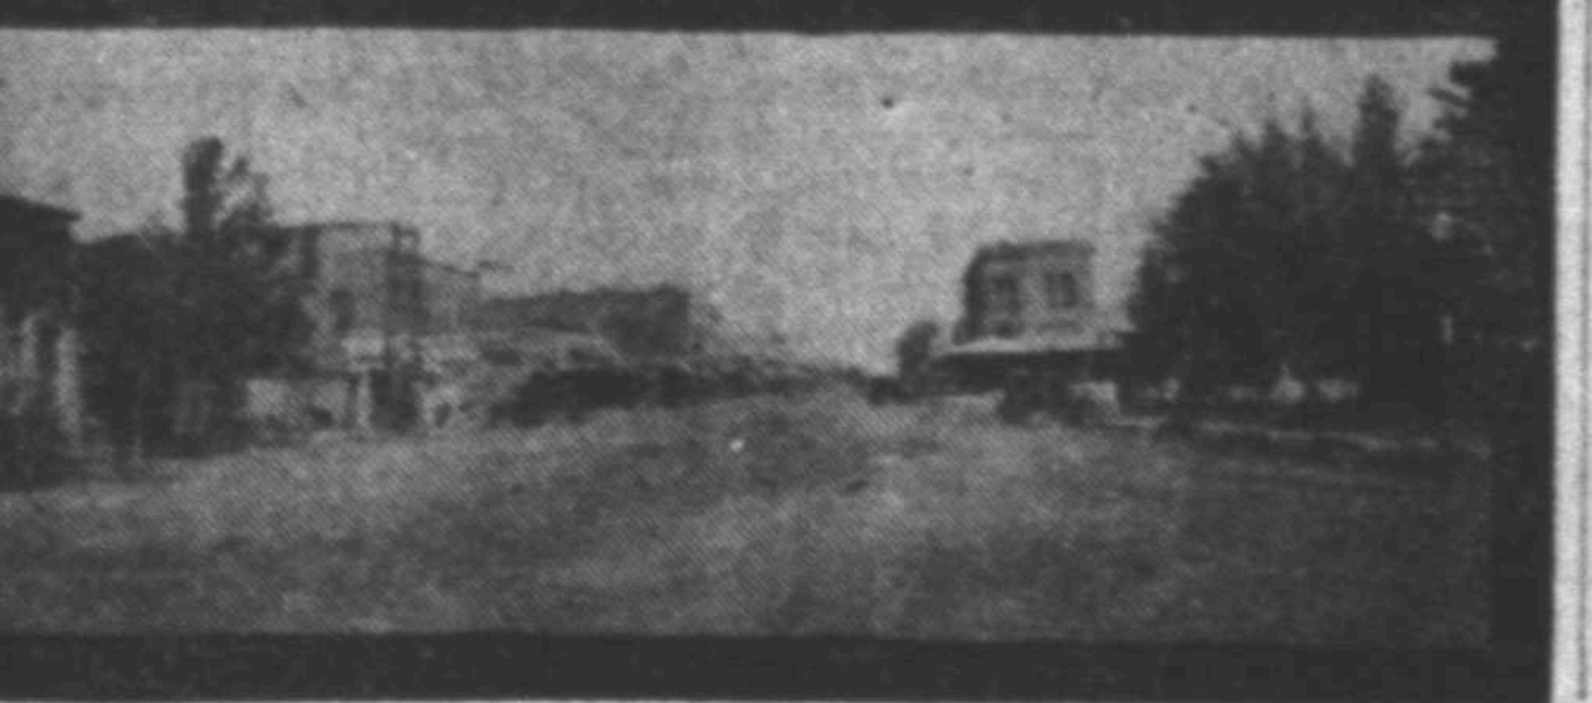
At the bottom—This is a picture of Seymour's main street and will give the reader an idea of the thriving city, the capital of Baylor county can truly boast of being.







ARCHER COUNTY

Archer county is situated 25 miles south of Wichita Falls. It was created from Clay county in 1858 and organized in 1880 and named for B. T. Archer. It has an area of 960 square miles and has a population of 5,254. Archer City, the county seat, had a population of 689 the last Federal census, but has grown rapidly during the last six years. Megargle, Dundee, Holliday, Scotland and Windthorst are other towns. The county is served by the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad.

Archer is being transformed from a livestock county to one in which diversified farming is becoming a prominent industry. The oil producing industry has assumed large proportions recently. Its surface is mostly level and covered with a stunted growth of mesquite, with some postoak in the southeast portion. Along the Little Wichita river it is more or less hilly, but the greater portion of its area is level and adapted to farming. Cotton, corn and wheat are leading staples and produced abundantly. All kinds of feedstuffs, including alfalfa and peanuts, are generally grown in increasing acreage each year and the ease with which these crops are produced is encouraging the feeding of live stock on the farm and the breeding of blooded and graded animals. An abundance of underground water at a depth of 25 to 125 feet and an average rainfall of 28 inches per annum are among the natural advantages. A variety of soils, including light sandy, red mesquite, dark loam and black waxy, all productive when rightly handled, make the county particularly adapted to farming.

Fruits, including apples, grapes, peaches, plums and berries, are easily grown. Vegetables of almost every variety are found in gardens.

Dairy farming is increasing at rapid rate and being close to Wichita Falls with the road improvements make this industry attractive and profitable.

The development for oil and gas is placing the county in the lead for this industry and Archer county one of the leading producing counties of oil and gas in the entire state.

Prices of land vary, according to location and distance from railroad stations. Good lands may be secured as low as $35 to $40 per acre.

Lake Kemp Section In Baylor County Is Paradise for Hunters

There's another industry down in Baylor county that has not been listed. That's the sport of hunting ducks and its a profitable one, as this picture shows. Six Wichita Falls hunters recently returned from a two-day trip to the Lake Kemp neighborhood and brought back 96 ducks, trophies of their marksmanship. The hunters were (reading from the left) Hoot Lesley, Bill McAmey, Earl Shappell, E. C. Boardman, Van Lesley and Bob Carpenter.

"Courtesy is the most important part of your duty."

"A traffic patrolman may be six feet tall, weigh 200 pounds, be active and alert and know regulations from A to Z, but if he is not courteous he is not worth a hoot to the Police Department."

WORLD'S CHAMPION SPEED-TICKET TAKER.

THE policeman is the symbol of government and as such is often the only executive with whom the people who are governed come in contact.

People don't like to be governed, and hence as a rule they don't like the policemen who wield the very authority which they—the people—delegated to them.

Oftentimes policemen are accused of exceeding their authority, of taking advantage of the uniform they wear, of becoming abusive. James Conlon, a Brooklyn patrolman, created much resentment when he arrested a seventeen-year-old girl, Benjamina Callibeaux, because, it is alleged, she laughed at him and refused to "move on" when he ordered her to do so. Miss Callibeaux was discharged when the case came to trial and the policeman was reprimanded by the judge.

Then, there was the case of Clarence P. Wilson, a Boston architect, who merely grinned at a policeman when the latter ordered him to get off the grass in Boston Common. Wilson brought suit for false arrest and the judge hearing the case ruled that a policeman has no right to make an arrest for a misdemeanor without a warrant—unless a breach of the peace has been committed. The policeman was ordered to pay $150 damages. In the case of James McFarland, also of Boston, who was severely beaten by a policeman when he attempted to prevent the arrest of a friend on a charge of intoxication, the policeman declared there WAS a breach of the peace.

A policeman's sole duty is to KEEP THE PEACE. He can arrest anybody he sees creating a disturbance, or anybody against whom such a charge is preferred by a complainant. ANYBODY can make an arrest if he sees the actual commission of a felony. Anybody can serve a warrant or a summons as a policeman can. The only authority a policeman has is to KEEP THE PEACE. That is why he is armed with authority, a club and a pistol

Of course it's no easy job being a policeman. Oftentimes he is more sinned against than sinning. Frequently he gets in trouble simply by performing his duty.

Patrolman Edward R. Fleming, who summonsed the former Abby Rockefeller, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for speeding, was taken from the motorcycle squad and given an assignment far out in Brooklyn, an hour and a half ride from his home in the Bronx. Eventually he was reinstated, four months after the arrest episode.

The majority of policemen no doubt do the best they can. Their orders are to be cool and courteous. They are nearly always under a strain, and you can't blame them—can you?—if they lose their tempers occasionally.

Out of Red Revolution into "Red Tape"

The Bolsheviks made Tenner and his wife work at cleaning sidewalks. There was not food, clothing or fuel. The family escaped to Latvia. Tenner came to New York, and, successful as a consulting engineer, tried for three years to bring over his wife and child. The immigration quota law, however, forbade their admission for 36 weary months. Now, at last, they are reunited and happy.

How would you, an American citizen, feel if another country's red tape barred you for three years from your loved ones?

Two Heiresses Who Swapped Millions to Do Their Own Dishes and Dusting

AT least two American heiresses, living in the home town of the richest American, Henry Ford, have started their matrimonial careers determined to live, not in the style to which they have been accustomed, but the style most compatible with their husbands' pocketbooks.

They are the former Julia Buhl and Grace Briggs of Detroit, who, as debutantes and daughters of wealthy parents, enjoyed all the luxuries of palatial homes. Now they have changed their names to Mrs. Arthur Morley Kugeman and Mrs. W. Dean Robinson, respectively, and they are living in modest homes, strictly within their incomes. Mrs. Kugeman is the daughter of Arthur Hiram Buhl, capitalist, and Mrs. Robinson's father is W. O. Briggs, wealthy manufacturere of automobile bodies.

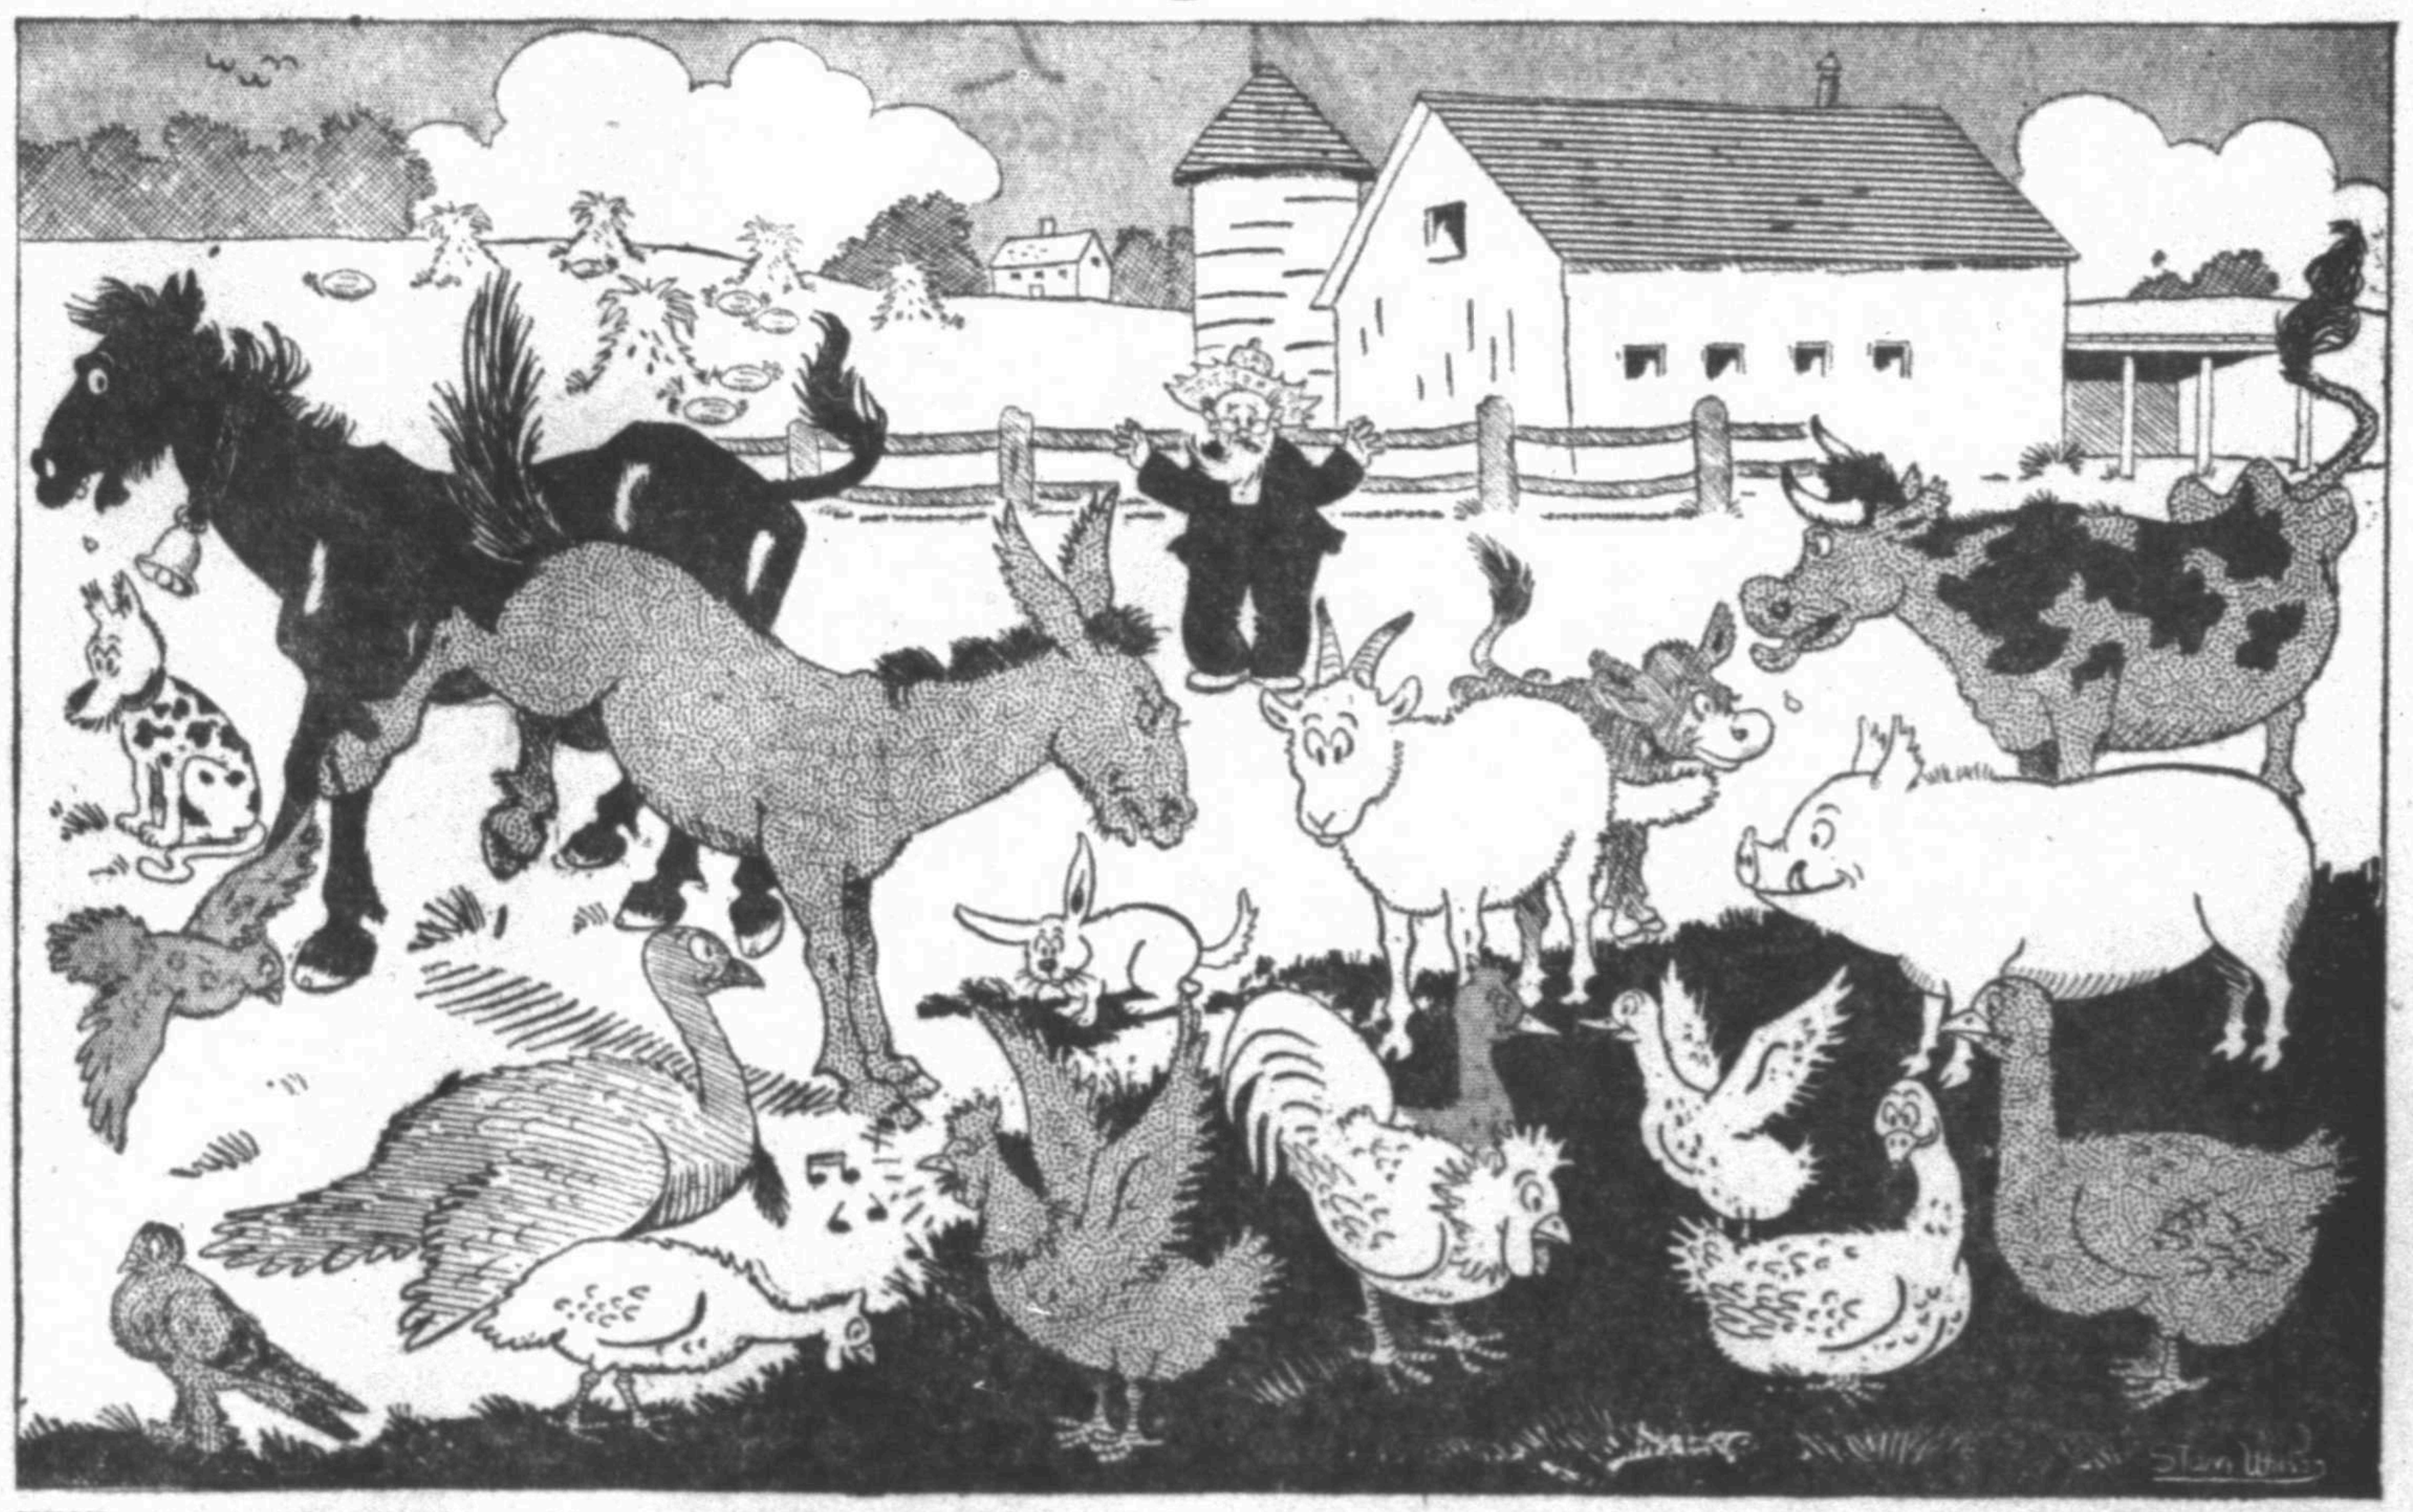
Just What Is Wrong With This Picture?



THE artist spent last Sunday on his grandfatheer's farm and drew this barnyard scene. Among the nineteen errors he made he put a dog's tail on the tame white rabbit. How many of the other eighteen mistakes can you find?

The Magic Number of Marriage

HERE is a "magic number" that will both puzzle and please your married friends when you tell them about it. To find this marriage number you proceed as follows:

First write down the year in which you were married and next underneath it the year in which you were born. To this add your age at your next birthday and lastly the number of years that you have been married. Now add these four together and the result will be 3 8 5 2, as the following example shows:

Year of birth	1884
Age at next birthday	42
Number of years married	23
	3852

Why is this magic number 3852, always the same for all married persons? Because, as they will be greatly surprised to learn, it is twice the present year. Thus 3852 is twice 1926.

Next year the magic number will be 3854, which is twice 1927, and so on.

"Timely" Problems On a Clock Face

THIS is a very interesting problem in addition that you can work out with the twelve numbers that represent the hours on the face of a clock.

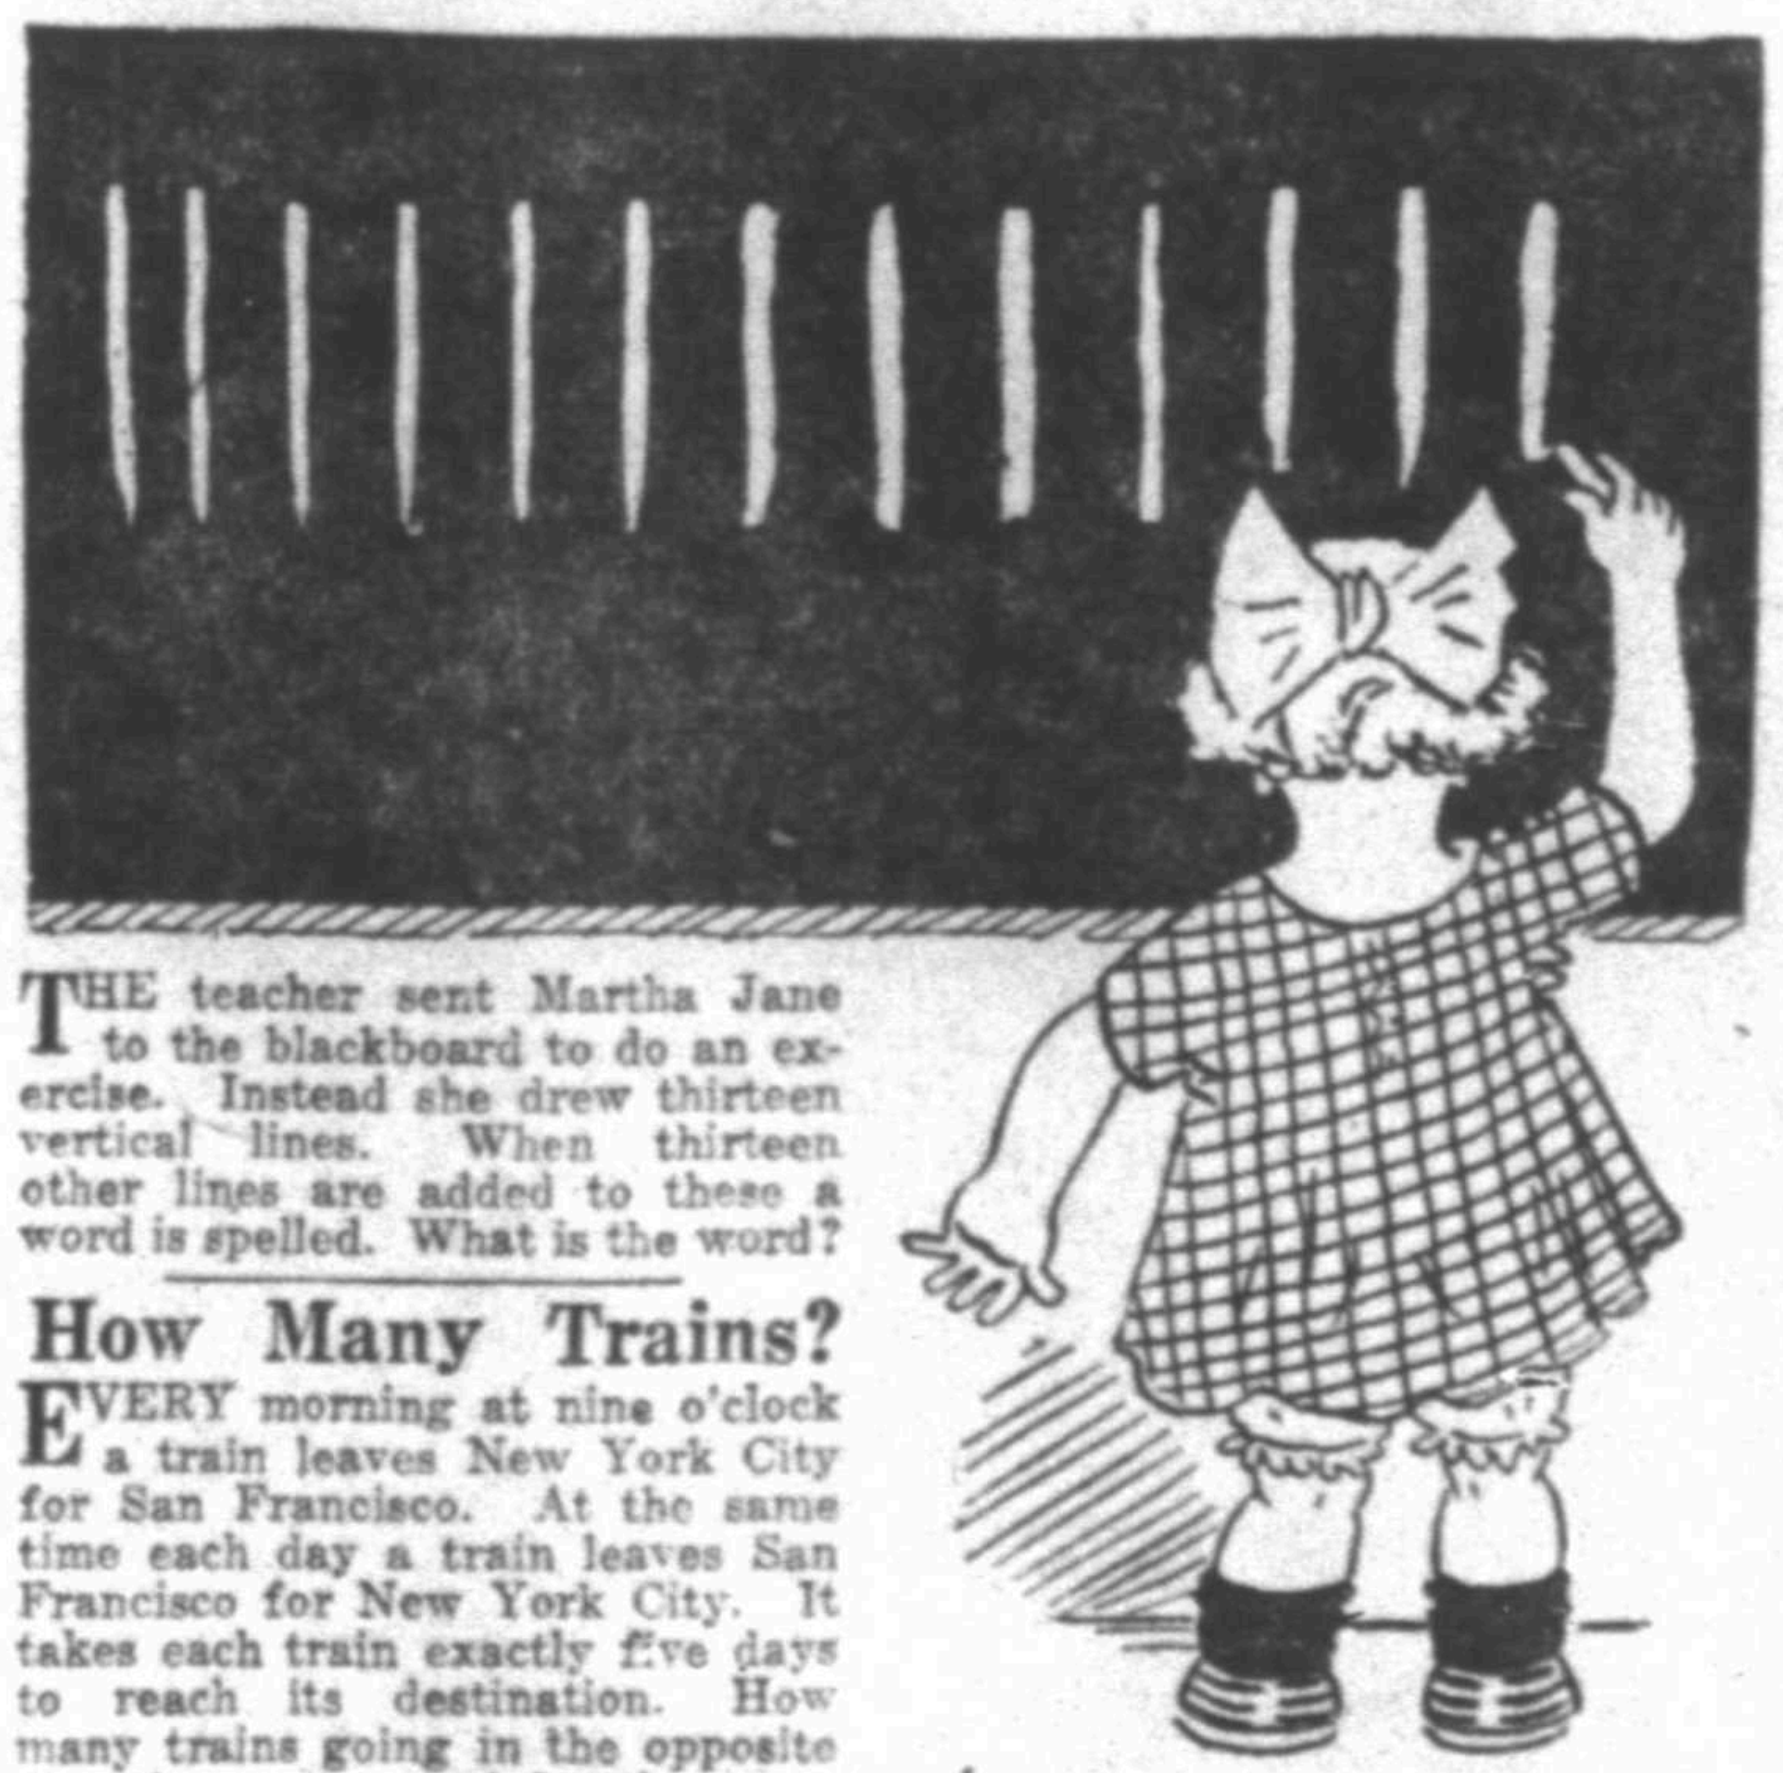
The problem is to arrange the numbers in six groups, each group containing two numbers, the sum of which is thirteen. How quickly can you do it?

Spell This Word With Lines



THE teacher sent Martha Jane to the blackboard to do an exercise. Instead she drew thirteen vertical lines. When thirteen other lines are added to these a word is spelled. What is the word?

How Many Trains?

EVERY morning at nine o'clock a train leaves New York City for San Francisco. At the same time each day a train leaves San Francisco for New York City. It takes each train exactly five days to reach its destination. How many trains going in the opposite direction are passed by the travelers?

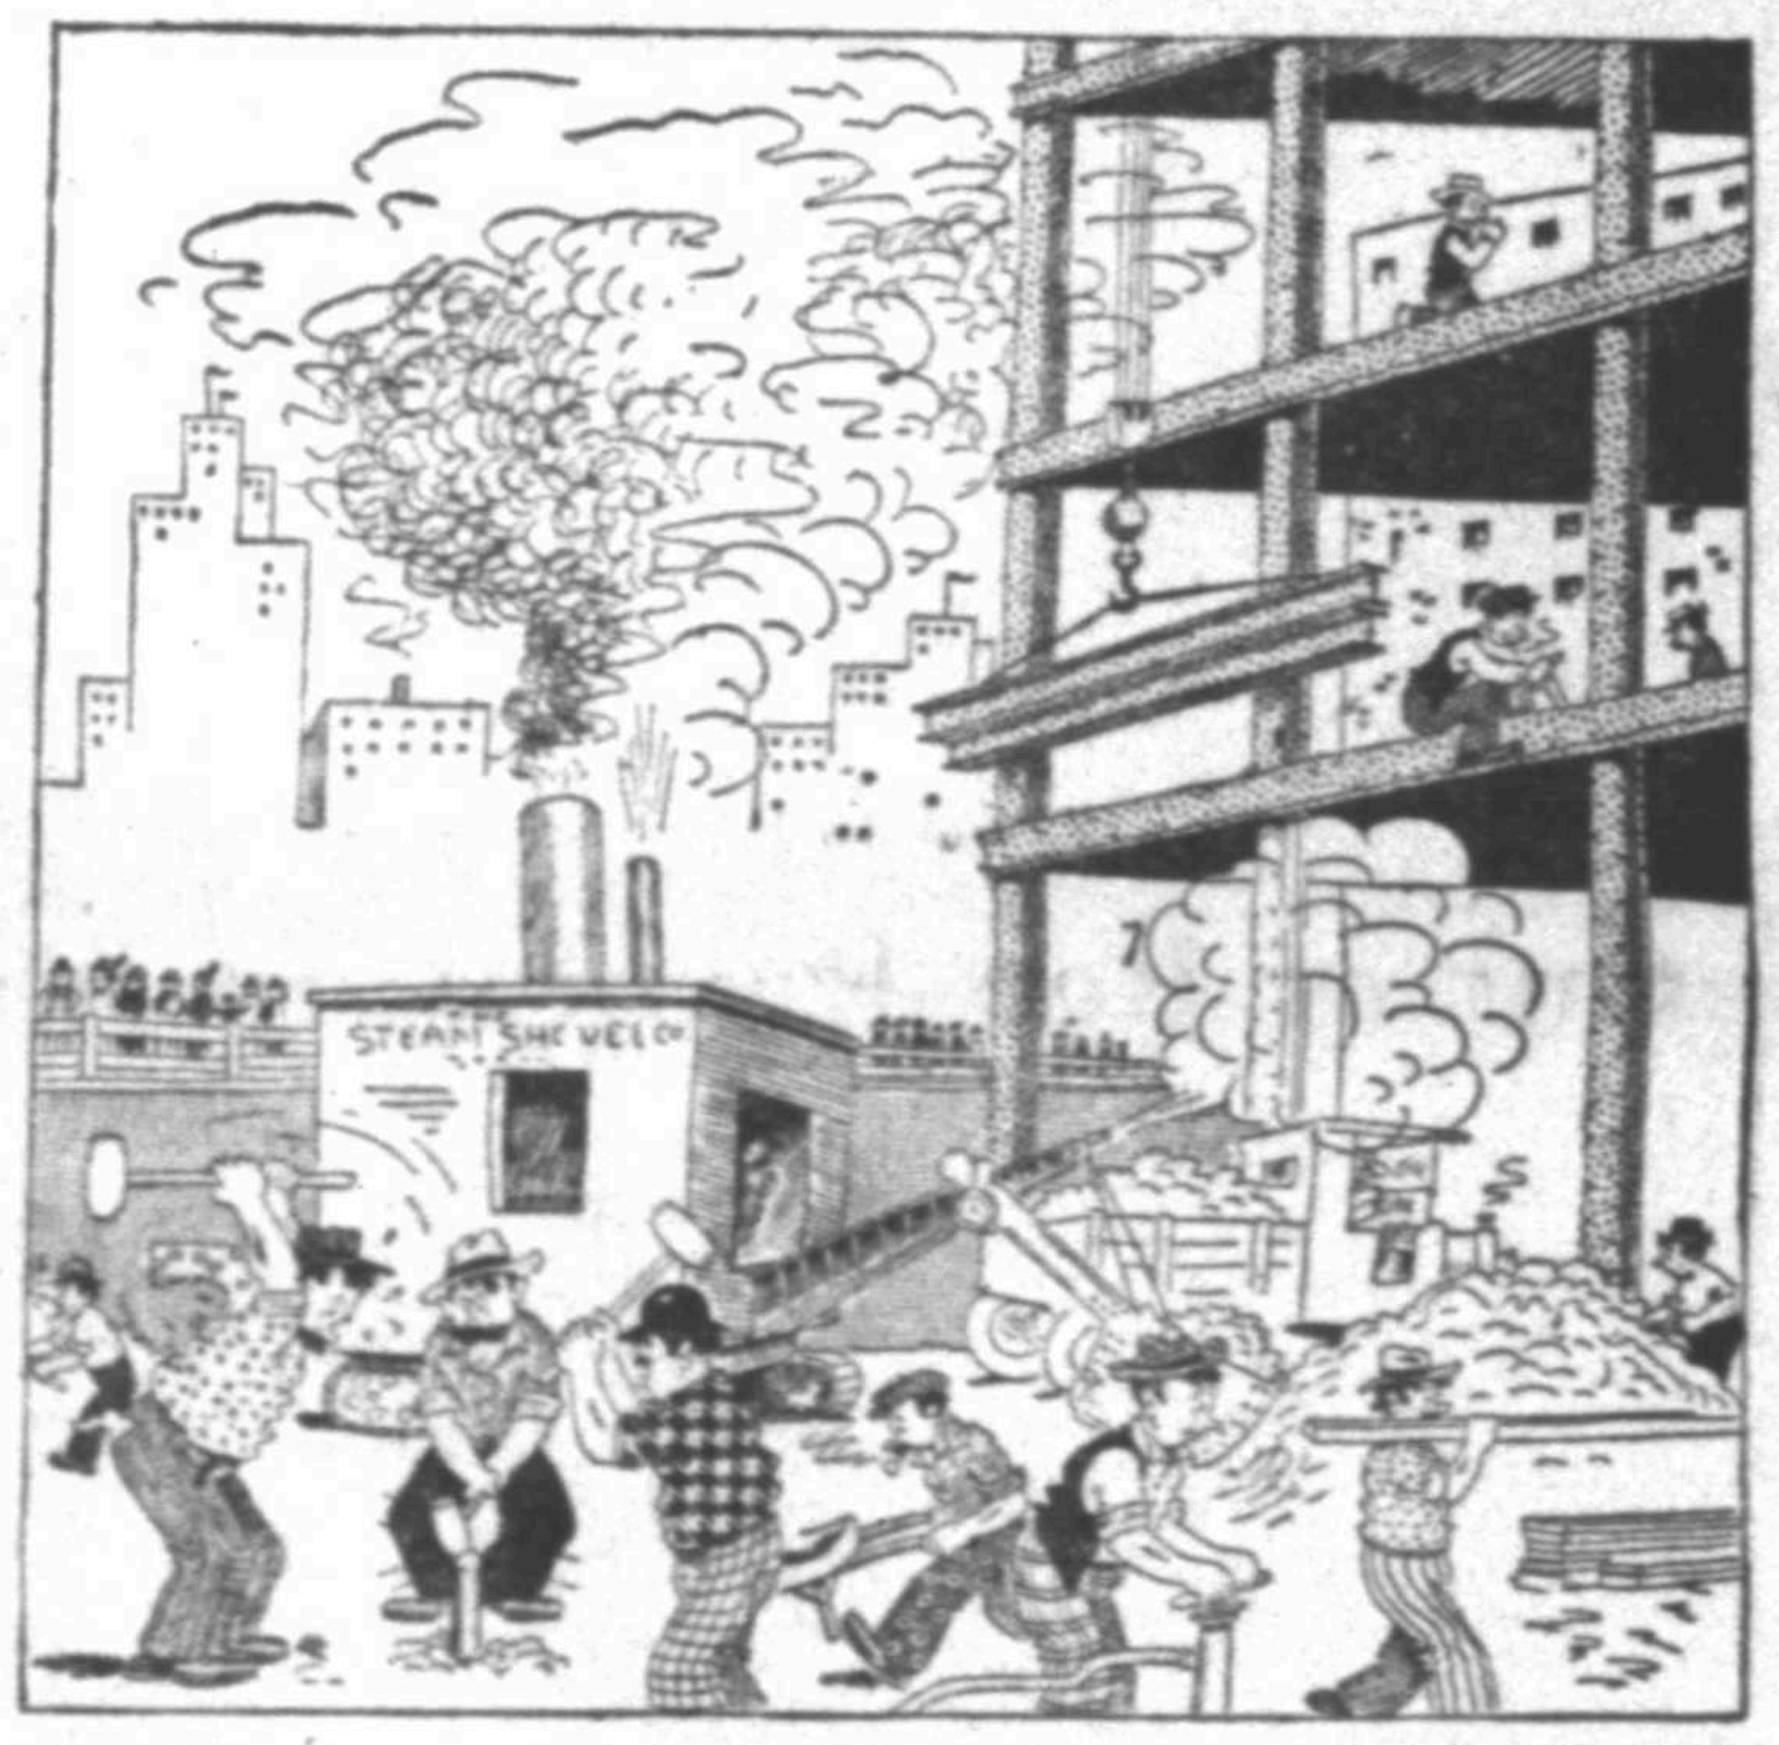
Find the Hidden Workmen



THIS skyscraper is going up in a hurry and every workman appears to be very busy. However, there are three of them who are not on the job. Can you find them?

Try This Simple Coin Trick

HERE is an easy coin trick that is as simple as the method Columbus used in making an egg stand on end, which baffled the wise men of the great discoverer's day.

Take three pennies from your pocket and place them on the table. Now ask if anyone present can place these three coins so that three heads and a tail can be seen at the same time. Unless your friends have seen the trick before, they are likely to puzzle over it a long time without finding the solution.

A Poetic Mixup

She stood before the altar on her head
A pair of satin slippers on her lips
A smile as she looked up at him who stood beside her

The teacher asked her pupils to "mind their stops" and arrange and punctuate the lines correctly. How would you do it?

Home-Making as a Hobby

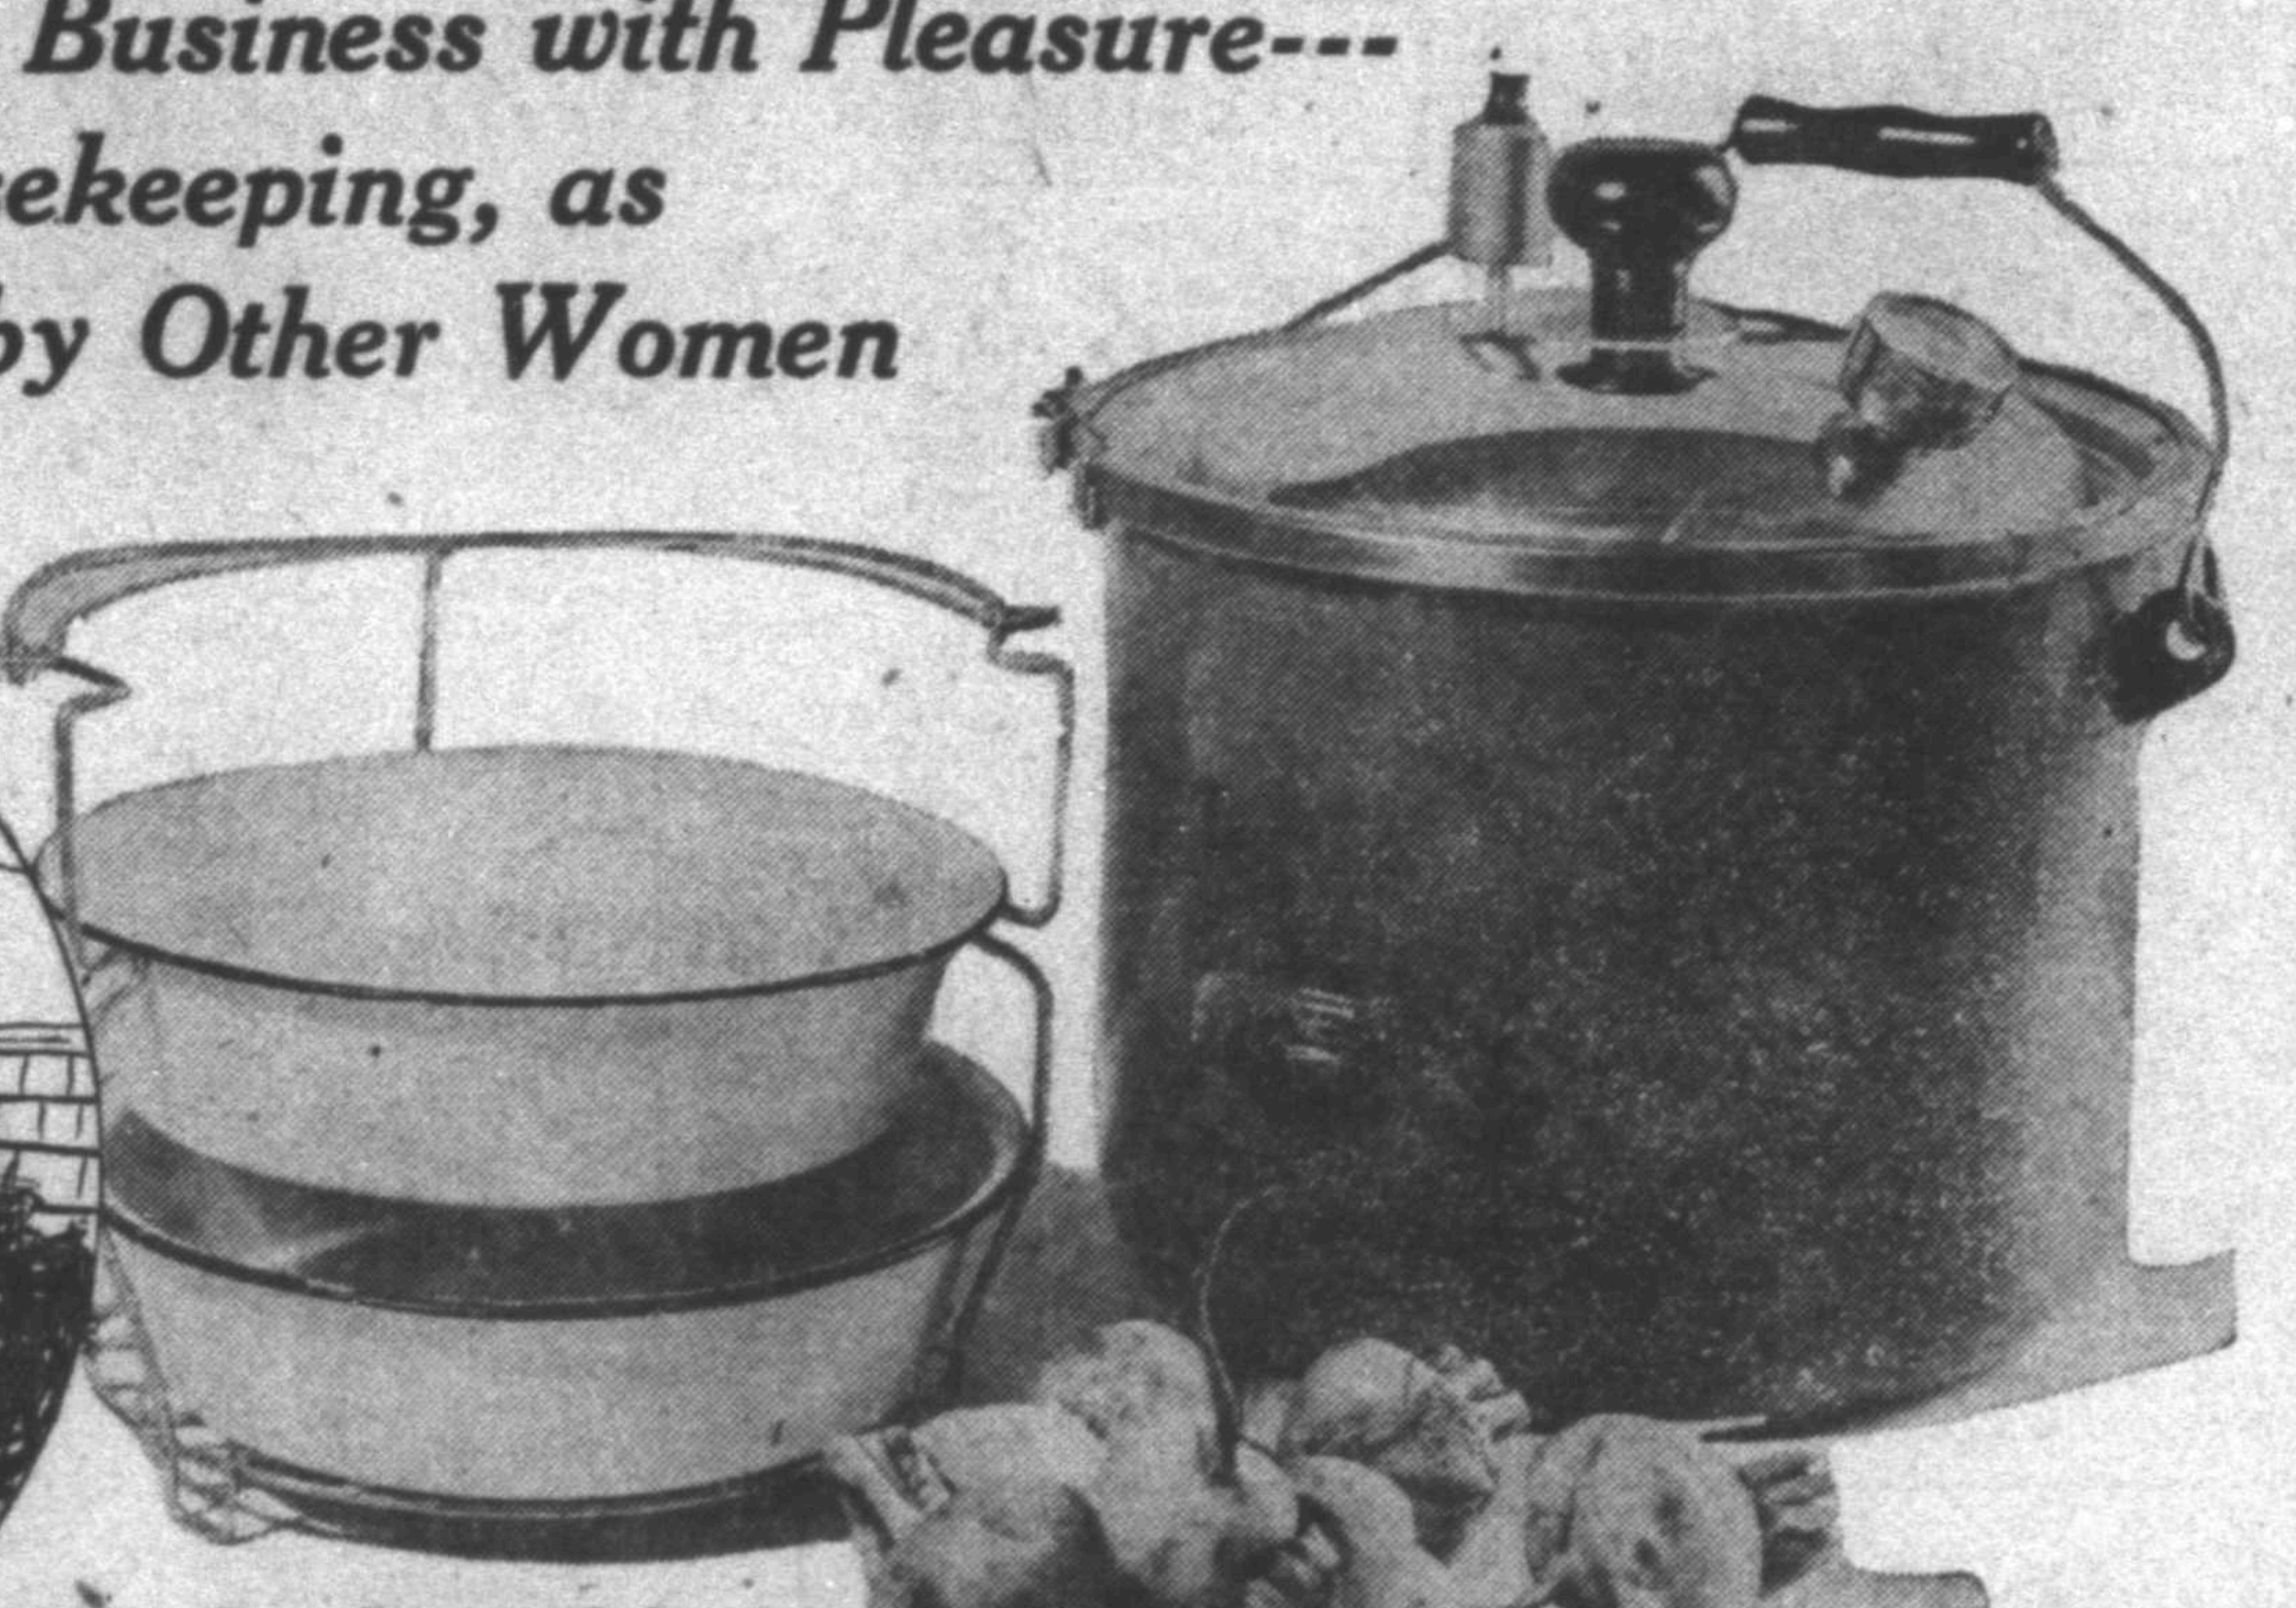
For the Woman Who Finds Her Chief Occupation Centered in Some Business or Profession, Home-Making as a Hobby Yields Large Returns in Pleasure and Profit.



With a Steam Pressure Cooker One Can Save Much Time in Cooking Foods That Require a Long Period. It Is Just Such Accessories as This That Make All-around Housekeeping Possible for the Business Woman.

EVEN a casual survey of the great army of home-makers will reveal the fact that its ranks include a surprisingly large group of women whose main occupation lies outside. An increasing number of us who are engaged in the business or professional world, finding ourselves faced with the alternative of a hotel or boarding house, possibly even a rooming house and restaurant existence, prefer our own fireside-hearths which reflect our personal ideals of comfort, beauty and hospitality.

During a large proportion of our waking hours, our habits of thought and action are necessarily molded by the exactions of the day's work, be it ever so congenial. That this routine may have its place as a stimulating, not an obstructing factor, we must take into our own hands the control of our living conditions before and after hours and achieve an environment which allows us to live buoyant, well-balanced lives.

Nowhere else do we find so great an opportunity for this as in our homes. They offer a wholesome variety of interests and activities, a field for many creative abilities, endless opportunities for comradeship, delightful social contacts and hours of healing rest to oppose the intense mental strain and the ceaseless demands and rapid pace of our outside world. The control of our own food supply and diet and the hygiene of our surroundings may lead directly to better physical health, and with co-operation a substantial saving in dollars and cents is effected.

But if a purposeful intent "to make the most of the stuff" leads us to create our own homes in an even more telling fashion they are the expressions of that home-making magic which is every woman's birthright.

The spell of this same magic is potent in a certain small home. It has a large room serving as living, dining and sleeping-room, with an improvised kitchenette in an alcove. Here the davenport loses its cretonne cover to become a couch at night. The interesting painted chairs, lowboy and old table all bear the mark of the same genius that devises delicious meals for two with a small gas plate and portable oven at an average cost of seven dollars a week. This city room, renting with heat and light for $36 a month, is the home of two girls with weekly salaries of $25. These homemakers "on the side" manage the entire expense of rent, food, gas and ice on an average of $8 a week for each, less than the living cost in a hall bedroom!

The opposite of this small undertaking is a lovely suburban home of eight rooms, with ample lawns, garden and garage, owned by two business and two professional women. This family, with a combined income of $10,000 a year, finds the average monthly outlay for running expense and upkeep of their home to be within $70 each. They keep a competent assistant but each one contributes her particular share to the home-making.

Between these two extremes we find the average business woman's home of three to five rooms, with bath, carried on by two or more who share alike in its routine and its pleasures.

It is evident that this type of homemaking differs distinctly from that of the wife and mother to whom it is a central task. For those who find their chief occupation elsewhere, it must be a side issue, or still better, a hobby which yields large returns in pleasure and profit.

Our twenty-four hour day divides evenly into three eight-hour periods; one for work, another for sleep, and a third for all other activities. With the many demands upon this last allowance, not more than a daily average of two hours can well be apportioned to the actual housekeeping, whatever extras of week-end, holidays, and vacations are put into it.

Time allotments worked out with one mother and her daughter in their home, a five-room apartment in the suburbs, show that it is possible to cover the routine for a family of two in four hours a day. As this time is equally divided between them, their home-making is fairly indicative of the opportunity for other women.

To accomplish this, they found it necessary to lessen work with better tools and shorten time by improved methods; most of all, deliberately to simplify their living. Today they number among their labor-saving possessions a vacuum cleaner, dry mop, radiator and wall brushes, modern gas range with oven heat control, pressure cooker, simple spray dishwasher and wire dish-drier, electric toaster, and a convenient breakfast nook.

Before their labor-savers were accumulated, a helper usually came in one day a week. Now, by sending out the laundry and having help with the seasonal cleaning, they easily cover the routine themselves, at a saving which far exceeds the interest on investment in equipment. Moreover, they are now able to accomplish the preparation of breakfast and dinner and the necessary work following, in approximately two hours a day, leaving one hour for cleaning and one for the various other items.

Their program, developed from studies carried over a period of several months at different seasons, resulted in the following weekly work plan:

CLEANING.

Thursday: Two bedrooms, bathroom and back hall.

Friday: Living-room, dining-room and hall.

MEAL PREPARATION.

Washing the day's dishes: one hour.

Meal preparation is simplified by buying all bread except muffins and other hot breads, using salads and simple desserts in place of pastry, choosing such recipes as give the most attractive results and best food value for the time expended, using "tray" luncheons or suppers on Sundays and holidays, and eating out-of-doors whenever possible.

Certified By Good Housekeeping Institute

These household articles are supervised by the Cookery Department of the internationally recognized Good Housekeeping Institute, where, in their fully equipped, modern laboratories types of household devices are tested by a corps of scientifically trained men and women. Furthermore, new cookery methods are constantly being evolved to save steps, time and labor for housekeepers. All recipes are tested and standardized and will always work, if directions are carefully followed. Recipes printed on this page serve six people unless otherwise specified.

The Pressure Cooker to Save Time

Here Are Some Practical Suggestions in the Form of Two Menus from the Institute Cooks that Will Make Your Kitchen Work Easier and Less Tiresome.

IN order to find out the cost for fuel in cooking whole meals in the steam pressure cooker, the institute planned and prepared several menus for Summer meals. The cost of two meals is listed with the menus and was estimated on the basis of purchasing 600 B. T. U. gas at $1 per 1,000 cubic feet. In each case, sufficient food to serve six people was prepared. No breakfasts have been included in the menus because such a small part of their preparation can be done in the pressure cooker.

In preparing the luncheon, one and three-quarter cupfuls of macaroni broken into two-inch pieces was prepared in the cooker. While the macaroni was cooking, the white sauce was made and the cheese added. The macaroni was removed from the cooker, drained, and put into a buttered baking dish. The white sauce mixed with the cheese was then poured over it, and the top was covered with buttered crumbs. The dish was then put under the broiler flame until the crumbs were brown.

The braised beef for the dinner was dredged with flour and seared in a frying-pan over the gas burner. It was then put into an inset pan and put on the rack of the cooker. Two cupfuls of water were put in the bottom of the cooker, and the meat was cooked for fifty minutes at 15 pounds pressure. The meat was then removed from the cooker, and the carrots and Summer squash were salted, put into two inset pans without water, and placed on the racks in the cooker. Water was put in the bottom of the cooker, and the vegetables were cooked for ten minutes at 15 pounds pressure. While the vegetables were cooking, the meat was put under the broiler flame to brown, and the coffee was made. By the time the meat had browned sufficiently, the vegetables were ready to be served.

CODFISH DINNER.

1 pint salt codfish flakes
2 slices of salt pork
1 teaspoonful salt
10 potatoes
½ cupful cream or milk
2 tablespoonfuls suet

SCRAPE the parsnips, cut in thick slices, and boil twenty minutes. Then add the potatoes pared and quartered lengthwise, together with more water if needed. Cook until tender, then drain. Meanwhile, freshen the salt codfish by covering with cold water, bringing to a boil, draining, covering again with cold water, bringing to a boil, and draining. Then add the cream, salt and paprika, heat well, and mix lightly with the vegetables. Cover and let stand over a very low heat to absorb the cream. Fry out and brown the finely-chopped salt pork and suet, and pour over the dish just before serving. Garnish with pickled cucumbers.

Out of the Casserole

Two Recipes That Make Ideal Dishes for the Sunday Night Supper or Informal Luncheon.

A DELICIOUS supper or luncheon dish can be prepared in the following manner with left-over salmor tuna fish: Saute one-half of a small onion, minced, and one small green pepper, chopped fine, in two tablespoonfuls of butter or margarin. Add to two cupfuls of cooked and flaked fish. Mix in lightly two cupfuls of steamed rice, two cupfuls of strained, cooked, tomatoes, one teaspoonful of salt, and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Put in a greased casserole, and bake at 500° F. for twelve minutes.

For a delectable supper dish, drain one cupful of canned corn, and chop it fine. Add to this two egg-yolks well beaten. Saute one-half a green pepper, minced fine, and one tablespoonful of butter, and add to the above mixture with one teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of paprika. Fold one cupful of steamed rice into the corn mixture very lightly, with a fork. Turn into a buttered casserole, sprinkling one-fourth cupful of grated cheese on the mixture as a center layer, and one-fourth cupful of grated cheese on top. Bake at 500° F. for twelve minutes.

Physical Culture How Professionals Dance and Keep Thin

Stage Steps for Home Practice

HAVE you ever seen a dancer who was not gracefully slender? Hers is not the thinness of emaciation, bony and angular, but the slimness of well developed rounded muscles.

A figure which is composed chiefly of angles is never attractive. There is a distinct difference between thinness and slenderness and it is the latter that all women crave.

Dancing, more than any other single exercise, will give it to you. It develops the muscles symmetrically so that there is no undue bulging in spots. The muscles do not become knotty if you take the correct dancing exercise. They merely become strong and rounded and in proportion.

If, for instance, you take the exercises illustrated here every day for several months, you will begin to notice a new firmness and tone through your whole body. You will feel healthier and you will feel stronger. And with the strength, will come the charming grace of well-coordinated muscles that are essential to poise and charm.

HOUSE OF TRAGEDY.
The House Which Mrs. Chamberlain Rented for Her Grim Purpose, Giving Her Children Sleeping Tablets and Then Turning on the Gas.

DUTIFUL OR UNWORTHY?

BEREFT.
Left, John Chamberlain, Sr., the Grief-Stricken Widower, Who Was Prostrated Over the Loss of All His Loved Ones.

BECAUSE, as she wrote in a farewell letter, "I slept and read and neglected the homely, everyday duties until I realized that my children had not been properly trained," Mrs. Ada Chamberlain, of Los Angeles, killed her three beautiful children, of four, seven and nine years, and then committed suicide.

Her husband was a kind and dutiful man, a successful corporation lawyer. No discord marred their home life. Neither mother nor father of the three tots drank, smoked or had other vices, and Mrs. Chamberlain's worst sins, according to her own confession, were "lazy, slept late in the morning, let my husband pet and indulge me," and went in for amateur acting, having played Juliet.

While her grief-stricken husband and all authorities who expressed an opinion on the case agreed that Mrs. Chamberlain's mind was deranged, the pitiful episode brought attention to the fact that Mrs. Chamberlain, far from being the bad mother she thought she was, was a good mother, as modern households go.

"All insanity and abnormal psychoses," said a New York psychiatrist who discussed the case, "are due to the 'complexes' now so well known to all laymen. A complex is an expression of mental stress which has no direct manifestation but finds its way into the stream of consciousness by a devious and indirect route. That is why it is called a 'complex.' Some obscure cause of distress, anxiety and mental pain, in Mrs. Chamberlain's case, found a false outlet in her belief that she was not a good mother. On the whole, her self-accusations show that she constantly had the welfare of her children at heart."

Anne Jordan, well-known woman writer, saw in Mrs. Chamberlain's act an expression of protest against the modern tendencies that are destroying the home.

"Mrs. Chamberlain felt, though unjustifiably, that she was guilty of the things that most mothers are guilty of nowadays," said Miss Jordan. "She thought she had neglected her children and given too little time to her home duties. As a matter of fact, her delinquencies were very minor ones, but I think she felt a sort of contrition on behalf of all modern mothers. Of course her mental processes were irrational and abnormal, but it seems to me that a feeling of this kind was the basis of her disorder."

Romance Problems of Real People

Analyzed by Anne Jordan.

THE GIRL.
Grace Toye, 17, Who Eloped with Her Younger Lover and Threatened to Commit Suicide if the Police Molested Them.

A YOUNG COUPLE in Braintree, Massachusetts, wanted to get married. The girl was only sixteen. Mother and father said, "Nay, nay, young man. Our daughter is too young. Be off the premises!"

So the young girl eloped with the boy, and she 'phoned back that they would never be taken alive. She said they had bought some poison, and both would swallow it if they were stopped.

When this kid told her parents she loved and wanted to get married, they might have said, "Puppy love. It won't last!"

Puppy love—yes, you may laugh at it—but only in other people. You've got the softest, warmest, sweetest spot in your heart for your own puppy love. There are lots of other loves, but of all the fifty-seven varieties, there's none so tender, so sensitive or so melodramatic as puppy love.

A girl starts dreaming of love when she first sees herself really in the mirror. A boy starts dreaming of love when he first realizes that his neck would do better with a little water. Puppy love is a culmination of their dreams. It's rarely made of honest fibre, I'll admit, but that's what makes it so sweet. Dreams are the only relaxation that our spirits have from our cramped bodies. They are the only things that make life colorful, and they're so fragile, so easy to destroy!

Parents should be very careful with puppy love. They should remember that they've got a great big character-forming dream on their hands, and let it blow away, not shatter it mournfully at their offspring's feet. They should remember that childish minds are morbidly filled with the dramatic. Elopement or death sounds like a grand adventure to them. You may think that just because youth rebounds quickly they don't suffer. But stop and think back to your own youth. Remember how you ached for days because you went to church with your petticoat showing?

If you don't want to slap a barrier between your generations, you will have to use all the tact in the world when the love-bug first bites what you think of as "your baby." Don't ever try to take her Clarence away from her. Kid her along. Tell her, "Sure you can marry. It will save me all that money I'd counted on spending on your clothes for all your coming-out parties." Or if that doesn't work, go to her beau, ask him to make your Helen wait till she meets at least two other men, so she can flatter him with having made a choice. And if you want to make a hit with him, be sure to say "MEN"!

Don't frown on them. If you do, you're merely falling into the cue that they hope you will take. Young lovers, cruel parents, persecutions, death rather than being parted—gosh, kids just eat that up.

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

Marsden—the benefactor of mankind. Marsden, who had built the most convenient, compact and comfortable apartments that money and brains and energy could buy for thousands of men and women.

IN the thriving city of Midwest, a man named Marsden had practically revolutionized the building and realty trade. When he was thirty-three years of age, there were sixteen Marsden apartment houses scattered throughout the length and breadth of the great sprawling city. The Marsden idea was to compress within the confines of a city flat, as many modern conveniences as could be crammed into the limited footage assigned each housing unit.

"If it's a Marsden it's Solid Comfort," was the slogan of the Herbert Marsden Construction Company.

At thirty-three Herbert Marsden could walk down any of the choicer residential streets of his home city and see everywhere about him evidences of his housing and building skill.

Experts from other cities came to study his methods and observe his results. A firm of built-in bed manufacturers in Grand Rapids paid him a handsome bonus for the privilege of calling their product the Marsden Disappearing Couch.

All sorts of accessory manufacturers courted his favor. The Marsden Construction Company bought in huge quantities. Every Marsden apartment house had its foyer of tapestried walls, Flemish chest, handsome two-tone rug and Poe's raven in green bronze over the elevator door.

The living rooms boasted plenty of electric lamp plugs, a generous bay window, stippled walls, hardwood floors, and glass French doors that led into a dining room with also its brace of windows and a built-in buffet with leaded glass doors and an electric foot bell so placed as to be directly under the toe of the hostess at table.

There were five rooms in these Marsden units. The local newspapers were constantly announcing something like this:

"Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilmot will be at home in their Marsden apartment at 56 Hill Lake Avenue."

In fact it was sort of a local matrimonial joke of the town. "Matrimony and a Marsden and live happy ever after—maybe!"

Marsden took the greatest personal interest in the construction of these buildings. Long after the erection of them had become a matter of routine which his company had splendidly in hand, it was his habit to spend the larger part of each day visiting from one to the other or standing about gazing, studying, and looking at the ones in construction or after the repairs of the already completed and occupied ones.

It was another Marsden slogan that every Marsden tenant must be a happy tenant. Requests for repairs, however unreasonable, were given minute and in many cases the personal attention of the president of the company.

People said it was small wonder that at thirty-three Herbert Marsden was a millionaire. His attention to his business was unfagging, meticulous, full of a personal zeal and enthusiasm.

In fact, they said of him in his organization that he paid too much personal attention to detail. It was nothing unusual for him to spend an entire forenoon poring over a selection of bath-tub faucets. Window shades were a matter of most careful and personal selection as to quality and color. Every tapestry bought for a Marsden House foyer was personally selected by Marsden.

He even, although he employed experts for that department, oversaw the advertising and wrote a great deal of it personally over the heads of his employees.

Sometimes the young people employed at this end of his business would not tolerate his interference and left his firm. More often, however, they passively submitted and went about berating the quality of the work done by the head of the establishment, whose forte, they considered, was building construction and not the writing of advertising copy.

There was a girl named Ada Thyme, who came ultimately to work in the advertising department. One of those brick-haired types with the invariable sprinkling of large, loose freckles which enhance whiteness of skin, and a soft, lovely-looking body that not even the tailored togs she assumed could stiffen.

She was a Midwest girl, the daughter of a local clergyman, and just home from a four years' course, majoring in advertising, at a large eastern university.

She had ideas, originality and a general flare for her work that gave her a sure-handed method with her employer from the very start.

"No, Mr. Marsden, you'll pardon my saying it, but your way of putting it seems to me a bit hackneyed. No. No. Never put your statement in the form of a question!"

The word began to go around the office that Miss Thyme had "the boss" bluffed.

In a way she did. That is, where Marsden had previously either discharged his advertising agent, or gained his point, he now listened to Miss Thyme, in a grim, dissenting kind of way, it is true, but at the same time usually permitting her initial suggeston to prevail.

In this way, after a matter of six months, Marsden advertising began to incorporate itself, phrase by phrase, into the language of the community.

"Have you the Marsden Manner?" was Miss Thyme's.

"Distinctive Living for Fastidious Folks. Phone Marsden," was Miss Thyme's.

One evening at dusk, standing beside the window of the advertising office, and overlooking the city from its fifteenth story, Marsden remarked rather contemplatively to Miss Thyme:

"Come here, Miss Thyme—here's an idea may give you a start for a catchy phrase—look out there over the city—as it lights up—look at those two Marsden apartment houses on Elk Boulevard—and that one down on La Follette Road—and the one over on Threadingham Street—all those hundreds of windows lighting—as they spring with light those are my dreams come true, Miss Thyme—those buildings represent my contribution to the community. Society owes me a debt for giving it not only shelter but the shelter of refinement and beauty. I'm a master builder, Miss Thyme, if you don't mind my saying so, seeing how it may give you a bright idea for copy."

"Yes, Mr. Marsden," she said, "hundreds and hundreds of people moving about those rooms tonight, lighting their gas burners, pressing their electric dinner bells, turning back their beds, washing their dishes, playing their radios and pianos, are responsible to you."

"It gives a fellow a feeling—Miss Thyme—after all—that's what we're put here for—isn't it?—to make the world a better place to live in."

"A better place, yes, Mr. Marsden."

"Of course if I hadn't come along and put up those buildings, some other fellow would have seen to it that those hundreds are housed tonight—but what I'm trying to emphasize, Miss Thyme, is the aesthetic end of it—every one of those buildings you see lighting up from here has Flemish tapestries in its foyers—"

"And—electric plugs in its living rooms, and three-burner gas-stoves and artificial refrigeration and disappearing beds—"

"Yessir," cried Marsden, the irony of her voice lost entirely upon him, "yes, sir—I—I'm not just your ordinary real estate man—I'm a human benefactor. I'm a home builder."

She turned toward him then, in the gloom of that urban twilight, her eyes, that were sometimes mystifying to him, widening as they regarded him.

"You're a HOUSE builder, Mr. Marsden—please don't ever forget the distinction. You're a HOUSE BUILDER. Marsden beds—hardwood floors—electric light—everything except four-poster beds and hearth stones and big kitchen ranges and nurseries and kitchen gardens, and potato patches and barn yards and arm chairs and open fireplaces and old-fashioned flower gardens. You're a house builder, Mr. Marsden."

Suddenly looking into her eyes, that were so curiously mellow, Marsden realized what she meant. And just as suddenly, a mere house builder yearned to become a home builder.

YOUR BOY

You'll see a lot of other boys,
My mother, more than me,
And they don't make as big a noise
As I do, I agree.
And some politely say and do,
When ladies they have met,
The way their mothers tell them to,
But me—well, I forget.
I know it worries you and Pa,
To hear me yell and bawl,
But just remember, will you, Ma,
I'm your boy, after all?

You say you get discouraged. Well,
Ma, honest, so do I;
For, often, Ma, the way you tell
I really, truly try.
I know that other boys obey
The way that fellows should,
But just remember, anyway,
I'm trying to be good.
I know that there are other ones,
Nice boys that you recall,
But they are other people's sons—
I'm your boy, after all.

You say to look at Johnny Smith
But, Mother, please don't worry with
The rest, but me instead.
They'd better not come over here,
If they want my advice;
I'll take that Johnny by the ear—
No, Mother, I'll be nice.
Though some may be some mother's joy,
And never fight and brawl,
Remember I'm the only boy
