School Activities To Be Featured

PROOF that students of the Lubbock public school system "learn to do by doing" will be offered in tangible form in the senior high school gymnasium during the next three days as patrons view the annual exhibits of the schools. The exhibits will be opened this morning at 9 o'clock and will be open to the public until 9 p. m. each day for the next three days.

The work shown in the exhibits represents the efforts of more than ,000 school children, displays being arranged in the gymnasium from every school in the city. School officials busied themselves all day Tuesday and last night arranging the display for the annual parade of visitors. Every available space in the gymnasium is taken up by the exhibits

Expect Large Crowds

R. W. Matthews, principal of the high school, estimated Tuesday that more than 10,000 people would view the exhibits during the three days in spite of the present weather conditions. Clear weather will run the total much higher, it was stated.

The exhibits run the gamut of special work from paper cutouts of the kiddies in the first grade to the neat dresses and articles of furniture made by the "sophisticated" seniors, from crude free hand drawings of the second graders to the correct and tediously drawn geometric figures and designs of the mechanical students and from the mud "daubs" of the third graders to the apparently professional clay and soap sculpture of the high school students.

Varieties Included

Other articles in the exhibits include, notebook collections, penmanship specimen, miniature houses and rooms, sewing and needle work, wood carving, map work, business correspondence, model airplanes, crayon and water color drawings, Christmas card work and stenciling, pottery work, paintings, weaving, butterfly collections, canning material, manual training and home economic articles, model airplanes, geometric figures, mechanical drawing collections and numerous other specialties.

One of the features of the lower grade exhibits is a model Indian pueblo village, made from mud. It is complete in every detail. Another is of a layout of Lubbock in 1912 in comparison with the city of today.

Relief maps, production exhibits and special notebook work are featured in higher grades.

Every citizen of Lubbock is extended an invitation to view the exhibits, Mr. Matthews said Tuesday.

Victim Declares That Her Dog Saved Her From Man And She Ran Half-Mile To Home Of Her Mother

(Special To The Avalanche)

LEVELLAND, April 28. T. H. Woods, 35-year-old farmer was charged this afternoon with atteempting to criminally assault Mrs. Claud Havens, 30, in connection with an alleged attack this morning upon the woman at her home, three miles northwest of Levelland.

Following his arraignment in justice court, Woods was removed from the county for safe keeping. Feeling was running high in Levelland at the time the man was arrested and Sheriff L. P. Williams stated that the prisoner was taken to an unannounced city in order to avoid possible mob violence.

Near A Breakdown

Although near a nervous breakdown, due to the shock and excitement accompanying the attack, Mrs. Havens confined to bed in her mother's home, managed to give officers a full account of her struggle with Woods, who lived on a nearby farm, who she said visited her home this morning while her husband was away.

Only the intervention of a pet bulldog saved her from her neighbor's advances, she said. The dog attacked the man, causing him to free her. She then ran one-half mile to her mother's home and collapsed. Her clothes were badly torn, officers said.

Asked For Matches

"I was doing some small chores around the house when the man came to the front door and asked for some matches," she told Sheriff Williams, "I told him to come around to the back door. As the matches were being handed to him, he grabbed me.

"Frantically I struggled to release myself from his grasp, but was unable to do so," the sheriff was told. "Our dog, sensing something was wrong, suddenly started after Woods. He released me to fight off the animal and I started running for my mother's home. I don't know how I ever got here."

Bruises On Body

Mrs. Havens said she bore bruises on her arms and shoulders, allegedly inflicted by her attacker.

Woods was found at his home, one mile from the place of the attack. All of the doors and windows of the house were locked and it was necessary for Sheriff Williams and his deputy to force a window to get in the residence. Woods was found hiding in a closet, according to the officers.

The accused man had lived in the community only three or four months, moving here from Littlefield.

His bond was set at $5,000 pending action of the county grand jury.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—A smiling eastern monarch and his queen tonight received the official welcome of the government and people of the United States as they stepped from a private car at union station.

House Measure Defeated When Tie Announced

Weinert Intangible Assets Tax Bill Killed After Long And Bitter Battle; Vote Totals 63 To 63

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 28. — The house late today killed the Weinert intangible assets tax bill after a long and bitter battle.

The bill was killed on a tie vote, 63 to 63. To be engrossed a bill must receive a majority.

Exciting Scenes

The bitter fight on the bill caused the most exciting scenes in the house this session with opponents resorting to all known parliamentary tricks to keep the bill from engrossment.

When the vote on engrossment first was announced, it showed the bill was engrossed, 63 to 61. Representative McCombs of Dallas, however, asked for a verification.

New Vote Is Tie

Before verification could be made, a motion was made to reconsider the vote by which the bill was engrossed. The motion prevailed and the new vote on engrossment resulted in the tie.

Representative McDougald of Beaumont then made the motion which ended the career of the bill when he moved to reconsider the vote and table the bill. This motion prevailed, 64 to 60.

Cannot Be Revived

Under the rules, the bill cannot be revived this session.

Under the Weinert bill, all corporations would have been required to pay an intangible assets tax. Corporations paying a gross receipts or sales tax would have been exempted. Partnerships and individual enterprises would not have been taxed.

A substitute by Representative Daniels of Crockett, to Levy the intangible assets tax on public utilities, tank and fruit car companies, pipe line companies, insurance companies, brokerage houses, and water, light, power and gas companies, was defeated 80 to 45. These companies would have been exempted had they paid a gross receipts tax.

The fight on the bill lasted more than five hours and was marked by bitter and acrimonious debate.

Johnson Acquitted By Jury As State Witness Is Arrested On Pro Charge

Jury Is Instructed Evidence Lacking For Conviction

HUB JOHNSON, charged by indictment with violation of the liquor laws, yesterday was acquitted in 99th district court when Judge Clark M. Mullican instructed the jury to find the defendant not guilty due to the lack of evidence.

Bob Curry, the state's chief witness in the case, was arrested immediately following his testimony in Johnson's trial and charged before Justice of the Peace H. K. Porter with possession of intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale.

Testimony Varies

Assistant District Attorney Burton S. Burks said the state was dependent upon Curry's testimony to make out a case against Johnson. The witness' testimony offered yesterday varied to such extent from the statements he made before the grand jury that it was not possible to convict Johnson upon the evidence offered, Mr. Burks said.

Johnson was arrested last month following the finding of a quantity of intoxicating liquor in a gin at Slaton, where Curry was caretaker. Curry disclaimed ownership of the contraband supply, officers said. A. H. Beasley, now at liberty under bond awaiting the outcome of an appeal from a three years' sentence received upon conviction of a liquor law violation, was implicated with Johnson in the ownership of the whisky by Curry, officers said.

Implicates Beasley

In his testimony yesterday Curry stated that the liquor belonged to

He was 7 feet, 6 inches tall and weighed 578 pounds. He wore size 24 shoes and a tent-like coat estimated as size 70.

When he was taken ill and ordered to the hospital no ordinary stretcher would carry him. A makeshift was built of four-inch joists and sailcloth. Eight internes shouldered it.

In the hospital he occupied two beds placed side by side and reinforced with underpinning. The mattresses were sewed together, and he was outfitted in special garments.

Finch was 28 and died of uremia. He earned $12.50 a day parading before a shoe store with his "sandwich." He came to New York from Bellton, Ga.

Roosevelt Declares Evidence Is Not Justifiable

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 28.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt today dismissed the charges on which the city affairs committee asked him to oust Mayor James J. Walker from office.

JIMMY WALKER

He said it was a fundamental principle of the state government that the people of the various communities elect their own officials. The greatest caution should be exercised, he declared, before the governor interfered "to annul the deliberate decision of the voters."

The mayor was accused of condoning incompetence and of encouraging corruption. The formal charges were filed March 18 by the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, chairman and vice chairman of the city affairs committee.

Say Mayor Culpable

"Legally as well as morally," they said, "the mayor is culpable for the corruption of his subordinates, the breakdown of his departments of government, the collapse of law and order and the prevalence of low standards of public life under his administration."

The governor held that when charges are based on the actions of subordinates it must "clearly appear" that the acts complained of were known to the mayor and that he failed to stop them.

Makes No Comment

News of the governor's decision reached Mayor Walker as he was presiding at a meeting of the board of estimate.

"I have no comment to make at this moment," he said. "This does not preclude me from making some comment at another time."

Then he rapped his desk with his

Ten Others Seriously Injured As Result Of Explosion Which Turns Well Into Funeral Pyre

Five Of Injured Expected To Die While Bodies Of Dead Are Laying About Scene Of Tragedy, Rescuers Prevented From Retrieving Them By Wall Of Flame Over 250 Feet High

(By The Associated Press)

GLADEWATER, Texas, April 28.—Six men were killed late today when the wild Sinclair No. 1 Cole oil well, two miles from here, exploded from a spark caused by friction.

Ten others were injured, five probably fatally. Most of the injured were removed to a hospital at Longview.

Unable To Give Account

Tom Cole, part owner of the well, was burned so seriously he could not give an accurate account of just how the explosion was caused.

He said he saw a spark caused by the friction of lowering tools into the well, turned to run for his life but got only a few feet away before the force of the explosion swept him to the ground, searing his back and head.

Bodies Lay About

Tonight the bodies still lay about the flaming pyre, with all available ambulances employed in removing the injured men to Gladewater and Longview.

While the wild well tonight shot a column of flame 250 feet into the air and was far out of control, Gladewater was not endangered, nor was there another well nearer than a mile away.

Derrick Is Burned

A derrick being used in sinking a well 600 feet away was burned, however, mute evidence of the intensity of the heat generated by the flaming gusher.

Tonight's casualties ran the death list in the flush new East Texas field to twenty-three within the past ten days. The other eleven having been killed in a series of fires and explosions.

Brought In Monday

The well was brought in unexpectedly early yesterday, a gusher of an estimated capacity of 30,000 barrels a day, and out of control from the instant the black gold spouted over the top of the derrick.

A disaster was averted only narrowly even then. Oil field roustabouts dashed for engines and quenched flames and no fire had been lighted since.

Caused By Friction

For a time gas spread over such a wide expanse that tank builders waiting to erect containers for the spouting oil could approach no nearer than a quarter of a mile. With the valuable oil spouting wildly over the ground, an effort was made late today to curb the gusher. The drilling crew was making an effort to regain tools left in the hole when the oil began to flow. In the effort a spark somehow was caused by friction.

Two levels of oil sands had been drilled through and the crew had not expected to strike oil at the level at which the drill stem was biting into the nether regions.

No List Compiled

A reliable list of the dead could not be compiled tonight in the chaos about the burning well. Only by a process of elimination could the casualty list be established and there was far too much immediate work for the weary oil field workers and supervisors to turn to that task.

Checking with Sinclair company officials, however, produced this list of known dead:

Roy Blankenship, Seminole, Oklahoma.

George Albright, Oklahoma City.

Virgil Woltz, Oklahoma City.

Bill Harroun, Oklahoma City.

Bob Murdock, Oklahoma City.

W. H. McClassin, jr., Winona, Oklahoma.

The bodies of Blankenship, Albright and Woltz were identified at

Fire Horrors Described By Eye Witness

(By Associated Press)

LONGVIEW, April 28.—Claude Sizemore, an eyewitness to the Sinclair No. 1 Cole well disaster near Gladewater today to smother the flames. Still he gave a vivid picture of what happened tonight. Sizemore had just returned to the well with dry clothes, or he, too, would have perished with his fellow workmen. He had just changed his clothes at his home, nearby, and returned to the well when the flames burst forth and enveloped workmen whose clothes were saturated with oil.

"The fire came so quickly there was no way of telling exactly how it started," he said. "The flames shot hundreds of feet into the air, and reached out after everything. I had just stepped from my car and had approached within 50 feet of the well.

"Three men who were upon the derrick jumped for their lives. There were agonized cries as fire seared the bodies of humans. So intense was the heat that I am certain many of those who perished never knew what happened."

Sizemore said that as he turned to run from the fire he saw a human torch streaking toward him.

"There comes a poor devil afire," shouted my brother, who had driven up with me. I saw one of the men who had evidently leaped from the derrick. He was ablaze from head to foot. Just before he reached us he collapsed. I pulled my heavy leather coat from my back and wrapped it about the man. My brother took his coat off and we rolled the burning man trying to smother the flames. Still re burned. We scooped up dirt in an effort to extinguish the fire, but found he was dead.

"Back at the blazing well there was a terrible scene of death. Workman who had been trapped by the sudden conflagration were being dragged away from the roaring blaze and within the burning heap could be seen blackened bodies."

Prosecuting attorney R. D. Smith did not oppose the dismissal motion.

Cazort and Drew were accused of offering former County Judge John S. Sheffield $1,500 to withdraw from the primary contest last summer in favor of another candidate.

Young Hoover, grinning boyishly as he took a cigaret just before the train pulled in, seemed possessed of ordinary health. His naturally slender frame gave evidence of his recent illness, but his step was firm and his manner sprightly.

Three Culture Clubs Of City Are In Meetings Tuesday Afternoon

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

SO FAR, rural women are to be heard from in this campaign to provide them with some flowers from city gardens, but in this short time, two calls have come from town. Mrs. M. C. McCrummen, 1808 Avenue Q, 'phoned in to say she has some larkspur she will be glad to divide and Mrs. Herbert Stubbs, 2003 28th street, whose telephone number is 361-J, has called to say that she has winter daisies to divide.

These daisies make an ideal low hedge and they are a mass of bloom late in the fall when most of the other flowers are gone, she pointed out. They grow almost as easily as weeds, requiring practically no care. If anyone has something to exchange, Mrs. Stubbs will be glad to do this, but she will be just as glad to give her daisies to those who do not have any.

Something else came to me today as a result of the appeal that was sent out on Tuesday morning.

"This is just a suggestion," a voice called in, "but in this exchange you might not limit it to flowers. For years I have grown many flowers and have given them away every spring to others who did not have any but it is seldom that anyone has given anything in return," she continued.

"Now, I am purposely refraining from advertising my flowers in the column because of the time that it takes to dig them up and divide them. I have a large family and it takes most of my time to care for them. People frequently ask me for plants because I have so many each year and I am glad to divide but flowers are not the only things that people have in abundance and can pass on to others."

Her suggestion is that some of the farm women may have things that they want to exchange for these flowers — home-grown products that city women are usually denied.

It was simply a suggestion that I am passing on as it came from one of the women in this town.

This rain is going to get more people out into their yards in a few days and make transplanting of flowers easy. This is the time to help in getting flowers started around every home, rural and city.

RULES FOR GLOVES

LONGER and plainer is the costume catchword for gloves this spring, according to a current note. The new gloves, simple in design, are worn approximately three and one-half inches above the wrist with suits and almost elbow length with frocks. Slip-ons are a favorite. Black gloves are worn with bright frocks under black coats, beige or brown with brown and grey or beige with navy blue.

SEEKING PROMOTION

ONE OF the most pernicious myths that handicap those who aspire to high positions is the belief that really successful people of the world are super-men and super-women, according to Edward A. Keene who writes in The Independent Woman, magazine of the Business and Professional Women's club. And then he adds that those who have attained high posts have done so with straight thinking, hard work and good health in proper proportions.

He thinks that women win high positions with these qualifications and not merely with luck or chance and that, because business is passing through some of the most basic changes, women who carefully study the changing trends and avoid traditional thinking will have a definite advantage over those who fail to follow this movement, whether their competitors are men or women in the quest for higher places.

THE MODERN WAY

MODERN educators are giving more and more thought to the needs of individual children in school systems rather than attempting to adapt every child in the system to sets of rules, and a talk made by Dr. Charles B. Davenport, director of the department of genetics of the Carnegie institution of Washington, before sessions of the American Philosophical society in Philadelphia is in keeping with this trend.

He presented a new set of growth tables showing that individual children have different growth curves so that some of them are not going to fit into the general scheme of the school, because "when a child is growing four, five or six inches in a year, it is quite probable that he is in a peculiar physical and nervous condition compared with his time of slower growth. Yet the growth is likely to occur at a time when physical and mental demands are made upon him most heavily," he pointed out, saying that it is a question whether some special consideration should be given to a child during his fast growing period.

The Annual School Exhibit

LUBBOCK public schools are on "dress parade" today, tomorrow and Friday, featuring the annual exhibit of work done by students. The exhibit is not only the public's chance to check up on class-room activities of pupils, but is also the average citizen's opportunity to learn something of the scope of modern, public instruction. Every man and woman interested in children, in education and in Lubbock should view the exhibit at least once.

Public education, from the primary grades through advanced courses at Texas Tech, is one of Lubbock's principal bids for home-makers—if not the chief attraction to those who would establish permanent residence here. The school system is more than an organization of student bodies, faculties and buildings—it is a vital force in the growth and advancement of the community, and as such demands close attention of the public at large.

Out at the high school building—not the new high school but the one which has been in use for the last decade—will be found samples of work done by Lubbock children from the first grade through the many classes offered in senior high. Even the well-informed will be surprised at the many types of exhibits and at the degree of proficiency displayed by the students. No matter how educated an onlooker may be, he will learn something at this exhibit and The Morning Avalanche includes in that category even the Tech faculty member boasting the largest number of academic degrees.

The high school gymnasium will be open to visitors from 9 o'clock on each of the three mornings, until 9 o'clock each evening. As an improvement over the exhibit last year, the various displays from every school are grouped in one auditorium with student and faculty guides to explain the features of each. It is not necessary this year to make the rounds of all the buildings—an exhausting experience undergone in the spring of 1930. Everything has been arranged for the comfort and satisfaction of the patron who needs but to present himself at the gymnasium to see the wonders education is working right in Lubbock.

Students and teachers have worked painstakingly to make the exhibit successful. No stone has been left unturned until today the stage is set for the city-wide audience.

See the display—take time enough to study it. To do so will give any onlooker a deeper insight into where school taxes are going, a deeper pride in being a citizen of the community.

Very few of the autos left at home on a bright Sunday afternoon are able to run at all.

Dreams may be suppressed wishes, as Freud says, but who ever wished the devil would chase him?

Practical Health Problems

TALENT AND HEREDITY

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine).

It is widely believed that talent is inherited and that the children of people of great talent are likely also to possess talent.

Already newspapers report that the daughter of Ziegfeld and Billie Burke has appeared on the stage and it is said that the daughter of Caruso is taking singing lessons.

There seems to be much evidence to support the belief that special capacity in music is inborn. The special evidence is the fact that some of the great geniuses have shown this talent very early in life. As cited by Popenoe, Bach composed music before he was 15 years old, Beethoven at 10, Brahms at 10, Chopin at 8, Handel at 10 and Haydn at 6. The genius Cesar Franck appeared as a virtuoso at 11, Josef Hofmann at 7, Menuhin at 5, and Zimbalist at 8. Apparently music is one of the first of the special talents to make itself manifest in the child.

Painting, poetry or sculpturing is likely to be manifest as a special talent somewhat later. Popenoe believes that this is for the reason that music is essentially a primitive art. The recognition of pitch is, of course, a matter of having what is called "musical ear." The musician must also have an instinct for style and order and his emotions must be stirred by music.

There are some psychologists who insist that great interest in music is the response to an inferiority complex having to do with hearing, but the evidence hardly seems to be sufficient to warrant this belief. Practically all authorities on heredity now agree that musicality must be regarded as inborn, because it existed in the ancestry.

If the ancestors of the child were not musical, little is to be gained by keeping it constantly at lessons. "Whether a child is or is not qualified to profit by musical instructions," says Popenoe, "can be determined easily enough by standard tests." There is no special reason why a child should spend many hours at a piano stool drudging with forearm and finger movements in order to develop the amount of music appreciation that is necessary for culture.

Whereas the talent for music is fairly frequent, the talent for art is much more rare. Out of a school population of 200,000 studied in California, only 50 were found particularly promising in art, and these were found, so far as their general intellect was concerned, of rather mediocre capacity.

It is not certain to just what extent ability in art runs in families. On the other hand, there are plenty of simple tests which make it possible to determine whether or not the child has any talent at drawing. When such tests are used, children with special ability and talent can be encouraged and those who have no special ability may be given art appreciation without spending numerous hours on a technic which they can never successfully use.

Goodwill Is Forecast

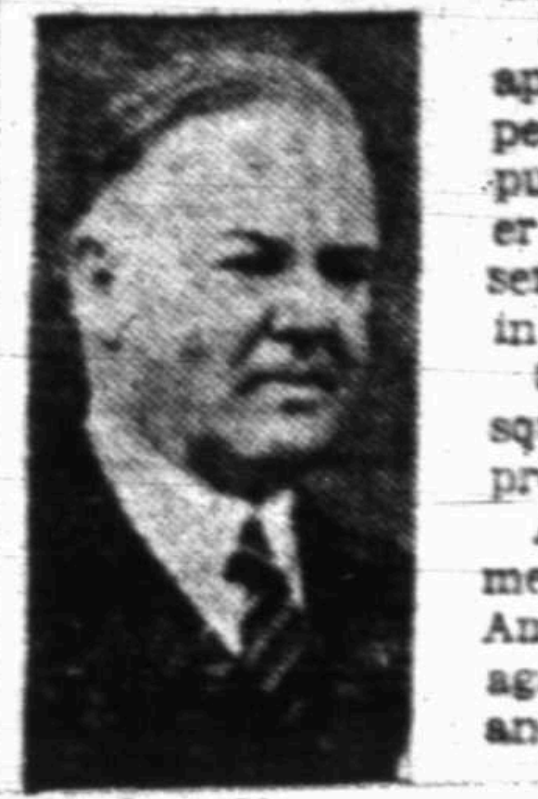
BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President Hoover's Nicaraguan policy is not at all what might have been expected from his general type of administration.

Spokesmen for American concerns with large Nicaraguan holdings are saying so with extreme bitterness, anyway.



Herbert Hoover

It is true, Mr. Hoover never has appeared to be particularly imperialistic. In fact, he has said publicly that he does not consider marines very desirable representatives of the United States in foreign countries.

Still, it is big business which is squawking for more of them to protect its interests in Nicaragua.

And the washington government curtly refuses to guarantee American investments abroad against the risks of local disturbances.

One may agree with the president that it is not Uncle Sam's duty to safeguard American's property rights in Nicaragua any more than in England or France, for example, and that it is the obligation of Americans who are in danger in the Nicaraguan interior, and want to be saved, to make for the coast, where warships can rescue them without too much difficulty.

Or one may argue that the United States owes it to its citizens to land enough leathernecks to police the entire republic in the present emergency, as well to prevent trespassing on a fruit company's plantations as to insure its employes against personal violence.

The fact remains that the Hoover policy of respecting Nicaraguan sovereignty is calculated to create more good will toward this country, throughout Latin America, than any president of the United States has adopted since the Monroe Doctrine first began to be twisted to suit the convenience of Washington statesmen, in disregard of Latin American sensibilities in connection with it.

Perhaps Mr. Hoover has this in mind; perhaps not.

In either case, on the strength of several years' residence in the new world's Latin republics and quite a close acquaintance with their inhabitants, I will say that that will be the effect of it.

The folk of the stronger, more southerly countries of the western hemisphere, such as Brazil, Argentina and Chile, have not, to be sure, much in common with those of the extreme north, regarding them (except the Cubans) about as we do here—that is to say, as rather trifling, turbulent and irresponsible.

Nevertheless, they do instantly resent the slightest shake of the formidable North American armed fist in the direction of any of their number—even Haiti or Santo Domingo.

It is not unnatural, either.

The United States is too large and powerful a neighbor to be safe, and whenever Washington threatens any one of the southern peoples all the others realize that it might be any one of the rest of them. Moreover, a threat from the United States, intended for one of the southern coterie, is not a threat of a fight but a spanking, which is undignified.

And there have been quite a few such threats—and some fulfillments.

Of course Latin dislike is no military peril to Uncle Sam, but it simply is ruinous to the development of his commercal relations with the Latins.

Latin America probably never meant much to President Coolidge; less to President Harding. President Wilson's administration actually provoked anti-Yankee riots south of the equator.

President Hoover has been there. He gives evidences of an enlightened understanding of the Latin American psychology.

Secretary of State Stimson is thoroughly familiar with Nicaragua, especially. He served as mediator between the warring Nicaraguan factions just before his appointment to the governor generalship of the Philippines, which, in turn, preceded his promotion to cabinet rank.

Their policy has all the earmarks of intelligent cerebration—if only they can stick to it in the face of the outcry for a campaign in the jungle in defense of the banana trade.

BEHAVIOR AND MARRIAGE

Wisely and profoundly, a noted psychologist announces:

"The mystery of marriage has been broken down. We must have a new kind of ethics, based on a scientific study of human behavior, as a way to more simple marital relations."

Utterly wisely and profoundly, yes, but what does it mean? Certainly not that the ways into and out of matrimony should be further simplified. If either is to be made much easier, the accurate description will not be marriage but temporary association.

It is a very old-fashioned view, and probably easily refuted in this day by eminent psychologists and sociologists, but there is something to be said for the theory that what is needed is not so much study of human behavior, for the purpose of fitting marriage to it, as study of marriage for the purpose of fitting human behavior to it.

It is not a light thing for a man and a woman to give themselves to each other and it is still less a light thing for them to bring children into the world. Those who assume the responsibility should be willing to apply a little sandpaper to their habits and conduct that they may fit well into their new position in life.

Love usually comes into being as a wild flower. Unless those who find the treasure care enough to tend and nurture and domesticate it, its life will be the brief one of most wild things. Properly cherished, it may acquire hues of deep and rare beauty never found in the wild state. And after all the "rights" one surrender at the portals of matrimony are more precious in the dispossession than in the possession.

"COLUMNITIS" AND GOOD TASTE

American architecture, according to a leading architect, is suffering from a disease which may be called "Columnitis". Rows and rows of columns, particularly in Washington, he says, are camouflage for hideous buildings. Common sense, he adds is the secret of success in all the arts.

Lasting beauty is characterized by simplicity, and good taste always avoids the ornate and extravagant. The most attractive homes are those so skillfully designed that they fit in natural surroundings as though the whole were made in one piece. There is little that is ornate or extravagant in nature.

Simplicity as a symbol of good taste, however, is not monopolized by the arts. It is applicable to dress, manners and language. The extravagantly dressed person usually attracts attention but makes a bad impression. Compare the officious politeness of a moving picture Spaniard with the unassuming conduct of a well bred friend. Orators and poets understand that things are said best briefly in words all understand. Good taste is a valuable possession.

A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY + by MILES BURTON

READ THIS FIRST:

The famous Hardway diamonds are stolen and a gang led by a person called the Funny Toff, who no one has seen, but who is identified by his maniacal laughter at the scenes of his crimes is suspected. Inspector Brooks is first put on the trail, but his body is returned in a packing case to Sir Edric Conway, police commissioner. Young Dick Penhampton, who is in love with pretty Alison Weatheleigh, is put on the trail and at midnight discovers the body of one Thomas Herridge, a rival gangster. One of the diamonds has been placed on the dead man's chest. Dick and Detective Pollard seem to lose all clues. Dick finally asks Sir Edric to make an examination of the packing case in which Brooks' body was returned. Dick discovers a piece of mud in the case from Brooks' shoe. Upon being analyzed, the discovery is made it probably comes from a lonely hill country known as the Mendips. Dick pays the locality a visit to investigate some old lead mine workings. In the hills, Dick discovers an abandoned old mining building belonging to a lead mining syndicate. Summoned home by a telegram signed Alison, Dick learns next morning that Mr. Ibbotson's house has been robbed of some famous rubies. The police question the servants.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 28

The butler, whose name was Burke, appeared at the sergeant's summons. He was an elderly man, and his face bore traces of pitiable horror and alarm. Pollard received him kindly and told him to sit down. "Now then, Burke, tell us what you know about the business."

Burke complied in a long and rather rambling statement. He had gone to bed soon after eleven the previous night, having locked up as usual. It was his custom to lock the pantry door, but to leave the key in the lock. When he came down stairs in the morning, the first thing he noticed was that the pantry door was open. This did not at first astonish him, as he supposed that one of the other servants had had occasion to go in for something. It was his intention to spend the morning polishing the plate, and for that purpose he took out the key of the safe and inserted it in the lock. He then discovered that the safe was already unlocked, and, on opening it, he found that the case containing the rubies was missing. Without saying anything to anybody in the house, he immediately telephoned to police.

These were the main facts in his statement, disentangled from a mass of repetition and irrelevant detail. Pollard, from his experience of men, had very little doubt that he was telling the truth. However, he proceeded to question him minutely. In reply to his question, certain other facts were elicited.

Mr. and Mrs. Ibbotson were the only regular occupants of the house with the exception of five servants. Their four sons and daughters were married, and though they frequently came to stay, none of them had done so within the preceding ten days. On the previous afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Ibbotson had driven down to their eldest son's house in Surrey, to spend a couple of nights. Before they left, Mr. Ibbotson had told Burke that he had received a telephone message which might make it necessary for him to return to London that night, but that Burke need not wait up for him. Mr. and Mrs. Ibbotson were frequently out at night until very late. It was the rule of the house, that, unless they ordered otherwise, the household went to bed. Mr. Ibbotson had a latch-key, with which he could let himself in. Burke, knowing of Mr. Ibbotson's possible return the previous night, had not bolted the front door.

The safe had two keys. One was in the possession of Mr. Ibbotson, the other Burke carried on a bunch with the keys of the cellar and other departments in his charge. Burke had slept with this key under his pillow and was absolutely certain that it had not been used to open the safe.

At this point the sergeant was called from the room, to return with an important air. He whispered something in Pollards' ear. "All right, Burke, that will do for the present," he said. And when Burke had left the room: "Now then, sergeant, I'll see your man."

A constable of C Division was ushered in, and with a few curt questions Pollard elicited his story. He had been on duty in Park Lane the previous night, and at about twelve-thirty he had seen a man let himself into Number 321 with a latch-key. He had taken no particular notice, as there was nothing unusual in such an event. However, hearing of the burglary, he had thought it his duty to report the matter.

The man had arrived in a large car, which had immediately driven off. He had not noticed its number. He had not caught sight of the man's face, but was sure that he was in evening dress. He was tall, and was wearing a dark coat and an opera hat. The man had entered the house and shut the door behind him. The constable had subsequently moved on, and had seen nobody leave the house.

Pollard nodded. This confirmed the suspicion he had already formed. He spent the next hour in interviewing the remainder of the servants, without learning anything of much interest. He found no grounds for believing that any of them were in league with the burglar.

He had barely completed his task

Cannon Looms As President

Rotation Rule Of College Of Bishops Places Virginian Next In Line; Circulation Petition Rumored

NASHVILLE TENN., April 28. (AP)—Two members of the college of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, were on record today that Bishop James J. Cannon, Jr., would become the next president of the body unless a four year old rule of rotation is ignored.

Bishop John M. Moore, secretary of the college, said he "would not attempt to say what 16 bishops will do," but unless the rule is broken the Virginian was slated for election at the meeting here May 1-3.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth said in Birmingham Friday that "so far as I know Bishop Cannon's turn as president of the college will be taken in regular order."

Both Bishop Ainsworth and Bishop Moore denied knowledge of the circulation of any petition among Methodist laymen against Cannon's election.

The Bristol, Va., Herald Courier said Friday morning on authority of an unnamed "leading Methodist layman" that such a petition was in circulation, and that it also protested the recent action of 12 elders of the church in clearing the bishop's character of charges that were never made public.

Premium Is Offered On Dumas County Weddings

DUMAS, April 28. (AP)—There is a premium on marriage in Moore county.

Not a single marriage certificate has been issued by the Moore county clerk during 1931. So worried are residents of this city that the Moore County News is sponsoring a "shower" of household necessities to encourage someone to get married—"by June anyway."

The News editor proposes to buy the license; any minister in Dumas will perform the ceremony, and merchants are donating a long list of merchandise.

Dumas marriages are generally performed at Clayton, N. M.

They Play Here On Night Of May 8

With whiskers and hair varying from 10 inches to three and one-half inches, the above believers and baseball players, the original House of David club, will be here Friday night, May 8, to meet a local club in an exhibition game. Right shows Grover Cleveland Alexander, former big league pitcher and at present playing manager of the club, who will direct the team against the local aggregation. The latter is managed by W. L. "Crip" Golightly, Texas Tech mentor.

"Old Pete" To Bring Real Baseball Team For Exhibition Contest Here

Lubbock and the South Plains are due an unusual treat in the way of athletic entertainment when Grover Cleveland "Old Pete" Alexander brings his House of David baseball club here for a game on Friday night, May 8. The original House of David team, under new management but with the same long whiskers and unshorn locks, introduces to this area the first night game out of doors seen here and the first night baseball game seen on West Texas Plains.

Aside from being the only baseball club to carry a portable lighting system capable of illuminating a diamond for night as well as for day play, the House of David club is one of the best semi-pro teams in the nation so far as playing ability is concerned. Some of the greatest all round ball players outside of the major leagues are included on the House of David roster, the most famous of all traveling ball clubs.

Heckman, star first sacker, is the Babe Ruth of the club. Last season he hit .421. Williams, the greatest second baseman in independent baseball and Faust, shortstop, make one of the fastest double play combinations outside of organized baseball. Harrison, star third baseman, has hair 36 inches long and there are very few third sackers even in the major leagues who have anything on this lad. Moore, left fielder; Hipp, center fielder, and Lafluer, right make a trio of as classy an outfield as most any manager would care to have. They are good hitters and capable flyhawks.

Coach W. L. "Crip" Golightly, of Texas Tech basketball fame, is gathering a club of college baseball players, some of them having seen service with Tech college teams in past years before the game was abandoned here because of the brevity of the season. The Matador mentor states that his team will be fully prepared to meet the be-whiskered ones in a tough battle.

Hubanks was alleged to have transported Miss Stella Gibson, 19, formerly of Oklahoma City, from Los Angeles to Deming, N. M.

NEW YORK, April 28. (AP)—E. C. Lufkin resigned today as a director of the Texas Corp. and the Texas Co., and R. Ogarrio, a vice president in charge of production, was elected to succeed him. The resignation of Mr. Lufkin followed the annual meeting. Officers of both companies were re-elected.

The NUT CRACKER

BY COL. JOE O'GOOFTY
Former Editor of "Fairway Bunions"

NEW YORK, April 28. — I have just seen the slow moving pictures that show the golf strokes of Bobby Jones and Joyce Wethered. It seems to me that the films play a pretty good joke on the professional golf instructors.

The golf pros for years have been telling dub golfers how Bobby Jones and Joyce Wethered crack their wrists when making a swing, and the pictures show they don't crack their wrists that way at all. For my own part, I never have been bothered by the cracking of wrists on the golf course, though Wilbert Robinson once caused me to take four putts by cracking his chewing gum on the green.

The theory of the cocked wrists seems to me unimportant, anyway. Most golfers have a way of going off half-cocked. As far as the straight left arm is concerned, most golf clubs will suffer you to bend either elbow a little at the 19th hole, provided you are not the noisy type.

The technique of iron play, as taught by the pros, was only partly right, it seems. Most people don't need instruction in iron shots anyway, as I never have heard of an iron shot being served to anybody, though I often have drunk concrete. In our house, it happens that Mrs. O'Goofty does all the iron-throwing.

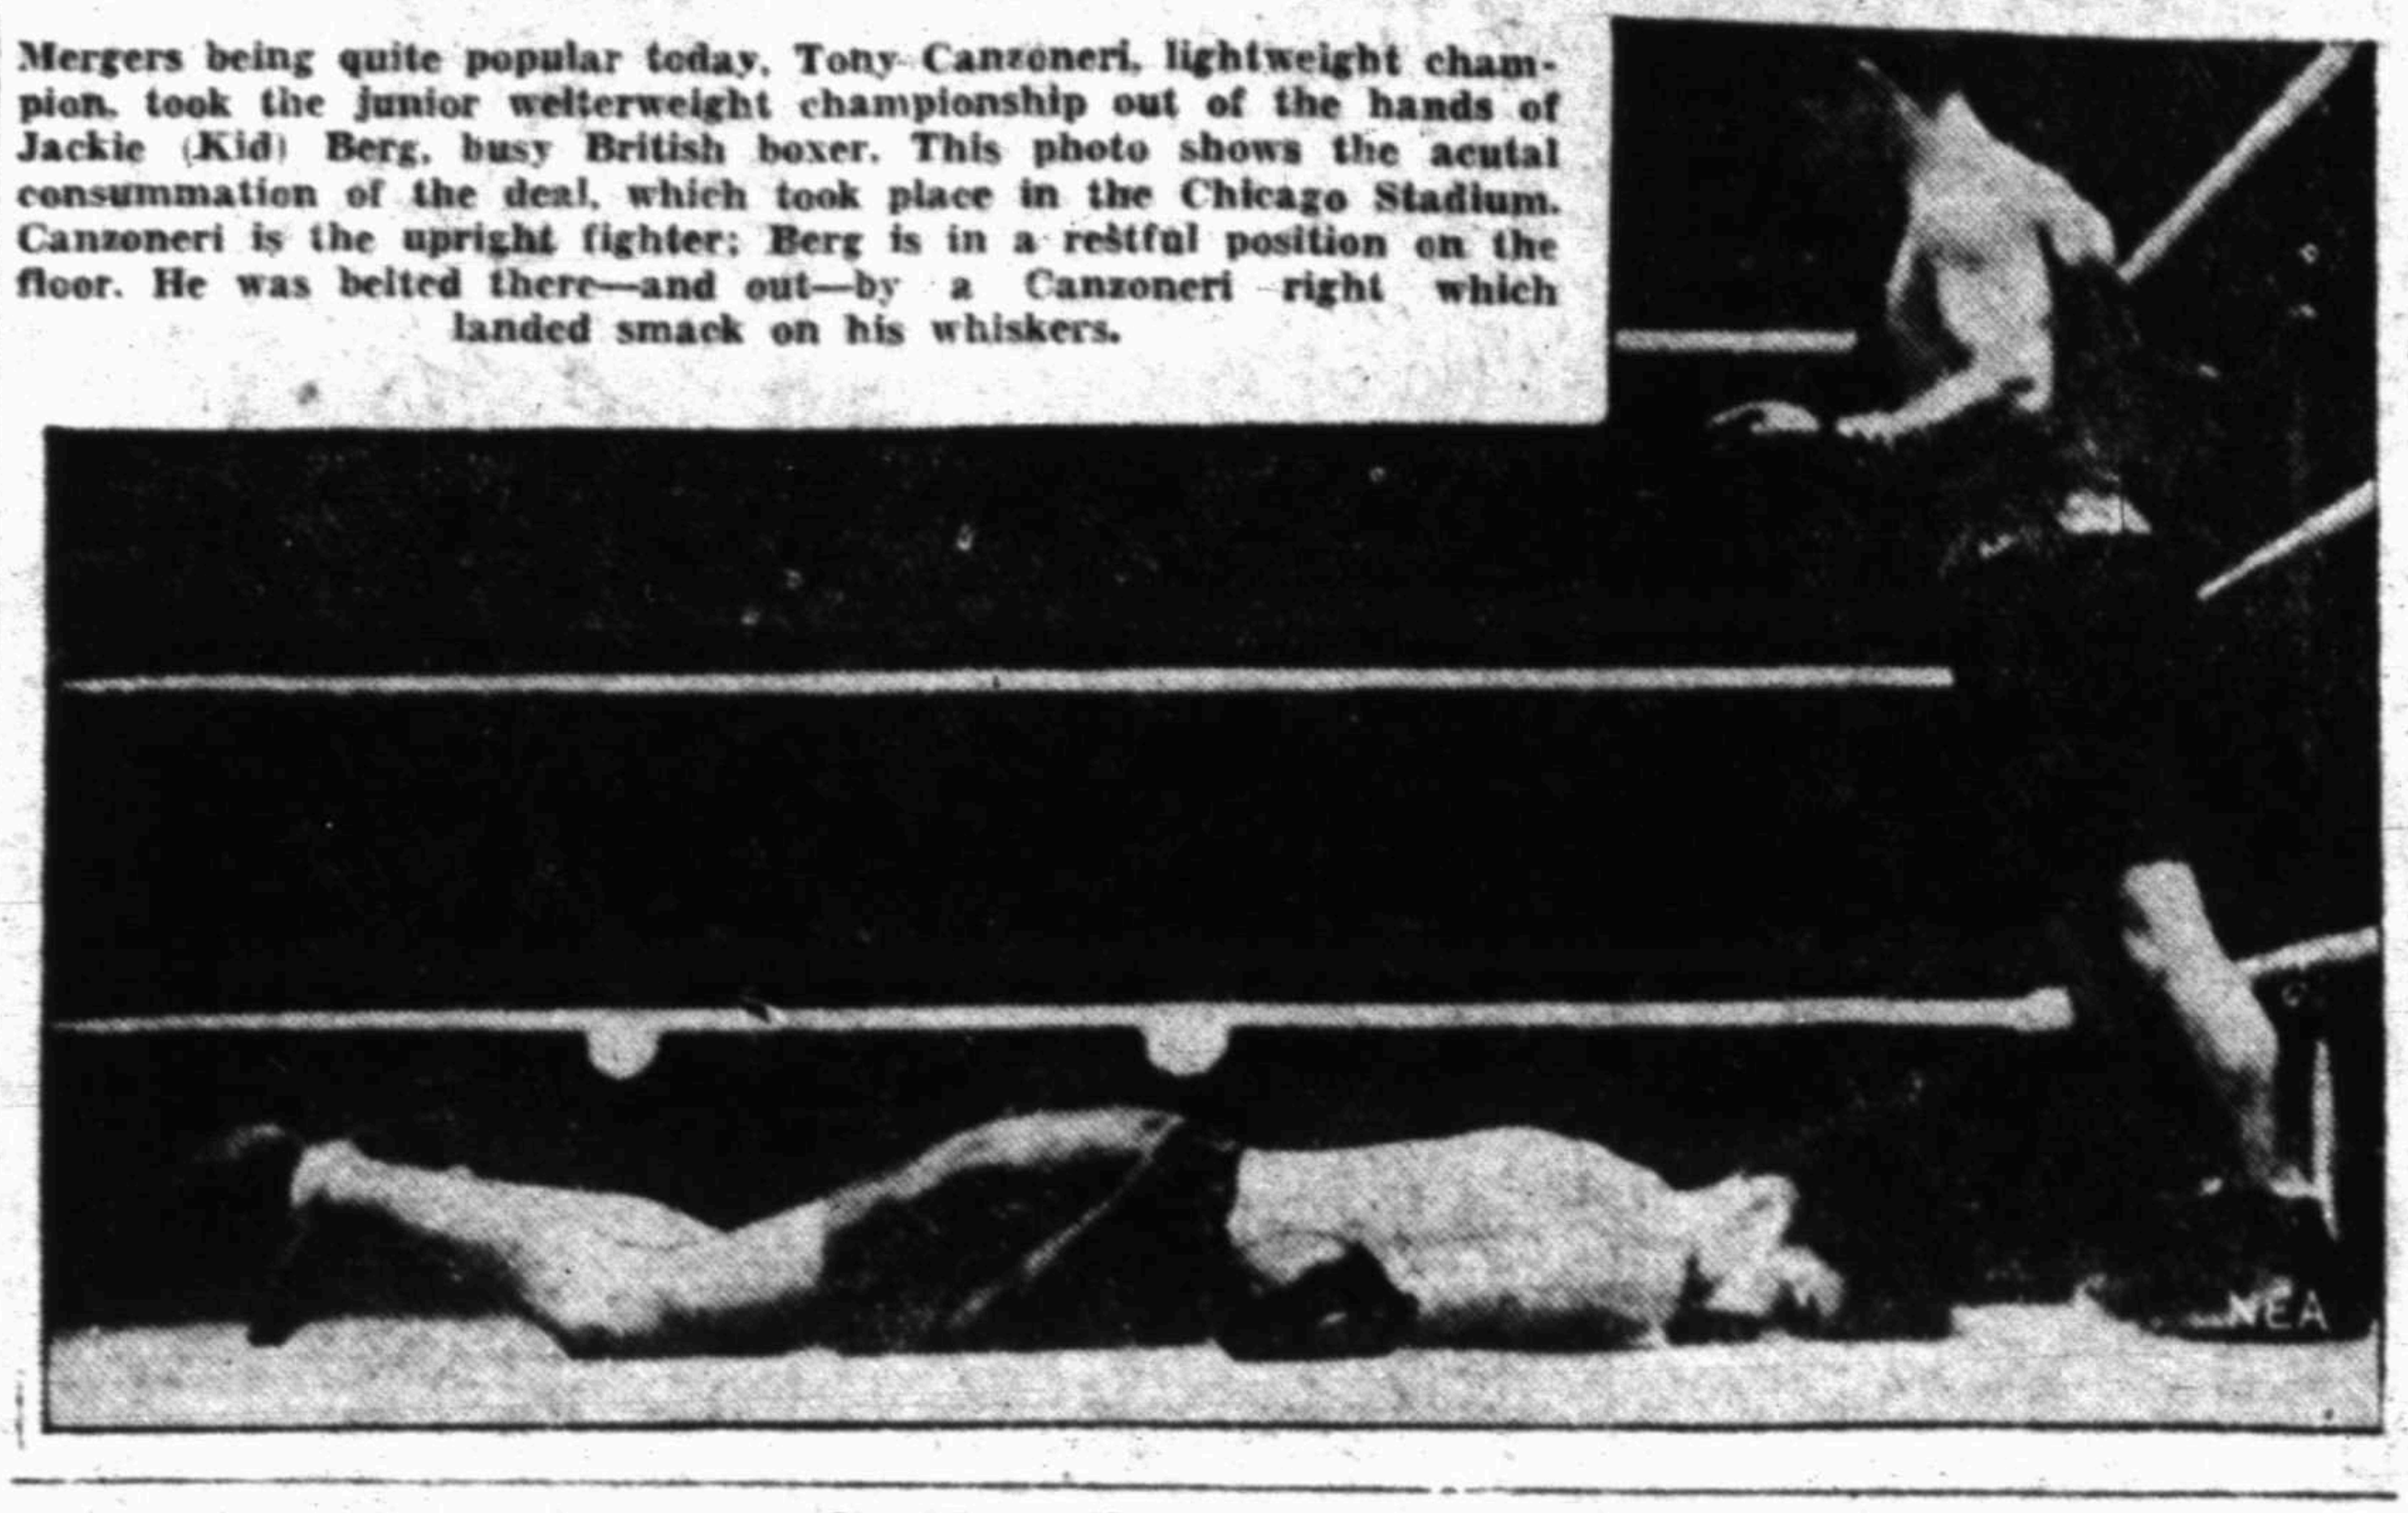
When Tony Canzoneri Merged Two Championships



Mergers being quite popular today, Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, took the junior welterweight championship out of the hands of Jackie (Kid) Berg, busy British boxer. This photo shows the acutal consummation of the deal, which took place in the Chicago Stadium. Canzoneri is the upright fighter; Berg is in a restful position on the floor. He was belted there—and out—by a Canzoneri right which landed smack on his whiskers.

Women Golfers Joust In Rain

Mrs. Chandler, Medalist, In Big Win As First Round Is Held In Texas Women's Meet At San Antonio

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

COUNTRY CLUB, SAN ANTONIO, April 28. (AP) — More than 100 women braved a driving rain here today to compete in the first matches of the fifteenth annual Texas Woman's Golf association state tournament. All finished their 18-hole treks wringing wet.

Although the Greens were soaked and the fairways offered uncertain footing, good matches featured the initial round. Not since the qualifying round opened Monday have the golfers enjoyed ideal playing weather.

Shaking off the rain as well as the tradition that nothing but ill luck can come to a medalist once the matches start, Mrs. Dan Chandler of Dallas, who Monday scored an 86 to win the qualifying round, defeated Mrs. H. E. Nelson, Port Arthur, five and four. Mrs. Chandler made the nine turn two up and rapidly increased her lead on the back line. Mrs. Nelson experienced trouble on the greens, requiring three putts several times.

In tomorrow's round Mrs. Chandler will play Mrs. Ruth Hunter, Dallas, who eliminated one of the outstanding contenders today, Mrs. S. G. Hopkins, Texarkana, 3 and 2. Mrs. Hunter played splendid golf through the first nine to take a four up lead. She found the heavy greens to her liking, going down a number of times with one putt. Mrs. Hunter is one of the longest drivers in the tournament and the battle between these two tomorrow will probably feature the championship bracket.

Sailor Boy And Big Italian To Meet In Fifteen Rounds But Not For Title

NEW YORK, April 28. (AP)—Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera will fight 15 rounds at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, June 10, legal entanglements and weather permitting, but it will not be for the New York Athletic commission's heavyweight championship of the world.

The commission today gave its blessing to the proposed meeting of the sailor and the ponderous Italian but withheld title recognition.

The explanation given by Chairman James A. Farley was that no request had been made for title recognition.

Farley indicated the matter might be considered at a later date, leaving the way open for the commission to designate the winner as champion if it desired.

The commission obstacle safely hurdled James J. Johnston, promoter of the fight, now has only to worry about the threatened suit by Madison Square Garden, a subsidiary of which holds a contract with Carnera calling for him to meet the winner of the Schmeling-Young Stribling fight, scheduled for Cleveland, July 3.

The commission chairman also spoke rather heatedly concerning the published charge that politics had entered into the case and that Carnera had been reinstated and the match given to Johnston because of the latter's Tammany hall connections.

Jim Poole, home run king of the Southern association, has been traded to the Reading club of the International league.

HRILLING MYSTERY STORY • by MILES BURTON

r. Ibbotson arrived, having post-haste back from Sur- reply to a telephone mes- om Burke. He was natural- much perturbed, and it took me for Pollard to soothe him ntly to enable him to ans- estions coherently.

sure you'll give every as- you can, Mr. Ibbotson," he "In the first place, may I ere you keep your key of ?"

never leave these keys suppose?" sugested Pollard.

r!" replied Mr. Ibbotson ically. "I may say that the the safe has never been out possession since I have had one exception, for a very me, that is," he added as an ought.

I ask what this ocasion inquired Pollard.

it was of no importance. My d I were at the Eros—it's a lub, as you probably know— ptember. The 24th it was, I ber the date, because it is niversary of our wedding- Ve had been dancing, and ve got back to our table, I ed to put my hand in my and found that the keys missing. I told the manager place and the keys were under one of the tables when ce was cleaned up. They ave fallen out when I was g, and got kicked aside. The ent them back to me next g. I remember that we had to get into the house that We had to knock up poor ke and it took a devil of a wake him."

don't suspect Burke of had any part in the st night, do you sir?" Pol- ked.

? No fear! I'd trust him verything I possess," replied botson decisively.

, sir, to turn to another mat- continued Pollard. "Burke in- me that you had a telephone st before you left yesterday. you mind telling me the na- it?"

ainly. One of my solicitor's rang up and told me that flaw was suspected in the title he property which I am pur- g. The purchase was to be ed today and the matter herefore rather urgent. He to know if I could go round office at ten this morning. I m that I was bound to take e down to Surrey, but if the was really urgent, I would here that night. He replied his suspicions of a flaw were ned, he would telephone to my sons's house yesterday g. If he did not telephone, I take it that everything was . Since he did not telephone, not trouble to come back."

re you acquainted with the voice, Mr. Ibbotson?" in- Pollard.

, I can't say that I was, I usually deal with my solicitor himself."

"Would you mind ringing up your solicitor, and asking him if such a message was ever sent?"

Mr. Ibbotson agreed and left the room. His place was taken by the man from the safe manufacturers, who, after a brief inspection, declared that the safe had been opened by a perfectly-fitting key. Mr. Ibbotson then returned, with the news that his solicitor denied all kowledge of the message.

At this Pollard took his leave, after assuring Mr. Ibbotson that no pains would be spared to trace the rubies. He then called a taxi and went off with the tin box containing the door-handle under his arm. The case was clear enough. Mr. Ibbotson's keys had been taken from his pocket at the Eros and retained long enough for an impression in wax to be made of them. From this impression, duplicate keys had been made. The theif had telephoned in the name of the solicitor's clerk and had left a message which would ensure that the front door should not be bolted, in case of Mr. Ibbotson's return. Then, armed with the duplicate keys, he had walked into the house, under the contable's very eyes and opened the safe. The question was, who was the thief?

Pollard lay back in the corner of the taxi. "I've got him this time!" he muttered, in a tone of intense satisfaction.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. (AP)—With only a moderate volume of trading the cotton market here after an early gain of 6 to 7 points due to the reported prompt stoppage of the May notices in New York prices urned downward.

Today was first May notice day in the northern market and it was announced that about 70,000 bales were tendered there. After the effect of the stoppage of the notices had been discounted the market eased off on selling by ring scalpers helped by an easier stock market and by uncertainty over the meeting of U. S. Steel directors after the close.

Liverpool cables at the start were about as due to 1 penny point worse than due. Private cables stated that covering and American buying absorbed continental and Bombay liquidation. Manchester cabled that the market was unsettled owing to lack of confidence in present prices.

NEW YORK, Apr. 28. (AP)—An early advance in cotton on steadiness in Liverpool and indications that the day notices were being promptly stopped, was followed today by reactions under realizing or liquidation promoted by the early weakness of the stock market. After selling off from 10.28@10.12 for July or about 8 points net lower, however, the market steadied on covering following rallies in stocks, and July closed at 10.19. The general market closed steady net 2 points higher to 1 point lower.

Liverpool cables reported that covering and American buying had absorbed continental and Bombay liquidation in that market but said Manchester was unsettled with lack of confidence in present goods prices. Exports today 13,352 making 5,991,300 so far this season. Port receipts 4,845. U. S. port stocks 3,517,392.

Tuesday Market Highly Unsettled; Tone Heavy Through Quiet Session

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 28. (AP)—Although the stock market was quieter today it contained enough air pockets to keep sentiment in a highly unsettled state and the tone was heavy. Sales were 2,900,000 shares against 3,600,000 on Monday.

Steels led a rally in the last hour, as they frequently do just before a quarterly meeting of the U. S. Steel Corporation directors, but the improvement lost weight when fresh selling struck the chemicals in the final transactions. The composite price of 90 issues closed at 116.5, of seven tenths of a point, and a new low for the year. Both the industrials and rails used in this average are under their December minimums, but utilities hold well above.

The U. S. Steel management did the expected by declaring the regular dividend on the common, but Wall street was somewhat surprised by the dip into surplus necessary to meet the payment earnings of five per cent a share for the junior stock compared with informal estimates of 25 to 50 cents.

gavel and called for the next item on the order of business.

His political colleague, John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, made this comment:

Decision Inevitable

"The decision was inevitable. It is only another vindication. of Mayor Walker's splendid and unparalleled record.

The Rev. Dr. Holmes announced he and his colleagues would not give up their fight.

"The action of the governor, taken without giving fair opportunity to the city affairs committee to reply to the slanderous personal charges of the mayor against its chairman and vice chairman, or to refute the inaccuracies, distortions and suppressions of data contained in the mayor's defense, brings to an end the first chapter in the committee's attempt to remove Mayor Walker from office," he said.

"What Governor Roosevelt has not found in our charges, Judge Seabury will. 'Samuel Seabury, counsel for a legislative commission, is conducting a citywide investigation into the administration.)

"An indictment here lightly dismissed will return to plague, not merely the mayor and his administration, but the governor and his decision.

"A fight against Tammany has always been a long fight, a patient fight, a determined fight. The city affairs committee has expected such a fight and will keep at it until the victory for decency and honesty in government has been won in this city.'

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, April 28. (AP) — Fed steers and yearlings predominated in the cattle receipts at most points around the eleven market circuit. Trade on beef steers and yearlings was slow at prices unevenly steady to 25 lower. Light weight steers and yearlings sold to the best advantage. Bulk of fed offerings cleared from 6.75@8.25. Stocker and feeder classes were in too limited supply to make a fair test of market conditions. Aggregate receipts estimated at 40,500 were 5,000 heavier than a week ago and slightly more than a year ago.

Hogs found a slow outlet at prices unevenly 10-35 lower than Monday's average trade but heavy butchers at some points held nearly steady with yesterday's slow close. Total offerings were around 87,300 as compared with 77,758 last Tuesday.

Lions Seeking To Lower Rate

Resolution Appealing For Reduction In Fire Insurance Rates Adopted; City Named For District Meet

A resolution, appealing for reductions in Lubbock's fire insurance rates, was adopted yesterday by the Lubbock Lions club at its regular weekly luncheon.

The raise in rates followed the downtown fires occurring in August, 1930, it was pointed out. Through the record made since the fires it is hoped to secure a reduction soon, the committee submitting the resolution said.

Named Host City

E. L. Pitts, vice president of the club, who presided at yesterday's meeting, announced that Lubbock had been selected as the host city for the 1932 district convention of Lions clubs. This city, according to the information received here, also was approved as the site of the 1933 state convention.

A telegram was sent to Lubbock's delegation, consisting of Dr. S. S. McKay, Paul Sherrod, Rufus Scarborough and Stoney Wall, welcoming the convention to Lubbock and thanking the local delegates for their successful work in securing the meetings.

The local club was addressed by Dr. E. L. Reed, head of th botany department of Texas Technological college, as a part of the program. Dr. Reed suggested the development of a cactus garden as a means of improving Lions park.

W. B Girand, sr., reporting for a committee appointed to investigate the feasibility of the club sponsoring band concerts during the summer, stated that the movement was gaining momentum rapidly and should be worked out successfully.

Maynard Wynne and Carl Maxwell, Lubbock Boy Scouts, addressed the club, using as their theme the value of scouting to boys of the adolescent age.

Calvin Henson was in charge of the program.

Kenemore Given Four-Year Term

C. C Kenemore yesterday was sentenced to serve four years in the penitentiary when he pleaded guilty in 99th district court to charges of theft of an automobile by conversion and perjury. He received two years on each count.

The theft charge grew out of Kenemore's renting an automobile and failing to return it, officers said.

In a previous trial the jury was unable to agree on a suspended sentence application filed by the defendant. At that time, according to members of the district attorney's office, Kenemore testified he had never before been convicted on a felony charge.

A subsequent investigation revealed he had served two sentences at Huntsville. He was convicted of a charge of swindling in Hopkins county in 1916 under the name of Kenemore, and prior to that time had been convicted of a charge of forgery in Dallas county while going under the name of Ford Massey, Assistant District Attorney Burton S. Burks said yesterday.

Borerag, Scotland, is to have a monument to famous bagpipe players.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 28. (AP) — Persistent abnormally dry weather throughout North American spring crop territory, Canada in particular, strengthened wheat prices today, whereas corn tended to sag. Wheat holders were also encouraged by notice that France would hereafter allow an additional five per cent mixture of foreign wheat, making the total 25 per cent. Corn weakened on account of slackness of demand from shippers and as a result of prospective big increase of corn acreage this season.

Wheat closed firm, a shade to 3-8c up, corn at 5-8c decline to 3-8c advance, oats 1-8 lower to 1-8 higher, and provisions showing 5 to 7 cents setback.

Weather conditions were reported auspicious over the corn belt, with seed beds in excellent shape, and planting expected to make rapid progress. Oats fluctuated chiefly with corn.

Inspection Is Set Thursday

Second Inspection Of City Made Tuesday and Reports From Chairman Showed Satisfactory Progress

A second inspection of Lubbock was made yesterday by committees aiding in the city's annual cleanup and paintup campaign. The final inspection will be Thursday, the last day of the drive, according to W. B. Atkins, chairman of the general steering committee.

Mrs. L. C. Ellis, an inspection group chairman, reported that the negro section of the city was unusually clean Monday when an inspection was made.

Other group leaders reported that conditions generally were satisfactory throughout the city.

Mr. Atkins urged all residents of the city to do the necessary cleaning and fixing up during the two remaining days of the campaign. Lubbock is endeavoring to win the recognition this year that was accorded last year as a result of the cleanup drive. The city at that time won a 12-inch silver loving cup as the first ranking municipality in the state in the campaign.

Miss Dorothy Lomax, chairman of the essay division, announced yesterday that awards in the essay contest would be announced as soon as the papers could be graded. Yesterday was the last day for the filing of papers in the contest.

Members of the speakers' committee yesterday addressed three women's clubs, Twentieth Century, Athaneum and Sorosis, in the interest of the drive.

Six Killed When Gusher Becomes A Blazing Furnace And Death Trap

an undertaking establishment in Longview by Lee Brumley, foreman of the drilling crew, tonight. Those of Harroun and Murdock were said still to be in the fire.

The known injured were John Keys, 39, Oklahoma City; W. H. McClassin, sr., 53, Winona, Oklahoma, and Frank Feiock, 35, of Longview.

Several of the dead were known to have been spectators attracted to the wild gusher and not oil field workers.

Ten men making up a trained crew of oil field fire fighters came from Longview tonight and immediately started preparations to quench the flaming well, but it was not believed they could set about their desperate task before dawn tomorrow.

The consensus was that the fire fighters, who tonight could approach no nearer than 300 yards to the well, would start smothering the burning area with sand, gradually working toward the center, where they might try to blow out the fire with a well placed charge of nitroglycerine.

The area of approximately 600 yards by 600 yards was believed to be the maximum area the flaming oil would overspread as that gushing from the earth was being burned as quickly as it emerged. The flood of burning oil was a foot thick in some places.

Glenn Harroun, production superintendent for the Sinclair Oil company, who was in charge of work at the well, said the cause of the explosion and fire was a mystery to him. He said it started in the "cellar" where there was no known cause for friction. He believed the fire was the result of spontaneous combustion. Bill Harroun, his brother, was one of the men left dead on the derrick floor.

The Loffland Drilling company was putting the well down. Boilers and all fires had been moved back from the well early today and Harroun said the well would have been brought under control within a few minutes more when the explosion occurred.

Tractors will be sent to the well tomorrow to move all equipment away.

Lee Brumley, a driller, listed the missing Blankenship, Murdoch, Albright, and George Murdoch of Oklahoma City as working on the derrick floor and probable victims.

Men injured and taken to Longview included a father and son, W. H. McClassin, 53, and W. H. McClassin, jr., 25, both of Winona, Okla., believed to be burned probably fatally.

Frank Feiock, 35, of Longview, and John H. Keys, 39, of Oklahoma City, were other injured taken to Longview.

Dropping of the elevator, the huge pulley used to hoist the casing and other pipe to the rotary table, was blamed by some of those present for causing friction which touched off the tremendous flow of gas and oil gushing from the wild well.

Youthful Hero Will Pay His Visit To White House Today

The 13-year old boy, who in an effort to save the lives of fellow students marooned in a snow bound bus removed his own outer clothing to keep his companions warm, will be at the White House with the king and queen of Siam. Their majesties will dine with President and Mrs. Hoover tomorrow night.

Location Of County Seats In Pioneer Days Told In Unearthed Official Paper

NACOGDOCHES, April 28. (AP)—In an old official paper unearthed here, some interesting facts are brought to light in regard to location of pioneer county seats and the numerous changes that have taken place in several counties in Texas.

"Stay Out Of Russia" Is Warning

Wife Of American Engineer Comes Back To States With This Warning To All American Women; Happiness Is Missing

BY LORENA A. HICKOK

NEW YORK, April 28. (AP) —The wife of an American engineer, just out of Soviet Russia after having lived there for a year, was in New York today with a message for the wives of other American engineers, it was:

"Stay out of Russia."

She said the wives of some of her husband's American associates asked her very earnestly to tell the wives of other Americans who may be going to Russia on contracts how they were living and to urge them to stay at home.

For nearly a year Mrs. Mamie Ida Warren, Chicago and San Francisco clubwoman, lived in Kalata, in the Ural mountains, where her husband, Clarence Warren, an engineer for the Allis-Chalmers company of Milwaukee, directed the construction of a mill.

The Soviet does not want the wives of American engineers to come to Russia, Mrs. Warren said, "because, with their demands for better food, sanitation and comforts, they cause too much trouble and too much discontent among Russians."

Her lot, she said, was better than that of the other American women in Kalata, because she had comfortable quarters—a six-room house furnished in part, out of a cathedral.

But even so, she has come home with a disease called "Russian Calet," which, she said, is brought on by nervous indigestion and bad food. She expects to go into a hospital in San Fransicso for treatment.

"Nearly every American who stays in Russia for any length of time comes out sick," she said. "It's especially hard on the women and children.

"You can't be happy in Russia. You are oppressed by a nameless fear. You pick it up from the Russians.

"For the Russians are afraid. They seldom smile. They are in terrible want. There is, too, constantly the feeling that there is going to be another revolution, bloodier, perhaps, than the last."

Injunction Halts Work On Highways

CHILDRESS, April 28. (AP)—Highway construction is at a standstill in Childress county, except for projects already under way, until something is done about the issues involved in an injunction recently granted by the supreme court to citizens who protested the route of state highway No. 4 north and south across the county, missing the city of Childress.

Work is going forward on the underpass on state highway No. 5, west of Childress, and on the grading and drainage contract east of the city, on the same road. Contract for the concrete slab on this stretch of road, for the improvement of No. 4 will be delayed indefinitely while the dispute is being settled.

Paving from the city of Childress to Hall county line, near Estelline, has been completed, and the last gap will be opened to traffic about May 1. Bonds for completing the county's program are available, except for the injunction.

ENCOURAGING TO SICK WOMEN

Good Experience of An Ohio Lady Who Took Cardui When Run-Down.

"Shortly after I was married," writes Mrs. Harry Cole, 1712 Valley St., Portsmouth, Ohio, "I became bothered with weakness. I tried a remedy that was recommended to me, but it did me no good.

"A friend of mine told me about Cardui, so I began taking it. After taking a few bottles, I began to feel better. My appetite came back to me and I felt stronger.

"When I first began to take Cardui, I was pale and run-down and thin as I could be, and my weight went down to 98 pounds. Frequently my sides hurt and I was not able to do much. My housework was a drag.

"After I had given Cardui a trial, my weight went up to 126 pounds, and I felt like a different person. I believe Cardui saved me some serious trouble. I hope these few lines will encourage some sickly woman to give Cardui a trial."

"I will continue to use Cardui whenever I need a tonic."

Sold by all good druggists.

See a Kelvinator, apply every one of these searching tests, and prove beyond doubt that Kelvinator is the logical choice for lasting satisfaction. ### ● STANDARD RATING SCALE for Electric Refrigeration

- ● Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?
- ● Has it plenty of food and shelf space?
- ● Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdily built and properly insulated?
- ● Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration).
- ● Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?
- ● Can the freezing of ice cubes and deserts be speeded up when the need arises?
- ● Can this extra freezing speed for ice cubes be had without affecting the temperature on the food shelves? (Too low a temperature on the shelves will, of course, injure food).
- ● Is there a place to keep ice cream, meat, fish, game, "quick frosted" foods or extra ice cubes indefinitely at a below freezing temperature?
- ● Are these various temperatures (a. extra fast freezing; b. fast freezing; c. below freezing for storage; and d. normal food preservation temperature) automatically maintained without any attention from the owner?
- ● Does the refrigerating unit operate often or infrequently? (The fewer "stops" and "starts" the longer the unit will last and the less it costs to run).
- ● How long will the cooling unit continue to cool the refrigerator even though the current is shut off? (Refrigeration should continue for 10 or 12 hours).
- ● Can the back parts of all shelves, even the lowest, be reached without kneeling or sitting down?
- ● Has provision been made for keeping vegetables fresh and crisp?
- ● Can the refrigerator top be used to "set things down for a moment" while the contents of the cabinet are being re-arranged?
- ● Will the refrigerator add to the attractiveness of the kitchen?
- ● Has the experience of users over a long period of years proved the refrigerator long-lived and dependable?
