Fiscal Expert Cites Tax Comparisons

AUSTIN (AP)-Much higher state employee salaries is one reason California taxes are so much greater than those in Texas, a budget expert told the Senate today.

Assistant director Jim Oliver of the Legislative Budget Board said a comparison of Texas and California was made because "we're here partially because of action taken by the state of California."

Oliver referred to the passage in California of the tax-limitation proposal known as Proposition 13, which set in motion Gov. Dolph Briscoe's decision to call a special 3-day legislative session for tax relief.

Oliver said California ranked fifth and Texas 45th in state and local tax collections as a percentage of personal income in 1976.

Surprisingly, he said, California and Texas "are almost exactly equal" in the number of state employees per 10,000 population. As of October 1977, California had 505.7 employees per 10,000 population and Texas had 505.

"Where's all the money going in California? The level of salaries is the answer in part," he said.

Oliver said the average monthly salary of a California state employee as of October 1977 was $1,360-$423 or 45.1 percent more than a Texas state employee made.

Oliver made his presentation to the Senate at Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's request.

On Monday, the first day of the special session, Briscoe called on lawmakers to cut taxes as never before in modern history.

Despite what should have been a popular plea, senators and House members reserved their applause until Briscoe had concluded his 10-minute address.

A possible reason is that Texas, according to Briscoe, already ranks 42nd in state and local taxation as a percentage of personal

Vance To Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance flew to Geneva today to see if he can make headway in slowing the nuclear weapons race despite steadily souring relations with the Soviet Union.

Trials of top Russian dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg clouded an already complicated Vance mission, but he said the imperatives of preventing nuclear annihilation left him no alternative but to go ahead with the negotiations.

But while in Geneva, Vance will meet with Shchransky's wife Avital in a gesture of support for Shcharansky and other Soviet dissidents, said a U.S. official who declined public identification.

Bullock Arrested

AUSTIN (AP)-Comptroller Bob Bullock was arrested in north Austin early today and jailed on a police complaint of driving while intoxicated, Lt. Freddie Maxwell, police public information officer said.

"He was in jail a very short time but he was booked like anyone else," said Maxwell.

"He was booked, fingerprinted and photographed and then released to his attorney to appear later."

Maxwell said Bullock and his attorney re-appeared early today before Municipal Judge Alberto Garcia and he was released on personal recognizance bond.

Rockefeller Dies

POCANTICO HILLS, N.Y. (AP)-John Davison Rockefeller 3d, the quiet philanthropist who busied himself with Asia, population control and the performing arts while his brothers and son were making names in business and politics, died in a three-car crash.

Rockefeller, 72, died instantly Monday in the accident about a mile from the Rockefellers' Pocantico Hills compound in Westchester County about 30 miles north of Manhattan, police said.

Box 19 Keeps Abilene Dry

ABILENE (AP)—And now, the story of Box 19.

Box 19.

That's right, Box 19 in Abilene, not be be confused with the famous Box 13 episode in Jim Wells County that clinched Lyndon Johnson's election to the U.S. Senate in a primary election 30 years ago.

Box 19 is the center of a controversy over whether Abilene will be wet or dry.

After a June 17 vote, it appeared, unofficially, that this West Central Texas city would have to allow the sale of hard liquor inside the city limits.

The final, unofficial count for all 44 voting precincts was 11,591 in favor of on-and-off-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages, 11,460 against.

Monday afternoon, however, Taylor County Commissioners unanimously declared Abilene was still dry.

And they did it with what figures out to be about 35 votes to spare.

That's where Box 19 figures in.

The confused maneuvering involved the commissioners' decision to throw out 865 ballots from Box 19, whose boundaries the court claimed were in dispute because of annexation proceedings implemented last year. The proceedings split voting precinct into two justice precincts and one of the justice precincts was not allowed to vote in the election.

Dry spokesman Neil Fry said he was "kinda flabbergasted" by the court's action Monday.

"I don't know what to say," said Fry. "We came up here to get a recount and we couldn't get one, but now it looks like the election turned around."

Wet forces, led by Mickey Holmes, had no comment on the proceedings. At a district court hearing set for 10 a.m. Friday, the wets say they hope to force the commmissioners to canvass all 44 voting boxes, including Box 19, and declare the results.

Transfer Requests Go Before Board

Snyder School Trustees are scheduled to hear elementary transfer requests and consider a proposal by the Abilene Regional Day School for the Deaf to provide special services for pupils with hearing problems at their meeting tonight.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in the school administration building.

The board agreed earlier to consider requests for elementary zone transfers individually and more than 50 will be up for consideration tonight.

The proposal for special services for children with hearing impairments was submitted after a survey indicated that the local school district had a sufficient number of children ages 2-21 whose hearing handicaps are of such a nature as to warrant special instructional programming. The proposal is that such services be provided by the state through the Abilene Regional Day School for the Deaf. It would involve an itinerant teacher unit being assigned to the district, with all major expenses provided by the Abilene Regional program.

Also expected to appear before the board tonight is a delegation interested in continuing the gymnastics program in the schools. Pam Blankenship, a high school gymnast, requested a place on the agenda for this discussion.

The remainder of the agenda includes routine personnel changes and a continued study of the proposed school budget for 1978-79.

Despite Economic Troubles...

No Recession Seen

By Edmond Le Breton
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The U.S. economy faces continuing trouble despite a drop in unemployment, but probably will not slide into recession, the director of the Congressional Budget Office said today.

Alice M. Rivlin, the director, told the House Budget Committee the outlook for inflation has worsened from earlier projections, and slower economic growth seems to be in the cards through 1979.

"This is a difficult call, but given our policy assumptions, CBO does not believe that current economic trends point to a recession," Mrs. Rivlin said in prepared testimony.

The policy assumptions include a tax cut of about $15 billion, with some stimulus for business investment, and a Federal Reserve policy that would not permit much more increase in short term interest rates nor squeeze down credit too sharply.

The CBO analysis is generally in line with other economic assessments, but is more optimistic than some. Two leading economists in a report for the Brookings Institution last month estimated there was at least a 50 percent chance of a recession. And Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said in a mid-June speech that the United States is headed for a recession if progress is not made against inflation in the next six months.

The CBO is forbidden by law to make recommendations, but is directed instead to report to Congress on the likely effects of different policies.

Mrs. Rivlin said the tax cut contemplated by the administration "more than offsets the effects of rising payroll taxes and fiscal drag on disposable personal income and should help sustain consumer spending."

She noted that proponents of a much larger tax cut are pressing for a congressional vote. This is the Republican-backed proposal for a reduction of about one-third over three years in personal income tax rates.

"Conventional economic analysis indicates that, as a result of such a policy, the budget deficit would rise sharply," she said.

Here's an Aggie incident in which the Aggies had the last laugh, or at least came out even.

Helen Hatter, here from Mount Pleasant visiting her parents, the Sam Joyces, said that the Aggies down there had scheduled their annual muster the past April in the Mount Pleasant Civic Center at the same hour that John Hill was to speak to his supporters in the governor's race in an adjoining room. Just as the Aggies called their group to attention, a band at the Hill rally next door began to play "The Eyes of Texas," which all but drowned out the proceedings on the Aggie side of the partition.

Later as both sessions were drawing to a conclusion at about the same time and just as Hill was ending a vigorous speech with the proverbial "when I'm elected your governor," the strains of "Taps" began to reverberate through the building from the Aggie muster.

Incidentally, Helen said she and husband Travis (Pooch), both graduates of Snyder High School, had hoped that Snyder and Mount Pleasant would meet in the Class AAA high school baseball playoffs, but the Tigers got eliminated by Burkburnett before they got to the regional round. Mount Pleasant eventually won the state title, but they almost suffered the same fate as the Tigers when they lost on their home field to Boswell and made 13 errors in one game. They came back to take two games on the road, however, and made it to Austin and the state title.

Pair No-Billed In Sexual Abuse Case

An eight-man, four-woman grand jury yesterday indicted one man on two charges of sexual abuse of a child, indicted a couple on kidnapping charges involving their own children, but no-billed (refused to indict) another couple accused of aggravated sexual abuse.

The aggravated sexual abuse charge stems from the allegations made by a 32-year-old woman who claimed she was forced to engage in various sex acts while photographs were taken. The complaintant alleged the incident occurred the night of June 17.

Indicted on two counts of sexual abuse of a child was 19-year-old Raul Garcia. Garcia is alleged to have fondled two girls, who one police investigator said were 5 and 6 years old. The incident is alleged to have occurred June 30 at a residence in Southeast Snyder.

Indicted on kidnapping charges were James May, 28, and his 24-year-old wife, Patsy. The Mays are alleged to have abducted their three pre-school age children from May's mother, Mary Clay, 50, who had been granted legal custody of the youngsters.

The alleged abduction is reported to have occurred outside a local supermarket the afternoon of June

Broken Foot Fails To Halt Instructor

Wheeling about the cosmetology department at Western Texas College in the comfort of one's own wheelchair is easier than hobbling around the department on a pair of crutches, Judy Border has discovered.

Her discovery came after she broke her left foot May 30.

Mrs. Border, the cosmegology instructor at WTC, had to choose some method of getting around. After experimenting with crutches, she decided she preferred the comfort of a wheelchair for most of her moving about.

She had, however, little to say about the matter. She explained that a state law requires a licensed cosmetologist to be on duty at all times.

anti-carterism grows

Findings of Harris public opinion pollsters that President Carter's popular rating has sunk to a new low should tell all of us something. That something is a feeling of unrest among rank and file members of our national society.

Most Americans want their President to succeed as a national leader. They feel that way for quite obvious reasons. Our chief executive is the recognized symbol of authority. We want him to make the right decisions and in meeting this test nobody will complain if he insures the outcome of the next Presidential contest for himself, or for his party if he steps aside for reasons unrelated to official misconduct.

Another, and more persuasive, reason is that if our chosen leader makes good in his job all of us will gain. It is possible to overestimate the significance of public opinion polls in specific situations. It is worth recalling in this connection that Harry Truman got consistently poor ratings in the public opinion polls in the first years of the term to which he succeeded following the death of Franklin Roosevelt, but he won the most important of all tests of official acceptability when he was elected to a four-year term in his own right.

Not only that, but in the end Truman retired to private life rated as one of our better chief executives. So the polls are valid only as of a particular point in time and in certain circumstances. Low ratings of the Carter Presidency at this stage should be evaluated in light of experience.

Of particular significance, however, are issues on which a sampling of public opinion takes place. The recent Harris poll didn't involve individual questions. Opinion was sought on the basis of total handling of responsibilities, domestic as well as foreign, social, fiscal and other facets of the public business.

When he or she goes to the polls on election day the average voter will make a choice among all candidates for a specific job. Performance on taxation, public spending and foreign relations will be considered as details of the total picture.

But for what it may be worth the current attitude of 60 percent of the American people is anti-Carter. It could be temporary. It might crystallize at the present level or even get worse.

a capitol question

The White House is high on the list of tourist attractions in Washington, D.C.

But the No. 1 favorite of the some 16 million visitors who descend upon the capital each year is the Capitol.

There is much in that noble and historic structure to attract the interest and arouse the curiousity. But we have it on no less authority than the National Geographic Society that one question above all others is addressed to guides at this seat of government of the mightiest nation on earth: "Where's the ladies room?"

Snyder can boast of many fine facilities.

The coliseum, museums, WTC, Martha Ann Woman's Club, Towle Park and the community centers are enough to make some of the larger towns green with envy.

During the summer months I suppose Towle Park is utilized in the most ways by the most people. Many visitors are known to drive through the park just to admire its beauty. Others try their luck at the pond, either fishing or feeding the ducks. Tennis courts are in use almost continually and the swimming pool proves quite a drawing card during these hot summer days.

Picnics are an every day event this time of year. The park barn and pavillion are the site of many socials, reunions and other occasions. Prairie Dog town lures many curious Snyderites and visitors, too.

The Jaycee's latest project, Kiddie Land, is certainly popular as well as the other playground equipment in the park.

But I suppose the baseball diamonds draw more people overall during the season, with all the various leagues for all ages of children. They play four nights out of the week.

The park superintendent, Jimmy Dyess, does a fantastic job keeping the diamonds in top shape. Visitors are often heard to remark about the fine condition under which our leagues play and I have found him to be more accommodating, too. Our church recently had a fellowship and the teenage boys played the older men in a ballgame. It got dark before they were through playing. Someone called Mr. Dyess and he came quickly and turned on the lights for us. (Thanks again!)

But the fine facilities can only take second place to the league participants and their dedicated workers. The children really make the program memorable and workers contend it's what makes the many hours of volunteer work worthwhile.

I would like to share a true story with you about one of the little players to illustrate what I mean.

It seems this little fellow came up to bat and didn't make any attempt to hit the ball. The umpire finally called the third strike and the youth was out.

Almost in tears he headed back to the dugout complaining that the umpire had been very unfair to him.

He said, "The umpire didn't even tell me whether the pitch was a ball or a strike until it (the ball) was already pased me.

No where but in a Little League park could this have happened!

let 'em eat peanut butter!

Cattle farmers are justifiably teed off.

Unloading a meat truck at the grocery warehouse the driver has to pay cash bribes to racketeering union "lumpers" or his truck will not be unloaded, his perishable cargo will perish, and he will likely be crippled for life. So he pays.

And who gets blamed for the higher price of beef? The farmer.

At any grocery checkout counter you'll see an endless procession of shoppers buying the choicest steaks and roasts and paying for the stuff a farmer cannot afford to eat--with food stamps.

But who gets blamed for the higher prices? The farmer.

And now--after our beef farmers have been going backward financially for four years--their farmsteads and their stock and their equipment are mortgaged $40 billion worth.

Now, when somewhat higher beef prices make it possible for the cattleman to pay off some of that debt, what happens?

The President of the United States says we'll import more cheap foreign beef in order to drive beef prices down.

Little wonder disgusted American cattlemen are quitting that thankless business. "Let 'em eat peanut butter!"

It did not help farmers to have a farmer in the White House.

Not a bit.

Let's face it--in politics the name of the game is "numbers."

There are only three million farmers. There are 200 million consumers. It's as simple as that.

So President Carter can ignore the cattlemen--who did not vote for him anyway--and toss a bone to the consumers by announcing that he will increase beef imports from other countries.

He imagines that this may reduce the price of hamburger 5 to 6 cents a pound.

We have renegotiated beef import agreements with 12 nations, primarily Australia and New Zealand. From outside the United States we will import an additional 200 million pounds of beef, about one pound per person. The President ignores the fact that this will add more millions in red ink to our trade imbalance.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland--a former grassland farmer--did not like this idea and advised against it.

He calls it a "dinky dab" which will not materially reduce consumer prices.

At the same time, his Department of Agriculture economists predict that retail prices for beef this year will be 2.3 percent higher than last year. Frankly, it's about time!

One thing more: How about at least labeling that imported beef "imported."

If our government is determined to import beef to compete with our debt-ridden ranchers, why not give housewives the choice of supporting our own ranchers if they want to.

And besides, beef stamped "New Zealand" will be some insurance that the American housewife does not blame the American producer for that tough grass-fed stuff.

in washington

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA)- This Democratic Congress, it is safe to say, never dreamed when Jimmy Carter was elected that he would one day line up with Richard Nixon against them - and in a case stemming from Watergate no less.

Yet that is precisely what has happened as a result of President Carter's determination to go to the mat with Congress over use of the legislative veto.

No one on Capitol Hill was surprised to learn that Carter objects to the legislative veto, a provision tacked onto many laws giving either or both houses of Congress, and sometimes just one committee, power to veto regulations or specific actions undertaken by the executive branch pursuant to the law in question.

Every president since Herbert Hoover has complained about the legislative veto device, so Carter, who insists it is an unconstitutional intrusion upon the power and responsibility of the executive branch has plenty of company.

But Carter, unlike his predecessors, is trying to prod the Supreme Court into settling this long-standing squabble between Congress and the executive branch and he has chosen a case involving Richard Nixon's tapes and papers as the test vehicle.

To put it mildly, his choice both astonished and irritated congressional Democrats, who regard it as further proof of the administration's lack of political sensitivity. "Of all the places to make a stand, he had to choose this one!" moaned a leading House Democrat.

And indeed, the Nixon case does seem a peculiar vehicle, legally as well as politically. It stems from a law enacted by Congress in 1974 to assure that the government would keep control of the former president's tapes and documents, including those related to Watergate, and that the public would be given access to the materials.

In the law, the General Services Administration was authorized to draw up regulations governing access to the Nixon materials with the proviso that either house of Congress could veto the regulations within 90 legislative days.

Three times, GSA proposed regulations for handling of the Nixon materials. Three times, those regulations were votoed by either the House or Senate.

While all this was going on, Nixon - who never liked the original law to begin with - went to court seeking to have it declared unconstitutional. Among other things, he cited the inclusion of the legislative veto as grounds for striking down the statute.

A year ago, however, the Supreme Court upheld the law, making no mention of the legislative veto provision. It was the third case in recent years to raise the constitutionality of the veto device, and the third time the Supreme Court had ducked the issue.

GSA proceeded to issue yet another batch of regulations, and this time they survived congressional scrutiny, taking effect last December. Nixon sued again, claiming the regulations are unconstitutional even if the law itself isn't. Again, he cited the legislative veto.

In late March, after extended consultations between the White house the Justice Department entered the case on Nixon's side - agreeing the legislative veto is unconstitutional. The whole matter is now before a U.S. District Court in Washington.

It is pretty evident from past cases, including the original Nixon suit, that the Supreme Court has no desire to get caught in the middle of a fight between the President and Congress. If the high court had wanted to find the legislative veto unconstitutional, it could have done so the first time Nixon sued.

Carter, it would seem, has not only antagonized Congress by choosing Nixon's case as the test of the legislative veto, he has also saddled up a horse that lost this race once and will probably do so again.

inflation millionaire

NEW YORK (AP)—Want to become a millionnaire? Don't despair, you're probably on the way to becoming one. But when you do, there'll probably be plenty of reason to despair.

Why? Because prices probably will be in the millions too.

The millionaire status we refer to is the kind produced by inflation, which raises the prices both of what we have and what we buy. And so, relatively speaking, we're probably no better off.

Still, it is true that many people will become millionaires - in fact, multimillionaires - if the administration's 1978 inflation estimate of 7.2 percent is continued for many years into the future.

You can work out the numbers yourself, and quite easily too, because an approximation of how long it takes to double a figure can be obtained by dividing its rate of growth into 72.

By chance, the projected 7.2 percent inflation rate divides 10 times into 72, which means a doubling of prices every 10 years.

Consider the price of your home. If it now has a market value of $50,000, it will be double that after 10 years. After 20 years it will have a pricetag of $200,000, and after 30 years, $800,000.

That's not a million, but neither is a $50,000 home the upper end of the scale today. It is, instead, close to the median, which means that one-half the homes are valued higher and one-half lower than it.

The $75,000 home, doubling in price every 10 years, would have a market value of $600,000 after 30 years of 7.2 percent inflation. Still not a million, you say. True, but after 40 years it would be.

Yes, and after 40 years a $5,000-a-year college education would go for $80,000, a $7,000 automobile for $112,000, an 80-cent package of cigarettes for $12.80 and a $12 steak dinner for $192, before tip.

Well, you say, it all evens out. But it doesn't. Unless it contains an inflation escalator clause, the payout of your insurance policy will be in old dollars. And your bank account will have diminished.

Your paycheck might also fail to keep abreast, especially after a certain age, that age depending upon the business you're in and the company you work for. And there are other problems, many of them.

Consider the problem of capital gains. With houses having appreciated so greatly, how could a retiree, for example, afford to pay the income taxes due on such profits?

He might have to forego selling. Even if he could afford to keep the house, don't forget that real estate taxes are based on the value of houses and that could produce a situation in which a person couldn't afford to continue owning a house.

Those who have studied inflation contend that the disease eventually consumes itself, leading to deflation, among other things, and even to various immoralities, including tax cheating.

The chances of a 7.2 percent rate continuing indefinitely are therefore moderated by the probability that a collapse might occur, letting out all the air that went into puffing up the balloon.

Blueberry Desserts

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Blueberries are at their peak. They are good with milk or cottage cheese for breakfast and in fresh fruit salads. But they are also recipe winners as baked desserts.

Enjoy blueberries fresh while you can in a blueberry-banana crisp or a blueberry buckle. Both desserts are best when served warm with whipped cream or scoops of ice cream.

BLUEBERRY-BANANA CRISP

- 4 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
- 2 ripe bananas, sliced
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- ½ teaspoon cardamom
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup cornflake crumbs
- ½ cup flour
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup butter or margarine

In a bowl, mix blueberries, bananas, cornstarch, sugar, water and spices. Pour mixture into a 1½-quart casserole. In a bowl, mix remaining ingredients with fingers until crumbly. Sprinkle crumbs evenly over blueberries.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 40-to-45 minutes or until very brown and crisp. Serve warm topped with whipped cream or small scoops of vanilla ice cream. Makes 1½-quart casserole.

BLUEBERRY BUCKLE

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- ¼ teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
- 4 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup milk
- 2 cups (1 pt.) fresh blueberries, washed

In small bowl, cream butter and sugar. Beat in egg, lemon rind and lemon juice. Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Blend into creamed mixture alternately with milk. Turn into greased 9-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Sprinkle blueberries over batter. Then sprinkle topping over blueberries.

Bake in 375 degree oven 60-to-65 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm, plain or with whipped cream or lemon sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Topping

- ½ cup sugar
- ⅓ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind
- ¼ cup butter or margarine

In small bowl, mix sugar, flour and lemon rind. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle over blueberries.

Food Talk

In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)-To understand talk about food here, you sometimes need a translator. Quick service takeout, as popular here as in the United States, is "nyam and scram."

If you're invited to a dinner of "Stamp n'go," be prepared for salt fish batter-dipped fritters. "Run down" dish is mackerel, or salt fish, boiled in coconut milk with onions and peppers, and natives say it tastes better than its name implies.

"Solomon gundy" is the name for pickled herring, very spicy. An offer of "matrimony" toward the end of the meal can be accepted without serious thought. It is a dessert combining orange segments with star apple pulp in cream.

Most declarers would run off five rounds of trumps while discarding three clubs from dummy. Then they would go after the club suit and, assuming that East and West had not thrown any clubs, would go down one because of the club break.

A careful declarer would look for and find an extra chance. He would pay attention to North's five spades.

At trick two he would lead a spade to his king. Then he would return to dummy with the nine of trumps and discard one club on the ace of spades. If that got ruffed he would pay off to the improbable 6-1 spade break. When it held he would ruff a spade.

If one opponent showed out he would abandon spades and go back to clubs but both opponents would follow whereupon he would be sure of his slam.

He would simply ruff his king of diamonds in dummy, ruff another spade to set up the fifth one, draw trumps and score the slam.

When a family member is poisoned, don't panic, advises Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Call the doctor, poison control center or a hospital, police or other emergency service, she recommends.

Tell them briefly what poison has been taken and how much, and then, ask what to do until help arrives, the specialist says.

Use specialized appliances, such as popcorn poppers, toasters and skillets, when possible, to save energy.

These appliances use less energy than a range, says Mary K. Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Blue In, Jackson Out As All-Stars Take Field

SAN DIEGO (AP)-Pitcher Vida Blue and outfielder Reggie Jackson, teammates for so long on the controversial Oakland A's, are in and out of the spotlight for tonight's 49th All-Star Game.

Blue, traded across the bay by Oakland to San Francisco during spring training, becomes the first pitcher ever to start All-Star games for both leagues when he opens on the mound for the Nationals.

"Some youngster on the plane told me I was the last winning pitcher for the American League," Blue commented, and then laughed, "I already knew it."

He was the starter and winner in 1971 when the AL took a 6-4 victory - with Jackson smashing a tremendous home run over the roof of Detroit's Tiger Stadium - and also started in 1975 when the NL won 6-3 in its current domination of the midsummer classic.

Monday night, however, Jackson became the fifth player to withdraw from the American League squad when he telephoned Manager Billy Martin and reported that he was running a fever of 102-103 degrees.

Jackson was promptly replaced by his New York Yankees teammate, third baseman Graig Nettles, who himself had been scratched Sunday with a bruised toe.

Jackson is the only AL starter to pull out but the junior circuit also has lost catcher Thurman Munson, infielder Rick Burleson and outfielder Carl Yastrzemski.

The National League lost starting catcher Johnny Bench, who has been suffering from a bad back in recent weeks. Ted Simmons of St. Louis will replace him.

The NL has won six straight, 14 of 15, 19 of 21 and leads the series 29-18 with one tie. American League President Lee MacPhail calls the recent result "embarrassing."

Manager Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, in naming a hurler from arch-rival San Francisco, said Blue's knowledge of American League hitters was a factor, but added, "I think he is the best pitcher in the National League."

Blue, with a 12-4 record, opposes Baltimore's Jim Palmer, 10-7, who was Martin's choice to start for the American League in the 9 p.m., EDT, game before a sellout San Diego Stadium crowd of 55,000 and a national television audience.

Martin's starting lineup will have first baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins leading off, followed by George Brett, Kansas City, 3b; Jim Rice, Boston, lf; Richie Zisk, Texas, rf; Carlton Fisk, Boston, c; Fred Lynn, Boston, cf, replacing Jackson; Don Money, Milwaukee, 2b, and Fred Patek, Kansas City, ss.

Lasorda, whose Dodgers lost to Martin's Yankee in the 1977 World Series, will have Pete Ross of Cincinnati at third base, followed by Rose's teammates Joe Morgan at second base and George Foster in right field. Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia plays left field and bats cleanup. Then come Steve Garvey, Los Angeles, 1b; Simmons, c; Rick Monday, Los Angeles, cf, and Larry Bowa, Philadelphia, ss.

PLAQUE PRESENTED--Bob O'Day, the golf coach at Western Texas College, presents Mrs. Bobbie Hargrove a hole-in-one plaque. Mrs. Hargrove made the ace May 27 on a 160-yard drive from the first tee box with a five-wood club. She is the first woman to make a hole-in-one at the WTC course, O'Day said. (SDN Staff Photo)

Farm League All-Stars In Action Here

Final Farm League baseball action of the season will take place tonight in Towle Park when all-star teams face each other at 7 p.m.

The Red all-stars, managed by Jimmy McFarland, will tangle with the Blue all-stars, managed by Wade Sands.

The Red squad is composed of Carlos Hernandez, Ricky Romero, Oscar Hernandez, Mike McCravey, Clint Glaze, Tommy Hull, Robert Freeman, R. D. Stansell, Mark Velasquez, Thomas Metzee, Robert Espinoza, Mike McKinney, Tony Romero, Kyle Lane and Brent McFarland.

Auerbach Keeping New Celtics Chief In Dark

BOSTON (AP)-Now it's Red Auerbach's turn to keep new Boston Celtics owner John Y. Brown in the dark.

Former owners of the Buffalo Braves, Brown and silent partner Harry Mangurian, swapped National Basketball Association teams last week with Irv Levin, who is moving the Buffalo franchise to San Diego.

Brown and Levin then unveiled a multi-player deal without consulting Auerbach, the Celtics' president and general manager.

Auerbach said Monday he's not ready to tell Brown if he'll stay on after his contract expires Aug. 1, although the two have discussed a new contract.

"I've received what's been described as a 'very attractive' offer," Auerbach said of Brown's bid to keep the president-general manager. "But attractiveness is in the eye of the beholder. I want to talk to him about it."

Brown called a news conference at Boston Garden today but Auerbach said his plans will not be announced. The former Celtics coach said Brown's offer deals with front office control as well as money.

Auerbach also says he's had a variety of job offers from other sources. He won nine NBA titles as coach of the Celtics from 1950-66 and was front office chief for the last four Boston championships.

The Celtics' general manager was in the midst of a rebuilding plan when Levin and Brown made their deal.

The controversial trade sent Kermit Washington, Kevin Kunnert, No. 1 draftee Freeman Williams and rights to Sidney Wicks to San Diego. In exchange, Boston received Marvin Barnes, Billy Knight and Nate Archibald.

Auerbach signed Kunnert as a free agent, traded for Washington and drafted Williams.

Other members of the Celtics front office also waited to meet with Brown today to discuss their status.

Jeff Cohen, the team's assistant general manager, said the staff expects to stay but had not yet met with Brown.

Boston finished with its worst record in history last season - 32-50-and missed the playoffs. But Auerbach recently negotiated new contracts for Coach Tom Sanders and assistant K.C. Jones, both former Celtic players.

Rookies Run Sprints In Cowboy Camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)--Free agent George Washington turned in the fastest 40-yard dash time Monday during the Dallas Cowboys rookies and young veterans' first practice session of the 1978 National Football League training camp season.

The 5-9, 169-pound Georgia wide receiver sprinted the 40 in 4.44 seconds with closest competition coming from another free agent--6-0, 196-pound defensive back Kenny Randle of Southern Cal, who ran a 4.53.

Snyder Flames Set Annual Tourney

Eight teams are due to be on hand Friday evening for the opening of the Snyder Flames Annual Women's Softball Tournament.

The first game is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, and play will continue through Saturday night when the champion will be determined.

Four games are on tap Friday, with the entire first round of play due to be completed.

The Stars of Odessa will meet the Snyder Flames in the 7 p.m. opener. This will be followed by Kermit vs. Western Insulation at 8:30 p.m., Trent vs. Monahans at 10 p.m. and Midland vs. the Chickerie of Odessa at 11:30 p.m. All games will have a time limit of an hour and a half until Game No. 13 on Saturday night. Saturday play will get underway at 8:30 a.m. and will continue through the championship game, which is expected to begin around 10 p.m.

Cradle Of Golf Site Of Open...

Old Course Intrigues Americans

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)-"If you were going to build a new course, you certainly wouldn't build one like this," said Arnold Palmer.

"If I tried to lay out another course like this one, people would laugh at me and say, 'Call that a golf course?'" said Jack Nicklaus.

"It's a very well laid-out course," said Andy Bean, this year's top U.S. money winner. "You've got to hit a perfect shot to get close."

They were all talking about the Old Course at St. Andrews, cradle of the game and mecca for golfers the world over. On Wednesday, St. Andrews stages its seventh British Open since World War II and its 22nd since the Open was first played 120 years ago.

Both Nicklaus and Palmer hastened to get the record straight - they weren't guilty of high golfing treason.

"It's a very subtle course - though some people might call it by other names," said Palmer, who played his first Open at St. Andrews 19 years ago. "To play it properly you've got to take a great deal of thought."

"I think it's fabulous," said Nicklaus, who like Palmer is a two-time Open winner. Nicklaus won in 1970, the last time the Open was played here.

"You've got to accept it for what it is - the home of golf. Some people may say it's the worst course they've seen. It isn't and I love it," Nicklaus said.

Bean arrived here Sunday after an overnight flight from the United States.

Tracksters Set Records In Meet

Summer tracksters traveled to Borger over the weekend and set six records in the West Texas Junior Olympics meet which is sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Glen Parham managed to put three new entries in the book in the 12 and 13 year old division. He long jumped 19 feet 4 inches, high jumped 5 feet 11 inches and ran the 220 yard dash in 24.2 seconds.

Tom Selmon set a record in the intermediate division of the long jump contest when he soared over 22 feet 6 inches of ground. Selmon also took home a fourth place ribbon in the 100 yard dash with a 10.4 second time.

Lloyd Benson set a record in the intermediate 220 when he was clocked at 22.9. He also put a new figure in the record book when he ran the quarter mile in 51.8 seconds.

Keith McClain got over the high hurdles in 15.3 seconds for a first place and high jumped 5 feet 10 inches which was good enough for fourth.

Distance runner Robert Schooler managed second place in the mile and the two mile runs. Matthew Davis took fifth place in the 100 and 220 yard sprints and grabbed fourth in the long jump in the junior division.

Also making the trip to Borger with coach Winfred Shipp was Don Davis, Paul Davis and Tommy Peek.

Those who placed first or second in their events qualified for the state AAU meet which will be held on Farrington Field in Ft. Worth.

Hostage 'Had Enough;' Ends Nine-Hour Siege

By Richard T. Pienciak
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-Louis Jerome figured he'd "had enough" so he picked up a flag-pole, charged an unemployed machinist who threatened to blow up a World Trade Center office with 80 pounds of dynamite and ended a harrowing nine-hour siege.

"I had had enough and I charged him with the New York state flag," said a shaken Jerome early today, explaining how his assault led to the disarming of Ladislaw Fraczek moments after the man tried to barricade himself and four hostages in the office about 8 p.m.

Jerome, a state Compensation Board referee, and three others were held hostage Monday by Fraczek, a Polish-speaking immigrant who had gone to the compensation board offices on the trade center's 36th floor looking for money, police said.

Instead Fraczek, about 50, was arrested and charged with kidnapping and possession of a weapon - a bread knife. He was held pending arraignment in Criminal Court.

Throughout the ordeal Fraczek claimed his canvas bag contained dynamite, but police later said it contained a Polish flag, a Polish-language Bible, the knife and some dark Russian bread.

Other charges could be filed, police said, if a round cannister Fraczek clutched tightly during the siege turned out to be a grenade, as he claimed. A police department spokesman said the device would be "checked out later today."

The disturbance caused the evacuation of about 4,000 people from 17 floors of the 110-story No. 2 tower of the trade center, the world's second tallest building, located on Manhattan's lower west side. Only the Sears Tower in Chicago is taller, by 110 feet.

The compensation referee said he rushed Fraczek after the man tried to barricade the door leading into the room. Fraczek had gone to the door to tell police to bring a Roman Catholic priest so he could give final absolution to the hostages before he detonated his munitions.

That was when one of the hostages, court reporter Clarence Douglas, fled through the door.

After he accused Fraczek of not really having a bomb, Jerome said he then began his charge, followed quickly by Fraczek's attorney. Anton Gasperik, and state insurance fund lawyer Salvatore Ciaccio. Police then rushed Fraczek from the front.

Jerome said that during the incident he was "very nervous and tense. I feared for my life. I didn't know what he really had."

According to Arthur Cooperman, chairman of the compensation board, Fraczek lost two fingers in an industrial accident three years ago and received a $6,000 award, the maximum allowed for that type of injury. Cooperman said Frazek had spent his money and "insisted upon receiving more."

When Fraczek's case was called Monday, a two-month postponement for neurological and orthopedic testing was ordered by Jerome. It was then Fraczek revealed the cannister and made his threat, police said.

The Mays were taken into custody July 2 in Mississippi. The children, whose ages range from 1 to 5, were found with them, investigators said.

Indicted in connection with a Snyder Daily News break-in June 24 were Byron Keith Wortham and Larry Castillo.

Wortham and Castillo, both 18, are alleged to have entered the newspaper building through a rear door and are accused of taking a money bag containing over $300 in cash.

Val Francis Lapin was indicted on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

The indictment alleges that Lapin had a quantity of hashish in his possession June 9.

Indicted on charges of driving while intoxicated were Paul Garcia Villanueva Jr., Alfredo Chapoy, Allen Vansickle, Carley Delbert Tidwell, and Tony Nils Tippit.

The grand jury also nobilled a defendant alleged to have poured sugar into the gasoline tank of a vehicle owned by R. C. Burditt. That incident is reported to have taken place the night of July 7.

Serving on the grand jury were Mrs. Albert Lewis, Carla Clark, Velma Lu Bright, Ernest Lee Brandon, Gerald Van Smith, Dwaine Williams, Buford Sterling, Arthur Pieper, Mrs. Jimmie Joe Key, Coy Rhodes, Wallace Combest, and Joe Hernandez.

AMERICAN LEGION OFFICERS—New officers were installed in Monday evening ceremonies at the American Legion post home. Robert Buchanan was the installing officer. Many Tax Bills Are Introduced Monday

AUSTIN (AP)-Proposals ranging from a temporary sales tax cut to California-style initiative and referendum were introduced Monday as the special legislative session on tax relief got underway.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, and Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, introduced bills that would cut the 4 percent state sales tax to 3 percent.

But the tax cut would last only until Aug. 31, 1981, unless legislators extended it.

Ceverha and Mrs. Andujar told legislators this was a once in a lifetime chance to give taxpayers genuine relief.

Rep. Fred Orr, D-DeSoto, introduced a bill repealing the state inheritance tax altogether - going much farther than Gov. Dolph Briscoe's proposal to raise the exempt portion of an individual's legacy from $25,000 to $200,000.

The core of the governor's call was embodied in a constitutional amendment introduced by Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee.

It would exempt from school taxes the first $10,000 of the assessed value of homesteads, plus another $10,000 for persons over 65. It also would exempt from property taxes household goods not used to produce income. Farm, ranch and timber land would be taxed on productivity, not real estate values, unless owned by corporations with more than 10 unrelated stockholders. State spending increases would be limited to 7½ percent each two years, and local governments could increase property taxes by no more than 5 percent annually.

The state would be committed to replacing school district revenues lost by the various proposals with state funds.

Von Dohlen, working with House Speaker Bill Clayton, included a provision not in Briscoe's call for the special session - an outright prohibition on a state personal or corporate income tax.

Another proposal that doesn't fit the governor's call is a bill by Rep. Joe Hubenak, D-Rosenberg, appropriating $126,268 to Texas A&M to study grain dust abatement and pollution.

dent, she has missed only one-and-a-half days of work. Even that, she added, was at her doctor's urging.

"I fell carrying out the trash," the 25-year-old Mrs. Border remembers. "I had on some flip-flop shoes, and they flipped me."

Despite the broken foot, Mrs. Border said she decided to stay on the job "because I have problems finding substitute instructors."

She is supposed to check back with her doctor Friday. The cast may come off then, she said, or it may stay on for another week or two.

She has a relatively good track record, so to speak. Since beginning her job at WTC last September, she has missed only two other days work. That was when she married John Border in April.

"My job is to serve the students," Mrs. Border said of her resolve not to miss any more work than necessary, "and that's what I want to do."

Four Mishaps Reported Here

Four minor traffic accidents were investigated Monday by city policemen.

The first was reported at 3 p.m. at the Spanish Inn. A parked 1973 Oldsmobile owned by Lois Moore was struck by a vehicle which left the scene of the mishap.

The next mishap was reported at 5:25 p.m. at the intersection of 17th St. and Ave. R. Involved in it were a 1966 Pontiac driven by Joe Thompson and a 1970 Chevrolet driven by Tony Slaughter.

At Wilson Motor Co. at 5:30 p.m. a 1974 Ford driven by Lloyd Ainsworth was in collision with a 1976 Ford driven by Marion Sullivan.

The final accident Monday, another hit and run, was reported at 6:12 p.m. at 2601 Ave. W. Reports show that a 1967 Chevrolet owned by Floyd Jones was struck by a vehicle which left the scene.

Firemen Called

A grass fire was doused by city firefighters about 18 miles northeast of Snyder.

The fire was reported at 11:50 a.m. Monday.

income.

Numerous legislators have suggested that tax relief can wait until the regular 140-day session, starting in January.

Briscoe estimated that four of his seven proposals would reduce taxes by $1.1 billion in 1980-81, with the average family saving up to $552 over that two-year period.

Those four proposals would eliminate the sales tax on residential utility bills; raise the inheritance tax exemption from $25,000 to $200,000; base agricultural land taxation on productivity rather than market value; and exempt the first $10,000 of a homestead's assessed valuation - or $20,000 if the owner is over 65 - from school property taxes.

Hobby said the sales and inheritance tax measures should clear the Senate easily, but he declined to speculate on prospects for the other proposals.

He said, however, he thought it would be difficult to gain approval of Briscoe's proposal to require a two-thirds vote of the Senate and House to raise taxes or enact a new tax.

"In my opinion," Briscoe said, "the taxpayers of this state will not be satisfied with half measures or tokenism from their elected officials."

The Elvehjem Art Center at the University of Wisconsin-Madison has been awarded a National Endowment for the Humanities grant of $149,512 to support an exhibition of Norwegian art. The exhibit is scheduled to open Nov. 5, 1978.

OBITUARIES

C. L. Bigham

Services are pending at Sanders Funeral Home in Lubbock for Clarence L. Bigham, 64. He was the brother of G.W. Bigham of Snyder.

Mr. Bigham died at 10:49 a.m. Monday on arrival at Health Sciences Center Hospital after suffering an electrical shock. The house mover apparently touched two overhead wires together as a building was being moved through a residential area in north Lubbock.

Mr. Bigham had moved to Lubbock from Pampa in 1960. He was a WWII veteran, and was a Baptist. He was a native of Waurika, Okla.

Other survivors include his wife, Arline; his mother, Mrs. W.K. Bigham of Shallowater; three other brothers, C.H. of Shallowater, L.C. and Melvin, both of Lubbock; five sisters, Willie Mae McElroy and Peggy Winegeart, both of Pampa, Wonnie Smith of Elgin, Ill., Faye Wilson of Pratt, Kan. and Melba Holland of Conroe.

Grove Infant

Graveside rites were set for 3 p.m. today at the Snyder Cemetery for Alice Lavon Grove, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvis Grove II, Arah Route. The child was stillborn at 4:45 a.m. today.

The Rev. Clifton Dovie was to officiate and burial was to be directed by Bell-Seale Funeral Home. In addition to the parents, survivors include grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvis Grove.

Fears Worst For Falsifying Age

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago I falsified my age on my driver's license. (I deducted three years from my birth date.) I am now 62, and I look every year of it.

I am actually entitled to some senior citizen benefits, but my driver's license says I'm only 59!

In order to change the birth date on my driver's license, I have to write to the State Department of Motor Vehicles. I haven't written to them because I'm terrified of the consequences. I've never been in any kind of trouble in my entire lifetime, and I have an unblemished driving record.

Will I lose my license? I can't have that happen! Will I be arrested? Will I have to pay a stiff fine? What will my punishment be?

Please find out what's in store for me. If the penalty is too great, I'll leave well enough alone and forget the benefits. I don't want to go to jail, but I think they may have to lock me up in a mental institution if I have to worry much longer over this mess I got myself into years ago. Has anyone else ever had this problem?

If you use this letter, for heaven's sake, please change my name.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Many others have had this problem, and if that's the worst crime anyone ever committed, we'd all be saints.

Simply provide proof of your real age to the Department of Motor Vehicles (a copy of your birth certificate is considered acceptable documentation), and all will be forgiven and forgotten.

DEAR ABBY: At the bottom of your column you say, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest," so I am writing to get something off my chest.

I get along OK with my mother-in law, although deep down I've always had the feeling that she never really liked me.

What bugs me most about her is this: When she calls our house and I answer the phone, she says, "Let me talk to Dennis!"

She never asks me how I am or anything.

I don't have the nerve to tell her to her face how much this irritates me, but if I were to pick up the paper one day and see this letter in your column, it would really make my day.

SOMEBODY WHO FEELS LIKE NOBODY

DEAR SOMEBODY: I'm glad I was able to make your day.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I received an invitation to a bridal shower that was to take place four days after the invitation had been mailed.

I hardly knew the bride-to-be, and besides, the shower was being held in a city over 350 miles away! To me, it was a blatant request for a gift, since it was obvious that I couldn't possibly attend. Feeling as I did, I didn't respond (even though the invitation was R.S.V.P.), nor did I send a gift.

Later, my mother said I showed poor manners by not sending a gift, and she felt I certainly should have responded to the R.S.V.P. I say no one ever expected me to come, and they showed poor manners by even sending me the invitation under those circumstances.

Can you settle this argument for us? Is it proper to send bridal shower invitations to people you know can't possibly attend?

UNDER FIRE IN OREGON

DEAR UNDER FIRE: Your mother is half right. You showed poor manners in not responding to the R.S.V.P. However, a gift is always optional under these circumstances. No one is required to give one.

Dollar Up In Europe

LONDON (AP)-The dollar improved against the major European currencies today and slipped only very slightly in Tokyo after sharp falls Monday. The price of gold was unchanged in Zurich and down in London.

Trading was calm on the Tokyo foreign exchange, where the U.S. currency has lost nearly 25 percent of its value against the Japanese yen in the past 10 months. The dollar closed at 201.475 yen, dropping only .05 from Monday's close of 201.525.

Morning quotes for the dollar in major European financial centers, compared with Monday's late rates.

Legionnaires Going Back To Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)-William Stokes spent 41 days in a hospital fighting Legionnaire's Disease which he got while attending the 1976 convention of the American Legion here.

They mysterious germ killed 29 people, sickened 150 others, and frightened the nation. But now Stokes, who lost his right leg when he stepped on a World War II land mine, is coming back to Philadelphia for another state Legion convention that starts today--and isn't afraid at all.

"I don't think it's going to happen again," he said, laughing, during a telephone interview from his home in Jeannette, about 40 miles east of Pittsburgh.

The deadly outbreak caused the biggest germ hunt in the nation's medical history, and also forced the closing of the world-famous Bellevue-Stratford, where the Legion activities had been centered. The sickness hit after the convention was over.

More than 15,000 Legionnaires and theirs wives return for the first time here and Adjutant General Edward Hoak,said: "We don't have any apprehension about coming back to Philadelphia."

Last year the Legion met in Pittsburgh. The state's two biggest cities are the only ones with hotel space available for the convention, and they alternate each year.

"We're looking for no problems at all, and I don't think there's anybody who is nervous about it," Hoak said, although he acknowledged that security would be strict at the Sheraton hotel.

"Everybody must show a delegate card to get into meetings," he said., because many still believe the pneumonia-like bug may have been deliberately planted in the food or water, or spread through the air conditioning ducts.

The Federal Center for Disease control in Atlanta, which mobilized the medical detectives, said it is sure the disease is caused by a bacterium and that it can be treated effectively by an antibiotic called erythomych. But the scientists have failed so far to come up with a quick diagnosis to prevent the death of 15 per cent to 20 per cent of its victims.

Since the Philadelphia outbreak the center has found 258 isolated cases in 37 states, and believes the so-called Legionnaires' germ may be the cause of 40,000 undiagnosed pneumonia cases annually.

Especially In Texas...

'Train Fans' Suggest Amtrak Improvements

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)-Supporters of improved railroad service say the U.S. government should improve its Amtrak train system, especially in Texas, instead of cutting it back to save money.

The "train fans" - as they called themselves - delivered their message Monday at the opening of a two-day public hearing in Dallas sponsored by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Purpose of the nationwide hearings is to gather citizens' comments on Department of Transportation proposals to trim the entire Amtrak system from 27,000 miles to 18,000 miles and eliminate two Chicago-to-Texas routes.

Most of the more than 50 witnesses Monday said Amtrak has failed financially because it has provided shoddy service and poor scheduled and relied on outdated equipment.

James Hoffmeister of Houston, chairman of the Texas Association of Railroads, said Amtrak schedules "have made it simply impossible to get around Texas by train."

He said frequent, high-speed service on a Dallas-Houston-San Antonio route would be profitable.

James Gough of the Houston chapter of the Texas Association of Railroad Passengers, said Amtrak's level of service is too low to pay the cost of the corporate structure that runs it.

Gough said he flew to the hearing from Houston because riding the train would have required him to miss two days of work.

Other witnesses, especially older ones, recalled the golden era of railroads.

"The railroads are responsible for this country being what it is - or was," said Burt C. Blanton of Dallas, who rode the rails, 400,000 miles before retiring from work.

Another witness who supported expansion and improvement of Amtrak was Robert Wagar of Dallas, who worked for Amtrak for about a year. He said his job was "frustrating."

"I used everything from rubber bands to bubble gum to keep things working," he said, recalling numerous mechanical failures on the train where he worked as a dining car waiter.

Longview Mayor Bob Maness said his city's survival 100 years ago was due largely to the coming of the railroad. He said Longview will fight to keep passenger service there.

If anything, Maness said, Congress should improve Amtrak's passenger service. He said Longview's 4 a.m. boarding time on the Inter-American train - one of two DOT wants eliminated - has done little to encourage ridership.

R.E. Foiles, vice president of Trailways Inc., the bus company, was one of a few offering the opposing view. Armed with statistics and projections, Foiles said the government must add $2 for every dollar paid by an Amtrak customer to keep the railroad running.

"Amtrak had a $530 million operating budget last year," he said.

Foiles said if Amtrak is to be continued, it should be confined to sections of the country where it can break even. He said the 7-year-old service has been a "costly failure in most places."

Hearing officer Jim Tuite said a second public forum will be conducted in San Antonio Wednesday. The hearings will continue across the country until Sept. 30 when results are reported to the ICC. The agency will consider the data and make its report to Congress by Dec. 30.

Border Clinics Pondered

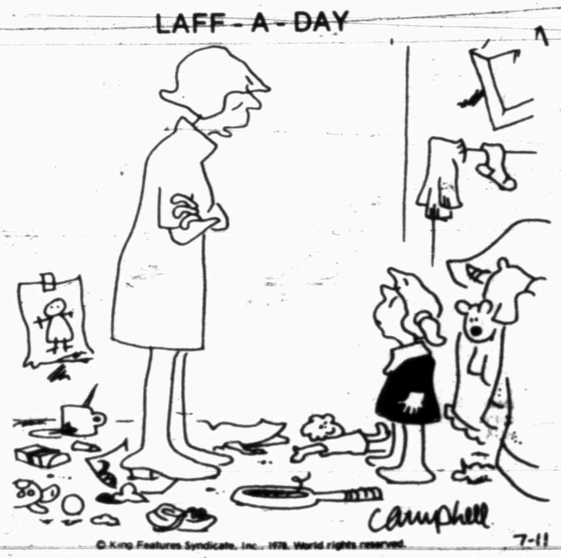

SAN ANTONIO (AP)-The Mexican consul general in San Antonio said Monday he is studying the feasibility of building free health clinics on the border - in Mexico - for Mexican citizens deported from the United States.

"We are just seeing if it will be possible to do that...for those who are not in the best shape," said Raul Gonzalez Galarza. "I'm working very closely with clinics in Texas and New Mexico to see how they work."

Gonzalez Galarza said he discussed with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo the possibility of establishing such border clinics.

The influx of illegal Mexican aliens is a "very complex problem," he said. "We are working with the best of our ability to provide help. Fortunately, we have received help from the U.S."

LAFF-A-DAY

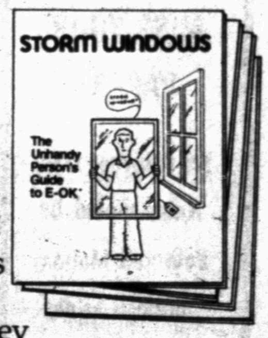

"I don't care if it IS your life-style! Clean it up!"

You can do it!

Properly installed storm windows provide an extra layer of protection to keep your home energy efficient all year long.

And if you don't want to buy ready-made storm windows, you can make your own. It's easy with Texas Electric's free instruction booklet for energy-conscious homeowners who want to live comfortably and save money on their electric bills. Using basic tools and inexpensive materials, even unhandy people can make their windows into effective barriers against summer heat and winter cold.

Other booklets in the series cover insulation, caulking, weatherstripping, ductwork, and general maintenance. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. See how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

PUBLIC NOTICES

THE STATE OF TEXAS

TO: EDNA RICE, if living and if deceased, the legal representative of said defendant, and the unknown heirs of said named defendant, the legal representative of the unknown heirs of said named defendant, if the unknown heirs of said named defendant are dead, the unknown heirs of the unknown heirs of said named defendant, if the unknown heirs of the unknown heirs of said named defendant are dead; and the unknown owners or claimants of interest in the property described hereinafter; GREETING: You are commanded to appear by filing a written answer to the plaintiff's petition at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance of this Citation, the same being Monday the 7th day of August, A.D., 1978, at or before 10 o'clock A.M., before the Honorable 132-nd District Court of Scurry County, at the Court House in Snyder, Texas.

Said plaintiff's petition was filed on the 23 day of June, 1978. The file number of said suit being No. 12376 The names of the parties in said suit are:

JACK DUPREE as plaintiff and EDNA RICE as defendant.

The nature of said suit being substantially as follows, to wit: A trespass to try title suit regarding the following described property; All of the West One Hundred Feet (W 100') of Lot Number Two (2), in Block Number Forty-six (46), of the ORIGINAL TOWN OF SNYDER, Scurry County, Texas, as the same appears on the map or plat of said Addition, which is of record in the office of the County Clerk of Scurry County, Texas.

The defendant unlawfully entered upon said premises and ejected plaintiff therefrom and lawfully withholds from them the possession thereof. Plaintiff prays for judgement for title and possession of said land and other and further relief to which they are entitled as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's petition on file in this suit.

If this Citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued this the 23rd day of June A.D., 1978. Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Snyder, Texas, this the 23rd day of June A.D., 1978.

Snyderites Earn Honors At TAMU

COLLEGE STATION—Laura Cameron, Lee A. Jarrell, and Mark S. Leavell of Snyder have earned "Distinguished Student" ranking at Texas A&M University.

The undergraduate honor is awarded to students who excell academically at Texas A&M, the state's land-grant and sea-grant institution responsible for providing not only excellence in academic programs but extension and research in agriculture, engineering and other practical needs throughout the state.

Recipients of the Distinguished Student honor must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ratio, out of a possible 4.0, during the most recent grading period.

Cameron, Route 1, majors in biomedical science; Jarrell, Route 3, majors in agricultural economics; and Leavell, 3504 Jacksboro, majors in biomedical science.

State Taxes Low In Texas

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas has lower state taxes than most other states in the United States, including all its neighbor states, said Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock said Monday in a statement that Texas actually is 46th when considering just state taxes, according to fiscal figures for 1977.

He said Texas state tax collections were 5.82 percent of personal income in 1977, compared to a national average of 7 per cent. California's state taxes were 7.75 percent of personal income and New York's 8.04 percent.

Bullock said Oklahoma state taxes are 6.91 percent of personal income, Louisiana 7.89, Arkansas 7.16 and New Mexico 9.34.

WORCHESTER, Mass. (AP)-A marble sculpture believed to represent Octavia, the elder sister of the first Roman Emperor Augustus, has been acquired by the Worcester Art Museum.

Cleaners Offers One Hour Service

Snyder welcomes a new business to town this week as Comet One Hour Dry Cleaning opened for business Monday in Varsity Square Shopping Center.

Manager Alton Sutter of Snyder reports the dry cleaning business is part of a locally-owned franchise with other stores in Amarillo, Lubbock, Plainview, San Angelo and Arlington.

Comet One Hour Dry Cleaning will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

The firm will feature one hour dry cleaning which includes minor repairs to clothing as part of the service. They will also do alterations of all types.

Comet One Hour Dry Cleaning also has a drive-up window which allows you to stay in your car during deliveries and pickups.

Assisting Sutter during the opening of the business are Mr. and Mrs. Jake Ray of San Angelo. They have been in the dry cleaning business for 40 years. Rosa Valadez of Snyder will also be assisting him in the business.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Sullenger are the parents of a son born at 12:39 p.m. July 10 in Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring. He weighed 6½ lbs. and has been named Jeremiah Reece. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Don Orsburn and Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Fambro, all of Snyder.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McHaney of Hermleigh, are the parents of a 10 lb. 1½ oz. girl, born at 4:41 a.m. July 10 in Fisher County Hospital in Rotan. She has been named Donnice Ranee. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McHaney and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Fowler, all of Snyder.

New Oil, Gas Well Reported

AUSTIN (AP)-Wildcatters drilled successfully at 25 oil tests and 46 gas operations in the second half of June, the Texas Railroad Commission said Monday.

The commission listed 7,258 oil, gas or service well completions in the first six months of 1978, up from 6,626 a year ago.

In the second half of June, 221 exploratory and field tests wound up as dry holes.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Keeping gout under control

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had my first attack of gout two years ago. At that time I ate quite a bit of whipped cream and then sometime later the same thing happened so now I avoid it. Improper shoes will upset me as well as walking. My last test showed a high uric acid so I must watch my diet. On top of that my cholesterol count is quite high which means watching that as well.

After comparing the two diets there is very little I may eat. Is there anything you can suggest? Except for high blood pressure, which is under control, with medication, my health is very good.

I am 70, weigh 125 pounds and am 5-foot-3. I am a widow and live alone and enjoy life. I still mow my own lawn and do lots of gardening. I don't smoke or drink. I had to give up coffee and all drinks containing caffeine several years ago. I like meat and have wondered if that would be harmful. I do trim off all the fat. I would appreciate any suggestions you might have.

DEAR READER — Injury can sometimes cause acute attacks of gout in gouty prone individuals. That's probably why those improper shoes caused you to have an attack.

Because of the availability of new medicines over the past several years the diet to control the uric acid is not considered as important as it once was. The majority of the uric acid in your blood stream is formed by your own cells and does not come from the food that you eat. With medicines, the amount that's produced by your cells can be controlled much more effectively than any control by dietary measures.

Nevertheless it is still important to limit your calories and stay thin and not to eat high-fat rich foods. In fact fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries resulting in heart attacks and strokes is a frequent complication of gout so today greater emphasis is placed on eating a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and keeping your weight down.

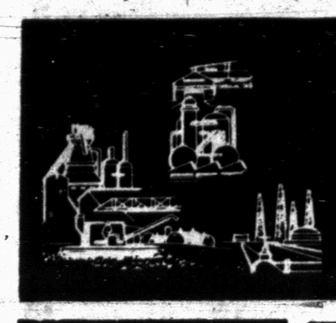

To this end it would be perfectly all right for you to eat a moderate amount of lean meat with all the fat removed and to avoid fat. Of course it would be better to broil or boil it and avoid frying. You can use chicken; if you remove the skin you'll get rid of a lot of the fat from it, and you can of course use fish.

The old gout diets particularly limited the organ meats and you wouldn't eat many of those anyway if you're trying to stay on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet for other health reasons.

I'd also like to suggest that you be careful not to go on a crash diet. Rapid excessive weight loss can cause an acute attack of gout also. So if you want to lose weight, you should do it gradually. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 2-3 on gout to give you more information on it and what the various medicines do and how to live with it.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Snyder Trailer Sales Has All Type Trailers And Accessories

This is a busy time of year for Max and Linda Moreland at Snyder Trailer Sales for many reasons. Not only are farmers and ranchers repairing their stock and utility trailers, but those folks that have been on vacation in their travel trailers now have a list of things to do to the trailer before the next trip.

This is what Snyder Trailer Sales is all about. They keep a full stock of items used with trailers and Max is an expert at trailer repairs.

Looking over their business you will find a full line of hubs, drums, wheels, springs and axles. They have almost every size in stock or can special order any part for a trailer with fast delivery.

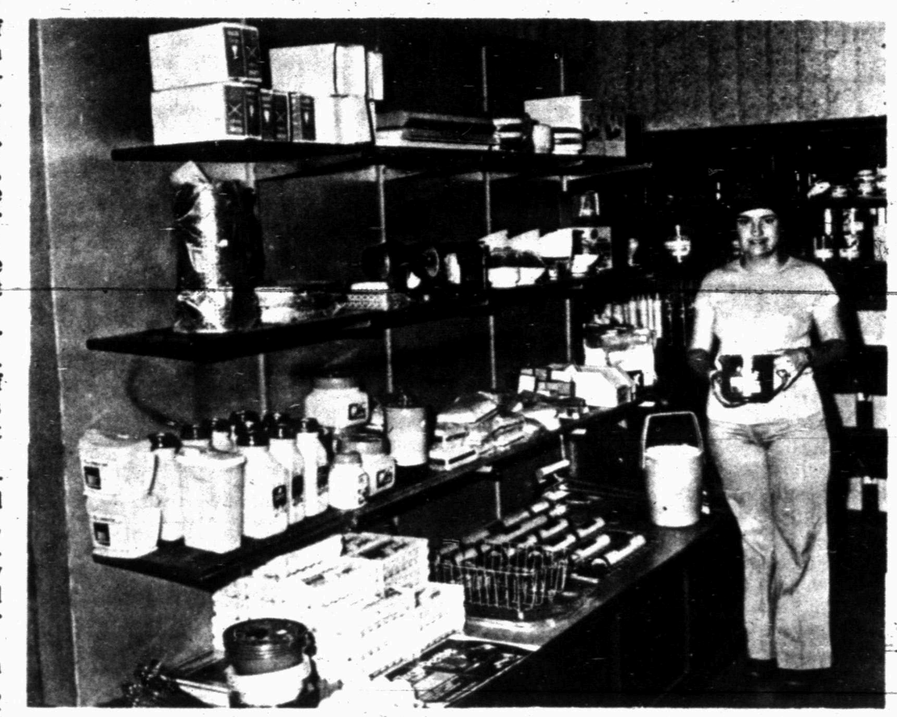

If you are looking for a particular brand name, you will probably find it at Snyder Trailer Sales. Like Kelsey brake controls and many other dependable companies.

For utility trailers or any type trailer, you can find the hitch, hitch ball and a coupler to fit at Snyder Trailer.

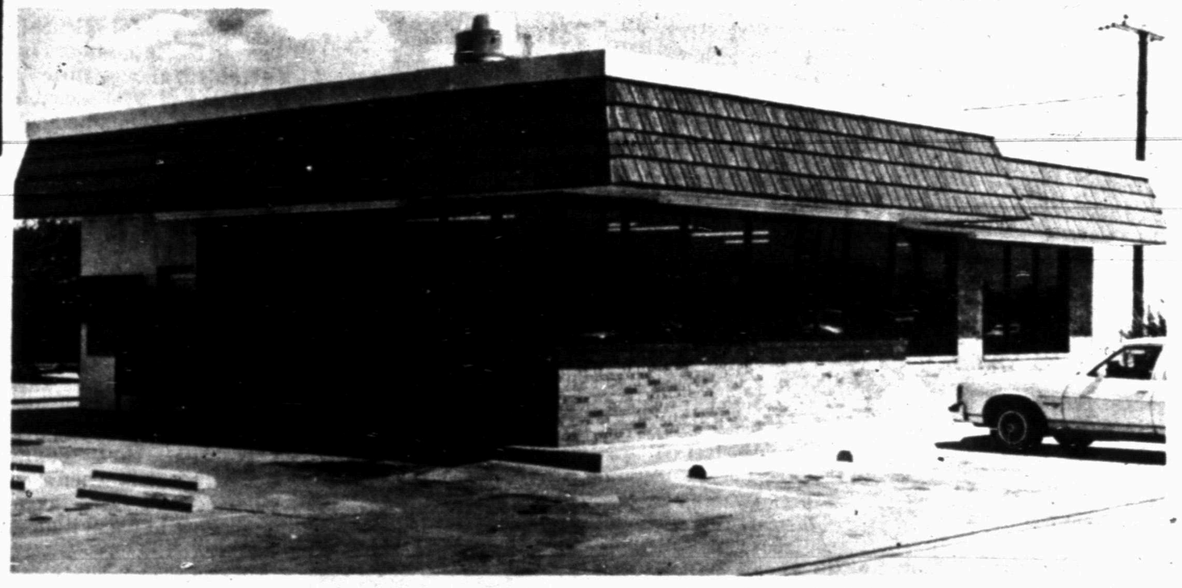

Travel trailers have special needs and you can find what you need here. Toilet chemicals, tasteless water hoses, antifreeze, automatic transmission cooler, appliances, sewer connectors and parts, plastic water fittings, brass fittings, lights and reflectors.

Snyder Trailer has roof coatings to stop leakage, roof vents, butane bottles, electrical wire and parts, and kitchen dishes and utensils especially designed for the travel trailer.

Max and Linda Moreland invite you to come by at 1500 37th or call 573-7528 to see their many ideas and supplies for trailers. You may want to talk about a new travel trailer while you are there because Snyder Trailer Sales is this area's dealer for travel trailers.

T. E. Shelburne & Son Can Solve Your Building Needs

By now most of you have considered the cost of getting that bigger house or at least heard what houses are selling for in this area.

As Snyder grows, more and more business people are considering enlarging or moving to a more suitable location.

These ideas should not be discarded because you think it would cost too much.

T. E. Shelburne & Son, Inc. are in the business to talk to you about these ideas and show how they can be accomplished within a set budget.

All across the country, people are finding it more feasible to talk to contractors about adding on to their existing house rather than buying or building a larger one. Business people are finding economical ways to enlarge their businesses by using previously unused space.

By now you have seen the type and quality of work T. E. Shelburne and Son is capable of doing if you have seen Gil's Fried Chicken located at the corner of 37th and College Ave. This is a perfect example of how a building (previously a gas station) can be remodeled into a nice looking and functionable business.

Throughout Snyder their are several examples of families that have remodeled or rennovated their existing home as an option to buying. To a financial institution, remodeling is an investment and the owners are finding their investment will pay dividends in the long run.

T. E. Shelburne and Son has crews available for most types of construction work whether it is a major or minor project. There are professional planners available to help you with your ideas of they can work from your plans.

A major part of T. E. Shelburne and Son is the metal building business. Metal buildings offer you a real choice in cost, size, and time of construction.

If you have been thinking about add ons, remodeling or a new building call D. D. Shelburne and get the right answers to your questions.
