Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

I was appalled to hear this week that the administration economists are considering raising taxes to control inflation. The theory is that if the people are taxed enough by the government, they can't spend money, because they won't have any, thus slowing our galloping inflation.

Almost everyone knows that inflation is caused by government spending. This is not fallacy but fact. Yet, you seldom ever hear anyone in the government propose cutting government spending.

The person who works on a salary and the small businessman makes up the backbone of the nation and pays the lion's share of the taxes. By rights, there should be a gigantic protest by taxpayers. However, there is not much recourse for the ordinary man on the street. He doesn't have time to form an organization, he is too busy trying to put beans on the table. He certainly doesn't have the money to fly or take a bus to Washington and protest in front of the White House.

We can, however, write letters and perhaps flooding Washington with protests by way of the mails would get the word across. If not, perhaps a mass refusal to pay new taxes would be in order. Since all the politicians and bureaucrats live off the tax-payer, the latter might be more effective.

Don't forget to spring forward Sunday. That is spring your clocks forward an hour. That's about the only way I can remember how to do it. In the fall you "fall back" and in the spring you "spring forward." If it were up to me, I would have it just the other way around, seems more logical. In case you are wondering, I'm talking about Daylight Saving Time.

Speaking of spring, the warm and long days always seem to bring out the kids and horses, and on the highways and paved streets this is a potentially dangerous situation.

At least one man was in the office last week with a pale face. He had been driving down Hwy. 290 when a youngster-ridden horse shied in front of his car. It wouldn't have shaken him so, but a truck was passing him at the time and he had no place to go. Fortunately, the youngster got the horse under control and an accident was averted.

These things happen every summer, and as far as I know we've been lucky as a community in having as few accidents as we do with horses and children. I do think, however, that children and parents should be aware of the dangers involved, and make some effort to keep horses and children off heavily travelled roads.

Funeral Service For Ozona Man's Father Tuesday

Funeral services for Jack Hunnicutt, 72, father of John R. Hunnicutt of Ozona, were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from Fluvanna Church of Christ with burial in Fluvanna Cemetery.

Mr. Hunnicutt died Monday in a Lubbock nursing home. He was born April 18, 1901 in Kaufman County and had been a Scurry County resident for 63 years.

Other survivors include his wife, Lula; two other sons, two sisters, a brother and five grandchildren.

4-H Drawing To Be Held Friday

Ticket sales for the 4-H drawing closed Tuesday. The drawing will be held tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in the city park.

Ticket holders have three chances to win. The first drawing will be for a half beef, wrapped and ready for the freezer, the second for a ham and the third for a smoked turkey.

EASTER DAY ACCIDENT -- One of three automobile wrecks investigated by local highway patrolmen on Easter Sunday. This pickup went out of control west of Ozona on Hwy 290 shortly after noon Sunday, hit a culvert and sailed about 300 feet to land right side up in a pasture. The three men in the vehicle, including the driver, were not injured. The late model pickup was heavily loaded, and this probably kept it from nosing end over end. As it was, it literally sailed to its resting spot. The space between the highway and where the vehicle came to rest was littered with tools, nuts and bolts, but the body of the pickup apparently had few dents. There were no injuries in the two other minor accidents.

Tryouts For LL This Afternoon

Little League try-outs will get underway this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Little League Park, League President Bobby Papasan announced this week.

All boys must have a parents agreement and release form. The forms were passed out at both elementary schools earlier this week.

Papasan replaced last year's president, R. B. Babbitt, at a meeting and election of officers Monday night. Babbitt will manage one of the teams this year.

All boys nine years of age and who will not reach the age of thirteen years before August 1, 1973 are eligible for the try-outs. Boys who were on a team last year do not have to try-out, but must present a release form to officials this afternoon at the ball park. The release forms must be signed by both parents.

Most of this afternoon will be taken up with collecting the forms and putting boys through drills who are not already assigned to a team. Tryouts will continue through Friday and possibly Saturday.

OHS Band Concert Monday Night

The Ozona High School Band will be presented in concert next Monday night at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium under the direction of Lane Scott.

The public is cordially invited to attend at no charge. The band sweetheart will be presented, along with the John Phillip Sousa Award.

Some highlights of the concert will include electronic music by band students and special lighting effects.

Flower Show Is Success In Spite Of Bad Weather

Though garden club members were hesitant about staging the annual flower show last Thursday, the event turned out quite well in spite of the hard freeze of the week before. A surprising number of horticulture entries were exhibited, but club members are still looking for that perfect year.

The lack of blooms created more interest in the design division of the show, so members put forth a greater effort in creative ability in arranging a beautiful show. Flowers may be borrowed or purchased for design classes, but must be grown by the exhibitor in the horticulture classes.

Potted plants which were grown indoors made an interesting display and the educational exhibits were attractively arranged.

Mrs. Cecil Hubbard displayed a colorful table of indoor foliage plants, indoor blooming plants and outdoor bedding plants.

A gardening poster and pamphlet exhibit was presented by Miss Debra Gentry, county extension agent, and there was an interesting display of nation council books, magazines and flower show schedules arranged by Mrs. Bailey Post.

The entrance was decorated with a display of colorful blossoms on a tea cart with an umbrella overhead, using the theme "Happiness is a Flower Show." Guests were greeted from 4 until 6 p.m.

High awards went to Mrs. J. W. Howell, who won the Horticulture Sweepstakes Award with 13 blue ribbons; Mrs. Stephen Perner, Artistic or Design Sweepstakes, with five blue ribbons. Creativity design award went also to Mrs. Stephen Perner for her arrangement depicting the Easter Story. "The Stone was Rolled Away."

The Tri-Color Award, using all fresh plant material went to Mrs. Stephen Perner.

The Award of Distinction went to Mrs. John Berkley for her arrangement of dried or treated plant material.

Award of Merit for the best horticulture specimen went to Mrs. Bob Childress for her iris.

Other blue ribbon winners were Mrs. Joe Boy Chapman with three, Mrs. John Berkley with four, Mrs. Bob Childress with five, Mrs. Wayne E. West

Local Office Set To Observe Postal Week

Postmaster Floyd Hokit announced plans today for "Postal Week" to be celebrated here April 29 through May 5.

On April 30, the Ozona Post Office will highlight this observance with activities that dramatize the important roles performed by postal people as they move the mails. Postmaster General E. T. Klassen said the Postal Week observances are "an appropriate occasion for the recognition of the vital responsibilities assigned to the mail service and a valid time to take stock of the challenges which must be jointly met by postal people and the millions of citizens throughout America who depend upon the mail as an essential part of their personal and business lives."

Over 60 Seniors Candidates For OHS Graduation

Over 60 Ozona High School seniors have been fitted for caps and gowns this week and are busy with graduation invitations.

The number of candidates for high school diplomas is an all time record for Ozona High School.

Baccalaureate services for the 1973 graduating class will be held on Sunday night, May 13, at 7:30 at the high school auditorium. In the past the services have been held on Sunday morning.

Another break with tradition will see commencement exercises slated for Thursday evening instead of Friday. Commencement will be held at the auditorium Thursday evening, May 17, at 8 o'clock.

Programs for both events will be published at a later date.

Services Sunday For Ozonans' Granddaughter

Gravestone services for Edith Susan Brown, 6 months, were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in Thornton. The little girl died Saturday of a congenital heart condition.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Thornton. Mrs. Brown is the former Ann Robinson. The Browns have one other child, a son, Mike, 10.

Survivors include the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Miller Robinson of Baird, and great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Max Schneemann of Ozona. Several Ozonans attended the services.

As part of the observance, the Ozona Post Office will join with the nation's 31,000 other post offices in issuing 10 special stamps honoring postal people. The Ozona Post Office will mark the occasion with special First-Day-Of-Issue observances, simultaneous with similar ceremonies to be held in Washington. Ten new Postal People stamps will be placed on sale here in conjunction with the observance.

"As the Postmaster General said in his message, we need the informed understanding, cooperation and support of every citizen," Hokit said. "I think that we have this to an exceptional degree in Ozona, and part of the Purpose of Postal Week is to show our appreciation." All postal customers visiting the Ozona Post Office on Postal People day April 30, will be given free souvenir envelopes, printed with special cachets, so long as the supply lasts. If customers desire, they may purchase First-Day Covers, featuring the 10 cent stamps, for the 80 cents face value of the stamps.

"Throughout the week we would like for customers to come in, visit the office, observe first hand the operations of the local office. Any of the school classes going on spring field trips make it a point to have your students visit the office as part of their trip," Hokit concluded.

FFA Parent-Son Banquet Tonite At Civic Center

Plans were completed this week for the Annual FFA Parent-Son Banquet which will be held Thursday, April 26, tonight at 7 o'clock at the Civic Center.

Gene Gibbins, Area II President of Marfa, will be guest speaker at the banquet. Attending with Gene will be James Steen, Big Bend District President and President of the Junior Hereford Association.

Highlight of the evening will be the presentation of awards. These will include star Green Hand and Chapter Farmer awards. A DeKalb Accomplishment Award will be awarded to the outstanding senior in Vocational Agriculture. Awards in farm mechanics and livestock production will be presented as well as certificates of merit and two honorary memberships.

About 150 FFA members, parents and guests are expected to attend the annual event.

FORMER OZONAN PRESENTS AWARD -- T. A. Kincaid, right, former Ozonan, Southwest Texas rancher and a founder and board member of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation, presents District Extension Agent Ray D. Siegmund of Fort Stockton a special tie clasp bearing the emblem of the Southwest Screwworm Eradication Program. The award was presented "in recognition for the leadership role of the Extension Service in conducting meaningful educational programs about the screwworm eradication program for the livestock industry of the state."

OASIS IN THE DESERT -- One might say just that. Hundreds of barrels of clear water pour daily from this spring in a hillside on the Banner ranch near Dryden. The spring feeds several lakes and ponds and is no doubt responsible for the large oak trees in the area. It is centered in rough, dry country near the Pecos River. It is a most unusual sight to drive upon the lush spot after traveling miles in rocky, sparsely vegetated terrain.

Who Is To Blame For Drug Abuse?

Is it parents' fault that many young people choose drugs as their "thing" in life? Is it the times? The generation gap? Something, surely, is causing the drug cult, with its accompanying death, crime, and misery.

Professor Alvin Toffler in "Future Shock" (Bantam Books) charges that "Allan Ginsberg and Timothy Leary (are) the two men most responsible for creating the hippie life style, with heavy accent on drug use" and that the drug cultists promote their merchandise with high-powered promotional efforts "like any good corporation."

Toffler cites a letter from Ginsberg to Leary, in which Ginsberg wrote:

"Yesterday got on tv with N. Mailer and Ashley Montagu and gave a big speech... recommending that everybody get high... Got in touch with all the liberal pro-dope people I know to have (a certain pro-drug report) publicized and circulated... I wrote a five-page summary of the situation to this friend Kenny Love on 'The New York Times,' and he said he'd perhaps do a story (newswise)... which could then be picked up by a U. P. friend on national wire. Also gave copy to Al Aronowitz on 'New York Post' and Rosaline Constable at 'Time' and Bob Silvers on 'Harper's'."

To this hard evidence that the liberal media, knowingly or not, collaborated with drug pushers, Toffler comments:

"No wonder LSD and whole hippie phenomenon received the mass media publicity it did. This partial account of Ginsberg's energetic air press agency, complete with the Madison Avenue suffix 'wise' (as in newswise) reads precisely like an internal memo from Hill and Knowlton or any of the other giant public relations corporations whom hippies love to flagellate from 'manipulating' public opinion. The successful 'sale' of the hippie life style model to young people is one of the classic merchandizing stories of our time."

Drugs and the drug cult did not, therefore, arise because parents or teachers, or clergymen, or the police of this generation are any less dedicated than those of past generations. We are burdened with a runaway drug problem because it is being sold as a way of life to young by the "liberal pro-dope people" and "mass media publicity."

Australia Now Perilously Leftist

One of the dominoes that has fallen or tilted as a result of the indecisive nature of the conflict in Indochina is Australia. The long no-victory war, together with the United States rapprochement with Communist China, combined to give a victory last December to the Australian Labor Party, in which Communists openly boast they hold the predominant power. Australia was the second government to change as a result of American foreign policy in the Far East, the first having been Japan.

Gough Whitlam, the new Australian Premier, has a seven-seat margin in the Parliament, although the Liberal Party with the Democratic Labor Party and the Country Party controls the Senate. The Communist exert their strength in the Labor Party through the 47 labor federations, which are Communist-controlled. The top man in the Labor Party caucus is Dr. J. Cairns.

Immediately after its election the Labor Government recognized Communist China and withdrew recognition from the Republic of China on Taiwan. It also recognized Communist East Germany, and is planning recognition of the Red dictatorship controlling North Vietnam. Recently it entertained Yugoslav Prime Minister Bjedice, who presented a list of Croat-born Australians, who, he alleged, were "terrorists." Naturally, with Operation Keelhaul of World War II in mind, the 100,000 Croats in Australia are deeply concerned.

Dr. Cairns has denounced President Nixon as a "murderer and a maniac" and accused him of "genocide" for the bombing of North Vietnam last December that brought about the cease-fire agreement.

This Australian development is not a fortunate one.

Common Sense in Education

Recently, speaking at Lorraine County (Ohio) Community College, Dr. Max Rafferty, Ph. D., said that "Long before the end of the 20th century there is going to be a successful challenge to the arrogant assumption that teachers shouldn't be held responsible for the product they turn out." Rafferty advocates standardized testing as one measurement of children's performance.

"If we're still paying bad teachers the same amount we pay good teachers, then public education will be ready for the bonfire," declared Rafferty. "And unless we drastically modify the network of State laws currently giving ironclad tenure to teachers so that we can fire the senile, the stupid and the subversive, public education is going to be a dead duck."

Asked, in the question and answer period, "As an advocate of patriotism, how do you explain to students America's mistakes," Rafferty answered: "I tell them they love their mother, and their mother makes mistakes all the time; but that doesn't mean you can't love your mother."

Dr. Rafferty is one expert in the field of education who doesn't mind saying what he thinks. Our hat is off to him.

Washington News Letter

By

Congressman O. C. Fisher

Rollback of prices were frowned upon by the House last week by a margin of 263 to 139. On an issue involving price controls on raw agricultural products, the vote against that one was 101 for and 303 against. Differences between the House and Senate versions of a one-year extension of wage-price control authority must be resolved by a Senate-House conference committee.

The decisive House action was a victory for producers and manufacturers and also for consumers. Rollbacks can be extremely vicious, particularly unless they are across the board and include wages. The law of supply and demand

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Doctor's Fee

Harold's wife died shortly after undergoing an operation. When a bill arrived from the surgeon, Harold decided not to pay. In due course, the matter wound up in court.

"Obviously, the operation was a failure," Harold pointed out to the judge. "Why should I have to pay for services that were useless?"

However, the court ordered him to pay up. The court said a doctor's services are to be measured by the quality of his work, not merely by the results—and this doctor had performed the operation in a proper manner.

"The marvelous skill of the greatest surgeons in the world," added the judge, "is sometimes futile."

This case states the general rule of law about medical fees. Furthermore, unless a specific sum has been agreed upon in advance, the doctor generally has considerable leeway—within reason—in deciding how high the fee will be.

May he take into account the patient's ability to pay? That is, may he charge a higher fee to a rich patient than to a poor one? Most courts say yes, sometimes on the theory that high-paying work will allow him to take on more low-paying work.

Nevertheless, the basic standard of due care remains constant, whether the fee is large or small—or even nonexistent. In one early case, a doctor was accused of neglecting a charity patient. In his defense, he insisted that he had less responsibility to be careful when he was working for nothing.

But the court disagreed, and held him liable on grounds of malpractice.

The judge commented: "Whether the patient be a pauper or a millionaire, whether he be treated gratuitously or for reward, the physician owes him precisely the same measure of duty and the same degree of skill and care."

is a powerful force in our free enterprise system. And the enactment of laws which interfere with it can create more problems than are cured.

In another House action last week, members refused to consider a $4½ billion job funds program in a package form. The mammoth proposal included both good and bad provisions. Included was authority to keep paying state and local governments to hire unemployed workers, a program begun two years ago. But since then unemployment has dropped to 5%, and state and local governments are said to be in better shape than they were two years ago.

President Nixon has proposed to replace the Public Employment Program (PEP) and other manpower programs with manpower revenue sharing, which state and local governments could use to hire the unemployed, if they chose.

In view of the huge federal deficit, the House action seemed to be the responsible course to follow. Any specific legislation on this subject can in the future be examined on the merits of each proposal that is presented.

A necessary extension of the federal highway construction program was approved, and now goes to a Senate-House conference committee to compromise the differences in the two versions.

Graduation, 1973

This is the time of year when graduation oratory fills the air on high school and college campuses across the nation. Never in recent years has the importance of what is being said to students been greater than it is today, in 1973, when so many youngsters are confused, or dissatisfied.

This year's graduates enter our free society possibly handicapped by experiences of recent years. They have listened to students, some of them militants and law breakers, telling the nation what is wrong with it, what changes must be made, etc. They have heard fellow students lambast the establishment, call for revolution and damn the capitalist system.

Admittedly, the graduate of 1973 enters a society far from perfect. The graduate need not agree with the customs, laws or traditions of his country. But most of them, and most graduates of all years, must agree with the principle that change is made through orderly means, if our society is to survive as a democratic one.

The 1973 graduate will gradually adjust his philosophy as he learns the facts and learns to appreciate the wonderful advantages of being an American and of living in America. Many will immediately appreciate their vast opportunities for economic, intellectual and social gain in the land of opportunity—still the United States.

No Hero

Like overseas draft dodgers who now seek to force the United States to admit Vietnam was a crime, and thereby they were right in disobeying the law of the land, some also project Daniel Ellsberg as a hero.

Neither the draft dodgers nor Ellsberg is in that category. Regardless of the outcome of the Ellsberg trial, the nation can't function effectively if everyone is free to turn over stolen, secret documents to the press when he has decided it is for the good of the country.

The principle in both cases is the same. If every citizen is to decide for himself what is best for the nation and disobey laws or regulations which bar his or her own action program, the result will be utter chaos, a breakdown of lawful, orderly government.

Museum Seminar Set For May In Odessa

A one-day seminar on basic principles of museum operation will be held in Lubbock Friday, May 4, sponsored by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee.

More than 100 persons involved in planning or operating museums in the Lubbock area are expected to attend the program, to be held in The Museum of Texas Tech University beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Top-ranking museum professionals will speak on how to form museum collections, documentation and research in the museum, exhibit techniques, educational programs, conservation of artifacts and documents, and operating a historic house museum.

Speakers will be Lonn Taylor, curator of Winedale Inn Properties at Round Top; Peter Rippe, director of the Harris County Heritage Society of Houston; Daniel Traverso, director of museum services, Texas State Historical Survey Committee, Austin; E. A. Carmean, educational curator, Houston Museum of Fine Arts; and Laurence Miller, curator of iconography, Humanities Research Center, University of Texas at Austin.

Lunch will be provided at the museum, and there will be an opportunity for informal discussion of individual museum problems with the seminar faculty and The Museum of Texas Tech University staff.

While there is no charge for the seminar, each participant must register in advance to receive a technical information packet and transcripts of the lectures, to be mailed out later. Registration must be accompanied by a check for $2.50 for lunch and should include the registrant's name and address, organization represented, and number in the party. These should be mailed immediately to Museum Seminars, The Museum of Texas Tech University, P. O. Box 4210, Lubbock.

The Lubbock seminar is one of six being presented throughout the state under grants from the National Museum Act (administered by the Smithsonian Institution) and the Moody Foundation (through the Texas Historical Foundation). The other seminars will be held in Beaumont, April 26, Corpus Christi, April 27; San Antonio, April 28; Dallas May 3; and El Paso, May 5.

Turkeys Most Economical Buy For Homemakers

Turkeys tempt homemakers turning their heads as they bypass meat counters these days. According to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, the big birds really are economical.

"Their fast growth—with most marketed at three to six months of age—and their efficient conversion of feed mean less money and time for producers compared to that of red meat production," she explained.

"Larger, whole turkeys prove the most economical even for small families. A large bird provides meat for the immediate meal with the remainder wrapped in meal-sized units and frozen for future use."

More specials on frying chicken make another poultry bargain, and eggs continue as an economical protein value, the specialist said.

"Grapefruit from the valley in heavy supply boasts attractive prices. Other fruit choices include oranges, apples, bananas, pineapples, and avocados."

Mrs. Clyatt blamed short supplies of some vegetables for their increased prices, and predicted a leveling of prices "as weather conditions level out."

Potatoes, carrots, bulk turnips, collards, mustard and turnip greens, along with Texas yellow onions, are among the most economical choices.

"Cottage cheese features appear on dairy counters, next to cream cheese, margarine, yogurt and low-fat milk."

Bill and Bob Meinecke and their wives spent the Easter holiday here with their mother, Mrs. Hurst Meinecke.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Now that Easter is over, gardening can begin in earnest and we can try to overcome the set-back from the late freeze.

Again I will remind you not to rush out and cut down overgreens that may look dead. It may take a month for new growth to begin showing. Too, it is advisable to prune off dead ends, branches or limbs of trees, except for pecans. They may come out and bloom again, giving a chance for a pecan crop this fall. If you haven't already fertilized, do so to help overcome the freeze damaged plants and trees.

Mums should be separated and planted this month, discarding the old center stem.

You can hasten the season by buying started plants if you lost seedlings during the cold. If in no hurry, there is plenty of time to plant the heat-loving annuals. Since the soil is warming up, seed should germinate much faster. Some are cosmos, amaranthus, celosia, marigold, zinnia, and portulaca.

When azaleas or camellias have finished blooming, feed them with special foods and sink into soil well. Repeat this application once or twice in 2 to 4 week intervals. Snip off any spent blooms and gather up flowers that have fallen to the ground to prevent insects and disease.

As flowers fade, cut tulips, yacintus and daffodils, but remain until it matures and turns brown. If it doesn't rain soon, shrubs and newly planted trees should be watered. This is necessary for the new growth which is forming.

Choosing a ham to fit your taste and budget isn't always easy.

But once you've made your decision and the ham is in your grocery cart, maintaining its wholeness is up to you. Ham, like all meat, naturally contains certain bacteria. Keeping it safe to eat means: Storing it properly, cooking it thoroughly, and handling leftovers with care.

With the exception of small (1 1/2-3 pound) canned ham, (not labeled "Perishable, Keep under Refrigeration"), and dry cured ham such as country style, and Smithfield-all ham must be refrigerated before cooking.

For best quality, a cured whole ham should be kept in the refrigerator no longer than 7 days. Any cured ham cuts smaller than a whole ham will keep in the refrigerator safely for 3-5 days. Unopened canned hams labeled "Perishable, keep under refrigeration" can be kept in the refrigerator up to six months without loss of quality, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Freezing is not recommended as a routine procedure for cured hams because of possible changes in flavor and texture. When necessary, cured hams may be frozen 1-2 months if wrapped closely, sealed tightly in moisture-resistant wrap and stored at 0 degrees F. or lower.

In the preparation and cooking of hams, proper sanitation is essential. Improper sanitation and handling can cause bacteria to grow and can result in food poisoning. According to 1971 statistics on food-borne illness, ham was the meat most often involved in cases of staph food poisoning. Staph food poisoning is rarely fatal, but the symptoms are nausea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and diarrhea. Because these symptoms usually go away within 24-28 hours, it is often mistaken for the "24-hour flu."

When it comes to cooking ham, there are three temperatures to remember, depending on the kind of ham you select. If the ham is a canned or fully-cooked type, it may be eaten cold without any kind of advance preparation. Or, if you prefer it warm, heat it to an internal temperature of 140 degrees F.

If the ham is the cook-before-eating kind, simmer or bake it to an internal temperature of 160 degrees F. But if you are cooking shoulder cuts of pork like cured picnic or shoulder butts, heat them to an internal temperature of 170 degrees F. Fresh ham, an uncured product, should be treated like fresh pork and heated to 170 degrees F. internal temperature, too.

Once the meal is over, refrigerate ham immediately. Never leave it at room temperature for long. Staph germs multiply rapidly at temperatures between 45-115 degrees F. A good rule of thumb is: keep hot foods Hot (140 degrees F. or above) and cold foods Cold (40 degrees F. or below). Remember always that ham is a perishable product. If you have any reason to suspect leftover ham, throw it out. Staph toxin cannot be baked or boiled away.
