GOP Plank On Prohibition Is Being Boosted

Hoover Campaign Manager Says Republican Plank Will Be A Winner, One To Which "We All Can Subscribe"

Wets Determined

Law Enforcement Official In Conference With Hoover And Says Resubmission Attitude Will Not Be Harmful

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 1. — From President Hoover's pre-convention campaign manager — Postmaster General Brown — came a prediction today that the Republican platform plank on prohibition would be one "to which we can all subscribe."

Walter Brown

The forecast was made in the midst of a round of prohibition political developments, including a warning to both parties from 39 dry organizations that they would not give an inch and would fight to the last any platform declaration leaning to the wet side.

President Hoover continued discussion of the question. Dr. Fred Smith, former international secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and now chairman of the citizens committee of one thousand for law enforcement, said after a call at the White House he had talked over the prohibition plank with the president. Afterward he said he did not think either party would hurt itself if it accompanied a law enforcement pledge with an expression for resubmission.

Program Is Made

Postmaster General Brown told newspapermen that progress was being made on the Republican platform as a whole. He would not go into detail regarding the prohibition plank.

Such predictions as his have been made by other prominent Republican leaders, but unaccompani-

Mr. Seaman dedicated the building for the "glory of God and the service of students," and many Lubbock and college organizations were represented by speakers who gave brief addresses, Mrs. Carl Svensen, president of the woman's auxiliary of North Texas, expressed hope that persons benefitting by the building would live up to the ideals of the man for whom it was named. It was stressed that the place was not merely for use of Episcopalians, but for all Texas Technological college students.

Flood, Lightning, Wind Heckle Oklahoma Cities

General Alarm To Protect Stock Sounded; Water Flows Through Downtown Streets

(By The Associated Press)

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 1. —A mischievous trio, flood, lightning and wind, heckled Oklahoma today.

Before dawn Chickasha merchants answered a general alarm to protect their stocks from water that flowed through downtown streets; overflows forced some families to move here and in Oklahoma City bottom land; a twister knocked down farm homes near Arapaho and power and telephone lines were hit in scattered sections of the state.

The flood here receded rapidly, however, and damage from Line creek, which burst its banks from a 3-inch rain, was slight. Families in the path of the tornado reached storm cellars safely and the only casualties were hundreds of chickens, killed by hailstones which caused extensive property damage.

Water in the main street of Alex reached business house doors before it retarded and at Rush Springs the owners of a small cotton gin office found an ironic flood had moved the structure across the street, face to face with a rival gin.

There were several railroad washouts near here and the Little Washita river cut off motor travel across highway 81, south of town. Pavement on highway 66 near Clinton was washed out.

A dozen families abandoned homes in Oklahoma City's community camp. More rain was likely.

One Jury Case Is Heard While Several Others Are Carried Through To Completion; One Plea Is Changed

Moving swiftly, the docket of the United States district court scheduled for Wednesday was cleared and several other matters that had arisen were cleared, so that Judge William H. Atwell adjourned for the day late in the afternoon.

One jury case was heard, that of J. T. Hutchinson and Ione Hutchinson vs. American Surety company. On motion, Judge Atwell instructed the jury to find for the plaintiff in the sum of $3,600 damages and this was done without the twelve men leaving the box. It was the only case heard by a jury during the day.

Plea Is Changed

Robert Brown Hudson, who previously had entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of violation of the Dyer act, changed his plea after the case was set for Saturday. Appearing yesterday afternoon he entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to 13 months in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio.

Hudson told the court he had transported a stolen car from Sayre, Okla., to Floydada. "I see where I did wrong," he told the court. "I am sorry I did it and throw myself on the mercy of the court." Hudson said he had a wife and that they expected a baby about the middle of June. His parents were in the court room when sentence was passed.

Agreed Judgment

An agreed judgment was recorded in the case of the Lincoln Life Insurance company vs. E. E. McCandless. The case of Cramer McMillan Grant by his next friend, Mrs. Laura Grant, was continued by plaintiff.

Joe Zournas, Lubbock Greek, was granted his American citizenship. A verdict for the defendant was given in the case of Ebba J. Cockerell, et al. vs. American Surety company of New York. Jury trial was waived.

The case of F. A. Blankenbeckler, receiver for the Plainview National bank, against F. J. Tillery, was dismissed.

Billy The Kid Rides Again And Lead-Slinging Cowpoke Escapes Over Outlaw Trail With $2,000

BY CHARLES P. MILLER
El Paso Times Staff Writer
Written For The Associated Press

EL PASO, June 1. (AP)—On the ghostly outlaw trail of Billy the Kid, a lead slinging cowpuncher was believed riding tonight with the $2,000 Hatch, N. M., First National bank loot in his saddle bags.

Into the pinion timbered hills of Las Gallinas mountains three posses were following in straining pursuit.

A rangy, white sombreroed stranger entered the First National bank of Hatch today at 1 p. m. and approached Coke Johnson, cashier, and Bert La Drier, a customer.

"Hold up your hands," he commanded.

The bandit's voice was as cold and deadly as the steel of his .45 automatic. His face was masked by bandages and tape.

Johnson and La Drier obeyed.

"No put them down. Somebody might get suspicious," counter commanded the bandit.

The bandit stepped to the safe. He could not open it.

"I'll have to bother you, sir," the bandit addressed Johnson. The cashier understood. He went over and opened the safe. The bandit scooped up all of the currency in sight, stuffed it in his pockets and walked leisurely to a side door.

The telephone rang. Johnson asked if he might answer it.

"Sure," the bandit replied, "and you may call the sheriff if you want to."

The cowboy darted out the door and ran to the rear of the bank, jumped on his large black horse and at full speed rode toward the outskirts of the town.

He rode toward the Las Cruces-Deming highway and disappeared in the foothills of the Las Gallinas, apparently headed for the border.

Sheriff Dick Trivis of Las Cruces who was notified immediately ordered three posses and took to the mountains on horseback.

Old time Hatch residents recalled that the holdup tactics were similar to those followed by Billy the Kid in the early eighties. The trail the bandit is believed to be following is almost identical with the one The Kid followed to the Mexican border when his "health" demanded that he leave the United States.

Presbyterians Name Fort Worth For Next Meeting

(By The Associated Press)

DENVER, June 1.—The harmony of the closing session of the 14th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. momentarily was disturbed today when the Rev. Irving W. Underhill, a negro missionary who has been serving in West Africa, objected to Fort Worth, Tex., as the 1933 meeting place.

He urged the negro delegates go on record as refusing to meet "in any place where a negro cannot be treated as a man and a brother."

Won't Be Stopped

Moderator Charles W. Kerr, Tulsa, made an attempt to stop Underhill on grounds he was not speaking to the question before the house.

"I won't be stopped that way," Underhill answered. "I am speaking on the question—on the question of next year's meeting place. A negro cannot be a man in Texas. It is impossible to be prejudiced and a Christian at the same time."

Motion Carried

There was no discussion on Underhill's protest and a motion by Dr. Mark A. Matthews, Seattle that the next assembly meet in the Texas city was carried without further opposition.

The protest was placed in the assembly record without comment.

The invitation to meet in Fort Worth was extended by the Rev Jasper Manton, Dallas. It was seconded by the Rev. M. E. Chappell, Fort Worth. No other city invited the assembly for next year.

Teachers Are Declining To Take Vouchers

Disagreement Over Salary Cut In Local Schools Reaches A New Stage After Meeting Of Officials Tuesday

Expect New Moves

Teachers Had Asked That May Salaries Be Paid In Full In View Of 14 Per Cent Cut Ordered For 1932-33

LUBBOCK school trustees have denied a petition of a group of teachers who had asked that May salaries be paid in full in view of the fact that the board had ordered reductions as great as 14 per cent for 1932-33, it was learned Wednesday.

The teachers officially had not been informed of the action, taken Tuesday night, Dan Powers, one of a trio which presented the petition, said. M. E. Witt and Weldon Chapman were others with Powers.

Move Is Held Up

"There was a clause, in the agreement to permit a ten per cent reduction to be taken out of our May salaries, that if the balance of the salaries were not paid by July 1 the reduction would not be effective," Powers explained. "We probably will wait until July 1 before any move is made. Many high school teachers declined to accept vouchers for May until the question was settled."

The letter, signed by President J. T. Hutchinson of the board, which was to have been mailed to the teachers yesterday, read:

Letter Made Public

"At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Lubbock Independent school district on May 31, 1932, the matter of the petition of May 4, signed by a number of the teachers, asking that the board reconsider its action in accepting the voluntary reduction of 10 per cent in salaries, agreed to by all teachers of the school system, was considered, but owing to the financial difficulties confronting the school district at this time, it was decided that it would be impossible to grant your request.

"The board fully recognizes the fine spirit of cooperation which has always been exhibited by the teachers and regrets that the stringency of the times necessitates a reduction in salaries."

Funds Are Short

The school district at this time does not have funds with which to cash April and May vouchers given to the teachers. Schools Manager A. C. Jackson said Wednesday. Money owned to teachers and already borrowed totals about $47,000, Mr. Jackson said. The state owes the district about $40,000 in per capita allotments and a considerable sum of money is due in delinquent taxes.

It was the understanding of the teachers Powers previously had pointed out that the ten per cent cut was agreed to on the condition that the reduction was only for the current year and that the school's salary schedule was to be maintained. About 100 teachers signed the petition.

MOVE IS APPROVED

WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP) — A move to permit expansion of the currency approximately $1,000,000,000 was approved today by the senate banking committee.

RECENTLY Miss Margaret Turner, of this staff, compiled a story showing that more people are attending Sunday school in Lubbock this year than in past years, indicating that perhaps more people are turning to the church in a time of general depression.

Strikingly, Radically New Phantom* Kotex

SANITARY NAPKIN (U. S. Pat. No. 1,857,834)

Most important improvement in sanitary protection since the invention of Kotex itself in 1920.

AT LAST! A radically new design in sanitary protection. You are scarcely aware that you have it on. Made, of course, by Kotex—originators of the modern sanitary napkin.

It is called PHANTOM ★ KOTEX. Why? Because the ends are so flattened and tapered that it leaves no outlines even under the closest-fitting of gowns. Not the slightest bulk suggested even under the filmiest of summer silks. And—for those who require extra protection — Super-Phantom Kotex is ideal. There's extra protective surface but the ends are so skilfully flattened as to be completely inconspicuous.

Kotex features retained

The special Kotex features you have always appreciated are retained, of course. It is soft after hours of use; wonderfully absorbent; treated to deodorize; can be worn, with equal protection, on either side; disposable, easily.

More than 24 million pads were used in hospitals alone last year.

Insist upon getting genuine Kotex, when you buy it already wrapped. Each tapered end of the new pad is stamped "Kotex" now—so you can't get inferior substitutes.

Kotex prices are today the lowest in Kotex history. This new improvement comes to you at no increase in price. All dealers have the new PHANTOM KOTEX.

HOW SHALL I TELL MY DAUGHTER?

Many a mother wonders. Now you simply hand your daughter the little booklet entitled, "Marjorie May's Twelfth Birthday." For free copy, address Mary Pauline Callender, Room 2140, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The new Kotex is called PHANTOM ★ KOTEX because—you scarcely realize you are wearing it!

No revealing outlines—The new PHANTOM KOTEX is flattened and tapered so that ends are completely inconspicuous.

Greater security—The smooth, snug fit gives greater wearing ease than you've ever before experienced.

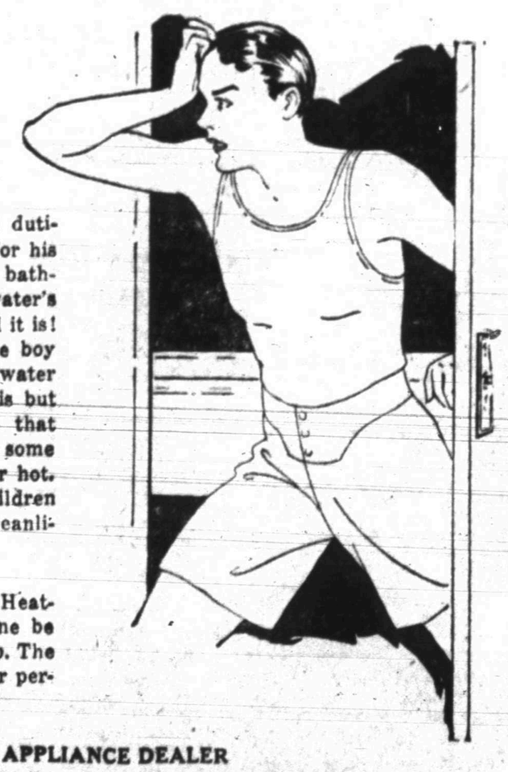

Lastingly soft—disposable—The same softness and absorbency for which Kotex is famous. Disposable always.

New Kotex Belt, narrow, adjustable, only 35c—Wear it with the new PHANTOM KOTEX. The combination makes for complete ease, for completely inconspicuous protection.

"What happened to the HOT WATER?

POOR JUNIOR! After he had dutifully heated enough water for his bath, some one slipped into the bathroom for a shower and the water's cold again. What a cruel world it is! How can Junior tidy up for the boy scout meeting with soap and water that's cold and clammy? This is but another of the disappointments that must be endured in homes where some one tends fire to keep the water hot. Unluckily, it discourages children from developing the habit of cleanliness.

Home Runs Give Athletics Double Win Over Yankees

Ten Million Dollars Go Wrong As Dark Horse Wins

In a little book just printed by the Vanguard Press, Harold Matson and Virginia Swain ask some exciting questions. Ten of these are answered by Colonel Joe Williams, of the New York World-Telegram, who names the 10 greatest athletes in as many sports.

Wagner is Joe's nomination for supremacy is baseball, and while there will be a lot of chatter in the back room over that one, this department will cast one vote with the Colonel.

The Case for Ruth

There will be those who insist Babe Ruth has proved the greatest hitter of all time. It is pointed out that Ruth not only has been a great outfielder, but a splendid pitcher. He has been the greatest home run hitter the game ever knew, smacking more than 600 homers in his 18 years in the game. Wagner, in his 21 years in the majors, hit only 101 homers.

Ruth has a reputation for never having thrown to the wrong base. Technically, he covered his ground well, but it is impossible to forget the years in which he was shifted out of the sun field and that assignment left to other less colorful workmen.

Wagner had a great deal of color, too, furnishing sensational hitting and sparkling plays during many a crisis. He saved a lot of ball games, but he hardly approaches the Babe either in color or in human interest.

Ruth has shown himself a greater home run hitter, with more color than old John Henry, but Wagner remains the greatest ball player of all time.

Could Ruth Play Short?

Shortstop is the toughest spot in baseball. A shortstop has to be fast afoot, with ability to go to his right or left. He figures in a great many more plays than an outfielder. He has 10 times as many chances to lose a ball game. Wagner covered this difficult spot for 20 years.

He turned in some of the brightest bits of fielding it ever has been my pleasure to watch, and he was already an old man when I first saw the Dutchman perform against the Cubs back in 1910. What a marvelous fielder he must have been in his prime, despite his appearance of awkwardness, it must be left to those before my time to judge.

Apparently awkward, yet always on top of the ball dashing with uncanny speed and judgment to either right or left, and with an arm that was always swift and sure, right up to his last year in the game, he was an inspiring one-man spectacle in almost every one of the 2700 or more games he played.

On The Paths

His speed is reflected also in his base-running record. Wagner stole 720 bases in the majors. Of course, it may be said that Ruth didn't have to steal bases—and he certainly didn't, with an 18-year record of 116 pilfered sacks—but base stealing in Wagner's day held just as important an appeal to the fans as homers have since Ruth started blasting them about 10 years ago.

I do not believe that Ruth, playing concurrently with Wagner, could have stolen a third as many bases as the Dutchman did. But I believe that Wagner, playing in Ruth's day would have killed 50 pitchers, and would have made so many more home runs than Ruth that the comparison would be very unflattering to the Babe.

Those Smoking Liners

If Wagner had been standing up to that plate in his prime during the same period in which Ruth compiled his home run records, you never would have heard of Babe Ruth, and the championships that the Yankees won would have gone to Pittsburgh.

Those who have never seen Wagner pound that old dead ball screeching through the pitcher's box may deem this just a day dream. But McGinnity and Miner Brown, or any other pitcher who put it over and ducked when the old Dutchman's mace rang out, will testify to its reality.

Bishop's Homer In Sixteenth Gives A's 8-7 Win In First And Foxx Hits 18th Homer In Second For 7-6 Win

(By The Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. — The Athletics used the same method to win both games of a long-drawn-out double header from the New York Yankees today and wound up only a half game out of third place. The scores were 8-7 and 7-6, the first game going 16 innings.

A homer by Max Bishop with one on base and one out in the sixteenth won the opener, the longest game so far in the major league season, and Jimmie Foxx' eighteenth circuit drive of the season, coming with one aboard in the seventh, supplied the winning runs in the second contest.

The first game started out as a duel between Charley Ruffing and Leroy Mahaffey and was carried into extra innings when the Yankee pitcher hit a homer in the ninth inning.

Lefty Grove replaced Mahaffey in the ninth while Ruffing finally yielded to Walter Brown in the twelfth but neither team could make a threatening gesture until the final inning.

The Athletics got off ahead in the second game when they found George Pipgras for four runs in the first inning and Roger Cramer hit a homer in the second but the Yanks forged ahead in the sixth kith a four-run rally, topped by Arndt Jorgens' homer.

Tribe Beats Houston Buffs By 7-1 Count After Losing 10 Consecutive Games; Mealey Makes Debut As Catcher

SAN ANTONIO, June 1. (AP) — Opening on the home lot for a short stay of three games on their return from a disastrous road trip on which they lost seven straight games for a total of 10 consecutive defeats, the San Antonio Indians pounced on the Houston Buffs today when they won the first game of the series, 7-1.

They dissected the slow curves of their nemesis, Ray Mos, for 14 hits, of which six were clustered in the sixth inning to net five runs for a lead after battling at a 1-1 tie, while Fabian Kowalik kept the Buffs under control with seven hits.

All of the runs scored in the game were earned off the pitchers.

Jack Mealey, newly acquired catcher, made his debut here in an Indian suit and celebrated the event with a two-base smash against the left field fence to drive in the first Indian run.

Mrs. Moody Wins Singles Matches In Straight Sets

AUTEUIL, France, June 1. (AP)—Straight set victories marked the forward paths of Helen Wills Moody and young Gregory Mangin in the singles play of the French tennis championships today.

An overwhelming favorite from the start Mrs. Moody blasted Mlle. Collette Payot, of Switzerland, from her path to gain the semi-finals of the women's singles, 6-2, 7-5, while Mangin, a forelorn hope at the best in the men's singles, reached the quarter-finals by defeating Aki Kuwabara, of Japan, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs. Moody will meet Hilda Krahwinkel, German girl who reached the finals last year, and there is nothing to indicate that the American girl who won singles titles here in 1928, 1929 and 1930, but did not defend last year, will be strongly pressed.

Mangin, the Newark, N. J., youth, faced an entirely different prospect. His next opponent will be the winner of a match between Henri Cochet, ace of the French Davis Cup team, and G. P. Hughes, British Davis Cup doubles player, with the odds against him in play with either man.

Managers Scuffle Over Checkers Eve Of Game

Lubbock's entire police force and the local unit of National Guard answered a riot call from the Morning Avalanche late yesterday evening against what was anticipated as a free-for-all when Rotarians and Kiwanians came home after strenuous days at alleged baseball training camps where they have been conditioning for the baseball epic of the year at Merrill Park this afternoon.

But the police and national guardsmen were disappointed, as were several hundred fans who had congregated on the streets. When the clubs hit town, Manager Judge Raley of the Rotarians and Manager Delicate Del Morgan of the Kiwanians fell into each other's arms, patted each others backs and chorused: "Old pa, I'm awfully glad to see you, Meet the boys. Boys, meet my pal." After two hours of introduction the police and soldiers went home, as did most of the congregation, and prospects for a banner crowd at Merrill Park this afternoon went kerfooie,

Leave Too Soon

The cops an dsoldiers left to soon. While an exasperated reporter sought statements and lineups from the managers, Raley and Morgan found a vacant desk and Del took out his checkers. Two hours later Raley made his second move and Del called his sand. "You gotta have a king before you can jump back that way." They flew into a rage and came near beating each other up.

"Just for that, I'm gonna let my team beat yours tomorrow," insisted Raley.

"That's right; we do have a ball game scheduled tomorrow. But I'm gonna beat you anyway. I'm gonna pitch. I'm manager," returned Del.

May Play Yet

The argument ran on, and so, folks of baseball land, it may be quite a battle after all. Four bits is the charge, ladies and gentlemen.

In the meantime, the reporter had wriggled the probable lineups from the managers. Raley has divided his squad into first team, second team and shock troops. His starting lineup and batting order may or may not be as follows:

On his second team, Raley named George Dupree, Fred Caylor, Jack Randall, Dr. Y. G. Aiken, Clarence Minor, J. C. Davis, Homer Grant, George Simmons, Ray Hinchey and Softie Wells. Ray Furr will be bat boy; Floyd Friend is water boy; C. L. Adams is named foul chaser and Piney Parsons, pig tail.

Morgan May Pitch

Manager Morgan, between moves, hinted that he possibly would pitch; O. W. English, Doc McAllister, Dutchy Smith and H. F. Godeke will fight for two infield places. They have placed orders for football headgear and catchers' masks. Jack Lewis is the scheduled catcher. J. C. Sanders looks like a likely starter at first base. Runt Stangel, C. W. Ratliff, Amos Howard, Fred Standefer, Hay Davidson and M. H. Duncan are likely to be seen covarting in the outfield. They have placed orders for football headgear, smoked glasses and catching masks. Clark Mullican is the probable bat boy. The club probably will use water from the Rotarians' bucket.

100 To 6 Shot Comes Home In English Derby

King And Queen Join Million Subjects To See Favorite, Orwell, Run Ninth; April The Fifth Wins Classic

(By The Associated Press).

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng., June 1.—Ten million dollars—probably more—were wrong today.

They backed Washington M. G. Singer's Orwell to win the derby at 15 to 8, made him the most heavily played derby favorite since 1906. But Orwell was nowhere, a poor ninth, at the finish as Tom Walls' April The Fifth, lightly regarded at 100 to 6, raced to victory in the 153rd running of the English turf classic.

A few thousand wisely placed pound notes of the actor and playboy friend of Walls, moving picture comedian and sportsman, proved emphatically right, when April The Fifth, closing with a great burst of speed in the final 100 yards, defeated the Aga Khan's Dastur by three quarters of a length.

Second Choice Third

Lord Roseberry's Miracle, the second choice, was third, just a head back of Dastur. Then followed E. Esmond's Royal Dancer and the other half of the Aga Khan's entry, Firdaussi.

The crowd—variously estimated from 500,000 to one million and including the king and queen and their sons—had dug deeply into its pockets to back Orwell, winner of the two thousand guineas and champion juvenile last year.

The crowd was so stunned at the finish a loud whisper up at Tattenham corner could almost have been heard in the enclosure. Then there came just a number of sporting applause as the grinning Walls led the victor into the winner's circle.

The race was worth the equivalent of $50,000 to the winner. April The Fifth's time for the mile and a half was 2 minutes 43 seconds.

Last American Is Beaten In Womens British Tourney

SAUNTON, England, June 1. (AP) The solitary advance of America's last hope in the British Womens' amateur golf championship ended today with the defeat in the semi-finals of courageous Leona Cheney, 3 and 2, by Enid Wilson, 22, daughter of a Derbyshire country doctor.

The big Englishwoman who clouts a ball like a man, slashes it out of bad lies as Ted used to do in his heyday, and rarely under 250 yards with her woods, overpowered the fine California shotmaker just as she did Glenna Collett Vare yesterday, and all the others who have challenged for the title she holds.

Tomorrow, in the final round of a championship no American woman ever has been able to win, England lines up against Scotland as Miss Wilson plays the 36-hole final against Miss Clem Montgomery, champion of her own golf lands in 1924.

It is expected that belting Enid will win easily. Mrs. Montgomery defeated Mrs. H. Clarke, of Ireland, in the other semi-final today, 3 and 2.

Young Golfers Of Panhandle Vie At Amarillo Today When American Legion Holds Tilt

AMARILLO, June 1. —(AP)—With the field expected to equal the 86 entrants of last year, young golfers from over the Panhandle tackle the municipal course here tomorrow in qualifying rounds of the second annual American Legion junior championship.

Match play starts Friday, with 36-hole finals coming Sunday.

Worland Schaal, young Plainview ace, and Quinn "Spec" Cantrell, 1931 Amarillo caddy champion, are the favorites.

Buzz Arlett Hits Quartet Of Four-Baggers In Game For Baltimore At Reading

READING, Pa., June 1. (AP)—Buzz Arlett, Baltimore outfielder, equaled the best known home run hitting records today when he clouted four home runs in one game against Reading. The record books show only two players who ever performed the feat, Robert Lowe of the Boston Nationals did it in 1894 and Ed Delehan of the Philadelphia Nationals in 1896. Complete minor league records were not available.

Jack Wagner, Davidson college athlete, won letters this year in golf, track, basketball and football.

Golf STARS play it

by ART KRENZ

Watch some leading golfer play an iron and you will notice that the right toe points directly at right angles to the direction line.

The right side must not turn away in the backswing. It must be kept almost in the same position as at address. Neither must it stiffen. The right leg should not be straightened in the back swing.

If the right leg be straightened the whole weight will be thrown backward instead of being kept on the ball of the right foot.

Some golfers deliberately turn the right toe in toward the ball in order to prevent the right side from turning away. The more the right foot is turned away from the ball the greater is the inclination to stiffen the right side.

We'll Make A Guess, Too

THIS is the season of the year when Texans, viewing a forthcoming political battle, are privileged to do a lot of free hand guessing—and, as usual, most of us are doing some. Even though state politics has not yet reached the fever heat, there is much speculation over the gubernatorial campaign with nearly everybody agreeing that the final round will be fought between Governor Sterling and the Fergusons.

As Governor Sterling said in Beaumont recently, "other candidates may show something later on," when he indicated that it was the Ferguson hurdle that he had to make to succeed himself. Naturally he and his partisans think he'll make the hurdle; the Fergusons and their partisans don't think he will—and the great crowd of citizens on the middle ground, who will decide the issue in the final analysis, doesn't know what to think.

The Texas Opinion, published at Houston and setting forth as a digest of Texas editorial comment, thinks Governor Sterling will come through—and says so. But other Texas publications, and a great many business and professional people doubt that the Harris county man can repeat and they're watching the situation with an eagle eye.

The Morning Avalanche accepted Mr. Sterling in the second primary of 1930 with a great deal of misgivings; it has never supported the Fergusons, either with or without misgivings. Since we feel that things have come to a pretty pass when the people of Texas can't have a broader choice for the governorship than they have today, we are just about as non-partisan as we'll ever be so we're going to hazard a guess. It is:

"Governor Sterling has the fight of his life on his hands. If he and his friends don't get on their rifles Mrs. Ferguson is going to be the next governor of Texas. Talk of Ferguson supporters not paying their poll tax can be offset by the fact that many strong Sterling supporters of 1928 are against him now and people who never before thought of voting for Fergusonism are seriously considering the step this year."

We concede the 'inside track' to Mr. Sterling but the advantage is slight, indeed. It's going to take work, and lots of it, on the part of the Houstonian and his friends to keep him in the state house.

THE POSTAL DEFICIT

The question seriously is raised wether an increase of postal rates will reduce the deficit of the Postoffice Department. The explanation is a recognition of the fact that many people will be deterred from using the mails by the additional costs. In that event, the policy proves more than foolish; it is vicious. Insofar as business promotion by the use of the mails is discouraged, the return of prosperity is hindered, and making difficult friendly personal communication lowers general morale at a time when especially it demands conserving.

In such circumstances the folks back home should find a way to make known to their Congressmen their indignation over the abuse of the franking system. The Postoffice Department last year fell short of paying its way by approximately $150,000,000. How large a part of that was the result of members of Congress mailing postage-free about 33,000,000 pieces of mail matter? What part of those 33,000,000 pieces was unsought by their recipients, unappreciated, unread and totally wasted?

Of late a Michigan congressman sent out his photograph to newspapers in his district. The envelope, marked with his signature and the stern warning "penalty for private use to avoid payment of postage, $300", bore no postage stamp. It would be a startling revelation to the folks who are asked to bear the burden of higher postal rates, to get the figures as to the tons of absolutely useless bunk franked through the mails by members of Congress during this campaign this year.

Three holdup men got $25,000 from an Ohio bank the other day. That's about the only way you can get money from banks these days.

Practical Health Problems

TEETH SUFFER FROM DIET OF ACIDS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

CONDITIONS of diet and nutrition vary throughout the world in different nations. Hence careful studies of such diets in relation to the development of the teeth afford interesting information as to the factors responsible for dental decay.

In Hawaii, fruits, vegetables and fresh seafood are to be had in abundance at all seasons of the year. The population includes representatives of all the human races living in groups in close proximity and yet maintaining racial customs and food habits.

Advantage was taken of this opportunity for a comparative study of teeth by Drs. Martha R. Jones, Nils P. Larsen and George P. Pritchard, who made some extremely interesting observations. They examined 1761 preschool children and found decay of the teeth in some of them of special type or odontoclasia. Of all the children examined, between 50 and 75 per cent at various ages up to 6 years had this condition.

In these children the enamel was soft in texture and easily scratched. The teeth that were partially disintegrated were found to have an extraordinarily large amount of cement substance in the enamel.

The cause of these changes in the teeth was not apparent, since the children were not subject to malnutrition; most of them had been fed at the breast, and most of them had lived all their lives in a sun-flooded environment.

In further prosecution of the attempt to find out why the teeth of the children had thus disintegrated, the observers found that the diets of children 3 years of age or older which contained fruits and vegetables in amounts sufficient to produce an alkaline reaction in the ash were invariably associated with sound enamel or arrested decay, regardless of how the diet was otherwise constituted.

On the other hand, active decay was always associated with diets which contained acid elements in excess. The giving of various amounts of vitamins, calcium and phosphorus failed to retard the disintegration of the teeth.

They were convinced that any type of diet or any factor or combination of factors which tended to decrease the amount of alkalinity in the tissue fluids and oral secretions proportionately increased the liability of the enamel to decay.

Investigators have learned that it is not possible to pin responsibility on any one factor in the diet for some of the extraordinary disturbances that may take place in the human body.

The studies made in Hawaii reveal also the necessity for maintaining in the body a suitable alkaline reaction. There is also involved the question of suitable use of the teeth in chewing food.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

He that diligently seeketh good procureth favor: but he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him. —Proverbs, xi, 27.

Indicating What Is Possible

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Cutting the federal government's expenses helps, certainly. Nevertheless, it is from the cost of state, county, municipal and other local governments that the average taxpayer, the country over, is most rapidly bleeding to death.

Government, in all its forms, now takes more than 20 per cent of the annual national income, including current charges on outstanding indebtedness. Of the total, Uncle Sam takes about one-third; local government the rest.

Governor O. Max Gardner

Thus, obviously, economies nearer home can do folk more good than those congress effects, but they do not sound so big because even great states deal only in millions, whereas in Washington it is customary to refer to any sum much under a billion as mere small change.

HOWEVER, here and there a provincial executive is to be found who really is grappling with financial conditions in his bailiwick in a fashion to get results.

According to accounts from North Carolina, Gov. O. Max Gardner is one of them.

Under his administration, beginning in January, 1929, the Tarheel commonwealth's overhead has been so drastically reduced, they say, that taxes actually have been lowered while the state has been paying off its previously accumulated obligations, and at the same time maintaining and steadily expanding its public improvements. That is a remarkable performance for a term almost exactly coincidental with the whole of the depression, I think it will be agreed.

THE GOVERNOR, happening to be in Washington recently, it seemed desirable to ask him how he had accomplished such a miracle, and he explained his system readily. I omit figures; they fell too swiftly to be kept in mind. The items, besides, at most were in eight digits—not enough, as previously suggested, to appeal to an imagination nourished on United States treasury reports. Anyway, the method is the essential thing.

"For example," said Governor Gardner, "we had a network of state roads, maintained by a gasoline tax. Naturally it was a tax paid largely by farmers, but only 35 per cent of them lived on the state highways. Therefore, they had also to keep up their local roads, for which they were taxed separately by their respective counties.

"Today all roads are state roads—all paid for by the gasoline excise. No county can levy a road tax. County boards have been abolished, as have the offices of 400 road commissioners.

"The state likewise has taken over the county prisons—much, generally speaking, to the prisoners' advantage. All prisoners, serving more than 60 days, work on the roads. They are kept in sanitary camps, scientifically rationed and are humanly cared for."

"COUNTY BOARDS," continued the North Carolina executive, "as I have said, were abolished. In their places there exists a local government commission—a state organization—of seven members, counting its chairman.

"To this commission come petitions for local improvements.

"Illustratively, if residents in some particular section desire a new road or the abandonment of an old one, they submit their request to the local government commission, which dispatches its contact representative to investigate and report upon it.

"Should a certain county desire to issue bonds for a strictly local, permanent improvement—say a new court house—it applies to the local government commission for the necessary authority. In the event of the commission's refusal, the right remains to the applicants to appeal, by referendum, to their home county's voters.

"The affair of every local governmental unit is subject to this regulation."

IN CONNECTION with the activities of the local government commission, the governor related that a purchasing agency was established, speedily followed by an enormous reduction in the cost of supplies of all sorts required by the various units, from the state down to the townships.

One case cited was that of the rate of $21 per dozen paid at the outset for prisoners employed in road work—a price which the purchasing agency speedily was able to trim to $11.

Proportionate economies, it appears, have been made in every direction, to a total saving sufficient to put the state into comparatively easy circumstances. The economies are accompanied by a higher degree of efficiency through a centralization of control in the hands of an executive personnel which determines upon a maximum of achievement at the lowest cost consistent with genuinely capable administration.

CHEMICAL WARFARE

As the World war to an important extent was, and the next war to a still greater degree is expected to be, the prohibition-enforcement war is a battle of the chemists.

Dr. James A. Doran, commissioner of the industrial alcohol section of the internal revenue department, told a Philadelphia audience that the government chemists must constantly devise new denaturants to prevent alcohol sold for legitimate purposes from being used, through "recooking" and similar processes, in the manufacture of bootleg whiskey.

When the government scientists devise a new denaturant the chemists for the bootleggers produce a scheme to overcome it. It is a sort of a hooch leapfrog game. One wonders how the score stands now.

What Other People Think

We spend 10,000,000 pounds a year on education and 600,000,000 pounds on drink and gambling. Wasteful expenditure in this (England) and other countries is one of the causes of our troubles today.—The Rt. Rev. John Kempthorne, Bishop of Lichfield, England.

The district around Nice, France, has become an entrenched camp. New roads and railroads have been constructed, linking the valleys with ports. This year alone France is spending $20,000,000 on the Italian frontier.—Senator Domenico Nuvoloni of Italy.

The government and the people of England wish well toward the Irish Free State. We wish to see its people happy and prosperous. THE BRIDGE OF THE GODS

The Mihashi, or Sacred Red Bridge, spanning the frothing mountain stream of Dayi Gawa near Nikko, is one of the most picturesque objects in Japan. It is reserved for the exclusive use of the gods of Japan and the Tenno (Son of Heaven), the official title of the Japanese soverign. No mortal may cross on it.

Its vivid red coloring is traced to the fact that in former days human blood was used to dye it. The blood donors would slash themselves with long knives to obtain the fluid for the purpose.

Mere mortals use another bridge, made of plain granite, to cross the stream nearby.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, is in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son. DENISE ACKROYD, society girl, tries to break up the attachment and succeeds at a house party which she gives. ERNEST HEATH, Susan's employer, happens to be passing when Susan and Bob quarrel and takes her home. His wife threatens to sue for alienation of his affection but changes her mind when JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, produces an incriminating letter. RAY FLANNERY, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan her distress on hearing that "SKY" WEBB has married another girl. Ben and Susan quarrell on Christmas eve over some flowers Heath sent her. Waring, meeting Denise, learns of her interference in Susan's affairs. Heath asks Susan to be his wife when his divorce becomes final. She hesitates. Her aunt undergoes a serious operation and Susan decides to marry him for the sake of security. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

Susan's engagement had not been announced since neither she nor Heath desired the publicity but it was a definite engagement just the same. Aunt Jessie, home from the hospital, had been told of it. She had met Ernest Heath and had grudgingly liked him although she had grumbled at the idea of their marriage.

"I never thought to see you marry a divorced man," she mourned. "Especially someone so much older. Not that he isn't a fine man. Anyone with half an eye can see that. It just don't seem right."

The starched nurse Heath had insisted upon providing for the convalescent bustled into the room then and Aunt Jessie fell silent. The plan was that on the following day Aunt Jessie was to go to Florida in the nurse's charge. The marriage would take place the following month.

"It don't seem right," Aunt Jessie went on when the nurse had disappeared, "to accept so much from a perfect stranger."

"He's not a perfect stranger," Susan said, laughing, and then wondered if she had really spoken the truth. It had been strange and difficult for her to call her employer Ernest. She had finally managed it as she had learned also to like and admire the slim, quiet, aristocratic man whom she had promised to marry. There was no time for regret. The die had been cast. Heath had thought it unsuitable for her to continue working in the office so she was at home.

"Time for your nap," she reminded the invalid.

Aunt Jessie grumbled. "I declare I never expect to see the day when I'd sleep in the middle of the afternoon. I call it shiftlessness."

"You're a humbug. You really like it," Susan told her, leaving to get her wraps. Heath was calling to take her for a drive.

He looked at the girl with some dissatisfaction as she got into the car.

"What on earth's the matter?" Susan asked.

"Nothing, except that I wish you'd let me give you that fur coat now instead of waiting until later," the man remarked.

Susan shook her head. On this point she was stubborn. She would take anything for Aunt Jessie but nothing for herself until she was rightfully Heath's wife.

"I thought we'd go out to that little Spanish place for tea," he said.

"That would be nice. I'd like that," she assured him. The luxury and care with which he surrounded her was almost suffocating. Was she warm enough? Why had she worn those thin shoes? Susan appreciated the solicitude, at the same time finding it a little trying. Young men were not like this she reminded herself. Young men were careless and selfish and arrogant.

"What are you thinking of? You look as if you were miles away."

She turned to smile at him. "Only of how good you are to me."

There! She had pleased him and with so little. She was almost ashamed. It was so easy to make him happy. She divined something of his former loneliness.

The drive was longer than Susan had expected and it was dark when at last they returned to the city. It had been a clear, cold, sunshiny day, and a faint light still lingered on the lake. On sudden impulse Susan said, "Let's walk along the lake wall."

She wanted quite unreasonably to escape from the warm, luxurious car and feel the east wind on her cheeks. Heath told Simon to wait for them at the turn of the road.

"It's lovely here, isn't it," breathed the girl. She leaned against the parapet, looking down at the water.

"Not as much so as some of the places you and I are going to see soon," the man reminded her.

She shivered involuntarily. Instantly he was all solicitude.

"You're cold. I knew you would be. We'd better go back to the car."

"No, no. It's not that," she protested. "It's only that I feel a little frightened sometimes. It has all worked out too smoothly. It seems as though something must be bound to happen."

"Nonsense." His reassurance was robust. "You're just fanciful, that's all."

"Maybe I am." But had it been fancy, Susan wondered, what had caused her to imagine the tall figure strolling past the house several nights when she had been saying goodby to Heath looked strangely like Ben? Somehow the idea had made her uneasy. She had refused to see Ben since Christmas eve when he had outrageously kissed her.

"What's that?" she asked fear-

Letters To The Editor

Tahoka Man Would Preserve The Waters Of The Brazos

Editor, The Avalanche: There are ten principal Texas rivers all flowing into the Gulf of Mexico and the largest of these is the Rio Grande, which after the Mississippi, is the largest river to empty its waters into the Gulf. This great stream, fed at its sources by Colorado glaciers two and a half miles above sea level, is half as long as the Nile, drains seven American states and supplies water for four major irrigation systems. One of these lies below Elephant Butte dam, once rated as the largest artificial lake on earth.

The Red river is shorter than the Rio Grande and carries more water and is known as "America's cleanest river," since there are no large towns on its banks or near enough for sewerage to taint its waters anywhere above Shreveport, Louisiana. Both the Red and Rio Grande, like the Pecos, Canadian and Sabine, are interstate streams. Of the all-Texas rivers, the Trinity, while a short stream with a small watershed, carries almost as much water as the Brazos, which has a watershed twice as large. The Trinity might well be classed as the nastiest river in Texas, as the Red is the cleanest, since the two great North Texas cities near its headwaters pollute this noble stream nearly 100 miles below Dallas.

The Brazos is believed to be the largest river in Texas, for although the Colorado has nearly as large a watershed as the Brazos, the latter stream carries nearly twice the water. It was near the mouth of the Brazos that the first permanent Anglo-Saxon settlement was founded more than a century ago. Waco the ninth and Lubbock the eighteenth city in population rank are both located on its banks.

Washington, once the capital of Texas, was for years the head of Brazos steamboat navigation but railroads killed the town and steamboats no longer ply the red muddy waters. No finer land exists in all the world than that along the lower Brazos where cotton, rice, corn and sugar cane grow in such abundance. Near the river's mouth is the world's largest sulphur mine and Velasco, right at the mouth, was once the leading seaport of Texas. The Brazos valley might truly be said to have been the cradle of the great western cattle ranch industry, reaching almost to the Arctic circle and from the Great Lakes to the Pacific.

The Brazos heads up near the New Mexico line at almost 4,000 feet altitude and some geologists think that the upper Pecos once drained into it but that later volcanic and seismic disturbances changed the course of the Pecos to its present due south course. The fact is that for the first 100 miles neither the Salt Fork (north) nor Double Mountain Fork (south) of the Brazos has any running water except at flood season.

At Lubbock the latter fork first appears as a living stream and the smaller north fork starts running constantly about ten miles north of Crosbyton near the beautiful Silver Falls at the old Basset ranch. The fall from Lubbock at 3,000 feet altitude is nearly 400 feet to Post, only 40 miles away. In the next 50 miles, to a point near Rotan, there is a drop of nearly 700 feet. Here the river changes from a southeasterly course to northeast for 85 miles but 30 miles on this course it joins Salt Fork in the northeast corner of Stonewall county. In this 85 miles, the drop is about 600 feet. At Seymour the river makes its final turn to the southeast and in the intervening 50 miles to the mouth of Clear Fork in Young county is another 300 feet drop and in the next 60 miles to Granbury, the drop is only slightly less. From this Hood county town to Waco the airline distance is but 70 miles but measuring around the bends it is almost three times as far, with another 300 foot fall. Waco, 427 feet altitude, is 210 miles from the sea but War Department figures give the river distance as 404 miles or about a foot per mile.

It is a safe guess that from Lubbock to Velasco it is 1,200 or 1,400 miles, measuring around bends, for the airline distance is nearly 600 miles. In the 140 miles from Seymour to old Kimball in Bosque county, the Brazos falls about 800 feet and twists and winds through low mountains for 400 or 500 miles. In this stretch of the river is a great deal of fine fishing, boating and swimming, with plenty of wild scenery and since the region is not thickly settled, there is still some small game along the banks.

Within 100 miles of this part of river is a town and city population of well up towards a million and already the power, water supply and irrigation possibilities are being scientifically prospected and soon six or eight dams may be under construction there. The old Brazos will be made to serve Texas, which is right and proper.

Unlimited boodle enabled one great foreign corporation to steal every drop of water in the Colorado but such fate must not befall the Brazos, whose power sites are worth untold millions. All artificial lakes built on it and all intervening water should be reserved for state parks and wild life preserves where all non-predatory birds, animals and reptiles should be forever safe from molestation.

Texas is ours and the Brazos is its greatest river. The waters of this noble stream should be so conserved as to be the greatest benefit to the greatest number of Texas people. Is it not time to stop "peddling" our most valuable natural resources to outsiders who take so much out of Texas and put nothing back into it?

"B. C." Relieves Your Headache In 3 Minutes

Realizing that no one drug can relieve all headaches, as they come from so many causes, a North Carolina pharmacist has developed a combination of several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to relieve almost any headache in a few minutes. You can get this formula wherever drugs are sold under the name "B. C.," 10c and 25c packages, and when you have one of those violent nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, "B. C." will give you soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia, reducing fever, and for quiting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 1.(AP)—Cotton experienced a day of feverish activity and dropped to new low levels for the season with July, the near month, at 5 cents. Trading was very heavy and liquidation was persistent. The main depressing influence was the break in stocks after a firm opening. A favorable weekly weather and crop summary probably helped the decline and the close was near the lows showing net declines for the day of 24 to 28 points.

When the stock market reacted and the news from Washington was unsettling prices slumped badly under heavy liquidation.

The weekly weather report was construed favorably and was therefore bearish and a private crop report made the reduction in acreage only 7.1 per cent.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Cotton was active and feverish today, and while at one time prices were 7 to 10 points above the previous close, they subsequently broke 22 to 25 points to new low records for the entire season.

The July position sold at 4.99 or within 1 point of the lowest price ever recorded on the local exchange, closing at 5.00 or 19 points net lower, while the general market closed steady within a point or two of the lowest for the day, and 22 to 26 points below the final of Tuesday.

Project Work In Hale Progresses

By Staff Correspondent

PLAINVIEW, June 1. — Project work among the 4-H club boys of Hale county is showing a decided upward trend and a number of boys are feeding beef cattle, dairy cattle, hogs and sheep.

"We have 58 head of beef cattle, calves that is, on feed and we expect more," Walter W. Evans, county agent, states. The boys and girls are feeding Herefords, shorthorns and Aberdeen Angus. Of course the Herefords prevail.

"There are eight Hereford calves, all splendid specimens, now on feed for the 50th anniversary Hereford show in St. Louis in October. The boys want in on the prize money in the club classes.

"There are 30 litters of hogs, being fed by as many boys. In these litters there are over 225 pigs. The pigs are being fed for the fall shows, Lubbock and Amarillo, and possibly the Dallas State Fair.

"Later on the boys will have litters for the Lubbock show next March and also the Fort Worth show in the same month.

"Twelve 4-H club boys and girls are feeding about 750 lambs for the spring shows."

Mr. Evans distributed state certified grain sorghum seed among his club boys for their grain sorghum projects. Some of these will feed the crop to their cattle.

ed as they are by specific information, have only led to a speculation.

Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, chairman of the dry organizations' board of strategy, has been named head of a steering committee to manage the prohibitionists' drive at the two conventions. He will name four others to act with him.

Weis Are Determined

It is certain that wet and moist plank advocates will make a determined bid for support at the two conventions.

Twenty-five state delegations to the Chicago conclaves are now on record for repeal or resubmission in various ways. Each has a member on the resolutions committee which shape the platforms.

Eighteen have voted dry or turned down anti-prohibition resolutions.

Twenty-six made no mention of prohibition, which presents a major problem for both parties at their Chicago gatherings.

Of the 32 Democratic state conventions so far held, 17 favored repeal or resubmission declarations.

RIAND ARRESTED AS TRAMP

Among the interesting stories being told about M. Briand since his death is one revealing his love for the unconventional. When on vacation he wore the oldest of clothes. On one vacation while he was hiking in a rural part of France he was actually arrested by police officers as an undesirable loafer. It was only when he was taken to the local police station that he succeeded in establishing his identity. The first thing he did on being released was to take the two officers who had arrested him to the local cafe and "stand treat."

IVE HORSE POWER FOR CAR

Horsepower is horse power to a farmer of Lapworth, England, for he has figured it out that the cheapest way to run his automobile is to have it pulled by one of his farm horses. He goes to market every day with Dobbin pulling the machine, the traces of the harness being fastened to the springs. He always carries two spare tires, and while he drives he has to have an assistant handle the wheel. His speed is slower, but gasoline is high in England, he argues, and what is hay to a horse.

Long-Awaited Good News Received By Stock Market; Opening Advance Seen

BY JOHN I. COOLEY

Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—The stock market got its long-awaited good news today, celebrated with an opening rally of 1 to 5 points and then had to face fresh selling which, on the average, more than cancelled those advances. Bonds behaved in somewhat similar fashion.

Senatorial action on the budget bill and the speedy dispatch of that measure to conference created an atmosphere of optimism in Wall street which was not dispelled even by the letdown in market enthusiasm. Furthermore, it appeared that formation of a strong banking group whose chief mission would be support of bonds was definitely taking shape. Proposed government economies, although considerably smaller than Wall street had hoped for, nevertheless helped give assurance that the national emergency was being met.

Some brokers thought that several special excises in the tax bill, notably the levy on gross revenues of electric power companies, had been unfavorably received; utility shares weakened sharply in the afternoon.

Unique Method Used Here For Watering Plants

D. C. Pollard, 1946 Avenue N, who is a shark on gardens, has a unique method of watering his plants. He calls it a "lazy man's system."

Instead of putting down expensive concrete tile Mr. Pollard took pieces of lathe and nailed them together to make tile one inch square. Joints are not nailed too tightly so that water may seep through them. The wooden tile are laid three to four inches below the ground and are brought out of the ground at one end. Water is introduced into the tile from the uplighted end and as it runs its length it seeps slowly from the joints toward the surface wetting the entire garden plot. This prevents excessive evaporation and develops stronger, hardier plants. It also does away with "scalding" of plants in the hot sun or of "baking" the ground. A little cultivation to keep the ground mulched is all that is necessary, Mr. Pollard says.

Mr. Pollard is dispatching clerk in the Lubbock post office. Before coming to Lubbock two years ago he was clerk in the Clayton, N. M. post office. He had a place nine miles from Clayton where he indulged his flair for gardening. One summer he planted $1 worth of carrot seed on one twentieth of an acre and sold more than $100 worth of carrots to Clayton stores.

On "Corn" Status

Farmers Have New Exchange Medium

SLATTON, N. M., June 1 (AP)—Farmers in northern Lea county, New Mexico, have repudiated the gold standard in favor of "the corn standard."

The new medium of exchange is plentiful. It is piled high on almost every farm. Farmers pay their doctor's bills in so many bushels of corn. They trade it for livestock and exchange it for necessities.

"I use it for money, feed for my hogs, and food for my family," one farmer said.

Amelia Earhart Proves Prowess On Dance Floor; Prince Gets Dances

LONDON, June 1. (AP)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, the first woman to fly the Atlantic, proved her prowess on a ballroom dance floor last night. She was one of the most popular guests at a hospital charity ball.

Mrs. Putnam agreed today that she "had a great time."

Shortly after her arrival, she was escorted to the table of the Prince of Wales and, after talking pleasantly for a few moments, the couple swung away on the dance floor.

So pleased with the flier's dancing was the prince that he came back for more and twice again the heir to the British throne asked Mrs. Putnam for dances.

The blonde aviatrix was attired in a most becoming evening dress of green.

Early Day Rancher Is Dead; Thought To Be Victim Of Indians In Mexico

Cabe Adams, early day cattle trail driver in West Texas, who drove herds from on the Pecos in the days when there were only a few scattered ranches over the South Plains, into the Panhandle and also into the then territory of New Mexico, is dead.

Adams, who was here about a year ago during a court case, was killed several months ago, presumably by Yaqui Indians in Sonora, Mexico where he was ranching, according to word received here by Charles C. Crenshaw of the firm of Bledsoe, Crenshaw and Dupree.

Was Trial Witness

During the trial of the suit of Fred Spikes against the Capitol Reservation Syndicate last June, Adams, then well up in the 80's was here for the entire trial as a witness. His deposition had been taken for use in the trial but it was decided to bring him here for the hearing. He was never placed on the stand.

"I think Cabe died as he would have wanted to," Mr. Crenshaw said. "He died with his boots on. He died as he had lived."

Have Few Details

Few details of the affair were received by the law firm. According to George Dupree, Adams was ranching in Sonora and had a lot of cattle. The Indians came to the ranch, killed the owner and made away with the stock, "Cabe was shot and left lying there on the ground," Dupree added.

Adams drove cattle along the West Texas trails for many years. He then went into New Mexico and ranched there, moving into the eastern part of the then territory about 30 to 35 years ago. Old time cattle men and ranchers knew Mr. Adams in the early days of this section and also the development of the cattle country east of the Pecos river in New Mexico.

The pioneer had gone some years ago to Sonora, Mexico from the United States. When he was wanted as a witness in the suit here, it took investigators several months to locate him as old timers had lost track of him.

Brown Services Held Wednesday

Frank V. (Leather Hat) Brown, shot to death Monday night at Woodrow by one of three men who escaped, was buried in Lubbock cemetery Wednesday afternoon while officers inquired into additional phases of the shooting.

The Rev. R. C. Campbell, First Baptist church pastor, officiated in rites at the residence at 1602 Avenue L. Burial was directed by Rix funeral home.

District Attorney Durwood H. Bradley continued the probe until 11 o'clock last night, but afterwards said he had obtained nothing definite as to identity of the slayers.

Do you inhale?

Three little words that "upset the apple cart" in the cigarette trade

DO you inhale? Can any question be simpler? And yet—what a furore it has created! The cigarette trade feels that the public has been let in on a sacrosanct secret! "You've upset the apple cart," they say.

Why such anxiety? Certainly the public doesn't fear the question—for everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly ... every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question ... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!

ORDINANCE NO. 494
AN ORDINANCE ORDERING AN ELECTION IN THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, TEXAS, TO BE HELD ON THE 28TH DAY OF JUNE, 1932, FOR THE PURPOSE OF SUBMITTING TO THE QUALIFIED VOTERS OF SAID CITY OF LUBBOCK, TEXAS, FOR ADOPTION OR REJECTION PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE EXISTING CHARTER OF THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, DESIGNATING THE TIME AND PLACE AT WHICH SAID ELECTION IS TO BE HELD, AND APPOINTING PRESIDING OFFICERS THEREOF.

WHEREAS, on the 28th day of April, 1932, a resolution was duly passed by the City Commission of the City of Lubbock, Texas, providing for notice of its intention to pass an ordinance submitting certain amendments to the existing charter of said city; and,

WHEREAS, notice of the intention to pass such an ordinance was duly given and publication in the manner and for the length of time required by law; and,

WHEREAS, the charter of said city has not been altered, changed or amended more than two years prior to this election;

THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, TEXAS:

SECTION I

AMENDMENT NO. 1:

That the first paragraph of Section 22 of Article 2 of Chapter 1 of the Charter of the City of Lubbock,

Belief That Indians Ate Raw Food In Texas Is Dispelled

EAGLE PASS, June 1 (AP) — The belief that Indians of southwest Texas ate their food raw because relic collectors were unable to find any pottery in this or in adjacent counties was dispelled recently when W. C. Bond of this city, while on a fishing trip, found thirteen pieces of old pottery of a very crude form, twelve miles north of Eagle Pass. Mr. Bond discovered pieces of glazed earthware in what apparently are extensive "workings." The ground over nearly an acre is spotted with fire-marked stones arranged in rings, indicating that Indians at one time camped there. The pieces of pottery show by their unevenness that the original bowl was hand-molded of native clay and hardened in an open fire.

Small Carryover Being Predicted

With state certified hegari and kafir seed being sold rapidly, James Burroughs, president of the Texas State Certified Grain Sorghum Breeders association, believes there will be a small carry-over by breeders of these seed.

The state association has established headquarters at Littlefield. W. M. Cunningham is in charge. A supply has been maintained there and shipped on order.

Three full car loads of certified seed were shipped from headquarters. The bulk of the shipments have been in less than car load lots, either by train or by truck.

Truck Shipments Handled

Many breeders of state certified seed have handled truck shipments direct. Through a sales agency, Sears, Roebuck and Co. many orders of from 25 to 250 pounds or more of seed have come. These were sent direct to headquarters.

"I have noticed an increase in demand for seeds within the past two weeks," Mr. Burroughs said. "Farmers have begun to see the advantage of certified seed. There will be a larger acreage this year than ever before.

"Our orders from the North Plains have been coming in better. Farmers up there have lost a good acreage of wheat and they are planting grain sorghums in place of that. I believe there will be more feed planted on the South Plains this year than is generally believed."

Panhandle-Plains Poultry Directors To Meet June 14

LEVELLAND, June 1 (Special)—W. T. Magee, county agent and president of the Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry association, has sent out letters advising officers and directors of the association of a meeting at Slaton Tuesday June 14t to decide on plans for the annual show, scheduled for next winter.

Thirty men over the Plains country are directors of the organization. The coming show will be the third annual show. The group was formed two years ago and the first show held in Slaton in December, 1930. The second show was the same week in 1931.

Scout Camp Is Being Planned

South Plains Area Council To Gather At Two Draw Lake In July; Annual Affair To Be Larger This Year

Boy Scouts of the South Plains Area council will gather again, after a year's absence, for their annual summer camp to be held at Post on or about July 17. Last year's camp was held jointly with the New Mexico scouts in the Sacramento mountains.

Plans are going forward rapidly and officials are looking to a successful camp.

To Shorten Camp

This year's camping session will be shortened from ten to seven days. It is believed that this will enable many scout leaders to attend the camp, who could not do so under the ten day plan. The camp fee which will be lowered in proportion to the length of the camp, will be approximately seven dollars.

Troop leadership will be stressed strongly at the camp this summer. Every troop attending the camp will be expected to have their own adult leaders. Officials feel that the relationship between the scout leader and his boys will be greatly strengthened by a week in camp.

Because so many new boys have entered scouting on the South Plains since the last camp was held at Post, Scout headquarters has expressed a desire to have every boy in camp who can possibly attend.

The present camp staff, which will be added to at a later date, consists of Scout Executive Jennings, who will be Camp Director; Tom Everheart, who is a Senior Red Cross Life Saver and is connected with the City Swimming Pool at Lubbock, will have charge of water front activities; Dr. E. L. Reed, professor of Zoology and Botany at the Texas Technological college, who is an ardent lover of scouting, will have charge of all nature subjects at the camp; Jack Mickle, will have charge of camp first aid activities this year. Jack is a new man, but not for long. Then there is Ernie Self who will be cooking for the camp again. This will make Ernie's third year of cooking for the South Plains council.

The spring rains have put the Two-Draw Lake and the camp site in tip-top condition for the hundred or more boys who will attend the session.

Army Fliers Are To Arrive Today

Delayed by weather, a flight of 20 army observation planes are due to begin arriving at Lubbock municipal airport Thursday at about 9 a. m. from Fort Sill, Okla.

A gallery of more than 500 persons gathered at Lubbock airport to greet the fliers yesterday morning, and after waiting an hour it was learned the ships did not leave San Antonio as scheduled Tuesday. The planes spent last night in Fort Sill.

Airport Manager Clint Breedlove was informed by telegram late Wednesday that the ships would take off from Fort Sill Thursday morning, weather permitting. A request was made for an average of 40 gallons of gasoline per ship here.

Hot coffee and sandwiches were prepared for the visitors yesterday, and plans are being made to serve the fliers when they arrive this morning.

Speaking Dates Announced Here

The speakings are as follows: Littlefield 2:30 p. m., Sudan 4:30 p. m., June 4; Tahoka 2 p. m., Brownfield 4:30, June 6; Hale Center 8:30 p. m., June 8; Petersburg 8:30 p. m., June 9; Plainview 3 p. m., June 11; Lockney 8:30 p. m., June 15; Floydada 8:30 p. m., June 16; Matador 8:30 p. m., June 17, and Paducah 3 p. m., June 18.

fully, glancing over her shoulder.

"Nothing at all. Just the wind in the branches."

"It sounded like someone running." She looked back along the wind swept espanade. "Perhaps we had better go."

They began to walk briskly in the direction from which they had come. Susan flung another anxious glance over her shoulder. Her nerves were certainly in a bad state. She could have sworn she had seen the shadow of a figure behind that oak tree.

She heard the whine of something past her ear. Heath grasped her arm roughly and began to run.

"What's the matter?" she panted, flying along beside him.

"Nothing, nothing! Only come along."

The footfalls behind them were no longer imaginary. They were real. That strange, whining sound came again and Susan recognized it for what it was—the zoom of a bullet! She felt her companion sway against her.

"What is it?" she cried. "Something warm trickled inside her glove. "You're hurt!"

"It's nothing. Some maniac has turned sniper," Heath gasped.

They could see the car only a few feet ahead. Heath stumbled and fell and Susan, through a roaring in her ears, heard a cry. She wheeled. The street light, glimmering, lighted the nightmare before her. There was Heath, unconscious at her feet. There was Ben, hatless beneath the trees, turning a bright barreled object upon himself.

"Stop it, you fool! Stop it!" It was her own voice but it sounded hoarse and strange. Ben lay grotesquely like a fallen marionette. Simon came running and lifted his employer.

"It's nothing. He only got me in the arm," Heath muttered. "I'll be all right." They helped him to the car. Oddly enough there were no spectators for this little drama. The park at this hour at this particular place was deserted.

"Who is the fool?" Heath demanded in a low, angry voice.

"I know him," Susan murmured. "I saw him for an instant under the night. It's a boy I used to see."

Heath glanced at her shrewdly. He knitted his brows for a moment, debating. Then he ordered Simon sharply, "Better drag the young idiot in here. We must hush this up at all costs."

Susan tried to protest. Calmly Heath ordered her to get into the front seat beside the chauffeur. His left arm hanging at his side, he managed to help Simon drag the limp figure of the boy into the car.

"Drive to Dr. Blake's in Bank street," he told Simon fiercely. "The young fool's still alive, thank Heaven, although he doesn't deserve to be."

Susan put throbbing hands to her temples. The horror of the situation overwhelmed her. Surely she would wake, and find she had been dreaming.

Dr. Blake's home had a driveway and a service door opening directly upon that. No one molested them or questioned them as they lifted the unconscious figure and carried it inside.

"You wait here," Heath told Susan. "I don't want you mixed up in this." He looked older, sterner.

"Your arm?" she faltered. Oh, she had not meant to bring trouble to him!

"It's all right. Blake will attend to it in a few minutes. Don't worry. It's lucky this happened so near his office. I've known him for years."

Simon came out, waiting orders. Heath told him, "You're to take Miss Carey home and come back for me."

Susan asked timidly, "You'll telephone me later and let me know what happens?"

She had never liked him as much as she did at that moment. She leaned toward him and said, softly and hurriedly, "This boy hasn't any claim on me."

Heath's face lighted, but he said rather brusquely, "You didn't need to tell me. I knew it."

"Will he live?" asked Susan, fearfully.

Heath shrugged.

"Blake says he doesn't know."

Tech Graduates Are On Program

Hubert Hopper and Graydon Ausmus, two members of the Texas Technological college graduating class, told Lubbock Rotarians Wednesday at Hotel Lubbock of benefits of a four-year course in Tech. Dean J. M. Gordon directed the program.

"I learned in particular that I'm nobody in particular and that I need something more than just myself to get along," Hopper declared after telling briefly of his four years in the college. "I've learned that friendships count. I've learned a few principles of living, that you have to live clean, especially if you are an athletic and that you've got to give all you have all the time to get anywhere. I've learned that there must be no grandstanding, that teamwork counts above all and that one must never stop fighting. I've learned that it's a grand old game. And above all I've learned that I need my God and my church."

To Study Theology

Young Hopper is a ministerial student and plans to continue his theological studies after graduation next week.

"My first impression of Tech was that it was a 'tough' place," Ausmus said, "especially after I had spent two days in registering and more than two hours arguing with the dean that I could take six courses. I did not come to Tech after my graduation from high school but instead attended a small denominational school. I had heard of Tech, had heard tales of the gambling and drinking and other such stuff here but I can truly say that in the three years here, and some of you may be surprised to hear this, I have never seen any gambling and I have never been offered a drink of liquor. And I have associated with all groups of students."

Gained New Outlook

Ausmus said he had gained a new outlook on life through instruction in the various courses taught at the college and that he held a college worth what money it costs if it gains a student nothing else than the knowledge of others and association with others.

"My greatest regret," he concluded, "is that I did not take my full four years' work here at Tech."

Jack Mulmat was introduced as a new member of the club.

Out-of-town visitors present were: Abe Kessel, Slaton; Edd McLaughlin, Ralls; Gordon Treadway, Lamesa and Bill Crass, Amarillo.

Monday Last Day For Filing Name

Monday, June 6, is the last day for district candidates to file application to place their names on the primary ballot, J. K. Wester, Lubbock county Democratic chairman, reminded yesterday.

Mr. Wester said a number of candidates had not filed and unless they do by Monday, their names will not be placed on the ballot. He has the blanks in his office and will assist candidates in filling them out.

County candidates have until June 18 to file their names.

Victim Revealed As Safe Breaker

FORT WORTH, June 1. (AP)—After police had searched a downtown building in vain for a mythical yeggman who was purported to have held a 23 year old draftsman prisoner while he robbed a safe in the Stanolind Oil and Gas company office, E. C. Goetz, the "victim," admitted early Wednesday that he was the safecracker.

Remorsefully, the young man sat in his cell at the city jail and told that he had acted on the impulse of the moment to get money for his invalid mother and to pay his debts. He got nothing.

Previously Goetz had told police that he was working late when a man, about 30, came to the office, held him prisoner for six hours and forced him to assist in breaking open the safes.

Goetz came here about 4 years ago from Louisiana and was employed first by the Southern Crude and, for the last year, by the Stanolind company. His mother, Mrs. E. W. Goetz, 46, Shreveport, has been an invalid for the last six months and his father is unemployed the young man declared. He is married and his salary is $135 a month he said.
