

On The BEAM

By J. W. Kling, Sr.

I do not know whether many people have thought of it or not but 1956 will be the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the town of Loraine.

A few years ago we published a short history of Loraine and many people were impressed with it. A lady suggested a few days ago that we do something of the kind in 1956 to commemorate the founding of the town.

That suggestion gave us an idea. Why not the entire town join in putting on a Golden Jubilee of some kind some time during the year 1956? Such a celebration could be made attractive enough to attract hundreds of people here to help us celebrate. There is no limit to what we can do to make an attractive and entertaining celebration. All we need to do is get busy on it now and work up a program, set a time and give it lots and lots of publicity.

Times have changed considerably in the past fifty years but I'd bet my bottom dollar some of the magnificent attractions put on in Loraine in the past would be just as attractive now.

Everybody knows that Loraine, and all small towns, need to do something to revive interest in them. We here in Loraine have the opportunity to put on something that will be talked about for years. I'll take a lot of work and planning but it can be done.

Let's all wax enthusiastic about a Golden Jubilee for 1956 and get to work on it. All in favor say I.

Bulldogs End Season Without A Win

The Loraine Bulldogs wound up a perfect season last Friday night by losing their tenth game to the Robert Lee Steers 40 to 0.

At times during the season the Bulldogs showed up well and it looked as if they might develop into a winning team but they have lacked the scoring punch, but none of them were fast enough to break away. Their absence in the line weakened it to the point where opponents sifted through almost at will most of the time.

Considering the experience of all the players, the Bulldogs did not do so bad during the season. The boy who can play the game just right his first or second year is an exception—it takes experience in football just as it does everything else. And the Bulldogs just did not have enough players who had experience.

Grass Watered Past Summer Now Good Grazing Fat Cows

Farmers around Loraine probably wondered why Mr. W. A. Taylor, past Chairman of the Board of the Mitchell County Soil Conservation District, was irrigating the mesquite trees in his pasture early last spring. Taylor admits that it was rather unusual to be irrigating mesquite trees, but that he was planning for the future. That future is now the present, and Taylor's cows are grateful. They are grazing buffalo grass over ankle deep and sideots grama and silver bluestem over knee-high. There are at least twelve other kinds of grasses that help make up the thick solid carpet under the mesquite trees.

Although primarily a farmer, Taylor is rancher enough to know that native grass cures in to excellent hay on the ground if growth is made. He assured this growth by watering as he crossed the pasture to an adjacent field, and by deferring the entire growing season.

Even though the mesquite trees were irrigated along with the grass, they probably will not do so well next year as Taylor treated many of them, especially along the fences, with kerosene. A mesquite is not content to use water near at hand, it has to rob water from adjoining fields, but Taylor's cotton was just as high along the fence as out in the middle of the field. Next year there will be even fewer mesquites robbing his grass and crops of precious water.

So until a crop of small grain gets enough growth to graze, Taylor's cows will be well fed on native grass cured on the ground. Whether the cows know it or not, Taylor has more plans for them. He is trying a new kind of alfalfa for this area. About 3 acres of Nomad alfalfa has been sown by Taylor. A characteristic of Nomad alfalfa is that it spreads by underground stems. It is also recommended for dryland grazing since it is very drought tolerant.

BUYING OLD FURNITURE?

Here are tests suggested by an expert to help you select chairs that will stand up in normal use. Be sure legs are all the same height. Test tightness by kneeling on the front edge of the seat, then pushing firmly against the back. Look for corner blocks attached to the underside of the seat frame—a sign of strength. Tap an upholstered seat: If it sags, springs are worn out.

A SIDEWALK INTERVIEW

Q: Today's topic is, "Why do you save at a bank?" Your reason, sir? A: Well, I'm not ready to invest; but I like my money to earn interest while I'm waiting to use it. Q: Thank you... and you, madam? A: It's so convenient—I can do all my banking under one roof! Q: Thank you. This lady, please.

A: My banker's so helpful. He always makes me feel right at home! Q: And this gentleman volunteered. A: My reason for saving at a bank is that it's safe—and safety's what I want for my reserve cash. Q: Well, there you are, ladies and gentlemen—four people, four different reasons. On one thing, however, everyone seems agreed: There is nothing quite like money in the bank! (If by not open your bank account, with us!)

MANY PEOPLE find it profitable to plan their borrowing in advance; to list probable credit needs for a year or so ahead, then talk the whole thing over with us. Try it. You don't start paying for low-cost bank credit here until the time you actually need and use it; but you can make arrangements now, and be ready when the time comes.

MONEY AND BANKING In Everyday Living

BUYING OLD FURNITURE?

Here are tests suggested by an expert to help you select chairs that will stand up in normal use. Be sure legs are all the same height. Test tightness by kneeling on the front edge of the seat, then pushing firmly against the back. Look for corner blocks attached to the underside of the seat frame—a sign of strength. Tap an upholstered seat: If it sags, springs are worn out.

A SIDEWALK INTERVIEW

Q: Today's topic is, "Why do you save at a bank?" Your reason, sir? A: Well, I'm not ready to invest; but I like my money to earn interest while I'm waiting to use it. Q: Thank you... and you, madam? A: It's so convenient—I can do all my banking under one roof! Q: Thank you. This lady, please.

A: My banker's so helpful. He always makes me feel right at home! Q: And this gentleman volunteered. A: My reason for saving at a bank is that it's safe—and safety's what I want for my reserve cash. Q: Well, there you are, ladies and gentlemen—four people, four different reasons. On one thing, however, everyone seems agreed: There is nothing quite like money in the bank! (If you don't open your bank account, with us!)
