Jet Bomber Sets Mark Ward Suit Won By City

Jury Out Almost Nine Hours In Grocer's Case

By MARVIN OLSEN
Daily News Staff Writer

The City of Pampa, defendants in a $185,000 damage suit brought by Grocer Clarence Ward, was adjudged victorious late Wednesday night in District Court.

A 12-member jury, which deliberated just short of nine hours, ruled that Ward suffered no losses that would not be offset by future gains.

Ward, in a suit filed Jan. 21, 1958, had asked the city for a total of $185,000 as damages suffered by Ward's Grocery, 105 N. Hobart, during construction of the Hobart St. Underpass.

The drama of the jury's decision began to unfold at 8:43 p.m. when jury members filed into the court room to ask the question: Does Mr. Ward have a second option to renew his lease?

Judge Lewis Goodrich, reading testimony of the trial, replied in the affirmative.

The jury retired again for 15 minutes. At 9:01 p.m. a knocking was heard on the jury room door, and at 9:02 the jury filed in for the second and last time.

Its answers to five special issues in the case were handed to District Court Clerk Helen Sprinkle who read the verdict.

Issue No. 1 — Did construction of the Underpass obstruct the ingress and egress from Ward's grocery? No.

Issue No. 2 — Did construction interfere with the plaintiffs' grocery business? Yes.

Issue No. 3 — Did Ward suffer a loss of profits? Yes.

Issue No. 4 — Was Ward's business damaged by construction of the Underpass by construction of the Underpass from Dec. 3, 1957 to Sept. 30, 1958? Yes.

Issue No. 5 — What amount of money would be reasonable compensation? None.

And so ended a nine-hour vigil in District Court by attorneys for both sides, for Clarence and Jim Ward, for Mayor Ed Myatt — who was present at every session of the three-day trial — and for a handful of spectators and court officials including Court Room Deputy Dan Cameron.

No so-called "hard feelings" were displayed by persons representing either side following the decision. During the long wait for a verdict — the jury was given the case at 11:00 a.m. Wednesday — there was, in fact, a considerable amount of good-natured conversation among Ward, Myatt and the attorneys in the case, Jimmie Thompson, representing Ward, and Ross Buzzard, Bob Gordon and A. J. Cavahis.

At this time neither side has indicated that an appeal of the decision will be made.

Jury members during the Ward vs. City of Pampa case were Foreman R. H. Stepp, Ed Railsback, Mrs. A. J. Beagle, J. R. Boston, Jr., R. L. Pugh, E. H. Ousley Jr., Truett Kennedy, Ed Brock, O. J. Milhom, James Evans, Mrs. Irvin Cole and J. D. Reeves.

Fred Astaire Nabs Nine TV Emmys; Harris Wins

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Fred Astaire, believing the "old dad" nickname he hung on himself, let his famous dancing feet do the celebrating Wednesday night after his stunning sweep of nine television "Emmy" awards.

"A great night for old dad," cracked the skinny Astaire when he accepted one of the awards given him by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. He will be 60 Sunday.

And then Fred showed the young fellows how to celebrate by joining a crowd of television and movie personalities at the Palladium and dancing with Barrie Chase, his co-star on the "Evening with Fred Astaire" show.

Four awards, including the best actor in a single performance, went to his star, Julie Harris.

There were a number of two Emmy winning shows, including Perry Mason, Peter Gunn, Dinah Shore and Jack Benny.

The only Westerns garnering awards were Maverick, named the best out-thrower, and Gunsmoke, in which Dennis (Chester) Weaver won an Emmy as best supporting actor in a series.

Among the networks, NBC nearly swept the field by collecting 27 Emmys, CBS won 12 and ABC one.

Playhouse 90, expected to be a big winner, won only one award — the best dramatic series of one hour or longer.

In the news category, the team of Chet Huntley and David Brinkley on NBC was chosen the best news reporting program.

Face of Red China, CBS, the best special news program; Ed Murrow, CBS, best news commentary; and Cuban Revolution, CBS, the best on-the-spot news coverage.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon presented two of the new awards and James C. Hagerty, presidential news secretary, presented the other two in Washington.

Both Hagerty and Nixon arrived early at the hotel to avoid crossing the picket line. It was learned that Nixon earlier had told the show's sponsors he would not attend if he had to pass the pickets.

The pickets were members of the National Association of Broadcasting and Engineering Technicians, now involved in a contract dispute with NAB.

Other awards included: Loretta Young (best actress, dramatic series), Jane Wyatt (best actress, comedy series), Barbara Hale (best supporting actress, dramatic series), Ann-B. Davis (best supporting actress, comedy series) and Tom Poston (best supporting actor, comedy series).

Perry Como won the best actor of a musical show award and Raymond Burr the award for the best actor of a dramatic series.

Omnibus, NBC, was named the best public service program.

Iraq Holds 21 Passengers

ROME (UPI)—Iraqi authorities refused today to release an Italian airliner and its 21 passengers after forcing the plane to land Wednesday in Baghdad, airline sources said.

They also refused to reveal the name or nationality of any of the passengers.

Officials of Alitalia Airlines said Italian diplomats have taken up the case with Iraqi authorities, but so far they have been unable to obtain an explanation of the government's reasons for forcing the plane down.

The line's Baghdad representative reported that local authorities ordered the plane to land "because of a ban on flights over Iraqi territory."

Alitalia spokesmen here said, however, no such ban had been reported to the line's operations office.

Mitchell Johnson, 18-month-old son of Mrs. Paul Johnson, a psychologist at State Welfare Home at Placitas, N.M., near Albuquerque, sits contentedly in the police station in Dallas after he was found unharmed in a local drug store. Blue-Jeaned Orphan Faces Kidnapping Charges In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Betty Smith, a 16-year-old orphan dressed in dirty blue jeans, faced federal charges today for kidnapping the child of a woman who wanted to reform her.

Betty took Mitchell Johnson, 18-month-old son of Mrs. Paul Johnson of Albuquerque, N.M., Monday. She abandoned him in a Dallas drug store Wednesday when she ran out of funds, and was arrested about an hour later.

The baby was returned home Wednesday night.

"I have no anger in my heart," said Mrs. Johnson, a psychologist at the State Girls Welfare Home in Albuquerque. "She (Betty) is a gentle girl, very shy socially, who needs a lot of help and love."

Betty declined to return voluntarily to New Mexico to stand trial. U.S. Commissioner W. Madden Hill set her bond at $2,000 at a preliminary hearing on a federal kidnapping charge.

Mrs. Johnson got Betty out of the girls' home because she thought the girl was worth reforming.

Often Runs Away.

The girl told police she had a habit of running away. She said she decided to leave Monday, and decided at the last minute to take Mitchell.

"I like babies," Betty said. "I like like all babies. I started to run for photographers at the police station. Mitchell playfully ran his fingers over the girl's face and laughed while they posed.

Before police put Mitchell on an airliner to be flown back to New Mexico, Betty and the baby posed for photographers.

'59 Band Fete Set

Tickets are now on sale here for the annual 1959 Pampa High School Band Appreciation Banquet which will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Selling at $1.50 per plate, tickets are being sold by members of the Harvester Band and at Ott Shewmaker's downtown insurance office. Only 400 advanced tickets will be sold.

The Monday night banquet is being sponsored by parents of band members and will feature a special guest speaker, billed as Joe Smith, a well-known band performer from the East Coast who is stopping over in Pampa for the fete on his way to Hollywood to serve as technical adviser for an upcoming motion picture. Dinner music will be furnished by Maxine Milliron.

The 78-piece Harvester Band will be honored for superb performances this school year. The Pampa High bandmen, under the direction of W. E. (Bill) Trease, won Sweepstakes Honors with first division ratings in both concert and sight reading at the District Band Contest in Canyon on April 23, and then last week won three first divisions plus ratings as the top concert and marching band among some 60 school bands.

Mrs. Ryan said she tried to question the girl, and Betty went to a telephone booth and called her aunt, Mrs. Goolsby. Then she left the baby in the booth and fled.

Mrs. Goolsby notified the FBI. Betty was arrested about an hour later eating at a cafeteria.

Mitchell was well cared for, Betty said. She bought him milk or soup every time she stopped between Albuquerque and Dallas.

The girl once was a mental patient at an Oklahoma hospital. D. L. Mitchell home, 1300 E. Foster, where a cook stove caught fire, where the fire reported at 7:15 p.m. did some light smoke damage.

FAREWELL WINNIE

Sir Winston Churchill, right, rides to the Washington Airport with an old friend, President Eisenhower, as he prepares to leave Washington, probably for the last time, following a four-day social visit. Sir Winston, age 84, was Ike's house guest for most of his stay and was a usual hit with everybody he came in contact with while in Washington.

Sadness Shrouds Washington As Churchill Says Good-Bye

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A historic era at the White House ends today. Sir Winston Churchill leaves.

No one associated closely with the 84-year-old former British prime minister these last few days expected him to return. And from President Eisenhower down to the cooks and butlers, there was genuine sadness over his leaving.

Sir Winston has been the President's house guest since Monday and today he moves to the British Embassy for one night before traveling home to his beloved Great Britain with a brief stopover in New York.

Because of advancing years and nagging ailments of the aged, the once gloriously eloquent voice of Churchill is seldom heard these days.

our peoples has been a great and memorable joy to me," the old British battler rumbled.

"Here at this table," he said as he looked around the room, "sit those whose decisions can perhaps influence the destiny of mankind more deeply than any other group of men you could find."

He was frank about it being "late in the day" of his long career, but he was happy to have one more opportunity to speak on a subject dear to his heart — the union of the English-speaking peoples.

Work Together

"I am sure," he said, "that it is in a close and increasing fellowship with you, our American friends and brothers, that our darkest days of Dunkirk and Tobruk, Sir Winston began to speak."

In the rich voice that brought encouragement to millions during the darkest days of Dunkirk and Tobruk, Sir Winston began to speak.

A 13-year-old boy apparently lured two girls into a berry patch near New Orleans, La., then stabbed one to death and critically wounded the other. Kathy Fehler, 12, left, was found dead, and Judy Guillet, 13, was stretched out in a pool of blood. Police are holding a boy who, they said, admitted stabbing the girl. The boy was identified as Edward A. Herty, 13.

Honor Student Is Held For Murder

NEW ORLEANS (UPI). — Psychiatrists probed the mind of a 13-year-old honor student and Boy Scout today to learn why he plunged a knife 48 times into a little girl who rejected his sexual advances.

Edward A. Herty, considered a "nice guy" by classmates, admitted he stabbed to death sixth grader Kathy Fehler, 12, and seriously wounded Kathy's companion, Judy Guillet, 13.

Judy, stabbed in the neck and back Tuesday, probably escaped death because part of the three-inch blade of Herty's dagger-type pocket-knife broke off in Kathy's body.

"It's a very hard case to understand. It didn't seem to bother him at all," police said.

A coroner's report said Kathy was sexually molested.

Herty, described as a "sensitive and brilliant" boy by teachers, was to be taken today from the Maine Boys Home, where he had been held since his arrest shortly after the crime was discovered, to Charity Hospital.

There psychiatrists and psychologists planned a series of exhaustive examinations ordered by Juvenile Judge Leo B. Blessing.

Far East Touch Blends Well With West On Backyard Barbecue Grill

The backyard barbecue grill has become such a necessary part of warm weather cookery that few outdoor chefs ever seem to have enough suitable recipes. In fact, before the season begins in earnest, many fans begin assembling "foods to try" on the grill. Luckily, the "Grill" cook now can provide virtually as much menu variety out of doors as he can on the kitchen range. In an effort to avoid menu monotony in recent years, many are experimenting with a wide variety of foreign dishes.

Some of the most ingenious are those prepared with an Oriental flair. Many dishes based upon the now-popular Chinese theme, have been adapted to the barbecue grill with the taste-tempting results. Among these are some of the more interesting recipes developed by home economists at La Choy, one of the better known American-Chinese food products companies.

Here, for example, is one of their chicken recipes which depend upon a zesty soy barbecue sauce for flavor.

SOY BARBECUED CHICKEN BREASTS

Mix $\frac{1}{4}$ cup light vinegar, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup lemon juice, and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup salad oil. Add 1 teaspoon soy sauce, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon Brown Gravy sauce, and a sprinkling of ground black pepper. Blend mixture well. Lay chicken breasts on hot grill. Brush pieces with oil and sauce about 3 minutes. Turn chicken over and brush on sauce. Cook 3 or 4 minutes. Turn and baste again with sauce. Continue to turn and baste chicken with soy sauce mixture until chicken is tender, approximately 25 minutes.

To accompany the chicken you might try this unusual coleslaw developed in the La Choy kitchens. The addition of a generous amount of bean sprouts lends delicate flavor to the crisp salad.

BEAN SPROUT COLESLAW (Six servings)

Combine 4 cups finely shredded cabbage, 1 cup drained bean sprouts and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped pimento. Mix with following dressing.

TANGY DRESSING

Combine 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon paprika, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon celery seed and 2 tablespoons sugar. Add 1-3 cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon soy sauce and 1 cup buttermilk. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until thickened. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer. Chill.

Peach Shortcake

Just because the strawberry season has passed is no reason to stop enjoying shortcake for dessert. Golden peaches with blushing cheeks make the tastiest shortcake during these Indian summer months. Try an old-fashioned Peach Shortcake today using your favorite pancake mix.

You'll delight in this recipe because it's so much like the one grandma used to bake. In her day, you will remember, she had to do without the convenience of pancake mix to save her time. Cut the shortcake into generous squares and split. Spoon sweetened peach slices between and on top and serve with a scoop of vanilla ice cream or a dollop of whipped cream. Old-fashioned Peach Shortcake can be enjoyed the year around if frozen peaches are used when the others are not available.

Peach Shortcake

Makes 8 servings

Shortcake: 2 cups pancake mix, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, $\frac{1}{3}$ cup butter or margarine, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk. Sweetened fresh or frozen peaches, Vanilla ice cream.

Heat oven to hot (425°F.). For the shortcake, mix together pancake mix and sugar; cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk, stirring lightly until mixture is dampened. (Add a little more milk if necessary to make a soft dough.) Pat dough evenly into a 7 x 11-inch pan. Bake in preheated oven (425°F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

To serve, cut shortcake into 8 pieces. Split each piece in half; serve sandwich style with peaches between and on top of shortcake. Garnish with a scoop of ice cream.

BAKED breast of chicken, Halekulani-style, is delightful served under cooling palms of Hawaii's famed Waikiki Beach.

Hawaiians Enjoy Halekulani Chicken Under Coco Trees

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

During a soft caressing early afternoon at Waikiki Beach, relax under the sweeping palms on the Halekulani Hotel terrace across from Diamond Head. For lunch—con? Well, if you can take your eyes off the blue water long enough to scan the menu, order our favorite—Halekulani Baked Breast of Chicken in Pineapple Boat.

Bob Chang, the chef, amiable and generous like everyone we have met in Hawaii, gave us his prized recipe.

HALEKULANI BAKED BREAST OF CHICKEN (Serves 5)

Season 6 boneless whole breasts of chicken with salt and pepper. Stuff and roll with a mixture of the following: finely chopped ham, shrimp, pork, green onions, bamboo shoots and mushrooms. Add pineapple chunks—fresh, frozen or canned. Tie breast and brown in butter. Remove from butter. Sauté 1 clove of pressed garlic and 8 shallots in the butter until browned. Add 1 tablespoon of flour and 2 cups of hot chicken stock, $\frac{1}{2}$ cups of white Rhine wine (or water) and 1 cup of sliced water chestnuts (canned or fresh). Add chicken breasts to the stock and simmer until tender. Remove chicken breasts and add to gravy.

1 cup of coconut cream (see below). Place chicken breasts in gravy and sprinkle with chopped macadamia nuts. Brown slightly under fire, garnish with sautéed Chinese pea pods (or substitute frozen peas) and serve in Pineapple Boat. (Equally delicious baked in a casserole.)

COCONUT CREAM

(Yield: 2 cups)

Pour 2 cups boiling water over 4 cups grated fresh coconut. Let stand 20 minutes. Strain through a double thickness of cheese cloth, pressing to remove all liquid. Allow to set for a few hours in the refrigerator. A thick, creamy substance will rise to the top and may be skimmed off. This is called coconut cream.

PINEAPPLE BOAT

Cut ripe pineapple lengthwise in the middle but turn knife upward before coming to the crown, thus preserving the full set of leaves. Scoop pineapple from portion of shell affixed to crown.

TOMORROW'S HAWAIIAN DINNER: Halekulani Baked Breast of Chicken in Pineapple Boat, steamed rice, mixed green salad, Green Goddess dressing, guava, milk sherbet (or lemon sherbet), coffee, tea, milk.

Pickle Fans

Try These

Pamper your salads, meat platters and soups. Don't skip the little garnishes that make the simplest of fare more appetizing.

As a change from staid carrot sticks, celery curls and radish roses, consider the zesty food decorations that can be fashioned from pickles. Easy little tricks with them can make the ordinary dish seem extraordinary.

Among the more familiar appetizer—garnishes, perhaps, are pickle fans. All you do is slice sweet pickles into strips starting from the small end of within half an inch of the large end. Pull the strips out gently to form a fan.

Even easier to make are these cheese pickles, created by home economists at Bond Pickles.

CHEESE PICKLES: Cut ends from whole pickles and scoop out center with an apple corer. Wipe the cavities with paper towels. Season cottage cheese with salt and pepper and pack sieved cottage cheese into the pickle cavities. Refrigerate for several hours. Then slice thin and arrange three or four pieces on individual fruit salad plates.

Bacon French Fry Casserole Makes

Living Easy, Preparation So Simple

Supper's quick, easy, and so good when you plan your menu around this one-dish, bacon and French Fry casserole. It's a flavorful combination of bacon bits, peas, carrots, and French fries, all tucked into a creamy tomato sauce. Your family will love its savory goodness—you'll love the ease with which it goes together. Just add a tray of crisp relishes, rolls, and an out-of-the-freezer dessert, and you'll have supper on the table in less than thirty minutes.

The secret of this speedy recipe is in using frozen French fries. Because the potatoes are peeled and pre-cooked, you cut minutes from your meal-making time. Of course you know the convenience of popping frozen French fries into a hot oven, then—minutes later—serving them hot and crisp for quick meals or snacks. Now, try these same frozen French fries in this jiffy casserole. See for yourself how simple French fry cooking can be—and how time-saving!

BACON FRENCH FRY CASSEROLE

1 pound bacon, cut into $\frac{1}{2}$ inch pieces

 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon parsley flakes
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon instant onions

Fry bacon slowly until crisp, stirring as necessary to brown evenly. Drain. Save drippings. Combine melted bacon drippings, flour, and seasonings in saucepan. Gradually add milk. Cook, stirring until smooth and thickened. Fold in crisp bacon and remaining ingredients. Pour into 2-quart shallow baking dish (11 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches). Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) until heated, 15 to 20 minutes. Stir gently at end of 10 minutes to speed heating.

Avoid Legal Troubles in Real Estate Transactions

Thinking of buying or building a new home this year? Whether you buy a completed house or simply a lot to build on, how will you know whether you are receiving a good title to the property you purchase? The safest method is to have a title examination made—that is, a careful study of the abstract and other title evidence. Here are a few of the common sources of trouble in real estate transactions to show why the minor expense of a title examination is justified.

Many persons sign "earnest money contracts" believing that they are mere receipts with no serious implications. In reality they may specify, among other things, the kind of title you must accept.

A "warranty deed" from a responsible seller is comforting to have but it is a poor substitute for a careful title examination. A warranty deed does not guarantee a marketable title.

Moreover, serious title defects may not come to light until long after the seller on a warranty deed is dead, has moved to an unknown address, or is bankrupt. Even if he is available a good title is much better than a law suit.

The fact that the seller has possession of an "abstract" does not mean that he owns the property. An abstract is only a history of a title. Possession of an abstract no more indicates ownership of land than possession of the history of Texas means that you own the state.

Some purchasers of land feel safe because the title is being examined at the time of purchase by an attorney for the mortgage lenders. This seems logical but is a dangerous theory. Mortgage lenders are sometimes willing to accept less than good record title as security. This is sound business for them because, among other reasons, the chances are that the mortgage will be paid off so that no expense in perfecting the title would ever need be incurred. It is risky business for you when you are putting your life savings into the purchase.

These are a few of the reasons why a title examination is an important safeguard to you. When it is completed, the attorney gives you a written opinion stating his conclusions as to who owns the land, the defects in or charges against such ownership, and the requirements to be met if any, to make good record title.

Off-hand this may seem a simple operation. In fact it is not. It requires the interpretation of numerous deeds, mortgages, wills, court decrees and other instruments; the consideration of the order in which transactions and events affecting the title occurred; and the application of statutes and court decisions to the various situations disclosed in the abstract.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

administrative officer and also for the first time in its 100-year history. Consolidated net income rose to $55,905,170 from $50,666,686 in fiscal 1958.

The Securities & Exchange Commission urged that floor traders' activities on the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange should be "more vigorously" restricted. It charged that traders who buy and sell for their own account exaggerate market swings. "Big Board" President Keith Funston said there is no reason to change existing rules because they provide "a more liquid market."

Doctors' Admissions Spur Debate On Mercy Killings

LONDON (UPI)—Two doctors' admissions that they have used drugs to hasten the deaths of incurable patients are spurring fresh debate on the merits of "mercy killing."

Dr. Maurice Millard, son of the founder of the Euthanasia Society, and Dr. Charles McDonald, its current president, both admitted using drugs to put dying patients to sleep, "knowing that death might ensue."

Both men said they are sure most other doctors have done the same.

Police have taken no action against the two men because no formal complaint has been filed and it is uncertain that one will be. No one complained to the police when another doctor confessed a mercy killing in a television broadcast some time ago.

Millard touched off the debate with a Rotary Club speech Monday. The patient he "helped" to death was an 80-year-old woman suffering from cancer.

"I gave the old lady a dose of a drug and was prepared to give her another if she showed signs of waking up again," he said. "She couldn't have lived for more than two or three days."

McDonald said Tuesday he "followed the same course" in a similar case 20 years ago.

Churchmen and doctors promptly took sides, newspapers were bombarded with letters to the editor, and editorialists lined up on one side or the other.

Mgr. Michael Gilligan, senior Roman Catholic priest in Leicester, where Millard practices, said no Catholic doctor would "administer a drug for the express purpose of killing."

Leslie Wetherhead, ex-president of the Methodist Society, argued on the other hand that if euthanasia had been legalized "the old lady could have gone away in peace and dignity instead of suffering months of useless agony."

London newspapers lined up generally against mercy killing.

"It would be arrogant for anyone, however strong the provocation, to cut short an innocent human life in the supposed interest of humanity," said the Daily Express.

Air Force Seeking New Men To Fly

The Air Force pilot is here to stay. "The Air Force is currently proving this fact by seeking hundreds of qualified young men who are interested in flying," says Sgt. Robertson, local Air Force Recruiting Representative. "The Air Force is stressing its needs for additional pilots and navigators by making opportunities in these challenging and rewarding career fields available to more and more single men between the ages of 19 and 26½ who desire to earn their wings and a commission as an officer in the U.S. Air Force."

Annually the Air Force loses scores of veteran flying personnel through retirement. These vacancies must be filled by younger men if the retired strength is to be maintained. They also provide an opportunity for rapid advancement for rank and pay purposes.

Through its Aviation Cadet Program, the Air Force trains qualified young men to become pilots and navigators. The program has become the Air Force's traditional source of leadership by providing commissioned flying officers for active duty. It also enables the Air Force to maintain a sizeable reserve in the lower age bracket.

"Contrary to popular belief," says Sgt. Robertson, "a person applying for Aviation Cadet School need not be a college graduate. A diploma from Pampa High School or any other accredited high school is the minimum requirement."

Persons interested in Aviation Cadet training should take their birth certificate and high school diploma or college credits to their nearest Air Force recruiting office. If qualified, the applicant will be scheduled to take the Aircrew Aptitude Test and a physical examination at the nearest Examining Center.

Applicants successfully completing the tests will return home to await selection and a class assignment. Classes for pilots begin every six weeks and for navigators every two weeks. Travel, food, and lodging are furnished at Government expense during processing. The draft eligible applicant who is subsequently notified of his acceptance for Aviation Cadet training will be furnished a 4-month draft deferment. A graduate from the Aviation Cadet program receives a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force Reserve with an aeronautical rating of pilot or navigator, a uniform allowance and a 30-day annual leave with pay. A Second Lieutenant receives $435.00 a month.

WIN $50 IN GROCERIES!

IN OUR LOCAL GULF GULFTANE LP-GAS BUTANE PROPANE

WATER HEATING CONTEST
Just write down one number—Nothing to buy!

An LP-Gas water heater will deliver much more hot water than an electric. How many gallons more in 30 days—that is the contest question.

SEND IN YOUR ESTIMATE
YOU MAY WIN!

Wonder why we have a contest like this? To prove what some folks don't know—that Gulfane beats electricity in providing plenty of hot water 24 hours a day at low, low cost.

It's a dramatic way of saying that if you aren't using Gulfane for water heating, you're probably getting too little and paying too much!

What IS Gulfane? It's a high quality LP-Gas, also known as bottled gas, propane or butane. It is gas compressed into concentrated liquid form, so that we can deliver Gulfane to you easily and economically. Here's what it will give you:

HOME HEATING—clean, automatic heating with Gulfane for only pennies a day.

COOKING—the modern way, with fast, clean, automatically controlled Gulfane flame.

TRACTOR FUEL—clean-burning Gulfane cuts maintenance costs up to 50%... costs less too.

MANY, MANY OTHER FARM AND HOME USES!

FACTS TO HELP YOU WIN!

An average 30-gallon LP-Gas water heater is able to deliver between 13,600 and 17,900 gallons of hot water per month... an average 52-gallon electric water heater between 3,950 and 5,250 gallons of hot water each month. But the total gallons of hot water each produces in 30 days, operating 24 hours a day will vary one way or the other between these totals, depending on operating conditions.

Your Gulfane distributor has an ENTRY BLANK which contains all the test details and gives you plenty of additional information to help you win. To get your Entry Blank, phone, write, or drop your estimate by using the coupon each will deliver, you can estimate how many more gallons you can get from an LP-Gas water heater. Your calculation may win the contest and bring you the prize.

United States Testing Company, Inc. will test two new water heaters—one LP-Gas, one electric. These heaters picked at random from water stock. The test will measure how much 160° hot water (actual delivery temperature) each will deliver over a 30-day period operating at full capacity, 24 hours a day. The certified results of this test will determine the contest winner.

Here are the easy rules

1. Phone, write or visit your Gulfane distributor and ask him for your entry blank—or use the coupon below.
2. Fill in your estimate of how many more gallons of 160° water the LP-Gas heater will deliver over the 30-day period. Don't forget to add your name and address and that of your Gulfane distributor. India's Interest In Tibet Means Interference With Red China

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

One source of Red China's current indignation with India is the charge that the latter's interest in Tibet constitutes interference in Red China's internal affairs. It provides an interesting contrast in Communist thinking. For example, in Communist eyes it is not interference in a nation's internal affairs when Red propaganda agencies attack established non-Communist governments of Asia or Europe which accept U.S. aid.

It is not interference in U.S. internal affairs when the Moscow or Peking radios make vicious attacks against officials of the U.S. government.

It is not interference in internal affairs when Russian tanks rumble into a presumably sovereign Hungary to quash an internal revolt against a hated Communist regime.

Reds Not Worried
But it is interference in Red China's internal affairs when India expresses sympathy for the Tibetans and gives sanctuary to the Dalai Lama when he flees his Tibetan capital of Lhasa after a series of broken Red promises.

It is a characteristic of Communism that its spokesmen are not worried by inconsistencies either in word or deed.

But the Red Chinese attacks on India seem particularly inconsistent. It is very doubtful the Red Chinese want the Dalai Lama back since he has opposed them consistently and since, in the Panchen-Lama, who ranks almost as high among Buddhists, they have a hand-picked candidate to succeed him as Tibet's ruler.

Further, in attacking India, they are attacking the one major non-Communist nation which has been their most consistent apologist.

Increasing Pressure On Nehru
The result has been increasing pressure on Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru from politicians at home to take a new look at India's foreign policy.

In his recent public utterances, Nehru has appeared more hurt than angry at Peking's intemperate attacks. He has denied charges that the Tibetan revolt was fostered from the Indian side of the border.

He has labelled some Red Chinese charges "irresponsible" but he has been careful to say they were uttered "in excitement and I hope the excitement will pass." But his irritation has shown through, especially in a recent statement to the Indian Parliament that he was unable to say why certain Red Chinese maps incorporate slices of Indian territory and border areas under Indian protection.

One school of thought in New Delhi believes that envy lies at the root of Peking's unbridled attacks against India.

This school believes reaping is jealous of India's rank in world politics and was annoyed at Moscow's suggestion that India should be included in a summit conference of world leaders while Peking itself was ignored.

In a world of power politics, reasoning does not seem entirely valid.

Nehru is a man with an apparently infinite capacity for turning the other cheek. This week he announced that, regardless of Peking's attacks, he will continue to support Red China for membership in the United Nations.

But pressure for a review of relations with Red China is building within his own party and it seems Nehru may not be able to fence-it forever.

CHANNEL 10 MOTHER

Mrs. M. B. Smith, 1918 N. Nelson, receives a certificate naming her a "Channel 10 Mother" from Ralph Wayne, KFDD-TV news director and emcee of "It Happened Last Night." She was nominated by Mrs. C. E. Cole, 1809 Coffee.

Three Pampa Students In WT's Operas

CANYON (Sp) — Three students from Pampa will appear in two short operas to be presented by the Opera Workshop at West Texas State College Thursday and Friday, marking the ninth anniversary production for the musical group. Chosen by Director Royal Brantley are Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury," and Menotti's "The Medium."

Kenneth Taylor, Betty Lou Overhill, and David Whitley will play in the production.

Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Herman Taylor, of Pampa, is a freshman music education major. He will play the part of Mr. Gobineau in "The Medium."

Betty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Overall, will play the part of Mrs. Nolan in "The Medium."

Whitley will play the form in "Trial by Jury." He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Whitley, and is a senior music major.

Assisting Brantley with direction will be Mr. and Mrs. Moore, as stage directors and Robert L. Antrim as technical director. Admission will be $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students and children.

"The Medium" has proved to be almost as popular as Menotti's Christmas opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." The production was presented recently on NBC television after having enjoyed a long and successful Broadway run.

The story is concerned with a voice faker and his experiences with the spirit world. The opera is set in modern times and is dramatically intense.

"Trial by Jury" is only one of a long list of favorite Gilbert and Sullivan operas such as "The Mikado," "H.M.S. Pinafore," and others.

The WT production, however, is the only true opera of the entire list, being sung throughout with no spoken dialogue. The farcical trial in the opera is one of a breach of promise suit.

Both operas will be performed both nights in the Education Building auditorium at 8 p.m. They will be fully costumed and staged and accompanied by an orchestra made up of WT students and members of the Amarillo Symphony.

Spring Concert Slated In Lefors

LEFORS (Sp) — The "Spring Concert," of the Lefors Pirate Band, both junior and senior groups, and the Junior High and High School choruses will be held in the High School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. today, according to Jerry Jacobs, superintendent.

The robed choruses are under the direction of Mrs. Josephine Gehlshlager, who will also present several smaller ensembles. Forty-nine high school students make up the High School chorus while 29 voices make up the Junior High Chorus.

Jimmy King is the band director of Lefors High School and will present his 35 member senior band and the 20 instrument junior band. The public is cordially invited to attend.

There are about 400 Boys' Clubs of America in operation.

Top O' Texans Are Installed

CANYON (Sp) — Two students of the Pampa area participated in the formal installation services of their Tau Tau Tau men's social club as a chapter of Alpha Tau Omega, national social fraternity at West Texas State College.

Doyle Isaacs, Shamrock senior, and Eddie Reeves, McLean junior, were installed as active members.

The installation of WT's Zeta Kappa chapter was held last Saturday with a banquet held in the WT cafeteria. Willoughby C. Williams of Houston, district officer for the fraternity, was the installing officer.

Doyle Isaacs, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Isaacs of Shamrock, is a member of the Veterans Club and president of Terrill Hall.

Reeves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd C. Reeves of McLean, is a geology major. He is a 1953 graduate of McLean High School.

Taxpayers Entitled To Know About Foreign Aid Program

The Lighter Side
By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was a heartwarming sight: Two senators versus a bureaucrat, each side outdoing the other in defense of our right to know how the public money is spent.

But I guess nobody won, least of all the taxpayers.

It was a meeting of the Senate's subcommittee on constitutional rights, headed by Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.).

All the fuss was about foreign aid. Hennings took the position this time, billions of dollars, and that the people who put up the money are entitled to know what's done with it. Sen. Roman Hruska (R-Neb.) said he couldn't agree more because "this is public business."

Even Leonard J. Saccio, acting foreign aid boss, could see this was reasonable. In fact he said we taxpayers should be "fully informed." He said he beta-dollars to doughnuts his agency is the most thoroughly investigated in town, and that he likes it this way.

Key Words "Just About"
Saccio said he lets Congress' investigators — who keep the lawmakers informed so they can tell us — see just about every record he has. Hennings said the key words here were "just about."

The things Saccio's agency guards from the congressional gumshoes, it develops, are papers called "evaluation reports." Hennings seemed to think they contain some interesting stuff. Saccio said maybe so, but it's for his eyes only.

He said what happens is that the agency picks teams of good men to go out to the 66 countries on the foreign aid list and bring back private reports on how things are going. If they couldn't count on the agency keeping their reports confidential, he said, these fellows might not tell the whole story.

Challenge Saccio
Hennings and Hruska said these reports sounded like just the kind most needed by the congressional watchdogs. They challenged Saccio's right to withhold them.

Saccio cited precedent, a presidential order, and an attorney general's ruling in support of his refusal to produce them. He said the whole thing boiled down to "executive privilege" derived from the constitutional division of powers among the Congress, the executive, and the courts.

Hennings' subcommittee has rolls. In general, these are almost been doing battle with this same as secret as Saccio's "evaluation reports" . . . and possibly in some cases as interesting.

Hennings has declined to make his payroll public, until the Senate as a body decides this should be done. So has Hruska.

Hennings is chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, which has before it just such a proposal. He didn't make any announcement though about getting it approved anytime soon.

And Saccio didn't say anything about changing his mind.

So I guess we shouldn't look for just hadn't seen all the stuff in new enlightenment soon, from either side of the table.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been friends with a man for 18 years. He is a widower 71 years old and lives with his widowed sister who has kept house for him all these years. She is 79. I am 62 and a widow. He is a man of means but very set in his ways. He doesn't like "changes" and still has his original furniture, pictures hanging from the moldings on wires, and lamps with beads and fringe. His sister asks me why I don't marry him and "take him off her hands." I enjoy his company in small doses but don't think I could take a steady diet of this man. My friends think I am out of my mind for passing up this opportunity. Am I?

INDEPENDENT: Unless you are in the market for a valuable antique, pass him up. He sounds like he'd make a better "friend" than a husband.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that hypnosis can help people do things they are capable of doing but could never do before. I would like to improve my typing speed. Most jobs require at least 40 word per minute and I can't seem to build my speed up that high. Could you recommend a psychiatrist who can hypnotize me for this purpose alone?

MISS D: I do not recommend specific doctors. I suggest that you try to build up your typing speed through practice. Hypnosis is nothing to fool around with.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago when I was in Seventh Grade I was very unpopular. No boy would even look at me. Except one. He had failed a year, smoked, drank and was just horrible. But I didn't care. He was a boy and that was all that mattered. (I thought.) He moved away and everyone forgot about him and I started going around with nicer kids. I came a long way and this year was elected Vice - President of the Freshman class. Now this terrible boy has moved back. He is worse than ever. He is trying to pick up where he left off. I hate to snub him but I don't want him hanging around with nicer kids. I came a hands on me in the halls and calls me "Doll" and "Baby" and I could die. How can I keep him ALMOST RUINED: Your reputation is something that you — and only you — can ruin. Tell him that you are not interested in him beyond a "hello" and "goodbye." If you behave like a lady, exchanging casual greetings with this boy will do you no harm.

DEAR ABBY: I am to be married soon and have a problem concerning the minister and the reception. I'd like to invite the minister and his wife to our reception, but I am afraid if I send them a formal invitation they will think they have to send me a gift. What is the proper way to handle this? I want them there, but feel funny about sending them a formal invitation.

BRIDE-TO-BE: DEAR BRIDE: If you feel a "formal invitation" might obligate them to buy a gift, by all means, telephone the minister's wife and invite them verbally.

CONFIDENTIAL: "LONGING FOR HIM": The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence. Until you have to move it, that is!

MISS D: Are you as popular as you want to be? Get ABBY's booklet, "What Every Teenager Wants To Know." Send 25 cents and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY in care of this newspaper.

For a personally reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mother-Daughter Slated In Lefors

LEFORS (Sp) — Members of the 20-30 Club worked on decorations for a mother-daughter banquet at a regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Bud Means recently. The banquet will be held Friday.

The women discussed purchasing a mower jointly with other clubs but will take no action until further park equipment is secured. Mrs. Calvin Lacy, president, presided at the business session.

Ten Wheeler Eighth Graders Receive Class Awards At Hawaiian Dinner

WHEELER (Sp) — The Eighth Grade Class of Wheeler Elementary School was honored with a Hawaiian dinner recently in the school cafeteria. Hosts for the occasion were members of the seventh grade class, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Harold Nash. Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Holt Sr., who recently returned from a vacation to Hawaii, members of the elementary school faculty, their companions, and Superintendent and Mrs. Earl Brown.

To carry out the Hawaiian motif, each person was presented a lei upon arrival. The tables were centered with small palm trees and red paper boats against a beach scene. The individual nut cups were miniature boats of the same design while favors were small guitars. Palm trees had been erected as a stage background. To complete the atmosphere, the waitresses, members of the sixth grade, wore hula dresses, no shoes, and flowers in their hair, and Hawaiian music was played throughout the evening.

Harry Garrison served as toastmaster for the evening. The invocation was given by Bill Pearce. Mendall Hunter gave the welcome and Wanda Pierce gave the response. Terry Mach gave a hula demonstration.

Mrs. R. J. Holt, Sr. gave several interesting facts concerning the new state of Hawaii and described the different native costumes as they were modeled by Mary Holt, Jane Wofford, Gwen Barnes.

Carolyn Page, Mike Holt, Carol Holt, Lee Nell Gunter, Elizabeth Wiley and Marilyn Nash.

The 'Cha-Cha' girls, accompanied by Gwen Barnes at the piano, sang two numbers. Mary

PINK, BLUE SHOWER GIVEN FOR MRS. MEANS OF LEFORS

LEFORS (Sp) — Mrs. James E. Means was guest of honor at a pink and blue shower held in the Civic Center recently with Mrs. T. M. Williams, E. W. Connel, E. E. Traywick, B. W. Wilson, and Roy Wright as hostesses. The guests were registered by Mrs. James Dever. A corsage of pink carnations tied with blue ribbon was presented to the honoree.

The serving table was laid in a pale pink cloth, overlaid with white lace. The cake was white decorated in pink hearts, with the inscription "For the Baby Shower" and was served by Mrs. Williams.

The crystal punch bowl held pale pink punch which was served by Mrs. Connell. Assorted nuts and pink and white candy mints were served.

The gifts were displayed on a table covered in a pink and white striped cloth, at which the honoree was seated with her mother, Mrs. L. G. Pierce; and two sisters, Mrs. Christine Stout of Pampa, and Jim Mercer of Silverton, and her nephew, Kent

Holt danced two Hawaiian Hula numbers.

The following awards were presented as different teachers read the nominees and opened the sealed envelopes to announce the winners.

Golfers Dishonest, Says Oscar Fraley

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures: Joe Dey, executive secretary of the U.S. Golf Association, says as an aftermath of this corner's report that 98 per cent of those who play golf didn't abide by the rules that the percentage of honesty is higher in golf than in any other sport.

"You wouldn't even find one per cent who actually cheat," he insists.

Dey, in his official position, naturally is in a bind. But golf, even at the amateur stage, is riddled with cheats and downright thieves who do a profitable business with indelible handicaps. Everyone knows you are supposed to play the ball as it lies. All you have to do is talk to a group of caddies and you'd be surprised at the majority which "fudges" on the course, one way or another.

Probably Unfair

However, Dey didn't say that the 98 per cent who don't abide by the rules are cheats. That's my interpretation and it's probably unfair. . . . it should be 99 per cent.

Today's Kentucky Derby winner and his pursuers head next for the second leg of the triple crown. The Preakness at Pimlico on May 16. Pimlico, incidentally,

Amarillo Leads Women's Golf

AMARILLO — The Ross Rogers Course team fired a 277 Tuesday to grab the lead in the first Panhandle Women's Golf Association match Tuesday at Ross Rogers Course.

Pampa Country Club is in sixth place with 324. Huber Course of Borger is second with 282. Phillips Country Club is fourth with 298, and Amarillo Country Club is fifth with 299. The four low net scores were counted for each team.

Mrs. Johnny Austin of Tascosa had the low gross score of 85, and Mrs. Harvey Thompson of Phillips Country Club had the low net score of 80.

The low gross score from Pampa Country Club was Miss Shirley Austin's 98. The low net score was Mrs. Tom Wade's 80.

Williams To Enter High, Low Hurdles

AUSTIN — Rex Williams of Pampa and Spencer Johnson of Tascosa lead a group of eight Pampa area athletes into the state track and field meet here Friday and Saturday.

The other Pampa area tracksters who will be entered are George Bequet of Tascosa, Monte Deere of Palo Duro, and Garland Fox of Palo Duro, Kenny Abraham of Canadian, and Don Carter of White Deer, and James Lollis of Perryton.

The state meet will be held for the first time this year in five divisions — AAAA through B. In the past, there were only three divisions — AA, A, and B. Preliminaries will be held only in class B.

Williams will be entered in both the high and low hurdles. He will be running against Bob Johnson of Abilene, who defeated him in both the regional meet and the Red Raider Relays. Johnson has run the high hurdles in 14.1, while Williams' best time is 14.4.

Several other high hurdlers from different schools throughout the state, all with times about as good as Williams', will be entered in the AAAA division of the state meet.

In the low hurdles, Williams is almost on a par with Johnson. Williams has run the low hurdles in 19.3. Johnson defeated him in the regional meet with a time of 19.1.

Spencer Johnson, Tascosa strong man, will probably be entered in the shot and discus. He has won these events in almost every meet he has entered this year, and holds the state record of 181 feet plus in the discus.

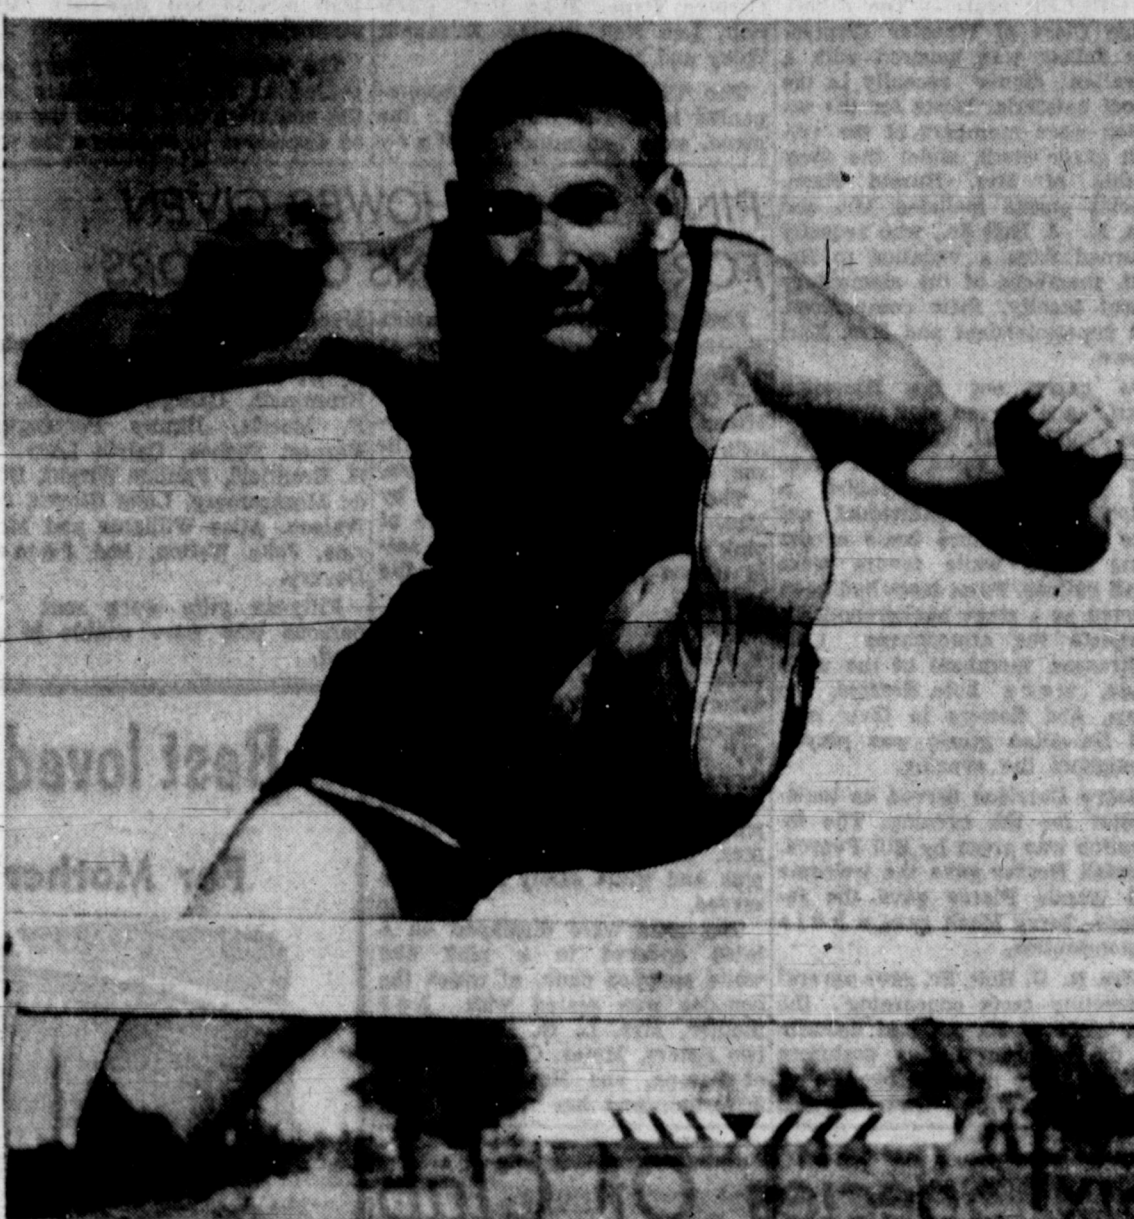

Bequet placed second in the mile run in the regional meet, and will run in the AAAA mile. His time was 4:35.8, slightly more than four seconds slower than the winner, Steve Strickland of Abilene.

Deere was the second place finisher in the 440-yard dash at the regional meet, with a time of 49.8. Fox placed second in the pole vault at the regional meet with a jump of 12 feet, 1 inch. They'll compete in the same specialties at the state meet.

Carter, the White Deer Buck speedster, lived up to the school name by finishing second in the regional 220-yard dash, behind Jim Williams of Plains, who had a 22.6 clocking. He will be entered in the class A 220-yard dash.

Abraham won the regional quarter-mile race with a time of 51.7, the best qualifying time of any class A 440-yard dash man in the state. He'll be the man to beat in the class A 440.

Lollar, who will be entered in the class AA pole vault, has credited for the fourth best vault in the state this year — 12 feet, 8 inches.

OVER THE TOP — Rex Williams of Pampa clears a high hurdle in a practice session, as he prepares for competition Saturday in the state track and field meet in Austin. Williams is rated among the top four hurdlers in the class AAAA division.

Harvesters Close Baseball Season Friday At Borger

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvester baseball team can end the season in second place by defeating the Borger Bulldogs Friday, at Borger. By beating Borger, Pampa can clinch a slice of the runnerup spot, although they would probably have to share with Palo Duro, Borger, or Lubbock — or all three. Pampa and Lubbock are now tied for third place, with an 8-5 record. Borger is second with 8-4, and Amarillo leads with 10-3. Palo Duro is in fifth place with 7-5. Palo Duro is to play Amarillo

Friday and Borger at a time and place not yet known. Lubbock plays Monterey Friday. The seventh place team, Tascosa, and the cellar squad, Plainview, completed their seasons Wednesday, as Tascosa beat the Bulldogs 4-1.

By beating Borger, the Harvesters can knock their arch-rivals out of the District 3-4A title picture and assure the Amarillo Sandies of their fifth straight district crown. The Sandies have already clinched a tie for the title, and any Amarillo victory or Borger defeat will give them the championship outright.

Pampa coach Dick Wolcott will start one of two left-handers, Keith Yager or Kippy Williams, on the mound. Yager has a 5-3 season record and a low 1.40 earned run average. Williams has a 4-2 season mark and a 3.60 earned run average.

The batting order, with batting averages, will be second baseman Ruben Strickland (.156); first baseman Larry Stroud (.296); left fielder Bobby Stephens (.211); right fielder Gary Willis (.328); third baseman Gary Hill (.340). Shortstop Wendell Ridgway (.127); center fielder DeWayne Glover (.175); catcher Terry Harrison (.197); and Yager (.333) or Williams (.348).

Borger and Pampa have played each other three times this year, and Pampa has taken the district game and one of the two non-district contests. Two of the three games have been extra-inning affairs.

In the season opener, Pampa defeated the Bulldogs 6-4, with Yager, Williams, and Taylor sharing the mound duties, and Yager receiving credit for the victory.

In the second non-district meeting, Borger beat Jimmy Walker 4-3 in the eighth inning, on an error with two out.

In the district contest, Pampa reversed the score, winning by 4-3 in the eighth inning. Yager was the winning pitcher, allowing no earned runs, and batting in the winning run.

Rick Pezdirtz

purely paydirt

An excited young damsel with honey-dew dripping from her voice gave the little black nuisance on our little ole desk a severe jangle. We awoke from our mid-morning slumber and mumbled something that must have sounded like, "hello, and whatcha need, please?" To which our caller cooed in soft and soothing tones, "Oh, ah wuz just wonderin' if'n maybe you could tell me if Pampa has a good chance of winning a state track championship or anything like that this weekend?"

Lazy snapping back heavy-hung eye-lids with large regret toward a Debbie Reynolds interrupted dream, we snored, "Shore nuff, doll, the answer's No."

The sweet little thing insisted, "Well, why the heck not?"

To which we sallied forth into a long song and dance about Pampa's having only one man, (hurdler Rex Williams) eligible for the annual spring schoolboy cinder attraction, and that he alone against nearly full teams from such wide spots in the road as Abilene couldn't possibly earn over ten points for the Harvesters. And that, such an accomplishment would be like entering a snapping contest with an alligator gar. Just not enough teeth to do any serious title biting.

Those confusing words all strung together must have satisfied the other end of the phone, for she whispered a delicious "thankew," and hung up loudly in our right ear.

Could Tally Ten Again

Ten points, of course, is the exact same total the Harvesters had tacked on the 1958 Texas schoolboy scoreboard thanks to the blurry mass of mercury known on the Pampa High campus as Alton Thygeson. A lightweight sprinter of rather salty reputation and bulging press rave notices, Mr. Thygeson flashed in with chest-thumping triumphs in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

This year, for Pampa to again sack ten digits in the state meet, Mr. Williams will have to race and leap to the tape first in his specialty events, the 180-low and 120-high hurdles.

How does Rex stack up with the rest of the state's schoolboys in the hurdles? Quite nicely.

According to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Williams owns the third best time in the state for the high hurdles and the sixth best mark in the low hurdles.

Williams is rated third in the highs with a 14.4 clocking behind Abilene's Bob Johnson who has a 14.1 time and a Mr. Paige of Houston Lamar who owns a 14.3 mark.

In the high's a 19.3 by Williams leaves him in a sixth place with Abilene's Johnson, and several steps behind a wind-blown but still superb 14.1 by a Mr. Mitchell from Gainesville.

This all boils down to a stiff amount of opposition for Pampa's Williams to square shoulders with this weekend in Austin. But, should Rex not even escape his initial heat there would, of course, be not the least disgrace. Ever stop to consider the hundreds of athletes who never make Austin's Memorial Stadium each and every spring?

Babe Happy With Spirit

Visiting briefly a spring football session of Babe Curfman's this week we were admittedly pleasantly surprised to note the amazing amount of sheer spirit the big guy and his ten assistants have instilled in their young huskies.

It's indeed grand to hear warwhoops and rump-slapping on the defensive line of scrimmage such as may be heard these warm May afternoons on the Harvesters' practice field.

One of the sideline coaches approached Curfman after an especially snappy scrimmage session and remarked, "You've really got a live-wire bunch. I don't know if they can play football, but they sure hustle, don't they?"

The Babe agreed, "Yes sir, with enthusiasm like this it's a pure pleasure working with these kids."

New Faces Sought

NEW YORK (UPI) — Teddy Brenner, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, will fly Saturday to Europe for a quick shopping tour of "new faces" for Friday night TV fights.

He has arranged for conferences with managers of prominent boxers in England, France, Italy and Germany.

Everyone likes a good joke. That's the reason we have the League of Nations. But this business of Tony Zale planning a boxight comeback, at the age of 45, is simply too rich. Who does he think he is, Archie Moore?

OBSERVATION PLATFORM:

Name a more beautiful miracle than a seeing eye dog.

Your know of course that a baseball has exactly 108 stitches. No more, no less. And the average man has 66 pounds of muscle and less than four ounces of brain. Sometimes we think, much less.

And then there was the guy who was really musically inclined. Every night he goes out fit as a fiddle and comes home tight as a drum.

Boone Goes To Athletics

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Ray Boone, former Chicago White Sox first baseman who balked at being traded to Kansas City, was in an A's uniform today.

Boone, a 10-year major league veteran, joined the A's Wednesday night after saying he would quit baseball before playing for Kansas City.

Boone went to the A's in a trade Sunday for first baseman-outfielder Harry Simpson.

The White Sox said they were prepared to pay Kansas City cash to keep Simpson, but Boone changed his quitting plans after talking with Sox co-owner Bill Veeck.

Corpus Stops Loop Leader

United Press International Corpus Christi exploded for a big 10-run seventh inning Wednesday night to come from behind and beat Texas League leading Austin 12-8 while runnerup Victoria split a twin-bill with Tulsa and San Antonio overwhelmed Amarillo.

The booming bats of Corpus Christi sluggers, silent during the early part of the game, laced three Austin hurdlers during that wild seventh frame with nine hits. A couple of Austin bobbles helped. Ernest Cristoff, starting Austin pitcher who hit a solo homer in the fifth, left the mound at the end of the sixth for John Cieboski, who took the loss. Paul Cave and Robert Sisco saw duty before the end of the inning and Ed Kabour came on in the eighth to finish. Gaylor Perry, a 18-year-old righthander, left the game in the eighth with the victory sewed up.

Myers, Nelson To Tangle Saturday

There will be no fancy stuff for the wrestling championship of Saturday night at Top o' Texas Sportsmen Club — no tag team matches, no feats of strength, no gimmicks. Just plain old rough and tumble wrestling.

And all six of the matmen on Saturday's card are well equipped for the knock-down, drag-out, no funny business style of wrestling. All have built their reputations on wrestling ability, not on "gimmicks" of one sort or another.

Sonny Myers, probably the all-time favorite of Pampa wrestling fans, will tangle with another pretty fair ringman, Art Nelson, in Saturday's main event. Both men are noted for their solid wrestling talent and their willingness to use it to good advantage. The main event will be two of three falls, four time limit.

Nick Roberts is the only out-and-out "villain" on the card, but even he has plenty of legitimate skill and ruggedness to go along with his dirty wrestling tactics. Roberts will tangle with Joe Hamilton, a big newcomer who has already won his spurs in this area in the semi-final.

Strong and stocky Tommy Phelps meets a salty senior from south of the border, Gory Guerrero, in the opening match. Guerrero claims to be a top contender

A Thing Of The Past

Every time there's a running of the presidential nominating sweepstakes, the horses seem to emerge earlier than ever from the paddock. And trotting right along with them are the bettors and guessers.

The big 1960 field on the Democratic side involving each candidate are being thoroughly aired. The Pros and Cons already have the speculators clicking away with their calculations.

On one point, however, the guessers seem not to have remembered their history too well. A fair number keep tossing in the word "deadlock" as if this were both an easy and a likely prospect in national conventions.

The Republicans had one in 1920, when Warren G. Harding emerged from battle as a compromise choice.

They had what amounted to one in 1940, when neither Thomas E. Dewey nor Sen. Robert A. Taft could build more than three-fifths of the delegate strength they needed to win. Wendell Willkie came from far behind to gain the prize in six ballots.

Only once since then, in 1948, have the Republicans required more than one ballot to determine their nominee. Dewey won in three that time.

As for the Democrats, since the famous 104-ballot deadlock at Madison Square Garden in 1924, they have had no deadlocks at all. The closest they came was in Franklin D. Roosevelt's first nomination at Chicago in 1932, when some very deft maneuvering was needed to break a log jam barring his way.

From that time on, the nominee in every convention but one (it took three to nominate Stevenson over Kefauver in 1952) has been named in a single ballot.

So, stretching it a bit, you can find no more than three deadlocked conventions between 1920 and the present. Hardly enough to warrant easy predictions of one in 1960.

Admittedly the aspirants on the Democratic side are numerous. But that does not automatically make for a deadlock. Some may well fall by the wayside long before the convention begins.

A realistic appraisal of convention history demands that we look upon a 1960 Democratic deadlock as generally quite unlikely, as pretty much an outside prospect.

Regulation And Life

The ability and the willingness of the government to intervene in certain areas of human endeavor in a direct program to prevent competition is always a distressing thing to observe.

Only a few years ago the Federal Communications Commission decreed that only the Columbia Broadcasting System could experiment with colored TV. At the same time the decree was handed down, numerous experiments were being undertaken by several television broadcasters and developers. All were ruled illegal excepting the particular scheme of one company.

It so happened that the system being promoted by CBS was not the one which ultimately produced the best results and provided us with color television. But that is hardly the point. Even if CBS had come up with the winning combination, it would have been a restraint of competition to ban by law any other approach to the problem.

Right now, and in the same field, we see additional instances of government at work to prevent competition. We are referring to pay-TV, a slot-machine idea by means of which viewers could select what they wanted to see and pay for it at the time. We don't know whether the idea is any good or not. But certainly, the American public should have a right to decide which product they want and will pay for.

About the worst area in which government is employed to prevent the use or development of certain ideas, or to promote other ideas, is in the field of health.

In the field of promotion, few things have equalled the government's insistence that fluorides be added to drinking water in community after community.

Since a wholesome controversy still rages over the usefulness and/or the destructive capacity of fluorides both in respect to organic and inorganic fluorides, it would scarcely become us to take a stand either for or against the chemical as a device to aid or injure health.

Right now, there's a tremendous uproar engendered over a supposed miracle drug called krebiozen. In the case of fluorides, governments are in the role of promoter. In the case of krebiozen, governments are inhibitors. The government doesn't want anyone to prescribe krebiozen or to use it.

Here, again, the authorities are divided. Some learned men say that the drug is the long-sought boon for the arresting and cure of cancer. Other learned men say that the drug is useless and is being promoted by quacks.

Certainly, since the experts differ, we aren't going to get into the hassle either in favor of it or in opposition to it. But we understand that the promoters of krebiozen are calling for a truly scientific and objective test of the drug. And to this, we can't possibly be in disagreement.

What we are going to say is that this is not an affair for government interference one way or another. If the drug proves to be worthless under rigorous and exhaustive testing, then it isn't up to the governments to ban it. Rather, it is up to the medical authorities to refrain from recommending it.

On the other hand, if the drug proves to be useful, even in a modest degree, again it is no concern of government. Rather medical men, duly apprised of its qualities will be in a position to prescribe it in accordance with its known usefulness.

These efforts to control competition, to regulate and dominate our lives, are destructive of progress. It isn't up to government to decide what is best for us. As rational beings, that is our prerogative.

National Baby Week, A Howling Success

National Baby Week was a smashing success at our house. Also a howling one.

Using the extraordinary strength that has come to her after nine months on earth, Megan smashed three bottles, put a whacking dent in her porringer, and wrote fine to the combination trapeze - music box that hangs over her bed.

Her gibberish moment came when, out of the blue, she suddenly discovered that the tablecloth was pulled, that it was fun to pull - so she pulled it. It took "Charlie," the poodle, half an hour to lick up what landed on the floor.

The howling during National Baby Week served as background music to Megan's most spectacular production to date - her first tooth.

At least, we think she has a tooth. We have felt what we are positive is a tooth, but she refuses to let us have a look at it. There is no risk that will get her to open her mouth for inspection. She guards the lonesome molar as if it were the world's greatest treasure - and maybe it is.

Certainly we have done everything to make her feel that it is more precious than rubies. We have been talking of its arrival for going on five months, and making wagers as to when it would pop through.

Before I had a young'n of my own I never could fathom the excitement parents felt over a first tooth.

After all, a tooth is a tooth, and not much more, and while poets have spoken of them as pearls, a single tooth, standing alone, can-

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HODGES

Capital Not Sole Cause Of Better Jobs

In a recent issue I pointed out that we must have a single standard of rightness in order to know the difference between right and wrong; that with a double standard where one standard changed at the will of man, we had really no standard.

This article was the result of the publisher of the Los Angeles Times contending that they used as a standard of right and wrong the Constitution of the United States. Of course, the publisher, Mr. Chandler, did not say what Constitution he used, and since the Constitution constantly changes and is thus not in harmony with the eternal principles of the Ten Commandments, the Times can always be right. And they like to make the public think that they are the authority of right. They so strongly desire this impression of their infallibility that they will not publish letters from readers that point out the errors of their policy or the policies of their columnists.

As evidence, that they will not publish letters that attempt to point out errors of their columnists, I wrote a letter of March 8, 1959, to the Los Angeles Times taking exception to the statements published in the Times made by Thomas Nixon Carver, who is emeritus professor of Political Economy at Harvard University. The letter follows:

Editor, Los Angeles Times:

"CAPITAL, NUMBER OF WORKERS, AND UNEMPLOYMENT"

"It seems to me Thomas Nixon Carver repeats an error commonly made that is usually used by labor unions that needs to be corrected."

"In a recent issue in your paper he wrote:

"...One way to increase the demand for labor, to raise its price and cure unemployment will be to increase the accumulation of capital in proportion to the number of workers."

"Labor unions use this argument and so they limit the number of apprentices that dare learn. They also, like Mr. Carver, want to limit immigration for that reason."

"Now, if Mr. Carver's statement is rational, if we would have a pestilence that would eliminate all the people in the United States, and even in the world, to say, ten people, real wages would be higher if we had the same amount of tools we have at present. I do not believe that would be the case. I think that if we only had ten people in the United States with the present amount of tools, most of them would just miserably subsist, if not starve to death."

"If a worker uses a tool that costs $1 or $2, like a hoe or a scrub brush, and does a job that benefits his fellowman, I cannot see how he keeps total wages down. And it certainly is not average wages that we want. We want each man to get all he produces. And as Pareto, the great Italian economist, pointed out, society is like a pyramid of sand - the higher the apex, the wider the base can be. Just so, the higher the apex of society, where men are permitted to gain knowledge and accumulate tools, the wider the base can be and the more people in between that can have a comfortable standard of living."

"In other words, productive workers are needed as well as tools. It is interference with a natural and free division of labor that causes unemployment and not the number of people in proportion to the amount of tools."

"There is nothing more important than that more people come to understand what causes real wages to constantly increase, and any opinion like Mr. Carver's that limits productive workers from entering this country, when we cannot even consume the food and raiment we produce, seems to me to be bad economics. This is true especially because it is based on unkindness. It is unfair and unjust to keep men from entering onto other people's land who want them to so enter. It is attempting not to be accurately described as an object of overwhelming beauty."

But, as I said, that was before my own baby's tooth came into the picture. I had no sooner felt it, with the tip of my little finger, than I was on the phone, ringing up everyone whose number I could remember.

It never dawned on me, and it hasn't dawned on me yet, that Megan's first tooth might not be so Press news to others. I should tell the news over the phone, and couldn't help but feel a little let-down when only her grandmother said she would be right out to see the great sight.

Somewhat, I had expected half the town to drop whatever it was doing and tear over to my house. Of course, they wouldn't have seen anything had they rushed over. Megan's mouth is sealed against the curious. I have tried every trick, right down to a shoe horn, but with no luck.

It doesn't seem possible, but I would rather see that lone tooth than anything I can think of. I know it must be beautiful. I know it must be the most extraordinary tooth ever given to a baby girl.

It's a little early to be taking her to the dentist, but if I don't catch a glimpse of it tomorrow, off she goes. The dentist will know how to reveal that treasure.

Fathers are crazy, I'm sure. But they can't help it.

Robert Allen Reports:

Unemployment Pay Due Some Changes

WASHINGTON — A big surprise in the making in the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

This Committee, which originated all revenue legislation, is on the verge of approving a bill that would establish a nationwide federal standard for jobless payments — 50 percent of a worker's last wage.

The measure would leave unchanged the existing power of the states to determine the duration of unemployment benefits.

If enacted, the new law would become effective January 1961.

It would also mark a milestone in unemployment legislation. It would be the first time in 20 years, since the first jobless pay law was adopted by Congress, that a federally-fixed minimum amount is specified.

The Ways and Means Committee is set to recommend this proposed far-reaching change due largely to Representative Wilbur Mills (D., Ark.).

He is reversing his previous opposition to this bill.

As a result of his earlier stand, the Committee had turned thumbs down on a measure by a 13 to 12 vote. This bill, sponsored by Representatives Frank Karsten (D., Mo.) and Thaddeus Machrowicz (D., Mich.), went further than the forthcoming measure.

The Karsten - Machrowicz proposal would have established uniform federal standards on both the amount and duration of unemployment compensation.

The compromise, limiting the bill to the amount of such pay, won over Mills. Supporters of the legislation are also claiming that another southern committeeman is joining Mills in switching sides.

That would make a 14 to 11 majority for the measure.

AFL-CIO leaders have agreed with Karsten and Machrowicz in accepting the compromise. The latter approved it at a meeting with Speaker Sam Rayburn, Tex., Democratic Floor Leader John McCormack, Mass., and Mills.

"We realize this 'half loaf' proposition is the only bill on this issue that has a chance at this session," said Machrowicz. "So we'll go along with it."

It was pointed out that even the compromise faced uncertain prospects in the full House and the Senate. Its chances were rated better in the former than in the latter, where the bill was deemed to have at best only a 50-50 likelihood of passage.

"We are for making the fight regardless of that," declared Karsten. "Fixing federal standards for unemployment compensation is long overdue."

This point was strongly stressed by Chairman Mills at a private Ways and Means Committee meeting. He cited the fact that 20 years ago an official report stated it was the Committee's intent to eventually enact such legislation:

"to worship the state rather than the kingdom of God that is within man."

"When we permit the state to do things that no individual has a moral or just right to do, we're bound to have unemployment."

If Carver's theory were followed and we would suddenly put protective tariffs between states and had the same amount of tools, our standard of living would most certainly go down. And how does Mr. Carver or anybody else know, any more than the Indians knew, how many people can be supported on an ever-increasing standard of living in the United States?

It is too bad that a newspaper with a circulation as large as The Times will not permit its columns to be used to get people to better understand the real meaning of the Ten Commandments.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — CUFF NOTES: Now that it is public knowledge that we are — or will be — using monkeys in some rocket flight tests before we use humans, it is permissible to reveal the private joke that convulses the scientists at Cape Canaveral. They say that one of our test rockets got out of control and kept going. . . . Many days later it landed on Mars with a terrific crash. . . . The tail surfaces broke away, the entry door flew off and the needle-like object settled down in a cloud of dust on the crimson surface of Mars. . . . Out of the wreckage stepped a chattering, enraged, spindly monkey, his tail lashing in fury and his teeth bared in defiance. . . . "You see," said one Martian to another. "You see, I was right. I told you what those earth people would look like when they got here."

As a starchy old coot who can take Anglo-Saxon monosyllables in a primed novel no easier than he can when he sees them on public display on a wall or a fence, I hope Arnold Gingrich, publisher of Esquire, is right. . . . He lectured recently in Paris, and in French, and told the French Press Institute that he believes the era of candid obscenity in print is just about over and the first signs of it are discernible in France. . . . He pointed out that it was France which consistently banned the publication of "Loila." It was France which takes a dim, unexcited view of the Bardot and it is France that has "restored virtue to a fashionable standing."

. . . He feels that too explicit prose in American novels has made sex "too ordinary a commodity, as common as chewing gum, and by that token it no longer can be smart." . . . He might be right, once the book publishers here print and get rid of the stuff they still have on their shelves. . . . Every time there is a midtown New York raid on some poor hapless little book dealer, some under-the-counter trade in obscene books I wonder why some of the biggest and most respected publishers are not raided for the novels they openly print and sell. . . . I'm not going to name or detail some current examples, but no obscene book ever written could top them in frank pornography and fulsome use of gutter words as well as detailed description of amorous situations.

The Black Sheep Club, a series of private key places in such cities as Denver, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Louisville, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Fort Lauderdale and Philadelphia, to name only some, has asked for a slogan for the outfit, the winning one of which will receive a $100 US bond. . . . A picture of a waitress wearing the standard uniform of such is enclosed with the invitation to coin a few happy words. . . . I don't know much about slogans, but the uniform is worth the price of admission all by itself. . . . No wonder men are beating at the doors to become members. . . . All of you have seen "My Fair Lady," of course. . . . "You haven't? . . . How did that happen? . . . Anyway, if you have (or even if you haven't), you can have some fun reading in the May 2 issue of The Saturday Evening Post a resume of all its vicissitudes as well as triumphs. . . . Richard Maney, gravel-voiced press agent for the deathless show, has written in his customarily vivid prose a sort of moyer history of the musical, including the monumental headaches that went into getting it into its present shape. . . . It may have been a lovely event for you to see, but it was a nightmare of problems to create that shining diversion. . . . One revelation: that after the Opening Night of the show in New Haven, Maney said he would crawl over broken bottles on bare knees if the show failed to run two years. . . . Mr. Maney's knees are uncut, unscarred; it is now entering its fourth year. . . . He also details some of the evil whims people invented to con themselves into tickets. . . . Including the story of the lady who sat at a matinee with an empty seat beside her and another woman said: "You have TWO seats!" and the one replied: "It was for my husband, but he couldn't get here. . . . 'Oh, why didn't you bring a friend?' the second woman asked. . . . 'Couldn't,' said the first. 'They are all at my husband's funeral.' . . . There are more-in-like-vein and Master Maney, a superb sheller of the English language, details them with glee.

Don't let it dismay you, but the scientists charged with finding new uses for plastic are working like beavers to perfect a plastic ice-skate. . . . Saving steel for more important uses is the supposed incentive. . . . Other scientists are beavering at small, express-boxed chemical tanks in which you can grow your own vegetables indoors at a saving over the supermarket prices.

Methods of preventing most forms of mental illness are still not available, but it is not unlikely that some breakthrough will come before long. Recent research suggests that this may be along chemical lines.

In the meanwhile, all of us should recognize the importance of mental health and mental illness. And we should be greatly encouraged by the increasing chances of recovery for many of those who suffer some form of mental breakdown.

Investigations By Congress Degraded!

by WESTBROOKE PEGLER

NEW YORK — The purpose of congressional investigations is to obtain information for the guidance of Congress in the performance of its legislative duty. This purpose has been degraded to a mere subterfuge for shameless political publicity for opportunists on the committees and lawyers hired from the outside.

It will be said that Martin Dies and Joe McCarthy were Mountebanks. Conceding that Joe was flamboyant at times but conceding nothing as to Dies, I note that Estes Kefauver's exploits were wasted by comparison when he was, in the words of Senator Tom Connally, of his own party, "out chasing craphshooters" instead of standing quorum calls. I call the turn also on Jack Kennedy, who owed his original election to the Senate to Joe McCarthy's abstention from the Massachusetts campaign in the closing moments. The Republican party begged Joe to help Henry Cabot Lodge with two speeches in south Boston. Kennedy waited until Joe was dead to join the official condemnation of the man who thus put him where he is today.

But if "McCarthyism" was deplorable, Kennedy has earned self-condemnation by his Kennedyism in the Democratic whitewash of the union rackets. In this exploit he has had the help of his brother, Robert, as counsel of the McClellan committee and of their old man Joe.

It certainly did suffice in the case of McCarthy's decisive favor to Jack Joe Kennedy had sent McCarthy $3,000 for his Wisconsin primary when McCarthy was a weak from surgery and broke. In due course Joe Kennedy asked me to ask McCarthy to stay out of Massachusetts. McCarthy reluctantly consented although the Republican party was putting great pressure on him to help Lodge.

The real work on congressional investigations is done by detectives, usually called investigators, well in advance of the public hearings which produce the surprises and the publicity. These detectives come on loan from the FBI or the Treasury or on hire by individual contract. Most of those who are not government agents on loan are either alumni of the FBI or Treasury or ex-cops who have retired or resigned with honor. There have been also a number of high-class windfall informants and examiners who came from "outside," prompted by moral and patriotic duty.

John T. Flynn, a journalist, then regarded as a "radical" because he turned up dirty work in the Arms Industry, gave great help to Senator Nye's committee in the munitions inquiry 25 years ago. J. B. Matthews, an apostate from the Bolshevik forces which he served as a fellow-traveler, guided Martin Dies through his difficult early shrimshires. He also schooled Robert E. Stripling, who Dies a greenhorn from Texas, as well that Stripling was able to crack Alger Hiss notwithstanding his overload of education, largely at the knee of Felix Frankfurter.

Elizabeth Bentley, Whittaker Chambers and the solemn, sorrowful Ben Gitlow all have gone through hell on earth to give evidence against Soviet conspirators. But their sufferings are beside the point of this treatise, which is meant to show that the actual committee hearings are mostly mere circuses. The investigators feed-varied material to friendly reporters to build up public interest for the public hearings which thus crash the papers with stuff that has been lying in the committee folders for a long time. Committee counsel act as presiding press-agents in selecting reporters for this use.

When a witness "takes the fifth," he is, in most cases, not withholding information at all. The committee already has the information, possibly in records seized by subpoena from the witness's own files, possibly also in statements taken under oath from associates or enemies of the man who now shows up in the shot seat at the congressional carnival in the caucus room. Thus there is a very serious "doubt" that even though the witness "takes the fifth," he fairly deserves punishment for contempt of Congress. Congress already knows the truth and it is a waste of money to ask questions covering the same ground in expensive public hearings followed by expensive public documents. And it is a lie to allege that in refusing to affirm facts which it already knows, the victim, however, unprepossessing and unpopular, is hindering Congress.

The honest way would be to take the investigators' evidence directly to the grand juries. But that would eliminate lurid publicity which was so sordid in the cases of Dies and McCarthy but so virtuous when hollered by Joe Kefauver and the Kennedys.

Ferdinand Pecora, a tammany politician - lawyer, founded a career on the Wall Street Inquiry soon after Roosevelt took over, with a female circus midget planted on J. P. Morgan's lap for the dramatic climax. In return, Pecora got a $25,000 job absolutely free on the bench in the state court system of New York, which he held until he decided to enter private practice. Otherwise, this job would have cost him an annual contribution of $2,500 to the party, the regular rate for judicial jobs in that bracket.

The American Way

As Viewed By M. V. EGGLSTON

COUNTING OUR BLESSINGS

We have given these statistics previously in this column, but they're worth repeating again and again. They are a reminder to us to "Count Our Blessings."

Just 6 per cent of the world's population lives in these United States of ours, yet we Americans have 75 per cent of all the world's automobiles; we have 58 per cent of the world's telephones; we possess 40 per cent of the world's electric products; and 27 per cent of the world's newspapers are printed in this country.

The reason for this "terrific" superiority in our material welfare is due to the efficient use of constantly installed new and better tools which operate in a free competitive economy. These new and better tools have made it possible for American workers constantly to increase their output per hour — this increase has averaged 18 per cent each decade since 1850.

If we wish to further increase production per hour during the next ten years and still further our already highest standard of living, then new and better tools must be provided during that decade. To accomplish this, there must be no impediments put in the way of the investor, whose money will provide these new and better tools. Government must lend the investor every encouragement by refraining from hampering regulations and by easing the tax burden. More and better jobs, the creation of more wealth, will only be possible if industry is permitted to operate under conditions inductive for the investment in more and better tools.

SIDESTEPPING A TORNADO—Weather Bureau advises the above steps to protect yourself against a tornado. Additional tips: At home, go to a basement corner; if not basement, take cover under heavy furniture against inside wall. Don't tie up the telephone calling for weather information. Important thing is to select carefully the best protection available. Above all, don't lose your head. People have been killed because they ran into the streets, directly into the storm's path.

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Mrs. Quincey Adams repeated several times to her son, Wade, 6, that he was to be home by 11 a.m. As she helped him on with his coat, she asked: "Now, what time did I tell you to be home?" "Eleven o'clock," Wade replied. "Good. No have you forgotten already?"
