Tanks roll in Moscow

Yeltsin issues call for resistance

■ Thousands defy threat of force; coup leaders announce takeover of news media.

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Thousands of anti-coup demonstrators poured into the streets Monday, surrounding tanks sent into Moscow by a hard-line Communist junta seeking to cement its overthrow of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Rallied by populist politician Boris Yeltsin, who called for a general strike, the protesters defied the emergency committee's threat to use force to consolidate its power.

Demonstrators surrounded the Russian parliament and government building, about a mile from the Kremlin, and stayed there overnight to protect Yeltsin from arrest. They erected barricades of bricks, wooden boards, and even several blue-and-white trolley buses.

Inside, Yeltsin's supporters worked the phones, appealing throughout the sprawling republic for resistance to the coup. Yeltsin's office announced early today that he was sending his foreign minister, Andrei Kozyrev, to Washington to consult with President Bush.

The eight-member coup committee, which included the KGB secret police, military and police chiefs, announced a takeover of state news media and shut down independent broadcasters.

Reformers sought to get the message out anyway, cranking up fax machines and photocopiers to print makeshift newspapers. In one issue put out by the editors of the radical Moscow News, the widow of Nobel laureate Andrei D. Sakharov appealed for a mass protest against the coup leaders.

"When Andrei Dmitreivich Sakharov died, a half-million Muscovites went out on the streets," said Yelena Bonner. "If we repeat this today, we will win."

In an afternoon of heated exchanges with civilians who clambered aboard their tanks, many of the soldiers deployed in Moscow had expressed reluctance to shed Russian blood.

■ Analysis

MOSCOW — The spark that kindled Monday's takeover of the Soviet government was, by all indications, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's acceptance of a new union treaty that promised the final demise of the old Soviet order and a surrender of power to elected leaders in the republics.

The pact, which Gorbachev was to have signed today with the Russian president, Boris N. Yeltsin, and two other republic leaders, posed an imminent threat to the power of all the institutions represented in the conspiracy: the overlords of the central economy, the demoralized military,

Bush demands deposed leader's return to power

■ President decries coup as 'misguided, illegitimate effort.'

N.Y. Times News Service

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — In a sharp condemnation of the coup that overthrew President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, President Bush made a blunt demand on Monday for Gorbachev's restoration to power and said the United States did not accept the legitimacy of the self-proclaimed new Soviet government.

Back at the White House after rushing from his vacation home here, Bush issued a strongly worded statement that followed a day of consultations with other leaders of the Western alliance and a concerted effort to squeeze the new Soviet leadership by freezing economic aid programs. He decried the coup as a "misguided and illegitimate effort" that "bypasses both Soviet law and the will of the Soviet peoples."

West Texas professors warn of difficulty ahead for Soviets

By Myra Lee Salcedo

Staff Writer

Several West Texas college professors expressed deep concern over Communist hardliners seizing power from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

"They are headed for dangerous times — worse than any of us can imagine, simply because there could be a civil war and those who wield power won't tolerate opposition," said Thomas Dynneson, Ph.D., of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Dynneson, who conducts research in the areas of democratic theory and comparisons of totalitarian regimes, said the recent Soviet turmoil will soon affect the rest of the world.

"I think it's bad for the Western world," he said. "We are moving toward a global society and now we will have to cooperate with the conservative forces who are trying to maintain control."

Gorbachev was replaced by a ruling committee of eight men that includes Vice President Gennady Yanayev, the defense and KBG chiefs and other hard-liners.

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. — Hurricane Bob swirled up the Eastern Seaboard and smashed into New England with winds over 100 mph and torrential rain Monday. It blew down trees and power lines, tossed boats ashore, shattered windows and ripped shingles and roofs off buildings.

■ More coverage/1D

At least four deaths and 20 injuries were attributed to the storm as it sped northward from the Carolinas into Maine.

The storm knocked out power to at least 1.5 million businesses and households. Maine's governor closed state government and ordered evacuations of coastal residents. Navy submarines fled their berths in Connecticut for the safety of the deep.

Nuclear power plants cut power as a precaution. A special storm barrier was lowered in Narragansett Bay to protect Providence, R.I., devastated by a tidal surge in a killer 1938 hurricane. City officials said the barrier worked.

Bob, the second tropical storm of the season, carried sustained winds as high as 115 mph and gusts to 138 mph before it began fizzling late Monday. At its peak, Bob was rated a Category 3 storm on a scale of one to five.

As moved north toward Canada late Monday, Bob was downgraded to a tropical storm when its maximum sustained winds dropped to 70 mph, 4 mph below the hurricane threshold. At 11 p.m. its

Happy Land verdict

NEW YORK — A jury convicted a Cuban immigrant of murder Monday for setting an arson fire that killed 87 people at the illegal Happy Land social club. Relatives of the victims wept while the jury foreman repeated the word "guilty" 176 times, covering two counts of murder for each victim, plus arson and assault. Julio Gonzalez, 37, started the blaze on March 25, 1990, by igniting a dollar's worth of gasoline at the club's only exit after a fight with a former girlfriend. She worked at the club as a coat-checker and was one of six survivors.

Mississippi and Louisiana authorities have charged him with murdering the girl, and he faces a death sentence if convicted in either state. His lawyer has said Evans wants to die./3A

Redistricting plan

AUSTIN — Hours after a special session began Monday, legislative committees approved congressional and State Board of Education redistricting plans. The House Redistricting Committee voted 10-5 for a congressional plan that was blasted by Republicans and blacks. The proposal will be considered today by the full House. Republicans said the congressional plan favored Democratic incumbents, while blacks said it failed to guarantee that a black candidate could be elected from Dallas County.

Dame Judith is ill

Dame Judith Anderson, hospitalized for more than two weeks with an undisclosed ailment, was described by her doctors Monday as doing well and responding to treatment. The 93-year-old Australian-born actress was admitted to St. Francis Hospital in Santa Barbara, Calif., on Aug. 4 for tests. She has lived in Santa Barbara since 1950. "She's in pretty good condition," said a hospital spokeswoman, Jean Mangus. Last week, doctors reported that Miss Anderson was alert and responding to treatment.

Today to be sunny, hot

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies, high in the mid-90s, and south winds 5 to 15 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the mid-60s and a less than 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Wednesday is expected to be partly cloudy, with a high in the mid-90s.

After an overnight low of 66, Monday's high was 90 compared with the record high for that date of 103 set in 1977. The record low for today's date was 58 set in 1940.

STATE

A dry airmass hung over North Texas Monday afternoon, as a weak trough of low pressure lay along the Red River. The National Weather Service expects humidity to dip as even drier air moves into the region.

A weak pressure pattern brought light winds and hot temperatures across South Texas. A line of showers developed from Del Rio to Corpus Christi.

Elsewhere in the state, showers and thunderstorms were scattered along the Gulf Coast, Rio Grande Valley and South Plains. Temperatures reached the 90s. Winds were strong and gusty near the thunderstorms.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

COUP: Coup leaders move to reimpose control

(From 1A)

By nighfall, when the tanks surrounding the Russian parliament were withdrawn without explanation, only to be replaced by 10 tanks flying the Russian flag in a gesture of support for Yeltsin, it was unclear just who was in control of the capital.

"You can build a throne out of bayonets, but you can't sit on them long," Yeltsin told loyalist troops. "There is, or can be, no return to the past."

The hard-liners said they acted to halt the descent of the country into chaos, and promised to crack down on crime and take measures to produce more food. They may have been forestalling Gorbachev's planned return from vacation to Moscow, where today he was to have signed a Union Treaty that would have given more authority to the nation's restive republics.

The crackdown was heaviest in the independence-minded Baltic republics. A Soviet military commander declared himself de facto ruler of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, and Soviet forces forced their way into TV and radio stations, beating protesters. Soviet warships blocked the main harbor in Estonia.

One report said Interior Ministry troops had killed the driver of a van in Riga, Latvia.

Yeltsin's call for a strike was heeded by Siberian coal miners in Vorkuta and the Kuznets Basin, who began walking off their jobs early today. The miners have been among Yeltsin's biggest supporters and proponents of radical economic change.

"The whole city will come to a standstill tomorrow," Yuri Kovalenko, a member of the Vorkuta city strike committee, said in a telephone interview.

The coup seriously jeopardized the 6-year-old reforms identified with Gorbachev. His policies of "perestroika," or restructuring, and "glasnost," or openness, inspired a far-reaching but often chaotic transformation of the Soviet Union as well as an end to the Cold War.

Vice President Gennady Yanayev, who ostensibly headed the new ruling committee, told a news conference that Gorbachev, 60, would be confined for treatment of exhaustion in the Crimea — where he had been on vacation.

"He is very tired after all these years, and he will need some time to get better. We hope ... he will take office again," Yanayev told reporters.

Yeltsin said Gorbachev was being "detained."

There had been no recent indication Gorbachev was ill. Unconfirmed reports carried by CNN and the Russian Information Agency said Gorbachev was seen boarding a plane in the Crimean city of Simferopol. CNN said he was reported to have been flown to a military base at Sebastopol.

CBS News reported that Prime Minister Valentin Pavlov — one of the eight emergency committee members — and another hard-liner had recently flown to Gorbachev's vacation home and demanded he resign. When Gorbachev refused, CBS reported, Pavlov told him, "You are going to be sick for a very long time."

Despite the coup leaders' pledges to continue Gorbachev's reforms, world leaders were deeply concerned.

President Bush, who only weeks ago signed a historic arms treaty with Gorbachev, condemned the coup as "misguided and illegitimate."

"We will avoid in every possible way actions that would lend legitimacy or support to this coup effort," Bush said in a statement issued after meetings at the White House.

On global financial markets, the news hit like an earthquake. At one point, the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled about 100 points to 2,888 in one of the worst upheavals since the Persian Gulf crisis.

Yanayev said he was taking over as acting president under the state of emergency. However, he appeared to wield little power.

The 53-year-old Yanayev (pronounced yah-NEYE-yeff) was a trade union leader and Communist Party official when Gorbachev chose him as his deputy in December, saying he was a man he could trust.

Yeltsin, who at times has been a thorn in Gorbachev's side but has recently been more supportive of his reforms, quickly moved into the forefront of resistance.

Putting himself on a potential collision course with the provisional government, Yeltsin ordered Soviet soldiers, police and KGB agents to follow his command on the territory of the sprawling Russian republic.

the country.

In London, the British government announced that it had frozen $80 million in economic aid to Moscow, and the European Community scheduled an emergency meeting for today in which it was expected to suspend a $1.5 billion aid program.

Holding to a dwindling hope that the coup might still fail, Bush outlined a series of tough positions that would guide American policy toward the Soviet Union during this latest crisis. It dennounced the use of military force in the Baltics and demanded that the Soviet Union respect all of its international treaties and commitments, including the Helsinki guarantees of free speech and other human rights.

"We believe the policies of reform in the Soviet Union must continue, including democratization, the process of peaceful reconciliation between Moscow and the republics, and economic transformation," Bush said in a written statement that marked a deliberate escalation in the tone of his comments after an initially restrained response.

"We support all constitutionally elected leaders and oppose the use of force or intimidation to suppress them or restrict their right to free speech," Bush said.

In addition to telephoning his Western allies to coordinate his response to the coup, the White House said Bush also spoke on Monday with leaders of Eastern Europe and stressed that the changes that had taken place in their countries — democratic reform and separation from the Soviet-dominated Warsaw Pact — were irreversible.

Moving to align the United States with the most visible voice of resistance to the newly imposed leadership — Boris N. Yeltsin, president of the Russian federation — Bush said: "We support President Yeltsin's call for restoration of the legally elected organs of power and the reaffirmation of the post of U.S.S.R. President M.S. Gorbachev."

James Collins, the senior American diplomat in Moscow, met with Yeltsin on Monday while Bush pondered whether he should contact the Russian president himself.

"We will avoid in every possible way actions that will lend legimitacy or support to this coup effort," Bush said.

With these words, Bush, who has taken pains to keep out of Soviet internal affairs during the period in which he has tightened his political bonds with Gorbachev, marked a significant change in American policy toward the Soviet leadership.

ORIGINS: Gorbachev tried to juggle two forces

(From 1A)

the state police agencies and the Communist Party.

But the underlying cause of Monday's upheaval was Gorbachev's chronic attempt to balance two irreconcilable forces — two forces that he helped create but could not control.

One was a new generation of popular leaders, initially inspired by Gorbachev and later elected to power in the republics because of impatience with the Soviet leader's wavering.

The other was a clique of hard-liners, the custodians of stability, whom Gorbachev himself appointed and whom he tolerated even when they brazenly challenged his policies.

"The great irony of this coup," said Sergei P. Tarasenko, a leading adviser to Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the former Soviet foreign minister, "is the fact that those people who demoted Gorbachev are his friends."

Shevardnadze himself, who resigned last December with a warning of impending dictatorship, held out the possibility Monday that Gorbachev had gone along with the hard-line takeover under pressure, and could re-emerge as its figurehead.

The seizure of power left the two forces vying to fill the vacuum created by more than a year of Gorbachev's indecision.

The champions of order, embodied in the self-appointed State Committee for the State of Emergency, are banking on military power, a stifling of the independent press and the passivity of a discontented poeple, many on whom still see democracy as an abstract principle.

The champions of change, now centered on the figure of Yeltsin, are hoping that the Soviet people value their new liberties enough to fight for them with a campaign of widespread civil disobedience.

In the outlying independence-seeking republics — including, Lithuania, Armenia and Georgia — citizens had already stood before tanks and shut down factories to defend their quest for freedom. Such mainstay republics as Russia and the Ukraine have not been tested on such a scale, until now.

The first signs of resistance to the new order were evident Monday in the crowds that encircled army vehicles in central Moscow, in the open ambivalence of some young soldiers called out to enforce the state of emergency, and in the news that workers at some Russian coal mines and industrial enterprises were preparing to strike.

Almost from the outset, the pattern of Gorbachev's leadership has been to lead from the center, never getting too far ahead of his balky conservatives or too far behind his itchy radicals.

In the early years, when the Communist Party he headed was the axis of all power and when there was a general consensus that the country must be steered out of its economic dead end, the center held.

Gorbachev's grip remained firm as he liberated the press, sponsored the election of a quasi-democratic parliament, experimented with the sclerotic economy and began negotiating an end to the Cold War.

But in the last two years, as it became clear that half measures were not enough, the Soviet leader's political swings became more wild and desperate.

Each measure he took to satisfy one side evoked deep bitterness on the other side, so that he began to resemble a captain running from port to starboard to keep his ship afloat.

BOB: Hurricane churns up Eastern Seaboard center was just south of Bangor, Maine.

(From 1A)

But Bob still had plenty of punch when it moved up the Maine coastline past Portland, the state's most populous city. Winds gusted to 61 mph and nearly 8 inches of rain fell in Portland, the National Weather Service said. The storm, with a 4- to 7-foot tidal surge, hit near high tide.

Maine Gov. John R. McKernan ordered the evacuation of all people living within a quarter mile of a 125-mile stretch of coastline north from the New Hampshire line, including Portland.

Nearly 12,000 people sought shelter at evacuation centers, authorities said.

But when the tide peaked in Portland and the Camp Ellis beach community of Saco, further south, it appeared that little damage was done.

"This is a relief," said Chris Bolton, sprayed by the sea as waves crashed on the rocks in front of his summer home at Camp Ellis. "We thought it was going to be worse than this. With another foot of tide, it would've been."

Earlier Monday, President Bush, vacationing at his oceanside home in Kennebunkport, Maine, said the hurricane "wouldn't scare us a bit." He then left for Washington — not because of Bob, but in response to the ouster of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Barbara Bush and the Bush grandchildren left the presidential retreat and went to a friend's house inland. They returned later Monday.

The storm, which formed off the Bahamas last week, glanced off Cape Hatteras, N.C., late Sunday night, causing little serious damage.

Then it spun northward off the coasts of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey. It stayed about 100 miles offshore but brought gusty winds and heavy rain to the coastline.

The hurricane's eye slipped about 50 miles east of Montauk on the eastern tip of New York's Long Island at about 1 p.m., turning the sky purple.

The hurricane's eye first crossed land at Block Island, R.I., midway between Long Island and the Rhode Island mainland, at about 1:30 p.m. Winds there were reached at least 105 mph, the maximum reading for wind-measuring instruments on the island, the weather service said.

Waves washed over large sections of the 11-square-mile island.

"There is no beach," said Jane Vercelli of Connecticut, who was staying in a cottage on Mansion Beach. "The water is completely up to the sand dunes, you wouldn't know there was ever a beach."

Betty Gann, a dispatcher for the police and fire departments on Block Island, said the eye of the storm brought an eerie calm after the high winds.

"Absolutely dead. It's almost frightening," Gann said.

From there, Bob sped through Rhode Island and Massachusetts, leaving a trail of downed trees, snapped electrical wires and broken windows. At Newport, R.I., water surged onto Atlantic Beach and engulfed three houses.

John Caprio, whose father owns the beachfront Coast Guard House restaurant in Narragansett, said almost all of the eatery was destroyed by the winds and surf.

"The only part standing is the lounge," he said. "The restaurant is gone and the decks are coming down."

The Massachusetts coast and the offshore resort islands appeared to take the brunt of the storm.

In Edgartown, Mass., on Martha's Vineyard, trees fell on houses and cars, shingles blew off buildings, street signs toppled, storefront windows shattered, and boats sank or were hurled ashore.

WARN: W. Texas professors express concern chev, when the committee of eight — virtually put into place by him — turns on him," Dynneson said.

The men on the committee were all appointed to government jobs by Gorbachev as part of his juggling act to appease hardliners while simultaneously bringing about economic and political reform, according to Associate Press reports.

"The people he elevated to positions of responsibility didn't stand with him," Dynneson said. "They literally took him out."

The figures who dominate the committee have been openly critical of the Soviet withdrawal from Eastern Europe and of Gorbachev's political cooperation with the United States in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Nonetheless, Yanayev sent messages to foreign leaders that promised the changeover would not affect the Soviet Union's international relations and commitments.

"I think they may be telling the truth as far as they know it right now," said Ralph Carter, Ph.D., and associate professor of political science at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. "But things have gone too far with relations in the Western world to turn it all over on a dime," he said.

"My gut sense is that there will be trouble in the big cities," Carter said. "But in the smaller cities, people will be happy about the change. The Soviets — particularly the Russians in the rural areas — are adverse to all the changes they have been going through. They prefer perfect order and productivity over liberty."

Dennyson agreed.

"You can't compare the Soviet Union's system with ours. The Soviet society is not like a Western European society. It was a peasant society with a monarchy that has been replaced by a bureaucratic socialist structure," he said. "There is no middle class per se. You have a peasantry, with 70 to 80, or maybe closer to 90 percent of the population not used to participating in political affairs."

Dynneson also noted that the Soviet Union is not an integrated society. "It is a society that practices separatism," he said. "Minorities retain their separation. They have separate republics. They speak their own languages, have their own cultures and our very nationalistic."

The UTPB professor said the Soviets will be battling internal cultural conflicts that will cause people to "move inward and isolate themselves."

"This worries me," he said. "A civil war in the Soviet Union could tear the world into two camps — a real step backward."

Jerry Jones, Ph.D., and Midland College chairman of business studies, said the Soviet conflict involves "the fear of losing control of the people — a conflict within the structure — moving in one direction, and a move toward capitalism and enterprise moving in the other direction."

Jones, who hosted a delegation of high-ranking Soviet officials in Midland last week, said, "It seemed obvious, even among them (the Soviet officials), that there were some philosophical differences. They were concerned about each other — about what they each said."

Jones said the philosophical conflicts of the visiting Soviets metaphorically represented "a mirror reflecting the entire country."

The MC administrator said that officials were warm and friendly to their hosts, however. "They were also eager to be able to take advantage of some of the capitalistic ideas we had."

Jones said the Soviets "really looked forward to seeing fruits and vegetables in stores. They took photos in the supermarkets."

"They were so amazed at the prosperity of this country," he said. "They were concerned about work ethics and where they are going as a nation."

Carter said Soviets embracing capitalism prompted the Communist hard-liners to depose Gorbachev.

"They would love to see the idea of moving toward communism stopped and restore supremacy to the party," he said. "Some people want a return to the status quo. After years of traumatic changes, they yearn for what they know and understand. This idea has been manifesting over the past 12 months."

Dennyson said that "bureaucrats torpedoed the system."

"Unfortunately, the Soviet people can protest but they don't have a tradition of Democracy. It makes things very dangerous right now," he said.

"No leader in the Soviet Union could have withstood this," Dennyson added. "The machinery was against Gorbachev. Historically, the Soviets have always preferred strong-man rule to socialist reform. They prefer leaders like Joseph Stalin (dictator from 1929-53 who ruled by terror and quelled all opposition), compared to liberal rulers."

The UTPB professor said, "It's not unusual for the Soviet Union to change leadership at the drop of a hat."

Carter of TCU agreed.

"There seems to be yearning for a strong leader," he said. "The people are tired of waiting for the reforms to take hold. You know, Stalin was a bad guy, but he kept the trains running on time."

■ Hurrican suspends Smart's retrial hearing

EXETER, N.H. — Lawyers for a woman convicted of getting her teen-age lover to kill her husband argued for a new trial Monday before the hearing was suspended because of Hurricane Bob.

Pamela Smart, 24, a former high school staff member, was convicted in March and sentenced to life in prison with no chance for parole in the May 1990 murder of her husband, Gregg.

Her lawyer, J. Albert Johnson, argued that Superior Court Judge Douglas Gray made major mistakes during her trial. Gray denied it.

After about 1⅛ hours of heated argument, none of Johnson's four motions for retrial had been ruled on. Gray suspended the hearing until Aug. 26 because of the weather.

Smart's teen-age lover and two of his friends pleaded guilty to reduced charges and testified against her, saying she wanted her husband of less than a year killed because she feared losing her house, furniture and dog in a divorce. They are awaiting sentencing.

Johnson maintains intense media coverage tainted the jury and faulted Gray for not delaying the trial to allow publicity to blow over, not moving it to another county and not sequestering the jury until after deliberations began.

■ Pentagon considers reactors for missiles

In great secrecy, the Pentagon is studying whether to build a new generation of missiles powered by nuclear engines that would hurl offensive warheads toward distant targets far more efficiently than existing chemical-fueled rockets.

A Defense Department official said the study was a responsible way to explore how to modernize the nation's land-based missiles, many of which will be retired early next century.

Moreover, some private experts said the merit of investigating new kinds of armaments had been driven home by the sudden ouster of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and his replacement by Communist hard-liners.

But the study has also alarmed critics, who contend that nuclear rockets would be dangerous to human health and the environment during testing and that the Pentagon is trying to undermine the fragile successes of East-West cooperation.

■ Sexism, racism found in job program

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators studying a $4 billion federal job training program have found that women and blacks are more likely than white men to be channeled into lower-paying jobs.

The investigators said they also found instances of blatant racism and sexism by the private companies that provide classroom and the on-the-job training in the program, which serves economically disadvantaged people, dislocated workers and others who face significant employment barriers.

In the study, which is not yet complete, investigators with the General Accounting Office examined programs established in 16 states through the Job Training Partnership Act.

Police arrest 95; protesters flock to city

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Police and U.S. marshals arrested 95 abortion protesters Monday for violating a court order against blockading two abortion clinics, bringing the arrests in four weeks to more than 2,300.

More confrontations were expected this week as Operation Rescue demonstrators began pouring into Wichita from elsewhere around the country.

U.S. District Judge Patrick F. Kelly has ordered protesters not to block access to Wichita Family Planning Inc. or Women's Health Care Services. The clinics filed a lawsuit against the protesters.

A third clinic, Wichita Women's Center, is not covered by the order.

Police on Monday arrested 42 people at Wichita Family Planning and 53 at Women's Health Care Services. Protesters knelt, laid or sat in the street or the clinic driveways, blocking patients in vehicles and on foot. Police and marshals carried or dragged the protesters out of the way and arrested them.

On Sunday, President Bush rebuffed two leaders of the abortion opponents at his vacation home at Kennebunkport, Maine, and called on the demonstrators to keep their protests within the law.

Six days of demonstrations are planned to build momentum for a Sunday rally by anti-abortion groups, and Operation Rescue leaders say small groups of supporters are coming from all over the nation.

"It's going to be impressive. That's all I can say," said the Rev. Pat Mahoney, of Boca Raton, Fla., a protest leader.

A check by Associated Press bureaus across the nation indicated a number of people are coming to Wichita this week in small groups from widely scattered cities.

The protests organized by Operation Rescue have resulted in more than 2,300 arrests of about 1,450 people since July 15. Most have been charged with loitering or trespassing, but some have faced contempt charges for violating the federal court order.

Evans pleads guilty to kidnapping

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — A drifter who says he killed more than 60 people pleaded guilty Monday to federal kidnapping charges in the rape-strangulation of a 10-year-old girl, and he joked about the death penalty.

Donald Leroy Evans, 34, led police on Aug. 11 to the body of Beatrice Louise Routh, who disappeared from a Gulfport, Miss., playground 10 days earlier. Mississippi and Louisiana authorities have charged him with murdering the girl, and he faces a death sentence if convicted in either state.

After his arrest Aug. 5 near Covington, La., he confessed to more than 60 killings in 21 states. If true, he'd be the most prolific known serial killer in U.S. history.

His lawyer has said Evans wants to die.

Evans appeared exasperated at one point during Monday's hearing, and told U.S. District Judge Walter Gex III he knew his confessions could be used to build other cases against him.

"If you're guilty, you're guilty," Evans said. "There's no sidestepping the issue."

Later, he jokingly told the judge: "How can you hurt my case? I mean, I'm going to death row. What are you going to do? Kill me?"

Evans faces a life prison term at sentencing Oct. 24 in the federal kidnapping case.

Evans told authorities he killed the girl in Louisiana and dumped her body in Mississippi. Mississippi authorities charged him with murder last week. He was scheduled to appear in state court Tuesday.

Also Monday, Louisiana authorities charged Evans with first-degree murder and aggravated assault. Authorities in the two states have yet to decide where Evans will stand trial. Walter Reed, district attorney of St. Tammany Parish, said he would seek the death penalty if Evans is tried in Louisiana.

Evans, of Galveston, Texas, so far has been linked only to the girl's killing and two Florida homicides in 1985. Authorities have refused to say if any leads matched details Evans provided.

Evans said his killing spree began after his discharge from the Marines in 1977. A task force comprised of federal and local authorities is fielding calls from around the nation.

Inmate wants to be father

BOYDTON, Va. (AP) — A death row inmate wants his sperm frozen and used to inseminate his girlfriend, saying the state's right to kill him doesn't mean it can end his bloodline.

Joseph Roger O'Dell, 49, faces execution for the 1985 rape and murder of a Virginia Beach secretary. He asked the state Supreme Court to allow him and fellow death row inmate Joseph Savino, 32, to preserve their sperm.

The court denied the request, calling it frivolous. Prison officials were still considering it.

Gov. L. Douglas Wilder on Monday opposed the request.

"I am appalled by their brazenness," Wilder said. "It is a grim irony that individuals who have taken the lives of others now ask that their bloodline be preserved. Their actions prevented innocent victims from the opportunity to do the same."

Wilder also said he remains opposed to conjugal visits for death row inmates.

Because his execution would end his bloodline, O'Dell said not allowing him to have his sperm frozen constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

SOVIET UPHEAVAL: COUP TO CHAOS

Odessa minister thinks coup will lead to civil strife

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

As the world moved closer to global unity Sunday, Soviet hard-liners closed ranks to regain control of the Soviet Union, a move which some West Texans predict will result in a Soviet civil war.

"I think there is a very real possibility of civil war because the people have had a taste of freedom, especially the present generation. I don't think they will go back to the way things were without a fight," said the Rev. Bill Cook of Odessa.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was overthrown just one day before he was to return to Moscow to prepare for the second signing of his new Union Treaty.

The treaty, bitterly opposed by hard-liners, would have given the republics more power at the expense of the Communist central government.

Kremlin hard-liners rolled tanks into Moscow and Vice President Gennady Yanayev announced Monday that Gorbachev was "on vacation" in an undisclosed "safe place."

Associated Press reports said Gorbachev had been detained at his vacation home in the Crimea, where he has been since Aug. 4.

Cook, who recently returned from mission work in the Soviet Union, said he witnessed unrest in the Soviet Union just weeks ago.

"Gorbachev was in a no-win situation," Cook said. "He had the common people against him because, in spite of the reforms, their lives were no better. People and hard-liners saw Gorbachev as power-hungry, and thought that he might become a dictator."

Cook said the peasant class still experienced "long lines for just about everything."

"I saw one line of about 75 people trying to buy shoes," he said. "They let in a few at a time."

Communist hard-liners reported that they had used military force to quell "political, ethnic and civil strife."

But Midlander Ananiasz Kochaniuk — who formerly lived in a section of Poland which became part of the Soviet Union's Ukraine in 1945 — views the overthrow as a power ploy to return to communism.

"They (hard-liners) want to bring communism back," Kochaniuk said. "Even with communism, you could hardly make your living."

The Midlander, who has three sisters in the Soviet Union, said he was discouraged by news reports of the overthrow.

"I feel bad," he said. "People there will be facing hardship. Those who have the power have been trying to keep the reforms from working. They lead easy lives and want to keep it that way."

Cook said that while the takeover threatens Gorbachev's policies of "perestroika" (restructuring) and "glasnost" (openness), internal strife is an even greater risk.

"This could very possibly effect religious freedom as well," he said. "The pendulum is swinging back the other way even further than it did before. Things are going to be even worse than they were before perestroika."

The minister said he had heard rumblings from citizens in churches he visited as far back as a year ago.

"From the time I visited the Soviet Union in 1975 to my visit in 1990, there was a tremendous difference in the people, though" Cook said. "In 1975, the only person I saw smile was our guide and it was very evident that hers was a pasted-on smile."

Cook said people were "more open" to Americans this year. "When we offered them Bibles, they were more open to us when we spoke English. So many of them — who study English in the public schools and universities — were eager to practice speaking English."

Despite all the disappointment expressed by Soviet people that reforms weren't working, Cook said "we saw a lot of smiles."

"One thought that was expressed in churches we were in, was that people were going to do what they could before 'the doors close again' — before widespread persecution began again," Cook said.

"Unfortunately, people said they were going to do what they could — not in case the doors close again — but when they close again," he said.

New president promises continuance of reforms

MOSCOW (AP) — Gennady I. Yanayev had in the past expressed concern about the hardships of market-oriented reforms. But on Monday, after helping oust the man who initiated them, he promised to pursue such changes.

Left unclear by Yanayev's first remarks since he and other hard-liners ousted Mikhail S. Gorbachev, however, was how much power he would wield as acting president in the new government.

At a news conference, Yanayev (pronounced yah-NEYE-yeff) even said that Gorbachev might some day return to power.

"He (Gorbachev) is very tired after all these years, and he will need some time to get better," said Yanayev. "We hope ... he will take office again."

He declined to say whether Gorbachev would keep his job as Communist Party general secretary.

Earlier, Yanayev said in a statement issued through the official Tass news agency that Gorbachev had been relieved of his duties for health reasons. There have been no recent indications that Gorbachev was ill.

Yanayev, a 53-year-old career Communist, was chosen by Gorbachev as vice president in December to appease hard-liners. An ethnic Russian, he had been head of the Central Council of Trade Unions since 1989.

His nomination was approved by the Congress of People's Deputies in December, at the same time that Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze resigned his post, warning of an impending dictatorship.

During his eight months as vice president, he spent most of his days greeting foreign officials — including President Bush upon his arrival for a summit with Gorbachev in late July.

Yanayev didn't directly criticize Gorbachev, yet made clear he was concerned about the hardships produced by market-oriented reforms.

At his news conference, however, he stressed that his government intended "to continue to pursue the reforms that Gorbachev started in 1985."

In Jerusalem, Israeli Agriculture Minister Rafael Eitan recalled Monday that Yanayev told him recently that "the Soviet Union today is different, will remain different and will not turn back."

In July, he told the British Broadcasting Corp. there was no division in the Soviet leadership.

"The Soviet leadership has a whole understanding of the fact that we are all traveling down the same path. There are no differences between the president, the vice president and the prime minister," he said.

Yanayev also pledged his loyalty to the Communist Party.

"I have never been a political turncoat," he said. "You can change the woman you love, but you must not change your political convictions. I am still and will remain a member of the Communist Party."

Gennady I. Yanayev

Coup surprises, raises fears among Americans

By Mary MacVean
Associated Press writer

The ouster of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev showed how close many Americans have grown to the citizens of a country once considered the greatest threat to their future.

All sorts of people were surprised or saddened or worried Monday for loved ones or business prospects: Soviets here on goodwill visits or with relatives still in that country, politicians and investors, merchants and farmers.

For many, the news and how little there was of it brought to mind suspicions of an evil communist enemy with unscrupulous secret agencies.

"We are very, very sad," said Antanas Klimas, who emigrated from Lithuania to Rochester, N.Y., in 1948. "I'm afraid that the army and KGB will put in their puppet communists."

"It will be night again for Russia," said Mikhail Mogilevsky, 33, a Soviet Jew working as a lab technician in Atlanta. "It will be represssion again like 1937 under Stalin. If the KGB is in charge, it will be horrible." Seattle immigration attorney Dan Danilov broke the news to passengers aboard the Soviet ship Academic Shirshov, which is on a goodwill tour.

"You could just see the shock in their faces," he said. "One of the ladies started crying, saying 'Oh, my God. Oh, my God' in Russian."

Soviet Jewish organizations said they were worried about the 60,000 Soviet Jews holding exit visas for Israel and the thousands more in the application process.

The coup could lead to an increase in anti-Semitism, said Rabbi Abraham Cooper of the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles.

Several members of Congress said the United States must continue to support reforms begun by Gorbachev in 1985. Others echoed President Bush's statement that the Soviet people would not easily give up the freedoms they had tasted.

"I can't believe that the Soviet people will allow a reversal in the progress that they have recently made toward economic and political freedom," Ronald Reagan said from his Century City, Calif., office. He and Gorbachev met several times while both men were presidents of their countries.

Among the people caught off guard were 21 Soviet skydivers in Everett for the Washington International Air Fair. They refused to believe the news until they could see for themselves. They are to go home Aug. 26.

AT&T said calling between the United States and the Soviet Union was 100 times normal on Monday.

With Gorbachev deposed, Yeltsin is major figure left

By Celestine Bohlen
N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — As Mikhail S. Gorbachev was deposed Monday, attention turned quickly to the one dominating figure left on the Soviet political stage: Boris N. Yeltsin, the first elected president of the Russian republic, an ex-Communist who has made a second career out of doing battle with the Communist Party and arguably the most popular politician in the Soviet Union today.

The crowds outside the Russian federated republic's government building in Moscow on Monday repeatedly chanted Yeltsin's name, pleading with him to come out for a speech or at least show his face at the window.

When Yeltsin appeared at a noon press conference, he was greeted by applause from Soviet journalists present, who did little to hide the hopes they have pinned on him.

Even people who in interviews on the streets were clearly shedding no tears over Gorbachev's political demise said they were looking to Yeltsin for the future — and not to the group of men associated with the KGB and the military who are now in charge.

"I am not sorry about Gorbachev personally, but the movement he represents," said Aleksei Drinochkin, a 27-year-old graduate student. "If someone progressive like Yeltsin had come in, I would be happy."

At his press conference Monday morning, Yeltsin — just back from a trip to the republic of Kazakhstan — read out an address to the citizens of the Russian Republic, the nation's largest, with the kind of feisty vigor that many Russians want in their leader, especially now that the republic's policies of market reform and political liberalization are threatened.

As he did with Gorbachev, when the two men were locked in a series of political duels, Yeltsin heaped scorn on his new opponents. "What can you expect from this group?" he said, spitting out their names. "They could not even find a single half-democrat."

Democrats, the term used by many supporters of radical change to describe the liberal opposition across the Soviet Union, Monday seemed united in their support of Yeltsin's call for a general strike and civil disobedience against the diktats of the new Soviet leadership.

By the end of the day, the mayor of Leningrad, the deputy mayor of Moscow and other republic leaders had swung into formation behind him.

But as he marshaled his forces for a head-on conflict with the new Soviet government, Yeltsin found himself stripped of his most powerful weapons: the Russian television station and radio, which have become the best platform for his populist crusade against the Communists.

Even Yeltsin's fax line, another tool in the battle for the dissemination of information, had been cut, an aide said this morning.

Martial Decree

The committee that ousted Mikhail Gorbachev issued a decree Monday saying that parliaments, elected officials and political parties that fail to obey its orders will be suspended. Some provisions of the decree:

Banned all demonstrations and strikes that "hinder the normalization of the situation."

Ordered all "illegally-kept" firearms, explosives and military equipment be turned over to the authorities.

A curfew could be imposed if necessary, and the committee would establish complete control over the mass media.

Prices of certain industrial goods and food products would be reduced and then frozen in a week's time.

Texan Strauss prepares to plunge into the turmoil

By Dave Montgomery
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Robert Strauss, the Texan chosen by President Bush as the new ambassador to the Soviet Union, had hoped to stay in the United States long enough to see his grandchild born this fall.

But Soviet hard-liners abruptly rewrote his plans. Strauss takes his oath of office Tuesday in a hastily arranged ceremony and heads to Moscow to confront a nation gripped in turmoil following the ouster of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Strauss, whose swearing-in was originally scheduled for next month, was at his family retreat in Southern California when he got word of Gorbachev's overthrow. He cut short his vacation and left for Washington after telephoning his children in Dallas.

"He sounded like someone who had been up all night," said his pregnant daughter, Susan Breen. "He just wanted to make sure we weren't concerned."

Strauss, a former Dallas lawyer who served as chairman of the National Democratic Party, was appointed by Bush in early June amid expectations that his much-touted negotiating skills would further enhance improving superpower relations.

But with the Gorbachev toppled from power, and militant hard-liners exercising fragile control, the 72-year-old multimillionaire lobbyist faces a diplomatic quagmire that virtually no one envisioned when Strauss was nominated.

He declined comment when reached by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram before leaving California on Monday, but some analysts suggested that the challenge may be overwhelming.

"The irony, of course, is that he was chosen because he would have been just the right person in the Gorbachev era," said Stephen Hess of the Brookings Institution, a Washington think tank. "He was seen as someone ... who would have been just right in terms of hooking up American industry with Soviet potential."

But Hess said the faction that overthrew Gorbachev — apparently with support from the military and the KGB — may be less interested in building an economic bridge with the United States.

"Hence, Strauss' strong point would be less valuable," Hess said. "He was the right man then. Whether he is the wrong man now would depend on what sort of backup he has, what sort of staff he has and what sort of quick study he is."

Muscovites wake up to a coup, fear a nightmare has begun

By Celestine Bohlen
N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — As a dozen tanks rolled through Mayakovsky Square, kicking up a cloud of exhaust in the moist evening air, Alla Mikhailovna, in the capital for a visit with her 7-year-old son, stood on the sidewalk and cried.

"It is horrible, just horrible," said the 43-year-old geologist from Tashkent, who identified herself with her given name and patronymic, in the Russian fashion, but declined to give her last name. "I am so sad for my country. What will come of this? Where will it end? War? It is just so frightening."

Across this bedraggled city, people struggled through the day, trying to figure out what had happened to them overnight.

They had awakened to find their president mysteriously gone, purportedly for "health reasons," a new State Committee for the State of Emergency in control and military vehicles roaming the city.

As the day wore on, doused by heavy rains, many Muscovites knew no more than they did when they listened to the first terse bulletins on the state-controlled television and radio. But what they knew was enough to make them stiffen with anxiety.

"We woke up to the noise of tanks on the streets," said Slava Ivanov, a 45-year-old driver. "Beyond that, I still don't know anything concretely. Where is Gorbachev? Where is Yeltsin? All I know is nothing good can come from tanks."

Several thousand people turned out to demonstrate against the "putschists" — as they were calling the new government that ousted Mikhail S. Gorbachev — to upbraid the young soldiers sitting in their tank turrets and to rally in defense of the Russian federated republic's government.

As evening fell, barricades made of tree trunks, bathtubs and vehicles were erected around the Russian government buildings on the banks of the Moscow River, as people prepared for an all-night vigil in anticipation of an army attack.

But elsewhere, a strange silence seemed to fall on the population as people went about their business — some with worried looks on their faces, others acting as if nothing more had happened than a change in administration.

"We can't figure it out," said Mikhail Argutinsky, a chauffeur. "It is a putsch, but somebody had to bring things back into order."

His wife, Anna, was not sorry to see Gorbachev gone. "Of course, he is not the only one to blame," she said, "but all I know is before him, we lived better."

With no information except what was being released by the people in charge, the city seemed to split in two.

At Manezh Square, near the Kremlin, and outside the Russian government building where Boris N. Yeltsin had called demonstrators to come and protect the republic's elected leadership, the crowd swarmed with rumors, tips and some pieces of real news, hand-carried out of the building and read aloud over bullhorns.

But in other parts of Moscow, people had to make due with sources that seemed a throwback to an earlier era — leaflets glued to the walls of pedestrian tunnels, foreign radio stations and the old standby, word of mouth.

"They have closed the papers, but that's not so important," said Vladimir Sluzhekov, a reporter, as he stood by a surging crowd of demonstrators. "The radio — that's what hurts. Without the radio, no one knows what's going on except the people who are right here."

By evening when about 25,000 people had already converged by the Russian government building, long after pictures of protesters swarming over tanks had flashed on screens around the world, Margarita Selvova, a 63-year-old pensioner, emerged from her apartment off Moscow's main Ring Road to ask if and where people had gathered to protest the coup d'etat.

"It is a terrible situation," she said. "It happened in 1917 when the Bolsheviks took over. In 1937, my uncle and my father were shot, and my mother arrested. Now it is happening again but people can't imagine it. We are a very unhappy nation."

From Western Europe, condemnation, concern

PARIS (NYT) — Amid strong condemnations of the overthrow of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, Western governments demanded Monday that the new Soviet leadership maintain the ousted leader's reform program and honor Moscow's international commitments.

The English-speaking allies — the United States, Britain and Canada — announced the freezing of economic assistance to the Soviet Union, and European Community foreign ministers scheduled a meeting for today to discuss a suspension of the Community's $1.5 billion aid program.

French and British officials said a summit of Community leaders also may be called to discuss the crisis.

Some Western European leaders adopted something of a wait-and-see attitude. "We will know very soon," France's president, Francois Mitterrand, said of the new regime's direction.

Mitterrand, who said the first phase of the coup in Moscow had clearly succeeded, was among several Western leaders to receive a personal letter from the new Soviet leader, Gennady Yanayev, in which he pledged that Gorbachev's "glasnost" program of reforms would continue.

Mitterrand and Prime Minister John Major of Britain conferred by telephone and both leaders also spoke during the day with President Bush, Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany and Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers of the Netherlands, the country that currently holds the rotating presidency of the 12-nation European Community.

After an urgent meeting of NATO ambassadors Monday, it was disclosed that foreign ministers of the 16-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization will probably meet in Brussels later this week to analyze whether the coup in Moscow could signal a resumption of the Cold War.

"The allies are deeply concerned that the latest developments foreshadow a grave deviation from the path of reform and the rule of law in the Soviet Union," NATO's secretary-general, Manfred Woerner, stated Monday afternoon.

'Do not assume that this coup will succeed.'
Margaret Thatcher

Canada, a NATO member, announced that it was freezing a $131 million program of food aid to the Soviet Union. "We have a government there that we do not recognize," said Prime Minister Brian Mulroney. "Until that is resolved, everything is suspended."

Britain announced suspension of a $80 million technical assistance program with Moscow.

Denouncing the "hard-line and reactionary coup," Major said the Soviet Union's future depends on continuing reforms. "It is in their interests to have reform and it is in the West's interest to see reforms," he said. "But the omens at the moment are not propitious."

In a television interview, Mitterrand said the Moscow coup could rapidly become "a Cold War act" if the new regime were to reverse the reform process and he warned Moscow "not to waste time" in demonstrating that it is continuing along the same path as Gorbachev.

Holding up what he described as "a rather astonishing letter" he had received from Yanayev, the French leader quoted it as saying: "Reforms will continue. Our choice is made. We will stick to democracy, glasnost. We will strive to build up the economy, including private enterprise. We shall continue the policy to guarantee civil rights and freedoms."

Earlier, Mitterrand had issued a statement demanding that Moscow guarantee the "life and liberty" of both Gorbachev and of the Russian president, Boris Yeltsin. He noted that Yanayev had assured him in his letter that Gorbachev is "in perfect safety and nothing threatens him."

Soviet soldiers in Berlin voice concern

BERLIN (NYT) — Soviet soldiers questioned near Berlin on Monday said they feared the consequences of Mikhail S. Gorbachev's overthrow.

"We must leave no stone unturned to avoid a civil war in our country, a second Yugoslavia," said Lt. Vladimir Smirnov as he was leaving a video shop in Potsdam. "There is a real chance for war now, in the Baltic region or the Caucasus."

"What happened today is unconstitutional, and we should not support something like that," Smirnov said. "What worries me is that the self-appointed committee is now controlling all the mass media back home."

'There is a real chance for war now.'
Lt. Vladimir Smirnov

Another officer, Maj. Yuri Ivanov, said many of his comrades support the political changes under Gorbachev and Boris Yeltsin, president of the Russian Republic.

"We don't support a coup like this that is in violation of our constitution," Ivanov said. "I believe there are many like us in the army who would support Yeltsin now. But one thing must have top priority — we must prevent a civil war."

TV networks recall news anchors for coverage; no censorship yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite Mikhail Gorbachev's ouster by Communist hard-liners, Soviet officials haven't censored television news reports from Moscow or restricted coverage, U.S. network officials said Monday.

"The telephones work, the satellites work, planes flew and we were able to get people in (to Moscow) this morning," said Jeff Gralnick, an ABC News vice president in charge of special events coverage.

"We've not had any cameraman come back and say 'I got roughed up, I couldn't take pictures I wanted to take,'" he said.

"We keep expecting the plug to be pulled, but so far that hasn't happened," said CNN executive vice president Ed Turner. He also said there has been no intimidation of Cable News Network crews by Soviet troops.

Chinese authorities pulled the satellite links of CNN and its rivals in June 1989 shortly before the bloody crackdown by Chinese troops on the student-led demonstration in Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

That wasn't the case in Moscow. CBS aired footage of barricades being erected and one man lying in front of a tank. He was dragged away as the tank began moving.

CNN several times ran a seven-minute clip showing Moscow citizens crowded around armored personnel carriers, peppering the crews with shouts and questions. In one case, a man shook hands with a soldier.

All the networks showed Boris Yeltsin, president of the Russian republic, standing atop an armored personnel carrier, urging resistance to the coup that seized power and threatened Gorbachev's six years of reform.

Coup catches Washington, D.C., on vacation

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The coup in the Soviet Union caught the nation's capital with its Bermuda shorts down Monday and rudely awakened the sweaty, half-empty city from a traditional August snooze.

Interrupting his vacation in Kennebunkport, Me., President Bush flew back to a White House draped in giant dropcloths because workers were taking advantage of the absence of the First Family to repaint and repair.

Most of the president's top advisors also were relaxing far from their offices when word came of the Soviet crisis. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney was on a fishing trip in British Columbia and Secretary of State James A. Baker III was at his ranch near Jackson Hole, Wyo. Both returned to Washington on Monday evening.

Meanwhile, Capitol Hill was practically deserted with Congress in the midst of an August recess. Tourists wandered down hallways and peeked inside barely staffed offices, but official activity was scant. Things are so slow that the Architect of the Capitol is using the lull period to resurface the play area of the House Day Care Center with Saf-Dek, a rubbery substance also used in Disney World.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., was one of the few congressional members actually at the Capitol on Monday, having previously scheduled a press conference on his recent trip to Africa.

"Obviously, other things are going to be more important," he said, quickly changing his focus to the Soviet Union.

"I don't think we'll be called into session unless something more happens, some military action or some threat of military action," he said, predicting that Congress will likely vote to condemn the coup when it returns on the 10th of September.

Of course, there were questions about whether Washington's farflung network of spies was also napping in the hammock while Communist hardliners plotted the overthrow of Gorbachev.

"I can't really agree with your characterization of that," said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher, when asked about the intelligence lapse. "I think people were well aware of the activities of hardliners within the Soviet Union and well aware that this was a possibility."

Indeed, even Mikhail S. Gorbachev was on vacation in the Crimea when his presidency of the Soviet Union was abruptly ended.

Poll: Few Soviets saw coup coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Few in the Soviet Union saw the coup that toppled Mikhail Gorbachev coming three months beforehand, a survey released Monday by an American research organization indicated.

In the survey, conducted in May by the Times Mirror Center for The People & The Press, only 15 percent of those interviewed in Russia, the largest Soviet Republic, said they were worried that political liberalization would not continue.

Only 18 percent said their greatest or second greatest worry was that there would be political repression.

In the Ukraine, 16 per cent feared political liberalization would not continue and 17 percent worried about the threat of political repression.

The poll is part of a wide-ranging survey of European attitudes, of which a portion had been released earlier. Donald S. Kellerman, director of the center, said it had planned to release the new results much later, but speeded them up in response to the coup.

"The military coup in Moscow dramatizes with stunning force the deep divisions that threaten to splinter the USSR," Times Mirror said in releasing the results. "The Russian and Ukrainian people are polarized on almost every fundamental issue confronting their society."

It said more than 60 percent of Russians supported multi-party pluralism, but two out of every five favored a strong leader, rather than democratic government, to solve the nation's problems.

It said 67 percent of Russians in Moscow and Leningrad, but only 46 percent in the countryside, supported democracy. A multi-party system of government was backed by 75 percent of Russians aged 25 or younger.

Asked whether the KGB secret police was a good or bad influence, 29 percent of Russians said good, 25 percent bad, and 30 percent said they had no opinion. Their view of the Soviet Red Army was 45 per cent favorable to 25 per cent unfavorable and 12 percent with no opinion.

Only 18 percent said their greatest or second greatest worry was that there would be political repression.

The survey was based on face-to-face interviews with samples of the adult population in the Ukraine and the European portion of Russia. There were 1,123 interviews in Russia and 586 in the Ukraine.

Communist 'fist' hits Gorbachev

The "iron fist" of communism grasped the throat of the Soviet Union Monday, toppling Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev from his seat of power, threatening reforms he had brought to the communist bloc during the past six years, and throwing the future of relations between the two nations into jeopardy.

Staged by communist hard-liners, the coup was not unanticipated. As recently as Friday, a top Communist Party official — Alexander Yakovlev — resigned from the party and warned that hard-liners were planning a coup. For months tension had been mounting as hard-liners clashed with reformers over Gorbachev's proposals, which often led to a weakening of the party's control. It had been evident for much of Gorbachev's reign that he was moving away from old hard-line communist practice and into an uncharted realm that would test the union's strength.

Gorbachev had angered hard-liners by making concessions to the United States on arms control, failing to improve the economy, and failing to prevent the 15 Soviet republics from adhering to national laws.

The coup came shortly before Gorbachev was to return to Moscow to sign a treaty that would have given the Soviet republics more power. Hard-liners opposed that treaty.

Replacing Gorbachev at the Soviet ship of state's helm is a ruling committee that includes Vice President Gennady Yanayev, the defense and KGB chiefs, and other hard-liners. In a statement, Yanayev declared a six-month state of emergency and said Gorbachev had been removed for "health reasons" which he did not explain. The ruling committee banned disruptive demonstrations and strikes. It also said a committee will be created to establish control over the media. The moves seem designed to bring the iron hand of totalitarian control back to the Soviet Union.

At the same time, Soviet troops and equipment took control of key sites in the secessionist Baltic republics, calling to mind numerous past adventures in hobnail boot diplomacy by the communists.

President George Bush called the ouster of Gorbachev "a disturbing development" and noted that "what hasn't been heard from yet is the people of the Soviet Union."

Populist leader Boris N. Yeltsin climbed atop an armored vehicle and urged the Russian people to resist the hard-line coup. Demonstrators roamed streets in Moscow to do exactly that.

Although such a clash did not come as a surprise due to the tensions that had been building, the ouster of Gorbachev leaves a question mark surrounding recent events involving both the United States and the Soviet Union, and also numerous reforms that Gorbachev had initiated inside the Soviet Union.

For example, will the coup void the landmark treaty reducing nuclear stockpiles which Bush and Gorbachev announced at the end of July? Will it bring to an end the joint U.S.-Soviet business venture in the Kazakhstan oilfields? Only last week a delegation of top business experts from a variety of Soviet republics was in Midland as part of a U.S. tour to study American business competitiveness. Many also are wondering whether this Soviet coup will even threaten the so-called end of the "Cold War?" Obviously, the answers to those and many other questions concerning relations between the two nations must be pushed aside for now. At this time even the future course of the Soviet Union is unclear and impossible to predict.

What is clear is that there are segments of the populations in both the Soviet Union and the United States who fear and oppose the closer ties Gorbachev sought. The coup merely underscores the differences that still remain in the two countries.

Perhaps the best advice for the United States now was offered by Eduard Shevardnadze, the former Soviet foreign minister who was a key architect of Gorbachev's reform-minded international policies. Shevardnadze said, "The West should show its solidarity with reform movements in the country. What is happening now is a tragedy for the West, for the Soviet Union and for the East as well."

A tragedy for the West, yes, and possibly a portent of events to come. Time will tell. Americans and people throughout the world will be closely watching the events of coming weeks.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 20, the 232nd day of 1991. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 20, 1940, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill paid tribute to the Royal Air Force, saying, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

On this date:

In 1833, Benjamin Harrison, the 23rd president of the United States, was born in North Bend, Ohio.

In 1866, President Andrew Johnson formally declared the Civil War over, even though fighting had stopped months earlier.

In 1914, German forces occupied Brussels, Belgium, during World War I.

In 1918, Britain opened its offensive on the Western front during World War I.

In 1920, America's first commercial radio station, 8MK in Detroit (later WWJ), began daily broadcasting.

In 1948, the United States ordered the expulsion of the Soviet Consul General in New York, Jacob Lomakin, accusing him of attempting to force the return of two consular employees to the Soviet Union against their will.

Hungary becomes West new gold mine

BUDAPEST, Hungary — American investors are venturing with timidity into Eastern Europe and finding that the most fertile soil for their money is Hungary. So far, according to sources here, almost half of the Western currency invested in Eastern Europe since the fall of the Berlin Wall has ended up in Hungary.

Anderson

Part of the credit must go to Hungary's "goulash communism" of the past two decades that allowed step-by-step economic reforms that sneaked up on capitalism.

In 1989, Hungary invited the West to change the pace to a stampede. That was the year the country passed a new law allowing foreigners to head companies there, and even own 100 percent interest. Other Eastern European countries, and the Soviet Union, require a local partner to own 51 percent.

Hungary also allows foreigners to take their profits out of the country in Hungarian currency, gives them a five-year free ride on taxes and lets them set wages without asking the labor unions. It's no wonder that Western business people are running to Budapest like it was a new gold rush.

Our sources predict that the foreign venture boom will continue and that Budapest will become a major world banking center. Hungary has some particularly tough banking privacy laws that will appeal to those who want to keep their money in a secret, secure place. At the same time, the traditional bastions of secret bank accounts, including Switzerland, are opening up their books to Western law enforcement and are starting to turn away dirty money from dictators who fleece their countries.

American joint ventures already under way in Hungary involve General Motors, which is building an auto manufacturing plant in northwest Hungary to compete with a new Suzuki plant. The domestic market for cars is large because there is no Hungarian car maker. The waiting list for new cars is 400,000 names long.

General Electric has bought Tungsram, Hungary's huge electric company. Hungary is getting an American cellular phone system and American Express has opened up credit card services there. Other newcomers from the West are Levi Strauss, McDonald's, Proctor and Gamble, Eastman Kodak, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing and Ralston Purina.

The boom town bug even bit Mark Palmer, the former U.S. ambassador to Hungary. He quit his post to join a large North American business consortium to make deals in Hungary.

Innovation was the hallmark of Hungary long before the wall came down. It was considered the most reformist of the Warsaw Pact countries.

Although Budapest is a boom town in the eyes of the West, the people here aren't all that optimistic about the future. Hungarians are notorious pessimists and their current living conditions encourage that pessimism. (The housing shortage has been so severe in Hungary that divorced couples are often ordered to continue sharing their apartments. Some are even forced to share the same bed because the apartments are so small.)

Despite the local pessimism, Western analysts say Hungary will continue to be the economic front-runner among the emerging democracies. And the Hungarians, despite their current economic problems, have a saying about themselves — only a Hungarian can enter a revolving door behind you and come out in front.

Bush's trios are country's best technocrats

Never since World War II have so few had so much control over the making of American foreign and defense policy. And though the professionals in the State and Defense departments grumble about being excluded, never in the last 40 years has the national security bureaucracy known such harmony.

Gelb

The obvious part of this story is the passing of most throat-cutting Cold War issues and President Bush's skill in getting his trio of senior aides — Secretary of State James A. Baker III, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft — to work together without the legendary bloodletting that devastated their predecessors.

But a largely uncommented-upon and unusual part of the story has to do with the inner teams assembled by Baker and Cheney. These new second-tier officials who receive little publicity are young, generally without prior experience in top departmental jobs, of diverse ideological backgrounds and almost totally untainted by Ivy League educations.

Like Bush, Baker has his own inner trio: Robert Zoellick, the undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs; Dennis Ross, director of the Policy Planning Staff, and Margaret Tutwiler, assistant secretary for Public Affairs.

Zoellick, 38, runs foreign economic policy, but he also fills what had been two other separate top jobs — counselor and chief of staff. Every piece of paper going to and from Baker passes his desk. Ross, 43, is the key policymaker for East-West relations and the Middle East. Ms. Tutwiler, 40, is the political confidante.

Cheney also has his trio: Paul Wolfowitz, the undersecretary for Policy; Pete Williams, the assistant secretary for Public Affairs; and Sean O'Keefe, the comptroller.

Wolfowitz, 47, and the only member of the inner circle not tied to Cheney's past, is the big-think man for issues like the Persian Gulf war and arms control. Williams, 39, sits in on most discussions. O'Keefe, 35, oversees defense programs and spending — after Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, and the military services make their proposals.

Cheney and his trio are even more fierce than the Baker crowd in keeping other agencies out of their business. Even the White House largely leaves the Pentagon alone.

All these inner aides can be described as technocrats with certain leanings — with the exception of Wolfowitz, who is well established in conservative foreign policy circles.

None of the inner aides carry the baggage of a personal policy bibliography, and that has proved of enormous advantage. The new crowd came to power without a track record and without enemies.

What the two trios did bring with them, as did their bosses, was a distrust of the bureaucracy. Yes, they include senior departmental officials on certain subjects. But for the most part they meet with their bosses alone and tell their colleagues only what they want them to know.

The military and Foreign Service professionals are not happy with this lot. They used to rebel when given such treatment by allying with friendly legislators and leaking to the press. Now the professionals quietly march along because, much to their surprise, they like and respect Bush administration policies. Not a bad accomplishment for Bush and his trio and their trios.

Anyone can live anywhere including Florida

Down where I live in Central Florida, the heat and humidity arrive about May like a fat neighbor sinking into a soft, stuffed living room chair for a long visit.

People who aren't used to it complain they will die about July, but it does no good. The fat lady isn't going to budge until October. In the summer down here, people huddle around their air conditioners the way folks in Pennsylvania huddle around their heaters in January.

Reese

God is merciful in his own hard way, though, and we get some spectacular thunderstorms. In the distance, the storms are towering masses of silver clouds on a dark base. Up close, they can turn afternoon into twilight with wild winds, gully-washer rains that fall in fat drops, and lethal lightning. About 10 folks have died so far from bolts this year. That's a lot more than get eaten by alligators and sharks or poisoned by snakes and spiders.

These taps on the shoulder by Mother Nature are few compared to summonses issued from the barrel of a gun, the blade of a knife, and the grinding of two or more automobiles attempting to occupy the same space at the same time. There's nothing exotic about those deaths, though; nothing peculiar to Florida about them. They belong to the classification of commonus Americanus.

Florida itself, however, is most peculiar. Its peculiarity tells a lot about civilization.

Au naturel, most parts of Florida are unlivable except for the hardiest of swamp rats and crackers. The heat and humidity coupled with the rarity of winter freezes makes Florida a perfect petri dish for bacteria, viruses, and insects, especially mosquitos and roaches, and the diseases they cause or carry.

In the old cities, like Pensacola, the cemeteries are full of Yellow Fever victims. Old Yellow Jack would come calling. People would die in bunches. The rest were scared. Death and tears and fear were Yellow Jack's gifts to his hosts.

In B.C. (before air conditioning), what few people who lived here clung to the coasts where the sea breeze in the daytime and the land breeze in the evening make the summers tolerable. The interior was for the really tough.

Since air conditioning, about 12 million people have moved down here and about 15 or 20 million visit every year — number varying with the counter. Most of them are living in what would now be euphemistically called wetlands and what used to be called swamps — though, of course, they are paved, sodded and platted. Some people's lawns will squish for a week when you walk on them after only one rain.

A few years ago, I was in a land records office looking up something on some politician and I overheard the clerks talking to each other. One of them said, "Some fellow from up North came in here one time, showed me his deed, and asked how he could get out to his property. By alligator or helicopter, I told him," applauding his own wit with a loud laugh.

It's true. It wasn't too long after Ponce de Leon landed here that folks figured out the best thing you could do with some of this sand and muck was sell it to somebody who didn't know any better than to buy it. Fortunes have been made and lost many times handing this land back and forth.

I once read a book about Florida written during the Depression by one of those fellows in the government program for authors. It was all about the scandals in the land sales and about the reforms which followed. What struck me funny is that land buyers are still getting fleeced and politicians are still talking about reforms.

Don't get the idea I don't like Florida. Once old lady heat leaves in October, it's really pleasant living. Except for a short snap now and then, winter down here is like spring most places further north.

Florida just adds to the evidence that humans can adapt to living anywhere and if the anywhere happens to be in America, they can package it and sell the heck out of it.

Vote count stalls in elections; opposition cries fraud

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The vote count from Mexico's midterm elections inched forward Monday amid ruling party claims of a sweeping victory and opposition cries of foul.

Mexicans voted Sunday for a 500-member Chamber of Deputies, half the 64-member Senate and governors in six states in an election that tested a new law aimed at cleaning up the scandal-tainted image of Mexico's elections.

The new electoral system failed to deliver on the government's promise of election night returns.

Federal election officials released only fragmentary returns after the polls closed Sunday night, then shut operations without explaining the delay.

When the count resumed Monday, the director of the Federal Electoral Institute, Emilio Chayuffet, blamed the complex new law for the slow pace of returns, saying it should not cast doubt on the validity of the results.

Meanwhile, the non-partisan Council for Democracy released a "quick count" Monday based on returns from 2,000 randomly selected precincts in the capital.

"This proves it is possible for Mexican society to know results on the day of the election," said Arnold Martinez Verdugo, a council member said. "Why does the government keep withholding information?"

The count said the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party or PRI got 45 percent of the vote in the capital. Its main opposition, the conservative National Action Party and the populist Democratic Revolutionary Party got 21 and 13 percent respectively.

In the central state of Guanajuato, opposition candidate Vicente Fox said he'd been robbed of victory.

Miner strikes expand; reforms in danger

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — The government on Monday said a six-day-old miners strike that threatened to spread to other sectors of the economy could jeopardize reforms in Bulgaria.

Following an emergency session, the government urged miners to halt their strike and said it would not pay those who are striking "illegally," the state BTA news agency reported.

About 27,000 of the country's 75,000 miners had joined the strike called last Wednesday to demand higher pay and better working conditions. The miners are demanding a minimum monthly salary of $130. The minimum wage is $40 but many miners claim to be paid less.

Anti-west faction seeks hostage delay

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A government faction opposed to relations with the West is seeking to delay hostage releases until the 1992 U.S. presidential elections, saying the Islamic Republic can wring concessions out of the United States, sources said Monday.

They pointed to a recent article in the Tehran daily Salaam that speaks for the hard-line faction, saying: "The presidential elections in the United States are near and on the eve of these elections more concessions can be received from the United States."

But with President Hashemi Rafsanjani's commitment to ending the 6-year-old saga of Westerners held by Iranian-backed groups in Lebanon, the hard-line faction can slow down but not halt the process, analysts here said.

"The Iranian government has set no conditions for its help in freeing the Westerners save the release of the Arab prisoners and Obeid," said Mortez Firoozis, political writer for the government-owned Tehran Times newspaper.

He was referring to about 400 Lebanese and Palestinians held in south Lebanon or Israel, including Sheik Abdul-Karim Obeid. The 33-year-old prayer leader was kidnapped in southern Lebanon in July 1989 by Israel, seeking a bargaining chip for the return of seven missing servicemen.

Firoozis warned that the Lebanese kidnappers will not free more Westerners until Obeid or some of the mostly Shiite Muslim prisoners go free.

"If the United States expects another American hostage will be released before a positive move from Israel, then they are wrong," he said.

Israel has repeatedly said no one would be released until it had tangible proof of the fate of its seven, some missing since its 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

"The time for goodwill gestures and single hostages being freed is over. ... The only way the other Westerners will be free is through a package deal," he said.

The hostage-takers said in a letter to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar — sent with freed British hostage John McCarthy this month — that they were willing to swap the Western hostages with Obeid and Arab prisoners. American Edward Tracy was also released this month.

Fighting in Croatia threatens cease-fire

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Federal officials warned Monday that a shaky cease-fire was in jeopardy in the breakaway republic of Croatia with the resumption of heavy fighting between Croatian security forces and rebel Serbs.

Fighting was reported in the Croatian town of Okucani, a Serb stronghold and the scene of three days of fierce clashes. Serb rebels reportedly controlled most of the nearby town of Pakrac, Belgrade television reported.

Combat was also reported in other Croatian towns. No deaths were reported from Monday's fighting.

The eight-member federal presidency met Monday night to discuss possible consequences for Yugoslavia resulting from the ouster of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The collective presidency also decided to hold a meeting of top Yugoslav leaders on the country's future in Belgrade on Tuesday, the state news agency Tanjug said.

A commission overseeing the cease-fire proclaimed Aug. 7 in Croatia by the federal presidency said the renewed fighting strained the truce.

In a statement, the federal commission said the cease-fire was not being respected in some regions of the republic.

Lawyer faces murder-for-hire charge

■ Jeff Spain is jailed after paying someone $10,000, believing Spain's ex-wife had been murdered, police affidavit reveals.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

An Odessa defense attorney charged with plotting to have his ex-wife murdered for $15,000 made an initial appearance before a U.S. magistrate on Monday.

Michael Jeffery Spain, 28, of 3214 Tanglewood Lane, is alleged to have solicited the murder for hire of his former spouse, Jami Leverette Spain, according to an affidavit signed by Barbara Gillis, deputy chief with the Odessa Police Department.

The scheme reportedly began Wednesday, Aug. 8 when Spain offered Mark Marinelli, of Odessa, $15,000 to either commit the murder or have someone else do so, the affidavit stated.

Marinelli, Odessa police officials confirmed Tuesday, is a former Odessa police officer.

According to the affidavit, Spain said he would pay Marinelli $10,000 after the crime was committed, followed by an additional $5,000.

The two men met several times over the next seven days to establish alibis and set the time for the murder, which was planned for Tuesday, Aug. 16, the affidavit stated.

At the time the crime would be committed, Spain would be in Las Vegas, Nev., where Marinelli would come for payment, according to the statement.

On the evening of Aug. 15, Spain left Midland en route to Las Vegas, Nev., on Southwest Airlines Flight 432, the affidavit said.

Before departing, Spain telephoned Marinelli to confirm Marinelli's travel arrangements and to request that proof of the killing be brought to Las Vegas, the affidavit stated.

As part of his alibi, Spain checked into the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, the affidavit stated.

The Odessa Police Department, previously aware of the plot, simulated an execution of Spain's ex-wife, officials said.

Details about Marinelli's role will be disclosed during upcoming legal proceedings, officials said.

On Saturday, Aug. 17, about 10:35 a.m., Marinelli took Southwest Airlines Flight 386 from Midland to Albuquerque, N.M., and then took connecting Flight 883 on to Las Vegas.

Upon arrival, Marinelli checked into the Frontier Hotel and about 5:15 p.m. telephoned Spain at the Sahara Hotel.

Marinelli told Spain that everything was fine and to come to the Frontier Hotel; Spain arrived about 5:30 p.m., the affidavit stated.

At the hotel, Marinelli said he had done as instructed and showed Spain the woman's ring and a picture of the simulated death, according to the affidavit.

Spain paid Marinelli $2,500 and an additional $7,500 about 45 minutes later, the affidavit stated.

Before leaving, Spain made a promise to pay the $5,000 balance in six months, the statement said.

Federal agents arrested Spain about 2:40 p.m. Sunday at Midland International Airport as he got off a flight from Las Vegas.

On Monday, Spain — dressed in jail garb — went before U.S. Magistrate Robert Sykes to acknowledge the charges and be informed that the maximum penalty if he were found guilty would be 10 years imprisonment and a $250,000 fine.

Prosecution on behalf of the U.S. government filed a motion to detain Spain without bond because of the violent nature of the crime, and because he was viewed as a flight risk and a threat to the community.

A detention hearing to determine whether bond should be set was scheduled by Sykes for 10 a.m. Thursday.

Commissioners eyeball sheriff's $5 million budget

■ Commissioners' court, sheriff wrestle over Painter's proposed expenditures in 1992 for drug stings outside the county.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court is seeking to curtail Sheriff Gary Painter's out-of-county sting operations and to trim his almost $5-million 1992 budget as talk focuses on his far-reaching drug operations.

Rumors that retired Texas Ranger Clayton McKinney, 51, is running the Sheriff's Office are not only untrue but are designed to undermine the Sheriff's Department's efficiency and morale, Painter said Monday night.

"It won't work," he said. "The last time I checked with Clayton, I was sheriff, too."

McKinney is captain of the sheriff's Operations Division and has engineered the sheriff's sting operations in cooperation with law-enforcement agencies in other counties and states.

"He is running his side," Painter, 44, said. "If he wasn't running the operations side like he ought to, then I would find somebody else. Clayton is a very capable, very dedicated law-enforcement officer."

Painter and McKinney have been friends since 1971 when Painter was a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper and McKinney was a Texas Ranger in El Paso. In 1985 when Painter was in his first year of office, McKinney joined the Midland County Sheriff's Department upon retiring from the Texas Rangers.

On Aug. 12, the Midland County Commissioners' Court ordered the sheriff to cease his out-of-county criminal investigations because of the county's "limited resources" in taking care of its own constitutionally mandated duties and because of the increased risks of liability and financial loss in those investigations outside of Midland County.

The order listed specific exceptions, such as engaging in "hot pursuit," serving warrants and subpoenas, transporting prisoners, and working in other jurisdictions under "valid inter-local governmental agreements."

The sheriff defied that order just as he has rejected a July 23 directive signed by County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer with the authority of the Commissioners' Court.

"I am the one who calls the shots and not the commissioners," Painter said of his duties. "The sheriff needs to run the Sheriff's Department, and the commissioners need to run their business," Painter said. "And there has to be separation (of powers).

"You can't always control narcotics," said the sheriff, who noted that drug investigations in Midland County often carry over into investigations and sting operations in other counties and states.

Meanwhile, County Attorney Mark H. Dettman has asked that the Texas attorney general rule on the sheriff's jurisdictions in criminal investigations elsewhere in Texas and throughout the United States and on the sheriff's control over money and equipment, including cars, trucks and aircraft, seized in lawful drug operation.

The sheriff and his sting operations were catapulted into the national news in 1987 after he and

Committee OKs redistricting plan; Craddick cries foul

AUSTIN (AP) — Hours after a special session began Monday, legislative committees approved congressional and State Board of Education redistricting plans.

The House Redistricting Committee voted 10-5 for a congressional plan that was blasted by Republicans and blacks. The proposal will be considered Wednesday by the full House.

Republicans said the congressional plan favored Democratic incumbents, while blacks said it failed to guarantee that a black candidate could be elected from Dallas County.

The measure creates three new districts — in Houston, Dallas, and South Texas — in order to accommodate gains in state population recorded by the 1990 census.

In West Texas, the cities of Amarillo, Midland, and Lubbock are split, some in three parts, to protect Democrats, said Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland, chairman of the House Republican Caucus.

"All of the major cities in West Texas have been gutted. It's all for political gerrymandering," he said.

Craddick introduced a Republican plan, but that was defeated.

Rep. David Swinford, R-Dumas, opposed splitting Amarillo, saying, "God wouldn't make a mess like this and I wish you wouldn't."

The House panel also voted 9-4 for a State Board of Education redistricting measure that Committee Chairman Tom Uher, D-Bay City, said would create 5 minority districts.

Earlier in the day, the Senate State Affairs voted 9-1 for a plan drawing those 15 education board districts.

Trade ministers hail free-trade pact

By David Ammons
AP Political writer

SEATTLE — A free trade agreement with Mexico would create thousands of jobs in the United States and boost environmental clean-up south of the border, U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills told the nation's governors Monday.

She was joined in her vigorous defense of the trade negotiations by trade ministers of Mexico and Canada. The three nations continued their latest round of negotiations a few blocks from where the governors were meeting.

An agreement is possible before the year is out but will not be rushed, the trade officials said.

All three sought to allay governors' fears on two key fronts: possible loss of U.S. jobs to lower-paid workers in Mexico and the specter of new pollution-spewing factories springing up south of the border.

They also insisted that their pact won't create "Fortress North America" — the phrase used by Canada's minister for international trade, Michael Wilson. Trade barriers will not be erected with other nations just because a new economic community is forming on this continent, they said.

'Whether we like it or not, we'll be neighbors forever.'

— Jaime Serra Puche, secretary of commerce/industrial development for Mexico

The three were preaching to the choir. The governors already were on record as supporting the three-nation agreement and prompt ratification by the Senate. Most of the governors at Monday's session praised the agreement now taking shape.

The closest thing to criticism came when Ohio Gov. George Voinovich, a Republican, worried aloud about what to tell workers in his heavily unionized state when they ask "Am I gonna lose my job?"

Hills said American companies already are free to move their factories abroad. The free trade agreement should add 22,000 U.S. jobs for every $1 billion increase in three-way trade, she said.

Three-way trade hit $240 billion last year, even without the trade agreement, Hills said.

Greathouse makes mark giving to MARC

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Helen Greathouse, 82, believes in giving back to the community.

"We came here as a bride and groom (in 1929) with nothing and Midland was wonderful to us, so everything will go back to projects in Midland," said Ms. Greathouse, who prefers to keep a low profile about charitable donations she makes.

But her generosity has been hard to keep secret.

The Midland Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC) has been Ms. Greathouse's favorite recipient since the early 1980s.

A bank trust officer, who was aware of Ms. Greathouse's keep-busy nature, enlightened her about MARC as a possible new interest.

Ms. Greathouse responded with a generous donation.

"I walked in and handed them a check. Ray Unterbrink (executive director of MARC) couldn't believe someone walked in off the street and gave him a check."

GREATHOUSE: She's interested in helping MARC, city

(From 1B)

Ms. Greathouse recalled.

"And I've been interested ever since," she said.

"Not having any children of my own and liking to do things, I help them," she said.

That first check — as with all others that have followed — was given in behalf of Ms. Greathouse's late husband Barney, who passed away in 1973.

"I feel Barney taught me what I know and I like to do things in his name," Ms. Greathouse said.

In memory of her husband, Ms. Greathouse's donations have helped make possible a MARC vocational center in east Midland, a home for six wheelchair-bound individuals, and the Chris Davidson Opportunity Park.

In addition, she has contributed to the construction of Manor Park retirement home, a riding ring for the Cerebral Palsy Center, and made possible a program that allows retarded children to go swimming at the Maybee Center.

Ms. Greathouse's generosity also includes visiting those at the MARC centers and helping raise money in addition to her personal contributions.

Ms. Greathouse recalled when a 27-year-old MARC resident walked for the first time.

"It makes you proud to do something for them," Ms. Greathouse said of the experience.

Ms. Greathouse said that those who are able should thank and remember their community by helping with donations.

"Fortunately we were successful. I was interested in Midland and things that help Midland," she said.

Her road to success began when she and her husband, a pharmacist, opened up a drug store during their early years in Midland with a $1,000 bank loan. That investment led to the first Walgreen's store in the Tall City.

That store, and Walgreen's stores in Odessa and Brownfield have since been sold to the parent company.

Ms. Greathouse recalled the hard work and long days — sometimes up to 18 hours — she put in to the business.

Nowadays, Ms. Greathouse stays busy as ever.

"I can't be idle. Although I'm 82, I have to keep busy," she said.

In addition to her businesses — farms and buildings — she likes to spend her time reading, playing bridge and traveling.

"I love to travel. I love all the people I've met in all the foreign countries. I love the Far East the best," she said.

"I've never been to a country where I did not like the people and I've been to most of them," Ms. Greathouse said.

"As long as I'm able, as I am at 82, I'll keep traveling," she said.

And she will keep helping the community even longer than that.

"I like to help people and I can do it now, and when I'm gone I can still help people."

BUDGET: Sheriff has vowed to defy court directive limiting out-of-county drug 'stings' his former "free-lance" deputies, Gary Howard and Ron Tucker, set up a four-month sting operation, which resulted in the arrest of Victor Manuel Fonseca, a Portuguese citizen who was charged with designing a scheme to sell stolen missile parts to Iran. Those charges were later dropped.

(From 1B)

Commissioner Win Brown said in reference to the Fonseca case, "Every time I am in Austin, they want to know what 'the international sheriff' is doing."

While the sheriff and the Commissioners' Court await Attorney General Dan Morales' opinions on the sheriff's operations, the court is looking into the sheriff's 1991 budget — specifically, on what Painter spent money — and is critically looking into his proposed 1992 budget.

The commissioners will continue budget studies this afternoon at the Midland County Courthouse.

"We are still digging," said Brown, a Midland rancher and landman. "I think most every budget (throughout the courthouse) is going to be substantially lower. It's going to have to."

Midland County "taxpayers are not paying for the sheriff's activities outside of Midland County (and) into other counties, into other states and elsewhere," Brown said. "We (commissioners) are not paying for his activities outside of the United States or outside of the state of Texas."

Since 1985, the sheriff's sting operations have netted his department or the county about $1 million. Through his Drug Forfeiture Fund, which is overseen by County Auditor Floyd Jarnagin, the sheriff said he has spent about $500,000 on vehicles and equipment, including radios. Additionally, almost $400,000 remains in that account. The sheriff's sting operation into Indiana resulted in a $350,000 fine paid to Midland County and in control of the Commissioners' Court.

In its budget study on Monday, the Commissioners' Court discussed adjusting the sheriff's helicopter budget to cut down on expenses.

"If he (Painter) wants a helicopter," said the judge, "let him pay for it (the helicopter's maintenance and operation) out of his discretionary (drug-forfeiture) fund."

Sheriff's Deputy Rusty Hill pilots the sheriff's helicopter, a military surplus aircraft, which is used in surveillance operations and in emergencies.

Commissioner Durward Wright blamed much of the county's money problems on the "fiscal irresponsibility of the state for not recognizing its responsibility to house state-convicted felons."

As a result, Midland County is holding state convicts at the expense of losing the federal revenue that would be gained by housing federal prisoners.

In building a $4-million jail, the Commissioners' Court had counted on housing up to 96 federal prisoners at $40 a day to help offset cost of the jail and to help fund jail operations.

The sheriff termed that plan "entrepreneurial jailing," similar to the Commissioners' Court calling his drug operations "entrepreneurial law enforcement."

The loss of federal revenue has put the county into a "financial bind to the tune of approximately $2 million," Wright said.

He said the Commissioners' Court is trying to overcome that deficit "by being fiscally responsible in every regard and cutting services to the bare minimum.

"There will probably have to be a tax increase as well as cutting services," Wright said.

"I really don't think we are going to drastically cut services. There will be some departments that will have to be realigned or streamlined."

TRADE: Negotiations continue in Seattle

(From 1B)

U.S. exports to Mexico have doubled since 1986, hitting $28 billion last year. She called Mexico the fastest growing market for American goods.

Canada now is the United States' No. 1 trading partner and Mexico No. 2. Japan is second.

"You will have more jobs and that will make you very popular in your state," Hills told Voinovich.

She and the other trade ministers said Mexican workers' pay eventually will rise as productivity and profitability of their employers rise. That will eliminate some of the wage disparity that worries American unions, she said.

Jaime Serra Puche, secretary of commerce and industrial development for Mexico, said the pact "just makes sense. Whether we like it or not, we'll be neighbors forever."

Several governors sought assurances that the pact would reflect concern for the environment — and all three trade officials gladly complied.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Fire, fatality

Staff Report

ODESSA — An early Monday morning trailer home fire claimed the life of one man, sheriff's officials said.

The man, whose name was not released Monday pending positive identification, was believed to reside at the West Odessa trailer that was destroyed by the fire.

The West Odessa Volunteers responded to the blaze at 426 Desert Flower Road about 3:15 a.m., officials said.

The man, who apparently died from smoke inhalation, was found in the dining room area of the trailer, officials said. An autopsy for the man, in his 30s, was ordered.

Cause of the fire was under investigation Monday. Foul play was not suspected.

Robbery, arrest

About $300 was taken during an early Monday morning convenience store robbery, police said.

Thomas Floyd Miller, 25, of Midland was arrested shortly after the Friend's store, 2405 N. Big Spring St., was robbed at 6:48 a.m.

Miller remained jailed Monday in lieu of a $15,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe, jail officials said.

A 23-year-old clerk told police she was approached by the robber while opening the business.

The robber reportedly covered the clerk's eyes with his hands and pressed something to her back, possibly a knife or finger.

After forcing her inside the store, the robber demanded money.

The clerk complied and the man fled on foot.

Miller — fitting a description given by the clerk — was arrested near 300 E. Hickory Ave.

Autopsy results

ODESSA — Results of an autopsy on an Odessa man found dead Saturday morning revealed he had been shot seven times, police said on Monday.

Jose Gerardo Ramos, 32, sustained one shot to the head, one to the neck and five to the upper torso by a .25-caliber semi-automatic gun, police said.

Ramos was found slumped over the steering wheel of his white Buick Skylark about 11 a.m. Saturday. The car was parked in a vacant lot in the 500 block of Olive Street.

SPAIN: Bond hearing scheduled Thursday

(From 1B)

Meanwhile, Spain will remain jailed at the Midland County Central Detention Facility. His defense attorney is Tom Hirsch, of Odessa.

The arrest was a result of a joint investigation by the Odessa Police Department, the Midland and Lubbock branches of the Drug Enforcement Administration and Las Vegas authorities.

CITY SIDEWALKS

City prepares to auction off everything it doesn't want or need

By Lynn Miller

It's auction time again for the City of Midland. The annual event is scheduled to begin Saturday at 10 a.m. at the city garage, 1500 Orchard Lane.

Gates will open at 7 a.m. so prospective bidders can inspect the items for sale.

Hundreds of surplus items or equipment no longer in use by the city will be on the auction block.

Among the more unusual items are aluminum traffic controller cabinets, a vehicle- and equipment- washing system, heavy-duty roll-off hoist and an ambulance body.

Several automobiles, pickups and refuse trucks will also be in the auction lineup.

Miscellaneous items include auto parts, a Lexitron word processor and printer, desks, chairs, typewriters, chainsaws, pagers, a cash register, two acetylene sets, jewelry, portable two-way radios, tools, tires, telephones, televisions, a floor jack, knives, cameras, watches, cassette players, VCRs, stereos, lawn mowers and edgers.

A complete list of items to be sold has appeared under legal notices in the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

The auction and disposal of unneeded city equipment and property, coordinated by Mark Phillips, C.P.M., director of equipment and materials management, affords the city considerable income. The highest total receipts to date has been approximately $160,000.

Rene Bates Auctioneers of McKinney, who has conducted the city auction for the past seaveral years, will be the auctioneer. This company is known for its expertise in presenting an honest appraisal of the condition of equipment and items, while obtaining the best possible price for both buyer and seller.

Extensive advertising of the auction is expected to attract not only local buyers, but many people from surrounding communities, as well from neighboring states and Mexico.

Months of preparation are required for an auction of this magnitude. Employees of the Service Center and Garage Division spend many hours preparing equipment for sale, while employees from Purchasing, Accounting and Parks departments devote much of their time to preparing for the actual operation of the auction.

Registration is required to bid on items, but browsers are welcome.

For additional information, contact Mark Phillips at 685-7235 or Hank Kirk at 685-7450.

Lyn Miller, an employee at City Hall, coordinates the information for this column.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your sense of humor wins you both admiration and support. Inside information will help you beat out a competitor in November. Romance brings real joy in December and January. The answer to your career questions will be clear by next spring. June 1992 is the best time for a financial coup. Take a short trip in early summer.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: newscaster Connie Chung, infielder Graig Nettles, President Benjamin Harrison, outfielder Tom Brunansky.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Learn to cooperate with your loved ones and you will enjoy more satisfying personal relationships. Financial questions hang over a business decision. Get the best information available.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You learn something about an associate that is best kept confidential. Be discreet. Your loyalty will earn you respect and perhaps a promotion or raise. Take some vacation time soon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): People around you begin to show interest in a pet project. Your efforts will spark new career success. Make the most of an unusual social opportunity. Take special pains with your appearance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Certain associates are in an on-again, off-again mood. You may be left on your own. Proceed with caution in any financial dealings with your friends or relatives. You may not have all the facts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be willing to stay on the sidelines and attend to routine business today. Patience will serve you well in a difficult situation. When dealing with young people, temper criticism with praise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Original ideas will receive a terrific welcome from an authority figure. Keep calm if your mate or partner acts angry. Take advantage of department store sales if trying to update your wardrobe.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New methods can be implemented this week. Meeting with an influential person gets you off to a flying start. Your partner's attitude gives you fresh confidence. The love bug could bite tonight!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can accomplish a lot this week. Get better organized and delegate less important responsibilities to others. Something that has eluded you in the past now comes within reach. Attend a social function.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The financial picture is brighter. Excess is the only thing that can hold you back now. Spiritual growth helps you reach an important personal decision. Romance is in the air. Act confident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your confidence gets a welcome boost today. You are treated to a warm reception wherever you go! An artistic talent could become a commercial asset. Exercise self-restraint when shopping.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Shun the limelight and work behind the scenes today. Certain suspicions may hamper your ability to think straight. Be compassionate when dealing with inexperienced people.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dwelling on past mistakes is a waste of energy. Adopt a plan to expand and revitalize a business. Ask the right people for guidance and your chances for success will improve. Romance is sweet.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are confident, headstrong and very persuasive. They quickly take charge of a situation and convince others to do their bidding. Help these sometimes brash Leos use their leadership qualities wisely. Otherwise, their insistence on always having their own way could lead them to miss out on valuable opportunities. Not everyone will indulge their desire to be the boss all the time!

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♣

This deal, from the recent European Championship in Killarney, had several interesting points. At 19 of the 24 tables in play, the final contract was four hearts, usually reached on an auction such as the above. (In the European style, a direct jump to game is stronger than a jump raise.) At 18 of these, West led the eight of clubs.

Where the defenders had a partnership agreement to lead a low card from three, most of the declarers made the contract. Some Easts made it easy by winning the jack and ace of clubs and leading a third round of the suit. Declarer ruffed with the eight and, when East could not overruff, the location of the king of hearts became marked. A heart to the ace felled the king, and declarer conceded a spade trick—making four-odd.

Other defenders made life more difficult for declarer by switching to a spade after taking two clubs. The ace of spades completed the book, and South was left to guess the trump position. Since the opening club lead was from a marked doubleton, most declarers realized that East would have led a third club if there was a possibility of an overruff, so they spurned the trump finesse and got home.

Against defenders who led top from three low cards, declarer could not be sure of the club situation. After East had won two clubs and shifted to a spade, Gabor Macskassy cleared up the picture by unblocking a high spade from hand, winning the spade continuation in dummy, then ruffing a club high. This ran little risk, because declarer was simply adopting a line that East had rejected. When West showed out and could not overruff, the location of the king of hearts was clear.

Pity the poor declarer who received a diamond opening lead. With no clue to the location of the cards, South won in hand and took the normal trump finesse—down one.

Rick James treated slaves better than his 'Girls,' ex-member says

LOS ANGELES — The former leader of the Mary Jane Girls funk band has unpleasant memories of her one-time mentor, Rick James.

"Rick is a chameleon with a lot of different sides to his personality, and most of them aren't nice," singer JoAnne Funderburg told Entertainment Weekly in the issue due out Tuesday.

The Mary Jane Girls was created and produced by James in the mid-1980s.

"Slaves were treated better," Funderburg said.

James, who has been in and out of drug rehabilitation programs and courtrooms since the early 1980s, and his girlfriend, Tanya Anne Hijazi, were arrested Aug. 2 and charged with sexual assault and mayhem.

James, 43, best known for his 1981 hit "Super Freak," was ordered held in lieu of $1 million bail, pending trial.

James's lawyer, Robert Sheahen, was out of the office Monday and couldn't be reached for comment, a secretary said.

NEW YORK — Singer Miriam Makeba raised her voice to Dizzy Gillespie's horn as they ended their U.S.-Europe tour together with a free concert.

Gillespie

"Help me buy a house in South Africa again," Makeba told the audience of 10,000 Sunday. "I don't have a home there anymore."

The 59-year-old Makeba returned to her native South Africa last year, 31 years after she was banished for her fierce opposition to the white-led government's apartheid policy of forced racial separation.

Among three backup singers for Makeba and Gillespie were her granddaughter, Zenzi Lee.

The show featured music from Makeba's newest album, "Eyes On Tomorrow," the first she recorded in South Africa since her return.

"Tomorrow," she said, referring to the album, "means a South Africa where everyone can live the way we should have and without prejudice. Tomorrow is for our children, a better one than we have."

The 22-stop concert tour began April 15 in Paris. After returning to Brussels this week, Makeba plans to travel to West Africa before finding a home in South Africa by year's end.

LOS ANGELES — Singer Bonnie Raitt says she's self-conscious about her looks and didn't want to grace the cover of Entertainment Weekly.

But the magazine prevailed with the issue that goes on newsstands Tuesday.

Raitt

"I guess I feel that I look older than I feel, and in a way it'll be a relief to reach an age where I can be all wrinkly because I'm supposed to be all wrinkly," said the 41-year-old Raitt.

At first, Raitt said she told the magazine "Oh, no. You don't want me on the cover, do you? But you need young, beautiful girls to sell magazines."

The Grammy winner has a hit album, "Luck of the Draw."

"I've always been very self-conscious about my looks, and even more so now, when I'm being recognized, more and more people are coming up and talking to me and checking me out up close," Raitt told the magazine.

NEW YORK — An arbitrator ruled Monday that Vanessa Redgrave was not discriminated against because of her political beliefs when she did not get the starring role in a proposed national tour of Peter Shaffer's "Lettice and Lovage."

Redgrave

The arbitrator, Daniel G. Collins, said he believed the contention of the tour's producers — the Shubert Organization, Roger Berlind and Robert Fox, Ms. Redgrave's son-in-law — that it was all a matter of economics. The producers had said that their decision not to hire Ms. Redgrave was based on their belief that public reaction to statements the actress made in January about the situation in the Persian Gulf eliminated any possibility that a national tour starring her would be financially successful.

Actors' Equity Association and Ms. Redgrave had filed a grievance with the League of American Theaters and Producers in March contending that she had been dropped from the tour because the producers disapproved of her call for "the withdrawal of U.S., British and all imperialist troops" from the Persian Gulf and her support of "those Arab leaders, including Yasser Arafat," the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, "who are seeking a peaceful solution."

Time's right to save on delightful antiques, jewelry collectibles

There couldn't be a better time to visit The Right Time, because the delightful shop is holding a summer clearance. Now you can choose from a delectable array of sparkling jewelry, glassware, furniture, antiques and collectibles — and save.

Owners Jennifer and Dan Jones have spent the last year adding a considerable number of items for home decorating and gift giving.

Of course, many Midlanders will know The Right Time as a shop that has served the needs of antique- and collectible-clock enthusiasts since 1985. What many may not know about is the addition of so many other wonderful antiques and collectibles — in a wide variety of price ranges.

Your visit to The Right Time will be fun from the minute you walk in the door. No matter what your decorating or collecting preferences, you'll probably find just what you want at The Right Time.

Since Jennifer and Dan have just returned from a buying trip in England (Jennifer is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland), the store has a better-than-ever selection.

One of the biggest attractions at The Right Time is its impressive selection of collectible and fine jewelry. If you like rhinestones, for example, you'll have a difficult time choosing just one pin or set of earrings.

The showcase boasts 100-year-old strings of amber, a wide variety of silver jewelry, including charm bracelets and Art Deco pieces.

As you browse through The Right Time, you'll notice the fine selection of items in these popular decorating and gift categories:

- small furniture
- linens
- kitchen collectibles
- toys
- 40 to 50 pairs of salt-and-pepper shakers
- cranberry glass and graniteware
- Victorian purses, cups and saucers
- Russian art
- Petit Pointe
- Art Deco mirrors, lamps
- walking canes

Other items of interest include the Orthophonic Victrola — "The Cadillac of Phonographs" (be sure to ask for a demonstration); the Kameraphone, one of the first portable phonographs; the Gransonerie Clock — or Blind Man's Clock, which gongs every 15 minutes; an Art Deco chrome teapot and cocktail shaker.

Also, an early kitchen utility cart; a Czech art glass lamp; crockery; 1956 Elvis Presley coasters; a Neiman Marcus Austrian crystal-/gold owl pitcher; a child's chalkboard, a maple rocker; Victorian chairs and a pedestal table; and much more.

The Right Time always keeps a tabletop full of items at 30 percent off.

And, of course, don't forget The Right Time for gorgeous antique and collectible wall, mantle and table clocks, including a round schoolhouse clock from the Boston School District.

Other interesting clocks include a cuckoo clock from before the turn of the century, an Atilla the Hun clock, and many others.

At The Right Time, your Visa and Mastercard charge cards are accepted, along with layaway. Store hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The shop is near M-System, but faces Midland Drive. For more information, please call 697-0540.

This is just a small sampling of the many delightful items that can be found at The Right Time, 350 N. Midland Drive, Suite C. The Right Time is holding a summer clearance sale.

Fashion Floors redecorates, remodels from top to bottom

Fashion Floors is Midland's one-stop decorating shop. Depend on their professionalism whether you're contemplating a small job or a complete remodel.

Sometimes homeowners find themselves in houses that no longer fully serve their needs. Problems might arise from expanding families, poorly organized space, changing lifestyles or any number of other reasons. But for many, buying another house isn't always the best option. Well-loved neighborhoods, financial constraints and children who don't want to change schools are just some of the factors that can make moves seem unappealing.

For those homeowners, remodeling makes sense.

To keep the cost of labor and materials from reaching astronomical proportions, future remodelers should turn to Fashions Floors.

Fashion Floors is more than just a carpet store. Look to them for complete remodeling jobs, cabinets, carpeting, vinyl, counter tops. Also wallpaper, ceramic tile, conian tops, marble, hardwood floors, draperies and miniblinds.

Complete professionalism is Fashion Floors' watchword. They carry top-quality products and pride themselves on high-grade crafsmanship. Whether the job is a small one or a complete remodeling, customers can count on the best in quality and performance — which is probably why Fashion Floors has been in business for 11 years and still going strong.

Whether a customer needs to match an existing decor or completely remodel a home, Fashion Floors can help. They carry carpets from Mohawk, Ashley, Salem, Queens, Masland and most other name brands. In vinyls, it's Armstrong, Congoleum, Tarkett and Mannington. These major brands almost ensure a perfect match to existing decor.

Of course, Fashion Floors is delighted to help customers start from scratch if they want to redecorate completely.

Fashion Floors offers free estimates on any jobs, including those involving insurance claims. Professional installation crews work directly from the store, and all work carries a one-year guarantee on labor. Financing is available. Owners Sandra Watkins, and Charles and Kim Pierce take the time and effort to see that each and every customer gets the best in service and materials.

Also, everyone at the store would like to thank Midland for voting Charles Pierce best retail salesperson for 1991.

Fashion Floors is located at 300 W. Wall in Midland — just across from Berg Motor Co. Call them at 694-5036.

Supreme Water Treatment puts clean, clear water on tap

Make an important investment in your family's good health with quality reverse-osmosis drinking water from your own faucet and a system from Supreme Water Treatment. Enjoy the convenience of conditioned water, certified equipment and professional service from a company that has served Midland homes and businesses since 1981.

Choose Supreme Water Treatment for your reverse-osmosis system for improved taste because it removes up to 95 percent of minerals and hazardous contaminants that give water a bad taste. Dissolved mineral salts, dead bacteria, chlorine and foreign material all contribute to bad taste. All are removed by the Reo-Pure 10 system sold and serviced by Supreme Water Treatment.

This system also protects your family's health by providing water appropriate for low-sodium diets. It saves money, as it replaces expensive bottled water, and it is energy-efficient because it uses only water line pressure. Reo-Pure 10 is the most economical system available at a reasonable price.

The company does not have to pay a franchise fee, so it can offer the highest-quality products and can save you hundreds of dollars on the purchase of new water equipment.

A Supreme Water Treatment reverse-osmosis system gives you fingertip convenience by eliminating waiting for deliveries, lifting heavy bottles, storing bottles and the worry and the inconvenience of running out of water. Just turn to the faucet and you have clean, clear, healthy water for the entire family.

Other benefits include computerized technology; spring-fresh flavor; more flavorful beverages; more flavorful foods — cooked in water; water for low-sodium diets; better tasting, clearer ice cubes; mineral-free water for steam irons, car batteries, humidifiers and other home appliances.

Brad Hamilton, a spokesman for Supreme Water Treatment, explained how his company's system can make a difference for you. "Midland water contains 1800 to 3000 parts per million of total dissolved solids. With our system, it drops the solids to 200 parts per million. Some other systems' water, after treatment, contains 1200 parts per million. Texas requirements for bottled water are under 500 parts per million, so our system drops it well under state standards.

"We also use an auto shut-off valve on our reverse-osmosis systems. When the tank is full, the system shuts down. Most systems on the market use a check-valve system that allows good and bad water to pass down the drain when the tank is full. Our system saves about 1000 gallons of water a month."

Supreme Water Treatment specializes in service. In fact, the factory-trained, qualified technicians service all brands of water equipment. This company, a member of the Water Quality Association, services 90 percent of the restaurants in the Midland/Odessa area that have reverse-osmosis systems. It has this market because of the company's emphasis on service.

Furr's, Cattleman's, Taco Villa, Fuddruckers and approximately 40 other businesses are serviced by Supreme Water Treatment. Reverse-osmosis water from Supreme Water Treatment is coming soon to Texas Burger, Dairy Queen, Mr. Gatti's and Short Stop.

If you are tired of dry skin, spotty or white glassware, clothes that turn yellow after one washing, higher energy costs because of scaling in your water heater or heavy bottles, choose the easy solution of having reverse-osmosis water at your fingertips.

Supreme Water Treatment, in addition to water-system sales and service, sells parts, filters and salt. Feel free to stop by the shop at 1207 S. Garfield. You also can benefit from a salt delivery service. For the price of buying salt for your water softener at a grocery store, Supreme Water Treatment will deliver and install it.

Supreme Water Treatment offers free estimates, a 24-hour answering service and honest, dependable service.

Be sure to clip the coupon in today's Business and Industry ad for a $5.00 savings on a filter change. This special applies to any reverse-osmosis system.

For more information on a reverse-osmosis system for your home, stop by Supreme Water Treatment at 1207 S. Garfield Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 12 noon or 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., or call 689-8868.

Supreme Water Treatment technicians are qualified to install or repair reverse-osmosis systems in Midland homes and businesses. From left are J.D. White, Cara Rice, Danny Carroll, Duane St. Clair and Brad Hamilton.

Work begins for Bulldogs

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High senior receiver Dewayne Culpepper dashes off the line toward a pass during the Bulldogs' inaugural day of fall workouts Monday.

■ Midland High's football hopefuls were greeted with a surprise Monday morning — the absence of their annual mile run.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland High Bulldogs opened pre-season football drills at Memorial Stadium Monday morning without the traditional and dreaded timed mile run as advertised, but that was only a disguise of things to come.

"We felt we could get more done by going straight into our workout instead of having the mile," Davis Corley, MHS head football coach, explained. "We did a lot of individual teaching and review from the things we did in the spring and very little team activity.

"However, we also had a lot of conditioning. We ran agility drills in five stations of two minutes each at the end of the first workout and 15 50-yard sprints at the end of the second workout. You might say they didn't get it as easy as it seems without the mile. It was like a trade-off."

The Bulldogs held both workouts Monday morning, starting at 7 a.m. and again at 10 a.m.

"We're going to do that through

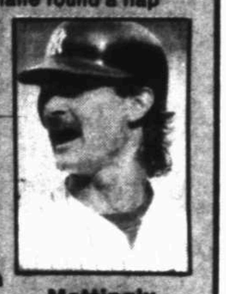
NEW YORK — The now-famous locks from Don Mattingly's controversial mane found a happy and charitable home on Monday when a New York policeman paid $3,000 for them.

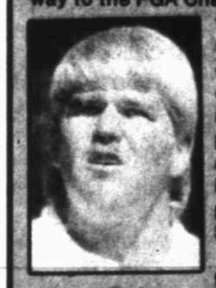


Mattingly

Tom Tumminia of Staten Island, who calls himself "a huge Yankee fan," paid $3,000 for the hair during in an on-air auction by WNEW Radio. The money will go to NewYork City's Children's Health Fund, which provides health care to homeless children.

Daly gets skinned

John Daly, who captured the public's imagination by bashing his way to the PGA Championship two weeks ago with some of the longest drives ever seen in competition, has accepted an invitation to play in the Skins Game.



Daly

According to his agent, John Mascatello, Daly will join defending champion Curtis Strange, U.S. Open champion, Payne Stewart, and perennial participant, Jack Nicklaus, in the made-for-television event.

The Skins Game will be Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 at PGA West in La Quinta, Calif.

Bob's rath

Two East Coast tennis tournaments were delayed and baseball games at Boston and Albany, N.Y., were set back a day because of Hurricane Bob's rumble up the East Coast on Monday.

Heavy rain and high wind — and the expectation of a lot more as the day progressed — prompted postponement of the opening round of the Hamlet Challenge Cup on New York's Long Island.

All first-round matches of the OTB International tournament at Schenectady, N.Y., also were postponed. Four women's qualifying matches were moved indoors.

Ryan wins in 1st game back

■ Fresh off a three-week stay on the disabled list, Texas Ranger pitcher Nolan Ryan picked up a five-inning win against Baltimore, but had mixed feelings about his two-hit performance.

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Nolan Ryan was back on the mound for the Rangers, and lasted long enough for his 310th career victory.

"It was the least command I've had this year," Ryan said after giving up two hits in five innings to beat the Orioles 4-1 Monday night. "But as it turned out, I had a good fastball and a good curve. I was very pleased the way my arm held up."

Ryan said he probably could have lasted another inning but decided to listen to manager Bobby Valentine and pitching coach Tom House and not go back for the sixth inning.

The game plan was for Ryan to throw 100 pitches. He threw 74 pitches, 47 of them for strikes.

"I felt I could have gone one more inning but Bobby and Tom felt I needed to ease back into this thing so I wouldn't have any problems the rest of the season," Ryan (8-5) said.

Ryan struck out seven and walked two. He gave up a first-inning double to Cal Ripken and a third-inning single to Joe Orsulak off a changeup.

"It was obvious Nolan was humming the ball good," Orioles manager Johnny Oates said. "I'm glad we got him in his first outing off the DL. I feel sorry for the next team he faces

Diablos mangle Angels

■ Midland's hold on first place shrinks to three games as Angels Stadium's final homestand of the year gets off to a sour start.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Jim Tatum's inside-the-park home run in the ninth inning Monday was a fitting exclamation point to the first game of what promises to be a wild series between the Midland Angels and El Paso, as the Diablos wound up taking the drawn out, 3:43 opener 13-7 at Angels Stadium.

With 14 games to play in the regular season, the Angels' lead in the Texas League Western Division shrank Monday to three games, as Wichita closed the gap with a 2-0 win over San Antonio. First-half champion El Paso is also in the thick of things, four games back at 26-28.

Midland is 30-24 in the second half and Wichita 27-27, while San Antonio is is five games out at 25-29.

What If?

Should the Midland Angels make the Texas League playoffs, post-season dates, sites are as follows:

Divisional playoffs (First-half champs vs. Second-half champs): Best-of-three series, Sept. 3-5 (Tues.-Thurs.). All games at first-half winner (El Paso).

Championship Series (East vs. West): If Midland advances to championship series, the best-of-seven series begins at Angels Stadium, Fri. Sept. 6. Games 2 and 3 (Sept. 7-8) would also be in Midland. The series would then be completed at the Eastern Division city, with Game 4 scheduled for Sept. 9, and Games 5-7, as needed, also in the East.

Hopes high as volleyball season opens

Lee's Melinda Butts

■ The Lady Bulldog and Lady Rebel volleyball teams host Big Spring today in a dual match in '91 season openers.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

As Midland High and Midland Lee open the 1991 volleyball season today, each team possesses two ingredients in the recipe for success — experience and hunger.

Both begin the non-district schedule in a dual match today at the Lee gymnasium, where each team plays Big Spring. MHS takes on the Lady Steers first, with junior varsity play beginning at 3 p.m. and varsity action immediately following. The Lee j.v. plays Big Spring at 5 p.m., with the Lady Rebel varsity following in the last match of the evening.

The non-district matches that begin today may not count in the District 4-5A standings, but with league play beginning Sept. 17 as the Lady Bulldogs host Lee, the early matches will surely prove to be a measuring stick.

MHS returns three starters and six letter winners from last year's 21-7 squad, while Lee has four back from its 6-14 team from a season ago.

A YEAR ago, a green Lady Bulldog squad not only surpassed expectations, but posted the school's first-ever 20-win season despite just missing the playoffs with an 8-4 loop record. With 6-0 all-district stalwart Sally Gibson, high-jumping Mich Neatherlin and setter Lisa Sanchez returning to their starting roles, it's safe to say the Lady 'Dogs won't be sneaking up on anybody this year.

"I think people know we're always competitive, but we are a little further along than we were last year and that

Reliable Young comes through again for 49ers

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Young turned a scramble into a 47-yard touchdown run and threw for another score as the 49ers beat the Chargers 24-13 in an exhibition game Monday night.

Young, starting a second time in place of Joe Montana, raced past linebacker Henry Rolling, broke Donald Frank's tackle at about the 5-yard line and carried cornerbacks Gill Byrd and Sam Seale into the end zone for the game's first score midway through the opening period.

Montana missed most of practice in the week leading up to the game because of elbow tendinitis in his throwing arm. He last played in an Aug. 3 exhibition against the Bears at Berlin. He was held out of the team's Aug. 7 exhibition against the Broncos because of the short turnaround between the games.

NFL Preseason

Young directed two other first-half touchdown drives to give the 49ers (4-0) a 21-3 halftime lead.

John Taylor caught a 21-yard pass from Young with 19 seconds remaining in the first half to cap a six-play, 77-yard drive during which Young completed five of six passes. All of the yardage came through the air and Young's only incompletion was deliberate to stop the clock.

Overall, Young completed 18 of 25 passes for 227 yards and rushed twice for 60 yards in dropping the Chargers to 1-2 in exhibition play.

Keith Henderson's 4-yard scoring run with 4:45 remaining in the second quarter put the 49ers on top 14-3.

Henderson scored two plays after a 13-yard bootleg by Young provided a first down and advanced the ball to the Chargers' 6.

John Carney kicked a 23-yard field goal for the Chargers with 2:08 left in the first quarter, and Tom Whelihan added a 41-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter.

There was just over two minutes left before the Chargers' offense got the ball in the third quarter. The 49ers held onto the ball for 12½ minutes during an 84-yard, 18-play drive ending in a 19-yard field goal by Mike Cofer.

The Chargers' only touchdown followed a 49ers turnover. Spencer Tillman's fumble was recovered at the 49ers' 15 by linebacker Stephon Weatherspoon, and rookie Eric Bieniemy scored three plays later on a 7-yard run with 10:01 remaining.

Broncos 21, Dolphins 13

DENVER — Rookie running back Greg Lewis scored twice, and John Elway passed 62 yards to Ricky Nattiel for another touchdown as the Broncos broke out of an offensive slump with an exhibition victory over the Dolphins.

The Broncos (2-2), who had scored just one touchdown in their first three exhibition outings, showed signs of life on their first offensive play, when Elway hit Mark Jackson on a 46-yard pass play.

That series ended when safety Jarvis Williams intercepted Elway at the Dolphins' 12. But Elway later found Jackson on a 31-yarder to set up Lewis' 3-yard run for a 7-3 Broncos lead midway through the second quarter.

The Broncos scored two touchdowns 27 seconds apart in the third quarter.

Elway, calling his own plays for the second straight game, completed seven of 15 passes for 185 yards.

Dan Marino, who had led the Dolphins to a pair of field goals by Charlie Baumann, gave way to Scott Secules after the Broncos' third score.

show in the early season.

"I'm trying not to be too optimistic this year because I was pessimistic last year, but we are returning a good group," Pittman said. "I'm not predicting we'll win, but we will play a pretty competitive and sophisticated game. There's a lot of talent."

Among last year's letter winners back for the 1991 season are Jennifer Yoakum, Jennifer Pirkle and Stephanie Saxon. Also, senior Donna Eaden is back in volleyball after sitting out her junior season and displaying her talents on the basketball court. Alisha Gonzales and Michelle Fitts also figure to see playing time.

One drawback, though, is that Sanchez will be out 10 days to three weeks after turning an ankle on the first day of practice Aug. 12. She should be back for district, according to Pittman.

ANITA CORDER has been tabbed to oversee the changing of the coaching guard at Lee. Former head volleyball coach Elise Wheat is now head girls basketball coach Elise Kail after a summer job switch and marriage.

Corder's background includes stints at Hardin-Simmons University and a two-year tenure at 4-5A's Abilene High.

Helping her in the transition are seniors Tiffany Grafa, the 1991 team captain, and Alicia Furrow, fixtures on Lady Rebel volleyball and basketball teams since their sophomore year.

Corder has 6-0 junior Kim Blackburn and 5-8 junior Tekeira Strambler to go along with the 5-8 Grafa and 5-11 Furrow, giving Lee size up front to go with the setting of Jenna Jones.

The Lady Rebs were 5-7 in district a year ago, and Corder thinks they are ready to make that next step.

"They beat all the teams they should have beaten. This year, we're going to go straight at the top three teams. We have depth at every position and there are so many possibilities with the lineup. We have a good core of established experience and leadership," Corder said.

"We started practice last Monday morning (Aug. 12) and I didn't know any of the kids. I came in here and they have done everything that I asked, and more. The transition has been so smooth, especially with the help of Coach Kail and Coach (Paddy) Davis."

MHS: Ninety players report

(From 1C)

Thursday and then begin at 2:30 p.m. Friday when we go to full pads. It should be good and hot and we'll be ready to go," Corley said.

Close to 40 sophomores reported and Corley said that 90 players were present for the first day. The sophomores did get introduced to the mile run. Corley was pleased with the physical shape of his team.

"The overall conditioning was pretty good. Even some of the big guys held up pretty well in the sprints," Corley said, then added, "But the best thing was that we felt we had a great deal of carry-over from spring training.

"All the coaches I've talked with felt that there was good retention in what we are trying to do."

The early 7 a.m. start didn't sit too well with some of the Bulldogs, but Corley said it will help them this fall.

"About the only complaints I had was about the early start, but with Midland High going to seven periods this year, we've moved our athletic class to first period and will have part of our daily workout then. That will allow us to start practice later in the day after school," Corley noted.

Early starts will become a habit for MHS this year and they got a taste of it Monday.

Public Notice

On July 22, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for approval of two new optional services, Exchange Connection Service and Customer Alerting Enablement. Exchange Connection Service will permit a customer of the Telephone Company to provide voice messaging service, telephone answering service, or other services to itself or to patrons of the customer. Customer Alerting Enablement will permit residence and business lines to receive an alerting tone (intermittent dial tone) transmitted by an Exchange Connection Service customer. The proposed effective date for this offering is September 23, and will be available statewide where facilities permit.

The calling party's telephone number and other originating network call information will be delivered to the Exchange Connection Service customer when the calling number and the called number are served by the same switch. Additionally, the caller's telephone number and other originating network call information may be recorded and stored by the Exchange Connection Service customer. Customers may be able to identify the caller before the call is answered. All Exchange Connection Service customers will be required to sign a non-disclosure agreement prior to being provided service. In the agreement the customer agrees not to disclose the calling party's telephone number unless the customer has written permission from the calling party.

The Telephone Company estimates these new services will increase its annual revenues during the first year by approximately $1.2 million. Providers of voice messaging service and telephone answering services and their subscribers are the types of customers likely to be affected by approval of these services.

Exchange Connection Service is provided to customers in two parts: Local Serving Arrangement, which provides access to the exchange network; and Optional Service Features. The proposed rates, for both Exchange Connection Service and Customer Alerting Enablement, including installation charges, are as follows:

Local Serving Arrangement	Monthly Charge	Installation Charge First Unit	Installation Charge Additional Unit

ANGELS: Salmon homers

(From 1C)

did Midland center fielder Reggie Williams after trying to make the catch, and with Williams down, Tatum was waved home by manager Dave Huppert.

Right fielder Tim Salmon eventually picked the ball up and made a throw that beat Tatum to the plate. But Tatum sidestepped catcher Larry Gonzales' tag. Tatum, however, missed the plate on his first pass, came back to touch the plate at about the same time Gonzales got there and was called safe for the last run of the game.

"Actually, I thought is was over the fence at first," said Tatum, who now has 18 homers for the season. "As I was coming to third Huppy waved me on and I knew the ball was coming so I tried to avoid it and slide back to the plate as fast as I could.

"I felt the plate just before Larry tagged me, but when I got back to the dugout I wasn't sure if I was safe. But the umpire said I was safe, and that's what they're there for. It was fun."

And Tatum wasn't the only El Paso batter who had fun Monday. Dave Jacas and Ruben Escalera also hit homers for the Diablos, though Escalera's was close enough to the left field foul pole to bring Midland manager Don Long out of the dugout and boos from the crowd after the ball was called fair.

The Angels fell behind in the early going as losing pitcher Dave Shotkoski (5-11) lasted just two innings while giving up six runs on six hits. Rafael Montalvo picked up in the third and lasted four inning while giving up four runs before Marvin Cobb closed out the game for the Angels.

El Paso starter Otis Green, a former outfielder drafted in 1983 by the Toronto Blue Jays, moved his Class AA record to 3-2 by allowing four runs in six innings. Reliever Jim Czajkowski earned his ninth save of the season, despite giving up a three-run homer to Salmon in the seventh.

Mattingly leads NY over Royals

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Don Mattingly hit a go-ahead, two-run double in the ninth inning Monday night and the Yankees beat the Royals 6-2 for their fourth victory in five games.

Mike Boddicker (10-8) walked Bernie Williams with one out in the ninth, Steve Sax singled and Mike Magnante relieved. Mattingly followed with his second double of the game, a drive off the fence in right-center field.

One out later, Roberto Kelly was walked intentionally and Matt Nokes singled to the hole at shortstop. David Howard's throw sailed past first baseman Todd Benzinger, allowing Mattingly and Kelly to score.

Greg Cadaret (6-4) allowed two hits in 2 1-3 scoreless innings. Eric Plunk, making his second start of the season, gave up six hits in 6 2-3 innings, struck out seven and walked two. His first start this year was Aug. 14 against the Royals and he didn't figure in that decision, either.

Boddicker allowed four runs and nine hits in 8 1-3 innings, walked four and struck out three.

Kansas City, which has lost four of five, took a 2-0 lead in the first when Brian McRae tripled and Kirk Gibson hit his 14th home run. The Yankees tied the score in the fourth when Mel Hall doubled, Kevin Maas walked and Randy Velarde hit a two-run double.

AL Roundup

Athletics 8, Twins 7

MINNEAPOLIS — Terry Steinbach snapped a ninth-inning tie with a two-out single as the Athletics rebounded from another blown lead to end a seven-game losing streak.

In salvaging the final game of a four-game series, third-place Oakland kept its dwindling American League West hopes alive, pulling within six games of the division-leading Twins by snapping its longest skid since 1986.

Joe Klink (9-3) blanked Minnesota for 2 1-3 innings. Dennis Eckersley pitched the ninth and earned his 34th save.

Tigers 3, White Sox 2

CHICAGO — Frank Tanana continued his mastery of Chicago with seven strong innings as the Tigers beat the White Sox in a matchup of second-place teams.

The White Sox, who have lost seven of their last eight, remained 3½ games behind first-place Minnesota in the American League West as the Twins lost to the A's.

Travis Fryman had two doubles, a single and scored two runs and Dave Bergman had two hits and drove in two runs to pace the Tigers' offense attack against Alex Fernandez (6-10). Detroit trails Toronto by 2½ games.

Mariners 7, Angels 1

SEATTLE — Omar Vizquel hit his first home run in 512 at-bats and Pete O'Brien also homered and drove in three runs as the Mariners beat the Angels.

Ken Griffey Jr. had his seventh straight multi-hit game with a pair of singles. Seattle had 10 hits, including two home runs.

Van Rensburg wins Pro-Am

Staff Report

Leon Van Rensburg, Club pro at The Club at Mission Dorado, led his foursome to a first-place score of 57 in the Boy Scout Pro-Am Monday at Hogan Park Golf Course. Van Rensburg was joined by Rick Gasser, Bill Kent and Bennett Robb.

Midland Country Club Pro, whose team finished in a fourth-place tie, won the Pro division with a 67.

Results from Monday's Boy Scout Pro-Am, held at Hogan Park Golf Course:

11th inning walk seals Cubs' win

Associated Press

MONTREAL — The Expos outhit the Cubs 14-7 and lost 3-2 in 11 innings Monday night. Such is the life of a last-place team.

Luis Salazar drew a bases-loaded walk from Bill Sampen with two outs in the 11th to break the tie as Chicago beat Montreal for the eighth time in 10 games this season.

The Cubs loaded the bases with none out against Sampen (6-3) before Andre Dawson hit into a fielder's choice, shortstop to home, and George Bell flied out. Sampen then walked Salazar on a 3-1 pitch.

"When you have guys like Andre Dawson and George Bell in front of you, you don't get that many chances to drive in runs," Salazar said.

"There's no excuse for walking a man in that situation," Sampen said. "Obviously I was being careful with him, but that's no reason for what happened."

Paul Assenmacher (7-4) worked two innings for the victory. He had to survive a scare in the bottom of the 11th when Andres Galarraga took him to the wall with a runner on base.

"I thought it was out," Assenmacher said. "I didn't even watch the flight of the ball, I just started walking off the field."

The Expos tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning when Marquis Grissom led off with an infield single. Grissom stole second, went to third on Tim Wallach's one-out single and scored the tying run on a wild pitch by Chuck McElroy.

Chicago starter Greg Maddux gave up 11 hits and two runs in 7 1-3 innings.

After allowing a two-out single to Ryne Sandberg in the first inning, Brian Barnes retired 11 straight until Salazar and Shawon Dunston hit back-to-back singles with one out in the fourth.

NL Roundup

RYAN: Texas pitcher beats O's for third time this year because he'll go longer than five."

(From 1C)

It was the third time this year that Ryan had defeated the Orioles, who are 7-3 against Texas.

Rookie Mike Mussina (1-3) pitched 5 2-3 innings, giving up a solo homer to Ruben Sierra in the fourth inning and a three-run shot by Kevin Reimer in the sixth.

Terry Mathews picked up his first major-league save by going the last four innings, giving up one run on three hits.

Baltimore scored in the seventh on a single by Chito Martinez and a double by Billy Ripken.

Notes: Sierra's homer marked the 13th consecutive game a Ranger has hit the ball over the wall, tying a team mark set from Sept. 4-16, 1987. ... Texas, the only team in the majors with seven players who have hit 10 or more homers this season, has hit 35 homers in its last 23 games. Reimer has seven homers in August. ... Ranger pitcher Brad Arnsberg, troubled with elbow problems, underwent tests Monday and it was determined by Dr. James Conway that he has "a non-displaced bone chip" located in the front of his elbow that should not require surgery ... Through 56 home dates, the Rangers have drawn 1,779,522 fans. That already is the third-highest seasonal mark, surpassed only by the totals of 1989 and 1990, both above the two-million mark ... Orsulak hit a single up the middle in the third inning Monday to run his hitting streak to 17 games. The current mark matches a string Cal Ripken put together in 1985. In that same season, Lee Lacy put together a 20-game streak.

Oil soars

NEW YORK — The oil market was jolted Monday by the coup in the Soviet Union, the largest petroleum producer, with prices closing more than $1 per barrel higher on fears of a civil war or strikes in the main pumping region.

Analysts said any disruptions in Soviet exports could cause serious problems in a global crude system that is already stretched tight. OPEC members boosted output to virtual capacity last year to compensate for the boycott of oil from Iraq and Kuwait.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in September settled Monday at $22.47 per barrel, up $1.17, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian Corp., Marathon and Texaco Trading and Transportation raised their posted prices $1.25 to $21.25.

T-Bills fall

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to the lowest level in several years.

The Treasury Department sold $10.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 5.17 percent, down from 5.30 percent last week. Another $10.4 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 5.23 percent, down from 5.39 percent last week.

The three-month bill rate was the lowest since they sold for 5.12 percent on Oct. 26, 1987. The six-month bill rate was the lowest since they averaged 5.21 percent on Nov. 27, 1986.

Dow Jones plunges 70 points

■ In the immediate wake of the Soviet coup, trading was heavy, but slowed down by the time the market closed.

By Floyd Norris
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — American investors leaped to get out of the stock market early on Monday after prices plunged overseas following the coup in the Soviet Union. But later in the day, as prices stabilized, they began to move back in.

The retail buying was a source of support for share prices, which ended the day far above their lows, albeit with the Dow Jones industrial average down 69.99 points, or 2.4 percent, to 2,898.03.

Over all, what began the day as a flight to safety was looking more like a crawl in that direction by the end. Early rallies in both gold and Treasury bonds faded by the end of the day, and while Treasury bill prices gained for the day, they were off their best levels.

Most investors evidently stood pat, and by midday some had decided to bet that lower stock prices meant better bargains.

"The selling was pretty heavy from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.," said Robert Bott, the vice president of operations for Quick & Reilly, a large discount firm. "Now it's about 50-50," he said in mid-afternoon. "It seems like the mass selling has halted."

In Richmond, William P. Schubmehl, an executive vice president of Scott & Stringfellow, a regional brokerage firm, reported his firm's customers had taken the coup in the Soviet Union in stride.

"Our volume is up a third from normal," he said. "It's mostly on the buy side." Some customers, he said, were reassured because, "We know why the market is going down — it's worse when you don't know why it's going down."

Many individual investors recalled stocks' sharp falls in October 1987 and again two years later, and the drop last August following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. In each case, those who bought on the decline eventually profited.

"I feel like today is the opportune day, with the market down the way it is," said Michael Hudson, a computer programmer from Queens, N.Y., after he bought shares in a stock mutual fund at a Fidelity Investments office in Manhattan.

Similarly, Jeffrey Wenger, an accountant from Massapequa, N.Y., said he and his wife, Donna, had decided to move some money from municipal bonds to a stock fund, but to delay moving the rest of the money.

"I didn't want to wait another day," he said, adding that he thought the market might rebound quickly and that he would move more money into the stock fund if a rally did not develop.

The retail buying helped share prices bottom not long after they opened Monday morning in New York, after sharp falls in Japan and Europe on news of the coup. But brokers said there was also some foreign buying, attracted by the rising dollar and the relative safety of the American market. Some American institutions were buyers, although others were substantial sellers.

Because stock index quotes were distorted through a large part of the morning, simply because many stocks had not opened, many traders looked to the stock index futures market for guidance on the actual level of prices. That measure hit bottom about 10:15 a.m., when the September futures contract for the S.&P. 500 was down about 12 points, or 3.1 percent.

Prices then rallied slowly until noon, but made up less than half of their losses. After a slow decline through most of the afternoon, the futures contract ended the day down 8.00, or 2.1 percent, at 378.85. That performance was slightly better than that of the actual S.&P., which fell 9.11 points, or 2.4 percent, to 376.47.

The selling began not long after midnight, as first reports were broadcast of the Soviet coup. "We took in a record number of calls during the night," said Hugo Quackenbush, an executive vice president of Charles Schwab, a discount broker. "At night it was basically people wanting to put in sale orders."

But later in the day, he said, most of the action turned to buying. Over all, he said, there were only 10 or 15 percent more sell than buy orders.

Mutual fund officials said the volume of calls was heavy, particularly early in the day, but that many of the calls were seeking information about the extent of declines overseas, rather than placing orders. "Mutual fund redemptions have been very modest," said Tracey Gordon, a spokesman for Fidelity Investments.

At T. Rowe Price, there was a trend out of international funds, and also away from the more aggressive domestic stock funds, Steven Norwitz, a spokesman, said. Over all, he said, less than $5 million came out of T. Rowe Price's $1.3 billion international stock fund.

Norwitz added that money flowed into more conservative equity funds, as well as into money market funds and those specializing in precious metals.

But the flow toward gold was muted, especially as the day went on. "It's pretty much like the gold price itself," said Edmund Serfaty, the portfolio manager of United Services Gold Shares Fund, speaking of flows of money into his fund yesterday. "It was strong at the beginning and tapered off at the end."

Glenwood owner may file for bankruptcy

AUSTIN (AP) — Healthcare International is considering bankruptcy reorganization after merger talks with its largest creditor, HealthVest Inc., ran into snags.

Among Healthcare International's holdings is Glenwood Hospital of Midland/Odessa.

"It is entirely possible that we need to finish this with a bankruptcy filing," Healthcare President Jean Smith told the Austin American-Statesman last week.

The two companies have a Sept. 1 deadline for merger talks. Ms. Smith said she does not think a deal can be completed by then.

HealthVest chief executive Clark Abbott said last week its lenders may require action against Healthcare if that company cannot repay a $40.9 million note that comes due then.

Any action, such as a foreclosure posting, could trigger a bankruptcy filing by Healthcare, the trust said in a statement.

"Our lenders are not going to let this thing just drag on," Abbott said. "They are having a hard time understanding why it has taken so long."

Healthcare runs a chain of psychiatric and rehabilitation hospitals.

HealthVest was created in 1986 by Healthcare as a publicly traded real estate investment trust designed to finance much of Healthcare's aggressive growth plans. Of the 35 properties that HealthVest owns or finances, 25 are operated by Healthcare.

The two companies agreed to a merger in February, pending the approval of creditors and shareholders, but HealthVest's lenders imposed new conditions after the agreement was signed, Ms. Smith said. In addition, some of Healthcare's creditors have expressed reluctance about a merger.

Time Warner offers deal for Six Flags

ARLINGTON (AP) — Time Warner Inc. offered Monday to buy amusement park operator Six Flags Corp., which has been struggling under debt of a 4-year-old leveraged buyout.

The New York media and entertainment conglomerate is one of the largest owners of Six Flags with a 20 percent stake.

The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that Time Warner and two investment banks were close to offering $700 million for Six Flags.

The deal's structure would keep the $570 million in new debt it requires off the balance sheet of Time Warner, which has been trying to reduce its $11 billion debt.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Bank takeover could bring lower interest

By Bill Doyle

Q. The savings bank at which I have the major part of my money has been taken over by the government and is being offered for sale by the Resolution Trust Corp. From your articles, I understand the new owner can decide to lower interest rates and give me two weeks' notice to move my accounts without penalty.

Doyle

However, can they pick and choose among my accounts and offer me that option only on the account on which they want to change interest?

For example, I have two certificates of deposit. One, at 8 percent, is for five years. The other, at 6 percent, is for two years. Can they cut the interest rate or even eliminate the first and keep the second, without giving me the opportunity to move both accounts to another bank?

A. You get affirmative replies to both questions.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 — FIRREA by acronym and Thrift Bailout Law by nickname — gives the acquiring institution leeway to do just that. The commercial bank, savings bank or savings and loan association that buys your busted savings bank will be able to do what you fear.

With the RTC unloading an increasing number of belly-up S&Ls and banks, there is no exact tabulation on how many interest rate reductions are being put into effect. As a rough rule of thumb, however, the acquiring institutions generally reduce interest on accounts with very high rates and leave others untouched.

There's a chance your 8 percent CD might escape an interest rate cut, because the acquiring institution would want to hang on to your money. You'll have to keep a sharp eye on your mail for notices of interest reductions.

Q. You have explained that all "depository institutions" — banks, S&Ls and credit unions — must keep a percentage of their deposits as currency in their vaults or as deposits with the Federal Reserve. Those "reserve requirements" earn no interest.

What would be the effect on the economy if those financial institutions were allowed to keep their reserves in U.S. Treasury bills?

A. That would give the national economy a boost for the simple reason banks, S&Ls and CUs then would earn interest on their reserve requirements and consequently have more money to put out as loans.

The basic way depository institutions make profits is by charging higher interest on loans than the interest they pay on deposits. If they could collect interest on reserves requirements, they would garner higher income.

But don't look for that to happen. The reserve requirement is one of the three monetary methods the Federal Reserve uses to influence the supply of money and keep inflation in check.

The second is raising or lowering the discount rate — currently 5.5 percent — at which Federal Reserve Banks make short-term loans to depository institutions.

The other is open-market operation, through which the Fed buys and sells U.S. Treasury securities in the marketplace. When the Fed purchases Treasury securities, banks have more money. When the Fed sells Treasuries, money leaves banks to pay for those securities.

Q. I would like to invest, but it's hand-to-mouth around here. What is the best way to invest $500? Is there any way?

A. As has been stressed in this space, no one can tell you the absolutely "best" way to invest any amount of money. The current or recent best investment often slips down the future performance list.

That said, the natural recommendation for someone with the small amount you have available is to put it in an interest-paying savings or checking account with Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage.

You'll get relatively low interest. But your money will be safe and readily available if you need it.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?
Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:
1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numberical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
• You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
• You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*).
Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
• You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices plummeted today in heavy trading on news of the ouster of Mikhail Gorbachev as leader of the Soviet Union.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 61.94 points to 2,906.08 as of 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

Earlier, the key index was down as much as 106 points in panic-driven selling.

The drop in the Dow by more than 50 points set off the New York Stock Exchange's "uptick" rule. The rule is designed to prevent a price freefall by limiting computer-driven trading.

Declining issues outnumbered advancing ones by more than 8 to 1 on the NYSE, with 184 issues up, 1,586 down and 284 unchanged.

Before the start of New York trading stock prices fell sharply abroad. The Tokyo exchange's key Nikkei Stock Average closed at 21,456.76, down 1,357.61 points, or 5.95 percent. The tumble was the fifth largest in terms of points lost.

Kitsch has place in 'nation's attic'

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Wearing white cotton gloves, a Smithsonian worker carefully removed from a locked storage case the National American History Museum's newest arrival: a pair of six-inch-high pink plastic reindeer.

The reindeer arrived unsolicited, like hundreds of other items — some addressed only to "Smithsonian, Washington D.C. — sent each year to what is known as the nation's attic.

Packages sent to the museum have held such treasures as a great-grandmother's wedding dress, letters from the Civil War, a child's diary, beer cans, a Polaroid snapshot of a stuffed alligator, and a rubber chicken that had survived an expedition to Antarctica.

Cradling the plastic reindeer, which came without letter or explanation, Catherine C. Perge, the manager of the processing office at the museum, explained why such apparent kitsch was interesting.

"It's contemporary and it tells a story," she said.

Some people view the museum — which, after all, houses Archie Bunker's chair and such other oddities as gym shorts and lunch boxes — as a natural resting place for precious items they cannot bear to dispose of at a garage sale.

The notes that accompany the packages are often plaintive, said Katherine Neill Ridgley, manager of public inquiry mail at the Smithsonian: "The letters say: 'I want this to go to a place where it will be appreciated. My children don't care, and I want the public to have access to it.'"

In addition to the unsolicited items, the Smithsonian gets more than 50,000 letters a year from people offering to donate treasures found during spring cleaning or among a deceased relative's belongings.

DEAR ABBY

Couple's snoring war causes several sleepless nights

By Abigail Van Buren

EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters.

DEAR ABBY: My husband says that I snore, but I know I don't. One thing I know for certain is that HE snores; and if I don't fall asleep before he does, I am up all night. He tells me that he is up all night because of MY snoring, which is ridiculous because if he were up, he wouldn't be keeping me up with his snoring.

Van Buren

How can we find out the truth? Don't suggest we have a third party sleep with us, as I am very old-fashioned. — HATTIE

DEAR HATTIE: Buy, rent or borrow a tape recorder and turn it on when you both retire. Whoever is awake while the other is snoring should say, "I am awake, so YOU must be snoring!" And that should settle it!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a husband who thinks he's funny. I had a very nice dinner party at home the other night and was especially proud of the way everything turned out.

Well, when the guests were leaving, my husband said, "Come back soon because the only time I get a decent meal around here is when we have company." Everybody laughed, but I wanted to crawl into a hole.

He said that once before and it got a big laugh, so he pulled it again.

In the first place, Abby, it's not true. I pride myself on always feeding my family very well. I told him later I didn't think that crack was very funny, but he said, "I was only kidding."

Is there a clever retort I could use in case my husband the comic says that again? — TICKED OFF IN TULSA

DEAR TICKED: You could say (only kidding, of course), "The only time my ever lovin' Scrooge gives me money for fancy groceries is when we have company."

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column about people who were always mooching rides, and these moochers were called "schnorrers."

I would like to know where that term came from. We are one of the 200 families in the United States with the name of "Schnorr," and we object to the use of our name with such a meaning.

We hope that the Schnorr families in Oregon, New Mexico, Illinois and all other states feel as we do and that you get 199 more letters of protest. — THE SCHNORRS OF ARIZONA

DEAR SCHNORRS: The verb "to beg" is "schnorren" in German. From it comes the noun "schnorrer" — which means "a beggar, a panhandler, a moocher, a cheapskate, a chiseler, a bum, a drifter or a borrower." It can also mean a compulsive bargain hunter, bargainer or an impudent indigent.

The above information was "schnorred" (borrowed without permission) from "The Joys of Yiddish" — a delightful and authoritative book written by Leo Rosten.

AT WIT'S END

Mice are nice, but I prefer real cow's milk

By Erma Bombeck

I've never been to a laboratory where mice are involved in research. So when someone tells me they are using them to test cigarette smoke and the effects of alcohol and found that their cancer rate increases appreciably, then I have to believe there's a group of mice sitting around a table drinking and smoking and playing a few cards until they eventually go to that big cheese cloud in the sky.

Bombeck

When I hear that jogging mice who get an accelerated heart rate up about three times a week live longer, I get a mental picture of their little bodies being fitted in warm-up suits with the smallest Nikes in the world on their four little feet while they listen to Willard Scott wish them Happy Birthday.

But when a reader sent me a story that a University of Wisconsin professor of dairy science had been milking mice to test the effects of new genetic combinations on protein levels in milk, I just lost the faith.

Robert Bremel, the professor on the project, said that milking them requires skill plus a very small vacuum milking machine. Right. Not to mention, the stool he sits on.

The aim, they say, is to make designer milks especially suited to cheeses, yogurts and ice cream. Before I scream, you scream, we all scream for Micescream, I should point out that the products are not to be made out of mouse milk. It's only used to research the protein levels.

There's no doubt in my mind that some form of communication exists among mice. In fact, I can see a mouse being returned to her cage in the research lab saying to her husband, "Russell, you're not going to believe the test I worked on today." When she explains the milking process, he says, "Margaret, tell me you're making this up."

I know feelings run high about using mice for research. For decades now, we've used them to test every bad habit and disease known to man. We had them smoke little cigarettes, drink too much, take drugs, load up on cholesterol, get sunburned, lose sleep, over-breed and breathe bad air. What really puzzles me is that in spite of all this, there are still more mice out there than people and there's no sign of their dying out.

There's something wrong with this picture.

I think we're missing a message here. Maybe decadence isn't all that bad. We've got to give it a chance. Except eating ice cream. You never know where it's been.

N.H. officials miffed Smart murder movie filmed in N.C.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Anything North Carolina can do, New Hampshire can do better, says the latter's film commission, miffed that a TV movie about its state's most famous criminal trial is being filmed down South.

"Everything that's available in North Carolina is available, or completely accessible, to everyone in the country," said New Hampshire Film and Television Bureau member Ric Abernethy.

North Carolina and South Carolina were chosen by a company filming "Murder in New Hampshire: The Pamela Smart Story."

Smart, 23, is a former high school instructor convicted in March of enticing her teen-age lover and two friends to kill her husband, whom she feared would leave her nothing in a divorce. Her trial attracted worldwide attention.

Producer Phil Kleinbart says he chose North Carolina because it had film crews ready to go and the people were so cooperative.

But New Hampshire is North Carolina's equal on both counts, with other assets as well, says the New Hampshire Film and Television Bureau.

"We have no taxes, we have no permit fees and we're really nice," said Chairwoman Charlene Joyce. She said savings from New Hampshire's lack of general sales or income taxes could be substantial on a big project.

New Hampshire also lost out to Virginia as the location for the movie "What About Bob," set in the mythical town of Lake Winnipesaukee, which is New Hampshire's largest lake but not a town.

HURRICANE BOB SLAMS NEW ENGLAND

Easterners ride out the storm

Walking in the rain

A woman struggles against rain and high winds whipped up by Hurricane Bob Monday in New Haven, Conn. Hurricane Bob swirled up the Eastern Seaboard Monday knocking out power to about 725,000 people, prompting the governor of Maine to shut down the state government and sending Navy submarines fleeing their berths in Connecticut for the safety of the deep.

Providence puts 30-year-old hurricane barrier to test

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A 30-year-old hurricane barrier, erected after two killer storms hammered Rhode Island's largest city, passed its first major test with flying colors, an official said Monday.

When Hurricane Bob caused a maximum storm surge of 8.6 feet in Narragansett Bay, the barrier kept the increase on the Providence River in downtown Providence to between 2 and 3 feet, said James Suzman, the city's public works director.

A similar barrier, built at the same time, was credited with sheltering the harbor in New Bedford, Mass., on Monday.

Providence's barrier consists of three curved gates hinged at the top that can be lowered into the river's mouth at the head of the bay. Each gate is 40 feet square and weighs 56 tons, Suzman said.

Normally the gates are open so small pleasure boats can pass to the inner harbor. But with Bob approaching, the gates were lowered early Monday afternoon, he said.

Crews also turned on two of five pumps, each of which can send 630,000 gallons of water per minute flowing from the river back out into Narragansett Bay. That keeps storm runoff from backing up in the river, Suzman said.

The gates are designed to handle storm surges of up to 20 feet, he said.

"Basically, so far, so good," Suzman said.

The barrier was built for $16 million by the Army Corps of Engineers between 1960 and 1966 in response to a hurricane in 1938 that killed more than 300 people and Hurricane Carol in 1954 that killed many others.

In each case, downtown Providence was flooded.

Although the gates were lowered during Hurricane Gloria in 1985, major rains and storm surges bypassed Providence. Suzman said the only other serious test was with an abnormal astronomical tide in December.

Bob rudely interrupts summer routine at vineyard

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Like an uninvited house guest, Hurricane Bob came to fashionable Martha's Vineyard and rudely interrupted the summer routine of yachting, drinks at the water's edge and celebrity-watching.

"My God, we got murdered," said 70-year-old Douglas Garron, a retired TV writer who summers on the island five miles off Cape Cod.

"I've never seen anything like it, so quick and devastating," he said as he repaired a window on his 160-year-old house overlooking Edgartown Harbor.

Monday's storm uprooted trees, downed power lines, lifted boats out of the water and tore shingles from roofs.

Century-old trees blew into Greek Revival homes and luxury cars, a town dock was destroyed, fragile sand dunes along the Atlantic oceanfront were swept away and yachts as long as 60 feet broke free and crashed ashore.

The town where real estate often sells for more than $1 million, and where newsman Walter Cronkite and actress Patricia Neal are among summer's celebrity regulars, didn't get the brunt of Bob but sustained damage nevertheless.

About 1,000 residents and tourists in Edgartown were evacuated to shelters. In five other communities on Martha's Vineyard, hundreds more were ordered out of low-lying areas.

Edgartown police said only a few minor injuries were attributable to the storm, including one boater whose calf was cut by a wind-whipped cable.

"It looks like someone just took their finger and poked boats over like a kid in a bathtub," said Elmer Bartele, a computer software salesman from Boston.

Island residents, tourists endure battering from Bob

Associated Press

EDGARTOWN, Mass. — Tourism took it on the chin on the popular resort island of Martha's Vineyard when Hurricane Bob hit town Monday with heavy rain and wind exceeding 100 mph. Trees toppled on houses and cars, boats sank or were tossed onto land and plate-glass store windows broke.

Main Street, a row of century-plus-old white clapboard storefronts, was shut down at noon, shortly before the storm began battering the area. One hardware store posted a sign reading "No return on storm items."

Boats, ordinarily quietly at anchor in the serene harbor, bounced like bathtub toys and were washed up on the beach. A 38-foot sports boat floated into a downtown parking lot that was flooded thigh-deep.

"The harbor is a mess. Boats are all over the place," said Edgartown Police Chief George L. Searle.

People swam in a harbor trying to secure capsized boats to docks. Shingles were blown off houses and street signs were toppled. Staff at the Navigator Restaurant dodged windows shattered by the high winds.

No serious injuries were reported by late Monday afternoon, when the storm passed over the islands, leaving in its wake hundreds of downed trees and power outages that left all of the Vineyard and neighboring island of Nantucket without power.

Emergency crews with chainsaws cleared streets of downed trees while people wandered around the windswept island, some carrying blankets and food, others taking pictures.

The Vineyard's summer population — which includes such notables as humorist Art Buchwald, singer Carly Simon, journalist Mike Wallace and author William Styron — numbers about 75,000, compared with about 15,000 year-round.

More than 1,000 people rode out the storm in shelters in Edgardtown. Hundreds more were allowed to stay in hotels and downtown homes.

Officials said they were caught slightly off guard because hurricanes usually arrive later in the year when many summer residents have left.

"The thing that caught us short was the large number — the unusually large number — of visitors on the island," said Howard Henrikson, executive board chairman of the Federated Church, a 349-year-old Edgartown institution.

"This is only the second time I can remember that we've had to open up this hall as a shelter. There's usually plenty of room for everyone in the schools," he said.

On Nantucket, with a year-round population of 6,000 and a summertime population of 35,000, residents took shelter in two local schools. The low-lying areas of Siasconset and Madaket were evacuated, and ferries from the island were canceled and the airport was closed.

But some of the vacationers were not easily daunted.

John Carty, 24, of Canton, and Cheryl Carboneau, 24, of Amherst, were forced to take their Nantucket vacation into the Nantucket High School cafeteria.

There they set up a mock beach scene, complete with beach towels and a picnic cooler.

"We have some good books and a couple of bottles of wine," Carboneau said. Carty added, "This is just like the beach."

In Edgartown, several dozen people took to the harbor as the eye of the storm passed over.

Some went swimming, some drank and some rode bicycles through the water.

Anatomy of a Hurricane

Hurricanes are born in the steamy late-summer environment of the tropics when rapidly evaporating ocean waters combine with strong wind currents. Several hundred miles wide and packing winds of over 100 m.p.h., hurricanes cool the Earth by sucking heat from the Earth's surface and drawing it into the upper atmosphere (above 40,000 feet).

Eye of hurricane hits tiny, vulnerable island

NEW SHOREHAM, R.I. (AP) — Block Island stood vulnerable and isolated as the the eye of Hurricane Bob first swept over land Monday on its way toward the New England mainland.

Winds were clocked at 105 mph on a weather instrument that doesn't go any higher. Vacationers and year-round residents huddled in shelters.

"The house is rattling, and even with all the windows closed you can still hear the rumble, and you can see things really being pushed hard," said visitor Marshall Goldberg of Los Angeles as the storm descended on the 11-square-mile island.

"There is no beach," said Jane Vercelli of Connecticut, staying in a cottage on Mansion Beach. "The water is completely up to the sand dunes. You wouldn't know there was ever a beach."

Spruce trees were uprooted and several beach houses were damaged, she said. The hurricane's eye crossed land first at Block Island, midway between Long Island and the Rhode Island mainland, about 1:30 p.m.

Gov. Bruce G. Sundlun ordered the island's electricity shut down before the storm hit because of fears that downed power lines would be dangerous.

That left people like Goldberg, his wife and daughters, ages 6 and 4, reliant on the telephone for news of the storm's progress. The family was staying on a cottage about a third of a mile from a beach. They tried to find the room with the fewest windows.

"I was trying to find the best room, and we went into the one I figured would be safest, but while we were there a window broke right into my hands," Goldberg said.

As many as 2,500 people sought shelter in the Block Island School, a medical center and a sewage plant, police and fire dispatcher Betty Gann said.

Commercial fishermen stay on their boats as the water rises through the dock at Montauk Harbor Monday in the middle of Hurricane Bob. They stabilized their boats and there was no major damage even though the hurricane hit at high tide.

Bush family flees vacation estate

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — The first family couldn't avoid the eye of any storm Monday.

First, President Bush, caught up in the diplomatic maelstrom following the overthrow of Mikhail Gorbachev, left his seaside vacation home here and returned to Washington for consultations.

Hours later his wife, Barbara, and their family evacuated their $2.2 million coastal estate as Hurricane Bob bore down on southern Maine.

Bush, with a bit of bragadoccio, said early in the day that the storm "wouldn't scare us a bit."

Easy for him to say. He was already planning to return to the capital.

"It's golfing weather," joked National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft, whom Bush has dragged out into inclement weather for a brisk 18 holes.

But in midafternoon, Maine Gov. John McKernan ordered evacuation of everyone within a quarter-mile of the coast. The Bush's 26-room, multistory bungalow is only a few feet from the water, where waves had grown higher and rougher throughout the day.

The first lady was driven to stay with friends who live farther inland in Kennebunkport, for years a smart resort for monied New Englanders.

B. Bush

An administration press officer said only security personnel remained behind. The coastal road, where vacationers can drive by for a look at the summer White House, was closed.

In late afternoon, voice pagers carried by journalists in Kennebunkport screeched to life with a message that the White House press office at the Shawmut Inn was closing.

"We're moving to higher ground," a press aide announced.

Electric power to hotels and other homes near the Bushes' were without power and phone service for some of the afternoon. like the homes of thousands of other residents of Long Island and New England.

'Bud Man' agreement not reached

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials said they didn't reach an agreement Monday with Anheuser-Busch Co. on its "Bud Man" promotion that the state contends amounts to an illegal inducement to buy an alcoholic beverage.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission is threatening the company's right to sell beer in Texas over the promotion.

Randy Yarbrough, the agency's assistant administrator, said no agreement was reached before discussions stopped for the day.

"We're still negotiating," Yarbrough said. "We have not been able to reach an agreement on wording."

If the company does not end the promotion, regulators could suspend or cancel its licenses to do business in Texas, Yarbrough said. If no agreement is reached Tuesday, TABC officials will file for a hearing to enforce their order the Bud stop the promotion, he said.

"That would allow us to suspend their license if they don't comply," Yarbrough said.

However, Anheuser-Busch officials say they believe the promotion is legal.

"We are working with the TABC to resolve the situation in the best and most expedient manner," said a company spokesman who asked not to be named.

The "Search for Bud Man" promotion features certificates bearing the likeness of the caped Bud Man character.

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. We will accept cash offers up to 10 pe cent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. However, the combined loan discount points, buyers' closing costs to be paid by VA and the discount for cash may not exceed 10 percent of the term list price. Offers must be submitted at term listed prices when buyers request a new GI loan with $1.00 move-in. Interest rate of available vendee financing is 9 percent (APR 9.25 percent). Purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing (Term Sales) must have VA Form 26-6705B, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser. The underwriting of offers requesting VA vendee financing will be completed by VA staff at no cost to the purchaser. To expedite the underwriting process, brokers are encouraged to submit a complete package to VA with the Offer to Purchase. This includes: a) recent copies of pay stubs, a completed, signed copy of last year's federal tax return and a copy of the latest IRS Form W-2 Wage and Tax Statement (or) a Verification of Employment, VA Form 26-8497, completed by the employer b) signed SR statements required by the sales listing c) verification of self-employment to include completed, signed copies of the last two year's federal income tax returns, including all schedules, and a year-to-date profit and loss statement which has been prepared and signed by an accountant. d) current schedule of all real estate owned, to include all current rental/lease agreements e) past three months of bank statements, and f) any other information pertinent to the underwriting of the offer. Purchase offers not accompanied by this required information MAY BE REJECTED FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, the broker must deposit in the broker's trust account the $500 earnest money deposit. The $500 earnest money deposit will be remitted to the closing agent upon acceptance of the offer. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchasers, the earnest money WILL NOT be refunded and the purchaser will be required to forfeit the earnest money to VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all brokers interview their buyers to assure that they want the property prior to submission of an Offer To Purchase. Prospective purchasers will have the option to select the title company or attorney of their choice to close the sale of VA-acquired properties. The address, telephone number, FAX number, tax ID number and name of person to contact should be included with all Offers To Purchase. The closing agent will be responsible for document preparation and sales closing. The purchaser or sales broker will be responsible for the payment of all costs charged by the closer. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26-6705. Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA pays 6 percent sales commission. VA Form 26-6705 must be submitted in duplicate to
