Explosion Of Oil Claims Life Of Sudan Woman

Mrs. J. M. Webster Succumbs At Local Sanitarium Late Friday As Result Of Burns Received Earlier

Escape Possible

Similar Occurrence 12 Years Ago Resulted Only In Minor Injury; Funeral Services Are Not Arranged

SAVING her farm home from flames Friday morning after an oil burner exploded cost the life of Mrs. J. M. Webster, 68, of near Sudan at 6 o'clock yesterday at a local sanitarium.

Mrs. Webster was alone in the home when the burner exploded at 11 o'clock shortly after she had lighted it. Instead of running from the house at once, she extinguished the flames and then ran into the yard and tore off her burning clothes.

Cries Bring Aid

Her cries attracted neighbors living about 400 yards from the Webster house. They gave first aid and sent Bosh Davis, another neighbor, for Mr. Webster who had been to Amherst eight miles away. Mr. Webtser, 77, was met four miles from his home. A Littlefield ambulance was summoned and the injured woman was brought here for treatment, arriving at about 2:30 o'clock.

Twelve years ago Mrs. Webster put out flames after a gasoline stove exploded, first tossing the gasoline tank from the house and then the stove. She was injured only slightly then, her husband said. The Websters were renting the B. F. Foster place, eight miles southeast of Sudan.

Could Have Escaped

According to the story told her husband, Mrs. Webster lighted the oil burner in a heating stove in

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—Captain Frank M. Hawks announced today he would take off at 4 a. m. tomorrow in an effort to bridge three countries in a day by flying from Agua Caliente, Mexico, to Vancouver and return.

The speed disciple said he would stop at San Francisco and Portland on his way up and en route back to clear customs and take on fuel. The round trip distance is approximately 2,600 miles and Hawks said he hopes to complete it in about 14 hours. He will use his Texaco 13 monoplane with which he has established scores of inter-city records in the United States, Europe and Canada.

If Hawks completes this newest record flight he will be able to have breakfast in Mexico, lunch in Canada and dinner back in Mexico.

Two-Day Search For Missing Flier Ends At Private Port

DALLAS, Jan. 22. (AP)—While planes were conducting a two-day search in the rugged desert regions of southwest Texas for Otto Graff, New York civilian aviator, he was resting at a private field between Fort Worth and Dallas, unaware that he was listed as missing.

Graff was located today at the Curtiss-Wright field. He said he was favored by a strong tail wind after taking off from El Paso Wednesday and flew straight to the airport without stopping at Midland and Big Spring as he had planned.

Torch Slaying Is Baffling Officers

Hand Of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd Seen At First But Officers Discard Theory

(By The Associated Press)

SEMINOLE, Okla., Jan. 22.—A torch murder mystery baffled Seminole county authorities tonight as the theory that a man shot to death and burned in a stolen automobile may have been George Birdwell, outlaw lieutenant of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, was abandoned.

Persons who knew Birdwell said positively the charred body, that of a man about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds, was not that of the desperado's chief henchman.

There was no dental work or other distinguishing marks and the body was so badly burned identification appeared well nigh impossible.

The automobile which provided the gasoline-soaked pyre was stolen from W. A. Weaver and Olan Sangster near Earlsboro Wednesday night by three men.

Similarity of the car to the one used in the Dover bank robbery yesterday, in which some officers believed Floyd took part, and a reported rift between Floyd and his lieutenant, prompted an attempt to identify the dead man as Birdwell.

Opposition To Tax Proposals Voiced Friday

Business Registers Protests To Administration Plan And Declares Other Ways Can Be Definitely Found

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Business registered vigorous opposition today to the administration-sponsored tax program, with the general policy termed "wholly unwarranted" by a special committee of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

The committee, in a report demanding drastic reductions in expenditures to help balance the budget, objected strenuously to applying the proposed increased rates retroactively to the incomes of individuals and corporations for 1931.

Burdens Described

"Unforeseen taxes for which no advance provision can be planned, are most burdensome and difficult to meet," the committee said. "This is doubly true of last year. No retroactive taxes of any kind should be imposed. Not withstanding the nature of the emergency, we believe other ways should and can be found to meet it."

Hostility toward a suggested five per cent sales tax on automobiles was voiced before President Hoover today by spokesmen for the motor world, while a representative of the tobacco industry opposed before the house ways and means committee any increase in cigarette levies.

Taxes Restrictive

The opposition of the automobile world to a sales tax was expressed to President Hoover by Albert P. Sloan, president of General Motors and six other leaders, who described

Chinese Minister Hacked To Death

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. (AP)—The Rev. H. Frank Chan, 40, pastor of the Frist Chinese Evangelical Church of Christ, was found hacked to death in the basement of his little brick church in Chinatown today.

The hatchet with which his skull had been crushed from behind lay near his body.

Apparently the minister had been engrossed in writing a letter in Chinese characters at the desk of his basement room. The killer had struck a blow, Chan had fallen from his chair.

Traylor Campaign Will Not Endanger Chances Of Texan

DALLAS, Jan. 22. (AP)—Leaders of the "Melvin A. Traylor for president" movement announced today that their campaign would not be antagonistic to that if John N. Garner, speaker of the house, if he chooses to run for the presidency.

Judge B. B. Stone of Fort Worth, Walter Collins of Hillsboro and other backers of Traylor, a former Texas banker, met here today and decided to expand their campaign immediately. They considered the advisability of holding sectional meetings to obtain a stronger organization.

Baptist Drive For Baylor Is Launched Here

District Number Nine Seeking To Raise $4,750 This Year; W. M. U. To Raise $1,250 Of Prescribed Amount

More than 200 Baptists of District No. 9 of the Texas General Baptist association were informed here Friday of plans to raise $150,000 this year of the proposed $750,000 debt and endowment fund for Baylor college at Belton. The all-day session was held at the First Baptist church.

Quota for the section, which includes Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, Swisher, Briscoe, Childress, Motley, Floyd, Lamb, Hale, Bailey, Deaf Smith, Randall, Parmer and Castro counties, is $4,750 for the first year of the drive. Of this sum the Women's Missionary union of the district will raise $1,250, their part of the $50,000 amount the Baptist women of Texas have pledged to raise in 1932.

Program Outlined

The Baptists here yesterday were told that the program for raising the fund included January as "information" month, February as "education" month and March as "realization" month. The active campaign of solicitation is expected to start in March.

The session here was very satisfactory, Dr. J. C. Hardy, for 20 years Baylor's president, said. He spoke both at the morning and afternoon sessions. Other speakers included Dr. C. V. Edwards, vice president and general director of the drive, the Rev. F. C. Rogers, Spur pastor, the Rev. R. E. Day, Big Spring; Miss Pauline Wright of Lubbock, the Rev. R. C. Campbell, and Dr. C. E. Matthews of Fort Worth.

Two or more years will be devoted to raising the $750,000 goal, of which $500,000 will be applied on debts and $250,000 on endowment. The sum to be spent for debts applies on buildings and equipment and not for any expense of running the college.

Extremist Revolt Collapses As Troops Pursue Insurgents

MANRESA, Spain, Jan. 22. (AP)—The extremist revolt in Catalonia province appeared to have collapsed tonight as troops played hide-and-seek in mountain passages to ferret out fleeing bands of insurgents.

Labor leaders told the Associated Press that Premier Azana's rigorous handling of the situation had been completely successful throughout this troubled region. High syndicalists said the strike probably would be concluded tomorrow morning.

Two Barely Escape Death Near Cleburne; Rivers In Widely Scattered Areas Continuing At Flood Stage

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Jan. 22. — Residents in the Trinity river lowlands near here were warned today to flee with all their possessions before an anticipated flood on the river arrived.

Observers feared that the river might rise to its greatest flood stage of the last decade as a result of heavy rains over a watershed already soaked. In 1908 it reached 52 feet and created great losses.

At 4:30 p. m., the river stage was 32.6 feet and was rising.

Two Barely Escape Death By Drowning

CLEBURNE, Jan. 22. (AP)—Rising flood waters over Johnson county tonight endangered property, made roads impassable and stopped traffic for hours.

Reports showed precipitation was general over the county and every section had a tremendous rain, causing streams to break over their banks and flood some sections.

Dr. and Mrs. Martin of Glen Rose narrowly escaped drowning when their automobile was almost covered with water at a dip near Bono, west of Cleburne. They climbed on top of the car and waited until farmers living nearby pulled them to safety.

Highways Blocked In Paris Section

PARIS, Jan. 22. (AP)—The Sulphur river, 14 miles south of Paris, continued to rise tonight, and it was feared highway 24 would be blocked to traffic. Trucks were pulling automobiles through high water.

Traffic was blocked on Jernigan creek, six miles south of Cooper, until the afternoon. Traffic on highway 5 was closed by Boisdarc

Former Deputy Is Dead In Shooting

SILVER CITY, N. M., Jan. 22. (AP) Marshal Jones, former deputy sheriff and undercover man for the prohibition enforcement department was shot and killed at the R. O. ranch near Cliff, N. M., today by Deputy Sheriff Ray Taylor.

Details of the shooting were not immediately available here. Sheriff John E. Casey and District Attorney Walton left for the ranch to investigate.

Officers said Jones recently figured in a fight at a Grant county dance which resulted in the death of a Mexican.

Help Of State Of Texas In Negro Voting Case Shunned

AUSTIN, Jan. 22. (AP)—Texas' official help in the presentation of the matter of determining eligibility of negroes to participate in Democratic primary elections in this state to the United States supreme court has been shunned.

Attorneys handling the case, which originated at El Paso, where a negro sought court relief to compel the local Democratic executive committee to permit voters of that race to take part in Democratic primaries, have advised the attorney general's department that help would be welcomed from any other source but the state of Texas.

Ruth Judd's Cold Nerve Is Intact After Fiery Words

Battered Luggage Is Shown In Court By Prosecution

(By The Associated Press)

COURTHOUSE, PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 22.—Winnie Ruth Judd sat, seemingly indifferent, in court today and eyed without apparent emotion the scarred and battered luggage in which the bodies of her two alleged victims were transported from a cottage here to Los Angeles.

In one of the trunks the body of Anne Leroi, for whose slaying Mrs. Judd now is being tried, was sent as baggage. She heard, seemingly unmoved, the fiery argument of her attorneys in an attempt to exclude as evidence a stained suitcase in which portions of the body of Hedvig Samuelson were taken to Los Angeles.

If Judge Howard C. Speakman's ruling, by which he denied stubborn objection of defense counsel to introduction of the suitcase, is carried out with respect to other physical evidence, the slender defendant likely will be forced to observe presentation to the jury of photographs of the dismembered body of Miss Samuelson, who was her friend.

Defense counsel, Paul Schenck, Herman Lewkowitz and Joseph B. Zaversakc, argued against the introduction of the suitcase in an attempt to prevent setting precedent which would allow display to the jury of other and more graphic bits of evidence bearing upon the killings. More physical evidence of such nature is available in connection with the slaying and dismemberment of Miss Samuelson than in the murder of Mrs. LeRoi.

Objection Overruled

Schenck argued the suitcase "contained portions of the body of Miss Samuelson, and nothing else" and was therefore "not inseparable from the LeRoi case."

The objection to the suitcase was overruled, after a three hour

Young Suspect Is Questioned

"Toy Pistol Bandit" Theory Is Advanced Here; Youth Jailed And Toy Gun Is Discovered By Authorities

Possibility that the nervous youth who held up the William Fletcher grocery at 1604 Nineteenth street January 9 is a "toy pistol bandit" loomed Friday with the arrest by police of a suspect.

The suspect, about 19, tentatively has been identified by Fletcher as the masked hijacker who took $28 from him at the point of a gun. A small toy pistol found at the youth's home here is said to resemble the one the bandit carried. Shortly after the robbery the victim said the gun the man carried was so small that he thought it was a toy at first.

To View Suspect

A pair of trousers found in a local tailor shop in the youth's name is believed to be the pair worn during the robbery. Fletcher today will view the suspect wearing the trousers, said Chief John Lemond last night.

The sheriff's department held two Mexicans as suspects in the burglary of the Hood and Strauser Lumber company late Thursday at Slaton. Two other Mexicans are sought. About $15 in cash and $15 in checks were taken from the company safe by Mexicans while other Mexicans talked to the lumber company operator about purchasing a post. Several pairs of gloves and overalls were stolen from a Slaton wholesale grocery Thursday night after a window was crashed out.

Murray Drives Along To Threaten Garner As End Looms For 'Straw Vote'

Roosevelt And Texan Still Favorites But Last Day Of Voting Promises To Be Hot

WITH Governor William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Oklahoma Democrat, running like a scared jackrabbit and contesting second place, held throughout the six day poll by Texas' own John Garner, The Avalanche-Journal's South Plains-wide "Straw Vote" turns into the home stretch this morning.

In the last tabulation, made at 6 p. m. Friday, the poll showed a total of 1,269 votes cast, with Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt continuing to hold first place, as he has since opening day, by the comfortable margin of 161 ballots. The poll will close at 6 p. m. today.

Governor Murray's gain in the polling between noon and 6 p. m. Friday was sensational. The be-whiskered champion of free bridges received 64 votes between those hours and thus whacked 40 votes off Garner's lead as he moved closer to second position. While Murray was picking up 64 new supporters, Garner received only 24 and Roosevelt 50. Norman Thomas, New York Socialist who has taken a firm grip on fourth place, picked up 9 votes Friday afternoon and appears definitely out of the running.

Although the poll has asked no expression regarding the prohibition question, no less than 45 voters have written in their preference on the ballots. Two supporters of Herbert Hoover started the fireworks on Wednesday by noting that they "will support the party's nominee if he is wet." While that was going on 4 other drys marked their ballots until the tabulation of Friday evening showed 39 demanding a wet candidate and 6 a dry. The totals, however, are not taken to reflect general sentiment in this section.

Testimony In Scrivnor Case At Houston Ends On Friday

HOUSTON, Jan. 22. (AP) — W. S. "Shilo" Scrivnor's murder trial was completed today except for arguments of counsel, which were begun late in the afternoon.

Defense attorneys offered no witnesses, contending the prosecution had failed to make a case. They were denied an instructed acquittal. Scrivnor was accused of slaying Mr. and Mrs. C. A. "Keggy" Jones here last August 31, but was tried only for the murder of the woman.

Youthful Escaped Prisoner To Face Charge Of Robbery

COLORADO, Jan. 22. (AP)—George Barber, youthful escaped prisoner recaptured at Abilene, was taken to the Nolan county jail at Sweetwater today after officers here had questioned him. Authorities planned to file robbery with firearms charges against him at Sweetwater.

Two youths stated that Barber Tuesday night forced them to drive him from Sweetwater at a point near Colorado, robbed them of their car and money and made them run. Homer Key, night policeman here, sought to arrest Barber, shooting him in the arm as he escaped.

Professional Extortionists Are Blamed For Kidnaping

DENVER, Jan. 22. (AP)—While police questioned a suspect in belief the kidnaping of Benjamin P. Bower, 62, a bakery manager, might be attributed to labor trouble, Lewis N. Scherf, head of the Colorado state law enforcement department, today blamed the abduction on professional extortionists.

Bower's whereabouts, remained as inscrutable as when, almost 72 hours ago, he was led from his home at the point of a gun while six other persons cowered at the threats of the abductor's accomplice. The kidnapers said $50,000 ransom was sought.

Human Beings Can Go Hang--Or Go Starve As Business Is Fattening On Relief, Pinchot Declares

(By The Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22. — Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania tonight condemned federal relief for business and finance while the government has "forgotten that distress is centered in human beings."

Speaking before the conference on governmental responsibility for unemployment, Governor Pinchot declared "I do not believe we have come to the point in this country where we are ready to admit that money is more important than men."

"Nothing about this depression is so deplorable and so un-American as the inability of our so-called leaders to think of distress in human terms. Their only genuine worry has to do with financial collapse. Their sole aim has been to revive business. Money first and men afterward. Apparently human beings can, as far as they are concerned go hang—or go starve.

"Here is the philosophy that lies behind the stubborn opposition to federal relief. Here is the indictment of the administration which refuses to sanction the appropriation of a single dollar to help the millions of men, women and children who are in actual physical dis-

Hoover Pays Tribute To Men In Congress For Devotion To Welfare Of Country In Passing Of Bill

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A new and momentous government plan came into being tonight to bulwark American business and public confidence with two billion dollars worth of credit.

With a minimum of ceremony and two secretaries as his only witnesses, President Hoover placed his signature upon the reconstruction finance corporation bill.

Almost as soon as he had signed the measure, the chief executive went into conference with Democratic congressional leaders whom he had asked to help him complete the roster of the corporation's directorate. Three vacancies remained and all had to be filled with members of that party.

Arkansan Mentioned

Harvey D. Couch, Pine Bluff, Arkansas, a public utilities executive was regarded in informed circles tonight as an almost certain appointee. He carries the strong endorsement of influential Democrats.

With a ringing chorus of "ayes" both house and senate today sent the bill to the White House. Both chambers of congress, within a few hours approved the report of conferees who had drafted the measure in its final form.

After it had received the signatures of Speaker Garner and Vice-President Curtis, the bill was given to two members of the house committee on enrolled bills—Parsons of Illinois and Campbell of Pennsylvania—who acted as messengers in carrying it to the White House.

Uses Two Pens

Mr. Hoover was waiting in a small room adjoining the Lincoln study on the second floor. He picked up a pen wrote "Herbert," laid the pen down, chose another and completed his signature.

Just before, Mr. Hoover had been in consultation with Charles G. Dawes, whom he named president of the corporation. Dawes waited in an ante-room near the main entrance, joking with secret service

Dalhart Stabbing Victim Improves

DALHART, Jan. 22. (AP) — J. H. Hogan was recovering in the Dallam county jail today from a deep knife wound in the right side of his neck, while his attacker, S. L. Criswell, of Anton, was occupying an adjoining cell facing a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Criswell, the father of Juanita Criswell, 19-year-old Dalhart girl who died in Hogan's apartment October 29 with two knife wounds over the heart, was held in lieu of $3,000 bond. He attacked Hogan yesterday after persuading Ranger Capt. Edgar T. Neal to allow him to question Hogan.

The attack occurred in the women's cell directly after Hogan had been led into the presence of Criswell, Neal and a deputy sheriff.

Hogan is under indictment for criminally attacking the Criswell girl.

JOURNALISM students out at Texas Technological college on a mid-afternoon visit to this office probably thought this an easy sort of life, to say the least. There is an indolence that overtakes a newspaper office between papers and at best the hectic sort of thing that picture shows have been in the habit of depicting for the last couple of years seldom occur.

Several times in a year there are dramatic episodes. A lot of the time things follow routine, yet most of us usually swell with a bit of pride when someone avers "I think I would like this work. It must be interesting." We may have been complaining a moment before about the very everydayness of it all, but immediately we start to justify the fascination. The age-old effect of flattery!

That visit, too, served as a reminder of days when our college classes in journalism used to publish Dallas papers for a day. We fondly believed we were publishing the sheets. I remember struggling for hours through a half-dozen heads one day and making a round with a feature writer, when I served as editor of the Dallas Times Herald. I believed I had done a day's work!

There was one thrill to remember in that trip. All alone, I was sent to get a story on the Texas Rexall dealers who were having a convention in the city. First one man and then another was called on and each one suggested that I go to the state president for information. He sounded terribly important to a genuine cub so the shock was almost too great when the president eventually turned up and was E. L. Robertson of this city.

ENCOURAGING

NOTES such as Carrie Chapman Catt sent out on her seventy-first birthday are encouraging. There have been other depressions, she tells us, and people have come out all right. She believes too, that what the world needs more than anything else is plenty of work for everyone.

Can't you remember a few years ago when these conservatives were sounding warnings about over-expansion and idleness and the curse of having too much too easy? And how we jeered!

The last thing I want to become is a killjoy and pessimist—one of these long-faced individuals who can see nothing good in anything, but this quarter century of experience that I am now drawing on leads me to believe that the busy people are the happy ones.

That is too trite to be repeated but most of us need to be reminded of that one thing occasionally to balance these daydreams for fortune and leisure. One day I stated in this space that idleness was the cause of a lot of divorces and it was not long until a woman took issue with that. She is older than I, she knows far more of court records and law proceedings than I, she is married and has a world of experience in living. Yet, I maintain that idleness is one cause of divorce because men and women who have little to do soon grow dissatisfied with whatever they have.

There are few business women who want to quit work and go home to live with their families and be supported by their fathers, even when these men are able to take care of them. Question any number of these working girls and the percentage of those who would retire if they could is going to be small. Money isn't the only consideration either, the actual work has an appeal even when it has none of the earmarks of a career that leads to fame.

There are few people who want a return of the days when women had to do the drudgery of the home—when the woman was cook, wash woman, spinner, weaver, seamstress, dairymaid and all the rest. There can be no argument for making slaves of people, but something to do is an essential to keep interest alive in living.

Church Hymn Book Being Modernized

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 22. (AP)—Methodists of America modernized their hymn book today.

A committee of the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant and Methodist Episcopal South, churches doomed about 200 old tunes to oblivion and considered new ones in their places.

After discussion, "Rock Of Ages," one of the oldest hymns, was retained.

Those stricken out include "Church Triumphant," "O, Come With Me," and "O, Perfect Life Of Love."

The committee, composed of ministers, college professors, and singers, reached decision after decision as one member played a piano and James R. Houghton, of Boston university, led the singing in a rich baritone voice.

Plainview Schools Seeking Recovery Of Funds In Bank

The Plainview Independent school district Friday filed suit in U. S. District court here against F. A. Blanckenbeckler, receiver for the Plainview National bank, the bank itself and the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas to recover school funds.

The plaintiff's petition sets out that the district had $32,308.98 on deposit when the bank was closed. The allegation is made that the money was illegally deposited, in that the bank had not been named the depository of the district's funds. The suit is for $27,000, the amount of cash said to have been in the bank's vaults when it was closed.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: JESUS AND THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

Scripture Lesson: John 4:9-26

International Sunday school lesson for Jan. 24.

General topic: Jesus and the Samaritan woman.

Scripture lesson: John 4: 9-26.

9. The Samaritan woman therefore saith unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, askest drink of me, who am a Samaritan woman? (For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans.)

10. Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water.

11. The woman saith unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep; whence then hast thou that living water.

12. Art thou greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his sons, and his cattle?

13. Jesus answered and said unto her, Every one that drinketh of this water shall thirst again:

14. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall become in him a well of water springing up into eternal life.

15. The woman saith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come all the way hither to draw.

16. Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither.

17. The woman answered and said unto him, I have no husband. Jesus saith unto her, Thou saidst well, I have no husband:

18. For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: this hast thou said truly.

19. The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.

20. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.

21. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when neither in this mountain, nor in Jerusalem, shall ye worship the Father.

22. Ye worship that which ye know not: we worship that which we know; for salvation is from the Jews.

23. But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth: for such doth the Father seek to be his worshippers.

24. God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth.

25. The woman saith unto him, I know that Messiah cometh (he that is called Christ): when he is come, he will declare unto us all things.

26. Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he.

Golden Text: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—1 Tim. 1: 15.

Time: December or January, A. D. 27 (see verse 35, harvest in Palestine coming in April).

Place: Sychar, in Samaria, near the ancient Shechem.

INTRODUCTION

On their way northward from Judea to Galilee, Jesus and his disciples came to Jacob's well close to Sychar and near the ancient Shechem, situated between Mounts Ebal and Gerizim. It was six o'clock in the afternoon, according to Roman reckoning, when Jesus, wearied with his journey, seated himself on the stone steps of the curbing around the well. The disciples went into the village to purchase food, and so Jesus was probably left alone; though it may have been that "John remained with Jesus and overheard the conversation he reported." At present Jacob's Well furnishes an abundance of good water; it is now seventy-five feet deep and about eight feet in diameter.

Christ went northward by the shortest route, which led through Samaria, the middle division of Palestine. Most Jews taking that journey made a detour to the east and went up along the eastern bank of the Jordan in order to avoid the territory of the hated Samaritans, with whom (verse 9) they had no more dealings than absolutely necessary. The Samaritans erected their own rival temple on the summit of Mount Gerizim, which, however, was destroyed about B. C. 129 by John Hyreanus, so that in Christ's day the Samaritans merely worshiped on the site of their former temple. Their religion at the time of Christ was not far from that of the Sadducees. They looked for the coming of the Messiah and accepted the Pentateuch as their Bible, but rejected the rest of the Old Testament. A pitiful remnant of the Samaritans still exists and worships where they worshiped ages ago.

ASKING A FAVOR

Sychar had a plenty of water, but it came from the lime strata of Mt. Ebal, and people then as now go much farther to this well to get soft water. While Jesus sat there a woman came with her pitcher to draw water from the well, for that was regarded as women's work. She is called "a woman of Samaria," not meaning the ancient capital, which was six miles distant, but the country of Samaria; she was a Samaritan woman. It was considered improper for a rabbi to talk much with a strange woman, and this woman would be recognized at once by the pure-hearted Saviour as a woman of abandoned character. Besides, she was a despised Samaritan; and yet he asks a favor of her! One of the ways to get close to another person is to do him a kindness, but a still better way is to seek and receive a kindness at his hand. Also Christ was longing for the woman's salvation, which was drink to his soul. "The whole incident is an acted parable of the gospel. The words of Jesus, 'Give me to drink,' are an expression of the thirst of God. Jesus thirsted beside the well of Sychar to show us that thus God thirsts for our recovery from our state of sin and misery."—Rev. Hugh MacMillan, F. R. S. E.

A WELL OF WATER, v. 10

"Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knowest the gift of God." "Thou errest in thinking that it is I who need thy help, when thou rather hast need of mine." "Thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water." By "living water" the Jews mean moving water, the water of a stream, in contrast with the "dead" or stagnant water of a pool or cistern or such a well as Jacob had dug. What is this Jesus is saying? His cure for the satisfaction of sin is a greater satisfaction. "The living water signifies the Spirit of God given to all them who believe."—Thomas Chalmers. "Where there is water, there is life; where there is life, there is water. The land is barren and dry where no water is, but even the wilderness may be made to blossom as the rose if the clouds do but pour their moisture upon it. Is not water, in its various beneficent manifestations, a fitting symbol of the divine life which flows from the heart of Christ to enrich the souls of the human brethren?"—Rev. H. Grimley.

EARTHLY PLEASURES DO NOT SATISFY, v. 13

"Every one that drinketh of this water shall thirst again." "Physical good does not satisfy a man's soul any more than intellectual truth and beauty meets the cravings of his body. You cannot feed a hungry soul with a dainty dish, enrich a poor soul with gold, or clothe a naked soul with lace and diamonds, yet thousands are guilty of the foolish endeavor. Our Lord feeds with immortal bread the hungry soul, enriches the poor in spirit with incorruptible treasure of power and peace, and clothes the inner man of the heart with a royal raiment of spiritual righteousness. Men can never be satisfied by any stream of which cattle drink." "But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst." "Our Lord is here distinguishing between two kinds of happiness, the temporary and the permanent. One satisfies for a time, the other continues throughout all time."—Dean George Hodges.

"TRUE WORSHIPERS," v. 23

"But the hour cometh, and now is." The time of man's freedom in the Spirit from local restrictions of worship was coming in its fulness, and had already begun in that very conversation of Jesus with the despised Samaritan woman, a conversation breaking over all bounds of formal religion, and leaping forth into the liberty of the children of God. "When the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth." "The characteristics of true worship are only two, 'spirit,' 'truth,'—heart, head, emotion, intelligence; the whole man going forth to lose himself in fellowship with the Unseen. Hence, Hegel writes truly, 'Worship is primarily an inward act of faith, the living companion of the ego with God!'"—Rev. George C. Lorimer, D. D. "For such doth the Father seek to be his worshippers." "Note the emphasis in this reply on the word 'Father' (v. 21 and twice in this verse.) This name of God, which we teach children to lisp in earliest years, came to her, it may be, now for the first time. The yearning of the human spirit is that of a child seeking the Author of his being. The seeking is not human only. The Father also seeketh great way off (Luke 15: 20)."—Archdeacon E. W. Watkins.

"MESSIAH COMETH," v. 25

"The woman saith unto him, I know that Messiah cometh (he that is called Christ." The Samaritans, though they accepted only the Pentateuch, based their expectation of the Messiah on such passages as Deut. 18: 15-20 "When he is come, he will declare unto us all things." The woman was confused. She was not able to rise to the height of Christ's sublime utterances; but she had faith to believe that the coming Messiah would make it all clear to her.

"I AM HE," v. 26

"Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he." This seems to have been our Lord's first declaration of his Messiahship, and it is one of the clearest he ever made. "No one before her had been so honored as this woman; not Nicodemus in the privacy of a personal interview; not as yet the disciples nearest to him in the narrow circle of friends; and not, of course, the Jews demanding his authority for expelling with platted thong from the holy temple its huckstering profaners."—Rev. Samuel H. Chesy, D. D.

While our Lord was speaking with the woman, the disciples returned from Sychar with food, and were surprised at his unconventional act, but had far too much reverence for him to speak about it. When the disciples pressed food upon him, he made the memorable reply, "I have meat to eat and ye know not. My meat is to do the will of Him that sent me, and to accomplish His work." Then he bade them raise their eyes and see the fields already whitening for the harvest.

SPECIAL LESSONS

"It is a significant fact that Samaria was opened to evangelism through the medium of a woman of low social rank and of ill repute. She was the latch of the door which Christ found ready for his hand."—J. D. Freeman.

The supreme interest and importance of this chapter lies not only in the conversion of the woman, but in the effect that her testimony had upon the men of the city."—Rev. Cyril Bickersteth.

Lamb Farmers Set A Record

Two Tons Of Dressed Pork Is Mark Set By Ten Farmers In Demonstration Staged With County Agent

(By Staff Correspondent)

AMHERST, Jan. 22.—Two tons of dressed pork is the record which ten Lamb county farmers dressed out at a community hog killing demonstration staged by D. A. Adam, county agent, at the home of H. L. Phelps, a short distance from town. The demonstration was one of a series which Mr. Adam is staging this winter as a part of his community program.

"We killed 17 hogs that day," Mr. Adam said. "There were two hogs that weighed about 550 pounds each and 15 that averaged 250 pounds.

Average High

"When dressed out, the average was 82 per cent or a little better, of the gross weight. Up here on the Plains we are able to dress hogs that average four per cent or better more than in any other part of the state.

"There were 10 families cooperating. We killed the animals one day and cut up the pork the next. I have been running these demonstrations since in November and I expect to get through about the middle of February. This one was the largest demonstration I have held."

Families participating were: Charles, George and Sterl Harmon, W. E. Nicholson, C. A. Pigg, Sherrod Tyler, Carl Simpson, Clyde Rhodes, Bill Wilson and H. L. Phelps.

The county agent has averaged two demonstrations a week since he began the work.

Eight Teams Survive Opening Tournament Rounds Here

Quarter-Final Games Open At 8 O'Clock This Morning: All Games Today At Lubbock High

Lubbock And Ropesville Seem Likely Opponents Tonight In Final; Ralls, Morton, Big Spring Run Strong

Eight strong high school basketball machines of West Texas and the South Plains bowled through two rounds of tournament play yesterday and last night and today will enter the quarter-finals, semi-finals and final games of the first annual Lubbock High school tournament.

The eight teams remain out of a starting field of 29 which reported to the Lubbock High and Texas Tech gymnasiums yesterday to play first and second round games.

By their superior showing in both rounds, the Lubbock High school "A" team and the Ropesville team became favorites to enter the final round. Lubbock meets Big Spring this morning in a quarter-final game of the first bracket and Ropesville tangles with Monroe. Big Spring and Monroe also showed considerable power in early games and made a pronounced bid in winning their second round contests.

Today's program starts at 8 o'clock this morning at the high school gymnasium. All remaining games will be played at the high school. A small admission fee is charged spectators.

Start Again At 2 P. M.

Semi-final games and the championship contest are slated for this afternoon and tonight. The semi-final contests will start at 2 o'clock and the final at 7 o'clock tonight. An additional game to decide third and fourth place winners probably will be played tonight preceding the championship frolic.

This morning's schedule and the time for starting the games follows:

Abernathy vs. Wilson, 8 o'clock.
Lubbock vs. Big Spring, 9 o'clock.
Monroe vs. Ropesville, 10 o'clock.
Ralls vs. Morton, 11 o'clock.

One of the most exciting games, made so because it was an upset of the dope bucket, was played at the Tech gymnasium last night when Ropesville drubbed Shallowater, a pre-tournament favorite, 45 to 33, to gain the recognition as favorite in the lower bracket.

Ralls Downs Sudan

The final game played on the high school floor last night was one of the best of the day. Ralls and Sudan entered the court with the dope bucket refusing to indicate the probable winner. The game ran true to expectation, was tied half a dozen times and finally wound up in a 24 to 20 decision for the Ralls Jackrabbits. The flashy playing of Arthur, Jackrabbit center, and of Webb, Sudan forward, featured the conflict, both sides putting up a fine defensive battle. Arthur and Webb divided honors, each sinking seven shots from scrimmage.

Ralls gained its right to meet Sudan in the second round game by virtue of a forfeited victory over Kress, the only team which failed to show up or to have a substitute. Sudan defeated Anton, 28 to 10.

In the top bracket Abernathy last night defeated Carlisle, a team which won its first round victory over Center Point, and Wilson took a 26 to 12 win over Meadow.

Slaton Fights Hard

The Lubbock Westerners, Team "A", overwhelmed the Slaton Tigers in a valliant battle at the high school last night to win 37 to 19. Gene Brown, Gene Barnett, and Robert Stone were important factors in the victory, while Foutz, Anderson and Alcorn featured Slaton's offense. Lubbock had previously defeated Hale Center, 49 to 9, in an easy game, and Slaton had won a 32 to 23 decision over the Bula aggregation.

Lubbock's "B" team had worse luck. After trouncing the Wolfforth team, 28 to 12, in a first round game, the local youngsters fell afoul the fine goaling of the Monroe club and went down before a 33 to 14 front. The work of Joe Lewis, Robert Hale, Reeves and Wimberley were outstanding in the "B" team's victory and defeat.

Abernathy and Carlisle engaged in a nifty scrimmage during the second round department, with Abernathy finally winning, 22 to 15, after trailing at the half. Peel, Abernathy forward, promises to be a distinct threat for high scoring honors before the tournament is over. He looped the basket for 14 points in the afternoon game after making ten field goals in the first game with McClung, which Abernathy won, 42 to 17.

Levelland Wins

One of the outstanding first round games developed when Levelland played and defeated Spade, a new school, 32 to 27. It was a battle all the way, the scoring standing at 14-all midway. Gano Tubbs of Levelland and O. Green of Spade were outstanding.

Coach Bill Stevens of Friona, former mentor at Big Spring, ordered his team to play a delayed offense once a lead was gained and the result was a 20 to 16 victory for Morton in a first round contest. Morton later displayed its strength by downing Estacado to gain the semi-final bracket. For at least five minutes before the half ended the Friona lads held the ball in their own territory without budging.

Tight Fights At Tech

With each team breaking fast with a five-man defense, the Wilson-Meadow clash mirrored workmanlike basketball, with the score of 26 to 12 approximating Wilson's superiority. The half ended 15 to 8 for the victors and the Bronchos appeared to slacken their pace slightly in the second half. L. Crews, purple forward, was high-point performer with 11 points. Mitchell, Meadow guard, was a constant thorn in the side of would-be scorers.

From the first shrill of the whistle, Big Spring's husky cagers outdid Levelland High school's aggregation in handling the ball, but the smiles the Steers wore when they first entered the scrimmage came off in a hurry as the quintet in Christmas colors forced them at every turn. Much of the contest was a pounding from one court end to the other. Although awkward in relaying the ball into short shot territory, the Steers gradually drove ahead by height and power. The score at the half was 10 to 5 for Big Spring; at the end, 29 to 15. Both Steer forwards scored.

Shallowater handed the Ropesville aggregation a scare. The game was fast and rough, a nip-and-tuck affair which developed a gradual lead for the favorite, Ropesville. A belated rally by the Salamanders fell short and Ropesville won, 45 to 33. Shallowater was forced to use long passes and the Ropesville team often cut off the ball or caused a tieup under the basket. Ropesville's teamwork was smooth, once the quintet found itself. Sixteen points earned scoring honors for V. Payne, Ropesville guard.

Losing to Morton, 22 to 16, the diminutive Estacado five did not lose the well wishes of the crowd and possibly would have turned the tide had its passing to vantage points for flips been better and several of the Longhorns had not let fly on the blind too often. The more mature Morton team earned its victory in the see-saw battle which was marked by long intervals without scoring and others of a steady tatoo that led to the net. The score was 7 to 5 for Morton at halftime. Oden, Morton forward, earned high position with 9 points.

Rice To Open Spring Grid Training On February 15th

HOUSTON, Jan. 22. (AP)—Football again.

Coach Jack Meagher's Rice Institute squad, the biggest in history, will begin spring training February 15.

Eighty-nine men were expected to turn out for the early drill on fundamentals and for dummy scrimmage.

The spring season, of some two months' duration, will give the Owl mentor information about the great mass of material he will have on hand. He will keep a particularly sharp eye on ends from last year's freshman team, with the view of strengthening his line at those points.

Meanwhile, it has been reported unofficially an agreement has been reached over Meagher's 1932-33 contract satisfactory to all concerned.

Razorbacks Swamp Mustangs With 46-20 Win On Friday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 22. (AP) — The University of Arkansas cagers swamped Southern Methodist tonight 46-20. The Razorbacks displayed the most versatile attack they had exhibited this season. Every member of the Arkansas first team hit the basket while the Mustangs were held to infrequent shots.

Brasfield and Murphy gave the Porkers a long lead early in the contest. Captain R. Johnson was a constant threat for the Methodists but his team was hopelessly outclassed. The Porkers led, 29-6, at the intermission.

Pat Malone Signs '32 Contract With Cubs; Johnny Frederick Returns His To Robins; Selph Not To Join Chisox

SANDUSKY, O., Jan. 22. (AP)—Pat Malone, Chicago Cubs pitcher, will not be among ball players contesting lower pay.

Malone today announced he had signed and returned his 1932 contract.

Johnny Says He Doesn't Want To Be A Holdout

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 22. (AP)—Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn outfielder, said today he was returning his 1932 contract unsigned.

Frederick said he did not want to be considered a holdout but the contract called for a larger salary cut than he had expected.

Selph To Refuse To Report To Chicago Club

HOUSTON, Jan. 22. (AP)—The contract of Carey Selph, former Houston, Texas, league, second baseman drafted by the Chicago White Sox last fall, was returned unsigned today.

"The terms," said Selph, "were more than fair. It just happens that I'm not going to report to the Sox. If they won't return me to Houston, my playing days are over. I have my business interests established here, and can't risk losing them by reporting to Chicago."

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. (AP)—Adolfo Luque, veteran pitcher, and Rube Bressler, veteran outfielder, were given unconditional releases by the Brooklyn baseball club today.

Both entered the big leagues in 1914, Luque with Boston and Bressler with Philadelphia as a pitcher. Luque's release breaks up the only Cuban battery in the major leagues, he and Al Lopez, Brooklyn catcher, forming the Spanish-speaking combination.

Star Quartet Is Unable To Miss Baskets

Sure Aim Piles Up Safe Lead Over Matadors; Tech Unable To Make Free Throws Good; Seed Is High Man

(By The Associated Press)

ABILENE, Jan. 22. — Simmons university sent a firing squad of four sharpshooters into action during the last half here tonight. Their sure aim from the outer edges of the court piled up a safe lead, and the Cowboys coasted in for a victory of 36 to 27 over Texas Tech, sweeping the two game series.

Seed, Neely, McCollum and Huestis divided honors in a spree during the early minutes of the second half that turned a tight ball game into a one sided show. At the rest period the Cowboys led by only 13 to 10, but they ran the count to 31-12 in the next round before the Tech athletes could collect themselves.

Two Complete Teams

Each side employed two complete lineups.

Seed led the victors tonight with eleven points, but his team mates, Neely and McCollum, were on his heels with nine apiece. The shooting from scrimmage by the Matadors was pitiful. They got only two field goals out of about fifty shots in the first half, and but seven for the game. They were better from the foul line, however, as they cashed in for thirteen points on twenty tries. Crews headed the Matadors score sheet with six points.

After 6 Hours Arguing, Schmeling And Sharkey Agree On Bout In June

German To Leave For Home Tonight; To Return In March

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Madison Square Garden got the heavyweight championship situation under sufficient control after six hours of argument today to be able to announce that Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey will fight 15 rounds for the title here in June.

Schmeling said that much himself several days ago, and all the parties concerned agreed, but when it came to the matter of signing contracts today several major differences developed.

ARTICLES SIGNED

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. (AP) — Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, and Jack Sharkey, Boston challenger who has been waiting almost two years for his "revenge," officially signed articles tonight for a 15-round title bout here in June.

Agree To Percentage

Both fighters have agreed to the percentages they are to receive, officially announced as the limit allowed by the New York State Athletic commission—37 1-2 per cent for the champion and 12 1-2 for Sharkey, the challenger.

The chief dispute is over the share of the fighters in the radio broadcast and the moving picture receipts. Sharkey agreed to defend the title for the garden in September if he won but Schmeling refused to sign for any except this one match.

Schmeling will sail for Germany tonight to remain there until time to return and start training in March. The German will be reinstated by the New York State Athletic commission, here as soon as an agreement to fight Sharkey, plus a $35,000 forfeit, is posted at the commission. This probably will be done next Tuesday.

Difficulty Is Aired In Suit

Divorce Petition Is Filed On Friday By Woman; One Man In Hospital After Stabbing And Second Is Charged

Alleged domestic difficulties of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wynn went into court here Friday with the filing of a divorce petition by Mrs. Wynn in 99th district court and of an assault to murder charge against Wynn.

The assault complaint was filed after the stabbing of L. E. Brown, 54, about midnight Thursday here. Brown was stabbed twice, once in the shoulder and once in the back. Wynn was arrested by city police and made $300 bond set by Justice H. K. Porter.

Mrs. Wynn asked the divorce on grounds of cruelty and also sought an injunction to restrain her husband from coming near her and their ten children or molesting them. She asks custody of seven of their children, who are under 21 years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Wynn were married in Colorado, Texas, in 1907, her petition sets out.

The alleged stabbing occurred shortly after Mrs. Wynn left the home of a friend where Brown purportedly also had been. The injured man, at West Texas hospital, told County Attorney Wilson he had been at the house.

Brown was received at the hospital about 1 o'clock Friday morning. He was suffering considerably of loss of blood. Continuation of hemorrhages led his physician to believe his left kidney had been penetrated by the knife.

Kidnaping Story Revealed By Man

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 22. (AP)—A story of being kidnaped in Wisconsin Tuesday and released near here early today was related to police this morning by Louis S. Campbell who gave his age as 22 and his occupation as furniture salesman for a Kewaunee, Wis., manufacturing co.

Campbell asked aid from police in returning home and officers said a long distance telephone call to Campbell's father in Kewaunee brought word transportation would be provided.

The salesman said two hitch hikers robbed him and took possession of his motor car. Campbell said they held him as captive while they drove to Milwaukee, then on to Chicago and finally St. Louis which they reached Wednesday morning.

Campbell said he was locked up in a poorly furnished room, was fed sandwiches and late Wednesday afternoon was forced to join the two again, in a car other than his own, for the trip to Kansas City.

Arriving in Kansas City, Campbell said he again was locked up and released early this morning after his captors had taken him 10 miles from the city.

Collection Of 1931 Taxes Continues; Ends January 30

Taxes are being received by mail and indications are that the collection of the 1931 roll will approximate 65 per cent, W. H. Carpenter, deputy tax collector, estimated today.

Because January 31 is on Sunday, the office will not be open, Mr. Carpenter said. Taxes may be paid until midnight Saturday night January 30, he explained.

The proportion of taxes paid this year will depend upon how heavy the mail payments are, the deputy said. Cash payments at the office are fair.

Large Senior Class Expected For Plainview High School

(By Staff Correspondent)

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 22.—A senior class that probably will have 125 graduates in the spring, is in prospect for the Plainview High school according to C. E. Davis, superintendent. Mr. Davis said that a total of 156 were enrolled and that he expected about 125 to receive diplomas.

Next year's senior class is expected to be considerably larger. "We probably will have about 150 from our present junior class to enter the senior class next year," he said. "Generally speaking, we can anticipate 40 to 50 seniors from the rural high schools, so that it looks like we will have somewhere around 175 to graduate in 1933."

Attendance this year has been good, he added. The actual number enrolled was good and the percentage of attendance has been above what had been expected.

Chicago Completes $100,000 Airport Union Depot

The depot at the Chicago municipal airport, above, has just been completed at a cost of $100,000 and is considered one of the most modern of its kind in the world.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. (AP)—Hearing of Walter J. Smith, 22-year-old son of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, on a technical charge of homicide was adjourned today by Magistrate Stanley Renaud in homicide court until next Friday.

The former governor was in the crowded courtroom when his son's case was called. Also accompanying him was his brother, Alfred E. Smith, jr., and Francis B. Smith, who was in Walter Smith's automobile when, a week ago, it ran into Harry Wallace, 59, who police said was crossing the street against the traffic lights. Wallace was injured fatally and, although police said young Smith was not to blame, the charge was placed against him as a matter of police routine.

Assistant District Attorney Max Weider told Magistrate Renaud that an adjournment had been requested in behalf of the attorney for the relatives of Wallace. Renaud continued the bail of $1,000 in which young Smith was released after his arraignment last week.

Use Of Winning Slogan Planned

FORT WORTH, Jan. 22. (AP)—Plans for use of the prize-winning trademark in the "Eat Texas Meats" contest will be made at a meeting soon of the judges and livestock committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, D. A. Bandeen, manager of the regional organization, said today.

James H. Lowry of Fort Worth, whose design was given first place, today was presented with the $100 prize.

Judges said hundreds of constructive ideas and striking designs were entered in the contest. "Texas Meat—Sun Grown," was the successful slogan. Choice of the winning entry was based on its simplicity, brief but pungent wording and its general attractiveness, the judges said.

The Honolulu Situation

REPORTS emanating from Washington are to the effect that none of the four Americans, now being held in Honolulu as aftermath of the murder of the alleged attacker of an American woman, will ever come to trial. And, if they do come to trial, the report persists, they will not be convicted.

Washington, the same report avers, is all on the side of the four prisoners, one of whom is the husband of the American woman assaulted, and another of whom is his mother-in-law—representative of a fine and honored American family. While that is condoning murder, to a certain extent, we can readily understand why Washington, as well as Texas, sees the situation as it does.

The man slain for his part in the brutal criminal assault was positively identified by the victim. He had been tried by a native jury which was dismissed when it failed to agree. Further, criminal assaults in which natives have attacked white women have become entirely too numerous in Honolulu and the authorities have not been able to cope with the situation. Attacks have gone unpunished until depraved criminals have made a habit of rape and naval authorities have frankly warned their men that Honolulu is unsafe for wives of sailors who are maneuvering in Hawaiian waters.

Just as an admiral declared after the murder, "American men will not stand for violation of their women." If the law can't, or won't deal with perpetrators of such crimes, then there is nothing for outraged citizens to do except establish their own forces of law and order until a house-cleaning can be attended to.

The Morning Avalanche does not condone mob action. Neither does it condone ruthless murder. We particularly point out that the criminal attacker was slain not by a mob, but by an outraged husband, mother and friends. We note particularly that the slaying cannot be characterized as "ruthless murder."

Sometimes conditions are such that, to secure justice, men must take the law into their own hands. To be sure—and we say it thankfully—such situations do not often arise. But the Honolulu case is apparently one of the few. There will be no criticism on the part of many good citizens if the four being held as the killing's result are set free without trial.

GREATEST INVENTION

What is the world's most important invention? Each inventor to his own invention, of course, but this is a question which invites a popular answer. Nations and geographical sections of the same nation hold divergent views on the subject and individuals are little nearer in agreement.

Does not the process of elimination confer this honor upon the wheel, a pair of which, connected by an axle, furnish transportation and motive power for most everything? The Morning Avalanche thinks so.

Without the wheel, modern civilization would be impossible. Mankind would be unable to utilize the power of water by means of the mill wheel, there would be no pulley, wheelbarrow, trucks, carriages, bicycles, railroads, automobiles, drive shafts nor power plants.

Had this simple and commonplace contrivance known as the wheel never been evolved all transportation would be by the back of man and beast except in frigid countries where the sled could be used on ice and snow.

It is difficult for modern man to conceive of a wheel-less world and yet one sometimes wonders who was the first man to discover the principle of the wheel and in what crude manner he first made use of that principle.

Perhaps some primitive man was led into the secret by accident, through seeing a tree, felled by his stone axe, carried down the mountainside by another rolling trunk. It is possible that a round stone was the Rosetta stone of the wheel.

In some such manner was born an idea to which civilization is indebted for much of its progress, comfort and elegance.

MALIGNING THE AUTO

After exhaustive study of the situation a Washington barrister has come to the conclusion that the automobile is largely responsible for the small percentage of Americans who vote. The public will accept his "conclusion" as a theory only for the reason that it recognizes in the argument an old but untrustworthy friend.

The Washington attorney may have made an exhaustive study of the question, but it is suspected his "research" amounted in the final analysis to the drawing of the wrong conclusion from the fact that as the number of automobiles has increased the percentage of qualified electors voting has diminished. The conclusion he jumped at is that the automobile, therefore, is responsible for the failure of the American citizen to exercise his right of franchise.

Couldn't he have seen in the same comparison of statistics proof that the declining vote is to blame for the increasing popularity of the automobile. Why didn't he blame the radio? Or the apartment house? Or the bungalow? Or the increased bank deposits? Or the movies? Or the flapper age? Or the rising wage scales? Or the increase in the number of eligible voters through the enfranchisement of women?

But the automobile has a positive defense as well as this negative one. In fact it claims credit for bringing to the polls a large percentage of the vote that is cast. No election day observer who sees the extensive employment of the automobile in transporting men and women to and from the polls will deny the automobile this credit. The vote is small, but without the automobile in this age of large election districts, it would be much smaller.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — The Mooney-Billings case continues to cause reverberations.

It will be recalled that Judge Franklin A. Griffin, who tried the two men accused of responsibility for the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing of 1916, long ago expressed himself as convinced that both were found guilty on the strength of perjured testimony; that all surviving members of the jury have admitted that they were misled and joined Judge Griffin in urging pardons for the pair.

Tom Mooney

The U. S. senate has finally obtained possession of a report by the Wickersham anti-crime commission's experts, describing how the alleged frame-up was managed.

WHILE no right-minded person will defend the framing of folk into the penitentiary, the motives for it in an occasional instance, like the famous California case, are understandable.

Mooney sympathizers have contended that there were interests in the state which wanted Tom Mooney and Warren Billings out of the way, and were unscrupulous enough to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the San Francisco bombing to frame them. It involved exceptional callousness of conscience, but not a puzzling callousness.

The policy which has permitted the pair to remain behind the bars long after the wrongfulness of their conviction became evident also is understandable, Mooney sympathizers say.

The pardoning power obviously feared to act in defiance of the interests which were actively and the sentiment which was passively responsible for the framing.

BUT, MOONEY sympathizers declare they cannot follow forensic mental processes, as exemplified in lawyers of such standing as the Wickersham commissioners, who, no having so gross an injustice brought forcibly to their attention, decided that it would not be to the "public interest" to have the facts disclosed—and actually did their utmost to hush them up, leaving Mooney and Billings presumably to end their lives in prison.

Being a state case, it is explained, the commissioners held that they, as a federal body, could do nothing about it.

"Why did they not, as citizens, if not as commissioners, at least have broadcast the information gathered by their investigators?" Mooney sympathizers demand. Anyway, it was not because they felt that they had not a right to do so, for Chairman Wickersham finally did do it — when sufficiently pressed by the senate.

WHETHER OR NOT the commissioners were unanimous in deciding to suppress the findings of its investigators is a matter of guesswork.

The record does show that the motion consigning the report to obliviation was made by Newton D. Baker. This course evidently was acquiesced in by Federal Judge W. S. Kenyon, since he was head of the sub-committee which conducted the investigation.

And it was Chairman George W. Wickersham who, on turning over the commission's accumulation of documents to Attorney General Mitchell, at the termination of its activities, suggested the desirability of secrecy as to the Mooney-Billings case—in the "public interest."

CAUGHT thus between the upper and nether millstones, when the senate, having heard rumors of an important Mooney-Billings report, called for it, the attorney general was driven to the expedient of pleading inability to find it—a not overly convincing answer, the lawmakers intimated.

It was at this juncture that Chairman Wickersham, sacrificing the "public interest" to save Attorney General Mitchell, came to the rescue with a copy of the desired record.

Practical Health Problems

SPREAD OF TYPHOID

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

IT is commonly understood that typhoid is now under control. If Chicago had today the same typhoid rate that existed in 1890, it would have approximately 60,000 cases of typhoid each year instead of less than 200. With that amount of typhoid, there would be, of course, a serious mortality.

But the menace of typhoid continues to exist as long as there are persons who carry about the germs of the disease and who do not take measures to prevent dissemination of germs into food and water where they may multiply and bring about epidemics.

In a recent discussion of the subject, Dr. James G. Cumming, chief of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases in the United States Army Medical Corps, pointed out that the last typhoid outbreak of importance in this country was due to just such an incident. In 1922, 400 people attended a church supper. Forty-four of these people developed typhoid and four died.

An investigation revealed that potato salad had been eaten by all who were taken sick and was indeed the only food at the table that was eaten by all of those who were taken sick. The dressing used in the salad was eliminated from suspicion because it had been boiled.

It was found that four women had prepared the salad, peeling and slicing the boiled potatoes while still warm. After the potatoes were peeled and diced, they were put away in pans covered with towels until the next day. In this suitable atmosphere the typhoid germs, deposited on the potatoes by two of the four women who had peeled them, developed in such numbers as to cause typhoid fever in 44 people who ate the potato salad.

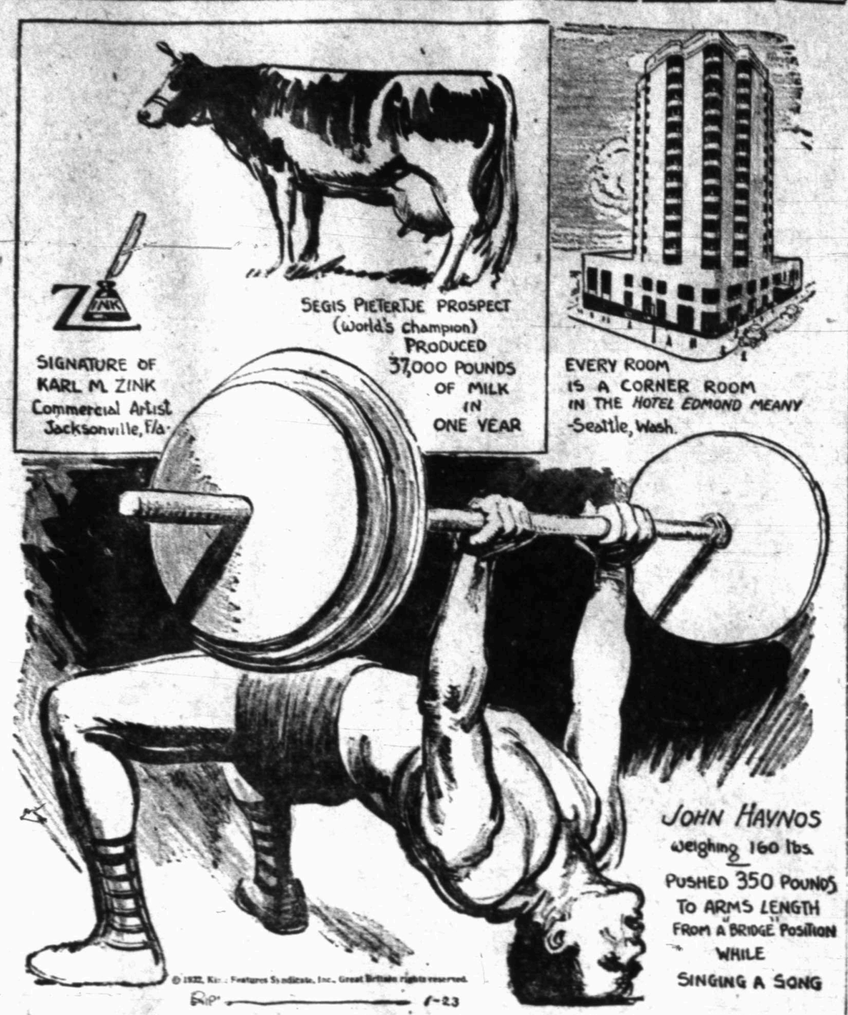

One of these two women had had typhoid fever 22 years before and in the intervening period there had been six cases of typhoid in her immediate family. Both of these women were again examined in 1927, whereas the epidemic occurred in 1922, and they were found still to have in their bodies typhoid bacilli which were eliminated in their excretions. Apparently the disease was spread by the contamination of the hands of the carrier with his own excretions, and the use of these contaminated hands in preparing food which was fed to people who did not have resistance against typhoid.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

GYPSY McBRIDE, 19-year-old typist in a New York office, is miserable when she finds that ALAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art, no longer cares for her. Gypsy becomes disgusted with her job and when she is criticized for carelessness impulsively resigns.

She accepts an invitation from her wealthy cousin, ANNE TROWBRIDGE, to take the place of another guest at a formal dinner. The party is a bore. She leaves to get her wraps and go home, hears a noise in the next room and opens the door to see a man climbing in the window. He is JAMES WALLACE, guest of the Trowbridges, who has entered by the fire escape to avoid the dinner party guests. Wallace tells Gypsy he has just been jilted by his fiancee. She admits she has had the same experience. To spite the girl he cares for Wallace asks Gypsy to marry him. She first refuses but later accepts.

They are married next morning and take the train for Forest City. At Jim's home they are greeted by his aunt, MISS ELLEN WALLACE, who makes no secret of her hostility to the girl. Jim takes Gypsy for a drive next day and they call at the office to see old MARK HARRISON, senior member of Jim's law firm. When they reach home Aunt Ellen has callers. Gypsy asks to be excused and goes to her room. The callers are two middle-aged women. One of them has just said: "But, Ellen, what on earth are we going to do?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

"Now there's no use taking it that way, Sophronia!" Ellen Wallace said sharply. "It's no worse for you than for the rest of us. Besides, if there was anything to do I'd have done it."

Sophronia Nicholson straightened. She was like a small, older replica of Ellen, dressed in black instead of gray. She wore her hair in the same high knot and when she talked she emphasized her words exactly as Ellen did. The two were sisters. Sophronia, five years older, was the widow of the late Charles Nicholson. Her son and daughter were both away at school. Mrs. Nicholson lived alone and was a leading figure in the Ladies' Aid and church sewing circle. She had been knitting but at her sister's words she put down the needles.

"Do you mean to tell me, Ellen Wallace," she demanded, "that you'd stand aside and see your own brother's son ruin his life?"

Lucia Wallace, third of the trio, broke in with "That's exactly the way I feel about it! Surely there's something—"

Lucia was younger than the others. She had been a Wilbur before her marriage to Ben Wallace, cousin of Jim. The Wilburs lacked money but their social rank was unquestioned.

"I tell you there's nothing to be done," Ellen insisted staunchly. "They're married and that's all there is to it."

"How're you so sure that they're married? With a woman like that you can't tell anything about it!"

"Sophronia—" Ellen eyed her sister sternly, "I don't know where this girl came from. I don't know anything about what she's done or been or why Jim married her. But I do know Jim Wallace is a gentleman. Oh, yes, they're married!"

"But haven't you been able to find out anything?" Lucia asked.

"I've found out that hse doesn't want to talk about herself. Always has a way of turning questions off so she doesn't give you an answer. You'll see when you talk to her. I tried questioning Jim but I'm sorry to say that for the present I am no longer in his confidence."

"Well, all this is getting us nowhere at all!" Mrs. Nicholson had taken up her knitting again and the needles clicked sharply. "What I want to know is what we're to tell people. There's a meeting of the sewing circle tomorrow and everyone there is going to ask about this marriage. What they'll want to know—and what I want to find out myself—is why did Jim break off with Marcia Loring?"

"And I've told you a dozen times I don't know," Ellen said emphatically. "As for what we're to say about the matter, well, I think I know how to handle that. When I said there was nothing to be done about what's happened I meant there's nothing to be done—just now. There's only one way to bring Jim Wallace back to his senses—"

The three heads bent forward and the voices lowered. Now and then one of the three nodded affirmatively. They sat there until long shadows darkened the room. It was after five o'clock when Gypsy heard the front door close and, looking down from her upstairs window, she saw two black-clad figures going down the walk.

The next three days were uneventful. Gypsy learned the routine of the Wallace household and tried to adjust herself to it. At eight o'clock each morning breakfast was served, giving Jim time to glance through the morning newspaper before driving downtown to the office. After breakfast Miss Wallace went to the kitchen to consult Harriet about the day's tasks. Harriet apparently was a paragon. She cooked and served the meals and assumed responsibility for the smooth operation of the entire household. The only other full-time employe was Sam Matson who kept the fires, took care of the yard and was handy at all sorts of carpentry and repair work. Three times a week Sam's wife, Cora, came to the house to wash and iron and do the cleaning.

Marketing was one task which Miss Wallace always attended to herself. By 10 o'clock she was out of the house with her market basket on her arm. Gypsy wondered

Letters To The Editor

Church Member Comments On Recent Editorial On Cannon

Editor, The Avalanche: Anent your recent editorial of Bishop Cannon and the unwholesome publicity to which he has subjected the Protestant faith, we are pleased to take up the typewriter in your behalf.

We fully expected to see some blood and thunder redound from this article also and were not disappointed. It is human nature to be critical and someone once said that there is so much bad in each of us that we delight in picking flaws in our fellow man.

To begin with I am a regular churchgoer and believe you will agree with me that each and every minister of the gospel will tell anyone that the Bible is the masterpiece of literature and few men, if any, ever master it. The ordinary man of the street has to buck a good many unpleasant propositions in the course of his week's work and on Sunday he dons his best bib and tucker and goes to church to renew his faith and inspiration in God. The day of appealing to his emotion is past and he needs and wants good sound constructive teaching of the Bible, not a political harangue by a man who is prejudiced and in all probability will only look at one side. In my humble opinion he wants to get away from the cares of the world and its problems and learn more of the love of Jesus Christ who died for the remission of his sins. I believe that every minister in Lubbock will agree that this message alone would solve all our problems. Why do our ministers rise in their pulpits to tell jokes and discuss prohibition and like matters?

I agree that our ministers are citizens and are fully entitled to all the privileges and rights pertaining thereto and I think that many many times they are unduly criticized for activities that tend to make them more human. Personally I do not feel competent to advise any minister as to what he shall or shall not preach in his pulpit, except that if he is thoroughly sold on the religion of Jesus Christ, he will find sufficient material for a sermon every day in his Bible.

We hear criticism of our pastors belonging to luncheon clubs and of golf playing etc. If the well ordered life of the ordinary man will permit of these activities we feel that the minister may also find time for engaging in such harmless diversions.

One constructive criticism we would like to offer along this line and that is that the minister get to know his flock better. Any leader dealing with a group of people will certainly become acquainted and endeavor to learn their actions and reactions before placing a program before them. The football coach must know his men intimately, the industrial foreman will know the potentialities of each man under him and I often wonder how on earth the minister expects to sell his wares to a man unless he really gets to know him.

How many ministers in our city alone visit each member of his congregation at his or her home at least once each year? We need the friendly advice and counsel of these men of God and they are falling down on the job. Personally I regret that my minister does not call at my home oftener than he does but that will not affect my church attendance or my contribution one iota. I can worship God by attending church whether a sermon is preached or not. A beautiful song, a prayer may be just as effective.

I am a person, Mr. Editor, who does not like publicity and for that reason this letter will not carry my real name. If it were not for unpleasant publicity and embarrassment I feel sure that many good churchgoers would rise in their pews and leave the church when the minister begins to speak on politics, prohibition or the whatnot of the streets.

After much wandering let us return to Mr. Cannon. He has done the cause of Christ an unbelievable amount of harm and good Protestants everywhere regret and deplore his outbursts. Is the church going backward in that they will ram something down everybody's throat regardless of how much protest is heard? It has been quite a while since I have read history but a faint memory of some good church folk trying to do "what they thought was right" caused our ancestors to migrate to these shores, seems to persist in my head. If ever we needed to forget our differences and draw closer to the feet of the master it is now. May we all work for the ongoing of the kingdom.

Sincerely yours,

H. E. M.

Millions Will Soon Be Spent

Actual Expenditure Of Funds Left By Julius Rosenwald Will End In 15 Years; All Humanity To Benefit

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. (AP)—Humanity may benefit from the philanthropies of Julius Rosenwald for generations to come but the actual expenditure of his millions will be ended in 15 years—ten less than the maximum specified by the merchant prince.

Thus will the cardinal principle of the great philanthropist, who was militantly opposed to the dead hand in philanthropy," be carried out.

This was disclosed today by Edwin R. Embree, president of the $30,000,000 Julius Rosenwald fund.

Embree also made public a list of Mr. Rosenwald's gifts since 1910. They total in excess of $70,000,000 and include a number not heretofore made public.

Based on estimates of the estate, Embree figured the late Chicago merchant gave away four times as much to humanity as he left his heirs. Benefactions knew no bounds of race, religion or origin.

Embree characterized Rosenwald as not only a liberal giver, but a careful and courageous giver. "Strange though it may sound," the foundation president said, "it takes courage to give away money in large amounts."

While the present generation may view Mr. Rosenwald as a philanthropist and give heed to the benefactions wrought by his money, the generations to come, Embree believes, probably will remember him for the philosophy of philanthropy he so ardently practiced and preached.

Search For Mate Being Made Here

The three months search by Mrs. Amey Armstrong, wife of Dick Armstrong, 58, a cook and dishwasher who disappeared from near Wellington, Texas, October 15, last, may end in Lubbock, if her husband, whom she has traced here, is located. Armstrong was ill when he left his wife at Wellington and she is afraid he is not being cared for.

Armstrong, she says was told by police in Amarillo, was in Lubbock or vicinity. She came here about a week ago and located him. Then she went to Big Spring on a tip he was there and returned last night. Meantime Armstrong is said to have worked as a dishwasher night before last, in a Lubbock restaurant.

His description is that of a man with light colored hair and grey eyes. He wore gray clothing when last seen by his wife.

Mrs. Armstrong is stopping at the Lubbock hotel. She says she would appreciate any word about him and his whereabouts.

How To Relieve Headaches In Three Minutes

When you have one of those violent, nerve-racking headaches, from inorganic causes, you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B.C.," a reliable, pleasant acting remedy.

"B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time.

"B. C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, common colds and neuralgia; for reducing fever and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B. C." wherever drugs are sold in 10c and 25c packages. (Adv.)

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

why she carried the cumbersome basket. Almost always the purchases were sent home. Miss Wallace, however, clung to traditions.

Gypsy was not bold enough to ask if she might be included in these expeditions and Miss Wallace did not invite her. Before the older woman's energetic efficiency Gypsy writhed. She was torn between eagerness for something to do to pass the time and fear that anything she might attempt would fail to pass Miss Wallace's critical eye.

There was the time she found a mending basket on the davenport in the living room. On top was a pair of Jim's socks, the heels worn and in need of mending. Gypsy rummaged in the basket for thread of the right color, found it and set to work. She had never done much sewing. Her needle wove through the threads clumsily and for more than half an hour she bent over the sock. When completed the darned place was thick and slightly drawn. Gypsy eyed it with dissatisfaction and tried to make the next darn smoother.

After she had finished Gypsy returned the socks to the basket and picked up a magazine. She was in the midst of a story and had forgotten the mending when Miss Wallace entered the room. She saw the older woman pick up the sewing basket, draw one of the mended socks over her hand and frown.

Gypsy quickly looked down at the page before her. Her cheeks were burning. When she glanced up again Miss Wallace had gone from the room. The socks were no longer in the basket.

It was discouraging and after that Gypsy did not volunteer to assist with the mending. She spent a good part of each morning in her room. She went through her own wardrobe, making repairs that had long been put off. It was possible, she found, to spend long stretches of time before the mirror trying new ways of arranging her hair or achieving a glossy manicure. The hours passed but they were lonesome.

Afternoons were the dreariest. Luncheon was over by 1:30 and it was five o'clock or later before Jim arrived. Gypsy acquired the habit of taking a walk, with Pat for company, each afternoon. She enjoyed exploring streets with no idea where they might lead, and wandered far away from the neighborhood of the Wallace home. Pat, trotting along beside her, seemed to enjoy their excursions as much as the girl.

They were returning from such a walk on Friday when the dog suddenly whirled with such force that the leash fell from Gypsy's hand. She turned to see him flying at full speed across a yard.

"Pat!" the girl called. "Pat—come back here!"

There was no sign that the terrier heard.

"Pat!" Gypsy cried louder. Now she could see what had excited the dog. Half way up the trunk of a tree the bushy tail of a squirrel was visible, then disappeared.

The dog was at the base of the tree leaping and barking furiously. Gypsy ran forward. She tried to get the leash but it was several moments before she had it. The squirrel sitting on a branch over head, had turned and was looking down at them. He chattered and scolded shrilly.

Gypsy tugged at the leather strap that the terrier held back. She coaxed and pled. It required all the girl's will power and a good deal of force before she could drag him, still unwilling, back to the sidewalk. The squirrel's shrill insolence followed them.

The girl sank to her knees beside the dog. "You mustn't chase squirrels, Pat," she told him reproachfully. "Don't you know that? You mustn't run away from me when we go on walks or I'll have to leave you home. That's what I'll have to do!"

Pat's ears drooped with the knowledge that he was being scolded but one shining, black eye still watched the squirrel.

"You're not paying any attention ..." Gypsy began and stopped. Standing beside her, with breath coming in great gasps as though he had been running, was a small red figure.

"Did he get the thquirrel?" puffed the newcomer.

Gypsy shook her head. "No," she said, "he didn't."

The little fellow might have been four years old. The rid knitted suit enveloped him completely. He had blue eyes and a bit of brown hair showing beneath the edge of the red cap. His nose and cheeks were nearly as crimson as his costume. The eyes just then were big with excitement. He looked first at Gypsy, then down at the fox terrier.

"Well," said the youngster, "I'm glad. Ol' thquirrel can run fath, can't he?"

"He certainly can," Gypsy agreed. "Pat was a bad dog to chase a nice little squirrel. I've been telling him he must never do it any more."

"Bad dog," the child echoed after her. He stared at Pat for a moment then reached forward cautiously and touched the dog's head. The terrier endured this complacently.

"He won't hurt you," Gypsy said. "He's really a good dog except when he runs away and chases squirrels. That's right. Rub his head. Pat loves to have his head rubbed."

"Ith hith name Pat?" the child demanded.

Gypsy nodded.

"Buth thath's my name!" the child told her. "I'm Pat!"

"Really? Then I think you two should be friends. Here, Pat"—Gypsy raised the dog's right fore paw—"shake hands with this little boy. Now then, you're acquainted!"

The child was delighted. When he laughed he wrinkled his nose in a way that was irresistible. The terrier responded to the general good humor and wagged his tail.

"I haven't got a dog," the boy announced, "but I've got a theooter!"

"That's nice," Gypsy agreed. "Can you ride it?"

"Thure! Ride it all the time. Only I can't today. I can't ride it today for a thpecial reathon."

"What's the reason you can't ride today?" Gypsy wanted to know.

Small Pat looked at her with perfect composure. "I'm being punished," he announced.

"Oh, that's too bad! What are you being punished for?"

The child studied the dog's collar, apparently preoccupied.

"What are you being punished for?" Gypsy repeated.

"I ran away."

"I'm sorry," the girl said seriously. "It's naughty to run away."

Pat eyed her with interest. "I think ith fun," he said. "I've run away today too."

If she wanted to scold him she couldn't have done so. The little face was so artless and free of guilt.

"Well," said Gypsy, "I think in that case we'd better be starting home. Don't you think so? Where do you live?"

"Oh—down that way."

He pointed in the direction of the Wallace home.

"That's fine," the girl told him. "That's where Pat and I live too."

They walked slowly. Gypsy would have taken the child's hand but he drew away independently. He was eager to talk, though, and chattered and asked questions. Small Pat announced that he had an electric train, that last summer he had been to the sea shore and that his father could wiggle his ears.

He was a diverting companion. Half a block from the Wallace home the small boy stopped before the walk leading to a brick bungalow.

"Thith ith my houth," he said. "Want to come in?"

Gypsy smiled and shook her head. "Not today," she said. "Some other time. We ought to see each other often because we're neighbors. See that white house down there? That's where Pat and I live."

The child stared. "Down there?" he asked pointing.

Gypsy nodded.

The boy clapped one hand over his mouth and drew back. "Oh—!" he exclaimed, his eyes widening. "Oh, are you the New York woman?"

"Why—I don't know," the girl said. "I used to live in New York."

The child drew away further. "Thath who you are," he said with conviction. "The New York woman. My mother thaid she wouldn't thpeak to you!" He turned, frightened, and fled toward the house.

The little fox terrier, running ahead, turned impatiently half a dozen times waiting for Gypsy to catch up with him on the remainder of the walk home.

Two hours later at the dinner table Ellen Wallace announced her ultimatum.

Stocks Tumble Into Squall Of Sales And Net Decline Is rgest Of Year

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. (AP) — Stocks stumbled into a squall of selling toward the close today and retreated so swiftly that the net decline in the averages was the largest of the year.

The reaction coincided with Chicago advices that the railroad conference was likely to be prolonged by labor's demand for priority of action on its employment program. Professional operators, set for a prompt conclusion of the conferences perhaps over this week-end, promptly sold the market. Profit-taking was an important factor in the decline, but undoubtedly substantial short lines were also put out. It was notable that most active selling was not in the rails, but in other groups.

Rail stocks had been trying vainly to pilot other groups into a rally and had themselves been 1 to 2 points higher without, however, any notable success in attracting support to the industrials or utilities. Trading remained anchored to the recent snail's pace until the late flurry when activity increased. Transactions in all amounted to 1,561,513 shares.

court recess during which opposing counsel consulted authorities.

The defense made no objection to introduction of a large black trunk, in which the body of Mrs. LeRoi tacitly was admitted to have been found in Los Angeles, or of a hat box, which when discovered by police in Los Angeles, contained a pistol. Both were identified by various witnesses as having been taken to the train in Phoenix by Mrs. Judd, October 18, and to have been abandoned by her in Los Angeles the next day.

State Plunges On

The slayings, the state charges were perpetrated on or about October 16, at 2929 N. Second street, Phoenix, where Mrs. LeRoi, x-ray technician, and Miss Samuelson, invalid former school teacher, lived alone.

The state, plunging ahead rapidly once more after the defense barrage of technicalities had threatened for a time to halt its advance picked up its testimony where it left off yesterday. Witnesses traced the receptacles containing the bodies of Mrs. Judd's one-time friends from Phoenix to Los Angeles, leading up to the stories of Arthur B Anderson, district passenger agent of the Southern Pacific in Los Angeles, and Stella Conley, negress, employed as a maid in the Los Angeles Southern Pacific station.

Anderson observed the opening of Mrs. Judd's two trunks by police on the afternoon of October 19, with consequent discovery of a human body and portions of another. The maid told of "keeping an eye" on the hatbox and the suitcase, with its then unsuspected gruesome contents, nearly all day October 19, at the request of Mrs. Judd.

"I tried to move the suitcase," she said, "but it was so heavy I couldn't lift it."

Charlie Kept On With His Labor

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. (AP)—A scene last night in a Chinese laundry:

Charlie Lee was pressing a shirt.

A young man with a pistol entered.

"Up with your hands," the gunman commanded.

Charlie's hands went up. So did the scorching hot iron, which left his hand at the same instant, striking the robber in the chest.

The robber fled, howling with pain.

Charlie resumed his ironing.

Livestock

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 22. (AP)—The day's trade in fed steers and yearlings was carried on a steady to weak basis considering the week's 50 to 75 decline. The general bulk of supply was quoted within a spread of 4.00@6.50. Liberal supplies and a poor demand continued at eastern dressed beef markets.

A fairly active demand developed in hog trade and values were quoted as strong to 10c higher. St. Louis scored the day's top of 4.25.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Jan. 22. (AP) — Hogs 1,000; truck hogs mostly steady; no rail hogs offered; top and bulk good to choice 180-240 lb. truck hogs 4.30; few stocker pigs 4.25; packing sows scarce.

men, until he had been informed Mr. Hoover had signed the bill.

Soon after Dawes left the White House, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, was announced. Others summoned to the conference on the corporation directors included Speaker Garner and Senator Glass of Virginia.

Reach Understanding

The three members of congress emerged from the White House less than an hour later. Beyond letting it be known an understanding had been reached and that the president would announce the full directorate formally, probably tomorrow they would say nothing and brusquely but good-naturedly parried all questions.

Soon after the bill was signed, the president issued a statement which follows in full:

"I have signed the reconstruction finance corporation act.

"It brings into being a powerful organization with adequate resources, able to strengthen weaknesses that may develop in our credit, banking and railway structure, in order to permit business and industry to carry on normal activities free from the fear of unexpected shocks and retarding influences.

To Stop Deflation

"Its purpose is to stop deflation in agriculture and industry and thus to increase employment by the restoration of men to their normal jobs.

"It is not created for the aid of big industries or big banks. Such institutions are amply able to take care of themselves. It is created for the support of the smaller banks and financial institutions, through rendering their resources liquid to give renewed support to business, industry and agriculture. It should give opportunity to mobilize the gigantic strength of our country for recovery.

"In attaching my signature to this extremely important legislation I wish to pay tribute to the patriotism of the men in both houses of congress who have given proof of their devotion to the welfare of their country irrespective of political affiliation."

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Jan. 22. (AP) — Cash grain demand, good.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads, freight paid, delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or group three points:

Wheat, No. 1 ordinary hard milling 69 1-2@69 1-2; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein 61 1-2@62 1-2; 14 per cent protein 63 1-2@66 1-2; 15 per cent 65 1-2@70 1-2; 16 per cent 67 1-2@73 1-2.

Delivered group one points: Corn, No. 2 mixed 42@44; No. 2 white 43@45; No. 2 yellow 47@48.

Delivered group three points: Oats, No. 2 red 24@25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. (AP) — Setbacks predominated in grain values today despite evidence of steady accumulation of May delivery of wheat by eastern financial interests.

Much enlarged outshipments of wheat from Argentina and Australia had a bearish influence, and so also did assertions that for months to come United States millers would be purchasing little or no grain. These assertions were based on reports that domestic stocks of wheat owned by flour mills were the largest since before 1927, and that stocks of flour on hand were likewise a record for the same period.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-8 to 1-2 under yesterday's finish, corn 1-8 to 5-8 down, oats unchanged to 1-4 off, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents up.

Junius Parker, spokesman for the Tobacco Merchants association, warned the committee today an increase in the federal levy upon cigarettes might result in a yield of less revenue to the government if higher prices curtail consumption.

Parker cited a decline in smoking during the last six months and said any additional tax burden would be passed on to the consumer.

NOTICE TO 'VOTERS'

It is not necessary for any voter to sign his name to any ballot in this 'straw vote', although he may do so if he wishes.

A vote may be cast for any person whom the voter considers worthy of the Presidency whether his name appears on the front page ballot, or not. There is a space on the ballot where the name of a candidate may be written at the volition of the person casting the ballot.

The part of the vote pertaining to supporting the nominee of either party may or may not be included in any ballot, at the volition of the individual voter. That part of the ballot is in no sense a pledge and is included merely for statistical purposes and at the request of Chairman James A. Farley, of the New York State Executive committee.

tress. Our government leaders have turned their backs on human misery.

"To my mind, a breadline is more shocking than a falling stock market. I would rather see a thousand millionaires lose some of their dividends than see a single laborer lose his job.

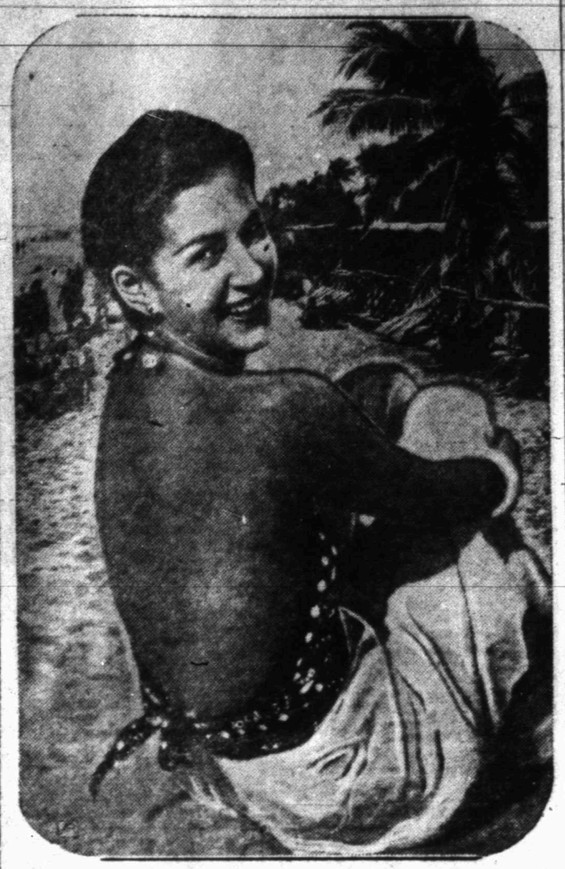

"I am not blind to the interrelationship between business and employment. I am deeply conscious of the importance of business recovery. But that is not our only task. There is a more instant need.

"While the banks and business are recuperating, men can not hibernate through the long winter of depression. They must eat if they are to live.

"That is why I am so emphatic in demanding a vast public works program, one which will provide men with jobs. That is why I am so strong for direct federal relief as embodied in the La Follette-Costigan bill, which will give the unemployed food and clothing, not eventually, but now."

Railway Unions Insist Upon Definite Answers To Points

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. (AP)—The railway unions insisted today on definite answers to every point in their unemployment relief program before answering the proposal for a ten per cent wage deduction.

All brotherhood and union men still in Chicago, including 800 general chairmen, jammed into the banquet room of the Palmer house and heard Daniel Willard, gray-haired leader of the president's committee, outline the position of the employers. He was vigorously applauded by the men and publicly praised by the labor spokesman, Davis B. Robertson.

Sheriff Says Slayer's Mind Was 'Far Away'

Ira McKee, convicted Dawson county slayer who died in the electric chair at Huntsville, January 8 for the slaying of W. R. Billingsley, seemed to have his mind "far away" from his body when he went to the chair, B. L. Parker, Tahoka, sheriff of Lynn county, said Friday. The sheriff was one of the witnesses at the execution.

"He talked a little and rambled about 'not getting a square deal' in his trial, but he didn't say in what way," Sheriff Parker said while here.

"It seemed to me that McKee's mind was a thousand miles or more away, just before he went to the chair. He was given a bracer and some water and kept on rambling."

Sheriff Parker, who is completing his first term as the Lynn county peace officer, said so far he had not had any opposition. He was a constable at O'Donnell and was one of the officers who guarded McKee during the latter's trial for murder at Lamesa in June of 1930.

Virtually all that remains to be done outside the building is the work on the yard.

Floydada Lights Keep On Burning

City lights in Floydada, ordered cut off as of Wednesday, January 20 by order of the city council, were burning last night as far as Hubert Allen, district manager of the Texas Utilities company here, knew.

"They were not cut off that I have heard of," he said Friday evening. "We have not been advised of any step of that kind, at least as far as this office is concerned."

The city council recently voted to disperse with the street lights as a matter of economy. The Texas Utility manager in Floydada was advised of the plans of the city.

An unexpected flow of protests against such action is believed to have caused a change in plans. The Floydada Hesperian of Thursday stated that the order was not effective at that time and indicated the action was indefinitely postponed.

When he did not return yesterday afternoon, the sheriff's department was called and a search of the section near his home last night was futile.

Knife Blade Removed From Brain Of Man After Period Of Thirty Years

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. (AP)—Linus Larson was happy today.

The 59-year-old Chicago resident was free at last of a two and one-half inch knife blade he had been carrying around in his brain for 30 years without knowing what was the matter with him.

The blade was successfully removed at the Illinois research hospital last Tuesday, it was learned today, by Dr. Eric Oldberg, who also cut away most of the scar tissue that formed in the three decades since the knife was driven into Larson's skull, presumably in a saloon fight long before the days of prohibition.

Physicians expressed hope that removal of the blade would relieve the patient of attacks of epilepsy which prompted Larson to submit to the surgical operation despite the fact he was told he was a "poor risk" because of his age.

He sentenced the boy to seven years in the state reformatory at Gatesville but said he would not issue commitment papers if Bennie followed the course of conduct the judge prescribed.

He told Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hurst, parents of the boy, that Bennie "probably wouldn't have done this if the proper example had been set for him."
