Hospital Election Called

Three directors will be elected to the board of North Runnels County Hospital District, in the regular election Saturday, April 7. The board officially called the election during the regular meeting Monday evening.

Board members whose terms expire this year are Roger (Spec) Robinson, Hollis Dean and Morris Robinson. None of these directors have been contacted to determine if they will be candidates for re-election this year. Terms of office are for two years.

Prospective candidates for the board positions have until 10 days prior to the election to file. The election begins with absentee voting 10 days prior to the regular voting.

Members of the board who have another year in office are Nelan Bahlman, Lee Harrison, Bob Browning and Brent Mikeska.

Rainfall Light First Six Weeks

Only 2.47 inches of rain (or moisture) has been received by Winters proper during the first six weeks of 1979, according to Roy Rice, official weather observer in Winters for the Weather Bureau.

Total moisture for January—snow, sleet and rain—amounted to only 1.33 inches. For the first six days of February, only 1.14 inches was received, in any form.

According to Rice's records, moisture was received on the following dates in January:

Banquet Tickets On Sale

Tickets are now on sale for the annual membership banquet of the Winters Chamber of Commerce, to be held in the school cafeteria, Saturday evening, Feb. 24.

John Jackson of Dallas will be the guest speaker for this banquet.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of the board of directors, or at the Chamber of Commerce office on West Dale St.

Runnels FB To Begin Member Drive

Runnels County Farm Bureau will begin an annual membership drive March 5, to continue through March 10. Plans for the drive were discussed during a regular meeting of the FB in the county office in Ballinger last Thursday.

Harvey Droll presided in the absence of Edward Bredemeyer, county president, and the group heard reports of members who had attended various meetings recently.

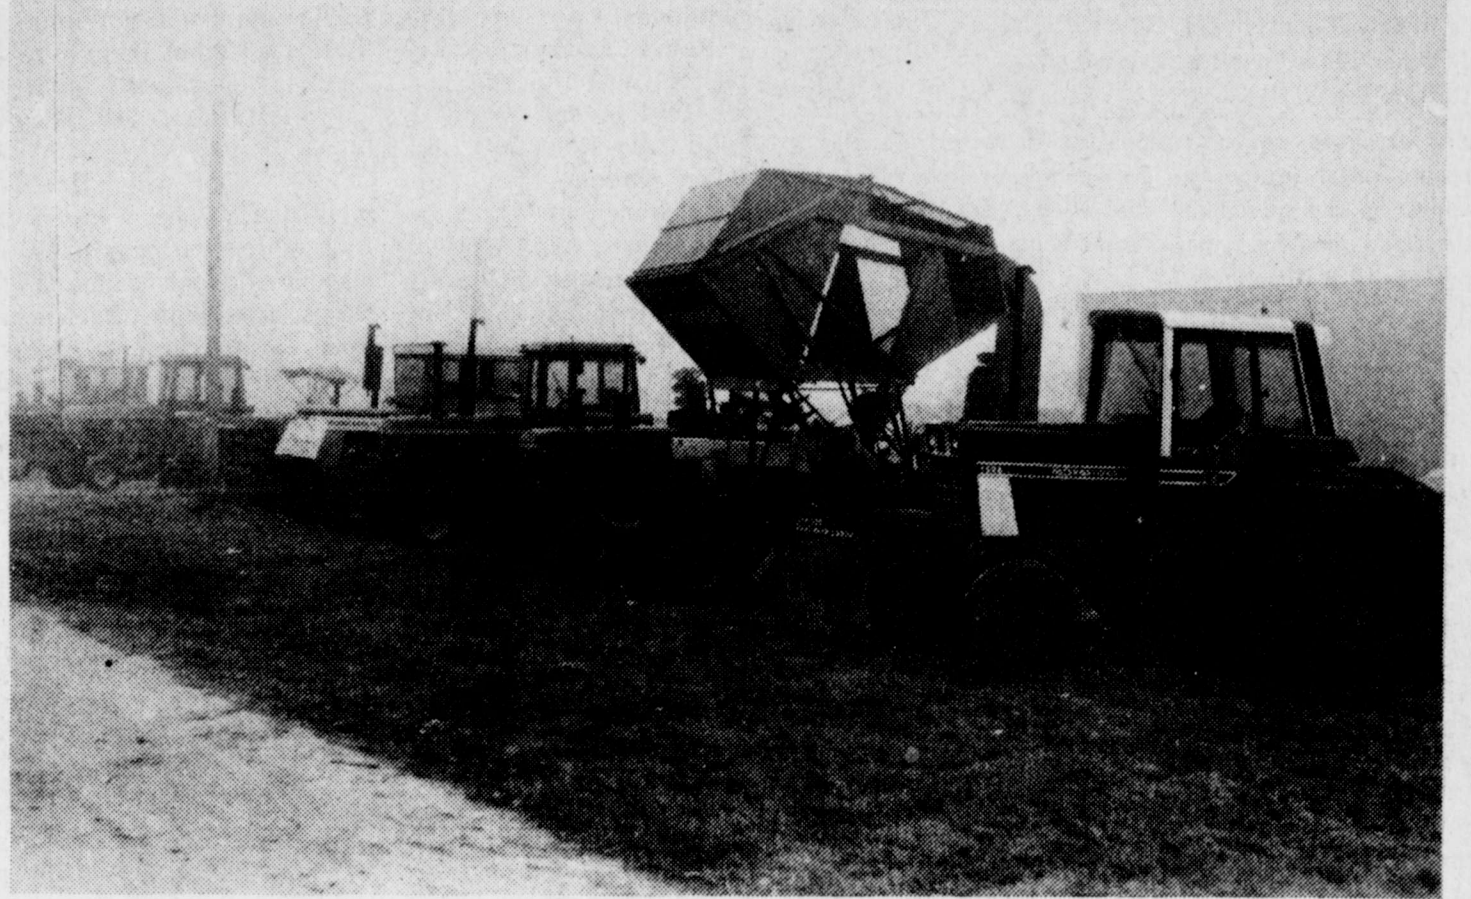

Hudon White, Jr., county Young Farmer leader, reported on the State Young Farmers conference he attended in Austin in January. Droll attended a State Farm Bureau legislative conference in Austin and reported a large attendance of farmers from all over the state, and said that most all of the state legislators were present.

Bank Account Opened For Mrs. Gary Price

An account has been opened at The Winters State Bank for Mrs. Gary Price.

Mrs. Price has been in M.D. Anderson Hospital at Houston for several days.

Contributions to the account may be made by check payable to the account, or by cash deposit to the account.

SUPPORT—Fog-enshrouded farm tractors are parked on the lot of the Runnels County maintenance barn in Wingate, as a show of support of the American Agriculture Movement protests now in progress in Washington, D.C. Wingate-area farmers planned the show of support. The group was to continue the immobile demonstration through Wednesday of this week, with coffee and doughnuts served at 9 a.m., and all North Runnels farmers, and others, invited to take part.

County TSTA Will Have Barbecue

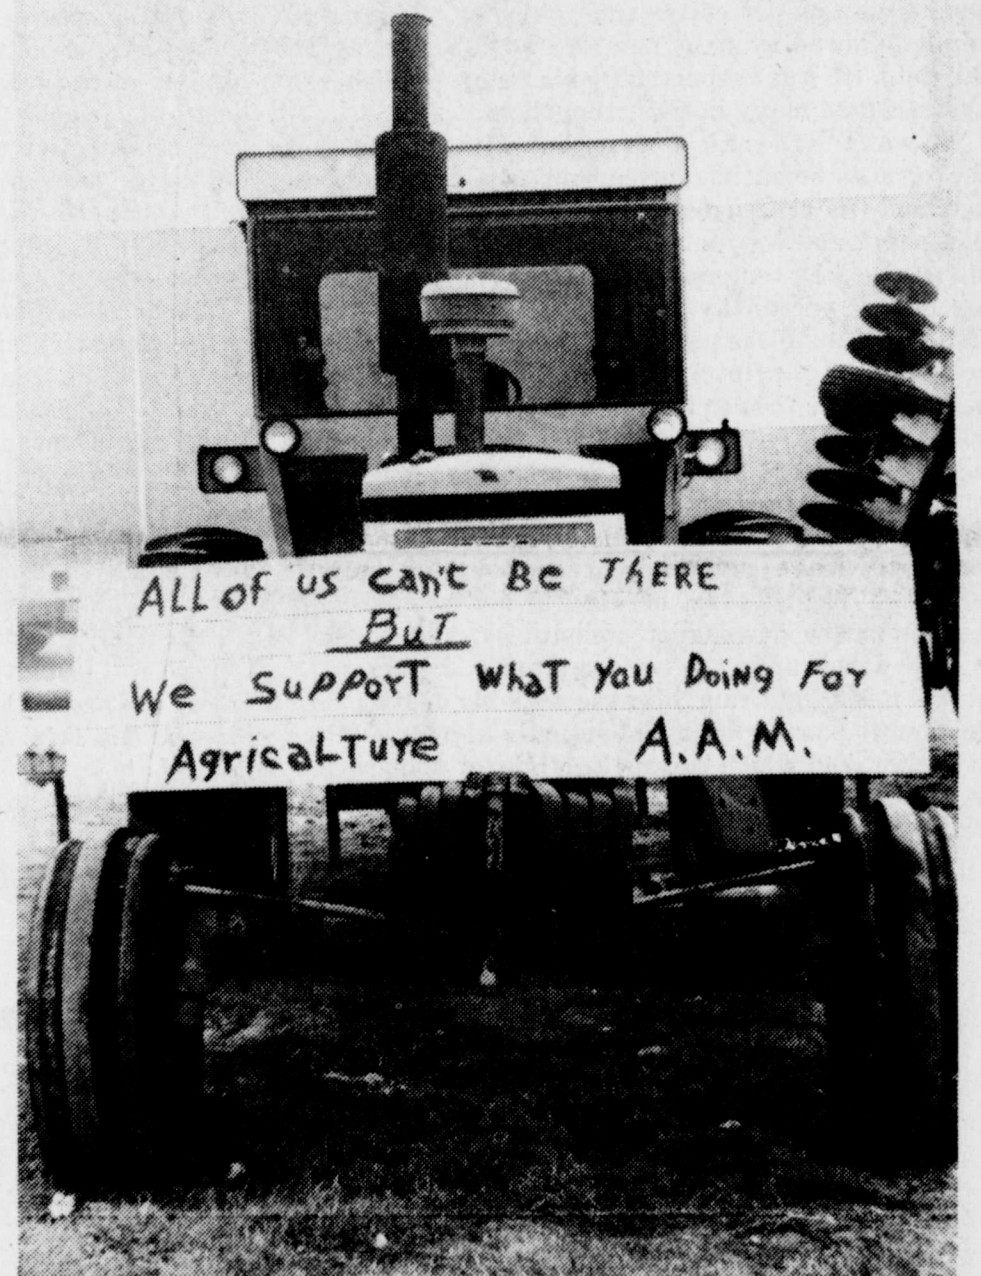

Runnels County Unit of the Texas State Teachers Association will have a western style barbecue Friday, Feb. 23, at 7 p.m., in the Wingate Lions Club building.

Dr. Rodney Short of Texas Women's University, Denton, will be the guest speaker. Dress will be casual, and all county TSTA members have been urged to attend. Contact Tonia Hoeflein, 743-6504, if attending.

Blizzard Band Boosters Meet

The Blizzard Band Boosters organization will meet Monday, Feb. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Band Hall.

The spring style show will be planned, and all members are urged to be present.

Freezes Hard On Streets

Added to the regular maintenance work assigned to the Winters City Street Department has been an extra load caused by the hard freezes experienced during the first few weeks of 1979.

Van Whittenburg, street superintendent, said many water mains had frozen and burst, along with countless distribution lines all over town. Along with the broken lines, which have caused erosion under the asphalt pavement on many streets, the freeze itself caused many problems. In many places, where water had run into cracks in the asphalt paving, it froze and broke up the pavement.

The Street Department for the past several days has been busy attempting to repair the damage. Whittenburg said he ordered 48 tons of "hot mix" asphalt material to patch the holes in the pavement, and when this arrived, employees will begin major repairs. Also, there are several places where the pavement has been dug up to lay waterlines; these, too, will be repaired as quickly as possible, Whittenburg said.

Meanwhile, residents have been asked not to burn leaves or other trash in the gutters; this causes the pavement to give way, requiring expensive repair work.

Several of the bad breaks in the city's streets are shown in the accompanying photos.

In Memorium

Roy M. Craig, 69-year-old retired publisher of the Stamford American, died at 11:20 p. m. Sunday in the Stamford hospital where he had been a patient two weeks.

I had known Roy Craig, professionally and fraternally, for the better part of 25 years, and had, during the past five years, enjoyed a closer relationship and friendship through activities related to the West Texas Press Association, an organization of which he was a keystone member and supporter. We were contemporaries, to be sure, having a similar background in the country—or weekly—newspaper field, in an era during which weekly newspaper people were required, by circumstances, to also be printers, Linotype operators, and jacks-of-all-trades, as opposed to present-day circumstances, with their photocomposition and computer systems and virtual "white collar" situations.

Roy Craig had "printer's ink in his blood," and as a weekly newspaper editor and publisher, was an example followed by many men and women aspiring to the field. He was respected by his fellow publishers, and received many honors from them.

He was a born critic—not in the "critical" sense as the term is sometimes used, but in a constructive manner. His criticisms were sought by his generation peers and by younger people in the field. And his advice was tempered with the experiences of a lifetime. I, personally, have sought his advice and criticism during the past few years, upon entering a new routine of printing and publishing, because he was one of the first to venture into the new methods which have taken over. And I always found that his suggestions were based on the experiences he had gone through, and were helpful.

Although he was not of this immediate area, his death will leave a vacancy throughout the entire section of West Texas, because of his influence in the non-metro newspaper community, and the inevitable effect upon the lay community. I, personally, will miss Roy Craig, because with his death I see clearly the passing of an era actually unmatched by any other, and which had such an impact upon society. Newspaper people throughout Texas in general and West Texas in particular have lost a fellow and a friend. —R. C. Thomas

"Triple L" Club Formed, Had Valentine Party

Fifty-two people attended the Valentine Party hosted by the Triple L Club in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church Monday.

Tucker Duncan and Flora McWilliams were presented as King and Queen. Selection was by ballot from a list of nominees.

Rev. L. L. Trott, former pastor, was the speaker. He told of the Triple L Club (Live Long and Like It) in Abilene First Baptist Church of which he has served as president since its organization six years ago. This is for Senior citizens age 60 and above.

The Rev. Mr. Trott said his group met once a month at luncheon meetings for a program. They also keep in touch with members through group captains who send birthday cards. A sewing group makes shawls, lap spreads, aprons, and pockets for wheel chairs and walkers.

Birdie Worthington modeled some of these items that Rev. Trott brought with him.

Music was furnished by a trio composed of Wilma McBeth, Pinkie Irvin and Tucker Duncan, with Myra Dorsett at the piano.

This was the first meeting for the Winters Club which was organized last month with Wilma C. Davis, president; Charles Poe, vice president; and program chairman and Tucker Duncan, secretary-treasurer. Group captains are Parrie Carwile, Alice Traylor, Rachel Seldon and Lucille Virden.

Nursing Home

Our Valentine Party is in the making. The voting on the King and Queen is a mad scramble. Everyone seems to want to vote for several different people. The residents have made some very good friends, besides already having a host of friends before they came to live here. In the news next week we will announce the King, Queen, Prince and Princess.

The birthday honorees at the February birthday party will be Ida Maud Davis, 17th; Esther Hill, 19th; Era Duncan, 20th; Georgia Moore, 21st; and Floyd Adams, 28th. The party is planned for Tuesday, Feb. 20, at three o'clock. Ladies from the Pumphrey Baptist Church will bring the program and refreshments. Friends and relatives are invited.

A number of our residents have joined "The Triple L" Club and have enjoyed boarding the bus and riding to and from the meetings.

May we extend our sympathy to the families of Juanita Cortez, Thelma Duke and Floy Montana.

Our newest residents are Loyd Compton and Eva Jackson. We hope their stay with us will be a pleasant one.

Says "Thanks" For Help After Accident

"Dear Editor:

On Monday, Jan. 15, I had an almost fatal accident. I fell off a Winters Construction Co. oil field rig derrick. My toes were cut off, my leg broken, jaw was broken in 10 or more places, my teeth were all knocked loose, and I received head injuries).

I sincerely believe that had it not been for my crew and all the people that were there when the ambulance came and all the people that helped after I was taken to the hospital I wouldn't be here now to write this to you. I wish to thank everyone for helping me through it and a special thanks to Earnest and Eloise Brown for taking care of my wife and for doing more than was humanly possible. I'm supposed to be released Monday, Feb. 12, and will always thank everyone that

Selecting Ground Beef

Consider use when choosing ground beef, Frances Reasonover recommends.

Miss Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist, is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Ground beef is marketed at three different levels of lean, she explains.

Ground beef with not less than 70 percent lean, which constitutes the regular grind, is a favorite for beef burgers, sloppy Joes, chili and spaghetti.

Ground beef with not less than 75 percent lean is selected for meat loaf, meat balls, tamale pie, noodle and rice casseroles.

Lean ground beef with not less than 80 percent lean is excellent for low-calories diets, beef patties and combination dishes.

Waist watchers will want to choose the leaner ground beef in order to lower the dietary fat in meals, the specialist suggests.

Tell Children What They Can Do

Tell or show children what they can do rather than continually saying "don't."

If parents don't want children to do something, they can react with "positive" instructions, points out Jenny Reinhardt, a family life education specialist.

Frustration, resentment, stifled creativity and discipline problems can result if children are continually told "don't," she continues.

Miss Reinhardt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Prevention in the "positive" form of planning with the child what he/she can do is a key to successful parenting.

For example, parents often tell children "don't jump on the bed," "don't run the cars on the furniture," and "don't write on the walls," the specialist says.

Children who have learned to jump, push cars and write enjoy tary fat in meals, the specialist suggests.

Broccoli leaves have much higher vitamin A value than the stalks or flower buds, a foods and nutrition specialist says.

Keep the leaves cool and moist and they will be palatable, recommends Frances Reasonover, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

these activities.

However, parents can choose the positive approach and provide "planned" opportunities for children to use these experiences, such as:

—Provide a jumping and bouncing surface for children by obtaining a used about-to-be-discarded spring and mattress for this purpose.

Locate it on the floor in a roomy area.

—A different and exciting way to play with cars is to run them on a smooth, wide board.

Lean the board on a box or other solid surface so it forms an incline.

Have the child place two small cars on the highest part of the board and release them at the same time, then watch the race to the bottom and onto the floor.

—As children learn to write and draw, provide an opportunity to paint pictures.

Tape newsprint on the wall at child level for drawing and writing—and leave on display.

After a few days, place a new "canvas" up for a new picture.

Poe's Corner

BY CHARLIE POE

THE DEVASTATION
Suddenly and with a mighty roar the storm was upon them. A red darkness enveloped them and the air was filled with stinging, blinding and suffocating sand. The Indians, realizing their blasted hopes, broke up the dance and fled for their lives.

The squaws fell flat upon the ground where they had been kneeling and covered their heads with their blankets. The cries of helpless children and little papooses were soon stifled in the onslaught of the maddening holocaust. The wind now sweeping with hurricane force, uprooted the teepee stakes and swept the buffalo hide and cone shaped wigwams before them with unabated vigor.

Here and there the sand began to lodge and drift. Small mounds were visible where suffocated Indians lay, and the sand had already begun to sift over them, their final entombment. The mounds grew larger until finally there were great hills of sand.

Throughout that entire

Miss Carter and Mr. Goetz Plan Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter of Winters announce the engagement of their daughter, Rhonda Kaye, to Mr. Mark Steven Goetz, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Goetz, also of Winters.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Winters High School, and is a student at Texas Stenograph Institute in Abilene, and is employed by Elmdale Airpark.

The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Abilene High School and attended Cisco Junior College. He is employed by Western Oil Marketing.

The couple plan a March 17 wedding in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Ballinger.

day and for a week afterward the sand kept coming, the wind ever blowing it onward with a fierce and unabating hot breath. Where it all came from no one will ever know. As far as the eye could see all this once beautiful valley of paradise had been turned into a barren desert of desolation. Not a sound was heard but the onrushing roar of the storm. Not a thing was moving now, for it had all been anchored by the sand. The river was fast filling up. Where once it flowed a beautiful stream of crystal, now it was a muddy channel. Its edges once marked by green grass and growing bushes were now hidden. Not an Indian wigwam remained.

Manawak, the medicine man, had long ago paid the penalty of deception with his own life, the same punishment taking along with him thousands of tribal innocents who believed in his lies. There was only a handful of the hardest of the bravest who escaped in some miraculous manner. Fortunate in finding a sheltered place in the midst of a dense growth of low trees they covered their heads with their blankets, shook off the sand as it engulfed them, tramping it beneath their feet, keeping themselves above the growing mound, until at last when the storm had abated, they were sitting in the top most branches of the trees which had protected them.

Strong as were the hearts of these few braves as they looked out upon this scene of desolation after the storm had passed, there was a quiver in their voices as they lifted them in supplication to the Great Spirit who had somehow and for some unknown reason singled them out from all the thousands of other tribesmen and had saved their lives. Scarcely anything of their former land was recognizable as they scrambled from their places of refuge and looked about them. The happy Indian village which had once been their homes were wiped out. Not a single pony of their vast herds was visible, nor was there any animal to be seen over this vast plain.

As far as their swollen eyes could see it was a vast Sahara void of any living thing. The river was now only a ridge of sand, and the hunting grounds along either side of the once mighty stream were entirely void of life and vegetation. Sadly they turned their backs upon the place they once called home. They dragged their weakened limbs across the wide barren waste of sand toward some unknown place where they might continue their earthly existence under the fear and worship of the Great Spirit who had proven to them his omnipotence, at the same time revealing the deception of one of their own race.

THE TRANSFORMATION
Many, many moons rolled by. Time passed on in numerous seasons, and the Great Spirit relented that he had wrought such a devastation, and he said to himself, "my punishment is sufficient, I will again change this land, making it once more what it used to be."

A new race of people began slowly drifting across this devastated area. Their faces were much paler than those of the former inhabitants. They brought with them their wives and children, some horses and a few head of cattle. It was in the springtime and the grass grew tall in the valley among the sand hills, while here and there little pools of water nestled beneath the branches of the few scraggy bushes that had sprung up since the great holocaust. But as the herds increased, these little pools proved insufficient. The Great Spirit whispered to the men to dig, and lo, they were rewarded with still more water which came up to meet their spades with refreshing coolness.

As the herds increased and more water was required, the shallow wells were dug deeper and deeper. Great tanks held large quantities of water, and mechanical arrangements of huge fans were set over the wells to lessen the labor of man and cool water slaked the thirst of thousands of animals who came to drink.

Next week: Greater Prosperity.

Farmers Must File Tax Return Mar. 1

March 1, 1979, is the deadline for some farmers to file their 1978 federal income tax return and pay any tax due, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Persons who earned at least two-thirds of their 1978 gross income from farming and did not file a declaration of estimated federal individual income tax by January 15, 1979, or pay any amount of estimated tax by this date, must file their return and pay all tax due by March 1, 1979, to avoid a penalty.

IRS Publication 225, "Farmer's Tax Guide," and 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," provide additional information and are available free from local IRS offices.

recognition for the remodeling of the building on North Main St. housing the station's sub-office, which was opened in December. Pam Connor, center, is the Winters representative for KRUN.

New Food Stamp Law In Effect March 1

A new Food Stamp law goes into effect March 1, 1979, that changes the way lost food stamp benefits can be restored. Households which have been wrongfully denied food stamp benefits or which have lost benefits because of Department of Human Resources' error, are entitled to be repaid for these benefits. Under the new law, households no longer must be currently eligible or participating in the Food Stamp Program in order to receive these back benefits. Households who have been unable to receive restored benefits under the old program because they are currently ineligible, from now through November 1, 1979, may request that these benefits be restored to them.

You do not have to be currently eligible for food stamps in order to get benefits you lost in the past. If you think this applies to you, contact your local food stamp office for more information.

Wheat and Feed Grain Facts For '79 Released By ASCS

The 1979 Wheat and Feed grain programs, administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), remain essentially the same as the 1978 program. Features shared by both programs include the following:

—The programs require that participants set aside acres from production to be eligible for loans for any crop other than sugar, deficiency and disaster payments and participation in the reserve.

—Programs are voluntary; however, farmers

WHEAT PROGRAM Objectives:

—To prevent an unrestrained buildup of U.S. wheat stocks and a resulting nosedive for U.S. farm prices for wheat.

—To maintain the wheat reserve at 550 million bushels, 15 million metric tons. This includes a 400-million-bushel farmer-owned reserve and 150 million bushels in a special reserve to meet food aid commitments.

—Eligibility—Farmers need to set aside an acreage equal to 20 percent of their 1979 acreage of wheat for harvest as grain.

If they reduce their plantings 15 percent from last year they can get 100 percent target-price coverage on all their 1979 acreage for grain.

—The loan rate, $2.35 a bushel, and the target price, $3.40 a bushel, remain unchanged from 1978.

—Change—The 1979 program provides no payments for the grazing out or haying of planted acreage. Farmers, however, may graze their 1979 set-aside acres for 6-months as in 1978. County ASCS committees will determine the

CORRECTION

In the article in last week's Enterprise on the new equipment proposed for the Winters Airport, it was erroneously reported that a "jamming device" had been proposed for installation. This should have read "homeing device."

CORRECTION

In the article on the retirement of Mrs. Nina Hale at Dry Division, Wallace Murray Corp., last week, it was erroneously stated that she received a watch from the company. This was an error; the watch was a gift from fellow employees. She will receive a bracelet from the company. We regret any inconvenience or embarrassment the error may have caused.

Barley: Barley producers need to set aside an acreage equal to 20 percent of their 1979 acreage of barley for harvest as grain. There will be no barley payments for diverting additional acreage. The loan rate stays at $1.63 a bushel, and the target price at $2.40 a bushel is up 3 cents from last year's rate.

DISASTER PAYMENTS

Disaster payments remain unchanged from 1978. Low yield payments stand at half the target price, prevented planting payments are one-third the target.

Corn, low yields $1.10, prevented planting $0.73; Sorghum, low yield $1.15, prevented planting .77; Barley, low yields $1.20, prevented planting .80.

Sign-up period of '79 feed grain/wheat/set-aside—February 15 through April 30.
