Assisted suicides

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Two more women killed themselves with help from suicide-machine inventor Jack Kevorkian on Tuesday, hours before Michigan's governor signed a law that will temporarily ban assisted suicides. Both women — the seventh and eighth since 1990 to die with Kevorkian's help — had attended a news conference with him 12 days ago to protest the legislation. The state's lack of such a ban was cited when charges against Kevorkian were dropped in the first three deaths he aided./7A

Texas band's theft

TOKYO — Texas Southern University's marching band turned a shopping trip into a shoplifting spree, stealing $22,000 worth of electronics before police retrieved most of the goods. The president of the Houston university expressed his "personal disgust" and said the students who stole the goods had brought "great dishonor" to the school. Japanese officials said Tuesday that the 126-member band was visiting Tokyo to play at the halftime show of a Dec. 6 NCAA football game between the University of Nebraska and Kansas State.

IBM plans to cut 25,000 more jobs, close plants

NEW YORK (NYT) — International Business Machines Corp., conceding that its orderly retrenchment has failed to reshape the company, said Tuesday it planned to shed another 25,000 jobs next year and further trim manufacturing capacity to cope with a worldwide economic slowdown.

John F. Akers, IBM's chairman and chief executive, blamed weak markets at home and especially abroad as well as technological change that has outraced his company's ability to adapt. Although General Motors Corp. has eliminated more jobs than IBM as the carmaker scrambles to cut its production costs, IBM's cutbacks are the most expensive in the nation's

U.S., French troops roar into devastated Baidoa

BAIDOA, Somalia (AP) — With a U.S. flag flying at the front, a column of American and French troops roared into this hungry and lawless city at sunrise today to expand the humanitarian mission into Somalia's devastated interior.

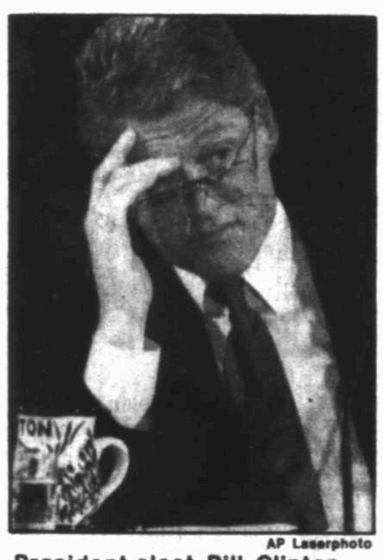

The 670 American Marines and French Foreign Legionnaires met no resistance as their 70-unit convoy entered the city, which has come to symbolize the horrors of Somalia's famine and civil war.

But the forces came fully armed to face the gangs that have bled relief agencies dry by months of looting. Attack helicopters provided air cover.

Hundreds of people turned out to watch the tanks, armored personnel carriers and humvees roar past alongside a ragtag parade of vehicles packed with reporters, camera crews and photographs. Some

Clinton rails at 'monster' health costs

President-elect Bill Clinton

■ Two-day economic conference ends with consensus on goals but not on tactics.

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President-elect Clinton, concluding an extraordinary 18½-hour conference on the economy, said Tuesday the nation must tame "the monster of spiraling health care costs" if it is ever to slash the huge budget deficit.

As the two-day conference drew to a close, Clinton heard calls for $30 billion or more in increased spending for a short-term package to create jobs and prod the economy.

'What we know historically is that presidents come in and they have a honeymoon. . . . You have a window of opportunity to achieve real progress.'

— Elaine Kamarck, political scientist

But he said he hadn't made up his mind yet on the size and shape of a stimulus program — or even if one was necessary. He said he would wait as long as he could to get the latest data.

Instead, Clinton sought to put attention on health-care problems, saying he hoped for action within six months after taking office.

Banging the conference table with his fist for emphasis, Clinton told the 300 participants that the cost of health care "is a joke. It is going to bankrupt this country."

Later, at a news conference, Clinton said there was not enough evidence to conclude that the recession is over or whether he'll try to stimulate the economy after taking office —

Affirmative Action — a national program aimed at eliminating non-merit considerations such as race, color, religion, national origin or age — was put into gear by Midland City Council Tuesday.

The council allocated $38,500 that will be used to pay interns as well as tuition reimbursement for employees and targeted recruitment beginning in 1993.

But it's the intern program that will get the first test.

Student opens fire on campus, kills two

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (NYT) — An honors student armed with an assault rifle he had bought that morning sprayed a college campus near here with bullets Monday night, killing two people and injuring four others before surrendering to the police.

Police said the student, 18-year-old Wayne Lo of Billings, Mont., lugged a modified AK-47 assault rifle through the snowy Berkshire mountains campus of Simon's Rock College and opened fire around 9:30 Monday night.

'Everybody sort of knew he hated everybody.'

A professor of Spanish and an 18-year-old student were killed. A security guard was shot twice in the stomach and remains in critical condition. Three other students were injured by the shots.

Lo, who telephoned police to turn himself in after the shootings, appeared in Berkshire County District Court on Tuesday with a shaved head and wearing a shirt that read, "Sick of It All."

There he was charged with two charges of murder, four counts of assault with intent to commit murder and four counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. After pleading not guilty to all the charges, he was ordered held with-

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press

Expect mid-40s, cloudy skies

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the mid-40s and northwest to north winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a low in the mid-30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a high in the upper 40s.

After an overnight low of 24, Tuesday's high reached 52, compared to the record high for that date of 76 set in 1977. The record low was 12 set in 1989.

STATE

North Texans were greeted by the season's first snow Tuesday as those in the West and South saw mostly cloudy skies.

In the North, residents got a little bit of everything. By noon, sleet and snow flurries gave way to sunny skies for most of the area. Highs stayed mostly in the 40s and 50s.

Skies were mostly cloudy over Far West Texas and fair to partly cloudy elsewhere. Temperatures were in the 40s and 50s with Amarillo the exception at 32 degrees.

Clouds remained over the southeast and the lower Rio Grande Valley. Rain dissipated, leaving many streams and bayous in the southeast at or near bankfull. Readings were generally in the 50s with 49 degrees at Beaumont and at Houston Intercontinental Airport. A high of 63 degrees was reported at Alice, Del Rio and Kingsville.

The South Texas forecast calls for clear skies today with clouds increasing by nightfall. Highs will be in the 50s in the southeast, 60s and 70s elsewhere.

In North Texas, today and tonight will have variable cloudiness. A slight chance of rain in the east tonight. Highs 42 west to 55 east. Lows 25 west to 38 east.

For West Texas lows in the teens today over central and northern sections and in the 20s and 30s elsewhwere. Highs today in the 20s north to the 50s along the Concho Valley and Big Bend River valleys.

NATION

Rain extended the length of the Mississippi Valley on Tuesday, turning to snow in the north, and snow also was scattered over parts of the Plains and Rockies.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended over the lower Mississippi Valley. Rain stretched across the central Mississippi Valley, eastern sections of the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

CUTBACK: IBM plans to slash 25,000 more jobs

history.

The nation's biggest computer manufacturer, once an engine of growth and an unrivaled success, said the job cuts and plant closings would cost about $6 billion before taxes, a sum that will be reflected in its bottom line by the end of this year.

IBM predicted it would barely break even on its fourth-quarter operations, faring worse than Wall Street had been expecting, and leaving the company with a net loss of about $5.25 billion for the quarter and a $4.75 billion loss for the year, its worst ever. The loss for 1992 would set a record for American corporations, exceeding the $4.45 billion deficit posted by General Motors in 1991.

Last year, IBM had a $2.83 billion net loss on sales of $64.79 billion.

The announcement pushed IBM's stock to a 10-year low. It also caused bond traders to sell large amounts of IBM securities.

The essence of IBM's problem is that the large name-brand mainframe computers long at the core of its business have largely become obsolete. Individual desktop computers can match the power of mainframes that are less than a decade old, and networks linking small work stations or more powerful personal computers can surpass the power of today's mainframes, with far greater flexibility in the workplace.

Although IBM has competed in the personal computing market, it came to the market late and was slow to innovate, and as the price of small computers has fallen, IBM has not been nimble enough to compete as a low-cost, efficient manufacturer.

"The computer industry, as you and I know so well, is in a time of fundamental transition, and the velocity of change is increasing," Akers told stock analysts Tuesday morning. "These fundamental changes in the industry are being compounded by weak economies worldwide."

Unless the economy suddenly brightens, Akers said, IBM would probably impose its first dividend cut and its first formal layoffs next year, a drastic departure from a proud history of providing its employees with a luxurious promise of lifetime employment and generous benefits.

From a peak of 407,000 employees in 1986, IBM's payroll will have fallen about 28 percent, to about 275,000 by the end of next year.

IBM, based in Armonk, N.Y., which is north of New York City, has more than half of its 300,000 employees in the United States, including about 15,000 in the New York metropolitan area and 45,000 in New York state over all. The company did not say where the payroll reductions would be concentrated or how many plants would be shut.

Already this year the company has eliminated 40,000 jobs through early-retirement incentives and attrition and has cut $1 billion in annual spending children waved and women let out shrill cries — a traditional expression of joy in Africa.

IBM's $6.6 billion research and development budget, the largest in the nation, will decline by $1 billion next year, or 17 percent.

A Marine at the head of the convoy waved a large American flag.

The convoy, which left Mogadishu early Tuesday for the 120-mile journey, carried no relief aid. Their first task was to set up a base to allow the flow of food and supplies into the refugee-packed city, where up to 100 people a day have died of starvation and disease.

Baidoa is critical to the aid effort because of its central location on a paved, though badly potholed, road from Mogadishu — where clan fighters had ambushed convoys or demanded payments to allow vehicles to pass.

If troops can wrest control the main road from warlords, aid workers can almost immediately resume trucking food.

The city also has a long, tarmac airstrip built by the Soviet Union in the Cold War days when Moscow and Washington were vying for supremacy in the Horn of Africa. The airstrip can accommodate C-141 cargo planes.

For days, aid workers in Baidoa have pleaded for military action to halt a wave of looting and violence that has forced them to hunker down in their guarded compounds and slowed their work.

"There is a general air of expectation — watching and waiting," said Jenny O'Reilly of the Irish relief agency Concern. "It has been a very unsettling time."

When food began to reach the town of 40,000 this year, it became a magnet, attracting the starving for miles around. The town's population has swollen to about 80,000, with thousands more in surrounding villages.

But most aid agencies in the past three weeks withdrew foreign workers from Baidoa, as well as Bardera to the south and Kismayo on the south coast. The few who remain have been constantly harassed.

Two Somali guards working for CARE International and the International Red Cross were killed late last week in raids by gunmen on the agencies' compounds.

Concern, which has 12 foreign workers, has been untouched by the looters. The group's medical coordinator, Francis O'Keefe, attributed this partly to the fact that the agency mainly handles baby food — not an attractive commodity for looters.

Some relief workers criticized what they saw as tardiness on the part of the U.S. military. Spokesman Rick Grant of CARE called it "criminal negligence," a comment his agency's headquarters in New York disavowed.

The first American Marines came ashore in Mogadishu Dec. 9 and seized the capital's Indian Ocean port and international airport, gateways for aid shipments.

More than 4,000 troops had arrived by ship and plane by Tuesday, but officials said only about 800 were combat personnel.

out bail at the Berkshire County House of Corrections.

Neither police nor college authorities had any explanation for Lo's actions. But Mishka Shubaly, a 15-year-old student who said he knew the defendant, said Lo was a "hateful person" who was angry at a society that made him feel like an outcast.

"Everybody sort of knew he hated everybody," said Shubaly, who is from Kingston, N.H. "But everybody just wrote him off as another tough guy. Nobody thought he would actually get a gun."

College officials said Lo had no record of disciplinary problems, and his mother, Lin-Lin Lo, told The Associated Press that when she had visited her son on Dec. 5 he did not seem to be upset.

"He was totally OK," she said. "He showed me his dorm. He was coming home for winter break."

Law-enforcement officials said Lo bought the rifle, a Chinese-made SKS similar to an AK-47 assault rifle, over the counter at a Pittsfield gun shop on Monday.

The sequence of the shootings is not clear, but shots were fired at the college entrance where a security guard, 42-year-old Teresa Beavers, was shot twice in the abdomen. Shots were also fired near the college library and a dormitory, which were sealed off by police Tuesday.

A college official who spoke on condition of anonymity said it appeared the victims were selected at random. The professor who was killed, Nacunan Saez, a native of Argentina who taught Spanish, is not known to have ever had Lo as a student.

The officials said an 18-year-old student, Galen Gibson, of Gloucester, Mass., was shot and killed as he left the library.

The three students who were injured are Matthew David, 18, of Montclair, N.J.; Joshua Faber, 15, of Pittsford, N.Y., and Thomas McElderry, 19, of Kotzebue, Alaska. They are recovering at Fairview Hospital in Great Barrington.

Simon's Rock is an alternative college for high-school-age students, many of whom have dropped out of high school. It is affiliated with Bard College, located about 50 miles away in Annandale-on-Hudson, N.Y.

Lo, whose father, Chia-Wei Lo, owns The Great Wall Chinese restaurant in Billings, Mont., is in his second year at Simon's Rock and has not declared a major. He attended Central Catholic High School in Billings, where he played violin in the school orchestra and had a 3.56 grade point average for his two years at the school before transferring to Simon's Rock.

April Collidge, manager of the Los' restaurant, descibed the Wayne Lo as a friendly and polite young man who visited the restaurant often.

COUNCIL: City puts national program into gear would be interested in hiring intern students either during the summer or on a yearlong part-time basis.

"We recommended funding at least seven positions," said Hunter, although as many as 22 were identified.

The city will now conduct a "detailed review" to determine which of those requests will be honored.

It will then hire either local college students or students home for the summer as well as high school graduates in technical or administrative positions.

However, at-large council member William Morrow expressed reservations about the pace of the program, given other funding options that have not been explored.

Morrow said he was interested in visiting with local foundations, who he believed would be interested in participating in Affirmative Action — particularly in the area of tuition-reimbursement.

"I think it's premature. I don't think this (plan) covers all the questions that need to be covered," said Morrow. Included in that concern was just how the program would affect city employees.

Agreeing was Midland Mayor J.D. Faircloth.

However, the mayor said there is no question that the council was "unanimously' behind the proposal.

"I think the only thing we were unsure of was the fact that there wasn't a definite plan ... that what was provided wasn't very specific, but we're dedicated to Affirmative Action if it makes sense."

While the plan is short on substance, at-large council member Jose Cuevas Jr. said the time was now to put words into action.

"I just thought it was moving too slow. We have a lot of people who like to defer things and kind of just wait and see what's right and wrong, but I think we have a plan that can achieve our goals."

In other business, council members:

■ Approved $225,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds to pave 10 southeast area blocks in 1993.

Approved were the 700 to 800 block of Key Street; two blocks along Johnston Street from Carter Street to Griffen Avenue; the 500 block along Mississippi Street; the 300 block of Stonewall; the 1800 to 1900 block of Pennsylvania Avenue; and the 1900 to 2000 block of Washington Avenue.

■ Announced the appointment of Rick Menchaca as the city's new assistant city manager effective Feb. 1, 1993. The position was vacated earlier by Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor, who assumes the office of city manager, effective Feb. 1.

■ Approved a $15,000 allocation using hotel/motel tax funds for the Confederate Air Force, which will use the money for promotions and advertising.

■ Approved $30,000 from its bond fund to be used to construct a 24-inch drain pipe along east along Illinois Street from Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

The line will allow the hospital's developer to pump water from its expansion location to the closest storm drain. The developer will finance 75 percent of the project.

WORD: Underlying crisis hasn't gone, experts say things are as bad as he said.

The message was mostly morose: The economy is not growing fast enough to give work to the jobless and new workers; to get it growing will require even more deficit spending at a time of record deficits; and, finally, to get rid of deficits will take new taxes.

"Economies have always been subject to bouts of the flu, but what we have now is not just a bout of the flu but an underlying cancer," Isabel Sawhill of Washington's Urban Institute told the president-elect.

The news from IBM in New York — 25,000 jobs to be cut; the corporation's first layoffs likely — only underscored the theme.

"I told you so," Clinton could have said, although he didn't. He had preached during the presidential campaign that the economy was fundamentally ill. Now he was driving that point home to America by having it come from businessmen, union leaders, community activists, teachers, economists.

Their agreement with him will make it easier for him to sell Congress on their solutions: deeper deficits for the short term, tough-to-take deficit-cutting measures in the long term.

The sessions served Clinton in another way. He did his guests the honor of listening to them, and they're likely to return the favor.

He shook their hands, patted their shoulders, put them on television. He listened hard, took notes and asked questions that paid respect to their knowledge.

He may need them when the going gets rough. It probably will get rough, if the analyses he heard are right and the advice he got is accepted.

Even Americans who tuned in for only a few moments could catch the drift of the testimony:

■ The deficit, already a record, is growing.

John White, former Eastman Kodak executive and an adviser to Ross Perot before endorsing Clinton last fall, said the deficit has become a drag on the economy's ability to grow.

"Things are not improving," he said. The new forecast for the deficit is $100 billion higher than in January. "We have a more severe illness in a weakened patient."

■ The economy is growing too slowly to create enough jobs to put everyone to work.

"Our structural problems are far more severe than most people realize," said Charles McMillion, president of the Washington analysis firm MBG. "There is no obvious engine to get us out of this ditch."

Economic growth was slow in the 1980s, and "came at a price that is hard to comprehend," McMillion said.

In fiscal 1992, the economy grew by $250 billion, but the federal debt grew by $290 billion.

■ But more deficit spending will be needed to create jobs.

Without stimulation, "the U.S. economy is not growing fast enough to create enough permanent jobs," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for the Boston Co.

Henry J. Aaron of the Brookings Institution, a Washington think tank, said even the public works projects Clinton has advocated — road, bridge, airport and railroad building — may be too little and too slow to bring a rush of healthy growth.

McMillion told Clinton, "The good news is that the national recession is over. The bad news is that, at least technically, it has probably been over for 19 or 20 months. This may be as good as it gets for a while."

■ Finally, when growth returns, Clinton was told he is going to have to increase government revenues — yes, new taxes — if he intends to counter the anti-growth, hands-tying aspects of the deficit.

TRIBUTE: City honors Hernandez

(From 1A)

Echoing that sentiment was at-large council member Jose Cuevas Jr., a longtime supporter and friend of Hernandez.

"It goes without saying, I think Elvia has been a dynamite individual. If it wasn't for her, we (Hispanics) might still be six years behind compared to where we are today."

Cuevas said Ms. Hernandez demonstrated to many Hispanics that it's alright to speak up for their beliefs.

"She is a catalyst ... a vehicle that we needed to spark us," Cuevas said. "She never took no for an answer and she taught a lot of us that we needed to do the same."

Ms. Hernandez, who plans to open her own public-relations agency in El Paso, came to Midland six years ago when she joined the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce as its executive director.

During her tenure, the chamber grew from 79 members to more than 300, including the sponsorship of 14 major corporations that supported its efforts in education and other areas.

But her activity didn't limit her time to Midland.

Ms. Hernandez was part of a Texas delegation of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce who met with the Mexican leadership, including President Carlos Salinas de Gotari, to promote the North American Free Trade Agreement.

She also was heavily involved in the Lamesa Road Project, the Mex-Tex Menudo Cookoff and Family Festival as well as countless efforts to attract new convention business to the Tall City.

"She's an outstanding citizen who we wanted to make a special day for," Faircloth said.

CLINTON: President-elect concludes two-day economic conference at the cost of an even larger federal deficit.

After listening to dozens of speakers over two days debate the problems of the economy and steps to improve it, Clinton promised to "explore every idea and challenge every prejudice" as he crafts an economic recovery program aimed at creating new jobs.

Clinton called the conference, which was televised over the two days, part of an effort "to reconnect the American people to their government." He said there was consensus among participants on a need to increase investment, improve education and training programs, and combine a economic recovery plan with a long-term deficit-reduction strategy.

He said that reducing health-care costs and providing a basic system of coverage for everyone was "a national imperative."

"We can't do anything else on the deficit if we fail to curtail the monster of spiraling health-care costs," he said.

Clinton heard suggestions for an economic stimulus package anywhere from $20 billion to $60 billion in federal money. One participant — Henry Aaron, director of the Economic Studies Program at the Brookings Institution — even suggested no program.

"It may be that stimulus is necessary, but if the economy shows continuing signs of recovery, I think it should be extremely small or possibly shelved," Aaron said.

'We can't do anything else on the deficit if we fail to curtail the monster of spiraling health-care costs.'

— President-elect Bill Clinton

Clinton said he has not decided whether it would be prudent to go ahead with such a plan, which would likely increase the deficit.

"This is a very tough call," he told conference participants, "the major economic policy decision we are going to have to make."

Sounding a gloomy note on the economy, Clinton said at the news conference, "Are we coming out of this recession? I don't think the evidence is in."

Without offering specifics, he said there will have to be a reform of the entitlement system that pours tens of billions of dollars into popular programs such as veterans' benefits, Medicare and Medicaid.

Earlier, he asserted at the economic meeting that it could take 10 years of increased federal spending on highways, bridges and other public works projects and on improving worker training and education to repair the underlying problem of lagging U.S. productivity.

Clinton and conference participants were seeking ways to reduce the annual budget deficit — expected to be a record $331 billion this year — while somehow boosting the long-troubled economy.

After a session on Monday that ran nearly 10 hours, Clinton kept his guests working through their lunch hour on Tuesday, inviting those who were hungry to eat brought-in sandwiches.

"I am not going to have a break for lunch. This is too interesting," he said.

Clinton said he was ready to go to work on specific stimulus plans to submit to Congress when he takes office but "I haven't made the decision about how much and what."

A panel of prominent economists said it could take a lot. One — Yale's James Tobin — suggested $60 billion would be needed to make a significant dent in the nation's unemployment rate.

"Almost every recovery since the second World War has been helped by fiscal stimulus," said Tobin, a Nobel Prize-winning economist who served on John F. Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers.

Clinton said there must be a long-term plan to reduce the deficit alongside programs to stimulate the economy. But he added that such plans would amount to little as long as health care continues to drain billions of federal dollars.

"We are kidding each other. We are all just sitting here making this up if we think we can fiddle around with entitlements and all this other stuff and get control of this budget if we don't do something on health care," Clinton said, hitting the table with his fist.

As for broader economic conditions, Clinton said IBM's plans to cut 25,000 jobs — announced earlier in the day — showed the economy was not on the path to a full recovery, despite some recent encouraging statistics.

Allen Sinai, chief economist for the Boston Co., an economic consulting firm, said the administration should move at once on a stimulus package. He said the plan, if approved by Congress quickly, would kick in toward the end of next year.

"We've got six months to do something on health care," Clinton said, again coming back to the subject that was a major focus of his presidential campaign.

Clinton has proposed a system in which the employer would either provide health insurance for employees or support a publicly sponsored plan for people not insured through their jobs.

Everyone would be insured, with the unemployed covered by the public plan. A national health board would be created to keep costs under control.

New Russian prime minister seeks to boost industry, agriculture

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's new prime minister pledged Tuesday to forge ahead with market reforms, but attacked the proliferation of small businesses and privatization that followed the collapse of central authority.

"I am for deepening reforms. We don't have a way back," Viktor Chernomyrdin said in his first news conference since being chosen as prime minister in a compromise between reformists and hard-line lawmakers.

But he also said he would alter the direction of the reforms in favor of promoting large companies and agriculture — a change from the programs spearheaded by his predecessor, former acting Prime Minister Yegor Gaidar.

"It is likely that there will be changes in the program ... but the main line will be adhered to," he said.

President Boris Yeltsin and former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev both said they expect Chernomyrdin to continue with reforms.

For people like Tamara Krykova, Gaidar brought hope in spite of the hard times. Although she has struggled on a tiny pension for the past two years, the 67-year-old retired accountant said she believed the Gaidar-Yeltsin team would make life easier for her grandchildren.

"My life has materially gotten much worse since Yeltsin became president, but at least we had hope," Krykova said.

She burst into tears when asked about Gaidar's replacement. "With Chernomyrdin, reforms will be stalled another five years and we'll be taking steps backwards," she said.

Sergei Zorin, a 42-year-old businessman, also said he would miss Gaidar.

"I liked Gaidar as a competent, practical individual without any political complexes. He just concentrated on economics, which was his job," said Zorin.

Chernomyrdin told the Congress of People's Deputies on Monday he will ensure the reforms do not further impoverish the people, that he would prop up ailing state industries and crack down on the black market. Chernomyrdin's nomination was approved Monday by the Communist-dominated Congress.

On Tuesday, Chernomyrdin advocated ideas that hinted of Soviet central-planning theories.

He told reporters the development of large industry is a precondition for the success of small private businesses, agriculture and Russia's fledgling private farming sector. Soviet central-planning gave priority to heavy industry at the expense of producing consumer goods or providing citizens with high-quality social services.

Chernomyrdin also indicated his reluctance to proceed with wholesale selling off of land to private individuals, a step which even Gaidar's government hesitated to risk quickly.

The prime minister also expressed his disdain for small private shops that have come to symbolize the entrepreneurial spirit in cities across Russia.

Pavel Bunich, a well-known economics expert, wrote in the daily Izvestia Tuesday that Chernomyrdin's future policies depended, to some extent, on which members of "Gaidar's team" would remain in the government.

NATO to help U.N. devise resolutions

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — NATO has agreed to help the United Nations plan for three possible new military operations that the Security Council might authorize the organization to undertake in the war-torn Balkans, diplomats and officials said Tuesday.

At a meeting in Brussels on Monday, NATO's governing council agreed to send "a positive reply" to a request from Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali for the alliance to share with him any contingency plans it might make for these operations.

At the same time the NATO council also instructed its military committee, a body of senior officers and military planners, to start drawing up plans for the three possible contingencies outlined by Boutros-Ghali.

The secretary general said he would like to see how NATO's military planners would enforce the ban on military flights over Bosnia and Herzegovina which the Security Council has already imposed. Amid reports of frequent Serbian violations of the ban, France, Britain and the United States are discussing a new Security Council resolution authorizing countries to intercept and destroy any such military flights.

But differences have arisen between the United States and France over exactly how this enforcement operation should be carried out.

In addition, the NATO secretary general, Manfred Woerner, told NATO members that Boutros-Ghali wanted to know the alliance's views on the best way of creating safe havens in Bosnia and Herzegovina where Muslims fleeing Serbian attacks could seek refuge and assistance.

Britain and France oppose creating such safe havens on the grounds that they would encourage further expulsions of Muslims from Serbian-held territory and because the operation would require greatly enlarging the peacekeeping forces they have already sent to Bosnia to escort relief convoys.

Finally, the U.N. secretary general said he would welcome NATO's ideas on ways of preventing the Bosnian civil war from spilling over into Kosovo, a Serbian province with a predominantly Albanian population, and into the neighboring state of Macedonia.

The Security Council has already agreed to send some 700 peacekeepers to Macedonia to monitor the country's borders in an effort to prevent hostilities from spreading there.

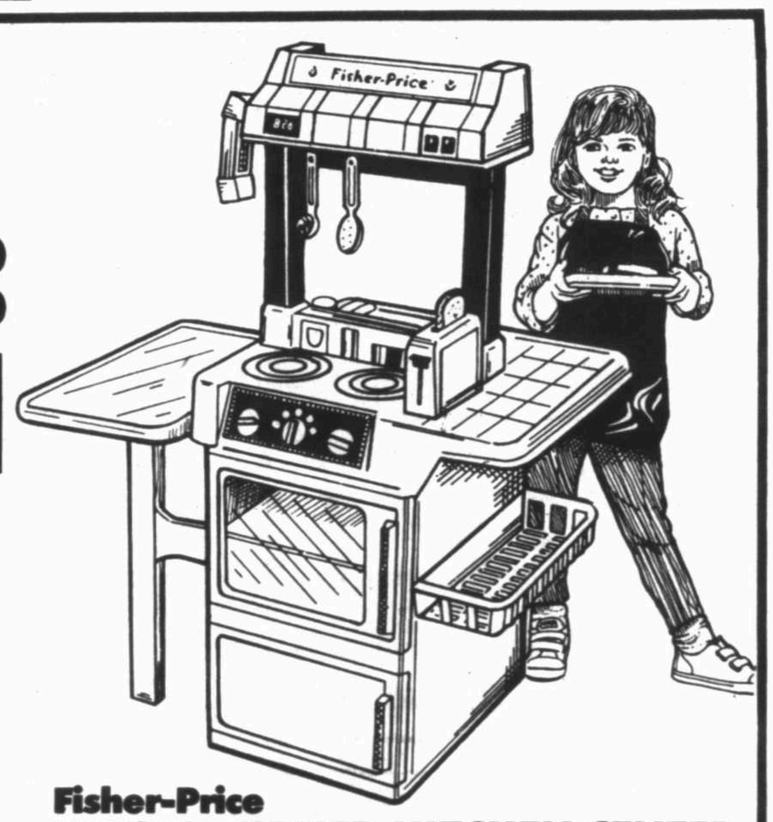

Meanwhile the United States, Britain and France are continuing to work on a new resolution empowering countries to enforce the Bosnian no-flight zone, which they expect the Council to approve next week after the Serbian elections.

But while Britain and France favor a resolution that would permit them to fly combat patrols over Bosnia and Herzegovina and give them the option of shooting down any aircraft their planes find violating the ban, the United States favors a more far reaching move that would permit the bombardment of Serbian airfields as well.

At the same time pressure for new military action to rescue Bosnia's Muslims is building up in the General Assembly.

Discovery of Israeli policeman's body sparks cries for revenge

KFAR ADUMIM, Israeli-Occupied West Bank (NYT) — The stabbed and bound body of an Israeli border policeman was found Tuesday alongside a highway near this Jewish settlement outside Jerusalem, two days after Islamic militants had kidnapped him in an announced attempt to free their jailed leader.

The killing of Sgt. Maj. Nissim Toledano, 29, sent waves of anti-Arab anger rolling across Israel, where many people were already badly shaken by an abduction viewed as an unusually daring challenge to Israeli authority, especially in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

It was believed to be the first kidnapping inside Israel for the ostensible purpose of arranging a prisoner exchange.

Cries for vengeance were especially intense in Toledano's hometown of Lod, a mixed Jewish and Arab town in Israel proper. Soon after word of his death came, police circled the main Arab quarter to keep bands of screaming Jewish youths from entering, and arrested 14 of them.

In Parliament, politicians of all ideological stripes demanded a swift and harsh crackdown against Hamas, a Gaza-based group of Islamic militants that rejects Israeli statehood and Palestinian involvement in the Middle East peace talks.

Hamas has taken responsibility for the deaths of five uniformed Israelis in the last nine days. On Sunday, an armed wing of the organization said it had taken Toledano captive, threatening to kill him unless Israel released the imprisoned founder of their movement, Sheik Ahmed Yassin.

Even committed doves who do not normally stand in the front ranks of those calling for tough measures insisted on anti-Hamas reprisals, which a few said could include deportations, an action they have generally opposed as a human-rights violation.

Hamas, said Yossi Sarid, a member of Parliament from the leftist Meretz bloc, "is a murderous and fanatical organization, struggling openly and declaredly against peace, and therefore it should be crushed with an open fist."

A government crackdown had begun with a reported roundup of 1,200 suspected Hamas members even before the kidnapped sergeant's body was found by a Bedouin Arab woman Tuesday morning near the main road linking Jerusalem and the West Bank city of Jericho.

While details of the autopsy were not officially announced, Israel Radio said that the victim had been repeatedly stabbed and that it was thought that he had been killed Monday night, or about 36 hours after he was seized on a Lod street while on his way to work.

Among those arrested overnight by the Israelis was Taher Shriteh, a Palestinian journalist who works for several foreign news organizations, including The New York Times, Reuters, CBS and the British Broadcasting Corp.

Repeated attempts Tuesday to find out from Israeli officials why Shriteh had been detained were unavailing.

Uri Dromi, director of the Government Press Office, which had issued official credentials to the Palestinian reporter, said he also had not been told the reason for the arrest.

Shriteh, a leading journalist in Gaza who is often consulted by foreign diplomats and Israeli members of Parliament, was held for 38 days last year for sending faxes of Hamas leaflets to Reuters, leading to army charges that he had kept a fax machine illegally and had "given aid to an enemy organization."

Most of his time under arrest was spent in solitary confinement, and he complained later of being mistreated and deprived of sleep and food.

Human Rights Watch, a group based in New York, sent a letter Tuesday to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, expressing its concern for Shriteh's well-being.

It was not clear if the mass Hamas arrests involved specific suspects or was instead a general roundup of people who may not be held for long. In addition to the arrests, Gaza and the West Bank have been closed for the last two days, with virtually all of Gaza's 750,000 residents confined to their homes.

Discussing the Hamas roundup in Parliament on Tuesday, Rabin pledged that his government would continue to "strike unmercifully" against the group but would not be goaded into giving up on the peace negotiations under way in Washington. That is exactly what the militants want, he said.

War ends in El Salvador; Quayle forgives debt

By Harry F. Rosenthal
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Vice President Quayle on Tuesday delivered what was likely his last speech abroad as vice president. He did not stumble, misspeak or misspell.

In fact, he was a hit — especially when he announced that the United States is going to forgive three quarters of El Salvador's debt.

The occasion was a milestone in El Salvador's march to peace with its guerrilla factions. Leaders from Latin American countries, Spain and U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali were present to hail a formal end to 12 years of civil war.

Quayle's was only one voice in a marathon of voices praising newfound peace in the Central American country. Speaker after speaker went on at great length, with great passion, about the achievement. The day was made into a national holiday with schools, banks and government offices closed.

"This is a great moment in the history of this nation and Central America," said Quayle.

"At a time of year when the words 'peace on earth' carry such special meaning, we meet to celebrate a new commitment to peace in a land that has seen too much sadness, too much suffering and too much loss," he said.

Boutros-Ghali and the other leaders addressed an audience of 2,500 in sweltering heat in a building at the International Fairgrounds.

The vice president came bearing gifts. He announced that the United States would forgive El Salvador 75 percent of its $614 million debt and that it would allow interest on the rest to be spent locally on environmental or child survival programs.

Later, he said he said he shared relief that "this bitter chapter in El Salvador's history is over."

"Some said that peace and justice could only come from the barrel of a gun," he said. "Others said peace could only be attained by trampling on human rights and liberties.

"Both were wrong. The guns are stilled today because democracy and human rights have triumphed."

Quayle's visit to this Central American nation was his fourth as vice president. It also was a quick one. He left Washington before dawn and planned to return before midnight.

Mrs. Quayle and son Tucker came along. She sat gamely through two and a half hours of speeches delivered in Spanish, following along with simultaneous translation through earphones.

For Quayle, it was a wearying end to four years of travel totaling more than a million miles. He visited 47 countries, some of them three or four times.

This year, when he was occupied in the fruitless Bush-Quayle re-election effort, the vice president went overseas only once before, to Japan in May. However, he visited 40 states on the campaign trail after the Republican convention.

Quayle made no reference in his speech to the short time remaining for the Bush administration, which leaves office Jan. 20.

His press secretary, David Beckwith, said the vice president won't discuss his plans until after Inauguration Day.

"He intends to keep a low profile," Beckwith said.

Clinton should build slow, steady growth

Nuts and bolts economists may have enjoyed President-elect Bill Clinton's Little Rock economic conference, but it was really nothing more than his game plan to get the economy moving again. And anyone who was watching closely about Thanksgiving knows that economic indicators are up, not due to Clinton's efforts but those of President George Bush.

The danger for the United States economy now comes not from Bush and what he might do before Clinton is sworn into office as the nation's 42nd president on Jan. 20th. Rather it will come from Clinton's economic program. If he puts just enough emphasis on public-sector jobs to stimulate the economy, the result may be slow and steady improvement. If he puts too much emphasis there, however, it could thwart the real growth that has begun, stopping the recovery and sending the deficit even higher.

Even Princeton University economist Alan Blinder cautioned Clinton not to attempt to do too much to the economy too quickly. Blinder quoted Albert Einstein, saying, "Everything should be made as simple as possible, but not more so."

The implication inherent in that quote is do what must be done, but not any more than is necessary to make the economy operate smoothly.

Political pressures always tempt politicians to do too much tinkering with the economy, and the frequent result is that the delicate balance which must be maintained is thrown out of kilter. When that happens, every American suffers to some degree and many suffer tremendously.

The question here is whether Clinton is attempting to improve on the economic turnaround, which various indicators already show is occurring, for the good of the nation or his own political advantage. Going slow on economic changes will help all Americans in the long run, though the evidences of improvement will not be as readily apparent. Doing too much too quickly will result in economic problems surfacing that could haunt Clinton throughout this term and the American people for years into the future.

The American public generally seems to approve of Clinton's economic plan. That's good. He needs that widespread support to get support from the Congress. He can fulfill the hopes of all Americans by building on the slow, steady growth now under way.

Another View

Clinton needs economic team to push Congress

Teamwork. Coordination. Words like these dominated President-elect Clinton's news conference Thursday because they govern his choice of five top economic officials. All five are cut from the same fiscally conservative cloth; they should have little trouble working together.

They are also smart, experienced professionals who will pack clout in Congress and on Wall Street. That's Clinton's way of telling voters: No more gridlock.

As expected, Clinton nominated Sen. Lloyd Bentsen to be treasury secretary and Roger Altman, a savvy New York investment banker, as his deputy. Rep. Leon Panetta, House Budget Committee chairman, was nominated to be budget director, with Alice Rivlin, the only economist in the group, as his deputy.

Panetta and Dr. Rivlin have lobbied hard for no-tricks deficit reduction. Dr. Rivlin has the added stature, as the Congressional Budget Office's first director, of having established its reputation for first-rate, nonpartisan technical analysis.

Perhaps the most significant appointment is that of Robert Rubin, co-chairman of Goldman Sachs, the Wall Street investment bank. He will head the new White House council charged with coordinating the administration's economic policy. His job will be to focus Clinton's attention on the economic picture, in much the way the national security adviser focuses attention on geopolitics.

The president-elect might have gone a different route — choosing someone who had already staked out hard policy positions. Rubin, however, can be expected to play the role of honest broker. His task is to coordinate the ideas of economists at Treasury, State, the budget office and the Council of Economic Advisers and give Clinton coherent policy choices.

Thursday's selections leave important questions unanswered. For starters, advisers like Robert Reich and Ira Magaziner, who were most closely associated with the defining themes of the Clinton campaign — training, education and infrastructure investment — were notably absent.

But that's no reason to suppose Clinton has abandoned his economic program. Both men could surface in other key posts. In any case, Altman and Rubin helped write his campaign agenda. And, as Clinton said Thursday, he has already defined his policies.

He will also have to refine them. It's simply impossible to cut taxes on the middle class, raise public investments by $20 billion a year and create bold new education and training programs — all while cutting the deficit in half. What Clinton most needed was a team to identify priorities and push them through Congress. These first choices make a good start.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 16, the 351st day of 1992. There are 15 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 16, 1773, the Boston Tea Party took place as American colonists, disguised as Indians, boarded a British ship in Boston Harbor and dumped more than 300 chests of tea overboard in a protest against tea taxes.

Aristide may have had foe murdered

WASHINGTON — The results of a recent polygraph test secretly administered by the FBI have apparently corroborated previously published reports alleging that Haitian President Jean Bertrand Aristide ordered the murder of a jailed political opponent on the night his regime was toppled by a military coup.

Anderson

An FBI polygraph expert flew to Port-au-Prince last Sept. 1 on a Hercules C-130 to interview the former head of Port-au-Prince's National Penitentiary, Capt. Stagne Doura, according to well-placed sources in the United States and Haiti. On Sept. 2, Doura passed a polygraph to determine the veracity of his account of the murder. The information was passed on to the State Department, where it is said to remain highly classified.

A polygraph isn't conclusive proof of guilt or innocence, but the growing credibility of the story could alter the dynamics of the ongoing Haitian political stalemate that has resulted in punishing economic sanctions against the tiny nation.

Charges that Aristide may have had a role in the murder of Roger Lafontant — the feared Interior Minister under former Haitian dictator "Papa Doc" Duvalier — first surfaced when Haitian military officials unveiled Lafontant in his bloodstained pajamas to the press in the days following the coup. At the time, Lafontant had been jailed for leading a failed coup attempt against the Haitian government in January 1991.

Though few mourned the death of the man who had terrorized Haiti for years through the death squads of the Tontons Macoute, a dispute instantly erupted over the circumstances surrounding Lafontant's murder. At a post-coup press conference, Gen. Raoul Cedras read a report authored by Doura which alleged that the order to execute Lafontant had come from Aristide on the night of the coup. At the time, Aristide's prime minister, Rene Preval, dismissed the claims as a "false declaration."

According to Doura's Oct. 2, 1991, written statement, around midnight Sept. 29-30 he received a call "coming directly from the President Jean-Bertrand Aristide demanding that the undersigned arrange to proceed with the execution of prisoner Roger Lafontant." Doura recounted that he asked Aristide to repeat the order, pretending to not understand. At that point, Doura claims he was implicitly threatened by Aristide who told him: "It's either you or him."

Doura claims he then briefed the Haitian chief of police on the orders and explained the situation to two or three soldiers present that night. "One of (the soldiers) finally agreed to execute the order received from the President," the statement reads. The soldier accused of actually killing Lafontant was subsequently jailed.

An arrest warrant for Aristide in connection with the Lafontant murder was issued in Haiti on Nov. 6, 1991. Aristide by then was in exile and the charges seemed irrelevant. By last summer, however, sources say U.S. government officials decided to conduct an inquiry, and arranged for the jailer to take a lie detector test.

The Bush administration is apparently intent on keeping the polygraph results secret. A State Department spokesman refused to comment, and an FBI spokeswoman told our associate, Dean Boyd, "We decline comment. That means I'm not confirming or denying that we sent someone to Haiti."

Repeated calls to Aristide's ambassador in the United States went unanswered, but a spokesperson at the Haitian embassy argued, "(passing a polygraph) doesn't mean anything." A Washington-based lobbyist for Aristide argued, "I want to know what the FBI was doing on Haitian soil conducting a polygraph when the U.S. government supposedly has sanctions against the regime there."

Dedlock tries to unlock Congress gridlock

I met Dedlock coming out of the revolving door at the Pentagon. Dedlock has been Assistant Secretary of Karate in the Defense Department for the past four years.

Buchwald

Since he was a Bush appointee the chances of him keeping his job are zilch.

I thought he would be depressed, but he was very excited and seemed at peace with himself.

"Your people lost," I said. "How come you're not in a black hole?"

"I was ready to leave even if we had won. There is just so much blood you can give to your country. Then you have to think of yourself."

"In what way?"

He pointed toward the Capitol. "The money is there — it isn't here. I hope to lobby for responsible corporations that have not been given their fair share of the defense pie. I want to take my case to Congress and make sure that they don't do to the defense companies what they did to the snail darter."

"But you're a Republican. With the Democrats in power, how can you bring any influence on Washington?"

"When it comes to lobbying there is no such thing as a Republican or a Democrat. We are all one — trying to make a buck to support our families."

"I thought that the political parties bestow favors on their own kind."

Dedlock smiled, "The political parties support those who buy tables to their fund-raising events. As soon as I leave here I will send out word to all party fund-raiser chairmen that I'm hungry. They will respond by showering me with $1,000-a-plate dinner invitations."

"No one can fault you for wanting to eat."

"The reason why the government works so well is that when you go in the revolving door everyone scratches your back, and when you come out everyone scratches your back."

"As Assistant Secretary of Karate, did you ever do favors for anyone who could help you secure his account at this time?"

"I was very careful in my position of trust not to tilt toward any defense company. That doesn't mean I didn't play golf and have pillow fights with the CEOs of the aerospace companies. Just because you're on the inside you don't cut off your social ties with those on the outside. The stories of the Black Belt Karate Company flying my dog and four children to Acapulco in their corporate plane were blown up out of proportion. Nobody buys me with one free plane ride. I was not involved in the final decision to award them a $250 million black belt contract for our fighting men at Fort Bragg."

"As part of your revolving door ambitions, will you take on the Black Belt people as a lobbying account?"

"Only if they ask me. Congress has no idea of the importance of karate in the defense picture, and if I can't persuade them, who can?"

"You served your country well," I told Dedlock.

"Now it's time it started serving you. I'm paraphrasing John F. Kennedy, of course."

"I'll do what anyone else in the military-industrial complex would. If people want to buy my services now after I have rendered them free for the past four years, why should I say no?"

"If your party gets back into power in four years, will you return to the government?"

"Of course. That's what revolving doors are for."

Young pros work roomful of old pros

"These occasions have value," said Katharine Graham of the Washington Post Co., in a toast at her dinner party for the Clintons and Gores last week. "They create relationships beyond the office."

Safire

Because she was generous enough to invite some of the journalistic competition to the party for 100 at her Georgetown home, I set about creating relationships. Transition time is a very sensitive moment for pundits; you cannot appear eager to make contact, lest you be accused of sucking up, but neither should you allow your precious independence to be construed as aloofness or hostility, lest you miss out on a news-rich phone call from the highest authority.

The first trick is to position yourself along a cocktail reception's corridor of power. Never work the room; let the room-worker work you. I stood in the center of the tent outside the dining room, where it would require a conscious dodge by the president-elect and his wife (who has eclipsed Mrs. Graham as "the most powerful woman in America") to avoid me. To appear short and unimposing, I positioned myself between Paul Volcker and Sen. John Rockefeller, together more than 13 feet of the Washington Establishment.

Kay brought the guest of honor past other experienced reception-positioners like Tom Johnson of CNN, Eric Breindel of the New York Post, and Judy Woodruff of PBS and her attractive husband, all of whom pretended to be talking to connected Clintonites Ron Brown, Warren Christopher and Vernon Jordan.

Sure enough, Bill Clinton, working the room, came my way. I knew him only by telephone; Kay introduced us, and the president-elect promptly said what goes over well with Republicans who reluctantly voted for him: "I hope you won't be disappointed."

Nice line, humble but not obsequious, followed by: "I hope to get good advice in the papers. You write it, I'll read it."

Rooted to the spot that had proved so well situated, I awaited Hillary Clinton. Along came Tmpwa herself, who quickly took up the Clintonian theme of appreciation for counseling: "You gave me some good advice early in the campaign. I took it."

That was a reference to a column after a couple of her gaffes, suggesting she stop defining herself by what she was not — not a man-bystander, not a cookie pusher — and start defining herself by what she was. Here she was saying she could take constructive criticism and remembered its source, the mark of a good politician.

So far so good; deferential in the first flush of power, they showed they know how to work a high-powered room. But could he — the blowhard of a thousand stumps — deliver a suitably brief toast? Would he have to work from notes? Would he act like a rube on a roll or say the graceful thing? At such an occasion, taste will tell; if you can do it at Kay Graham's, you can do it anywhere.

His hostess recalled having met Calvin Coolidge in her childhood and quipped: "When people say how nice it is to have children in the White House again, I have to remind myself they're talking about Chelsea."

He rose without notes (whew!), said a few standard things about generational change leading to generational reconciliation, and then, head on, addressed the secret fear of the guests: that he would keep running against Washington, Carter-style.

"Washington is a better place than most Americans think it is," its new leader said, softening up the set that hopes to take him into camp, and added deftly: "I hope to bring more of the country to the capital and more of the capital to the country." That Kennedyesque sugar-coating of rhetorical antithesis helped his centralist medicine go down: enough outsiders would be coming inside to make the federal presence felt more on the outside.

Clinton recalled how capitals have been places of intrigue, with plots and secret calculations, and then hoped that this capital's residents would ask for the space "to calculate less what is best for us here, and more what is best for all those who sent us here."

Such gentle reproof of power-brokerage — as he was preparing to appoint a set of seasoned economic power brokers — rated high in the Establishment's calculation.

It was only a high-tension dinner party, not a great test of inner strength or judgment. But such occasions do have value: it was instructive to watch the young pros work a roomful of old pros.

Survey measures attitudes, political values of nations Hispanics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The majority of Hispanics in America speak English as their main language, love the United States and don't favor increased immigration, according to a nationwide survey released Tuesday.

"We have a population here that is in fact very American, very pro-American and wanting to make it in the mainstream," said Angelo Falcon, one of the researchers for the Latino National Political Survey.

The study, released at a Washington news conference, is the most extensive effort to date to measure the attitudes and political values of the nation's 17 million Americans of Mexican, Puerto Rican and Cuban descent.

Some Hispanic groups expressed hope that the survey would help dispel some stereotypes.

"It refutes a lot of myths about Latinos," said Louis Nunez, president of the National Puerto Rican Coalition.

The survey found that most Hispanics don't identify themselves as part of one large Hispanic community, instead viewing themselves as part of the Mexican, Cuban or Puerto Rican communities.

In fact, the researchers found, Hispanics are more favorably inclined to non-Hispanics than they are toward Latinos from countries other than their own.

The survey also found little interaction between Hispanics of different origin, in part because of geographical distance. Mexican-Americans tend to live in the Southwest, Cuban-Americans in Florida, and Americans of Puerto Rican descent in the Northeast.

Kevorkian assists in two more suicides

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Two more women killed themselves with help from suicide-machine inventor Jack Kevorkian on Tuesday, hours before Michigan's governor signed a law that will temporarily ban assisted suicides.

Both women — the seventh and eighth since 1990 to die with Kevorkian's help — had attended a news conference with him 12 days ago to protest the legislation.

The state's lack of such a ban was cited when charges against Kevorkian were dropped in the first three deaths he aided.

Kevorkian, a retired pathologist whose medical license has been suspended, was by their sides when Marguerite Tate, 70, and Marcella Lawrence, 67, committed suicide at Tate's home. Both were acutely ill.

Later in the day, Gov. John Engler signed legislation that as of March 30 will impose a 15-month ban on assisted suicide while a commission studies the issue. After receiving the commission's recommendation, the Legislature will have six months to act before the law's penalties lapse.

Anyone helping with a suicide during the ban could face felony charges punishable by up to four years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

"I want to sign it today as a protest to what Mr. Kevorkian has done," Engler said. "The methods of Mr. Jack Kevorkian, and I stress 'Mr.' since his license to practice medicine has been suspended, are wrong because he has deliberately flouted the law and taken it upon himself to be his own judge, jury and executioner in Michigan.

Kevorkian has been a vocal proponent of doctor-assisted suicide for the terminally ill. One of his attorneys, Geoffrey Fieger, said outlawing assisted suicide likely wouldn't stop Kevorkian from helping other people end their lives.

Kevorkian remains licensed to practice medicine in California, though another of his lawyers, Michael Schwartz, has said he didn't expect Kevorkian to leave Michigan.

Tate and Lawrence showed up at a news conference with Kevorkian on Dec. 3, the day the temporary ban cleared the Legislature.

"The pain I have, I wish they (lawmakers) could have for just one night," Lawrence said that day. "If I was up on the 13th floor right now, I would jump."

Lawrence, of Mount Clemens, had heart disease, emphysema and arthritis in her back. Tate, of Auburn Hills, suffered from the degenerative nervous disorder amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also called Lou Gehrig's disease. She was unable to speak and communicated by typing on a keyboard.

An investigator with the Oakland County Medical Examiner's Office said the deaths had been reported as occurring from inhaling carbon monoxide.

Auburn Hills Police Chief John L. Dalton said officers found Tate in a reclining chair in her living room and Lawrence on the bed in a bedroom. He said both had masks attached to canisters of gas over their faces.

Mammogram guidelines should be evaluated

By Gina Kolata
N.Y. Times News Service

For a decade, women in their 40s have been told that regular mammograms can save their lives by finding tiny cancers in the breast. But cancer experts are increasingly questioning whether the advice is a mistake for women that young.

Both the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society have called meetings in February to re-examine this advice. And The Annals of Internal Medicine, the journal of the American College of Physicians, said in an editorial this month that the recommendation should be abandoned for these women.

Critics of the recommendation that women in their 40s have mammograms say they are not particularly concerned about risk from the radiation exposure because the doses are relatively low. Instead, they are worried about the high error rates in mammograms of younger women. They are also concerned about the costs of the tests and the costs of surgical biopsies of lumps that turn out not to be cancerous.

Cancer experts are virtually unanimous in agreeing that women should begin getting annual mammograms at the age of 50. A long string of studies dating to the 1960s have consistently shown that mammograms reduce mortality in older women by 30 to 40 percent.

But a debate over whether the younger women should get mammograms has flared on and off since the 1970s in the absence of conclusive evidence that the procedure actually saves their lives, perhaps because it is harder to find cancers in the denser breasts of younger women.

Yet, cancer experts say, because the cancer institute and the cancer society issued guidelines recommending mammograms every one to two years for women in their 40s, most women and their doctors have assumed that the case for these screening tests was well established.

Dr. Suzanne W. Fletcher, co-editor of The Annals of Internal Medicine, cited data showing that 10 percent of women in their 40s who have regular mammograms will end up having biopsies for lumps that are not cancerous. In addition, Dr. Fletcher said, she is worried about the message that is getting across to younger women: that they are at great risk of breast cancer and that a mammogram can save their lives. In fact, she said, their risk is not that high and there is no proof that a mammogram will help them.

Search continues for author of letter

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — Authorities searching for a boy who asked Santa to take him to heaven so his unemployed parents don't have to feed him are urging those moved by the letter to help people closer to home.

Police said they have received offers of help from across the United States and Canada for the boy signed "Thad" and his family, who have become a Christmas symbol of hard times.

The unstamped letter was dropped off in a mailbox by the Clallam County Courthouse in the depressed timber town of 17,700 people 63 miles northwest of Seattle.

"I want to go to Heven too be with the angels," the boy wrote. "Can you bring me to Heven? My mom an dad woud not have too by things for me no more. That would make them happy."

The author, who educators estimate is between third- and fifth-grade age, told "Santa Clas" that "My mom gives us the food she would eat."

"I live in my house like last year. We got candils. A city man took the lights a way. It looks like we don't live heer no more. We do. I will wate for you too come in my room."

"Merry Christmas too you Mrs Clas too the elfs too."

Calls are clogging switchboards in Port Angeles, said Undersheriff Joe Martin.

Trustees invite comptroller to audit MISD

■ School Board hopes Sharp will consider offer to come give evaluation to clear up Midlanders' misconceptions.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Midlanders driving by the downtown administration building for Midland Independent School District sometimes get the wrong impression.

"They think that the building is full of administrators and we are top heavy with central administration," school board trustee Michael Dobey said.

Appearances are deceiving, however, according to several state reports that have indicated MISD's operating and administrative costs are frugal.

Also, earlier this year, the independent, Austin-based Texas Research League (TRL) revealed that in almost every category of expenditures, MISD spends less per student than the state average. The district's total operating expenses for 1991-92 were $1,000 below the average of Texas school districts.

School board trustees are so confident in the district's operations that they recently voted unanimously to invite State Comptroller John Sharp's office to audit MISD.

In recent months, audits performed on 55 Texas school districts revealed both inefficiencies as well as creative money-saving procedures.

Dobey said the idea to have the comptroller audit the district came from a Midland citizen.

"But we thought it would be a great idea to have an independent audit," he said. "We feel we have nothing to hide and we are very proud of our system. We have had lower than state average costs for years, but constantly hear we have heavy administration costs. We want to find out if we are really lean and mean or if there is some fat."

Inviting the state comptroller to audit the district doesn't necessarily mean he will come, however, according to MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr.

"This action is intended to demonstrate the district's commitment to optimizing resources. We (the administration and the school board) are confident that such an exercise would reveal the efficiency and fiscal conservatism of Midland ISD," he said.

Dobey said Midland citizens sometimes perceive the school district as having heavy overhead "just because of the big administration building and all of the programs we offer."

The school board trustee said a recent demographical report indicated that the school district has a staff of 2,000 for more than 22,000 students on 32 campuses. Of that staff of 2,000, Dobey said 1,159 are teachers, 27 are counselors, 185 are teacher assistants, and 54 are campus administrators such as principals and vice principals.

Tom Holland, MISD executive director of human resources, said the persons of administrative rank in the central office total 33 — 18 administrators/managers and 15 coordinators.

Jurors to deliberate Tucker's trial today

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

A former Ward County District Attorney investigator testified that he was simply following instructions when he filed an affidavit that landed him in court for perjury.

Jurors will begin deliberations today on whether Ronald Ray Tucker, 45, committed perjury when he swore on Feb. 8, 1990, that he seized $449,950 in Midland County as a result of a Jan. 9, 1990, reverse drug sting.

During his trial, which began Monday in Judge Pat Baskin's 142nd District Court, the legality of moving nearly a half-million dollars in drug money from Midland County to Ward County was raised. That issue doesn't directly relate to the perjury charge.

Testimony outlined the undercover operation, Tucker's role and the movement of money.

The reverse sting culminated with seven arrests, money confiscated in Midland and about 800 pounds of "bait" marijuana recovered in Ward County. The operation was conducted jointly by the Midland County Sheriff's Office and the Ward County District Attorney's Office.

The money was taken to Monahans and turned over to Tucker, the assigned seizure officer.

As part of the legal procedure for the government to keep the money, Tucker signed a statement of seizure in Monahans.

Almost a month later, Tucker signed a similar affidavit in Midland County. On May 15 of this year, he was indicted for perjury in connection with the second affidavit.

The defense claims that Tucker did not intend deception, and therefore did not commit perjury.

"I was just handed the paperwork and told to go to Midland County and get it filed," he said. "I was just following instructions."

Special prosecutor James McEntire questioned how Tucker could sign the affidavit that was clearly false. Tucker admitted he never seized the money in Midland but assumed the document to be true and legal.

"As far as I knew I was relying on two district attorneys (Ward and Midland counties) and an assistant district attorney (Midland)," Tucker testified.

The second affidavit was filed in Midland as a "back-up" to insure proper jurisdiction since the case involved the two counties, testified former Ward County District Attorney Hal Upchurch.

The drug dealers' attorneys raised the concern that the government may not get the money because the seizure/forfeiture suit was filed in the wrong jurisdiction, Upchurch said.

Upchurch said he designated Tucker seizing officer because of his minimal involvement in the reverse sting. Tucker's lack of knowledge would prevent the drug dealers' attorneys from learning about the criminal case through questioning Tucker in the civil forfeiture proceeding, Upchurch said.

Tucker testified that never in his 22 years as a law enforcement officer acted as a seizure officer.

"He (Upchurch) asked who knew the least about the case and I raised my hand and he said 'You're the seizing officer,'" Tucker told the jury.

That assignment came shortly after the money was brought to Monahans by Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, and two deputies — Sgt. Jose Primera, who physically seized the money in Midland, and Ed Krevitt.

During testimony, the question arose about the legality of moving the money from Midland County to Ward County.

Lt. Tim Rogers, criminal investigator with the Midland County Sheriff's Office, said he became concerned after the money was seized and prepared to be moved.

"I just felt I needed to consult with the district attorney before letting that money leave Midland County," he said.

Rogers said Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre authorized the movement over the telephone.

Schorre testified otherwise.

"I don't have any recollection of discussing the case with him (Rogers)" until after the money had Midlander Chris Jacobs shows off his new invention that is aimed at thwarting carjackers.

Midlander invents device to halt carjackers

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

You are stopped at a traffic light, when a man jumps into the passenger seat of your vehicle, points a gun in your face and tells you to get out of the car and leave the keys. He then drives off with your car.

Or, maybe you're stopped in traffic when you are abruptly bumped from the back by another car. You get out to check for damage, and as you do someone sneaks into your car and drives off at a high rate of speed, closely followed by the bumping vehicle, an obvious accomplice.

One minute you are on your way home from work, the next you are left standing in the middle of the street without a vehicle.

It can happen on the street or in a parking lot, or even in your own driveway. It can happen by force or deception. Either way, you've been carjacked. Someone has stolen your car while you were in it.

Carjacking is the newest, hottest and fastest growing crime in America. More than 31,000 have occurred already this year and 100,000 are expected next year. Police first noticed this latest trend in 1990, when 1,200 cars were stolen at gunpoint in New York City.

Today, carjackers are stealing vehicles nationwide at the rate of 5,000 per week. In August of this year, 300 cars were stolen at gunpoint in Detroit alone. It's never happened in Midland.

While primarily a big-city crime, carjacking can happen in any size town and a Midland inventor says he has invented a device that can bring carjackers to a halt — literally.

Called the Stop Action switch, the device works like this: a carjacker points a gun at the driver and forces him to exit the vehicle.

As the driver does, he presses a small concealed button mounted beneath the mat on the floor. The thief gets into the car and drives away, and 60 to 90 seconds later when he is safely out of range the vehicle begins to stall and sputter.

It loses power and will not restart again no matter what the thief does.

He must now leave the vehicle in the middle of the street and flee in an embarrassing and attention-getting situation. Meanwhile the driver calls 911, and the police are on their way.

The inventor, Chris Jacobs, said by stalling within 60-90 sec-

Volunteers spend night collecting for food drive

■ Group of people work through evening to kick off 5th annual Holiday Food Drive.

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

A small band of volunteers spent Monday night in a house full of food constructed in front of Abell Hanger Medical Pavilion.

The reason? To kick off the 5th annual Holiday Food Drive cosponsored by the Memorial Hospital and Medical Center employees, KNFM and KCDQ radio stations for the Permian Basin Food Bank.

"I wanted to show people that I was dedicated to this cause," Keith Montgomery of KNFM said. "So, to kick it off, we asked local stores to donate for the house. Albertson's, Furrs and Coke all donated items and then we constructed the house out of crates with the items inside. We stayed all night."

The drive kicked off at 8 p.m. Monday and ran through 7 p.m. Tuesday. The goal was to exceed last year's total of approximately 5,000 pounds of food and related items, Montgomery said.

"We have had about 150 crates filled so far," Montgomery said late Monday afternoon. "It's going very well and I'm pretty sure we will pass last year's total."

Teresa Holguin from the Food Bank said she guessed the amount gathered by Monday afternoon was 4,000 pounds.

"I really can't say, because this food will go straight to the center to be processed and then straight out," Ms. Holguin said. "We serve about 4,000 families each month from 17 counties. The food does not last long."

About 10-15 volunteers worked each shift, said Sue Ristom of the Memorial Hospital and Medical Center public relations office.

"We accept all food, fresh, frozen or canned," Ms. Ristom said. "And, all people had to do was drive up and give it to us. They don't even have to leave their cars."

Montgomery said it was the second year KNFM had participated in the food drive and it was his fifth year to volunteer.

And, staying overnight in below-freezing temperatures wasn't a problem.

"We often lose sight of what's going on in this country," Montgomery said. "Sure, there are starving people in Somalia, but there are starving people right here in this country. I think it should be every person's right to have a good meal during the holidays."

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Volunteers Ron Smedley, left, and Sam Santana help sort some of the 4,000 pounds of groceries donated to the Permian Basin Food Bank by local residents during the two-day holiday drive co-sponsored by Memorial Hospital & Medical Center employees and KNFM and KCDQ radio stations. The food drive is a 23-hour plea to help West Texas families in need. The Odessa-based agency serves an average of 4,000 families per month across a 17-county region.

Information & Referral seeks permanent home

Staff report

The woman on the other end of the line had three children and her husband had left her. She was desperate to find a job instead of having to accept welfare. But she knew she couldn't take her 6-month-old baby with her to job interviews. Where could she get some help?

Sandy Rodriguez, Information and Referral (I&R) specialist, located a day care center that would take the child one day a week while the woman looked for work. The caller also was referred to an employment service, and another agency gave the woman personal care products to help her present a positive image at the interviews. After three weeks, she had found a job.

This is a story with a positive ending for Information and Referral Midland, a service that is located at the United Way office. However, I&R now poses a question for the entire community — it is looking for a new home.

Inability to find help through the city's many agencies was listed as the top problem in the 1988 Midland Introspective study. Soon thereafter, the Volunteer Center of Midland began I&R with assistance from United Way. However, earlier this year the center decided to focus on their nonprofit management program and the United Way assumed operation of I&R on a temporary basis.

United Way is seeking a permanent home for I&R, according to President-elect Jim Henry, who is heading the relocation effort. Organizations interested in adopting the service should contact Linda Rust at United Way, 682-4358, before Jan. 5. A proposal and projected budget should be submitted by Jan. 7.

Henry described I&R as a phone line providing names and telephone numbers of human service agencies that may be able to help the callers. It is answered by a staff person during business hours and an answering machine handles the calls after hours and on weekends.

The service should be staffed by a full-time bilingual person who maintains empathy and professionalism, updates a detailed data base of human services and finan-

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

■ Odessa grand jury indicts 8 teens for rioting

ODESSA — An Odessa grand jury indicted eight teen-agers Monday in connection with a riot at an Odessa Whataburger Restaurant in July.

The incident occurred on July 27 at the Whataburger at 1900 E. 8th. An investigation into the incident by the Odessa Police Department Criminal Investigation Division, the Inspectional Services Unit, the Texas Rangers and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, found that those arrested after the incident were properly arrested and there were no grounds for charges against any officers.

On Monday, the 70th District grand jury met and found no wrongful acts by the Odessa officers.

Indictments were handed down for Herbert Ray Anderson, 19, for aggravated assault on a police officer, resisting arrest and misdemeanor rioting; Malcolm Xavier Hamilton, 19, for resisting arrest and misdemeanor rioting; William "Bill" Derek Baty, 18, for misdemeanor rioting; Jermaine Decress Cole, 18, for misdemeanor rioting; Shaun Elise Niblett, 19, misdemeanor rioting; Hasaan Theodorick Rice, 19, for misdemeanor rioting; Shawquannin Young, 18, for resisting arrest and misdemeanor rioting; and Jacquelyne Baker, 18, for misdemeanor rioting.

Neither the Ector County Sheriff's office nor the OPD could confirm if any of those indicted had been arrested by late Tuesday.

■ Department changes procedure, supervision

ODESSA — Procedure and supervision in the Odessa Police Department Criminalistics Unit have changed despite an investigation into the unit by the Texas Rangers which revealed that no property in the unit was missing.

The investigation occurred after the Inspectional Services reported that evidence appeared to be missing from the property vault after the arrest and resignation of one criminalistics officer and the resignation of another in November.

The investigation showed that the evidence was not missing. However, the misunderstanding occurred due to poor supervision and inadequate record keeping.

■ Justice sets bond for former police employee

ODESSA — An Odessa Police Department employee was free on bond Tuesday after being arrested for delivery and possession of marijuana Monday.

Bond was set for Bernice Smith, 48, at $5,000 for delivery and $1,500 for possession by Justice of the Peace Julian Presley.

According to a police report, an investigation into a Odessa Police Department employee suspected of selling marijuana was begun Dec. 11 by the police department and Permian Basin Drug Task Force. On the same day, a small quantity of marijuana was purchased from the employee at her residence by an undercover narcotics officer.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Ms. Smith on Monday for delivery of less than seven grams of marijuana by Justice of the Peace Dennis Bright. Ms. Smith was arrested at 10:05 a.m. in the 800 block of West Clements Street. At the time of the arrest, two plastic bags of marijuana were found in her possession and an additional charge of possession of marijuana was filed against her, police said.

Ms. Smith resigned from the police department before an investigation was begun by an internal investigation unit.

already been moved, he said.

Schorre further addressed the legality of the move.

"The statute says it's supposed to be forfeited in the county it's seized in," he testified. "To me the statute's very clear where it's suppose to be filed."

Upchurch testified that the seizure law is unclear and that's why he called Schorre to have a second civil suit filed in Midland County.

Schorre said he went along with the back-up suit to assist the Ward County District Attorney's Office and prevent the money from being returned to the drug dealers. The government has 30 days after a seizure to file for the money.

Midland County Assistant District Attorney John Westbrook received the forfeiture papers from Tucker but told Tucker a sworn affidavit was required by law. Tucker said he had signed affidavit prepared by Westbrook.

Westbrook was also critical of the initial transportation of the money.

"My personal opinion was that it (the money) belonged here to begin with," he said.

Sheriff's officials testified that the sting was a Ward County case but the drug dealers, being cautious, wanted the marijuana and money transactions separate. Nevertheless, the sheriff's office was involved in the investigation from the beginning.

The money seized was eventually divided between the sheriff's office and the Ward County District Attorney's Office. The Midland County District Attorney's Office was given $18,000 by the sheriff's office.

The forfeiture suit that stemmed from the second affidavit filed in Midland County was dismissed.

During questioning, Tucker was asked if he benefited from the investigation and filing the false affidavit.

"All I got out of this investigation was indicted," he said.

A seven-woman, five-man jury will hear closing arguments before beginning deliberations today.

Attorneys for the defense are Bob Odom and Troy Hurley, both of Belton, and Ted Painter of Monahans.

Tucker faces charges of aggravated perjury, punishable by two to 10 years imprisonment and a fine up to $10,000, and perjury, a maximum of a year in jail and a $3,000 fine. If convicted, Tucker could receive a probated sentence.

To prove perjury an intent to deceive must be shown.

In a separate pending lawsuit, Midland County Commissioners' Court claims the money should have been forfeited in Midland County where the money was seized. That suit revolves around an ongoing controversy between the Commissioners' Court and Sheriff Painter about reverse drug stings.

Last month, a federal lawsuit filed by Tucker against six federal and state law enforcement agencies for interfering with his law enforcement career was dismissed by U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton. Tucker's attorney in that case failed to respond to a motion for dismissal filed by federal agencies.

Tucker has been indicted in Ward and Dallas counties for theft of money related to reverse stings. The Ward County indictment has since been dropped.

out of the administration building such as speech pathologists, diagnosticians, and reading specialists," Holland said. "They work out of the office, but are not of administrative rank."

Dobey said the term "administration" can often include "everyone who administers to a campus somehow, such as janitors and bus drivers and the person who mows the lawn" (which are included in the 2,000 staff figure).

Another category of expenditures that has caused confusion in the district is transportation. In non-salary categories, only transportation expenditures were above the state average in the recent TRL report.

"Some people may point to the district's cluster system as the reason for this slightly above average expenditure category," Baressi said. "However, this figure is largely a result of MISD's geographic size and the extensive travel required by students for competition."

Dobey said demographic information indicates that Midland ISD encompasses 835 square miles with a population of 105,000.

"Midland ISD covers the entire county except for Greenwood," Dobey said. "Some students even live in Mission Dorado (between Midland and Odessa on Highway 191) and out to all of the county's borders. Plus, the state mandates we provide busing for students who live more than two miles away from the school they attend."

Dobey said trustees will reconsider routes busing students who live closer than two miles to school since the state doesn't reimburse the district for those students. Students who live on a hazardous route, however, such as those who would need to cross a state highway or Loop 250 are exceptions to the two-mile guideline.

"We have allowed certain areas of town to be bused for less than two miles. We are going to being looking at those closely when Greathouse (Elementary, now under construction) comes on line," he said.

The school board will also look at minimizing or shortening bus routes when it revamps the cluster system of grouping schools for integration.

"School boundaries won't change, but how the schools are paired up may change," Dobey said.

While adhering to the two-mile busing guideline and reducing routes somewhat can decrease transportation costs, Baressi said administrators "would certainly like to spend more in some categories, particularly instruction."

Dobey said trustees hope the state comptroller considers their offer. "There may be room for consolidation of efforts," he said. "I think the district operations are lean. There is no way of knowing until an audit is done. We just want an honest, clean evaluation of what we are doing — fair and objective and not subject to political whims."

DEVICE: Man helps prevent carjacking with Stop Action

onds, it is relatively easy for police to recover the vehicle, which could otherwise end up in a chop shop, where it is sold for parts or taken to another town or country for resale.

But in addition to recovering more vehicles, Jacobs says the anti-theft device should also work as a strong deterrent to carjackings.

"Once word about the Stop Action switch gets around, we expect it will deter thieves, because they will never know which vehicle is equipped with it and which one isn't," said Jacobs, an electronics expert who designs and manufactures high-performance ignition equipment, and helped develop the electronic pacemaker, now used by thousands of heart patients.

Jacobs, who has been featured in national magazines and on several national talk and news shows including Paul Harvey, said demand for the device is growing so fast that production lines at Jacobs Electronics are having a difficult time keeping up with orders.

"Police advise is that it is always best to surrender the vehicle and not resist. Even a moderately serious bullet wound will cost you more than the car, if you try to run," Jacobs said. "Police statistics have shown that over 50 percent of the victims shot during a carjacking will end up with a permanent disability. This anti-theft technology, which stops the car cold a mile away, can give the victim some hope that his vehicle will be recovered."

Ironically, police say that one of the reasons for the rapid increase in carjackings is the growing sophistication of anti-theft technology in alarms and locks that have made it more difficult to steal a parked vehicle.

DEATHS

Filomeno Bustamante

Students to receive award for planting, adopting trees

Staff report

Diamond Shamrock officials will be at San Jacinto Junior High School 1:30 p.m. today to present the "Hooray for Excellence" award of $500 and a certificate to the school.

By challenging its students to "adopt a sticky green baby to love and make sure it has plenty of food and water," the school caught the attention of judges in the statewide contest.

The school's program to adopt and plant 100 trees in Midland will be featured in a radio commercial during a halftime show of a 5A football games.

Veteran football broadcaster Warren Hasse will host the halftime shows as part of the 28-year Diamond Shamrock Football network.

San Jacinto's winning commercial will be broadcast during each of the state's 5A high school playoff games beginning at the regional level and continuing through the two 5A final games. The broadcasts will expand to include the final 4A football game.

San Jacinto is one of 10 schools in the state, and the only school in West Texas, to win the contest.

Diamond Shamrock applauded San Jacinto "for making science a living subject while studying the environment."

The "Hooray for Excellence" program is designed to "shine football's Friday night spotlight into the classroom and the academic activities that take place off of the football field."

Henry suggested any agency taking on the I&R service should conduct a marketing campaign to make Midlanders aware of 697-HELP.

Criteria that interested organizations should possess include the ability to work well with other human service agencies in the community, a well-established history, a budget proposal that is effective and efficient, and the ability to raise funds other than relying on United Way.

And, Henry added, the agency must consider I&R a priority — not just another service.

Marching band steals $22,000 in electronics on Toyko shopping trip

TOKYO (AP) — Texas Southern University's marching band turned a shopping trip into a shoplifting spree, stealing $22,000 worth of electronics before police retrieved most of the goods.

The president of the Houston university expressed his "personal disgust" and said the students who stole the goods had brought "great dishonor" to the school.

Japanese officials said Tuesday that the 126-member band was visiting Tokyo to play at the half-time show of a Dec. 6 NCAA football game between the University of Nebraska and Kansas State.

Kazuhiko Okada of the Manseibashi police station said that the day after the game the 126 band members were taken in buses on a shopping trip to Akihabara, an area famed for its electronics shops. Later in the day, they were to return to the United States.

When store employees saw some band members stealing products and chased them, the Americans returned to their buses, he said.

Police were unable to make arrests. Shopkeepers could not identify the thieves since the band members were wearing identical uniforms, Okada said.

But police told band members that unless the stolen products were returned, the buses would not be permitted to leave for the airport, he said.

One by one, about 100 products were passed to the back doors of the buses, Okada said. The returned products included pocket tape recorders, pocket televisions and video game software worth $18,500, he said.

However, about $3,500 of goods were not returned, according to Atsushi Fujita of Teleplanning International Co., which organized the football game.

Fujita said his company received money for the unreturned products from Texas Southern and presented it to the shopkeepers along with apologies.

In Houston, the university's president, William H. Harris, said school officials "the students involved have brought great dishonor to Texas Southern University."

"I am here today to express my personal disgust for what happened in Japan and to deplore in the strongest possible terms such actions," he said in a statement.

University spokesman Chuck Smith added that the shoplifters were identified as a "hard core" of eight, along with no more than 20 other students. He said no decision had been made on punishing the students.

Although police have not announced the incident, a Japanese television station and newspaper reported it Tuesday.

"I have never heard of a case involving stealing by such a large number of people," said Okada.

Japan has a low shoplifting rate, with products frequently displayed on racks outside stores.

Bush warns against isolationist policy

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — In what likely was his last major speech in Texas before leaving office, President Bush warned against an isolationist policy in the post-Cold War era, saying U.S. leadership is needed abroad not only to promote democracy but to help forge economic coalitions that will benefit Americans.

"Let me be blunt," Bush told an audience of 7,000 gathered on Tuesday at G. Rollie White Coliseum on the Texas A&M University campus, about a mile from a pasture where his presidential library and museum will be built. "A retreat from American leadership, from American involvement, would be a mistake for which future generations, indeed our own children, would pay dearly.

"We must not stumble as we travel toward a world without the brutal violence of Bosnia, the deadly anarchy of Somalia or the squalor that still haunts so much of the globe," Bush said in what was billed as a major foreign policy address.

Reflecting on the fall of Soviet communism, Bush credited the resolve of Western democracies — their "strength, unity, and above all, American leadership" — for bringing about its collapse.

The same coalition, he said, guided eastern European countries away from communist repression, encouraged a united Germany after the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and beat back the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in the Persian Gulf War.

His remarks were interrupted several times by applause, as well as a few hoots, hollers and — when he made a reference to President-elect Bill Clinton, hisses — from the largely partisan crowd.

Four demonstrators were evicted for shouting "What about the POWs?" during Bush's speech. He ignored them.

In an emotional moment, Bush also recalled a conversation with Russian President Boris Yeltsin during the failed 1991 coup, "at a time when the static on the telephone made it almost impossible to hear."

"But there was no mistaking what he wanted to know," Bush said. "He asked where the United States of America stood. And America answered, for all the world to hear, 'We stand with you.'"

Such actions, he said, while helping to reduce threats to U.S. national security, also have economic benefits domestically and by encouraging fragile democracies, U.S. policy will spur the global spread of free markets through trade and investment.

"In short, by helping others we help ourselves," he said.

While encouraging the incoming Clinton administration to maintain an active foreign policy agenda, Bush urged caution and deliberation before committing U.S. troops.

The president, who during his 33-minute speech twice mentioned that he has 36 days remaining in office, also dismissed those who would condemn U.S. intervention abroad, pointing to successes brought about by what he called the "patient and judicous application of American power, and American moral force."

In another foreign policy matter, White House aides traveling with the president released copies of a letter he sent to House Speaker Tom Foley extending the National Emergencies Act, allowing the United States to maintain economic sanctions against Libya.

"The crisis between the United States and Libya that led to the declaration on Jan. 7, 1986, of a national emergency has not been resolved," Bush said in the letter.

"The government of Libya continues to use and support international terrorism, as evidenced by its involvement in the destruction of Pan Am flight 103 in violation of international law and minimum standards of human behavior."

The president said such action and policies pose "an unusual and extraordinary threat to national security and the vital foreign policy interests of the United States."

Long-time favorite cookies all dressed up in holiday finery

By Linda Anderson

Never let it be said that I let a holiday season go by without sampling some Christmas-specific junk food.

Every year, the Nabisco people introduce some of their famous Oreo sandwich cookies all dressed up for Christmas. This year we tried two versions — full-sized Oreos covered in white chocolate, and Mini-Oreos with red creme filling instead of the usual white.

Anderson

We all know about Oreos — the vanilla creme-filled chocolate sandwich cookies have been an American favorite for decades. Christmas-specific Oreos start off as regular Oreos, and then get all dressed up for the holidays. White Chocolate-covered Oreos are regular Oreos (not double-stuffed and not giant- or mini-sized) that have been dipped in a white chocolate coating — I guess they are supposed to look snow-covered. Christmas Mini-Oreos are about an inch in diameter (the idea is, if they are little you'll eat more of them and feel less guilty), and have more filling in proportion to their size than regular Oreos. The filling in these cookies is red instead of white. (I did not see any green-filling Mini-Oreos for Christmas, and I have to admit that disappointed me. To be truly holiday Mini-Oreos, wouldn't they have to be both red and green?)

A box of about two dozen White Chocolate-covered Oreos cost $2.29. A 7½-ounce box of Mini-Oreos with red Christmas filling cost $1.89. Seemed kind of pricey to me, but Christmas comes but once a year, right? At least, Christmas Oreos do.

Oreos don't do much label advertising, but the boxes do say things like "No Cholesterol" and "Low Saturated Fat." The Mini-Oreo box had a recipe for Holiday Magic Ice Cream Cake (made with peppermint stick ice cream, peppermint candy sticks and, of course, Mini-Oreos with red filling).

In the taste test, both kinds of Christmas Oreos did well — they are Oreos, after all. The red filling in the Mini-Oreos tastes a lot like the filling in Oreos Double Stuff, which is not as good as the filling in regular Oreos. The White Chocolate Oreos are delicious — in fact, they may become a Christmas tradition at our house.

The youngest taste-tester approved of both Oreos. This morning when we loaded up her lunch box for school, she filled a sandwich bag with about a dozen cookies — a combination of both kinds. And that is the sincerest form of approval.

Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Gingerbread men for eating, hanging

Associated Press

Gingerbread cookies look beautiful on the tree, if they're not eaten first! When baked cookies are still warm, use a wooden pick to make holes at the top. After decorating the cookies, thread string or ribbon through the holes and hang as ornaments.

Also to bake for the holidays: apricot cardamom bread, which can be used as a holiday centerpiece. Brandied apricots are tucked inside the bread, which is shaped as a wreath and sprinkled with sugar crystals.

If not eaten first, gingerbread cookies make wonderful decorations for the Christmas tree.

ORANGE SPICED GINGERBREAD CUTOUTS

⅓ cup firmly packed brown sugar
⅓ cup butter, softened
⅔ cup light molasses
1 egg
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
2¾ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
FOR THE FROSTING:
4 cups powdered sugar
½ cup butter, softened
3 to 4 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons vanilla

In a large mixer bowl, combine brown sugar, the ⅓ cup butter, molasses, egg and orange peel. Beat at medium speed, scraping bowl often, until smooth and creamy, about 1 to 2 minutes. Add all remaining dough ingredients. Reduce speed to low. Continue beating, scraping bowl often, until well mixed, about 1 to 2 minutes. Cover, refrigerate for at least 2 hours.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. On well-floured surface, roll out dough, one-half at a time, keeping remaining dough refrigerated, to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with 3- to 4-inch cookie cutters. Place 1 inch apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a 375-degree oven for 6 to 8 minutes or until no indentation remains when touched. Cool completely.

In a small mixer bowl, combine all frosting ingredients. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl often, until fluffy, about 1 to 2 minutes. If desired, color frosting with food coloring. Decorate cookies with frosting. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

APRICOT CARDAMOM WREATHS

1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cardamom
½ cup butter
12-ounce can evaporated milk
2 teaspoons salt
2 ¼-ounce packages active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (105 degrees to 115 degrees)
½ cup dairy sour cream
3 eggs
6½ to 7½ cups all-purpose flour
FOR THE FILLING:
2 to 2½ cups water
¼ cup brandy or water
6-ounce package (2 cups) dried apricots
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons milk
Large crystal sugar

In a 2-quart saucepan, stir together sugar and caramom; add butter, evaporated milk and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally until butter is melted, about 5 to 8 minutes. Cool to warm (105 degrees to 115 degrees).

In large mixer bowl dissolve yeast in ¼ cup warm water; stir in warm milk mixture, sour cream, eggs and 3 cups of the flour. Beat at medium speed, scraping bowl often, until smooth, 1 to 2 minutes.

By hand, stir in enough remaining flour to make dough easy to handle. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl; turn greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 to 1½ hours. Dough is ready if indentation remains when touched.

Meanwhile, in a 2-quart saucepan, combine 2 cups of the water, brandy and apricots. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally and adding small amounts of additional water if necessary, until apricots are tender and mixture is thickened, 40 to 45 minutes. Set aside.

Punch down dough; divide in half. Let rest 10 minutes. On lightly floured surface, roll one-half of dough to a 20x9-inch rectange. Cut into three 3-inch strips. Spread each strip with ¼ cup apricot mixture to within ½ inch of edges. Bring 20-inch sides up together. Pinch sides and ends tightly to seal well. Gently braid filled strips together. Place on greased large cookie sheet; form into wreath. Pinch ends to seal well. Repeat with remaining dough and apricot mixture. Cover; let rise 30 minutes.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. In small bowl, stir together 1 egg and milk. Brush breads with egg mixture. Sprinkle with large crystal sugar. Continue baking or 5 to 10 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheets; cool on wire racks. Makes two wreaths.

NOTE: For best results, bake one wreath at a time.

Use care when cooking Christmas feast

By Beverly Bundy
N.Y. Times News Service

Two once-popular methods for baking turkey are discouraged for safety and health reasons.

Don't roast turkey in a brown paper grocery sack. Manufacturers often use recycled paper these days, and chemicals can be dangerous to the digestive system. Those same chemicals can cause the sacks to catch fire.

Don't cook the turkey on low heat overnight. This method doesn't get the turkey to a high enough temperature to kill bacteria, but it does get the meat warm enough for bacteria to multiply to a dangerous level.

Modern cooks may try to save time by partially cooking the turkey one day, refrigerating it overnight, and resuming cooking the next day. This, too, can result in food poisoning.

When Santa is cook, Christmas is not a holiday

By Wayne Almquist

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — As a chef, I know it's the nature of the restaurant business to work on holidays, including Christmas.

One year, while working at a country club, my boss decided to use the main dining room's 12-foot open grill and have Santa cook Christmas dinner for all the guests. Since I was the perfect shape (and temperament), I got the job.

There were over 800 reservations that day. And there I was, in full Santa costume, standing in front of a flaming hot grill. I went through two jackets, three hats — and three beards, which kept catching fire! I thought the day would never end.

Finally, the last party of 50 guests arrived, including 30 Down's syndrome children, ages 2 to 15, and everyone wanted to talk to Santa Claus. So, after 10 hours on the grill, I changed into my last clean outfit and unscorched beard. I threw a bag of presents over my shoulder and went out to meet my young guests. It was the best Christmas I ever had!

Here's a nonconventional recipe for Christmas Chili from that memorable dinner, along with two more traditional ones to enjoy. Happy Holidays!

CHRISTMAS CHILI

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 pound lean ground beef
½ cup diced onion
2 tablespoons chili powder
2 teaspoons unsweetened baking cocoa
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cumin
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
10-ounce can beef broth
15-ounce can tomato sauce
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
½ pound spaghetti, cooked and drained
1 cup red kidney beans, cooked and drained
¼ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
Additional red pepper flakes to taste

Heat the oil in a saucepot. Crumble the meat into the pan; cook, stirring occasionally, until evenly browned. Pour off any excess fat. Add the onions, chili powder, baking cocoa, cinnamon, cumin, garlic, cloves and salt; saute until the onions are limp. Add the beef broth, tomato sauce and vinegar. Mix well, cover and simmer for 3 hours, stirring occasionally.

Remove the chili from the heat. Allow it to cool; refrigerate overnight. Lift any hardened fat from the surface before reheating. Make a bed of cooked spaghetti and ladle some chili over it. Top the chili with the beans, Cheddar cheese and red pepper flakes. Makes 4 servings.

HOLIDAY FRUITCAKE

½ cup (1 stick) unsalted butter
¼ cup shortening
1 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon zest
½ teaspoon salt
4 large eggs
⅔ cup bread flour, unsifted
⅔ cup cake flour, unsifted
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
¾ cup diced candied fruits
¾ cup golden raisins
½ cup rum, brandy, or cognac (optional)

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Prepare two 5½x3x2½-inch loaf pans or one 8½x4½x2½-inch loaf pan. Lightly brushing with shortening, then dust with flour. Shake out any excess flour.

Blend the butter and shortening with a mixer or by hand. Add the sugar, lemon zest and salt; cream until very smooth and light. Add the eggs; mix until thoroughly incorporated.

Sift the bread and cake flours together twice; add to the creamed mixture. Scrape the bowl occasionally as the batter is mixed; be sure the flour is evenly worked into the batter.

In a separate bowl, combine the all-purpose flour with the nuts, candied fruits and raisins, tossing until all ingredients are lightly coated with flour; fold into the batter until evenly blended.

Pour the batter into the prepared pan. Bake in a 325-degree oven for about 40 minutes, or until the cake springs back when lightly pressed with a fingertip. Remove from the oven, cool briefly before turning the cake out of the pans and onto a cooling rack.

If desired, brush the cake with rum while still warm. Cut squares of cheesecloth large enough to wrap each cake, then rinse thoroughly and squeeze dry. Dampen the cheesecloth with some of the rum. Wrap the cakes first in the cheesecloth and then in foil. Store under refrigeration, brushing with additional rum or brandy weekly until ready to serve. Makes two 1-pound cakes.

ALMOND COOKIES

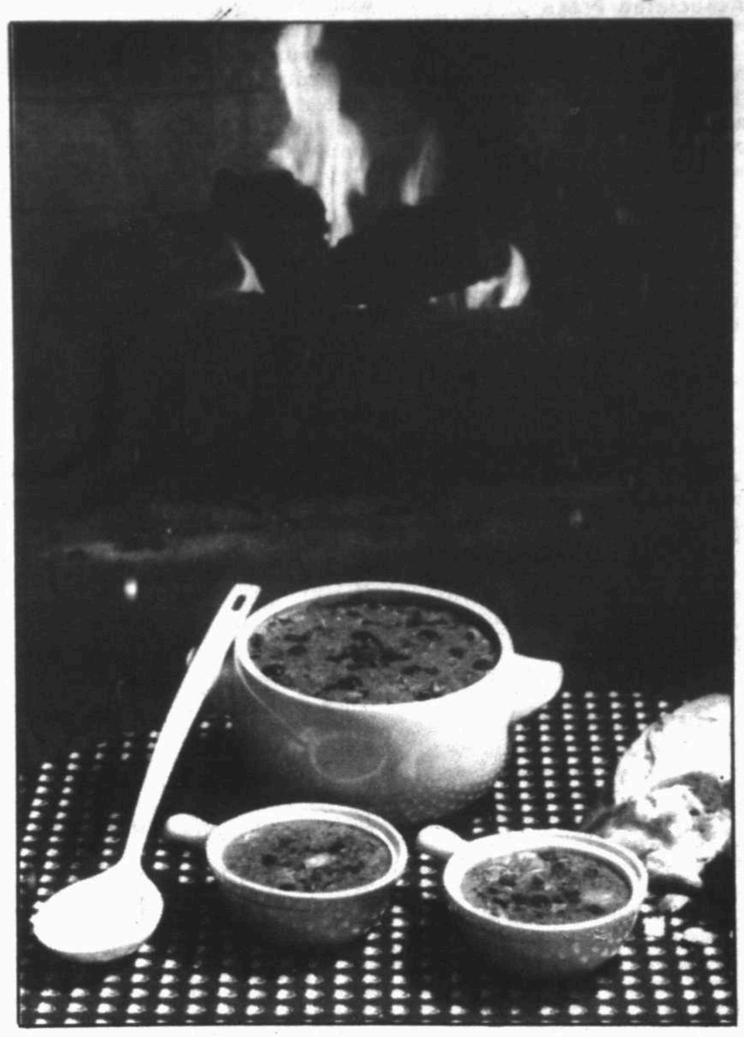

6 ounces almond paste
½ cup granulated sugar
6 tablespoons unsalted butter, softened
6 tablespoons shortening
½ teaspoon grated lemon zest
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon salt
3 egg whites, lightly beaten
1 cup bread flour, unsifted
1 cup cake flour, unsifted

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly grease a jellyroll pan; dust with flour, shaking out any excess.

Cream the almond paste, sugar, butter and shortening with a mixer until very smooth and light. Add the lemon zest, vanilla and salt. Continue to mix until blended. Gradually incorporate the egg whites; mixing until smooth. Scrape the sides and bottom of the bowl a few times to be sure that the batter is evenly mixed.

Sift the bread and cake flours together twice. Fold the sifted flour into the batter; blend until smooth. Spread the batter in the prepared pan; bake in a 350-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes, or until the cookies spring back when lightly pressed with a fingertip.

Remove the pan from the oven. Let cool. Cut the cookies into the desired shape (squares, rectangles, or diamonds) and remove from the pan. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Raspberries, chocolate make 'sugarplums dance in their heads'

Associated Press

Christmas is the time for sugarplums, which are round pieces of sugary candy. These festive Sugarplum desserts are meringues filled with chocolate custard and garnished with cocoa and raspberries.

SUGARPLUMS

4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup granulated sugar
2 cups (12-ounce package) semi-sweet chocolate chips
⅓ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¾ cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
¼ cup seedless raspberry preserves
Cocoa powder
Fresh raspberries

FOR THE MERINGUES: In a large mixer bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Gradually add sugar, beating until soft peaks form. Stir in 1 cup of the chocolate chips. Drop by ¼ cups onto parchment paper or foil-lined baking sheets. With tip of spoon, shape each into 3- to 4-inch circles. Bake in a preheated 275-degree oven for 50 minutes or until very lightly browned and crusty. Turn oven off; let stand for 1 hour in closed oven. Cool completely. Store in airtight container up to 1 week.

For the chocolate custard: In a small saucepan, combine ⅓ cup granulated sugar, the 2 tablespoons cornstarch and the ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir in milk. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly; boil for 1 minute. Remove from heat, stir in remaining 1 cup chocolate chips, butter and vanilla. Stir until smooth. Press plastic wrap directly onto surface of custard. Cool completely.

For topping: In a small bowl, beat ¾ cup whipping cream and 1 tablespoon granulated sugar until stiff peaks form.

To assemble: Spread about ½ teaspoon raspberry preserves into each meringue shell. Top with chocolate custard and topping. Garnish with cocoa and fresh raspberries. Makes 16 desserts.

Making holiday candy can be no big deal using microwave oven

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Making holiday candy is no big deal when you use your microwave oven and this three-ingredient recipe. After toasting the nuts and melting the candy, all you do is stir and pour. Besides the ease of it all, you'll love the apricot tang and nutty crunch.

APRICOT MACADAMIA NUT BARK

½ cup coarsely chopped macadamia nuts, hazelnuts (filberts), or almonds
1 pound white baking pieces with cocoa butter, cut up, or 1 pound vanilla-flavored candy coating, cut up (3 cups)
½ cup finely snipped dried apricots

In a 2-cup glass measure cook nuts, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 2 to 3 minutes or until toasted. Let stand for 15 minutes. (They will continue to toast as they stand.)

Meanwhile, line a baking sheet with foil; set aside.

In a 2-quart, microwave-safe casserole heat baking pieces or candy coating on high power for 2 to 4 minutes or until soft enough to stir smooth, stirring after every minute. Stir in nuts and ⅓ cup of the dried apricots.

Pour the mixture onto the prepared baking sheet, spreading to a 10-inch circle. Sprinkle with the remaining apricots, lightly pressing them into the candy mixture. Chill about 30 minutes or until firm. (Or, if using confectioner's coating, let the candy stand at room temperature for several hours or until firm.)

When firm, use the foil to lift candy from the baking sheet; break into pieces. Store candy, tightly covered, in the refrigerator. (Or, if using confectioners' coating, you can store, tightly covered, at room temperature.) Makes about 1¼ pounds nut bark.

Gifts can be homemade foods

Associated Press

Homemade candies, breads and ice cream sauces make great holiday gifts, especially when packaged in decorative jars, boxes and cellophane paper, and wrapped with a pretty bow.

CASHEW BUTTER CRUNCH

1 cup sugar
1 cup butter
1 tablespoon light corn syrup
1½ cups salted cashew pieces or 1½ cups salted nuts

In a 2-quart saucepan, combine sugar, butter and corn syrup. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until candy thermometer reached 290 degrees, or a small amount of mixture dropped into ice water forms brittle strands, about 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in nuts. Spread to ¼-inch thickness on a waxed paper lined 15x10x1-inch jellyroll pan. Cool completely; break into pieces. Makes 1¼ pounds.

BANANA MACADAMIA NUT BREAD

2 cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
½ cup butter, softened
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup (2 medium) mashed ripe bananas
¼ cup orange juice
1 cup flaked coconut
3½-ounce jar (¾ cup) coarsely chopped macadamia nuts or walnuts

Heat oven to 350 degrees. In large mixer bowl combine all ingredients except bananas, orange juice, coconut and nuts. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl often, until well mixed, about 2 to 3 minutes. Add bananas and orange juice. Continue beating, scraping bowl often, until well mixed, about 1 minutes. By hand, stir in coconut and nuts. The batter will be thick. Spread into three greased 5½x3-inch miniloaf pans or 1 greased 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake small pans in a 350-degree oven for 35 to 45 minutes. Bake the 9x5-inch pan in a 350-degree oven for 60 to 65 minutes, or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pans.

HOT FUDGE SAUCE

½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
⅓ cup water
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
6-ounce package (1 cup) semisweet chocolate chips, not imitation chips
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a medium saucepan, combine sugar, butter, water and corn syrup. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full boil, about 5 to 8 minutes. Boil 3 minutes; remove from heat. Immediately add chocolate chips; beat with wire whisk or rotary beater until smooth. Stir in vanilla. Serve warm over ice cream or cake. Makes 1½ cups.

DEAR ABBY

Large dogs could endanger tiny baby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is married to a fine man and they have recently blessed us with a beautiful grandchild who is now 4 months old. The problem: Our daughter and son-in-law are animal lovers and have acquired three large dogs who have total run of the house — including access to the baby.

Van Buren

Sometimes the dogs snap at each other right next to the baby's face, putting the baby in danger of being bitten. If anyone says anything or attempts to keep the dogs off the baby, both parents act like the poor dogs' feelings have been hurt. Abby, since when did dogs become more precious than a child?

Also, the dogs sometimes lick the baby's face. Couldn't that present a health hazard? Or are we foolish for worrying about it? — CONCERNED GRANDPARENTS

DEAR CONCERNED: I consulted my animal expert, veterinarian Dr. Erwin David. He said: "Dogs should never be left alone with a 4-month-old baby. The baby could be inadvertently hurt should the three large dogs engage in playful roughhousing with each other near the baby. As for the danger involved in the dogs' licking the baby's face — Dr. Michael Steinberg is an authority. Consult him."

I spoke with Dr. Steinberg, who said he did not recommend allowing a dog to lick an infant's face, but if the dog is healthy, it won't hurt the baby. However, he, too, stressed that a 4-month-old baby should never be left alone with three large dogs in the house.

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior widow who recently had a dinner date with an elderly gentleman who left a very small tip for the waitress. I think he may have miscalculated.

Should I have mentioned it to him? Or added more money behind his back? The service was excellent. I did neither, and it still bothers me. How would you have handled it? — EMBARRASSED GRANNY

DEAR EMBARRASSED: I would not have added more money behind his back. If you are interested in seeing this man again, it's important to know whether he "miscalculated" or he is a bona fide cheapskate.

If this gentleman is on a limited budget, and you can easily afford to help him out, you could say, "The service was excellent — please allow me to participate." Then add a little something to his tip.

DEAR ABBY: In response to your reader who can't decide whether to vacuum or dust first when cleaning house: Dust first and the vacuum will blow the dust back onto the furniture. Vacuum first and dusting will leave dust on your clean floor.

Well, he must let the dust pile up pretty high to leave noticeable traces on the floor.

My solution: Clean more often and it won't matter which you do first. — TIDY AIRMAN

MCS All-Staters

Midland Christian School's Mustangs were as dominating on the All-State team as they were on the football field.

MCS, the two-time defending six-man champion of the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools, placed four offensive and three defensive starters on the All-State team, announced Tuesday.

Senior quarterback/safety Andy Awtry, senior center/nose-guard Gary Welsh, and junior fullback/linebacker Kyle Jackson were all named as first-team players on both sides of the ball.

End Jody Duncan, the Mustangs' third and final senior, was also picked for the first-team offense after MCS rolled to an 11-0 season and a 46-0 victory over Fort Worth Southwest Christian in the TAPPS championship game.

Receiving second-team recognition was Mustang defender Neil Truex, while running back Clay Gunter and end Lathan Houghton earned offensive honorable mention.

Awtry and Jackson also were named to the All-State team a year ago when the Mustangs, amid a 19-game winning streak, won their first state title.

Dusty's trail

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Giants have called a news conference for Wednesday at which batting coach Dusty Baker is expected to be named manager, replacing Roger Craig.

Baker, who has spent five seasons on the Giants' coaching staff, was the first of six candidates interviewed by new general manager Bob Quinn after Craig was fired on Dec. 1.

The Giants would not confirm Tuesday that Baker will get the job, though numerous reports have quoted sources saying he was Quinn's choice.

Barkley fine

PHOENIX — Phoenix Suns forward Charles Barkley was $5,000 poorer Tuesday. He also was unrepentant after being fined for making "derogatory comments" about NBA officiating.

The league said Barkley made the remarks after the Suns' 105-100 victory over the New Jersey Nets on Dec. 8 at East Rutherford, N.J.

MHS girls rip Bobcats in opener

■ The Midland High girls open District 4-5A play with a resounding 64-51 win.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

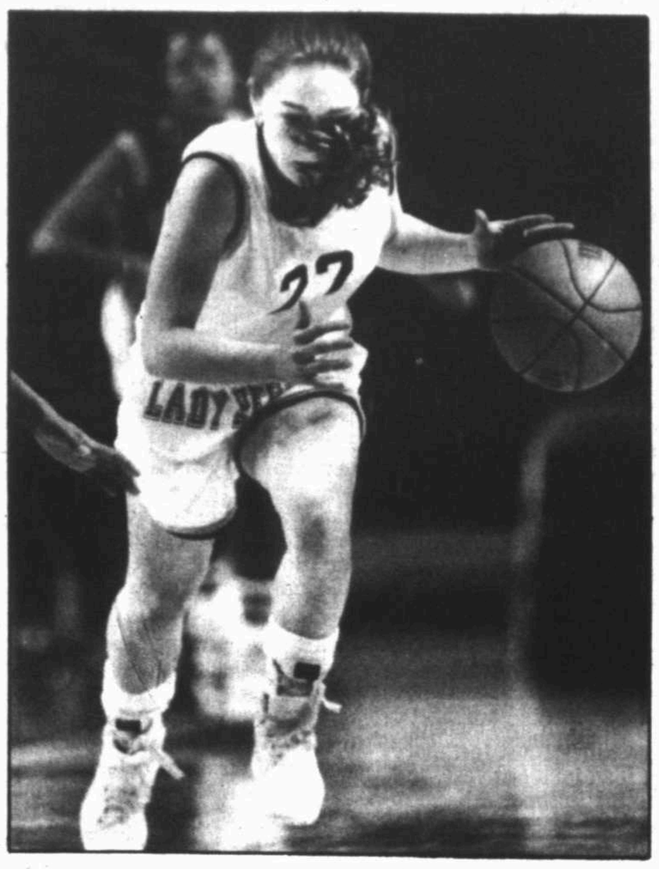

Senior point guard Charlotte Scharbauer led a second half surge and sophomore Amy Alcala came within five points of the all-time Midland High single game scoring record Tuesday night as the Lady Bulldogs dropped San Angelo, 64-51, to open the 1992-93 District 4-5A girls basketball season.

The win gives the 11-2 Lady Bulldogs a share of first place in league play with a 1-0 record; San Angelo falls to 9-5, 0-1.

In other district openers, Abilene High defeated Odessa High, 50-42, and Odessa Permian dropped Abilene Cooper, 43-34. In non-district play, Midland Lee silenced Lubbock Estacado, 66-38.

MHS' win was a coming-out party for Alcala, who was

Lady Rebs romp to win

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

While the rest of District 4-5A's girls team entered loop warfare Tuesday night, Midland Lee's Lady Rebels took a last "get ready" test against Lubbock Estacado. But that doesn't mean that Lee coach Elise Kail left the game happy — even with a 66-38 win.

"That was terrible," Kail said. "That was not one of our prettiest games, but I have to take the blame for a part of it.

"We had already beaten Estacado by a wide margin and we have our first district game coming up Friday on the road at Abilene Cooper. I think we were looking ahead to that one. I know I've spent a lot of time talking about district play."

Other than rebounding, Lee's girls did little to impress you against the shorter Class 4A Lady Matadors. Still, Lee won handily after a slow start.

It was easy to tell where the Lady Rebels took control. The game started with the two teams changing leads nine times and the score was tied on

Rebels drub Plainsmen

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

Jon House, Midland Lee's head basketball coach, has often mentioned the Jekyll and Hyde stages that his team seems to go through from time to time. Well, at Chaparral Center Tuesday night, House saw Jekyll and Hyde — in the same game.

The fortunate thing for the Rebels was the fact that old Hyde was the dominate personality as 11-2 Lee defeated 9-4 Lubbock Monterey in a walk, 64-40.

When Hyde is on the floor, Lee is very, very good. When mild-mannered Jekyll arrives, Lee is often found hanging around, waiting for something to happen offensively.

However, Lee played four quarters of defense and it made the difference.

"We played good defense," House said. "We came out with a lot of enthusiasm, but got caught up in Monterey's tempo in the second quarter and most of the third quarter. That's when we get in trouble when we let a team dictate the tempo.

"Still, we're beginning to settle in on defense and I liked that part."

The Rebels jumped to 19-6 lead in the first quarter before spending the next two periods just trying to protect it. Lee scored only eight second quarter points, six from post Ryan Tucker.

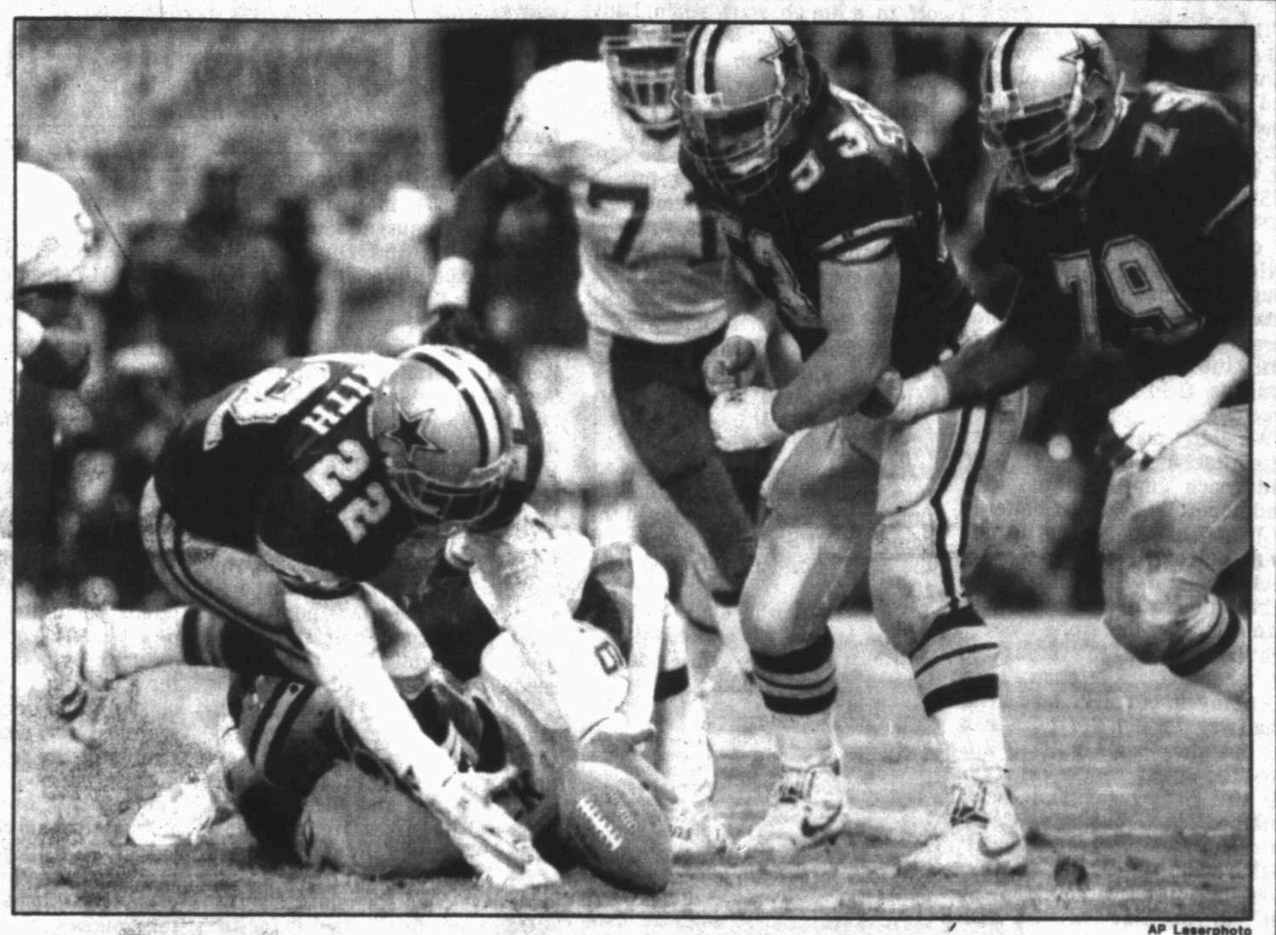

Monterey cut the lead to six points three times in the third quarter before the Rebels hit the Hyde transformation again to put the game out of reach. In the span of two minutes and 21 seconds, Lee raced to a 10-point run for a 43-27 lead on two baskets by David Wilson, a three-point play by John Sullivan and a three-point shot by Sean Low. Jekyll was just a memory.

"We picked it up in the third quarter and did a good job of putting the game away," House said.

Wilson led Lee with 22 points, 17 coming in the second half that was highlighted by a break-away slammer to give Lee a 54-35 lead with 1:58 left in the game.

Corodon Watson, who was brilliant on defense, also had 13 points. Undra Graves, who scored only two points, was also a defensive thorn for the Plainsmen. Monterey got 14 points from post Chris

Trauma of loss remains

■ The Dallas Cowboys try to regroup for Monday night's game at Atlanta.

Associated Press

IRVING — Jimmy Johnson is just glad he has an extra day to prepare for the Atlanta Falcons so he can get over the traumatic loss to the Washington Redskins.

"If you've been around me very long you know I have difficulty getting over something I've got my heart set on," an emotional Johnson said on Tuesday. "If I get to the point where losing doesn't bother me then I shouldn't be coaching the Dallas Cowboys."

Johnson, his voice cracking at times, said the 20-17 loss to Washington on Sunday in a game that would have clinched the NFC East title for the Cowboys was the hardest he has had to deal with in the professional game.

"It was like the 1986 loss (to Penn State) in the national title game when I felt we (Miami) maybe had the best team to ever play the game," Johnson said. "We did win the national title the next year but that game still hurts."

Johnson said "when you give your heart and soul for something and don't achieve it then it hurts. But I'll deal with it. We have a new challenge next Monday night in Atlanta. It's a very important game to us. To win the division was our goal prior to the season. We need to do it."

The Cowboys can clinch the NFC East title with a victory over the Falcons if Washington hasn't already done Dallas a favor by knocking off Philadelphia on Sunday.

"I think having an extra day will help us put the Washington game behind us," Johnson said. "It will be difficult to do. In some way the extra day can help us improve in some areas. It just hurts to have a game in hand and let it get away."

Some Cowboys were still talking about a controversial

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball's chief labor negotiator said Tuesday the sport is in "chaos" and called on club owners to make their financial records public.

Richard Ravitch said owners should admit their past mistakes, claimed some are only interested in "the quickest buck" and admitted the Major League Baseball Players Association had been smarter than management in past negotiations.

"Baseball has a lot of problems," Ravitch said. "There is chaos in baseball

Agreement elusive at NFL meetings

Associated Press

GRAPEVINE — Labor peace in the NFL remained just out of reach on Tuesday, like a wet football that both sides were diving for but neither could grasp.

"In fact, the two sides couldn't even agree how close they were after a day of back-and-forth meetings.

"A very productive session," said Jim Quinn, the chief negotiator for the players, who said his side had gone as far as it could to end the five-year stalemate that began after the unsuccessful players strike in 1987.

Rangers sign Henke, Boggs moves to NY

Associated Press

Wade Boggs and Tom Henke signed lucrative contracts with new teams Tuesday and Benito Santiago appears to be on the verge of doing the same.

The the big free-agent spending splurge at the recent winter meetings continued as Boggs agreed to a three-year contract with the New York Yankees and Henke came to terms on a two-year deal with the Texas Rangers.

Boggs, the long-time Boston Red Sox third baseman and five-time American League batting champion, chose the Yankees over the Los Angeles Dodgers in agreeing to a contract worth about $11 million.

Henke, one of baseball's best relief pitchers with the Toronto Blue Jays, agreed to an $8 million pact with the Rangers that includes an option for the 1995 season.

The Florida Marlins, meanwhile, introduced their new first baseman Tuesday and may have signed Santiago as well.

Orestes Destrade, like Cecil Fielder a former Japanese League home run champion, accepted a two-year, $3.5 million contract with the Marlins.

Following the news conference to announce Destrade's long-anticipated signing, Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski planned to renew talks regarding Santiago, an all-star catcher each of the past four seasons with the San Diego Padres.

The Marlins scheduled a news confer-

Carroll QB Mantooth tops 3A offensive team

Associated Press

DALLAS — Southlake Carroll, which hopes to cap a record-setting season this weekend with a state title, is one of five schools placing two players on The Associated Press Sports Editors' Class 3A All-State team announced Tuesday.

Dragons quarterback Will Mantooth was named offensive player of the year with the defensive honor going to Daniel Johnson of Lubbock Dunbar, which is closing in June.

The APSE All-State team was chosen by sports writers and editors from across the state on the basis of statistics from regular-season play.

Other schools placing two players on the first team were Dunbar, Taft, Reagan County, and Elkhart, which was a Class 2A school last year. Reagan County was eliminated 50-14 by Carroll in the regional finals.

Coldspring (14-1), which faces Carroll in Saturday's title game, was represented on the first team by running back Ray Fisher, who rushed for 1,854 yards and 27 touchdowns.

Mantooth, an accomplished rodeo competitor, led the Dragons to a 15-0 record as they seek their second title in five years.

In his second year as a starter, Mantooth led Carroll to its sixth consecutive undefeated regular season and upped its regular-season winning streak to a state-record 61 games.

"I think the kids rallied around him," Dragons coach Bob Ledbetter said. "Will's a very quiet young man. He's also very confident. He leads by example."

The 5-10, 155-pound Mantooth completed 62 of 125 passes for 1,239 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Rockets, Spurs both take losses

Associated Press

■ NBA ROUNDUP

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Larry Nance overcame a stomach virus and scored a season-high 30 points against Houston's No. 2-ranked defense Tuesday night as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Rockets 124-97.

The loss stopped the Rockets' four-game winning streak and ruined their chances for the first three-game road sweep in team history. Houston won at Chicago on Friday and Minnesota on Saturday.

Nance made 12 of 14 shots, grabbed eight rebounds and blocked four shots. He and Brad Daugherty both started despite having been treated for the virus earlier in the day.

The Cavaliers shot 75 percent from the floor in the first quarter and over 60 percent in each of the next two. They finished at 62 percent against a Houston defense that was allowing an average of 43 percent and 96.5 points per game. The Rockets' defense ranks behind only New York's.

Lakers 107, Spurs 101

SAN ANTONIO — Sedale Threatt scored 24 points and the Los Angeles Lakers scored the final 13 points of the third quarter to beat the San Antonio Spurs for their fifth straight victory.

David Robinson scored 25 points to pace the Spurs, who had their three-game winning streak snapped and missed a chance to go over the .500 mark for the first time this season.

Tony Smith added 17 points off the bench for the Lakers, who took control of the game with the 13-0 run late in the third quarter, turning a four-point deficit into an 81-72 lead going into the final period. The spurt concluded with Vlade Divac's 3-pointer at the third-quarter buzzer.

Heat 106, Kings 98

MIAMI — Rony Seikaly scored 13 of his 27 points in the final eight minutes as the Miami Heat, which blew an early 16-point lead, handed the Sacramento Kings their fifth straight loss.

A 12-foot jumper by Seikaly, who also had 15 rebounds, left the Kings with an 83-82 lead with 7:46 to play.

After two Sacramento baskets and a 3-pointer by the Heat's Glen Rice, who had 26 points, Seikaly scored Miami's next nine points, giving it a 94-91 lead at the 4:03 mark.

Following a basket by the Kings' Duane Causwell, baskets by Rice, Grant Long and two free throws by Seikaly put the game out of reach, 100-93, with 1:38 remaining.

Knicks 108, Nets 94

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — John Starks and Greg Anthony combined for 10 points in a game-breaking 12-0 second-half run, and the New York Knicks defeated the New Jersey Nets in a wild, foul-plagued game.

The contest between the New York City area foes and the two top teams in the Atlantic Division had all the ingredients of a playoff contest. It was hard fought and intense, with four separate scuffles breaking out, including two involving Drazen Petrovic, who led New Jersey with 29 points.

There were 69 personal fouls, 74 free throws and four technicals, all against the Knicks, who won for the fifth time in six games but only the third time in nine road matches. Starting Nets guards Kenny Anderson and Petrovic fouled out in the fourth quarter.

Patrick Ewing led the Knicks with 27 points and Starks had 20.

The game was decided by two big New York spurts, the first being the 12-0 run that Starks and Anthony started late in the third quarter by hitting two free throws apiece, putting the Knicks ahead 81-76.

Magic 119, 76ers 107

ORLANDO, Fla. — Dennis Scott's 25 points was one of four 20-point efforts by the Orlando Magic in a victory over Philadelphia that snapped a six-game losing streak.

Jeff Turner scored 22 points, Nick Anderson 21 and Shaquille O'Neal had 20 points and 14 rebounds as the Magic coasted after building a 27-point lead in the third quarter.

The victory was Orlando's first in the month of December since Dec. 30, 1990, a game in which Magic guard Scott Skiles set the NBA record with 30 assists. The Magic's losing streak in December has stretched 21 games since then.

Hersey Hawkins led the 76ers with 20 points and rookie Clarence Weatherspoon scored 18.

Pistons 107, Hawks 94

ATLANTA — Joe Dumars scored 32 points in the Detroit Pistons' victory over the Atlanta Hawks, who lost Dominique Wilkins, the NBA's second-leading scorer with a fractured finger in the second period.

Wilkins, averaging 28.5 points, injured the fourth finger on his right hand and will miss four to six weeks.

Wilkins came back strong after missing the last 40 games of last season with a ruptured Achilles tendon. He had 12 points on 5-for-14 shooting before the injury.

Bulls 125, Hornets 110

CHICAGO — Scottie Pippen scored 26 points and Michael Jordan 25 Tuesday night, leading the Chicago Bulls to their 16th straight over the Charlotte Hornets.

In the first time in 19 games that Jordan was not the Bulls' leading scorer, Chicago improved its record to 16-1 overall against the Hornets after losing to them in their first meeting in 1988. The 16-game losing streak is the Hornets' longest against any team.

Celtics 124, Timberwolves 119

MINNEAPOLIS — Xavier McDaniel scored six points in the second overtime after sitting out most of the second half as the Boston Celtics won for the eighth time in 11 games.

Reggie Lewis scored 29 of his 31 points after halftime, Kevin McHale finished with 22 points and Robert Parish had 21 points and 13 rebounds for the Celtics, who continue to play well after a 2-8 start. They are 10-11, the first time they've been within one game of .500 since their fifth game.

Christian Laettner set career highs with 35 points.

averaging 17.2 points per game entering district. The multi-talented, court-smart, first-year varsity player had 19 of her 27 points in the first half. Her total, accomplished on 50 percent shooting from the field, was just a couple of baskets and a free throw shy of the all-time record of 32 set by Amy Cumings in 1987.

"This gets all the butterfies out," said Alcala, who has now scored 27 in three of her last four games. "I tried to treat this like any other game. I had no idea I had that many points."

If there was a negative side to MHS' district opener, it would be its 0-for-10 start from the field at the outset. As soon as the Lady Bulldogs found their touch, though, they had little trouble the remainder of the night. Excluding the rough start, MHS went on to finish the night hitting 28-of-61 from the field, or just over 45 percent.

"We didn't play well when they were attacking the press," MHS head coach Jim Raughton said. "And hopefully, we'll get better in the games ahead getting up and down the floor."

Scharbauer had 14 points on the night while junior guard Julie Chancellor had 15 despite a rough night from beyond the three-point arc, her trademark offensive zone.

San Angelo cut MHS' lead to 42-35 halfway through the third quarter, but the Lady Bulldogs followed the threat by outscoring the Cats 10-2. Scharbauer and Alcala combined for eight points during the run.

Scharbauer, the 5-5 senior point guard, had just five points in the first half, but finished with nine second half points on a perfect 4-for-4 from the field in the final 16 minutes.

"I felt good about my shooting," Scharbauer said. "I just feel more confident than I did last year, and coach told me to shoot it because they were going to leave me open."

"Charlotte really played a great game," Raughton said. "I was really very pleased to see that. She just took advantage of what San Angelo was doing."

For San Angelo, the night got off to a rough start when Lady Bobcat head coach Doug Snowden was forced to bench starting point guard Nicole Zeitler, who was suffering from the flu. Zeitler, who made 22 three-pointers in the Bobcats' 13 pre-season games, appeared only briefly and missed her only three-point attempt.

In addition, turnovers wrecked any plans the 'Cats may have had. San Angelo had 29 turnovers, 19 of which came in the first half.

"You don't beat people with 28 or 30 turnovers," Snowden said. "That's really what hurt us."

In junior varsity action, San Angelo defeated MHS, 63-30. All five of head coach Carol McCann's starters missed the game, due either to sickness or travel. In addition, two more regulars missed the game for MHS. Christy James was the high point girl for MHS with 10.

Up next for the Lady Bulldogs will be Abilene High. The Lady Eagles visit the MHS gym Friday at approximately 8 p.m.

Duquesne upends No. 10 Florida State

Associated Press

■ TOP 25 ROUNDUP

PITTSBURGH — Effrem Whitehead's four 3-pointers during a 17-2 run led Duquesne's second-half comeback as the Dukes rallied from a 20-point deficit to stun No. 10 Florida State 91-84 on Tuesday night.

The Dukes, coming off a loss to Kent University, overcame Bob Sura's 34 points and a 58-38 deficit behind Whitehead's outside shooting and Derrick Alston's 20 points. Duquesne trailed 70-54 before scoring 37 of the final 51 points, including runs of 8-0 and 13-0.

Sura, a former Pennsylvania high school star who was heavily recruited by Duquesne, scored 10 straight Florida State points just after the second half started to give the Seminoles (3-3) what seemed a secure lead at 58-38.

But Duquesne (4-1) took advantage of a five-minute rest break that Florida State coach Pat Kennedy gave Sura to score eight straight points and slice the lead to 59-49. The Dukes later went on a 13-0 run, keyed by Whitehead's three 3-pointers, that made it 70-67 with just over six minutes left.

Duquesne finally tied it for the first time since early in the game at 76-76 on Whitehead's 3-pointer with 4:45 remaining, then took the lead for good at 77-76 on Mark Gilbert's free throw with 4:36 to play.

Florida State, playing without three injured starters, blew a chance to retake the lead when Doug Edwards drew a charge, and Duquesne turned that into Kenya Hunter's layup for a 79-76 lead with 3:36 to play.

The Seminoles, coming off a nearly two-week layoff for final exams, never got any closer, as Duquesne scored five straight points for an 84-77 lead on 300-pound center Alan Watkins' turnaround jumper in the lane, Alston's free throw and Alston's baseline jumper.

Watkins, benched earlier this season because he is overweight, finished off the game with two straight breakaway slam dunks, resulting in a game-ending stampede onto the playing floor by Duquesne's student body.

Whitehead didn't score in the first half, but finished with 15 points, including four of Duquesne's school-record 10 3-pointers.

Sura's 34 points were a record for a visiting player in the 5-year-old Palumbo Center, but he went scoreless for nearly a 10-minute stretch of the second half, including the period he was on the bench.

Edwards had 17 points and Sam Cassell had 12 points, all in the first half, for Florida State. Hunter and Watkins added 12 each for the Dukes.

No. 14 Syracuse 93, Md.-Baltimore County 86

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Michael Edwards' 3-pointer killed a Maryland-Baltimore County rally and started a decisive 12-2 run that helped No. 14 Syracuse overcome a night of sloppy play.

Lawrence Moten had seven of his 22 points in the run, which turned a two-point Orangemen edge into a 76-64 cushion with 7:23 to play.

After a basket by John Wallace, Mike Hopkins and Glen Sekunda combined for the Orangemen's next 11 points as Syracuse pushed its lead to 89-73 with 2:04 to play. Both players finished with 14. Edwards made just one other basket on the night.

Syracuse (6-0) shot nearly 60 percent in the opening half to build a 50-37 lead. But the lead melted to 64-62 as the Retrievers (3-2) went on a 13-3 spurt after Hopkins' 3-pointer made it 61-49.

Syracuse didn't hit a field goal for nearly 5½ minutes, getting all its points from the foul line. Skip Saunders did most of the damage, netting seven of his 23 points in the run. Saunders hit six 3-pointers, tying a Carrier Dome record held by many.

Playing before just 21,957, the Orangemen sputtered early and were trailing 9-7 when Moten and Conrad McRae hit consecutive short shots to start a 22-3 run that gave them a 29-12 lead, their biggest of the night.

The Retrievers, whose tallest player was 6-foot-8, managed a put back basket by Felton Scott and a free throw by Kevin Bellinger over the next five minutes.

Maryland-Baltimore County had no problem cutting through the Syracuse press and getting to the basket. The Retrievers' problems came putting the ball in the basket as they repeatedly missed even point-blank shots. They missed 29 of 43 shots in the first half.

Despite its big run, sloppy play by Syracuse allowed the Retrievers to stay close. The Orangemen committed 12 turnovers and led by just 13 at intermission despite nearly doubling Maryland-Baltimore County's field goal percentage.

No. 23 Michigan St. 79, Ill.-Chicago 75

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Shawn Respert scored 13 of his 21 points in the second half as No. 23 Michigan State held off Illinois-Chicago.

It was the third win in a row for the Spartans (4-1), while the Flames (2-3) dropped to 0-3 on the road after their second near-upset of a Big Ten team. On Dec. 3, they lost to Illinois 70-68.

Michigan State led 45-37 at halftime, but a 9-2 run pushed the Flames within 47-46 with 17:24 to play in the game. The Spartans then scored the next 13 points, five by Respert, to take control. All five Spartans scored during the run and they held the Flames scoreless for more than five minutes.

Illinois-Chicago trailed by 13 with four minutes left, but Sherell Ford hit back-to-back 3-pointers and Kenny Williams added another to make it 72-68 with three minutes left.

However, Michigan State hit enough free throws down the stretch to survive another Williams 3-pointer.

The Flames suffered badly from the lack of an inside game. They didn't attempt their first free throw until just 1:26 remained in the game, and their four attempts tied a school record, set in February against Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Mike Peplowski led the Spartans with 23 points and nine rebounds.

another occasion, but late in the first period, Lee went on a five-point run with baskets from Courtney McHugh, Tekeira Strambler and a free throw from Krissy Woodard for a 14-10 lead.

That started a streak as Lee outscored Estacado 17-6 over the next seven minutes of play for a 31-16 lead.

The Matadors showed a lot of quickness in the contest, but had a hard time matching up with Lee's height advantage with 5-10 senior Strambler and 6-2 sophomore Woodard inside.

Lee didn't hit a good percentage (34 percent from the field), but were getting nearly every rebound off the offensive glass.

"We've been a good rebounding team all year. Early in the game, we were just getting in the way of each other due to our height advantage," Kail said, "but I wasn't sure if ball was ever going to go into the basket. We didn't shoot well at all."

Tanisha Mills led Lee with a game high 16 points while Strambler added 14 and Woodard 10. Estacado's Eyvette Perry led the Matadors with 15 points and Teecka Johnson had 13.

Lee now turns its thoughts to district play. The Lady Rebs are figured to be in a fight to retain the playoff berth and second place finish they won a year ago. The road literally starts in Abilene Friday with a road game against Cooper, a team Lee beat twice last season.

In junior varsity action, Lee ran to a 62-23 win over Estacado with Deborah York leading the way with 16 points while Jamie Gesting had 15 points.

The Lee JV is now 9-2 for the season.

SIGNINGS: Boggs happy with NY

ence for today to announce a "major signing." Dombrowski refused to discuss Santiago's status, but the catcher was expected to sign a one-year, $3.8 million contract. Santiago's relatives said last week that he planned to join the Marlins.

In Boggs, the Yankees finally got a big-name free agent, albeit one who's coming off the worst season of his 11-year career.

The Yankees had sought the National League MVP (Barry Bonds) and the NL Cy Young Award winner (Greg Maddux), but instead wound up with a third baseman who hit 79 points below his career average.

"I'm very enthusiastic about being a Yankee and playing for an organization so rich in tradition," Boggs said in a statement released by the team. "The idea of being able to play in Yankee Stadium and remain in the AL East all factored into my thinking."

Boggs, 34, had spent his entire career with the Red Sox, slapping the ball for doubles off the Green Monster at Fenway Park. He made $2.7 million in 1992, the final season of a three-year deal worth $7.35 million, and the Red Sox didn't try to re-sign him.

Boggs is a .338 career hitter who won the AL batting title in 1983 and from 1985-88. He has a lifetime .428 on-base percentage and led the league in that category six times. Boggs has 422 career doubles, along with 85 homers and 687 RBIs.

The Dodgers, the other team interested in signing Boggs, offered two years and an option.

Henke originally was drafted by Texas in 1980 before building an All-Star career with the Blue Jays.

The right-hander, who turns 35 next week, compiled a 2.48 ERA and saved 217 games in eight seasons with the Blue Jays. He struck out 690 batters in 563 innings.

Henke chose Texas over the Red Sox, who reportedly had offered him a two-year, $9 million contract. He could have returned to the Blue Jays for a one-year deal worth between $3.5 million and $4 million.

"I think that Tom just decided that was where he wanted to play," said Henke's agent, Craig Fenech. "One of the other offers was actually larger, though it wasn't configured as favorably."

play at the end of the game when Troy Aikman's attempted pass was ruled a fumble and converted into a Redskins touchdown.

Aikman saw the play for the first time on the late news Monday night.

"... And I'm shocked that there was any question other than it was a forward pass," Aikman said. "I don't know how the officials couldn't see it."

But Aikman added, "I take the responsibility for the loss. I had a great game except for two plays but those two plays were the difference."

Johnson said the Falcons will be tough despite their 6-8 record.

"They have every advantage a team can have, playing at home on Monday night," Johnson said. "I'll be happy again if we can win this game. But I still can't forget the pain of losing a big game."

FOOTBALL: Salary cap, free agency possibilities

(From 1C)

"We're not there yet," said Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers and chairman of the owners' negotiating committee. And Joe Browne, the NFL's vice president for communications, said:

"They say it's up to us to accept the proposal they now call a deal, or renege."

That proposal, agreed upon a week ago, includes the NFL's first unrestricted free agency and its first salary cap. Depending on when the cap applies, players would get free agency after four, five or six years and teams would be allowed to protect at least one superstar player.

The two sides reached what they called "the framework" for that agreement last Wednesday.

But they seemed on Tuesday to be having difficulty in filling in the substance after a day of negotiations and meetings involving Quinn and representatives of the NFL Players Association on one side and a seven-member committee of owners on the other.

While the players insisted they had proposed all they could to satisfy the owners and Quinn said "there were sacrifices on both sides," the owners didn't seem to agree.

Rooney said there were 5-7 issues yet to be resolved and Browne put the number at six. Asked if there would be agreement after all 28 owners meet on Wednesday, Rooney replied, "No, I don't think so."

Still, a framework remained to put before U.S. District Court Judge David Doty in Minneapolis, who will have final say on the agreement.

Doty presided last summer at the suit in which a jury threw out the NFL's limited Plan B free agency system. He also must rule on motions in a suit brought by Philadelphia's Reggie White on behalf of the 600 players who will become free agents Feb. 1.

Doty reportedly has told the two sides to reach an agreement because neither may like the one he imposes.

A union source described as procedural the issues discussed at a three-hour morning session involving Quinn and commissioner Paul Tagliabue, among others. He identified compensation for free agents with less than five years service as one and compensatory draft picks for signed players as another.

"It wasn't to the level of stuff we discussed last Wednesday," he said.

BASEBALL: PRC rep calls for owners to open books and nobody can deny that."

Ravitch, seated alongside union head Donald Fehr at a round-table discussion sponsored by "The Sporting News," took an increasingly independent line from the owners who hired him a year ago.

"The owners have always underestimated the leverage of the players," Ravitch said. "The union has always been smarter than the owners."

Ravitch, the president of management's Player Relations Committee, called on teams to make their books public on a team-by-team basis, which would be unprecedented in major league history. Currently, only the Pittsburgh Pirates release their balance sheets, although teams provide the information to the players' union on a confidential basis.

"It probably would be a good thing if clubs disclose their profitability," Ravitch said. "I don't know why they don't. They have nothing to hide."

Ravitch said he hadn't received an answer from owners on that idea.

"I don't really have any comment to that," said Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, chairman of the ruling executive council. "I don't take any great quarrel with that."

Ravitch said one of baseball's problems was that some sought "the quickest buck to flip their team, which is the motivation of a number of owners."

He also opposed the strategy of Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf, a PRC board member who advocates that owners lock out players until the union agrees to a revenue-participation plan with a salary cap.

"Nobody is advantaged by a work stoppage in baseball," Ravitch said.

Last week at the winter meetings, Selig denied that baseball was "aimless" or "wobbling." Speaking from his home in Milwaukee on Tuesday night, Selig again said baseball has begun addressing its problems.

Selig, citing a delay caused by the unexpected death of Florida Marlins president Carl Barger, said he wouldn't be able to announce Wednesday the formation of a search committee for a new commissioner.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be more tactful and your home life will become deeply rewarding. Family members play a larger role in the decisions you make in early 1993. Welcome their interest and help. The business outlook will brighten considerably by May. Careful attention to detail remains essential! Fall of 1993 finds you ready to try something new. Avoid putting all of your financial eggs into one basket.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: newscaster Lesley Stahl, actress Liv Ullmann, author Arthur C. Clarke, football player William "Refrigerator" Perry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although the business outlook is good, you must exercise caution. A conservative approach will impress those in authority. Where romance is concerned, wear your heart on your sleeve.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Teamwork is vital for success. Avoid second-guessing a co-worker. Do not let a set-in-your-ways attitude interfere with a fun evening. Do some last-minute shopping.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It is difficult not to feel restricted by your work duties or family responsibilities. Yet there are new benefits and respect coming your way. A raise is possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Abrupt changes at work could cause some uncomfortable moments, but the end result will be new peace of mind. Join a community group. Postpone making any investments until you can get expert advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be alert to money-making opportunities; you should score big! Romance has to take a backseat to your work now. Pace yourself to handle the heavy demands of your professional life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go with your feelings when it comes to people and plans; you are tuned to prosperity's wavelength! Make the most of a social event; talk business with those who are truly interested.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your popularity rises, thanks to your involvement with a special group. Risk-taking is not wise now; stick to tried-and-true methods. An artistic hobby could put extra money into your pocket.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The financial picture brightens. Something that once looked hopeless may turn out to be a sound investment. A literary project proves invigorating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A phone call or letter brings great news, relieving worries over a parent's well-being. Contact with people who work in the background helps you solve a puzzle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A colleague may have top-secret news that you can use. A wish comes true behind closed doors. Your evening promises to be fun and perhaps romantic. Try to stay with your budget.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are in the driver's seat where negotiations are concerned. Charge! Your intuition tells you which people and financial deals are best. Take aim for the good life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Act on your instincts when handling financial matters. People who work behind the scenes will share glad tidings. A kind deed wins you a new admirer. Romance is both lively and fun.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have such strong curiosity that they will ask questions about anything and everything! Wise parents will give these outspoken youngsters intensive instruction in courtesy, kindness and tact. Otherwise, their insistence on "getting the details" could offend others. Athletic and outgoing, these Sagittarians usually get along well with their peers. They enjoy spending time outdoors and will probably not be happy in a job that keeps them at a desk all day. Sales is just one field these persuasive and mobile Sagittarians should investigate.

Opening lead: Ace of ♠

"A most unusual hand," remarked the kibitzer "Any time North has a power raise to four hearts you probably want to play three no trump. Yet, if North's raise is based mostly on distribution, four hearts is clearly the better contract."

The hand that occasioned this observation occurred in an expert team match and both teams reached four hearts on identical auctions. South's takeout double in the balancing seat was automatic and North bid only three clubs to protect in case South had stretched to compete.

At the two tables the opening lead was the ace of spades. As soon as dummy hit the table, it was obvious three no trump was a far superior contract. Both declarers realized East would surely ruff the second spade, so each dropped the king of spades under the ace as East followed with the five. It would now seem that, if West continued with the queen of spades, declarer would ruff and be able to get a discard on the jack. Yet both expert Wests promptly placed the queen of spades on the table. Why?

Look at the spade spots—West can see that the four is missing. If declarer's king of spades were an honest card, that would give East 6 5 4, and from that holding East would have played the four! After cashing the queen of spades, both West's continued with the ten of spades—a suit preference signal for diamonds. That would have defeated the contract two tricks had East been dealt the queen of diamonds (possible on the auction), but down one did not displease the defenders in the least.

Streisand, Sony to ink $60 million movie, record pact, source says

LOS ANGELES — Barbra Streisand is set to sign a $60 million movie and record pact that would put her in the same megabucks bracket as Madonna, Prince and Michael Jackson, a source close to the deal said Tuesday.

Streisand

A 10-year contract between Miss Streisand and Sony Corp. "has been reached but it's not been signed," said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity. An official announcement will be made this week, the source said.

Under the agreement, the 50-year-old singer-actress would get an estimated $6 million or 15 percent of the gross, whichever is higher, for her first film and escalating amounts for each film to follow, the source said.

"The financial figures of her involvement in a musical would be much higher," the source said.

For each album she produces, Miss Streisand would get $5 million, the source said.

Neither Sony nor Miss Streisand would discuss the deal.

Miss Streisand has starred in 15 films and recorded 37 albums that won her Tony, Grammy, Golden Globe and Academy awards. Last year she directed and co-starred in "The Prince of Tides," which grossed more than $100 million.

NEW YORK — The three surviving members of the Beatles will get together again for a 10-part television series about the group and may do "a little bit of music," Paul McCartney said.

The TV series will be an "anthology" of the group and will definitely include George Harrison and Ringo Starr, McCartney said at a news conference for Australian media announcing his plans to kick off a worldwide tour in Australia next year.

"There is a chance that we might actually do a little bit of music" for the series, McCartney said.

The Beatles broke up in 1970 and never reunited. John Lennon, who together with McCartney wrote most of the group's songs, was murdered in New York in 1980.

"Rather than put a big pressure on us and say, 'the Beatles are re-forming,' probably it will happen a bit more naturally and we'll get together for this (series) and that will just be the three of us probably," the ex-Beatle said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Kathy Mattea is giving new meaning to foot-stomping music with an aerobics video for home exercisers called "Hot Country Aerobics" that made its debut Tuesday.

The video features the award-winning country singer bouncing off the excess to tunes like "Put Some Drive In Your Country" by singer Travis Tritt.

Mattea, 33, won the Country Music Association's female vocalist of the year in 1989 and 1990 and won a Grammy for "Where You've Been." Her latest hit is "Lonesome Standard Time."

LONDON — Fashion designer Vivienne Westwood, known to some as the queen of punk, went to the palace Tuesday to collect her Order of the British Empire from Queen Elizabeth II, and have a chat.

Ms. Westwood, 51, received the honor recognizing civil service for her success as a designer and exporter.

The two-time British fashion designer of the year said she was overwhelmed by the encounter.

"You really feel you want to stay and talk," Ms. Westwood said. "She asked me how long I had been doing fashion, and I said 20 years. She said about it changing such a lot, and I said that's the whole sort of point, I expect."

LAS VEGAS — A Las Vegas producer is suing La Toya Jackson for $3 million, alleging she broke a contract after receiving notice she would be out of the show in 30 days.

David Wright, producer of the "Bare Essence" show at the Sands hotel-casino, filed the lawsuit Monday in state court.

He asked the court to order Ms. Jackson to complete her contract and to bar her from appearing in any other stage show in Nevada until she does.

A publicist for Ms. Jackson, Chuck Jones, said she plans her own lawsuit alleging she was forced out of the show after not receiving her $26,000 weekly fee.

NEW YORK — There's a big difference between writing for the small screen and writing for the stage, says Jay Tarses, who took up the latter after creating television characters that include Molly Dodd and Slap Maxwell.

It's personal, the 53-year-old writer says.

"I mean, I throw myself into the writing I do for TV, too, and it becomes personal, but the TV stuff is not about me," Tarses said in an interview in Tuesday's New York Times.

"A TV thing is a 23-minute thing, finite. A play is a journey that people take, and you can say what you want to say."

The latest Tarses play is "Man in His Underwear," now running off-Broadway. The tale of a married, middle-aged man with a bad back and a roving eye draws from Tarses' life, but it isn't autobiographical, he said.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

Energy prices sag

NEW YORK — Energy prices sagged Tuesday as trading drifted along in a session devoid of market-moving events.

Light sweet crude oil for delivery in January settled at $18.95 per barrel, on the New York Mercantile Exchange, down 14 cents from Monday's closing.

Oil prices have been moving lower in recent weeks in the face of abundant supplies. The latest supply report from the American Petroleum Institute showed that while crude stocks continued to grow, petroleum products and refinery capacity sagged slightly.

The API, which released its weekly supply figures after the close of trading, said crude oil stocks rose for the week ended Friday to 329.4 million barrels from 324.8 million the week before.

Stocks fall

NEW YORK — The stock market fell Tuesday, pulled down by a 10 percent drop by IBM, which announced another round of job eliminations and said it might cut its dividend.

IBM fell 6⅞ to 56, its lowest level since 1982 and less than half of the 139¾ level reached early last year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which would have finished on the plus side if not for IBM, fell 7.84 to 3,284.36.

Declining issues outnumbered advancers by about 8 to 7 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 225.88 million shares as of 4 p.m., up from 183.52 million in the previous session.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar settled mixed Tuesday in thin trading on world currency markets.

Gold prices eased across the board. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery settled at $334.50 a troy ounce, off 10 cents from Monday. Republic National Bank said gold slipped 5 cents an ounce to a late bid price of $334.55.

Analysts said trading was particularly quiet. "This market's on holiday already," said Randolph Donney, research director at Pegasus Econometric Group in Hoboken, N.J.

Much of the day's activity focused on the French franc, which continued to decline overseas. Both the German and French central banks stepped in, buying francs while selling German marks to prop up the French currency, Donney said.

Study: Majors to cut U.S. exploration

■ 68 percent of independents plan increased domestic activity over next three years, survey finds.

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Major oil and gas companies plan to decrease new domestic exploration next year, while many independents expect to being doing the opposite, according to an energy industry survey released Tuesday.

The study's results reflect the ongoing trend on the part of the majors towards more overseas exploration.

The 1992 Arthur Andersen Oil & Gas Industry Outlook Survey, completed last month, polled chief executive officers at 149 energy industry companies. The results were released at a symposium here.

"Fifty-two percent of the independent producers plan increased domestic exploration spending in 1993, 71 percent will increase development spending, and 80 percent expect higher property acquisition expenditures," said Victor A. Burk, managing director of Oil & Gas Industry Services for Arthur Andersen.

"Nevertheless, these increases will likely be offset by continuing declines in U.S. exploration and development by the majors," Burk said.

Of the major oil and gas companies responding to the survey, 56 percent indicated they plan to cut domestic exploration and 44 percent will cut U.S. development spending in 1993.

The major companies in 1991 accounted for $12 billion, or 68 percent of U.S. exploration and development spending by publicly traded companies. Independents spent $2.4 billion, or 14 percent of the domestic total.

Burk said the 1993 expectations "also applies to companies' longer-term plans. Among independents, 68 percent plan increased U.S. exploration activity over the next three years, while none of the major company survey respondents expect to increase U.S. exploration, in fact 56 percent plan to expand their foreign exploration during the next three years."

Ninety percent agreed there are significant domestic natural gas reserves yet to be discovered, with the Gulf of Mexico considered to have the greatest potential. In addition, 54 percent don't think there will be significant gas supply disruptions during the coming winter.

In contrast, 47 percent think there are significant domestic oil reserves to be discovered.

Of those responding, 61 percent expect an annual increase of 2 percent to the 4 percent in U.S. demand for natural gas during the 1990s. Fifty-three percent believe oil demand will increase during the same time.

Untimate recycling center

The nation's largest in-house "recyclery" has begun operation at the Mall of America — the largest U.S. retail complex in Bloomington, Minn. Operated by Browning-Ferris Industries, the center expects to process nearly 700 tons of solid waste per month.

El Paso Electric awaits key ruling

EL PASO (AP) — El Paso Electric Co., currently trying to gain creditors' approval of its reorganization plan, may have to scrap the plan if forced to pay high penalties for breaking its nuclear power leases.

El Paso Electric has asked that it be allowed to break the leases on Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station in Wintersburg, Ariz., without the stiff penalties. Breaking the leases is key to the company's Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization plan.

"If we are not able to get the ruling the way we need it we will have to go back to the drawing board," said Alan Bunnell, utility spokesman.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Frank Monroe didn't make an immediate ruling after a Tuesday morning hearing in Austin.

El Paso Electric's bankruptcy was caused in great part by its investment in Palo Verde, the plant's construction cost overruns and its power surplus. The company also blames state regulators who would not allow the utility to transfer much of its costs for its nearly 16 percent ownership in Palo Verde to ratepayers.

The utility mailed ballots to creditors Dec. 8 to vote on the bankruptcy plan.

To restructure its debt, El Paso Electric has proposed breaking 20-year leases on two units at Palo Verde.

Retailers post strong sales nationwide despite storms

NEW YORK (AP) — The Christmas shopping season entered the critical 10 days Tuesday with retailers across the nation enjoying good sales despite storms that pummeled the Northeast and Pacific Northwest last week.

Store owners reported consumers seem more confident about shopping.

"We're running ahead of our projections," said Perry Chlan, spokesman at Sears, Roebuck and Co.

At JCPenney Co. Inc., "We're still looking for a pretty good Christmas," spokesman Duncan Muir said.

Wind and rain in the Northwest and flooding and snow in the Northeast left overall sales at Penney stores "pretty much flat last week," Muir said. "On the other hand, our catalog saw some increases . . . some people stayed home and shopped."

TeleCheck Services, which measures sales nationwide based on purchases by check, said business through Saturday was down 1.5 percent, primarily from the weather.

But retailers in storm areas expected to recover business.

"It's early enough in the season," said Jeffrey Feiner, an analyst with Merrill Lynch & Co. "If it happened a week from now it would be worse."

However, Jeffrey Steinberg, a retail consultant with Deloitte & Touche in Boston, noted that thousands of people whose homes were damaged would likely have more pressing needs than shopping.

Retailers have entered the critical part of the season, the last 10 days, when most consumers are expected to shop.

Retailers have devised innovative ways to lure shoppers.

For those offering markdowns — and these days, that's most storeowners — signs saying "20 percent off" won't necessarily do the trick. Customers need to feel they're really getting value for their money.

Some merchants, such as apparel retailer Brooks Fashions at Colonie Center Mall near Albany, N.Y., are offering "Buy One, Get One Free." Shoppers buy two garments and get the less expensive item for nothing.

The Chicago-area bookstore chain Kroch's & Brentano's Inc. is running a home delivery service. President Bill Rickman said the company distributed flyers at high-rise apartments. The offer: Call before 5 p.m. and get home delivery by 10 p.m. on any order.

Lyle Schenck, manager of a JCPenney in Peoria, Ill., ran two "Friends Nights" in November in which store employees invited friends to shop on Sunday evenings when the store was closed to the public. The store provided a Santa Claus and baby-sitting.

At this point in the season, it comes down to customer service, Schenck said.

Some retailers aren't using markdowns. At Pilar, a gift shop in Corpus Christi, Texas, owner Ruth Josephs said, "I think people don't even believe that a sale is a sale anymore."

Litton announces $761 million contract for Navy assault ship

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Litton Industries, a military contractor based in Beverly Hills, said Monday that it had received a $760.9 million contract from the U.S. Navy to build a sixth Wasp ship, the next generation of amphibious assault vessels.

Litton has already received contracts to build the first five ships in the Wasp class, known as LHDs. On Friday, the Navy, which is replacing its outdated amphibious ships, exercised an option for the sixth LHD ship, Litton said.

The ships, which weigh about 40,500 tons and are 844 feet long, resemble World War II aircraft carriers and are mainly used to deploy Marine landing forces of about 2,000 troops.

The LHD class can deploy troops either by helicopter or waterborne craft, including air-cushion vessels, from a huge "well deck" in the stern section of the ship.

The Wasp-class assault ships are more than twice the size of the Iwo Jima-class assault ships like the Tripoli, which is on duty off the coast of Somalia. The Tripoli displaces about 18,000 tons.

In addition to combat support, the ships can be used for disaster relief and other humanitarian missions, Navy officials said. The ships have six medical operating rooms, four dental operating rooms and hospital facilities to care for 600 patients.

There are currently two LHD ships — the Wasp and Essex — operating with the Navy's Atlantic and Pacific fleets. The latest ship will be built at Litton's Ingalls Shipbuilding division in Pascagoula, Miss.

The LHD class will replace the seven LPH ships, which were commissioned starting in 1961. Most of the Navy's amphibious ships were built 20 to 30 years ago and are reaching maturity.

R. Jackson Blackstock, a defense analyst for First Boston, said that Litton had been expected to receive the contract and that Navy building schedules, unlike severe cutbacks in other weapons programs, had been fairly constant mainly because of the need to replace outdated ships.

Blackstock said that shipbuilding accounted for about 28 percent to 30 percent of Litton's profits and that the latest Navy contract would continue the company's current four-year backlog of ship orders.

New Burger Hotline to have home delivery

By Melia McEwen

Opening in early January will be the BURGER HOTLINE.

McEwen

David Waldon, who owns the business with his wife Delinda, said Burger Hotline will offer home delivery of a variety of burgers, chicken sandwiches, chili or soup, soft drinks and dessert.

On the menu, according to Waldon, will be hamburgers, cheeseburgers, bacon cheeseburgers, jalapeno burgers and chiliburgers, red beans and rice, chili and soups, grilled chicken sandwiches and chips. Also on the menu will be such homemade deserts as German chocolate brownies with a cream cheese and caramel topping, pecan pineapple cream pie or chocolate turtle cake.

Waldon said that soon after opening, Burger Hotline will begin to add lunch delivery to downtown businesses.

Delivery service — minimum order of $8 — will be available from 5 to 10 p.m. nightly by calling 687-0255.

Opening soon in the Mesa Verde Shopping Center, at Midland Drive and Neely Avenue, is ISLAND TANS.

Island Tans is owned by Brad and Pam Logan and will feature 10 state-of-the-art tanning machines with the latest in tanning equipment including a computerized system to monitor lamp usage and UV exposure levels.

Tanning programs of one, three, six or 12 months will be offered and the salon will be open seven days a week. Hours are 9 a.m to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

The Logans say they plan to add a cruise booking service this coming spring.

In addition to Island Tans, the Logans own Mr. Reuben's restaurant and Red Arrow Portable Sign Co.

SIMPLY FOOD has opened in the lower level of the Conoco Towers building in ClayDesta Plaza, 10 Desta Drive.

Owner Randall Young offers breakfast items such as breakfast burritos, meat and egg biscuits, muffins, bagels, cinnamon rolls and juices. Lunch items include hamburgers, sub sandwichs, handcut fries, chili and soups, salad bar, baked potatoes and fountain drinks. He also offers snacks such as popcorn, nachos, candy bars, chips and brownies.

Hours are from 6:45 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Midlander Tommy Jones has opened WESTERN DESIGNS at 350-B N. Midland Drive.

Western Designs offers T-shirt transfers — custom-designed or readily available transfers such as cartoon characters, animals and Christian transfers. Also available are screening for caps, tote bags or jackets. He also carries a small line of gift items.

Hours until Christmas are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Quick police response quiets disturbance

By Deborah Hastings
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At Florence and Normandie Avenues, the corner liquor store did a brisk business Tuesday, and across the street, a gas station looted of cigarettes, lottery tickets and cash reopened.

But unease had settled anew on the city's most infamous intersection — where the Rodney King riots erupted 7½ months ago — after a street protest that ended with a flash of violence.

Nearly 300 police officers, many in riot gear, swarmed the streets Monday afternoon and made 55 arrests after a crowd heaved rocks and bottles and looted the gas station.

Twelve people suffered minor injuries, mostly cuts and bruises, police said. South Central and other inner-city sections devastated in the spring riots were largely quiet overnight and through Tuesday afternoon.

Some accused the police, under new chief Willie Williams, of overreacting; others say the fracas could have been worse had it not been for their quick and overwhelming response.

Police remained on tactical alert Tuesday.

"You have flash points that are lying dormant ready to go off at any moment," said the Rev. Cecil L. Murray, senior minister at the First AME Church in South Central.

A merchant 16 blocks from the intersection was fatally shot Monday evening after going to his electronics store to head off potential looters, but Officer Bill Frio said the death wasn't related to the disturbance.

Store co-owner Raul Delcomber, 33, who offered credit and gave food to the homeless, was killed by robbers, police said. The windows at Delcombers Communications and Electronics were painted with "Seasons Greetings" but the sign on the door Tuesday read "Temporarily closed."

In an earlier demonstration Monday at the intersection, activists handed out fliers in support of four men jailed for the beating there of trucker Reginald Denny during the riots.

Organizers left at midafternoon, and some of about 50 people at the demonstration became unruly, said police spokesman Lt. John Dunkin.

The show of police force contrasted with that during the early hours of the April riots, when few officers were seen. Three days of riots erupted April 29 when four white police officers were acquitted on most charges in the videotaped beating of King. The violence left 53 dead and $1 billion in damage.

City leaders are concerned tensions will increase as two volatile cases go to trial in coming months: the federal trial of the officers in the King case and the trial of those accused in Denny's beating.

On Monday, the gas station's cashier was hit over the head with a hammer by looters, said station supervisor Ismael Cordova. Cordova said police brushed off the cashier's initial call after he saw what he considered suspicious people.

"The cashier asked the police if they were going to stick around. The police said, 'We're not your baby sitters,'" Cordova said. About 20 minutes later, the melee began.

An organizer of the leafletting demonstration had charged on Monday that police overreacted to the unrest, but City Councilman Mark Ridley-Thomas, who represents the area, said police handled it well. "If they didn't do what they did ... it would have been much worse."

Immigration agents stall doctor's departure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Mexican doctor acquitted in the murder of a U.S. drug agent was held at an airport in a final diplomatic tug-of-war before he was allowed to leave the United States, attorneys said Tuesday.

"It was a scene out of a movie," said Alan Rubin, attorney for Dr. Humberto Alvarez Machain. "They refused to let him board until the last minute because they were waiting for a potential call from Washington."

Alvarez, whose 1990 kidnapping from Mexico by U.S.-paid bounty hunters raised tensions between the nations, was acquitted Monday by U.S. District Judge Edward Rafeedie in the murder of drug agent Enrique Camarena.

Rafeedie said prosecutors didn't have evidence to prove their theory Alvarez used his medical skills to prolong Camarena's torture by Mexican drug traffickers in 1985.

Prosecutors stalled his departure by filing an emergency request to have Rafeedie's ruling blocked, and the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service placed a hold on Alvarez as an illegal immigrant.

Mexican officials spent hours Monday evening trying to convince the INS that Alvarez, a Guadalajara gynecologist, should be allowed to leave, he said.

Alvarez, 45, sat in a van on the tarmac at Los Angeles International Airport until he was allowed to board the Mexicana Airlines flight, said American Civil Liberties Union spokesman Allan Parachini.

Alvarez was accompanied by Consul General Fausto Zapata and the regional legal attache.

Rafeedie had previously declared the abduction of Alvarez illegal, but the U.S. Supreme Court reversed his order last June.

"The kidnapping of Dr. Alvarez is not a closed book," said ACLU attorney Paul Hoffman. He said Congress should pass legislation to outlaw such kidnappings.

The Mexican government said the United States had violated its sovereignty.

On arrival in Mexico, Alvarez told the Televisa television network: "I have a clean conscience."

Mondale on list for U.N. Ambassador

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Vice President Walter Mondale is on President-elect Clinton's short list of prospects to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, a transition aide said Tuesday night.

The aide, who spoke on condition on anonymity, said Mondale has been mentioned as a candidate in the Clinton camp "since nearly the beginning."

Mondale, now an attorney in Minneapolis, could not be reached for comment late Tuesday night.

Aides said Clinton was close Tuesday night to making a final decision on several other high-level appointments, including secretary of state. Transition director Warren Christopher, a former State Department official, is considered the front-runner.

Two Democratic sources said Monday that Clinton has asked the director of Arkansas' Health Department to be surgeon general. Dr. Joycelyn Elders has accepted, the sources said.

By law, Surgeon General Antonia Novello could stay until her four-year term expires in March 1994. A congressional source close to Clinton said Tuesday that Novello does not want to leave her post, but transition aides are trying to persuade her to step down.

Outgoing Colorado Sen. Timothy Wirth is the likely choice for energy secretary, and former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt is the front-runner for interior, aides say.

160 Money, Loans Wanted

Before signing a contract or sending money to an "Advance Fee Loan Broker" we recommend that you check with the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin. Be wary of any broker claiming the easy availability of thousands of dollars for loans at reasonable rates or the availability of "foreign" money.

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME
The Midland Reporter-Telegram will have an opening January 1 on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work. $100 deposit required

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".

WHAT! NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your "day job." Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

New On the Market
If you haven't seen any of our houses this week-- You haven't seen these--

WAY YONDER AND GONE...This suburban property is far from the beaten path. If you want to be away from it all, really away, this is for you. Ten acres & a very nice 3 bedroom home.. Eligible for FHA financing-so the down payment is low...Call us for full details....$59,900

FANNIN IN THE FIFTIES...This is one terrific neighborhood, much sought after, where few homes are for sale...and even fewer are priced as reasonably as this. If you can't recognize a bargain, you don't need to see...3 bedrooms, 2 baths...Large living-dining combo...sun porch...2 blocks from Fannin school...$59,900. Please call today if you know a bargain when you see it!

SUCH A SURPRISE awaits you when you step into this lovely home. Quiet established neighborhood. Beautiful new carpet & ceramic tile will please you...as will the huge patio protected from view by a vine covered fence. Inside you'll find the most charming "hide-away" for TV & popcorn on a cold winter's day with a Franklin fireplace to warm your toes. The living room sports another fireplace in a beautiful rock wall...3 bedrooms...2 baths...you need to see this. Please call us today $42,500

WADLEY HEIGHTS....Never heard of Wadley Heights? We're not surprised! This quiet, tucked away neighborhood is 2 blocks long...no cars on this street screeching by...if you don't live here you have no reason to be on this street... 3 living areas... 3 bedrooms...fireplace...2 car garage...1 car work shop in rear...big covered patio...$69,500...Please call for full details.

FOR LEASE.2 bedroom, $300...3 bedroom, $400...3 bedroom duplex, Goddard area, $750...Condo, very pretty, 2 bedroom, $550. Call us for details.
