Taylor shower slated Tuesday

4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in county coliseum

BIG BROTHER SHOWER — Four-year-old Joshua Taylor, big brother to quintuplets born Sept. 21, was given a "big brother shower" recently at Joy School. Helping him celebrate are director Vanessa Day, top, and his teacher, Rhonda Brunson. A city-wide shower for the Taylor family is planned Tuesday in the coliseum. (Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

Topping local and area news has been the birth of the Taylor quintuplets and local citizens are invited to take part in the celebration by attending a community-wide shower for the Snyder family on Tuesday.

The quints — Kenedy, Jacob, Jonah, Zachary and Aleksi — were born to Brent and Deshonna Taylor on Sept. 21 at St. Mary Hospital in Lubbock.

There is no set program for the come-and-go event, said Donna Fowler, chamber of commerce manager.

"We're just inviting everyone to join in the fun and help out this family," said Fowler, who said she has been awed by the reaction of citizens.

"There has been such an outpouring of love from the community. Of course, you'd expect that in Snyder. The phones have been ringing off the walls with people asking how they can help, what they can do, or what they can give."

Those attending the shower certainly don't have to bring a gift, but if they'd like to, "the sky is the limit," said Fowler.

"Anything that you can think of. Just what you'd think you'd need if you had five people dropped in your lap," she said with a laugh.

There will be a money tree at the coliseum for those who want to donate cash, Fowler said.

Local businesses are providing punch and a cake which will cover four eight-foot tables. Video of the Taylor family taken by KCBD Channel 11 in Lubbock will be shown during the shower.

Fowler said KCBD and KTXS Channel 12 are planning to broadcast Tuesday's 6 o'clock news from the coliseum.

CBS will film portions of the shower and plans to interview the parents live Wednesday for its "CBS This Morning" show.

An area radio station, Q 100, has been collecting donated gifts from across the Big Country and will be bringing them to the shower on Tuesday.

"It's unbelievable," said Fowler.

The Taylors also have a 4-year-old son, Joshua, who was treated to a "Big Brother Shower" this past week at Joy School, a pre-school sponsored by East Side Church of Christ.

Early balloting going well here

Early voting in the November election began Wednesday and Scurry County citizens are responding well.

The county clerk's office reported 427 ballots had been cast by the close of business Friday.

Early voting continues in the county courtroom from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday of the coming week, then from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 26, and from 2 until 7 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 27. The poll will also be open until 7 p.m. during the last week of the period, Oct. 28 through Nov. 1, when early voting ends.

The actual election day is Nov. 5.

Five locally-contested races have clerks anticipating a good turnout for the election. Also on the ballot are races involving state and U.S. legislators, court justices, and president and vice president.

One of the local races is that of district attorney, where incumbent Dana W. Cooley is being challenged by the current county attorney, Lealand W. "Pete" Greene. Cooley was appointed to the office last year by Gov. George Bush. Greene, the Democratic nominee, is a former Scurry County DA.

Looking to replace Greene as county attorney are two local attorneys in private practice — Republican Michael W. Hartman and Democrat Marvin Sentell.

The recent retirement of county clerk Frances Billingsley has two candidates seeking that office. They are Republican nominee Joan Bunch and Democratic nominee Denise Beck.

Another retirement has prompted one other race. Longtime lawman Keith Collier is retiring after serving eight terms. Seeking to replace him are two current deputies, Republican Kerry Fritz and Democrat Darren Jackson.

In the other contested race, Precinct 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. is facing a challenge from local businessman Howard Limmer, the Republican nominee.

There are four uncontested Democratic nominees on the ballot — Ralph Trevey, for Precinct 1 commissioner; Rona Sikes, for county tax assessor; Rodney Josey for Precinct 1 constable; and Billy Joe Gannaway, for Precinct 2 constable. The only Republican running unopposed is District Judge Ernie Armstrong.

Other races of local interest include U.S. Representative and State Representative. For U.S. Representative of District 17, Democratic incumbent Charles W. Stenholm is challenged by Republican Rudy Izzard of San Angelo. In the District 70 State Representative's race, David Counts (D-Knox City) is being challenged by Scott McLaughlin (R-Big Spring).

THE SDN COLUMN

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A skeptic is one who, when he sees the handwriting on the wall, claims it's a forgery."

Think Rain!

Cross-town sports rivalries can set off strong emotions. Over in abilene, student body presidents of Cooper and abilene High called for a "truce" after well-intended school spirit got out of hand.

Towns with more than one high school — like Lubbock, Midland and Odessa — all have experienced pranks that have turned into ugly incidents.

But two small schools in neighboring Jack and Parker counties have given a whole new meaning to the "band aid approach" when it comes to cooperation.

Peaster High is a Class 2A school with a marching band, but not a football team. Nearby Perrin High is a Class 1-A school with a grid team, but no band.

So when the Perrin Pirates recently celebrated their homecoming, it was the Peaster Greyhounds that provided music and half-time entertainment.

Said one school official, "It just seemed like the natural thing to do."

Isn't that what competition is all about?

Too bad some of the high-paid, spittin' professional can't learn a little sportsmanship from the kids.

Think Rain!

The White Buffalo Festival brings out the storytellers.

Dunn's Othal Ellis said in the ole days it was difficult to get to Snyder when it rained. In fact, an enterprising farmer kept a team of mules to rescue travelers stuck in washed out places.

Othal remembers riding with his family on one rainy Saturday. It may have been in the family's first horseless carriage.

When the vehicle got stuck in the mud, the farmer with the team of mules approached. "That'll be two dollars," he said.

"Dad jumped out of the car and said, "Sold."

Think Rain!

When moisture does fall in Scurry County, the mosquitos are known to come out in force.

There's a story about a man who was grabbed off his horse by two mosquitos as he was riding west of town.

One mosquito suggested, "Let's carry him down to Deep Creek."

The other objected, "No, let's eat him here. If we get near the creek, the big mosquitos will take him away from us."

Deja vu in case of philandering ex-lawyer

NEW YORK (AP) — Every relationship goes through rough spots, but the saga of Burton and Linda Pugach is no mere "stand by your man" story.

First he got so mad at her in 1959 when she refused to marry him — because he already had a wife — that he hired thugs to throw lye in her eyes. Then, after he got out of prison 14 years later, the blinded woman married him.

Now Pugach, 69, is accused of threatening to kill his latest mistress because she ended their five-year affair — and his long-suffering wife has bailed him out of jail.

Pugach told The Associated Press on Friday that making meaningless death threats in a fit of pique is normal behavior in a relationship.

"Haven't you ever threatened to kill your husband?" he asked. "Did you mean it? Of course not.

"What did I do?" he demanded angrily. "This has been blown out of proportion like I've never seen."

Pugach told prosecutors that his wife knew about the affair: "She told me, 'If President Clinton can do it, so can you.'"

An angry Linda Pugach, 59, refused to discuss her reasons for supporting the philanderer who blinded her.

"Did you call Hillary and ask her how she feels?" she asked, referring to first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. "Why don't you?"

On Wednesday, prosecutors charged Pugach with aggravated harassment and sexual abuse, claiming he threatened to kill his mistress after she ended their five-year affair. He faces up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine if convicted.

The case bears chilling similarities to the one that made Pugach infamous.

In the summer of 1959, Linda Riss, then an attractive 23-year-old secretary, spurned Pugach's proposal after learning he was already married.

"If I can't have you, no one else will, and when I get finished with

Local woman brutally attacked in parking lot

ODESSA — A 39-year-old woman, an employee of a Snyder business participating in the Permian Basin Oil Show, was listed in fair condition Saturday morning in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital following a brutal beating and sexual assault in a parking lot of an east Odessa hotel early Thursday.

The woman, who is a sales representative for a cellular telephone company, was returning to her hotel when she was attacked in the parking lot in what Odessa Police captain Robert Hammerman described as "as brutal a sexual assault I have seen in a long time."

The woman suffered extensive facial injuries that required some seven hours of surgery, according to a report in the Odessa American.

Odessa police have arrested 30-year-old James Paul Pace and charged him with aggravated sexual assault. Pace, who lived within walking distance of where the attack took place, was placed in the Ector County Jail and bonds were set at $152,926.

Pace was also charged with an earlier attempted sexual assault of a 33-year-old woman who successfully fought off the attacker.

Pace was arrested following the second assault when someone in the crowd around the hotel pointed out a man running through the area as the attacker.

A short time later, a police officer saw a man matching the attacker's description and pursued him on foot. After a short chase, the attacker was taken into custody.

Commissioners convene Monday

Scurry County commissioners face two items of old business and one new item when they meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Two items tabled when the court met on Oct. 7 — the closing of an alley behind Allsup's in Hermleigh and lowering the speed limit in the McBeth Addition — will be considered.

Both items were set aside earlier in order to allow for public comment.

A contract with Hibbs & Todd Engineering for engineering work for the Hermleigh Water Works will also be considered.

MAWC tour of homes slated Sunday

Martha Ann Woman's Club will present its annual Parade of Homes on Sunday.

The tour is scheduled from 2 until 5 p.m. Tickets are $10 and available at the clubhouse, located south of Cogdell Hospital. The clubhouse will serve refreshments during tour hours.

Homes on the tour are:

—The Billy and Janette Huddleston residence at CR 1611 and the Old Lubbock Highway;

—the Doug and Donna Hutchinson residence at 2400 32nd;

—the Don and Jean McMillon residence at 1703 Cedar Creek;

—the Bob and Janell Pollard residence on West 37th Street;

—the Cloyce and Anita Talbott residence at 2500 Towle Park Road;

—and the Dalton and Linda Walton residence at 1701 Firestone.

Proceeds from the tour will go toward the cost of a recent roof replacement at the club.

Police arrest man accused of murder for hire

DALLAS (AP) — A member of the Grandview school board has been arrested and accused of offering an undercover police officer up to $10,000 to kill his wife.

Police believe money was the motive.

Firefighter James Donald Anthony, 40, was arrested Thursday afternoon at a Red Oak truck stop and charged with solicitation of capital murder. He was being held late Friday on a $750,000 bond.

The arrest came after a three-day undercover investigation by the Texas Rangers, Grandview police, the Ellis County Drug Task Force and sheriffs' deputies from Ellis and Johnson counties.

Anthony was trying to increase his wife's life insurance to $350,000 while looking for someone to kill her, said Johnson County Chief Deputy Robby Goodnight.

"I'm numb — I don't know what to say," Anthony's wife, Laurie Anthony, 37, told The Dallas Morning News. "We're hoping for the best we can with the situation."

The Anthonys have been married 15 years and have three sons. Ms. Anthony is a teacher's aide at Grandview Junior High.

Anthony resigned from the Dallas fire department on Thursday after 11 years of service.

Friends and family said the Anthonys' new home probably caused their money problems.

While the new house was being built in Grandview, a city of about 1,300 residents about 40 miles southwest of Dallas, Anthony reportedly lost a service contract with Alltel, a local phone company.

The contract called for Anthony to wash the company's trucks and mow its lawn. An Alltel employee said the contract apparently was terminated during the winter.

Otis Hale, Ms. Anthony's father, said the Alltel contract was a crucial supplement to Anthony's firefighter income.

The murder plot began to unravel last week, deputies said.

An informant told law enforcement officials that Anthony had asked her to kill Ms. Anthony, Goodnight said.

Officials then set up a sting operation. The informant connected Anthony with an undercover officer posing as a hit man. The officer met with Anthony Thursday morning and negotiated the contract, officials said.

Anthony told the officer that he originally wanted him to shoot Ms. Anthony twice in the head in the family home Sunday, but later decided to put off the murder several weeks to give him time to increase her life insurance, officials said.

After their meeting, Anthony took the officer to the family home and gave him a rifle and a pistol as a down payment, officials said.

Authorities arrested Anthony late Thursday after he requested a second face-to-face meeting, officials said.

Woman Who Has Fallen Off Wagon Needs Help Back On

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who is an alcoholic. "Elsa" went through the 12-step program a few years ago and has been dry since her recovery began. We rarely see each other, but we talk on the phone regularly.

In the last few months, when we chat I have the uncomfortable feeling that Elsa is drinking again. I have not said anything to her (or anyone else) because there is no way I can be sure.

Several weeks ago, a mutual friend asked me if I thought Elsa might be drinking. When I asked why, she told me she, too, had noticed Elsa slurring her words, repeating herself, and becoming very argumentative.

I know I should approach my friend with my suspicions, but I cannot seem to find the words. We have been friends since we were very young, and I'm afraid I will lose her friendship if I confront her.

Should I confront her? If so, please help me find a tactful way to do it.

A FRIEND WHO CARES

DEAR FRIEND: Be completely honest with your friend. Tell her that you love her, that you are concerned that she has resumed her drinking, and urge her to get back on the program. She needs to hear this from someone she knows is a caring friend.

DEAR ABBY: A friend sent me a clipping of a column you wrote in 1987. It appeared in The Daily Times in Pryor, Okla. I thought it was great.

Will you kindly run it again?

FAITHFUL READER, GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR READER: Thanks for sending it. I agree it merits a second time around:

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing several quotes from famous people. You may want to pass these along to your readers. I clipped this from the Arizona Republic in Phoenix. If you run this in your column, perhaps it might make some of us feel we are not all that stupid. Thank you.

JOHN NESBIT, PHOENIX

DEAR JOHN: We can all use a little reassurance. These quotes reaffirm the fact that what may appear sensible at the time can be ludicrous later. For example:

— "Everything that can be invented has already been invented." (Charles H. Duell, director of the U.S. Patent Office, 1899)

— "Who the hell wants to hear actors talk!" (Harry M. Warner, Warner Brothers, 1927)

— "Sensible and responsible women do not want to vote." (Grover Cleveland, 1905)

— "There is no likelihood man can ever tap the power of the atom." (Robert Millikan, Nobel Prize in Physics, 1923)

— "Heavier-than-air flying machines are impossible." (Lord Kelvin, president, Royal Society, 1895)

— "Babe Ruth made a big mistake when he gave up pitching." (Tris Speaker, 1921)

Cider warning set

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Health officials are warning four states about apple cider produced in Connecticut that has been linked to an outbreak of bacterial infections and has sickened at least seven people.

The cider was distributed to New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, though all the cider-related illnesses identified so far have occurred in Connecticut, health officials said Friday.

Health inspectors were working with distributors to remove all unsold suspected cider from store shelves.

The seven stricken cider drinkers range in age from 1 to 73, health officials. Five were hospitalized.

State health officials said they had not yet determined how the cider became contaminated, but theorized it was made from "drop" apples — those that have fallen to the ground — that were contaminated with E. coli bacteria.

The bacterium, often found in the intestines of cattle, causes severe vomiting and diarrhea in humans.

The cider was produced at the Notch Store and Cider Mill in Cheshire. Fresh cider bearing the name of the Notch Store or Hickory Hill Orchards, a Cheshire orchard that does not produce its own cider, should be disposed of or boiled before drinking, the state said.

Your Birthday

Sunday, Oct. 20, 1996

In the year ahead, you might be instrumental in organizing an interesting endeavor. You will have to manage a wider variety of resources than ever before.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will enjoy yourself more today if you practice moderation in all of your activities, especially in regard to eating and drinking. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might feel an urge to tidy up your house. Take care not to get involved in a major renovation, because you could lose interest before you finish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In social discussions with friends today, do not introduce volatile topics. Religion and politics should both be avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will manage your personal affairs skillfully today, but you might not be as sharp when you have to handle a project for someone else.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A confidential business matter should not be discussed in front of outsiders today. Limit your conversations to trusted associates.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Profitable results are indicated today, but you must handle commercial matters prudently. Do not make unreasonable demands or give away more than is necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you participate in a social gathering with friends today, you don't have to be the center of attention. Just be yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Indifference could deprive you of success today, so don't take anything for granted. Remember to count your blessings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Think before you speak today, because you might unintentionally blurt out something that could generate ill will instead of good will.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Conditions will be ripe for a misunderstanding with an old friend today. You might think your pal is guilty of something, while he thinks it's you! [illegible] tolerance and attention you display to friends to your mate today. If your spouse feels neglected, your excuses will not be effective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will not be able to have fun today if you have to worry about responsibilities you neglected. Take care of these tasks first, then go have a ball.

Your Birthday

Monday, Oct. 21, 1996

Your chart indicates that the potential for increasing your earnings in the year ahead is high. You might receive benefits in several unusual ways.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) One of your favorite people, who is always in a financial bind, might ask you to get him or her out of a tight fix today. Try to limit your involvement. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, do not accept assignments you might not be able to complete satisfactorily. Wait until you have more confidence in your capabilities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will want to help others today. However, you could become resentful if you feel your gestures are being manipulated by an outside force.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep your obligations to friends in perspective today. Do not reward the undeserving while ignoring people who have helped you to succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If success eludes you today, it won't be because you're not ambitious enough. You might need to re-evaluate your objectives.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to debate philosophical issues today, because you could get emotionally involved and a bitter exchange might be the result.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order for a joint endeavor to succeed today, parity will be essential. If it's there, you'll be successful. If it isn't, regroup and try again.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Allies could limit their cooperation today if they feel you're not holding up your end of the bargain. You will need their help, so try to do your part.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to be effective today, you must be consistent. Do not let your pace and your schedule be controlled by outside forces.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Peer pressure might be stronger than usual today. You will have to decide between having peace of mind or letting companions think for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today, do not solicit financial advice from a close friend who manages his or her resources poorly. Instead, talk to individuals who can really help you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make certain your mind is in gear today before you express yourself. If not, you might offend a friend inadvertently with ill-chosen comments.

Ex-Utah official to lead European bank department

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton on Friday named Karen Shepherd, a former Democratic member of Congress from Utah, to be executive director of the European bank for Reconstruction and Development.

She received a recess appointment, enabling her to serve without Senate confirmation until the 105th Congress convenes early next year. Clinton said he made such an appointment because the United States needs day-to-day representation on the bank's board of directors.

Shepherd served one term before she was defeated in 1994 by Rep. Enid Greene. Greene decided not to seek re-election in the aftermath of a welter of accusations involving her then-husband Joseph Waldholtz's financial status. He has since pleaded guilty to four criminal charges.

A member of the Utah State Senate from 1990 to 1992, Shepherd is a former president of Webster Publishing, a former magazine editor, and a former community relations director of the University of Utah business school.

One of the most important jobs the County Clerk does is to serve as the Chief Election Administrator for the county. I have helped conduct every election from 1978-1992 - also served as early voting judge.

My goal is to go on line with the state Bureau of Vital Statistics Office to have access to all births recorded in Texas for the convenience of the public.

I plan to initiate a computerized indexing system in the County Clerk's Office.

I see in the SDN where Comm. Gray is taking credit for our 5% tax cut for the 97 budget.

Comm. Gray was elected in 1985, and the county has paid him approximately 1/3 million dollars, in wages and retirement.

And he has given the taxpayers:

1. 1985 tax rate .17¢
2. 1996 tax rate .59¢

This is a tax raise of 42¢, and his budget IS THE SAME LEVEL AS IT WAS IN 1985.

THERE IS NOTHING THAT BEATS GOOD MANAGEMENT.

Also we asked Comm. Gray to put the pick-ups in the yard at night. He said that as soon as a worker retired he would do this. The worker did retire but Comm. Gray failed to act.

In 1995 Mrs. Huddleston called me and asked me to have a gate closed on her place - she was selling gravel to the county and an agreement had been put in place that when the county was not using the road it would be locked.

I called Comm. Gray, and stated that the gate was open and Mrs. Huddleston wanted it locked.

Comm. Gray stated that he had just talked to Mrs. Huddleston and everything was OK.

I called Mrs. Huddleston and asked her, and she stated that she had not talked to Comm. Gray in months.

It would be nice if we had a commissioner that would keep his word.

We have lost 74% of our tax base since 1985.

Plea bargain angers parents

BRENHAM (AP) — Two of four Brenham High School boys charged with raping a 14-year-old girl have received probation in a plea bargain to a lesser charge.

The deal outraged the parents of the girl, a Brenham High freshman. They said they would seek state and federal intervention.

Matthew Kenjura and Matthew McIntyre, both 17-year-old seniors, made their pleas on Friday. They will serve 5 years' probation after pleading no contest to reduced felony charges of third-degree injury to a child. They each also must pay $1,000 fines and perform 100 hours of community service.

Each also signed a court-approved letter of apology to the victim, whom prosecutors had alleged was raped June 28 after a party where all were drinking.

The defendants and their lawyers declined to comment after the hearing before state District Judge Harold Towslee.

"You said you would take care of this, and now you do this," the girl's grandfather shouted at Washington County District Attorney Charles Sebesta. "You lied to me from the get-go."

The outburst included similar accusations from the victim's parents and left the girl sobbing in disbelief, "But they raped me."

The parents also said Sebesta had deceived them by accepting a more lenient plea bargain than he earlier had outlined to them.

The girl's mother said she thought the agreement would call for McIntyre and Kenjura to plead guilty to second-degree sexual assault and receive 5 years' probation.

Instead, the deal led to the no-contest plea to the third-degree felony. The punishment is the same, and a no-contest plea often leads to judicial findings of guilt. However, the plea sometimes helps in subsequent lawsuits.

The girl's father said he had never agreed to any plea bargain but sought a trial. "I wanted jail time," he said.

In national trials, women opt for early abortion, no surgery

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — She is recently divorced, has a 6-year-old son at home, is immersed in graduate studies and will soon be looking for a job.

Three to four weeks ago, she got pregnant.

Instead of waiting a few weeks to have a surgical abortion, she swallowed three RU-486 pills on Wednesday that detach the embryo from the wall of the uterus.

"In my situation, there is no question of having a child at this point," she said Friday after an ultrasound confirmed she is no longer pregnant.

In trials at six clinics and medical centers around the country, 150 women have induced abortions with RU-486, a drug that has been used by 200,000 European women since 1988. It could become available at hospital clinics and doctors' offices across America next summer.

"Abortion has essentially become a spectator sport in the United States," said Dr. Eric Schaff, an associate professor of family medicine and pediatrics at the University of Rochester, who is in charge of the largest trial.

"This new technology should make abortion the private matter it should have always been between the health-care provider and the woman," Schaff said.

A month ago, after years of controversy, the Food and Drug Administration all but approved the use of RU-486, deeming it safe and effective when used under a doctor's close supervision. The FDA withheld final approval until it receives more information about how the drug would be manufactured and labeled.

The nation's emotionally charged abortion battle delayed U.S. approval of RU-486. Opponents consider the pill a step backward in their effort to make abortions more difficult to obtain.

Parks opens auto sales business

After eight and a half years selling cars for someone else, Whit Parks has opened up his own place — aptly named Whit Parks' Auto Sales.

Parks is a 1983 graduate of Snyder High School. His wife, Tracey, graduated from SHS in 1985. They have two children, 9-year-old Whitney and 16-month-old Grayson.

Parks said he plans on carrying 20 to 25 domestic and imports and will feature "good, clean, quality vehicles."

Financing is available through WFS Financial in Abilene, he said.

He's still improving his business, located at East Highway 180 and the traffic circle. Future plans include adding more covered lighted parking in the lot.

Parks is the son of G.A. and Aline Parks of Snyder. He is a member of the 37th Street Church of Christ.

Whit Parks' Auto Sales is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. The phone number is 573-7888.

Financial Focus

Many individuals who have made sound insurance decisions - insuring their health, home and care - fail to protect themselves and their families from the high cost of extended nursing-home or in-home health care costs. Often, these people mistakenly believe "it will never happen to me." However, the facts are:

* nearly 50 percent of Americans age 65 and over will spend some time in a nursing home, and

* one in four Americans is expected to require an extended stay in a nursing home.

With the cost of nursing-home care averaging $36,000 annually and the average stay lasting nearly three years, the price tag can easily exceed $100,000. In-home care also can be expensive - and emotionally draining on family members, as well. Contrary to the popular belief that Medicare will cover most nursing-home expenses, it actually pays an average of only 2 percent of that cost.

Tragically, the expense of nursing-home care takes its toll. Nearly half of the people in nursing homes today are paying cash, forced to drain their retirement savings and, in many cases, the financial resources of their families. About 70 percent of single people who enter a nursing home are impoverished within one year, and about 50 percent of all couples are impoverished within a year of one spouse entering a nursing home.

Fortunately, there is an alternative to depleting your financial reserves. Long-term care insurance covers a wide range of medical, personal and supportive services for individuals who need help with normal daily activities. Benefits are payable for care provided in a nursing home or assisted-care facility, and also may include care at home. Long-term care insurance is generally suitable for people age 50 to 84 who need to protect assets that would be vulnerable in the event of a nursing-home stay.

The rapid growth of this segment of the population (currently about 6,000 people turn 65 every day, and the number of people over 65 will double in just over 30 years) has fueled the growth in the number and variety of long-term care insurance plans. However, because not all such insurance plans are created equal, it's important to be selective in choosing your provider. Some of the factors to evaluate include:

* Quality - Any insurance company you select should be financially solid and have strong ratings from the major rating agencies. This means at least "A" or better from A.M. Best or Standard & Poor's.

* Track record : Find out what percentage of claims the company historically has paid and how quickly claims are settled.

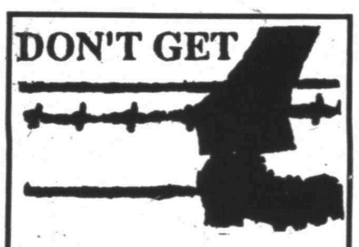

* Premiums - Virtually all companies reserve the right to raise their rates, but look for one that has a long track record of relatively stable rates.

* Benefit triggers - Avoid policies stating that insurance benefits are contingent upon some "medical necessity." Rather, look for a policy specifying that benefits kick in upon illness or injury, cognitive impairment or inability to perform normal daily functions.

Once you have selected an insurance provider, you'll need to determine your level of coverage, including the daily benefit amount, the length of coverage and the number of days you pay out-of-pocket before benefits begin. These are all decisions that should be based on your particular situation and preferences.

The emotional toll of a nursing-home stay is high enough without the added burden of financial worries. Long-term care insurance can help protect you and your family from the financial costs of an extended illness or nursing-home stay, leaving you better prepared to cope with the emotional costs.

WHY NOT PEACE?
Notice why some members do not have peace:
1) Their lives are not in harmony with the Bible. New Testament Christianity is based upon recognition of the all-sufficiency of the Scriptures, which teach us the good news: the death, burial and resurrection of Christ (1 Cor. 15:3-4). Within the sacred volume are found all things that pertain to life and godliness (2 Pet. 1:3). But it is easier for some people to have a nervous breakdown than to obey God!
2) It is the result of a prayerless life. Writing to Christians John said, "If we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us" (1 John 5:14).
3) We become too self-centered. The most miserable person in the world is the one who has never been someone's good Samaritan! Rather than the world owing us a living, we owe the world a life of helpfulness and purity (James 1:27).
4) The call of the world. To have peace of mind, Christians must recognize that God's grace is sufficient for us (2 Cor. 12:9). Secondly, the rich blessings of the godly life are immeasurable (Eph. 3:20). In the third place, true Christians have peace of mind because they are focused with a singularity of purpose (Matt. 6:22). Not until we surrender totally to Jesus can we expect the peace that passes understanding.

4 Indianapolis police officers, one civilian charged in melee

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Four white policemen were indicted on charges of taking part in a drunken melee that led to the police chief's resignation and heightened racial tensions in Indianapolis.

A black man who was beaten in the brawl was also charged.

Witnesses said the off-duty officers — who are all white and belong to an elite police unit — emerged from a bar smelling of alcohol Aug. 27, used racial slurs, made lewd remarks to women, and beat up and arrested a black man and a white friend of his who tried to intervene.

The charges against the officers include battery and disorderly conduct. The two who were charged with felonies were immediately suspended without pay, and Acting Police Chief Robert Allen said he will press for their firing.

As many as 50 people witnessed the attack, which strained already poor relations between police and Indianapolis' black community.

On Sept. 12, Police Chief Donald Christ stepped down in "the best interest of the department as well as the city," and 17 officers implicated in the case were reassigned to desk jobs.

Christ had attended a minor-league baseball game with the group but left before the officers went to the bar and has not been blamed in the attacks that followed.

Jeffrey Gordon, a black man who was beat up in the brawl, was charged with battery and disorderly conduct. Marion County Prosecutor Scott Newman said Gordon was indicted because he continued fighting even after uniformed police told him he could leave.

LSU administrator resigns from university

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A Louisiana State University administrator who awarded 49 minority scholarships to white students, many of whom belonged to a fraternity he was affiliated with, has resigned.

"I am filled with remorse for any harm I may have brought upon LSU," David "Sonny" DeVillier wrote in his resignation Friday.

An audit of a $25,000 scholarship program administered by the chancellor's office found that during the 1993-1994 and 1994-1995 fiscal years, DeVillier had given white students 49 of 54 scholarships set up to help minority students.

The audit also found that many of the scholarships, which ranged from $250 to $750 a semester, went to students who belonged to or later joined Lambda Chi Alpha, a fraternity with which DeVillier was affiliated.

While establishing the program — known as Chancellor's Incentive Award Program — in 1991, the LSU Board of Supervisors said the money would be given "on the basis of demonstrated financial need, with emphasis on the recruitment of minority students who do not otherwise qualify for scholarships presently awarded by the university."

DeVillier has said he was unaware of the criteria. The program was set up at the same time another was started to pay all expenses of minority students to attend summer classes.

Sartor opens 'Best Buy' in Snyder

After 23 years in the car business, Jim Sartor has opened his own lot, Best Buy Motors.

Sartor grew up here and graduated from Snyder High School. He returned three years ago with his wife, Sharon, and 10-year-old son Cody, to take the job as manager of Snyder Chrysler.

Sartor said he decided to return to Snyder because of the quality of life and excellent school system.

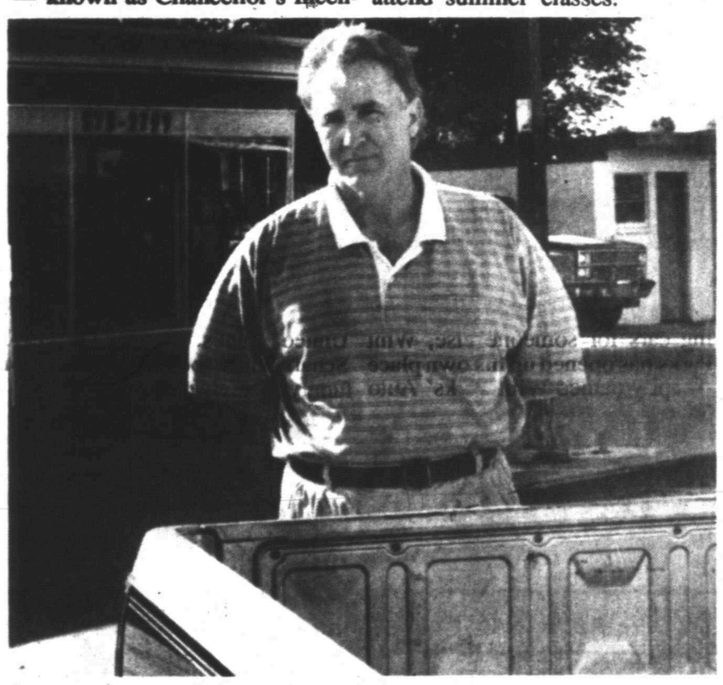

He said if you haven't met him, you might know him anyway. "Just tell the folks I'm Carl Ballard's boy, then they'll know who I am."

His years in the car business and the wide variety of jobs he's held in the industry give him the experience to hand pick each vehicle he buys, he said. And he does it with an eye toward dependability, mechanical quality and good price.

"My approach is to offer friendly, low-pressure help in selecting the right vehicle for the customer," he said. "If I don't have the right car or truck, I'll locate it for you."

Best Buy Motors offers financing through the fourth largest vehicle lending institution in the nation, as well as through banks and credit unions. Warranties up to 36 months or 50,000 miles are available on most vehicles. He also offers consignment sales.

Best Buy Motors is located at 1304 East Coliseum Drive, near the coliseum where the East Highway and 37th Street intersect. The business is open Monday through Friday. Sartor said he would be happy to meet with customers after hours and weekends by appointment. The phone number is 573-2799.

Avenue D to dedicate new worship center

Avenue D Baptist Church will host a dedication service in the new worship center Sunday, Oct. 27. Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. Worship follows at 10:45 a.m. Lunch is planned for noon. The day will conclude with a 3 p.m. service. The church is located at 30th St. and Avenue D. The public is invited.

The First Baptist Church of Snyder instituted the Ave. G Baptist Mission on April 17, 1949, and called the Rev. Cone Merritt as pastor.

Rev. E.K. Shepherd was the pastor of the mother church and A.C. Alexander was chairman of the missions committee.

On April 24, 1950, Rev. J.W. Arnett, district missionary, acted as moderator to constitute the Ave. G Baptist Mission into the Ave. G Baptist Church. Forty-nine people were charter members and they called the Rev. Cone Merritt as pastor. At that time Tom Caldwell was treasurer, Mrs. Caldwell was clerk, and George Lloyd was music director.

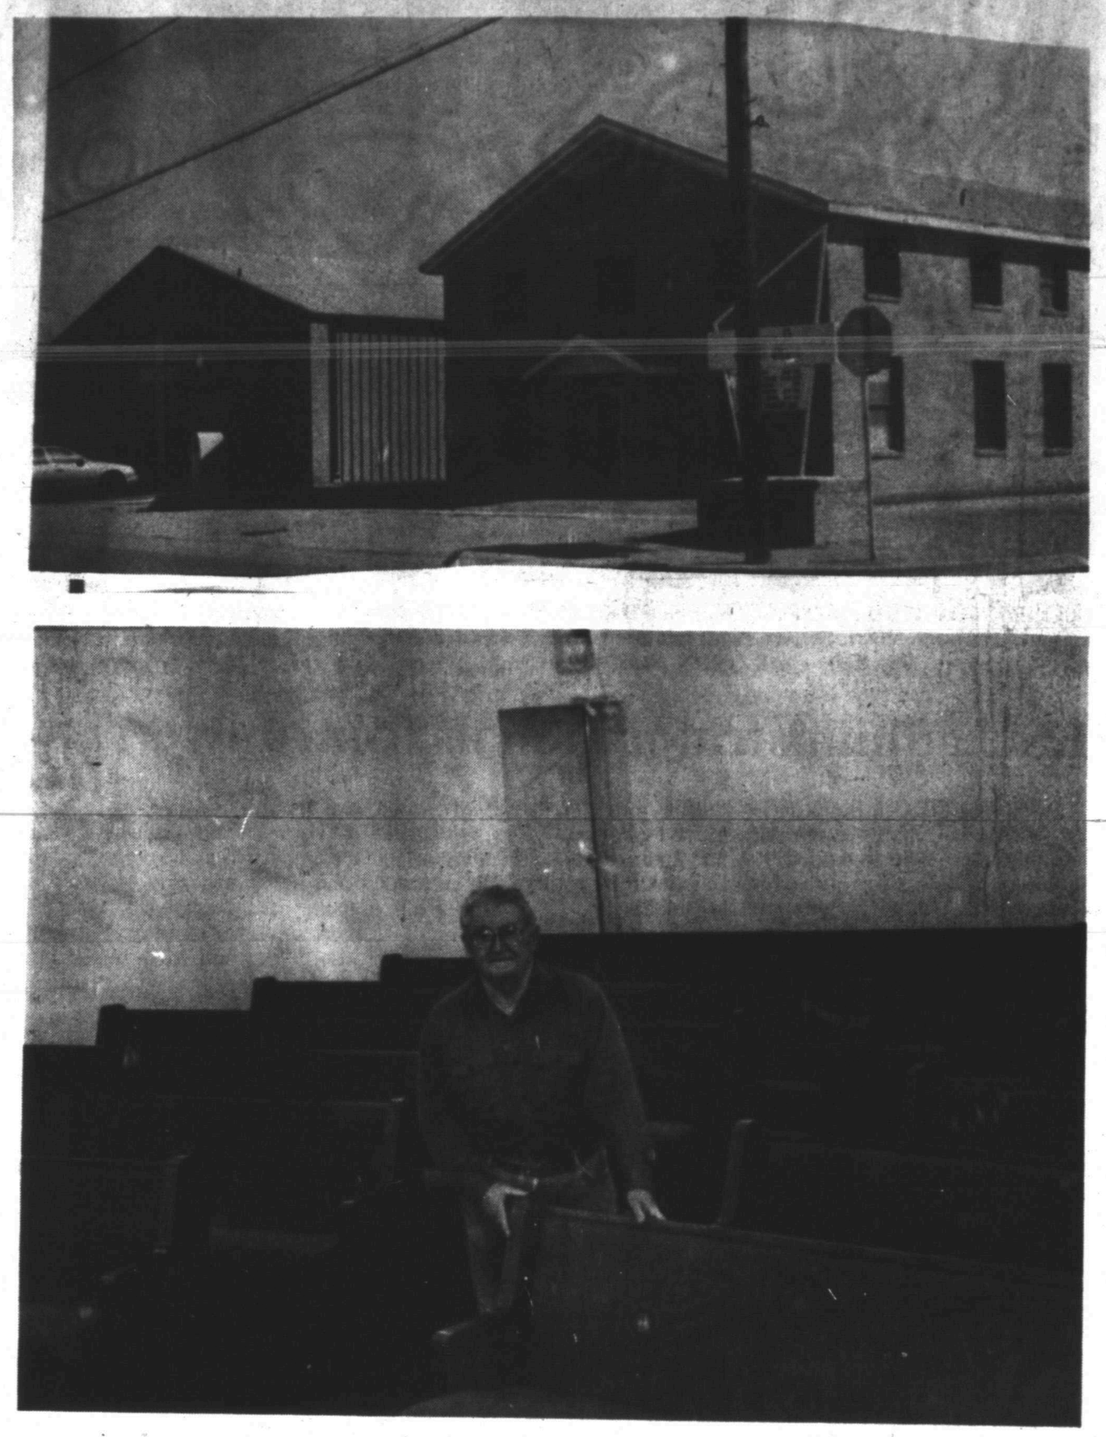

The church moved to the corner of Avenue D and 30th Street in 1951 and changed its name to the present Avenue D Baptist Church. Sunday school was held in an old barracks on the east side of the church.

A fire on Dec. 23, 1989, burned the sanctuary.

Pastors of the church include Rev. Merritt was pastor 1949-51; Rev. Floyd Strickland, 1951-1955, Rev. Avery Timmons, 1955-56, Rev. A.J. Martin, 1956-1960, Rev. O.D. Carpenter, 1960-63, Rev. Bobby Phillips, 1963-66; Rev. Jack T. Riley, 1967-70; Rev. J.C. Appleby, 1971-1972; Rev. George Magnor, 1973-1976; Rev. Ken Danuser, 1976-77; and Rev. Joe Stansell, 1978.

Born and reared at Fluvanna, Rev. Stansell had been the training officer to the staff at West Texas Children's Home before becoming a chaplain and pastoring the local church.

Avenue D pastors following him were Calvin Brown, Terry Lyles, Tim Coffman and the current pastor, Rev. Charles Day, who came in 1994.

2 Republic of Texas men arrested after traffic stop

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Two members of the Republic of Texas organization were arrested Friday after a routine traffic stop.

Archie Huel Lowe, 55, of Rice, identified himself as the president of the group. He was arrested for having an expired vehicle registration and no proof of insurance.

Usually a driver receives a citation, which is a promise to appear later in court. But Lowe told the arresting officer that he did not recognize the laws of the state and was arrested as a high risk not to appear, said police Lt. Scott McCollum. Conviction on each count is punishable by a $500 fine.

Also arrested was Richard Lee Ray Jr., 30, of Corsicana, a passenger in the 1978 Cadillac.

Ray, who identified himself as a Texas Ranger for the Republic of Texas, was arrested on a misdemeanor charge of unlawfully carrying weapons. Conviction of the charge is punishable by up to one year in jail and a maximum fine of $4,000.

An officer had asked Ray to get out of the car after spotting a stun gun on the front seat. Ray admitted to having a handgun in his waistband, although he did not have a concealed weapons permit, McCollum said.

Bond for Lowe was set at $390, but McCollum did not know if bond had been set for Ray. Both were being held at the College Station detention facility.

"They've been fairly cordial," McCollum said. "We've received several calls from their people saying that Mr. Lowe is being held unlawfully, but he is being very lawfully detained."

News of the arrests was posted on the Republic of Texas Internet home page with a request that calls of support for the arrested men be made to the police and Brazos County sheriff.

Jeanette Kinman, spokeswoman for the group, said police were risking an international incident and that Lowe should have diplomatic immunity.

"This could really turn into a major incident," she said. "I don't know if the chief of police understands the gravity of the situation."

Members of the Republic of Texas contend that the 1845 annexation of Texas was illegal and that it remains an independent republic.

New drugs show promise for treating rheumatoid arthritis

By The Associated Press

Doctors are optimistic that new genetically engineered drugs — or some similar medicine — will be widely available in a few years to treat and even halt the crippling and painful effects of rheumatoid arthritis.

Studies on three of these drugs, and their encouraging results, were to be presented Saturday at the national meeting of the American College of Rheumatology in Orlando, Fla.

"It's important not to raise hopes falsely. But at least as an interim progress report, the results, I think, are very promising," said Dr. William Koopman, president-elect of the American College of Rheumatology and chairman of the department of medicine at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Nearly 800 patients were involved in the three separate studies. Most of those who received one of the drugs reported improvement in their swollen and tender joints and only minor side effects, such as a rash.

The drugs interfere with the inflammatory cycle of rheumatoid arthritis.

More than 2 million Americans, mostly women, suffer from rheumatoid arthritis, a chronic inflammatory disease that causes pain, swelling, stiffness and loss of function in the joints.

Six accused of stealing checks

HOUSTON (AP) — Six people have been arrested and accused of stealing financial aid checks from Texas Southern University students.

None of the suspects were students or regular staff members at the school, but one worked there as a temporary employee during registration for the spring semester.

The suspects were taken into custody Wednesday and Thursday after an investigation that started nearly a year ago, TSU Police Chief John McClain said.

Temporary worker Sheila Smith, age unknown, is accused of taking checks meant for students and giving them to accomplices, who cashed them.

The other suspects are Smith's son, Wendell L. Smith, 22; Tonyika T. Jones, 22; Lashownda Shanet Mabel, 22; Sacajawea Vernell Quiller, 24; and Keysha Farley, 21.

All have been charged with forgery of a financial instrument. Smith and her son are being held without bond, while the other suspects each were being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Seventh annual Lord's Acre Festival scheduled on Nov. 2

The seventh annual Lord's Acre Festival sponsored by the First United Methodist Church is set for Saturday, Nov. 2, at Scurry County Coliseum.

Coliseum doors will open at 11 a.m. The festival will again feature homemade food items, handmade arts and crafts, a country store, activities for children, a sidewalk artist, a silent auction, face painting, Christian shirts and a concession stand.

New this year will be a Kenneth Wyatt booth featuring his blue jean jewelry, note cards and books; a button booth and a table of Christian books, tapes and CDs.

A domino tournament is also being offered this year.

Entertainment will be provided throughout the day, including junior high girls choir, Kim Gorman, harp; Glenda Hollingsworth, Jane Womack, piano; and the FUMC chancel choir will sing old-time gospel songs.

Serving for the barbecue dinner will begin at 5 p.m. Tickets for the meal will be $5 for adults, $3 for children 6-12, with children under six eating free.

A live auction is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. Items to be auctioned include a stained-glass window reconstructed from the old church building, a patio table

Snyder falls short in over time

By Brent Taylor
Sports Editor

WOLFFORTH — It was a historic game here Friday as the Snyder Tigers and Frenship Tigers got to find out first-hand how the new tie-breaker system works.

The two teams had fought evenly through the 48 minutes of regulation to end in a 9-9 tie, but when the dust cleared, it was Frenship coming out on top, 16-15.

With the new rule, both teams were given equal chances to score. Snyder won the toss and as Snyder coach David Baugh had been saying, "If we win the toss, I want to be on defense first so that I will know what we need to do to win" — and that is what happened.

Frenship started on the Snyder 25-yard line. Following three pass receptions of four, six and 11 yards, quarterback Brian Hutcheson capped off the final four yards for the touchdown. Place kicker Mark Llanas hit the extra point and Frenship took a 16-9 lead.

Snyder came back, knowing it had to come up with seven points to tie and force a second round or come up with eight and win the game outright.

The first play, L.S. McClain picked up one yard. The second play was an incomplete pass, but the third was a touchdown strike from Russell Riggan to Jeremiah Johnson. The 24-yard play pulled Snyder within one point and then the all-important decision was made, go for the tie or the win.

Baugh elected to go for the victory. Snyder lined up and Riggan kept the ball and went off his right guard, but lost the handle on the pigskin and fell on it short of the goal line.

"Hindsight is 20-20, I wish I would have done something else," said coach Baugh. "Frenship gave us the same look that we scored on earlier in the game, but we were going to run an option out of it. Their defense had it played pretty good. I wish we would have called time out and run something else. When you call something like that and it doesn't work, you wish you would have run something else."

As far as the decision to go for two or kick the extra point, "You know what you have to do to win. You're not going to win unless you outscore them. You can go another round and maybe hold them, but I would rather score from the 3 instead of the 25."

That gave Frenship the victory, 16-15, and put the blue Tigers in a first place tie in District 2-4A with Levelland. The Lobos destroyed Lamesa, 47-8.

Snyder and Frenship both had chances to win the game in regulation, but a bad snap by Snyder and a blocked extra point of a Frenship conversion left both teams wondering "what if."

Frenship took the opening kickoff and marched down the field, aided by 21 yards in Tiger penalties, a 29-yard pass reception and 14 yards rushing to set up a 21-yard field goal.

Llanas was successful on the boot and Frenship took a 3-0 lead with 7:21 to play in the opening stanza.

The Snyder defense had forced the field goal after stopping Frenship on three plays inside the seven to set up a fourth and goal from the 3.

The Snyder defense was able to keep Frenship out of the end zone on its next three possessions and forced punts.

On what would be Snyder's final drive in the first half, the black and gold Tigers took over on their own 14 with 5:10 left before intermission. Behind the running of McClain and pass receptions by Matthew Fambro and Scott Sanders, Snyder had moved down to the Frenship 9 and was staring at a fourth and goal with just over 20 seconds left.

Sanders, who was two of six for the season on field goals, was called upon to try a 26-yarder. The kick was good and Snyder had tied the score at three.

In the second half, Snyder put together a nine-play, 73-yard drive that ended in a touchdown. Snyder took over on its own 27 after stopping Frenship on a fourth and three.

The first play of the drive saw McClain break loose for his longest run of the contest, 18 yards. Riggan then hit Sanders on a nine-yard reception to move the ball into Frenship's end of the gridiron.

Four plays later, on third and six from the Frenship 41, Riggan appeared to be throwing the ball away to avoid a sack, but Fambro used his height and caught the ball for a 29-yard gain. Snyder had a first and 10 from the 12.

The touchdown came three plays later when McClain ran in from seven yards out to give Snyder the lead.

The extra point turned out to be an adventure. The play started out with a low snap that got past holder Kevin Kerr. Sanders picked up the loose ball and started looking for a receiver.

Sanders heaved the ball high in the air and Cameron Pettitt almost had the ball tipped into his lap for what would have been two points, but the football hit the ground, surrounded by no more than three Snyder players and two from Frenship.

Snyder had taken the lead, 9-3, with 1:57 left in the third quarter.

Frenship took the ensuing kickoff and put together a 13-play, 70-yard drive that ended on a three-yard run by Hutcheson. All Frenship had to do to take the lead was kick the extra point.

As the ball started its flight, Snyder's Johnson came flying in and knocked the ball to the ground to spoil the effort. Once again the score was tied, 9-9 with 7:35 left in the contest.

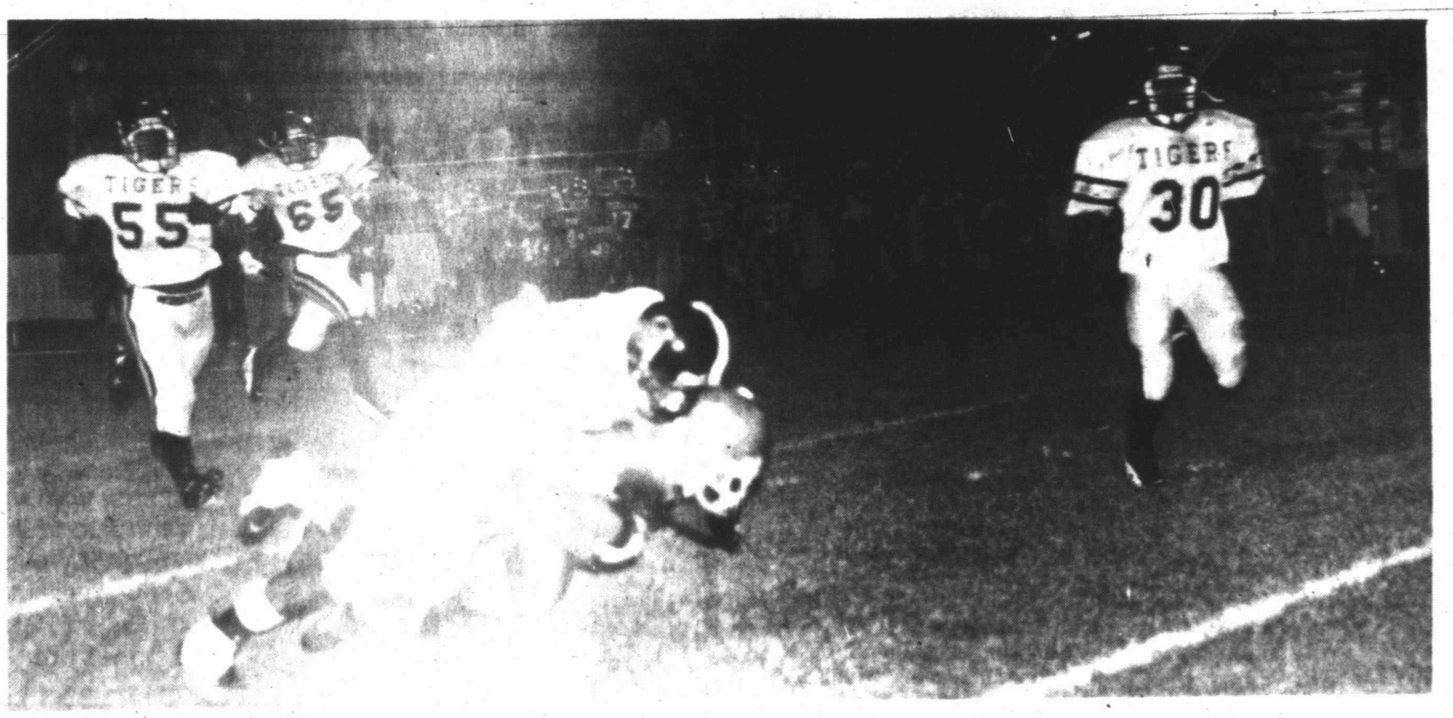

Snyder came back and appeared to be driving, following what seemed to be a completion that bounced off the hands of Johnson and into the arms of center Heath Porter. After a long discussion by the officials, the catch was ruled illegal, wiping out a 16-yard gain that would have given Snyder a first down at midfield. Instead, Snyder faced a fourth and long from the 34.

Frenship got the ball back with 3:03 left and positioned themselves for a game-winning field goal try of 48 yards with 52 seconds, but the ball fell short.

Riggan had one of his best passing performance of the year, completing seven of 18 for 139 yards. Fambro caught four balls for 84 yards. McClain gained 81 yards on 22 carries.

In other action in District 2-4A, Estacado shut out Plainview Thurday, 25-0, and Levelland took care of Lamesa.

Snyder will return home Friday to take on Estacado at 7:30 p.m. The Tigers and Matadors are currently tied for third with 1-1 league records.

CAUGHT FROM BEHIND — Snyder's Matthew Fambro runs down Frenship's Joe Misaege after Misaege caught a pass and appeared headed for a touchdown. Fambro made the tackle after a gain of 33 yards. Coming to help for Snyder is Michael Rangel (55), David Wagner (65) and Juan Arizmendi (30). Snyder lost in overtime, 16-15. (Photo by Stephanie Whitenburg)

THE $67 PER BALE ADVANTAGE FOR COTTON PRODUCERS
More than $67 per bale paid in cash for the 1995 crop.

Your local and regional cotton cooperatives offer a vertically integrated system that takes your cotton from the field to the textile mill. It's a system that adds valuable income to your farming operation. Ginning, warehousing, marketing, textile manufacturing, and cottonseed processing all work to increase the value of your cotton crop every step of the way. For the 1995 cotton crop, combined cash payments from the local and regional cotton cooperatives averaged $67.29 per bale, over and above the value of your lint cotton. Thus, the more cotton you send through the cooperative system, the more you can add to your net profits. Consider the cooperative advantage for your cotton crop – it's just good business. See your local or regional cotton cooperative today.

Borden County cracks Hermleigh, 64-21

GAIL — The Borden County Coyotes racked up 20 first-quarter points then sprinted to a 64-21 District 6-A triumph over the Hermleigh Cardinals Friday night in six-man action.

Borden County remained undefeated in district play and is tied for first place in league standings with Highland and Westbrook. Each are 2-0 in conference play. Borden County's season record is 5-2 while Hermleigh dropped to 1-6 for the season and is 0-2 in district action.

Hermleigh will host Ira next Friday night in a Scurry County six-man battle.

The Coyotes' Oscar Baeza scored three touchdowns to pace Borden County. His first was a one-yard run in the first quarter, and the extra point failed. Frank Baeza, who picked up 138 yards on 11 carries, scored next on a 16-yard run with John Brummett kicking the extra points.

Hermleigh then got on the scoreboard with Mario Gonzales plunging over from the three. The extra point was good on a pass from Larry Lambaren to Brad Roemisch. Still in the first quarter, Hermleigh picked up two more points on a safety.

Frank Baeza retaliated with a 64-yard TD scamper, but the extra points failed. Borden County's next scored was on 20-yard aerial from Colt McCook to Grant Key.

Ricky Luna kept Hermleigh alive with a 37-yard touchdown run, but the extra point boot was no good. Borden County turned up the heat with a touchdown pass from McCook to Bryce Dye that covered 20 yards. This time, Brummett booted the extra points.

Hermleigh would score one more time as Luna got his second TD of the night. The extra point try failed.

From that point, it was all Borden County with McCook tossing another TD completion to Key that covered eight yards. Oscar Baeza scored two back-to-back touchdowns, one a 49-yard punt return and a 10-yard run.

Another defensive touchdown for the Coyotes occurred when Key picked off a Lambaren pass and raced five yards into the endzone. The final Borden County tally was a 12-yard toss from McCook to Trini Vasquez.

Hermleigh had two runners rush for more than 100 yards for the first time this year. Rick Luna had 130 yards on 18 carries and Mario Gonzales had 114 yards on 17 carries.

Hornets shutout Bulldogs

The Highland Hornets displayed offensive fireworks enroute to a 46-0 victory over the Ira Bulldogs in a District 6-A six man contest that ended on the 45-point rule with just over three minutes left in the third quarter.

Highland's Steve Lomas scored three touchdowns to pace the Hornets who amassed 220 yards rushing to maintain a perfect 7-0 season.

The Bulldogs dropped to 1-6 for the year, and are still winless in conference play. Ira travels to Hermleigh Friday night to face the Cardinals who lost to Borden County, 64-21.

Highland stayed on the ground, attempting only one pass that fell incomplete.

High scored 24 points in the first stanza, starting with a 38-yard scamper by Cody Muncy with 6:40 left. Juan Rodriguez kicked the PAT.

With 4:45 left in the first period, Derek Montgomery took an Ira punt and returned it 50 yards for a TD. Again Rodriguez' kick was good. With 19 seconds left in the first quarter, Jacob Ballenger found the end zone from five yards out and Rodriguez again kicked the PAT.

Lomas got two of his TDs before intermission. With 7:39 remaining, Lomas went over from the five and Rodriguez again booted the extra points. Lomas' next tally came on an eight-yard run and Rodriguez kicked the PAT, and Highland led 40-0.

With 3:17 left in the third quarter, Lomas raced 46 yards to paydirt, ending the game.

Highland's 220 yards of offense included eight first downs. Ira managed four first downs and got 65 yards on the ground and 46 via the airways, completing six of 15 passes with one interception. Each team fumbled twice with Highland losing one of those fumbles.

Smith looking to reestablish himself against Falcons

IRVING (AP) — Emmitt Smith is a man of immense pride. A slippage in performance takes some of the bounce out of his step. He doesn't smile as much. Some of his sense of humor fades.

For the four-time NFL rushing champion, who holds league and Super Bowl MVP awards, the first six games of this season have been as difficult as any he has faced in seven years in the league.

"A struggle," is the way he phrases it.

He's had injuries from the top of his head down to his always banged-up ankles. Try doing anything with an injured rib. Like Smith says, "It only hurts when you breathe."

But Smith may have turned the corner. The NFL's blessed bye week provided time for his banged-up body to heal. And he responded with a 112-yard rushing day and two touchdowns in a 17-3 win over the Cardinals.

Dallas coach Barry Switzer told him after the game, "You reminded me of a guy I remembered watching last year."

During the 1995 season, Smith had 11 games of 100 or more yards rushing. This year he has two.

Smith hopes he's on the run again with the winless Atlanta Falcons (0-6) challenging the Dallas Cowboys (3-3) on Sunday at Texas Stadium. Smith is 211 yards behind league leader Robert Smith of Minnesota, as Dallas faces the 23rd-ranked team in the NFL against the rush.

Emmitt watches the statistics. He can't help himself.

"I'd be lying to you if I said winning a rushing title was not important," Smith said. "It's still important to me, because when you don't win the rushing title, people say, 'Oh, he didn't have a good season.' People expect me to win the title. I expect to win it. There are some guys having some really good seasons. I just had my injury bug early."

Smith currently stands 10th in the league in rushing.

"I feel like I can catch Robert Smith. You've got to keep chip, chip, chipping away. Who knows? I may have one big game that may put me up there with the leaders. I still have some big runs left in me. I've still got some big games left in me."

What better game to start than Sunday against the lowly 15-point underdog Falcons?

Smith said the Cowboys still have to take the Falcons seriously.

"Every team plays its best game when it comes to Texas Stadium to play the Cowboys," Smith said.

Cooper upsets Permian, 35-21

By The Associated Press

The last time Abilene Cooper beat Odessa Permian, in 1979, former NFL tight end Terry Orr was in the Cougars' backfield.

Cooper upset the state's sixth-ranked Class 5A team, 35-21, Friday night as Michael Anderson passed for 254 yards and four touchdowns and Dominic Rhodes combined for 254 yards rushing and receiving.

Abilene Cooper improved to 4-3 overall and 2-1 in District 4-5A action, while the Mojo fell to 5-2 and 2-1.

Anderson's 46-yard touchdown pass to Miles Durham with 16 seconds left in the first half gave Cooper a 21-7 lead, and the Cougars made it 28-7 early in the second half when Rhodes took a screen pass and scampered 79 yards for a touchdown.

Permian came back with a touchdown on Ja'Quay Wilburn's 3-yard touchdown run, but Rhodes sealed the victory with a 32-yard touchdown run on a fourth-and-11 draw play midway through the fourth quarter.

Elsewhere, all the No. 1-ranked teams in The Associated Press Top 10 prevailed Friday night in Texas high school football.

— in 5A, top-ranked North Mesquite beat Richardson Pearce, 24-7, as Will Overstreet threw two first-quarter touchdowns and Jason Coffey rushed for 145 yards, pushing him past the 1,000-yard mark for the season.

— in 4A, No. 1-ranked Grapevine held off Highland Park, 17-14, by knocking down a pass at the end zone on the game's final play.

— in 3A, Vernon broke away in the second quarter to win its 16th straight regular-season game, protecting its No. 1 ranking with a 42-7 victory over Iowa Park.

— in 2A, No. 1 Alto pounded Joaquin, 62-12.

NEW "COACH" AT PDU — Don Mullins visits with warden secretary Debra Chaney and discusses his duties as the new recreational consultant at the Price Daniel Unit. Mullins assumed his duties at the unit following 32 years in the high school coaching ranks. (SDN Staff Photo)

MONEY TREE — Helen Hatter and David Holt place the first bill on a money tree that will be available at the chamber of commerce and at the Taylor quintuplet baby shower Tuesday afternoon for citizens to make donations in support of the quintuplets born to Brent and Deshonna Taylor. The shower will be from 4:30 until 6:30 p.m. and has attracted nation attention with CBS planning a live-feed from the coliseum on Wednesday morning with the Taylor family. (SDN Staff Photo)

Artist finally gets to outdo 2 siblings

WASHINGTON (AP) — After six years of sibling rivalry, Bob Hautman finally bested his two brothers. This year he's the winner of the prestigious federal duck stamp competition, following his brothers' lead.

Hautman, an artist from Plymouth, Minn., beat 477 competitors Thursday with an acrylic painting of a Canada goose nestled in a wetland to win the annual contest sponsored by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Hautman and his two brothers have been among the finalists each year since 1989. His brother, Jim, won in 1989 and again in 1994. And another brother, Joe, captured the honor in 1991.

This year was Bob's turn after being a finalist five previous times. "Now people will stop saying, 'Next year it's your turn to win,'" he said.

His painting of a single Canada goose was similar to a winning entry by his younger brother, Jim, two years ago, except this painting added as backdrop a wetlands scene.

"The Canada goose is such a majestic bird," said Hautman in explaining his selection.

Duck stamps must be purchased by hunters as part of their license, but they have become increasingly popular as well among stamp collectors, wildlife artists and conservationists. About one of every 10 stamps is sold to a nonhunter, according to the Interior Department.

The stamps cost $15 apiece with 98 cents of every dollar going for the purchase and protection of wetlands habitat. They have been issued annually since 1934 accounting for more than $500 million for wetlands improvements and purchases.

Each year, the winning design becomes a collector's item. The winning artist receives no award but stands to profit from sales of limited edition prints of the artwork, along with T-shirts, mugs and caps with the design.

Lord's Acre Festival set Nov. 2

and benches made from oak.

Also, solid brass wind chimes made from old organ pipes, a handmade oak "ice box" chest, mesquite wood floor lamp and coat tree, a tall country cabinet featured in "Southern Living" magazine. a handmade baby cradle, a mantel clock with Westminster chimes, gliding deck chairs and other specially donated items.

Also to be auctioned are a couple of prints by Kenneth Wyatt, well-known western and religious artist, along with some jewelry items.

Featured this year will be a new sculpture of a white buffalo made with poured stone.

Admission to the festival is free and prizes will be given away throughout the day.

All proceeds will benefit the church's youth ministry.

The custom of the Lord's Acre event dates to Biblical times when "first fruits" of the land were brought as an offering to God.

In later times, farmers would dedicate a portion of their crop or livestock — thus the name Lord's Acre became identified as that particular portion designated to be given to the church.

My Opponent says: "[He] served 14 years without an assistant." Oct. 3, 1996 WTC Candidate Forum

The FACTS: My opponent did employ an assistant and 3 law clerks while he was DA.

My Opponent says: I was paid as an assistant while I maintained a full-time law practice.

The FACTS: My opponent cost taxpayers over $225,000 in salary alone as County Attorney, paid out of local taxes, while he maintained a full-time private law practice. My opponent also maintained a private law practice from the courthouse while he was District Attorney.

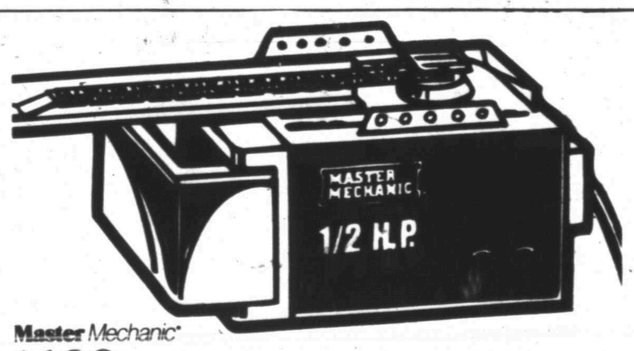

Since my appointment as District Attorney in August, 1995 by Gov. George W. Bush, I have not employed an assistant. I perform the duties of the District Attorney's office on my own, including the appeals. I will continue to do so.

Higher heating prices projected

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tight supplies will push heating oil prices up this winter, but the government has no plans to intervene despite requests by some lawmakers, Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary says.

O'Leary, after meeting privately Friday with 19 petroleum industry executives to discuss the price surge in heating oil, said she was told the refiners are making "extraordinary" efforts to boost production and do not expect to run out.

Rep. Joe Kennedy, D-Mass., said the industry and the Clinton administration "need to take more definitive steps" to head off a more serious price increase. He has urged the government to temporarily stockpile heating oil and release emergency stocks of crude oil.

But O'Leary she had no plans to take such action in advance of this winter, nor otherwise interfere in the marketplace. "For the near term the market does not need Big Brother as a buyer," she told reporters.

O'Leary also said she planned to take no action to persuade U.S. companies to curb exports of hearing oil to Europe where prices are higher, even though current stockpiles are 15 percent below normal for this time of year.

Some members of Congress have suggested the Energy Department slap an embargo on such exports. But O'Leary said she had no authority to do so and did not believe it appropriate to intervene in market forces.

Anticipating no government intervention, heating oil futures rose sharply earlier Friday. Heating oil prices are running 20 cents a gallon higher than last year and are at 5½-year highs on the futures markets. Meanwhile, supplies at the end of September were about 15 percent lower than normal.

Consumers in New England, where about three-fourths of the heating oil is sold, were paying $1.11 a gallon, about 24 cents a gallon higher than last year as the heating season begins. Analysts said the prices may decline somewhat later in the winter but are likely to be at least 10 percent higher than last year.

The National Governors' Association, citing Energy Department estimates, issued an alert to states saying: "If the winter is harsh or if there are problems at U.S. refineries there could be severe fuel shortages."

O'Leary said she was concerned about the effect of the higher prices on low-income residents. She said the Department of Health and Human Services was making $400 million in emergency low-income energy assistance available to local governments.

O'Leary said the oil executives told her that refineries were producing at top capacity as the industry tries to make up for the low inventories at the beginning of the season.

She described the meeting as largely "an exchange of information" and not an attempt by the government to intervene in the marketplace. She said she wanted to know what the industry was doing to boost supplies.

O'Leary expressed some concern — as had the industry executives — of the impact of the oil futures market on keeping down inventories. Industry analysts have said that one reason inventories have been low is the expectation of declining crude oil prices.

She said the Energy Department planned "a quick review of the futures market to see if it has a dampening effect on inventories."

John Lichtblau, president of the Petroleum Industry Research Council and a participant in the meeting, predicted that despite efforts to push refineries, heating oil inventories will remain low throughout the winter. But he said supplies are expected to be adequate.

"There's no question that prices will be higher," Lichtblau added. "I don't think anything can be done to change that."

Eaton sentenced to six-year term

LUBBOCK — A Knox City man, who pleaded guilty last summer to possession and distribution of methamphetamines, was sentenced Friday to six years in prison.

Jerry Carl Eaton, 39, was one of several men connected with a drug ring, which also involved an arson. His cousin, 34-year-old Dale Wayne Eaton, was sentenced on Thursday to 25 years and one month for setting a fire that burned three Rotan businesses and damaged two others.

Dale Wayne Eaton, who had also pleaded guilty in July, said in a statement that the fire was connected to a methamphetamine ring. He also said that he set the fire so that a store manager could collect insurance money.

The store manager, Henry Day, who operated H.L. Davis Department Store, has also pleaded guilty to aiding the arson and conspiracy to possess methamphetamine. He has not been sentenced.

In addition to the H.L. Davis Department Store, the Oct. 17, 1995 fire also destroyed Casa Morales Restaurant and Hometown Cleaners. The Rotan Lions Club building and Family Dollar Store suffered damage.

Dale Wayne Eaton's uncle, 51-year-old Lewis Eaton, was killed when a wall fell on him as he was helping extinguish the fire.

Is there a cure for the common cold?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was recently diagnosed with chronic lung congestion, following a common cold. I'm concerned about future bouts and would like to avoid them, since this happens all too often. Have you heard any report of a zinc product that is heralded as a cure for the common cold? If so, is it good therapy?

DEAR READER: In the past few years, several medical studies have confirmed that zinc supplements may relieve the symptoms of a common cold. However, the mineral does not prevent colds — or their complications, such as bronchitis and pneumonia. The old adage remains true: If you treat a cold, it will last about seven days; if you don't, it will last about a week.

Nonetheless, there is a lot of interest nowadays in relieving cold symptoms, which are very familiar to every reader. Thus, there is a hugely profitable pharmaceutical business in cold remedies to relieve congestion, cough and fever. Zinc appears to be in this category; it probably lessens symptoms while the cold runs its course.

On the other hand, if your colds consistently drop into your chest and cause respiratory symptoms, you should seek medical attention. Perhaps you have a predisposition to upper-respiratory infections, especially if you smoke cigarettes. (If you do, stop.) Maybe you'll need a chest X-ray or should see a pulmonologist if there is a question whether you have asthma, bronchitis, chronic lung disease, or other long-standing respiratory ailments.

Your doctor can advise you. Ask him. Zinc probably won't be as effective as the prudent use of antibiotics, when and if you need them.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Have you ever heard of silver colloid, the world's cheapest antibiotic touted to cure 650 viruses in six minutes without a prescription? The product is being sold by a local dentist. I'll await your comments before making a purchase.

DEAR READER: A splendid idea, because you're simply wasting your money if you purchase this product.

First of all, silver colloid is not an antibiotic. Second, viruses are resistant to antibiotics. Third, there is no scientific evidence that taking silver products by mouth affects viruses, bacteria or any other micro-organism.

True, silver compounds are useful as topical medications — for treating burns, for instance — but there is no proven health benefit from taking silver products by mouth. Save your money for something important, like your granddaughter's birthday.

States must curb teens who drive drunk, or lose fed aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring a new rule of "zero tolerance" for teen-age drinking, President Clinton said today that states will lose a percentage of federal highway aid if they do not bar young people from drinking and driving.

"If you're under 21 and you drink, you can't drive — period," Clinton said in his weekly radio address, announcing implementation of a law that Congress passed earlier this year.

In another pre-election step, the president proposed make passage of a drug test a requirement for issuing driver's licenses to those under age 21.

"Our message should be simple: No drugs or no driver's license," he said.

Clinton said all states must now pass laws making teen-age drinking and driving illegal or forfeit up to 10 percent of federal highway construction money annually.

Speaking of young people who defy the new laws, he said: "If they're caught, their driver's licenses must be suspended."

Meanwhile, Clinton said he is directing the White House drug policy chief, retired Army Gen. Barry McCaffrey, and Transportation Secretary Federico Pena to develop within 90 days a plan to require that young people be tested for drugs as a condition of obtaining driver's licenses.

Republican presidential candidate Bob Dole has denounced the administration for presiding over a sharp increase of drug use among young people, and Clinton used the radio address to respond with an appeal to young people who do not use drugs.

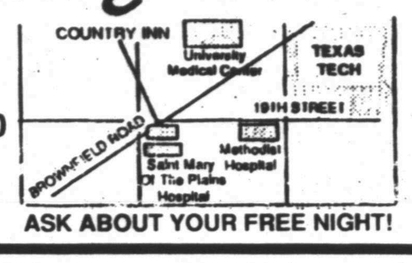

"Let me make one thing clear," he said. "Even though teen drug use is up, all the evidence is that 90 percent of our children are drug-free. They are doing the right thing. They are not experimenting."

Re: Campaign '96 - 132nd District Attorney - Scurry and Borden Counties of Texas

Dear Ms. Cooley:

I do not remember employing "an assistant and three law clerks" while I was District Attorney; I did employ the district attorney elect, Ernie Armstrong, for two or three months at the end of my 14 year tenure to insure a smooth transition. As District Attorney, I did authorize payment for legal research, and hire law students and secretaries on a part-time basis, generally during the summer months.

As the elected County Attorney, I earn $886.13 every two weeks, net pay. I have not appointed an assistant County Attorney. In eight years, that is over $270,000 gross, not $225,000. I have maintained a private law practice; and, you are correct, I did maintain a private law practice when I formerly served as District Attorney. I, also, paid all of my expenses, including a typewriter, computer and telephone; and, I did all of my own typing, just as I presently do.

In response to my recent advertisement, you stated, "since my appointment as District Attorney in August, 1995, by Gov. George W. Bush, I have not employed an assistant;" is it reasonable to infer that an assistant is not necessary? If so, is it, also, reasonable to infer that we did not need an assistant for the previous seven years? Alternatively, if the taxpayers need an assistant District Attorney, why don't we have one now...is it an election year?

The records of the Comptroller's Office of the State of Texas indicate that a former secretary that was employed by your law firm, Armstrong, Cooley & Hartman, P. C., was paid $215.30 per month during a large portion of the time you were an assistant. Did that, also, become no longer necessary because this is an election year?

If you will, make the public records of the 132nd District Attorney's Investigative and Secretarial Account available to the news media; they will disclose exactly what expenditures I made as District Attorney. I am willing for you to disclose my expenditures as a public servant; the public is welcome to examine them and compare them to yours.

I recently saw a sign in front of Rudy's Restaurant, it said, "Watch your pennies, the government will take care of your dollars." Perhaps, you should stand on the street corner near that sign and see how long it takes $200.00 to blow into your pocket...or, better yet, how long it takes $100,000 in tax dollars to blow into a law firm's coffers at the rate of $1,291.80 per month.

Perhaps, better judgment should have been employed.

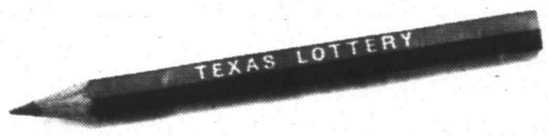

Sincerely,

Lealand W. Greene

Democrats remove star fund-raiser

WASHINGTON (AP) — A star fund-raiser for the Democratic Party is being relieved of his duties following days of attacks by the Republicans for what they call improper and possibly illegal contributions.

John Huang, who raised an estimated $4 million to $5 million for the Democrats from Asian-Americans this year, remains on the Democratic National Committee staff but "has no current fund-raising assignments," DNC spokeswoman Amy Weiss Tobe said Friday.

Huang, a former Commerce Department official, organized a controversial fund-raiser at a Buddhist temple in California last April. The DNC said Friday it was reimbursing the temple $15,000 for the cost of the event.

Religious facilities are not supposed to play host to such events because of their tax-exempt status as nonprofit charitable institutions.

Huang also once worked in Little Rock, Ark., for a member of Indonesia's powerful Riady banking family. A network of people and companies clustered around the Riadys' Lippo conglomerate has contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to President Clinton and the Democrats since 1992.

The DNC also asked the Federal Election Commission to undertake an "expedited" investigation of some contributions the party committee received in the last two years. The request came in a letter Friday to the commission's general counsel, Lawrence Noble, from Joseph Sandler, his counterpart at the DNC.

Tobe said Huang would be "devoting his attention" to providing information to the FEC for the investigation. His changed role "doesn't preclude him from doing fund raising" in the future, she said in an interview.

"We are reimbursing the temple $15,000 because we don't accept gifts or in-kind contributions from religious organizations," the spokeswoman said.

"We are going to review any contribution where there's credible evidence of illegality, and do what we can to verify the questions raised," Tobe said.

She added that the Democratic committee had asked the FEC to investigate the contributions because it "has the resources to do a more thorough review and they have broader powers than we do."

In a related development, the Republican National Committee on Friday returned a $15,000 illegal contribution from a Canadian company, Methanex, according to Roll Call, a newspaper on Capitol Hill.

The donation by the U.S. subsidiary of Methanex, the world's largest methanol producer, violated campaign finance laws because the money was not earned in the United States, Roll Call reported in an article being published Monday.

Louisiana considers gambling proposals

By The Associated Press

Louisiana voters might be forgiven if they decide to let the good times roll somewhere else.

Five years after the state swung open its doors to riverboat casinos and truck-stop video slots, scandal and corruption are bringing the industry to its knees.

Now voters will decide, on a parish by parish basis, whether riverboats, video poker and a bankrupt New Orleans land casino should remain in their communities.

"I think a lot of people are watching Louisiana to see if it is practical to eject gambling from a state," said Bernie Horn of the National Coalition Against Legalized Gambling.

Louisiana is unique in permitting voters to kick the industry out. If they do, experts say it would be the first time that voters have agreed to delegalize gambling. The state lottery, charitable bingo and horse racing are not included in the ballot measure.

At least seven other states offer more traditional gambling expansion proposals, including casinos in Michigan and Colorado, riverboats in Ohio and the expansion of Indian compacts in Arizona.

"Louisiana certainly represents something of a backlash," says Bill Edington, director of the Institute for the Study of Gambling and Commercial Gaming at the University of Nevada. "But I don't think it will start a trend."

Edington and others suggest Louisiana's unhappy experience with gambling is unique to that state. Scandals have included a mob-fronted video poker operation that was busted by federal authorities and a string of conspiracy and racketeering charges against former government officials.

If there is any trend this election, Edington suggests, it is a kind of national hesitancy about exactly where the industry is going.

There are fewer gambling proposals on state ballots than in the past. Some are having trouble selling themselves to voters. And there's a fear among many in the business that a new national gaming commission — as yet to be appointed — might recommend regulating the industry.

In the meantime, voters are having their say.

Other states with gaming proposals include Arkansas.

GM and Canadian workers open talks

TORONTO (AP) — Weekend talks between the striking Canadian Auto Workers and General Motors of Canada Ltd. might not produce a settlement soon enough to avoid another round of layoffs at GM plants in the United States.

Bargainers returned to the table Friday, agreeing to round-the-clock negotiations aimed at producing a settlement by a noon Monday deadline.

"If we can get that resolution on Monday and they can get their ratification process complete, we can have people back in those plants (next) week," GM negotiator Dean Munger told reporters in Toronto.

If a settlement is reached by the Monday deadline, union members could vote on it by Wednesday, CAW president Buzz Hargrove said.

"Our members and their families are on the picket lines and have no income. ... We have no desire to have this strike go one minute longer than absolutely necessary," Hargrove said.

The 26,300 CAW members began to go on strike Oct. 2 and eventually shut down GM's assembly and parts operations throughout Canada. That has led to layoffs of GM workers at plants in the United States and Mexico.

About 1,500 workers were told not to report for the second shift Monday at GM's assembly plant in Orion Township, Mich., company spokesman Tom Klipstine said. The plant builds the Buick Park Avenue and Riviera and the Oldsmobile Aurora and 88 Royale.

Flint, Mich., television station WJRT, citing United Auto Workers sources, reported Friday that 1,000 workers at a GM metal fabricating plant in Grand Blanc, Mich., were also told not to report to work Monday. The plant produces sheet metal products for Cadillac, including doors, hoods and trunk lids, the station said.

Klipstine said he could not confirm the WJRT report, but added, "I wouldn't disagree with that at all."

The only U.S. assembly plant shut down because of the strike as of Friday was the Hamtramck, Mich., plant, which produces Cadillacs.

But workers at Lansing, Mich., were told Friday that one of two assembly lines there would be shut down Monday. Lansing produces the Chevrolet Cavalier, Pontiac Grand Am, Buick Skylark and Oldsmobile Achieva.

Also likely to face a slowdown or closure Monday is the Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant, which produces the Pontiac Sunfire and Chevrolet Cavalier.

Ex-lawyer charged with threatening girlfriend

you, no one else will want you," threatened Pugach, an influential personal injury lawyer, according to Riss' testimony.

In one of New York's most sensational crimes of passion, he hired three thugs to throw lye in her face. She lost one eye in the attack and was declared legally blind in the other.

Pugach was found guilty and unsuccessfully appealed all the way to the Supreme Court.

After his release from jail in 1974, he appeared on TV news programs to propose to Ms. Riss. That September they were wed.

Twenty-two years later, Pugach again became enraged when his 42-year-old mistress, her name blacked out in court papers, dumped him, prosecutors say.

In one phone call he vowed, "It's 1959 all over again," court papers say. He also repeated the threat he made to Riss: "If I can't have you, no one else can."

The ex-mistress told the New York Post, "I'm fearful. This man has a history."

But Pugach was back in his Queens home Thursday night. His 59-year-old wife, wearing large sunglasses and a black leather jacket and pants, had come to the jail accompanied by an unidentified man carrying a briefcase stuffed with $50,000 in bail money.

Prosecutors said a protection order has been issued barring Pugach from going near his former mistress. Pugach said he has no plans for a repeat of the 1959 attack.

"That happened 37 years ago," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, I've paid my dues and the slate is wiped clean."

Some 19 persons apply for job

Some 19 persons had submitted applications for the vacant Development Corporation of Snyder executive director post by late Friday, according to Chuck Rohre of the firm Ralph Andersen & Associates.

The deadline for applications expired at 5 p.m. Friday and Rohre said he expected to receive other applications right up to the deadline.

The vacancy occurred when Doug Hutchinson resigned to take a similar post in Glen Rose.

Officers make felony arrests

Three felony arrests were made Friday on outstanding warrants from other counties.

Officers and deputies arrested Eddie Glenn Mills, 40, of 3011 Ave. N at 1:57 p.m. on a warrant from Mitchell County for engaging in organized criminal activity.

At the same time, 35-year-old Vicki Mills of 3007 Ave. M was arrested on a warrant from Mitchell County for forgery and another warrant for parole violation. Both were arrested at 26th Street and Avenue O.

At 6:02 p.m., officers arrested Louis Timothy Green, 25, of Ponca City, Okla., on a felony warrant for motion to revoke probation and warrants from Galveston County for speeding and failure to appear.

In other activity, Issac Smith requested to speak to an officer at 5:42 p.m. in reference to a theft from his residence at 1308 30th Street. An offense report for burglary of a residence was submitted.

DPS troopers investigated a minor accident at 10:28 p.m. at the intersection of Round Top Road and FM 1606. The driver was not located in the one-vehicle accident involving a 1995 Mazda.

At 10:42 p.m., Bridgette Moore went to the police station and reported her 1995 Mazda had been stolen earlier. A report for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle was submitted.

A report of a possible prowler was made at 8:54 p.m. from the 2800 block of Avenue V.

Jewel heist

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — Five to 10 men held a jewelry courier at gunpoint and stole an estimated $500,000 in diamonds, police said.

The robbery late Friday occurred in the parking lot of an upscale shopping mall in this suburb east of Seattle.

The courier was unhurt.

Police believe the bandits followed the courier to the shopping mall.

AARP Day in Snyder set Saturday, Oct. 26,

Host of speakers top special day's agenda

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) offers a variety of services to people 50 and older.

Since most persons are unaware of the organization or its function, M.J. Merritt of Snyder, AARP's community coordinator, said AARP is planning to hold an event next week publicizing all of the services available through more than 14 programs.

AARP Making Community Connections Day in Snyder is slated for Saturday, Oct. 26, from 9 a.m. to noon in the First Baptist Church Family Life Center. AARP members and the general public are invited.

The event is sponsored by the Community Council of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Local activities are in conjunction with AARP Day in Texas, a proclamation issued recently by Gov. George Bush.

AARP chapter and program representatives will be available to answer questions and distribute literature. U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm and State Rep. David Counts will be speaking. Others will include Doris Black, state coordinator for health advocacy services; Mrs. Roberta Starkey, tax aide associate district coordinator; and Barney Edens, 55-Alive assistant state coordinator.

Also speaking will be Jeanne Williams, benefits counselor with the West Texas Central Texas Council of Governments.

The Texas Sand Band will furnish the entertainment. This band is well-known throughout the West Texas area. Local citizens are members, including Jackie and Valerie Green, Wendell Sollis and Vince Moss.

At the conclusion of the program, participants are invited to visit each booth. Volunteers will be on hand to help in any way.

The local AARP chapter meets every third Monday at the Senior Citizens Center.

Members eat lunch first and then conduct a business meeting. The AARP Council also meets there.

Snyder's chapter, #2063, is located in Area 7 which also includes, in addition to Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The states are divided into districts. Snyder's chapter is in District 3, which is made up of 21 counties — from Hardeman to the northeast down to Taylor on the southeast, over to Howard on the Southwest and up to Floyd on the northwest, then back over to Hardeman on the northeast.

Horace Deets serves as national AARP executive director. Mrs. Catherine H. Greene of Austin began serving as state director in June of this year.

AARP members also fill a great many other positions, including associate state directors, district coordinator, state coordinator, community coordinator, community council and chapters.

Texas has some 392 AARP chapters as well as 227 Texas Retired Teachers Units.

The focus of the district coordinator is to serve as a key liaison with other organizations in the district. This person assesses the district to determine where community coordinators should be located.

The district coordinator recruits, orients, coaches, trains and supervises community coordinators, approves formation of community

AARP DAY — Mayor David Holt recently signed a proclamation declaring next Saturday, Oct. 26, as AARP Day in Snyder. Gov. George Bush has also declared that date as AARP Day in Texas. David Counts who will be one of the guest speakers. (Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

AARP wants to educate public about organization's programs

AARP has dual reasons for sponsoring AARP Day next Saturday. First, the organization believes in making community connections to acquaint and inform the general public. AARP national members also regard the numerous programs and services available for them in the community.

These include a wide range of programs, such as health advocacy, widowed persons services, Snyder Neighbors Sharing, Noah Project, Senior Citizens Center, food bank, tax aide, 55-Alive, AARP/vote, Department of Human Services, Spartan, home health care, Alzheimer's, cancer, heart and bereavement support groups, plus others.

AARP is the nation's leading organization for people 50 and older. (See history page 5B.) It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, information programs and community services provided by a network of experienced volunteers throughout the country. The organization also offers members a wide range of special benefits, including "Modern Maturity" magazine and the monthly "Bulletin."

AARP has 33,000,000 members in the U.S. and 1,900,000 in Texas alone. The state also has 392 chapters as well as 227 Texas Retired Teachers Units.

A brief breakdown of AARP programs follows. (From AARP literature)

—Through Health Advocacy Services (HAS), AARP members receive information about preventative health care, good nutrition and ways to improve life for those with chronic illnesses.

People working together

Key to AARP's local success

AARP volunteers in conjunction with M.J. Merrit, community coordinator, are working to make AARP Day in Snyder both special and informative.

Committee chairmen for the upcoming event include:
C.J. Smith, set up; Marie Armstrong, refreshments; Ben Odorizzi and Hubert Cargile, door prizes: Eunice Milton, greeters; Alta Bavousett, advertising; Leta Beck, clean up; and Juanita Ellington, entertainment and exercise.

AARP Council members are usually made up of AARP volunteers who provide a particular service within the organization, such as tax aide. Since the local chapter does not have local representatives for several AARP programs, M.J. said they accept representatives of other local agencies who provide similar services as council members.

"We all work together," she added.

The group meets as needed.

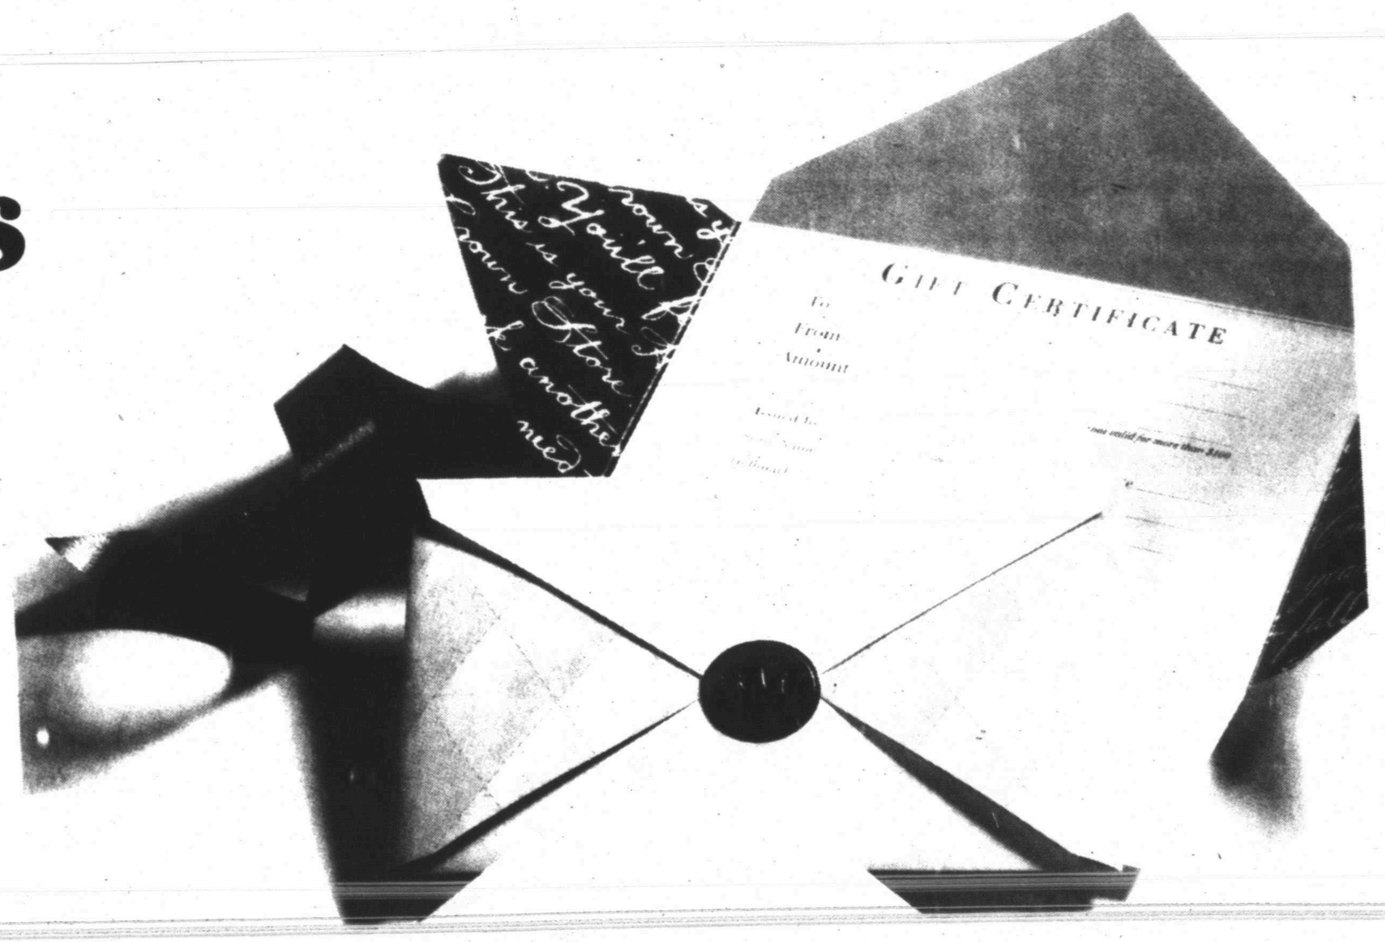

Council members include C.J. Smith, as president of the local AARP chapter; Francene Noah, Retired Teachers Association (RTA) representative; Bernhard Bartels, the current tax aide counselor, Mildred Pevehouse, Health Advocacy Services (HAS) representative; and Bobbie Burns, 55 Alive program for mature drivers.

Other members are Norma Laywell, director of the Senior Citizens Center; Nan Swanson, director of the Food Cupboard;

In afternoon church ceremony

Murphy, Graham pledge vows

ABILENE — Debra Combest Murphy of Snyder and Rocky Scott Graham of Abilene were united in marriage at 2 p.m. on July 20 in North Side Baptist Church with Don Greenway officiating the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Wallace and Bobbie Combest of Snyder and Mike and Carole Graham of Vidor.

The altar featured a brass horseshoe arch, flanked by two spiral candelabras decorated with greenery and pink and candlelight satin bows. Ivory tulle and pink and ivory bows marked the pews along the aisle.

Wearing a floral dress matching the flower girl's, Erin Cooley, close friend of the bride, and Wesley Murphy, the bride's son, served as candlelighters.

Pianist was Gary White of Lubbock, cousin of the bride. The bride's mother was escorted by Wesley Murphy, and the groom's mother was escorted by Craig Adkins, her son-in-law.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight satin floor-length gown with a traditional train, featuring an off-the-shoulder neckline, long fitted sleeves and a fitted bodice, all trimmed with lace, sequins and pearls. The full skirt, trimmed with lace around the bottom and lace and pearl insets descending the train from a large bow at the waist. She wore a two-tiered, silk illusion veil attached to a back headpiece. The veil and headpiece were accented with pearls and small satin flowers.

A string of pearls and matching earrings completed her ensemble, and she carried a cascading bouquet of fuchsia and white roses, small lilies and baby's breath.

Flower girl Stacy Clifton wore a floral dress of the bride's colors and carried a basket trimmed with candlelight lace and bows. It was filled with fuschia, pink and ivory rose petals.

The bride's son, Brady Murphy, served as ringbearer and escorted the flower girl. Riley Davis, nephew of the bride, carried the bride's train. They wore tuxedos matching the groomsmen's.

Matron of honor was Janna Davis, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Tonya Combest of Floydada, sister-in-law of the bride, and Dana Cooley, wearing fuchsia linen dresses which were knee-length and sleeveless. They were decorated with satin-stitched cutwork on the bodices. All wore pearls and carried a single large tiger lily, baby's breath, and roses tied with ivory satin bows.

Rick Clark of Vidor served as best man. Groomsmen, who also ushered guests, included Craig Adkins, brother-in-law of the groom from Buna, and Dave Perkins from McCloud, Okla.

The groom was attired in a full-dress black Christian Dior tux with tails and peak lapels. He wore an ivory wing shirt, ivory vest and tie and a white rose boutonniere.

The groom's party wore matching dinner tuxes with ivory shirts, fuchsia cummerbunds and ties, and fuchsia rose boutonnieres.

Charlotte Clifton registered guests at a table centered at the entry to the sanctuary.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a candlelight satin skirt and an embroidered cloth belonging to Nona Williams. It was centered with a tall arrangement of tiger lilies in a silver bowl.

A three-tiered chocolate white cake with ivory frosting was placed at one end of the table. The cake was topped with ivory wedding bells and decorated between the layers with fresh flowers. It was accompanied by a silver tray of fresh grapes and crystal dish of mixed nuts and a crystal punch bowl, used at the 50th wedding anniversary of the bride's maternal great-grandparents 40 years ago. Also on the table were a silver tray holding fresh grapes and a crystal dish held mixed nuts.

Servers were Karen Westmoreland, a friend of the bride, and Dina Adkins, sister of the groom from Buna. Also assisting in the houseparty were Margaret Corkran, Irene Masters and Elaine Whitfill.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and Angelo State University with a bachelor of arts degree in English and history. She teaches seventh grade English in Bridgeport Middle School.

The groom, a graduate of Vidor High School, attended Lamar University in Beaumont before joining the Air Force where he served 10 years, stationed in Germany, Korea and Fort Worth before coming to Dyess A.F.B. He was also a participant in the Desert Storm Campaign. A recent graduate from the West Texas Central Council of Governments as a certified police officer, Graham is presently interviewing in the Metroplex.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham reside in Denton.

A cool head and steady hand

By Phillip Alder

Defending well at the bridge table requires several skills. You must count, of course, but you must also have good nerves and be able to play low smoothly when declarer has a critical guess to make.

In this deal, West won the prize for the best defense at the European Schools Championship last July in this deal.

In the match between France and Great Britain, both North-South pairs reached six spades. In this auction, three spades set the suit as trumps. Four hearts was a cue-bid showing slam interest. South took over with Blackwood before bidding the slam.

The British declarer effectively played for East to hold jack-doubleton or jack-third in clubs. He won the trump lead, drew trumps and led the club king from hand. West won with the ace and switched to a heart. (Yes, a diamond is a stronger play.) After winning with the king, declarer played a diamond to dummy's ace, discarded his other diamond on the heart ace, and played a club to his 10. Luck was at home, so the contract made for plus 980.

The British West, Graham Hazel, also led a spade. Declarer drew trumps, unblocked the heart king and played a diamond to dummy's queen. South threw the club nine on dummy's heart ace before playing a club to his queen. Hazel played low immediately.

Declarer returned to dummy with a diamond and led another low club, going up with the king. Hazel happily won with the ace and returned a club to his partner's jack to defeat the slam.

Kennedy praises city

SEATTLE (AP) — John F. Kennedy Jr. lives in New York City — but maybe Seattle is his kind of town.

"In many ways, Seattle is the quintessential American city of the '90s," Kennedy said Thursday in a luncheon speech to the Seattle Advertising Federation.

"It's New York with clean streets. Paris with better manners. London with better coffee. Los Angeles with a professional football team," he told the audience of 700.

The latter was Kennedy's reference to Seattle Seahawks owner Ken Behring's unsuccessful attempt this year to move the NFL team to Southern California.

'Soldier's Legacy' book now available at Snyder Daily News

A book about World War II released in September makes mention of men from Company G which originated from Snyder as a part of the National Guard. Charles Stimson from Plainview, a driving force behind the Company G Annual Reunion to be held Oct. 31 through Nov. 2, plays a prominent role in the book.

Letters Home: A Soldier's Legacy, by Roger L. Shaffer and published by the Republic of Texas Press, gives a unique perspective of World War II. The story is told through letters Shaffer's uncle, Bill Rodgers, wrote home during the war, from the first letter telling of his acceptance into the army to the last letter written shortly before his death in January, 1944. He was killed in action at Cassino. Supplementing the letters are a number of nostalgic photographs of the era and military and historical background information.

Shaffer relates how he came to know his uncle Bill through the letters and by meeting the other officers Bill served with in the 36th "Texas" Division. He notes that the experience gave him an increased understanding of the times, both from the perspective of the servicemen and the family members waiting at home.

Letters Home, A Soldier's Legacy is available in the Snyder Daily News book section where books about Texas are sold along with a selection of various books relative to Texas. Information concerning Letters Home book may contact Sharon Bogard, Republic of Texas Press, 214-423-0090.

"How Good Do We Have To Be?" by Harold Kushner.

No one is perfect. But too many people insist on demanding perfection of themsleves, their parents, their husbands or wives, their children and other people in their lives. Results are anger, guilt, depression and disappointment. It shows us how life is too complex for anyone to live it without making mistakes.

Alpha club meets

Alpha Study Club met for its regular meeting on Oct. 1 at the woman's club with Dana Cooley, district attorney for Borden and Scurry Counties, as guest speaker.

Informing the group on protection from scams, Mrs. Cooley's emphasis was on how an individual can better protect themself from telephone "con people" and mail frauds. She warned against giving personal information on the telephone or to salesmen who solicit funds by coming to your home.

"If a person is bothered by a personal or telephone solicitation, they should report the problem to the local law officials," she said. "Remember, don't be afraid to say 'no,' she said, "if it sounds to good to be true, it probably isn't true.

The meeting adjourned following refreshment provided by Helen Faulkenbery and Velma Lunsford.

Modified cold virus turned into cancer killer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mutated version of an ordinary cold virus turns into a cancer killer when injected into tumors, according to research with laboratory mice. The therapy is now being used experimentally on human patients.

In a study published Friday in the journal Science, researchers report that a genetically engineered version of adenovirus, one of a number of viruses that cause the common cold, is able to attack and destroy human cancer cells that lack a gene called P53.

About half of all human cancers have a defective or missing P53 gene.

"The mutated virus takes over and turns the (cancer) cell into a factory to make more virus," said Frank McCormick, a researcher at Onyx Pharmaceuticals in Richmond, Calif. "After a day or two, the cell is killed and it releases a whole bunch of new virus, which then infect neighboring cancer cells."

About 60 percent of human tumors grown in laboratory mice melted away after being injected with the mutated adenovirus, said McCormick, who is the lead author of the study.

Dr. Bert Vogelstein, a Johns Hopkins University researcher who first discovered that an altered or missing P53 gene can lead to cancer, called the report promising "because it exploits an alteration that is present in many different cancers."

Several gene mutations linked to cancer have been discovered in recent years, but finding ways to use the genetic flaws to fight cancer "has been elusive and very difficult," Vogelstein noted.

"That's why this paper is very exciting," he said. "It is an extremely clever idea."

Yet, the altered virus' true cancer-fighting ability will not be known until human trials are done, Vogelstein noted.

A normal P53 gene suppresses cancer by detecting flawed DNA when a cell is dividing. If the DNA is abnormal, P53 either stops the division or kills the cell.

Many types of human cancers have defective or missing P53 and this allows the tumor cells to survive and proliferate wildly.

A normal adenovirus causes mild upper respiratory infections by invading a cell and making a protein that inactivates P53. That enables the virus to take over and eventually kill the cell, releasing into the bloodstream the new viral particles.

The altered adenovirus, developed at the University of California, Los Angeles, is unable to make the protein that blocks the action of P53.

The alteration's effect, McCormick said, is that the virus is unable to replicate efficiently in normal cells, which have P53, but thrives in cancer cells that lack the gene.

As a result, he said, an altered virus uses cancer cells to make more virus and then kills the cells, freeing new viral particles to other cancer cells.

To test the altered virus, the researchers injected human cancer cells into so-called nude mice, a lab species that readily grows human tumors because it lacks an immune system.

Once the human cancers were established, the researchers injected the tumors with the altered adenovirus.

"In 60 percent (of the mice), we see the complete removal of the tumor," said McCormick. "We see the virus spread inside the tumor until the inside is gone and then only scar tissue is left."

The virus affected only the cancer cells, working rather like a "smart bomb" that attacks specific targets without damaging nearby structures.

"This doesn't necessarily say that this same thing will happen in human patients," McCormick noted. The adenovirus often will not attack mouse cells. Also, since the mice used in the study lack an immune system, the virus could spread unchallenged.

Early human trials of the altered adenovirus are under way now in San Antonio and Glasgow, Scotland. A few head and neck cancer patients are receiving virus injections in an experiment to determine if the altered virus is toxic in humans and to find the appropriate dose.

Kemp brought drive, dollars to GOP ticket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Kemp brought more than a quarterback's passion and pluck to rally the GOP team. He also brought cash.

By raising a quick $400,000 from loyal GOP backers and party leaders, Kemp made an end run around election rules that severely limited Bob Dole's spending during the Republican National Convention, campaign financial reports show.

Kemp benefited from a 1980s decision by election regulators allowing vice presidential candidates to pay their own expenses, if they choose to, without counting against the ticket's primary season spending cap. In the general election, they will both be bound by the same limit.

Kemp's convention expenses included $76,000 worth of red, white and blue "Dole-Kemp" signs, his report to the Federal Election Commission shows.

In fact, Kemp's tab was almost twice as much as Bob Dole's estimated spending during the nominating convention.

Kemp reported spending and debts totaling $345,706; a Dole spokeswoman estimated his campaign spent $187,000 — a pittance by historical standards.

Kemp's last-minute fund raising was necessary because Dole had used up almost all of the $37.1 million he was allowed to spend in the primary season. Dole, like President Clinton, agreed to the limit in exchange for matching funds from taxpayers.

Dole ran through the money in tough primary battles, then was forced to scrimp.

"Clearly you look at all this and say what are we required to pay for? What can someone else pay for?" said Trevor Potter, an attorney and former Federal Election Commission chairman who helped set up the Kemp committee.

"You say, well, Kemp can raise and pay for his own convention expenses. At least that's something we don't have to worry about," Potter said Thursday.

The vice presidential fundraising committee was first created Aug. 7, the day Kemp's name surfaced as Dole's likely choice, and three days before Dole announced his decision. It was later renamed the "Jack Kemp for Vice President Committee."

Potter said the committee was formed even before Dole's choice was finalized "to do a little bit of advanced planning."

Kemp's committee spent $21,828 on hotel bills, $76,489 on photographs and $33,750 for speech writing. Dave Carney, a Dole aide during the primaries, was paid $5,300 for consulting work.

The committee also covered the $1,433 cost of longtime Dole assistant Sheila Burke's travel to Texas to meet Kemp and escort him to Kansas to be introduced to the national media.

The practice strikes some as a violation of the spirit of the law, designed to curb spending and reduce the influence of financial donors.

"Oh, please!" said Sheila Krumholz, a researcher at the Center for Responsive Politics, which studies campaign financing. "It's ridiculous we've got so many loopholes.

"I'm sure someone was well paid for coming up with another way around the law," she said.

The report did show Potter's firm was paid $8,391 for legal services. But he did not invent the strategy. Dan Quayle set up a vice presidential committee in 1988 that raised $73,000. Potter said Democrat Lloyd Bentsen also set up a vice presidential committee that year.

Al Gore does not have one, however.

Kemp received $51,300 from political action committees, including PACs representing Bell Atlantic telephone company, Smith Barney financial services, and Union Pacific railroad.

Kemp used Union Pacific's corporate jet and paid $3,624 for the privilege.

Kemp's committee was launched with $15,000 from three branches of the Republican Party. It also received $5,000 apiece from leadership committees controlled by House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.; Senate Majority Whip Don Nickels, R-Okla.; and GOP primary dropout Lamar Alexander.

Mommy cliques make park strolls tense

TOKYO (AP) — It wasn't broken glass, a rusty jungle gym or the neighborhood drunk that made Kunie Kihara scared to go the park with her baby daughter.

"I had seen people coming in groups, and I didn't want to find myself alone," said the 29-year-old mother, now surrounded at a Tokyo park by the same lively group of women who once frightened her away.

Like many young mothers in large Japanese cities, Mrs. Kihara found her stomach in knots when faced with her "park debut" — the first fearsome trip to a park dominated by sometimes-exclusive cliques of mothers.

Cliques are a fact of life in many societies. The Japanese penchant for strong group identity and attention to detail can turn a visit to the park into a tightly-run activity with its own list of do's and don'ts.

The trend has inspired a book that likens the park cliques to school bullying. And a recent satiric TV movie depicted a park ruled by 50 women, all wearing white blouses and blue slacks. The sandbox was off limits to everyone, even children.

Department stores set up special displays of the "right" kind of park attire — baggy, unassuming sweat clothes are preferred. Guidebooks for newcomers to Tokyo counsel women on how to make a good impression at the sandbox.

Mrs. Kihara, who brought a friend with her to the park the first time to calm her nerves, said it took her between three and five months to really feel like part of the gang.

"Once you get to know people it's easy," she said. "But if you come here alone, it would be difficult."

Park debut — or "ko-en daybyu" in phonetic Japanese — in part reflects the disappearance of the extended family and an increasingly mobile younger generation.

Young mothers, often far from their families and living with husbands who work round-the-clock, turn to urban Japan's few and tiny green spaces for their only chance at a bit of socializing.

Sometimes they run headfirst into a traditional mainstay of Japanese society — group identity. Newcomers can feel painfully out of place, and are initially shunned.

The social dynamic created by women at the park in many ways mirrors the corporate culture their husbands face at the office — a strong sense of being an insider or outsider, and guidelines of dress and behavior.

"Each group has its own atmosphere or feeling," said Noriko Iwasawa, 28, who used to bring her son to Mrs. Kihara's park. "You can see what members are expected to do in each group."

While the "mommy cliques" at Japanese parks can be loosely organized, the one Mrs. Iwasawa belonged to seemed particularly strict.

She said there were set times for going to and leaving the park, and members were expected to advise the others ahead of time if they planned anything unusual — like bringing along a box lunch or going to the nearby kiddie pool.

The group even had a subtle sense of hierarchy based on seniority.

"Everybody knows who has been at the park the longest," she said. "You can't ignore the wishes of someone who's been with the group a long time."

Mrs. Iwasawa's visits to the group dropped off after she made a close friend outside it with whom she preferred to spend time.

In her 1995 book, "Park Debut," Chisato Motoyama detailed her experience as a member of a park clique in Tokyo. While the group offered companionship and allowed mothers to swap child-raising tips, in the end she compared its treatment of outsiders to harsh school bullying, a social concern in Japan.

Mrs. Kihara and the other mothers gathered around the picnic table say such attacks on park cliques are exaggerated. Mrs. Kihara said her acceptance by the group was gradual, but it did come.

Jun Minamii, 29, also said she was overwhelmed at first by the park atmosphere, but found it relatively easy to make friends, in time.

"Look at me," she said, pointing to her faded jean jacket and unusual frizzy perm. "I have this hair and these clothes, but I'm still friends with these people."

Lawsuit filed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Superman's new bride is suing a health club chain for super bucks.

Teri Hatcher, co-star of ABC's "Lois & Clark," sued Bally's Health & Tennis Corp., claiming she's owed $312,500 on a contract to promote the chain.

The suit, filed in state court Wednesday, claims Hatcher was paid only half the amount promised under a one-year agreement to make TV commercials, print ads and personal appearances for Chicago-based Bally's.

Spokesman Michael Kempner said Thursday that Bally's had not yet seen the lawsuit. "But I can tell you this. We have met all of our obligations as outlined in the contract. Unfortunately, she did not." He declined to elaborate.

Hatcher and her company, Hatch-It Inc., also seek a court order to nullify the written 1995 contract, which had a one-year option, and to prevent Bally's from using her likeness in promotions.

Only in the movies do both the good guys and the bad guys have six-shot revolvers that fire dozens of times without needing to be reloaded.

AARP founded decades ago by Dr. Andrus

To fully understand AARP as it exists today, it is important to understand when, where, and how AARP began.

The story of AARP is really the story of Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, who served for 28 years as a high school principal in California. After retiring, Dr. Andrus became Volunteer Director of Welfare for the California Retired Teachers Association and quickly became aware of the inadequate pensions teachers were receiving. She realized this problem was by no means unique to California and needed to be dealt with on a nationwide basis.

In 1947, Dr. Andrus founded the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA). The NRTA united many individual state organizations into a single cohesive federation for action on behalf of retired educators.

Dr. Andrus pleaded the cause of retired teachers before state legislatures throughout America and was successful in getting improvements in teachers' pensions. She was also concerned about health of retired teachers and their access to medical care. She wanted an insurance company to offer a group health insurance policy to them that was affordable, and one that did not require a physical examination. After asking some 40 insurance companies to underwrite a policy and being turned down (it was then considered a tremendous risk), she finally found a company willing to do so. That group health insurance policy — the first of its kind in America — was an instant success, both for the insurers and for the retired teachers who gained protection.

Dr. Andrus was also concerned with developing a framework within which retired educators could channel their career skills and experiences to serve other retired and active teachers, their communities and the nation. She was convinced that older people themselves would have to change the negative image of aging by playing an important new role in the society they helped build.

As Dr. Andrus worked to build and strengthen NRTA, she came to see that the problems facing her constituents were not restricted exclusively to retired teachers, but were shared by all who were entering their retirement years. Out of this realization evolved the creation of a new organization to serve the needs and aspirations of all of America's aging population. On July 1, 1958, in Washington, D.C., the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) was established by Dr. Andrus; this sister organization was allied and parallel to NRTA but independent.

In September 1960 the first local chapter of AARP was formed in Youngstown, Ariz. Now there are some 4,000 chapters and some 2,600 local RTA units. By the middle of 1961, more than 30,000 members a month were being served by AARP's Pharmacy Service, which had been initiated in 1959.

With Dr. Andrus pushing all the way, after more than five years of work, the Medicare law was signed on July 30, 1965, to become effective July 1, 1966. That same year AARP was ready with an expanded group health insurance program to supplement Medicare.

The AARP Tax Aide program started in 1970 and by 1974 was already available in 800 communities with 3,400 volunteers assisting 150,000 individuals. In 1973, volunteer State Legislative Committees were established to serve as the focal point for AARP's legislative interests in each state. In 1975, AARP received funding from the Administration on Aging to pilot a legal service for the elderly project. That continues today as the Legal Counsel for the Elderly program.

In July of 1982, the NRTA officially merged into AARP. The next year, membership age was lowered from 55 to 50. In 1985 AARP celebrated its 20-millionth member. Membership is now 30 million.

In 1986 AARP's VOTE program was established. AARP/VOTE, the association's voter education program, involves voters on issues of concern to older Americans and the community at large. AARP/VOTE also informs federal and state candidates and elected officials of AARP's positions on key policy issues. In 1990, AARP/Works, the nation's only job search program designed especially for older job seekers, was implemented by volunteers at sites around the country. In 1994, the CONNECTIONS Program for Independent Living was established. The Connections program is designed to help people maximize their independence in their homes and communities by enabling a large number of AARP members to volunteer for organizations in direct service programs and by providing information about independent living issues.

Today, some regard AARP pirmarily as an advocacy organization whose professional staff and more than 160,000 volunteers work with federal, state and local government bodies on behalf of older citizens. There are those who see AARP as a community service organization whose programs and education efforts help people prepare income tax returns, improve their driving skills, plan for retirement, or deal with the death of a spouse. Others may regard AARP as a sponsor of academic research on issues relating to aging via its Andrus Foundation, or as a provider of valuable information through its Programs Division and National Gerontology Resource Information Center. Still others see AARP as a provider of needed services and benefits to its members: group health, mobile home, automobile, homeowners and life insurance programs; travel discount; motoring plan; annuity program; investment program; pharmacy services; and now online computer service.

So it's fair to say, that AARP strives on many different fronts to improve the quality of life in this country.

But, whatever way one chooses to view this association, our commitment to our goals to our work, to our nation, to our communities and to one another are all part of our overriding commitment to service — a commitment that has been present from the start.

Though Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus died more than 20 years ago, the associaton is still inspired and invigorated by her commitment to the service of others. Indeed, living up to her high ideals, "To serve, not to be served," is AARP's continuing challenge.

M.J. Merritt logs many years with AARP

M.J. Merritt's association with AARP dates back several years to the time when her busband, the late D.V. Merritt, was serving as state director for the organization.

When illness forced him to give up his post, M.J. spoke in his place during an AARP convention. That was in 1990. Several years later, she is still speaking for AARP.

One of the first positions M.J. held was as citizens advocate. In that capacity, she accompanied state inspectors when they inspected nursing homes.

This involved quite a bit of traveling. She performed those duties about two years. While M.J. was content with that job, the community coordinator position loomed.

She was nominated for CC by former resident Ruth West who at one time served in the Silver Haired Legislature, as well as AARP.

Ruth traveled a great deal as AARP's assistant state director. M.J. accompanied her and always introduced her before she spoke. Ruth told M.J. she was going to recommend her for the community coordinator job and she did. M.J.'s second two-year term will end in December; she does not want to serve another term.

As CC, M.J. said she is involved with the day-to-day chapter activities.

She also serves as vice president of the local chapter, #2063, which meets at the Senior Citizens Center every third Tuesday.

Even though M.J. is very involved with AARP, she also has time for other activities.

She is the outreach leader of the adult department at Colonial Hill Baptist Church. Other church positions she holds are vice chairman of the long-range planning committee, president of the KIT club and church historian.

M.J. also serves as chairman of the nominating committee for Mitchell-Scurry Baptist Association.

Her community work includes serving as president of the Scurry County Library Board. She is also a member of the Snyder Beautification Committee and the genealogical society. She serves as vice president of the Art Guild Study Club. She volunteers for the annual cancer crusade and serves as CHBC coordinator for the Ministerial Alliance's Food Cupboard.

She also works with the "Outbound" program, making visits and teaching Bible lessons.

Programs for AARP listed

—Bobbie Burns currently serves as instructor for the 55-Alive program through which members who complete the course receive a 10 percent discount on automobile insurance. This has to be renewed every three years.

—The State Legislative Committee works closely with elected officials on proposed legislation that affects older Americans. Georgene Galloway, a member of the Retired Teachers Association, combines SLC work with the another service, AARP/vote program, which keeps AARP members and the public informed about economic, health and consumer issues affecting older Americans.

—Bernhard Bartels, the current volunteer tax counselor, provides tax help to older Americans as they prepare their tax returns.

—Francene Noah is a local member of the RTA, which promotes the economic, social and professional status of retired educators and participates in programs and services of AARP.

—AARP also has a Capital City Task Force which monitors the progression of bills in the Texas House and Senate. This is a subcommittee of the State Legislative Committee. Snyder does not have a local contact person for this service, but information is usually just a phone call away.

—AARP also offers the following services, but there are no local contact persons at this time. AARP does provide a myriad of information over the telephone. These include widowed persons service, work force programs, women's initiative and women's financial information.

—AARP also has a hotline for older Texans. The number is 1-800-622-2520.

The widowed persons service provides organizational and training resources to local groups interested in community wide programs to serve newly widowed persons.

—Work force programs address the issues surrounding an aging workforce, and seeks to expand work options for older persons.

Emphasis is placed on retirement planning, employment planning and changing workplace attitudes, policies and practices that result in unequal treatment of older workers.

—The women's initiative addresses the economic, health and social issues and concerns of mid-life and older women through publications, advocacy and programs.

—Women's financial information project offers money mangement information for mid-life and older women. This project is sponsored through different non-profit community organizations.

—Other AARP programs without a local contact person are capital city task force, connections for independent living and minority affairs.

—CCTF is a sub-committee of the State Legislative Committee. They help to monitor bills as they work their way through the Legislature.

—Connections for independent living enables AARP members to volunteer with with local organizations dedicated to keeping people independent as they age and provides information on independent living.

—Minority affairs seeks to improve the economic, social and physical well-being of the nation's minorities.

Community...

Council's purpose outlined

The community council is an AARP entity designed to help bring the programs and services of the association to the members and others in the community.

The council achieves this goal through:

—Regular communications among members of the council;

—Coordinating and publicizing AARP activities in the community; and —Working together to reach members and others.

Its goals are threefold:

—To provide information regarding AARP activities and services available to national members and the community in general;

—To allow participants to interact with AARP volunteers and members in an enjoyable experience that will encourage them to become more involved;

—To convey to the community and to AARP members the value of AARP involvement in worthwhile endeavors on behalf of all ages.

Outcomes include:

—To enhance the image of AARP as an effective advocacy, information and service orgnization at the local level and as a "dynamic presence" in every community;

—To create a vehicle to promote and publicize each of the AARP program areas;

—To increase community services activities and to develop new ones;

—To recruit new members and new volunteers.

City solution stinks!

Dear Editor:

I, along with every tax-paying Scurry County citizen, would like to believe that our tax money is being used to the best of its ability. Unfortunately, this week I found out differently.

The situation started with a skunk making a home under our house. I was horrified. The first thing that came to my mind was an article in the paper a while back that stated if we saw any skunks to notify animal control and have it picked up immediately. So at that very moment I called the police station. The woman told me that nobody could help me at 10 p.m. but she would leave a note for someone in the morning.

The next morning she called only to tell my husband that there's a new animal warden who does not know how to set a skunk trap so one simply would not be set. Thoughts raced through my mind about the diseases this animal could carry and spread. I feared for my 14-month-old child.

Isn't this kind of situation the city's responsibility? Isn't this what our tax money pays animal control for? Are we as Scurry County citizens being cheated out of our hard-earned tax dollars? I, for one, cannot help but think so.

We had hired a man to eliminate this problem for us; but after the problem was taken care of, he refused payment. Some people just have goodness in their hearts.

The skunk, after the city's failure to set a trap, had the opportunity to spray under our house. I believe if the city had done its job, this would've never occurred. We now have to pay an exterminator to destroy the germs left behind.

How sad that all of this could've been easily avoided. I feel like the city should pay for this. In fact, quite a few people I've consulted with share this opinion.

Furthermore, I would like the city to know that we've lost the very best ainmal warden we could've asked for. If anyone knew absolutely his job duties, it would be Mr. M.L. Chandler. I'm more than eager to tell why. The city was trying to cut back on money. So does this mean that we as Snyderites and taxpayers should have to shell out money for services rendered because of city neglect and continue to pay city workers for a job undone?

We are paying underqualified people to do jobs that they are evidently unfit for. This is wrong!

Let me state that if this rodent had come in contact in any way with my child after this problem had been reported and not taken care of, there would've been a lot of havoc reeked by the city of Snyder. A lot more than just a mere "letter to the editor."

Take care of this problem before someone gets dangerously hurt. Get qualified people. Put our tax money to good use. Do this now because this is only a lawsuit waiting to happen!

Thanks
Becky Romero Moncevais

Sincere thanks

Dear Editor,

There are many people in the town of Snyder that I would like to thank personally for their professional care and kindness toward my father, Edwin Jackson.

On October 12, 1996 at approximately 7:40 p.m., my father was involved in a motorcycle accident near the intersection of 37th and College Ave. As he lay there in the street suffering from two broken arms, two men who work with my father, Dalvin Alexander and Darrell Robertson, positioned their vehicle between my father and on-coming traffic to protect him. They also called 911 from their phone. Their involvement and comfort are greatly appreciated.

I would also like to thank the hospital staff at Cogdell Memorial for their gentle care and love shown to my father.

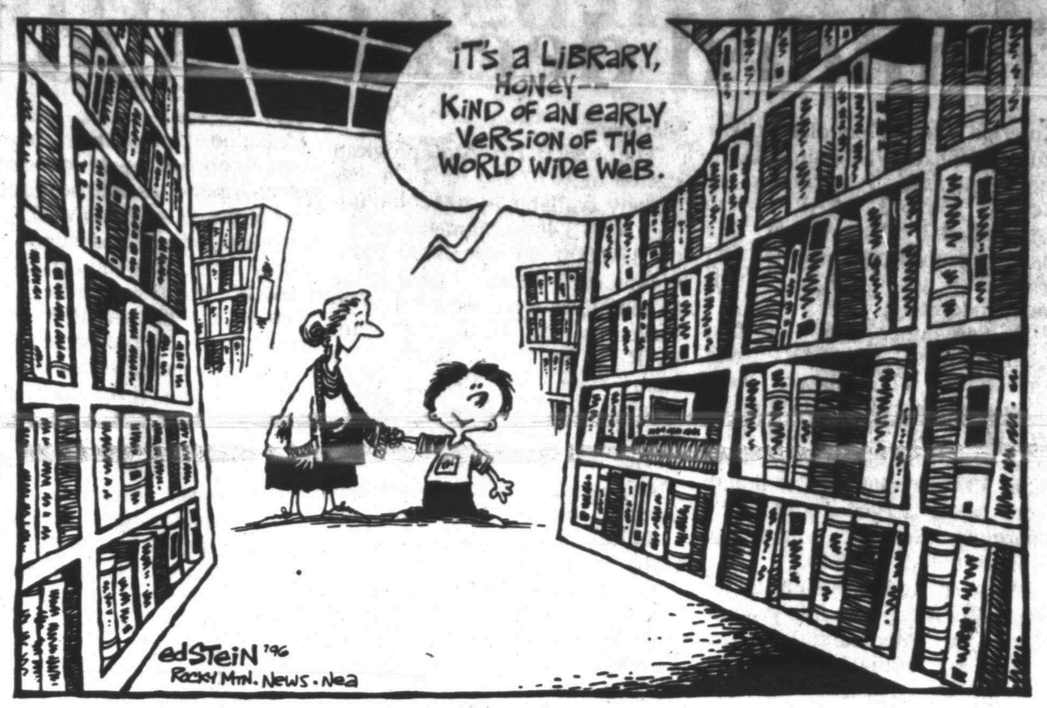

When I was notified of my father's misfortune, I immediately left for Methodist Hospital in Lubbock where I was informed Snyder EMS was transferring him.

This brings me to a third party that I wish to express my immense thanks. Due to a speed slightly slower than the speed of sound, I was able to reach Methodist Hospital prior to my father's arrival. I was in the emergency room when Snyder EMS called in over the radio and gave the best and most thorough report that I have ever heard. I am a 15-year employee of the Odessa Fire Department and my wife is a registered nurse. We were very impressed with the professionalism of the two attendants on the ambulance, Cy Posey and Sterling Williams. They were caring and gentle with the man I loved most, my father.

They allowed myself and my brother to assist in stabilizing my father's arms and transfer him into a bed in the emergency room. It is evident that Perry Westmoreland, owner and operator of Snyder EMS, has done an outstanding job of training and preparing his employees, not only in excellent skills but in caring for the patients.

I would again like to say thank you to all the people who had a part in my father's care.

Sincerely,
Kevin Jackson

Different perspectives

Mom, Dad conservations contrast

DEANIE FRANCIS MILLS

Here is the difference between fathers and sons and mothers and sons, based on a typical conversation between each of them:

Son: "Boy, me and Sneezy and Dopey and Grumpy had more fun last night!"

Mom: "Oh? What did you do?"

Son: "Well, you know that old abandoned house out on Old Mill Road that the kids all say is haunted?"

Mom: (Not wanting to show her ignorance and admit that she never heard of it), "Yeah. What about it?"

Son: "We decided to go check it out. We were gonna go in Sneezy's car, but you know he had that wreck last week."

Mom: "Right."

Son: "So we took my pickup. And me and Sneezy and Dopey and Grumpy all went out there last night, and we saw these strange lights, and it was sooo cool!"

(Mom smiles)

Son: "Sneezy was sure it was ghosts, but me and Dopey thought it might be some of those satanists you hear about, you know? So we pulled in real close, but we turned off the headlights so nobody would see us, and then Grumpy snuck up and peeked in the window, and came running back to the pickup, but before we could get there to see what it was, this guy comes tearing out the front door hollering and cussing, and Grumpy can't see this old bike that was in the grass, see, and he gets all tangled up in it while he's running, and the guy's, like, pulling up his pants and yelling at Grumpy and Grumpy smashes into the side of the pickup—"

Mom: "Was Grumpy hurt?"

Son: (laughing) "Nah, Nah, he wasn't hurt, but about the time he gets to the pickup, this lady comes running out of the house screaming, and we burn rubber getting out of there, but that guy, he jumps in his pickup and takes off after us all the way down the road to the highway!"

Mom: (laughing along and gently scolding) "You guys shouldn't have been sneaking around out there you know."

Son: "We didn't know the guy bought the place last month! And he was starting to move in and everything! We thought it was abandoned!"

Mom: "So what happened?"

Son: "Aw, he quit chasing us at the highway, but Sneezy was laughing so hard I thought he was going to fall out of the pickup!"

Mom: "You GUYS. You're lucky he didn't call the law out on you."

Son: "Now THAT would have been an adventure!"

This is the same conservation as it would take place between a father and a son:

Son: "Boy, me and Sneezy and Dopey and Grumpy had more fun last night!"

Dad: "What are you doing still hanging out with that Sneezy? I thought we discussed that."

Son: "Dad, Sneezy's my friend. Anyway, we didn't do anything wrong or anything."

Dad: (suspicious) "Well, what DID you do?"

Son: (enthusiastically) "Well, you know that abandoned house out on Old Mill Road that—"

Dad: "It's not abandoned. Harvey Crumplemeyer bought that house last month."

Son: (deflated) "We didn't know, okay? We thought it was abandoned."

Dad: (getting angry) "What in the world did you boys DO out there? You didn't go out there snooping around, did you?"

Son: "Dad, would you just let me finish? We thought it was abandoned. We wanted to go see if there were satanists there—"

Dad: "SATANISTS!! WHAT IN THE WORLD ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT? HAVE YOU LOST YOUR MIND?

Son: "That's not what I mean, Dad! Would you just calm down?"

Dad: "Then you'd better explain yourself, young man!"

Son: (in a monotone) "We just went down there because we heard it was haunted."

Dad: (warily) "You didn't take YOUR pickup, did you?"

Son: "Yes, we took my pickup. Sneezy's got wrecked last week."

Dad: "YOU TOOK YOUR PICKUP OUT ON OLD MILL ROAD?? Do you realize how many loose nails and rocks and things there are out there? You could have flattened all four of your tires."

Son: "We didn't have a flat—"

Dad: "How many times have I told you to take better care of that pickup? Do you think money grows on trees? Do you know how much it would cost to replace the tires on that rig? Do you?"

Son: "ALL RIGHT! FINE! I WON'T EVER DRIVE MY PICKUP AGAIN AS LONG AS I LIVE! WOULD THAT MAKE YOU HAPPY?"

Dad: "Don't you take that tone of voice with ME young man! Who do you think would have to pay for those tires, huh? And that Sneezy. His car did not 'get wrecked' you know — HE wrecked it! He's the most irresponsible ... I knew you shouldn't have been hanging around with that kid — now here you are into satanism, of all things. I want it stopped, do you hear me?"

Son: (Surly, stoney sulky. Says nothing.)

Mom: (Just entering the room, stares at them in amazement.) "What's going on here?"

Dad: (Gesturing angrily at angry son.) "We've just been having a lit-tle discussion about the kinds of friends our son keeps and the kinds of things they do when we're not around. Son — tell your mother."

Mom: "Oh, you mean about checking out the haunted house out on Old Mill Road? That was funny, wasn't it?"

Miss those waves

by Bill McClellan

It used to be, driving in Texas, almost everyone you passed on the highway would wave. It was a tradition — sort of a "how 'ya doin' buddy? have a good day" greeting. Sad to say, those days are gone.

Still, until a year or so ago you could still count on exchanging a wave along rural roads, especially if one of you was driving a pickup.

The decline in highway goodwill can largely be attributed, I think, to changes in society. As a people, we aren't as trusting as we used to be, nor as friendly. That attitude has taken awhile to creep from the cities to the suburbs and into rural Texas, but creep it has.

One group that it never seemed to effect, though, was country people — farmers and ranchers. While the rest of us zipped around as fast as we could, worrying that our vehicles might break down and leave us to the mercy of the lunatics whom we're being told roam the highways, country folk still held true to the "howdy, neighbor" philosophy. Until recently, you could still always count on a wave from a farmer.

I'm here to tell you that those days are gone, too, but for a different reason.

It's not the changes in how we perceive each other that have farmers and ranchers acting less friendly these days. It's something else.

The cellular phone has come to the farm.

I like to get out and drive, you know? Just take a slow roll along country roads every now and then. Make it a long, winding route to Lake J.B. Thomas, Roby, Gail or to Uncle Elber's place.

More and more, I find myself sticking up my hand to wave at some passing motorist, only to see that he's oblivious to me. He's yabbering on the phone.

How did we ever get a crop to market before?

My wife and I have a cellular phone. We take it on trips out of town, things like that. It's not used often.

It's one of those "bag" phones. It's actually no larger than a regular phone, but it's attached to a big bag. Being a somewhat regular-sized person except for having lots of room up front, I can relate to that.

It's bulky, and while great for emergencies, it's not something you'd want to carry in the mall. Sometime back, my wife wanted to get another cellular phone, one that was smaller.

She enjoys gadgets such as cordless phones, calculators, answering machines, watches, clocks, personal electronic address books and the like.

This time, I managed to convince her that the small cellular phones were useful only in limited areas, and wouldn't work for long distances. Well, it sounded like a logical argument, anyway.

Since then, I've discovered that my sister has no problem talking to our mother on her small phone, even though Mom lives more than 200 miles away.

I haven't told my wife that yet, but if she doesn't see this, someone will probably tell her.

Me? No. I'm not into gadgets much.

There was that time about eight years ago that I bought a remote-controlled car, but I was just living a part of my youth that had been missing. It was important to my psychological development.

And there was that telescope that I bought last year and didn't use until my wife insisted we take it when we went on vacation last month. I admit, that after trying it out, I was enthralled. That girl on the other side of the lake really should have had more clothes on.

But, the car and the telescope were exceptions. As a rule, I'm not into gadgets. I'll probably resist getting a small, compact cellular phone, just as I did when she wanted the bag phone. Cellular phones require some thought, and my mind is stuck back somewhere in the days where clocks were wound, televisions had knobs on them and telephones had those dials.

I also miss the "shikaaaaaaaaaa" sound those old phones made when you dialed a number. That was a much friendlier sound than a bunch of beeping.

And we need more friendly things happening to us.

I'm not trying to blame cellular phones for ruining society, but I think they are somewhat responsible for taking away a time-honored tradition among Texas males — that quick, small wave that one person would send to another as they passed by.... that "how 'ya doin' buddy? have a good day" thing.

I'm gonna' miss those waves.

Newly developed bomb gives B-2 more accuracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newly developed conventional bomb will allow B-2 stealth bombers to carry out long-range, all-weather strikes with unprecedented accuracy, the Air Force says.

The weapon, code-named GATS/GAM, consists of a standard 2,000-pound bomb equipped with a global positioning system receiver strapped to its tail surfaces. This is electronically linked with the B-2's sophisticated radar, which pinpoints ground targets and feeds the data to the bomb, Brig. Gen. Thomas B. Goslin said Thursday.

"This combines intercontinental range — the B-2 can be to any point on the globe in less than 24 hours with air refueling — and a point target destroyer," Goslin said. "It's the only capability like it in the world."

Each B-2 can carry up to 16 of the new "fire and forget" bombs, which guide themselves onto their targets after launch, said Goslin, who commands the 509th Bomb Wing at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo., the only unit to operate the radar-evading strategic bomber.

The new guidance system allows the weapon to accurately hit targets such as bridges, command bunkers and missiles in zero visibility, the Air Force says. In contrast, infrared, electro-optical or laser-guided bombs of the type used in the 1991 Gulf War are rendered ineffective by cloud, rain, snow or smoke, which their sensors and laser beams cannot penetrate, but to which radars are impervious.

Fake science teacher charged

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who submitted false credentials to teach in Fort Bend County has been accused of sexually abusing three of his middle school students at his apartment, authorities said Friday.

Angelo Patterson, wanted in Louisiana for a parole violation, has been charged with three counts of indecency with a child by contact.

The victims were participants in a club that Patterson had invited his male students to join, said police Sgt. Rudy Navarro.

Patterson, 32, remained jailed without bond Friday. He faces up to 30 years in prison if convicted.

Officials for the Fort Bend Independent School District hired Patterson in August to teach eighth-grade science at Christa McAuliffe Middle School. They say he gave them a phony Louisiana teaching certificate and lied when he said he previously taught in the Houston school district.

"What you have here is an individual who had deceived many people," said Superintendent Don Hooper, who added the district is reviewing its hiring procedures.

New link could close legal loophole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laboratory research that scientifically firms the link between cigarettes and lung cancer could give plaintiffs a powerful new weapon in lawsuits against tobacco companies.

The new work "helps close a loophole" that has enabled tobacco lawyers to deny that researchers have proven the smoking-cancer connection, says John Banzhaf, director of Action on Smoking and Health, an anti-tobacco group.

He said the study published Friday in the journal Science means "we now have the evidence we need."

In the study, researchers report they have found that a tobacco carcinogen called BPDE links up with three molecular sites on the P53 gene — a gene that is critical in the development of cancer.

"In essence, our study provides a direct link between a defined cigarette-smoke carcinogen and human cancer mutations," Moonshon Tang, a scientist at the M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston and a lead author of the study, said in a statement. Annie Pao, also of Anderson, and Mikhail F. Denissenko and Gerd P. Pfeifer of the Bechman Research Institute of the City of Hope, Duarte, Calif., are the other authors.

A number of earlier studies have linked BPDE from cigarette smoke to lung cancer. Research also has shown that in most lung cancers, the P53 gene is damaged or altered at points in the gene structure that Tang called "hot spots."

In the new study, researchers show that BPDE binds, or joins, the P53 gene at exactly those same "hot spots."

Though the BPDE has long been linked to lung cancer, Tang said, "until now we did not know it binds with the spots on the P53 gene that are associated with lung cancer."

Despite "overwhelming evidence" from earlier studies, said Banzhaf, tobacco lawyers have been able to argue that science has not shown the specific biological mechanism by which cigarette smoke causes lung cancer. He said the new study now provides that evidence.

"If we had nothing but this study, it wouldn't prove it," said Banzhaf. But added to hundreds of other studies linking smoking and lung cancer, he said, the new study "provides the last link, the smoking gun, if you will, on the issue that smoking causes lung cancer."

He said "it makes it easier now for us to demonstrate in court" the link between smoking and lung cancer.

Banzhaf said the study will add momentum to a drive to ban smoking in all public places and to do away with "smoking sections" in restaurants and bars because the research suggests that even a small amount of tobacco smoke can cause genetic damage that may lead to cancer.

Six tobacco companies are now being sued by 16 states and number of cities. The state and local governments are seeking to recover the medical costs of treating patients made sick by cigarette smoking, said Banzhaf.

"This study is going to help us win those suits," he said.

The study also drew applause from the scientific community.

Dr. Bert Vogelstein, a Johns Hopkins University researcher who first linked the P53 gene with cancer, said the new evidence on smoking and cancer "is really quite compelling scientifically."

"This is the first specific scientific evidence linking smoking with lung cancer at a molecular level," said Vogelstein. "This is a very important piece of evidence because it complements the overwhelming evidence from epidemiology and other studies that cigarette smoking can cause lung cancer."

Tom Lauria, a spokesman for the Tobacco Institute, a trade group of the cigarette industry, declined comment on the new study, saying his organization has not yet had a chance to examine the work in detail.

P53, the gene identified in 1990 as a key guardian against cancer, works by monitoring the accuracy of DNA copying during cell division.

NAMI offers help with brain disorders

Editor's Note: The following article was provided by the Scurry County Mental Health Clinic, in conjunction with Mental Health Awareness Month.)

NAMI, the family organization for people with brain disorders, operates a nationwide hotline staffed by a corp of volunteers, many of whom themselves suffer from some form of severe brain disorder.

The NAMI HELPLINE (1-800-950-6261) has found welcome publicity through the broadcast of Diana Ross's television movie on schizophrenia, "Out of Darkness;" Larry King's talk show, and articles in many popular periodicals such as "US News and World Report."

Because of such publicity, tens of thousands of people throughout America find needed help and support.

Since its founding in 1990, the NAMI HELPLINE has responded to almost 175,000 calls. HELPLINE staff refer callers to local-affiliate support groups and provide services and science-based information about brain disorders.

HELPLINE information from NAMI can also be accessed electronically through America Online (keywood "NAMI") and the Internet.

—NAMI affiliates throughout the nation hold meetings where members can share concerns, learn more about brain disorders and receive practical advice about health insurance, medical treatment, housing, employment and community resources.

These groups provide emotional support to individuals struggling with severe brain disorders and their families. They provide the basis for a powerful grassroots component to NAMI's five-year campaign to end discrimination and stigma through political action and by improving public knowledge and understanding of brain disorders.

NAMI also advocates for services and support for people wirh brain disorders including: Medicaid, managed care, community support and vocational rehabilitation.

At the federal level, NAMI works to improve the lives of people with severe, biologically based brain disorders by seeking increased research funds for institutions such as the National Institute of Mental Health.

Since its formation, NAMI has also sought to increase knowledge and awareness of brain disorders. NAMI believes that by increasing understanding of brain disorders, it may be possible to end the fear, discrimination and isolation that shape the world of the people who have these dreaded disorders.

Senior Center News

It's ten days to Halloween and senior citizens are reminded to get their costumes ready for the Halloween party which will begin at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

The penny collection to provide treats for homebound seniors is growing and the treat bags are to be delivered on Halloween. Volunteers interested in helping with this delivery are invited to contact Pamela Fenton, activities director.

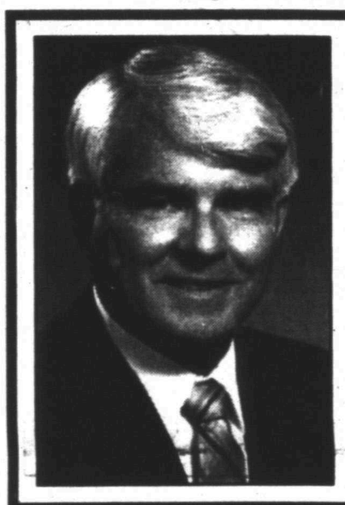

Bridge begins at 9:30 a.m. Monday and nine ball tournament is also scheduled. A 42 Fun Day is scheduled at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Benny Benitez will play for country/western dancing at 7 p.m. Tuesday and table games will also begin at that time.

The line dancing class meets at 1:15 p.m. on Wednesday. A bridge tournament is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Friday and the Sing Along begins at 11:15 a.m. Pool and dominoes are popular each day.

The Sunshine Choir will go to Snyder Oaks Care Center for a program at 10 a.m. Friday. The choir and the Kitchen Band perform at Snyder Oaks and Snyder Healthcare Center regularly and senior citizens who would like to join either group are invited to begin attending rehearsals.

The center is cooperating in a program called "Warm Up America." Senior citizens who knit or crochet are invited to make squares of a designated size to be set together by volunteers or to make whole afghans.

These are to be distributed to needy persons. Contact Mrs. Fenton for more information.

Hospital gives its side in full page ad

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A hospital took out a full-page newspaper advertisement Friday to defend itself against an accusation it let a dying Houston woman lay in the hospital parking lot for 10 minutes before going to her aid.

Columbia West Florida Regional Medical Center's president wrote in the ad published in the Pensacola News Journal that staffers were complying with hospital policy against leaving the building in the evening hours without security protection.

"West Florida and other local hospitals have had self-inflicted deaths, as well as violent or illegal acts committed in parking lots," Steve Brandt wrote. "Employees responding to pleas for help outside the facilities have been abducted, raped and murdered."

The hospital delayed giving assistance to Brenda Rivers of Houston, who had suffered a stroke, on Oct. 9, according to a report by the Escambia County Sheriff's Department.

Mrs. Rivers, 48, subsequently died. In the ad, Brandt wrote that she was diagnosed with a massive and non-survivable brain hemorrhage. She had been traveling with her husband, James Rivers, a trucker, when she was stricken. He parked his rig 30 feet from the front door, which was locked, and went to the emergency room but was refused help in bringing his wife inside.

The trucker and deputies who responded to the scene were told they would have to call the county ambulance service to bring the patient in.

"I just didn't think it was right for a hospital to refuse treatment like that," said Deputy Merrill Cutts.

Brandt defended the policy and the hospital's response. He wrote that the front door was locked for security and that it was a half-mile by road to the emergency room door.

"Once the legitimacy and security of the situation was determined an Emergency Department nurse and technician responded to the scene," he wrote.

However, an ambulance crew also arrived by that time and took the woman to the emergency room, according to the Sheriff's Department report.

Three deputies said they made separate pleas for emergency room staffers to help the woman but each was told to call for an ambulance.

Cutts, the third deputy on the scene, said he went into the emergency room to help the security guard get stretcher and asked workers again to aid the woman and at that point the two employees finally ventured out of the hospital.

Rivers, who is contemplating a lawsuit, said his rig was too big to maneuver through the parking lot to the emergency room and his wife was too heavy for him to carry himself. He said hospital workers even refused to lend him a wheelchair.

"They wouldn't even let me in the door," Rivers said. "They just cast us aside."

ANSWERS

1. C. Because it is legal for adults and widely accepted in our culture, alcohol is the drug most often used in the United States.

2. Alcohol, tobacco and marijuana. These are the "gateway" drugs, drugs that children are first exposed to and whose use often precedes use of other drugs.

3. Alcohol. More than 10,000 teenagers died in alcohol-related traffic accidents in 1986; 40,000 more were injured.

4. E. All four contain approximately 1.5 ounces of alcohol.

5. D. Small quantities of crack can be bought for as little as $5. In addition, crack is thought to be one of the most addictive drugs.

6. E. Virtually anything that emits fumes or comes in aerosol form can be inhaled to obtain a high.

7. B. Early use of alcohol and other drugs — often by age 15 or less is strongly associated with drug-related problem such as addiction.

8. A. Combining cocaine and heroin is increasingly popular as a way of trying to lessen or control bad side effects.

9. F. Steroid users subject themselves to more than 70 side effects. The liver and cardiovascular and reproductive systems are most seriously affected by steroid use.

10. D. Medical researchers have not established any safe limits for alcohol intake during pregnancy.

Visits sites

SEVERODVINSK, Russia (AP) — Defense Secretary William Perry today visited this once-top secret Little Star submarine shipyard to observe Cold War ballistic missile submarines being cut up, smashed and turned into scrap metal.

Perry praised the Russians' "skill and hard work," which has combined with U.S. machinery to destroy submarines under the Start I arms treaty.

"You can be very proud of that. We faced the danger of a nuclear holocaust that hung over our heads like a dark cloud. Now with the end of the Cold War, that cloud is drifting away," Perry said.

Perry, who kept to his schedule despite the turmoil in Moscow over the firing of Alexander Lebed, was due back in Washington late Friday. The defense secretary's trip to Russia coincided with President Boris Yeltsin's ouster of the former general, who Yeltsin accused of excessive ambition and outspokenness.

Burglar arrested

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Police found a directory of the rich and famous in America when they arrested a man suspected of stealing millions of dollars in silver from wealthy residents.

Blane David Nordahl is a suspect in 50 burglaries along the East Coast, including break-ins at the homes of Ivana Trump in Greenwich, Bruce Springsteen in Rumson, N.J., and sportscaster Curt Gowdy in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

He was arrested Wednesday in Sparta, Wis., on a federal fugitive warrant and faces extradition to Connecticut, where he is wanted for a half-dozen burglaries that netted an estimated $400,000, the Greenwich Time reported Thursday.

Ira School sets Fall Festival

Ira School's annual Fall Festival will have something for everyone. All grades, except the fourth, are planning booths.

Fall Festival activities slated for October 26

The Parent/Teacher Partnership has scheduled the annual Fall Festival for Saturday, Oct. 26, from 6-9 p.m. at Scurry County Coliseum.

A costume parade will begin at 7:30 p.m. Concession stands will also be available.

Tickets will be sold at the schools at a discounted rate — five tickets for $1. Additional tickets can be purchased at the coliseum — four tickets for $1. Tickets can be used to purchase food and drinks for the concession stands.

The annual event is being hosted by all of the elementary schools: Central, East, Northeast, Stanfield and West. The festival is the largest fund-raiser for the year. All proceeds will be split equally among the schools.

Event organizers say the Fall Festival is a safe environment for children of all ages to have a good time.

The following booths are planned: spook house, putt putt, ghost throw, go fishing, washer thrower, tattoo booth, pin tail on tiger, cake walk, pirate treasure, feed the elephant, duck pond, Nintendo, needle in hay stack, pumpkin throw, cookie decorating, soak the principal, WTC roping, Coke ring toss, picture booth, basketball throw, Plinko, Nurf Bow and Arrow, cupcake spin, lollypop tree, balloon dart throw, football throw, wall of doors and milk bottle knockdown.
