Judge's Answer to Humorous Petition Gives Jab for Jab

A verbose plea for continuance of a case lodged in justice court last week and a request, at the same time, for a legal determination of the word "moratorium" as it might be expected to apply to the defendant, has been answered in kind by a ruling and order on defendant's motion. A copy was prepared for Frank Stubbeman, defendant's attorney, by Peace Justice B. C. Girdley.

Stubbeman, in his motion for continuance of the case, prepared a humorous plea with the idea of checking his client; the judge comes back, right across for left hook, after the following style:

The boys' and the girls' choral clubs won first, and the boys' and girls' quartets won second, according to a wire from Supt. W. W. Lackey. At 5 o'clock, soon after the wire was dispatched, the soloists had not completed.

Prize awards were to be given winners of events, winners in the boys' and the girls' choral groups getting loving cups; members of the winning boy and girl quartets, soloists; and best boy and girl soloists, scholarships in the Simmons university school of music.

OUR NEWEST DIRIGIBLE

The airship Macon has gone aloft at last, and everyone who watched her as she slid effortlessly along the sky must have felt a sharp pang of regret at the thought that these exciting and magnificent dirigibles are not, after all, quite as practical as we had supposed.

What the Macon's future is going to be only time can tell. She was hardly launched under auspicious circumstances. The Akron was destroyed in a gale just as the Macon was made ready; then the Macon herself had to wait in her hangar for more than a week until mild weather came; and the net result seemed to be just so much added proof that the big dirigible must be a fair-weather bird.

But she is a beautiful sight to watch, for all that—beautiful and thrilling. A lot of people will continue to hope, for more reasons than one, that this ship will be able to reassert the reliability of the giant airship.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Gen. Augusto Sandino, reconciled Nicaraguan insurgent, uses his leftover powder to blow the boulders and stumps from land on which he will locate a farm colony of 1000 of his followers, indicating that after varied and painful experimentation the General has learned how to use his ammunition in the most profitable and satisfactory way.

The sunken German warships in Scapa Flow will not be raised, the present market prices on junk not justifying the expense, and of course it is possible that the junk merchants, with one eye on the Disarmament Conference, may be waiting to see whether they are to harvest a big crop from which they won't have to scrape off the rust.

Many will approve the action of the juvenile judge in paroling the youth who wrote a threatening letter to Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh when they learn, as examination disclosed, that in turning blackmailer he was not under the mesmerism of money, but of the wrong kind of adventure stories and the wrong kind of moving pictures.

The Paris courts recently decided against a playwright who pleaded elusiveness of the Muses for failure to deliver a drama according to contract. Probably the court held that since genius is reputed to be only one-tenth inspiration, "all work" may not have preceded "no play."

The college should go in for a more rounded training, declares Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth, who finds the country's current need is not only for graduates who can do a lot for a few, but for those who might do a little for a lot of people.

The pleas of the brewers' association that too much attention should not be drawn to beer's reappearance by noisy celebrating suggest that those who know best do not regard this as the return of a penitent prodigal.

WRITER TELLS OF BRUTALITIES HE SAW IN PRISON FOR JEWS AT BERLIN

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, April 19.—Following his release from a German prison in Spandau, Egon Erwin Kisch, internationally known Czech writer, who was a victim of the Nazi roundup of intellectuals in Germany, has returned to his home here.

Kisch denies absolutely the statement of Herr Herman Goering, the Prussian police chief, and Nazi leader, to the assembled foreign press correspondents in Berlin that the outrages against Jews, Socialists, and other opponents of the Hitler movement, were sporadic outbursts of isolated bodies of young Nazi enthusiasts, in which, according to Goering, the responsible members of the government had no part. Not being a German and hence having no fear of being barred from Germany, Kisch was one of few refugees who were willing to discuss their experiences.

"When I was arrested in Berlin," says Kisch, "I was taken to police headquarters and held in a ing quietly in a corner.

"As Lewetow saw him standing with his head down, he walked up to him and shouted:

"Til teach you to stand at attention before me!"

Like "Prussianism"

"Two police officers then seized Herr Russbill, handcuffed him and hurried him from the room. He was placed in a dark room by himself and kept there in handcuffs for the remainder of the day, until he was taken to prison.

"In Spandau I was not badly treated, but I heard some terrible stories from other prisoners about the torture they had endured before being brought to the Berlin police headquarters. Most of them were taken from their beds at night and dragged to the Nazi barracks, where they were repeatedly assaulted, according to their stories, and their wounds seemed to prove these stories true."

"Where," asks Kisch, "is Lili Eisner, the daughter of Kurt Eisner, the veteran of the revolution? She was arrested, and no one seems to have seen her since. Thaelmann, the Communist leader, and many of the others have been discovered unhurt in various prisons, but what have they done with Lili Eisner?"

Prominent Men Held

Kisch was released after a fortnight in prison, whether by representations of the Czechoslovakian government or powerful friends in Berlin, he has not been able to learn. He says among those arrested at the same time were some of the best known lawyers in Berlin, most of them Jews. Included among these were Dr. Apfel, Dr. Barwasch and Dr. Litten, three of the leading members of the German bar. All have been subsequently released, according to reports from Berlin.

Another is Heinz Pol, a reporter of the Vossischer Zeitung, one of the principal newspapers of Germany. According to Pol, the police came for him to his apartment on the third floor of a Berlin apartment house.

Indian Torture

As he left the door of his apartment with the police, Pol says he saw a double line of men on the stairs. They were in Nazi uniform and each man carried a short club, or rubber truncheon. Pol says this double line of Nazis extended to the street floor on the ground. He was compelled, according to his story, to run the gauntlet between these armed men, who jabbed and punched at him on every step, until he fell bleeding and exhausted at the street door.

There, he says, a conveyance waited to take him to prison, where he lay for nine days with injuries to his head, back and arms. He was not tried and no charge was preferred against him.

Kisch and the few others who have been willing to talk say that in most cases prisoners were not brought out for any kind of trial, but held in prison without being charged with any definite offenses.

Goose Builds Own Incubator for Eggs

GARDNERVILLE, Nev. (UP)—It is a wise goose that can make Mother Nature provide an incubator to hatch her eggs.

A Canadian goose, wintering in the marshes near Wallow Hot Springs, built her nest on a grass-tufted knoll, surrounded by hot water. The nest was lined with a layer of feathers to keep out excessive moisture. The goose covered her eggs with the same material, thus avoiding the necessity of sitting on the eggs to keep them warm.

While nature is functioning as an incubator, the goose has plenty of time to cavort in nearby marshes.

Men become so obsessed with the desire to win, in the exciting dice games held during the Dashehra Festival in Nepal, that they frequently gamble away all their money and property. Their wives and children are often included in the stakes.

Radio Reports to and From Rummies Cause Captures

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The Elsie K was hovering, a smudgy gray pencil-stroke on the immense blue circle of waters west of Bermuda. She had 2000-odd cases of Scotch aboard.

Coast guard headquarters in Washington knew all about her. Knew what rum syndicate, operating out of Newark, owned her. And knew that a week earlier she had been trying to make contact with an American coastwise collier to unload her cargo. (That's a new dodge of the rum-runners, they say here, and is increasingly fashionable.)

Coast guard headquarters knew that the Elsie K had failed—and why. The reason being that radio instructions to the rummy had been intercepted, and the cutter Acushnet dispatched to picket her and thus prevent the transfer of contraband.

Coast guard headquarters knew that the same plan was to be tried again at a different rendezvous.

A hundred sheets of code and cipher messages stack up fresh each day at coast guard intelligence here. In it, the "fist" of the Elsie K's radio operator was in frequent evidence.

Tragedy Gives Guard a Tip

Finally came the order to contact the collier—name ungiven—at a position 6 miles east of—undecipherable—lightship at 6:30 p. m.

The unnamed lightship was probably one of those off Delaware bay coast guard intelligence figured. It was easy to shoot out a seaplane to take a look-see.

But it was tough when the seaplane reported three colliers in the suspected area. They were the Moka Headland, the Percy Congreve, and another, identity undiscovered.

The familiar "fist" ripped the ether that night.

COLLIER HAS 2010 CASES.

Later, a new message, eventually the tip-off:

MAN FELL OVERBOARD FROM T.S. AND DROWNED. MAN BELONGED TO COLLIER. WE STOPPED AND SEARCHED FOR HIM. FOUND AND PICKED UP HIS LIFE BUOY THAT COLLIER THREW OVER. DIDN'T FIND MAN.

But did the man "fall" overboard? The coast guard would like to know. He was lost from "us"—the Elsie K—not from the collier where he "drowned." Not to that, the Elsie K obligingly retrieved the life-buoy of the collier if not the man, who thus sank without a trace.

The coast guard had a valuable clue, of course. The crew of the collier carrying the liquor should be one man short.

Meanwhile the third collier seen by the seaplane was exonerated. Too far away. That left the Moka Headland and the Percy Congreve, both then pushing their blunt bows up the latitudes toward New York harbor.

New Tangles; Solution

Much astonishment—if not pleasure—resigned aboard these two vessels at the size of the official reception committee waiting for them at the Narrows.

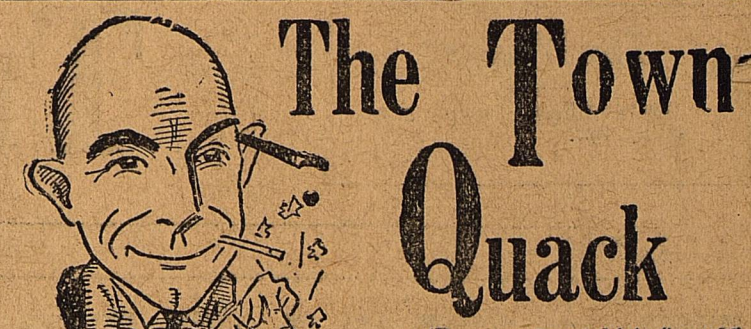

Set-back for the coast guard.

The crews of both ships were found, at first inspection, to be complete. That is, a count of heads carried by the numbers listed in their papers.

Next set-back: The crews of both colliers were presently found to be one man short each.

The skipper of the Moka Headland explained his case by saying that a sailor had failed to report on board at Newport News, but that a stowaway had turned up at sea.

The stowaway turned out to be a real one—and that made it bad for the Moka Headland, with one hand

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

When asked who was Newton, Wayne Dolan told his history teacher Newton was the guy who discovered that the bigger they are the harder they fall.

They're having a hot time down at the legislature. If it isn't an argument, it's a fight, and if it isn't two men fighting, it's a gang. They say, unofficially, that plenty of men down there are packing the difference. They're putting old Texas back as a state where men are men, eh?

Jim Harrison says there's only one thing he's ashamed of, and that's using so many matches to keep his pipe going.

Children learn by asking questions while adults learn by listening and keeping their mouths shut.

I heard a man make this remark the other day:

"All of us are being urged to get behind the president. I'd like to do it if I could find him. I'm so far behind him now that I not only can't tell where he is going but I don't even know which way he went."

What won't the hitch-hikers do next?

A man was driving to Big Spring the other day and he saw what he thought was an elderly lady walking along the road. She appeared to be feeble and weak, so he hailed him. And the man stopped the car and was amazed to find that it was a man dressed in women's clothes. He explained he did this to obtain rides. "Yes, he play be request," replied the director politely.

"Well, then, play dominoes for a while so I can eat," Scarborough short.

However, the Congress had the liquor, as a search eventually proved. The sailor lost overboard from her had been replaced by a supercargo off the Elsie K.

But the interesting thing about the whole case was the reaction of the Newark liquor ring to the capture. This also was gleaned by the coast guard through intercepted radio messages to the Elsie K.

The liquor ring blamed the drowned seaman for the discovery, and radioed: BIG ROW OVER THAT DROWNED MAN. DID YOU HEAR COLLIER RADIO THAT NEWS?

Only that way, the land station figured, could the force of officials which met the Congress at New York be accounted for.

Perhaps this disclosure of the radio interceptions will interest them. The practice of picking up radio is the coast guard's supreme tipster and the vastly important business of unraveling the numerous and complicated codes is in charge of a quiet, charming woman of 33, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Friedman, whose offices are in the intelligence division in Washington. She is one of the few Americans who understand the art of cryptography, having been a pioneer in this field in war time.

She entered the government service at the age of 17, already an expert in the most fascinating of all

Ranch Children Coin Expressions Thick and Fast

DALLAS, (UP)—Texas boys and girls who leave ranch homes and go to college are fast bringing about changes in the language of the great range country.

Slang expressions long common among cattlemen of the plains are being brought back by the returning collegians.

To preserve a portion of the vanishing idiom of the Texas Panhandle, Prof. Mary Dale Buckner at Texas Technological college has compiled a glossary of terms used in camp and corral, at the table and in cowboy routine.

The glossary, confined in the current issue of American Speech, linguistic quarterly published by the Columbia University Press, reveals many expressions not understood by city-bred students.

For example, she points out that a biscuit shooter is a cook. A boggy, top pie is a pie with one crust. Cal's slobbers means meringue on pies.

Prof. Buckner mourns the passing of the distinctive ranch language as a "matter of deep regret which should be of concern to sociologists, historians, and philologists, for a close study of the early idiom of the country will discover whole chapters of colorful ranch life."

Here are a few more of the terms in Prof. Buckner's slang collection as they appear in the glossary:

To California is to throw an animal by tripping it.

A cold-jaw is a horse that does not respond to bridle signals.

An Arbutules is a tenderfoot and a brashy cow is a fence breaker.

Chuck-away is a dinner call, based on the threat, "If you don't come and get it, I'll throw it out."

Cigarettes are "brain-tablets" and revolvers are "dokeys."

To high-tail is to make one's departure swiftly.

Tadpoles are vegetarians, but become carnivorous when grown.

Another exchange between shore and rum-ship, cheerier REPORT TO SECOND MATE BABY GIRL BORN BOTH DOING WELL.

Answer from ship: MUST BE SOME MISTAKE. SECOND MATE HAS NO WIFE.

Humor and Pathos

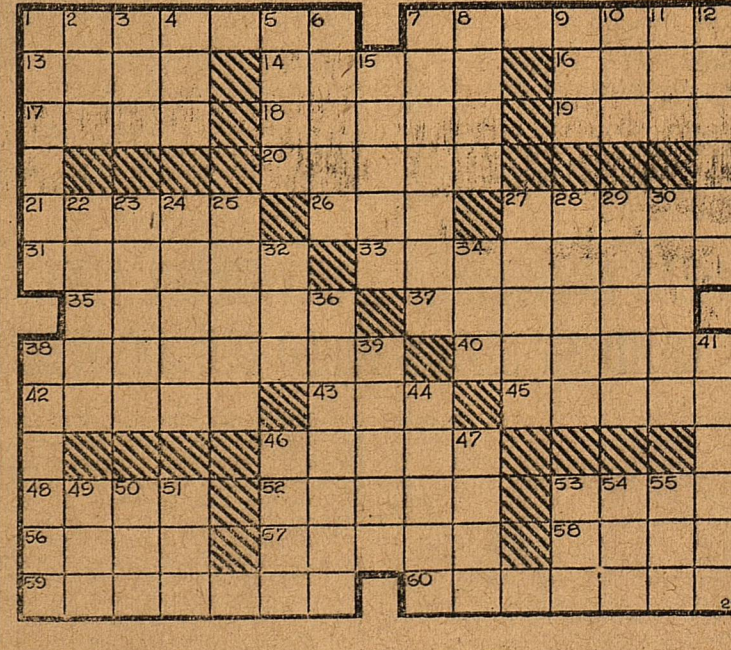

Here, a plaintive picture of life in rale time in the North Atlantic: GEE ITS COLD HERE. WE CUT BOOM UP TODAY FOR KINDLING TO TRY TO KEEP WARM. EVERYBODY FED UP AND FIGHTING MAD. WELL I WILL CALL YOU AT MIDNIGHT.

Perhaps the most entertaining of all recent messages—this between Pacific coast headquarters for a liquor syndicate and a big mother ship for rum runners. From headquarters: BAD REPORT RECEIVED OF CONDUCT OF OFFICERS AND CREW IN PORT. CONFIRM REPORT AND ALSO GIVE REPORT OF CONDUCT NOW.

Answer from the rum ship's captain: YOUR INFORMATION APPEARS EXAGGERATED. HAD SOME CASES DRUNKENNESS AS USUAL IN FOREIGN PORTS. CONDUCT AT SEA EXCELLENT. HELD DIVINE SERVICES LAST SUNDAY.

Smart Fashion Show and Seated Tea Given Friday Afternoon by Home Economics Dept.

The spotlight of high school society was centered on the seated tea and fashion show Friday afternoon in the clothing department, at which time all girls of the home economics department assisted either in the preparation of the refreshment course or modeled in the style show.

Hostesses of the afternoon were Misses Aline McKenzie and Kathleen Mullino, home economics teachers. As guests, who included mothers of the students participating, friends and wives of board members, entered they registered in a guest book presided over by Misses Bessie Dale and Maggie Allen.

Chairs were placed around the sides of the room, leaving a space in the center, where models stood to display each costume. Guests were seated in congenial groups and were served a refreshment plate holding a ham and olive open sandwich, date nut sandwich, candied orange strips, raisins, ice box cookies, sand tarts and iced tea. The table was laid in Italian style.

The room was decorated with roses and greenery, forming a background for the models. Miss McKenzie served as official announcer of the afternoon and called the name of each model, from what class she entered and the style dress she was to wear as the mannequin entered.

Each girl modeled a dress she planned and made during class hours. Simple wash dresses made by students in the first term class were shown first. The next group of mannequins modeled tailored dresses, made in the second year class. The last group to be modeled was the dresses for special occasions made by the third year students.

At one side of the room a display case was placed. In this, play garments for children were arranged and guests were invited to see these.

The girls quartet composed of Misses Melba Lee, Alma Lee Hankins, Charline Parrott and Juanita Cox, sang, and Miss Elizabeth Payne played a piano number.

Guests were Misses Earl Ticknor, Beatrice Holzgraf, O. H. Lamar, J. C. Miles, C. E. Gann, J. D. Hall, G. T. Romans, Spence Jowell, L. W. Hines, W. R. Tillman, Emily Kannon, A. W. 4th District Has Not Endorsed Candidate For President

The Fourth District, Texas Federation of Women's clubs, had not endorsed a candidate for state president at its meeting at Galveston Thursday evening but it was expected that would be done at the morning session Friday, although no word to that effect has been received here. Both candidates, Mrs. Volney Taylor of Brownsville, and Mrs. Frank B. Slater of Dallas, were considered.

Officers of that district elected Thursday are: Mrs. Fred A. White of Port Arthur, president; Mrs. R. W. Jenkins of Houston, first vice president; Mrs. O. B. Martin of College Station, second vice president. Other officers are appointive.

Miss Dorris Harrison To Represent City At CC Convention

Miss Dorris Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Harrison, will be the Midland representative at the social affairs of the West Texas chamber of commerce convention at Big Spring, May 11, 12 and 13. Miss Harrison's attendants will be Mrs. Marion Wadley Reese and Mrs. Janelle Edwards Ratliff.

These three young ladies are among the most socially prominent in West Texas. They are all leaders in the younger social set of Midland and were leaders in school social and literary activities.

Miss Harrison will be the official representative of Midland, having been selected for this coveted position by the Midland chamber of commerce. One of the chief events of the entertainment program is a pageant of nations each night, and four dances each night.

A motorcade will be conducted from Midland the second day of the convention, May 12, at 1:30 in the afternoon, the motorcadeists to return when it suits them. The motorcade was set for a Friday and in the afternoon for the convenience of the people. Hatbands will be provided all who make the trip and women and girls will be provided with small Midland badges to pin on their dresses. All who will make the trip are asked to notify the Midland chamber, so that enough badges may be printed.

Tire Dropped by World Fliers Drifts 4400 Miles Across Pacific

An amazing ocean journey of 4400 miles made by a Firestone airplane tire dropped by Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon in their epoch making round the world flight in 1931 has just come to light through the discovery of the tire afloat in the Pacific off Cape Flattery, state of Washington.

Stranger than fiction, the story of the tire's wanderings constitutes a romantic episode without parallel in maritime and aviation history. The world fliers cast the tire into the sea with the rest of the undercarriage of their plane shortly after taking off from Samushiro Beach in Japan October 3, 1931, their purpose being to lighten their burden and thus to save gasoline and gain speed. Two days later they made their famous "fishtail" landing at Wenatchee, Washington, sliding to a stop on the metal "belly" of the plane.

No one ever expected again to hear of the discarded landing gear. Weighted with heavy metal, it was supposed to have gone to a watery grave from which it could never return. But one of the tires at least had other plans.

Through the buoyancy of the still fully inflated tube, it came to the surface and, carrying the wheel with it, began its remarkable voyage to American shores.

The course it followed was presumably the same as that taken by the fliers, but the time consumed was more than sixteen months as against two days they required for the trip. The tire was discovered bobbing up and down in the ocean by Captain Ivar Baggen of the schooner Presho less than two hundred miles from the spot where Pangborn and Herndon landed on their return to this country.

After Captain Baggen had brought the airplane tire ashore, the mystery of where it had come from was soon cleared. Through its serial number molded into the sidewall, its identification was established by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

brought higher prices this season than any other variety. This variety has attractive purple-red leaves that add color and distinction to slow and salads. A limited quantity has been sold at fancy prices. One row of this variety in the home garden will furnish a new color for a standard vegetable.

Use washing machine for cleaning vegetables. If mustard, turnip tops, or spinach are gritty and are to be canned, the family washing machine may be used for removing grit. Hand wash the leaves in the same manner as washing clothes except that no soap is needed. No damage is done to the leaves in cleaning.

Take a "later" and wait. Do you have enough Irish potatoes planted? You will need at least six or eight hundred feet of rows in Irish potatoes to supply a family of five persons. Dr. J. R. Kellomaki, a Greek, says that to retain that slim figure, one pound of potatoes is equal in total food value to one pound of chicken, 5 1/2 oz. boiled beef, 2 1/4 oz. oysters, 1 1/2 pints of milk, 8 eggs, or 4 lbs. of cabbage. Potatoes are also less fattening than many other foods. Comparing an eight ounce potato

DEATH REMOVES DEMO LEADERS

By SAM D. HALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, (UP)—Deaths recently of Cone Johnson, Thomas Watt Gregory and Horace Chilton have decimated the thin ranks of surviving "Old Guard" Texas democratic chieftains until there remain only a handful of men who were political giants in the state in the 90's and early 1900's.

Those who have passed on, with the few survivors, comprised as distinguished and talented a group of public men as any state ever boasted, even in the momentous formative days of the union.

Among those left, and still active and influential in party affairs, are Col. E. M. House of Austin and New York, Albert Sidney Burleson of Austin (the "Old Roman"), A. W. Terrell, O. M. (The Old Alcalde) Roberts, Charles Culberson, Roger Q. Mills, Richard Coke, Joseph Weldon Bailey, Sr., Johnson, Chilton and Gregory.

Two of this group were governors in the days when governors were really men of "rugged individualism" who actually directed the course of state affairs. Five were United States senators in years before reporters described the senate as the "national theatre." Several were both governor and senator.

Two of the departed and one survivor were cabinet members. Reagan was post-master general under Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy; Gregory and Burleson were attorney-general and postmaster-general, respectively in Woodrow Wilson's administration.

Hogg, Chilton and Johnson were members of the Tyler group which dominated party affairs for so long. Hogg has become a legendary character. A physical giant and native Texan, he had qualities that endeared him to the people in a way not often equalled. As attorney-general and governor, he was responsible for the creation of the state railroad commission.

The "Old Roman" Reagan, as an official and adviser, helped guide the state for more than half a century from his home at Palestine. He resigned as United States senator to become the first chairman of the railroad commission.

Chilton, a native Texan like Hogg, was closely connected with that giant's career. He nominated Hogg for governor in 1886, managed his campaign; was named by Hogg, in reward, to succeed Reagan in the senate. Later he defeated Coke for a senatorial term of his own.

Coke, before going to the senate, had been one of the state's best remembered governors. Terrell, after a long and distinguished public career including diplomatic service in Turkey, served in the legislature from his home district at Austin, helping to write the election law that now bears his name. The law abolished the convention system of nominating party candidates and substituted the primary elections.

Several Terrells, not kinsmen of his, have sought and won public office since his day, but he was "The Original".

Roberts, "The Old Alcalde" from San Antonio, made "pay as you go" a state government motto in his time. He is another of the few governors whose names remain familiar to nearly all Texans.

Charles Culberson, orator, governor, United States senator and passionate anti-prohibitionist, was the son of Dave Culberson, pre-Civil War democratic chieftain. He is the only Texan yet to follow his father in the senate.

Roger Mills, as congressman and later as a senator, exerted powerful influence in the congresses of the 90's and was noted as an authority on tariff matters. He went to the senate by virtue of a victory over Hogg's friend and protege Chilton. Mills' home was at Corsicana.

Bailey Sr., Johnson and Gregory are so recently deceased that their careers are generally familiar.

Under the Dome Of the Capital

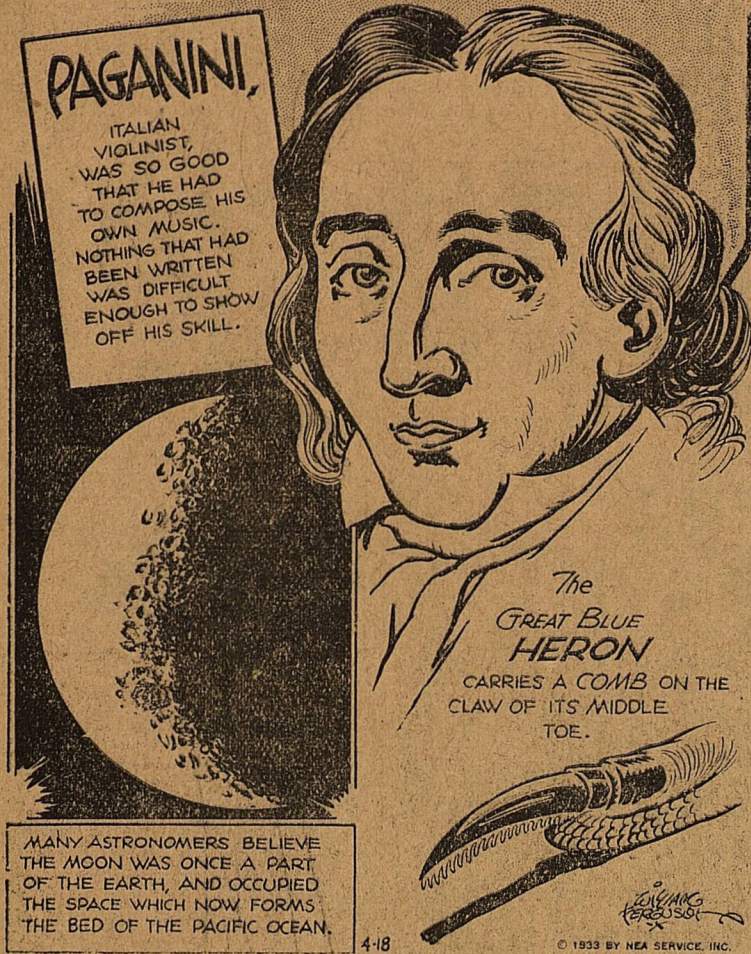

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Apr. 29, (UP)—The most controversial topic in Texas politics for years apparently has been settled to the satisfaction of both sides.

For the first time in more than 15 years prohibition has failed to divide the Texas legislators.

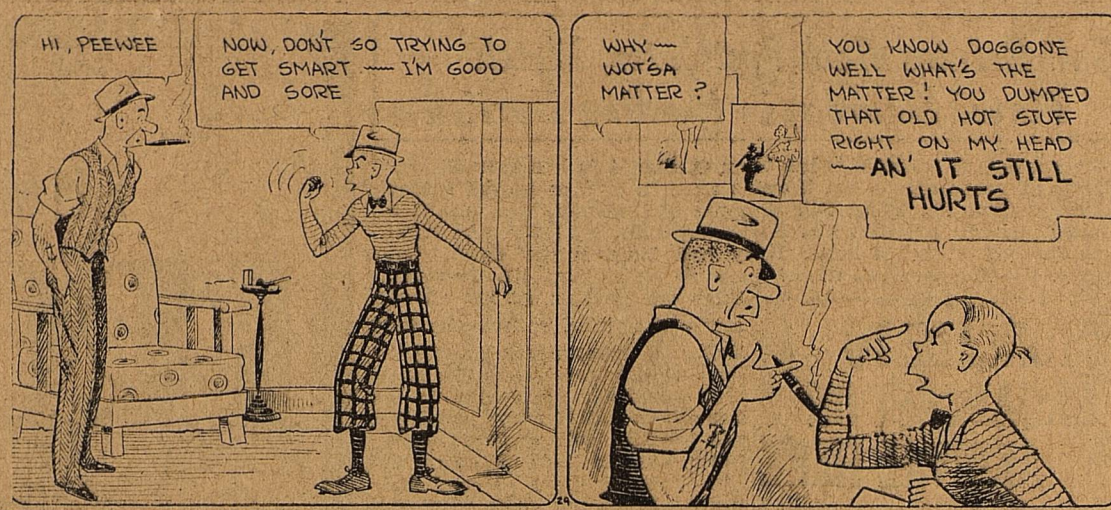

How an agreement was reached when a bitter battle seemed imminent is one of the inside stories of the present session of the legislature.

To Ben O'Neal, quiet, business like senator, of Wichita Falls the credit is generally given for evolving a plan which sends the perplexing beer problem to popular vote. To Rep. Preston L. Anderson of San Antonio, insiders give the credit for working out the O'Neal proposal, a plan

Florida-California Controversy Rages

SAN FRANCISCO. (UP)—California and Florida have at various times shouted "banana oil," "whale oil," and similar epithets at their rival claims. At the moment, a dispute laments over shark oil.

It began when Max N. Schaefer, of Monterey, noticed a news item from Florida, telling of a "marvelous scientific discovery" by Miami scientists. The discovery, according to the news item, was that shark liver oil, in concentrated form, yields the same therapeutic value from a drop that cod liver oil does from a teaspoonful.

Schaefer's indignation was particularly vehement—for a good reason. Schaefer, together with several scientists at Hopkins Marine Station, discovered the medicinal properties of shark liver oil. They still are working in the hope of producing an oil that is tasteless, as well as therapeutically potent.

Tests are being continued in an effort to establish scientifically the medicinal value of the oil, so the American Medical association will recognize it, Schaefer said.

Whooping Cough Hard to Control

AUSTIN.—In speaking of the control of disease, Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer, said that whooping cough was one of the hardest to control. This is because it is highly contagious and begins as an ordinary cough. It is catching during the week or ten days before it can be recognized by the "whoop." Even then a physician is not called and often children are allowed to play with others when they are known to be sick. Probably more deaths are caused by this disease, directly and indirectly, in Texas than by scarlet fever, smallpox, and measles combined.

In children under the age of 3 years, and especially babies, it is dangerous and often fatal. Frequent spells of coughing and vomiting weaken a child to such an extent that the disease becomes dangerous. The majority of deaths are due to pneumonia, which is the most frequent and most dangerous complication, because of this is as advisable to have a doctor as soon as the child becomes sick.

Dr. Brown further stated, "Do everything you can to protect children from whooping cough. Keep them away from playmates who have colds, especially when whooping cough is prevalent. Teach children not to put things in their mouth that have been handled by others and to wash their hands before meals. In spite of all precaution, if your child seems to be catching whooping cough, call your doctor at once. He can do much to relieve the patient's distress if treatment is begun early and will advise the patient's parents about diet, rest, exercise, and fresh air."

TEXAN WINS AWARD

AUSTIN. (UP)—Dr. Walter Webb, associate professor of history at the University of Texas, has been awarded the second Loubat prize from Columbia University, New York City, for his book, "The Great Plains."

The cash award was $400. The Great Plains was published in 1931. It is a textbook on the history and life of the people of the West, and was adopted by the Book of the Month club as an alternate volume. It was rated as one of the 50 notable books of 1931 by the American Library association.

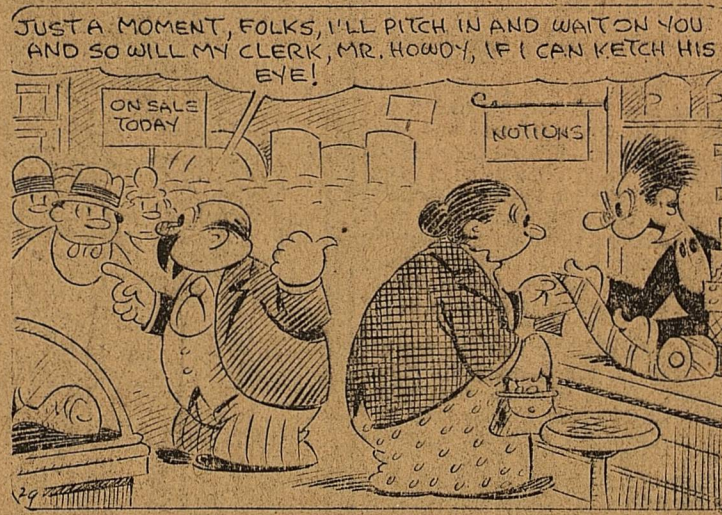

Dr. Webb came to the University of Texas in 1918 where he received his degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. In 1925 he was promoted to associate professor. Because of his vast work in the history of the Great Plains, that course has been instituted at the University and Dr. Webb's text book, The Great Plains, was adopted for the course.

The Loubat award was first offered in 1893 by a grant of Joseph Florimond, Duc de Loubat. Prizes are awarded every five years for the best work printed in the English language on the history, geography, ethnology, philology or numismatics of North America.

restrictions and sent a group of experts and officials with him for the express purpose of counteracting any possible activities on his part which might not be in line with the policies of the present French government.

It will be recalled that he was ousted as premier of the French government for advocating the payment to the United States of the installment on the French debt which fell due last December.

The reason he was named at all as the French spokesman at the conference was that it was believed in France that his attitude on the debt question would give him a friendly reception and thus aid the French cause. He is an old friend of President Roosevelt and many believe that the president let it be known to the French ambassador here that Herriot would be the most acceptable representative for France to send.

So both in France and England it will be easy to either accept or reject the recommendations of the conference.

The president's action in placing an embargo on gold shipments and proposing legislation to deflate the value of the American dollar for the avowed purpose of competing in world trade with the depreciated currency of England did not tend to improve the position of MacDonald and Herriot with their respective governments.

No amount of diplomatic language and gestures could fully overcome the resentment in France and England that this action was taken while these men were on the high seas.

Simultaneously, with the conference here the representatives of the French and British government banks and other financiers reached an agreement to cooperate to help France retain her gold supply and England her trade advantage. England agreed to suspend withdrawals of gold from France and France agreed to help England hold the British pound at its present parity below the American dollar.

In order to understand the ramifications of these agreements one must remember that England has created what is called an exchange equalization fund of one hundred and fifty million pounds sterling for the purpose of keeping the exchange value of the British pound down to something like 30 per cent below its former value of $4.86 in American money.

In order to offset the Roosevelt move for depreciating the value of the dollar the British government now proposes to increase that fund to $500,000,000 pounds sterling (approximately $1,000,000,000). This equalization fund has been used to buy and sell exchanges in such a manner as to keep the price of the pound down and the dollar up. It seems strange to see a great nation deliberately investing huge sums to cheapen its own money, but there is a very good reason for it. If the American dollar decreases in value so that it will again take $4.86 to buy a British pound, instead of about $3.40 as has been the case in the past few months, then the British exporter will lose the 30 per cent trade advantage he now has over the American exporter.

Undoubtedly, the press dispatches which contained the six points of agreements, or rather recommendations, of the Washington conference, have been read by everyone who may read this article, so it is not necessary to repeat them.

You, no doubt, observed that three of those recommendations referred

All bet to win; none can afford to lose!

Yet each of eleven people stake their lives on different horses in the thrill-packed Capitol Handicap race in Paramount's "From Hell to Heaven," which opened last night at the Ritz theatre, featuring Carole Lombard, Jack Oakie, David Manners, Adrienne Ames, Sidney Blackmer and Verna Hillie.

"Weather clear; track fast" marks the start of as scorching a race as has ever been won by a nose. Every horse is the favorite, and you'll find yourself rooting for every horse to win. But only one can, and the uncertainty of that gives the picture an unbelievably effective punch right up to the final curtain. It's an ingenious twist that Paramount has given the smash climax.

Down to the best hotel in Luray Springs come a raft of folks each of whom simply must pick the right horse in the famous $50,000 "Capitol Handicap" which is to be run off the following day.

There's Colly, Tanner (Carole Lombard), so much in need of $10,000 that she makes a "deal" with a big-time bookmaker for a chance to win the ten grand on "Sir Rapid."

The cops are after Wesley Burt (David Manners) who needs almost as much to pay back to his employer the amount he has embezzled. He and his unsuspecting wife stake every cent they have on "New Hope," playing the name on a hunch for one last chance.

Jack Oakie plays the role of Charlie Bayne, the radio announcer with crooner ambitions.

But all can't win! One does—and let's hope, for your peace of mind, that you've picked the winner. It's a great race and you'll be cheering before it's over.

to the international money question. This is a recognition of the fact that a prosperous world trade is impossible without a suitable and stable money medium.

Neither individuals nor nations will trade unless they know the value of the money used in payment.

These three recommendations on money, to wit: ultimate reestablishment of equilibrium of international exchange, reestablishment of an international monetary standard and improvement in the status of silver do not mean a thing unless they are supplemented by long term international treaties.

The likelihood of such treaties is very remote. Even the recommendations are not specific enough to guide the course of international agreement. More and more the nations of the world have lost confidence in each other when it comes to promises and agreements. Any paper currency is, after all, the promise of the nation to pay. Outside the nation such promises have lost their potency. The failure to pay has in most cases been due to inability rather than unwillingness but the results are the same.

That is why in international trade we can not get away from a metallic base for money. That is why there will be no large scale improvement in world trade until silver is used again as a basic money on an agreed parity with gold.

Seven nations now have five billion dollars of monetary gold, fifty three nations have two billion dollars in gold.

That tells the story of a paralyzed world trade.

No matter how helpful an inflated currency may be to debtors at home it will not restore these markets abroad, now more greatly needed than ever.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES RETURN TO THE STATE

More than 100,000 acres in state oil leases will be turned back within the next 12 months in New Mexico unless conditions change or unless taxes are reduced, oil men predict.

One independent operator has already turned back 2,000 acres of leases near the Hobbs field. Majors as well as independents are now preparing to hold their choicest acreage and let other thousands of acres go back to the state.

sume the jurisdiction and powers of other courts especially having authority to appoint receivers or adjudicate matters in bankruptcy. This phase is therefore passed without consideration, and without prejudice to the defendant.

"Defendant complains that there is really a depression, prays the court to take cognizance of the fact that said defendant now stands hitched to the Roosevelt recovery wagon. This complaint can but invite the severest criticism. Why should defendant STAND hitched and expect sympathy from any source? He is therefore admonished to place his shoulders to the collar, move up a little and tighten the traces by his own effort. However, it is called to mind that only a short while ago defendant was found firmly bound to a cumbersome Hoover contract and being a novice in the newly adopted recovery wagon, his delinquency in this respect will not be charged against him.

"Further along in defendant's motion the court is addressed by use of the following language in part, to wit: 'Congress and state legislatures . . . have failed to diagnose defendant's case.' While the congress might have looked into this matter, but failed, defendant, and particularly his counsel, whose senior law partner is now a member of the state legislature, is gently but firmly reminded that the chief concern of legislators in session is to look painstakingly after the safety of their own hides against the day of reelection. Failure of this body to provide relief in the premises is therefore excused.

"It will be left entirely to the conscience and tender mercies of defendant and his counsel whether or not said defendant departs or remains where he is. At this time the case is not presented to be tried upon its full merits for final judgment. Likewise a determination of moratorium would be premature.

"Wherefore, premises considered, it is the duty of the court to weigh the statements and petitions of defendant by such authorities and standards as are convenient to command in order to arrive at a just and equitable conclusion thereof. Authorities which might be consulted in such conclusion, but which were practically disregarded, are as follows: Texas R. C. S. (1925), as amended four or five thousand times by the last few legislatures, a sense of humor and a little horse sense; in fact, very little of either; U. S. Bureau of Standards; 89 Tex. and 34 S. W. (Search and see if you can find a case in point.)

"A recapitulation of defendant's arguments in favor of continuance of this cause as against those considered by the court against the same, results decidedly 100 and 4 per cent by volume, but barely nets exactly 3.2 by weight in favor thereof.

"It is, therefore, considered and adjudged by the court that a continuance of this cause of action for the term is not prohibited by the

Golf Refutes Math Postulates; Match Played Saturday in Howling Hurricane

If A is equal to B and B is less than C, then A is less than C, provides an old math rule—but it won't work in golf, as proved Friday afternoon when Pat Riley, Bill Simpson and Jim Harrison played a three-ball match to decide Kat Klaw, Harrison and Riley were halved at the end of the 18 holes. Riley had Simpson one down. But Simpson had Harrison two down! How do you figure it? However, three-ball matches are not allowed, a provision picked up from the Sand Belt, and Simpson was playing the loser of the match—which automatically made his duel with the two others null. Harrison and Riley, not satisfied with darkness marking a final to their match on the 18th hole, arranged to meet Saturday. A howling cross wind and plenty of sand did not keep them from playing. Harrison's tee shot lit out like a rifle shot, only to be caught by the wind and carried so

MOTORCADE TO BROADCAST ON ARRIVAL HERE

Midland people who come downtown Sunday morning at 8:50 will hear the broadcast of the "Silver Streak," radio car from Hot Springs, Ark., which will head a long motorcade of the Broadway of America to El Paso.

The motorcade will arrive in Midland at 8:50 and depart at 9. It will stop in front of Hotel Scharbauer for its program.

The travelers will be met at the city limits by Police Chief Lee Haynes and chamber of commerce officials and conducted into the city. Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Haight left Saturday for El Paso to attend the Broadway convention at El Paso. Mr. and Mrs. Cam Fannin, W. G. Riddle, Richard Knight and others will leave Sunday morning either with the motorcade or will join it before its arrival at the border city.

Midlanders who wish to attend the road meeting, the Juarez horse races, Mexican International fair and various social events at El Paso were urged Saturday by the Midland chamber of commerce to join the motorcade and make attendance at the convention serve the double purpose of a vacation trip and, at the same time, represent Midland in this important road parley.

Students of Vickers Studio In Recital

A group of students of the Vickers studio will be presented in spring recital and dance review on Wednesday evening at the Yucca theatre at eight o'clock between shows.

A scene from Holland featuring a chorus and the Midland entertainers in costume with a jazz chorus and specialty numbers will make up the first part of the program. The second part will include a Spanish scene with the Plectrum club of the Watson school of music playing Spanish airs. Solo and group numbers in dance and song will lend color and rhythm to the evening's entertainment.

It is further ordered by the court that this case be and is hereby continued to the next term thereof, to be begun and holden in the city of Midland, Precinct No. 1, Midland county, Texas, at the courthouse thereof, on the 22nd day of May, being the 4th Monday in May, A. How long have you waited to hear a good one on B. N. Aycock? Here it is:

Mr. Aycock, familiarly known as "Uncle Burwell," was talking to Jim Tuttle and M. F. King, Stanton. "I see by the paper where you're the best player Midland has," he said, addressing Tuttle. King, a golfer of the first water, picked up his ears at that. He knew Tuttle had not set the woods afire by his play, but also knew Uncle Burwell never exaggerates. "How's that?" he asked. "Well, I saw where Jim made a score of 105 and the rest only had 70 or 80," Uncle Burwell explained. King took to the floor and started rolling. Tuttle walked away and Uncle Burwell, droll as he is supposed to be, caught the joke eventually and laughed as much as anyone.

far to the east that it took him two strokes to get back to the fairway. Riley played for No. 3 green and, with satisfaction, saw his ball come back to the No. 1 fairway and rest there. Harrison's brassie bore off to starboard and drifted onto the green, to make his lie four; Pat hit a good second shot but dubbed the third and was short on his fourth, getting on in five. Both two-putted, and Harrison took the match. After baths they were as good as new.

Midland golfers are at the top of the heap in the Sand Belt. The standing shows Midland first with 82 points, Colorado second with 74. Sweetwater third with 72. Lamesa fourth with 70. Big Spring fifth with 66. Snyder sixth with 48. Stanton seventh with 40 and Odessa last with 28. Midland has met three of the clubs, Big Spring, Lamesa and Snyder. Stanton will be here this afternoon for a match, and Midland has only three more encounters with clubs not met. Midland goes to Sweetwater May 14. Odessa is here May 21 and Midland goes to Colorado June 4. Provided Midland could sweep, or nearly sweep, the two home matches and break even at Colorado and Sweetwater the first half would almost be assured for the locals, which would place them in a playoff with the winner of the last half.

Who have been the most consistent golfers on the Midland club this season? Easy to answer. Frank Day and Gentry Kidd have won every low ball and every individual match they've played. For that matter, every man in the Sand Belt lineup has played consistent golf, and the team is farther advanced than ever before in the loop.

Incidentally, Don Sivalls will be in seventh position this afternoon and Henry Shaw in eighth. (Henry the Eighth). Sivalls won from Shaw 5 and 4 Friday, defending his position. Kidd will be out of the city. Shaw won from Harry Adams 2 and 1, to determine which would give Red Knight a chance to challenge.

The more the boys watch the play of Frank Morgan of Big Spring the more they know he is likely to develop into another Dennis Lavender. He has form, youth and power, but is a bit inexperienced in match play. His first drive here the other Sunday was a bit short of 300 yards, straight up the middle. But he pulled his shots because of nervousness, all afternoon. Ralph Shuffler, one of the Odessa top flight men, had lots of trouble with Morgan, who shot a par and three birds on the first four holes to get a big lead that put Shuffler out on the 15th.

The intra-city tennis tournament to start Sunday is being held with a view to picking the best racketeers of the town. Entry fee is 50 cents and it is hoped that every one who has ever played tennis will enter. Cups to the singles winner and cups to both members of the doubles team winners will be given, as well as medals to the runners-up. There are 30 members of the Midland Tennis club. The ladder shows the first six men to be Dick Morse, Louis Levinson, J. J. Kelly, Barron Kidd, Harry Neblett and J. S. Schow.

Pin Metaphorical Wreath on Town

Citizens of McCamey pinned a metaphorical wreath of honor on an oil well last week. The occasion was celebration of McCamey's sixth birthday. The Upton county oil city was started six years ago when the George McCamey at No. 1 Baker blew in three miles north of a greasewood flat that in a few months became a thriving oil village and in six years became the modern town of McCamey.

The discovery well that sired McCamey is still a producer.

BROKE OWNER'S LEG
URBANA, Ill. (UP)—Adam Week and his horse slipped and fell together on icy pavement here, breaking Week's leg. The horse fell first. Week, fearing it might hurt itself if it tried to get up alone, was lifting on the animal when both slipped. The horse fell on Week, crippling him, then arose by itself, unhurt.

REVIVAL STARTS AT METH. CHURCH

Emphasis of the revival starting at the First Methodist church today will be placed upon the "real and true deepening of the spiritual lives of the people," said the Rev. K. C. Minter, pastor. "This can be done by a true and honest re-thinking of our ways and attitudes until we come into harmony with God. This is the thing called repentance. By such repentance we may infallibly come into a deeper consciousness of the personal love, power and presence of God."

The services of the revival will be free of narrow denominational emphasis and spirit, the pastor said.

"The one great purpose shall be the true welfare of our souls; thereby promoting the glory of God. Beyond this, results must take care of themselves. Therefore, we earnestly request the presence and cooperation of pastors and members of other congregations whenever it is reasonably possible to be with us."

"Christ said, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand'; Paul said, 'God is not far from anyone of you'; the prophet said, 'Draw nigh to God and He will draw nigh to you'. I invite everyone to come and test the promises. They cannot fail and, therefore, we will have a great revival."

W. M. Pyle, who was given the first reforestation job from Midland county, has given rise to considerable quips among cattlemen, because of the name's being identical with the well known cattleman who recently put over a $400 cash ranch deal. Pyle, the laborer, is in his early twenties. Pyle, the cattleman, was congratulated repeatedly by his friends at his being on his "feet" again.

Unless rain falls soon growers of flowers will continue to despair, not because they cannot get enough water on their flowers, but because the sand whipped into their gardens by every fancy of the wind cuts the tender shoots off even with the ground. Efforts of Joe Denton to grow spring flowers on the court recently put over a $400 cash ranch deal. Pyle, the laborer, is in his early twenties. Pyle, the cattleman, was congratulated repeatedly by his friends at his being on his "feet" again.

You addicts of word-building contests can find all the three-letter words in the dictionary conveniently arranged in a 1587-word glossary. The book, called "Kloster's Complete 3 Letter Word Glossary," may be obtained at the county library. Another glossary, the Gist, has the three-letter words also. Actually, Miss Marguerite Hester, librarian, points out, there are 1526 three-letter words of old usage, but the total is boosted by 62 words in an addenda.

Appreciation of the work of the city council, the county commissioners court and of A. B. Cole, for recent clean-up activities, was contained in a statement issued today by the City Federated Women's clubs. The county cleaned highway approaches of rubbish and the city had charge of the cleanup in the city. The work in the city was done under supervision of Cole. The women also expressed gratitude to the people of Midland who assisted in making the cleanup last week a success. Hotel Scharbauer, the Llanos, Barrow Furniture company, the Midland high school, the Baptist church and its orchestra directed by O. L. Walton, Clarence Scharbauer, and Elliott F. Cowden, donors of the beef for the barbecue, and all workers were specially thanked.

NAPA, Calif. (UP)—A hunter is not even safe from his own dog, lamented Frank Rodgers after a break hunting accident near here.

Rodgers placed his shotgun on the ground while he descended an embankment. His dog stepped on the trigger, causing the weapon to discharge. The bullet struck Rodgers in the neck. He will recover.
