U., a 0 to 0 tie, Coach Dana Bible sees a stabilizing factor that may contribute materially in a helpful way to the Aggies as the remainder of their conference schedule. Inasmuch as A. and M. shared the contest as the favorites to win, considerable gloom prevailed in the Aggies' camp following the brilliant defensive showing of the Frogs that held them to a scoreless game. It was not the brilliant defensive showing of the Frogs that held them to a scoreless game. It was not the brilliant defensive showing of the Frogs that held them to a scoreless game. It was not the brilliant defensive showing of the Frogs that held them to a scoreless game.

Light Workouts Held
However, as Coach Bible points out that is now history and possibly helpful history. The game at Lubbock next Friday, October 28, with the Texas Technological college, is next on the card and Bible and the Aggies are looking that way. This week's practice for the week at Lubbock has been one of very light workouts with no drill on plays or formations. The idea is to let the players rest up a bit and get them in as good physical condition as possible for the somewhat long plains trip. Great preparations for the initial game between the Aggies and the Matadors have been made and indications are that Texas will turn out a record breaking crowd for the contest. In consequence the Matadors may be expected to stage a hard battle.

Indications are that Conover, Burgess and Varnell will be in the game at Lubbock, at least part of the time. Due to strained ankles, neither Conover nor Varnell played the T. C. U. game and Burgess, still nursing a fractured rib, was out in for only a few minutes. The only casualty of the game with the Frogs was a sprained ankle suffered by Figart, one of the regular guards. It is possible he will not get in the game at Lubbock.

The Aggies team left here Wednesday night for Caldwell in motor cars and will board Pullman there for the trip by the Santa Fe to Lubbock where they are due to arrive Thursday afternoon in time to limber up in workouts on the Texas Tech gridiron. They will have Lubbock Friday night and are expected to get back here Saturday afternoon in time for a light workout which should give them a one-day advantage in preparation for the game with S. M. U. November 5.

In commenting on the game with T. C. U. Bible with his usual mental smile found only warm words of praise for the showing of the Frogs and attempted no alibis for the Aggies. "As the result showed T. C. U. played a strong defensive game," he said. "The playing of Beas Matthews left much to be desired, but the defense was particularly outstanding against such resistance it would have been necessary for a team to do better than its best to make headway. We had too many inexperienced men in the line-up to expect the occasion. The Horned Frogs should give credit they merit for their brilliant defensive work. Had Captain Blackie Williams for the Frogs and Conover, Burgess and Varnell for the Aggies been in the game, it would have been a great offensive battle.

As it was, it was purely a defensive game with neither team displaying an attack of sufficient strength to make a sustained drive."

Several big conference games come up over the state this week and much is being predicted and said of the games. Texas University journeys to Dallas to meet the Mustangs of S. M. U.; and the Frogs clash with the Baylor Bears at the Cotton Palace gridiron. These two games will have a great bearing on the conference standing.

Consensus of opinion is that Ray Morrison's Ponies will take the Steers into camp; however I have a hunch the Longhorns with their powerful back field and neat passing combination will be "in there" in the game with the red and blue ponies. Then, points are being spread out for the Bears, and T. C. U. chosen to take the contest—I am slightly of the opinion that the Horned Frogs are the logical winners for the day in Waco; but it is homecoming day for the Bears and its played in Waco—that is certainly nothing to be giving points on.

Business men can't you forget your business just for a couple of hours and attend the Texas Tech-Texas A. and M. game tomorrow? Just think what the game means to Lubbock, to the South Plains, to Texas Tech, and to the players of the team—come on lets close the old town tight for the greatest

Grid Grists

By James R. Dow

Tomorrow will be a busy day about the Texas Tech athletic field—hundreds of fans from West Texas and the Panhandle will attend the grid classic of the season as Dana X. Bible's Farmers meet with E. Y. Freeland's Matadors.

Watch the actions of No. 8 of the Aggie backfield tomorrow, Captain Joel Hunt bears the numeral and he is the flash of the Southwestern Conference. Hunt has been running wild in games this season. The purple clad Horned Frogs have been the only ones able to withstand the charge of the Aggie quarterback.

Percy "Handsome Ransome" Walker, the fleet Matador back, is not in the best of condition for the game tomorrow afternoon. Walker was rather roughly handled by the Lebons of Sul Ross and as yet the flaming jersid ball totter is still feeling the effects of last week's contest.

Floyd Woodriddle, among Tech's most valuable players, will be expected to turn in a well played exhibition after the racket tomorrow afternoon. Woodriddle is unquestionably one of Freeland's hardest scrappers.

H. R. Burgess, who hails from Hale Center, and is listed among D. X. Bible's speed merchants, will possibly be seen during a part of the game. However, he may be kept from taking part in any of the action as Bible is looking out for the S. M. U. conference game at Kyle Field next week.

"Pinky" Alsbrook, a former teammate of "Dopie" White and Westerfeldt, will be used in the Aggie back field. The two Matadors left from Cisco played side by side in the Big Dam city several seasons back. It will be with much delight and hope that these former buddies will battle one another.

BUFFS' MORALE UNDAIMAGED BY SIMMONS GAME

HARD FIGHT PLANNED WITH WILDCATS AT CANYON SATURDAY

(Special To The Journal) CANYON, Oct. 27.—The defeat handed the Buffaloes by Simmons last Saturday at Abilene has not hurt the morale of the team as they prepare for the game with A. & M. Wildcats this week end. Coach Eckhardt kept several of his regulars out of the Simmons game due to the fact that it was a non-conference encounter and he wished to take no chances on having them unable to play against the Wildcats this week in Canyon.

Extensive plans are being made to handle the crowd which will be on hand for this game and the remainder of Homecoming day program. Ex-students from all over the Panhandle and a great number of other fans will witness the gridiron classic.

Keith and Wilson Back

Red Keith and Raymond Wilson star ball toters of the Buff crew, will return to the lineup in this game after a long lay off from injuries. Terrell Christian, the flashy little quarterback of the Canyon high school's last year team, will probably direct the Buff team in this game. Captain Hazelwood and Ward will hold down the end jobs. Henry and Logan will play tackle. Eckhardt has several guards whom he can rely upon. Center is the big problem for this game.

The giant Bass is stricken with an infected leg and Hucksabay is on the sick list. Captain Boyles, an Amarillo lad, is being groomed for center. Boyles has played center for the Buffs for the past two years but was shifted to guard at the beginning of the present season where he has been performing creditably.

The return of Keith and Wilson will no doubt rejuvenate the offensive of the Buffs for it is around these two men that Eckhardt has built his attack and their loss has been a hard blow in the last few games. Strain and Christian will round out backfield.

Former Members Of Aggie Team To See Game Friday

Memories of the "good ole days," when various star Aggie gridmen performed will flash back tomorrow afternoon in the minds of scores of ex-Aggies as they witness the "Fighting Farmers" in action once more.

Perhaps cherishing the oldest and dearest memories of bygone days will be J. C. McNeil, Dickens county ranchman, who claims a distinction that will be unequalled at the game tomorrow. He played on the first football team A. and M. ever had. Back in 1894 when football was more or less a game of brawn and blood, Mr. McNeil held down the position of right tackle on the Aggie eleven.

Tomorrow he is to witness his old school in action once more, several years having elapsed since he saw the Maroon and White on the grid.

Mr. McNeil has a son, Randolph, who is a student in the Tech.

Gibson Returns To Texas For Winter

AUSTIN, Oct. 27 (AP)—Frank Gibson, catcher for the Boston Braves baseball team for the past several seasons, has returned to his home at Manor, near here, for the winter.

He will be there for the cold season, except for occasional jaunts into Southwest Texas on hunting trips.

When the Texas Aggies go into action here tomorrow afternoon the fans who attend the game will see one of the best organized football machines in the Southwest. Here is their season's record:

Texas A. and M. 45; Trinity 0. Texas A. and M. 31; Southwestern 0. Texas A. and M. 18; Sewanee 0. Texas A. and M. 40; Arkansas 6. Texas A. and M. 0; T. C. U. 0. Total—134; 6.

The Aggies have scored more touchdowns this season against their opponents than their opponents have made first downs. Only one team has scored against the Aggies this season and it was by a long forward pass.

Here is Tech's record for the season: Texas Tech 62; Pan. Okla. A. and M. Jr. College 0. Texas Tech 13; St. Edwards 6. Texas Tech 4; T. C. U. 18. Texas Tech 10; Simmons 6. Texas Tech 6; Sul Ross 0. Total—97; 25.

Attend the big bonfire this evening on the Matador campus. It will be the climax for the week's action of pep rallies for the game with the Aggies. Hundreds of people will take part in the event—it will be a great evening before the football classic.

Johnson Signs As Playing Manager Of Newark's Club

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Walter Johnson, for twenty years a big league star, has signed a contract to play the Newark team of the International league over the next two seasons at a salary termed by Paul Block, owner of the club, "the highest ever paid a player-manager" outside the major circuits.

The "Big Train" affixed his signature to the document late last night. The contract will permit him to pitch an occasional game to bear out his conviction that his famous arm still has a few victories in it. The actual figures of his salary were not announced.

While Johnson was not actually a free agent at the time, it is not expected that other clubs of the American league will take advantage of their waiver privileges, which will not expire until Sunday. In granting the pitcher, at his own request, an unconditional release, Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, said he was confident that in view of Johnson's extraordinary service the other clubs of the league would not stand in his way.

HARD TO PICK

CENTREVILLE, Mich.—A look weighing 25 pounds adorned the first jail in St. Joseph county, it is related in the Michigan History magazine. A local gunsmith in the days of 1849 made the look, and he took delight in creating a staggering and complicated mechanism that by sheer weight nearly broke down the jail door.

Seven Writers To Handle Grid Game At Tech Tomorrow

With the spotlight of attention focused on the Tech field tomorrow afternoon, details of the game, play by play or otherwise will be given to the people of Texas to the minutest degree. Seven sport writers, including the state's best, will be here to "cover" the contest for the leading dailies.

Curtis Vinson, publicity director of A. and M. and former Dallas News staff member; Charlie Hall, sports editor of the Amarillo News-Globe; Bill Vap Natla, sports editor of the Amarillo Sun; J. R. Dow, sports editor of the Avonlanche-Journal; Silliman Evans, staff member of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; and other writers are to be present in the new press box in the west stands.

The game will be given to the Associated Press by telephone, to the Dallas News by wire, special play by play to College Station for the A. and M. students and to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram where it is likely that it will be broadcast over the state.

BELGRADE, Jugo Slavia, Oct. 27 (AP)—Two trainmen were killed and one seriously injured in a train wreck on the Sarajevo Mostar line yesterday when a freight train fell 150 feet to the bottom of a ravine after the collapse of a bridge.

Early reports had stated that the accident involved a passenger train with heavy loss of life, but the official agency Avala today confirmed later advises that the accident concerned a freight train and that the loss of life was small.

Rescue Ships Speed Toward Port With Survivors Of Steamer Wreck; 68 Not Accounted For In Tragedy

(By Associated Press)
RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 27.—Rescue ships sped toward this port today carrying hundreds who were snatched from death when the Italian liner Principessa Mafalda sank after an explosion eighty miles off the coast of Brazil opposite Porto Segura, about 600 miles north of here.

Indications were that the rescue ships, the first of which is due here at midnight tonight, picked up all but 68 of a total of 598 passengers and a crew of 240 aboard the Mafalda.

Many Graphic Stories
The survivors of the disaster told graphic stories to the commanders of the ships which rescued them and their acts were forwarded by wireless.

The passengers, 500 of whom were Italian emigrants bound for the promised land of South America, were in high spirits as the Mafalda approached the coast. Soon they would be in the beautiful harbor of Rio or settled in the fertile Hinterland of the Argentine.

Supper had been served and there was singing and dancing as the fulfillment of the dream of a new homeland neared. The merry celebration was greatest in the third class quarters, where the emigrants traveled.

Suddenly the ship came to a brusque halt. The Mafalda's radio frantically sent an SOS. The nearest ships responded to the call under forced draught and relayed it to bring others to the rescue.

The radio operator in a later message said that a fatal accident had occurred aboard the Mafalda because of dryness in the boiler plates. Experts here were inclined to believe that the boilers exploded due to an improper water supply.

Panic Is Prevented
Dancing and joking among the passengers turned to consternation and trembling. The coolness of the ship's officers prevented a panic. The orchestra which had been playing for the merry-making began playing the Italian national anthem with a more serious purpose in mind, the quieting of fears of the terror-stricken passengers.

Captain Simon Gull, a veteran of the seas, stood on the bridge, outwardly undisturbed, barking his orders. The officers and crew directed the passengers to the life boat stations and assisted them in donning life preservers.

The crew laughed and joked to quiet sobbing women and terror-stricken children. Life boats swung from the davits and were lowered into the sea, fortunately calm. Families were separated in the hurried work of rescue.

Heartening News
Soon heartening news came from the radio operator. The French steamer Formosa had replied to the SOS. She was rushing to the scene at full speed. Soon other ships wireless that they were responding to the call for help. Cheers rose from the deck as despair turned to hope.

About eight o'clock, less than an hour after the SOS call had been picked up, the Formosa hoisted a light. It was already dark but the night was clear. Life boats dotted the surface of the ocean about the doomed liner.

Soon the Dutch steamer Alhena, the British Empire Star and the French Mosella appeared on the scene. Later the Italian steamship Rosetti and others approached.

Explosion in Boilers
There was an explosion in the Mafalda's boilers and the ship began to sink rapidly. The commander of the Formosa signalled the other ships that he would attempt to maneuver close to the Mafalda and pick up those on board before the liner sank. He rescued 110 persons. His daring exploit was hailed by survivors as one of the great deeds in the annals of the sea. The darkness of the night made his task difficult.

The other ships labored valiantly picking up those who had taken to the boats. As they worked either ships offered in wireless messages to come to the scene. The Mosella radioed back that they need not come as there were plenty of ships on the scene.

As soon as the passengers and crew were picked up they were transferred to those ships best able to transport them to land.

Steamer Arrives With 30 Survivors

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Oct. 27.—The French steamship Mosella, carrying thirty survivors of the Italian steamer Principessa Mafalda, arrived at Bahia shortly before noon today.

The rescue party included eighteen officers of the Italian vessel which sank Tuesday night off the Brazilian coast.

coming into town. Visitors reaching here today were from Vernon, Santa Anna, Cisco, Childress, Merkel, Abilene and numbers of other towns.

With the announcement yesterday that more tickets were available, scores of requests have been pouring into the college and local ticket sales centers for more tickets from the nearby towns.

Hotels Already Full
Lubbock's hotels are practically full now or have reservations made for tonight and tomorrow, desk men reported today. H. Kling, clerk at the Lubbock Hotel, reports that reservations have been made for the game as far as ten months ago.

The hotel is filled for both days, he says. With "Ol' Sol" smiling serenely down, college officials said this morning that they expected a crowd of approximately 10,000 people for the game tomorrow.

Various delegations from nearby towns will turn out en masse for the game, according to reports. Slaton, Crosbyton, Ralls, O'Donnell, Lemme, Tahoka, Brownfield, Plainview, Hale Center, Post, Southland, Lorenzo, Idalton, Littlefield, Amherst, Lockney, Floydada, Brownfield and Levelland will all have large delegations here.

In a number of the towns, some of the business men are closing their stores to come to the game.

Medical Men Coming

The medical element of the South Plains will be fairly well represented at the game, according to reports. Besides the doctors of Lubbock who are to turn out en masse those from nearby towns are coming.

A partial list includes: Dr. J. Henson, of Plainview; Dr. L. E. Payne, of Slaton; Dr. M. Corbin, of Post; Dr. C. D. Towns, of Tahoka, and others.

Amarillo's special train, with approximately 600 fans aboard will pull into Lubbock tomorrow morning shortly after 10 o'clock. The Panhandle A. and M. club will be represented by some 400 odd members, reports say a barbecue in true West Texas style will be tendered there by local ex-students at the Tech pavilion at noon.

Football! It's in the air, everywhere, and was particularly evident when members of Lubbock Kiwanis club assembled for their regular luncheon session at Hotel Lubbock Thursday noon were fed a steady diet of the great fall sport.

L. E. Davis who coached the Kiwanis speakers sent in Erving Y. Freeland with a good yarn about Tech's athletic history and prospects particularly with reference to a berth in the Southwestern conference for the Matadors.

"Big U" gained about fifty yards through the Kiwanians with a plea for a full grand stand.

E. W. Provence, Tech business manager, hurled the message for the remaining distance and a touchdown of enthusiasm when he told the lunch guests that there were still plenty of seats, but that they were going fast. He expressed the hope that a number of late customers living in Lubbock would have to content with seats on the turf. Bath speakers indulged in a little advance laugh at the forebodings of a meager attendance on the part of A. and M. business officials. Dr. Fred W. Standefer made a plea for support of the Lubbock high Westerners in their conference battle with Wichita Falls on the Tech field Saturday. John T. Orr of Dallas, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association was introduced and predicted a great showing by the Matadors. State Comptroller Sam Houston Terrell was even more optimistic predicting a victory for Tech. Dr. Paul W. Horn wound up the athletic session with the comment "bigger surprises have happened in Texas."

New 4-H Club In County Organized

Continuing a program of activities which will include every community in the county, a new 4-H club was organized at the County Line school yesterday afternoon by Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent. Fifteen members were enrolled and the following officers elected for the year: Gladys Eason, president; Edna McDaniel, vice-president; Alma Evans, secretary; and Agnes Brown, reporter. The club will meet the 2nd and 4th Wednesdays of each month.

scene which accompanied the sinking of the Italian vessel as passengers, including women and children struggling in the water and were drowned in the darkness. Four passengers rescued by the Mosella died from exhaustion after being taken aboard the rescue ship. They were given the last sacrament just before death by Friar Angelo, a passenger on the Principessa Mafalda. Fear that others of those rescued by the various ships that sped to the scene of the sinking boat also would die of exhaustion, was expressed by the men landed here.

Sharks Devour Some

The rescued men appeared much shaken by the sinking of their vessel, some of them even disclosing that sharks devoured victims of the disaster as they struggled in the water, while others expressed the belief that when the final death toll was counted it would be found that from 600 to 800 persons had been lost.

The crew said that only two first class passengers had been saved by the Mosella. They said the life boats of the Mafalda were lowered when the ship was sinking fast and expressed the general belief that Captain Gulfi went down with his vessel.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Suspicion falls on Miss St. Clair when gloves and a handbag found at the scene of the murder are traced to her. Vance insists to Markham that she is innocent and by means of a movement demonstrates that the murderer must have been six feet tall or thereabouts. Platze, after repeated denials, admits that Benson had a woman caller the afternoon preceding the murder. She also says that she had seen a box of jewelry on the table which has since disappeared.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIII

Vance walked indifferently to the window and looked out. "I am happy to learn that you are capable of accepting such evidence of the human mind could not possibly deny."

I had always noticed in the relationship of these two men that whenever Vance made a remark which answered in a manner which ended all outward show of sentiment. It was as if they wished to keep this more intimate side of their mutual regard hidden from the world.

Markham therefore ignored Vance's thrust.

"Have you perhaps any enlightening suggestions other than negative ones, to offer as to Benson's murderer?" he asked.

"Rather," said Vance. "No end of suggestions."

"Could you spare me a good one?" Markham imitated the other's playful tone.

Vance appeared to reflect.

"Well, I should advise that, as a beginning, you look for a rather tall man, cool headed, familiar with firearms, a good shot, and fairly well known to the deceased—a man who was aware that Benson was going to dinner with Miss St. Clair who had reason to suspect the act."

Markham looked narrowly at Vance for several moments.

"I think I understand. . . . Not a word theory, either. You know, I'm going to suggest immediately to Heath that he investigate more thoroughly Captain Leacock's activities on the night of the murder."

"Oh, by all means," said Vance carelessly, going to the piano.

Markham watched him with an expression of puzzled interrogation. He was about to speak when Vance began playing a rollicking French air which opens, I believe, with "His cent dans les vignes les mouzeux."

(Sunday, June 16, afternoon).

The following day, which was Sunday, we lunched with Markham at the Stuyvesant club. Vance had suggested the appointment the evening before, as he explained to me, he wished to be present in case Leander Plyfe should arrive from Long Island.

"It amuses me tremendously," he had said, "the way human beings deliberately complicate the most ordinary issues. They have a downright horror of anything simple and direct."

The whole modern commercial system is nothing but a colossal mechanism for doing things in the most involved and roundabout way. If one makes a 10-cent purchase at a department store, nowadays, complete history of the transaction is written out in triplicate, checked by a dozen file walkers and clerks, signed and countersigned, entered into innumerable ledgers with various colored inks, and then elaborately secreted in steel filing cabinets. And not content with all this superfluous chicanerie, our business men have created a large and expensive army of efficiency experts whose sole duty it is to complicate and befuddle this system still further. . . . It's the same with everything else in modern life. Richard that insupportable mania called golf. It consists merely of knocking a ball into a hole with a stick. But the devotees of this pastime have developed a unique and distinctive livery in which to play it. They concentrate for 29 years on the correct angulation of their feet and the proper method of entwining their fingers about the stick.

Moreover, in order to discuss the pseudo intricacies of this idiotic sport, they've invented an outlandish vocabulary which is unintelligible even to an English scholar.

He pointed disgustedly at a pile of Sunday newspapers.

"Then here's this Benson murder—a simple and inconsequential affair. Yet the entire machinery of the law is going at high pressure and blowing off jets of steam all over the community, when the matter could be settled entirely in five minutes with a bit of intelligent thinking."

At lunch, however, he did not refer to the crime; and as if by tacit agreement, the subject was avoided. Markham had merely mentioned the matter, when the waiter came into the dining room that he was expecting Heath a little later.

The sergeant was waiting for us when we retired to the lounge room for our smoke, and by his expression it was evident he was not pleased with the way things were going.

"I told you, Mr. Markham," he said, "when we had drawn up our chairs, 'that this case was going to be a tough one. . . . Could you get any kind of a lead from the St. Clair woman?'"

Markham shook his head.

"She's out of it," and he recounted briefly the happenings at Benson's house the preceding afternoon.

"Well, if you're satisfied," was Heath's somewhat dubious comment, "that's good enough for me. But what about this Captain Leacock?"

"That's what I asked you here to talk about," Markham told him. "There's no direct evidence against him but there are several suspicious circumstances that tend to connect him with the murder. He seems to meet with specifications as to height, and we mustn't overlook the fact that Benson was shot with just such a gun as Leacock would be likely to possess. He was engaged to the girl, and a motive might be found in Benson's attention to her."

"And ever since the big scrap," supplemented Heath, "these army boys don't think anything of shooting people. They got used to blood on the other side."

"The only hitch," resumed Markham, "is that Phelps, who had the job of checking up on the captain, reported to me that he was home that night from 3 o'clock on. Of course, there may be a lot of holesome-where, and I was going to suggest that you have one of your men go into the matter thoroughly and see just what the situation is."

"Phelps got his information from one of the hall boys; and I think it might be well to get hold of the boy again and apply a little pressure. If it was found that Leacock was not at home at 12:30 that night we might have the lead you've been looking for."

"I'll attend to it myself," said Heath. "I'll go round there tonight, and if this boy knows anything, he'll spill it before I'm through with him."

We had talked but a few minutes longer when a uniformed attendant bowed deferentially at the district attorney's elbow and announced that Mr. Plyfe was calling.

Markham requested that his visitor be shown into the lounge room, and then added to Heath:

"You'd better remain, and hear what he has to say."

Leander Plyfe was an immaculate and exquisite personage. He approached us with a mincing gait and self approbation. His legs, which were very long and thin, with knees that seemed to bend slightly inward, supported a short bulging torso; and his chest curved outward with a generous arc, like that of a pouter pigeon.

His face was round and his jowls hung in two loops over a collar too tight for comfort. His blond sparse hair was brushed back sleekly, and the ends of his narrow, silken mustache were waxed into needle points.

He was dressed in light gray summer flannels and wore a pale turquoise green silk shirt, a vivid fawn tie, and gray suede oxfords.

A strong odor of oriental perfume was given off by the carefully arranged batiste handkerchief in his breast pocket.

He greeted Markham with vapid urbanity, and acknowledged his introduction to us with a patronizing bow. After posing himself in a chair the attendant placed for him, he began polishing a gold rimmed eye glass which he wore on a ribbon, and fixed Markham with a melancholy gaze.

"A very sad occasion, this," he sighed.

"Realizing your friendship for Mr. Benson," said Markham, "I deplore the necessity of appealing to you at this time. It was very good of you, by the way, to come to the city today."

Thought For Today
There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.—John 4:18.

Love is a thing full of anxious fears.—Ovid.

The Copper Vat
WITH fall mankind's interest in the table and how much it will hold returns, appetites that faded with the summer are freshened with the tang of the autumn air.

Driving in the country the other day, amid a splendor of red and golden leaves, with beautiful landscapes on every side, we came across a roadside stand where to-matoes were being offered—cheap.

What a smell that was! How many jaded appetites, how many stomachs ruined by a too steady restaurant diet, would welcome that sweet and spicy breeze!

Later on the apple butter was made in that same great copper vat. Hot apple butter on homemade bread! These two memories persist whenever we see a tomato or pass an apple orchard.

Maybe there is something about that after all, about man's new cherished possession being his appetite!

Roosevelt On Trees
PEOPLE without children would face a hopeless future, a country without trees is almost as hopeless. Forests which are so used that they cannot renew themselves soon will vanish, and with them all their benefits.

That is one of the important things that Theodore Roosevelt said. It is being called to mind now by the American Tree Association in observance of Roosevelt's birthday, Oct. 27. Charles Lathrop says that he saw out a call for the schools of the country to use the trees quoted and cited in any birthday program.

Were T. R. alive today, says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the association, "he would be on top of the Mississippi flood control problem with both feet. It was a war he had with him."

In marking Roosevelt's birthday, what finer thing in his honor could be done than turning the thought of the nation to tree planting and trees in his honor? There are millions of idle hands that should be put to work growing trees. The burned-over and cut-over lands, the streams and rivers of the Mississippi valley help to bring on devastating flood conditions.

A tree planted on Oct. 27 would be a beautiful memorial to a great man and serve to help a good cause.

Praise Be
THE feat of Lady Skyline of the hen royalty of Canon City, Colo., in laying 231 eggs on 231 consecutive days calls to mind a number of other quietly clicking heroines about the country who go about their work with little fuss and display and produce splendid results.

We are speaking of the millions of American hens who are now rolling up a total of 24,999,999,999 eggs a year. A recent report of government experts, giving that figure as an estimate of Biddy's output, is a piece of praise to the mother of the poultry family.

We dig less than $50,000,000 worth of gold out of the earth annually. Sale of eggs yields $400,000,000. It seems the hen is the bird that's laying the golden egg these days. More power to her.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says:
That Girl on Broadway says all the girls who go in for painting don't need easels and brushes.

Thousands of visitors will be here tomorrow to attend the Tech-A. and M. game and a lot of us home folks are going to meet some of them. Here's an opportunity for us to talk Lubbock to them right here on the ground and have all of the visible arguments right along the side of us to back up the statements.

Lubbock's progress doesn't strike the hometown folks as forcibly as it does the people who visit here every few months or years. We're on hand all of the time and see the advancement, step by step. The people who are only periodical visitors see each new building complete where a vacant lot was before, see the new paving where rough streets were before, see new sections built up where we have been seeing them for years.

The effect upon the observers is entirely different. To the visitor, Lubbock, it seems, has been building overnight. While we're not advancing quite that rapidly we are making a good showing and we ought to capitalize on it.

Talk Lubbock to the visitors and back up your claims with the facts in plain view.

That Man on Avenue Q says he understands that Hindoo poet is going to lecture in Lubbock but as far as he is concerned he'd rather see him do some of that Hindoo mystic stuff of which he has so often heard.

One Lubbock business man has a wife who belongs to a club and he says that on a day the club meets its members can take for their slogan "We cook not, neither do we sweep."

Some folks think more of a nickle than they do their right eye because they have another eye.

Admiral Thomas Magruder, ex-commander of the Fourth District of the United States Navy, is a sadder but wiser man today. He has learned that it is better to keep quiet and let people think you're a chump rather than to make a lot of noise and prove it to them.

Recently Admiral Magruder, who is a Rear-Admiral, by the way, got his picture in all the papers by writing a magazine article, calling attention to alleged unnecessary expenditures by the navy department.

Admiral Magruder criticized his superiors publicly—in other words, despite his knowledge of military and naval discipline, he talked out of turn. As a result he has been removed of his command. Now as far as The Plainsman knows Admiral Magruder might have been right in his belief—but he was un-expectedly wrong in running to the people with it. He should have turned the matter to the attention of his superiors. That is the way the army and navy are run and that is the way they SHOULD be run.

True, these branches of national defense are the property of the people and the people are entitled to know all about their operation. But this knowledge of operation should come from the man at the top—the authority who is charged with the responsibilities, not from someone else. No doubt upon first reading the story of Admiral Magruder your democratic spirit rebelled and you decided that the officers had been wronged. Yet in the navy where any officer was permitted to speak his mind, where he would be allowed to talk when he should be listening, you'd have a swell navy.

The Plainsman is content to string along with the men in authority. Our navy has managed to give good service when ever called upon, regardless of Admiral Magruder. It rarely pays to listen to the malcontents in any organization.

Judge Clark M. Mullican has been having trouble getting jurors. (Notice that The Plainsman said "has been" having trouble.) A lot of the citizens, it seems, have so much personal business that they just don't have time to serve their country, and as a result the Judge, somewhat fed, is taking steps to remedy the situation. Knowing the Judge as The Plainsman does, he used the term "has been" in the opening sentence of this paragraph, "because you can let your bottom dollar that when he makes up his mind to remedy a situation that situation is GOING TO BE remedied. But seriously speaking this business of dodging jury service is fundamentally wrong. If we had a jury system where officials appointed jurors everybody would be howling to high Heaven about it. We'd all be wanting to serve on the juries and would be mad if we weren't appointed. Better serve when you're summoned and be glad of the opportunity.

Being A Son-In-Law Of Andrew Mellon Is Not What You Might Think: Young Bruce Finds Position Handicaps Him

A New Yorker in Paris
PARIS, Oct. 27.—Art flourishes in Paris even as bright lights flourish on Broadway and automobile factories flourish in Detroit. After a day of the Louvre, the Luxembourg and the byways of Montparnasse, you will agree with me that art in Paris is as great a commonplace as Ford in Main Street. Paris may not have bath tubs; Paris may not have heat and "jambon and oeufs" may be a bit hard to get—but it has enough art to feed the souls of all the creative, star-gazed folk of the world.

And Paris, or rather Parisians, love to remind you that they care nothing for the creature comforts of America. You are so commercial—so machine made. Ah, you have no art!

After a day in the art centers, you stagger dizzily down the street your arms laden with catalogs, hundreds of pages in thickness, showing you not only the art of these places, but the "superior" modernism of Vienna, Berlin, Munich and way points.

Whereupon you may reach a conclusion such as struck me, that there is quite too much art in the world; that overdoes of art can leave one as weary as overdoes of crowds and noises in New York.

Broadway playing, movies, and whatnot.

One is informed that the Louvre is "something to do" on a rainy day and since rain seems perpetual in Paris... at least this season—I was surprised at the smallness of the crowd. And, after one outward glance at the Louvre, as it spreads over several dozen blocks of great open spaces you may hesitate about entering at all, lest you find yourself half way round at the end of a solid week of traveling.

You must plunge boldly in making up your mind what you are going to look for, and strike out.

By visiting every tenth room it is possible to make about a third of the trip through the Louvre in the course of a hectic afternoon. And if you've rushed through the Luxembourg in the morning, there's still time to make the byways of Montparnasse in the evening.

Now Montparnasse hangs its paintings where it finds them, as a Battery vagrant finds shelter. You may see art hanging from the doorways, you may see it decorating the exterior of a sidewalk cafe, or the interior of a bar. You may find it in your pension or you may find it in the cafe where you take dinner. You will find it carefully priced and the varlet waiter can tell you what it's all about and who executed it.

And, after being told night and day that Americans have no art, you will be amazed to find that a goodly percentage of the things you have seen done by Americans. You will be further flabbergasted to find that most of the young artists in front of the cafes are young Americans and when you wander through the colonies at Montclair and Caens, outside of Nice, or trot over to Concarneau in Brittany, you'll see "my country 'tis of thee" written all over the members of the art colonies.

"Ah," the Frenchman will tell you, "But this is the influence of

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Mary Kennedy was working in her kitchen when she heard a faint call for help. For a long time she couldn't locate the sound, although she recognized it as the voice of her 11-year-old son, Eugene. An ambulance surgeon examined him, and said, "All he needs is a bath."

TOO MANY LAWS

MOBILE, Ala.—When Judge Robert S. Hall made his address at the opening of circuit court, he declared that there are at present 1,900,000 laws in the United States, 93,000 of which were placed on the statutes last year. The reason for the non-enforcement of so many laws, he said, "is because 75 per cent of the people do not want them enforced."

UPHOLD THE LAW

According to Collier's Weekly, the only alternative when a law is violated is to repeal the law. In that case we would repeal the laws against murder, rape, arson, robbery and theft. All these laws are violated every day. Collier's has turned against prohibition upon these arguments that enforcement of the law makes for a greater abuse of the evil prohibited. Collier's doesn't mention the fact that all down the ages laws have been violated and corrupt officials have hindered the effectiveness of laws intended to suppress and prevent crime. The evils and crimes chargeable to the use of intoxicating liquors can never be stopped by repealing the laws passed to prevent them any more than murders and other crimes can be prevented by repealing laws prohibiting them. The same principle that would require annulling prohibition would demand that all laws against crime and immorality be repealed. Our idea is to retain our prohibition law and make it stronger. We who have seen the passing of the saloon, know how much better conditions of home life and society are than before prohibition. Bootlegging and moonshine operators would have to be dealt with if prohibition were annulled because they are the same class who have always defied law and order and have kept our criminal courts busy—Exchange.

We have thought for many years that the average person has the wrong idea about laws. Some people, and we believe the majority of the people have an idea that if a law is a bad one, they should not obey it. That only makes matters worse. We are of the opinion that if a bad law is enforced it will say more about laws. Some people, and we believe the majority of the people have an idea that if a law is a bad one, they should not obey it. That only makes matters worse.

Yankee Apple Pie Is Denounced As Cause Of Illness

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Oct. 27.—Apple pie is now blamed for American prosperity.

"American pie breeds dyspepsia, dyspepsia breeds restlessness, and restlessness begets a feverish but none the less formidable material progress," declares the London Evening News in lamenting displacement of the good old English apple pie by foreign substitutes.

"The American apple pie is the sheer gastronomic equivalent of an incendiary bomb."

In its plea for the protection of the revered British apple tart, the News pleads: "Let us have no truck with any restaurateur or maître d'hotel who offers us stewed apples and mass production pastry in that sacred name."

British authorities are much at variance in the description of the real apple tart. Some say it is a small open faced bit of stewed fruit in it. Others say it is a crust over the top with others say it is baked with pastry both under it.

But whichever it is, an Englishman remains loyal to apple pie of their homeland even more emphatic in the citation of British facts than the others are in their staid American pie.

Of course real American pies are seldom produced in the shops. British pastry never shortened to the taste American, and in England the pies are cooked before they are in the crust. So American, in that most Britishers have tasted a real Yankee apple pie consequently have no right to judgment.

HEWED AS INTRUDERS PRIOR TO THIS TIME CONVENTION TOLD

(By Associated Press)
HOUSTON, Oct. 27.—Miss Margaret I. Kelly, active vice-president of the National Bank of Denison, believes that while "women have been more or less identified with a business world for many years, the world war was largely responsible for the permanent foothold they now enjoy."

Miss Kelly was one of the speakers before the convention of the National Association of Bank Women whose members are meeting in conjunction with the American Bankers' association.

War Brought Recognition "Prior to the world war," she said, "they were regarded as but temporary intruders and as such, not considered seriously and their credit standing was not on par with their masculine counterparts."

Reasons for that attitude, she said, was due in a measure to the fact that "so many women are in a bad, a lack, a new sensation which, when the novelty wore off, they disposed of it at times without appraising their creditors or arising with them the proceeds of the sale."

Business and Matrimony
Again, she said, many women regard business merely as a stepping stone to matrimony, and when the opportunity presented by shut up shop and went on their way rejoicing.

The world war, she believes, changed the situation and women are now business seriously and soon developed a latent ability and capacity "which they themselves were unaware they possessed," she said and we now see women, she re-

Denmark Flight Means Much to Them

The attempted flight of Mrs. Frances W. Grayson, Long Island realtor; Erico, Goldsborough, navigator, and Wilmer Stultz, pilot, from New York to Denmark, means a great deal to these three women. In the center, above, is Mrs. Grayson; to the left Mrs. Goldsborough, the navigator's wife, and to the right Mrs. Stultz, wife of the pilot.

acted, "in practically every line of activity, giving all their time, energy and ability to building up a successful and stable business as any presided over by men."

Switching to the question of credit for business women, the speaker said eventually they would find it necessary and desirable to avail themselves of it to develop their particular enterprise. Because, however, of the age-old prejudice against women in business, she usually is timid about asking for financial accommodations and prefers to skip along, economize here and there "when a thirty day loan would permit her to make advantageous purchases or take attractive discounts, at once improve her standing with her wholesalers, materially increase her profits and, with a fixed line of credit, enable her to immediately establish her business on a paying basis."

Approaching a banker, however, seems most difficult for women. The banker, it seems, looks askance at the woman borrower; she is a newcomer in the field and must establish herself as a desirable credit risk, all of which presents to her a "new and terrible country in which she is a frightened and much bewildered wayfarer," even though she knows she is not asking anything more than that to which she is entitled. Miss Kelly believes it was at this point when the woman banker could render inestimable service both to the woman customer and to the bank as well.

"Most women," she said, "have a hesitancy about discussing their affairs with a man, partly because they fear to display their lack of knowledge and experience and partly because a woman is naturally reticent about her personal finances. But where she has confidence in her woman banker, she will talk freely and can be educated to so keep her books that she can readily furnish the information required by the credit department so that her net worth is easily figured and her banker can determine whether her business has possibilities which justify the credit asked. Concentration of all her financial dealings with one strong bank the speaker indicated, would place the business woman in a better position to obtain accommodations. As a rule, Miss Kelly said, she did not do that but placed her account with several banks, just as fancy or friendship dictated. A woman banker, Miss Kelly thought, could soon convince a business woman that such a policy is a mistake, because "a divided account is of but little value and gives her no special standing at any institution."

Another step which women bankers may take, in the business of her woman customer, is to advise her about investments in gilt edge securities which will not only yield a steady income but prove attractive collateral for temporary accommodations and earn for her the reputation of being a conservative business woman of sound judgment. It seems to Miss Kelly in this connection that "in advising them with reference to safe investments, we can render the greatest possible service to our women customers," who if uninitiated, might look on large

Expedition Will Explore Regions Of Eastern Tibet

LENINGRAD, Russia, Oct. 27. (AP)—"The lost world," in the Yangtze district near the eastern borders of Tibet, is to be explored by the Leningrad Geographical society. It is preparing to send east an expedition under the direction of M. Kozloff, a well-known scientist and explorer. Nothing is known to science of the vegetation and fauna of this vast territory, which covers hundreds of square miles.

The scientists of western Europe are said to believe in the existence there of forests of the richest varieties, with trees of enormous dimensions, ferns as large as oaks and fruit trees which would provide food for hundreds of thousands of humans.

The animals of this unexplored region also are strangers to zoologists. Regarding his plans M. Kozloff says, "The sources of the Yangtze-Kiang have attracted much attention will have to carry out its work everywhere, as the country has never been explored thoroughly. The expedition's task will be to investigate the upper tributaries of the river the source of which is outside China and lies on the Tibetan plateau near the Kuen Lun Chain, which likewise remains uninvestigated. The expedition will have to carry out its work under most trying conditions, some times in mountain passes 15,000 feet high. These passes have always been a source of danger to explorers not so much on account of their steep and crazy nature and cold winds as because of the rapified air."

NEW HIGH MARK IN RECEIPT OF HOGS IS SEEN

FORT WORTH MARKET SEPTEMBER TOTAL IS WELL OVER AUGUST

(By Associated Press) FORT WORTH, Oct. 27.—The rush of hogs to market, begun early this year and maintained since...

for brief periods, continued during September at a rate accelerated considerably over that of August, according to the monthly report of the Fort Worth Stockyards company recently released here. During September hog receipts here totaled 24,945, 7,312 coming by truck and 17,633 by rail as compared with 18,322 received in August and 17,926 in July. These supplies brought the total receipts of hogs for 1927 to 270,569, or 115,839 more than had been received at the end of September, 1926.

ity that a new record will be set. Last year's mark of 217,197 was bettered during July, a comparatively dull month, according to this year's standards of marketing. The big jump in receipts this year is generally ascribed by buyers here to the increase in hog population over last year, to the good demand resulting in high prices for feed this year.

MOVE STARTED TO SAVE GREAT STONE STATUE

N. HAMPSHIRE WOULD BUY LARGE TRACT AS PUBLIC PARK

(By Associated Press) CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 27.—A threat of despoliation has brought lovers of nature to the rescue of the Great Stone Face, age-old sculpture of nature made famous by Hawthorne, Lowell and Webster.

in progress to obtain $100,000 from private contributors, each of whom is offered opportunity to name a forest tree in the region. The other $100,000 would be paid out of revenue on concessions. Acquisition of the region for a preserve will prevent the denuding of its hillsides, and will avert danger of displacement of any part of the profile of the Great Stone Face from blasts of quarrymen. Found in 1805. It was in 1805 that workmen building the first rough road through Franconia notch discovered the Great Stone Face towering 1,200 feet above them. Later Hawthorne, in his story "The Great Stone Face," wrote: "It seems as if an enormous giant of Titan had sculptured his own likeness on the perpendicular. Its fast lips, if they could have spoken, would have rolled their thunder accents from one end of the valley to the other."

DIFFERENT FACE—BUT SAME HABITS. SAN FRANCISCO—Jim Dady came out of prison three months ago, a chastened, sober, but still very ugly man. "A guy with a mug like mine," he wailed, "hasn't got a chance to go straight. Nobody will give me a job, just because I was made to look like the popular conception of a criminal." So Jim had his face remodeled by plastic surgery, and lectured from pulpits and before women's clubs on this new and successful method of rehabilitating criminals. "But the plastic surgeon forgot to remodel Jim's habits when he fixed his face. Dady is in jail again, facing a sentence of from one to six years. ONLY THE VERY BEST IS CONSIDERED BY MRS. IDA M. CHITWOOD

Not a little of the success to be enjoyed in cooking and baking comes from the quality of the products in use.

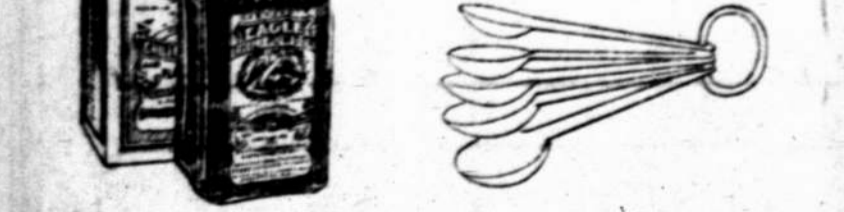

BELL GRADE 'A' PASTEURIZED MILK WAS SELECTED BY THIS COOKING EXPERT BECAUSE OF ITS QUALITY AND PURITY. THERE COULD BE NO HIGHER TRIBUTE.

BELL ICE CREAM COMPANY

MRS. CHITWOOD'S ADVICE IS--

Keep Gebhardt's Eagle Chili Powder always on hand in 2 places

In the Kitchen... in the bottle in which it comes from the grocer's keep Gebhardt's Eagle Chili Powder within easy reach! Add it to any American cooked food... to soups, stews, vegetables, baked dishes, fish, meats! Always depend on Eagle Chili Powder to give the real Mexican flavor in any Mexican dish.

In the Dining Room... in a table shaker, filled from your large bottle, keep Gebhardt's Eagle Chili Powder on the table every meal. Let each individual enjoy its flavor and color to suit the taste.

Eagle Chili Powder... vivid, flaming red gives salads a color touch you cannot obtain in any other way. And flavor!... mildly hot, delicately spiced... delicious! Alice Bradley's new book, "Salads—Alluring and New" tells how, beautifully illustrated. At the Cooking School ask for it! Given free. Also "Mexican Cookery" Recipe Booklet.

Flashes Of Life
(By The Associated Press)
Sees New War
NEW YORK - A devious Anglo-American war is regarded as a possibility by Lieutenant Commander J. M. Kenworthy, M. P. He has written a book in which he says that if events move in the next ten years as they have in the last nine England will stand at the head of a European federation of distrust against America. In the war he fears he thinks Japan will be on the side of Great Britain and Canada will be neutral.

Throes Of War
MERIDEN, Conn. - The hero of Santiago regards America now in the throes of a great war, said Captain Richmond P. Hobson at the state W. C. T. convention. "Evidently the liquor traffic of the world has combined with the opium traffic and America is under siege on all coastal line and our land frontiers."

Good Friendship
NEW YORK - As expressed by James Malcolm, Canadian minister of trade and commerce, in an address here: "The deep friendship of Canada for the United States is an indication of the amity among all branches of the Anglo-Saxon race, a foundation upon which rests the future of world peace."

Bobs And Skirts
PORTLAND, Me. - Bobs and short skirts have official approval for teachers in Maine, said Dr. Augustus G. Thomas, state commissioner of education, in a radio address: "I want my teacher to be up-to-date, I want her to be as good looking as she can make herself, I want her to be in reasonable style. She will have a greater influence in her school if she is."

Real Pessimist
NEW YORK - At a cost of $100,000 A. B. See, wealthy maker of elevators, is publishing a book on education, "I attack all the schools, all the colleges," he explains. "None of them is any good."

Queer Old Cupid
NEW YORK - Dr. William Leroy Cahill of Palestine, Texas, is to be married twice to his fifth wife. A widower twice and twice divorced he married Madeline Romanoff, twice a widow, in a civil ceremony. They are to be married again in the Greek orthodox church. The bride, born in Russia, is the daughter of Michael Romanoff and the Countess Lillian Chevalier de la Serre.

Wealthy Flier
CAMDEN, N. J. - Because he wants to fly as long as he can and die like a gentleman, Alexis Felix Dupont, 22, heir to millions, is going to San Antonio to join the army air service. He will receive $75 a month plus $1 a day for his keep.

GUARD IN BANK CONCEALED BY BRONZE FIGURE

ONE-POUND GUNS ARE READY FOR SERVICE ON SHORT NOTICE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27—“Energy,” the huge bronze figure of a man beside the doorway to the Fourth Federal Reserve bank building in Cleveland has all the appearance of a friendly workman taking a needed rest.

But his stalwart figure is a shield behind which lies protection for the king's ransom of money that are stored in the vaults behind his broad back.

Were there an attack on the bank, the panels at the feet of the statue would swing back and the noses of a row of vicious looking one-pounders would be disclosed ready to bark from beneath “Energy's feet.”

There are other innocent looking statues in front of the big building that are camouflage for the muzzles of guns put there to protect the gold stored in the bank. As much as $500,000,000 has been held at one time in the vaults.

Designers of the building say the statue of “Energy” is the only one decorating a federal reserve bank in the United States which combines beauty with the sterner requirements that might follow in the wake of revolution or a major catastrophe.

Nothing short of a mass attack on the building, however, would bring to the surface the belligerent side of “Energy's” nature, and he probably will finish his days without showing his temper.

“Miss Security” and “Miss Integrity,” marble maidens who stand on either side of another entrance to the structure would be in the thick of defending the stored treasure if necessary. Behind each, in the walls of the building, are removable granite slabs which make way for the muzzles of guns.

Just inside the walls of the building, and extending around all four sides, is a steel-lined hallway. On the inside, port holes command the interior of the building and removable panels in the outer wall permit a raking fire on the streets below.

Under the eye of armed guards is a “security court” into which armored trucks, used in transporting money to and from the banks, are driven. Every square inch of the court is within the range of fire from some part of the protected corridor.

Striking Miners Would Halt Work In Fremont Field

(By Associated Press)

DENVER, Oct. 27—The “placard” of striking coal miners of northern Colorado to the Fremont county coal fields, more than a hundred miles away started from LaFayette, Colo., this morning. More than 500 miners in sixty automobiles started the trip which was planned by I. W. W. leaders to attempt to induce the Fremont county miners to join in the strike. Miners in Fremont county have refused to heed the strike call and on several occasions have denounced the I. W. W.

Champing equipment was strapped on the sides of cars and the party took food enough to last several days. No women or children were taken. K. Clemens, chairman of the strike committee in the northern Colorado fields, was in charge of the procession and he issued orders that the invasion of Fremont county must be carried on in a peaceable manner.

The trip is expected to take five hours. In Las Animas county in the southern fields the strike continued to spread and the coal mining industry there was nearing the point of almost complete suspension.

The practice of boycotting gets its name from Captain Charles C. Boycott, agent of an Irish lord, and the first man boycotted by the Irish people in their movement against landlords in 1880.
