ROBIN'S RECORD FLIGHT ENDS AT 420 HOURS

Rock Island Official Details Plans For $4,250,000 Lines

FRITCH TELLS EXAMINER OF HUGE OUTLAY

Quanah-Shamrock Branch Would Be Constructed Of Heavy Rails

BIGGER FACILITIES

Terminal at Shamrock and Enlarged Shops at Amarillo Planned

FORT WORTH, July 30. (AP)—A four and a quarter million dollar railroad, with attendant handling facilities, was promised the rich east panhandle of Texas at the interstate commerce commission hearing here today.

T. C. Fritch, vice president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf railway, which is seeking to build from Quanah to Shamrock, 74 miles, as a witness for the Rock Island, said plans called for the expenditure of $4,217,854. The road, which would connect with the planned St. Louis-San Francisco branch from Seymour to Vernon, would be constructed of 80-pound rail and would bring about consequent development of the panhandle including Shamrock, Wellington, Amarillo and other towns, Fritch said.

Would Add to Shops

Fritch declared the Rock Island now is spending $200,000 yearly for terminal facilities at El Reno, but that if the interstate commerce commission grants application for the Quanah-Shamrock line that would be discontinued eventually and terminal equipment installed at Shamrock. Other Rock Island officials indicated shops and offices would be opened and enlarged at Amarillo.

The Rock Island vice president said, however, that his road would not construct the Quanah-Shamrock branch if the Frisco were denied its application for the Seymour-Vernon line which would give a direct route to Fort Worth via the leased Gulf, Texas and Western railway to Jacksboro and the Rock Island from Jacksboro to Fort Worth. Shamrock, northern terminus of the new tap into the panhandle, is 96 miles east of Amarillo and on the Rock Island main line.

Frisco Testimony Ends

Testimony on the Frisco's proposal to obtain trackage rights on the Rock Island from Jacksboro to Fort Worth, lease the G. T. & W. and construct the line from Seymour to Vernon previously had been concluded. The Rock Island then asked permission to build a connecting branch from Quanah to the Vernon-Seymour route at Beaver Creek, a 34-mile road.

Shortens Distance

T. H. Wilhelm of the Rock Island traffic department, told I. C. C. examiner Charles D. Mahaffie the new road would shorten the distance to Dallas and Fort Worth markets from the Panhandle by about 57 miles. The present route, via El Reno, is 4 7.6 miles, he said, while the new direct line would be 378.3 miles. He said he expected the new line to be profitable because of the development of the East Panhandle with an increase in oil, casinghead gasoline and carbon black transportation. M. J. Dowlin, assistant general freight agent for the Rock Island, said he estimated the Rock Island would increase its earnings $897,320 the first year and $816,147 the fifth year after the new line opened.

The Frisco's presentation of testimony ended abruptly when Examiner Mahaffie objected to cumulative testimony during the interrogation of E. E. Gose, Quanah real estate operator. Mahaffie said Gose's testimony did not cover new ground.

Statistician Heard

H. W. Press, Frico statistician, had testified as to the earnings of the planned Vernon-Seymour line, adding that expenses could be considerably reduced. The G. T. and W. shops at Jermyn could be closed, he said, effecting a savings.

M'KELVIE FILLS FARM BOARD

Former Nebraska Governor Is Appointed

WASHINGTON, July 30. (AP)—Former Governor McKelvie, of Nebraska, was appointed today to the federal farm board, completing its membership.

This was announced late today at the White House, where it was said that McKelvie's acceptance was conditioned by a reservation that he be permitted to withdraw if he desires at the end of a year.

McKelvie will represent the grain producing industry on the farm board.

President Hoover conferred with the new board member shortly before the announcement was made.

It was said at the White House that McKelvie had been endorsed by a large number of farm organizations. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and publishes an agricultural magazine known as the Nebraska Farmer. He went by successive political steps from membership in the city council of Lincoln to the governorship of his state, which position he held from 1919 to 1923.

GARDNER BUYS SANTONE ACE FOR SPUDDERS

O'Neal Goes to Indians In Deal Which Brings Andy Messenger

'HEAVY CASH' FIGURES

New Wichita Falls Hurler Rated as One of Best In League

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Andy Messenger is a Spudder.

Purchase of the elongated right-hander, ace of the San Antonio pitching staff, was announced Tuesday night by President J. Alvin Gardner of the Wichita Falls club. The deal became effective immediately and Messenger will wear the white uniform of the home club here today.

The purchase price was not announced but in addition to a bundle of kale, Pitcher Skinny O'Neal is transferred to the Indians.

Messenger is one of the leading pitchers of the league. In his last start against the Spudders, last week, he struck out 10 and allowed only six hits, but was beaten by George Payne, 3 to 2.

Texas league averages through games of last Thursday show Andy has worked in 27 contests this season with 11 victories and 11 defeats. He was secured late in 1927 by San Antonio from Kansas City and for several years has been a highly successful pitcher in the American association and Texas league.

The purchase of Messenger was the second acquisition of pitchers in successive days by Gardner, Paul Hopkins having been obtained Monday from the St. Louis Browns. Hopkins joined the Wichita Falls club yesterday. He also is a right-hander.

In obtaining Messenger and Hopkins, Gardner is fulfilling his promise to go to any expense to acquire the players who will win the 1929 pennant for Wichita Falls. With spotty pitching the only fault of the Spudders it is believed that the two new additions will provide just the aid necessary to help Payne, Steengrafe and Wiltse and enable the Spudders to cop the 1929 gonfalon.

The deal was consummated just 24 hours or so before the last day for intra-league deals. After tonight at midnight Texas league clubs cannot make player swaps with other teams in this circuit.

Carl Williams, manager of the Texas league and Dixie champions of 1927, and still one of Gardner's chief lieutenants, was in town last night. Carl, directing the ranch at Abilene, developing ground for future Spudders, will leave tonight on a scouting trip through the South. One of the most popular players and managers who ever pastimed here, Williams was greeting lots of old friends last night.

Pajama Heroes Stage Parade On Chicago's Main Drag and Live!!

CHICAGO, July 30. (US)—Girls, it was a scream!

What? Why Chicago's first, and perhaps last, pajama parade.

Talk about your heroes of the Light Brigade—those boys were pikers as compared with the nerve of a half-dozen men who today braved the multitude of Michigan avenue attired in pyro-technical pajamas.

The first "hero" appeared 45 minutes late—but what a sight. He was a medley in green. He came swinging a cane and in his right hand he carried gloves and on his head rested a sailor straw.

Some of the younger generation decided on a "bum's rush" for the "hero" but the police changed their minds.

Then came the other five.

Followed by great crowds that completely demoralized traffic the riots of color took up their march along Gay Boul Mich.

It's a good idea but although man has been known not to be against sleeping in his working clothes it's unlikely that he will take kindly to working in the sleeping clothes.

Sustained Flight Champions

Dale (Red) Jackson, (left) pilot, and Forrest O'Brine, co-pilot of the plane St. Louis-Robin, brought their ship to land at 7:37 o'clock Tuesday evening after 400 hours in the air, having eclipsed all records.

J. Frank Norfleet, Carrying His 'Cannon,' Hunts Slayer in East

Hale Center's Sleuth De Luxe Invades New York Looking For Murderer and Swindler

NEW YORK, July 30—A diminutive Texan, packing an old-type frontier six-shooter and wearing a quiet gray suit in the pockets of which was one warrant for a murderer and another for a swindler, appeared in police headquarters yesterday to get a permit to carry his cannon and to obtain what information he could about his quarry.

He gave his name as J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center, Texas, and stated his mission to a more or less disinterested attendant. He waited a little while, unnoticed by the passersby except for a remark or two about his lack of height and weight, when suddenly a door was thrown open and a high official of the police department came out to greet him with open arms.

It was then the attendant learned that his little man had, single handed, tracked down and arrested 62 criminals since 1919, all of whom are either still serving time or have served their time. He told the high official his mission and explained he was looking for John Teal of Bailey county, Texas, charged with the murder in April of Evelyn Monts, a young school teacher. His other man wanted in Texas for conducting a highly successful confidence game.

Arrests All Over Union

Later a reporter found Mr. Norfleet in his room in the Hotel Knickerbocker and learned how he a wealthy Texas rancher with an 18,000-acre ranch in the Panhandle came to be one of the most widely known criminal hunters in the country.

He was sitting on the sofa, his feet barely touching the floor and his six-shooter sticking from a specially made holster as he recounted how he had trailed his 62 victims from California to Florida and from New York to Texas armed with two guns, a deputy sheriff's commission from Texas and a commission in the Texas rangers. With these four friends he made arrests in almost every state in the union. Two of those arrests were sheriffs in California, now serving 14 years each in San Quentin prison, and one a judge in the same state.

Ready to Retire

"Are you going on with your detective work?" he was asked.

"I don't think so," he drawled. "The last time I went home in disguise my daughter, Ruth, didn't recognize me, so I reckon I'll just stay around the house for a while and get to know my family."

He expects to remain in New York for a month, just seeing the town and looking out for his murderer and confidence man.

Fruit Fly Quarantine Hard on Rum Runners

WOMAN JUROR IN SNOOK CASE GETS THE AIR

Model Spinster-Nurse Dismissed After Lunch With Attorney

PHOTO PROCURED

Picture of Jolly Meeting Leads Prosecutor To Take Action

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 30. (UP)—The dismissal of a woman juror who talked over old friends with an attorney, and the illness of the defendant were the high lights in the trial of Dr. James Howard Snook today.

Snook, until he got into trouble a professor at Ohio State university, is accused of the murder of Miss Theora Hix, his college sweetheart.

Miss Edith Dysinger was the member of the jury dismissed. She was the first person examined last week for jury duty and she had passed with colors flying. Her record as a spinster and a nurse had made her acceptable, it was understood, to both sides.

But today at the noon recess, a photographer found her munching sandwiches with Max Seyfert of defense counsel. Seyfert, an affable fellow who has been variously described locally as resembling either Calvin Coolidge or Al Jolson, was smiling broadly and Miss Dysinger seemed to be enjoying herself. The photographer snapped a picture and in 30 minutes the picture was in the office of John J. Chester Jr., the prosecutor.

Judge Sees Picture

When court convened for the afternoon session Chester gave the picture to Judge Henry L. Scarlett and when the midafternoon recess was taken Judge Scarlett gathered the attorneys around him and they talked the matter over.

It was just a chummy conversation with much smiling by all concerned. But it brought out the fact that the father of Seyfert and the father of Miss Dysinger had been friends back 40 years ago. The families had much in common. Seyfert had not recognized Miss Dysinger, whom he had not seen for years if ever, until after she was passed for jury duty today he met her at the pop stand, which is a feature of the courthouse here, and they began talking about the folks over in Amanda, Ohio. Seyfert wanted to know if her folks were all well and was glad they were and Miss Dysinger wanted to know all about all the Seyferts now that Max had come to be a mighty good lawyer down in Circleville.

Woman Loses "Honor"

It was that sort of a conversation, but it cost Miss Dysinger the honor of perhaps being the only woman on the Doctor Snook jury and it gave Seyfert some irritated moments, for he didn't like to have his picture published munching sandwiches with the spinster member of the jury.

All in all, the day was an encouraging one. Everybody was in good humor and making things easy for everybody else. A sort of chumminess was in the atmosphere of the courtroom and people got right down and talked things over in real friendly fashion.

Rain-Drenched Crowd Of 20,000 Hails Close Of Sustained Flying Feat

'Human Dynamos' Outlast Machine When Curtis Craft Shows Signs of Weakening After Being in Air 420 Hours And 20 Minutes

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 30. (UP)—The longest flight in the history of aviation ended virtually under compulsion here tonight when the St. Louis-Robin made a perfect "three-point" landing at 7:37 p. m.

Pilots Dale (Red) Jackson and Forrest (Obie) O'Brine, who took off at 7:17 a. m., July 13, had been continuously aloft for 420 hours 20 minutes, or approximately 17½ hours longer than any other men in history.

20,000 Greet Heroes

The nearest approach to the Robin's record was that of Loren Mendell and Robert Reinhart, who early this month piloted their "Angeleno" 246 hours, 43 minutes, 32 seconds, a mark extended by the Robin one full week at 2:01 p. m. today.

An exultant but dripping wet crowd of more than 20,000 spectators raised a deafening greeting as the Robin finally shot to earth.

They—with the Robin—were trapped for the better part of an hour before the landing by a sudden rain squall that drenched the flying field.

No one paid more than passing notice to the storm, however.

Twenty minutes before the end of the long flight the crowd broke through the police lines.

When the Robin finally flashed its green landing flare at 7:34 p. m., the crowd moved out as much as it dared.

Plane Illuminated

As the plane came to a stop, frenzied admirers of the pilots pulled them out and bore them off the field on their shoulders.

Flares were lit to illuminate the the plane, which was promptly dragged to a hangar by a snorting tractor.

Flashlight pictures were taken of Jackson and O'Brine—both smiling broadly the confident smiles they wore aloft nearly 18 days ago. Policemen finally were able to corral them in a protected area.

Apparently determined to mark up at least 420 hours, Jackson and O'Brine reached that point at 7:17 p. m., tonight and gave the crowd a run for its money. The storm had stopped and a landing appeared possible at any moment.

Fliers Appear Fresh

As the plane came to a stop at the far side of the field, it taxied up toward the hangar, but stopped short of the surging crowd, which promptly engulfed it. Field guards, however, surrounded the plane and escorted Jackson and O'Brine unharmed to an automobile.

Both fliers stepped out of the plane almost as fresh as they did 18 days ago. They were clean shaven, wore fresh white linen shirts and both carried straw hats in their hand. Their physical condition appeared excellent.

"Outside of feeling a little tired, we feel fine," Jackson remarked as policemen guided the two fliers into an awaiting automobile and took them to a nearby hangar.

There they were met by their wives and posed for still and motion pictures. Later they were bundled into the automobile again and driven downtown to an exclusive hotel which turned over its double bridal suite for them to rest up in.

Two Persons Injured

Two persons suffered injuries in the crush of the crowd after the landing of the Robin. A movie-tone employe was reported "knocked out" when bowled off a truck. He was taken to a hospital. A woman was slightly injured when forced back by a policeman. She vigorously remonstrated with him.

O. R. Parks, field manager of Lambert-St. Louis field, in an effort to restore complete order, broadcast a reprimand to those members of the crowd who violated the rules and requested all present "to act like real citizens; get into your cars and go back home."

Considering the size of the crowd, 25,000 spectators probably behaved as well under the circumstances as any similar gathering in America.

Many Guards Posted

Word that Jackson and O'Brine would bring their craft down tonight was contained in a message dropped earlier in the afternoon, but withheld from publication until 4:50 p. m.

Earlier announcement the landing would occur "tonight" drew thousands of St. Louisans out into St. Louis county, 19 miles from the center of the city, to witness the spectacle.

Special guards and deputy sheriffs were posted at strategic points in all parts of Lambert-St. Louis field to preserve order and to prevent any possibility of stampeding the plane.

Jackson is a native of Faribault,

PREPARATIONS FOR ZEPPELIN'S FLIGHT RUSHED

Three Women Included In List of 21 Passengers To Make Voyage

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 30. (AP)—Final preparations were rushed today for the start at dawn Thursday of the Graf Zeppelin for America. Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the big ship, said he was thoroughly satisfied with the motors.

The passengers list of 21 includes three women, two of whom are Americans, and in all nine Americans are booked for the trip. One of the women, Mrs. Henry J. Pierce of New York, was aboard the Zeppelin on the unsuccessful flight in May which ended in southern France.

Increased precautions for safety have been taken by the constructors for the forthcoming venture, one new contrivance it is stated will enable the airship to float on the water if she has to come down in midocean. Another innovation is a number of protective pneumatic buffers, attached to the lower surfaces of the five gondolas containing the motors.

The voyage of the Graf Zeppelin to America will in a way be a trial flight prior to the circumnavigation of the world by the craft, scheduled to start from Lakehurst a few days later after the ship's arrival there.

The itinerary of this round the world trip called for the departure from Lakehurst, Aug. 7, with the completion of the world circuit at the same airport Aug. 29.

The flight will be made eastward.

Dallas' Chewing Gum King Enters Race for Governor; Plans Air Tour

DALLAS, July 30. (AP)—The forthcoming race for governor received an added starter today when Col. William E. Easterwood Jr. of Dallas threw his flying helmet into the ring.

Colonel Easterwood's announced platform was brief but catchy: "Lower taxes and fewer laws."

In announcing his candidacy Colonel Easterwood said he had been importuned by hundreds of friends to make the race. He has not previously run for an elective office.

The new candidate, the sixth Dallas man to announce, has gained international prominence through his sponsorship of nonstop airplane flights. Four days ago he posted $25,000 for the first nonstop flight from Rome to Dallas.

FRITCH TELLS OF RAIL PLANS

Rock Island Head Lists Expenditures

veston, Fort Worth, Dallas, Sherman, McKinney and Kingfisher, testified he believed the Rock Island-Frisco route from the Panhandle would be better than the Fort Worth and Denver City line because the latter line favored Kansas City in shipping grain. He declared a more direct route to Fort Worth and Dallas would increase his profits as well as those of grain raisers. His plants handled 12,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1928, he testified.

Indications today were that the hearing could not end before Saturday.

Testimony is yet to be introduced on the Fort Worth and Denver's application for a line from Childress to Pampa via Wellington and the Clinton and Oklahoma Western's plea for an extension in Gray county.

When J. D. Hutcheson, vice president of the St. Louis and San Francisco railway of Texas, was on the stand, testifying as to the necessity of the sale of the Gulf, Texas and Western railway to the Frisco, J. H. Barwise, attorney for the Fort Worth and Denver City, attempted to examine the witness as to passenger train schedules over the new route. Barwise intimated the Fort Worth and Denver did not look with favor on any line which would decrease the road's passenger traffic from Quanah and Vernon to Fort Worth and Dallas.

The Frisco has proposed the purchase of the Gulf, Texas & Western from Seymour to Salesville and the construction of a new 44-mile road from Seymour to Vernon. Then the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf railway company would build a connecting line from the Vernon-Seymour route to Quanah. Quanah and Seymour are on the Fort Worth & Denver line from the Panhandle.

Daily Freight Promised

Hutcheson promised daily freight train service, jointly by the Frisco and Rock Island, between Quanah, Vernon and Dallas over the new line with one day delivery to points on that route from Dallas and Fort Worth. The freight trains, he said, would leave Quanah and Vernon about 4 p. m., meeting at Beaver creek, reaching Fort Worth at 6 a. m., and Dallas at 8 a. m., the next morning. Trains the other way would leave Dallas at about 4 p. m., reaching Quanah and Vernon at 8 a. m. Under Gulf, Texas & Western operation between Salesville, Jacksboro and Seymour only three freight trains have been operated each way weekly.

Hutcheson declared car shortage would not handicap the new line since the Frisco had been short of equipment only during June, heavy grain shipping month in the Panhandle. Residents on the Gulf, Texas & Western had contended service over that line was unsatisfactory since equipment was not always available. The Gulf, Texas Western, with no equipment of its own, has been getting cars from lines which were to finish the haul.

The Frisco official also denied his road had any intention of abandoning the Gulf, Texas and Western between Jacksboro and Salesville, where it connects with the Texas and Pacific.

On cross examination, Hutcheson said he was not familiar with arrangements for passenger service on the new route.

The other major witness of the morning was B. H. Stannidge, Frisco traffic manager, who said freight rates would be considerably decreased to Gulf, Texas and Western shippers. Commodities on which rates would be decreased are cottonseed, cottonseed oil, grains, cattle, oil, sand, gravel, crushed stone, building stone and lumber, Stannidge declared. He said he believed competitive traffic from Quanah to Vernon to Fort Worth and Dallas markets would be beneficial.

Seymour Men Testify

Five other witnesses on the Gulf, Texas and Western told I. C. C. Examiner Charles D. Mahaffie and Texas Railroad Commissioners Lon Smith, C. V. Terrell and Clarence Gilmore, who are sitting in the hearing, they believed the proposed changes, with a Rock Island extension into the Panhandle from Quanah via Wellington to Shamrock would be beneficial. The witnesses: W. H. Baker, Loving merchant; A. E. Smith, Jean ginner; Clyde Haden, Graham mill operator; J. E. Hightower, Graham lumber man, who has branches at Jean, Megargel, Olney and Seymour; Charles S. Richardson, Olney oil and cattleman.

H. W. Press, Frisco statistician, said the Vernon-Seymour line would add a new railway operating income of $95,318 per year on a five-year average; the Jacksboro-Fort Worth line $56,547 and the Quanah-Beaver Creek connection $2,331.

Speakers Stress Need of Tax Reform In Texas at Realtors' Luncheon

Wichita Bearing More Than Its Share of State Levies, Marrs And Curlee Tell Board

Pressing need of tax reform in Texas was explained by Walter S. Curlee and County Judge John Marrs before the bi-weekly meeting of the Wichita Falls Real Estate board at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

Mr. Curlee advanced a number of illustrations to support his contention that Wichita county bears more than its due share of taxation imposed by the state. Although there are 244 counties in the state larger than Wichita county, only five other counties show as much or more tax payment on city or state property than this county, he said. Wichita county pays taxes on 21,000 head of cattle, Wilbarger county on 15,000 head, and Baylor county of 17,000 head, although each of those counties is almost twice as large as Wichita, and presumably more largely given to the raising of cattle.

Values Compared

Comparison of taxes on cotton growing lands also was drawn by the speaker. Collin county, reputed to be one of the best cotton districts in the state, pays taxes on a $25 per acre valuation, while Wichita county pays on a $50 valuation, he said.

"While the taxable value of the state has increased about $100,000,000 annually during the last 10 years, bonds voted and filed in Texas last year totalled $104,000,000. At this rate, our indebtedness is increasing faster than our values," Mr. Curlee declared.

The speaker urged the equalization of farm values in this county for taxation purposes, and said that ownership of homes and land can not be made desirable if taxes and building costs are to be increased constantly. Deep wells and increased participation in the development of air traffic were named as factors which sould stimulate business in this city.

Inequalities Stressed

"Tax collectors in Texas receive annually more than $1,300,000 in fees and commissions above their regular salaries," said Mr. Curlee, "representing an average of almost $5,000 to each collector in the state."

Judge Marrs, in a brief address, also condemned the fee system now in use in Texas, and expressed the opinion that five officers in the local courthouse receive from $7,000 to $10,000 per year through this system.

"The inequalities of the present tax situation in the state are clearly shown," he said, "by the fact that nearly 100 counties in East Texas receive more money from the state than they pay in taxes."

CHATHAM RETURNS FROM RAIL HEARING

J. W. Chatham, traffic and industrial manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, returned Tuesday from Fort Worth, where more than 150 representatives of various Northwest Texas communities attended the hearing of the Interstate Commerce commission Monday on six applications for new railroad construction in this territory.

Primary interest of the Wichita Falls community, it was said, centered in the application of the Fort Worth and Denver to construct a new line from Childress through Wellington and Shamrock to Pampa. Remaining applications seek ownership of the G. T. & W., construction of a line from Seymour to Vernon, another by the Rock Island from Pampa to a point near Quanah, thence to a proposed new Frisco line from Quanah toward Seymour.

Mr. Chatham filed for the local chamber of commerce an intervening petition supporting the Denver's application for the proposed Panhandle road. Representations of the local organization emphasized, however, that Wichita Falls is impartially interested in any development of railroad lines in West Texas.

Mr. Chatham and J. C. Mytinger probably will go to Fort Worth later in the week in connection with the Fort Worth & Denver's application when it comes before the commission for definite consideration.

Quanah, Childress, Seymour, Olney, Jacksboro, Electra, Vernon and other cities in this section were represented at the meeting.

dairying, poultry raising, beef feeding, etc.

2. The organization as it now exists is expected to continue to function and that there is not now any expectation or any need for expansion in the personnel of the staff.

3. The Vernon Chamber of Commerce has loaned the services of its secretary-manager, Grady Shipp, without cost to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, as personal assistant to the president-manager. Mr. Shipp is not now has not been in the past and will not be in the future an applicant for any office in connection with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. He is simply serving as personal assistant to the president-manager and continues his services with the Vernon Chamber of Commerce and as soon as the term of office of the president-manager expires, Mr. Shipp will continue to devote his time exclusively to his position at Vernon.

It is further stated that never Mr. Bourland, nor any member of the advisory committee attending the Fort Worth meeting has any inclination to suggest who may be selected at the El Paso convention for the position of general manager. Our sole purpose in undertaking the obligations imposed upon the committee by the directors at Abilene, June 20, 1929, is to continue the work of the organization and have its affairs in the most splendid condition possible at the time of the El Paso convention, and to this purpose the advisory committee have pledged themselves and call upon the friends of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to render every assistance to bring this purpose about in order that at the El Paso convention the organization will present a record of achievement equal to any year's work in the past and enjoy the most wonderful convention of all time.

4. It is to be our policy to work with and through the local chambers of commerce throughout West Texas and we earnesly solicit the active and wholehearted support of the secretaries and other officials of the local chambers of commerce.

ROBIN CLOSES AIR MARATHON

Endurance Mark Stands At 420 Hours, 20 Minutes

Minn., where his parents still reside on the Jackson farm.

O'Brine is from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where his parents still live.

When the St. Louis-Robin went aloft it was announced by the Curtiss-Robertson Manufacturing company, makers of the plane and backers of the flight, that it was to be a motor-testing flight. Nothing was said about a new world's endurance record.

Assault on Record

But when the Robin roared steadily on past its hundredth hour, the flight developed into a determined assault on the record of the monoplane Angeleno, which remained over California for 246 hours.

At 2:01 p. m. Tuesday, July 23, the orange monoplane, roaring in circles over the skyscrapers of downtown St. Louis, passed the record of the Angeleno, while crowds cheered and sirens screamed the best wishes of the city.

An hour later at 3:17 p. m. a new official record was established and from then on a new world endurance record was made and broken with every turn of the Robin's propeller.

Among the thousands who saw the plane break the record of the Angeleno, were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O'Brine, parents of "Obie," and the flier's brother, Robert, 17, and his sister, Ruby, 18. They arrived by automobile from Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Jacksons Arrive

The next day Jackson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry "Shucks" Jackson arrived from Faribault, Minn., in a sister plane of the Robin, with the following greeting painted on the fuselage.

"Hello son. We are proud of you. Mother and dad."

Proud and willing neighbors milked the cows and fed the hens on the Jackson farm at Faribault to make the trip of "Pa" and "Ma" Jackson possible.

Weather meanwhile continued beautifully calm and the Robin forged steadily ahead, passing the 300-hour mark at 7:17 p. m., Thursday, July 27.

As the hours fell behind and the Robin's Challenger motor continued to roar powerfully and smoothly, crowds such as only Lindbergh had drawn, began to gather at Lambert-St. Louis field.

Wives Prepare Meals

The fliers' wives, Mrs. Elsie Jackson and Mrs. Sally O'Brine, were swamped with congratulations and offers of donations from scores of business firms. "Elsie" and "Sally" prepared at the O'Brine home, near Newport, the meals which the refueling plane lowered to their husbands.

Gifts and donations for the fliers poured in from every side, some of them sincere and substantial, some laughable, and some obvious "publicity stunts." One Chicago false teeth firm offered its "services at any time."

The total rewards per day for each of the men amounted to almost $3,000 by the end of the second week. This included a $100 per hour bonus from the Curtiss Airplane company, makers of the Challenger motor.

Life on the Robin was not the wearing monotonous grind that endurance flights have heretofore been. The plane carried shaving equipment, changes of clothing and facilities for a daily sponge bath.

O'Brine had his most embarrassing moment when a sightseeing plane flew too close while he was taking his bath.

The fliers slept by turns on a thick air mattress, on top of the long gas tank which occupied the space usually devoted to passenger seats in Curtiss-Robin monoplanes.

Throughout the weeks of flight they kept in daily touch with the watchers below and with Pilots P. V. "Shorty" Chaffee and Maj. C. Ray Wassall of the refueling plane, by means of notes dropped in small cylinders decorated with colored streamers.

Nocona Operators Approve Plans For Reducing Gas Waste in Area

Plans for immediate correction of production methods in the Nocona field to prevent unnecessary waste of natural gas, each operating company to be responsible for effecting such improvements on its wells, were adopted Tuesday morning by representatives of the various operators in that territory who met here at the office of T. L. Coplin, deputy oil and gas supervisor for the state railroad commission.

In compliance with a request made by the commission last week when Clarence E. Gilmore, chairman, conducted a hearing on the Nocona situation here, reports showing initial gas and oil production of each well in question, as well as present production, are to be filed with Mr. Coplin before Aug. 3. Agreeing upon a 30-day period in which to effect stoppage of the alleged waste of gas, the operators also will furnish similar reports to Mr. Coplin on Sept. 3. The comparison of these reports will be designed to indicate the degree of improvement made at each well in gas conservation.

The following representatives were present at the meeting Tuesday morning:

C. A. Morris, Humble Oil and Refining company; R. B. Kelley, Pure Oil company; H. B. Simcox, and W. N. Alexander, Continental Oil and Refining company; J. S. Bridwell, Bridwell Oil company; C. W. Hanley, Gulf Production company; C. B. Clements, Texas company; P. F. Lesh, Lesh & McCall; J. D. Baker and R. A. Elliott, F. H. E. Oil company and Fleming and Kimbell; E. L. Smith, E. L. Smith Oil company; and P. E. Dutton, McMan Oil and Gas company.

Officers Lose Race In Pursuit of Stolen Car

A 20-mile race on concrete pavement was lost Tuesday night by Warren Belcher and Charles Gant, deputy sheriffs, who were competing under a handicap with the driver of a car stolen here earlier in the evening. Shortly after a Dodge Victoty six was reported stolen in the city, a filling station operator on the Henrietta road reported that a "customer" whose car answered the description of the stolen machine, had driven away without paying for a tank full of gasoline. The officers took up the chase at the filling station and followed the stolen car to a point south of Henrietta where they lost the trail. An ex-convict was under the officers' suspicion.

The New BUICK

NEW Fisher styling ··· NEW 99 Horsepower Valve-in-Head Engine* NEW Controlled Servo Mechanical Brakes ···NEW Steering Gear NEW Road Shock Eliminator ·NEW Double Acting Shock Absorbers NEW Non Glare Windshield

America has taken this new Buick to its heart. Millions have thronged to see it . . . tens of thousands have already placed orders . . . other thousands have requested demonstrations . . . and the reasons will be instantly apparent when you call at our showrooms and inspect the matchless array of new Buick models. **

The fact is that in the five major elements of motor car appeal —beauty, performance, comfort, safety, value—this new Buick with Body by Fisher strides far ahead of any other car in the entire quality field.

New Fisher Styling

The new Buick Bodies by Fisher are longer, lower, more luxurious. They reveal new Fisher styling—new beauty of line and appointment—new colors—which have won the outspoken admiration of all who have seen them. And in addition they introduce a host of new features of utility and convenience, including the new Fisher Non-Glare Windshield for safer night driving; new and richer upholstery; and new fittings and appointments of princely luxury.

Pacemaker of Performance

Moreover, Buick for 1930 reveals this same marked supremacy —this same increased leadership—in fleet, spirited behavior on the road. Its new and bigger Valve-in-Head engine—developing 99 horsepower—provides matchless new virility, pick-up, swiftness and flexibility. A single drive will prove it the pacemaker of performance. And the same drive will disclose marvelous new handling ease, comfort and safety, due to a new and improved steering gear and new road shock eliminator; new double-acting shock absorbers which check both bound and rebound; and new controlled Servo enclosed mechanical brakes, the most effective braking system employed on any car in the world.

See, Drive and Own This New Buick

Bear in mind, this new Buick with its many advancements is offered at new low prices—in three new series and three new wheelbases, with only one standard of quality throughout—the finest in its field.

Visit our showrooms today. See the new Buicks and arrange to drive one. Among the 14 attractive body types is exactly the Buick for you.

 So great is public confidence in Buick that thousands of motorists placed their orders for new Buicks before ever the car was shown. . . . Year after year, Buick sells more than 100,000 cars to Buick owners alone—more than the total output of the majority of cars in the Buick field.

New Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes

Buick's new controlled Servo mechanical brakes—the most effective braking system ever developed—not only are of the favored internal-expanding type, but are fully protected against dust, dirt and moisture, and provide maximum braking under all road and weather conditions. These remarkable new brakes are self-energizing, which means that part of the braking effort is provided by the car's own motion—and they are fully controlled through the foot pedal, thus eliminating all possibility of "grabbing." A single test will prove Buick's new controlled Servo brakes the smoothest, most positive, and most easily operated ever developed for any motor car.

New Longer Springs—with New Double-Acting Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers

The new Buick introduces an unparalleled comfort combination in its new, longer rear springs and new double-acting Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers. The new rear springs give the car a free and easy cushioning motion, which is controlled in both directions by the double-acting shock absorbers—thus eliminating both bound and rebound under severest road conditions. Through the medium of these two wonderful new comfort factors, Buick has widened still further its decisive leadership in riding luxury.

New Road Shock Eliminator—New Steering Gear

Two vitally important features of the new Buick—a new steering gear and new road shock eliminator—mark the greatest contribution to handling ease and roadability achieved in recent years. The new steering gear, of worm and roller type, provides matchless steering ease throughout the entire turning range. The new road shock eliminator, built into the frame on the steering gear side, effectually absorbs road shocks and prevents their transmission to the steering wheel. The result of these twin features —found only in Buick—is unrivaled driving comfort at all speeds.

New Peaks of Power in The New Buick Valve-in-Head Engine

The wonderful new Buick Valve-in-Head engine—developing 99 horsepower—represents the splendid climax of 26 years of concentration on this one outstandingly efficient type. It is a bigger engine—a sturdier engine —and provides greater speed as well as a power reserve more than adequate to any need which may arise. Moreover, this great new power plant is smoother and quieter, as well as more powerful, and provides a measure of all-round performance without parallel in the Buick field.

*The new engine in the 132-and 124-inch wheelbase series develops 99 horsepower —the new engine in the 118-inch series, 80½ horsepower. Also it achieves this additional performance without increased gasoline consumption.

The New Fisher Non-Glare Windshield . . a Vital Contribution to Motoring Safety

The new Fisher non-glare windshield—a vitally important feature exclusive to Buick-built cars—adds immeasurably to the safety, pleasure and comfort of night driving. This new windshield—tilted at an angle of 7 degrees—protects the driver against the annoying and frequently dangerous reflection or glare from other cars. Test the new Buick and experience the remarkable advantages of this new and exclusive feature.

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

THE NUT-BOAT

I've made a boat
From just a nut.
It's very small
And tiny, but
It's big enough for me.

I'll sail around
The room a bit,
But I must have
A name for it
Before we go to sea.

The Mist? The Mite?
The Water-Sprite?
No, I don't think
Those names are right—
The Fly, the Bug, the Bee?

Oh, I can't think
Of any name.
I think I'll play
Another game
That's easier for me.

Was Just Like Throwing His Money Away

"Orgatone Has Done More for My Wife Than All Other Treatments She Ever Took," Says Wichita Man

"Orgatone has certainly done fine work for my wife and I'm glad to recommend it to others who may be suffering like she did," said F. P. Robinson, a valued employe of the Denver railroad, who lives at 2006 Filmore street, Wichita Falls, Texas, while in Allison's Drug store for more of the medicine recently.

"My wife is strong, hearty and full of life and energy now," continued Mr. Robinson, "and is several pounds heavier than she was the day she began taking Orgatone. She had suffered from headaches and biliousness for 10 years and had become almost a nervous wreck. Her stomach was so out of order that everything she ate hurt her. At night, especially, she would have sick dizzy headaches, couldn't get any sound sleep and was tired and languid all the time, and fell off in weight rapidly.

"I paid out hundreds of dollars for treatment and medicines of various kinds, and it was just like throwing my money away, as for the good it did her. It's the truth, five bottles of Orgatone have done her more good than everything else put together. Her weight has already increased to 135 pounds and this fact alone is proof of the fine work Orgatone has done in correcting her troubles and putting her system in good shape. But that isn't all; she has a splendid appetite, eats anything she wants and is like a different woman altogether. Her nervousness and headaches have disappeared and she sleeps like a healthy child every night. The gas has stopped forming on her stomach and she's never bothered now with biliousness. She is stronger and better off in every way right now than she's been in the past 10 years and I'm obliged to say a good word for Orgatone."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue.—Adv.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, July 30. (US)—In 1921 a male being wrote: "Why does a woman insist upon showing everybody her shoulders and as much of the top portion of herself as she can, while she considers her legs sacred?"

So in eight years we have come to this.

A thoroughly selfish and undisciplined young woman from Chicago remarks: "When I was a child I was a spoiled brat. I didn't love my mother because she let me rule her. And I remember when they told me she had passed on, my only thought was 'I wonder who will wash my hair now.'"

A fine lesson for doting mothers.

"Women are clothes conscious," says James James, "and they glow under the influence of a new dress, while men are always worried in new clothes, for fear other men will notice they are new."

Horse feathers.

At a prize fight in New York City when the battle was bluggiest, I saw the city's most talked of and handsomest official adjust his tie, twist his small moustache, and turn his seal ring around on his little finger. He had just spied a beautiful countess and she was looking his way.

Again, horse feathers.

The same man wants us to believe that a girl thinks more of the man till she gets engaged, and then forgets him while she "stalks through a foaming archipelago of trousseau."

They don't.

There are too many slips between the engagement and the wedding. We know our job better than that.

Minnie Maddern Fisks always gets so interested in rehearing her plays that she doesn't think of costumes, until her managers rave and worry, and coax her and finally she condescends to buy the clothes. But to her they are purely incidental.

This mere man also announces "woman reflects in her mobile face and in her lissom figure every thought that passed through her canary mind."

If he were the kind of man any woman could love, save perhaps a mother he would have said "her brain is a bird" and leave her to figure out what he meant. He would have nothing to fear from her conclusion.

Fancy his trying to make us believe that "the course of true love leads straight to the nearest woman."

But it's a good thing to suggest to wives who spend half their time in Europe, relying upon a 30-year-old promise made under the influence of orange blossoms.

Economy Some Times Is Nothing But Wastefulness

Skimping on the Present in Order to Lay Up Good Things for the Future May Prove a Boomerang When the Future Actually Comes and Finds Us Too Tired to Enjoy It

When is economy economy, and when is it rank wastefulness?

Of course, every one above the grade of a moron is fully aware of the necessity of living within his income and laying up something for the rainy day that is sure to come to us all. Sickness, bad luck in business, old age are misfortunes that none escape, and when these befall us, miserable, indeed, is our lot if we have to add to them penury and dependence upon others.

But we can buy even the umbrella to protect us against the storms of life at too high a price. We can pay for it more than it is worth. We can invest so much in it that it impoverishes us and becomes an extravagance instead of a proof of our thrift.

You see a frequent illustration of this in the men who take out so much insurance that they kill themselves working to keep up their policies, and who never seem to realize that even in dollars and cents they are worth more to their families alive than dead.

Another common example of this is to be found in the men who are so anxious to get rich quick that they never take a vacation, or indulge themselves in any pleasure and recreation. They boast that they haven't been away from their offices a single day in 10 years; that they have no interest outside of their business, and that they don't waste their energies and thoughts on such frivolous matters as golf and fishing and hunting and traveling.

You cannot convince such a man, not even when he breaks down with nervous prostration in his 40s, that it is his industry that has bankrupted him, and that if he had worked less he could have worked longer, and that he would have done better and more profitable work. But it is the truth. The man who used up all of his energy and strength by incessant labor in his youth is just as much a prodigal as if he had spent his whole fortune on one big debauch.

The men who are still at the head of their affairs in their 80s are the men who have varied their work with play, and who have cultivated outside interests. From time to time they have dropped their work and forgotten it, and when they came back to it, rested and refreshed in mind and body, they were able to tackle their problems from a new angle and to put fresh pep and enthusiasm in their work. There is no truer saying than that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

Still another illustration of the way in which economy may become a boomerang we see daily in those people who have denied themselves everything they wanted at the time they could have enjoyed it, in order that they might have these pleasures at some future day that never arrived, for by the time they were ready to indulge themselves they had lost their desires. They had got their nuts when they had no teeth to crack them.

You see people who love beautiful surroundings and who could afford a nice home, but they put off building it until the children are grown, and then when they get it built the children are married and gone.

You see people who long to travel, and they might as well go as not and fill their minds with the memories of the wonderful things they have seen, but they keep putting it off and putting it off until they are too old and decrepit to get a single kick out of it when they do at last start on a tour.

You see people saving and pinching every penny, denying themselves every comfort and indulgence to scrape together a fortune, and when they get it, it will buy them nothing that they want. It is nothing but some scraps of paper in a bank box for their heirs to fight over when they are gone. They have wasted all the joys and pleasures of life trying to save. What extravagance!

Women are notoriously unable to tell when economy is economy, and when it is sheer wastefulness, and some of their most flagrant sins of extravagance are committed in the name of thrift. In proof whereof consider the stock pot, the fetish of the saving housewife, into which goes, along with the scraps from the table, $10 worth of work and watching in order to save 15 cents worth of soup meat. Behold also the bread pudding in which by dint of labor and eggs and milk and butter and sugar and spices and raisins a few stale slices of bread are salvaged at great cost.

And no women beat louder upon the cymbals in calling attention to their economies than those thrifty sisters who boast that they painted an entire set of furniture themselves, or cleaned their rugs instead of hiring it done, even though it brought a spell of sickness upon them that necessitated doctors' and nurses' bills that came to 10 times the money they saved.

Of course, a woman counts it unto herself for righteousness when she denies herself good clothes, but even this is not always good economy, because in a way a woman is an index of her husband's prosperity or his failure, and if she is shabby it is a bad advertisement for him. I well recall once hearing a doctor urging his penurious and frumpy looking wife to buy some pretty frocks.

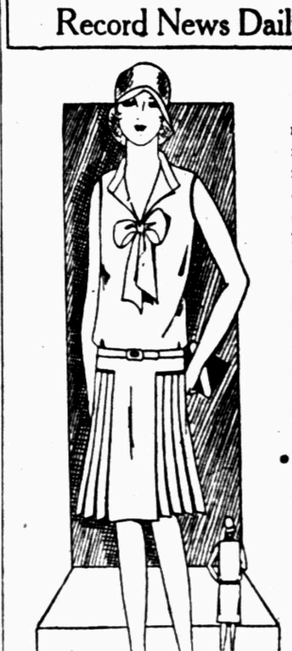

"When you go about ill-dressed you do me a great injustice," he said, "for people are bound to think one of two things: either that I am so mean and stingy that I will not buy my wife decent clothes, or else that I am such a poor doctor that I have no patients and don't make enough money to dress you properly. Don't think you are helping me by saving every cent. You are ruining me by it."

And certainly many a woman's economy has cost her a divorce, which is no saving any way you figure it out. For many a woman has overworked until she made herself nervous and peevish and been too tired to play with her husband. Many a wife has scrimped on the beauty shop and let herself get old and ugly before her time. Many a wife has worn ugly hand-me-downs because they were cheap, instead of frilly chiffons, and as the result of her economies lost her husband to some woman who had sense enough to see that it was a profitable investment for a woman always to keep herself looking like a good bargain to a man.

So the question is still unanswered: When is economy economy, and when is it rank wastefulness?

Dr. Q. B. Lee Talks of Europe At Altrusa Lunch

An informal and interesting talk by Dr. Q. B. Lee featured the regular weekly luncheon of the Altrusa club held at the Wichita club Tuesday noon.

Dr. Lee spoke on the people and customs of the eight countries he had visited with a broadness of mind shown by few travelers. He was particularly impressed with the courtesy and refinement of the people of Norway and the beauty of Norwegian women. The romantic side of ancient Europe also appealed to Dr. Lee and he told of the old tavern perpetuated in Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities."

There is a great contrast at times between the attitude of the European and that of the traveler, Dr. Lee said in effect—but that does not always mean that the travelers are right. So many Americans with a great deal of money have made an unfavorable impression, he said.

The German people, he said, are resourceful and ambitious and are coming back. But should he make another European trip, Dr. Lee stated he would wish to go into the beautiful rural districts of Norway and into the green countrysides of England and know the natives of these districts.

Miss Lucia Powell presided at the luncheon and expressed the pleasure of the Altrusans at Dr. Lee's interesting talk.

Seated with Dr. Lee, who was guest of honor, were Misses Lucia Powell, Catherine Henricle, Myrle Neely, Eva Wallace, Maurine Williams, Maude Thomas, Catherine Walker, Mesdames Kathleen Nelms and Elizabeth Weldon and Dr. Fleta Woolsey.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

TALE-BEARERS

"Dear Miss Brainerd—I recently returned home from a three month's visit with my mother who lives in Honolulu.

"Almost the first day I was back my best friend came to see me and filled my ears with tales of my husband's 'carryings-on' during my absence.

"She said that he was hardly ever at home and that when he was he nearly always had a party on. She said furthermore that she'd seen him one day lunching with a woman at a hotel in town. My husband is in merchandising. When I suggested that the woman might have been an out-of-town buyer she just looked at me in a pitying sort of way and said: 'Well, never tell me I didn't warn you.'

"My husband is the soul of kindness to me and our children. He seems to love me and to be happy in his home. Yet I can't help wondering if I'm just deluding myself. I don't know whether to face him with these reports or not. What do you think I ought to do about it?"

I think you should realize first of all that no woman who bears tales is your friend.

What possible use could her gossip serve except to make you unhappy and create bad feelings between you and your husband?

What she told you may be true. What of it?

The more he cares for his family, the more does he miss them, and the less is he inclined to spend solitary evenings in a silent, memory-laden dwelling.

And, as for the luncheon, since when has it become a hanging crime for a married man to ask a woman, business acquaintance or friend, to share a meal with him? Back in Victorian days it would have been a matter for malicious speculation, but times have changed, thank heaven, and today we admit that a man and woman may occasionally meet without the compulsion of a love interest.

Your friend is not your friend nor is any other busybody who takes it upon herself to try to separate you and your husband.

My advice is to say nothing and forget the entire matter. Let your husband's kindness and devotion speak for themselves and don't go looking for trouble by giving rein to jealous speculations as to what he may be thinking and feeling.

A woman's trust is her most effective weapon. No man with a grain of decency will start playing around clandestinely if he feels his wife has confidence in him.

HOOVER ACE OF PRESS AGENTS

His Use of Propaganda Puts Things Over

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON, July 30. (UP)—President Hoover is using in his campaign for world peace and reduction of navies and armies the large-scale propaganda methods he found so effective during the war to conserve food and raise money for the suffering peoples of Europe.

The president is an admitted expert in publicity of a gigantic sort. A review of the lightning-like sequence of events in the last few weeks bears this out. The series of scenes runs together, when a survey is made, into a huge drama of bold conception.

Kellogg Ceremony

Standing about above all others is the scene in the White House when the Kellogg peace pact was proclaimed, and this demonstrates the Hoover method. That was a ceremony staged to emphasize and dramatize the treaty before the world. There was no necessity for it. When Japan deposited her ratification a few minutes before the ceremony began, the last step in making the pact effective had been taken. But the president arranged the ceremony to bring the peace act, dramatically, before the world.

To make the general object still more effective, there was an exchange between Premier MacDonald of Great Britain and President Hoover almost simultaneously with announcements that the world's two great naval powers would suspend building temporarily, which it is generally understood was pre-arranged.

Effective Psychology

By coupling these, President Hoover staged a one-a-day drama which may stand out in high relief when history is written in the future. Analyzed, it was effective because of the publicity psychology which originated it.

The drama which reached a high point—but not yet its climax in the orders to suspend building temporarily, began at Arlington cemetery on Armistice day when President Hoover appealed to the peoples of the world—the taxpayers—over the heads of their governments with a warning that despite all the sacrifices of the world war and the pledges of the Kellogg peace pact the nations still were busy building ships and raising armies.

Appeal to Taxpayers

This was followed a few days later by a statement from Secretary of State Stimson that the naval program of the United States over the next few years, unless reductions were made, would cost over a billion dollars. This was an appeal to the taxpayers in the United States.

In time, there came word from London that Premier MacDonald was considering a visit to the United States to negotiate directly with President Hoover. That visit now is virtually a certainty.

While talk of naval reductions was going on, President Hoover then shifted attention, suddenly, to the American army, which he thinks, costs too much money. He announced he would appoint a commission of ranking officers to determine where reductions might be made.

To Name Commission

He carried this problem with him to his Virginia camp over the week-end, after the peace pact ceremonies and the further naval reductions statement, and is expected to appoint the commission within a week.

At the various armament meetings, the United States has taken no part in discussion of armies on the ground that the American army was small and that this country's problem was different from that of European nations. However, it is believed, President Hoover hopes that the move of the United States to reduce its army will have a psychological effect upon European nations, many of which are maintaining huge standing armies.

BLACKS HELD FOR ROBBERY

Two Negroes Arrested for Buda Depredation

AUSTIN, July 30. (INS)—Two negroes, identified by Clifton Moore, Buda store owner, as the ones who pillaged stores at Buda last week, were arrested at Salado, Bell county, today. The negroes were traveling in the tenth car they are believed to have stolen in as many days. Both were armed and the car was stocked with ammunition.

The two are held in the Travis county jail. Charges of automobile theft are expected to be filed against them on 10 counts.

They did not resist arrest, though they fought a gun battle with a posse at Buda when caught in the act of robbing stores there.

Both negroes are said to be wanted in several counties over Central Texas for an undetermined number of robberies.

SHE HAD TO STAY INDOORS MONTHS

"Stomach trouble and indigestion had me in a terribly nervous, run-down condition. I was so weak and worn out I would have to stay in the house for months at a time. Constipation was helping to make my life miserable and there were times when I didn't care whether I lived or died. A good friend of mine told me about Sargon and how much it helped her, so I decided to try it.

What a blessed relief it is to be free of the troubles that worried me for 12 long years. The Sargon treatment has literally made me feel like a new woman. My stomach is now in perfect condition; my appetite is fine and I eat just anything I want, without any ill effects. My nerves are back to normal and I sleep sound and get up feeling just fine. Sargon Soft Mass Pills ended my constipation without ever griping or nauseating me.

"I'm so happy over regaining my health that I'll be glad to tell anyone what Sargon has meant to me. Just have them phone 2-7783 if they want to know what I think of this wonderful treatment."—Mrs. W. H. Higgins, 507 W. First St., Fort Worth.

Sargon represents the dawn of a new era in the field of modern medicine. It is turning old-fashioned moss-grown health theories upside down and is restoring countless thousands by methods undreamed of only a few years ago. Renfro Drug Co., two stores, agents.—Adv.

FARMERS HEAR DUTY TO HOME

Short Course Session Addressed by Woman

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, July 30. (AP)—Most things that are good emanate from the home and to keep them inviolate citizens recognize and exercise their power, Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham of New Waverly, Texas, said in an address today at a general session of the farmers short course at A. & M. college.

"This means voting on rainy days, serving on juries when it is not convenient and a thousand other little things," she declared. "If we do this no ruling class of professional officials will grow up among us."

Asserting homes existed before there were any formal governments and that government is an outgrowth of group living designed to serve the home, she said there is a tendency today to "regard government as a piece of machinery rightfully belonging to the ruling classes, to be used by them in establishing and maintaining their favorable position in the world.

"Whereas governments were originally designed for the protection and convenience of the home, and officials were originally just people detailed to see that the home was protected and served, there appears to have developed early a clouding of that clear concept and the general growth of a contending idea. The notion that governments existed to provide machinery for keeping the masses in order, collecting taxes from them and enforcing their service to the rulers became so fixed that when Thomas Jefferson declared governments were instituted among men to secure certain inalienable rights it was regarded as a revolutionary statement. Our revolutionary war was a conflict between these two concepts."

The general theme developed was "the agricultural trend." The speakers included Col. Clarence Ousley of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, Longview; J. D. Coglin of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, Dallas; H. G. Safford, president of American Cotton Shippers association, Houston, and Prof. John A. Todd, principal of the city school of commerce, Liverpool, England.

"The great fundamental factor in the problem of farm relief is the occasional surplus caused by exceptional weather and pest conditions," Colonel Ousley said. "For example, we have a cotton acreage this year slightly in excess of the acreage last year. Weather and pest conditions between now and maturity may give us a yield of 14,000,000 bales or a yield of 20,000,000 bales of cotton. The maximum yield would give us a destructive surplus. The minimum yield would cause somwhat of a cotton famine."

He characterized the present farm board as "a well intended effort to do something without quite knowing what or how to do it."

Safford made a plea for better understanding between cotton grower and the cotton merchant. The prosperity of both the merchant and grower must come together, he said.

Air Service for First Class Mail Now Looms

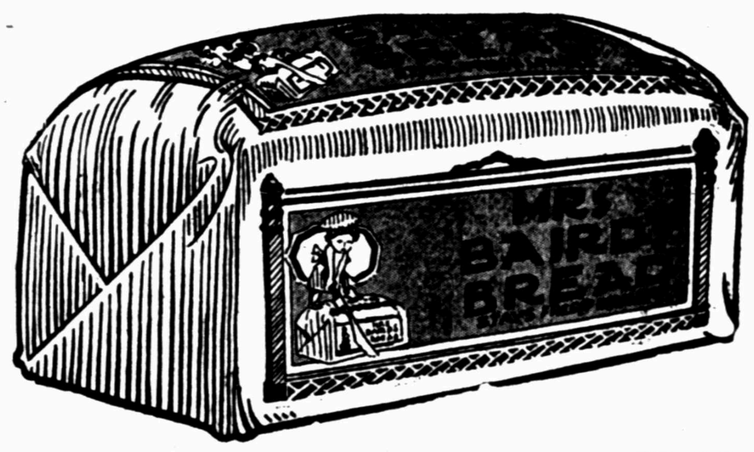

WASHINGTON, July 30. (AP)—Assistant Postmaster General Glover said today he believed the post-office department shortly might have "to consider carrying two cent or first class mail in the air, especially on long hops over passenger routes that have no mail contracts but are now operating."

EXCEPT FOR thunder clouds hovering over Manchuria and the Hungarian border, skies are bright everywhere.

Mexico's house seems in spic span order, church and state are pulling oars together in Italy, the agricultural bloc is wearing a half billion dollar farm relief gag, and the air is full of rainbows and dove coos.

It actually begins to look as if "strife" and "strafe" will soon be obsolete words.

So, with the Kellogg pact in force President Hoover turns thought to a drastic reduction of local military establishments thereby encouraging the hope of proportionate federal tax relief as well as the ultimate abolition of war between the primary powers.

By next year: Our several branches of defense would have consumed $750,000,000 of national revenue which is precisely the combined dowers of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Pan-American, shortly to be joined in corporation wedlock.

Prosperity can do wonders with the mere whittings from that enormous sum.

And paring time is overripe when we learn that present martial expenditure would have attained $803,000,000 by 1923, with a promise of regular billion dollar budgets within another decade.

THE GREAT Washington cathedral slowly draws nearer completion on its imposing site overlooking the national capital. Designed as a "national shrine," this cathedral will eventually be one of the most impressive church structures in the United States. Woodrow Wilson lies buried in it; and its founders hope that the cathedral ultimately will be to the American people something like what Westminster Abbey is to the English.

Building a national shrine, however, is a strange sort of business. The places that a nation takes to heart are not usually places that were planned in advance as centers of patriotic devotion. They pop up unexpectedly; and the affection that goes out to them is generally due to the memories that center around them rather than to the expensive and impressive buildings that adorn them.

Suppose that a committee of Americans a century ago had undertaken to pick a few places that the America of 1929 would hold in especial veneration. Would they, by any chance, have guessed right more than once in 10 times?

They would not, surely, have picked a dilapidated log cabin in Hardin county, Kentucky; a cabin which had been the birthplace of a gawky young Illinois rail splitter and country storekeeper.

They would never have dreamed of crossing the border into Mexico and putting a bronze table on the Alamo in San Antonio. Texas independence, the conquest of the Southwest and the red battle of the Alamo were matters undreamed of then.

They would have been extremely puzzled if anyone, pointing to two young West Point cadets named Lee and Jackson, had said that figures of these two men would be carved in gigantic size on the bald brow of Stone mountain, in Georgia.

With very good reason they would have been flabbergasted if it had been suggested that an attempt would be made to carry off the tiny home of a New York farmer named Rockefeller so that it could be exhibited to millions of Americans at a dime apiece.

The committee, to be sure, would have picked Valley Forge; but could it have guessed that the sleepy little town of Gettysburg would eventually be made into a national military park and dotted with scores of statues and markers?

Would the desolate sand dunes of Kitty Hawk, N. C., have looked like a probable spot for a memorial monument?

That's the way it goes. Washington cathedral, of course, will always be an important feature for generations to come. But, as a general thing, national shrines cannot be picked in advance. No one can say, today, what spots will seem especially memorable to our grandchildren.

When Dearth Means Prosperity

THE WAY in which agriculture is out of line with modern industrial developments is plainly shown in the latest dispatches from the wheat belt.

Wheat growers are jubilant. The price of wheat is soaring; many farmers who had a very dark outlook are now expecting a prosperous harvest. And why? Because there is an abundant yield—because the fields are yielding more than the average sized crop?

Not at all. The wheat crop is below normal. Bad weather conditions have cut down the expected yield. Hence prices are going up.

Industry strives for the greatest possible production. Agriculture is compelled to point the other way. A time of plenty is apt to be a time of hardship. A time of dearth is apt to mean prosperity.

Right there is a "farm problem" worthy of a good deal of attention.

The Air Mail—'Too Safe'

IF YOU want to know just how reliable and dependable modern commercial aviation in the United States really is, listen to the complaint of E. Hamilton Lee, dean of the country's airmail pilots.

Lee, who now flies a plane on the Chicago-Omaha division of the Boeing system, says that "flying ain't what she used to be," because "they've made it too safe."

"We air veterans have had our day," he tells the United Press. "I'm happy to celebrate my millionth mile, but I feel the safety measures have taken most of the adventure out of the airmail business."

One must sympathize with this adventurous soul, of course; but his complaint is perfect evidence that air transportation has become qualified for the complete trust and confidence of the traveling public."

Advertising by Plane

THE flight of the "Houston—Billion Dollar City," opens a new and slightly terrifying idea about aerial advertising.

Planes have advertised cities before—as witness Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis." But now we have not only a city's name, but a mouth-filling slogan as well. And every paper that prints a story about the doings of this plane must, of necessity, place before its readers Houston's billion-dollar boast.

This sort of thing has possibilities. Are we to see airplanes bearing such names as "Drive the Skidmore Sedan" or "Eat That German Excelsior Cereal"? If we do, these Houston flyers can get the credit—or otherwise—for starting it.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF CAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

"The silly sap—she's in love with Mr. Van!"

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip and busybody. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's millinery because she talked too much. Her widowed mother, a dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, an old friend. Through Mrs. "Van" Chatty gets a new job in Mr. "Van's" bond house, down town. There she meets and falls in love with Dave Jordan, a bond salesman, whom she once saw buying flowers for a girl in a shop near Mrs. Mayberry's store.

Billie Langenau, in charge of the files, tells Chatty that sometimes Jordan goes to lunch with Mr. "Van's" secretary, Agnes Herford. When Chatty tells Agnes the story, she adds to it, and says that Billie also said that Agnes and Jordan were crazy about each other. Agnes threatens to go to Billie with the story, and Chatty worries about it.

For she does not want to quarrel with Billie, who had arranged parties so that Chatty could meet Jordan outside the office. And she wishes that Agnes would lose her job and leave the office.

Then Willie Talcott, stenographer, tells her that Agnes and Mr. Van often lunch together, and Chatty decides to tell Mrs. Van about it. But her mother forbids her to.

Billie and her sister, Sara, come to live in the flat across the hall from the Chattertons, and Chatty learns that Billie is separated from a man named Brewster. But no one knows about it, not even George Mayhew, a bond salesman who is in love with Billie. One night at Billie's flat, Winnie Talcott sends out for liquor, and Chatty learns that Pud, her young brother, is selling it in Tomlinson's drug store, where he works evenings. She keeps the fact a secret from everyone, especially Dave Jordan, who makes love to her for the first time that night.

Late one afternoon Chatty sees Dave lay a note on Agnes' desk. She takes Agnes' keys from her purse, and when the office is empty that night she goes through her desk. There she finds the note—a harmless little message. As she is putting it back into the drawer she finds one of Mr. Van's clean linen handkerchiefs in it, and decides to go through the whole desk just to see what she can find in it.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XIII

Agnes Herford's desk was as neat and clean as Agnes, herself, was.

There were six drawers in it. And they were in such apple pie order that it took Chatty only a minute or two to go through the first five of them . . . . paper, envelopes, carbons, all in neat piles.

The last drawer she opened was the bottom one on the left-hand side.

It was a big drawer, and it was filled with Agnes' personal belongings. One by one Chatty took them out.

"Right here," she thought, "is where she'd probably keep anything that she didn't want to have seen."

She would not have wanted to see herself at that moment, in all likelihood. For she was anything but beautiful as she pawed over Agnes' things with her quick little fingers. Her eyes were narrowed until they were just brilliant gray-green slits between their thick, black lashes, and her face looked as hard as if it were a mirror for the hard thoughts that raced through her brain.

"I just wish I could find out something about her that she would not want anyone to know!" she said to herself, tossing the things in the drawer out upon the floor beside her in frantic haste. Box of powder, a puff rolled up in a piece of clean, white tissue paper. A pair of rubbers in another piece of paper. Two clean handkerchiefs. A metal soap box. Two clean face towels.

That was all.

Chatty's face went blank with disappointment as she came to the piece of shiny white paper that covered the bottom of the drawer. Just what she had hoped to find she did not know, for sure. A letter from Mr. Van Nuys, perhaps? Another note from Dave Jordan?

"Well, there isn't anything here, anyway," thought Chatty, and began to pick up the things she had thrown on the floor.

She was putting the towels back into the drawer when she saw that there was something flat and oblong lying hidden under the white paper that lined it.

It looked as if it might be a book.

In a twinkling Chatty had it out from under the paper, and in her two small hands.

It was a book! It was Agnes' diary!

It was covered with black leather, and on its cover was the title in large gold letters:

Dropping back on her heels, she opened the diary at the first page—the page marked January First.

"This is New Year's day," Agnes had written, in her clear, straight hand. "And the beginning of the fourth year since I started to work for him—"

Chatty's eyes opened wide, until they were as round as gray-green saucers. "Why, she's writing about Mr. Van!" she said to herself. "This is going to be good—"

Chatty had a nose for news—and it told her now that there was going to be news, and plenty of it, in the small, black-covered book. Something told her that between its gold-lettered covers Agnes had written the story of her heart.

"I'll take it home," she decided, getting up from the floor. "No use sticking around here any longer. Anyone might pop in at any minute and find me. And I'd never be able to explain why I was going through this desk."

She put everything but the diary carefully back into the drawer, locked the desk, turned out the light in the office, and walked calmly out of it with the diary under her arm.

She had not reached the middle of the big room outside when the hall door opened and Dave Jordan came in. He looked at her in surprise.

"Hul-lo, there!" he said. "Never knew you worked late."

Chatty smiled up at him. A sweet meek little smile that made her face look like a very good little girl's face—instead of the face of a young woman who is holding stolen property in her hands.

"There are a lot of things that you don't know about me, Dave Jordan," she told him, and her voice was as smooth as satin.

"There are a lot of things that I don't know about you, too," she went on. "Things that I'm dying to know."

"What are you dying to know?"

Chatty shook her head, shining like a cap of cloth-of-gold against the dark walls of the big, brightly-lighted office. This was no time to ask him about the girl he had bought flowers for on Easter Saturday! This was no time to ask him how he could possibly find Agnes so fascinating that he took her to lunch every now and then!

The only thing to do now was to get away from him as soon as she could—to get out of the office without him seeing the diary—to get away before Agnes, by some chance, should come back for her keys.

"I'll tell you what—we'll go out and have a spot of dinner together, eh what?" asked Jordan, studying her with his brown eyes. "And we'll tell each other all about ourselves! What do you think of that plan?"

For a moment Chatty was fearfully tempted. It sounded so thrilling—to have dinner with Dave Jordan, and then perhaps to go to a movie with him, or for a long drive in The Pride of America. To be with him—with just him—for hours and hours—

"I can't go." Her voice was a small, unhappy wail. "Ask me for tomorrow night, will you, instead? I can go then. Tonight I'm going to be busy at home."

In her own room she tried to fit the diary into her handbag. But it was too large to be hidden in it.

"No—I couldn't have kept him from seeing it if I had gone out to dinner with him," she thought. "And if he had looked at it!"

She actually shuddered at the thought of Dave Jordan finding out that she was a thief!

Stealthily as a thief, she crept into the cloak room and put on her hat and coat. She slunk through the empty office just as the scrub women came down the hall to start cleaning it.

Not until she was out of the great, silent building, and into the lamplit darkness of the street, did she feel like a free person again.

She stood still for a moment, outside the big gray granite building, and looked around her. . . . People going home. . . . People waiting for street cars. . . . People idling along past the big show windows filled with glittering colored wares.

"So many people in the world," she thought. "And so many up in the office, too, when you stop to think about it. . . . Agnes will never be able to figure out who took her diary. She'll probably think one of the cleaning women found her keys—"

The keys! She still had them in the pocket of her blouse.

"Well, I'm not going to take them back now—that's a cinch!" Chatty decided. "I'd as soon walk into the county jail as go back there tonight!"

At the corner of West River street and Lipton street there was an open sewer. When Chatty reached the corner that night she bent over and dropped a ring of keys into that sewer—

"Sunk without a trace!" she said, and felt as if a heavy load had been lifted from her.

She was sure that no one would ever suspect her of the theft of the keys and the diary. No one had seen her in the office after hours but Dave Jordan. And she was pretty sure he had not seen the diary in her hands.

Chatty had the kitchen to herself that night.

Mrs. Chatterton was hard at work in the front room, finishing three princess slips for Mrs. Van Nuys. Pud was "shooting sodas" in Ben Tomlinson's drug store at the corner. At any rate, Chatty hoped that he was "shooting sodas" and not helping Ben in his wicked business of selling forbidden alcohol to lawless customers.

And so, Chatty, washing dishes in the warm, cozy solitude of the little blue and white kitchen, propped Agnes' book up on the clock shelf above the sink, and read it as she worked.

It was almost 9 o'clock when she turned the page to the last entry that Agnes had made . . . the entry for that day, Monday, May 14.

"He asked me to have lunch with him today," she had written. "But afterwards he remembered that he was going to play golf this afternoon and would have to start at once. So I started out alone, and met that silly little Chatterton who told me B. L. had been gossiping about me. I think I shall have to go to him about B. L. But I hate to worry him with little annoying things. . . . When a woman cares for a man she wants to keep everything smooth for him. And that's all I can do for the man I care for, ever. I can serve him, and that's all."

Chatty closed the book and slipped it into the pocket of her bungalow apron.

"The silly sap. She's in love with Mr. Van!" she thought. "And she's going to him and make a lot of trouble for Billy, when somebody ought to make a lot of trouble for her, herself! Mrs. Van certainly would, if she could see this diary!"

And suddenly Chatty knew that Mrs. Van was going to see it! All at once she made up her mind to send it to Mrs. Van right away.

"She'll read it, and she'll kick up such a row that Mr. Van will just have to get rid of Agnes!" Chatty thought it all out carefully. "And I'd better see that she gets it before Agnes has a chance to go to Mrs. Van about Billie!"

Chatty could have laughed with relief as she tore page after page out of the diary and folded them into a big envelope. . . . This was killing two birds with one stone, this was!

"For now Billie will never find out that I told Agnes that lie about her—and we'll still be friends," she told herself. "And I'm getting even with Miss Smarty, besides—for calling me 'that silly little Chatterton'! She'll find out who's silly when Mrs. Van gets this envelope!"

She went down to Tomlinson's and bought a special delivery stamp for the letter. On the corner just outside stood a mail box. Chatty dropped the letter into it, and went home to sleep peacefully after what she told herself was a "good night's work."

The next afternoon Chatty went home early to get dressed to have dinner downtown with David Jordan.

She heard voices when she opened the door of the flat, and there in the front room, having a lace-trimmed chiffon slip fitted, was Mrs. Van, herself.

Mrs. Chatterton was on the floor beside her, pinning up the hem of the elaborate and expensive garment, and the two women were talking as pleasantly as they always did—of old times.

If Mrs. Van had spent a sleepless night worrying over the pages of Agnes' diary, she gave no sign of it.

She looked just as she always did, to Chatty's surprise.

CHURCH PICNIC

BENJAMIN, Texas, July 30. (Spl.) — The Christian Sunday schools of Benjamin and Knox City held a joint picnic Tuesday, July 30 at Round Timbers, in the League pasture. The program called for assembly at 6 o'clock, supper at 7 o'clock, and then a social hour.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, July 30.—There are, to be sure, restrictions upon what one can carry in the subways, but these prohibitions are rarely observed. I have seen men from the clothing section enter trains carrying cardboard boxes stacked as high as themselves. All the newspapers use the city's transit system as part of their delivery system. A boy pays a nickel for his own fare and another nickel for a bundle of several hundred newspapers, and plops his package right in the nearest doorway. Often, late at night, subway trains are considerately held up for several minutes to allow newsboys to put on big loads. But the prize of all subway loads was put in a Broadway express the other day, right under my nose. A bent old fellow staggered into the car, carrying two building gunny sacks slung over one shoulder. The sacks contained garlic. The garlic carrier pretended to be blissfully unaware of the baleful glares of hundreds around him, and completed his journey without being murdered. And the thoughtful fellow had chosen a car well to the front of the train, so that the pungent odor of garlic was swept through about eight cars before it passed into the comparatively fresh atmosphere of the always-stifling tunnel.

What Is a Crash?

Airport officials hereabouts are becoming increasingly wrought up over the problem of what to do with newspapers that insist upon publishing pictures of airplane crashers. Airplanes are doing such a thriving business over the week-end that city editors have formed the habit of sending photographers to the air fields, just on a chance of picking up something. It's a rather ghoulish idea, but it often confines of a landing field, there is a race between field attendants and newspaper man to see who gets there first. The attendants, if possible must prevent pictures being made. They have, in the past, resorted to force—to breaking the photographers' cameras, or extra-legally seizing and destroying the pictures that have been made. If there is time the attendants either cart away or burn the wreckage, so that there will be nothing left to photograph. So far there has been no meditation. The newspapers maintain that airplane wrecks are news, and should be covered, pictorially and otherwise. Airplane interests, on the other hand, maintain that the industry is getting a bad name through too much publicity, and that an airplane wreck is given an unfair amount of publicity. To a certain extent, their objections may be considered true. Any incident to an airplane is called a crash, even though it is no more than a forced landing that breaks the landing gear or cracks a wing, without injuring pilot and passengers. And such forced landings, airmen maintain, should be no more important in the day's news than the fact that John Blintz' Sunday picnic was ruined when his last good automobile tire blew out.

The Music Business

What is, to me, one of New Yorks' finest delights is now to be enjoyed. The concerts of the Philharmonic-Symphony society have started at the stadium of the college of the city of New York. I have watched the growth of their popularity with interest and no little concern—for the crowds that attend newanights are so good that one must arrive very early to get a good seat—and the field tables, where men could sit and wheedle himself into believing he was in a German beer garden, have been materially reduced in number, and are harder to get than ringside seats at a prize fight. And, while we are on the subject of prize fights, a concrete comparison might not be amiss. The capacity of the stadium is 15,000—not much less that that cathedral of fistiana, Madison Square garden, which can comfortably contain about 18,000 persons. During the summer, the capacity crowds at the stadium concerts outnumber those at the garden fights. And yet the concerts involve a financial loss each year. Arthur Hudson, the manager, tells me that the weather is the reason (although, of course, the low price of admission is also a factor). "Suppose," says Judson, "we have a crowd of 15,000. That makes the concert a paying proposition. It means an audience of 5,000 more persons that we could get in the Metropolitan Opera House, Carnegie hall, Steinway hall, the Guild theater and the Gallo theater combined. But suppose it rains. We have to play in the university's auditorium which seats a mere 2,500—and devil take the hindmost. If we have a rainy season, we can't turn a profit on popular prices."

Learing About the West

T. Joe Cahill of Cheyenne, Wyo., who is executive secretary to the Dude Ranchers' association, has been in New York several weeks. A dude ranch, it might be explained, is a cattle ranch that takes summer boarders. Said boarders are the dudes. Incidentally, T. Joe says that about 60 per cent of those who put on overalls and big cowboy hats and go in for a summer of unbuilding in the West are from New York and other big eastern cities. But that doesn't mean that all New Yorkers are familiar with the West. A lady reporter from a New York newspaper called on T. Joe for an interview about dude ranch life. She had been to Europe several times, but admitted she didn't know much about her own country.

"Oh," she said in surprise, when T. Joe handed her a photograph showing a group of "dudettes" in a western forest, "you have trees out there. I supposed it was all barren plains."

"Oh, we've fixed all that," said T. Joe, glancing at the picture, which showed trees that must have been hundreds of years old. "I planted those trees myself."

Shopping

William MacLeod Raine, of Denver, whose western novels sell next to those of Zane Grey, has been in town, stopping at a Fifth avenue hotel. Mrs. Raine has been with him, and, of course, has improved the opportunity to do some shopping at New York stores.

"Did you do any shopping today?" asked a friend who was entertaining her at dinner.

"Oh, lots of it," said Mrs. Raine, who has a pretty wit of her own. "I took back the things I bought yesterday."

Controlling Fevers

The normal temperature of the human body is about 98.6 degrees. It matters not whether it is a hot summer's day or a cold winter's evening. A very few people seem to have a normal temperature of one degree above or below this temperature. The temperature rises normally soon after a heavy meal or in the afternoon. It becomes lower at night. Stimulants, such as coffee and tea, cause a slight rise, and cold food and ice water a slight lowering.

When the temperature of a fever goes above 102.5 degrees it becomes destructive to the body's tissues and should not be allowed to remain there for very long. When it goes above 105 degrees the condition is very grave. The lowest temperature occurs with freezing. It is said that the human body cannot recover if its temperature becomes lower than 74.5 degrees. The temperature rarely goes as high as 110 degrees except in tetanus and in sunstroke, and recovery is not likely.

The treatment for all acute fevers is very simple if begun at the first indication, whether the disease be measles, influenza, simple fever, chicken pox, German measles, tonsilitis, etc. The first thing to do is to stop all rich food. A fever is an indication that the body has a surplus of heating foods already. If the patient has just eaten a heavy meal, it is sometimes advisable to give an emetic and empty out the stomach so that the intestines will not be burdened, as they do not digest food readily during a fever.

The next thing to do is to thoroughly cleanse the lower bowels with several enemas if necessary. This is very important in any kind of a fever because the bowels are being filled with toxic wastes which if not removed promptly may lead to serious poisoning complications.

After this the patient should go to bed without too many covers in a well ventilated room. Patients recover from fevers in a much shorter time if they receive plenty of fresh air. There is not the danger of catching cold during a fever by exposure to fresh air as some suppose. The room should be kept quiet and free from visitors. The patient may be given large quantities of water, but no food during the first day or so. After this, strained orange, grapefruit or tomato juice may be allowed, but no solid food. The practice of giving eggs and milk and toast has undoubtedly contributed to the deaths of many fever patients.

If the temperature is above 102.5 degrees, short cool shower or sponge baths, especially of the spine and abdomen, should be used at intervals of one or two hours until the temperature has been restored to below this point. If the temperature has not risen above this, the cold ablutions can be omitted unless occasionally for the relief of the patient. Do not attempt to entirely stop the temperature, or serious consequences may result. Merely keep it within reasonable bounds. As soon as the toxins have burned up or eliminated, the temperature will become normal by itself, even though several days are required for this process.

I cannot recommend medicines to lower the temperature, as they usually lower the vitality as well. Cold spongings are safer. If the patient experiences chills, it is a good plan to use artificial warmth, packing hot water bottles around the body and allowing only flannel bed clothing to touch the skin until the perspiration becomes copious. The more you perspire the quicker your fever will disappear as the poisons are thrown off through the eliminative organs. This treatment will prove effective in all cases of simple fevers, and you will find that it may often prevent a more serious turn to the disorder.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Effects From Constipation

Question—Mrs. R. B. writes: "I am a married woman 38 years of age. The symptoms are terrible headaches, pain all down my left side, especially below the heart, also in left arm. In the morning on arising I feel as if I had passed through a bad illness—so weak and tired I would like to stay in bed all day. Of late am troubled with constipation, for the first time in my life, with a slight attack of itching piles."

Answer—The pains in your left arm and side probably come from gas pressure against your heart. This would make you feel tired in the morning. Try a course of enemas for a month, using two enemas daily. In the meantime, correct your diet so that it is not gas forming, and after the month's treatment with internal bathing I am sure your constipation will be overcome and the itching piles will disappear.

Spinach

Question—R. H. asks: "May one eat spinach without first cooking it? I was told that the oxalic acid in it makes it injurious. It is delicious to eat as we do lettuce."

Answer—The amount of oxalic acid spinach contains could not be considered injurious to the average person. It is one of the richest in iron of the leafy vegetables, and those who have a deficiency of hemoglobin or red corpuscles in the blood should use a plentiful supply in the raw form.

Mental Unrest

Question—B. G. H. writes: "Though I have no ache nor pain—am in good health—I cannot control the mind, and am afraid it will lead to something serious. Try to 'throw it off,' but can only do so for a short time, and am much worried."

Answer—You require the advice of a good psychoanalyst. Until you find one, try to get interested in constructive thinking and concentrate your mind on something which will be helpful to others.

Texas Quarantine On Cotton Seed Amended

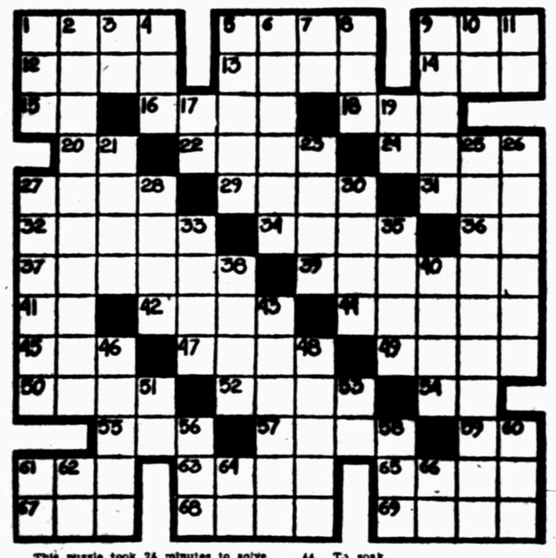

AUSTIN, July 30. (AP)—A cotton seed wilt quarantine placed by the department of agriculture in June against shipment into Texas of seed from southern states was amended today so as to apply to seed for planting purposes only.

The ban was revised because of complaint from cotton oil mills, J. M. del Curto, chief entomologist of the agricultural department said.

West More 'Air-Minded' Than East, Says Glover

WASHINGTON, July 30. (US)—The West is far ahead of the East in "air-mindedness," Assistant Postmaster General Irving Glover declared today upon his return from an inspection trip that took him as far as Spokane.

Bennett Also Important Figure in 7-2 Win

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The Spudders came home yesterday from a lengthy road trip to start an even more extensive stay at Athletic park, and they responded to the welcome of some 1400 fans or so by trouncing the San Antonio Indians in the opener of a three-game series. Milt Steengrafe chucked a superb game of ball and the Spudder batted hard and fielded brilliantly and errorlessly, to score a 7 to 2 decision.

As a result of the victory while Houston was losing to Dallas, Wichita Falls again holds undisputed possession of first place, with 18 victories and 11 defeats to Houston's 17 wins and 12 losses.

Steengrafe limited the Tribe to seven hits and except for the third inning when three bolws produced a tally and the fourth when the hostiles' run-getting was ended with a pass and hit, the big righthander was never in danger. Milt turned back the Indians in order in three rounds.

The Heavy Hitters

Pete Turgeon and Duke Hermann were other particular shining lights, though Red Bennett also had an important part in the triumph. Hermann hammered a home run and a brace of doubles and drove home three runs. Turgeon also clouted three hits, one a double, scored two runs and batted in one, and his brilliant fielding was one of the most impressive displays of defensive work seen here since lots of water has flowed under the bridge.

Bennett had a perfect day at bat with three hits, a base on balls and sacrifice. Big Red, one of the league's foremost hitters, also drove home three runs.

The Spudders hammered Neal Baker for 14 blows, Fitzgerald and Stapleton being other heavy home hitters with two blows apiece.

Gordon Gets Two Hits

Joe Tate and Milt Gordon led the Tribe attack with two blows each.

All Spudder infielders were called upon to make some sparkling plays and Flippen also flashed some speedy work.

The Indians are without the services of Harvey Ballew, brilliant young second baseman and Chief Nason, hard-hitting outfielder, both of whom are on the hospital list.

Fast Fielding Opens Game

Casey singled in the first inning but two were out, including a fast play on Flippen's grounder by Hermann, and Crouch threw out Leo trying to steal.

The Spudders filled the bases but failed to score. Benton walked. Turgeon flied to Kott. Fitzgerald forced Benton. Bennett and Sullivan beat out infield hits. Hermann forced Sullivan.

Steengrafe retired the Indians in order in the second.

Stapleton led off the Spudder half with a slashing single to left but he was stranded on the lines.

The Indians tallied one in the third and fast fielding prevented more. Milt Gordon, property of the Spudders and loaned to the Tribe, started it by smashing the center field wall for two bases. Benton raced to his left for Arzatti's grounder, deflected by Steengrafe, Gordon advancing to third. Steengrafe knocked down Baker's harsh bounder and Turgeon tore in to throw the ball to Crouch, who tagged Gordon at the plate. Tate hit to right, sending Baker to third. Flippen doubled to left, scoring Baker.

Spudders Take Lead

Wichita Falls took the lead in its third with two runs. Turgeon singled to right and went to third on Fitzgerald's long hit to the same territory. Bennett's lift to Brozovich scored Turgeon. Sullivan forced Fitzgerald Dick caught Baker napping and stole second with no play. Hermann crashed the left field fence for two bases, scoring Sullivan.

Gordon got his second hit, a single to right, that drove home Riley, who had walked and gone to second on Brozovich's infield out, to tie the count in the fourth.

The Spudders again took the lead in their half. Arzatti sprawled all over the ball on Steengrafe's tap in front of the plate and threw wild to first, Milt going to second after one was out. Benton strolled. Turgeon singled to left, his second hit, scoring Steengrafe, and Benton went to third and Pete to second when Baker threw over Arzatti. Fitzgerald grounded to Riley. Bennett was purposely passed but Sullivan fouled to Tate.

Tate walked in the fifth but got no farther than first.

Brozovich hit to center in the sixth but one was out and he was left.

Fitz and Red Score One

Fitzgerald doubled to center and rode home on Bennett's hit to left.

Tate doubled in the seventh, his second hit, but to no avail. Stapleton also nicked his second blow.

The Indians were turned back one-two-three in the eighth, with Turgeon flashing some scintillating fielding.

Turgeon hit for two bases, his third knock; advanced to third on Riley's fumble of Fitzgerald's grounder and scored on Bennett's single to left after Tate and Flippen let Red's foul fall safely. Hermann doubled to left, his third hit, scoring Fitzgerald.

San Antonio was retired in order in the ninth, with Turgeon making a sensational stop and throw for the third out on Meyers' grounder far to his left.

A duel of southpaw looms today, with Hal Wiltse as Jim Galloway's likely hurler and Joe Giard, the pitcher recently acquired from Washington the probable choice of Pat Newnam.

Ray Cahill, one of the younger and keener of the major league scouts, saw yesterday's pastime. Cahill is ivory hunter for the St. Louis Browns. He can pick the ball players when the average scout passes 'em over. It wouldn't be surprising if Ray grabs two or three or more Spudders for 1930 trials with the Browns.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30. (AP)—George Uhle weakened in the ninth inning of a pitching duel against Lefty Bob Grove today and enabled the Athletics to pull out a 5 to 4 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the tenth.

Up to the ninth, Uhle had allowed only four hits, but in that inning Al Simmons came through with a homer with one on base and Foxx followed with a single to drive Uhle from the mound. Dykes' double off Graham scored Foxx with the tying run.

Whitehill took the mound in the tenth after Bishop had walked and had been sacrificed to second. He walked Cochrane, then Simmons singled to bring in the winning run. Score:

DEMPSEY GETS $500,000 BID

Ed Cole Seeks Jack for Go At Atlantic City

NEW YORK, July 30. (UP)—Jack Dempsey today was offered $500,000 to box an unnamed opponent at Convention hall, Atlantic City, N. J., early in October, by Ed Cole.

Cole, who put up the money for the acquisition of Dempsey's services as matchmaker for Humbert J. Fugazy, made the offer to Bill Duffy, Dempsey's eastern representative.

Duffy was in communication with Dempsey over long distance telephone to Los Angeles today and afterward made Cole a counter demand which the latter said he probably would meet.

In discussing the proposed bout, Cole said he had Convention hall, with it seating capacity of 65,000, at his disposal and three heavyweights under consideration as Dempsey's opponent.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

MR. STRIBLING of the well-known Georgia Striblings and Mr. Hunt of the not so well known Oklahoma Hunts have had their second fight and still Mr. Stribling has failed to knock out Mr. Hunt. Perhaps Mr. Stribling can not knock out Mr. Hunt. Having failed to achieve that end, apparently to be highly desired by those of the cauliflower profession, in two tries, the evidence seems to indicate that Mr. Stribling does not pack a k. o. punch that will send Mr. Hunt away from there.

But the evidence in boxing is misleading, many, many times, my friends, and just because a man does not knock out another man in an exhibition of the so-called manly art is not conclusive fact that it can't be done. Indeed, I have seen some fights where the knocker-out was experiencing great trouble in holding up the knockeree, and I recall one battle where a fellow took the merry give-oh from a champion when he never was hit.

But that is beside the point. I am writing about Mr. Hunt and Mr. Stribling, and so I will elucidate at more and I hope, clearer length.

YOUNG AND BABE, which are the monickers under which the lads pursue their business of trading punches and adding to bankrolls, fought some weeks ago in Wichita, Kan. Young was the winner, by a decisive margin. In fact, Babe was floored for a count late in the fight and was in rather a distressing condition, on queer street, as the saying is. But Stribling then developed a respect for Babe's wild swings and stayed away from his foe and that fight went the limit.

Monday night they were having another war, this for the edification of Tulsans and other Sooners, come to see Babe. The talk and the betting all was on whether Stribling would win by a knockout. He did not—for the reason that after flooring Babe twice for counts in the sixth round, Stribling so far forgot himself as to deliver a low punch. So Babe won on a foul.

Now they can fight again, maybe this time at Oklahoma City, and perhaps settle the matter of whether Mr. Stribling of the Georgia Striblings can knock out Mr. Hunt of the Oklahoma Hunts.

The fact that each will collect lots of important money will of course have no bearing on their next meeting. But if Stribling HAD won their first or second mill by a knockout, there would be no sense to fighting again as people don't pay to see fighters battle when one has been knocked out.

So you see, while Stribling of course regretted to lose and suffer the blot on his record, etc., etc., it WILL enable the boys to get together again and collect a piece of change.

AS BRIGGS would say, there's at least one in every office. And because of that fact, and that it's a good story, the following is reprinted from J. G. Taylor Spink's great family publication, The Sporting News:

A Lynn newspaper man furnished considerable merriment to the scorers in the press box during a recent Lynn-Manchester game. This member of the fourth estate, who only attends the games on rare instances, endeavored to tell a stranger, who was the guest of the scorers, about the various plays and playrs.

The stranger also helped the scribe along at intervals with a few choice, well-suited remarks that resulted in the rapid fire being continued for several innings. Finally the writer was introduced to the stranger, who was Felix Talbot, one of the corps of arbiters who works for Claude Davidson, a veteran of more than 30 years in diamond warfare, and the author of a book, "Baseball for Beginners."

The Mental Pattern

"I could never understand," writes F. D. K., "just what is meant by getting a mental picture or a mental pattern of the right form in sport. How does one go about accomplishing such a thing? And why is it necessary?" It is only necessary if one happens to want to play a game in the right way, using the main fundamentals. If there is no mental pattern or mental picture of the right of way how is one to learn a game?

Why is it that caddies and other young golfers pick up the swing so quickly and apparently so easily? Because they watch the club pro, or the club champion swing, and imitate his method. But they must first have a picture of this method before they can imitate it.

As one gets older the subtle art of imitation gets harder. And for some reason the mental pattern is more easily blurred. There are too many things to break in on the simple concentration of youth, apart from the fact that younger muscles respond with greater ease.

The idea of the mental pattern is now encouraged in all preparatory schools, where it is easier to teach. It is being put through with slow motion pictures of hurdlers, high jumpers, pole vaulters, sprinters weight throwers and the others. The young star is taught to watch the action of the arms, body and legs. If he can be taught to concentrate, the right picture will usually sink into his memory and remain there as a pattern to copy or follow.

How It Helps

Any young pitcher in baseball could get no better lesson in the art of pitching than watching and studying slow motion pictures of Walter Johnson. From these pictures they could get the idea of an easy, rippling body turn, with the right hand taken far back and the right wrist cocked at the end of the backward movement. They could then get a picture of the arm sweeping through as the wrist snaps the ball away at the final flip.

What mental pattern can Bobby Jones offer the golfer. First of all, the smooth, unhurried ease of his back swing—no lurching, no jerky motions, no sign of stiffness. Then there is the mental picture of his foot action, of weight that moves from the left to the right on the back swing—from the right foot to the left as he hits the ball. The golfer who cuts across the ball should work out a mental pattern of hitting or swinging from the inside out, of swinging away from the line of flight—of hitting out. This prevents cutting across the ball, but there must be a mental picture to follow before one can do anything but flounder in the darkness that is deeper than the pit of midnight. Bobby Jones got his start by watching and studying and trying to copy the swing of Stewart Malden. He could do that much more easily at the age of 10 than he could have done it at the age of 30.

Babe Ruth admits that he used to study Joe Jackson because he thought Jackson hit the ball with the finest and freest swing he had ever seen. And the Babe is almost right. He could not have picked a better pattern. Jackson may have come upon his way of swinging naturally, just as Lajoie did. But not every one is a natural hitter at any game. And if one is he can do even better by picking out the right model to follow.

Another Example

Bobby Jones was an erratic putter for several years. He first tried to study and copy the methods of Walter J. Travis. This method failed to suit him. He then tried out the Hagen system. This also failed to work. His next move was either a copy or at least a likeness of the putting methods of Jerry Travers has always used—heels fairly close together—little crouching—hands close to the body. This gave him much greater ease and a feeling of more relaxation. There was no inroad of tension, such as the methods of Travis and Hagen brought him.

The method that one man uses might not suit another. But when it comes to certain fundamentals that all stars must carry, if one has no mental pattern of these fundamentals he might as well be told to draw a picture of an Australian Wangbot when he has no idea whether said Wangbot is round or square or three-cornered.

The greatest artist in the world could not draw a picture of a horse if he never saw a horse and had no idea what a horse looked like. There are many who have no eye for memory patterns. The picture flashes and fades and disappears. This is usually due to faulty concentration. It grows on one as the years pile up. That is why such able athletic directors like Mike Sweeney, of Hill school, go to extremes in having younger talent study form in all sports, in every possible way, so that the fundamentals will remain fixed for use later on. It is for this reason they teach in the earlier stages that form and effort must be separated so that the young athlete can concentrate entirely on form until the right habits are fairly well fixed and established.

Many good golf teachers now make their pupils watch the right swing as they (the pros) hit the ball as it should be hit, time after time. The pupil then at least has a starting point to work from.

FAMOUS SHRINE IS DEMOLISHED

Moscow Chapel Torn Down To Aid Traffic

By EDWARD L. DEUSS

MOSCOW, July 30. (US)—The famous Holy Shrine at the entrance of the Iberian gate to Red Square has been demolished to help solve Moscow's traffic problem.

While the populace slept last night a wrecking squad, working under orders from the Moscow Soviet, started work at 3 a. m. and finished the job this morning at 11.

The shrine was called the "chapel of the Iberian Virgin." It was built in 1660, and contained the "miracle working" Ikon of the Virgin Mother before which czars knelt in prayer before entering the kremlin. The gate will also be demolished to relieve traffic congestion.

While the workmen were busy scores and then hundreds gathered before the scaffolding, crossing themselves devoutly. There was general consternation among the devout residents of Moscow today. For generations the people have worshipped at the ikon which was supposed to heal the sick. The ikon itself, which is studded with pearls, will be removed to another church.

Pony Official Says Navy on Grid Card

DALLAS, July 30. (AP)—Despite a statement today by Com. Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics at United States naval academy, in which he termed as "embarrassing" the announcement here Saturday that the Middies would meet Southern Methodist university in football in 1930 and 1931, Dr. R. N. Blackwell, business manager of athletics at the local school, expressed confidence that the games had been arranged.

"H. H. Adams, former Dallas citizen, who has been representing us in the negotiations at Washington, wired me the games had been arranged," Dr. Blackwell said. "I am confident they have been and that we will get the contract."

Derby Bunionist One Of Carthage Jailbirds

CARTHAGE, Mo., July 30. (UP)—Eight Jasper county prisoners, including one of C. C. Pyle's last bunion derby tourists, continued their marathon flight from the county jail today, their trail lost since they were delivered by a fellow inmate yesterday.

The prisoners fled from the jail yesterday when Mansell Rinker, 26, held on a bank robbery charge, smuggled in a gun, "stuck up" the jailer and invited his fellows to liberty.

Pastor of 'Old Trinity' Church Takes Slap at Political-Religious Trend

Dr. Caleb R. Stetson Says Case of Religion Definitely Hurt By Present Growing Tendencies

NEW YORK, July 30. (INS)—Speaking straight and clearly from the head of that street from which utterances echo through the nation, Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of "Old Trinity," mother church of Wall street, believes "political activities of churches which has become so strikingly a feature of our national life since the passing of the 18th amendment is definitely hurting the case of religion."

The criticism, with others, is contained in Doctor Stetson's preface to Trinity's yearbook, issued today.

Condemning use of the church as a center of propaganda for either pacifism or prohibition, the rector of one of America's oldest and most famous churches says:

"There seems to be a desire to make the clergyman the directing head of a corporation giving his attention to general subjects such as world peace, law enforcement, prohibition, disarmament, etc., while committees care for the individuals who may come to church.

"But this is certainly not the way to strengthen the church. It is not the way to win people to the church. The increasing political activity of some churches has caused many people grave anxiety and many have given up their church membership because of it. They felt they were neglecting the care of souls in order to further some political measure.

"There is a growing resentment of many loyal to religion to this attempted dictation on the part of church agencies on the conduct of government as well as legal enactments. We profess to believe in a free church in a free state. Let us see to it they are kept free. The church should keep out of politics if she would retain her spiritual influence."

Doctor Stetson turns to what he terms "mass production" in the churches with equal force, pointing out that "we have become so fascinated with the stupendous success of American manufacturing methods that many long to see the church produce Christians as Mr. Ford produces Ford cars—by the thousands, at so much per head."

Evangelistic campaigns are a confession of failure of the clergy, he says, convinced that pastoral work with individuals is what is most needed.

While other churches complain of a decrease in attendance, Doctor Stetson says, Trinity's many fields of work are suffering no letdown. He finds the custom of attending week-day services growing.

Mash Feeding Increases Egg Yield, Survey Shows

ASPERMONT, Texas, July 30. (Spl.)—Those hens that were fed a laying mash during June averaged 14 eggs per day, while those not fed the mash averaged only eight and eight-tenths, a survey shows. The hens fed mash made their owners a profit of 15 cents net while the ones not fed made the owners only 11 cents.

The following is a list of records kept by farmers: Harry Dipple 410 hens, with net profit on eggs of $53.82; Oscar Vanderworth, 203 hens, net profit on eggs, $32.16 (he also sold $87.48 worth of fryers); E. F. Jones, 123 hens, made a profit of $27.40. F. J. Lowack, 98 hens, profit of $10.60. He fed no mash. F. S. Reynolds, 24 hens, profit of $3.92.

Thermometer Ruined by Albany Temperatures

ALBANY, N. Y., July 30. (INS)—The big wind that blew away the speed recording instruments at Miami in September, 1926, had nothing on the sun here yesterday. As a result the U. S. weather bureau thermometer is "burned out" today. Nobody knows how hot it was after the mercury climbed officially to 99 degrees. Unofficial thermometers recorded all the way from 93 to 110. The official one is being fixed today.

'Renewlyweds' in Italy on Honeymoon

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

ROME, July 30. (US)—"Don't breathe one word about Dolores Del Rio."

That is the secret, magic circle that surrounds Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carewe, well known in Hollywood movie circles, who are in Rome today on their second honeymoon. It is only after this caution that anyone may have a word with the "renewlyweds."

Carewe and his wife arrived from Nice by motor this morning, and departed for Naples this afternoon, where they will stay for several days, visiting Pompeii, Sorrento and Capri.

Others in the party are Mr. and Mrs. Finis Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Nathan J. Burkan, the former a prominent New York lawyer. Fox is Carewe's brother. Charlie Chaplin joined the company in Rome.

The Carewes will return to Rome next week, motoring to Florence Assisi, Peruvia and Venice, where they will spend some time. Carewe said he was considering remaining in Europe for some time, but not a word was said about the lovely Dolores, whose name has been linked with Carewe's after his divorce, when he directed several Del Rio pictures.

OFFICERS FREE OKLA. YOUTHS

Boys Cleared of Suspicion In Robbery

Two young men arrested here by members of the sheriff's department early Tuesday afternoon in connection with a recent hi-jacking in Oklahoma City were released a few hours later on instructions from Oklahoma authorities. The release orders came after both prisoners had waived extradition and had agreed to go back to Oklahoma City to have the matter cleared up.

The arrests were made in the express office here about 1:30 o'clock when the two youths called there for suit cases shipped here from Oklahoma City. The sheriff's department here had received instructions to arrest the men calling for the luggage, and W. H. White, deputy, was waiting in the company offices when the checks were presented. Meanwhile Warren Belcher, Charlie Gant and Dick Morris, deputies, took charge of two men waiting outside in an automobile while the third went after the suit cases. All three young men denied any knowledge of the Oklahoma City robbery. One of the number, a Wichita Falls boy, was released at once when he explained that he had merely given the other two a lift in the car.

The two Oklahoma youths declared they had bummed rides from Oklahoma City and made signed statements tracing their actions since last Saturday afternoon, a few hours before the holdup. They agreed, however, to be taken back across the state line without a fight in order to get everything straight. Oklahoma officials explained that two hi-jackers had escaped with $1,000 in cash and several valuable watches in Oklahoma City last Saturday night, but they early abandoned the idea that the youths held here had any connection with the robbery.

Steel Corporation's Good News Creates Fair Demand for Stocks

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 30. (US)—Expectation of favorable news from the Steel Corporation directors' meeting, scheduled for after the close, influenced sufficient demand for good stocks to rally the market today. The call rate remained at 10 per cent throughout and tended to keep dealings quiet but there was much better support evidenced than in Monday's session so that most of the list remained in an upward price trend during the session. Declaration of only the regular dividend may disappoint some but the record earnings for the second quarter comprise substantial rise for the future. Steel gained 1½ and other standard industrials advanced about a point on the average. Commercial solvents skyrocketed over 20 points, American and Foreign Power advanced 6¼, Baldwin 4⅛, Harvester 3⅛, Mack Truck 3¼, and Safeway Stores 7 7-9. Rails and oils remained quiet but turned slightly stronger. Turnover dropped under the 3,000,000-share level.

The bears have had things pretty much their own way in the motor stocks for the last several weeks but will face a different condition soon. Group work is planned in several stocks, it is learned, particularly General Motors, Hudson, Nash and Chrysler. There is talk also of group work in Graham-Paige. The next few weeks will witness introduction of new models by several companies. It is expected that the offerings will influence increasing demand as the trade has been, awaiting the changes and its attitude has tended to hold off new buyers. Strong insiders are mentioned as interested in the General Motors operation and similar reports are heard concerning the planned activity in Nash. The last Hudson operation reputedly was spoiled by Durant selling but this, it is said, will not happen again. Of course the plans for group work are entirely dependent on the willingness of the reserve to maintain a fairly satisfactory money market.

Some change in the psychology of the copper people is noticeable also and if the money powers permit there are plans to take advantage of the large short interest outstanding in Anaconda and other red metal shares over the next few weeks. Copper men are more optimistic as to the outlook for the metal market and if they can hold the price around 18 cents may be able to do something with the stocks.

Group work continues in Remington Rand coincident with forecast that the current quarter will show equal improvement in earnings to that reported for the second three months. Net for that period was more than three times what it was in 1928.

As they promised, the Chicago interests in Montgomery Ward took a more aggressive position as soon as the stock sold "CX" rights. They have a fair sized short interest to work on and at the same time expect further gain in sales over the coming months. Buying of Vick Chemical was influenced by report that earnings are running at the rate of $9 a share. Insiders are said to be planning a two for one split up of the stock before the end of the year. The new Baldwin was active again as each day brings further indication of the plans of the controlling interests for establishing a stable earning power. Not alone has equipment business increased but the next several weeks will bring announcement of the company's entrance into new lines of activity.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 30. (AP)—Increasing suggestions that big shipments of domestic winter wheat may glut terminal markets did much to overturn wheat values today. The world's wheat available supply showed 8,161,000 bushels enlargement for the week, with crop damage reports seeming to have lost effect as an immediate price influence.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 2½ to 4¼ cents under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 2⅛ to 3⅝ cents down, oats ⅝@½c to 1 cent off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25 cents.

Wheat traders today showed decided uneasiness over expansion of wheat arrivals at Chicago, receipts here today totaling 958 cars compared with 257 cars a week ago.

Downward slides in wheat prices began at the outset of trading, and despite frequent rallies continued until the market just before business ended was 7½ cents under yesterday's top figures. A leading Chicago crop expert who returned today from an eight weeks' tour of the Northwest, said Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta promise 255,000,000 bushels compared with 510,000,000 bushels last year, and the Dakotas and Montana 135,000,000 bushels this season against 241,000,000 bushels harvested a year ago.

Corn and oats prices dropped with wheat. Timely rains in eastern Nebraska helpful to corn growth were an independent factor in easing the corn market, together with a forecast of showers in parts of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

Provisions were responsive to downturns in the values of hogs.

COTTON PRICES GAIN GROUND

General Revision Made In Produce Quotations

Cotton prices maintained their weekly reversion of humor with an added advance of 15 points Tuesday, closing with local buyers at 17.40 per pound, middling basis. A gradual revision downward last week carried the price to 17.00, the ascent originating Monday.

Numerous changes were reported in the prices of green produce and fruit, many items of garden produce dropping with the influx of full harvest in Colorado and other heavily productive sections. Rhubarb, bell peppers, okra, lettuce, white potatoes (California), turnips and tops, and roasting ears were among the vegetables offered at lower prices. Cabbage, eggplant, mustard greens, new Texas potatoes, and oranges were given slight advances.

MID-WESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, July 30. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Moderate receipts of cattle failed to stimulate trade today at most points around the 11-market circuit. Demand at eastern dressed beef markets was slow with the less desirable grades working lower. Strictly choice fed steers and yearlings were fully steady but packers continued to hammer down the general run of beef steers and yearlings. The prevailing price spread is the widest of the season with highly finished natives at $16.00 and above while plain white grassers sell downward to $8.00 and below. Chicago had a top of $16.70 on finished light weight steers and a three-car shipment of outstanding 160 pound beeves at Kansas City scored $16.30. Well bred western steers suitable for feeders are materially lower than last week with country demand slow at the demand. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 37,000, a decrease of 9,000 from a week ago and slightly more than the corresponding day last year.

Another decline of 15 to 35 cents was in force on hogs with late trade at most markets 25c or more lower. The day's extreme top of $11.90 was paid at Chicago. Total offerings were around 79,500 as compared with 84,079 last Tuesday and 66,604 a year ago.

Fat lambs were moderately active at generally steady to strong values some points reporting a slight advance. Aged stock was little changed. Closely sorted native lambs in Chicago made $13.40 to $13.60 and choice rangers realized $13.50. The supply approximated 41,700, a decrease of 7,500 from a week ago but 4,300 heavier than a year ago.

SPUR TO OFFER FARM COURSES

Five Dickens County Evening Schools Planned

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, July 30.—Joe Williams, instructor in vocational agriculture, at the Spur High school, has just returned from A. & M. college, where he has been making special studies in dairying and poultry.

Last year Mr. Williams outlined a three-year plan of teaching vocational agriculture in this community. The first year covered the selection and feeding of livestock and poultry, and the selection and improvement of plants. This year the program will cover plant and animal diseases and terracing, with special emphasis on diseases of poultry and dairy animals.

The state high school division has just granted one and one-half units of affiliation in vocational agriculture, and a request will be made at the close of the 29-30 school year for an additional amount of credit equal to the affiliation granted for the first year's work. Mr. Williams will spend his time from now until the fall term begins in visiting projects, closing up last year's projects, and in securing new pupils for his classes.

Working with the county agent and the chamber of commerce, Mr. Williams will organize at least five evening schools to be taught in the communities adjoining Spur. Each community that wishes to secure the evening schools will have the privilege of selecting the subject, and the phase of it that they wish to study. Mr. Williams will give them the instruction that comes nearest meeting their needs.

It will be the policy of the department of vocational agriculture in the Spur school to assist in building up, through boys' projects and evening schools, a balanced program of farming for Dickens county.

PROGRAM FOR VODVIL READY

Bagpipe Music and Scotch Dance Added

A feature of the weekly free vaudeville bill to be presented at Bellevue park Wednesday night will be Frank Humphrey and his daughter, Olive, in a novelty bagpipe and highland fling number. Mr. Humphrey is well known locally for his playing of the bagpipe and his daughter is equally well known for her Scotch dances, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, who is in charge of the arrangement of the weekly programs.

A stringed instrument sextet, composed of Mrs. A. W. Ayres, Misses Velma Lewis and Clarice Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones and Mr. Hoffman, and featuring Miss Daisy Coombs in a Spanish dance, will be the second number on the program. Paul Sisk with his marimba, accompanied by Miss Lorene Tucker at the piano, will present several numbers. Other acts on the bill will include the "Five-Year-Old Flapperettes," students of the Tucker School of Fine Arts, in a jazz chorus, Miss Bonnie Pearl West in a tap dance and Miss Faith Galmische in a toe-tap dance. The last two young ladies are also students of the Tucker school.

A surprise number will be presented at the end of the bill, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

City Starts Work On New Assessment Roll

Work on the city roll of taxes was started Tuesday, the rendered roll for school taxes having been completed Monday, it was announced by W. R. Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector Both rolls will be completed and certified by Oct. 1, when taxes will become due and payable.

In connection with complaints of several taxpayers that they would find payment of city and school taxes considerably easier if a semi-annual payment of the amounts were allowed by the city, Mr. Hyer pointed out that the present custom in collections made them virtually semi-annual. The city charter provides that taxes shall be paid by Jan. 31 and that a penalty shall be attached for failure to pay by that date. But it has long been the custom in the tax department to allow two extra months before levying a penalty, so that the dates for first and final payment are Oct. 1 and March 31, exactly six months apart, Mr. Hyer stated.

PERMIT ISSUED FOR HOME OF P. P. LANGFORD JR.

One building permit was issued at the office of the city engineer Tuesday. The lone permit was for construction of a brick house and garage at 2400 Harrison street to cost $5,000, work to begin at once. The house will be the residence of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Langford Jr.

REBEKAH DEGREE PRACTICE

WHAT KISSES TELL MOTHER

Keeping children well is easy when mother can read the early symptoms of childhood's ills.

If little ones are fretful, pale, languid, won't eat and want to be mothered; when they often get colds and sore throat and seem feverish, depend upon it the bowels are sluggish. You notice unpleasant breath when you kiss them—sure sign of constipation and a sour stomach.

Give a little California Fig Syrup to purify the system and see how quickly it restores strength, appetite and joyous spirits. It acts without pain and gently cleanses the bowels of constipated waste which causes feverishness, sours the digestion and keeps the little one sickly and backward.

If you suspect measles or some other children's disease, give a dose of California Fig Syrup without delay. The doctor will praise your forethought. California Fig Syrup is the finest laxative in the world for children. It suits them perfectly and they love its delicious taste. For a child who is habitually constipated there is no other remedy to equal California Fig Syrup for coaxing the bowels back to healthy regularity. If you have a child who is troublesome in this way try California Fig Syrup. Get a bottle today. All drug stores have it.

California Fig Syrup has been trusted by the World's mothers for over 30 years. That is why the word "California" should be emphasized when buying.—Adv.

Anent the possibilities of talking picture development, the extent of which has been debated extensively, a listening ear may be turned to the words of Bayard Veiller, one of the most successful playwrights of the last decade:

◇ ◇ ◇

"I think perfection in sound reproduction will be attained within a year. Engineers have made amazing progress within a period of less than two years. The chief needs of the talking film now are a wider screen and a wide scope camera, which would permit group closeups. This would be of particular value in the screening of musical comedy sequences. Out-of-door talking scenes are now possible. All the disadvantages of the dialogue picture are now being speedily eradicated.

◇ ◇ ◇

"The talking picture, to my mind, is more vital and more intrinsically dramatic than the silent film. I think it will have a far wider range of appeal and will serve to combine the intimate effects of the stage production with the popularity and economy of the motion picture."

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. Veiller's closing remark is burdened with especial significance. The motion picture made drama available to millions of persons who have no opportunity in a life time to visit the centers of reputable legitimate stage production. The nominal cost of such entertainment permitted the popular mind to register almost unanimously its willingness to be entertained with "plays."

◇ ◇ ◇

The eagerness with which the American public seized upon motion pictures, in no small measure as a retreat from the dizzy pace of our "industrial age," was itself partly responsible for the pitfalls which threatened the industry. Feverish wholesale production of films to supply frequent program changes for myriad "movie" houses resulted in a deplorable absence of quality in the scenarios, and a standard of acting too empty to invite analysis.

◇ ◇ ◇

Leaders in the reconstructed motion picture industry frankly admit that the elements in talking productions commended by Mr. Veiller promise to rescue the screen from a threatening morass of tasteless mediocrity.

◇ ◇ ◇

Speaking of drama, those stage narratives and impersonations which best catch the public fancy are those which seem to us most truthfully to portray human nature reacting to trying circumstances just as our next door neighbors do. It is not amiss, while on that wavelength, to recognize the unvarying interest shown in the world's news reviews which are now a part of every motion picture program. The fortunes and misfortunes of actors whose roles are akin to our own daily fever seem always to "get over."

Optimist Club To Hear Air Leader

Phillip R. Shumway, traffic manager for the Braniff airlines, will be the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Optimist club Wednesday noon at the Kemp hotel, according to Ira D. Brown, secretary.

Mr. Shumway will fly from Oklahoma City Wednesday morning to make his engagement here, it was said. Entertainment will be furnished by Mickey Ferguson, who will present two Spanish songs in costume, accompanied by Miss Juanita Ferguson, her sister, at the piano.

Burns Orders Arrest Of Noisy Motorists

A warning has been issued by Police Chief Frank Burns to all motorists with cars which do not have proper devices for muffling exhaust noises or which are operated with cutouts open. Several complaints have been received at police headquarters concerning the loud noise produced by heavy trucks and automobiles without mufflers, it was said.

A city ordinance prohibits the making of unnecessary noise in hospital zones and the operating of motor vehicles without mufflers or with cutout devices, Chief Burns said. Motorcycle officers and traffic men on the police force have been instructed to make arrests.

L. P. Hammond To Continue Operation Of Air Company

Assumption of the operation of the Municipal airport on Aug. 1 by the city will not mean the cessation of aeronautic activities by the Lone Star Aviation company, present lessee of the field, according to L. P. Hammond, president of that concern.

Space for two ships will be retained in the hangars at the Municipal port, Mr. Hammond said, and the flying school which has been conducted for several months by the company will be continued. Mr. Hammond also will continue to use his planes in taxi service for the public it was said, as well as representing the Curtiss-Robin factories in this territory.

Izaak Walton Head To Address Lions

Mr. Powers talked informally, with philosophic observations upon the transitory nature of life.

Wichitan Narrowly Escapes Death When Train Smashes Road Grader

Arthur Evert, Wichita county employe, narrowly escaped death and a county road grader was demolished Monday afternoon when the machine was struck by the engine of a Katy passenger train 10 miles out from Wichita Falls an instant after Evert had leaped clear of the track.

In a statement made to county officials Tuesday, Evert said that the grader had been moving at a speed of three miles an hour at the time of the crash. He declared that he had not seen the approaching locomotive until it was within 100 yards of the crossing and that he had only time to save himself. The driver asserted that he had looked down the track before attempting the crossing and had heard no whistle or bell.

L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, said Tuesday afternoon that a $3,100 claim for the grader would be made against the railroad. The machine was the property of precinct No. 2, which includes the town of Burkburnett.
