TEXAS TAKES FIRST RANK AS OIL PRODUCING STATE

SURVEY SHOWS TEXAS GAINING OTHERS LOSING

Report of Geological Department Gives North-Central Fields Production Increase in October.

Oklahoma and California Fields Falling Off in Daily Flow, According to Figures.

By B. N. TIMMONS,
Washington Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Government experts today expressed the belief that Texas has taken the lead in oil production during November. This opinion was expressed following the official report by the geological survey Saturday night showing that in October Texas, California and Oklahoma were so closely blanketed in oil production that it was difficult to tell which was leading.

Just one thing was certain—and that was that Texas was gaining during the month while both California and Oklahoma were losing. The same proportionate fall in November will shove Texas far into the lead as the premier oil state.

The Texas gain for October over the preceding month is one of the most remarkable episodes of oil history. In September Texas produced 7,887,000 barrels of oil. In October it produced 9,269,000 barrels, an increase in one month of 1,382,000 barrels.

The Central Northern Texas and the Texas Coastal fields both shared in the great spurt. The October gain over September for the Central Northern Texas fields was 911,000 barrels, and for the Gulf Coast 471,000 barrels.

The Central Northern Texas field in October reached the highest figure since discovery, the total being 6,654,000 barrels for the month. Figures for the entire life of the Coastal field are not available, but it is believed that the 2,615,000 barrels produced in the South Texas field in October nears a record for it.

G. B. Richardson, petroleum expert at the geological survey, said that his preliminary figures indicated that for October the daily production of Texas was 299,000 barrels; in Oklahoma, 301,000 barrels, and in California, 305,000 barrels.

AUTO THIEF ADMITS GUILT, SHOOTS HOLES IN WHEELS OF PURSUING CAR, FLEES

Forcing A. G. Abbott, 903 Sixteenth street, at the point of a revolver, to get back in his automobile after conceding to Abbott that he had stolen the machine that he was driving, an automobile thief and a supposed bootlegger shot holes in three of the tires of Abbott's machine and then, with a companion drove rapidly away from the scene. The shooting occurred at 5 o'clock Sunday night on the old Lake road near the end of the Southland car line and within the city limits.

Immediately after the shooting Abbott was driven to the police station in an automobile that came up to the stranded car a few minutes after the shooting occurred. The driver of the machine coming into the city said that he had met the two supposed car thieves piloting the stolen machine out the old lake road, at terriffic speed.

Rangers Help in Chase.

Abbott notified the police station as soon as he arrived in the city and within a few minutes cars loaded with policemen joined cars from the sheriff's office in a country-wide search for the two men. State rangers were with the city and county officers who were scouring the entire county. Up to an early hour Monday morning no trace of the two men had been reported.

The discovery of the car and the two men who are believed to have stolen it was accidental.

The car was stolen at 10 o'clock Saturday night from in front of the William-Mary hotel. W. M. Thompson, salesman employed by the Lloyd Weaver Auto company, had driven the car to the hotel and parked it there. The car was gone when he returned from his room in the hotel

Money Presses Still Running As Cops Enter

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 28.—The ink still was drying on a counterfeit $3,000 stack of ten-dollar bank notes that had been printed from copper plates when three policemen today entered the room where the counterfeit notes were being made, and arrested two men.

A woman had informed them of the "money" manufacturing operations, the police said.

The arrested men gave their names as Martin Hamman of this city and Charles Schwibbe of Vincennes, Ind. The police said the counterfeiting outfit was one of the most complete ever seized here. Many books of photographic methods, engraving, chemicals and coloring also were found in the room.

Nine of the bank notes had been completed. The men had evidently made many experiments, for several notes which Hamman said were "too thick" were scattered on the table. The paper used was of the best grade and an artificial toughness was added with a glue.

Police say Hamman was sentenced to serve five years in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., after he had been convicted of counterfeiting in Oklahoma. He was recently released. Schwibbe told the police that he served nine months in prison for robbing a safe in an Indiana town.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 28.—Mrs. John Clark of Dallas was criminally assaulted in her home Saturday night between 8 and 9 o'clock by a negro, described as a large black man. According to police who investigated, the woman had returned to her home from town and after accepting duties about the house entered the bathroom where the criminal seized her.

A struggle ensued during which the negro knocked the woman unconscious by hitting her over the head with a scrub brush. He then threw her on a lounge and bound her with two towels, one being drawn through her mouth and the other tightly about her neck. Condition of furniture in the house indicated that the struggle took place in three rooms. The woman's husband found her two hours later lying in an unconscious condition on the floor near the lounge.

15 WAREHOUSES BURN FIRE EATS $500,000 RIOTS FOLLOW FLAME

CORK, Nov. 28.—In additional incendiary fires Saturday night an extensive block of buildings in St. Patrick's street was completely destroyed, involving damages estimated at 100,000 pounds ($500,000). The buildings destroyed included the Black Thorn house which had been twice previously bombed and partially wrecked. The fire started in this structure on the present occasion.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 28.—Fifteen warehouses in Liverpool and Bootle, a suburb, principal cotton warehouses in Liverpool, were set on fire last night.

Two of the cotton warehouses in Liverpool were burned out. Gasoline cans and parafin were found about premises, it was stated in police headquarters. There was strong evidence that the fires were the work of sinn feiners.

Shooting occurred after the outbreak of the flames. Constables on the scene were fired at and bullets passed through the clothing of some of them, but none was injured. One civilian was shot dead.

Five men were arrested in connection with the incendiary origin of the outbreak.

POLICEMAN IS KILLED.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Liverpool correspondent of the Evening Telegraph in an untimed message today says:

"An orgy of outrage and destruction, believed to have been engineered by Sinn Feiners, was carried out on 12 cotton warehouses and several timber yards here. Several fires were burning at once; necessitating a call for the assistance of outlying fire brigades. Many of the fires still are burning."

The newspapers say a suspected man, believed to have been connected with one of the fires, when seized by a policeman pulled a revolver and shot the policeman dead. The man later was arrested.

The descriptions of two men wanted in connection with the fires have been circulated by the police, and it is believed, adds the message, that both are connected with the Sinn Fein movement.

SINN FEIN REPRISALS

BELFAST, Nov. 28.—A statement issued tonight from Dublin castle, after giving an account of the Liverpool fires and accompanying incidents, adds:

"Read in conjunction with the documents discovered last, in which plans for Sinn Fein reprisals against the English towns of Manchester and Liverpool, among a number, were detailed. These things have a very sinister aspect. The fact of the police being fired on suggests that the methods of the Sinn Fein murder gang in Ireland are being employed against the English people, even if the personnel of the murderers is not the same."

CASUALITIES IN BELFAST.

BELFAST, Nov. 28.—Several casualities from clashes with the authorities and from other disorders occurred here and in other parts of Ireland last night and early today.

The railroad men demanded cash money and it was not until a local banker presented a cashier's check for $60,000 were the cars hooked to the special.

Governors and other high Mexican officials will be picked up by the special at various places en route to the Mexican capital.

Fashionable Rivercrest District Swept by Sunday Blaze Which Leaves New Residences in Ruins.

Conflagration Causing Loss of $100,000 Starts From Overheated Gas Stove in Home of Earl Morey.

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 28.—Fire originating in the home of Earl K. Morey on Western avenue destroyed six new residences and partially destroyed another in Arlington heights here this afternoon. The total loss was estimated at $100,000. The homes were near the River Crest Country club in a new residential section and all homes that were burned having been constructed within the last six months.

The fire started from a gas stove in the Morey home which was too close to the wall, according to reports. The fire quickly spread to adjoining residences. Although outside the city limits a call was sent to the local fire department which prevented the further spread of the fire after they had layed fire hose four blocks.

The names of the owners of five of the six homes that were burned are as follows: Harry Grafkee, Warren V. Galbraith, Ben Wofford and James Earle, C. W. Hicks was owner of the residence that was partially destroyed.

Injury Extent Of Gas Victims Not Determined

Whether J. B. Thornton, injured at Petrolia Saturday morning, will lose his sight completely, will not be known for several days, according to statements Sunday night from attending physicians at the Methodist hospital.

The sight of one eye is already destroyed, but there is still vision left in the other, it is stated, and hopes are entertained that it may be saved, though it will be several days before definite developments can be expected. This is Thornton's most serious injury, though he is badly bruised about the body.

L. O. Gee, the other man who was brought to the Methodist hospital in this city, also suffered an injury to one eye, but by a queer turn of chance it was an eye that was already damaged, physicians state. He is resting fairly easy, and though complaining of severe pains in the back, it is believed he has escaped any serious injury.

CONTROL OF RESOURCES PACT STUDY

GENEVA, Nov. 28—The question whether countries shall be allowed to control and dispose at will of their neutral resources is subject of a sharp conflict in a committee of the League of Nations assembly. The contest arose over a resolution by Gustave Ador of Switzerland, setting up a permanent economic and financial committee, one of the duties of which would be to examine measures for preventing conopolies in raw materials and the means of controlling their distribution.

The resolution is based on Article 23 of the convenant, which assures all states equitable treatment. It is supported chiefly by Italy, Switzerland and other countries not rich in raw materials.

One of the strongest opponents of the resolution is Sir George E. Foster of Canada, who has taken the same attitude as N. E. Rowell, also of Canada, who served notice on the assembly in an impressive speeche recently that any attempt to exercise such control would be regarded as interference in internal affairs to which Canada would never submit.

Rowell at the same time said that the entry of the United States could not be hoped for if any such interference were attempted.

The question of mandates is another difficult subject coming up this week. The council has on the agenda for tomorrow the nomination of a permanent mandate commission and another committee at the same time will take up the general question in the form of terms and control of mandates. This committee, which is known as No. 6, has recommended that the United States be invited to co-operate unofficially in the study of the question of disarmament.

Still another important matter on the program of the council for tomorrow is election of a successor of Secretary Tower as high commissioner at Danzig. The counsel may also finally decide what reply shall be made to the German protest against approval of the result of the European Malmedy plebescite.

Germany contends that the Belgian troops of occupation exerted pressure on the population.

OFFER TUMULTY CUSTOMS COURT APPEALS PLACE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, has been offered by Mr. Wilson an appointment to the customs court of appeals, but has reached no decision with regard to its acceptance.

This was disclosed tonight in a statement issued by Tumulty, prompted by various published reports as to what he planned to do when his duties at the White House cease next March.

The statement also took notice of reports that Tumulty planned to enter a law partnership here with Former Representative T. T. Ansberry of Ohio.

I have made no definite plans for the future and have not under consideration a law partnership of any kind," Tumulty said. "It is true that the president has generously offered to me the post made vacant by the death of Chief Justice Montgomery of the customs court of appeals. I have this matter now under consideration, but have reached no decision regarding it."

HARDING LOOKS AT FORTS THAT DEFEND CANAL

By Associated Press.

CRISTOBAL, Nov. 28.—President-elect Harding completed his inspection of the Panama canal today with a visit to the fortifications at its eastern entrance and called on several military and naval stations in the vicinity of Cristobal.

As in the inspection of the defense at the Pacific of the canal, the president-elect took great interest in small details, asking many questions to familiarize himself with the strategic situation.

During a visit to the naval air station at Cocosolo, Mrs. Harding accepted an invitation to make a flight in a seaplane, spending fifteen minutes over Limer bay in one of the largest NC type planes used by the navy.

The plane attained a height of about 1,000 feet, and though it was her first experience at flying, Mrs. Harding appeared to enjoy it immensely.

Tonight the president-elect was the guest of honor at a dinner tendered him by the merchants of Colon and Cristobal. The affair was the occasion for renewal of expression of economity between the states and Panama and pledges of co-operation to promote particularly the commercial value of the canal.

Senator Harding gave assurance of his interest in the development of Central and South American trade and expressed belief that the canal would form an influential factor in the development of world commerce.

The steamer Pastores, on which the Harding party will return to the United States, is expected to sail about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

DELEGATES TO WORLD LEAGUE WILL SEE PICTURESQUE PEOPLE

Glimpses of Swiss folk in native dress.

Picturesque indeed are the Swiss folk delegates to the league of nations sessions at Geneva will see while there. The pictures above give the reader a glimpse of the type of native folk the visitors will see. Above, at left, two women in national costumes are selling dainties and collecting funds to aid the Swiss Red Cross. One of the women is wearing even the wooden shoes worn by many of the women. At the upper left is a Swiss peasant woman in her garden, wearing trousers. This form of costumes is generally used about the farms because of the freedom it affords in working. Below are two Swiss children "all dressed up." They, too, are aiding the Red Cross by selling trinkets and collecting funds on the streets. Geneva, the capital of the little mountain republic, is one of the show places of Europe, resting on the edge of a beautiful lake, with the snow-capped mountains nearby.

GENERAL GREEN SEIZES MEXICAN GOVERNOR CHAIR

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 28.—Supporters of General Carlos Green, who recently was deposed as governor of the state of Tabasco, forcibly disarmed the police at Villa Hermosa, the state capitol, today and appointed Tomas Garrido as governor. The seizure of power was carried out without loss of life.

After an entire new official personnel of Green supporters had been named a letter was directed to the state senate stating that the seizure was in retallation for General Green's deposition.

General Green was deposed several weeks ago after soldiers alleged to be acting on his orders, killed two members of the chamber of deputies and wounded several spectators while attempting to arrest Deputy Lascano, who had fled into the chamber after shooting an army captain.

Minister of War Calles, in announcing the new overturn, asserted it was the result of delay by the national senate in confirming the appointment of Aguilar Suares as provisional governor. Suares has been serving in that capacity since General Green's arrest.

SUSPECTS IN MURDER CASE NAME OTHERS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Another day of questioning failed to shake the statements of Peter D. Treadway and Marie Phillips, under arrest here in connection with the killing of Henry T. Pierce, manufacturer's agent, that two men known to them as "Alf" Smith and "Jack" were the slayers.

Detectives working on the case tonight said the prisoners had been subjected to virtually a continuous examination since they were brought here Thursday from Wheeling and and that they had not deviated in any important details from their stories in which they said they were having a party in Peirce apartment when Smith and "Jack" entered, held up Peirce and when he showed resistance, hit him over the head with a pipe wrench. Later they claim the two men took Peierce's motor car and compelled them to accompany them to Wheeling where they left the couple.

The police say they have established the identity of these men and that they are well known local characters. A description of them has been sent broadcast and for a time tonight it was believed they had been captured.

It is believed by the local authorities, however, the fugitives are hiding in the West Virginia mountains and that it is only a question of time until they are captured.

Treadway and Miss Phillips will be arraigned for a hearing in Central station tomorrow. Charges of murder, robbery and larceny have been lodged against them.

GAMBLING WILL BE TAKEN FROM NATIONAL GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The most important matter in the welfare of the national game is the complete divorcing of it from the gambling element, Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, new head of organized baseball, said here today before starting back for Chicago. Judge Landis attended the Army-Navy football game here yesterday as the guest of the owners of the New York Giants.

"I don't want to be hailed as a dictator, nor a savior," he said, "what I am seeking is to learn the best things to be done and I want the help of everybody with the best interests of the game at heart."

He said he had no profound or deeply mysterious schemes for dealing with problems of the game, but emphasized his determination to make the game clean.

"The co-operation of the baseball and civil authorities can accomplish much toward eliminating crookedness," he added. "To show how essential to get rid of the gambling influence, my experience and observance as a lawyer and judge has been that there is no crime this element won't commit for some ends. I don't mean all professional gamblers are of that kind—some of them are pretty decent fellows—but that such is the spirit of gambling.

"If more stringent laws are needed to prevent wrongdoing in baseball, they can be effected through either federal or state statutes. I don't believe there would be any difference in having such legislation introduced in Washington, for decent people are too fond of the game not to do what they can for its good."

Judge Landis will return to New York December 15 to attend a joint meeting of the American and National leagues for the purpose of discussing reconstruction plans.

THREE CHARGED WITH DEATH OF PEACH GROWER

MACON, Ga., Nov. 28.—Mrs. F. E. Elmer, arrested yesterday at Fort Valley, Ga., on a warrant charging her with the murder of her former husband, Fred D. Shepard, known as the "Georgia peach king" was placed in jail here today and was said to be in a highly nervous state. She was arrested at the conclusion of the inquest at Fort Valley yesterday at which expert testimony was presented to show presence of poison in the dead man's viscera.

Two other persons, Mrs. Ione Henry, Mrs. Elmer's sister, and Ernest Hodson, Mrs. Elmer's son by a former marriage, also were arrested at Perry, Ga., in connection with the case. They were visiting at the Shepard home when Shepard was stricken with the illness that caused his death.

Counsel for Mrs. Elmer announced tonight that her husband, Dr. Elmer of Jacksonville, Fla., was enroute to Macon. Dr. Elmer, he added, was at one time private physician to a former president of Mexico and left that country because of political disturbances. He denied reports that the physician was of Mexican birth or that he had been governor at one time of a state in Mexico.

Mrs. Elmer denied herself to callers today, although many persons called at the jail to see her.

TAKES SERMON FROM APOSTLE PAUL ON LAWS

"All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient."

Taking this extract from the letter of the Apostle Paul to the Christians at Corinth as his text Dr. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church made practical application of the thought to every day modern life in his Sunday morning sermon. Tracing an analogy in the problems that faced the early Christians in the wealthy and non-Christian city of Corinth in Bibical times to present conditions the pastor gave a modern interpretation to Paul's message of advise to the early Christians.

'It may be lawful for one to abuse his physical being, but certainly it is not expedient," said Mr. Grafton emphasizing on the grounds of expediency the need of man preserving his health. The pastor brought out that intemperance in eating and drinking and other abusive habits was in modern times an example of what Paul had in mind in his early message to the Christians at Corinth.

The need of expediency as a guide to the activities of man in his relation to other men was brought out forcibly by the speaker. Emphasizing the responsibility of everyone to keep in mind the well being of those around them, Dr. Grafton again pointed out that in modern times there are many things that a person should refrain from doing not because they are hurtful to himself, but because they have an injurious effect on others. "A duty devolves upon everyone to consider others as well as himself and it is not expedient for anyone to do that which has an evil effect on others when it is possible to refrain from doing so," said the speaker.

The pastor concluded his sermon with an appeal that expediency should govern man's action in order to advance the interest of the kingdom. Declaring that the advancement of the teachings of Christ should be the guage that should govern the life of all Christians, the speaker pointed out that it was often times expedient to do or refrain from doing things that were lawful but which would not advance the interests of the Christian world.

JOBBERS WILL QUOTE PRICES OF JANUARY 1

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Signs of a little more activity in the distribution of cotton goods were shown last week in first and second hands, but the new movement was a result of very low prices. Sales of 30,000 pieces of standard print cloths for spot delivery were made at 7 1-2 cents.

Jobbers in several western cities are advertising clearance sales for next week at which they propose to make prices they believe will prevail after Jan. 1.

In this they will be helped by the general adoption by large selling agencies of the policy of shipping goods 'on memorandum," the price to be named later on.

Spring business continues neglible. Curtailment of production has been greater this week than at any time, some large centers like Fall River and New Bedford not operating more than 40 per cent capacity.

Prices follow:

Print cloths, 64x64s, 6 1-2 cents; 64x60s, 6 1-4 cents; 38 1-2-inch 64x64s, 8 1-4 cents; standard brown sheetings 14 cents; tickings, 8-ounce, 27 1-2 cents; denims, 2.20s indigo, 25 cents; staple ginghams 11 1-2 and 20 cents; prints 12 1-2 cents; dress ginghams 25 and 27 1-2 cents.

WRESTLER WILL SHOW PHYSIQUE TO LOCAL FANS

Movie fans will also have an opportunity of "lamping" the physique of Young McFadden, the "American Apollo," it was announced Sunday night, arrangements having been made for the handsome wrestler's appearance at a local moving picture show, to be decided upon later.

McFadden will arrive Monday morning for his match Tuesday night with Henry Irslinger at the Wichita theater.

Irslinger declares himself to be in good condition, and confident of his ability to pin his opponent to the mat, Irslinger admits, however, that he is going up against a good man, and one who has victories over several good men to his credit.

McFadden's delay in reaching Wichita Falls was due to his going to Houston first, under the impression that his match with Pet Brown there came first. This mistake will add another stretch to the long and tiresome railroad trips with which McFadden will have to sandwich in his two matches in Texas. His bouts with Irslinger and Brown coming within 24 hours of each other.

SOUTHERN COLLEGES CLOSE MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 28.—Probably the most successful football seasons that southern colleges and universities have experienced came to a close last week with a number of spectacular contests in which the well coached elevens of the south proved themselves worthy foes of the country's best elevens.

Attendance records were broken at almost all southern fields. The greatest feature of the seasons, in the minds of many, however, was the large number of gridiron machines of outstanding caliber developed.

There were a number of intersectional contests during the season and indications are that more will be scheduled next year. Centre is to play Havard again next season; Georgia Tech will play some big eastern eleven, probably Yale. Other teams that are expected to engage in intersectional games include:

Auburn, North Carolina State, Tulane, V. M. I., Virginia university, Washington and Lee and possibly others.

Of the many great elevents that the season produced, four came thru with records of no defeats by other Dixie teams, three of them, Georgia Tech, Georgia university and Tulane, in the Southern Intercollegiate association and one, V. M. I., in the South Atlantic conference. Georgia university and V. M. I. lost no games. Tech lost only to Pittsburgh and Tulane to Michigan.

French Labor Class Favors Maximum Work

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The national syndicatist congress, claiming a membership of more than 93,000, closed a three days' session today with a resolution reaffirming the policy of "maximum production in minimum time for maximum wages, with a just division between capital and labor, all based on maximum production by new and scientific methods of manufacture with increasingly perfected mystery."

The congress protested against "slavery, in which the general federation of labor was trying to keep the unions and offered co-operation as a substitute for class war.

MOVIES, CHURCH SERVICE, BRING THRONG TO DOOR

A tryout Sunday night at the Olympic theater of the community service under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrews Episcopal church, in which the showing of a motion picture at the close of the religious services is offered in order that a class of people might be reached who otherwise might not attend a regular "pulpit sermon," met with such complete success that Rev. Fred T. Datson, pastor of the Episcopal church, who conducted the services, declared that he would recommend that they continue indefinitely.

After the picture had ended and just before the benediction was pronounced, Rev. Mr. Datson called for an expression from the community congregation of their attitude toward adopting the Sunday night services at the theater as a regular addition to the church work. Every person raised their hand, thereby putting a unanimous stamp of approval on the "moving picture service."

Rev. Mr. Datson extended his thanks to Manager Ford of the theater for making these services possible and said that he would put forth every effort to make future services at the theater as interesting as possible to everyone.

The theater was well filled at the beginning of the services and before the sermon began every seat was taken and people were crowding the aisles and rear of the house. Every person entered into the spirit of the service with enthusiasm. The regular church choir occupied the stage in the rear of the improvised pulpit and led the singing of various hymns.

Rev. Mr. Datson preached a 15-minute sermon on the subject "Deep Unto Deep" and although the length of time in a usual church sermon was considerably lessened, every minute was crowded with interpretations of beliefs of the mind, the spirit and the heart. Instances of Biblical history were compared to show that no religion can be complete unless it is entered into with the heart.

The picture which was shown at the close of the sermon was "The Street Called Straight," taken from the novel of the same name by Basil King, one of the most popular of modern authors. The production was strictly in line with the religious program and was very well chosen to produce the moral effect of the sermon, although bearing none of the scenes which characterize a picture shown in connection with the majority of religious gatherings.

Rev. Mr. Datson declared that subsequent pictures at the community services will be selected with care that the moral effects will coincide directly or indirectly with the salient points of the sermon.

The regular services next Sunday morning will be held at the church. Evening community service will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock at the Olympic theater. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" will be shown as next Sunday's attraction.

All persons who are interested in having a larger chorus at the community service are requested to give their names to the organist for an interview.

AUTO THIEVES SHOOT CASINGS OF PURSUERS

10 minutes later. The theft was reported to the police but no trace of the car was found until Sunday evening.

Found on Lake Road.

Late Sunday afternoon A. G. Abbott, who is also employed by the Weaver company as manager of the parts department, was returning to the city on the old lake road. He was accompanied by another man and two women friends.

As they neared the end of the Southland car line within the city limits, Abbott saw the missing roadster along the side of the road while two men apparently were repairing it. He recognized the machine as the one stolen from the Weaver company the night previous.

Stopping his car along side of the stolen machine he engaged in conversation with the two men and finally informed them that he knew the car had been stolen.

"Sure we stole this car last night," one of the two men is reported to have said, "and you are not going to get it." One of the two men sat in the machine and the other pulled his gun and forced Abbott, who was unarmed, to get back in his auto. He then directed his attention to the tires on Abbott's car, shooting first the two front tires and then one rear.

Whiskey In Car.

Getting into the roadster the two men turned their machine and drove at a high rate of speed back toward the lake. According to Abbott and the other occupants of his machine, the two men had apparently been drinking. The car was also apparently loaded with whiskey, according to Abbott.

The man who did the shooting was described as being slender and with light hair. The other man who remained in the machine was heavier in build. Due to the darkness the occupants of the other machine were unable to give an accurate description of the two men.

Police Know Thieves.

From the description given and other information available police officials were of the opinion Sunday night that they knew the identify of the two men, both having previous police records.

From the presence of the liquor it is believed that the two men had stolen the car in order to transport liquor. It was thought that the two would probably abandon the car as soon as they had disposed of the liquor and that they would return here.

The muddy condition of the roads, which are practically impassable in places, led to the conclusion that no attempt would be made to make a long drive with the stolen car.

MEXICAN NEEDS ARE SET FORTH BY CIENTIFICOS

Would-Be Illiterates.

As a "means for making real democracy effective in Mexico" the letter advocates the limiting of the ballot, federal and state, to Mexican citizens not under 21 years old who can read and write the Spanish language and have a means of livelihood. This would bar the great mass of illiterates, except in municipal elections, until they had been given an opportunity to learn to read and write Spanish, provision for which is made under the heading of education.

Illiteracy is declared to be the greatest menace to the country, the letter asserting that 60,000 grade schools should be established by government assistance. The Carranza policy ofllimiting private initiative in education is condemned.

A frank and open international policy is urged, particularly toward the United States. Treaties with the United States to settle all boundary disputes, facilitate trade and unify railway connections are said to be immediate necessities.

Claims Recognized.

The letter suggests also the establishment of a mixed claims commission to take up international claims and contends that Mexicans as well as foreigners should be reimbursed for losses and damage to property.

The Carranza constitutional doctrine relating to land is condemned as "wholly unrealizable," because of the need of foreign capital for development.

The right of workmen to strike and collective bargaining are endorsed, but the right of employers is also recognized to close their shops when not in violation of labor contracts. The eight-hour law is approved in principle.

The Mexican public debt, as set forth in this document, exclusive of claims, restoration of rolling stock and properties seized from foreigners and natives, is estimated to be 1,200,000,000 pesos. This must be paid, the signers say, and the potential resources of the country are declared to be more than equal to the task. But in the reconstruction of the country, the letter says, foreign capital is absolutely indispensable and every encouragement should be given for investment, through private channels and not through government connections.

In this section also the Carranza policy toward foreigners and foreign capital is condemned as "inspired in bostility to everything foreign."

BRITAIN ASKS NO CHANGE IN GREEK ARMIES

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The British government will insist on the Greek army being maintained at its present strength and that the Rhallis cabinet shall not include men viewed with disfavor by the allies. The foregoing views are set forth in a memorandum which Earl Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs, has handed to French Premier M. Leygues, for perusal by the French cabinet when M. Leygues returns to Paris tomorrow.

Great Britain disapproves the return of Constantine to the Greek throne being made the subject of a formal protest but nevertheless wishes that the British views will be emphasized to the new Greek government. This is a firmer attitude than the British government held a few days ago and it is believed in conference circles that it will appeal to the view of the French government. It is further interpreted as meaning that Great Britain at present does not favor revision of the Turkish peace treaty.

AMERICAN SAYS MEXICO SEEKS PEACE, QUIET

(By International News Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 28.—Throwing light on affairs in Mexico from the American point of view and pointing out greatly improved economic conditions, H. E. Johnstone, an attorney, and F. G. Brassell, a broker, have returned to their homes in Los Angeles following a two months' tour of the southern republic.

"Mexico has staged a wonderful transformation," said Johnstone, in speaking of his trip to every important Mexican city. The spirit of revolution is gone and in its place has risen a desire for peace and reconstruction. Never since the days of '49 and the Alaskan gold rush has such a golden field of opportunity been opened to Americans who are more than welcome in Mexico today.

"The new government is in the hands of the young and progressive men of Mexico. Many of these were educated in the United States and know the true feeling of America toward Mexico.

"That recognition of the new government by the United States will let loose a flood of American capital in Mexico and begin an area of unparalelled reconstruction is a fact.

Many Opportunities.

"Here are some of the opportunities for American capital that I saw in Mexico:

"In Mexico City, while there are many motor cars there are no filling stations. The contracts for these are to be given to Americans.

"A new 1,000-room hotel is planned for the Mexican capital and this, together with the completion of the great national theater, will be work for American capital.

"On the west coast agricultural land that is probably unexcelled in the world, is being offered for $6 an acre. One tract of 27,000 acres was offered for $12,000.

"A proof of the new conditions in Mexico was realized when the American Pullman company, for the first time in ten years, ran cars from the border to Mexico City. It is safe to say that travel in Mexico holds no danger for the American today."

British Teacher Envies American Now Asking More

(By International News Service.)

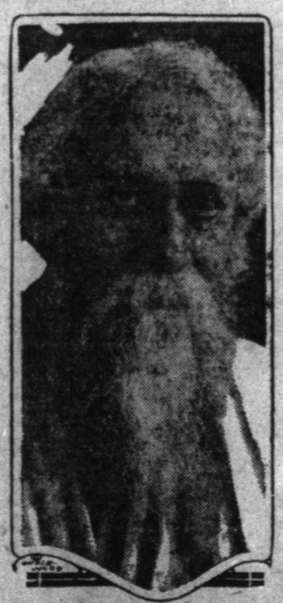

LONDON, Nov. 27.—While teachers in America are protesting that their salaries are too small, the British teachers are looking with envy on their more "fortunate" co-workers across the Atlantic.

It is pointed out that the salary of a fully-certified teacher in the elementary schools here—which is about equivalent to the public school in the states—is $800 per annum for men and $750 for women.

It is possible—in exceptional cases—for the male teacher to reach the dizzy heights of $1,500, but women can only get to $1,200.

"If we are going to have anything like a decent education scheme in this country we have got to begin by offering a standard of living that will attract the best men and women," said the organ of the labor unions, commenting on this situation. "Our present policy is to drive them out of the profession into more remunerative markets."

INDIAN POET SAYS WE HAVE NO CALM

Sir Rabindranath Tagore.

Sir Rabindranath Tagore, the great philosopher and mystic poet of India, who recently witnessed the Yale-Princeton game, declared before leaving the university that there is no calm in America. "This is probably due to your climate," he said. "You do not commune enough with the Almighty." He said he was not surprised at the size of the crowd, for in India the football association attracts "nearly twice as many." It was the "color and organization of the crowd, and the style of play" which he noticed.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS START ON RIOT DUTY BORNE OF LABOR TROUBLES

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.
(International News Service Special Correspondent.)

MILAN, Nov. 28.—Every once in a while in Italy some group of workers of some section of the country has a premonition that it is time for revolution. A "feeling" comes over them and they follow their intuition. They are terribly exasperated and disappointed when they find that they are having their little revolution all by themselves.

On the 14th of October I was in Bologna. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon I was attracted to the window of my hotel by the sound of music and of many voices in the street. I leaned out and saw the street black with people as far as my eyes could see. There must have been at least 10,000 persons in the crowd. They were carrying banners and singing the "Bandieri Rosso," that most popularular of Italian revolutionary songs, and "The International." There were a great many women in the crowd, most of them middle-aged. Only a few wore hats and many had children clinging to their hands or skirts.

I remembered that this was the day on which the confederation of labor and all the radical organizations of the country had joined in declaring a two hours' cessation of work as a demonstration in favor of the recognition of soviet Russia and the freeing of all political prisoners. It had been announced that pafades, meetings and other demonstrations would be held in all the cities of the country.

Joins the Mob.

It was obvious, however, that this was not merely a demonstration. These people were definitely bound somewhere. They were not parading. I went down and joined them.

A woman took me around the waist, in her excitement, shoving aside her own child, who was holding onto her skirts, and marched ahead, now one of the singing crowd.

We came to a halt in the Square of "San Giovanni in Monte," in front of an old building, the entrance to which was gained by soldiers. I heard the crowd cry something which I interpreted to mean: "We'll get them" and there was a great surge forward and suddenly I heard shots. Pressed by the people behind I was pushed forward until I could see what was going on.

About 50 soldiers had appeared around the building and were pushing the crowd back with rifles. Suddenly I realized what was happening. I was one of a crowd which was storming the jail. The demonstration in behalf of the political prisoners had ended in action.

I saw a soldier, evidently an officer, step out of the gates in front of the prison, give an order, and suddenly fall wounded. Then an eddy in the throng carried me into a side street whence I could not get back.

Mob Attempt Fails.

At the chamber of labor I was told only on the side of the jailers.

a little later may probably because there were not sufficient firearms in the crowd the attempt to storm the prison had failed.

Now the strike was supposedly over at 5 o'clock in the evening and I had planned to leave at 6:45 for Milan. But the street cars were not running at 6 and it was necessary to wheel my luggage to the station in a pushcart, borrowed from the hotel. The train was in the station, but at 6:45 it did not move; nor at 7:45; nor at 9, the hour when the next train was scheduled to go. The station master informed me solemnly that the strike had been extended. "It will be continued throughout the whole country," he said. "You had better not plan to leave Bologna. I think now the revolution will begin," he added cheerfully.

All activities were still suspended the next morning. The train was still in the station at 9 o'clock. At 10. At 11. I telegraphed frantically to friends in Milan. In the streets there were throngs of people, singing and marching up and down.

But at noon my train took up the burden of life again under the capitalist system. The disappointed Bolognese had given up. Evidently the rest of the country was not continuing the strike. Evidently the rest of the country had postponed the revolution.

In Milan I found everything as quiet as in Buffalo, N. Y.. "Did the revolution start here?" I inquired excitedly of the friend who came to meet me.

"Revolution; what revolution?" he asked, looking dazed.

When I told the story later to Serati, the editor of the small daily, "Advanti," he laughed and said:

Many Revolutions.

"That is a commonplace thing in Italy. All of the jailers in Milan are organized into a trade union. It is very strong and very radical. A little while ago there was a big socialist demonstration in Milan—meetings and parades, very much like yesterday's demonstration—and like the Bolognese, the Milan jailers felt that this was going to be the real thing. They sensed the revolution coming on. They sensed it so strong that after breakfast they took all of the prisoners out of their cells and led them out into the courtyard, looking very bewildered. "There is going to be a revolution," they told them, "and shortly there will be an order for your release."

So all the day passed and darkness began to descend and still the order did not come. Greatly excited, the jailers dispatched a courier to the office of the socialist party to inquire what had happened.

He returned, chastened in spirit, with the discouraging report that the impulse was noble but untimely. Greatly disgusted, the jailers led the prisoners away into their cells. I fancy the disappointment was not

Old Silver Tip, Famous Grizzly, Killed at Last

(By International News Service.)

LANDER, Wyo., Nov. 27.—Silver Tip Grizzly" is dead.

"He was a bad actor," was the epitaph suggested by United States department of agriculture agents when they learned of the end of the career of the 1,000-pound monarch of beardom which has been killing stock and terrorizing ranchers in the vicinity of Dubois, Wyo., for the past five years.

A 50-pound bear trap anchored to a 24-foot tree was Silver Tip's undoing, but he broke the tree and tore eight miles through the forest before finally giving up the ghost.

Fifteen dead cattle, each killed with a crushing blow beneath the eyes and each with the liver removed as a bear delicacy marked the trail to the point where the grizzly was trapped.

It is estimated that "Silver Tip Grizzly" has caused damage in excess of $50,000 during the years he has been destroying livestock in and around Dubois.

Many hunters have been on the trail of the old criminal since 1916. He was reported to have been killed in 1918, but the beast slain at that time proved to be another and less ferocious bear.

Several months ago Hunter Rowley was employed by the government with instructions to "get 'Silver Tip Grizzly' or don't come back." After weeks on a trail bespattered with blood of young cattle, Rowley succeeded in trapping the predatory beast.

The trap that finally stopped Silver Tip was a huge No. 6, the clog used being a 20-foot log measuring five inches through.

Rowley said the bear would weigh 1,000 pounds; the front feet measuring about 8 1-2 inches across, and the hind feet being twelve inches in length.

EIGHT STATES FAIL TO MEET FOREIGN DEBTS

How many Americans realize, when they speak of the debt owed to the United States by foreign countries, that we also owe quite considerable sums abroad, and have owed them for many years without paying either interest or principal? The Europe Nouvelle calls attention to this little-remembered fact, reminding us that of our 48 states, eight have gone bankrupt so far as their foreign engagements are concerned, namely: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina.

These states, says Europe Nouvelle, have owed $60,000,000 to England for from 40 to 60 years without paying interest, which has accumulated at the rate of 6 per cent to an additional $144,000,000, making a total of over $200,000,000. The money was borrowed to establish banks and to guarantee interest on railroad securities, and does not include the 7 per cent loan to the Confederacy in 1863, which amounted to $12,000,000, on which the arrears of interest are now about $46,000,000. Europe Nouvelle believes that this latter debt ought not to be paid—if foreign capitalists wanted to risk their money on a civil war in America for the preservation of slavery, which was profitable to them, it was their own lookout.

Of course the federal government has nothing to do with these state debts. But that, says Europe Nouvelle, makes it all the harder to understand how a federal government that washes its hands of the financial dealings of its own members can justify taking possession of the finances of small independent republics in Central America and the Antilles, and is even ready to extend the operation to South America if European nations should ever threaten intervention in violation of the Monroe Doctrine.

"It is allowable," says the article, "for the states of the powerful republic to refuse to pay their debts, but not for the little republics to follow the precedent. They are threatened with seizure, especially if the United States, enriched by the war and having enormous capital, should succeed, as it hopes, in replacing Europe as the banker and intermediary for Latin America, by acquiring Europe's credits in South America as part of the settlement of Europe's debts to the United States."

The article notes that Brazil is already attempting to follow the American precedent, asserting that it is not responsible for the debts of the individual states, provinces and cities, many of which have failed to meet their foreign obligations. But to adopt such a policy, though safe for the United States, is dangerous for the countries of South America, for, as the article adds:

"1. They have not the material force which enables the United States to repulse any claims that it does not wish to meet.

"2. They need further credits from the rich nations, in order to develop their resources.

"3. Federal irresponsibility concerning the debts of individual states is a fiction incompatible with international law, since the creditors can only apply to the federal authority, which alone is truly sovereign, through their governments, when they desire to collect their credits or securities against the individual bankrupt state.

"4. The federal authority cannot wash its hands of a debt contracted by an individual state, based as much on federal credit as on its own, the Union having benefited from the added tax values resulting from the development of the state concerned, through the use of foreign capital.

"It must be recognized that the South American nations have not yet gone as far as the United States in repudiating the debts of their states. Some years ago the Argentine Republic assumed the debts of several insolvent provinces, substituting itself for the foreign creditors. The Brazilian government paid an overdue coupon on the first loan of the State of Espiritu-Santo, and the present Brazilian president, Senor Epitacio Pessoa, has just agreed in response to the claims of the French and English creditors of the State of the Amazon, that in case of failure of the state to meet its obligations in the future the Union will take the matter in its own hands, with the consent of the state concerned, and enable the creditors to seize the property serving as security for the debt."

A law is suggested which would forbid individual states to contract foreign debts without federal authorization, but such a project has repeatedly failed in the Brazilian congress, through fear of impairing state autonomy.

Dadaist Dancing Dizziest Jazzy Stepping Known

(By International News Service.)

BERLIN, Nov. 28.—Have you heard of the Chief Dada?

He is not the head of the biggest family in Germany, but the chieftain of a German section of an alleged artistic clique, the members of which call themselves Dadaists.

Precisely what Dadaism is it would be difficult to say—especially through a telegraph wire. It outjazzes jazz; it has left cubism miles behind. Competent critics say that it is anarchy applied to art.

Dadaist dancing is the dizziest delirium; Dadaist poetry looks like printer's pi; but Dadaist pictures are quite beyond description.

No one can ever tell what a Dadaist picture is about. If he could then it would not be Dadaism, but some lower form of art, and that is just what has caused trouble here.

During the summer the Chief Dada and his friends held an exhibition of pictures. One of these pictures attracted the attention of a member of the reichswehr, or national army. He said it was an insult.

"No," someone nearby suggested, "it's a fish."

The reichswehrman refused to believe it; the thing was a libel on the corps to which he belonged. So he set the law in motion and the chief attorney, as he could not see the fish either, was persuaded that it was an insult.

So the Chief Dada and his friends will soon appear in court to answer the serious charge of having libeled the reichswehr.

The worst of it is that many of the best people in Berlin have been forced to take up the study of Dadaism for the purpose of becoming witnesses at the trial. Among them are President Ebert, Prime Minister Fehrenbach and Herr Scholz, minister of national economy. The minister of kultur has emphatically denied, it is reported, that Dadaism comes within the jurisdiction of his department.

TO KEEP CIDER SWEET.

Put sulphate of lime in cider to keep it sweet. This will keep it sweet until warm weather in the spring. Get it at any drug store. See directions on package.

Here is another method:

After having the cider made, draw from the barrel and strain all sediment, then replace strained cider in barrel. Add four ounces ground mustard and one pound of raisins to cider in barrel.

Stir the mustard in a portion of cider until all dissolved before putting in barrel.

This amount of ingredients is sufficient to keep fifty gallons of cider, or a smaller quantity, as desired.

TESTED RECEIPTS.

Oatmeal Gruel—Add one-half cup coarse oatmeal and a little salt to three cups of boiling water. Cook in a double boiler three hours. If rolled oats be substituted for oatmeal, a little shorter time will be sufficient. Put through a strainer; add sufficient milk or cream to make it of the desired consistency, and heat and strain again.

Pickled Onions—Take three pounds of small white onions, scald in salt water, then cover with vinegar. Add one-half cup sugar, strew over the top some white mustard seed and whole black peppers. Let come to a boil. Seal hot in bottles.

The recipe can be doubled.

Orange Sauce—Place in a saucepan grated rind of one orange, juice of two oranges, three-quarters cup sugar, one cup water, two tablespoons cornstarch. Stir to dissolve, then bring to a boil and cook for three minutes. Cool and use.

AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL FUTURE.

Some of the leading political economists in their works remind their readers that the industrial revolution in England, which witnessed the invention of machinery to take the place of hand labor, and the removal of home industries into factories, with the congregation of workers under wholly novel conditions, occupied not more than the span of a single life—having begun in 1770 and reached its development in 1840. Since that time there has passed no more than the span of a second human life-time. So these economists point out that the industrial structure that arose so quickly, unguided by facts of past experience may not be looked upon as a permanent thing. It evolved two great principles—the one that of labor and its claims, and the other that of capital and its claims. Here is the parting of the ways with the radicals. Whatever may be said of England, the fact is far from true of the United States that it has reached the stage of conplete development of its industries. England is circumscribed in area, moreover it has had vast industrial experience before the industrial revolution created the factory system. At that time the United States was a newborn nation, that had been cut off from Europe by the Revolutionary war and thrown upon its own resources and forced to develop its industries, with wonderful rapidity and assurance.

Today the United States presents so much of virgin opportunity for industry—its natural resources but merely scratched over, and its field of invention and enterprise but barely entered upon, that he would be very rash who would predict its industrial development and experience upon that of England unless he means that it will follow the English experience a long way behind. In England the so-called capitalistic system is far from exhausted. Even though there are very wide reforms and evolutions in progress, with the shop steward system and the guild industries and the trade councils and the partial nationalization of great industries this all, where permanent, bears the marks of enlightened capitalism. It is not in the Carl Marx sense true social industrialism. It will not in appreciable span of time become industrial communism.

In the United States the vastness of the the thought that here the advance of the workers toward changing the industrial system will be anything like as fast as in England. In those areas or industries there may be something of the newer state of things as those may more and more come to be in England. But the era of capitalism will abide for generations in the United States, and will not, in fact, in any time of which the mind may take account, be supplanted by an antagonistic system. The expression of social benevolence will be found more and more outcropping in American industry, by which is meant that the state will more and more care for the conditions of labor and the emoluments of labor with respect to the equities of those who hold responsibility for enterprise. More and more the harsh spirit of selfishness will be weeded out for the spirit of enlightened co-operation to assume sway. But this will not be at the dictates and of menaces, but through the orderly process of evolution by which the wealth of America will come more and more to pay tribute to the state as well as to the individual. One of the marks of this progress will be the going into effect of an inheritance law that will take from the dead hand of the conveyer the right to dispose of his wealth that has accrued through opportunities to get into more or less monopolistic relations with the native wealth of the land that belongs primarily to the people, but which requires masters of enterprises to make realizable and great corporate industry to sustain its production. This will still be the capitalistic system.

Indeed, it may be assumed that long before the United States shall arrive at the point of intensive activities directed toward husbanding its natural wealth and frugally exploiting it, with the lessening of the growth of manufacturers, the academic systems, such as industrial socialism and industrial communism will have virtually passed from the field of interest and been supplanted, through practical experience, by modifications of the capitalistic system. —Baltimore American, (Rep.)

NEIGHBORHOOD LIFE AND CULTURE.

Provincialism, according to the American philosopher, Joseph Royce, is the hope of American cultural development. By provincialism he meant local option in taste, a kind of regional independence in thought and art adapted to the varying conditions of the great "provinces" of the United States. Thus, instead of a cosmopolite culture radiating from New York, and indirectly from Europe, and dominating the art, the poetry, the drama, the movies, the dress, the music and less immediately the social, economic and financial thinking of the country, Royce hoped for many centers rich in original thought, developing in a manner characteristic of the region.

In this country, where dangers arising from territorial organization of races are small or nonexistent, the theory of provincialism is practically appropriate. Nor is the philosopher's hope entirely unrealized. Chicago in many fields is the center of a natively original school and all have heard of the Indiana novelists, the Kansas editors, the Boston essayists and so on. There are many, potentially at least, of these characteristically American centers of national enrichment.

In great cities, too, this principle of provincialism, if rightly viewed, has its value. Precinctism it might be called. Though the various informal segregations of alien races considerably complicate the application of the principle, precinctism still has great value. It is that measure of decentralization which by developing the characteristic neighborhoods gives richness, variety and a broad distribution to the city's cultural life, otherwise dominated by and narrowly centered in the loop, or "downtown" district. Neighborhood consciousness is too little developed among Americans in our cities. In consequence city life is febrile and without repose, clever and cosmopolitan, but lacking broad human values and the contact with things firmly established. Economically there has been recently some effort to develop neighborhood consciqusness. Socially and in welfare and recreational work it is found to some extent. Politically precinctism has little weight except for professional and semiprofessional politicians. In most fields, indeed, the neighborhood unit is subordinated to other associations.—Chicago Daily News (Ind.)

JOINT CONTROL OF INDUSTRY.

Industrial relations seem to be in a state of flux and many changes are proposed whose outcome cannot be accurately predicted. If the proposed innovations are numerous, the motives behind them are not less so, and it is difficult to determine which motives are wholesome enough to be worthy of general approval. But there is one motive, whose importance cannot be questioned, which has resulted in the voluntary development, by employers and employes together, of various methods for the prevention of industrial disputes. Many of these methods bear a striking similarity to each toher, in that each provides for some sort of joint discussion of industrial conditions which directly affect the workers, but which, no less directly, may reach upon the employer. Such conditions may frequently be remedied by joint action more effectively than when friction exists between the employer and his force, and the joint committees may on occasion be allowed considerable authority in putting their recommendations into effect. Plans for extending the custom of creating such joint committees are sometimes termed the attempts of labor to obtain "joint control of industry," but this suggestive title should not be allowed to discredit the constructive work of committees which have proved in some degree successful.

These shop committees, as they are frequently termed, are variously constituted. They are, in general, elected by a vote of all employes who qualify by virtue of a certain term of service. A shop committee may sit jointly with a committee representing the management, or its conference committee may so sit; or it may be termed the "lower house" and bear the same relation to the heads of departments in the "upper house" that the house of representatives bears to the senate. When this latter scheme is in operation there may also be a cabinet consisting of the executive board of the company.

Whatever the machinery of operation may be, the results of the work of such committees may be of great benefit to both employes and employer. Industrial disputes may drag along for months without causing rupture, but also without producing any improvement in conditions which are at isse. Joint discussion by committees which have power to put their recommendations into effect are of a fruitful means of quieting such disputes before they reach the point when compromise is no longer possible.—Baltimore Sun.

Editorial Digest

IS YOUR JOB CINCHED?

Between two and three million men out of work in America today marks the beginning of a period of industrial depression in the opinion of a arige section of the American Press. Most writers, however, accepting the situation as a natural reaction against post-war prosperity, feel that the crisis will pass without danger of great suffering if capital and labor show a willingness to co-operate.

"They are polishing up the bowls in the free soup kitchens," says the Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune (Ind.) for wages must drop with prices, however, "if the employers meet labor half way, by also sacrificing in profits, there is no reason why solid ground should not be reached without a bump." The Tribune commends the action of the Baltimore carpenters in releasing the employers from their contract for a winter raise as an example of the kind of "level headedness" that will carry the workman through without disaster. The Knoxville Sentinel (Ind. Dem.) urges that employer and employe make mutual concessions rather than encourage industrial warfare by agitating the "closed shop" or other inflammatory issues.

Two factors are pointed out by the New York Evening World (Dem.) as "encouraging features to offset the darker spots" in the labor situation. Against a reported 3,000 out of work in Omaha, the World sets 10,000 "who are refusing jobs in the Nebraska harvest." The refusal of the Baltimore union to demand its raise is also mentioned. The World concludes that wise employers are approaching the situation with the same frankness, for they know that "fair treatment of employes now, will beget fair treatment of employers when the labor market turns again. Sharp practice and tyranny will beget reprisals."

Effort should be made, the Raleigh News & Observer (Dem.) believes, to arrange for any "surplus labor" that may develop in one line by directing it toward other lines rather than permitting total unemployment which "is a waste" that must be paid for by the employed. It says:

"It may not be the easiest task in the world to keep all workers busy at their accustomed places, for production varies according to needs. But if we manage to get as many shoes as we need during the year that does not mean that we could not use perhaps some more coats, or sugar or railroads or flying machines."

The Boston Post (Ind. Dem.) finds a ray or two of optimism in the unemployment figures despite of what it calls a "very serious situation," for,

"As a base it is estimated that we have about 1,000,000 unemployed normally, and by far the greater part of these, simply will not work under any circumstances. It takes such radical action as the 'work or fight' law to make some of these people work * * * it is stated by the National Industrial Conference Board at Washington that there is plenty of work for everybody, but that the unemployed workers refuse to accept the wages offered.

The situation, the Post compares with that "pertaining to the wholesale movement of goods" where "there is plenty of demand for the goods but buyer and seller have not been able to come to an agreement on price."

In the opinion of a number of writers the majority of the men laid off are those unskilled laborers, who during the war were taken on or advanced to fill vacancies and kept to supply increased demands on production. Many of these, the Syracuse Herald (Ind.) suggests, were retained to meet "the abnormal public demand for all kinds of commodities, aggravated by the wave of post-war extravagance." Meanwhile, the veteran workers' increased efficiency as well as the curb on reckless buying made the less competent workman superfluous. The "weeding out—" in the railroad shops is an example of this, the Providence Journal (nId.) declares. Here, the managements are getting rid of untrained workmen encouraged under government ownership. Applying this explanation to industries in general the Springfield Union (Rep.) feels that the "seriousness of the situation is much less acute than is supposed" for there has merely been a "selection of the best material for steady employment from the over-abundant working force" and though the rest are "thrown out of their present employment" they are not removed altogether from their "natural employment."

There is no doubt in the mind of the Quincy Whig Journal (Rep.), speaking from Illinois, that a period of "economic adjustment" is coming and it believes suffering can be avoided if the men, most of whom are "young farmer boys who have gone to the cities to jobs that require no more intelligence than fitting one nut to a particular bolt," go back to the more "profitable labor" on the farm where they are still much needed. In the opinion of the Portland Oregon Journal (Ind.) danger lies chiefly in "deadlocked business" and too rapid deflation. Farmers are holding their products, consumers are putting off their purchases and merchants are delaying factory orders. The Journal believes that prices cannot drop further with wages up where they are and where, it believes, they should stay, for "that country is safest and soundest whose working population has a sufficient wage for a decent living and enough of the comforts and education and recreation.

"The dread of unemployment which now weighs down the workers," says the New York Evening Post (Ind.), is another reason for the establishment of permanent relations in industry." It continues:

"Unemployment to the extent that it can be prevented, can be prevented only through an organization of industry on basic principles, on foresight and on mutuality between employers and workers."

The New York Globe (Ind.) finds the cause of the threatened hard times deep in the social and economic structure of the country. In the first place it shows how labor, urged to "speed up" to increase production, obeyed due chiefly, perhaps, "to fear of losing its job." Meanwhile it became harder to dispose of products at what employers considered reasonable prices. Then "overproduction" was given as a reason for cutting down forces.

"The economic fallacy of course,' the Globe concludes, is that "overproduction' is not really a condition in which all human wants are satisfied, but one in which prices have outrun consumers' income. But this does not hide the fact that strong and useful men, who are anxious to produce socially valuable goods are forbidden in times of depression to do so."

A GREEK HERO FALLS

More storm-clouds on the European horizon that arose out of the popular repudiation of Premier Venizelos in the Greek elections are being anxiously watched by the American Press and some of the political prophets predict that the defeat of the Allies' friend in Greece means a chance of resurrection for some of Europe's fallen dynasties. The majority of writers, however, think that, like the Americans this year, "the Greeks apparently needed a change" as the Brooklyn Eagle (Ind.) puts it, and that Venizelos simply went the way of Wilson, Clemenceau and Giolotti.

A question is raised by British and French threats of boycott and worse, if Constantine comes back, namely, have the Allies any right to interfere with the free will and choice of a free people, no matter how bad that choice may be in the eyes of the world as a whole. Says the Pittsburgh Gazette Times (Rep.):

"Public opinion will not approve of King Constantine, but that is of no importance. If there is to be peace in the world there must be universal recognition of the right of any people to choose their own form of government and their governors."

Though it considers that the return of Constantine would mean the return of German sway and though it scores Greece for its "ingratitude toward the most enlightened of Greek statesmen," the New Orleans States (Dem.) considers any defiance of the will of the majority of the people of Greece" would be denying them "the right of self-determination," and the Reno Gazette (Rep.) suggests that the League of Nations might very plausibly be forced to deal with the situation if Greece protested. The Roanoke Times (Dem.) expresses doubt that Constantine would be permitted to take the throne: "the Great Powers are friends of Venizelos rather than Greece" and without him Greece may suffer. In the opinion of the Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican (Ind. Prog.) the Greeks may have voted against the republican rather than for Constantine, though this in itself, it feels, shows that the "motive must have been a strong one to submerge all sense of gratitude" for the man who "saved Greece."

An original explanation for the war-leader's downfall is given by the Worcester Telegram (Rep.). Perhaps, it remarks, "among his own people Venizelos has come to be regarded as more of an international statesman than as a Greek national leader." But most of the writers are content to put down his failure to political fickleness. The Nebraska State Journal (Ind. Rep.) points out that "no war-leader, save only Lloyd George, has survived a post-war election" proving that "he kept us out of war" is "politically, a safer slogan" than "he won the war." Monarchies, no less than republics, follow this ungrateful course, says the Atlanta Journal (Dem.) "because of human nature," and the Chicago Journal (Dem.) declares that "the revulsion of feeling after a great war seems to be the most resistless and most illogical of human phenomena." Likening the circumstances of Venizelos' defeat to those which pursued the leaders in France, Italy and America the Charleston News and Courier (Dem.) reminds its readers that the people "are apt to forget the great achievements and great services of their war-leaders and remember only their mistakes."

More specific reasons are offired by the Nashville Banner (Ind.) which thinks Venizelos, "like President Wilson offended a great portion of the Grecian people in what he did at the peace conference," while the Buffalo Express (Ind. Rep.) and the Utica Press (Ind.), think that living conditions directed the ballots. Says the Express:

"If one could know the thought of the people, it probably would be found that the reaction exhibited in the Greek elections is rather a protest against the hardships and famine endured during the war and the ambitious and costly expansion which has been attempted since the war, than a declaration of any real devotion to Constantine."

A great many newspapers believe that a more sinister force is acting in Europe, a force of which the Greek election is symptomatic. The Pittsburgh Leader (Prog. Rep.) is an example:

"The determined assistance France has given to adventures of the old Romanoff regime to restore czarism; the help all the allied nations and the United States have given to Poland to promote imperial ambitions; the dynamic conditions in Germany which it is feared are the prelude to the revival of monarchism in that country; the hint through the defeat of Venizelos that the people of Greece prefer ex-King Constantine, may be indices that events are moving to a climax rather more speedily than even statesmen appear to understand or at least admit. The return of Constantine to Greece will turn history into another channel, perhaps through the initiative of a civil war that may overflow narrow national boundaries and bring the general conflagration it was the duty of statesmen to prevent."

Another instance of this tendency toward reaction is noted by the Boston Post (Ind. Dem.) which calls attention to the fact that in Saxony the recent election revealed a loss of 40,000 socialist votes and a gain of 17,000 monarchist votes, while the Quincy (Ill.) Whig Journal (Rep.) believes that "a leaning toward Monarchy in Greece might foreshadow such a leader of other nations of the continent. That, of course, would stir up once more the groundless strife of former days and sow anew the seeds of ceaseless wars." The Toledo Blade (Ind. Rep.) also believes that in abandoning Venizelos, the Greeks, like other peoples before them "with a fair road ahead of them have abandoned it and fled back to the mean, but familiar paths of the jungle."

To the Topeka Capital (Rep.) the matter is simply a proof that "the Greeks are wedded to the old dynasty" and the Chattanooga Times (Ind. Dem.) disposes of the question by declaring that "it is the result of royalist propaganda, much after the manner of our own political methods of creating sentiment for or against the party in power."

Drawing a close parallel with the reaction of public sentiment in America, the St. Louis Post Dispatch (Ind.) describes Venizelos as "rejected in a solemn referendum almost as decisively, it seems, as was Wilsonism on November second." In conclusion it asks: "Do supermen get on the nerves of democracy?"

On the Spur of the Moment

THE ANTI-MORTEM STATEMENT OF A WISE MAN.

I've said and done an awful lot,
And most of it was a mistake.
Unsay? Undo? Well, guess not!
What difference did it make?
—F. P. A.

I milled the nations through my sieve,
And stung them with my lyric scorn:
Repentant then, I cried: "Forgive!"
They never knew that I was born.

"Never knocks, always boost, is the motto of this paper," says the Filley (Neb.) Spotlight, and goes on to relate that "while we were hanging the motto Todd Wicks came in and pushed the stepladder from under us. That was a knock. We got up and gave Todd a swift, hard kick. That was a boost.'

The bright fellows often make dull remarks. But the dull fellows stick to their province always.

CITY WIT AND COUNTRY WIT.

Did you ever notice the difference between city humor and country humor? Country jokes deal with concrete objects. City jokes deal with intangible things—comparisons, suggestions, nuances.

"A sign over a cemetery in Jersey says, 'This i s a one-way drive.'" That's a city joke (from the Evening Post).

City jokes are like this, because city men are readers. They think in terms of printed sentences.

Country people have no time to read, because they are busy with their live stock. Country folk think in terms of mules, milk, harness and other real things.

When a child drinking milk gags and coughs, the farmer says. "Did you choke on a bone in the milk?"

They say that a horse-drawn wagon is driven by a "hay motor."

They call oleo "bull butter" because it is made from the fat of steers instead of the milk of cows.

Their phrase to describe eagerness in "r'aring to go," because a willing horse rears and pulls at the reins in its eagerness to start.

"John, you've turned into a good looking man. A few years back a fellow couldn't hardly get a mule past you in the road." That's plainly a country joke.

A city man says, "I'm so tired that I'd trade the Woolworth tower for a dressing gown, slippers and hot water bag."

The country man says, "I'm so tired that I'd give a farm for a chance to throw off the harness and roll on the grass." That's what the horse does at the end of the day.

The farmer's remark is as witty as the town man's. But they cannot understand each other's humor, because they are not familiar with each other's habits.

The aim of this column is to present both town humor and country humor in an effort to get a smile out of as many people as possible.

Senator Harding will celebrate Thanksgiving in the Panama canal zone. The small boys will celebrate in the alimentary canal zone.

NO COMMA, NO WATCH.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The "Road to Riches" was somewhat misleading to a young woman who sold twenty volumes of it, says W. J. Burke, legal aid attorney, recently, and a matter of punctuation cost her a good watch.

A Chicago concern, according to Mr. Burke, offered a "watch chain and charm" as a premium to anyone who would sell twenty volumes of the late get-rich-quick edition. "The Road to Riches." A young woman who called at the free legal aid bureau sold them, but only a chain and charm were sent after she requested the premium.

"How come?" she asked Mr. Burke.

"Very simple," responded Burke, as he scanned the advertisement of the mail order house. "There is a comma missing in 'watch chain and charm.' You had better be glad there wasn't a question mark after the ad."

WAR VETERANS FORM COUNCIL AT PARIS MEET

PARIS, Nov. 28.—An international council binding together the war veterans associations of the allied countries was organized here today by the delegations representing the United States, France, Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, Greece, Jugo-Slavia and Czecho-Slovakia, and was joined later by Portugal, Poland and Rumania.

The council will be composed of one member from each country and will probably meet in Paris as often as necessary. The organization contemplates membership of all national veterans' associations.

The underlying idea is to preserve, particularly in time of stress, the unity that existed among the allies during the war and carry on the comradeship in various ways, noteably by international membership cards, an international memorial day and the exchange of information respecting disabled soldiers and the widows and children of soldiers. It is expected that the American memorial day will be adopted generally.

The plan of organization which will be submitted for approval at a full meeting tomorrow, specifies that the council will be directly reported in each country of the allies by two veterans of that country appointed by the council and approved by the veterans' organization of that country.

The veterans of the United States were represented today by seven members of the American Legion posts in Paris and London.

KIWANIS CLUB TO BE FORMED IN THIS CITY

Organization of a Kiwanis club in Wichita Falls is planned in the near future, according to Joe Garrity of Dallas, a member of the Dallas club, and a former district governor of the Kiwanis organization, who is a Wichita Falls business visitor.

Mr. Garrity says that a charter for a Kiwanis club at Wichita Falls will be issued as the first step, within a very short while, and that active steps toward the organization will follow.

"Wichita Falls is now large enough to support an organization such as the Kiwanis club, in addition to its other luncheon clubs," Mr. Garrity points out. "With its affiliated organizations in all the large cities, an organization such as a Kiwanis club, which reaches and organizes the activity of men, many of whom are not touched by the present organizations, is a distinct asset to any city."

WILL LAY KEEL FOR BATTLESHIP AFTER NEW YEAR

QUINCY, Mass., Nov. 28.—The keel of the superdreadnaught Massachusetts will be laid soon after New Year's day, it was announced tonight at the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation, Ltd. The Massachusetts will be larger than any vessel now in the United States navy. Of 660 feet length over all and 106 feet beam her displacement will be 43,200 tons. She will have electric driven engines of 60,000 horsepower and her speed is to be 23 knots. The armament will comprise 12 16-inch guns and a secondary battery of 6 10-inch guns.

The keel of the Lexington, a battle cruiser, will be laid soon after that of the Massachusetts. The Lexington's engines of 180,000 horsepower will yield a speed of 35 knots, under electric drive. She will mount 8 16-inch guns and 16 6-inch guns and also will have eight torpedo tubes.

Two unnamed scout cruisers with 96,000 horse power engines and a speed of 35 knots also will be built at Fore River in the coming year. The plant now is working on naval construction, that will total approximately $75,606,000.

Two Fires Keep Department Busy

A burning Cadillac automobile and a grass fire on a vacant lot resulted in two fire calls Sunday. The Cadillac caught fire at Tenth and Polk streets.

The fire started in the carburetor and all wire connections were burned before the arrival of the fire department. By use of chemicals the fire was extinguished without further damage.

Dry grass on a vacant lot at the corner of Tenth and Austin streets was set afire by a small boy late Sunday afternoon and brought out the engines from one station.

The fire was extinguished before it spread to the surrounding buildings.

The boy disappeared as soon as the fire started and efforts to locate him after the fire was put out were futile.

STORM SEWER BIDS WILL BE OPENED TODAY

Bids for the laying of a part of the storm sewers provided for by the $260,000 bond issue recently approved by the voters will be opened today at the office of the city engineer.

Several bids have been received and in event any of the bids are satisfactory it is probable that the contract for the laying of the sewers will be awarded today. It is known that city engineer's department desires that the work be expediated in order that the paving program will not be delayed.

Several representatives of contracting firms having bids on the work were in the city Saturday and will be present this morning when the bids are opened. The contract if let will be the first awarded under any of the bond issues approved by the voters on October 12.

STOCKS GOING DOWN, BUT VIA ORDERLY PATH

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. — Approaching the final month of an eventful year, the stock market this week continued its process of deflation, but in a more orderly manner than that shown by the commodity markets.

The extensive liquidation of the previous three weeks seemed to have spent its force in all save some of the speculative shares.

The technical position of the market is believed to be indefinitely sounder for the severe depreciation of quoted values, while bank loans to brokers are said to be smaller by at least $500,000,000 than a month ago.

Money rates for virtually all forms of accommodations are quotably and actually lower.

Industrial conditions as outlined by latest surveys indicate further decrease of non-essential production, lower prices, reduced wages and a marked falling away of the country's export trade for which the exchange situation is held to be primarily responsible.

Gompers Invited To Inauguration

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was invited today by Foreign Secretary Hidalgo of Mexico, to attend the inauguration of President Obregon.

MEETING OF PREMIERS IS SUSPENDED

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The conferences between Premiers Lloyd George and Leygues have been temporarily suspended owing to the necessity of the French premier's return to Paris tomorrow morning. Premier Leygues is anxious to be present when the chamber of deputies discusses the question of French representation at the Vatican. He hopes to return to London Wednesday morning.

Count Sforosa, Italian foreign minister who is to take part in the conferences with the premiers, notably in connection with their consideration of the question of Greece, in view of the Greek demand for the return of Former King Constantine to the throne, arrived in London tonight. It does not appear likely, however, that the Greek affair will be straightened out until the representatives of all three nations—France, Great Britain and Italy—get together.

Arrest Another For Complicity In Mail Rifling

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 28.—Keith Collins, said by the federal authorities to be wanted in connection with the robbery of a mail car near Council Bluffs, Iowa, two weeks ago, was arrested today at Westerville, Okla., according to a message received here tonight by local postoffice inspectors. Collins, the report said, would be brought here tomorrow and taken immediately to Council Bluffs.

Collins, local postal officials said, was the seventh and last man sought in connection with the robbery, which it is declared, was one of the largest of its kind in the history of the postal department.

Six men are now in custody at Council Bluffs, in connection with robbery. A large part of the loot, which consisted mostly of bonds, has been recovered.

COPPER MINES IN ARIZONA TO BE SHUT DOWN

—BISBEE, Ariz., Nov. 28.—The mines and smelter of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company at Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, 40 miles south of here, will be closed down December 15, according to notice posted at the company's office in Cananea today.

The Cananea concern is the largest American-owned copper company operating in Sonora and employs at present approximately 1,000 men, the majority of them Mexicans.

Demands made by labor, which the company has decided can not be met without heavy losses, high taxes imposed by the Mexican government and the present dullness of the copper market were reported tonight as direct causes of the closing down of operations.

Mexican employes, according to reports from Cananea, are preparing to protest to Adolfo de la Heutra, provisional president of Mexico, in an effort to have the government compel the company to continue operations.

Soprano Insists All Artists Get Stage Frightitis

Marie Rappold, the brilliant American soprano of the Metropolitan opera house, who will sing at the Wichita theater on Monday night, under the auspices of the Musicians club, says that a good artist must have stage fright. "I am as nervous before facing each new audience as I was the night of my debut at the Metropolitan," she continued. "You cannot sing, play or speak before an audience with any success unless you are keyed up to it. The artist must be likened to a delicately tuned instrument, vibrating to every breath of the audience if he is to reach it and touch it. To be in this hypersensitized state, he must be tense, expectant, conscious of the audience to the point of painfulness.

"It is ridiculous to suppose that the artist becomes so sure of herself that she steps on to the platform as she would step on to a street car. No matter how sure she may be of her own performance she can never be sure of the audience's reception of it. No big job is ever put over unless a person feels that she must stand or fall by that one thing alone. That is the artist's point of view about each performance, for a sincere artist can never give less than her best.

"Once the bond between the performer and the audience is established the tension relaxes and the artist rides upon the sympathy and appreciation, is carried along by that, much as she was carried on her nerves before.

"Of course there is a point of tension in which pure fear becomes so overmastering that it produces only impotence and failure. But that seldom is experienced by the artist who knows her work to be good and her purposes sincere."

German Prince Characterized As Poor Hermit

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—"The German weekly for the Netherlands" prints details of the financial condition of former Crown Prince Frederick William, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the alleged smuggling of fortunes from Germany to Holland.

Characterizing the story as false, the newspaper says that Frederick William came to Holland in 1918 poverty-stricken and decided to pawn his watch, rings, scarf pin and jeweled decorations. In addition a banker loaned him five thousand guilders.

From then on, the ex-crown prince, says the paper, lived on an allowance from his father and from the former crown princess.

The newspaper draws a dismal picture of the life of Frederick William, calling him "the hermit of Wieringen."

SPECIAL TRAINS TO TAKE C.C. DELEGATES

RANGER, Nov. 28.—Two special excursion trains may be operated from Amarillo and South Plains points to accommodate delegates to the West Texas Chamber of Commerces annual convention, which will be held here in the later part of January, according to announcment made here today.

Field representatives who have visited most of the cities, towns and hamlets of those sections received assurances of numerous members that they would most certainly be present at the Ranger meeting. A tabulation of the attendance anticipated from those points inclines the organization's headquarters at Stamford to believe that two special passenger trains can be operated from Amarillo and a South Plains town to take care of this great crowd. Reduced fares for the round trip would be asked of the railroads. The installation of such trains, it was pointed out, would stimulate attendance from those sections to Ranger, since the visitors could occupy their Pullman cars.

The organization's local unit here understands that the attendance will be greatly in excess of that which attended the Abilene convention in January of this year. Anywhere from 2,000 to 5,000 is the way the crowds are estimated.

It was the twins' first time at Sunday school. During the hour and a half of their absence mother presented a calm exterior, while inwardly wondering how her offsprings would acquit themselves in their new environment. Betty, if left to herself, would cause her no embarrassment, but Buster could always be relied upon to do the unexpected, particularly under new and interesting surroundings.

They finally returned under Nellie's convoy with an air of suppressed excitement and elation. Hats and coats off and a certain amount of calm restored after the events of the afternoon, mother ventured to ask a few questions, while dreading the possible replies. "Now, children," she said, "you may tell me all about it. What did you learn and what did you do?"

Buster, as usual, was the spokesman. "We sang," he announced proudly. "Teacher said it didn't matter if we didn't know the words to just sing, and sing as loud as we could and we did. Betty and I sang louder than any of the other kids.

"Was it a hymn you knew?" ventured mother timidly. "'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' perhaps?"

"No," came Buster's exultant reply. "We didn't know the hymn. We sang 'Tipperary.'"

"No front porch. This house won't do at all."

"Why not? Front porches are no longer in fashion."

"That may be. But we have a young son who may some day be running for the presidency of the United States and how could he conduct a campaign in a house without a front porch?"

"What's the matter? You look thoughtful."

"My 6-year-old son brought home a list of questions to answer."

"What of that?"

"My average ranks me as a deficient kid."

CITY TEAM MAY TRY COME-BACK WITH HI ELEVEN

Efforts are being made to arrange a second football game between the local high school eleven and the city team. The city team that met defeat at the hands of Coach Cantwell's charges on Thanksgiving day is not satisfied to let the matter stand as it is and with just one practice they claim they will be able to run up a larger score against the "kids" than the local Hi total score for the year is.

Though the high school team defeated them 21 to 0, it must be remembered that they had never before played or even practiced together and with one week to practice in they have promised to put a smooth running machine on the field.

Efforts are being made to get the use of Athletic park for the struggle, but it is highly doubtful whether or not the Spudder authorities will consent to having their newly sodded lot torn up by football cleats.

Should the city team come through the game with the Hi as they hope to and a suitable place be found where they can be played, other games with out of town teams will probably be arranged.

Wichita Motors To Change Rail Tractor Model

Complete change in design of their railroad tractor will be made as a result of experiments of the past week, according to officials of the Wichita Motors company. The results of actual service in pulling a passenger car on the Southern near Olney have suggested to the company's engineers many changes expected to result to advantage of the model which is being used.

These experiments are in line with work for the evolution of a motor tractor capable of pulling passenger cars on light roads, an idea which has engaged the attention of some of the company engineers for some months.

It is expected that the company will be ready to introduce a model for the market within the next few months.

While declaring that he knew nothing of the company's experiments until they used the Southern track for their experiments, Frank Kell, president of the Southern road, said early in the week that they could use and would be very much interested in such a tractor when the company got ready to introduce it to the market, saying that such a machine could be used very advantageously on the Southern railroad.

FROM THE JUDGES' STAND

Assorting the News From the Sport Realm

BY JACK KEENE.

That the Australian tennis public is awaiting with keen interest the arrival of the Davis cup team from the United States, which sailed November 15 from Vancouver, is apparent in the discussion of players to defend the cup for Australia. In addition to Norman F. Brookes and Gerald L. Patterson, Pat O'Horn Wood and R. V. Thomas are among those who are being carefully considered.

Thomas' victory over Patterson and Brooks when paired with Wood at Washington in 1919 is highly regarded in Australia. He has recently been in the east on his way to Australia from England and will probably sail on the same steamer with the American team.

Norman E. Brookes was named by the Australasian association as a committee to select that country's representatives and in commenting upon his task Austral of the Sydney Referee said:

"There are two questions much discussed in lawn tennis circles in connection with the Davis cup team: First, who will be the selected four; and, second, what will be the playing team. To pick three men is easy enough. Gerald Patterson, Norman Brookes and P. O'Hara Wood have completely earned their places. The fourth in place is hard to pick. If the selection were to be made with a view to strengthening the team in the singles and on practice form only, J. O. Anderson would have the best chance in the minds of most. If the fourth man is selected to strengthen the doubles and possibly to give us a second pair to entirely replace last year's pair, which was Brookes and Patterson, then the fourth place would go to R. V. Thomas, who, with P. O'Hara Wood, beat Brookes and Patterson at Wimbledon last year.

Dan Griner, former National league pitcher, has slipped further away from the big show. Last season the big hurler was a member of the St. Paul club of the American association. Next season he will perform as a member of the Memphis club of the Southern association, having recently been sold to that club by the Saints. Griner was once a member of the Cardinals and later was tried out by the Brooklyns. His last year in the big show was in 1918. That season he pitched one brilliant game. It was against the Phillies at Ebbets' field. With two out in the ninth Cravath drove a single over second base and the blow robbed Dan of a no-hit game.

Willie Jackson and Lew Tendler, the lightweight contenders who refuse to contend, are going to be matched for a bout in New York, provided they are not as unreasonable in their demands as they were when offered a match with Champion Benny Leonard. Tendler and Jackson are bitter rivals and the match looks like a good one, even though it will not produce an opponent for the champion, since neither wants to fight.

Georgia Tech, to replace the Pittsburg game on its schedule, following the Panthers' rupture of relations, is negotiating with a half dozen northern universities for a contest to be played in the north next autumn.

Bill Whittaker, the Fort Worth pitcher who will get a trial with the Boston Red Sox, is no youngster, and he is further handicapped by the fact that he has but one eye. He's a durable piece of pitching material who can show youngsters a thing or two.

Pledged to Marry if Elected To Senate; Now He's Getting Sweet-Scented Notes Galore

By G. L. BRICKER.
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Nov. 21.—Because he had in his platform a plank promising to marry some fair voter if the newly enfranchised women would cast their first ballots for him, State Senator-elect E. E. Penzel is probably the busiest dodger today of all the newly-elected office holders beset by patronage seekers.

Found literally swamped and a small deluge of delicately perfumed billet d' aux, of all shapes, sizes and colors. Senator-elect Penzel was asked just what he was going to do about keeping that campaign promise.

"I can't say anything just now; I am bewildered by the large number of applicants and it will take time for me to decide," he answered. "It isn't a question now of finding who I can get for a wife, as I figured during the campaign, but a matter of whom I must choose. 'Overwhelmed' is not a word sufficient to explain my position now."

Many Scented Notes.

And the senator-elect systematically slit open pink and blue and lavender tinted envelopes, carefully read them, indexed them and neatly arranged them for future attention.

"What kind of a girl will you pick?" the correspondent queried.

"I will never know," he answered, "until I see the one for me. I had no idea I would have such a chance to pick one. I thought it would be a question of who I could find. Now it seems to be a matter of who will pick me."

Some of the letters were written in a joking manner, some appeared to be half serious, some were frank proposals of marriage, even going so far as to outline the financial advantages enjoyed by the writers; some offered only love, others offered property and wealth. Some were from girls apparently in their 'teens and others appeared to have been written by fair voters of more matured age. All frankly avowed they had voted for Penzel.

A great many of the letters also were applications for jobs at the state capitol. "It is rather strange, isn't it," Penzel queried, "that women outnumber the male applicants for state positions by 2 to 1?"

"Pink Tea" Campaign.

Penzel made it a point to attend every gathering of women where a man was permitted during the pre-election fight and he openly promised to marry if the returns showed him the winner. He attended every affair from a dance to a church social, it is said.

"I have just two aspirations in life," he declared in his speeches. "One is to be elected to the office of state senator and the other is to get married. I feel eligible for both positions."

He added that if elected he would take a wife with him to Jefferson City for the first session of the legislature.

Penzel, although a republican, won by a 5,400 plurality in the Twenty-first district, normally democratic by 800. Seventy-five per cent of the women in his district voted, he avowed, and he modestly added that he believed 65 per cent of them cast their ballots for him. Anyhow, politicians attribute his great plurality to something more than the nation-wide republican landslide.

Bachelor of Thirty-Five.

Penzel is 35 years old and a bachelor of the type that the feminine sex would probably consider good to look upon. He appeared careful in his dress and jolly in nature.

Many of the politicians of the Twenty-first senatorial district were inclined to regard Penzel's marriage plank to be a joke—if it ever was one—to Penzel, and it is rumored that numerous of the fair voters are awaiting with some expectancy and perhaps a little anxiety the fulfillment of his campaign pledge.

BRUSSELS CONFERENCE WENT UP IN SMOKE

BERLIN.—The Brussels conference went up in smoke in the opinion of the Deutsche Tageszeitung which repudiates a telegram from the Copenhagen National Tidende stating that a bill has been handed to the League of Nations secretary for 3,000 pounds for 80,000 imported Havana cigars smoked by the conference. As the League of Nations has no treasury department functioning the bill was referred to the supreme council. "This cigar bill is the one positive effect of the Brussels conference," comments the Tageszietung.

KEMPER WINDS UP BEST YEAR OF OVAL GAME

The Kemper Military school, Boonville, Mo., is the 1920 champion of the Missouri state conference. For the first time in over 12 years the Kemper cadets overwhelmed their ancient rival, Wentworth. A half dozen Wichita Falls boys are students at Kemper. Many Kemper alumni live here.

A Kansas City critic says of the Boonville eleven: "Kemper could have given any big college in the state a battle. They have the strongest prep school team I have ever seen."

Kemper piled up 298 points to their opponents' 22 and have to their list of defeated such teams as Central coolege, Camp Pike, Kansas City university and Wentworth. The American School of Osteopathy which played T. C. U. of Fort Worth a 13-3 game recently was held to a scoreless tie by the cadets earlier in the season.

The 1920 football season at Kemper was a huge success from every standpoint. Coach Clingenpeel, who had charge of the eleven is a former Austin college coach and to him goes a large part of credit due the Kemper team. With practically no material to work with at the first of the season, he has built up the greatest football team that ever represented Kemper.

"SHIMMY SHAKERS" COME UNDER EYES OF POLICE

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Local "shimmy" shakers are shaking—due to fear.

They are fearful lest Mrs. Evelyn Scatterday, city dance hall inspector, becomes a municipal policewoman.

Whether she will carry a gun is up to the city council.

A pending ordinance seeks to increase the city police force by adding forty-five patrolmen and five policewomen. Provisions is made that one of the policewomen shall be the city dance hall inspector.

Mayor Thomas has announced that if the ordinance passes Mrs. Scatterday will be transferred to the police department, with full police power.

BILL BRENNAN TO GET CHANCE

Bill Brennan

Bill Brennan, who has been anxious for many months to risk his ribs and jaw in a bout with Champion Jack Dempsey, will get his chance early in December. The bout was scheduled for late summer, but was passed up by promoters when the Massachusetts state commission refused to stand for the bout in that state. Brennan packs an awful wallop and can box, but no one gives him a chance against the giant-killer.

Varsity Singers Arranging Tour On North Texas

AUSTIN, Nov. 28.—Arrangements are being made by the University of Texas Glee club for a concert tour of Northwest Texas during the Christmas holidays.

Features of the program will be chorus numbers, including high grade compositions and also several humorous songs; a folk song group; a short musical sketch; instrumental music by sextet composed of mandolins, guitars and a banjo; vocal solos and a concert violinist.

In the club this year are 26 members, representing, it is said, the best local and instrumental talent among the male students of the university. Irving W. Jones, adjunct professor in the music department, is directing the club, and C. R. Hooton of Mineral Wells is student-manager.

Last year the Glee club gave 16 concerts in 12 of the leading Texas cities to audiences aggregating about ten thousand people.

It is announced that there will be a second tour through Southeast Texas during the spring term and that other concerts will be given in cities accessible for week-end dates from Austin.

IMMIGRANTS COMING TO WEST TEXAS

STAMFORD, Nov. 28.—A report has been given to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce showing that as a result of the four exhibits sent by the organization to the state fairs in Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana requisitions for over 750 immigrant cars have been placed with the railroads for West Texas destinations.

During 1920 this organization sent out 19 fair exhibits and results are expected to be amazing when full returns are received, according to the publicity department here.

EDITOR OF FERGUSON'S PAPER SUED FOR LIBEL

WACO, Tex., Nov. 28.—A criminal libel suit was filed in district court here today by County Attorney Frank B. Tirey against Fisher Alsup, editor of the Ferguson Forum, for an article alleged to have been written by him concerning the controversy on Governor-elect Pat M. Neff's age during the gubernatorial race.

LAST WHEAT BEING SOWN.

CROSBYTON, Nov. 28.—The last of the 1921 wheat crop is being sown and prospects in this section are the best ever known, says the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. There is a good season in the ground and the acreage is the largest ever planted.

EARLY GAINS IN COTTON GO OFF AT WEEK'S END

NEW ORLEANS, Nov 28.—After making substantial advances during the early part of last week the cotton market felt heavy selling during the last two sessions and all months were sent to new low levels for the season. Weakness in the spot markets of the interior was one of the main reasons for the decline.

Small mill takings and reports from England that spinners were balloting on the question of curtailment of 50 per cent in spindles working on American cotton, also contributed to the decline.

At the highest of the week, prices were 82 to 94 points over the closing quotations of the preceding week; at the lowest they were 73 to 142 points under. Closing quotations showed net losses of 59 to 123 points. In the spot department middling lost 125 points and closed at 15.00.

A notable development at the end of the week was the disposition of the distant months to go to the premium that is normal over the near months. Further easiness in spot is bound to cause still further selling of contracts but the first evidence that interior holdings have been withdrawn from the market would give the contract department a much better tone and would probably result in widespread coverings of the short interests.

Davis Will Have Charge Cotton Office in Europe

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Nov. 28.—Fred W. Davis, commissioner of agriculture, will be placed in charge of the European office of the new cotton growers sales agency, according to the announcement of Fred Roberts, chairman of the agency.

The agency held its first meeting in San Antonio Friday.

WATER TOO COLD TO COMMIT SUICIDE

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt.,—Because the water in the Connecticut River was too cold Mrs. Anna Gray, aged twenty-eight, couldn't commit suicide. She tried twice, wading out into the stream up to her armpits, and then gave up. It just couldn't be done on such a cold day. Just about that time she was discovered and is now at home under a doctor's care. Trouble with her husband, who does not live with her, was the reason for the attempt, the police claim.

HIS WEEK-END.

"For a week-end?"

"Yes; his head's been bothering him."

SUDDETH CASE GOES TO JURY ROOM MONDAY

Arguments of attorneys for the state and defense in the trial of W. S. Suddeth, well-known Henrietta business man, charged with murder, whose trial began a week ago, in the Henrietta district court, will begin Monday morning at the opening of court, according to a statement Sunday night from District Attorney Fletcher S. Jones who is assisting in the prosecution of the case.

A night session of the court was held Friday in order that examination of witnesses in the taking of testimony could be completed before the session this week. Both the state and defense rested at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and the case was continued over until today.

Reports that a night session was held Saturday were denied by District Attorney Jones.

The courthouse at Henrietta has been packed to capacity since the examination of witnesses began.

Suddeth is charged with the murder of Matt Perkins, a service car driver, who was found dead soon after he had driven the defendant and two women around the country in his car several months ago. On the stand, Suddeth told the story of a holdup by two men and two women who were with Perkins in the car. Continuing, he told of the subsequent meeting between he and Perkins at Henrietta and the shooting which resulted in Perkin's death.

His testimony was strongly contradicted by a young lady witness for the state, who claimed that she met Suddeth and the other man with two women in Suddeth's car a short time before the holdup and robbery is said to have occurred.

No time has been set for the length of arguments of opposing counsel, but it is anticipated that the case will go to the jury early in the afternoon.

Too Many Cooks Spoil Marital Broth in Frisco

(By International News Service.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—Too many cooks——.

Yes, the old saying still holds, only now it refers to marital broth, or gold-band bouillon.

It is the story of a pretty San Francisco girl with epicurean ideas, who was forced to decide between two masters of cusine; it was a tragic dilemma. The girl, Mrs. Sophia Jackson, was wedded to the head chef of the Townsend candy stores. Her husband was famous for the dainty and appetizing dishes he concocted to tickle the palate. But Mrs. Jackson's taste, satiated with Mr. Jackson's cooking, turned to the delectable foods which Frank Clement, then second chef at the Techau Tavern, prepared in his masterly way. Clement and Mrs. Jackson slipped away to Mexico City.

Suits for divorce have been filed by Mr. Jackson, whose art of the spoon failed to hold his wife, and by Mrs. Clement. The Jackson wedding took place at Greenwich, Conn., 10 years ago.

SAYS WIFE SLEPT WITH AN ICEPICK UNDER HER PILLOW

(By International News Service.)
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 29.—Declaring his wife often went to bed with "a pair of scissors or an icepick under her pillow," Garfield Robinson, expressing fear for his life, has appealed to the courts here for a divorce decree.

Charging, further, that his wife, Addie, often hit him with cups and saucers, struck him with a hammer several times and hit him with a milk bottle once, besides making threats against him and their 14-year-old child, Robinson asked that Mrs. Robinson be restrained from entering his home.

The ill-fated marital union began 18 years ago.

MILITARY CORDON CLOSES IN ON DUBLIN CENTER

British soldiers with machine gun guarding Drumcondra bridge, Dublin, and fleet of armored cars used by the soldiers in dispersing mobs.

British military and police forces, having thrown a cordon around Dublin, where the Irish situation is most critical, are reported closing in toward the center of the city, arresting or chasing to cover all the Irish republicans suspected of leading the civilians in the recent rioting and conflicts which resulted in the killing of nearly thirty persons and the wounding of over a hundred. Already the Dublin jail has been filled and Dublin castle is being used to house prisoners. These captures were taken during recent disturbances in Dublin.

FARM BUREAU CHIEFS MEET DECEMBER 6

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 27.—Agricultural leaders from every part of the country will assemble here Monday, December 6, in the second annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation to take up the problems confronting the farmer and to discuss measures for their solution and relief in conjunction with the formulation of a national agricultural policy.

The convention which will continue for three days, is expected to attract one of the largest representative gatherings of agriculturists in the history of the country. Delegates of the million and more members of the American Farm Bureau Federation in the 33 states through which its organization extends will attend. In addition, representatives of other industries and business organizations with which agriculture is closely allied will be present.

Among the speakers who will address the convention are some of the foremost agriculturalists in the country, authorities on banking and finance, taxation, transportation and marketing—subjects to which the convention will accord a good share of its attention because of their kindred connection with farm problems and other of natural prominence.

Noted Men on Program.

On the program are W. P. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board; Governor W. L. Harding of Iowa; Governor Goodrich of Indiana; Henry Wallace, editor of a national farm magazine; T. H. McDonald, chief of the U. S. bureau of good roads; H. G. Shirley, secretary-treasurer of the federal highway council; Clifford Thorne of Chicago, transportation expert; J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Gray Silver, legislative representative of the federation, and Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador to the United States. Ambassador Geddes' topic will be agriculture with reference ti its international relationships. As it will be his first address on this subject since coming to America, considerable importance is being attached to it.

Others on the list of speakers are E. T. Meredith, secretary of agriculture; Herbert Hoover, A. L. Lever of the federal farm loan board, and William Redfield, former secretary of commerce.

Discuss New Policy.

The proposed national agricultural policy to which the convention will devote the greater part of its time is the outgrowth of a plan which had its inception before the war, but whose development was interrupted with the advent of hostilities. However, with readjustment and the new problems of the war brought to the door of the farmer the need of a definite agricultural policy has been felt more than ever and for some time a group of prominent agricultural leaders and experts on financial, transportation and market problems have been co-operative with President Howard of the federation, in working out the essential features of a complete policy.

The result of their deliberations will be presented at the convention, and the decisions reached in regard to them will be made the basis of the future educational, legislative and economic activities of organized agriculture.

ILLINOIS MAN GAINS 30 POUNDS

Enjoys Good Health for First Time in Twenty-Five Years—Praises Tanlac.

"Since I started taking Tanlac I have not only gained 30 pounds in weight, but for the first time in 25 years I am enjoying good health," said J. J. Craig, of 421 North Madison street, Bloomington, Ill., recently.

"Yes, sir, I am 50 years of age," he continued, "and 25 of these years have been spent in misery and suffering without a let-up until I began taking Tanlac. I was never able to eat a thing without filling up with gas afterward and having such intense cramping pains in my stomach I could hardly stand them. Why, at times I would have these spells of cramps while at work and have to be taken home, where I would lie for hours almost unconscious. I was all run-down and weak and would play out before I had worked a half day and very often had to quit and go home. But, thanks to Tanlac, this is all a thing of the past, now.

"Tanlac has simply made a new man of me, and it has given me good health, something I never expected to have again. I can sit down, now, and eat anything without its hurting me the least bit. I am never troubled with gas and never have the least sign of a pain in my stomach. I feel strong and vigorous all the time and am able to work every day and all day long with the greatest ease. No, sir, I wouldn't take all the money in Bloomington for what Tanlac has done for me and I expect to praise it as long as I live."

Immigrants to Find Welcome On Texas Farms

STAMFORD, Nov. 28.—The highest types of immigration which will be encouraged through the port of New Orleans by Paul Denechaud, Louisiana immigration commissioner, will be welcomed to settle on agricultural lands in West Texas through the efforts of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, it was announced here today.

Announcement that immigration is moving to America by the tens of thousands, clogging the machinery at the immigration station at Ellis Island, has resulted in federal authorities considering the opening of other American ports to reseive them wholesale. New Orleans is one of these considered. Since sparsely-settled West Texas contains myriad acres of fertile agricultural lands not yet developed, the Louisiana immigration authorities besought the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to co-operate with them in the agricultural settlement of part of this immigration. The organization expressed willingness to assume the obligation of assisting on agricultural lands only the highest types of these people. A grade of people who are likable and make good citizens will alone be encouraged.

By assimilating the immigration movement at its zenith when type of foreigner is being let in, the organization feels that it will be enabled to select only the best of the races. Unless efforts are made in that direction, it was pointed out, indiscriminate flow of foreigners of every race, hue and religion will come on its own initiative to West Texas regardless of the likes or dislikes of the people among whom they choose to settle. Efforts to colonize large settlements of undesirables in South Texas are being made at the present time much to the disgust of the people there. This organization will seek to counteract all attempts in that direction.

WINTER FEEDING OF CALVES BEING TRIED

SPUR, Nov. 28.—The state experiment station here is carrying on some very interesting experiments in the winter feeding of calves. Owing to the low market prices on both grain and cattle and the unusually large supply of feed the winter feeding of calves is being undertaken, says the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The experiments on feeding are being carried out on 45 white face calves furnished by S. M. Swenson ranch, which are divided into three pens of 15 head each. While the experiments have not been carried on enough at this time to ascertain what results may be obtained, the work is being closely watched by many local cattlemen.

HERALD URGES IOWA PARK TO FORM AD CLUB

The Iowa Park Herald in its current issue urges that business men of that city accept the approaches of Wichita Falls business men and form a kind of branch club of the Wichita Falls Ad club. The statement, evidently written by W. Dickson, editor and publisher of the paper, or under his direction, because it is a story involving policy, follows:

"Believing it to be beneficial as well as pleasant to mingle with several of the most successful and influential business men of Wichita Falls and Wichita county, the Herald editor has made application to membership in the Wichita Falls Ad club, recently organized.

"The prime motive of this club is to promote legitimate advertising and to acquaint every business man with the fundamental principles of advertising. It will be the purpose of the club also to promote a more united spirit among the business men.

"Every phase of advertising will be discussed and studied. Experts on advertising, representatives of some of the largest concerns in the United States, will visit Wichita Falls as guests of the Ad club and address it at its Monday noon luncheons.

"A well known gentleman of that city and a stockholder in a large dry goods establishment incidentally stated to the Herald editor that hundreds of dollars had been absolutely squandered by merchants in Wichita Falls alone, by advertising in the wrong way. And he said, 'that's the reason why so many merchants look upon advertising as a dead expense.' This has all occurred in the past year and a half, and is still going on, he said.

"Every fellow with an advertising scheme who can squeeze a few dollars from a business man by the eloquence of tongue, making him imagine that a great harvest will be his reward, is working overtime in Wichita Falls and nearby towns that show prosperity. The paramount business of the Ad club will be to struggle this illegitimate method of advetising and select only legitimate methods. He holds the newspaper and the manner in which it conducts its advertising as the most successful method of advertising.

"Such methods as Time Table advertising, Hotel Register advertising, Picture Show Slide advertising where it is not properly conducted and other forms are to be tabooed. A vigilance committee will act upon every advertising stunt that is being carried on in the city and that which is not legitimate will be eliminated.

"The membership fee and yearly dues are extremely small and it is the desire of the business men of Wichita Falls to create a subordinate club in Iowa Park, for they feel closely related to our little city and want as many of our business men to join as possible. It will mean much to Iowa Park merchants who advertise and care to improve their methods—as well as those who do not in enabling them to learn of the value of advertising.

"Let's join in and protect ourselves from 'advertising grafters.'

"Variety is the spice of life, join and partake of the noon-day luncheon each Monday.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The cotton market showed renewed weakness during today's early trading, with prices making new low prices for the season and with all months this side of July selling well below the 15-cent level.

The early break was followed by rallies. The general market closed steady, net unchanged to 35 points lower.

The market opened easy under renewed Liverpool and Southern selling. Buying of July around the 15-cent level was a sustaining factor, however, and the general list firmed up in the late trading. Liverpool selling here made an unfavorable impression, while the continued selling for Southern account was taken by some traders as indicating a further spot liquidation. This probably accounted for the pressure against the near months, which carried them to discounts as compared with late deliveries for the first time since the beginning of the war. No change was reported in the cotton goods situation.

Award Contract For New Bridge

CROSBYTON, Nov. 28.—A contract has been let for the steel for the county bridge over Catfish creek in the Blanco canyon east of Crosbyton, says the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. A part of the materials for this bridge is now on hand, and construction will be rapidly pushed, as this bridge is on the main tourist highway traversing the county.

The portion of the concrete causeway, washed out some time ago, has not affected travel on this road, but the new bridge will enable traffic to pass over the river at all times of the year.
