PRISON SIEGE ENDS WITH NINE KNOWN KILLED

Joseph R. Grundy, 'Daddy Lobbyist,' Appointed Senator From Pennsylvania

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Members of the Izaak Walton league attend a banquet and hear reports of work done and plans for more work.

The chief work of the leagues is to provide better fishing for its members and the general public. This it does by obtaining and enforcing game laws to protect the supply of fish in the lakes and streams about Wichita Falls and in providing stocks of fish for these lakes and streams.

There is little question but that for the activities of the league our lakes would long since have been fished out and there would be little opportunity for the enjoyment of this sport by the Waltonites or anyone else.

As it is the supply has, at least, been maintained, and with the plans supported by the league in the next few years there will be a better stock than ever. These lakes, already among the best fishing places in the Southwest, promise better sport than ever in the coming years if the Izaak Walton league continues its activities.

In the fishing season sportsmen drive hundreds of miles to fish in these lakes. They spend money in Wichita Falls and in Seymour and Electra and all the towns in this section for supplies and thus the fish in the lakes become an asset of no small commercial importance. This ought to be remembered even by those who do not fish.

At considerable cost and with much work on the part of its staff and correspondents, The Record News is publishing through the cotton marketing season a table of the prices paid for cotton in a number of Texas and Oklahoma towns. The table is being published, first, to give the growers of cotton information for their benefit and to reveal differences in the prices paid in order that something might be done to improve marketing conditions throughout the territory. It is hoped that some good results have come from this effort.

For the list of the year's 10 most devastating back-fires we wish to place in nomination "sons of wild jackasses" and "backward states."

Texas leads all the states in long distance bus service, having 80 routes covering 12,000 miles, points out Texas Public Service News. California, with 30 routes covering 6,000 miles of highway, is second. New routes are being opened in Texas almost every week.

Here's another item from the same source: In 1921 Texas shipped 19 cars of citrus fruits. In 1929 it expects to ship 5,000 cars—just a small gain of more than 25,000 per cent.

Texas is distinguished for something more than area and distance.

It is estimated that between $375,000,000 and $400,000,000 will be expended in construction work in Texas in 1929. Certainly an impressive figure.

Texas cotton production this year is estimated at 3,950,000 bales by the U. S. department of agriculture. This might look like an imposing picture but the average yield will be only 106 pounds per acre which isn't imposing at all. This season all states, even Florida, have exceeded Texas in the yield per acre.

A Wichita Falls lawyer writes in to say that educational requirements "in no way touch the crux of any defect in lawyers as a part of the administration of justice, which is the moral or ethical side." He writes this as comment on a quotation from the address of the president of the American Bar association reproduced in this column recently.

Continuing the Wichita Falls lawyer writes: "I refer you to cases within the territory of Northern Texas where insanity has been pleaded, even the second time, to acquit attorneys for alleged crimes and misdemeanors. Such facts were known to members of the bar and courts; and in similar proceedings there have been no disbarment proceedings except where alleged misconduct has been well known to the general public, and the necessity of defending the reputation of the bar may have forced the issue.

"There is no connection," he goes on to say, "between education and knowledge and morality. Many of the worst crooks in the country may be the best educated, at least, in the laws of crime. Improved educational standards for admission to the bar will have if any influence on reduction of losses to the general public from misconduct of lawyers."

Perhaps it was unfair to quote only a paragraph from the address of the president of the bar association. In this address he stressed not only educational requirements but he placed moral character before education. He did urge that the bar itself set a rigid standard of requirement for admission rather than permit these requirements to be set up by state legislatures.

Perhaps lawyers are too lenient with their erring fellow lawyers. Leniency is a human failing. But as we said the other day, we—all of us including lawyers—despise no one so much as our fellow professional or tradesman whose conduct brings reproach upon our occupation.

SEAT CLAIMED BY VARE GOES TO 'UNCLE JOE'

Keystone State Now Has Two Senators for First Time in Three Years

BATTLE IN OFFING

Demo-Insurgent Coalition, Led by Nye, to Oppose Seating Grundy

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (US)—Joseph R. Grundy, better known in Washington as "Old Joe" master tariff lobbyist since 1896, tonight was the senator-designate from the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Not only did Grundy accept the appointment of his personal and political friend, Gov. John S. Fisher, as senator from the Keystone state, but he announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination in the May primaries against senator-reject William S. Vare, for the remainder of the unexpired Vare term.

He did more. He flung down the gauntlet to the Democratic-insurgent coalition to deny him a seat as they did Vare.

Opposition Certain

There will be opposition, however, to Grundy even taking his seat. There is a substantial group of insurgent Republicans and Democrats who would bar him at the door of the senate just as they did Vare.

This group is led by Senator Gerald P. Nye, insurgent Republican, from North Dakota, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, insurgent Democrat from Montana. Both are hard-boiled in their insurgency and opposition to Grundy, on his record as a lobbyist.

But the indications are that Grundy will be seated. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, insurgent leader, who crossed party lines to campaign against Vare and in behalf of William B. Wilson, the secretary of labor in the Wilson cabinet, Vare's Democratic opponent, declared tonight that he saw no legal reason why he should not be seated.

Enters Tariff Fight

Grundy will enter the senate in the midst of the tariff struggle—a struggle in which he has taken pride as a participant from the outside.

Since his frank talk before the senate lobby investigators when he argued that the senators from the smaller revenue producing states or "backward states" of the West and South should talk "darned

Blanton will be opposed by R. Q. Lee of Cisco, incumbent, who already has announced his candidacy. Blanton was first elected to congress in 1917 from the old sixth district, which since has been made smaller by the creation of the 17th district in which he now resides.

Murder Trials At Altus Are Delayed

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Dec. 11.—Three murder trials, two of them involving Jackson county deputy sheriffs, and the third a negro, which were scheduled to be held Thursday, today were delayed until Monday by District Judge Frank Mathews.

The officers to be tried are E. L. Burleson, deputy sheriff of Elmer, and G. J. Price, deputy sheriff of Duke. Burleson is charged with slaying Arnold Owens on a farm near Elmer several weeks ago. Burleson said at a preliminary hearing he had been attacked with a knife previous to the shooting.

Price will also plead self-defense, it is indicated. He said he was attacked by a man armed with a knife previous to the fatal shooting of Millard Hollars at Duke last month.

The third trial will be that of George Thomas, alias George Washington, negro, charged in connection with the slaying of his brother-in-law, John Gooden, last August.

GRUNDY WINS

Hike in Wool Rates Is Important Victory For Lobbyist

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (US)—Joseph R. Grundy, master lobbyist, won an important fight on the wool rates of the tariff bill, a few minutes before his appointment to the senate from Pennsylvania was announced today.

The senate by a vote of 46 to 32, increased the duty on wool rags from 7½ cents to 18 cents a pound, or approximately 150 per cent. This was a compromise between the 24 cents proposed by the finance committee and 8 cents approved by the house.

Grundy, a manufacturre of fine woolen yarns, was given credit in the debate for the enormous increase in the rate on woolen rags, the importation of which comes in competition with the finer fabrics.

NEW PAVING READY SOON

Concrete Road to Archer Open in 10 Days

Paved highways leading from Wichita Falls to Archer City and from this city to a point about two miles southwest of Dundee on the route to Seymour will be opened to public traffic in approximately 10 and 30 days respectively, according to information given by the state highway department offices here Wednesday.

Pouring of concrete on the Archer City highway has been almost completed, only a short strip near the spillway at Lake Wichita remaining Wednesday, it was said. The concrete bridge near Archer City, rebuilding of which has been under way for several weeks, also will be ready for use by about Dec. 21, completing a hard-surfaced highway from Wichita Falls to Olney.

Construction of the pavement extending across the northwest corner of Archer county on the Seymour road lacks only a half stretch near the Wichita county line to be complete, it was announced. Highway officials here estimated that this new highway will be opened by Jan. 10, offering hard-surfaced accommodations over one-half the distance to Seymour.

Delay for Texas Power Dam Given

AUSTIN, Dec. 11. (AP)—The state water board today granted an extension of time to Emery, Pack and Rockwood Development company of Chicago for beginning work on a dam on the Colorado river near Marble Falls in Burnet county.

The company asked for a two-year extension from Nov. 4, 1929, but the board stipulated construction must be started by Nov. 4, 1930.

The petitioner stated it had prepared plans, procured additional and necessary easements for flowage, spent money and made preparations to begin construction, but conditions over which it had no control prevented the start of the work.

The Marble Falls dam is one of six proposed along the Colorado river in Travis and Burnet counties for the development of hydro electric power. The permits originally were issued to the Syndicate Power company, but they were transferred to Emery, Peck and Rockwood. Construction has not been started on any of the projects but the other permits have not expired.

HUGE COTTON COOPERATIVE IS PLANNED

Formation of $30,000,000 Enterprise Is Authorized By Farm Board

15 STATES IN MOVE

Dallas Man in Running To Be Association's Sales Manager

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 11. (UP)—Formation of a $30,000,000 cotton cooperative marketing association, to be known as the American Cotton Growers' exchange, was announced here late today by Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board.

Tentative plans for a centralized marketing corporation, owned and controlled by 15 state cooperatives, were completed at a meeting of farm board members and representatives of the state organizations.

A committee to work out details of the organization was appointed with instructions to employ "the biggest man you can find" as sales manager of the new association.

Dallas Man Mentioned

C. O. Moser, Dallas, was prominently mentioned for the post.

The purpose of the exchange will be to market the cotton of the member co-operatives, which will continue their local relations with their own members.

The farm board will ask the government for a loan of $30,000,000 which members may subscribe to at $100 a share until ownership of the organization is entirely in the hands of the cotton farmers.

Three hundred thousand shares of $100 par value will be issued and each share will have one vote in the affairs of the organization under plans adopted today. Incorporation will be made under the laws of one state, it was said.

Williams' Statement

Carl Williams, Oklahoma City, cotton representative on the farm board, issued the following statement bearing on the significance of the announcement of Legge:

"If cotton farmers do their part in cooperative marketing this means the beginning of a program which has limitless possibilities for the benefit of the man who grows cotton and for everyone with whom he deals.

"If cotton farmers assume that this plan is a matter which can function perfectly without their help, they are mistaken and the plan will fail."

Big Storm Coming, Say Those Who Believe In Signs

The sunny December summer day Wichitans and most of Northwest Texas enjoyed Wednesday was not without its warning that such bliss will not last forever, according to the superstitious.

For early Wednesday night there was a large misty circle around the maturing moon, and inside of the circle there were three stars—all of which means to the superstitious that a storm is brewing, and that it will come within the number of days indicated by the number of stars within the ominous circle.

We have until next Saturday, then.

SOUTHERN AIR LINE APPROVED

Atlanta, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso on Route

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP)—A vast network of new air mail lines, including a new transcontinental route, was recommended today to the postoffice department by the interdepartmental committee on airways.

The new lines will not be placed in operation for some time, however, as the routes will have to be lighted for night flying. Bids will be asked for the routes as soon as practicable.

The new transcontinental line will run from Atlanta to Los Angeles with stops at Birmingham, Ala., Jackson, Miss., Shreveport, La., Dallas, Fort Worth and El Paso, Texas, and San Diego. A stop will be made either at Midland, Sweetwater or Big Spring, Texas, but it has not been decided which. Assistant Postmaster General Glover said the stop probably would be made at the city having the best railroad connections with the surrounding country.

Another new route recommended was from Louisville, Ky., by the way of Nashville and Memphis, Tenn., and Little Rock, Ark., to Fort Worth.

Another line which eventually may connect with the southern transcontinental at Fort Worth has been recommended to run from New York to St. Louis by way of WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (INS)—Three reporters for the Washington Times who chose to go to jail for contempt of court rather than reveal confidential information to a grand jury were liberated today after serving 40 days of a 45-day sentence. They received five off for good behavior.

While they were behind the bars, three bills have been introduced in congress to curb the power of the judiciary to sentence for contempt in such cases and it is probable that favorable action will be taken at this session.

MACHINE GUNS LAY BARRAGE FOR CLEAN-UP

Eight Convicts and Keeper At Auburn, N. Y., Prison Are Shot Down

Rioters Capture Guards and Threaten Murder to Enforce Demands

By GEORGE M. WRIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Sweeping through the shot-torn yard of Auburn prison, scattering a deadly hail of machine gun bullets as they went, a heavy detachment of national guardsmen, reinforced by strong squads of police brought to an end tonight the resistance of a band of convict-desperadoes, quelled a murderous mutiny that raged all day, and drove the prison population to bay in their cells.

In the war-like rush that ended one of the most violent attempts to break prison ever recorded in this country, five ringleaders of the rebellion were killed, bringing the dead to nine, including the head keeper, George A. Durnford.

Shortly after 7 p. m., militiamen said at the prison office that they had all the convicts "subdued and locked in." Their forces had been increased by more soldiers from nearby territory and it was estimated at that time that 850 armed men were in control. A check of casualties was proceeding, and it was believed at the prison office that the list would be considerable.

Leader Killed

James Sullivan, ringleader of the mutineers, was listed as killed in an attempt to flee the tear gas, and guards reported that the bodies of several other prisoners were lying in the prison yard.

At 8 o'clock this morning, prison officials were informed that the

Looking the ship over, when the famous flier landed here yesterday, they observed that since his last visit more upholstery had been added to what were cockpits of the plain military type and better protection afforded against the windstream. Also the exhaust pipes have been led into a "stack," carrying the fumes from the engine well behind the passengers, and another step has been added to the rear cockpit.

Wichita Judge Grants C. A. Wright New Trial After 10-Year Sentence

Setting aside his former ruling in the case in conformance with a recent opinion of the court of criminal appeals, Judge P. A. Martin Wednesday afternoon granted a new trial to C. A. Wright, given a 10-year prison term on burglary charges here three months ago.

In granting the new trial motion, presented by Ernest Robertson, defense attorney, Judge Martin followed the ruling of the appellate court in the Scrivener case, which gave the state its first interpretation of one aspect of the habitual criminal act, under which Wright was indicted.

The new ruling excludes as evidence all mention of a former conviction which has been wiped out by an absolute pardon, attorneys explained. Wright, accused of a third burglary offense, was shown to have served a term in a Louisiana penitentiary and to have been pardoned after a similar conviction in Oklahoma. The state sought a 99-year sentence against the defendant as an habitual criminal, introducing certified copies of both convictions.

The question of the admissibility of the evidence of the Oklahoma conviction was raised by Mr. Robertson and Walter Friberg, asso-

"SKETCHES" TO OFFER VARIETY

Police Benefit Revue To Feature Chorus

One of the widest varieties of entertainment ever offered in a musical revue will be presented in "Sketches of 1930" which will make its debut at the Memorial auditorium next Wednesday night, Dec. 18, according to the announcement of the directors Wednesday. The production is being staged for the benefit of the local police relief fund, the entire proceeds to be placed in the fund.

Something a bit different will be presented in short sketches, one of which, "The Chief Inspector," will be a playlet dealing with the vice existing in New York and containing a new type of plot with a surprise climax. Scenery for the entire production will be of the finest, with colors and lighting effects intricately worked out. The scenes are being arranged by the Amalia Grain studios of Philadelphia. Each act will require a different setting, it was said.

A beauty chorus of girls selected from a large number of talented dancers will be presented in a series of new dance steps and formations. Several weeks have been spent in training the chorus in military-like drills and difficult steps and the group will rival the best presented in Broadway revues, the directors said. No local chorus seen here in the past has been as completely drilled in its dances.

Tickets for the "Sketches" may be obtained from any police officer. Reservations may be made by calling police headquarters.

Wright Granted New Trial Here

ciate counsel, at the time of the original trial, but their objections were overruled, no higher court rulings on the question having been handed down at that time.

In announcing his decision Wednesday afternoon, Judge Martin explained that he believed the new ruling applied directly to the local case and that he would expect the court of appeals to grant the motion if the case were sent up to the higher courts.

Other Charges Pend

Sam Spence, district attorney, said Wednesday afternoon that he had not completed plans for another trial for Wright. Three other indictments, all charging burglary, are pending against him, the attorney said. Members of the department were of the opinion that no further effort would be made to push the third offense charge. The indictment involved in the recent trial charges the burglary of the home of W. P. Killingsworth.

Wright was arrested last spring after the recovery of several thousand dollars worth of goods stolen from Wichita Falls homes. T. O. Cagle, arrested at the same time, is under a 20-year sentence on several convictions, and Mae Hart, the third defendant involved in the case, is at liberty under a suspended sentence.

Cagle, who escaped from the state penitentiary shortly after his sentence began, was recaptured Wednesday in Seminole, Okla.

small" in tariff debate, the name of Grundy has been a by-word in the senate. Members of the senate coalition who are opposing the Republican tariff measure refer to the program as "Grundyism."

Up in the gallery of the senate during the long hours of the tariff debate, the white-haired advocate of a high protective tariff has been an almost constant attendant. Tomorrow or the next day he moves down to the floor to face his ardent critics.

Nye Leads Fight

Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, who served notice during the Vare battle that he would oppose any man connected with the Mellon-Grundy-Fisher machine, announced immediately after Grundy's appointment became known that he will lead a fight against him.

The appointment of Grundy was denounced by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, as "a challenge to the people of the country who believe in a free government as well as to the senate itself" and indicated that he will join Nye in the ouster battle.

Just what form the fight will take, the opposition senators were not prepared to say tonight. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, however, said that he will move to have the oath administered to his colleague-designate immediately upon the convening of the senate tomorrow morning. He expressed the belief that a majority of the senate would approve Grundy's credentials.

Grundy, who returned to Washington from a conference with Governor Fisher and other Pennsylvania Republican leaders, hurried to his offices to prepare a statement.

Entertainment Program Completed For Annual Junior C.-C. Banquet

Heavy Attendance Expected at First Yearly Meeting; S. M. U. Quartet to Give Numbers Here

Entertainment to be included in the program for the first annual banquet of the Wichita Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Wichita club Monday, Dec. 16, was announced Wednesday by Judge Allan D. Montgomery, chairman of the program committee.

One of the features for which arrangements were completed Wednesday will be the Southern Methodist university male quartet from Dallas. This ensemble will sing several numbers, and will also carry a soloist who will present a group of songs.

Vocal music arranged for the event includes selections by Miss Charlene Kinder, soprano, accompanied by Miss Katherine Criswell, both representing the Wichita Falls Conservatory of Music.

Both the Wichita Falls Academy of Fine Arts and the Knickerbocker School of Expression will provide dancing numbers for the affair. Misses Virginia Hampson and Helen Peters, instructors in the latter school, will present individual and duo interpretations, while Charles Doran, instructor in tap dancing at the Academy of Fine Arts, will use soft shoe and buck dancing in his appearance.

Selection of a speaker to give the principal address of the evening has not been completed, according to Guy P'Pool, secretary of the organization, but will be announced within the next two days.

Election of directors for the coming year, and adoption of the 1930 budget and program of work, will constitute important items of business to be transacted by the membership gathering. According to Shadie F. Hale, chairman of the ticket committee for the banquet, a large percentage of the membership will be present. Reservations may be made at the chamber of commerce offices, telephone 4131, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. any week day it was said.

Arrangements for the menu, table arrangements, and seating of those present is in charge of Jesse Campbell. The banquet is to begin at 7 o'clock next Monday evening.

TROOPS QUELL RIOT IN PRISON

Death Toll Runs High In Auburn Break

riot was impending. But before additional guards could be brought into action, the mutiny was in progress.

Using guns believed to have been smuggled into the prison, and apparently well equipped with ammunition, 15 of the ringleaders surrounded eight guards in one of the prison halls and disarmed them.

Guards Held

Retreating to the north cell block the mutineers carried the guards with them, threatening death at the first attempt to rescue them. Guards on the walls and in the watch towers were unable to fire into the mass of struggling convicts, for fear of wholesale slaughter.

Principal Keeper Durnford was shot at the outset of the riot.

Warden Jennings, accompanied by other guards, entered the prison and sought to parley with the convicts. Their reply was to seize the warden and his companions and barricade themselves in the cell block.

Following a precedent set by the murderers of the Colorado state penitentiary riot, the mutineers then sent word to the prison office that unless they were immediately released, they would kill the warden and all the guards then in their power.

Lehman Defiant

To this message, Acting Governor Herbert Lehman—notified at Albany of the convicts' ultimatum—replied:

"Tell them to go to hell. There will be no compromise with them."

Meanwhile the prisoners had cut telephone wires within the prison and put the structure out of communication with the city. Before this was accomplished, however, calls for the national guard and police assistance had been sent to nearby cities.

Bombs Ordered

A squad of 40 police, armed with tear bombs and riot guns, arrived within two hours of the start of the outbreak, and this force was swelled by the arrival of state police drawn from 40 stations in Western New York, and Company I, New York national guards. The forces were commanded by Adjutant General Franklin W. Ward.

Upon his arrival, General Ward ordered Maj. George A. Vaughan of the 102nd observation squadron to take off from Miller field, Staten Island, with several cases of tear bombs.

Machine guns were placed around the walls, and a determined battle between the convicts, then barricaded in the north cell block, began.

Shortly afternoon, and following a conference of the military officials, it was decided to storm the cell house. Machine gun fire had driven the besieged prisoners from vantage points commanding the entrances, and through these the national guardsmen and police swept, to attack the cell house.

Tear Gas Hurled

A shower of tear bombs tore through the barred cell windows, while the mutineers responded with revolver fire. Unable to resist, however, the ringleaders abandoned their hostages and took refuge in the west and south cell houses, while the attacking forces succeeded in making an entrance to the "fort."

There they found the warden and his guards in a daze from the effects of their captivity and the gas.

All of the guards were removed to the Auburn hospital. They reported the mutineers had used extreme violence and brutality during their captivity.

Message "Faked"

While it was reported that Warden Jennings had sent out a message, upon his capture, advising authorities to accede to the convicts' demands, his associates discounted the report, some declaring the message a fake, and others claiming that if such a message was sent, it was obtained under duress.

With the release of the rioters' hostages effected, the military forces entered a campaign to wear the mutineers down by directing machine gun and rifle fire against the cell houses in which they knew the leaders had taken refuge.

At 12:20 they had driven them from their barricade in the north cell house and into the south wing of the prison. By this time, too, they had gained complete control of the front and rear entrances.

It was the rear entrance which the mutineers had demanded be thrown open for their escape.

Fire Breaks Out

As the 15 mutiny leaders dashed for safety in other cell blocks, they released hordes of convicts from their cells, urging them to join in the outbreak. Adding to the terror, fire presumably set by the convicts was discovered in two of the cell houses. These blocks, however, were not far from the entrances, and the Auburn fire department protected by a barrage laid down by the guardsmen, was able to enter the prison and extinguish it before it reached dangerous proportions.

Throughout the afternoon, a desultory fire was kept up between the prisoners and the attacking forces. Little of it was effective, however, the convicts keeping behind cover of the stone walls.

Half an hour after the warden and his guards were rescued from the hands of the desperate convicts, Volny Ellis, teacher of the prison school, and Alfred Rowlands, a guard, were found and brought out. Rowlands was suffering from a serious wound in the neck.

Realizing that there were probably a score of men loose in the prison and utterly reckless of life—since participation in the riot can mean the electric chair for them—the authorities determined to send in a heavy force before darkness, to subdue the ringleaders and lock the non-combatants in their cells.

Gates Entered

At that time, all but 14 of the guards had been accounted for and these 14 were believed locked in cells in the south wing.

At 5 o'clock the prison gates swung open, and a force of 200 national guardsmen, 25 Syracuse police and 40 policemen from Rochester swept through the yards, firing as they went.

Here they met a determined resistance. So sharp was the return fire of the convicts, and from so many directions, that it is believed at least 100 mutineers were armed.

A report that the convicts had broken into the arsenal and obtained machine guns and rifles was found untrue. Locks on the arsenal were intact.

In the battle, however, the state forces shot Parry Johnson, a convict from Binghampton, through the head. Johnson died in the hospital shortly after he was brought out. John Burton, a guard, was shot in the abdomen and his condition was considered critical. The third casualty was Claude Udwine, a convict, 28, who was shot in the jaw and who is believed to be dying. Udwine was serving a 30-year sentence for robbery. He was sent up from Buffalo.

Max Becker, a desperado from New York, one of the ringleaders in the outbreak, and serving a 40-year sentence for robbery, was also shot in the chest. He was expected to live.

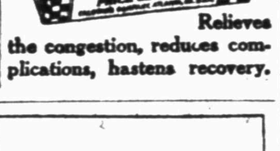

Shortly after 5 o'clock, acting Governor Lehman officially announced that the situation was under control, that state troopers had locked 500 prisoners in their cells, and that only the south wing of the prison was still holding out. Most of the ringleaders are on the casualty list, he said.

Visitors Praise Work Of Agriculture Group

The industrial and agricultural activities of Wichita Falls and Wichita county were described as outstanding by members of a special committee of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway system who met with the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce at a dinner at the Wichita club Wednesday evening.

The Katy representatives compose a group of officials now making a tour of the cities served by their railroad for the purpose of formulating a general industrial and agricultural survey of the vast territory through which the Katy lines operate. They are A. E. Gilman and R. G. Buford of the industrial department of the Katy, and T. M. Jeffords and R. Reese of the agricultural department.

The meeting was occupied following the dinner with a round-table discussion of the conditions existing in this vicinity compared with those of other communities. Members of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce gave a detailed description of various activities in this region, with emphasis mainly on the dairying and poultry industries. The railway officials congratulated the agricultural committee on its work as probably the best in any town served by the Katy.

Members of the chamber of commerce committee present at the dinner were Luke McCrory, presiding officer; J. N. Sherrill, Henry Ford, L. H. Estes, J. L. Mizell, J. W. Chatham and O. K. Barnes.

'White Collars' Hit On First Night

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

As long as the Wichita Falls Little Theater can produce entertainment of the sort afforded by Edith Ellis' "White Collars" in its first presentation Wednesday night, the institution should be preserved as a highly valued community asset.

The capacity of the Little Theater was not taxed Wednesday night but if recommendations of the first-nighters be accepted as wise guides, Thursday and Friday nights' performances will play to crowded aisles.

Several roles were so artistically compassed in Wednesday night's presentation as to make assignment of premier honors a splitting of hairs. Moving for a moment to individual mention, the alertness and resourcefulness with which Frederick Newth and Mrs. Ewing Watkins picked missed, or near-missed, cues to maintain the flow of dialog was a delight to those who remembered that "White Collars" was given by an amateur cast.

Acknowledgment must be made of excellent character interpretations accomplished by Jerry Moffett as the young millionaire bridegroom; Dorothy Campbell's Joan, the bride; Mr. Newth's garrulous Cousin Henry; H. F. Ferrell as Mr. Thayer, Mrs. Hermione S. Vaughan as "mother," and J. W. Whitelaw as the strong-armed truck driver. With fewer lines in the role of Dad Thayer's eldest son, Raymond Strong capitalized heavily on his few opportunities. To Miss Fay Helen Rackley was given the task of upholding the traditional aristocracy and poise of a Van Luyn as the bridegroom's sister.

Lobbyist Plot to Inflame Cuba Against U. S. Hatched By 'Hoover's Close Friend'

By EDWARD L. RODDAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (US)—A lobbyist plot to inflame sentiment in Latin American countries against the United States over the Cuban sugar tariff was exposed by the senate lobby committee today.

The author of this proposed scheme, Herbert C. Lakin, president of the Cuba company, frankly admitted that he was "ashamed" of it. Members of the committee agreed that he should be.

Lakin put forth his plan in a letter to Sanchez Aballi, Cuban secretary of communications. The witness said the plan never went into effect, adding that Aballi rebuked him for suggesting it.

The committee revealed that Lakin had another scheme to influence members of congress on the sugar tariff through their Masonic connections and through Rotary clubs. He wanted Cuban Masons to appeal "quietly" to Masonic members of congress.

Lakin testified this scheme never went into effect because he later decided it was "foolish."

The exposure of these secret, undercover plans of the lobbyists to use foreign and fraternal connections to influence federal legislation resulted from the committee's seizure of Lakin's personal letter and communications.

In his oral testimony, Lakin today revealed that President Hoover as early as last February was trying to reconcile opposing elements on the sugar tariff.

Shattuck, it developed, was hired to run the lobby because of his close personal friendship for President Hoover.

Caraway took Lakin to task for hiring Shattuck to head the sugar lobby because he had acted as attorney for President Hoover.

The witness responded that Shattuck had agreed to accept the employment only after Mr. Hoover had stated it was agreeable to him.

"You were hiring him because you thought he had influence with President Hoover?" said Caraway.

"Influence is not the right word," the witness responded. "He had the confidence of President Hoover and Senator Smoot."

Lakin said he thought such employment might be wrong ordinarily, but it was justified in this instance because the sliding scale sugar plan was under consideration.

This plan, he said, was first proposed at the Miami conference last February between President Hoover and Senator Smoot.

Marrs Blames Wesetern "Six-Shooter" For Modern Epidemic of Crime

Orthodox equipment 50 years ago for the Westerner, the six-shooter, was branded by Judge John P. Marrs in an address on "Law Enforcement" before the Lions club Wednesday noon as the largest single factor in producing the most general and disastrous epidemic of crime in this country which the world ever has seen.

Two-thirds of the robberies and murders committed in this country, Judge Marrs said, may safely be attributed to the carrying of six-shooters. Pistol wounds number almost 100,000 annually in the United States, he said. The speaker declared that in Germany where possession of the six-shooter is forbidden, crime is well under control.

Announcement of the Little Theater play to be given at the Memorial auditorium on Dec. 27 for the benefit of the municipal zoo was made by B. D. Sartin, who declared that its sponsors plan to sell 5,000 tickets.

Vocal numbers by Mrs. Rose Marie Tickell and saxophone solos by Joe McMakin, both accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, were included in Wednesday's program.

An invitation from members of the Electra Lions club to attend a down-town Christmas party in that city Thursday afternoon and night was read by Frank Cripliver.

Walters Signs Contract For New Fire Truck

Special to The Record News

WALTERS, Okla., Dec. 11.—Contract for the purchase of an American La France fire truck has been entered into by the city commissioners of Walters, the truck to be delivered within the next few weeks. The truck has a pumping capacity of 500 gallons per minute under pressure of 125 pounds. However, the pressure may be doubled by decreasing the volume and increasing the speed. A large supply of new fire hose was included in the purchase.

The acceptance of the truck depends upon the approval of the state fire marshal, who will apply rigid tests to the machine upon its arrival.

SOUTHERN AIR LINE APPROVED

Atlanta, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso on Route

Pittsburgh, Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis, Ind. It is the plan of the department eventually to extend this route to Fort Worth by way of Springfield, Mo., Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Okla. This probably will not be done, Glover said, until legislation has been passed allowing the postmaster general to place mail on passenger planes flying on regular schedule.

When the line from Atlanta to Birmingham and thence to Fort Worth is begun, the line which now connects Atlanta, Mobile and New Orleans will be routed through Montgomery, Ala.

It was understood tonight that there is little chance of the routes being placed in operation until about July 1, when the new fiscal year begins. At present the funds for lighting airways has been about exhausted and the air mail service is facing a $3,000,000 deficit for this fiscal year.

C. C. TO CONTINUE EFFORTS FOR ROUTE

Chamber of commerce officials Wednesday night had received no information which would indicate whether or not the resignation of a new transcontinental air mail route through Fort Worth and Dallas would eliminate Wichita Falls from consideration for the route recently sought by a Wichita Falls delegation in Washington. J. W. Chatham, manager of the chamber of commerce, said there would be no cessation in efforts here to provide Wichita Falls with adequate air mail service at the earliest opportunity.

Airport Notes

Direct telephonic communication with the city was established for the Municipal airport Wednesday with the completion of a private line to replace the rural party line formerly used at the field, according to C. P. Logan, manager of the port. The new number is 2-5606. One telephone is located at the manager's residence and another at the hangar. With the completion of the administration building, which will be ready for occupants with the next two weeks, several additional instruments will be installed for use by the Lone Star Aviation company and the two commercial air lines, it was said. Gas lines were also completed in the residence, hangar and new building Wednesday, providing complete facilities for heating and cooking. Work on the digging of a well to provide a private water supply system for the Municipal port will begin within the next several days.

Following in the footsteps of his wife, or perhaps the air trail set by his wife, James E. McKanna, local oil operator and aviation enthusiast, was progressing rapidly in his flying lessons Wednesday at the Municipal port under the instruction of his private pilot, Burton L. Walker. Mrs. McKanna made her first solo several days ago during the visit of Amelia Earhart, America's most famous woman flier. Mr. McKanna owns a large Travelair J6-9 six-place cabin monoplane in which he makes trips to all parts of the country. He recently presented his wife with a Travelair open biplane for her personal use.

Landing at the Municipal port Wednesday included Mar King, well-known stunt flier, in his Monocoupe. He flew from El Paso Wednesday and will remain in Wichita Falls until Thursday morning when he will take off for Kansas City, he said. E. A. Patterway of Dallas landed about 4 p. m. in his Challenger biplane. He will also remain in the city on business until Thursday morning when he plans to take off on the return trip to Dallas. Mr. Patterway is a frequent visitor at the Municipal port.

At Staley field Wednesday, Lowell Yerex, T. A. T. manager at Amarillo, landed in his Curtiss-Robin en route from Amarillo to Fort Worth on business. Other landings Wednesday included Guy Minnis, flying a Spartan J6 from Fort Worth and return; Randolph Paige in his Stinson J6 from Fort Worth and return; and Roy Lesage in his Kinner motored American Eagle from Graham and return. Mr. Lesage is a frequent visitor at Staley field, flying here often on his business trips. Good weather for the past several days has increased activities at both landing fields.

Stronger School Law Needed, Says McDonald

A plea for a more stringent compulsory school law and for more rigorous enforcement was contained Wednesday evening in the address of James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, before the Parent-Teacher association at Rocky Point.

Mr. McDonald said that the phrase "and other unusual causes" should be stricken from the list of exemptions from compulsory school attendance.

"The designated reasons are alright," the officer said, "but that phrase leaves a thousand loop holes."

Herbert Kaufman's ◆ ◆ ◆ THE INVADER ◆ ◆ ◆ Daily Editorial

WATCH the steerage gangplank. The man whose children will probably pay wages to yours is about to arrive.

Suddenly restricted chances, yonder, compel him to migrate where he can devote his force and talents to more profitable use than the Old World lately permits.

His own land no longer offers the prospects pre-war conditions assured.

You'll find him a different type from the average alien, who in past years blindly gambled in the lottery of survival.

Cultured, informed, and specifically trained, his competition threatens the security of clock-watchers and job-botchers, everywhere.

You're apt to exaggerate the value of a prior start, nativity and familiarity with our distinctive methods and prejudices.

Don't, however, lean too heavily on such slender advantages. Temporary handicaps may restrain his initial progress, but it shan't be long until the new tortoise will be running ahead of the overconfident hares.

Your generation is so intoxicated with the vision of easy money, that extravagance of energy and wealth, squandering of vital time and thought, have largely become national failings.

You've acquired a hundred little, loose habits he never learned, and pamper scores of wasteful hobbies his thrifty ambitions can't afford.

His canny instincts will immediately note your weaknesses and suggest lines of attack which smug self-satisfaction can't repel.

By making his day's produce double the yield of yours, he'll soon be forging to the front before you recognize his formidability.

While you're practising the latest dance steps, he'll be studying the last text-books.

While you're motoring, he'll be maneuvering, finessing — sharpen-wits upon humble whetstones you deem beneath a gentleman's dignity.

HE ISN'T ◆ ◆ ◆ hampered by false pride. He springs from people who don't bother with such nonsense—from a social group which doesn't ape the excesses and imitate the diversions of entrenched affluence.

He'll manage without the indulgences you're habituated to believe essential to status and comfort.

At home, he was not allowed to confuse luxuries with necessities.

So he won't be ashamed to let service instead of style wear out his clothes. He'll not pay a premium for the flashy distinction of living in a showy neighborhood.

He'll save money and he won't save himself. He'll take orders cheerfully and despise no task with a dollar hidden in it—that was drilled into him from childhood.

He'll be indurated with the conviction that industry and persistence are still touchstones to success in the United States.

He'll join a night school, not a night club, and fly with the early birds, not the owls.

Your eyes are on the man above—therefore you don't notice the one creeping from the rear.

His bad English will throw you off guard, but he'll soon be thinking mighty good American—as you will discover when you meet to match trading wits.

Prepare for him, or in the end you'll work for him.

The signs along our streets are strange with names unknown to yesterday. But in more than one sense, they are signs of the times.

Once, the continent mainly sent us those whom she did not need—her unskilled and untaught surplus.

But, "tomorrow a new order cometh."

State Seeks Death for Attacker of Drillers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 11. (UP)—The death penalty will be asked for A. L. Evans, 21, charged with robbing and attacking six oil well drillers in the city oil field early today, Assistant County Attorney Deupree said late today. A charge of robbery with firearms was filed against him.

Massachusetts is beginning to test the eyesight of drivers applying for licenses to drive. That ought to cut the Sunday parade down to about three cars.

Probably there is a bicycle pump in the studio of the photographer who advertised in an eastern paper, "We will enlarge your baby for $2."

You'll hardly finish the instalments on the Thanksgiving turkey before it will be time for the down payment on the one for Christmas—if any.

The Genuine Radicals

THE WORD "radical," as we use it in this country, has been a word to frighten children. It represents everything that we fear and hate; uncouth and bewhiskered men, dangerous dreamers, long-haired meddlers who would tear down our old institutions and launch us on uncharted and dangerous seas of experiment.

As it happens, though, we don't really understand the word. If we did, we might realize that our greatest radicals are not our Socialists or our Communists, but our wealthy, conservative industrialists.

Rodney Dutcher recently pointed this fact out clearly.

Washington heard two proposals looking toward the abolition of war the other day.

One of them came from Bertrand Russell, famous English Socialist.

Russell proposed that war be ended by control of essential raw materials. He would have such materials denied to all belligerents, thus crippling them so that war would be impossible.

Russell admitted that his idea was somewhat visionary, and said it would take years of education and study before it could be tried.

The other anti-war proposal came from Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, the very wealthy industrialist.

Hurley's idea was the same as Russell's, except that it was more drastic.

He pointed out that a dozen or more industrialists of three or four different nations, by their control of raw materials such as rubber, copper and the like, could end war overnight. He wants them to organize and get ready to do it. Unlike Russell, he doesn't think the plan is visionary. He doesn't think it will take "years of education and study." He thinks it can be put into effect at once, and he wants to see it done.

So we have the strange spectacle of a conservative and wealthy industralist going far beyond a daring Socialist in proposing a remedy for the ills that beset modern society.

We needn't be surprised, though. Our biggest business leaders are our greatest radicals. They are changing the conditions of life with a speed to make the theorists blink. We don't notice it—so we call them conservatives.

Who ever proposed such a radical change in industrial procedure as Rockefeller put into effect? Who ever was half as radical about wages and prices as Henry Ford? What approach to international problems is as radical as the approach of our greatest bankers?

We are, when you stop to think about it, being ruled by radicals. The only reason it doesn't excite us is that we don't realize it.

News Travels Fast

WHEN you stop to think about it, the real marvel in coanection with Byrd's flight over the south pole isn't the fact that he made the flight so much as the fact that the whole world knew all about it the next day.

The speed with which modern communication is carried on is an amazing thing. A couple of decades ago Peary went to the north pole; but it was months before anyone knew anything about it. Now news travels more swiftly than anything else on earth.

The greatest battle of the war of 1812—Jackson's fight at New Orleans—was fought after peace had actually been signed. It took a month to get the news across the Atlantic. What a contrast with today, where a trip to the south pole is known all over the world less than 24 hours after it happens!

Mr. Gillis Is Re-Elected

THE WELL KNOWN and somewhat comical "Bossy" Gillis, mayor of Newburyport, Mass., seems to have been re-elected, after one of the most exciting campaigns in that city's history.

If it's all right with Newburyport, and it seems to be, it's certainly all right with us. One might suggest that Newburyport probably would get along better with a more businesslike and less flamboyant executive; but, after all, it's Newburyport's business, and we outsiders have no call to complain.

That being the case, we don't mind saying that we're rather glad Mayor Gillis was re-elected. He's refreshing, to say the least; a welcome relief from the insufferable pomposity of most mayors. If Newburyport can put up with him, we're just as well pleased that he got re-elected.

Watch Out for the Flu

THIS is an excellent time of year to keep one eye cocked on that familiar old enemy, the flu.

The flu is a puzzling sort of malady. It is almighty easy to acquire; a few hours exposure to bad weather in insufficient clothing usually suffice to give it a foothold. And, once it gets established, it is hard to shake off. If it is trifled with it can lay a man up for weeks.

Avoid exposure, keep warmly dressed, get plenty of fresh air at night and don't let any little cold get the better of you—and, if one does, call a doctor at once. The flu is abroad in the land, and there's no sense in trifling with it. If you get a touch of it, lie low until it is gone.

Marriage for Two-- By Arthur Somers Roche

Shortly after an interview in which Helen Wilson tells Larry Tracy that she wishes to break their engagement so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton, and Larry swears, in pique, to marry the first girl who will have him, he rescues from a park bench a starved but beautiful girl, Joyce Carroll.

A few days later they are married, agreeing that the marriage shall in reality be nothing more than a friendship.

Shortly they sail for Biarritz, where Joyce gains great popularity and where Larry finds himself falling in love with her despite evidence of her strange past. A man named Ratty Rogan, in New York, tries unsuccessfully to tell Larry something of his wife, and in Biarritz Joyce gives 40,000 francs to a woman of the demimonde and tells Larry she lost the money at the gambling tables.

He and Joyce attend a party given by Billy Valdemagara, a Spaniard and Larry's best friend. On a high cliff overlooking the sea Larry comes on Helen Wilson, who has followed him from New York, and finds all her old charm revived.

A Stolen Kiss

It was more than her old charm that was revived. Or, if not more, it was something different, this effect that her nearness, her surrendering forward step, created within him.

She had been upon a pedestal, that pedestal upon which romantic mankind places reclistic womankind, and from which woman too readily steps. For man is the romanticist. To him love is not a business, a career, a race-preserving urge. Rather, it is the culmination of youthful dreams, it is an end in itself, not a stepping stone to something else. Home, children, family ties—these may be vaguely encompassed in thoughts of a man when he falls in love, but they are mere incidents in the great bewilderment that is masculine love.

Larry, adoring Helen Wilson, had not thought of her as the mistress of his home, as the mother of his children, nor as anything but an almost disembodied spirit. Of course, he knew that she had beauty of face and grace of figure, but he was aware of these only cloudily. That these were the attributes that had first attracted him to her he knew; he had never been insensible to a pretty face or form; but he would have indignantly denied that part of his anguish at her faithlessness had been due to to the knowledge that he would never kiss those lips again, would never hold that graceful body in warm embrace. She was the fulfillment of a dream, that was all.

But now, for the first time, this was no dream woman who stood so near that he could hear her gentle breathing. This was a woman of flesh and blood, a woman of vitality unsuspected heretofore by him. He was not enough of a self-analyst to know that Helen had become clothed with flesh simply because another woman had awakened desire in him. He thought this was love, a reawakened love, that made his hands reach gropingly for the girl before him.

She stepped back, in a simulation of alarm, that was convincing.

"Larry," she reproached him.

He dropped his hands beside him.

"Why did you come?" he asked tonelessly.

"Why did you do—what you did?" she demanded.

"Marry? Why shouldn't I?" he glared angrily at her. "I told you I would. What difference did that make? To you, I mean. What do you care?"

"Why shouldn't I care?" she countered.

He was in better command of himself now.

"You exchanged five millions for fifty," he jeered. "Wasn't the trade a good one?"

She half turned. "If that is what you have to say—"

"What did you expect to hear?" he asked.

Her lips pouted faintly, as though she were about to weep. It was an old trick of hers, but he had never known that it was a trick. In those lovers' quarrels in which they had occasionally indulged, she had always come out quick victor by this pretense of incipient tears.

"W-e-ll, we had been friends—hadn't we, Larry?"

Even to him, beset by emotions really incomprehensible to him, this did not ring true.

"Friends? God Almighty, Helen, we were lovers. At least I loved you. And we were engaged to be married. Friends!"

"I loved you, too," she said.

"But how much?" he sneered.

"That isn't fair," she told him.

"Fair? What do you know about fairness? Was it fair to throw me over for an old man—"

"You aren't a girl, Larry. You aren't a girl with a mother who—" she paused.

"With a mother who what?" he insisted.

"Who loves me," she finished.

Even he, none too acute at the moment, disdained this.

"Loves you? What do you mean—loves you?

"Mothers are ambitious," she explained.

"Well—she couldn't make you marry Burton," he accused.

"That's what I've found out," she said.

And now, instead of stepping away, she swayed toward him.

"What do you mean by that?" he asked. The hoarseness of his voice surprised him. It was as though some one else were speaking, and as though he were looking on listening.

"Do I need to make it clearer?" she retorted.

"Are you telling me that you have decided not to marry him?" he asked.

"I don't know what I'm telling you—except that I—can't stand it if you—are cross with me."

Some day he would analyze these words of hers, would reduce them to their ultimate absurdity. But not now. She was young, she was beautiful. Another woman, equally as young and infinitely more beautiful, had denied him herself, had made it clear that she would always deny herself to him. But here was a woman with whom he had been genuinely in love, in love with the spirit and not with the senses, who was intimating promise to him.

Triumph?

"Cross with you? I could never be angry," he heard himself saying.

"But look at what you did," she reproached him.

"Look at what you did," he rejoined with equal childishness.

"But I didn't—I only said I would," she retorted.

"You mean—look here, Helen, are you going to marry Burton or not?"

"What difference can that make to you? You're married, aren't you?"

"Where is Burton?" he asked.

"You mean that he's here in France—at this restaurant?" He was incredulous.

"He brought mother and myself here," she replied.

"Did you know that I was here?" he inquired.

"The papers told enough about your sailing," she said bitterly. With your new bride, and—"

"I mean—did you know that I was in Biarritz?" he persisted.

"Why not? We read the Paris Herald like every one else.

"But Burton—does he know I'm here?"

"Why not?" she was amazingly cool for one so emotional a moment ago.

"And your mother?"

"Mother knows you're here," she admitted.

He stared at her. She had flushed slightly, was less the doll than she had ever been in his acquaintance with her.

"When did you sail?" he asked.

"On the very next boat after you did," she cried. "Did you think that I could stay in New York—know that every one was deriding—"

The very triumph for which he had craved; he knew now that he had achieved it. But what a pitiful, worthless, cheap thing it was! How could he ever, in no matter how mad a moment, have imagined that he would gain any satisfaction from such a bizarre revenge?

It never occurred to him to ask why, if she had fled derision, she had come to the very spot where, if it existed at all, it must be more pronounced even than in New York; to this resort where mutual friends, knowing of their broken romance, must wonder, tongue in cheeks . . .

It never occurred to him to ask any questions, for he was beyond all questioning. For with her last word she had swayed even nearer, and he only knew that she was in his arms.

"There's Always Divorce"

Twelve hours ago he had held his wife in his arms, and the passivity of her surrender had chilled and shamed him. But this girl, this girl whom he had loved, whom he had been pledged to marry, was returning his kiss.

He released her at length. Flushed, prettier in her shamed embarrassment than ever she had been as a cool, doll-like thing, she faced him.

"Well, what damned fools we've been, Helen," he said.

"You mean," she bridled, "because that's not a pretty way to thank me for a kiss."

"But why should we kiss furtively?" he cried. "You and I—oh, Helen, what a mess you made of things."

"Are you blaming me?"

He wrinkled his forehead whimsically. "Well, I didn't break our engagement. But let's not blame anyone—me, you, your mother—any one. A mistake has been made—that's all. Now we must rectify it."

"Suppose," she suggested, "that your wife doesn't want to rectify it?"

He laughed harshly. "She'll be glad to be rid of me, Helen."

"And you? What about you?" she shrewdly asked.

"What do you mean?"

"Will you be glad—to get rid of her?"

"You're the woman I love, have always loved, Helen," he replied.

"Marrying another woman is a strange way of proving love," she charged.

"Breaking an engagement was an equally strange thing to do, if you really cared," he countered. "But good Lord, my dear—let's not re-both did something we're not proud criminate now. Let's say that we of and do our best to remedy the mistake."

"Mistake? Mistakes are easily remedied—sometimes. But a marriage . . ."

"There's always divorce," he suggested.

"And your wife?"

"I tell you," he said coldly, "that she'll be glad to let me go."

"Who was she? I'd never heard of her," said Helen.

He shook his head. "That doesn't matter. The point is that you and I—oh, Helen."

He took her in his arms again, and when he released her, it was because, through the misty haze that enveloped them, he became conscious of an alien presence.

He looked straight into the eyes of Paul Weedon.

The Edisonian Goldenrod

("Thomas Edison has been conducting experiments which prove rubber may be produced from the goldenrod."—News item),

Sun illumin'ed goldenrod,
Nodding there in bright attire,
Soon you'll leave the mother sod
And become an auto tire.

Waving in the field and dell,
Golden as the sun above,
If you're not contented, well,
You can be a rubber glove.

Making bright the open field,
Brightening the hill and crag,
Beauty isn't all you yield—
You can be a water-bag.

Lovely little flower there
Swelling autumnal appeal,
Don't be sad and don't despair—
You're a future rubber heel.

Fairest of October flow'rs,
Radiant in thy golden clothes,
You've a future; count the hours
Till you are a fire hose.

Waving in the autumn's breeze,
Making bright the mellow fall,
By the springtime, if you please,
You can be a tennis ball.

Glittering in summer's wake,
You're a blooming wonder, gosh!
If you're willing you can make
Somebody a mackintosh.

Glorious and brilliant one,
Winsome, lovely, even cute—
Thanks to Mr. Edison,
You can be a rubber boot.

The Fight Fan's Plaint

Out of every dollar you pay to Uncle Sam in taxes, 72 cents goes to pay for past wars and preparedness. It's the same old story of exorbitant charges for all outdoor fights.

The "Jersey Kid," just arrested as a one-man crime wave, has his body covered with tattooed figures and inscriptions. Probably some reformer will be quick to reiterate the charge that pictures are to blame for much of the present day lawlessness.

If Thomas Edison succeeds in making rubber from goldenrods, what Elmer Twitchell wants to know is whether he can catch hay fever passing the stores.

"Four Drop Safe From Balloon Mile Up in Sky."—Headline in the Brooklyn Standard-Union.

Maybe that explains the recent vibrations.

Mr. Gene Tunney is back in America and the lecture season is now presumably open.

Shakespeare's Women Live Again in Warde's Lecture

Mrs. H. B. Patterson made a graceful introduction of Frederick Warde before his lecture at the Woman's Forum, Wednesday afternoon and the crowd in the auditorium, who heard the talented actor speak, seemed to feel with her that his lecture was one of the best offerings of the season.

The silver haired gentleman in black prince albert and gray trousers, dressed with the perfection which one would expect from an illustrious actor, made an instant impression on his audience. His deep set dark eyes, his absolute freedom from pretention, his grace of movement and almost miraculous expression added much to the talk he made on "Some Women of Shakespeare."

Beginning with his favorite, Portia, he held his audience while he told the story of the play, delineating each character perfectly but making Portia always pre-eminent. The woman of keen intellect, intelligence and possessor of all the womanly qualities - that make woman lovable to man, was shown in her historical background. A young Italian of the 16th century, heiress of enormous wealth, but with the proviso that she must marry the man who chooses one of three caskets; no choice left to her nor to the lover if he should choose wrong. He introduced her first as the imperious young woman with her maid, then the scene was transferred to her home where two eastern princes and one other suitor wait to "choose."

Mr. Warde acted as well as spoke the scene in which the eastern potentates chose the caskets of silver and gold and then showed the delight of Portia when the man whom she loved, Bassanio, chose the right one.

Again the scene was changed to the room where the duke heard the trials in Venice. The assembly saw Portia in her lawyer's robes and heard her final stern dictum that the pound of flesh must be taken without a drop of blood.

"Ladies," said Mr. Warde in closing this character talk, "I do not approve of Portia's law; when I studied law in England many years ago, my tutors always told me that when a man bought a piece of property, he was entitled to a right of way." But, he said, "Portia was the old fashioned type of woman; the type of woman whom we love as sweethearts, honor as mothers and worship as wives." The entire sketch of Portia was interspersed with an exquisite humor.

Lady Macbeth, Mr. Warde delineated as the woman who loved her husband with an overmastering love. All that she did was done for him. In the same manner he treated the pathetic Desdemona, quoting her famed lines to her father.

The last act was taken from "Romeo and Juliet" and to many of the audience, this was the most charming part of the lecture. It was given almost as an act, the balcony scenes being quoted in full.

No greater pleasure has been given on artists' programs it is reported at the forum than that afforded by the veteran actor and the forum members began at once thinking of his return next year.

At the close of the lecture, it was announced that Mrs. Clark Hood of Nocona won the $5 prize offered by Mrs. Bernard Martin for the greatest number of new members in November. Mrs. Hood immediately presented it to the forum to invest in shrubbery as needed.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Two brightfaced youngsters in the women's ward stopped us as we went out of the hospital Wednesday morning to ask us "who've you got up here?" They had the big room to themselves and seemed perfectly happy in possession.

◆ ◆ ◆

One of them was in a rolling chair; she said she had bruised her leg and they'd taken a piece of bone from it. "They may have to take another," she said with a smile.

◆ ◆ ◆

The other little girl had her foot hung in its weighted cradle, but not one bit of difference did that make in her joy in life. Her leg had been broken. She wore a little blue flannelette nightie with her monogram embroidered on the pocket; there were two owls high on the foot of her bed and Christmas was running rampant in the room.

◆ ◆ ◆

It takes so little to make children happy that it looks as if people would do all they could in this way.

◆ ◆ ◆

Take a grown woman with her leg hanging high and a weight attached and she'd have felt that she wasn't treated right if she did not receive the consideration due the seriousness of the occasion.

◆ ◆ ◆

And just figure a man who had an inch or so of bruised bone removed from his leg. He wouldn't have been inquiring about anyone else.

◆ ◆ ◆

When people have an operation, it is to them one of the most important things in life and if other people don't treat it so, they figure they haven't their rights.

◆ ◆ ◆

Men and women are peculiar beings. But they are the most interesting things on earth. That's why we read books. There couldn't be a book without man or woman.

◆ ◆ ◆

We've just been looking at the latest book review and find another book about the immortal Dr. Johnson and Boswell.

◆ ◆ ◆

We feel that we are utterly lacking in the proper literary taste, for though we have started it some half dozen times, we have never been able to go quite thorough Boswell's "Life of Johnson."

◆ ◆ ◆

And this in the face of the fact that our favorite reading is biography, history and light essays.

◆ ◆ ◆

Since we have graduated into the school of life, we admit we read purely for pleasure.

◆ ◆ ◆

Fiction counts little; life has long since proved itself a more adventurous thing than any cloth bound volume.

Floydada Breeder Is Winner Turkey Prize

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Dec. 11.—Winning two first places and placing a third in four entries at the International Livestock and Poultry show at Chicago this month is the record made by Mrs. J. D. Christian of the Blanco community, who is a breeder of Giant Goldbank bronze turkeys. As further evidence of the outstanding poultry produced in this county two other breeders placed first in shows held in this section this year.

In competition with the best turkeys shown at the international exposition the birds owned by Mrs. Christian won first place on a yearling tom, first place on a hen and a pullet entered by Mrs. Christian placed well among all the entries. She received a wire from authorities at the show congratulating her upon the wonderful showing made by her birds.

Al though this is the first time that she has ever made an entry at Chicago, Mrs. Christian is well known over the Panhandle as a result of her various winnings at the Tri-State Poultry show at Amarillo, the South Plains show at Slaton, the Panhandle-Plains show at Lubbock and the Floyd County show. Since she has entered the breeding business this farm lady has had a greater demand for breeding stock than she could furnish and has become recognized as the outstanding breeder of Giant Goldbank bronze turkeys.

Two Firms Make Handsome Gifts To Woman's Forum

At a short business meeting preceding the lecture of Frederick Warde Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. C. P. Burton presided while two handsome gifts were presented to the Woman's Forum.

Ralph L. de Shong of Saul's store was introduced and said that Saul's store had wished to express its appreciation of the worth of the work done by the forum ladies for a long time, and talking to Mrs. Ben G. Oneal many months ago, he told her that they would like to do this in some tangible way; not to get the business of the forum personnel, but as an evidence of the regard in which the organization was held. Several months ago, Mrs. Oneal told him of the various needs of the club and when he went to New York, he was able to buy what they considered a worthwhile gift—linen enough to supply the needs for all the tables.

Mrs. Oneal, called on to respond for the forum, showed a sample of the heavy linen and large napkins. Mr. De Shong and Saul's store made a gift of 77 yards of linen and 200 napkins, and the long and heavy applause showed how much the members of the forum appreciated it.

Picture Presented

Mrs. C. P. Burton, presented formally in the name of another friend of the forum, the Yunt Art gallery of Kansas City, the lovely painting that hangs on the north wall of the forum dining room. This picture has been a mystery to many club members. Knowing it was not part of an exhibit, they have asked many questions concerning it. Sam Yunt, who has given many exhibitions of art in the forum clubhouse, gave the splendid oil, valued at $700, as an expression of his feeling toward the members of the forum.

Mrs. A. G. Holmes, chairman of the ways and means committee, announced that more than $1,000 was turned into the forum treasury from the Spanish fiesta.

TELL FOLKS how easy it is to LOSE FAT

Everybody knows how excess fat has disappeared in late years. Men and women in every circle prove that figures need not stay abnormal. Youth and beauty, health and vitality can come back.

All must realize that, in late years, some new factor is employed. Fewer people now rely on abnormal exercise or diet. Modern science has proved that most fat people suffer from an under-active gland. Physicians now, in treating obesity, seek to correct that deficiency.

The chief factors are embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, prepared by a famous laboratory. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Now in every circle there are slender people who can tell you what they do.

The method is scientific and well known. Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for the good results. No starvation, though moderation helps. The purpose is to help out an under-active gland, which should turn food into fuel and energy.

Go test this well-tried method. In a little while results will tell you what Marmola means to you. If you see the excess fat go and new vitality return, go on until the change is completed. Then, in fairness to your friends, tell them, as users have done for so long. Start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

Reader's Club Entertains With Christmas Party

Members of the Reader's club had a delightful Christmas party Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Porter Oakes, on Hayes street, with Mesdames Ben Bell, W. F. Pagan and J. S. Crumpler, associate hostesses. As the ladies entered, the background showed a beautifully decorated Christmas tree mounted on an improvised stage.

Mrs. Pagan made a lovely introductory talk, telling of the custom the readers had of each year celebrating Christmas in this form, and after greeting the guests, she turned the meeting over to Mrs. J. S. Crumpler, who had charge of the program.

Miss Katherine Sue Ralston of Iowa Park gave three Christmas carols with Miss Jewel Thompson at the piano. Her songs emphasized the Christmas spirit and the reading of the afternoon, given by Mrs. Charles Reid, "The Littlest Orphan and the Christ Child," lovely in story and in interpretation. The program was concluded with "Christmas Trouble," read by Vollie Jean Cain and enjoyed by all.

In the clever Christmas contests, Miss Marguerite Fisher and Mrs. A. D. Duck won the prizes.

The distribution of presents from the lovely tree in the back room followed the game. Each member brought a beautiful gift for a member and guest and these were given so that each person present carried away a lovely Christmas memento.

Refreshments were in the Christmas motif; the red and green mints and the lighted red and green candles on the little English plum puddings made a colorful scene.

Members present were Mesdames J. S. Crumpler, A. D. Duck, J. T. Harrell, Homer Karrenbrock, Harry Myers, Porter Oakes, W. F. Pagan, Charles Reid, John Rhea, Claude Ruffner, J. A. Shipley, John Thomas, J. G. Oakley, Ben Bell, Misses Marguerite Fisher, Dorothy Nolen and Katherine Sue Ralston; guests were Miss Jewel Thompson of Iowa Park, Miss Vollie Jean Cain, Mesdames Fletcher Pope of McKinney, J. W. Akin Jr., C. C. Myers, E. C. deMontel, R. B. Kerbow, Q. B. Lee, C. A. Spragins, W. J. Nolen and George Myers of Jolly.

Big League Schedules

This is the day of concentrated action in sport—of speeding up the show—of swinging from one competition to another where the changing variety catches the fancy of the multitude. There was a day when big league baseball could take over the main interest in sport around March 1 and hold it to the middle of October. But that day is over. Baseball can still hold a certain general interest through the spring training season and it catches on with a rush when the pennant races start. But this interest in most of the cities begins to fade out by late July or early August. By Sept. 1 only the few teams left in the race can attract any crowds. General interest by that time is divided into a number of sections. September has come to be one of the great sporting months of the year, carrying the amateur golf championship, the national tennis championship, a championship fight and the start of football. At that spot baseball, having started five months or more before, has begun to drag. It doesn't help the game when paid admissions fall off to 200 or 300 in one big city after another.

It is for these reasons that baseball action should be speeded up and the simplest way is by shortening the playing season and thereby crowding in more action.

Baseball can't loaf along down the stretch as it did last September and compete with contests that are hitting on top speed. Big league baseball, starting late in February with the training season, should end late in September. That is time enough in the modern whirl to put on any show. Action has to be faster and more compact to find its place in the present sporting structure.

Horween and Harvard

Arnold Horween turned out a smart, high powered Harvard football team for the stretch this season and it was only natural that Harvard would want him back. Horween is not only a good football coach but he has just reached the stage where he can begin to put his experience into practice, where he can begin to check on what he has learned. It takes about five years for a football coach to get a grip on the situation and build a foundation upon which he can stand. All too frequently good coaching material is let out just at the point where it is ready to be of use.

The head coach of a football team has one of the most complicated jobs in sport. He has more to teach in a shorter space of time than any other director from any other game. The fundamentals have been increased and the general complications of play have been more than doubled.

The good coach is bound to build his foundation on fundamentals above everything else. From this point he can work his way forward. But modern fundamentals take far more time than the old game required. The forward and the lateral pass have increased the burden. There is now less time for any one special line of duty, since there are so many duties to be faced.

The wonder is that so many coaches and teams do as well with all the handicaps they face.

Horween has the knack of making his squad like football. He has increased general interest in football enormously at Harvard. He doesn't believe in any driving, high pressure systems, but goes at things with more serenity than many coaches show. He has tried as far as possible to keep football a game, and not a substitute for war. He should be more useful to Harvard next season than he has ever been before, with needed experience to help him along.

Time, the Teacher

Walter J. Travis used to say about golf that it took five years to learn the correct way of swinging and then five more to forget it. He meant by this that it took the last five years to make the swing instinctive, to place it beyond the thought of effort, where it would work automatically.

Bob Zuppke of Illinois said recently that it took at least five years for a football coach to get started. In those first five years he was just beginning to learn. "And most of them," says Dr. Zuppke, "are still learning new things after 15 or 20 or 25 years."

This is all true. Time is the greatest of all instructors for those willing to work and study and call on past experience for future guidance.

At the end of his first four years at Harvard as head coach, Percy Haughton had yet to see his first touchdown scored against Yale. Scoreless ties and field goals were the features through that period. By 1912 he was ready to cash in on his experience and then things began to happen. In the next four years his Harvard teams ran up 112 points against Yale without a Blue touchdown scored against them.

The greatest inventor in the world will be the one who can work out a short cut to something really worth while.

Baylor and A. & M. Are Still at Odds

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—The meeting of the Southwest conference here Monday failed to effect a reconciliation between the Baylor university and Texas A. & M. college athletic departments. The two schools will not meet in any sport for at least another year.

Since all of the students who were attending the two institutions at the time of the rupture have graduated, it had been hoped the breach would be closed. There is a possibility the Bears and Aggies will resume relations in 1931.

CHANGE TO BE MADE ON JAN. 1

Spudder Headquarters To Move Also

According to announcements here Wednesday by J. Alvin Gardner, newly elected president of the Texas league the offices of the league president and retinue will be removed about Jan. 1 from Dallas to Wichita Falls. The new offices will be situated on the sixth floor of the Harvey-Snider building and occupy the offices now taken by the Wichita Falls Spudders baseball club.

Surprise to Fans

The announcement came somewhat as a surprise to fans in general but it had been tacitly known for some time by those in close harmony with Mr. Gardner. The headquarters of the Texas league president has been in Dallas for years and few had thought of the possibility of the office being anywhere else. Mr. Gardner, however, said there is no good reason why the official business of the league cannot be carried on as well in Wichita Falls as in Dallas, and thus he is making the change.

Spudders Will Move

The occupation of the now Spudder club offices by the league will necessitate a change for the baseball club. William E. Huff, club owner, has not definitely decided upon the site of his new offices.

The two weeks will be spent by Mr. Gardner in his baseball work clearing up and straightening out office details in preparation for the moving of the league headquarters. At this time a vast amount of business transaction and correspondence is before the new president and he will be fully occupied in getting the affairs of his ship of state in order for the opening of the season April 9.

All-Southwest Conference Players

How Consensus of Opinion Rates Them

By D. P. BOLTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 11.—Football fans with a statistical bent may find something for the hot stove league in the following "all star" compilation.

This is the all-Southwest conference team which eight sports writers in the circuit, were they rolled into one, would select. It is notable in the unanimity of opinion on most positions, revealing, among other things, that Schoonover of Arkansas and Hammon of Southern Methodist university were equally popular, each getting the unanimous vote of every contributor, and that Leland of Texas Christian university and Grubbs of T. C. U. were considered the next best in the Southwest, with seven votes even.

Opinion on Fullback

If a weakness is revealed it is in the position of fullback. Because there was such a large difference of opinion on this position, the present writer chose the method adopted by several of the sports writers from whose selections this compilation was made and did not distihguish between halfbacks and fullbacks, ranking the three highest backs as the ball toters for the team.

The position of guard also occasioned some differences of opinion. Every other player on this particular team was chosen by a majority vote.

Sports writers who helped select this sports writers all-Southwest-Conference all-star team are: Jinx Tucker, Waco News-Tribune; Ned C. Record, Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Flem G. Hall, Fort Worth Record-Telegram; Fred Mosebach, San Antonio Express; Victor Emanuel, Galveston News; Lloyd Gregory, Houston Post-Dispatch; George White, Dallas Morning News, and Gayle Talbot Jr., Associated Press sports writer, Dallas.

Trojan-Panther Bout in Rose Bowl

The Pitt Panther Is Popular Fellow

By L. S. CAMERON
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Selection of Pittsburgh to meet Southern California in the tournament of roses football game at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's day has won much favor among football fans and experts of this area today.

Although rather few gridiron enthusiasts of the extreme East have seen Pitt in action, the Panther is a popular fellow and so are his star players—among them, Ray Montgomery, guard; Joe Donchess, end; Pug Parkinson, fullback, and Octavious Uansa, better known as Toby, who were all-America choices on the United States teams.

A battle-within-a-battle, one of the greatest of the season, may occur at one of the ends in the Trojan-Panther contest. Donchess will be opposed by Francis Tappaan, another all-America end choice.

Among the other topline U. S. C. players are Moses, a great climax-running fullback, and Saunders, one of the best quarterbacks in college football today.

Pittsburgh's unbeaten and untied team has a much better record than that of its rival. Pitt has played nine games, facing several formidable foes and, save one, taking all by lop-sided scores.

Nebraska held Pitt to 12-7. Pitt ran wild against a strong Ohio State team, crushed Carnegie Tech, Penn State and W. & J., and won the other games with ease and whole lots of points.

U. S. C scored notable victories over Stanford, Oregon State, Washington, Idaho and Washington State, while dropping two games Notre Dame took one of them, 13-12, while California surprised everybody else, if not themselves, by turning in a 15-7 triumph.

The Trojans have a record of 400 total points, 40 per game, and Pitt has 277 points, almost 31 per game. Against Pitt, 43 points were scored, an average of 4.67, while the U. S. C. rivals averaged 4.2.

Aggies to Face Three Championship Football Elevens in 1930 Schedule

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Dec. 11.—Games with the champions of three major athletic conferences feature the gridiron program of Coach Matty Bell's Texas Aggies in 1930, according to the schedule announced by James Sullivan, business manager of athletics at the A. & M. college of Texas. The schedule announced by Mr. Sullivan includes nine games, five of them with members of the Southwest conference and four of them inter-conference clashes.

Heading the list of intersectional tilts, as well as the list of games with champions of 1929, is the clash with the Nebraska Cornhusker charges of Coach Dana X. Bible, former Aggie mentor who resigned last year to take up the reins as head coach at the University of Nebraska. The Cornhuskers this year won the championship of the Big Six conference for the second consecutive year. The game will be played at Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 4 and will be the second contest of the season for Coach Bell's charges.

Frogs and Greenies Slated

The other two championship teams the Aggies will play are the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian university, winners of the Southwest title this year, and the Tulane Greenies, undefeated and untied victors in the Southern conference. The Horned Frogs will come to College Station Oct. 18, and the Aggies will meet the Greenies in Dallas, Oct. 11. Other non-conference games to be played by the Aggies will be with Southwestern university of the Texas conference at College Station, Sept. 27, when the Aggies will open their 1930 season, and the Centenary Gentlemen of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletics association, at College Station, Nov. 1.

Open With T. C. U.

The Aggies will open their conference schedule with the T. C. U. Horned Frogs, Oct. 18, and close it with the Texas Longhorns at Austin Thanksgiving day. In the intervening time, the Bellmen will meet the Arkansas Razorbacks, Rice Owls and Southern Methodist Mustangs in a series of conference games broken only once, that Nov. 1 by the tilt with Centenary.

Foreign Games

Five of the Aggies' nine grid battles will be fought on foreign fields, the Tulane and S. M. U. games at Dallas, the Nebraska contest at Lincoln, the clash with Arkansas at Fayetteville, Ark., and the Longhorn classic at Austin. The other four games will be played within the new concrete Kyle field stadium at College Station.

Following is the schedule announced by Mr. Sullivan: Sept. 27, Southwestern university at College Station; Oct. 4, University of Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb.; Oct. 11, Tulane at Dallas; Oct. 18, Texas Christian at College Station; Oct. 26, University of Arkansas at Fayetteville; Nov. 1, Centenary at College Station; Nov. 8, Southern Methodist at Dallas; Nov. 15, Rice Institute at Colege Station; Nov. 28, University of Texas at Austin.

Daniel Baker Will Still Continue in the T. I. A. A.

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—Daniel Baker college of Brownwood will continue as a member of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association next year, despite the fact that the Texas Presbyterian church has withdrawn its support from the institution and merged its resources at Austin college, Sherman, officials of the T. I. A. A. announced at their meeting here.

Daniel Baker is an endowed institution and was not entirely dependent upon the church for support, the officials explained.

Cards and Phillies Make Transfers

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Sixteen major leagues were represented in the annual baseball meetings closing here today but only four contributed to the news of the day and these outside the council chambers. The St. Louis and Philadelphia clubs of both leagues completed transfers of players which will send four athletes back to their former baseball allegiance.

Cards Trade Alexander

The St. Louis Cardinals traded Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher and world series hero, to the Phillies, with Harry McCurdy, former White Sox catcher, for Homer Peel, outfielder, former Houston Buff, and Bob McGraw, pitcher.

Alexander the Great, entered the major league with the Phillies.

The St. Louis Browns followed with a trade by which Wally Schang, hard-hitting catcher, will go to the Philadelphia Athletics, with Sammy Hale, a West Texas boy infielder, moving to St. Louis in exchange.

Long Absence

Alexander rejoins the Phillies after an absence of 12 years during which he pitched for the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals. Schang becomes a Mackman again after the same term of exile from Philadelphia. He started his major league career in 1913 under the colors of Connie Mack and since 1917 has caught for the Red Sox, Yankees and Browns.

Homer Peel, who went to the Phillies from the Cardinals in the trade sending Jimmy Wilson to St. Louis, now returns to the Breadon, Rickey & Co., system. Bob McGraw, the other player involved, was also a Cardinal at one time.

Catchers Galore

The Phillies, whose catching staff was reduced to a minimum by the death of Walter Lerian, now are well stocked with receivers, for in addition to getting the services of the capable McCurdy, the release of Al. Cooper, a tall, hard-hitting catcher, was procured by purchase from Birmingham.

There was little of public interest accomplished in the league meetings. President E. S. Barnard said the American league devoted itself to a discussion of "internal" questions the only notable action by the National league, according to President J. A. Heydler, was a decision to ask the manufacturers of the official baseballs if they can turn out a ball with the gloss removed. Under the rule now in force in the National league, the umpires discolor the balls before giving them to the pitchers, in order that they may get a better grip.

Junction Is Ruled Out of Grid Play

AUSTIN, Dec. 11. (AP)—The state interscholastic league bureau today ruled Junction out of the inter-district football playoff on account of having played an ineligible man and ordered Granger to take Junction's place in a game with Schulenburg to determine the class B championship of districts 12, 15, 18, and 22.

Granger was defeated by Junction in the first inter-district clash. Granger protested the playing of Captain Gay Munn of Junction, state interscholastic league officials today held that he was over age and ordered the Granger-Junction game forfeited to Granger. The hearing was held promptly at the request of the Junction superintendent who wanted the matter cleared up before his team played again.

Granger and Schulenburg representatives met at Luling to make arrangements for the game. Roy B. Henderson, athletic director of the interscholastic league, said he did not know what the effect of the ruling would be on the race in district 12 of which Junction was a member. He said he thought Junction would still be the champion inasmuch as a district hearing on the question had been held and Munn found eligible.

Mustangs to Study Micks by Pictures

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—The Notre Dame eleven, tricky as it is, will have few secrets from Southern Methodist university when the two teams clash Oct. 4 at South Bend.

Coach Ray Morrison of the Mustangs has arranged to obtain a set of motion pictures of the Micks in action during the past season so he and his players may study Knute Rockne's trickery at their leisure.

By running the reel very slowly and backing it up frequently to get the details of intricate plays and formations, the Ponies will learn exactly how the Irish affect their magic.

While northern and eastern coaches have used the movie in this way for several years, the idea is said to be new in this section.

The Great Shires

"The Great" Shires, mighty slugging Chicago White Sox firstbaseman added another magnificent reason for his fame and renown when he won his first professional boxing match by knocking out Dan Daly in just 11 seconds of fighting Monday night in Chicago. Shires is undoubtedly another man-killer in the making and bids fair to ascend the now vacant heavyweight throne.

Iowa Arranges Four Year Contract With Neb. Team

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 11. (UP)—A four-year contract to play football with the University of Iowa, now out of the Big Ten, has been arranged with the University of Nebraska, Herb Gish, athletic director of Nebraska, announced this afternoon.

The first game will be at Iowa City Nov. 22, Gish announced, and the other three games will be played on Thanksgiving days.

Games also will be scheduled in baseball and basket ball, he said.

SEMI-FINALS ATTRACT MANY

Breck and Port Arthur Are Favorites

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—Preparations are being made at Breckenridge and Port Arthur to accommodate the largest football crowds in the history of those cities for the two semi-final games in the state high school race Saturday.

Twelve thousand are expected to witness the Breckenridge-Waco tilt in the oil city. Construction is being rushed on 2,000 extra seats, and it still is doubtful that all who want to see the schoolboy classic can be accommodated. Demands for ticket reservations are pouring in from every part of the state.

Workmen are putting Franklin field at Port Arthur in shape for the bout with Denton. Several sections of bleacher seats which fell while heavily laden during a district game several weeks ago have been rebuilt and reinforced.

Reports indicate that Breckenridge and Port Arthur remain firm favorites to win this week and face each other in the finals on the following Saturday. Both tilts promise to be closely fought, however, and there is the possibility of another such upset as last week, when Port Arthur toppled a supposedly superior Brownsville eleven.

With the exception of Breckenridge, all of the semi-finalists are in top condition for the week's warfare. G. Cary, right end of the Buckaroos, was injured in last week's game against Amarillo and is not expected to start against Waco.

Breckenridge not only has won every game this year, but has never been behind for a moment in any of its 10 tilts.

Western Conference Will Inquire Into Athletics

CHICAGO, Dec. 11. (UP)—In response to a query from the United Press, Major John L. Griffith athletic commissioner of the Western conference, this afternoon invited "everyone who is willing to help the Western conference to live up to its rules to report the names of any individuals, be they connected with a conference institution or not, who in any way have been responsible for subsidizing a conference athlete."

Griffith's statement followed whisperings which resulted from Iowa's ouster by the Big Ten. These whisperings have hinted that other schools had been guilty of subsidizing athletes.

The Cure of Deafness
(Third Article of Series)

Besides its use for hearing, the ear is also a direction guide. The ear canals serve as a kind of compass. They are made in the form of tubes so arranged that they report on any conceivable position that the body may be tilted in. The tubes are filled with a fluid which contains a very fine gravel. When the body is turned very rapidly so that the fluid is put into motion, one may receive mistaken reports and you undoubtedly have noticed that after you are whirled until you are dizzy and open your eyes, the world will seem to be revolving around you in the opposite direction.

It is on account of their exceedingly sensitive ear canals that carrier pigeons can find their way for long distances, but should one ear canal be temporarily blocked off the pigeon can no longer fly in a straight line but will fly in circles.

The ear also registers to some extent the internal pressure, and in high blood pressure it is very likely to report the fact to you by buzzing or ringing. The popular idea that anyone who is deaf has only to go up in an aeroplane and take a nose dive to have the hearing restored is not a sound one, although it has worked in a few cases, usually temporarily, when the eustachian tube was blocked.

It is said that Thomas Edison prefers to be deaf, as doctors have told him that an operation would likely restore his hearing. He would rather the distracting sounds of the world be blocked from his attention, thus leaving his mind free from distracting sounds so it can do its best and most efficient thinking. Although he hears to a limited extent, and enjoys popular music, it is true that the man who gave to the world one of the most popular musical instruments, the phonograph, cannot, himself, hear the records in their full volume.

The catarrhal inflammation of the middle ear which is the most common cause of deafness can be readily cured in its early stages, but if it continues for a long time, a condition of hardening of the tissues results known as otosclerosis, which can only with difficulty be corrected. Often one short fast is all that is needed for a cure at the beginning of catarrhal deafness, but after the condition has existed for years, it may be necessary to use short fasts about a month apart for at least a year. In addition to the fasting regime, severe cases of catarrhal deafness may require treatments to drain the lymph glands below the ear and to clear out the eustachian tubes. Sometimes pneumatic vibration of the ear drum is helpful in restoring the elasticity of the tissues and of course, if there is ear-wax this should be syringed out.

Manipulative treatment of the neck seems to be of especial benefit in many cases of deafness which would not otherwise respond, and I would advise every one who is troubled with deafness to try these methods before giving up hope of having the hearing restored.

After the catarrhal deafness has been overcome it must be remembered that there still exists for a time a tendency toward a return of the trouble, and for this reason the sugars and starches should be avoided in the after-diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sleeps With Eyes Open

Question—A. G. asks: "What causes a young man to sleep with his eyes open? He is in good health, possibly a little under weight."

Answer—I suppose you mean that the young man sleeps with his eyes partially open. This is considered due to enervation, and I am sure the young man cannot be in perfect health. There must be some weakness or lack of muscular control.

Iron Tonic

Question—R. S. writes: "Please advise if iron as a tonic is really injurious to the teeth, and if so, kindly advise what way same is best prepared to take."

Answer—There can be no question but that any iron tonic, at least when taken by mouth, is injurious to the teeth. The results from the use of all iron remedies are always more or less of a delusion as the temporary effect cannot make up for the bad after effects of the use of iron or any other metals as medicine. The only iron needed in the body is that secured from such vegetables as spinach and celery which contain iron in an organic form, the only way and is stored for assimilation and ready to be taken up by the blood.

Tubercular Spleen

Question—Constant Reader asks: "Is there such a thing as a tubercular spleen, and if so, what would be the symptoms?"

Answer—Tuberculosis of the spleen is a very serious disorder. Some of the symptoms are the same as in tuberculosis of the lungs as, for instance, the hectic fever, increasing emaciation and night sweats. Anemia is usually more pronounced than in tuberculosis of any other part of the body.

TURKEY PRICES DOWN 2 CENTS

Buying for Christmas Shipment Ends

With the Christmas crop of turkeys almost entirely in on Wednesday night, according to local dealers, prices on this product took a 2-cent drop at the close of the day's buying. Thursday morning No. 1 young toms are listed at 18c, and young hens at 15c.

Deliveries to local packing plants Wednesday were unusually light, it was said, many loads being brought from different growers all over this territory, but consisting of very few birds. Wichita Falls' contribution to the 1929 production of turkeys will amount to approximately 30 carloads, excluding stock brought in from nearby towns. Altogether, a total of about 60 carloads was handled here for the Thanksgiving and Christmas markets in the East. In addition to this production, much was retained for consumption in this district.

Cotton ginning continued to be more than a small factor in the county's business Wednesday, with all 12 gins in the county turning in reports, which totalled 129 bales for the day. The season's total now stands at 21,296 bales.

PRORATE PLAN WORKS WELL

Collins' Report Shows Pools Held Down

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 11.—Outstanding feature of the report of Ray M. Collins, state umpire, on how proration worked in November, was the fact that the pools which were prorated 20 per cent, in many instances took an extra proration, totalling in many areas as much as 25 per cent.

The 13 pools of the greater Seminole field which had a potential output of 313,277 barrels a day, actually produced 248,289 barrels a day. Their 30 days allowed production was estimated at 7,536,432 barrels, and they actually produced but 7,336,663 barrels.

How this was effected is shown in the following summary:

Sluggish Refinery Market Reported

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 11.—The mid-continent refinery market is sluggish, inquiry shows. While refiners report U. S. motor grade that meets specifications steady at 7 cents a gallon in tank car lots, one is able to find off specification motor fuel as low as 6⅜ to 6½ cents a gallon. Natural gasolines are saggy, due to lack of buying on the part of major refineries and cooler weather. The A grade material is held at 6¼ to 6⅜ cents, and B at 6 cents.

Kerosene is very soft, with little buying. Furnace oil is easy, and fuel oils are firm, especially low gravities. The railroads are reported in the market for 1930 supplies, on a basis of 85 cents a barrel, based on 60 per cent of the advance or decline of 36 gravity crude.

Other products are steady to firm.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—Cotton was quiet today with prices generally lower under small offerings which appeared to be promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, poor trade reports from Manchester and reports of rather freer offerings in the South. January contracts after selling off to 17.16 early rallied to 17.23 but declined to 17.14 in the late trading and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 to 5 points in response to the relatively easy Liverpool cables. Overnight buying orders and a little trade buying steadied prices slightly after the call, but bulges met increased offerings, and the early fluctuations were irregular.

December just about recovered its opening loss selling up to 17.16 while March advanced to 17.54 and May to 17.78 before the end of the morning, which carried prices up to about yesterday's closing quotations. The demand then tapered off, however, and the market reached the lowest levels of the day in the late trading under liquidation which appeared to be coupled with some local and southern selling. December declined to 17.08, March to 17.43 and May to 17.68, and closing prices were at the lowest.

According to advices from London cotton spinners in Manchester have decided to hold a meeting early next week to consider the state of trade, and there may be a ballot on the question of shortening working hours or an extended holiday stopping.

Liverpool cables said that some continental buying and covering had been supplied by realizing and hedging in that market. These advices reported a fair cloth inquiry from India, but said the demand from China was easily satisfied and that yarns were freely offered. Houses with continental connections were credited with buying a little cotton here during the early trading. Southern selling was light but said to be slightly more active than yesterday.

Exports today 19,963 bales, making 2,663,667 so far this season. Port receipts 40,861. U. S. port stocks 2,620,267.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 11. (AP)—There was little desire to trade in cotton today and as a result prices fluctuated mildly. An early decline was followed by a moderate advance but the improvement lacked support and new lows were made in late trading. January contracts, which had recovered from 17.12 to 17.20, eased and closed at 17.10, or 7 points net lower. The general market closed steady at net decline of 4 to 9 points.

With Liverpool cables 4 to 6 points lower than due the local market opened easy. First trades showed losses of 4 to 5 points. March 17.38 and May to 17.64, or 6 to 8 points below yesterday's close.

Later the market encountered trade buying and covering by shorts and under pressure of the demand active positions rallied moderately. March moved up to 17.48 and May 17.72, or 8 to 10 points above the lows.

In the early afternoon the market lacked sustaining support and prices gradually eased to new lows for the day. Possibility of mill curtailment in Manchester added to the decline which carried March off to 17.37 and May to 17.62, or 10 to 11 points under the highs. Final prices were at or near the lowest.

Receipts 41,155; for week 204,614; for year 6,167,622; last year 6,438,084. Exports 19,863; for week 117,830; for year 3,572,783; last year 3,967,598. Stock 2,662,195; last year 2,458,287. Stock on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 159,293; last year 178,846. Spot sales 30,769; last year 34,317.

Further Declines Registered In Another Irregular Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (US)—Further decline was registered in another irregular session on the stock exchange, today. Continued professional selling influenced some liquidation but the banking powers appeared to have the market well in hand and a fairly good undertone was evidenced throughout. Steel finished with loss of 4¼, while Radio dropped 1, American & Foreign Power 3, Anaconda 3, General Electric 7⅜, New York Central 2½, Westinghouse 6, Vanadium 2⅝, American Telephone 3½, Canadian Pacific 1⅝, Johns Manville 3 and Western Union 7. Public Service gained a point, while Shattuck jumped 2¾ and a few other specialties finished higher as a result of special influences. Oils were fractionally lower on the average. Trading remained under the 4,000,000 share level. Call money remained at 4½ per cent throughout.

Another loan report today. It is of no importance but traders and brokers continue to talk of it. From all indications a small increase in borrowings should be shown. Even if it were quite large however, it would not influence the market of itself. In fact if a large increase were shown it could be construed bullishly as indicating revival of confidence on the part of the public. There can be no doubt that the administration and Wall street leaders are working together to build up cheerfulness. Their primary motive undoubtedly is to keep Christmas trade up to the levels of previous years. Increase in brokers' loans, showing better feeling on the part of the public generally might be looked upon as the first evidence of the success of such campaign.

Steel continues the main subject for activity by those bears trying to depress the list. However insiders stick to their story that a split up of the stock may be recommended at any time. One leading firm has prepared analysis showing the position of Steel after such splitups as rumored. Assuming a four for one split up, which is most generally expected, estimated earnings this year would equal $4.75 a share. Dividend of $2.50 annually this year would mean a yield of 5.51 per cent and $2 dividend a 4.41 per cent return on the basis of present market. Return on a two for one split up would be the same providing dividend declared on new stock was $5 or $4 annually respectively.

Westinghouse increased its dividend to a $5 annual rate, as expected, and Otis Elevator split up its stock on a four for one basis as forecast here. The next important recapitalization may come from Western Union as large holders are said to favor a five for one split up of that stock. Some attention was turned to the Rails coincident with report that the first ruling of the commerce commission will be that on the Northern Pacific-Greater Northern merger plans. After that the tentative plans for merging other systems will be proposed by the commission, it is declared. There was further talk of promising dividend prospects of St. Paul preferred as revenue was said to be holding up to the improved level established in previous months.

There was rumor in circulation that American Telephone organization had to order 100,000,000 pounds of copper in the near future. Together with other consumers, it was stated, the company has been buying just as little of the metal as possible and now must come into the market for larger amounts if early 1930 requirements are to be taken care of. Inquiry in the trade found no direct confirmation of the rumor although it was maintained that the Telephone & Telegraph Company would buy much more than the amount rumored during the next several months. Inquiries from other consumers, it was stated indicated they were weakening in their "buying strike." In the meantime copper export sales are increasing.

TEXAS CASH PRICES

FORT WORTH, Dec. 11. (AP)—Wheat on the cash grain market today reflected heavy losses in contract values with a decline of about 2c. Milo on the other hand was 5c higher on increased and very active demand. Corn was 1c off.

Exporters were reported working some wheat for export and were bidding $1.38½ for No. 1 ordinary export wheat delivered gulf ports.

Bids and offers ranged as follows, basis carlots, freight paid, to Texas common points:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard milling $1.29@1.30; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein $1.31@1.32; 14 per cent $1.35@1.36; 15 per cent $1.39@1.40; 16 per cent $1.43@1.44.

Corn—No. 2 mixed $1.03@1.04; No. 2 white $1.06@1.07; No. 2 yellow $1.05@1.06.

Oats—No. 2 red oats 58½@59½c; No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 54¾@55c.

Barley—Nominally 77@78c; with fair demand.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo in active demand per hundred pounds $1.63@1.65; kaffir $1.35@1.36.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 11. (AP)—Wheat broke today to as much as 12½c a bushel under prices that were obtainable just one week ago. Collapsing of values today was simultaneous with indications that for at least the time being the bottom had fallen out of European demand for wheat from America. Holders of wheat future deliveries here were reported to be letting go. Numerous standing orders to sell out and stop losses at various set limits were forced into operation by successive tumbles in price.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at somewhat above the day's bottom level but 2⅛c to 2⅝c below yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼@⅜c to ⅜c off, oats ⅜c to 1c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

An outstanding feature in Chicago was that houses with eastern connections were persistent sellers all day.

Corn and oats declined owing to sympathy with wheat weakness. On the other hand, corn belt weather conditions were unfavorable for any heavy movement of new corn.

Provisions tended downward with grain despite steadiness of hog values.

DEPORTED MAN SEEKS PRISON

Carlos Espinoza Lends Every Aid to 'Captors'

LAREDO, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—Preferring the Webb county jail to native Mexico, to which he was deported after adjournment of the recent session of the United States court for the southern district of Texas in Laredo on a charge of illegally entering the United States, Carlos Espinoza, 30, is again in the Webb county jail.

Two members of the border patrol stationed at Laredo just had reached a point on the Rio Grande frontier about three miles south of Laredo a few days ago when they were surprised by a man walking from the chaparral nearby and accosting them.

"Here I am again," said the man. "My name is Carlos Espinoza."

"What is your destination?" asked one of the patrolmen in Spanish.

"The Webb county jail," replied the man in his native tongue. "I would rather be there than in Mexico out of work."

"But you were deported by order of the federal court," interposed one of the border patrolmen, "and warned that if you ever came back to the United States you would be sent to the federal penitentiary."

"When do I go to that federal penitentiary?" inquired Espinoza.

"Not until federal court meets again," was the reply, "and until then you will be a prisoner in the Webb county jail."

"That's where I want to go right now," announced the prisoner.

And never before were there two border patrolmen more surprised at the willingness and assistance given them by a prisoner.

And when he reached there he said to the patrolmen: "I waited several hours for you fellows to show up and then when you came I knew that I would be taken back to the Webb county jail. It's a fine place."

Clay County Man Granted Furlough

AUSTIN, Dec. 11. (AP)—General Phillips, negro, serving 99 years in the penitentiary from Hays county for criminal assault, was granted a conditional pardon by Governor Moody today. Clemency was extended on recommendation of the board of pardons and paroles after the injured party had filed an affidavit asserting she had sworn falsely and that Phillips was innocent.

Furloughs were issued to Edward Ottman, convicted in Clay county for violation of the prohibition law, and Dike Kelley, Milam county, serving two years for burglary. Ottman was allowed 15 days to assist the officers of Clay county in "apprehending other law violators," Governor Moody said. Kelley was given a respite to visit his wife.

COURT GRANTS INJUNCTION AGAINST GIN IN SEED SQUABBLE

GROWER ASKS JUDGE'S AID

"Half and Half" Seed From Georgia Involved

Judge P. A. Martin and the attorneys in the case were making legal history Wednesday afternoon when the magistrate signed an injunction against the Bourland Gin company at Vernon, said to be the first order of its kind ever entered in the history of Texas jurisprudence.

The injunction as signed by Judge Martin specifically forbids the gin company to "convert to its own use" a quantity of "half and half" cotton seed claimed by Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Summerour of Norcross, Ga., and forbids the company to deny access to the gin and to the seed to the alleged owners.

Leslie Humphrey, who filed the petition, explained that the plaintiffs were taking the legal action in an effort to protect the purity of their "half and half" cotton seed, bred in Georgia over a long period of years, and sold only under special contract.

The papers filed by the Georgia Summerours, who described themselves as "dealers, breeders, and sellers" of cotton seed, declare that the half and half seed, meaning that the lint in the product equals the seed, has been carefully developed and protected, and is sold only on condition that the seed produced remains the property of the breeders and is ginned under conditions outlined by themselves.

The plaintiffs allege that 276,000 pounds of the seed went to the Bourland company this year, but that the company managers have recently failed to account for 1,264 pounds and that they are, moreover, ginning an inferior grade of cotton and thereby endangering the especial purity of the half and half seed.

The breeders ask $5,000 damages, access to their seed, and a price of $50 a ton on the seed unaccounted for.

Both Judge Martin and Mr. Humphrey said the case was without precedent in the annals of the law.

Prisoners Have "At Home" For Wichita Officers

Sheriff W. G. Bralley Wednesday afternoon inaugurated a new custom in the management of the county jail when he introduced every prisoner to a group that included the majority of city, county and precinct peace officers and several county officials.

The "show off" began with the preparation of a prisoner's roll, in which every man was listed with the offense charged against him and his former prison record. Later the official group, numbering at least 20 men, and including Chief of Police Frank Burns and several city policemen, visited the separate "tanks" at the jail and took a good look at each individual prisoner, at the same time listening to his legal history.

Sanction for Railroad Valuations Proposed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP)—Predicting attempts by railroads to increase their valuations and ultimately their freight rates, Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, today introduced a resolution proposing that congress sanction the valuation methods of the Interstate Commerce commission which were nullified by the supreme court in the famous O'Fallon decision.

Abilene R. R. Man Feels Fine Every Morning Now

Wallace Says He Is Full of New Life and Energy Since Taking Orgatone

W. E. Wallace, well known employe in the freight department Texas & Pacific railroad, is still another citizen of high standing who comes forward with his unqualified endorsement of Orgatone. While in Harvey Hays Drug store, Abilene, Texas, a few days ago Mr. Wallace said:

"My improvement in every way has been more than satisfactory and I don't hesitate to endorse such a fine medicine as I have found Orgatone to be. I hadn't been feeling at all well for the past year. I suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion. I couldn't sleep soundly, felt lazy, tired and drowsy. My work required me to stay in all day and I had become so rundown that I was easily tired out and I didn't feel much like work. I can't describe just how I felt, but I know I needed something to relieve my stomach and that tired, drowsy feeling and build up my strength and energy.

"Orgatone just hit the spot exactly and I now feel like a different man. Why, before I took it I had no appetite, but I am hungry all the time now and can eat anything without the slightest bad feeling afterward. I sleep fine, get up in the morning feeling fine and my daily task is much easier. My indigestion is gone, my tired worn-out feeling has left me and I simply feel altogether different."

At the Theaters

LITTLE THEATER, Avenue H and Polk street: "White Collars," three-act comedy drama, 8 o'clock.

STRAND: "The Virginian," last day. Any other book will look weak in comparison with it. Paramount sound news.

MAJESTIC: "Untamed." Joan Crawford and Ernest Torrence crowd their feelings to highest pressure. Talking novelty, "Syncopated Trial." Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: "The College Coquette." Comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: Lon Chaney in "East is East." Comedy.

QUEEN: Griffin players in "My Partner."

Theaters exist and thrive because people forget the hard realities of daily existence in the staged or filmed world of make-believe. In the newspaper office, the cold, relentless world as it is comes in an endless stream of wired copy to the telegraph editor's desk, where that gradually hardening intellect rapidly selects the subscribers' reading diet for the next edition. Realizing that worthy's great need for relaxation such as may be found in ruminating among current theatricals, his wheezy typewriter is passed herewith across the desk to Fred Thompson for the recitation of something new in its antiquity. Says he:

"Announcement is made of a change in policy at the Queen theater. Of course everybody knows what a change in policy at a theater means. It means that it is going to try to put on better shows, and usually such an announcement is accompanied by the introduction of a new troupe, or a new actor who is expected to put the new policy over.

"The new star at the Queen is to be James Griffin, veteran of the road show game, and an accomplished actor in his realm. Of course we know, and Mr. Griffin knows that he probably would take the count if he were called upon to perform before the Queen of England ,or some of our more snooty Broadway critics. But Mr. Griffin, we happen to know, is not hurt by this realization. Rather he is helped by it. For he knows he was born to act in everyday melodramas, such as a vast portion of our people really thrill to see, and he has developed himself in this line, without bothering his head with thrilling dreams of getting his name into a Broadway columnist's paragraphs.

"Perhaps a few words should be devoted to the past life of the newcomer, and his personality. Some five years ago we were spending our days at the University of Texas in Austin, and making a few shekels at night playing a horn in an airdome in which Bobby Warren's troupe of road show actors performed. Mr. Griffin, our newcomer, was a leading man in the cast. The shows were not highbrow, they were clean and decent, and highly entertaining, and we remember the laughs from them that lasted even through the next day, when we were bent over a book in a government class at the university. The Bobby Warren troupe, considered at that time one of the best in Texas, has long since scattered to the four winds, and with it many friendships.

"But if the show was lost, the friendships were not. The loyalty among a group of road show actors and musicians, when (and if) they are really good, honest men, is something to marvel at.

"We saw Griffin on the street Tuesday for the first time in five years. He had not forgotten the old days; he was a true friend.

"He is a picture of the actor of the old school about whom so many novels and short stories are written these days. He is pompous in actions, but not in spirit. He walks like we imagine King Arthur would, striding after his sword. His talk sounds like Hamlet's, in the soliloquy. He is an entertaining fellow, and should provide much amusement in his shows here.

"Don't go to his shows, however, expecting to see the actor's art in its highest polish. Rather, we would say, if you tire of the theme song blurbs and picture shows about Broadway mamas and Chicago racketeers, and want to relax from all psychological strain, go down and watch James Griffin stage some common, everyday American play. It probably will consist of scenes in which Little Eva makes her tearful appearance, or where the hero slays the villain and haughtily carries off the lovely lady—but it will be real relaxation."

OPTIMISM

Presiding Elder Tells Of What It Means In Club Address

"Optimists are the persons who have the intestinal stamina to take the world as it is and make of it what it should be," said Rev. C. A. Spragins, new presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, in defining optimism before members of the Optimist club at the Kemp hotel Wednesday noon.

Continuing his eulogy of the quality of optimism, the speaker declared its adherents have built and are building civilization, and stated that the death of a man who has contributed nothing to humanity's well-being is a gift to the world.

Vocal duets by Misses Evelyn and Elta Rose Franklin, pupils in the Wichita Falls High school, accompanied by Miss Louise Lipscomb, completed the program, which was arranged by Joe Richker. Announcement of the Little Theater play to be given at the Memorial auditorium on Dec. 27 for the benefit of the municipal zoo was made by Dr. R. L. Graham.

BUS HEARING OPENS TODAY

Neff May Attend Meeting Of Board Here

C. V. Terrell, state railroad commissioner, and Mark Marshall, supervisor of the motor bus division of the commission, will conduct a public hearing at the Kemp hotel beginning at 9 o'clock Thursday morning on three applications for transfer and installation of bus lines in this section of the state, it was announced Wednesday by Mr. Marshall.

Former Gov. Pat M. Neff, now chairman of the state railroad commission, may be present for the local hearing, according to Mr. Marshall. Completion of business elsewhere in the state on Wednesday will permit Mr. Neff to attend the hearing here, Mr. Marshall said, but added that definite information on that point could not be given until Thursday morning.

The case originating in this district for the attention of the commission is the application of Charles McDearman and A. B. Ward of Gainesville to sell their interests in the Wichita Falls-Gainesville bus line to F. H. Turberville of this city, who is now the third partner. This line operates one bus daily each way between its two terminals.

Other applications to be heard here are those of W. F. Daniels for installation of bus service between Lubbock and Floydada, and of W. E. Watson to operate a line serving Clarendon, Dimmitt, Tulia, and Freola.

Are You Well and Strong?

"Before my third baby was born my husband advised me to take your medicine and he bought me three bottles of it. When I had taken the first one I began to feel better so I kept on during the whole period. We have a healthy baby boy and we are so proud of him and praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the help it gave me. I feel lots stronger since I started to use it and would not be without it."—Mrs. Frank Lukes, R. No. 1, Box 58, Lankin, N. Dakota
