Court To Adopt Economy Policy For This County

Commissioners Will Cut Expenses To Fit Present Debits Of County

Audit Is Made

Lack Of Funds Expected To Eliminate Road Work In Each Precinct

Following the first session in 1933, members of the commissioners court announced today that they would enforce a policy of rigid economy here during the twelve months. Each of the new commissioners took office with the idea of curtailing county expenses and stated today that such a policy was their only alternative after a careful examination of the county's records and debts.

Luther Gribble, county judge, made the following statement:

"A. N. Corneil, of the firm of A. N. Corneil & Company, Certified Accountants of Amarillo, has this week completed the audit of funds for Collingsworth County covering the period from January 1, 1931 to December 31, 1932. This audit will be typewritten, certified and delivered to the Commissioners Court within the next two weeks and will be available for the inspection of the tax payers of this county.

"From figures already furnished the Commissioners Court for its information in formulating its plans for the year 1933, it appears that one of the principal problems confronting the court is the payment of obligations heretofore incurred against the county's road funds. During the years beginning with 1916 up to and including the year 1932 the following road and bridge warrants were

Contractors Have 110 Working Days To Complete Work In County

Work orders which listed Friday, January 27, as the date on which the construction of the new state highway across this county should begin were received this week by contractors of the projects and copies were sent to C. L. Hasie, resident engineer.

No definite date for starting the local work has been designated as yet, but Mr. Work of Huddleston and Work, this week told friends that he expected to complete the project from the Childress county line to the Collingsworth county line this week and it is hoped that he may be able to start on the south project of the Collingsworth road next week.

The contractors have 110 working days in which to finish the projects in this county and it is estimated that the work will take around four and one-half months for completion due to the fact that time is taken out for bad weather and Sundays are not counted against the contractors.

Neither Huddleston and Work or Oran Speer have signified a definite starting time, but it is expected that they will begin on or before January 27 since they will want to take advantage of as many working days as possible.

AND ADD A FEW WORDS ABOUT LEADER ADVERTISING

Wellington, Texas,
January 14, 1933.

Mr. Deck Wells,
Editor Wellington Leader,
Wellington, Texas.

Dear Sir:—

As we told you, we intended to run three ads in your paper to close out our stock before moving to Vernon. Two ads have done the job and we will not need the third as our stock is absolutely sold out.

We can truthfully say that we are more than well pleased with the results from our advertisements in the Leader. They have never failed to produce results and the last two were better than ever.

We want you to thank our friends and customers for their patronage and their many favors to us. We are grateful for their business and regret to leave Wellington.

Sincerely yours,
BRANTLEY BROTHERS
Chester and Heber Brantley.

If LIVING HABITS

were Uniform

IF EVERYONE lived in the same type and size of home, used equal amounts of hot water, and did the same amount of cooking, then gas bills for families of the same size would all be about equal. Furthermore, if temperatures were fairly uniform throughout the year your gas bill for each month could be accurately estimated in advance.

But actually, neither living habits nor weather conditions are uniform. Therefore, when we say that our residential customers pay on the average 11c per day for all natural gas requirements, we are dealing with figures which level out the varying requirements of different families.

As a matter of fact the amount of gas service required for the comfort and convenience of yourself and family, fix the amount of your monthly gas bills, in winter as well as summer.

Of course, you are interested in obtaining the maximum convenience and economy from your natural gas service. So is your Gas Company. For this reason we will inspect and adjust any appliances that are not in good working order, without charge.

Down where the "Heating" Begins

During these winter months, when temperatures frequently drop to a point where heating of homes is required, your company maintains a temperature chart in each of its offices for your convenience. By consulting these charts you can secure accurate information on weather conditions for the period covered by your gas bill. Keep in mind that temperatures of 65° or lower are heating days. Take advantage of this service by visiting your nearest gas company office.

Does Your Oil Check Safe?

- WINTER GRADE
- PARAFFIN BASE
- DE-WAXED
- SUB-ZERO FLOWING

plus the hidden quart

IF YOU CAN CHECK THIS POINT YOU ARE SAFE

THAT STAYS UP IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

CONOCO

*The Germ Process (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart never drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself; worth its weight in gold.

All of the Merits that Any Oil Boasts.. Plus One Gift None Other Can Claim

Ordinary oil, d-o-w-n in the crankcase, is worthless except for the pump. From the vital parts it drains away, for hours when all is still. Oil may be light, de-waxed and free-flowing, yet it must be forced back to work. During the minutes it takes to get going, 50% of the wear occurs. Experts say this is so.

But there is one oil, and only one, that does not depend on the pump. It is Conoco Germ Processed Oil; the oil with the "hidden quart." The germ process adds to pure, paraffin-base, de-waxed oil, an almost uncanny gift... the ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces, so it CANNOT drain away.

Motorists, in a pinch, have driven miles and miles on this "hidden quart" alone. You can have this margin of safety. It costs no more than for other, so-called good oils. But it will save you—heaven knows—how much. Drain and refill with Conoco Germ Processed Oil. Dispel those lurking doubts.

You Mustn't Take Chances... With Children's Eyes

Unimpaired eyesight is essential to the growing child... for two reasons: First, because good vision enables him to keep pace with his schoolmates and his playmates. Second, because strong eyes, guarded in youth, will last a lifetime.

Improper lighting is one of the largest causes of weakened eyes. If you permit your child to study or even to play where there is not enough light, or where there is a blinding glare, you are making a mistake that may prove disastrous.

Enjoy the benefits of plenty of light... it's ridiculously inexpensive, and, remember, new eyes cannot be bought at any price!

One of our trained employees will be happy to inspect your lighting arrangements... without charge or obligation, of course. Chances are, a simple rearrangement of your present equipment, with larger or smaller lamps in a few of the fixtures, is all you need. Call for an inspection TODAY.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule... and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

Sales Drive On New Irons Now Underway Here

The West Texas Utilities company in Wellington this week started a sales drive on Hotpoint electric irons and now have on display one Hotpoint that is 27 years old and has been in active service since it was purchased. Their window display also includes a number of other antique irons.

"There are many advantages now offered by the new Hotpoint," Mr. Lowry, manager, said. "First, the new light weight is to be considered and the irons also have the added feature of automatic electric control, which causes the current to cut off when the iron reaches certain temperatures."

Horse Sells For 3 Cents And Bull Only Nets Nickel

Sometimes Collingsworth County people get discouraged because they are unable to get good prices on their cotton and farm products—but if things ever get as bad here as they were for a farmer in Doylestown, Pa., then all of the farmers will have a good excuse to check out.

Here is how they do things in Pennsylvania:

A sheriff's sale of farm property at which horses brought 3c, a bull 5c and three pigs the same amount, left Bucks County authorities puzzled recently over what to do about a farmers' organization, newly formed to prevent members from being sold out.

Sheriff Horace C. Swimmer put property from the farm home of John Hensel under the hammer to satisfy a judgment for $1,800, but he realized only $1.80 from the sale.

Representatives of the recently organized Farmers' Protective Association said they attended the sale to offer low bids.

The total sales included a flock of chickens for 3c, a pair of calves for 4c, and Hensel's household goods for 6c. None of the property was removed and after the sale a collection was taken up to buy food for the farmer's three motherless children.

Sheriff Gwinner expressed doubts as to the legality of the sale and said he did not believe the county courts would accept the return.

Lewis C. Bentzley of Berkasie, president of the association, said the group would continue a policy of protecting members from forced sales in cases where the individual is not to blame for his difficulty and where he deserves help.

ACTICS
By H. D. W.

Frequently in the past I have heard the complaint from people living outside of Precinct 1 that the tax money in the county is spent on Wellington or Precinct 1. They can't complain about it now. Even though Precinct 1 pays more of the county taxes than all three of the others, the land from car registrations has been divided equally four ways. That has been done in spite of the fact that more cars are registered from Precinct 1 than from any other. Precinct 1 has always given 20 per cent of her tax money to the other three precincts for the purpose of road building, but this year the car registration money has been divided equally. And I have heard no one in Wellington complaining about the division. Since the funds are limited this year the people here seem to be willing for the other precincts to have all that they can get. Personally, I am not concerned about it except in a news manner, for good roads in any part of the county help the county as a whole. Collingsworth County is a united whole and its interests are interwoven much closer than a few people would have you imagine. This is the time to work together, community with community, precinct with precinct. In fact that is a good thing to do at any time.

Boy, oh boy, ain't we got fun. There is going to be another advertising medium in town. This time it is a mimeograph circular that will be distributed from house to house in town. Circulation will be confined to Wellington. It will be published daily. That is about all I know about the publication right now. Several of my friends have asked me what I thought about it. To be truthful, I don't know what to think, but I reckon I can stand it if the new publisher can. The name of the circular is the Daily Reminder. When a representative told Joe Hardy that, he said: "Don't tell me that that is a paper—I married a daily reminder some odd years ago."

How many people live in Collingsworth County, who are sixty years of age? On February 6, I am going to give a free show for every man and woman in Collingsworth County, who has reached the age of sixty. I have been wanting to give a show for the elderly people in this community for a long time, and finally I have picked out one that I am convinced they will enjoy. The name of the picture is "The Conquerors." The story takes a young couple in 1873 and brings them clear on through the World War, and it is a magnificent story of faith, courage and heroic living. It ought to stir the blood of the pioneers of this county, and of those who pioneered in other counties.

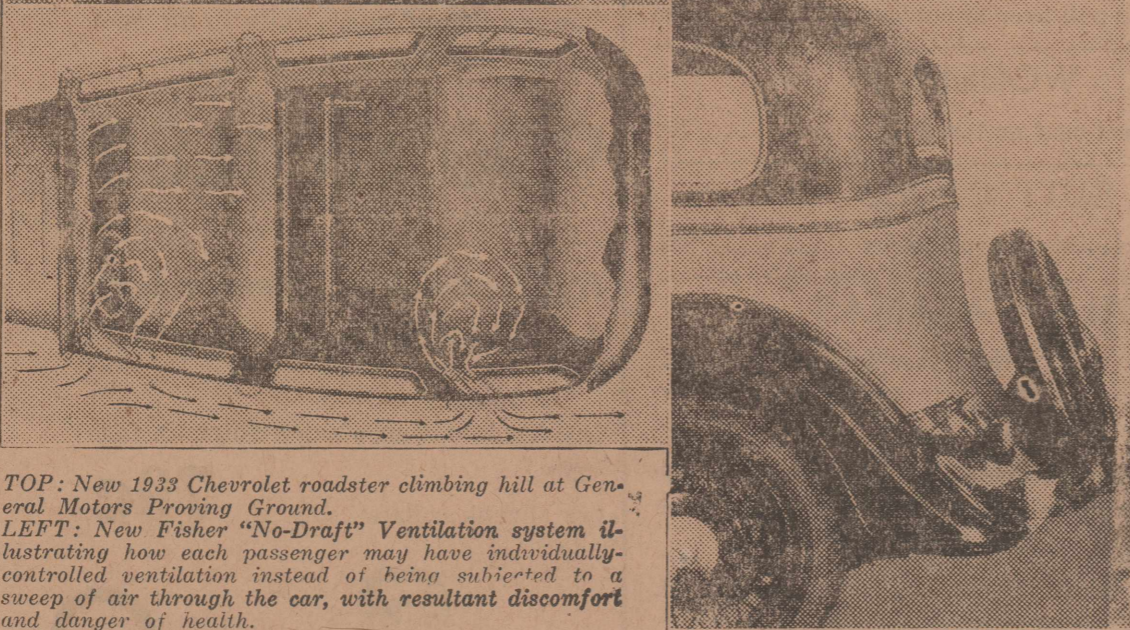

I believe that there are many people to whom the picture will present incidents and emotions that will seem as if they were taken out of their own lives. As they see it I hope they will be able to live again the days of their youth. It is a small favor to perform for people of the calibre of the pioneers of this county, but a pleasant afternoon is something this year.

Well, my dissertation on rose bushes brought in a good number of inquiries. Those who told me they wanted rose bushes are: Mrs. Clark Anderson, Mrs. W. R. Franks, Mrs. C. E. High, Mrs. J. B. Castleberry, Mrs. Roy Horn, Mrs. T. M. Johnston and Mrs. Morris Wells. This year, I intend to order only a few more bushes than I know I can dispose of handily; so if you want to get any of the rose bushes please let me know right away.

This year the rose bushes will be ordered from the Dixie Rose Nursery, which is the foremost nursery in Texas. In fact it is the best in the South, and they have a new way of grafting that makes stronger hardier plants. The plants this year will be varieties that have been tested here in Collingsworth county and are known to be hardy. The cheapest price at which roses of this quality can be bought at a dozen at a time from the Dixie Nursery is $3.50 a dozen, but I will sell them in bundles of five for $1. Each bundle will contain red and pink Radiance, pink Columbia, white Karl Druschki and a yellow haven't decided on whether Luxemburg or Sunset.

Both are recommended for late by the Dixie Nursery, have tried the Luxemburg, and it is a gorgeous yellow

All right, folks, step right up, the order will be sent off right away, and I positively won't guarantee that you will get any unless you place your order in advance.

Here is a joke I heard recently on a local lawyer. He was defending a man who had been sued for returning a borrowed kettle in damaged condition. "I intend to prove my client's innocence in three different ways," he said. "First I intend to show that he NEVER borrowed the kettle. Secondly, I intend to prove that it was cracked when he borrowed it. And, thirdly, I will prove that it was whole when he returned it."

I ran across a strange story in the daily papers the other day. It concerned the propagation of an ancient Aztec cotton seed of which were found two years ago in an old Indian cave in Colorado. The cotton grows eight feet tall, produces 500 bolls to the stalk and has a two inch staple. Furthermore, it is a drouth resisting plant. If this story is true you can imagine what it would do to the cotton industry, especially out in West Texas where it is adapted to the dry weather. It will produce from two to four bales an acre. I can't hardly believe the story, but if it is so—just think of those seed lying up in that cave for hundreds of years coming back to their life cycle with the probability of a revolution in the cotton industry.

Discovery Leads Scientists To Believe West Texans Ate Snails

Archaeologists recently made some astounding discoveries and some equally startling statements concerning the earliest inhabitants of West Texas.

One belief is that these primitive people were snail eaters, and the discoverers state that millions of snails were consumed by the primitive people because they were excavated by the Jackson archaeological party who completed exploration of Seminole caverns recently. The caverns are located 50 miles west of Del Rio.

Snail-eaters were our earliest West Texans. Countless numbers of shells were excavated in the kitchen middens of Seminole caverns, where a priceless collection of anthropological data, including six skeletons, hundreds of arrows, bows flint knives and ornaments were found.

A description of the findings permits a reconstruction of the life of the inhabitants of the caverns 2,000 years ago. Judging by the skeleton and skull of the cave man, he is classified with that race about which very little is known, the Basket Weavers, Flat Tops, or Cud Chewers. He was a short, squat, fellow of low mentality and fierce determination—if the lower jaw bone is to mean anything more than that it was developed to that extent by cud chewing. Of necessity he was industrious.

He hunted with bow and arrow and made his kill of small animals with a rabbit stick, resembling the Australian boomerang. He fished with nets made of leehugia or some corresponding fiber, bits of which were unearthed.

With the animal skins derived from his hunting, which his squaw dressed, the caveman rudely fashioned clothing for the winter months, since no clothing was needed at other seasons in this section. To fasten his garments together, he used guajilla fiber, sewed with polished bone awls, many of which were included in the collection. On his feet he wore barrachas made of woven fiber and held in place by strips of fiber and held in place between his great toe and fastening at the ankle. His headgear of two flat prickly pear leaves sewed together by sarahuista fibers. About his neck he wore conk shell, a strand six inches long and three inches wide, punctured by five holes drilled at different angles in the shells.

The skeletons, found in sitting position, told of the age-old superstition prevalent among the Indians of a happy hunting ground where one must be sitting ready at an instant's notice to die.

Finding of a crude egg-shaped abrading stone weighing approximately 300 pounds, indicated that perhaps during the long summer afternoons when heat made hunting impossible, the native passed the time polishing bows, sharpening arrows and filing the awls and flint knives. The ridges and holes in the sandstone identified its use.

Three mortal holes located in triangular position in the bedrock revealed the manner in which corn and wild oats were ground for food. The holes were five inches in diameter, tapering to a point at the bottom. A pestle probably two inches in diameter was used churning-like in grinding.

Deposits were found over the floor of the caverns from a depth of 16 to 18 inches to eight and one-half feet. The exploring party dug an eight foot trench 20 feet wide and 100 feet long through the flooring, requiring the work of five men for four weeks.

Those making up the party sent out by the archaeological department of the University of Texas were A. T. Jackson, head of the expedition; Jack Laughlin, Del Rio; C. A. Mathers, Liberty Hill; Mack Henderson, Llano, and Eddie McCarson, Comstock.

Santa Claus Is Late In Visit To Lighthouse

Radios Only Connection To Outside World For Men In Far North

In story books, keepers of lighthouses are romantic persons, but many a stormy day will pass before Christmas comes for the men who Santa Claus forgot.

Isolated on barren, jutting rocks, they peer across icy seas, watching for ships that will bring them Christmas mail and the turkeys and plum puddings of Yuletide—if, as the U. S. Lighthouse Department says, the weather permits. Storms have prevented lighthouse tenders from reaching them.

Far up toward the Arctic Circle, keepers of the lights at Scotchcap and Cape Sariches, away from civilization more than a year at a time had no sign of the holiday save the carols and bells that sounded over the crashing waves as their radios were tuned in.

D. W. Asquith, quartermaster of the Federal Lighthouse Department at Seattle, said members of the four lightships also passed the Christmas season alone, though tenders reached a couple of them with Yule cheer "a long time before Christmas."

On Destruction Island, lighthouse keepers and radio operators still await the toothsome drumsticks, even though it is not far off the Washington coast. The lighthouse tender Manzanita was unable to land at Christmas because of the crashing surf. A visit was made to Cape Flattery barely in time for a celebration.

"These men would not even have had radios," said Asquith, "if a kindly woman in the East had not collected one for each of the smaller stations, to relieve the loneliness and the men bless her."

But they had Christmas in Far Northern waters. Crews of the Admiral Line vessels made merry, as did those of the Alaska Steamship Company. The Northland white messenger of the Yule to many an Alaskan child, sailed into small ports with a Christmas tree lashed to the mast, and gave parties for the kiddies.

Wilbur C. Hawk Buys Earl Carroll Vanities For One Day In Amarillo

A real Broadway revue, with 100 entertainers in the cast and with 55 separate scenes, will blow the lid off the 1933 theatrical season in Amarillo.

Earl Carroll's Vanities, ninth edition, which played Broadway all last season, will be presented in two performances in Amarillo on Saturday, January 21. It will be the biggest and most elaborate musical show ever seen there.

The Vanities were booked by Wilbur C. Hawk for the benefit of the Tri-State Fair. In fact, Mr. Hawk bought the show outright for that day, paying $5,000—the only terms under which the producers would bring the company to Amarillo—and both matinee and night performances will be given. It is the first time an Earl Carroll show has been brought to Amarillo.

"The Vanities is a guaranteed show," Mr. Hawk explained. "It will be presented here just as it was presented in New York—with the same stars and with nothing left out, and it will be just as represented."

The company will come to Amarillo by special train from Oklahoma City, Amarillo being one of only two cities in Texas where the Vanities will be staged. The show this week in Kansas City at the Shubert Theatre in Kansas City.

Heading the Vanities cast is Al Trahan, piano-playing master of ceremonies, who gained attention all over the world when the King of England called upon him for a command performance in London. Others in the cast include Frank Mitchell, Jack Durant, Harry Stockwell, Betty Veronica, Yukoma Cameron, Claire Curry, Lucille Page, Emily Von Loesen, Ray Sax and Jack Starr. In addition there are dozens of lesser lights including some of Broadway's most beautiful girls.

It is reported from Kansas City and other places where the Vanities have shown recently that there is more sparkling comedy in this edition than in a dozen ordinary revues. Although Trahan is the principal comedian, there are others, and all of them are accomplished. The show also boasts some unusually tuneful music. Among the popular songs to be presented are "It's Great To Be in Love," "I Guess I'll Have To Change My Plans," "Masquerade," and "My Darling."

Some idea of the magnitude of the show can be gained from the fact that 30 stage hands are required to shift the sets for the 55 scenes and that a train of 10 coaches—four Pullmans, four baggage cars and two chair cars—is required to transport the company on tour.

Although the Vanities are playing in Kansas City at $4.40 top, Mr. Hawk has announced a $3 top here. The prices for the night show will be $1, $1.50, $2, and $3, plus tax. Matinee prices will be somewhat lower.

Mail orders addressed to Mr. Hawk are being received now, and reservations will be made at The News-Globe office. Judging from last year's experience when crowded houses greeted "Crazy Quilt" and "The Wonder Bar," the choice seats to the Vanities will be taken up early.

Unusual Cotton Plants Discovered Among Aztec Indian Village Ruins

Seed of an ancient Aztec cotton have been tried out by Tom Foster of Wichita Falls and the plants produced 500 bolls. Each plant grows to a height of about eight feet, and the cotton has been classified as two inch staple of the finest quality.

The beginning of this remarkable story goes back several years. Foster, who became rich from oil, decided to pursue his lifelong ambition to prowl in the caves and dwellings of the early American Indians. His search took him to the San Juan River valley in Colorado, where he spent the days exploring the cave dwellings of the Aztecs—the Indian tribe that once roamed the western part of the United States and that lived in Mexico City at the time of Cortez conquered that country.

One day while other members of his party rested in the shade, Foster found a sealed door in the rear of a cave high on the mountain side.

He broke into the wall and discovered an air tight chamber contained cottonseed, corn, grain and bean seeds, antelope hides, bone instruments, turkey feathers, willow withes and other relics.

Carefully he gathered his "find" and carted them to his home where he delighted in studying and exhibiting them to his friends.

The cottonseed oddly enough was considered his least valuable discovery and he left it in the bottom of a trunk until two years ago when he planted it in his backyard garden.

Seventeen stalks came to life and before summer were as big around as Foster's arm. The rangy stalks had the appearance of mesquite, desert pest, and grew to between six and eight feet tall. From each stalk Foster harvested from between 200 to 500 bolls of high grade cotton. Cotton men classified the yield as two-inch staple of the very finest qualities.

Foster planted more seed last spring and now has enough to plant 100 acres.

How unusual this cotton is can be understood from the comparisons:

Aztec cotton grew to eight feet in height—the usual growth of cotton is waist high.

The Aztec cotton produced many hundred bolls each stalk whereas other breeds produce less than 100.

Drouth did not reduce the yield of the Aztec cotton—the South suffered severely from the drouth of 1929, and cotton yields were lessened.

Aztec cotton, based on the production of the past two years, will yield from two to four bales to the acre—ordinarily the yield is a bale or slightly more.

Satisfied the seed taken from the cave is unusual in its productivity, Foster planted the grain this spring and grew a species half way between oats and wheat.

The English government has a new rifle which weighs only a few ounces more than an ordinary rifle and will fire 1,100 rounds of ammunition a minute, making it a super-machine gun.

Some people insist that they would rather live in a large city than a small town, but it is a relief to know that we have nothing like the following incident to happen here in Wellington. A newspaper account states that Miss Reene Blettel of New York put three mashers to flight by yielding her umbrella. Miss Blettel is a prize beauty, so before she went another block, she was again accounted by a stranger. Miss Blettel was also too tired to swing her umbrella—so she had to let the masher walk along under it with her. They walked along side by side and chatted—until they came to a policeman; then Miss Blettel turned the gentleman over to the cop.

turned up alive. In the same state a man named Turner, was sentenced to death, but secured a new trial and before the second trial could be held the alleged victim returned.

These are only three out of a large number of similar cases cited by Mr. Cantwell, who declares that he has authentic records of no less than 129 persons who confessed and were executed for murders, although their supposed victims were found to be aliye afterward.

This is not intended as a plea for laxity in bringing the guilty to justice, but it serves to show the great responsibility which rests upon juries and judges, as well as to emphasize the unreliability of circumstantial evidence, even when accompanied by a confession of guilt, in some cases. It particularly illustrates the frightful injustice of lynching under any circumstances.

HOW THE U. S. GREW

To those who have never taken the trouble to look into the matter it may be surprising to know that the area of the United States has been increased from 892-135 square miles in 1790 to 3,738,393 square miles at present.

The 13 original states—New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia—had a gross area of 892,135 square miles, of which 24,155 was water.

The first accession to this territory was through the Louisiana Purchase from France in 1803, which added 827,987 square miles, nearly doubling the nation's area.
Other additions of large extent were those of Florida, Texas, Oregon, the Mexican cession, Alaska and the Philippines.

Similar additions resulted from the Gadsden Purchase, and the acquisition of Hawaii, Porto Rico, Guam, American Samoa,
Panama Canal Zone and the Danish West Indies. The purchase of the Danish West Indies in 1917 marked the last expansion of United States territory.

In future it seems unlikely that the United States will make any effort to enlarge its present size, and it is the avowed intention to grant independence to the Philippines whenever the islands give satisfactory evidence of their capacity for self government.

One advantage in listening to some radio programs is that one doesn't have to change the phonograph records and needles.

No Nobel peace prize was awarded for 1932, which shows the judges' lack of appreciation for Japan's efforts in Manchuria and Shanghai.

A California publisher predicts that big daily newspapers will soon be printed on perfumed paper. Some of them need a dis-

Three years ago a Kansas City prophet predicted that the world would end in 1932.
Pessimists will think it unfortunate that he was wrong.

Pistons

We have just installed a new Van Norman Piston Grinding Machine. The newest thing on the American market. Later model cars are coming out with pistons that are out of round.
This is to stop overheating and piston sticking. The cylinder is perfectly round but the piston is egg shaped to the extent of from .003 to .3 inch. When the piston heats, the expansion is to the egg shaped side—thus eliminating heating and

LETTERS From the PEOPLE

(Editor's Note: The Leader will gladly publish any acceptable article which is submitted by readers, provided that the articles are signed by the readers and are free from libelous or malicious contents.)

Wellington, Texas
Jan. 15, 1933

Wellington Leader:
While reading Mr. Wilson's article on Education, which I thought was good, it came to my mind of how many children who were deprived of more than one-half of the term of Free School. Low price of products and unemployment of laboring people in the past three years have caused many to keep their children out of school one-half the time. In most districts in the county, they overcome part of this by starting school early and probably get six weeks to two months before cotton opens cotton is principle products of this county.

But the Wellington District does not provide for this shortage. However, it is perfectly all right to start school in September for those who can and are able to live without their children's help. But the Free School system was intended for every child, that would accept it, no matter how poor and let's try and give them all a chance. Then the management has done their part and children and parents, who do not take advantage of it are to blame themselves and no one else, and I want to say, I surely agree with Mr. Wilson when it comes to compare with the betterment of posterity. It does seem like that our ward schools could be opened through June, July and August for the ones who couldn't go—I don't mean the ones who would not go. My guess, although I may not be correct, that two teachers, not over three, could easily handle the situation. Let's all take this matter under consideration and see what could be done. I think it is our duty to posterity.

Respectfully,
Ted Johnson.

Amarillo Will Have Vanities

AMARILLO, Texas, Jan. 17.—The 1933 theatrical season in Amarillo and the Panhandle will be launched with a brilliance seldom seen in these parts, when Earl Carroll's Vanities, an elaborate musical revue with 56 separate scenes, is presented for two performances at the Municipal Auditorium, Saturday, January 21.

Scores of pretty girls, comedians galore, songs, dances, brilliant settings and gorgeous costumes—these will make up the ninth edition of Carroll's famous show. The cast is headed by Al Trahan, piano-playing master of ceremonies whose greatest claim to fame is a command performance before the King of England. Others in the company include Frank Mitchell, Jack Durant, Harry Stockwell, Betty Veronica, Yukona Cameron, Claire Courry, Lucille Page, Emily Von Loesen, Ray Sars, and Jack Starr.

A special train will bring Vanities to Amarillo, five baggage cars being needed to cart the scenery alone about the country.

The show was booked by Wilbur C. Hawk for the benefit of the Tri-State Fair. The company now is playing to wildly enthusiastic audiences in Kansas City.

This is the same edition of the Vanities that played Broadway all last season, and is being brought to Amarillo as a guaranteed attraction, according to Mr. Hawk.

"The Vanities are guaranteed to be just as represented—an elaborate revue with New York stars and produced here just as it was produced in New York," Mr. Hawk said.

The top price being charged in Kansas City is $4.40. Prices here will range from $1 to $3, plus tax. Ticket information and reservations may be had now by writing to Mr. Hawk care of The News-Globe.

"In view of the packed houses and tremendous success scored here last year by 'Crazy Quilt' and 'The Wonder Bar,' it behooves those who want choice seats to the Vanities to get their orders in early," Mr. Hawk said.

Because her husband refused to eat, Mrs. P. R. Clark of Leeds, Eng., appealed to the police, but was informed they were powerless to act.

Francois Sauvier, of Quebec, convicted of assault, asked a longer sentence than thirty days because he "enjoyed prison."

Looking to you to be their leader while they work their way out of the horrors of this depression. While we realize that there is no magic in legislation that will suddenly dispell this depression and restore normal time or prosperity, and that we must work our way out by prudence and economy, still we believe that there is certain remedial legislation that will greatly aid and help us while we are working our way out. We are taking the liberty to suggest and recommend the following needed legislation, as we see it, and ask your cooperation in getting same enacted into law at this session of the legislature, to-wit:

First: It is our candid judgment that the foreclosure of mortgages on homes and farms which is fast transforming this country from a land of home and farm owners to that of tenants, with the land in the hands of a few, is doing more to demoralize and discourage the people and prevent the return of normal times, than any other factor in this awful depression. The owners of these mortgages are bidding these homes and farms for only a fractional part of the loan against the property, and holding this excess as a judgment over the debtors so that they can take what they make in the future. We believe that there is now an imperative necessity that the present legislature pass at once a Moratorium on all farm and home loans for at least two years in order that the people may have time to save and collect enough to save their homes and farms. We further believe that this will do more to restore confidence and hope in the minds of the people than any other law that this legislature may pass at this session. The fact that these people have a chance to save their homes and farms and escape being made tenants will do more to inspire and encourage to make a desperate effort to restore prosperity and save their homes than any other legislation. These people only need a little time to work out of this, and this Moratorium will give them this time and place beyond the reach of the foreclosures for two years. We earnestly suggest and recommend such legislation.

Second: Not only do we think that these foreclosures should be stopped long enough to give the people time to redeem their homes, farms, but we also think that there is some needed legislation to regulate and control these foreclosures. Under the present law every home or farm foreclosed upon must sell for the highest cash bid therefore, regardless of the value of the home or farm or the amount of the bid. On account of the scarcity of money, no one can bid but the holder of the mortgages, so he just makes a nominal bid and buys in the home and farm for only a fractional part of its real value and holds the deficiency against the debtor. In other states there is a law that provides that all property foreclosed upon under mortgages or deeds of Trust, be first appraised and that the property could not be sold for less than its appraised value. Texas should have such a law and should go further and provide that when there is foreclosure of a loan on land that if the land does not bring the amount of the debt, that such foreclosure cancel the debt where the property is bid in by the holder of the mortgage. We recommend that there be put upon the Statute books of this state such a law. This will prevent the buying in of homes and farms for a nominal sum and holding a judgment over the helpless debtor for the balance that might be shown due after such a sale. The losing of a farm or home ought to be sufficient.

Third: Next we think that there ought to be a right of redemption of these homes and farms where foreclosure upon under mortgages and Deeds of Trust. We have a law providing for redemption of land where sold for Taxes, and we think that there should be a similar law giving the right to redeem land within one or two years by paying what it sold for with interest and cost, or in case the land was bought in by the holder of the mortgage to pay him back his principle, interest and cost. These loans are made for only about 25 per cent of the value of the land, and usually bought in by the holder of the mortgage for only a fractional part of the debt, with right to sue for the balance of the debt. In other words the holder of the mortgages are getting the property for a nominal bid and then holding a debt against the maker for the difference. It occurs to us that all of the laws are in favor of the loan man and but little in favor of the borrower. We think it is time to remember this forgotten man and pass some laws in his favor. We, therefore, recommend that there be passed a law giving the debtor the right of redemption of land sold under foreclosure proceedings that will be fair and equitable to both the mortgagor and mortgagee.

Fourth: Under our present laws, the record owner of the land pays all the State, County, School and City Taxes against this land, regardless of the small equity that he may have in the land, or the large indebtedness against this land secured by vendors Lien or Deed of Trust, with note held by some loan company or individual who pay undue taxes on these notes. This is not right or just and places an undue burden of Taxes on the land owner and lets the loan man escape his part of Taxes. The tax burden is doing much and has done much to continue and to make this depression. It must be remedied and equalized. We say that the land or property ought to be valued for taxing purpose and then it be ascertained what part the land owner should pay based on his equity in the land and the rest be paid by the holder of the lien, based upon its proportional part of the appraised value. Then the law ought to require that this tax be paid on these notes regardless of who owns them and require that they be registered with the County Treasurer, and failure to do so, would preclude the holder of such notes from bringing suit on such notes. Oklahoma and other states have such a law. Why not Texas? We recommend that there be a law requiring all notes on real estate be rendered for taxes, and provide that failure to so render them would bar the holder from bringing suit in any of the Courts of Texas upon such notes.

Fifth: All members of the legislature made solemn promises to the constituents that if elected that they would work for and support a program of rigid economy in all governmental departments. We are assuming that these campaign promises were made in good faith, and that every one will endeavor to make good this solemn promise to the people. We believe that these times demand strict economy in all branches of the government, and this economy should be real and not superficial. We believe that such a practised program of economy will do much to restore normal conditions and open the way for prosperity. We are practising strict economy, and we think that our officials should do likewise. We think that if the legislature wants to do something in a fundamental way in economy that there should be passed a law reducing all salaries of all officials, except the Governor who does not get enough, abolish all unnecessary courts, departments, and consolidated all that cannot be abolished. We suggest that all salaries be reduced one-half, and this will be real economy and start at the business in a fundamental way.

Sixth: We think that the rate of interest as fixed by law in this state is too high, and it will be impossible for the people to pay their debts with the present rate of interest. Everything also has gone down but interest and Taxes. We think that the maximum rate of interest ought not to be higher than six or seven per cent. We recommend that a law be passed reducing the rate of interest that can be charged on all loan and notes. This will do much to help the people to pay their debts.

The above is adopted by the Citizens Advisory Council, an organization in Collingsworth County, for the study and promotion of public policies. This Council meets each week at 2 P. M. in the Court House at Wellington, Texas, to discuss for one hour such policies that it deems of public interest. The foregoing being deemed of first importance, the same is submitted. Each week will be considered matters of public interest and same will be submitted to you for consideration.

Respectfully submitted, Citizens Advisory Council.

The meeting also voted to endorse the Domestic Allotment bill, and passed a resolution deploring local foreclosures. The Governor's message to the Legislature will be the principal matter to be considered next Saturday at the meeting which will be held at 2 o'clock.

Road work will be very limited because of lack of funds.

Mr. Snell came to Wellington in 1922 and established the first grocery in Wellington at that time. During the time he has been operating in Wellington he has gained a reputation for value giving that has stood him in good stead.

Mr. Snell has faith in the country and the country, and he believes in their ability to pull through the present times, but he says that he believes that the present conditions make it imperative that every man, regardless of the nature of his business, render the most useful service that he possibly can. In this present service he sees a means of relieving the present situation to a certain extent and which will also provide a foundation on which people can build for tomorrow.

J. A. Fry--

Fry and a friend left his home with his foster parents near Kilgore and went to Wise county, where he secured a job as hired boy until he was twenty-two years of age.

At this age he married Ella Cooper on January 8, 1885. Shortly after his marriage, he bought 80 acres of land with heavy timber and during the first winter cleared 16 acres. The couple faced all of the pioneer hardships of Wise county and reported more than once that Indians stole their corn, hogs, and cows.

While Mr. and Mrs. Fry were in Wise county eight children were born, three of the oldest passing away while still children. Five of the children are still living.

With the help of his wife, Mr. Fry paid for his place and built a nice home. In 1903, however, he decided to buy a piece of land near Paradise and through the assistance of Dr. Peek, an old family physician, managed to secure the place. On this farm, he built one of the nicest homes in Wise county and was one of the first men who ever had a telephone in the entire county.

He was exceptionally good to his children and gave them every possible advantage. The Fry home was known over the entire section as hospitable and cheerful and was often the scene of gatherings and parties for the younger folks of that area.

Later the family was forced to move west because of Mrs. Fry's health and bought land in Hutchinson county. The general living conditions proved so different however, that the family decided to move again and this time came to Collingsworth county in 1911.

After coming here, they lived in the Lillie community for a number of years and after the children were all married they built a house where the old Slay store stood in North Wellington. Mr. and Mrs. Fry also did quite a bit of traveling after the children married and spent several winters in Arizona and New Mexico, but in 1925, came back to Wellington and bought their home here, where they both passed on. Mrs. Fry having died February 3, 1929.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. C. E. May and Mrs. Frank Gallagher, both of Wellington; three sons, A. J. Fry, Amarillo, Dellman Fry, Prescott, Arizona; C. W. Fry, Yuma, Ariz. Also ten grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. John H. Taylor, Mabanks, Texas; Mrs. Jesse Horton, Kilgore.

Pall bearers were: John Darrqv, J. A. Coffee, Sid Lockhart, Frank Moore, Marvin Hogan, Bill Hall. Flower bearers: Ollie Marie Seaberry, Virginia Hogan, Maurine Miller, Elizabeth Fleming. Music was furnished by the Bledsoe quartet.

Interment was made in the Wellington cemetery by Ellis Funeral Home.
