Stenholm, others form rural health care coalition

16 bills aimed at dealing with rural health

WASHINGTON (AP) - Less than a month before the Clinton administration unveils its blueprint to reform the nation's health care system, rural lawmakers are pitching some ideas of their own.

"No one needs to be reminded of what a critical year and Congress this will be for health reform in general," said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

To ensure that rural needs aren't ignored, the 146 members of the bipartisan House Rural Health Care Coalition are presenting 16 pieces of legislation they hope to get enacted.

"It is not the goal of this coalition to take on the task which thousands of others in this city and country are attempting to tackle right now," said Stenholm, who is coalition co-chairman.

"We do, however, feel that we have a role to play in helping to formulate that portion of health reform which deals with rural health delivery."

Rep. Jim Nussle, R-Iowa, expressed concern that with the upcoming reforms "now, more than ever, rural interests are in danger of being cast by the wayside."

The bills endorsed by the coalition, which includes 14 lawmakers from Texas, would:

-- Extend a federal provision providing higher Medicare payments to small hospitals with a large percentage of Medicare patients. The provision, which expired in March, would be extended to October 1994.

-- Encourage teaching hospitals to send interns and residents to rural primary-care facilities by removing some of the financial barriers that currently hinder staffing in rural areas.

-- Establish a federal Emergency Medical Services office in the Department of Health and Human Services, in part to help coordinate and improve EMS services in the states.

-- Make it more attractive for physicians to practice in rural areas, by offering them financial incentives. For example, doctors would be allowed to deduct the interest on their student loans as long as they practice in a medically underserved rural area.

"Many rural areas of the country are medically underserved," said Rep. J. Roy Rowland, D-Ga., who is one of only two medical doctors in Congress. "Their physician-to-population ratios are chronically below the national average, and some areas have no physicians or health care professionals at all."

"These problems have persisted far too long," Rowland said.

Asked by a reporter the cost of the 16-bill package, Stenholm said he didn't have a breakdown. But he said the legislation would have to be paid for with existing spending, by finding cuts in other programs.

Celebrating Earth Day

These Tierra Blanca Elementary School helped celebrate Earth Day on Thursday by taking part in the planting of trees around the school. Third graders Javier Martinez, Tanya Adams and Ariana Garcia, kneeling, joined the other third grade students in planting this pecan tree outside the school. Other classes planted a yellow rose, bluebonnets and evergreen trees for a wind break around the playground. The three kids are students in Emily Christie's class.

Lottery panel bill passes state House

AUSTIN (AP) - A bill to create a state lottery commission has won preliminary House approval after being overwhelmingly defeated earlier this week.

But the House again defeated a proposal to set aside lottery revenue for public education.

The bill by Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, would remove lottery oversight from the state comptroller and create a six-member lottery commission to operate the game.

It was defeated 110-23 on Monday after several lawmakers objected to certain portions of the bill. The House approved the measure 85-58 Thursday after Wilson reworked the legislation.

Changes from the earlier version included doubling the number of commissioners from three to six; requiring the governor to conduct background checks on prospective commissioners; and restoring a prohibition on selling tickets on publicly-owned land.

The new bill also removes a restriction on selling tickets at a licensed racetrack. The earlier version would have prohibited such sales.

The proposal to dedicate some lottery revenue to education was pushed unsuccessfully by Rep. Nancy Moffat, R-Southlake. A similar proposal was also defeated Monday.

Jury ponders fate of woman accused of smothering baby

GREAT BEND, Kan. (AP) - A woman already sentenced to life in prison in Texas after the mysterious deaths of five of her children is awaiting a jury's decision on whether she smothered another 4-year-old son in Kansas.

Barton County jurors were scheduled to resume deliberations today in the trial of Diana Lumbrera, 34, who is charged with first-degree murder in the death of 4-year-old Jose Antonio Lumbrera, who died in 1990 in Garden City.

Jurors in the woman's second trial deliberated for less than an hour Thursday afternoon after prosecution and defense attorneys presented their closing comments in Barton County District Court.

Ms. Lumbrera, 34, was sentenced to life in prison after her first trial, but the Kansas Supreme Court said errors were made in that trial and threw out the verdict.

She also was charged in Texas with the deaths of five of her children and the death of another child she was caring for. She pleaded no contest in two of the cases and the rest of the cases were dropped. She was sentenced to life in prison in Texas.

Judge Barry Bennington instructed jurors Thursday that they could consider the previous deaths when determining possible motive. But he directed them not to consider any prior convictions when deciding the question of guilt in this case.

In his closing comments, prosecutor Ricklin Pierce brought out a chart with the names of three of the deceased children.

"Who was with these three children when the deaths occurred? The same person, Diane or Diana Lumbrera," he said. Ms. Lumbrera used both versions of her first name.

Pierce said Ms. Lumbrera was in need of money and received insurance money after each of the deaths.

Defense attorney Michael Quint said doctors have presumed Ms. Lumbrera's guilt because of what he called a "three-death rule," suggesting the third death in the same family could not have been an accident.

"The problem is that this three-death rule is not only medically questionable, it is legally inconceivable" because it ignores the defendant's presumption of innocence.

During testimony Thursday, a member of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation said he witnessed a second autopsy performed by pathologist Dr. William Ekert on behalf of Ms. Lumbrera. The autopsy showed no signs of injury around the boy's mouth, nose and nasal cavity, said David Klamm of the KBI.

The defense maintains the boy died of an unidentified viral infection which attacked a vital organ and caused heart failure.

Ken Elliott, a former police officer in Garden City, said he picked up sheets from Ms. Lumbrera's waterbed and found no evidence of rips or tears or of vomit.

Relatives of Ms. Lumbrera testified Thursday that she was a good mother, but a former neighbor said for the prosecution that she saw Ms. Lumbrera "shouting and being rough and pushing" the boy a week before he died.

Ms. Lumbrera did not testify, but her attorney played a tape of an interview she did with police in which she said she had nothing to hide.

She said she had stayed home from work on the day the boy died because he was sick. She said she woke him about 9 p.m. to give him a bath and found that his lips were blue. She said she then rushed him to the hospital.

For those of us born before 1945, have you paused to remember the changes? We published a similar, anonymous, column a couple of years ago--now, here's an updated version to bring a memory or a laugh...

We are survivors! Consider the changes we have witnessed:

We were born before television, before penicillin, before polio shots, frozen foods, Xerox, plastic, contact lenses, Frisbees and the "pill."

We were born before radar, credit cards, split atoms, laser beams and ballpoint pens; before pantyhose, dishwashers, clothes dryers, electric blankets, air conditioners, drip-dry clothes and before man walked on the moon.

We got married first and then lived together. How quaint can you be? In our time, closets were for clothes, not for "coming out of." Bunnies were small rabbits and rabbits were not Volkswagens. Designer Jeans were scheming girls named Jean, and having a meaningful relationship meant getting along well with your cousins.

We thought fast food was what you had during Lent, and Outer Space was the back of the local theater. We were before house-husbands, gay rights, computer dating, dual careers and commuter marriages.

We were before day-care centers, group therapy and nursing homes. We never heard of FM radio, tape decks, electric typewriters, artificial hearts, work processors, yogurt, and guys wearing earrings. For us, time sharing meant togetherness, not computers or condominiums.

A "chip" meant a piece of wood; hardware was hardware, and software wasn't even a word. In 1940, "made in Japan" signified junk and the term "making out" referred to how you did on an exam. Pizzas, McDonald's and instant coffee were unheard of.

We hit the scene when there were 5-and-10 cent stores, where you could buy something for a nickel or dime. You could buy ice cream cones for a nickel or dime. For one nickel, you could make a phone call, buy a soda pop, or enough stamps to mail a letter and two post cards.

You could buy a new Chevy Coupe for $600, but few could afford one--a pity too, because gas was 11 cents a gallon!

In our day, cigarette smoking was fashionable; grass was mowed. Coke was a popular soft drink, and pot was something you cooked in. Rock music was a grandmother's lullaby and AIDS were helpers in the principal's office or the hospital.

We were certainly not before the difference between the sexes was discovered, but we were surely before the sex change. We made do with what we had. And we were the last generation so dumb as to think you needed a husband to have a baby.

No wonder we are so confused and there is such a generation gap today. But we survived!!

Northwest students get mail from president

Students get presidential letter

Students in Barbara Yavornik's second grade class at Northwest Elementary School were just participating in a lesson in American government.

After all, they watched Bill Clinton as he took the oath of office on Jan. 20.

So, the 21 students decided to write Clinton letters, which they then bound in a book and mailed to the White House.

Some of the letters talked about the inauguration and the duties of the president.

Others were about whatever subject the student chose.

Well, last week the students heard a reply.

Mrs. Yavornik said a packet addressed to her class arrived at the school from the White House.

Inside the packet was a letter bearing Clinton's signature.

In addition, there was quite a bit of material about the presidency.

Mrs. Yavornik said she is preparing to decorate her classroom door with laminated copies of the information.

Students received a copy of the oath of office, of Clinton's inaugural address and biographical information on Clinton and Vice President Al Gore.

In addition, they received a packet of materials that included the section of the U.S. Constitution that assigns the powers and duties of the president and a full-color pictorial history of the White House.

Mrs. Yavornik said she has prepared individual copies of the packet for each child, so they can continue studying about the president and the presidency.

Bill proposed for five-year study of kids in Waco cult

AUSTIN (AP) - A state lawmaker from Waco has introduced a bill that would provide for a five-year study and treatment of children who lived in the Branch Davidian cult compound during a siege by federal authorities.

"I think we can utilize the findings for other children who have gone through trauma of various types," said Rep. Betty Denton, a Democrat, Thursday.

She said her bill would permit the governor's office to use state funds to contract with Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. Bruce Perry, an associate professor of psychiatry at the college, heads a treatment team that has been working with children who were released from the compound before it was destroyed by fire Monday.

"He is very interested in following through with the children and seeing how they progress in a five-year period of time," said Ms. Denton of Perry, who also is chief of psychiatry at Texas Children's Hospital in Houston.

The purpose of the study and treatment would be to evaluate the medical, physical, emotional and psychological needs of, and provide appropriate treatment for, the children, according to the bill. It also would be to develop improved programs for other children who survive trauma.

Three jailed for allegedly trying to kill man's parents

HOUSTON (AP) - Three people have been jailed on attempted capital murder charges after a Deer Park couple and a friend allegedly attempted to murder the husbands's mother and father to collect an inheritance, police say.

Charles Stover, 24, and Amy Stover, 25, both of Deer Park, were being held in the Harris County Jail. Robert L. Chappell II, 24, a student at Abilene Christian University, was arrested at Abilene Thursday and was to be returned to Houston today. Bond was set at $50,000 each.

Police said that the Stovers wanted to kill Charles Stover's parents and were arrested in the elder Stover's bedroom.

Deer Park police said the trio hatched an intricate plot to kill Billy J. and Ouida Stover and collect an undetermined inheritance, if there was one.

Lt. Stan Shafer said they planned to kill Mrs. Stover by injecting her with atropine, a drug used by the military to counteract nerve gas and intended to stab and beat her husband to death.

Shafer said the couple was "cooperating," but declined to say they had formally confessed.

When officers responded to a family disturbance call Monday night, they found Ovida Stover, 51, holding a handgun on her son and daughter-in-law. Billy Stover then walked into the room, bleeding profusely from the head and side.

The younger Stovers had let themselves into the home with a key and went to the bedroom where Charles Stover's parents were sleeping.

Shafer said the plan called for Charles Stover to strike his father with a pair of brass knuckles and then use a knife and the brass knuckles to beat and stab him to death.

Amy Stover was supposed to inject Ovida Stover with the drug, designed to speed up the heart rate, in an attempt to induce a heart attack, Shafer said.

The plan began falling apart because Ovida Stover sleeps with her hands across her chest, Shafer said. When Amy Stover attempted to inject the drug into her mother-in-law's chest, she allegedly jabbed the needle into her hand and the woman awoke, the officer said.

Charles Stover also failed in his attempt to knock his father unconscious and the older man awoke and began to struggle with his son.

Ovida Stover was able to get a handgun from the dresser drawer and ordered her son and daughter-in-law to the floor, Shafer said.

"Their plan was, after they had killed them, they were going to tamper with the water heater and some gas outlets, hoping the water heater would ignite and burn all the evidence," Shafer said.

"There's a lot we'll probably never know," Shafer said.

REV. BOB NELSON

The Rev. Bob Nelson, pastor of St. Andrew's United Methodist Church in Lexington, Kty., will be leading a revival at the church Sunday through Wednesday. The public is encouraged to attend all services.

The Sunday services will be held at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m., and Monday through Wednesday, the revival services will be held at 7 p.m. in the church sanctuary. In conjunction with the revival, Dutch treat breakfast meetings will be held Monday through Thursday at 6:30 a.m. at the Caison House. He presently serves as chaplain with the Senior PGA Tour and the Kentucky Professional Golfers Association. Of all the awards he has received in life, he states, "None compare with the real joy of sharing Christ with others."

A spokesperson from Hereford's FUMC said, "We are not interested in trying to make Methodists out of everyone, nor is our purpose to 'steal' persons from other churches. Our purpose is to glorify God by winning persons to Jesus Christ, to grow in our spiritual walk, and to make disciples who will become disciples for Christ wherever they are."

Pastor Lonny Poe said, "Everywhere you look outside it seems you see the evidence that winter is passing and spring is coming. Spring reminds us of the cycle of life. It renews hope for new beginnings. God offers people new beginnings as well. The people of Dawn Baptist Church welcome you to join them for worship as well as celebrate, praise and search together for the new beginnings God offers."

CHRIST'S CHURCH FELLOWSHIP

Church school begins at 9:30 a.m. During the 10:45 a.m. Sunday worship service, Dr. Alton Tomlin will continue his series of sermons on holiness. "The Man God Uses" will be based on Joshua 1:9.

This Sunday following the morning service, the Christian Youth Club will have its awards banquet which will feature a slide presentation of this year's events. Everyone is invited to attend. Those attending are asked to bring a salad, vegetable or dessert.

The Bible study series, "Philippians--How to Have Joy" by Kay Arthur, is being offered at 7 p.m. on Mondays and 10 a.m. on Wednesdays. A men's group meets at 7 p.m. each Sunday. Babysitting is provided.

Three prayer times are offered each week: 7 a.m. on Tuesdays;, 7 p.m. on Wednesdays; and noon on Thursdays.

In January of 1989, a new fellowship of churches, known as Christ's Church Fellowship, was born. This fellowship uses seven faith guideposts to promote spiritual growth. The second guidepost is based on Acts 1:8. CCF believes that all of the gifts operating in the First Century Church are available to believers today.

The public is invited to attend all services, Bible studies and prayer times. If you need more information, please call 364-0373.

Bulls sneak by Pistons in OT

By The Associated Press

Michael Jordan had a feeling the struggling Detroit Pistons wouldn't let the Chicago Bulls have anything easy.

"We never thought they'd give up, they always make it tough for us," Jordan said after the Bulls' 109-103 victory Thursday night. "We never underestimate them. Give them credit. They made some big shots in the fourth quarter and we went a little cold. I couldn't make a free throw."

Jordan missed five of his 11 free throws, but scored eight of his 36 points in overtime for Chicago.

Despite trailing the first-place New York Knicks by a game in the Eastern Conference, the Bulls will win homecourt advantage in the conference playoffs with victories at Charlotte tonight and at New York on Sunday.

But Jordan isn't predicting a Madison Square Garden showdown just yet.

"Charlotte had the night off and they're waiting for us," Jordan said.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Phoenix 115, Portland 114; Houston 112, Minnesota 110, in overtime; San Antonio 131, Denver 111; and Seattle 100, the Los Angeles Clippers 98.

The Pistons, who trailed 80-67 after three quarters, rallied in the fourth quarter and had a chance to win in the final seconds of regulation.

The loss moved Detroit, which has lost four consecutive games, a step closer to missing the playoffs for the first time in 10 years. The Pistons trail eighth-place Indiana by two games with two to play, including tonight against the Pacers.

"Close, but no cigar," said Isiah Thomas, who scored 28 points for Detroit, all after the first half. "We're fighting for our playoff life and just have to go home and win the two games we have left. It's a strange league and funny things can happen."

Dennis Rodman, who grabbed 24 rebounds, guarded Jordan in overtime, but that didn't stop the NBA's leading scorer for seven straight years.

"I felt when they switched Rodman on me, I could get to the hole quicker," Jordan said.

He put the Bulls ahead to stay 101-100 with 3:23 left in overtime and then hit two more baskets, the last giving Chicago a 107-101 lead with 52 seconds remaining.

Scottie Pippen had 25 points and B.J. Armstrong 20 for the Bulls. Joe Dumars had 26 points for Detroit.

Rockets 112, T-wolves 110, OT

Houston won for the 31st time in 40 home games and extended its winning streak to 11 with a victory over Minnesota, which lost its 11th straight.

Matt Bullard's jumper with 1.2 seconds left in overtime broke a tie and gave him a career-high 28 points, including five 3-pointers.

Although the Rockets led 77-59 in the third quarter, Chris Smith boosted the Timberwolves into overtime with his second 3-point basket of the season with 2.5 seconds left in regulation.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 33 points, 13 rebounds, five steals and five blocked shots for the Rockets, who will play the Clippers in the first round of the playoffs. Doug West scored 29 points, Christian Laettner 23 and Chuck Person 22 for the Wolves.

Suns 115, Trail Blazers 114

Phoenix won at Portland on Charles Barkley's buzzer-beating bank shot in his first game since coming off the injured list.

The lead changed hands three times in the final 3.7 seconds. Tom Chambers converted a three-point play for a 113-112 Suns lead and Cliff Robinson's 20-footer put the Trail Blazers ahead 114-113 with 0.5 seconds left.

Phoenix coach Paul Westphal designed an inbounds pass off the backboard to Cedric Ceballos, but no one touched the ball and the clock didn't start until the ball reached Barkley's hands.

Barkley finished with 25 points for the Suns.

Terry Porter scored 24 points and Rod Strickland had 17 points, eight rebounds and nine assists for the Blazers.

Spurs 131, Nuggets 111

San Antonio clinched fifth place in the Western Conference and a first-round date against Portland after Dale Ellis scored 18 of his 30 points in a 47-point first quarter against Denver.

The Spurs never were threatened after taking a 42-15 lead with two minutes left in the first quarter, which ended 47-23.

SuperSonics 100, Clippers 98

Seattle won at Los Angeles as reserve forward Eddie Johnson scored 23 points and Shawn Kemp had 20 points and five blocked shots.

Stanley Roberts scored a career-high 27 points and had 13 rebounds for the Clippers.

Mavs have two chances to win

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks hope to escape the dubious distinction of sharing the worst record in NBA history with the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers. They're running out of time.

Only two games remain in the regular season - tonight in Reunion Arena against the Minnesota Timberwolves and Saturday night in Houston against the Houston Rockets.

"The clock is ticking," Mavs guard Derek Harper said. "We don't want to be in the record book with the 76ers. We have to win the 10th game."

At the end of February, the Mavericks had only four victories - winning on an average of once a month - and no one gave them much chance of escaping the ignominy of worst NBA record ever.

But then No. 1 draft pick Jim Jackson ended his long holdout, and his signing helped pick up the Mavericks' sagging fortunes.

The Mavericks' best chance to avoid the tie with Philadelphia appears to be tonight's game at home against Minnesota, which has the NBA's second-worst record, just 18 victories, rather than against Midwest Division winner Houston on the Rockets' home court.

Chances have come and gone for the Mavs to escape the record book. They lost in overtime at home last weekend to the Sacramento Kings, who have the league's fourth-worst record.

After the Sacramento loss, which ended with Harper missing a last-second shot from outside, the Mavericks' guard sat at midcourt for a full minute, contemplating the Mavs' miserable season.

"This is killing us," he said. "We've got to get this monkey off our backs."

It's been a bizarre and bad season for Dallas, which started the year by firing coach Richie Adubato.

Then owner Donald Carter got into a salary dispute with Jackson.

Finally, Carter signed Jackson and Adubato's replacement, Quinn Buckner, on the same day in March.

Jackson got the same amount of money he would have received had he played the entire season.

Also, Carter didn't get immediate help from Buckner, who signed a five-year deal. Buckner finished out the year as a broadcaster for NBC.

Jackson has been the solid player expected of the sixth pick in the draft. His passing and scoring ability turned the Mavs into a victory threat, at least in their home games.

"Jackson has played well, considering his late start," said Gar Heard, who took over as interim coach after Adubato's firing.

But Jackson isn't used to losing. His Ohio State teams were usually contending for the Big Ten title.

"Sure, the losing hurts, but I try not to think about it," Jackson said. "I'm a rookie and I'm still learning."

Victory or no victory tonight, the Mavericks will finish as the worst team in Dallas history. The expansion team in 1980 won 15 games.

Teagle joins Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) - Terry Teagle, a former first-round pick of the Houston Rockets, returned to his old team Thursday as a replacement for injured guard Vernon Maxwell.

Teagle signed a contract through the rest of the season to bolster the Rockets' guard position. Maxwell, having his best season with the Rockets, suffered a broken wrist and is out for at least five games.

Teagle spent two seasons with the Rockets, six seasons with Golden State and two more with the Los Angeles Lakers. He has a career average of 11.6 points.

Teagle most recently was playing for Benetton in the European League.

Teagle was in uniform for Thursday's game in the Summit against the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Houston also played the game without starting forward Robert Horry, out with tendinitis in his right knee.

The first organized baseball team was the New York Knickerbockers, formed in 1845.

Mariners' Bosio hurls no-hitter vs. BoSox

By The Associated Press

Chris Bosio didn't even think about a no-hitter until the ninth inning. He didn't have to think about it for long, either.

The Seattle right-hander walked his first two batters Thursday night, but was perfect the rest of the way, sending the Mariners to a 7-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox at the Kingdome.

In the ninth, he got three quick grounders to end the game and enter baseball history.

"To be honest with you, I just waited until the last inning," he said. "You know, after that last Detroit game (the Tigers won 8-7 Sunday on a two-run homer in the ninth), anything was possible and I just wanted to try to get that leadoff guy."

Bosio walked two and struck out four for his ninth career shutout. He threw 97 pitches, 60 for strikes, in beating the first-place Red Sox. Boston, which entered the game with a .285 team average, hit into 18 groundouts.

With a Kingdome crowd of 13,604 standing for the ninth inning, John Valentin led off with a routine grounder to shortstop and Tony Pena hit an easy grounder to third for the second out.

"It was kind of hard to concentrate after I got that first guy," Bosio said. "The crowd was just unbelievable, I mean it was just absolutely unbelievable."

On the last out, Riles hit a slow grounder to shortstop Omar Vizquel, who made a bare-handed pickup as the ball bounced off the turf. His running throw nipped Riles by two steps.

"It makes things more exciting that way," Vizquel said of the barehanded play.

Bosio (1-1) got an excellent play from first baseman Tino Martinez in the third inning. Martinez fielded Riles' hard-hit ball on his knees and then threw to the pitcher to get the out.

The last time Boston was no-hit was by New York's Dave Righetti on July 4, 1983, at Yankee Stadium.

"That was the first game I've managed that there was a no-hitter," Seattle's Lou Piniella said. "As a player I was there for Righetti."

Bosio, signed as a free agent after going 16-6 with Milwaukee last season, threw the second no-hitter in the history of the Mariners' franchise.

"I'm not going to throw the ball 95 mph like Randy (Johnson). I have to hit my spots," he said.

It was Johnson who pitched Seattle's first no-hitter, on June 2, 1990 against Detroit. Johnson, who beat the Red Sox 5-0 on a four-hitter Wednesday night, was one of the first Mariners to grab Bosio in the postgame mayhem.

Bret Boone homered off Joe Hesketh (2-1) after a walk to Buhner in the third for his first homer of the season.

Twins 5, Brewers 4

Jim Deshaies allowed five hits in 6 2-3 innings to improve to 4-0 as Minnesota beat Milwaukee at the Metrodome. Deshaies has already matched his big-league victory total of last season, when he went 4-7 in 15 starts for San Diego.

Yankees 5, Athletics 1

New York made Ron Darling pay for five third-inning walks, scoring five runs and going on to beat Oakland at the Coliseum. The A's, who have lost six of their last seven games, are three games under .500 (5-8) for the first time since May 1987.

Sam Militello (1-1) and Scott Kamieniecki combined on a seven-hitter for the Yankees.

Angels 8, Indians 0

Rookie J.T. Snow homered twice, giving him four in his last three games, and Chuck Finley (2-0) pitched a two-hitter as California beat visiting Cleveland to sweep the three-game series.

Snow homered off Mark Clark (1-2) in the fourth inning and hit his sixth homer of the season in the seventh off Mike Christopher.

Blue Jays 6, Royals 3

David Cone, an $18 million free agent, dropped to 0-4 as rookie Pat Hentgen (2-1) pitched four-hit ball for eight innings to help visiting Toronto beat Kansas City. Cone, signed to a multiyear deal last December - including a $9 million signing bonus - gave up six hits in seven innings.

John Olerud and Paul Molitor each drove in two runs for the Blue Jays.

White Sox 3, Orioles 2

Chicago scored two ninth-inning runs off Gregg Olson on an error by center fielder Mike Devereaux to beat Baltimore at Camden Yards.

The rally enabled Jack McDowell (4-0) to earn his 11th straight victory in April. McDowell gave up six hits, walked two and struck out five in eight innings. Roberto Hernandez pitched the ninth for his second save.

Wakefield defies logic vs. Reds

PITTSBURGH (AP) - He has managed for 19 years, 11 in the minors and eight in the majors, so he pretty much figured he had seen it all. Then Jim Leyland saw Tim Wakefield's knuckleball.

He knew right away he was wrong. He had never seen anything like this.

"He defies all the rules, all logic," Leyland said after Wakefield broke virtually every existing rule of pitching in beating the Cincinnati Reds 5-4 Thursday. "He lives on the edge like no other pitcher I've ever seen."

Wakefield's darting, dipping, thrill-a-minute rollercoaster ride of a pitch is a contradiction in itself, the antithesis of the 95-mph fastballs and sharp-breaking curves that usually retire major-league hitters.

So perhaps it makes sense that the pitcher who throws it also challenges the conventional school of pitching. The school that insists pitchers should throw strikes and get ahead of the hitters, forcing them to hit the pitcher's pitch instead of the pitch they want.

When Wakefield pitches, a hitter knows he's going to get one pitch - the knuckleball - but he usually doesn't know where it's going.

Of course, the pitcher doesn't, either.

Wakefield walked nine - that's N-I-N-E - for the second time this season, yet won, just as he did in the Pirates' season opener. He has nearly as many walks (25) as hits allowed (26) in his 29 innings and has struck out only 17, yet is 2-2.

"The guys on the team earn their money when he's out there," Leyland said. "But there's one fact that still remains - he's 10-3 up here in the big leagues."

Wakefield, 8-1 as a rookie, looked like he would be 1-3 this season after Chris Sabo's two-run double gave the Reds a 3-0 lead in the first inning. But he gave up only one more hit - Juan Samuel's pinch-hit homer in the seventh - to finish with a four-hitter and outpitch former Pirates 20-game winner John Smiley (0-3).

Expos 3, Dodgers 1

Darrin Fletcher and Wil Cordero each hit run-scoring doubles in the eighth inning off Orel Hershiser (2-2) as Montreal beat Los Angeles to sweep the three-game series at Olympic Stadium. Jeff Fassero (1-0) pitched a perfect eighth inning for the victory. Mel Rojas got the last three outs for his fifth save.

Giants 13, Mets 4

Robby Thompson had four of San Francisco's 19 hits and drove in four runs as the Giants routed New York at Shea Stadium. Former Mets player Mark Carreon drove in three runs, two on his first home run of the season.

John Burkett (4-0) gave up four runs and four hits in 5 1-3 innings to become the NL's first four-game winner. Mets starter Pete Schourek fell to 1-2.

Marlins 4, Braves 3

Catcher Benito Santiago retrieved a bouncing pitch and tagged Otis Nixon out at the plate as he tried to score the tying run with two outs in the ninth, preserving Florida's victory over Atlanta at Joe Robbie Stadium. Jack Armstrong (2-2) got the win after holding Atlanta to one unearned run in seven innings. Bryan Harvey picked up his fourth save.

Steve Avery fell to 1-2.

Padres 2, Phillies 1

Andy Benes (3-1) gave up one run in 8 2-3 innings for his third straight victory and Bob Geren homered, leading San Diego past Philadelphia at Veterans Stadium.

Geren hit his home run leading off the fifth inning against Terry Mulholland (2-2). His last homer came Aug. 14, 1991 for the New York Yankees.

Cardinals 5, Rockies 2

Todd Zeile broke a 2-2 tie with an RBI single off Gary Wayne (0-2) to highlight a three-run eighth inning as St. Louis beat Colorado at Busch Stadium.

Mike Perez (2-1) struck out two of the three batters he faced in the eighth after the Rockies had tied it in the seventh. Lee Smith worked the ninth for his sixth save.

Canseco found innocent in court

CHICAGO (AP) - Texas Rangers slugger Jose Canseco has been found innocent on a misdemeanor battery charge filed after he punched a man in a Chicago nightclub last December.

After a four-hour trial, Cook County Judge William O'Malley rejected claims by Chicago resident Steven Basso that Canseco hit him without provocation.

"I don't know why people can't be left alone without being attacked by psychos," O'Malley said. "Mr. Basso testified himself that he should have left."

Canseco testified that Basso was acting irrational and screaming vulgarities at him and the woman Canseco was with. Canseco said he hit Basso, breaking his nose and knocking him unconscious, after Basso struck a male friend of Canseco's.

Oilers look for offensive linemen

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers say they're saving their maneuvering for draft day.

"There are three or four fellows we'd like and hope they will be there when we pick," general manager Mike Holovak said Thursday. "If we do anything, it won't be done until right before we pick so we know our player will be there."

The Oilers have a first round selection for the first time in three years and will make the 19th pick in the first round in Sunday's NFL draft.

Offensive linemen will be a priority although the Oilers have one of the best lines in the NFL. They lost starting left tackle Don Maggs to free agency and perennial Pro Bowl guard Mike Munchak has been plagued by injuries the past few seasons.

Holovak, who has stayed out of the free agent market, said it would take just the right selection for the Oilers to move up or down in the first round.

"If you want to move up it costs you draft picks and you hate to give up a pick," Holovak said.

Oilers scouts rate Louisiana State's Willie Roaf and Washington's Lincoln Kennedy at the top of the offensive lineman's list, but those players likely will be taken by the time Houston's makes its first pick.

Other top linemen who could still be available for the Oilers include Illinois' Brad Hopkins, 6-3, 305 pounds, Michigan's Steve Everitt, 6-4, 292 pounds, and South Carolina's Ernest Dye, 6-5, 333 pounds.

"Hopkins is an outstanding pass blocker and a fine athlete," Oilers scout Glen Cumby said.

Everitt could be a rookie starter at center, scout Dub Fesperson said.

"He's intense, smart and has a lot of athletic ability," Fesperson said.

"I wouldn't worry about him starting if (All-Pro center) Bruce Matthews is not there."

The Oilers have discussed moving Matthews to tackle to replace Maggs.

Kick returns also cost the Oilers last season and they'd like to get help from the draft. They also are looking for more speed at the outside receiver positions that also would benefit the returns.

New defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan would like to bolster the linebacking corps. He lost Rick Graf to free agency, depleting the position's depth.

Montanas like safety of Heartland

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - San Francisco fans looking for somebody to blame for losing Joe Montana might want to turn their wrath on the children of Kansas City.

The sight of kids playing outside in safe, clean neighborhoods helped persuade San Francisco's favorite couple to leave the Bay Area for Middle America, said both Joe and Jennifer.

"What was really appealing was the neighborhood feeling," Jennifer Montana said Thursday, one day after she and her husband bid an emotional farewell to San Francisco. "There were lots of children out. I heard great things about the school system."

Montana, who quarterbacked the 49ers to four Super Bowl victories in his 14 years there, said coming to Kansas City was more a football decision. But the community played a part, he said.

"You don't see kids and children out very often in the Bay Area, playing around in front of the home," he said. "To have that neighborhood feeling is difficult there. We still love it, however. But it's just a good feeling we have here."

Nobody feels better than Paul Hackett, who became good friends with Montana when he was 49ers quarterback coach from 1983-85.

Now the Chiefs' offensive coordinator, Hackett was the ace in the hole during two weeks of sometimes-bitter negotiations with the 49ers.

Hackett's main job this spring is installing the split-back offense that former 49ers coach Bill Walsh designed and Montana executed with fluid grace.

"The big thing about this offense is it always seems to put pressure on the defense," Montana said. "It's not a big throw-the-ball-downfield, hit-a-home-run-every-time kind of thing. It's more of a chisel away here and there, get 3, 5, 10, 12 yards.

"Always we'd try to keep something positive about the play so that you feel you're always gaining something on them. There's nothing more frustrating for a defense than to have an offense just methodically take you apart all the way downfield."

Montana said Hackett "cornered me as soon as I got to the stadium today."

It isn't often that we get a new public lake in Texas. In fact, the total number of public lakes in our region can be counted on one hand and still leave enough fingers remaining to give a proper hook 'em horns sign.

Mark your calendar for the Fourth of July weekend, the official opening of our newest lake, Palo Duro Reservoir. Located five miles north of Spearman on FM 760, this taxpayer-sponsored oasis has been abundantly stocked by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department with baitfish, yellow perch, catfish, smallmouth bass, northern bass, Florida Bass, and yes, even walleye. But these walleye are an Arkansas variety that are rumored to grow bigger and faster than their lazy cousins who lurk in Lake White River, Lake Greenbelt or Lake Meredith.

Palo Duro Reservoir was built and is managed by the Palo Duro River Authority. The purpose of the lake is to furnish water to the cities of Dumas, Sunray, Cactus, Stinnett, Gruver and Spearman.

The dam is 3,800 feet long and 128 feet high. The dam is 700 feet wide at the bottom and it tapers to 44 feet at the top. When full, the surface area of Lake Palo Duro will be 2,413 acres. The average lake depth, when and if full, will be 46 feet. The average depth at the dam will be 77 feet. The current lake level at the dam is about 35 feet, and local authorities are waiting for a good thunderstorm.

A.I.D. contour maps of Palo Duro can be found in many tackle stores, but now is the best time to go to the lake and see the bottom structure before it is flooded.

We look forward to the official opening. Congratulations to the taxpayers in Moore and Hansford Counties and the City of Stinnett for the wisdom and foresight to build Palo Duro.

Tip of the week--Take a video camera to Palo Duro Reservoir because it will record some of the bottom structural details that you might forget. Sure wish that I had used a video record of White River, Greenbelt and Meredith.

Better late than never--Playa Pete noticed several rednecks making a video of the dry lake bed at Umbarger's old Buffalo Lake. Too bad the dam has been permanently breached and will not hold water.

Spring turkey season end on Sunday, May 2. Because of the wet spring in 1992, the gobbler hunting is excellent in the eastern Panhandle areas from Lipscomb County down to Childress County.

Good hunting. Good fishing. 'Til next week, good bye, everybody.

Sabres edge Bruins in OT

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Hockey Writer

The Pittsburgh Penguins continue to make NHL playoffs history. The Buffalo Sabres, meanwhile, are making their own kind of history.

A franchise filled with playoff failure, the Sabres are on the verge of advancing to the second round for the first time 1983, thanks to a 4-3 overtime victory over the Boston Bruins on Thursday night.

"I've heard since I first got here that the Sabres have always got knocked out of the first round," Buffalo's Yuri Khmylev said after scoring the winning goal and giving the Sabres a stunning 3-0 lead in their best-of-7 Adams Division series. "I'm familiar with the history. I know the importance of the last goal."

A victory in Game 4 on Saturday in Buffalo would give the Sabres their first opening-round playoff series victory in seven tries.

While the Sabres were surprising the Bruins, who finished with the second-best record in hockey during the regular season, the powerful Penguins continued to surprise no one. They beat New Jersey 4-3 to extend their record playoff streak to 14 games, and can complete a sweep of the Patrick Division series on Sunday.

In other games, it was the New York Islanders 4, Washington 3 in overtime, and Montreal 2, Quebec 1 in overtime.

The Stanley Cup playoffs continue tonight with Chicago at St. Louis and Detroit at Toronto in the Norris Division and Vancouver at Winnipeg and Calgary at Los Angeles in the Smythe. Detroit, St. Louis and Vancouver lead their series 2-0, while the Calgary-Los Angeles series is tied 1-1.

PROVERBS: THE MOTTOES THE ISRAELITES LIVED BY!

THE WESTMINSTER DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE DESCRIBES THE BOOK OF PROVERBS AS A POETICAL WORK ON PRACTICAL PIETY! IT ALSO INCLUDES THE FABLE, THE RIDDLE, THE SATIRE, AND THE PARABLE. TRADITIONALLY, THE PROVERBS ARE ASCRIBED TO KING SOLOMON--ALTHOUGH MANY EXPERTS HAVE RECOGNIZED THAT SOME OF THE CHAPTERS, PARTICULARLY TWENTY TWO AND TWENTY THREE, ARE BASED UPON THE WISDOM OF THE EGYPTIAN PHARAOH AMEN-EM-OPE! NOT WITHSTANDING, THE PROVERBS HAD A CONTINUING INFLUENCE UPON THE LIVES OF DEVOUT ISRAELITES.

"PROUD AND HAUGHTY SCORNER IS HIS NAME, WHO DEALETH IN PROUD WRATH." (PROV. 21:24)

BUT...."CAST OUT THE SCORNER, AND CONTENTION SHALL GO OUT; YEA, STRIFE AND REPROACH SHALL CEASE." (PROV. 22:10)

...IN SUCH A WAY AS THIS, DID THE ANCIENT ISRALITES PUT INTO PRACTICE, IN THEIR DAILY LIVES, THE SAGE ADVICE GARNERED FROM THE BOOK OF PROVERBS!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live in a resort area in Florida, and a large number of Northerners are coming down to buy apartment condominiums and homes. My condo is up for sale, and I have compiled a list of dos and don'ts for prospective buyers:

1. Do not bring along another couple (the mavens). You are the buyer.
2. Do not check out an apartment for a friend. It wastes time, and nothing is gained.
3. Do not bargain if you don't intend to buy.
4. Keep appointments or give a call and cancel if you can't make it. It will be greatly appreciated.
5. Do not complain about the colors or decor--just say it's not what you're looking for.
6. Do not say, "I will get back to you,?" if you have no intention of doing it. It is so much nicer to say, "Thank you, but it isn't what I had in mind."
7. Remember, you are in someone's home. Do not open closets and drawers without asking permission.
8. Do not sit down and take up the seller's time if you aren't really interested. This is no ta social visit.
9. Don't say, "I have to ask my children," unless they are paying for it, or you are senile.
10. Do not ask specific prices on the phone. The approximate price is in the newspaper ad, and it's negotiable.
11. If you are lonely or depressed, don't respond to real estate ads as "therapy." Call a psychiatrist.
12. Do not expect the seller to hold the apartment or condo for more than 24 hours without a deposit.
13. Do not ask the seller to rent instead of sell. Look under "Rentals."
14. Do ask if there is a mortgage.
15. Do ask how much the maintenance and taxes are.
16. Do ask when the home is available.

Sorry to make you read such a long list, Ann, but these are things that people need to know.--Jean (Tamarac, Fla.)

DEAR JEAN: No list is too long if it educates people. Yours did, and I thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I feel the same way as "Partied Out in Buffalo," whose kid received birthday invitations from every child in his class.

I live in New Jersey, and children's birthday parties are a big business. They are held in restaurants, beauty parlors, craft shops, etc. You can even hire a birthday party coordinator. You must book these places several months in advance, and the cost can be astronomical. I think this is crazy.

I have a 4-year-old son, and we've been going to super-fancy birthday parties for three years. How did this lunacy get started?

What happens when the child gets older and achieves something REALLY important? Will the parents then hire Yankee Stadium?--Out of Hand in New Jersey

DEAR N.J.: I agree with you totally. lavish birthday parties for tots are for the parents, not the kids. It reminds me of the time I saw a 2-year-old ignore a $200 toy and play for hours with a pie tin and a homemade rag doll. I learned something that day.

Ann Landers' latest booklet, "Nuggets and Doozies," has everything from the outrageously funny to the poignantly insightful. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelop and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: While playing bingo recently at a local casino, I overheard a disturbing conversation. The man sitting next to me was telling his female companion how upset he was that he couldn't smoke in public places anymore. he said, "They will let 'those queers' sit next to you anywhere and give you AIDS, but they won't let you smoke. How's that for a world gone crazy?"

I should tell you that I am a well-respected businessman and totally committed to my lifetime companion, my family and my friends. I served proudly in the U.S. Army for four years. I am also gay.

I don't smoke, nor do I complain about those who do. I respect my fellow human beings, no matter what their race, religion or sexual orientation. I am absolutely convinced that I was born gay, and I am proud of who I am.

Ann, please inform your reader that AIDS also afflicts the heterosexual community. The person sitting next to you in a theater might have AIDS and he or she need not be gay. And for those who are really uninformed, reassure them once again that you cannot get AIDS from sitting next to someone who is infected.

I thank God for those who lend support to the gay community. Most of us are hard-working, productive citizens who look just like anyone else. All we ask is that we be treated decently.--An Ann Fan in Las Vegas

DEAR LAS VEGAS: There is now a growing body of evidence that human sexual orientation is determined at birth. I hope that when these scientific findings become better known, gay bashing will become totally unacceptable.

As for that ignoramus in the casino, write him off as hopeless. Like all bigots, he doesn't wish to know the truth. He'd rather hate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother-in-law is a very nice person. I realize that her housekeeping is none of my business, but she complains constantly because we rarely visit and when we do, we stay in a hotel.

To put it bluntly, Ann, I cannot stand being in her home. It's not merely untidy--it's a pigsty. I first realized what a poor housekeeper she was when I was two months pregnant. I became nauseated whenever we went to see her, and my husband couldn't understand why I kept smelling something that made me sick. I finally got him to look under her refrigerator. Guess what? He found a dead mouse. God alone knows how long it had been there.

Dirt and dust are everywhere, and there are fleas, too. The last time we slept there, the bedsheets were not clean, and we found dead bugs all around the room.

This woman is not physically disabled. She is perfectly capable of doing housework, but apparently she is so accustomed to the filth that she doesn't see (or smell) it.

My husband says I'm "a little too finicky." Do I sound unreasonable? Am I crazy-clean as my mother-in-law says? You decide, Ann.--Trouble in Carolina

DEAR CAROLINA: There's nothing wrong with you. It's your mother-in-law who needs to shape up.

I don't blame you for staying in a hotel when you visit her. One whiff of a dead mouse would be enough for me. Not only would I refuse to sleep in that house, I wouldn't eat there, either. If your husband gives you any more static, tell him to write to me. I'll straighten him out.

Gem of the Day: Murphy's Law: Anything dropped in the bathroom will fall in the toilet.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: How do I set colors for washable clothing? I put vinegar in cold water and soaked an all-cotton sheer hot-pink blouse. The color still bleeds after rinsing many times. — Lorraine Hines, Auburn, Ind.

According to the International Fabricare Institute, garments that aren't colorfast when bought can't be made colorfast.

The only way a garment can be made colorfast is if the manufacturer goes several steps further in the dyeing process, and this could take more time and more money.

Soaking the garment in vinegar and salt to lessen the tendency of the dyes in the garment to spread has been a Heloise reader hint for years. Though the above method won't actually keep the dyes from bleeding, it might slow the process down.

The main thing to remember is to follow the care label instructions exactly, especially when it reads "wash separately." This will cause a lot fewer headaches. — Heloise

HAND TOWELS

Dear Heloise: I have a constant frustration with hand towels and dish towels that have seen many washes and will not absorb water.

Do you have any suggestions as to how to improve the absorbency? — Barbara Ricksham, San Francisco, Calif.

The problem could be caused by an excessive soap residue or a buildup of fabric softeners. This buildup tends to weigh the fibers down and cause them to be less absorbent.

You might try adding fabric softeners to the wash less frequently or, if possible, run the towels through the rinse cycle twice with the hottest water safe for the fabric. — Heloise

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.
