City studies options to improve water situation

Concern over falling levels in the city's water field brought city officials together with hydro-geologists and engineers to discuss options.

The Lone Wolf Groundwater District and Pete Kampfer, city manager, met last week with an Austin-based company used as a consulting firm by Texas water districts to do research and development.

Sue Young, the general manager of the LWGD met with the company's hydro-geologists and engineers again on Monday in Austin to gain a better idea of the situation.

"We've been working with them for about two years to develop a three dimensional illustration of water in our county so we would have a pretty good idea for the future," Young said.

"It's a really funny aquifer. Rivers run through it. If you hit on a river you've got a gold mine. But if you hit a mesa, the water is just standing there and pulls down quickly," she said.

The district and the city are working on a short term fix now and at the same time a hydro-geologist is working on a long term fix for "a practical well field that will not draw down like the one drilled in 1989," according to Young.

The existing well field has too many wells, too closely spaced, for the amount of land, preventing the aquifer from recharging when running 24/7. In addition, several of the wells have pumps that are too large and pump the well down before it can recharge.

Although specific details of the short term fix have not yet been released, no plans are in the works for drilling deeper in the current well field at this point in time, according to Pete Kampfer, city manager.

"We're just trying to conserve and get the water table in the well field to correctly align with demand," he said.

Representatives from the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality met with Kampfer Tuesday afternoon for an annual audit.

"TCEQ checked the city's system and concurred that the levels were declining, but were not at the rationing stage yet," Kampfer said.

They also expressed concern that the monitoring system was not functioning properly.

The city's well field can currently handle demands for around 600,000 gallons of water a day.

Golf tournament to help students

The 6th annual C-City Rotary Club Pat Taylor Memorial Night Golf Tournament is more than just good golfing fun played at the Wolf Creek Golf Links with glow-in-the-dark balls.

It raises money for Rotary scholarships for Mitchell County graduating seniors.

This year's tournament and steak cookout will be held Saturday, June 26.

Tee time for the four person ABCD scramble begins at 6 p.m. Players will receive a free steak dinner with all the trimmings. Additional dinners may be purchased for $10 each for adults. Players will go nine rounds, then break for dinner and play the final nine rounds in the dark.

Merchandise prizes will be awarded for first and second place, along with prizes for the longest drive and closest to the pin.

This year's tournament is named in honor of member Pat Taylor, who was killed last year in a motorcycle accident.

For more information, to sponsor a hole or to make a donation to the Rotary Club for scholarships contact Don Wood at 325-728-3722 or Wolf Creek Golf Links 325-728-5514.

Main Street pursues vision for historic downtown area

The Main Street Program is moving forward with plans that are future-oriented.

Under the leadership of the Community Development Department, Main Street will focus on a more "bricks and mortar" approach with incentives to encourage downtown businesses to participate in the program.

"Currently Main Street is only set up to do matching grants on completed facade work up to $3,500. Over the last six years, Main Street only gave out four grants," Amie Wood, CDD director said. "We're looking to expand the program in order to get more participation from downtown owners."

The passage of the Heritage Preservation Ordinance by the city council is one step toward the goal. Establishing a historical downtown district grants protection to historic buildings and seeks ways to restore and preserve Colorado City's history in a physical way.

Another method to encourage restoration in downtown is a tax incentive ordinance.

"Building owners get 25% off their city taxes just for being in the district," Wood said. The incentive also applies to qualified historic buildings which may not be located in the downtown district.

Owners can receive an additional 50% off city taxes for large-scale building maintenance such as facade work, new roofing, structural reinforcement, plumbing or electrical work.

"There's lots of things you can do to qualify for doing what you have to do to prevent the building from falling into disrepair; all the big things all the way down to small things like replacing windows," Wood said.

Participants will need to follow design guidelines to preserve the town's physical historical appearance. However, the program is completely voluntary. Building owners do not have to participate, preserving their autonomy, but making them ineligible for the tax incentives.

A loan program through local banks partnering with Main Street makes it easier to get funds for renovation and repair, according to Wood.

"The reorganization of the program is to get available money at the local level to the projects that need it," she said. "We're working with the state historical commission to bring us in line with similar ways other communities are doing these types of

Westbrook ISD gets new principal

Westbrook's new principal is no stranger to the school.

Cassie Petty spent the past eight years teaching at the school before taking on the challenge as principal.

"I taught a little bit of everything," said Petty, who spent six years as the girls basketball coach, taught junior high math and elementary PE. She was also involved in UIL events and One Act Play.

She did a short stint as principal in 2008-2009, assisting the Coahoma principal.

"It was more of an internship with the principal to get experience," Petty said.

"Working with students and parents, administration caught my eye. It gives me a chance to reach the entire school as opposed to a few kids in classes," Petty said. "I have to fill some big shoes."

Petty will follow Doc Rowell, who retired after 45 years at Westbrook.

"This is a neat place to be. I'm excited to be a part of it and I'm ready to move forward," she said. "Westbrook captured my heart. I want to see it be as good as it can

KCCB sets celebratory full moon bonfire

A ceremonial bonfire celebrating the Strawberry Moon will be held at 7 a.m. Saturday, June 26 east of town on Business 20.

Citizens are urged to bring their tree limbs and untreated, unpainted wood to the bonfire site before that time, according to Bob Reilly, Keep Colorado City Beautiful president.

KCCB asks that nothing other than limbs and untreated lumber be brought to the site. KCCB volunteers have been working daily to separate unwanted materials from the bonfire pile.

"To bring other materials to the site makes for unnecessary work for the KCCB volunteers and threatens to take us out of compliance with TCEQ regulations," Reilly said.

The Mitchell County Sheriff's Office has already fined three individuals for dumping materials other than wood and limbs at the site and will continue to police the area until the bonfire, according to Reilly.

"KCCB welcomes citizens to come out Saturday morning to celebrate the Strawberry Moon observance," he said.

City to issue informational trash pick-up flyers

Flyers with information concerning the new city-wide garbage pick-up system will be ready for distribution soon.

The city is compiling information for the flyers on basic garbage pick-up facts and will make them available to the public within the next two weeks, according to Amie Wood, Community Development Department director.

The flyers will be mailed or hand delivered to all residents within the city limits and will also be available online at the city's website: www.coloradocitytexas.org.

"The flyer will address the most commonly asked questions and give information about the new garbage pick-up system," Wood said.

Other information includes contact numbers for questions not covered in the flyer.

"We're trying to make the transition the best it can be for Republic and the city," Wood said.

The city awarded a contract to Republic for once a week pickup, designed to help the city handle garbage collection more efficiently and extend the life of the city's landfill, which will be designated as a Type 4 landfill.

The Midland-based company will provide 853 containers, which will service 1706 residences. Provisions for designated handicapped residences and homes without alleyways will be taken into consideration.

Each 1.5 yard dumpster will be shared by two residences.

The city anticipates the flyers will be ready for delivery by next week and garbage pickup service should begin soon afterwards, according to Wood.

USDA hosts Office Day June 30

USDA Rural Development representatives will be holding a Rural Development Office Day for the City of Colorado City

June 30, 2010, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. to present program information and applications to the public. The office day will be held at the Civic Center, 157 West 2nd. Information will be provided about USDA Rural Development Housing, Community and Business and Cooperative loan and grant programs.

USDA Rural Development works to ensure rural citizens can participate fully in the global economy through technical assistance and programs that help rural Americans build strong economies to improve their quality of life. Rural Development loans and grants assist rural communities meet their basic needs by building water and wastewater systems, financing decent, affordable housing, supporting electric power and rural businesses, including cooperatives and supporting community development with information and technical assistance including broadband initiatives. USDA Rural Development representatives will be available during the office day to answer questions and assist individuals with applications in all program areas.

USDA Rural Development Housing Programs offer loans and grants to families with very low to moderate income levels in towns and cities meeting certain population requirements. Loans are primarily used to help income eligible individuals or households purchase homes in rural areas. Funds can be used to build, repair and renovate a home, or to purchase and prepare sites with water and sewage facilities. For very low income families who own homes in need of repair, the Home Repair Loan and Grant Program offers funding for renovations. Funding has previously been requested to repair a leaking roof, make a home wheelchair accessible, repair damaged or faulty wiring and to install a waste disposal system.

USDA Rural Development Community Programs enhance the quality of life for rural Texans by providing funds to governmental entities, nonprofit organizations and Indian Tribes for essential community facilities and services. Funds may be used for a variety of community projects. Previous funds have been used to enlarge, improve or construct schools, libraries, farmers markets, medical clinics, assisted living centers, public buildings, community centers or fund new and improved water and wastewater facilities. Funds are also available to purchase public safety equipment such as ambulances, firefighting equipment and other required emergency service gear.

Chamber to host July 4th activities

From planes to fireworks, Colorado City will offer plenty of excitement Saturday, July 3rd as the Chamber of Commerce sponsors its annual Independence Day events.

The day's activities will begin with the J.O. Dockrey Fly-In at 7 a.m. at the Colorado City Airport, located off Hwy 208 north of Colorado City.

Approximately 500 spectators and pilots are expected and pilots have been invited from all over the country, including Colorado, New Mexico, Nevada and Arkansas.

Members of the City National Bank will be on hand to cook up a tasty breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, sausage, Texas toast, jelly, coffee and juice. Pilots eat free and spectators can enjoy the meal for $5.

"Approximately 550 people are served in less than three hours," said Sandy Ellis, Chamber of Commerce director.

Abilene author and pilot Nancy Robinson Masters will emcee the event again this year. Masters has written dozens of books for elementary students and is a popular speaker at local civic organizations and in schools. She has emceed the fly in for a number of years and attended since the fly-in's early days.

Plaques will be awarded at 9 a.m. to the oldest and youngest pilot, the most unusual aircraft, the longest distance flown and the oldest aircraft.

The Eagle's Nest Skydivers, featuring Dave Watts, will entertain visitors and the chamber will be selling caps and T-shirts to commemorate the day's fun.

Incumbent pilots should plan on making fuel arrangements since the Colorado City Airport has no fuel accommodations.

The fun continues in the afternoon at Ruddick Park with free swimming for everyone from 1 to 5 p.m. Numerous children's activities are in the works, such as jumping castles and water games. The annual parade will also be held in the park.

Vendors are invited to set up free in the park. "All we ask is they bring their own electricity and clean up afterwards," said Sandy Ellis, Chamber of Commerce director. For more information call the Chamber office, 325-728-3403.

The Knights of Columbus will be grilling hamburgers and the CHS grillers will be selling brisket burritos.

Live music is also on the agenda, so families are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, blankets, picnic baskets and enjoy the day.

The fireworks will begin at 9:45 p.m. provided by Western Enterprises.

The website, located at txu.com/billhelp is designed to give consumers the ability to identify common causes of high electricity costs and provides a number of easy-to-use tools to help consumers learn about and manage their energy consumption.

Highlights of the website include:

■ An Energy Thieves Calculator that helps identify household electronic devices that continue to draw power even when they're not in use;

■ An Energy Savings Guide for indoor and outdoor tips to save energy;

The TXU Energy Personal Energy Advisor that provides consumers with a list of tools, tips, and projects which can help them reduce usage based on their responses to a few simple questions;

■ A section on understanding electricity costs with information to help consumers understand their bills by walking them through how to read their meters and understand their electricity bills;

■ Information on TXU Energy AidSM, the company's bill payment assistance program, the largest among electricity providers in the nation;

■ Information on TXU Energy's low-income discount program. TXU Energy is the only retail electric provider in Texas that voluntarily provides an approximate 10 percent discount for participating low-income customers. This discount is in addition to the one provided by the State of Texas System Benefit Fund -- the state directed program for low-income assistance on energy bills;

Spade Ranch rings visible from space

Meteor crater or salt dome? For years the concentric rings on the Spade Ranch were considered the results of a meteor impact.

However recent studies by a professor at Midland College cast a different light on the unusual formation.

Michael Makowsky, professor of geography at Midland College and colleague Danny McNeese began investigating the rings after a science documentary rekindled Makowsky's interest in meteor craters.

"Earlier this year, I was visiting the Odessa Meteor Crater with two colleagues," Makowsky said. "While I had visited the site many times before, my interest in the site was rekindled after watching an episode of 'Meteorite Men' on the Science Channel, which featured the Odessa impact site. While we were walking the dusty paths that crisscross that crater, one of my colleagues mentioned another nearby 'crater' SW of Colorado City, on Spade Ranch."

Growing up in West Texas, Makowsky was surprised he had not heard of the crater before. A Google Earth search turned up the two concentric rings to the right of Hwy 163, southwest of Colorado City.

"With a feature as remarkably obvious as this one was from space, I expected to see a Google Earth Community 'tag' that would explain what it was, but to my surprise, there was none," he said.

An internet search of the Earth Impact Database and other sources turned up no information on the Spade Ranch rings. Makowsky and McNeese, along with Makowsky's son Jake, received permission to visit the crater in February.

"Assuming it was a crater, we brought metal detectors and rare-earth magnets to search for meteorites. We surveyed the rings. The outer ring is approximately 4000' in circumference and rises 25'-30' above its surroundings. The inner ring is covered in local vegetation (grasses, shrubs, and trees) and rises another 20' above the outer ring."

Not only did the investigators find no meteorites, the depression associated with impact craters was missing. Instead the rings rose upwards with a small hill in the center. Rock materials in and around the area suggest the rocks were pushed up from below, rather than ejected outward as a result of an impact.

While there are examples of impacts, like the Sierra Madera impact south of Ft. Stockton, that will resemble a hill or mountain over time, Makowsky suspects the Spade Ranch crater is too small to fit into this category.

"After speaking with geology colleagues and two experts on impact sites and based on what information, research, and evidence I have found, I am inclined to believe that the rings on Spade Ranch are not a result of a meteorite impact but are rather the result of a geologic phenomenon called diapirism where an underground salt dome has welled upwards creating a visible bulge capped by a layer of rock," he said. "Salt domes are commonly associated with surface features that are circular and I do not think it would be unusual for salt domes to exist in this area."

Makowsky's research turned up other salt domes similar to the Spade Ranch rings, but "the features on Spade Ranch are the most remarkable set of concentric rings I've ever seen on earth. I can't find anything that is so perfect," Makowsky said.

To locate the rings using Google Earth, type in Colorado City, TX in the search window. Follow HW 163 S, SW past the lake. The rings are visible to the east of the road as it bends due south.

PERFECT CONCENTRIC CIRCLES mark the unusual rings on the Spade Ranch, visible from satellite orbit through the Google Earth website. The rings caught the interest of Midland professor Michael Makowsky.

Water conservation doesn't mean the end of green yards

Just as we were lulled into hoping that this was going to be a banner year for rainfall and we might break out of the drought, we received a wake-up call that the drought is not broken at all. One of the heart-wrenching things that really bothers folks is to watch our lawns burn up. As we see by our "Yard of the Month" winning photos, our lawns are one of the treasures for each of us.

However, they can also be one of the most mismanaged parts of our home landscape.

One of the most common mistakes we make is improper care of our lawns. Watering and fertilizing are two of the most important secrets for home lawns to survive extended dry spells. Hopefully, the following tips will help put your lawn on track to get past a dry spell.

Most of us tend to overlook mowing as a basic tool in lawn care. It is very common to use the "when I get time" rule for mowing. This approach, while the easiest to enact, often tends to add stress on lawns. Suggested mowing heights for the two most common types of grass in Mitchell County may help: St. Augustine should be mowed at a height of no more than three inches while Bermuda type grasses are better kept from one to two inches high. By targeting grass to be kept at recommended heights, we encourage a more dense, deeply rooted lawn, thus, enabling plants to utilize moisture stored deeper in the soil profile.

The old "rule of thumb" still holds true: never remove more than one-third of the leaf area at any one time! This will prevent stress on your lawn. Take time to adjust your mower and follow this rule.

Watering is a critical ingredient when it comes to building a quality, hardy lawn.

Most of us have the ability to apply water, but, do we really know how we are watering?

Knowing the drought tolerance of a particular type of grass can help us understand the water needs of a lawn. St. Augustine grass has only fair drought tolerance while Bermuda is classified as a turfgrass with good tolerance.

This does not mean infrequent, shallow watering will sustain Bermuda through a drought. Proper watering is crucial to any lawn. To properly time lawn irrigation, you must first identify an area in your lawn that is the first to show signs of water stress. Irrigate your entire lawn when this problem area first shows signs of needing a drink. The most common signs of stress are: grass leaves show a dull, bluish color; leaf blades begin to curl and roll and footprints persist in the grass for extended time.

Proper application of water can be best accomplished by using the following approach to calculate just how much water you are applying. Set out five or six open top cans randomly in the sprinkler pattern. Tuna cans have short sides and work well. Turn on your sprinkler for 30 minutes, and at the end of the time, measure the depth of the water in each can. Add the amount of water in each can together to calculate a total among the cans. Then divide the total by the number of cans to determine an average for all five cans. This will then tell you how much water your system applies in 30 minutes. This figure is useful because you can then calculate how long it will take your particular irrigation system to apply one inch of water.

JOHN SENTER
MITCHELL COUNTY
CEA-AG

Next, use a spade or other type of probe and push into the soil. The probe will easily pass through wet soil but will become difficult when you reach dry dirt. This tells you how deep your earlier determined average applied will wet your lawn. Finally, you will know how much water you apply in an hour and how deep the soil profile is wet.

Your ultimate goal is to wet the soil to a depth of six inches at every watering. In addition, you will also know how long to allow sprinklers to operate to apply the targeted amount of water.

Proper timing and application

OPINION & COMMENTARY

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PUBLIC RECORDS

Letter to the Editor:

In reference to our water conservation ordinance for Colorado City, it is my understanding from the news media that our water situation is at a critical state and all citizens are required to use common sense to conserve water.

At approximately 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 19th, I had occasion to visit our hospital. At that time the temperature was in the upper 90s and wind was 10 to 15 mph. All above-ground sprinklers on the entire hospital grounds were going full force. I hesitate to estimate how many thousands of gallons of water were lost to evaporation.

I fail to see how pretty green landscape can contribute to health care.

I recommend that the hospital administration exercise more emphasis on health care and less on blatant, wasteful practices.

Respectfully,
Dan Dannheim

Editor's Note: According to the hospital's maintenance manager Bob Martin, the Mitchell County Hospital District waters the lawn and plants at the hospital with well water.

WATER

Winter time demand for Colorado City is between 500,000 and 600,000 gallons a day.

Unfortunately, summer time demand increases to 1-1.2 million gallons a day, reflected in yard watering, filling pools and more personal water usage.

"We're trying conservation and will be aggressive in enforcing that conservation," Kampfer said, emphasizing the need for self-policing by citizens and for them to be aware of sprinkler usage, water run off and violations of conservation practices.

"There is no quick solution. It will take six months or longer to get a solution set up. And that will only be a 3-5 year fix," Kampfer said, adding he feels sure the high usage will slack off in September.

Any long term solutions will be expensive and detailed, according to Young.

"In the future, water is going to be more expensive than oil. It's such an important commodity that it's hard to imagine the effect on all Texas communities," she said. "We are working fast and furiously to solve this problem and get a long term fix to see the city through the next 50-100 years."

"The county, city and water district are working closely together to get this done. Pete is dedicated to solving our problem. He jumped on it fast and continues to stick with it," she said.

Although the city has monitored the water field levels in the past, the water district will join forces with the city to examine the well fields in the future.

"We will pay really close attention to the city wells and make them physically accessible for monitoring and maintenance," said Young. Currently the fields are accessible only electronically.

The situation is unique for Colorado City residents who have not had to practice water conservation in the past.

Young, an Abilene native, never recalls not conserving water in the summers in Abilene.

"It's time for everybody to learn to conserve this precious commodity," she said. "It's something that needed to be done for a long time."

projects."

The Mitchell County Historical Commission is looking for matching grants to help business owners and Wood is researching and applying for any grant available to help with the restoration of the downtown.

"Money and time are the biggest obstacles. We're trying everything we can to make available some resources," she said. "The goal is to get the downtown clean and back up and running."

"The design guidelines will help business owners make historic decisions about their renovation and repairs, to maintain the historical integrity we are so proud of. Our downtown is older than so many communities. We rival Abilene, KS for cattle drive history. That's something to be proud of," Wood said. "If we're going to be a historic downtown area, let's look like a historic downtown area."

Another project in the works is the Retail Coach Project which brings in an outside professional to review a city's strengths and weaknesses.

The company does an analysis of downtown and retail business districts in general, then makes recommendations how to further expand or develop niche markets beneficial to the merchants and city in general.

"Tourism is a process," Wood said. "The nicer our downtown looks, the more people will want to come. The more money they spend, the longer they'll want to stay. The foundation is getting the downtown stable and getting it where it looks nice."

Wood stresses long term planning as essential to revitalizing the downtown area. "Everything we do needs to be working toward that plan. We need to be future-thinking," she said.

Junktique Jamboree, September 25-26 will continue with the same goal of providing something different every year to keep people interested.

"We will have some new entertainment and new vendors and we are partnering with other people and organizations to make that weekend a full-on event for everyone visiting Colorado City," Wood said. "There are always things in the making; new ideas, new ways to get something accomplished, new ways to move forward."

One of those new ideas percolating in the future might be a BarnRaisers Association, where helping one's neighbor harks back to frontier days where community development was a group project.

"One volunteer spends six hours cleaning trash from 1-20 down Hickory Street and across 2nd Street," Wood said. "If everyone did what was directly in front of them for a few minutes each day—pull a weed, pick up a piece of trash in their neighbor's yard, water a flower—it would make a huge difference."

not only adds stamina to your lawn, it encourages deep root growth and also importantly, will make sure that you are using only the amount of water your lawn requires. Never irrigate your lawn to the point of runoff, wasting water will not benefit your lawn and will only show up in your utility bill, not in the improvement and appearance of your grass.

Wilson's Weekly Psalm 33 - Rejoice in the Lord

"Rejoice in the Lord, O you righteous! For praise from the upright is beautiful" (v.1). What an honor and privilege it is to worship God. The 33rd Psalm gives us bountiful reasons to praise God.

We praise God because of His word, which is right and true. God is a lover of righteousness and justice and the earth is full of the goodness of God (v.4,5).

We praise God for creating the world by His word. Through His word, His command, all was done. We as inhabitants of the world should stand in awe of Him and all that He has done for us (v.6-9).

We praise God for His counsel which stands for ever. Plans of men and nations will have no affect against God. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, and the people whom He has chosen as His own inheritance." We are to trust in His plans (v.10-12).

We praise God for His ever watching eye. He looks down from heaven. He works in the world today through providence. No one can be delivered because of strength or might or power or wealth. The eye of the Lord is watching for those who fear Him, put their hope in His mercy, and whose souls wait for the Lord. He will deliver us. He is our help and shield (v.13-20).

We praise God with joyful hearts that trust in His holy name! (v.21,22). It may be that your heart doesn't seem to have much to rejoice about. If so, turn to God! There are many reasons to praise God. Most importantly, we praise Him for sending His Son to die for our sins that we might have eternal life. If we can help you on the road to true joy, don't hesitate to call.

Wolves, Hawks and Cranes predicted to make playoffs

Dave Campbell's 2010 Texas Football Magazine has hit the newsstands and the 2010 pre-season predictions have the Wolves, along with Wall and Crane, in the playoffs.

Other teams in the re-aligned Class 2A District 2 include Kermit, Denver City, Alpine and Grape Creek.

Most observers feel Crane will be the top team again, coming off a 12-2 record Division II Regional Finalist season.

According to the magazine, Colorado City will return five starters on offense and seven on defense. Senior linebacker J.C. Johnson is the pre-season choice as defensive MVP, an award he won in 2009, while Wall's quarterback Brett Raspberry is the pre-season selection to win the Offensive MVP award.

The pre-season predictions are as follows along with the schools enrollment:

1. Crane (294)

2. Colorado City (296)
3. Wall (337)
4. Kermit (345)
5. Denver City (377)
6. Alpine (305)
7. Grape Creek (323)

...Six man rankings are released also

The six-man District 7 Division II pre-season rankings were released by Dave Campbell's Football Magazine last week.

The four-team district predictions are as follows:

1. Sterling City
2. Westbrook
3. Trent

4. Loraine
According to the magazine, the Loraine Bulldogs should benefit from more depth and experience in a smaller, more competitive four-team district.

The Westbrook Wildcats return good experience along with some solid JV players for the upcoming season.

LORAINE NEWS

By Sharon Green Loraine Correspondent

Hopefully everyone had a great Father's Day and enjoyed the precious time that we have with the men that sheltered, fed and clothed us throughout our childhood. We also honor all of the dads that enjoyed their Heavenly day with Father God.

Frank and Manuela Garcia celebrated their 40th Anniversary this year, which was on June 20th. They started the celebration on Saturday the 19th so that all of the kids would be able to participate. Frank Jr. and his family and Marcus were there. Adrian and his family, Leticia Garcia-Lopez and her family, Michelle Garcia-Bolin and her family, Angelic and her daughter Andrea all came in from San Angelo for the occasion.

Manuela said it was a great combination Anniversary/Father's Day and that five of the grandkids stayed behind to visit with her and Frank. Wow, congratulations on 40 years!

Roger Morris and his family had a large Father's Day gathering at their home in Valera. Tony and Alan Morris and their families came from Baird. Susie Morris from Valera. Tony and Crystal Morris-Williams and the boys, Mike and Melody Morris, Chris and Alisha Morris and the girls went as well. Said they had a wonderful day and made plans for a possible family camping trip later in the summer.

Cousins, AJ Williams and Campsey Morris celebrated their birthdays together on Saturday the 19th and besides loads of family, Campsey's best friends, Adriana Morris and Skler Aguilar were present.

Campsey was born in Alaska where her dad, Chris Morris was stationed in the Air Force in 2003. Campsey is a surname from mom, Alisha Green-Morris' side. Campsey (from Irish: Camsan meaning "meander") is a small village in County Londonderry in Northern London near to the city of Derry. It has a population of 195 people. I'm not sure if she really looks like a little Irish Eskimo, but she has definitely been a meanderer in her short life.

Bobby Graham had a good Father's Day having visits and phone calls from his kids and grandkids alike.

People that came in visiting through the week with their families and friends at the center were Pat Denson of Colorado City, Gene and Belle Parham of Colorado City and their son Wayne from Mineral Wells, Faith Vanderslice, and Britteny Standifer, granddaughter of Jack Strain.

Richard Garcia Sr. had a rough Father's Day. Richard Jr. came in to bring a Father's Day gift and during their visit Richard Sr. had a heart attack. Richard Jr administered CPR until the ambulance arrived.

Richard Sr was rushed to Hendrick hospital in Abilene where he is in stable condition, but remains in ICU for more testing. The Father's Day visit of Betty, Emma, Richard Jr, Rueben, Leslie, Josh and Amy Garcia-Wood-dell was a frightful one.

Amy said she and Josh came home from Abilene to find one of the children with fever and another one got up with it Monday morning. Said Josh had to go to work Sunday night at 1am after a trying day. Our prayers go out to Richard Sr. and all of his family.

We sure are glad to see Linda's smiling face down at the Post Office full time again and the set up at the bank is quite welcoming as you walk in. Loving the new arrangement, ladies.

Charles Dunn, Dale Hartley and Durwood McAdams brought the special music Monday at the center and then Wednesday's music was from Charles Dunn and Dorothy Norwood.

Bobby Richardson played the guitar and sang at the Methodist Church Sunday. He sang, "Jesus and Momma always loved me."

Brother Kiefer spoke at the Valley Fair Lodge and the Kristi Lee Manor Sunday afternoon for the Father's Day church services. Bobby Richardson played the guitar for the sing-alongs.

Tome Green started his Sunday morning a little earlier than usual when Billy Powell called for help from the church. Seems the organ was on the fritz. Tome headed for church with electric bag in hand. Thank the Lord, they were able to save the grand old organ one more time.

We all remember Krystal Sanchez-Acevedo, oldest daughter of Frank and Julie Sanchez the "Little Songbird" as she grew up here in Loraine. She celebrated her 23rd birthday over this last weekend, and we can see that Krystal has really come into her own as an adult.

Krystal has received her Associates of Arts from Western Texas College, and will finish at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin with a degree in Child & Family Studies and a Minor in Geology. She is also working toward her Teaching Certificate EC-6. She plans to teach around here somewhere and loves working with little kids, but someday Krystal would like to be a professor at a junior college.

She subs at LISD and although she is a senior in college, it seems like she can't finish soon enough. She's ready to have her own classroom. She volunteers for class field trips and recently helped her mother (the kindergarten teacher here in Loraine) prepare for their graduation.

Krystal married Miguel Acevedo on August 1, 2009, here at the First Baptist Church. She says they have learned a lot from each other over the year and are still very much in love.

I enjoy reading the little love notes Krystal writes about Miguel on Facebook like, "The house is really quiet when you're not here. Guess I'm moving my things to the tractor."

Between Miguel's wreck not long after they were married and Krystal's gallbladder surgery that complicated into an infection, they had a hard start, but Krystal says, "The infection kept me in the hospital for two weeks and Miguel was there with me the entire time. Things like that let us know that God is the focus of our relationship. When worse comes to worse, we can always rely on each other and our families. They keep us strong."

Krystal started singing when she was 9 years old. Said she just grabbed a Christian tape of her mom's and went to town.

Her words were, "It's like a light turned on inside of me. I feel complete when I'm singing, and wish I could do it more. I have performed at the Senior Center a few times in the past year. They are such a welcoming crowd! I've helped my grandpa at the Catholic Church in Loraine, and he's encouraged me to sing a lot more. I also enjoy singing with my church group."

She and Miguel attend church at the Christian Fellowship between Colorado City and Westbrook.

Krystal is a beautiful, talented and smart young woman. For some of us older folks, she's still our "Little Songbird."
