U.S.-Japan oil win

TOKYO — A Japanese-U.S. consortium has been awarded a project worth an estimated $10 billion to develop oil and gas off the Russian island of Sakhalin, the Japanese partner said Wednesday. The three-company group received a letter of intent from the Russian government Tuesday to conduct feasibility studies, an official of the trading firm Mitsui and Co. said. Mitsui will work with two U.S. companies — Marathon Oil Co. and McDermott International Inc., a major engineering company for oil — said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Yeltsin's back

Mayor Thomas bows out; Faircloth tosses hat in ring

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Mayor Carroll Thomas announced Tuesday he would not seek re-election, followed within minutes by At-large Councilman J.D. Faircloth's pledge to seek the office.

Thomas, whose third two-year term as mayor will end May 31, said he's enjoyed serving the citizens of Midland but thinks it is time to give up the gavel.

"It's been a great honor to serve," Thomas said. "But it's time to let someone else take over the reins."

Citing accomplishments toward balancing the budget and avoiding tax increases, the mayor said it has been a difficult but exciting six years.

"We've had some very tough times. We've had to cut our staff and reduce salaries," Thomas said. But, he said, he's enjoyed leading the city through many attention-getting events, including the 1987 rescue of baby Jessica McClure from a backyard well.

City leaders move toward airport passenger-fee OK

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

City leaders are preparing to authorize the application for a $3-per-ticket passenger-facility charge at Midland International Airport.

The Midland City Council is expected to approve a resolution at its next meeting, Feb. 11, authorizing Director of Airports Ken Day to apply to collect the fee. That application would be reviewed by the Federal Aviation Administration and the charge, known as a PFC, could begin at the airport before the end of the year.

Council members and city officials have said the fee, originally proposed to fund the new terminal project, may now be necessary just to keep the airport fund balanced without the addition of tax money. The $29 million terminal project has been delayed indefinitely.

Bush plugs revival plan

President proposes tax breaks, military cuts

■ Bush invokes Gulf War rhetoric in State of Union message, vows to lift nation out of hard times.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush on Tuesday night proposed election-year tax cuts and business incentives to revive America's economy and vowed, "We're going to lift this nation out of hard times." Bush also outlined dramatic cuts in the U.S. nuclear arsenal.

In his State of the Union speech, the president challenged the Democrat-controlled Congress to back his economic programs by March 20 or face a political fight. Invoking Gulf War rhetoric, he vowed the recession "will not stand."

The centerpiece of his economic plan was a bid to put more money in people's paychecks by lowering tax withholding rates — even though it would mean smaller refunds a year from now. Bush said it would pump $25 billion into the economy. It would increase take-home pay by an average of $300 for more than 90 million wage-earners, the White House said.

In a nationally televised speech, Bush discussed the benefits of a reduced military threat from the disintegrated Soviet Union. "The American taxpayer bore the brunt of the (Cold War) burden, and deserves a hunk of the glory," he said.

Bush said he would ask Russian President Boris Yeltsin on Saturday to agree to eliminate all land-based multiple warhead ballistic missiles. If Yeltsin agrees, Bush said, the United States will eliminate all MX missiles, reduce the number of warheads on Minuteman missiles to just one and cut the number of warheads on sea-based missiles by about one-third.

The arms proposal would mark the first time since 1945 that the United States has no nuclear weapons in production.

Over six years, the president proposed to cut defense spending by $50 billion and use the savings to finance tax

Area's party leaders split over speech

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

Leaders of the local Democratic and Republican parties split along partisan lines in their reactions to President Bush's State of the Union message Tuesday night.

"I don't believe he said anything different than what he has said in the past," said Chris McCormack, local Democratic chairman. "With him, you have to be careful not to read his lips and instead see what he does. His lips say a lot but his actions say little."

Midland Republican party chairman Rick Davis disagreed:

"I thought it was a good speech. I thought his plans for the economy, as well as the other plans, were good," Davis said. "If Congress will work with him and pass the legislation, then we will be on our way to working our way out of the recession."

Davis said he was impressed with the "comprehensive package" proposed by Bush.

"People like George Bush, and what they're looking for is a plan of action," he said. "I don't think he asked for too much. He didn't ask for the moon tonight."

McCormack is concerned about the country's lack of direction.

"I don't believe that Bush has provided the leadership. His speech didn't set out a strategy for what we need to take us into the 1990s," he said. "It's the same old 'good times, bad times' speech associated with voodoo economics."

Monahans grand jury reopens 'sting' probe

Associated Press

A grand jury in Monahans is expected to convene today to further investigate the alleged reverse-sting operations of former Ward County district attorney Hal Upchurch and investigator Ronald Ray Tucker, Shane Phelps, an assistant attorney general in Austin, said Tuesday.

Both men already have been indicted by the grand jury on charges of misuse of narcotics funds.

"It's really just a continuation of the same investigation," said Phelps, who is leading the state's probe into the Ward County case.

Officials discover skeletal remains in evidence locker

MARFA (AP) — Authorities are trying to identity two sets of human skeletal remains found at the Presidio County Sheriff's Office during an inventory of the office's evidence locker, officials said Tuesday.

Interim Sheriff Abe Gonzalez said some photos also were found with the remains but he said officials don't have many clues.

"It's going to take a long time for sure," Gonzalez said. "We might have to bring an expert over here to try and straighten it out."

An inventory of the evidence locker was done following the indictment of suspended Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson on federal drug trafficking charges. The charges stem from the Dec. 4 seizure of more than 2,400 pounds of cocaine from a horse trailer at the Marfa fairgrounds.

Thompson is being held without bond in Reeves County jail. Glyn Robert Chambers, who was named in the same indictment, has pleaded guilty to a charge of possession with intent to distribute in exchange for testimony against Thompson.

Thompson was suspended without pay pending the outcome of his trial tentatively scheduled for March 2 in Dallas federal court.

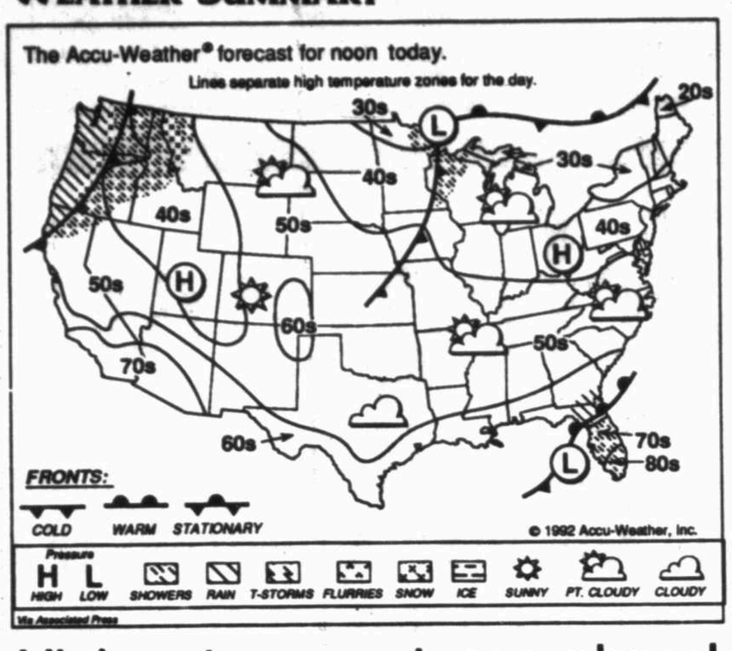

Cole Fulks, interim district attorney for the 83rd district, said he has found no active cases that could be linked to the remains. Authorities have been unable to find an evidence log which would list the evidence and cases it was linked to.

Fulks also is searching his records to help identify the narcotics, mostly marijuana, found in the evidence locker. He said some of the drugs stored in the locker was being kept by the sheriff for other area law enforcement agencies.

"My interest simply is to determine if any of the evidence is related to any current pending cases and if it is what condition is it in," Fulks said.

Fulks said there have been no allegations of criminal wrongdoing in connection with the inventory.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Higher temperatures ahead

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the mid-50s and southwesterly wind at five to 10 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the lower 30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a high between 55 and 60 degrees.

Following an overnight low of 43, Tuesday's high reached 49 degrees compared with the record high for that date of 79 set in 1987. The record low for Tuesday's date was 2 degrees set in 1948.

STATE

Low level clouds and drizzle blanketed most of the state Tuesday, although parts of the Panhandle reported patches of sunshine.

The atmosphere over North Texas was unstable most of the day as an upper level trough of low pressure passed over the area and a minor upper level disturbance moved from Mexico into southern sections of the state.

Winds were mild and variable, except for northern breezes that blew in South Texas at speeds reaching up to 15 mph. High pressure at the surface centered near Illinois ridged the southwest into the northern part of Texas, bringing north to northeasterly winds of up to 10 mph.

Texas temperatures ranged from the upper 40s to mid-50s, pushing into the 60s in El Paso and the lower Rio Grande Valley.

The forecast for West Texas called for clear to partly cloudy skies with overnight lows near 20. North Texas is expected to have cloudy skies with widespread fog and light rain. The rain is predicted to end in South Texas by Thursday as clouds decrease. Highs are expected to remain in the 60s.

NATION

Rain was scattered across the South on Tuesday, prompting flood warnings in parts of Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and temperatures hit record highs on the northern Plains.

At midday, rain extended from northwestern Texas across the upper half of the Texas Gulf Coast and southwestern Louisiana, and from western Alabama across the central Florida Peninsula and Georgia.

The heaviest rainfall reported across the nation during the six hours up to noon CST was 1.09 inches at Apalachicola, Fla.

Flood warnings were posted along the Leaf River near McLain, Miss.; the Chickasawhay River at Leakesville, Miss.; the Pearl River near Bogalusa, La.; the Pearl River at Pearl River, La.; the Calcasiey River at Glenmora, La.; and the Mermentau River at Mermentau, La., the National Weather Service said.

Rivers were running high in parts of Texas, including the Sulphur, Attaoyac Bayou, Sabine, Neches, Nueces, Angelina and Trinity rivers, the weather service said.

Valdez, Alaska, had gotten 22.5 inches of snow from 3 p.m. Monday to 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

BUSH: President proposes election-year tax cuts

(From 1A)

reductions.

Bush's plan also would freeze federal spending on most domestic programs at current levels.

The Democrats sought to portray the tax cuts certain to come in terms of haves versus have-nots.

"... We seek a fundamental change from the unsuccessful economic policies of the past 12 years," House Speaker Thomas S. Foley said. "We will insist that this time, the benefits must go to working families, not to the privileged."

"We will insist that a middle class tax cut be paid for not by taking money that should go to schools and health care, but by calling on the richest of our citizens, at long last, to pay their fair share," he said.

The president openly acknowledged that his election-year message to the nation would be read by many as a partisan theme for his campaign — an aside that drew groans from the assembled Democrats. The White House also hopes it will arrest his slide in the polls.

"I am doing what I think is right; I am proposing what I know will help," Bush said.

The historic House chamber was standing-room-only, packed with lawmakers and members of the Bush Cabinet. In an unusual opening, Bush began with a joke about the high expectations for his speech: "I wanted to be sure it would be a big hit — but I couldn't convince Barbara to deliver it for me."

Recalling the allied victory over Iraq in the Persian Gulf War, Bush told Congress "we must stand together" to solve the problems at home.

"We can bring the same courage and sense of common purpose to the economy that we brought to Desert Storm," Bush said. "And we can defeat hard times together."

But on a political note, Bush challenged Congress to approve his proposals by March 20 or face a fight from the White House. "From the day after that, if it must be: the battle is joined," the president said. "And you know, when principle is at stake, I relish a good fair fight."

The major elements of Bush's program:

■ Income-tax withholding tables will be adjusted at once by the Internal Revenue Service to give many Americans more take-home pay. Even though that would reduce the size of next year's refunds, Bush said the move would put $25 billion into the economy in the next six months. Increases in take-home pay would average from around $175 for single individuals to more than $600 for two-income families, the administration claimed.

■ The personal exemption for dependent children, now $2,300 per child, would be raised by $500 per child to $2,800. However, the increase would not take effect until next Oct. 1.

■ First-time homebuyers would receive a tax credit of up to $5,000 for homes bought this year, with half of the credit applying to 1992 taxes and the other half to 1993 taxes.

■ Up to $10,000 could be withdrawn from Individual Retirement Accounts without penalty for first-time home purchases.

■ All families could deduct the interest they pay on student loans.

■ The capital gains tax, the tax on profits from the sale of stock, real estate and other assets, would be cut from its current top rate of 28 percent to a maximum rate of 15.4 percent for assets held at least three years.

■ Businesses could take an extra 15 percent depreciation allowance to encourage them to invest in more equipment and machinery.

■ Tax credits and vouchers to help low and middle-income families buy health insurance, up to a maximum of $3,750 per family. Bush is expected to more fully spell out his health insurance program next month.

■ All domestic programs excluding benefits programs like Social Security would be frozen at current year levels.

Bush struck a no-nonsense appearance for his speech — an address that campaign advisers said was crucial for his re-election. Bush wore a stern look, pursed his lips and pointed his finger to make a point. His speech was interrupted 76 times by applause and eight standing ovations.

When Democrats finally joined GOP applause after Bush called for a $4.4 billion extension of unemployment benefits, the president scolded, "Well, at last."

Bush stressed the urgency of moving quickly. "The people cannot wait. They need help now. ... We are going to lift this nation out of hard times inch by inch and day by day, and those who would stop us had best step aside. Because I look at hard times and I make this vow: This will not stand."

Cautioning against expectations for a quick fix, Bush said, "None of this will happen with a snap of the fingers — but it will happen."

Announcing changes in America's military structure, Bush said he will shut down the production line for the B-2 bomber after 20 planes are built, cancel the small ICBM program, halt production of new warheads for sea-based ballistic missiles and stop new production of the MX missile.

In addition, he announced a freeze on purchases of advanced cruise missiles.

"These are actions we are taking on our own — because they are the right thing to do," the president said.

A White House statement released with Bush's speech said the United States will halt production of W-88 warheads for Trident missiles. That would mark the first time since 1945 that the United States has no nuclear weapons in production.

Bush's proposal for deeper cuts in nuclear arms would, for the first time, simultaneously shrink all three legs of the nation's "triad" of strategic nuclear weapons: air-launched missiles and ballistic missiles on submarines and in underground silos.

It would be the first time the United States has cut sea-based strategic nuclear arms.

FEE: City leaders prepare to authorize application

(From 1A)

"Setting the terminal decision aside, because I know the taxpayers are concerned about tax money subsidizing the airport, the PFC would almost guarantee the city wouldn't have to subsidize it," said J.D. Faircloth, at-large council member.

Day said the airport fund surplus, which last year was more than $1 million, has shrunk to about $550,000 due to the burden of frequent terminal repairs and matching funds for FAA grants.

A PFC could be $1, $2 or $3 per passenger, but Day said the city would pursue the $3 charge.

If the council authorizes the application, Day said with it he would submit the airport's five-year capital improvement plan — which includes runway rehabilitation and extensions, and ramp rehabilitations as well as the terminal project. All of those projects are possibilities for funding with PFC money, which can be used to match FAA grants, Day said.

But filing the application does not represent a commitment to any construction at the airport, he said.

"We can pull any projects (from the proposed list) at any time," Day said.

City staff urged the council to start the application process soon, because the law that created the PFC could expire Oct. 1. Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor said there is a chance that legislation may not be renewed at that point, eliminating the chance for airports to fund their improvements with the user fee.

If the application is filed, approved and the fee implemented, PFC revenues can be collected for three to five years before any funds are spent. Once the airport is ready to use the PFC funds, another application must be filed with the FAA.

After several years of collection, funds might be used to fund terminal construction, officials said.

"We know somewhere down the road, that project's going to have to be done — if it's five, 10 or 15 years," Mayor Carroll Thomas said.

While any terminal construction remains uncertain — and $1.6 million in start-up funds unspent — an issue has surfaced that may affect council decisions about the facility. The Americans with Disabilities Act, which took effect Sunday, requires public transportation facilities to eliminate barriers for persons with physical or mental disabilities.

Day said the airport may undergo an evaluation by a local task force to determine what improvements are needed for compliance with the new law. Interim City Attorney Kevin Laughlin said leaders are unsure if any alterations will be required at the current terminal facility.

But city officials have repeatedly said the terminal needs major renovations, and any construction must comply with the law. The new terminal project had included provisions to comply with the ADA.

In some cases, Day said, PFC funds could be used to pay for construction to comply with the ADA.

But any project to be funded by the PFC — which will not pay for maintenance or operations — must be included on the list sent with the application, whether plans are firm or not, Day said.

"You have to try to foresee everything you might use it for," he said. "Adding a new project (to the list) is like going back and reapplying for the PFC all over again."

MAYORAL: Thomas bows out; Faircloth to run

(From 1A)

"It's been interesting times and some unique occasions," he said.

Career politicians, however, are unhealthy for a city, the mayor said.

"It's better to have people come on and know it's just for a few years," he said. "You can get burned out at this job. I haven't, but I don't want to.

Faircloth

"A lot of people don't realize that it's fun to be mayor of Midland, Texas," Thomas said. "The town is known throughout the country and overseas because of the oil people.

"So many places you go and people know about Midland. The community should be proud of that."

A geologist who works as a stockbroker, the mayor acknowledged that the oil industry would continue to be Midland's mainstay, but advocated continuing efforts toward economic diversification.

Immediately after Thomas' short press conference, Faircloth announced he plans to seek the top office, although the first day of filing for the race is almost three weeks away.

A council member for three years, Faircloth said he wants to continue the present mayor's leadership.

"We've managed this year not to raise the effective tax rate, and I want to continue to do that," he said. Faircloth acknowledged that holding the line on taxes could require a cut in city services.

"The taxpayers have spoken very clearly," he said. "It's a clear mandate. Service cuts don't have to be drastic, but they're going to have some impact. We've got no choice."

The mayor makes $75 a month, while council members draw $25 salaries monthly.

Faircloth is the first candidate to formally announce he will run in the city elections, which take place May 2. Filing for the mayoral election, as well as the race for District 3 and 4 council seats, begins Feb. 17.

Buddy Sipes, who holds the District 3 seat, has said he will seek re-election.

City seeks council applicants

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

The Midland City Council is looking for a new member.

Mayor Carroll Thomas said Tuesday the council is seeking local citizens interested in the at-large council seat just vacated by John Castro. He encouraged potential new members to write him a letter including their qualifications, community involvement, and reasons for interest in the job.

"We want to see additional people apply," Thomas said. "Then we'll try to narrow the applicants down and set up some personal interviews." He did not set a time limit on the search process, but encouraged quick replies to his call for applicants.

Although at least five names of interested persons have been submitted to the council, including some suggested by Castro, the mayor said they want to generate citywide interest in the position. At-large representatives can be chosen from any district in the city.

An important factor may be the candidate's interest in running for election for the position once the appointed term is complete.

"The council would prefer someone who has a long-term interest," the mayor said. "There's definitely a 'learning curve' on the council, and someone needs to be willing to give it some time."

Castro resigned from the council effective Friday. His unexpired term will end in June 1993. The council meets in regular session on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, although additional special meetings are common. The position pays $25 per month.

REACTION: Parties split

But Davis believes it's tough for any president to garner support from political foes.

"Being an election year, it's hard for a president to get bipartisan support, even if they think the plan is a good one," he said. "But as the president said, when you put parties ahead of the country, you lose out."

"But, if the Democrats don't 'do right' by the country, I think it will come back to haunt them."

CLINTON: Candidate stumps in Texas

(From 1A)

George Bush of ruining.

"As a friend of mine said the other day, it's hard to be a point of light if you can't pay your electric bill," Clinton told enthusiastic supporters at a union hall in downtown Houston.

After campaigning in San Antonio and Austin, the Arkansas governor ended his day in the Bayou City criticizing Republican domestic policies. Clinton said Bush's commitment to some of the promises in his State of the Union address is questionable.

"When he dropped to less than 50 percent in the polls, all of a sudden he's a born again Head Starter."

Clinton said he would fully fund the federal Head Start program that provides pre-kindergarten education. He said his education program would include strong apprenticeships for high school students who don't intend to go to college, college scholarships for students willing to pay back expenses through government service, and lifetime training in the work place so American workers always have marketable skills.

While Clinton spent the day emphasizing his proposals, questions about his alleged affair with former TV reporter and lounge singer Gennifer Flowers persisted as he campaigned in San Antonio, Austin and Houston.

In a 20-minute speech to supporters at the state Capitol, Clinton made no mention of the unsubstantiated charges of past adultery that for the last week have threatened his status as front-runner among the Democrats.

"Hang in there, Mr. Clinton. Mrs. Clinton, stand by your man" said a hand-lettered sign a woman waved from the gallery of the Texas Senate.

"I'm not looking for someone to vote for for sainthood," said state Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur. "I'm looking for a leader that's capable of leading this nation and responding to the needs of our people."

U.N. inspectors pursue hidden Iraqi arms plants

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. inspectors roughed up by protesters in Baghdad are seeking Saddam Hussein's secret biological and chemical weapons production plants, officials disclosed Tuesday.

A private report by Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali to the Security Council that was viewed by The Associated Press shows U.N. officials believe Iraq still has undisclosed chemical and biological weapons factories.

The report, which was circulated Tuesday to the members of the council, said the U.N. Special Commission must identify the components and manufacturing sites for the chemical and biological weapons that have already been found in Iraq.

Boutros-Ghali's report says 10 types of Iraqi chemical weapons have been identified, but inspectors so far have found production equipment for only two types of munitions: 250mm and 500mm aerial bombs.

Baghdad previously declared it made all its own chemical weapons, or modified imported munitions in its own facilities. Iraq therefore must have production sites for the other eight types of chemical weapons, the report says.

An 18-member team of U.N. chemical and biological weapons inspectors arrived at a Baghdad hotel Monday from Manama, Bahrain, to begin their mission.

About 40 Iraqi demonstrators mobbed them. Three were jostled and pinned against a wall in the hotel lobby. The other 15 were blockaded in their bus for about 25 minutes. No one was injured.

The president of the Security Council, British Ambassador Sir David Hannay, Tuesday protested the incident to Iraqi Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari.

U.N. officials said the team, to remain in Iraq until Feb. 5, began work Tuesday without further problems.

Iraq has also declared it had a biological weapons program, but claimed it was only a research project, not geared to full-scale production of weapons.

Boutros-Ghali's report expressed extreme skepticism.

Israelis, Arabs sit at table together

N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — A Middle East conference opened here Tuesday, with Israel for the first time sitting down for talks on regional cooperation with Saudi Arabia and the other Arab gulf countries, but the meeting was overshadowed by the Palestinians' absence.

The Palestinian spokeswoman, Hanan Ashrawi, said the Palestinians were barred from the conference by the United States and Russia, who objected to the presence of Palestinians from East Jerusalem and from outside the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III said it was the Palestinians who had refused to come according to the terms set out in the invitation, and he added that he was "disappointed" that they had missed yet another opportunity to advance their cause.

The opening day of the conference was full of unusual scenes and contradictory emotions. The setting of the meeting was bizarre: 24 countries gathered in foodstrapped Moscow in the dead of winter — in the same Hall of Columns where the Stalin show trials were conducted in 1938 — to discuss regional development of the Mideast.

The discussions themselves seemed to combine some strikingly dramatic signs that the age-old Arab-Israeli conflict was thawing — and some very strained speeches that suggested it might not be changing much after all.

Tuesday's high point may have come when the co-chairmen, Baker and the Russian foreign minister, Andrei V. Kozyrev, gaveled the conference to order and looked out to see sitting before them around a rectangular table a lot of people who have never sat together before: Russians and Americans co-sponsoring a peace conference, the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait sitting alongside Israelis, and China and Japan for the first time joining Mideast peace talks.

China's deputy foreign minister, Yang Fuchang, went out of his way to walk across the room and warmly embrace Israel's foreign minister, David Levy.

The U.S. and Russian co-sponsors envisaged this two-day conference as a vehicle to open a dialogue between Israel and the wider circle of Arab countries — Tunisia, Mauritania, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Oman, Kuwait, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates — about regional problems like arms control, water, the environment, refugees and economic development.

Somalia is ready for ceasefire, U.N.says

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The warlords battling for control of Somalia's capital have indicated they are ready to end the fighting that has killed or wounded 20,000 people in 2½ months, U.N. officials said Tuesday.

They said President Ali Mahdi Mohamed's interim government gave assurances Monday it would accept a Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in Mogadishu.

Ali Mahdi's rival, Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid, said Sunday he also was prepared to accept a truce, U.N. Undersecretary-General James Jonah said.

But Jonah noted that Aidid also insists any transitional government exclude Ali Mahdi's faction. A U.N. resolution passed last imposes an arms embargo on combatants in the civil war and urges the warring factions to seek political agreement.

Jonah said the United Nations is awaiting Aidid's official, written acceptance of the U.N. resolution.

Somalia's political system is characterized by clans. The clans united to chase President Mohammed Siad Barre from Mogadishu last January after more than two decades of rule. Since then the country has fallen apart.

On Nov. 17, Ali Mahdi and Aidid began battling it out in Mogadishu. The two represent rival factions of the Hawiye clan and its political arm, the United Somali Congress.

The United Nations plans a $12 million humanitarian aid package for Somalia.

Libya may release suspects in bombing

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Libya's No. 2 man said Tuesday that Libya would surrender its citizens charged with blowing up U.S. and French jetliners if an international commission examines the evidence and seeks their extradition.

Staff Maj. Abdulsalam Jalloud, the most powerful man in the radical North African state after Col. Moammar Gadhafi, suggested that U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali set up such a commission.

"If such an objective, legal commission is set up and it asks for ... (extradition), it will be accepted by us," Jalloud said.

Jalloud arrived Monday on a regional tour seeking support for Libya following a U.N. Security Council resolution demanding that Libya cooperate with demands to surrender the accused. He met with President Turgut Ozal and Premier Suleyman Demirel Tuesday.

Britain and the United States charged two Libyan intelligence agents with the December 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, that killed 270 people.

France charged four Libyans, including a brother-in-law of Gadhafi, with the 1989 destruction of a UTA jet over Niger that killed 170 people.

The United States, Britain and France said they will seek economic sanctions if Libya fails to comply with the Security Council resolution.

South African police arrest white organization leaders

JOHANNESBURG (NYT) — The South African police arrested almost the entire leadership of a far-right white organization early Tuesday.

Although the 11 officers of the neo-Nazi Afrikaner Resistance Movement who were seized in the raids were released on bond after a few hours, their arrest marked the most aggressive action taken against the militant organization that has sought to generate defiance against the government's efforts to dismantle apartheid and negotiate with blacks on a new Constitutional arrangement.

The leader of the movement, Eugene TerreBlanche, was arrested at 4 a.m. as his 10 top advisers were being seized. They were all charged in connection with the organization's violent protest of a speech by President F.W. de Klerk in August 1991 in the western Transvaal town of Ventersdorp, in which three people — two members of the rightist movement and a black passer-by — were killed and 58 injured.

The right-wing members appeared in a lower court in Ventersdorp Tuesday morning. Most were released on the equivalent of $36 bond, although one member, Piet Rudolph, said he had only $18, which was accepted as sufficient bond. The 11 were released on payment of the bond.

Yeltsin makes unexpected visit to Black Sea Fleet

Russian President Boris Yeltsin meets with naval officers aboard the cruiser Moskva in the Black Sea fleet.

N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — Reappearing in public as abruptly as he disappeared, President Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia made an unexpected visit to the disputed Black Sea Fleet Tuesday, mounting the cruiser Moskva in an evident demonstration of Russia's concern for and claim to the former Soviet navy.

Yeltsin visited the fleet at Novorossisk, Russia's only major port on the Black Sea since the dissolution of the Soviet Union left the Crimea and much of the sea's north shore under Ukrainian jurisdiction, and the eastern shore in Georgia's.

The Russian leader was accompanied by Marshal Yevgeny I. Shaposhnikov, the military commander of the Commonwealth of Independent States, the loose successor to the Soviet Union, and Adm. Vladimir Chernavin, commander of the commonwealth navy. The Black Sea commander, Adm. Igor Kasatonov, was their host.

The trip solved the mystery of Yeltsin's abrupt cancellation of meetings for Tuesday, including one with the Japanese foreign minister.

The question was why Yeltsin had decided to visit the Black Sea Fleet at this point, while Middle East peace talks are under way in Moscow and on the eve of his trip to London, New York, Washington and Ottawa.

Yeltsin's spokesman, Pavel Voshchanov, issued a statement saying the president made the trip "in the framework of preparations to the coming session of the United Nations Security Council" and his meetings with U.S., British and Canadian leaders, with whom he intended to discuss "nuclear security problems."

The statement said Yeltsin was staying aboard the Moskva to "acquaint himself with its technical characteristics and to meet the personnel."

But the Interfax news agency also reported that Yeltsin assured the crew of the Moskva that the Black Sea Fleet would come under the unified armed forces of the commonwealth, indicating that the president was also there to underscore Moscow's rejection of Ukraine's claim to the fleet.

The fleet has become the focal point of a dispute over the future of Soviet armed forces since Kiev ordered all former Soviet forces on or off its shores to pledge allegiance to Ukraine.

The claim to the fleet in particular roused strong resistance in Moscow, which had considered the navy to belong either to the commonwealth or to Russia.

The Black Sea Fleet has its headquarters in Sevastopol in the Crimea, which is now part of Ukraine.

Russian and Ukrainian negotiators reached a broad agreement this month to leave the bulk of the fleet under the commonwealth, to which both former Soviet republics belong, but many details have yet to be worked out.

Comments by naval officers after the meeting indicated that the fleet's objection to Ukraine's claim was the central subject in the meeting.

A senior navy officer, Rear Adm. Vladimir Solovyev, said the main theme of Yeltsin's meeting with the officers was that "the Black Sea Fleet is a fleet of the commonwealth; it does not protect a specific republic, but the whole Commonwealth of Independent States."

Kasatonov was quoted a saying, "the president made sure once again our stand remains unchanged — the Black Sea Fleet is indivisible."

Interfax reported that Yeltsin also promised the fleet that Russia would do its best to supply it by sea and air, using Russian ports for the purpose. Implicit in the statement was that the Black Sea Fleet would not be left to the mercy of Ukraine.

Armenian rebels shoot down copter

BAKU, Azerbaijan (AP) — Armenian rebels shot down a civilian helicopter over the disputed enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh on Tuesday, an Azerbaijani presidential spokesman said. About 40 men, women and children were reported killed.

The attack was the most serious incident reported in the fight for control of the war-torn enclave since another helicopter was shot down on Nov. 21, killing more than 20 people.

Predominantly Muslim Azerbaijan and mainly Christian Armenia, two former Soviet republics, have battled for three years to gain control of Nagorno-Karabakh, located in Azerbaijan near Iran but populated mostly by Armenians.

Vagib Rustamov, a spokesman for President Ayaz Mutalibov of Azerbaijan, said the helicopter was flying over Stepanakert, capital of the enclave, at about 4 p.m. when it was attacked. It was en route to Shusha from the Azeri town of Agdam.

The Azerbaijani mission in Moscow said the helicopter was shot down by a heat-seeking missile, Russian television said. The newscast said the pilots tried "heroically" to save the aircraft and managed at the last minute to turn it away from Shusha.

Miyana Minakian, a press secretary at the Armenian Mission in Moscow, confirmed an Azerbaijani helicopter had been shot down.

The helicopter was "presumably carrying weapons and ammunition to Azerbaijanis who have been attacking the Armenian village of Karintag (near Stepanakert) for the past three days," she said. She gave no more details.

Russian state-run television also said "at least eight" people died Tuesday in ground fighting near Karintag.

It was not immediately known exactly how many people were on board the helicopter. Reports from both sides indicated the number was about 40.

The conflict in the Caucasus Mountains has claimed more than 800 lives.

KGB opens its headquarters to tourists

MOSCOW (AP) — Tourists who want to come in from the cold can now pay a mere $35 to walk the halls of the Lubyanka, the once-feared spy headquarters now run by budding KGB capitalists.

Step this way, comrade tourists, and see the agency built by Felix Dzerzhinsky. Take a peek at the corner offices of the late Yuri Andropov, the former KGB chief and Soviet leader second only to Dzerzhinsky in the hearts of KGB agents.

But no pictures, please.

They're not protecting secrets. It's just that the KGB handlers running the tour figure no one will want to buy their official postcards if the tourists take their own photos.

Never mind that no official postcards or guidebooks are on sale yet. And forget the KGB's new name, the Federal Security Agency. At the Lubyanka, it's still the KGB.

What tourists get for their hard currency is a three-hour guided tour that winds up in a KGB snack bar. There, they find a table offering pretzels, butter cookies, Coca-Cola, German beer and coffee served in porcelain cups printed with pink and blue flowers.

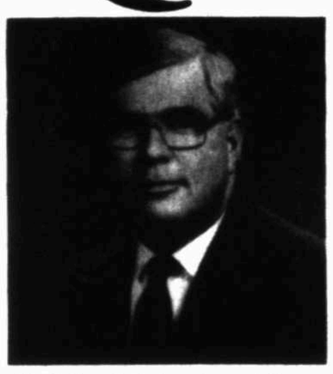

According to the KGB, the Lubyanka no longer houses prisoners. All but six of its 300 cells have been converted into the cafeteria and administrative offices. Tour guides say the six cells are empty but kept ready "just in case."

The tour actually begins in the KGB museum in a gray granite building behind the Lubyanka. A silver bust of Lenin greets visitors.

"The Motherland is calling!" reads one of many inspirational posters lining the walls.

The museum traces the history of the spy agency and features glass cases of captured Western spy paraphernalia. Photos of KGB heroes — Dzerzhinsky and Andropov get top billing, of course — are displayed.

Bush, House leaders agree to extend jobless benefits

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Agreeing to sidestep a bitter election-year issue, President Bush and House leaders decided Tuesday to spend $2.7 billion on another 13 weeks of unemployment benefits for about 2 million long-term jobless people.

Democrats in the Senate did not commit themselves to the plan immediately, but Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who heads the Finance Committee, said he was confident a bill could be sent to Bush for his signature "by the end of next week."

If Bentsen is right, Republican lawmakers and Bush will have put aside a painful political issue that Democrats used for months last year to paint Bush as uncaring about hardships on the home front and endlessly concerned with foreign problems.

Last year Bush killed two versions of the bill, arguing that the budget deficit should not be increased. But he ultimately did sign an extension into law last November.

This time around, Democrats seized a quick, certain agreement with the administration, abandoning a partisan advantage in part to avoid a fight that could make Congress appear to be bickering while thousands of unemployed Americans suffered.

For some workers, the extra benefits adopted last November will begin running out in mid-February.

Instead of trying to roll over the Republicans and adopt the $4.5 billion measure proposed last week by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Democrats settled for a less costly measure that expires in July. The measure proposed by Rostenkowski would have expired in October.

The committee sent the compromise measure, sponsored by Rostenkowski and Robert H. Michel of Illinois, the House minority leader, to the floor on a voice vote Tuesday. The whole House will vote next Tuesday,under a procedure allowing only 40 minutes of debate and requiring a two-thirds majority for adoption.

Like November's measure, this bill would be financed with accounting devices and not by imposing any new taxes or cutting other federal spending. Part of the cost would come from $500 million raised by requiring some corporations to make higher estimated tax payments sooner.

The remaining $2.2 billion would be from savings that the Office of Management and Budget says were achieved last year by Congress. A budget office report this month concluded that Congress had raised that much more money by extending taxes in future years and by other financial devices that it had put into extra federal spending.

Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., on the Ways and Means Committee who was a leading sponsor of extended benefits last year, told reporters Tuesday, "Only in the land of Oz could you take a $350 billion deficit and find $2 billion in savings."

The bill would allow workers in all states who have exhausted their regular unemployment benefits, which are limited to 26 weeks in most states, another 13 weeks of payments.

Those could be added on to the 13 to 20 weeks adopted last fall, so that some people could receive as many as 26 weeks of regular benefits and 33 weeks of extra benefits.

Others would receive less, depending on when their benefits were exhausted and whether they lived in the handful of states eligible for 20 weeks of benefits because they have particularly high unemployment rates.

Last November's measure is to expire June 13. The Rostenkowski-Michel bill would expire July 4. If no further legislation is enacted, people exhausting their basic 26 weeks after July 4 would not be eligible for any extra benefits.

But at Tuesday's committee meeting Rostenkowski supported Downey's call for permanent changes that would remove those anomalies. Republicans on the committee urged that the trust fund that pays extended benefits be taken out of regular budget accounting altogether, so that it would not affect the deficit.

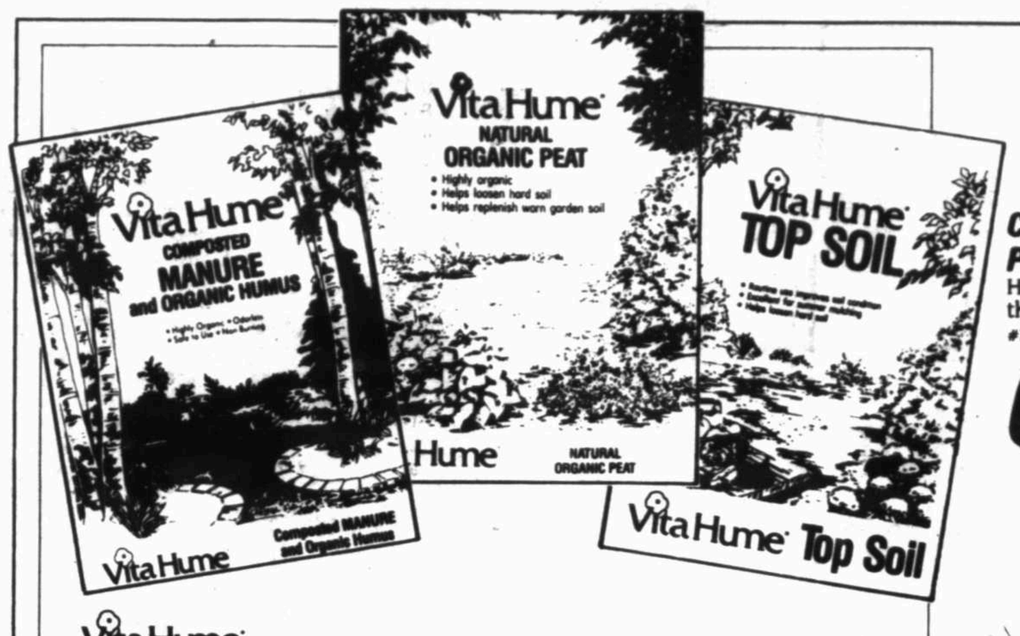

That trust fund, filled by taxes paid by employers, now contains about $6 billion.

Judge's actions damaging bench

While a federal jury in Buffalo, N.Y., weighed the liability of New York officials in the bloody 1971 Attica prison uprising, the judge vacationed in Barbados. Such outrageous judicial indifference risks the reputation of the entire federal bench. It also risks legal error that could prolong litigation that has taken two decades and a three-month trial to reach this juncture.

Judge John Elfvin is an otherwise productive semi-retired judge who, at age 74, helps his colleagues by handling a reduced caseload for the Western District of New York. But he acted irresponsibly in going through with his long-planned vacation with the jury out. He left the case to a magistrate with instructions to call him if the jury returns with any "substantive question" about evidence or the judge's instructions.

That's precisely the moment in a hotly contested case when a judge must be sensitive to the question and careful in his reply. That is the judicial tradition and it's one that Elfvin should seek to uphold. He obviously isn't fulfilling the duties of his important position. To suggest that such a matter can be handled with a long-distance call to Barbados is both ludicrous and demeaning to the federal bench. Elfvin's actions constitute a direct slap at other federal jurists throughout the nation and a direct violation of judicial propriety.

It's no excuse that lawyers for Attica inmates and the state officials they have sued raise no formal objections. They're hapless victims of a phenomenon sometimes called the "velvet blackjack" — subtle coercion to waive any complaint rather than ruffle the judge. The jury may be out but one verdict is in: Elfvin has badly served his calling and his reputation.

No matter climate, incumbents have it all

WASHINGTON — President Bush's State of the Union message Tuesday was a humbling experience for the Democratic presidential wannabes. Bush got 30 minutes of free, prime-time television to assert his position as top dog. The Democratic pack chasing around New Hampshire trying to scare up votes has to pay as much as $1,000 each for every paltry 30-second TV commercial beamed into only New Hampshire living rooms.

Anderson

On Tuesday, the Democrats had to stop barking for a day and gawk at the daunti power of the incumbency. The annual address is a high-profile perk of an incumbent president during an election year, but there are hundreds of less obvious advantages that make running against a sitting president one of the longest shots in the land.

For starters, the challengers have to compete with Santa Claus. Presidents routinely give pre-election gifts to states with critical primaries. Long-sought grants suddenly materialize and other funding miraculously breaks free of the tentacles of the bureaucracy. Past presidents have been warned that the gifts could be construed as political payoffs. But it's just part of the game that gives the advantage to the incumbent.

The power of the incumbency is best symbolized by Air Force One, the president's customized 747, which not only has the latest in office technology, but also enough spare seats to haul an entourage and even a few reporters. The plane costs the taxpayers $26,000 per flight hour. The Bush-Quayle campaign reimburses the government for only a small portion of the cost, and Uncle Sam has been slow to bill the freeloading media. Audits after the 1988 campaign showed that in some cases the reporters were not billed for their share until many months after the election.

The challengers have to make do. In 1976, when news broke that presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter had told "Playboy" that he had "committed adultery in my heart many times," Carter's campaign headquarters was blitzed for immediate reaction. But the hamstrung Carter aides couldn't reach their man for verification or explanation. He was aloft in a charter plane with only a primitive fax machine.

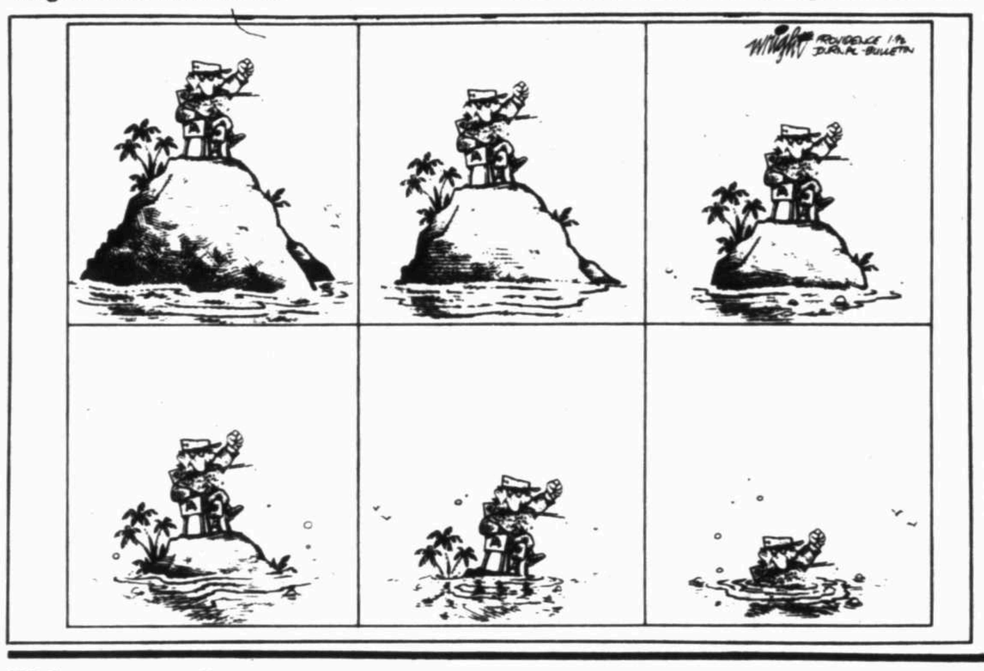

These communication breakdowns don't happen to incumbents. The president never gets caught in a traffic jam, never cools his heels waiting for a pay phone and never gets his luggage sent to Duluth when he goes to Des Moines.

Former candidate George McGovern told our associate Jim Lynch that fatigue is one of the major hazards for candidates who challenge a sitting president. "They say the president's job is so tough," McGovern said. "It's really not. There is somebody always there to take care of every conceivable errand."

Carter's domestic policy adviser, Stuart Eisenstadt, recalled the monumental task of preparing Carter for his three debates against Gerald Ford in 1976. None of the government's experts were available to Carter.

President Bush's recent "whistle stop" tour through New Hampshire bore no resemblance to the rag-tag stumping of the Democrats. Bush had a full entourage of Secret Service and campaign pros, and packed all the pageantry of the White House on wheels. Everything is scripted, right down to the White House souvenirs handed out to everyone who waits in a receiving line to shake the president's hand.

The Democrats are followed by an eager, but inexperienced band of underpaid or unpaid college students. One insider with the Paul Tsongas campaign recounted seeing as many as 10 young volunteers sleeping at the state's campaign headquarters. The Bob Kerrey campaign is run from the basement of an abandoned church in Salem, N.H. Tom Harkin gave one riveting speech to a crowd of 10 onlookers that wouldn't constitute a receiving line under any definition of the term.

Militant feminism may soon rest in peace

MINNEAPOLIS — A petty annoyance that contributed to Gov. Bill Clinton's defeat in 1980 was his wife's refusal to adopt his name: it rankled many voters that Hillary Rodham, who met her future husband at Yale Law School, was too ardently feminist to permit herself to be called "Mrs. Clinton."

Safire

The Clintons, man and wife, learned plenty from that early slapping-down by the Arkansas electorate. "You can't lead without listening," the chastened former hotshot told voters the next time out. Ms. Rodham joined in this by taking on the traditional style of "Mrs. Clinton;" they've been winners ever since.

Now Mrs. Clinton is carrying the ball for the family on the show inheriting the huge audience from "the Show," as we football freaks call the Super Bowl. She is called upon to defend her man and her marriage from what political figures dread as "bed mail" — when a sleazepaper with a big checkbook finds a publicity-grubbing groupie with a recording machine.

Based on a preliminary report of the "60 Minutes" broadcast, Mrs. Clinton responded with a loyal wife's indignation, an ambitious politician's fervor, and a practiced litigator's skill to the long-expected bed mail. I hope she continues to bury the phony issue under a heap of scorn.

But you can bet that some professional feminists will take the side of the accusing woman who sees herself as victimized and now seeks fleeting fame and a considerable fortune as a destroyer of a public man. For extremists who gave feminism a bad name, the presumption of male guilt is automatic: the woman, right or wronged.

Militant feminism, whose shock troops were necessary in their day, is now undermining the cause of equal rights. "Many women have come to see the feminist movement as anti-male, anti-child, anti-family, anti-feminine," writes the novelist Sally Quinn, "... often with overtones of lesbianism and man-hating."

She cites the declaration by Patricia Ireland, president of NOW, of a "love relationship with a woman" while married to a man. "We are not just talking about open relationships or honesty or even lesbianism, for that matter. What Ms. Ireland is talking about is, to my mind, adultery. ... What kind of standards is she espousing? ... Can you imagine George Bush telling the world that he was having a homosexual relationship with another man and it was just swell with Barbara?"

The equality of rights movement cannot afford such leadership. Three years ago, the redoubtable Betty Friedan — who pioneered the feminist parade a generation ago — broke ranks with the female chauvinists with a gutsy pro-motherhood book, "The Second Stage." That stage is now; angry misogyny has fallen behind the power curve. A new womanism is emerging that knows the difference between equality and sameness, rejects the poses of victimization and unisexism, and — in the workplace, bedroom and voting booth — wants to strike a natural balance in today's man-woman relationship.

Politics is the showcase for that power partnership. A couple of weeks ago, Washington Post reporters David Broder and Bob Woodward surprised readers by discovering a steely and well-trained intellect "behind" our vice president. Marilyn Quayle, a lawyer whose primary client is now her husband, saw through James Baker's oleaginous duplicities in the 1988 campaign. She works effectively through her man; the public knows it is getting a "two-fer," and will judge the pair as one entry.

Same with Hillary and Bill Clinton. I still wince at her early work on the House staff eager to impeach Nixon, but respect the way she has pooled her ambition with her husband's to save their marriage and launch their campaign. She is nobody's "little woman," nor has she guilt-tripped her husband into being a little man; we are on notice that the White House east wing would become a Clinton policy center.

So don't grieve for feminism. The new, natural womanism achieves lasting partnerships and personal fulfillment. The role models are leading the way.

Woman's honesty elicits deep thanks

I want to express my deepest thanks to the lady who returned the brown Community National Bank bag on Thursday, Jan. 2. She graciously turned in my bank bag to the manager of Furr's Grocery Store on Illinois.

I had so absent-mindedly left it in the basket in the outside foyer. She not only saved me the huge hassle of canceling checks, rewriting checks, collecting replacement checks, etcetera, but she also saved me a considerable amount of money.

I cannot express to her how thankful I am for her honesty. Even though the Furr's manager and cashier who checked her out did not know her name, God does and He has this on record. You have "laid up a treasure in Heaven."

Story of single father was refreshing change

How pleasant to read a positive article about a single father and his love for his son, accepting his responsibilities instead of dumping his child on relatives and heading for the night spots ("Love enough for two," Jan. 6).

What a marvelous example this young father is to all single parents, male or female.

Thank you for publishing a good story for a change instead of the usual murder and mayhem.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 29, the 29th day of 1992. There are 337 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 29, 1820, Britain's King George III died insane at Windsor Castle, ending a reign that had seen both the American and French revolutions.

On this date:

In 1843, the 25th president of the United States, William McKinley, was born in Niles, Ohio.

In 1845, Edgar Allan Poe's poem "The Raven" was published under a pseudonym in the New York Evening Mirror.

In 1850, Henry Clay introduced in the Senate a compromise bill on slavery that included the admission of California into the Union as a free state.

In 1861, Kansas became the 34th state of the Union.

In 1900, the American League, consisting of eight baseball teams, was organized in Philadelphia.

In 1936, the first members of baseball's Hall of Fame, including Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth, were named in Cooperstown, N.Y.

In 1939, Irish poet-dramatist William Butler Yeats died in Menton, France.

In 1958, actors Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward were married.

In 1963, the first members of football's Hall of Fame were named in Canton, Ohio.

In 1963, poet Robert Frost died in Boston.

In 1979, President Carter formally welcomed Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping to the White House, following the establishment of diplomatic relations.

In 1990, former Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood went on trial in Anchorage, Alaska, on charges stemming from the nation's worst oil spill. (Hazelwood was acquitted of the major charges and convicted of a misdemeanor.)

Ten years ago: U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier, freed from his Red Brigades captors in Italy the day before, began a series of debriefings in which he recounted his 42-day ordeal.

ART BUCHWALD

Bashing the Rising Sun started long ago

The biggest Japanese-basher I've ever known — even bigger than Lee Iacocca — was Pfc. William Brinkerhoff who served with me in the Marine Corps on Enewitok during World War II.

One night in 1944 during an air raid I hugged one side of the foxhole and he hugged the other.

Buchwald

"Someday," he said, as one of the enemy bombs hit our ammunition dump, "the Japanese will turn on us."

"How can you say that?" I asked.

"Have you forgotten Pearl Harbor?"

"It was two years ago," I told him. "How long are you going to hold a grudge?"

As ammunition went flying in every direction, Brinkerhoff shoved his nose deeper and deeper into the coral. He whimpered, "I don't trust anyone who wants to blow me up."

"That's Japanese-bashing, Brink, and it's beneath you. Once we win the war you'll be sorry you ever had bad thoughts about these people."

Brinkerhoff said, "How can you call me a Japanese-basher just because I don't like them dropping shrapnel on my head?"

"They're only following orders from their Emperor Hirohito. Do you think that the pilot overhead likes bombing us any more than we like being bombed? If he had his druthers, he'd be in Tokyo making automobiles and television sets."

"What's a television set?"

"I don't know. I just made that up," I told him.

The bomber made another run on our airfield and the explosions were deafening.

Brinkerhoff yelled above the noise, "Call me a racist, but all Japanese pilots were born out of wedlock!"

"That attitude shows narrow thinking. They have as many reasons to fight World War II as we do. They can't afford to be stuck with a large inventory of Japanese cameras just before Christmas."

"Is that why that guy is up there at 15,000 feet looking for me in his bombsight?"

I said, "I'll admit that from where we sit in a foxhole it doesn't look good for Japanese-American relations. But someday, Brink, we'll be laughing at this night as we jog around the track listening to our Sony Walkmans."

Brink took his face out of the coral. "How come you know so much about the way life is going to be after the war?"

"Call it intuition, call it a sixth sense — all I can tell you is that the Japanese will never surrender if we keep calling them names."

Brinkerhoff said, "Well, I'm not going to send a birthday card to the guy who is bombing us."

"I'm not asking you to invite him to join us for a beer in case he's shot down. At the same time it doesn't heal wounds if you tell everyone in the Marines how much pleasure you get out of bashing the Rising Sun."

"I'm sorry," Brink responded, "I must have lost my head when the bombs hit our fuel dump."

"You're having a normal reaction to an uncomfortable situation," I assured him. "But we can't let a little bombing interfere with our future relations. In years to come when Japanese-bashing is fashionable again, you can tell your grandchildren about this experience. Until then you have to keep your mouth shut and your nose to the coral."

"If I can't bash the Japanese, can I bash the Germans?"

"You can now, but after the war it won't do you any good."

Attorneys clash over fundamental rape questions

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Attorneys in Mike Tyson's rape trial clashed Tuesday as each side tried to probe potential jurors' fundamental feelings about rape: whether a woman might "ask for it," or lie about it.

Eleven jurors — seven men and four women — have been seated. Marion Superior Court Judge Patricia J. Gifford estimated as court adjourned for the day that selection of a panel of 12 jurors and four alternates would end Wednesday, with motions and opening statements after that.

Tyson, 25, has been charged with rape, criminal deviate conduct and confinement. If convicted, the former world heavyweight boxing champion could be sentenced to 63 years in prison.

"Do you think someone could make a false accusation of rape?" defense attorney Kathleen Beggs asked one prospective juror. Prosecution objections that the question was "fact-sensitive" to the case prevented an answer.

Deputy Prosecutor Barbara Trathen objected again when Beggs asked, "Do you have the feeling that a woman who accuses someone of rape must be telling the truth or she wouldn't have come forward?"

Defense attorneys returned the objections later when special prosecutor Greg Garrison tried to ask about whether bad judgment by victims justified the crimes committed against them.

"Some people ask for it — and get what they ask for?" Garrison asked one potential juror. "Sometimes," replied the man, who was released from the jury pool.

Tyson's accuser, an 18-year-old Miss Black America contestant, told police she met Tyson at a pageant rehearsal on July 18 and went with him to his hotel room, where in the predawn hours of July 19 he restrained her on the bed and raped her.

The boxer, who has been accused often of fondling women, insists his accuser consented to sex.

"The woman knows what happened. I know what happened. I'm innocent," he said after an earlier court appearance.

Among the jurors seated Tuesday were a 37-year-old ex-Marine and IBM marketing manager and a 31-year-old woman who works for the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce.

Scattered applause and cries of "Go, Mike!" greeted Tyson as he stepped into the City-County Building from his white four-door Lincoln. The boxer, dressed in a light gray pinstripe suit, stumbled as he was going up the steps to the courtroom and grinned as he regained his balance.

Tyson yawned and chatted with his attorneys during jury selection, and smiled when introduced from the defense table to one woman who was chosen as a juror.

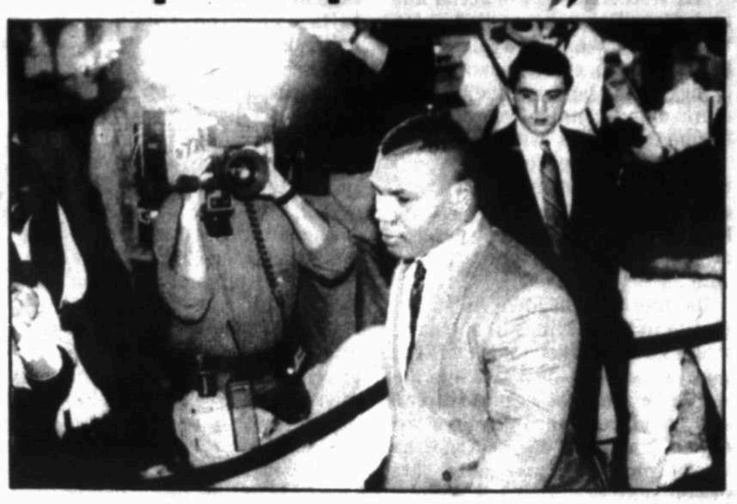

Defense attorneys gave some clues to their strategy with questions about whether jurors had noticed differences between the way young black people communicate with each other compared to the way young whites interact.

Beggs also asked prospective jurors about their views of 18-year-olds, and whether they were adults in terms of sexual matters.

"In today's society, most would have knowledge and experience in that," a prospective juror replied.

"Do you think famous people should try to serve as role models?" Beggs asked the woman, who later was selected.

"I'm sure it puts a lot of pressure on them," she replied. "They're human beings, like the rest of us."

Senate OKs Democratic sponsored school-innovation bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday passed a Democratic-sponsored bill to encourage local school innovations, but the measure rejected President Bush's proposal to send taxpayer money to some private schools.

Sent to the House on a 92-6 vote, the legislation would allow individual schools to compete for money by proposing education reforms.

The bill would authorize $850 million in education spending in fiscal 1992. The money would be distributed by the states, which could retain up to 25 percent for administration and for financing areas such as teacher training, public school choice and model schools.

Heated debate over the bill took place last week, when the Senate rejected elements of Bush's New American Schools plan. The Bush program would have provided federal aid to parents so they could send their children to public or private schools of their choice.

Education Secretary Lamar Alexander said the bill "now includes important parts of 'America 2000,' " the administration's original proposal, including "a voluntary national examination system for our children."

"Still, these steps do not go far enough, fast enough," he said. "And the president will keep fighting for more radical change in the American system. We will especially keep fighting to give middle- and low-income families more of the same choices of all schools that wealthy families already have."

The Senate bill would apply only to public schools.

Boatloads of Haitians on horizon, official says

MIAMI (AP) — The Coast Guard intercepted hundreds more Haitian refugees Tuesday after setting a record the day before. A spokesman said even more boatloads were on the horizon.

"It's going to be busy, I can tell you that right now," Roger Wetherell said. "There have been several more vessels spotted and we're told we'll see 600 to 1,000 more migrants today. ... Our cutters are filling up."

Monday's interception of 30 boats containing 1,305 refugees was the highest for a 24-hour period since the exodus began after the Sept. 30 ouster of Jean-Bertrand Aristide, Haiti's first freely elected president.

Advocates said the surge in refugees showed the impoverished Caribbean nation's political situation was deteriorating rapidly.

Rolande Dorancy, director of the Haitian Refugee Center in Miami, said the exodus virtually stopped in December when a negotiated settlement to return Aristide to power appeared imminent, and resumed in January when those talks broke down and the military imposed government cracked down.

"I'm hearing more violence — last week was a week of terror," Ms. Dorancy said. "Now they realize that the political situation is not going anywhere, and that the only solution is to leave the country."

The U.S. goverment claims the refugees are fleeing poverty, not repression. Refugees and their advocates say they are fleeing army terror.

The United States and Organization of American States don't recognize the regime that replaced Aristide and replaced a harsh economic embargo on Haiti.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta is considering the latest effort by refugee advocates to keep the refugees from being returned to Haiti.

The Coast Guard has picked up more than 12,800 refugees since the exodus began in late October, including 4,400 since Jan. 1.

About 8,700 refugees are detained in a tent city at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. That number does not include the new additions, said Lt. Peter Seaman, spokesman for the military task force running the camp.

He said the tent city could be expanded with little difficulty, but added, "We all hope this situation is resolved soon."

Boiler explosion injures 6 workers

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — A boiler exploded at a textile plant Tuesday, injuring six workers, three of them seriously, authorities said.

The boiler, used in dying shirts, exploded as workers were changing shifts at Cross Creek Apparel, said Assistant Fire Chief Joby Smith.

"It blew the back of the building completely out," Smith said. "There is a 30-foot hole in the back of the building."

The boiler spewed steam on the workers when it burst, Smith said.

Two workers were hospitalized in critical condition with third-degree burns on their faces and hands.

Lawyers question potential Dahmer jurors

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer watched quietly Tuesday while lawyers asked potential jurors for his sanity trial if they would be disgusted by testimony about cannibalism, dismemberment and sex with corpses.

"You're going to hear about things you probably didn't know existed in the real world. Will you be able to handle that?" defense attorney Gerald Boyle asked a woman.

Dahmer has pleaded guilty but insane to the slayings of 15 young males in Milwaukee County. If the jury agrees he was insane, he would be sent to a mental hospital and could petition for release every six months. If deemed sane, he would receive a mandatory life prison sentence for each slaying.

Attorneys used one-on-one sessions with potential jurors in Judge Laurence Gram Jr.'s chambers to begin exposing them to details expected to emerge in testimony.

"The issue is not whether he slept with a dead body or whether he tasted a dead body. The issue is whether he was responsible for the killings that occurred," District Attorney E. Michael McCann said.

The attorneys also made sure potential jurors hadn't seen a supermarket tabloid story that said Dahmer ate his prison cellmate.

Dahmer chuckled briefly with attorneys when associate district attorney Carol White mentioned the article published this week. Attorneys said there was no truth to the story.

"Do you read those stories about people in outer space having babies and them becoming president and all that junk? Do you believe it?" Boyle asked a young man.

Eighteen potential jurors were sequestered Tuesday night. Attorneys wanted to assemble a pool of 28 people from which to choose the final 12 jurors and two alternates.

Thirty-eight people had been excused since jury selection began Monday.

Gram said a jury should be empaneled by Wednesday afternoon.

Dahmer sat in a corner nearest defense attorney Gerald Boyle during the private questioning in the judge's chambers. Jurors were seated at a round table across from him, but Dahmer mostly avoided eye contact with them and was expressionless. He flipped through a magazine toward the end of the morning sessions.

Three pool reporters were allowed in the chambers during questioning.

Attorneys dismissed a woman who indicated she didn't know if she would be able to set aside opinions she'd already formed about the case. She also said she believed psychiatrists are a waste of money.

"You go to one and sit down or lie on the couch and talk, and they charge you for it," she said. "I could talk to myself."

A 75-year-old man with a hearing problem also was dismissed.

Just one potential juror, a black woman, was questioned directly about her attitude about the role of race in the killings. Most of Dahmer's victims were young, black homosexuals.

"There have been suggestions that this was a racial crime and yesterday I said in open court that it wasn't. Can you trust me on that?" Boyle asked her.

1778 bill won't be paid back

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A merchant who lived next to Valley Forge when George Washington's bedraggled troops camped there loaned the Continental Congress $50,000 in gold and $400,000 in supplies. But Jacob DeHaven was never repaid.

His descendants sued the government for $100 billion, including interest, but on Monday the U.S. Supreme Court refused without comment to hear the case. The government said the statute of limitations ran out 123 years ago.

"I didn't expect the government to give any money back but I do think they should recognize (DeHaven) in some way," said Ada Brown, 64, of Tabernacle, N.J.

When DeHaven and others responded to Washington's plea for help in the winter of 1777-78, Congress offered to repay in Continental currency, which was widely considered worthless.

Few residents attend hearing on annexation

■ Only four people speak out on proposal to annex area between Highway 80 and I-20.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

The first of two public hearings scheduled to discuss the proposed annexation of the "windowpane" area between U.S. Highway 80 and Interstate Highway 20 attracted a sparse crowd Tuesday night at Midland Freshman High School.

Through an informal city-county agreement made in 1984, councilmen had said they would annex the land if the county provided water and sewer improvements in the area.

Granted under the intention that the area would eventually become annexed, most residents of the area currently receive water and sewer services at the regular city rate. If the area is not annexed, the residents would continue to receive water and sewer services — but at 1½ times the regular rate.

The "windowpane" area is bounded by Gist and Stokes avenues to the north, Fort Worth Street to the east, Longview to the south and Colorado and Baird to streets the west. Midland Freshman High School is directly north of the area.

If annexed, several city codes would take effect including zoning codes, building codes, animal codes and health codes. In addition, police patrol service would be extended to the neighborhood.

Only four residents addressed the city council at Tuesday night's meeting.

"I look forward to the city annexing this area. We support this," Al Taylor said. "We need to attract homebuilders and we would look forward to coming into the city."

The only complaint came from resident Dee Strickland of the 200 block of Peck Avenue. She expressed concern that city trash workers continue to use her driveway to turn around in a dead-end alley.

"My driveway is a muddy mess. They're really tearing it up," she said.

Ms. Strickland had previously issued a temporary easement granting the use of the driveway but she believes it's now time for a change.

According to Gary Harris, of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper Engineering firm, the houses surrounding the area are constructed too close together for the alley to be extended.

The second public hearing meeting is set for February 25 at a undecided location.

Action on the issue is expected to be taken on March 10.

Head of county road department retiring

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Albert Stewart, superintendent of the Midland County Road and Bridge Department, is retiring from the job he has held since 1976.

"I've never been there (retirement) before," Stewart said on Tuesday, "and I'll have to feel my way around."

Stewart, whose retirement was announced earlier this week, said that the job "has been good to me."

Stewart, 65, and his crew are charged with building and maintaining county roads under the direction of the five-member Commissioners' Court.

"This is a very, very sensitive position and should be considered very carefully," Commissioner Durward Wright said of the superintendency on Monday when the commissioners announced Stewart's impending retirement.

"We don't have to look for anything to do," Stewart said of work. "It's there. All we have to do is do it."

"We are certainly going to look within our own ranks and look outside" for Stewart's successor, Wright said Tuesday. "It is a difficult, complex job" that requires expertise in many areas, including public relations, maintenance, record-keeping, management, safety, road-building, equipment evaluation and repair, budgeting and fighting grass fires.

Stewart has done the county a "very good job," Wright said.

Stewart, who succeeded Buddy Kennedy in 1976, worked in maintenance in the Texas State Department of Highways and Transportation before he was hired as superintendent. He oversees a work force of about 30 people.

County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer appointed a review committee of commissioners Guy McCrary and Wright and Consulting Engineer Bill Harral to screen applicants for a replacement.

Resumes of applicants for the job, which currently pays about $35,000 a year, are to be turned into the judge's office in the Midland County Courthouse by 5 p.m. on Feb. 10.

Harral recommended that Stewart's successor be "on board" by April 1 so that Stewart can help familiarize the new superintendent with the many facets of the job.

Vehicle decoration

MISD patrol officer James "Mike" Bowen, right, peers through a gold Cadillac hood ornament, one of 51 car decorations confiscated from students in Midland Independent School District. Wire cutters and auto emblems and hood ornaments, above, were confiscated by John Miller, chief of security and safety for Midland public schools.

Lawman seizes stolen emblems

■ Students steal vehicle hood ornaments and then sell or trade them, according to MISD police officers.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

John Miller probably has one of the finer car hood ornament collections in town.

He has an array of gold and silver Cadillac hood ornaments, Chrysler hood crystals, BMW emblems and even a ramshead from a Dodge Ram truck.

But most likely, some Midland youngsters have even bigger collections. Some of their collections may even include the prestigious silver Mercedes hood adornment.

Unfortunately, the ornaments are stolen.

Miller, the police chief for Midland Independent School District, has acquired all of his ornaments from pupils.

He confiscated 51 car decorations — including key lock covers and grill ornaments — on Monday alone.

The school district chief of safety and security rounded up the ornaments from students age 9 through 14 at Lamar Elementary School, Crockett Elementary School and Goddard Junior High School.

"There's a lot of buying, selling and trading going on," Miller said. "It's like baseball trading cards."

Students wear the ornaments as pendants on necklaces, hook them on key chains or just flash them and boast of spending an evening "clipping."

"They call it clipping because it involves clipping a wire to remove the ornaments," Miller said, pointing to some wire cutters he confiscated along with some of the auto emblems.

James "Mike" Bowen, a patrol officer for the school district's police department, said he also was tipped off about 100-150 ornaments in an "Army ammo" box buried in a field.

Miller said one young informant dug up the ammo box only to have it strong-armed away from him by the students who originally buried it.

"I think we have just hit the tip of the iceberg here," Miller said, noting that ornaments are reportedly hidden in alleys or stashed in clever places in some youngsters' bedrooms.

"We first heard about this problem two weeks ago," Miller said. "We recovered about 20 ornaments at a residence in the Rusk (Elementary School) area."

Miller described a network of fencing activities which could be traced along bus routes.

He said some students confessed to stealing the ornaments from cars parked in northeast Midland, especially in parking lots of businesses along Midland Drive and at Midland Park Mall.

Combest opponent criticizes professional politicians

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Economic reform has been stagnated by career politicians, according to Terry Lee Moser, the lone Democratic candidate in the 19th Congressional District race.

"We should come up with a plan to improve our economy. That's my whole issue: America first," said Moser, who was on the campaign trail in Midland Tuesday.

"The normal, common everyday man is not represented in our country. We have a bunch of eiitists who are going to run our country and tell us what to do," Moser said.

Moser, 44, who advocates limited terms for elected officials, criticized his sole opponent, incumbent Larry Combest, R-Lubbock.

"He is a good politician, an excellent politician. That's exactly what I don't want," Moser said.

"The true issue is that this campaign has to be run. We have to have a change. We can no longer put up with professional politicians."

Moser said his dissatisfaction with career politicians stems from their lack of action — namely, economic reform.

"Our economy needs to have a major turnaround," Moser said.

To do so means more restrictions on foreign businesses, he said. "Let them play on our home court under the same rules," said Moser, who criticized foreign lobbies' ability to sway the Congress.

In addition, the United States needs to bring confidence back to the people, create jobs, support small business, and provide quality education in public schools and better access to colleges and universities.

Revolution — in one form or another — is inevitable, Moser said.

If not, the country will see a further deterioration of the family, the work base, and unemployment "like never seen before," Moser said.

But Moser conceded that he,

Extra funds should be used for teacher pay, health insurance, TSTA head says

■ MISD has 12-20 percent of the budget in reserve, business manager says.

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Many school districts are stashing away more money than they need in surplus bank accounts while teacher salaries continue to slip below the national average, the head of the Texas State Teachers Association said Tuesday.

TSTA President Olivia Besteiro released a list of schools which she said had an excess of surplus funds that should be used for teacher salaries, health insurance and educating students.

The Texas Association of School Boards, however, said school districts have good reasons for keeping fund balances, such as to ensure a steady cash flow, provide for self-funded insurance or guarantee debt.

Ms. Besteiro said the Texas Education Agency recommends school districts keep at least one month's operating expenses on hand, which would

Midland, Odessa December jobless rates decrease from month before

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Midland's employment picture showed improvement in December, due largely to seasonal Christmas hiring.

Figures released Tuesday by the Texas Employment Commission revealed that the local unemployment rate was 5.3 percent in December, down from 5.7 percent in November but up from December 1990's rate of 4.8 percent.

Odessa's rate was 7.1 percent, down slightly from 7.3 percent in November.

The civilian labor force in Midland remained at 48,800 from November to December, and was up from 48,200 a year earlier.

TEC figures also show that 200 Midlanders joined the ranks of the employed, bringing total employment to 46,200 from 46,000; a year earlier it was 45,900. Total unemployment dropped by a corresponding 200, to 2,600 from 2,800; it was 2,300 a year earlier.

The TEC said the Texas economy remained relatively stagnant in December and predicts that it will be spring before the state's economy shows any real improvement, according to Meris Kidd, manager of the TEC's Midland office.

According to statistics compiled by TEC's Midland regional office, there were 45,900 employed in

HOOD: Ornaments fenced, officer says

(From 1B)

"Hood ornaments are also being taken from cars parked at churches and in the Rusk area at night," he said.

Bob Swanner, an employee in the parts department of Britt Imports, a Mercedes-Benz authorized parts supplier, said that the sale of hood ornaments has increased in the last three or four weeks.

"I have a lady here buying one now," he said, when contacted Tuesday afternoon. "We have gone from selling one a day to three or four a day."

Swanner said the ornaments — which come packaged as a unit with spring and attachments — range in price from $28 to $36.

A spokesman at Friendly Chrysler-Plymouth said the crystal hood ornaments cost an average of $19 to replace.

He said sales "are spotty. They go in spurts and usually pick up after Halloween (pranks)."

Chrome Cadillac hood ornaments cost $32.50 and the same ornaments in gold sell for $65, according to George Scott of the parts department at Berg Motor Co. "We sell hood ornaments and trunk emblems at quite a steady flow," Scott said. "Anything that stands up on a spring is fair game."

Swanner noted that some students actually purchase Mercedes hood ornaments. Those who do purchase car adornments and take them to school might be advised to keep a receipt in a wallet.

While "clipping" may seem a sport for some youngsters, Miller said they need to realize they are committing a crime. "And the buying and selling network is a gang activity," he said.

A student who has a non-purchased ornament in his or her possession can be found guilty of a Class B misdemeanor, which applies to property valued at more than $20. However, students who have large stashes of ornaments could be guilty of a felony offense.

"My main objective is to let people know we have an epidemic here," Miller said. "Parents and teachers need to be aware of what's going on. Trading and selling is going on at bus stops, before school and out on school patios."

Miller said safety is also an issue. He said car owners, defending their property, may happen upon thieves. "There is a danger that the owners may come out with a shotgun, and someone could get hurt," he said.

Students identified as stealing vehicle adornments could end up in juvenile court, or may receive juvenile warning notices.

"When gang activity is involved, it enhances penalties one level," he said.

So what will Miller do with his auto emblem collection?

"We are contacting people who have filed complaints about missing ornaments to come down and check them out," he said.

Persons who have filed complaints may find their stolen ornament in Miller's collection and are free to take it home.

Parents who discover auto emblem contraband in their homes may bring the items to Miller's office, located in the MISD downtown offices, 615 W. Missouri, Suite 607.

"We won't prosecute anyone turning these things in voluntarily," Miller said. "Parents can turn them in. We are just trying to stop a crime wave."

John Miller may be contacted at 689-1059.

MISD: TSTA head opposes surpluses be about 8.3 percent of their budgets.

However, TEA spokesman Joey Lozano said it is generally recommended that school districts keep between 2½ and three months' worth of operating expenses in reserve.

Ms. Besteiro said TSTA had identified 540 districts, which is more than half the districts in the state, that had at least a two-month surplus.

Midland Independent School District was listed with a surplus of 19.28 percent, compared with a statewide average surplus of 14.49 percent. The total dollar surplus at Midland was $13.68 million.

Don Furgeson, business manager for Midland ISD, said school board trustees prefer to keep 12-20 percent of the operating budget in reserves. He said the figures the TSTA reported were accurate for August 1990. "Our reserves are considerably down now," Furgeson said, noting that the reserves were close to 12 percent, rather than the 19 percent reported by the TSTA.

"We dip into reserves to balance the budget, to fund projects and because of state prorations," he said. "Last year we received $1.1 million less than we estimated we would get from the state. So, we also have to plan for pro-rations."

Furgeson said it costs $8 million a month to operate Midland ISD.

School board trustees have also noted that the district tries to keep reserves up in order to maintain AAA Moody ratings for bond purposes.

Ms. Besteiro said beginning teacher salaries were cut or frozen in more than half of Texas' school districts in 1991-92, even though school savings accounts hold a combined total of nearly $3 billion.

The largest surplus, 203 percent, was in the McMullen County School District in south Texas.

The TSTA survey showed that of 972 districts responding, 54 had cut teacher pay by amounts ranging from $60 to $3,000 a year; 685 froze salary levels and 233 raised teacher pay.

Midland ISD however, has raised teacher salaries annually the last several years.

Ms. Besteiro blamed "the misplaced funding priorities of local school boards and their top administrators" for Texas' drop in the national ranking of teacher salary to 35th from 32nd the previous year.

Average per pupil expenditures in Texas schools has fallen from 35th to 40th in the nation as of the 1991-92 school year, she said.

The health insurance picture is even worse, she said, with 160 districts either providing no insurance or making no contribution toward the cost of coverage.

Midland ISD provides health insurance and a matching annuity program for its employees, Furgeson said.

Myra Lee Salcedo contributed to this report.

The Tall City's unemployment rate was sixth lowest among the TEC's metropolitan statistical areas, tied with Abilene. Bryan College Station was first with 3.8 percent, followed by Austin with 4.7 percent and Amarillo and Victoria with 5.1 percent each.

Odessa ranked 18th.

The state's unemployment rate for December was 6.7 percent, down from 6.8 percent in November, but up from the 6.5 percent rate for December 1990.

Kennedy files contain nothing new, ex-officer says

DALLAS (AP) — A former Dallas policeman who helped investigate the deaths of President Kennedy and Lee Harvey Oswald said on Tuesday there is no new information in newly released municipal files on the incidents.

Paul McCaghren, who now works as a private investigator, said he feared releasing the files would reveal personal information and raise questions the department answered more than two decades ago.

"My concern is that it's going to be played over again," McCaghren said. "... The files are filled with a lot of truth but they're also filled with rumors and innuendoes."

The Dallas City Council on Monday voted to release the 2,000 pages, discovered recently in police intelligence archives.

Kennedy was fatally shot during a motorcade in downtown Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. The Warren Commission concluded that Kennedy was shot by Oswald, who acted alone.

McCaghren said he was part of an investigative team that interviewed 123 people who were in the Dallas Police Department basement when nightclub owner Jack Ruby murdered Oswald.

The investigators later questioned 40-50 people regarding Kennedy's death, he said.

"One drunk was out at the bar at midnight and confided in the bartender that he knew that Oswald and Ruby knew each other," McCaghren said. "We got him out of bed at five o'clock in the morning."

McCaghren, who served as the department's head of intelligence from 1970-72, said the interviews shed little light on the assassination.

"There are no bombshells," he said. "There's nothing there that's new."

Despite apparently offering no new information, the documents drew dozens of visitors to Dallas City Hall. City archivist Cindy Smolovik said she had already received hundreds of inquiries from as far away as Germany and Australia.

Included in the files were such documents as Oswald's grade school records, letters sent to Ruby in jail and the personnel files of police officer J.D. Tippit, who was killed by Oswald after the assassination.

In a letter to Dallas Police Chief Jesse Curry, Dick Wresch of Battle Ground, Wash., offered to buy the handcuffs Oswald was wearing when he was shot.

Wresch, a collector of Houdini leg irons, enclosed a check for $15 that was also to cover postage and handling. Curry returned the check.

Dimple Crain Davis of Paris, Texas, wrote asking Oswald's wife, Marina, and their two children to move in with her in time for Christmas 1963.

"Mrs. Oswald and I would prepare the turkey with all the trimmings, bake a ham, and all the other things that make Christmas," Mrs. Davis wrote.

Many people sent their best wishes to Ruby for doing "our country a great service."

Others, such as one Rockford, Ill., man who signed his letter only as "a U.S. citizen," chastised Ruby.

"Suppose you think you're a hero, you dumb cluck," the man wrote. "We wanted to see Oswald worry and sweat and burn ... and you made it easy for him. Boy what a brain."

'JFK' misleading, former state attorney general says

TYLER (AP) — Filmmaker Oliver Stone's portrayal of President Kennedy's assassination is misleading and feeds on conspiracy fears, a former Texas attorney general says.

Waggoner Carr, who was asked by President Lyndon B. Johnson to conduct a court of inquiry into the assassination, said Monday it was "morally and ethically wrong" for the movie's creators to distort facts for profit.

He said "JFK," Stone's new movie, "misleads the people who see it and does a disservice to the country."

Academy Award-winning director Stone, a Vietnam veteran, has defended his film as his perspective on the Kennedy assassination and an effort to open secret government files on the investigation.

Carr, however, told the Tyler Morning Telegraph that the movie will leave with the younger generation false impressions of a conspiracy involving Johnson, the Warren Commission, the CIA and FBI.

He said the movie, at the very least, should have had a disclaimer at the beginning instead of just making direct allegations of a conspiracy.

"We are a paranoid nation on conspiracies," said Carr, who was attorney general when Kennedy was slain in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

The Warren Commission conducted a "very thorough" investigation and reached an "appropriate" conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the assassination, said Carr, who participated in the panel's work.

He said Johnson asked him to conduct a court of inquiry "to look into and try to investigate the assassination."

But the commission was appointed before Carr could begin his court of inquiry. He said other investigations also had been launched by local and federal officials.

"So it was turning into a four- or five-ring circus," he said, adding that he agreed to work with the commission.

Houston lawyer Leon Jaworski, who later gained prominence during the Watergate hearings, and Robert Story, dean of the Southern Methodist University law school, were asked to work in Carr's court of inquiry.

Instead, all three worked with the Warren Commission for 18 months, said Carr.

"We agreed that Oswald was the guilty party and had fired all the shots," he said.

Carr and other commission members went to the sixth floor of the old Texas Schoolbook Depository and tried to recreate facts in the assassination.

"It was not a real tough shot. It was a slow-moving target," said Carr. "I could not pull the trigger and reload in the time Oswald did to fire his three shots," but several members of the commission could, he said.

Rate increase needed, insurers say

■ Consumers advocacy group argues that recommended 47 percent jump in auto insurance rates is unfair.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The insurance industry argued Tuesday that a proposed 47 percent rate increase for automobile coverage is necessary by state law, but a consumer advocacy group called the recommendation unfair.

Both sides presented their arguments to the State Board of Insurance, which will consider adjusting premiums for people who cannot buy auto insurance on the open market because they are deemed high risks.

The industry is seeking a boost of 47.16 percent, while the Office of Public Insurance Counsel wants rates to be frozen.

The hearing was expected to last for most of the day Tuesday. No date for the vote had been set as of Tuesday afternoon.

High-risk consumers unable to receive coverage elsewhere must purchase policies from the Texas Automobile Insurance Plan. Often called the Plan, the TAIP provides state-required minimum limits of auto liability coverage for drivers denied coverage in the voluntary market.

"We believe that the testimony of these witnesses shows an unequivocal need for a significant rate increase," said Richard Geiger, attorney for the industry, in his opening remarks to the Insurance Board.

"In fact, a rate increase must be ordered by this board if rates are to be in keeping with the constitutional and statutory standards which govern state mandated rates."

Since the state tightened its mandatory liability insurance law, more high-risk drivers have sought coverage under the Plan. The number of policies has risen almost 90 percent, opening the industry to higher risk and forcing higher rates to be necessary, according to the insurance industry.

Geiger added that the price increase is justified because insurers cannot turn down customer's seeking protection under the Plan.

"Therefore, the premium has to fairly compensate that insurer and provide for expected losses," he said.

The industry is seeking a boost of 47.16 percent.

Amy Johnson, of the Office of Public Insurance Counsel, disputed Geiger's recommendation and questioned the validity of the numbers upon which he based his appeal.

"In order for compulsory auto insurance to work, the rates in the Texas assigned risk plan have to be fair," Ms. Johnson said. "A 47 percent rate hike is not fair."

Ms. Johnson said that under the industry's plan, average annual rates would soar from $430 to $650, pumping an extra $180 million into the industry.

An actuary hired by OPIC to examine the data found three major mistakes, Ms. Johnson said. She cited one error that called for lower rates for drunk drivers than for motorists with clean records.

"Even if you believe the data is credible, you would also have to look at the fact this market's changing," Ms. Johnson said, adding that the figures used were from 1989.

Schools ban AIDS poster contest

AUSTIN (AP) — School officials have blocked a county-funded AIDS awareness poster contest scheduled for students in two dozen schools.

"It does not fit in to what we have planned for our second semester," said LaVonne Rogers, an assistant superintendent for elementary education. "We don't do many poster contests, anyway."

Ms. Rogers said school officials also were concerned that parents do not want their children discussing the sexually transmitted disease.

The voluntary contest was scheduled to be conducted at 24 elementary, middle and high schools beginning next month on the city's east side.

The Central East Austin Community Organization was given a grant last year from Travis County to teach the city's children about AIDS prevention via the poster contest, several student-produced public service announcements and a student-produced theater performance.

Boyd Vance, who coordinates the group's HIV-AIDS youth awareness programs, said he was told by school officials that the contest's theme was "inappropriate material for elementary school students."

He added that the group would try to get the board to authorize the contest in middle school and high school art classes.

Ms. Rogers said the school district already has an AIDS education program, but it is not discussed in some early grade levels.

'Simmer Sauces' dress up chicken dishes

By Linda Anderson

Some trends of the '80s are moving with us into the '90s. Some, like Nintendo video game systems and artificially flavored and colored breakfast cereals themed for some television show, toy or movie, have overstayed their welcome. Some, like healthy exercise programs and chicken-based dinners, are welcome to stay as long as they like.

Anderson

Ragu, a company famous for its spaghetti sauce, has branched off into sauces for chicken — I guess they like the idea of more chicken dinners too. And the company is so proud of its new product that it sent us a couple of these "simmer sauces" for us to sample.

Chicken Tonight Simmer Sauce for Chicken is available in six flavors, but the two we received were for Chicken Cacciatore and Country French Chicken. (The other four flavors are Salsa Chicken, Creamy Chicken with Mushrooms, Oriental Chicken and Herbed Chicken with Wine.)

A 24.5-ounce jar (or, in the case of Country French Chicken simmer sauce, 23.5 ounces) of Chicken Tonight sells for $2.19, and is designed to make six servings of chicken dinner.

Label advertising claims the company is "Presenting an exciting way to create delicious chicken dishes. Simply brown your chicken, simmer and serve."

Information from the company claims "Every 24 ounce jar has chunks of real vegetables (not dehydrated) and enough sauce to make your chicken into a complete dinner with pasta or rice." It then goes on to praise the benefits of chicken: "Due to its high quality, good value and nutritional benefits, chicken has surpassed beef in popularity to become the most popular main dish in America ..."

And, not surprisingly, goes on to tell about how convenient Chicken Tonight Simmer Sauces are for consumers who really don't have time to cook all these wonderful chicken dishes from scratch: "Chicken Tonight Simmer Sauces from Ragu are the easy way to make your chicken dishes taste different and exciting every time.

"Simply brown your chicken, simmer in Chicken Tonight Simmer Sauce, and serve. There's even enough extra sauce to pour over your rice or pasta side dish. With 12 million households eating chicken dinners every night (that information is from MRCA Information Services, 1990), Chicken Tonight Simmer Sauces provide an easy way to prepare high-quality, delicious chicken dishes the whole family will love."

Well, sounded easy enough. We sampled both varieties of Chicken Tonight and were favorably impressed with both. Chicken Cacciatore has a nice Italian flavor (in spite of the fact that I'm not all that crazy about Italian foods) and, according to its nutrition label information, the sauce adds only 2 grams fat (that's 18 calories) per serving to the chicken. Country French Chicken is higher in fat — 12 grams or 108 extra calories from fat — per serving, but has a definite wine flavor, adding a French flair to the chicken.

Chicken Tonight is an easy way to add a different flavor to chicken dinners. Now I want to try the Salsa Chicken and the Creamy Chicken with Mushrooms...

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Cookies make hearts beat faster on Valentine's Day

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Wear your heart on a platter this year. Serve your valentine some heart-shaped peanut butter and chocolate minicakes. You can bake these single-serving cakes in small heart-shaped pans, tartlet pans, or minimuffin pans. (To find 2¾x½-inch heart-shaped tartlet molds, look in a kitchen specialty shop.) Depending on the pan size you choose, you'll wind up with 12, 24, or 48 cakes. Serve them with a steaming cup of your favorite coffee.

HEARTTHROB CAKES
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
¼ cup peanut butter
2 2-ounce envelopes pre-melted unsweetened chocolate product
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 recipe Peanut Butter Icing (recipe follows)
¼ cup chopped peanuts (optional)

In large mixer bowl stir together flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add milk, peanut butter, chocolate product and vanilla. Beat with electric mixer on low speed until combined. Beat on medium speed for 2 minutes. Add egg; beat for 2 minutes more.

Spoon ¼ cup batter into each of 12 greased and floured 3½x1-inch heart-shaped minicake pans. Or spoon 2 tablespoons batter into each of 24 greased and floured 2¾x½-inch tartlet molds or 1 tablespoon batter into 48 greased and floured 1¾-inch muffin pans.) If necessary, bake one-fourth or one-half of the batter at a time; let remaining batter stand at room temperature.

Bake 3½x1-inch hearts in a 350-degree F oven about 15 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the centers comes out clean. Bake 2¾x½-inch tartlet molds for 10 to 12 minutes or 1¾-inch muffin pans for 8 to 9 minutes. Cool for 10 minutes on wire rack. Remove from pans. Cool completely.

Prepare Peanut Butter Icing. Pour icing over cooled 3½-by 1-inch cakes, completely covering tops and sides. Sprinkle with peanuts, if desired. (Drizzle icing over smaller cakes.) Makes 12 3½x1-inch cakes, 24 2¾x½-inch cakes, or 48 1¾-inch cakes.

Peanut Butter Icing: In small mixer bowl beat 3 tablespoons peanut butter with electric mixer on medium speed until light and fluffy. Gradually add ¾ cup sifted powdered sugar, beating well. Beat in ¼ cup milk and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Gradually beat in additional 1 cup sifted powdered sugar. Beat in additional milk (1 to 2 tablespoons), if necessary, to make icing of pouring consistency. (Icing should be thin enough to flow over cakes so heart shape is distinct.) Makes enough to either frost 12 3½x1-inch cakes or drizzle over 24 2¾x½-inch cakes or 48 1¾-inch cakes.

Make sweets for sweethearts on Valentine's Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Why buy a box of candies for Valentine's Day when you can make your own? Homemade candies can be wrapped in a heart-shaped box and tied box with a big red bow.

Pick your favorite candy recipe, or try an assortment.

Lauren Groveman, who runs Lauren Groveman's Kitchen cooking school in Larchmont, N.Y., says the following recipe started with her husband's love of chocolate-covered peanut chews. They are her husband's all-time favorite candy to buy, she says. "That, of course, inspired me to try to outdo them.

"After many times of heading 'back to the drawing board,' I finally got it! Though my husband was a tough nut to crack, even he agrees, these are delicious."

CHOCOLATE-COVERED PEANUT CHEWS
Melted butter for baking dish
1 cup light corn syrup
1 cup white granulated sugar
½ cup heavy cream
5 tablespoons sweet unsalted butter
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
1½ generous cups unsalted cocktail peanuts
Pinch of salt
24 ounces semisweet chocolate
8 ounces milk chocolate, broken into pieces

Brush the bottom and sides of a 9x13-inch baking dish generously with melted butter. Line the bottom of the dish with parchment paper. Butter the paper. Set aside.

Pour the corn syrup into a heavy-bottom pot with a light-colored interior. (The color of the interior plays an important part in determining the color of your caramel. The lighter the interior, the less chance for misinterpretation that would cause the caramel to burn.)

Pour the sugar over the corn syrup. Place the pot over medium heat; bring the mixture to a boil, stirring just to incorporate. Place a pastry brush in a cup of very hot tap water next to the stove. Use the pastry brush as the sugar syrup comes to a boil to wash any sugar crystals off the walls of the pot, or the exposed sugar on the pot will burn, turning the rest of the mixture bitter.

As the mixture boils, insert the stem of your candy thermometer into the cup of hot water containing the pastry brush. Do not stir the sugar syrup as it boils. As the mixture boils, the water content is evaporating and all that will remain is caramelized sugar.

Let the mixture boil undisturbed until the color becomes amber, like a light cup of tea. Lower the flame. Pour in the heavy cream; add the butter. Stir with a wooden spoon until combined.

Place a low to medium flame back under the pot and insert the thermometer into the mixture, making sure that the tip of the stem does not touch the bottom of the pot. Boil the mixture gently until the thermometer reads 238 degrees to 240 degrees but no higher. Remove the pot from the stove; stir in the vanilla and the nuts. Add a pinch of salt. Pour this mixture into the greased and papered dish. Spread with a metal spatula into an even layer. Set the dish on a wire rack for better circulation; let set.

After 20 minutes or so, brush the blade of your pastry scraper with melted butter. Use this blade to score your caramel into bite-size squares or rectangles. If the mixture starts to stick to the blade, rinse the blade under hot water and reapply the butter to the blade before continuing to cut. Let the mixture cool, going over your original cuts occasionally as the candy cools.

Once the caramel is completely cool, cut once more. Turn the candy out onto your kitchen counter. Remove the paper. Cut through the caramel, using either the pastry scraper or sharp kitchen shears. Set aside until ready to coat with chocolate.

For the Chocolate: Line two large baking sheets or platters with waxed paper. Set aside.

Place the semisweet chocolate in the top of a double boiler over simmering water. Stir the chocolate until it is just smooth. Remove the semisweet chocolate from the heat; add the milk chocolate pieces. Stir constantly until the chocolates become smooth, emulsified and tempered.

Drop one piece of caramel into the chocolate; turn with a fork. Using the fork, carefully lift the chocolate-covered caramel out of the chocolate. Run the bottom of the fork against the side of the bowl to remove any excess chocolate. Lay the caramel on the waxed paper-lined baking sheets. Continue until all have been dipped. Refrigerate each sheet as it is completed, 5 to 10 minutes, but no longer. Remove from the refrigerator. The chocolate should be smooth, shiny and set. Store, separated by sheets of waxed paper, in airtight tins at room temperature. (Recipe from: Lauren Groveman's Kitchen, Larchmont)

Edible Valentines make day memorable

NEW YORK (AP) — On Feb. 14, 1974, Judy Rosenberg began baking and delivering fanciful, heart-shaped lavender and pink frosted cookies to Boston galleries and food shops.

Now there are three Rosie's Bakery stores — one in Inman Square in Cambridge, a second store in suburban Chestnut Hill and a third in Boston's South Station.

Pink and hearts are the emblems of Rosie's Bakery stores, where customers can buy such enticing treats as Soho Globs, Nectarine Synergy and Walnut Dream Bars.

Home cooks can now taste a little something from Rosie's with Rosenberg's new cookbook, the "Rosie's Bakery All-Butter, Fresh Cream, Sugar-Packed, No-Holds-Barred Baking Book" (Workman Publishing, $12.95, soft-cover).

The 244-page cookbook, also available in hard-cover, contains 150 recipes including Fudge Cake, whimsical Sunken Kisses, heart-shaped Linzertortes and Chocolate Orgasm brownies, all appropriate for Valentine's Day.

For the following recipe for Fudge Cake, Rosenberg recommends baking the layers a bit below 350 degrees F to keep them moist.

FUDGE CAKE

4 ounces unsweetened chocolate
2 cups sugar
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup hot strong brewed coffee or 5 teaspoons instant coffee powder dissolved in 1 cup hot water
½ cup sour cream, at room temperature
½ cup vegetable oil
2 large eggs, lightly beaten with a fork, at room temperature
Fudge Frosting (recipe follows)

Preheat oven to 345 degrees F. Lightly grease two 8-inch layer cake pans with vegetable oil or butter, or line with parchment circles or inserts.

Melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler placed over simmering water, then turn off heat.

Sift the sugar, flour, baking soda and salt together into a large mixing bowl. In a separate bowl, blend the hot coffee, sour cream and vegetable oil with a whisk.

With a mixer on low speed, add the coffee mixture in a stream to the dry ingredients and mix until blended, about 35 seconds. Stop the mixer to scrape the bowl several times with a rubber spatula.

Add the eggs one at a time; mix on medium-low speed after each addition until smooth, about 15 seconds. Scrape the bowl each time. Add the chocolate and mix until the batter is uniform in color, about 10 seconds.

Divide the batter evenly between the prepared pans; place them on the center rack of the oven. Bake in a 345-degree F oven until the cake springs back to the touch and a tester inserted in the center comes out dry, about 35 to 38 minutes. Do not wait for a crust to form. Cool the layers in the pans on a rack before frosting. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

A heart-shaped fudge cake can make Valentine's Day memorable.

FUDGE FROSTING

4 ounces unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup evaporated milk
1 cup sugar

Melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler placed over simmering water. Cool slightly.

Blend the evaporated milk and sugar in a blender on medium speed for 2 seconds. Add the chocolate to the sugar mixture in the blender; blend on high speed until the frosting is thick and shiny, 1 to 1½ minutes. The mixer's sound will change when the frosting has thickened.

Spoon the frosting into a bowl; allow it to set at room temperature for 30 minutes. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap and allow the frosting to set for 1 hour before frosting. Do not refrigerate, even if you don't plan to use it for several days. Makes 1¾ cups, enough to fill and frost a two-layer cake.

Note: This frosting can only be made in a blender.

To frost: Place one cake layer right side up on the serving plate.

Using a frosting spatula, spread frosting ¼-inch thick over the top of this layer; stack the second layer on top. Apply a thin layer of frosting to the top and sides of the cake to form a base coat that seals the cake and contains the crumbs.

Spread another layer of frosting, no more than ¼-inch thick, over the sides of the cake. Smooth it out with the long, thin edge of the spatula.

Spread the remaining frosting over the top of the cake, smooth it out, then glide the rounded tip of a frosting spatula across the top of the cake on a diagonal to form parallel ridges. Trim off excess frosting by passing the long edge of the spatula around the circumference of the cake's top.

If you have a cake wheel, you can add a swirl by centering the cake on the wheel and spinning the wheel slowly while holding the top of the spatula at a 45 degree angle to the cake and gliding it toward the center of the cake in a continuous stroke.

Wipe off any frosting or finger smudges on the plate with a damp paper towel.

Cranberries add tart taste to apple pie

Associated Press

The tart taste of cranberries combines with apples in this delicious Cranberry-Apple Pie.

CRANBERRY-APPLE PIE

1½ cups sugar
3 tablespoons tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup whole cranberries
3 cups apples, peeled and diced
Pastry for a two-crust 9-inch pie
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Combine sugar, tapioca and salt in bowl; add cranberries and apples; let stand about 15 minutes.

Roll half of pastry very thin, less than ⅛-inch thick. Line 9-inch pie pan and trim pastry at edge of the rim. Roll remaining pastry very thin; cut several small slits or design near center.

Fill pie shell with fruit mixture. Dot with butter. Moisten edge of bottom crust. Fold pastry in half or roll loosely on rolling pin. Center pastry on filling. Open slits to permit steam to escape. Trim top crust, letting it extend ½ inch over rim. Press top and bottom crusts together on rim; fold edge of top crust under bottom crust and flute. Bake at 425 degrees for 60 minutes, or until syrup boils with heavy bubbles that do not burst.

For lattice top, line pie pan with pastry as directed. Roll remaining pastry ⅛-inch thick and cut into ½-inch strips. Adjust pastry strips in lattice design on fruit mixture in pie shell. Press ends to edge of bottom crust and flute edge.

DEAR ABBY

Man bellyaches that wife sits at bar

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a big disagreement about women sitting at the bar when tables are available to them. She feels that as long as she is with a girlfriend (or girlfriends), it is perfectly all right.

Van Buren

I disagree. As a male, I have a fairly good idea about how most men think. For the most part, when a man walks into a bar looking for someone to hit on, if he sees a woman sitting at the bar, he figures she's probably looking for company. Like I said, my wife disagrees.

We both respect your opinion. How do you vote on this? — J. IN CHICAGO

DEAR J.: A woman may sit at the bar because (a) she wants to be seen; (b) she may want to be hit upon; or (c) she may just want to make conversation with the bartender.

A woman sitting alone at a table in a bar could be looking for company — if that's what she came in for.

I vote for your wife's sitting wherever she feels comfortable — as long as she behaves herself and remembers to say, "No, thank you, I'm married," if she's offered more than a drink.

DEAR ABBY: You have often urged parents to respect the privacy of their teen-agers with regard to letters, diaries, etc. But now that drugs have become a major threat, please comment on how much privacy you think a teenager should have. There are a lot of very worried parents out there. — ONE OF THEM

DEAR ONE: There is a vast difference between parents invading their children's privacy out of curiosity, and parents who have reason to suspect that their child is involved with drugs. Because drug involvement can be fatal, parents have not only the right, but an obligation to learn as much as they can, by whatever means available to them. God will forgive them. And so will their children, eventually.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion regarding sending cards to hospital patients. Instead of your own return address, write the patient's home address in the "return address" corner.

That way, if the patient has already been discharged, the card will be sent to his or her home address, not yours. — PATTY WILLIAMS, EXCELSIOR, MINN.

DEAR PATTY: Thanks for an excellent suggestion. And speaking of cards, please read on:

DEAR ABBY: Don't people read the messages on cards before they send them? Obviously some do not, and I wish they would.

While my husband (now deceased) was in the hospital with a terminal illness, he received many cards from friends and co-workers who were aware that he was terminally ill.

Some cards bore cheery messages such as, "I hear you're coming home soon," "Get well fast," "We have a lot of catching up to do!"

He appreciated being remembered, but a simple "Thinking of you" card would have done more for his morale.

Please pass this along to your readers, Abby, but omit my name and town. — RECENT WIDOW

Recipe takes fat out of flapjacks

Associated Press

We think you'll flip for these all-American flapjacks, because we've cut back on cooking oil and added apple juice instead. Remember, if you want to keep pancakes low in fat, top them with syrup and use little or no butter.

HONEY-APPLE PANCAKES
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon apple pie spice
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
1 egg
¾ cup apple juice
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon cooking oil

In a medium mixing bowl stir together flour, baking powder, salt, apple pie spice and baking soda. In a small mixing bowl beat egg slightly; stir in apple juice, honey and oil. Add egg mixture all at once to flour mixture; stir until blended but still slightly lumpy.

For each pancake, pour about ¼ cup of the batter onto a hot, lightly greased griddle or heavy skillet. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes or until pancakes have a bubbly surface and slightly dry edges. Turn and cook for 2 to 3 minutes more or until golden brown. Makes about eight 4-inch pancakes.

Nutrition information per pancake: 124 cal., 3 g pro., 3 g fat, 34 mg chol., 169 mg sodium.

Oven-roasted potatoes should be classic kitchen repertoire of every cook

Associated Press

Oven-roasted potatoes ought to be one of those classics every cook should have in the kitchen repertoire. They're easy, and if done correctly, a perfect partner for a grilled chop or simple broiled fish. The secret is oven temperature and the proper seasoning combination. This recipe was developed by the National Potato Board.

OVEN-ROASTED POTATOES
4 medium potatoes (about 1½ pounds)
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh rosemary or 2 teaspoons dried rosemary, crumbled
4 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 medium red bell pepper, seeded and cut into 1-inch squares

Preheat oven to 475 degrees. Cut potatoes into ½-inch slices or wedges. Measure remaining ingredients except bell pepper into baking sheet with sides; mix to blend. Add potatoes and bell pepper. Toss to coat. Arrange in single layer.

Bake 30 to 35 minutes until potatoes are tender and lightly browned, tossing 2 to 3 times during baking.

Variation: Omit rosemary; add 1 tablespoon chopped fresh or 1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, and 1 teaspoon chili powder before adding potatoes and bell pepper to baking sheet.

Fat kneecap

DALLAS (AP) — A painful lesion on one of Fat Lever's kneecaps could necessitate surgery, sidelining the Dallas Mavericks' guard for the rest of the NBA season.

Magnetic resonance imaging on Lever's left knee was scheduled Tuesday night, with results to be known today. Lever missed 10 games in December with the injury, and surgery would sideline him at least 12 weeks, ending his season.

Walker trade

ATLANTA (AP) — An Atlanta Falcons personnel official said he has talked with the Minnesota Vikings regarding running back Herschel Walker, but there's no deal yet.

Ken Herock, the Falcons' vice president in charge of personnel, said Monday he has contacted Vikings vice president and chief financial officer Jeff Diamond about Walker's availability.

Herock said he has not contacted Vikings general manager Roger Headrick or Walker's agent, Peter Johnson.

"I just called them because I had heard that Herschel was unhappy there, and I wanted to find out more about his situation,' Herock said.

■ Midland Lee's boys down San Angelo 77-71 to stay one game behind district co-leaders Abilene Cooper and Abilene High.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland Lee's Rebels stayed in the District 4-5A playoff hunt Tuesday night with a 77-71 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats at Chaparral Center in a game that was not as close as the score indicates.

The Rebels led by as many as 15 points (72-57) in the fourth quarter before Lee coach Jon House emptied his bench to let everyone take part in the party. But no one had more fun than junior David Wilson, who had a season best 31 points, 15 in the third quarter to ignite a Rebel comeback.

The victory leaves Lee with a 4-2 District 4-5A record at the end of first half action, one game behind Abilene High and Abilene Cooper, who are tied for first place with 5-1 marks. AHS beat Odessa High 76-71 Tuesday while Cooper took care of Odessa Permian 66-52.

It's easy to see that Lee could not withstand a loss with the way the two Abilene schools are playing. However a two-for-14 shooting eye in the second quarter and a 19-4 run by San Angelo gave the Bobcats a 33-24 second quarter lead with two minutes left in the first half of play.

No worry here. Bring on David Wilson for 21 second half points and you have a ready made comeback.

Midland Lee's Keenan Henry crashes to the floor while driving through the lane Tuesday night at the Chaparral Center.

"We just went stone cold in the second quarter," House said. "We were getting good shots, but I can't remember a colder quarter this year. However, I would rather that kind of quarter come in the second quarter instead of the fourth anytime.

"We made some adjustments at the half and started flashing David Wilson across the middle. San Angelo was trying to guard Wayne Wilson down low and they just couldn't cover David over the middle. David had a great night."

Said David Wilson, "Coach put me on the wing in the second half. I was getting more put-backs on rebounds and they were leaving me open for the three-pointer. I had 38 points once on the JV, but this is the most for a varsity game. It's a lot different scoring 30 on the varsity. They are stronger and taller here."

Bobcat Tony Soldano also scored 31 points in the game, 22 coming in the second half and 14 in the fourth quarter, but he didn't have much help.

"Tony has been playing super for us and I can't ask any more of him," said Bobcat coach Boyce Paxton, who saw his team fall to 2-4. "Robert Smith has been carrying us all year and he just didn't have a good shooting night.

"This loss is crucial for us. It backs us up against the proverbial wall — if there is still a wall back there. We just gave this one away in the fourth quarter."

Lee held Bobcat leading scorer Smith to a district low nine points. He hit only four-of-22 shots from the field. Meanwhile, David Wilson got 19 points from teammate Martin Lattibeaudiere, who hit five-of-10 treys to go with Wilson's four-of-10 treys. Wayne Wilson had 11

Cowboys won't deal Beuerlein

Associated Press

DALLAS — The Dallas Cowboys aren't interested in trading Steve Beuerlein, even though a published report Tuesday indicated the Kansas City Chiefs are willing to trade four-time Pro Bowl cornerback Albert Lewis for the quarterback.

The Chiefs asked the Cowboys in the past two weeks about Beuerlein's availability, a club source told The Dallas Morning News.

The source, who was not identified by name, said the Chiefs offered Lewis in exchange.

"That's just speculation that's been going around," said Chiefs spokesman Scott Smith, who added the team was not prepared to comment further.

Beuerlein, 26, is in the final year of a two-year contract. The Cowboys acquired him from the Raiders last August for a fourth-round draft pick.

"There's no truth in that," Bob Ackles, Cowboys' vice president of player personnel, said of the newspaper report. "There's no truth in the statement."

"We have no interest in trading either of our top two quarterbacks," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson told the

■ Midland Lee drops Midland High 3-0 in the District 3 soccer opener.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

The Midland Lee soccer team has become so downright stingy that it's making Ebenezer Scrooge look like Mother Teresa.

The Rebels, owners of a 3-0 record in pre-league competition, upped their mark to 4-0 Tuesday with a 3-0 triumph over Midland High in the District 3 opener for both teams.

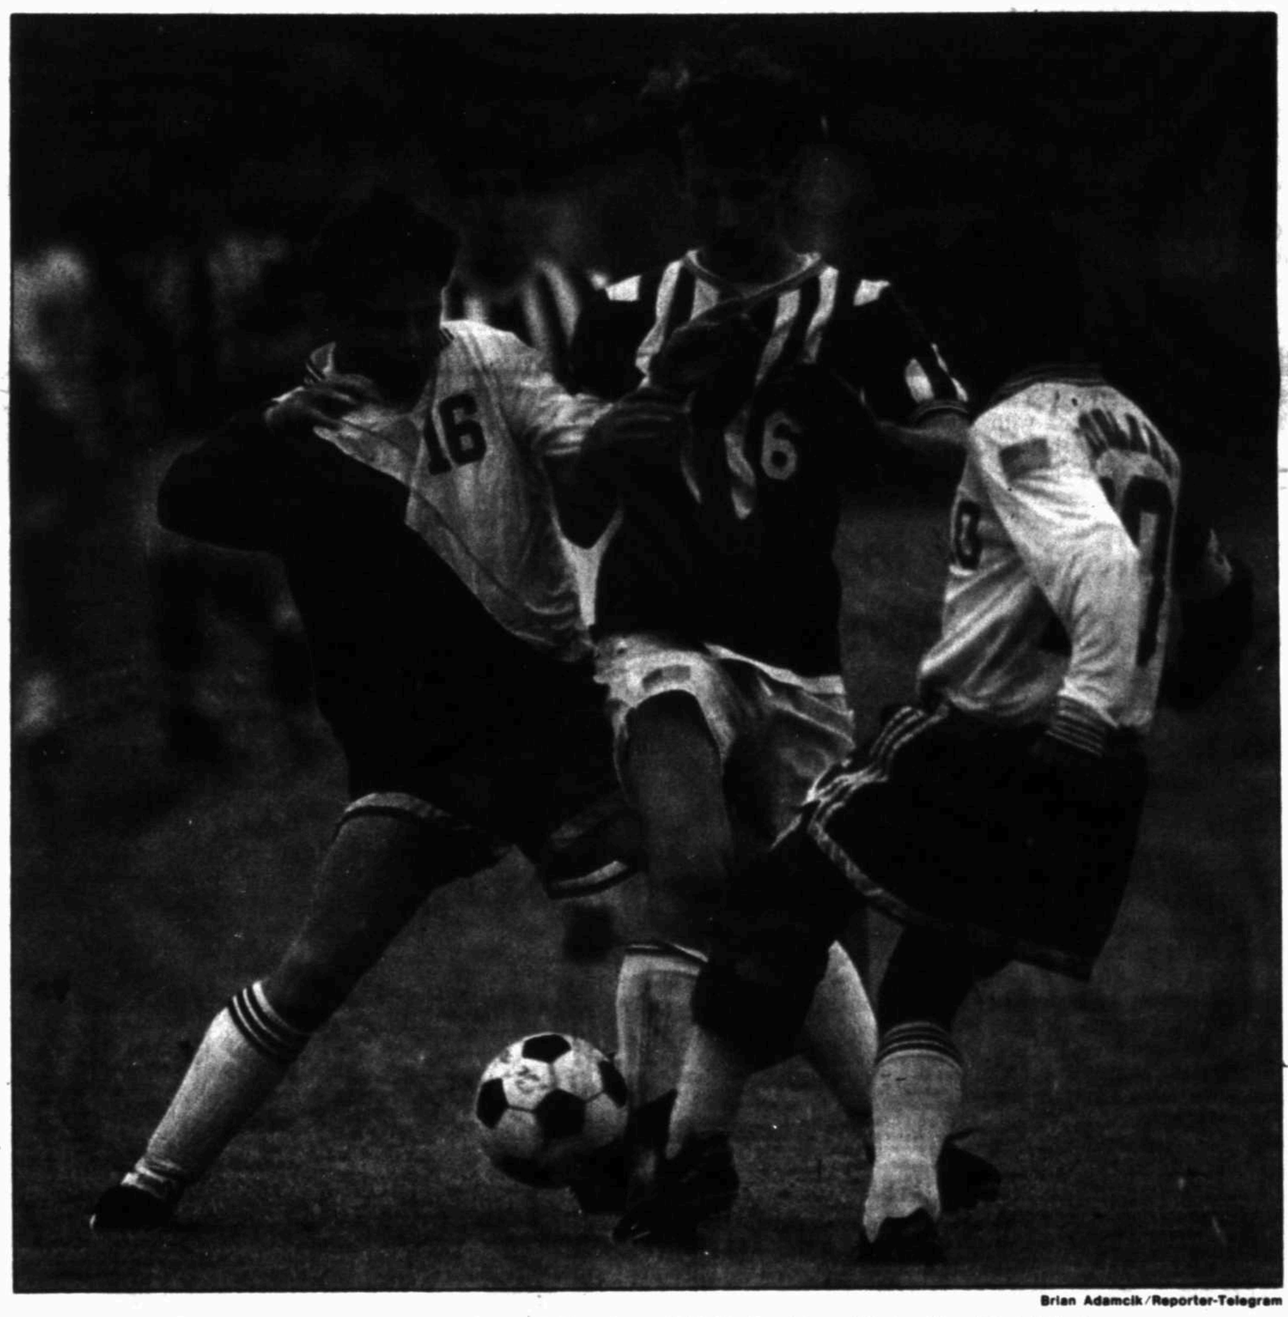

MHS, which dropped to 2-3 overall and 0-1 in the loop, managed just five shots on goal — one in the first half — and became Lee's third shutout victim of the year.

"Lee out-played us," MHS coach Tom Esikhati said. "We had our chances to score. We had some good opportunities that just didn't go in."

The only opportunities converted into goals Tuesday were by Lee. Junior midfielder Brett Ramsey scored on a head-in with 45 seconds left in the first half, and his 16-yard penalty kick with seven minutes remaining in the game capped the scoring for the Rebels.

"I was thinking about putting it in the right corner of the net and if it didn't go in I'd follow it up," Ramsey said of the penalty kick, which came

Colts re-hire Marchibroda

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Ted Marchibroda moved even further away from a Super Bowl victory on Tuesday when he was hired to coach the Indianapolis Colts, the team with the NFL's worst record.

Marchibroda, the Buffalo Bills' offensive coordinator and architect of the high-tech, no-huddle offense, returned to the Colts after being fired as their coach 13 years ago by owner Robert Irsay.

"I feel we have a team that can win and win right away," Marchibroda said. "The biggest thing is they have to believe they can win. Without question, I know they were much better than their record showed."

The 60-year-old Marchibroda, who spent five years perfecting an offense

Fielder gets 1-year, $4.5 million contract

Associated Press

DETROIT — Cecil Fielder received the biggest one-year contract in baseball history when he agreed Tuesday to sign with the Detroit Tigers for $4.5 million.

Fielder

The $4.4 million deal Nolan Ryan signed with Texas Rangers a few months ago had been the previous one-year high.

There are players who will earn more than Fielder in 1992, but they have signed multiyear contracts. The deal makes Fielder No. 10 on the salary list by average annual value.

"We wanted to avoid any further to-do on either side," Tigers general manager Jerry Walker said. "That's the main thing we tried to get done."

The 28-year-old first baseman, unable to become a free agent for two more seasons, asked an arbitrator to award him salary of $5.4 million in 1992. The Tigers countered with an offer of $3.2 million.

Clearly, the Tigers meant to settle before the case was heard. In binding arbitration, one figure or the other is selected. There is no middle ground.

"Cecil is very happy," said Bob Gillhooley, one of Fielder's agents. "I think he's eager to get on with the season now."

Jim Bronner, another of Fielder's agents, said the door still was open for a multiyear deal.

Fielder is bound to the Tigers through the 1993 season by the major league reserve clause. A player must be in the major leagues six full seasons before he

Hoosiers manhandle Purdue in 106-65 rout

Associated Press

Top 25

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Calbert Cheaney scored 23 points and No. 4 Indiana won its 13th straight game, routing Purdue 106-65 on Tuesday night.

Purdue's Woody Austin, the Big Ten's second-leading scorer with a 22.4 average, was held to 15. His 3-pointer in the final seconds averted the Boilers' biggest loss ever, 44 points to Illinois in 1948.

Purdue's second-biggest previous loss was by 36 points in 1954.

Linc Darner scored 17 of his 19 points in the second half to lead Purdue.

The Hoosiers scored a season-high 106 points, hitting 65.5 percent (19-of-29) in the first half.

Damon Bailey finished with 15 points and Greg Graham added 13 as the Hoosiers quickly blew apart Purdue's game plan of mixing outside shooting and post play.

The Boilermakers (11-7, 3-3) never challenged after a 10-10 tie on a basket by Matt Painter.

Bailey launched a 14-2 spurt with two straight baskets. Eric Anderson had five points in the run as the Hoosiers led 22-12 with 9:40 remaining in the first half.

Coming off a weeklong rest since beating Michigan, Indiana's defense forced 13 turnovers and held Purdue to 10-of-23 shooting in the first half.

No. 5 Kansas 85, Marquette 61

MILWAUKEE — Adonis Jordan scored 14 points and No. 5 Kansas used a late first-half spurt and its hustling defense to rout Marquette.

The Jayhawks (15-1) went on an 11-0 run sparked by a technical foul on Marquette coach Kevin O'Neill to take a 35-24 halftime lead, then pulled away in the second half.

Alonzo Jamison converted a three-point play and drove for a layup, giving the Jayhawks a 29-23 lead.

O'Neill was then called for the technical with 2:11 left in the half and Kansas turned it into a four-point play as Steve Woodberry made two free throws and Ben Davis hit a basket after the Jayhawks retained possession. Woodberry took an alley-oop pass for a dunk with 19 seconds left in the half to complete the decisive spurt.

Providence 87, No. 12 Syracuse 73

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Michael Smith hit 6 of his 23 points from the foul line in the final 1:36 as Providence used a late 15-3 run to upset No. 12 Syracuse.

The Friars (10-10, 2-6) led just 72-70 with 2:24 left before the Orangemen went cold from the field and began fouling. Syracuse (14-3, 6-3) got only one more basket, a 3-pointer by Adrian Autry, while missing six times from long range.

Providence sank six straight free throws for a 78-70 lead before Autry's 3-pointer, then scored the game's last nine points. Smith hit 6 of 7 free throws as the Friars beat Syracuse for only the fourth time in their last 29 meetings.

No. 20 Georgia Tech 77, College of Charleston 70

ATLANTA — Freshman Travis Best scored all 14 of his points in the second half to lead No. 20 Georgia Tech to a victory over the College of Charleston.

Best hit four 3-pointers as the Yellow Jackets (15-5) rallied from a 51-48 deficit in the second half.

Best tied the game at 51-51 with his third 3-pointer with 12:10 remaining. His fourth 3-pointer gave the Jackets a 65-61 lead with 6:04 remaining and the Cougars (14-3) in the midst of five turnovers in six possessions.

No. 24 Louisville 78, Virginia Tech 68

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Everick Sullivan scored 25 points and No. 24 Louisville opened the second half with a nearly flawless shooting display en route to a Metro Conference victory over Virginia Tech.

Louisville (12-4, 3-2) got within 31-27 at halftime on Sullivan's 3-pointer from midcourt at the buzzer, then opened the second half by hitting 13 of its first 14 shots from the field.

Virginia Tech (7-9, 1-4) was hurt by turnovers and a porous defense that allowed Louisville to get the ball under the basket repeatedly for easy shots.

Louisville regained the lead after the Hokies turned the ball over four of their first five second-half possessions. The Cardinals had made 11 consecutive field goals when Dwayne Morton tipped in a missed free throw, giving Louisville a 58-45 lead with 10:34 remaining.

Hawks win but lose Wilkins for season

Associated Press

NBA

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Hawks, stung by the loss of Dominique Wilkins for the season with a ruptured Achilles' tendon, rallied from a 16-point deficit to beat Philadelphia 110-109 Tuesday night on Blair Rasmussen's 22-footer with 25 seconds remaining.

Wilkins, after scoring eight of the 33 points he needed to reach the 20,000-point plateau, left midway through the second quarter with a ruptured right Achilles' tendon. Dr. David Apple, the team physician, said Wilkins would be out for six to nine months.

Wilkins returned to The Omni on crutches with 1:22 left and watched from the bench. The Hawks trailed 107-105 at the time.

Spurs 109, Bulls 104

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Spurs snapped the Chicago Bulls' 13-game winning streak behind Terry Cummings' season-high 30 points and David Robinson's 21 points, 13 rebounds and eight blocked shots.

Michael Jordan led Chicago with 39 points, including 25 in the second half, while Scottie Pippen finished with 21.

The victory was San Antonio's fourth in its last five meetings with the Bulls.

Rockets 111, Timberwolves 102

HOUSTON — Reserve point guard Avery Johnson, who was picked up on a 10-day contract earlier in the month, scored 11 of his career-high 22 points in the fourth quarter, leading the Houston Rockets past the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Johnson's 3-point basket gave the Rockets their first lead at 90-89 with 4:59 to play, and his fastbreak layup with 1:25 remaining capped an 18-4 Houston run that lifted the Rockets into a 103-93 cushion.

The Rockets picked up Johnson from San Antonio, which waived him in December.

Hakeem Olajuwon had season highs of 34 points and 23 rebounds for the Rockets. Otis Thorpe added 24 points and nine rebounds for the Rockets.

Celtics 98, Bullets 87

LANDOVER, Md. — Reggie Lewis, selected earlier in the day to play in his first All-Star game, scored 20 points, lifting Boston past Washington.

Lewis scored six points in the opening four minutes of the fourth quarter to stake the Celtics to a lead they never lost. Boston, playing without injured stars Larry Bird and Kevin McHale, got 17 points apiece from Ed Pinckney and Sherman Douglas in winning its sixth game in seven tries.

SuperSonics 102, Magic 97

ORLANDO, Fla. — Eddie Johnson scored a season-high 39 points, including two baskets and a critical steal in the final minute, leading Seattle to a victory over Orlando that snapped a four-game losing streak.

Johnson scored 13 of the SuperSonics' final 17 points to give coach George Karl his first victory since taking over the team three games ago.

Pistons 100, Hornets 95

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Dennis Rodman grabbed 32 rebounds, the most in the NBA since 1988, and his follow shot early in overtime put Detroit ahead to stay as the Pistons beat the Charlotte Hornets.

Rodman, who raised his league-leading rebound average from 17.4 to 17.8, tipped in a missed shot with 4:02 left in overtime, and the Pistons never trailed again.

DALLAS — Byron Houston scored 13 of his 17 points in the second half as third-ranked Oklahoma State remained unbeaten with a 64-53 victory Tuesday night over Southern Methodist.

By winning, the Cowboys to became only the third Big Eight ever team to sweep its non-conference games. Oklahoma State (19-0) completed its non-conference slate with a 16-0 mark.

Texas Christian 76, Rice 50

HOUSTON — Albert Thomas sparked a 13-point scoring run for Texas Christian at the end of the first half to lead the Horned Frogs to a Southwest Conference victory over Rice.

The victory leaves TCU (15-4, 4-1) in sole possession of first place in the Southwest Conference.

The score was tied at 24 with 5:05 left in the first half when TCU scored the final 13 points before intermission.

Lee girls rally in second half to drop San Angelo

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — The Midland Lee girl's varsity basketball team overcame a sluggish first half and defeated San Angelo 59-51 here Tuesday.

The victory lifts the Lady Rebels to 6-2 in District 4-5A, a game behind front-runner Abilene High, but 1½ games in front of third-place Midland High in the chase for the second playoff berth.

Tekeira Strambler turned in a game-best 18-point effort for Lee and Lachette Crisp added 16 points as the Lady Rebels dropped the Lady Bobcats to 3-5 in league play.

"It was an emotional day for us because (team member) Lisa Cochran was admitted to the hospital for emergency surgery," Lee coach Elise Kail said. "We were down emotionally before the game and we were down 31-27 at the half, but our kids got it together in the second half and turned it around."

Kail said Cochran was hospitalized Tuesday with an internal condition.

Lee sank 20 of 28 free throws in the game and out-scored San Angelo in both second half quarters.

The Lady Rebels, 11-10 overall, return to action Friday against Midland High, at 6:15 p.m. at the Chap Center. MHS was idle Tuesday.

REBELS: House empties bench against Bobcats

(From 1C)

points, but fouled out early in the fourth quarter.

"We got some scoring out of our bench and that really helped," House said. "John Elliott came in and got two big baskets in the fourth quarter to help push out our lead and that was a big plus."

Starter Jeramy Skaggs scored only two points, but it was the two of the night for the crowd. He hit a baseline, spinning layup that somehow found the net and it gave Lee a 62-52 lead with five minutes left in the game.

"That's a move I've been practicing," Skaggs deadpanned.

"That was a highlight flim shot," House said, adding, "but he better be glad we had a lead and that the ball went in."

But that's the way things happen when the ball takes the right bounces.

In junior varsity action, Lee beat San Angelo 67-53 with Sean Low, 14; Daniel Salcedo, 13; and John Sullivan 12 leading the way. San Angelo got 17 points from Brock Curtis and 15 each from Craig Kolls and Alan Mow.

1. Many remanufactures regrind the valve face, and also the valve stem. A reground valve may last through the warranty period, however, Roadrunner Engines with heads have new valves which should last as long or longer than the original engine.
2. All individual rocker arms are replaced new on a Roadrunner Engine. Reconditioned rocker assemblies are used where rocker shafts are required.
3. To ensure thorough internal cleaning, all galley plugs must be removed, and galleys manually cleaned. Some remanufacturers avoid this costly step, thereby possibly effecting the useful life of the engine.

OPENER: Lee defeats MHS

(From 1C)

after MHS defender Dustin Arras was whistled for tripping. "But it went in," Ramsey added. "This puts us off to a good start in district."

In other District 3 openers, Odessa Permian defeated Odessa High 3-1, and Abilene High dropped Abilene Cooper 3-1. San Angelo was idle.

Todd Meade notched Lee's second goal Tuesday, setting up in front of MHS goal keeper Jeremy Hernandez as Lee's Matt Lawrence made a corner throw-in. Meade got his leg on the toss and punched it in for a 2-0 lead with 20 minutes left in the second half.

The Rebels out-shot the Bulldogs 11-5 in all.

"We played real well, but mostly in the second half," Lee coach Eddie Bull said. "We weren't running very well off the ball in the first half, and they (Bulldogs) were bringing it to us. Their bunch can play."

But for all the spunk of the MHS attack, the Bulldogs only managed one shot on goal in the first half when a Mario Rodriguez header went straight into the hands of Lee keeper Freddie Silva.

"We made two or three mistakes in front of the net, and thank goodness Freddie was there," Bull said. "Freddie made some great saves today."

But Silva didn't have to make many saves due to the pressing attack of the Rebels and their forceful defense.

Lee fullbacks Tommy Tipton, Cody Welch and Lawrence turned back the Bulldogs repeatedly before they could launch scoring efforts. And midfielders Dennis Ehler and Jason Brown cleared the zone more often than Coach Esikhati would care to remember.

"We needed to put a little more pressure on them," Esikhati said. "We didn't shoot enough and we didn't go to the ball, but I think the kids played well.

"We've learned some things from this game, and I think we're going to improve from our mistakes."

Ramsey's goal just before the half, like Meade's score, came on the heels of a throw-in from the MHS corner. Matt Perkins lofted it high, and when Meade soared high for the header, Hernandez went after him. That left Ramsey open to head-in the deflected sphere. The unassisted goal was his third of the season. His fourth came after Meade notched his team-leading sixth on an assist from Lawrence.

Lee's next game is a home affair Saturday at 2 p.m. vs. Abilene Cooper, while MHS travels to Abilene High for a 2 p.m. Saturday game.

BEUERLEIN: Lewis hurt knee

(From 1C)

newspaper, referring to Beuerlein and Troy Aikman.

The Cowboys earlier identified their defensive backfield among the list of improvements needed in the off-season. Dallas ranked 23rd in the National Football League in pass defense last season, with its secondary intercepting only 11 passes.

Meanwhile, Lewis has 31 career interceptions, with eight in 1985 when he shared the AFC lead. He was voted to the Pro Bowl four consecutive years from 1987-90.

However, Lewis' streak ended this season when he missed eight games with a knee injury.

"He's not one of the best" corners in the league, an NFL source told the newspaper. "He's the best."

The 31-year-old Lewis intercepted three passes in the season opener against Atlanta last September. But he suffered a knee injury on his third interception.

He has blocked 10 punts in his nine-year career, including an NFL-record four during one season in 1990.

FIELDER: Tigers avoid arbitration

(From 1C)

is eligible for free agency.

"Both sides agreed that we're going to continue talking about a multiyear deal," Bronner said. "This puts him in good position for a multiyear deal."

The Tigers reportedly offered Fielder a four-year, $17 million contract. But the offer was made only a few days before Bobby Bonilla signed a five-year contract with the New York Mets worth more than $29 million.

Fielder then rejected the Tigers' offer. Bonilla had 18 homers and 100 RBIs last season. Fielder hit 44 homers with 133 RBIs.

This is the first year Fielder has been eligible for arbitration. He earned $1.75 million in 1991 on the final year of the two-year, $3 million

Opening lead: Ace of ◇

There is a particularly satisfying feeling when you place every card correctly to land an ambitious contract. Robert Barr of Andover, Mass., did just that in the Board-a-Match Team Championship at the recent Fall North American Championships in Indianapolis last November.

West's two-diamond overcall was a bit thin by our standards. North's three-diamond cue-bid showed a limit raise or better in support of spades, and South pressed on to slam, little suspecting that half of North's assets were in the enemy suit and, therefore, not working. In light of partner's vulnerable two-level overcall, we can't blame East for thinking Christmas had come a month early.

Declarer ruffed the opening lead and made his first correct assumption, based on the overcall, by running the jack of clubs at trick two. A club to the ace put declarer in dummy for a heart discard on the king of diamonds. Next came the jack of trumps, and East's queen was beheaded by the ace.

One of dummy's hearts was discarded on the king of clubs, and declarer exited with the eight of spades. In with the nine, East returned the king of hearts to South's ace. A heart ruff put declarer in dummy to lead a trump, and the marked finesse of the seven of spades was taken. After drawing the last trump, declarer was left with two good clubs for the 11th and 12th tricks.

Now look what would have happened had East, when in with the nine of trumps, returned a spade. Declarer would not be able to ruff a heart and return to hand to draw the last trump, and East's double would have been justified.

Cold War not quite over, ex-secretary of state says

ATHENS, Ga. — Dean Rusk, former secretary of state during particularly chilly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, said the Cold War ain't over 'till it's over.

Rusk

"Not quite yet. It's still subject to reversal," the 82-year-old Rusk said Monday.

"We haven't really seen the reaction of the Soviet people to the hard winter they're going through. We're just going to have to keep our fingers crossed," he said from his Athens home.

If the republics of the former Soviet Union survive food distribution problems and economic confusion without violence, Rusk said, "chances are good that they'll go through with the democratic process."

Rusk, a retired professor at the University of Georgia, was secretary of state under Presid ts Kennedy and Johnson. The Cuban missile crisis, which ended when Kennedy persuaded Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev to remove missiles from Cuba, led to Rusk's famous statement:

"We are eyeball to eyeball and the other fellow just blinked."

NEW YORK — Geraldo Rivera is switching from host to guest on his show Thursday to discuss office romances, especially the one that led to his marriage in 1987.

Rivera

A clinical psychologist will moderate the syndicated "Geraldo" while Rivera and his wife, C.C. Dyer, discuss how they met and fell in love in 1981 while working together at ABC.

Other couples also will be on the show to discuss office romances.

At the time Rivera and Dyer met, he was married to Sheri Raymond. Rivera was a correspondent for "20-20" and Dyer was a production assistant fresh out of college.

"I watched her day after day," Rivera said. "I watched this incredibly optimistic, bubbling, energetic beautiful redhead day after day. I was a happily married man at the time. But the more I saw her, the more I became fascinated by her."

"I was very worried about my job," Dyer said. "Geraldo didn't have to worry about his job. He had to worry about his marriage."

DETROIT — A Michael Jackson fan was placed on two years probation Tuesday for stealing the singer's trademark sequined glove from the Motown Museum.

Bruce M. Hays, 23, faced up to 12 years in prison for snatching the white, crystal-beaded glove Oct. 2. He pleaded no contest to the charge.

Hays, from Flint, wouldn't comment after Judge Dominick Carnovale put him on probation and ordered him to serve 20 hours of community service for felony larceny.

"Sure I'm relieved," said Hays' mother, Pamela. "Jail was always a possibility."

The glove worn by Jackson during his "Thriller" tour was kept in a locked, glass case in a room devoted to Jackson memorabilia.

Before sentencing, Hays gave the judge a statement saying police posed for photographs with the glove before arresting him two days after the theft.

CONWAY, S.C. — A woman claims Jeff Cook of the country music group Alabama ruined her marriage and her health after she broke off their relationship in 1986.

Diane Barnhill testified Monday, the first day of a trial over her civil lawsuit against Cook, that he has harassed her with telephone calls since she ended their affair.

Cook denies the relationship and harassment allegations.

Alabama, which won an American Music Award on Monday, got its start playing in Myrtle Beach in 1973 and played in local clubs for seven years. Barnhill, who lives in Conway near Myrtle Beach, testified their relationship began with a sexual encounter in 1980 at a motel.

For six years, she said, she traveled to see Cook after concerts. After they broke up, Barnhill said, she changed her phone number four or five times but Cook kept calling.

"He thinks he can do anything in the world because he's a famous star and I'm a little nobody," Barnhill said.

Barnhill said under cross-examination that she never complained to police or the phone company.

WARSAW, Poland — Movie director Steven Spielberg arrived Tuesday in Krakow to scout locations for a film about the Holocaust.

"It will be the most authentic film I have made so far," he said.

The film is based on a novel by Thomas Keneally, "Schindler's Ark," which was published in the United States as "Schindler's List."

The book is based on the story of an Austrian businessman who saved about 1,500 Krakow Jews from extermination in Nazi death camps.

Report: '91 Income outpaced inflation

■ Salaries, benefits advance 4.3 percent compared with 3.1 percent rise in prices, figures show.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — American workers kept ahead of inflation in 1991 as wages, salaries and benefits advanced 4.3 percent compared with the 3.1 percent rise in prices, government figures showed Tuesday.

Still, workers' income and benefits — totaled in the Labor Department's employment cost index — were off from the 4.9 percent gain in 1990. And that suggests "the long sustained malaise of the economy is starting to take a toll on wage increases," said economist Robert G. Dederick of the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

Slower wage inflation helps keep the nation's overall inflation rate down. That, Dederick said, is the "good side" of the report. "The downside is that it reduced people's ability to buy goods" and keep the economy growing.

Workers had taken a beating in 1990 when inflation soared to 6.1 percent while their earnings were held to the 4.9 percent gain.

The jump in inflation in 1990 — the steepest since 1981 — was due in part to soaring gasoline and fuel oil costs that followed Iraq's August invasion of Kuwait.

But since the Persian Gulf conflict, fuel prices have dropped and the Federal Reserve's grip on credit has restrained prices in other areas.

In a second report, the Labor Department said contracts settled through collective bargaining last year gave workers average annual wage increases of 3.3 percent over the life of the pacts.

The last time parties covered by those settlements negotiated, usually in 1988 or 1989, wage gains were smaller, averaging just 2.8 percent annually over the contract term, the report said.

The first report said the rise in overall compensation costs last year slowed from a year earlier because of smaller increases for state and local government workers, both in wages and salaries and in benefits.

"The severe pressure on state and local governments has really manifested itself," Dederick said. "There was a real crackdown on wage increases in that area."

Compensation for union workers rose 4.6 percent, compared to 4.3 percent for non-union workers. This pattern was the same in both the goods-producing and service sectors and reversed a trend that had prevailed for nearly a decade.

The pace of compensation gains moderated over the year, from 1.1 percent and 1.3 percent during the first two quarters to 0.8 percent and 0.9 percent in the final two. The changes were adjusted for seasonal factors.

Wages and salaries, which rose 3.6 percent for the year, also slowed, dropping from a 1.1 percent gain in the first quarter to 0.9 percent as the year ended. They had risen 4.3 percent during 1990.

For the year, wages and salaries for private industry workers increased 3.6 percent, down from 4.0 percent in 1990. Government wages and salaries rose 3.5 percent, down from 5.3 percent a year earlier.

Over the year, compensation gains in goods-producing industries rose 4.6 percent, compared to 4.3 percent in the service-producing industries.

Compensation gains in goods-producing industries ranged from 4.1 percent in construction to 4.6 percent in both durable and non-durable manufacturing.

Prices slip

NEW YORK — Oil prices fell Tuesday in what traders called a dull session at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in March settled at $19.17 per barrel, down 19 cents.

There was no news or rumors moving the market. Traders said they have been waiting for next month's OPEC meeting to offer them a sense of direction.

Analysts say crude oil prices could collapse this spring if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries does not make significant cuts in production. Traders seem unsure about whether this will happen, and the result has been little movement in oil prices.

Natural gas prices fell, with contracts for delivery in March settling at $1.181 per 1,000 cubic feet, down 3.7 cents.

After the oil markets were closed, the American Petroleum Institute reported that the U.S. supply of home heating oil fell last week, while supplies of crude oil and gasoline were higher and the nation's refineries sharply curtailed operations.

The supply of distillates, which include home heating oil, fell 6.2 million barrels, to 133.6 million.

The supply of crude rose 5.8 million barrels, to 338.8 million, while the supply of gasoline rose 0.4 million barrels, to 228.9 million.

The nation's refineries ran at 81.1 percent of capacity, down from 85.0 percent a week earlier.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar settled mixed on world currency markets Tuesday in seesaw trading ahead of President Bush's State of the Union address.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose 0.80 yen to a closing 125.37 yen.

In London, the British pound rose to $1.7950 from $1.7770 late Monday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Monday's rates included: 1.5994 German marks, down from 1.6105; 1.4225 Swiss francs, down from 1.4300; 5.4495 French francs, down from 5.4840; 1,201.50 Italian lire, down from 1,209.25, and 1.1745 Canadian dollars, up from 1,1733.

New record

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed at a record high on Tuesday based on the fortunes of two large corporations: Disney and Procter & Gamble.

The two companies, major components of the Dow index, saw their stocks soar on Tuesday following strong fourth-quarter earnings reports.

Buyers turn pessimistic, survey says

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer confidence in the economy retreated further this month, with many U.S. households even more pessimistic about their financial security than in late 1991, a widely followed survey said today.

The Conference Board's Consumer Confidence Index, which leveled off in December after sharp declines the previous two months, fell again in January, the business research group said.

The monthly survey, based on consumers' responses to questions sent to 5,000 housholds nationwide, is considered by many economists to be a useful barometer of the American consumer mood. Consumer spending is critical to a revival of the U.S. economy, which by some reckonings is in the 18th month of recession.

The index, calculated on a 1985 base of 100, is determined by responses to questions ranging from home-buying plans to availability of jobs. The Conference Board said the January index showed a reading of 50.4, a loss of 2.1 points from December.

Greenspan seems headed for second term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan appears certain to win Senate confirmation to a second four-year term, even though some people say he's to blame for the stagnant economy.

During his early months in office in 1987, the longtime adviser to Republican presidents enjoyed near universal praise for his adroit handling of the worst stock market crash in U.S. history.

By quickly flooding the economy with new money, Greenspan may have prevented the 508-point drop in the Dow Jones average of industrial stocks from rippling into a repeat of the Great Depression.

But now, with the economy struggling to emerge from what could prove to be the longest recession since the 1930s, Greenspan is facing increasing criticism from members of Congress and even from officials of the administration that renominated him last July.

Reserve chief 'probably has done as well as anyone could given the extraordinary march of world events.'

At a confirmation hearing Wednesday, Senate Democrats are prepared to grill the 65-year-old economist about his conduct of monetary policy in 1990, when sluggish economic growth gave way to economic decline, and in 1991, when the long-awaited recovery fizzled.

And, the Bush administration, despite the Fed's long series of interest-rate cuts last year, continues to pressure the central bank for more.

However, economists, academics and business executives say many of the complaints during this election year are being leveled with 20-20 hindsight by politicians anxious to escape the anger of recession-weary voters.

Greenspan, they said in interviews this week, made mistakes but has probably done as well as anyone could given the extraordinary march of world-shaking events from the dissolution of the Soviet Union to the Persian Gulf War.

"He's had a very difficult task. ... I don't think there's a real precedent for the things he's faced," said Bob Hawkins, chairman of Southern Commercial Bank in St. Louis. "He's done what he could."

Compaq earnings fall to $67 million in fourth quarter

HOUSTON (AP) — Compaq Computer Corp.'s fourth quarter earnings fell 51 percent from a year ago, but company officials said Tuesday the results marked the beginning of a recovery for the embattled computer maker.

The Houston-based company posted income of $67 million, or 77 cents per share, compared to $135 million, or $1.50 per share, for the same period last year. Compaq's sales were $873 million, a 13 percent decline from sales of $1 billion for the fourth quarter ending Dec. 31, 1990.

Compaq attributed the decline to industry competition and the ailing economy.

"The results reported, while disappointing compared to a year ago, if you look at them vs. the third quarter, they're very encouraging," Compaq Chairman Ben Rosen said, who added that the earnings this quarter were aided by the weakened U.S. dollar.

CPA offers new electronic filing service

By Mella McEwen

Another electronic filing service has opened its doors.

Midland CPA Phil Davis has opened 1040 Quick File in his office at 2101 W. Wall St., Suite 11B.

Davis says he can prepare and transmit the tax returns or transmit returns already prepared. Filed electronically, taxpayers can get their refund in two weeks or less using direct deposit, or three weeks or less if they want a check from the U.S. Treasury. The service is done for a fee set by the number of schedules on the tax return.

According to Davis, the Internal Revenue Service received 7.5 million tax returns electronically in 1991 and expects to receive 10 million this year. The IRS, he said, hopes to have 25 percent of all tax returns filed electronically by 1995 and estimates that it saves $250 million annually through the use of electronic filing.

Midlanders with unworn jeans hanging in their closet can earn some money and participate in international trade next week.

Derl and Mary Cribbs of Dalhart will be at Dollar Western Wear on Andrews Highway in the former S&Q Clothiers building just west of Memorial Hospital beginning Monday to buy used jeans — pants and jackets — to be exported to Europe and Asia. While they prefer Levi 501 button fly jeans and designer jeans, Mrs. Cribbs said they will look at anything they think will sell overseas. The Cribbs will pay up to $10 per piece of clothing, depending on its condition. Clothing that is unwearable will be recycled into rags, mops or even paper. They will be in Midland through February 9.

Mrs. Cribbs, a professional interior designer, said she was introduced to exporting jeans overseas by a stockbroker friend and began buying the clothing in Albuquerque around the end of July 1991. Since then, she said, she has purchased 15,000 pairs of jeans.

"It's great fun, a great way to make a living and we've met lots of nice people," she said.
