Man pleads guilty to murder, assault

Lee recalls he was distraught by family loss, failing marriage during incident

By Audrie Palmer
Staff Writer

A 25-year-old man pleaded guilty to a 2010 murder and will spend the next 48 years in prison for the crime.

Paul Curtis Lee met with his attorney, Brent Morgan, for nearly 1 1/2 hours Friday afternoon before agreeing to plead guilty to killing Christopher Aaron Easley and assaulting his girlfriend, Anne Bostic.

He agreed to a 20-year prison term, the maximum for the second-degree felony of aggravated assault. The two prison terms will be served concurrently.

His co-defendant in the murder and assault, 22-year-old Stephen Craig Whitworth, was found guilty last week and was sentenced Monday to two concurrent 20-year prison terms.

It was evident Lee had been crying. As he made his way to the witness stand, he dabbed his eyes with a tissue as he began to speak.

District Attorney Teresa Clingman asked Lee to replay the events that led up to Easley's death near South County Road 1210 on June 6.

Lee said he had been drinking and smoking marijuana and "probably took" some hydrocodone because he was trying to keep his mind off his grandmother's recent death. He and Whitworth decided to meet up with Easley and Bostic and go out to the county to smoke.

"Stephen was quite a unique individual. He had expressed that he had killed somebody in the past and wanted to do it again and that there's nothing like it," Lee said.

He also told the court that Whitworth wanted to rape Bostic. Lee said he told Whitworth that he couldn't let that happen.

Lee said they found a county road — one that had oilfield equipment, pipes and a derrick — where they wouldn't be bothered while they smoked.

"Did something start to go wrong?" Clingman asked.

"No, nothing went wrong," Lee said.

He said he went to the trunk and saw the clothes he had worn earlier that week to his grandmother's funeral. He took bolt cutters out of the trunk, thinking that he would use it to "mess with the pipes."

ECHS students prep for school's 1st prom

By Meredith Mortak
Staff Writer

High school prom can be considered a rite of passage. And for the first junior class at Early College High School, that rite occurs tonight.

The school, which opened for about 100 freshmen students in August 2009, will hold its first prom in the ClayDesta atrium.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" was chosen as the theme by a committee of 12 juniors who said they're very excited — and nervous — about the event.

"I want it to be perfect, but I know it won't be, and that's OK," junior Casey Perez said.

Midland continues to see job creation

By Mella McEwen
Oil Editor

Although "Now Hiring" signs dot the Midland landscape, the Tall City continues to create new jobs.

The Texas Workforce Commission reported Friday that Midland's February unemployment rate was 3.8 percent, down from 4.1 percent in January and 4.7 percent in February 2011. Midland had the state's lowest unemployment and was the only metropolitan area in Texas to be below 4 percent.

Odessa was second with 4.5 percent and Amarillo third with 5 percent.

The commission also reported that while Midland added 100 jobs between January and February for total nonfarm employment of 74,600, the city added 3,000 new jobs from February 2011 to February 2012 for a job creation rate of 4.2 percent.

"To me, it's amazing the activity going on in the Permian Basin," said Willie Taylor, executive director of Workforce Solutions Permian Basin. "It sets us totally apart from other metropolitan areas."

The U.S. Board of Labor Statistics recently said Midland's January unemployment rate was the third lowest in the nation, just behind Bismarck, N.D., and Lincoln, Neb.

Midland's labor force was 83,828 in February; there are 80,606 employed and 3,222 unemployed Midlanders.

Jerry Morales, owner of Gerardo's Casita and president of the Permian Basin Restaurant Association, said member restaurants are very busy with their dining rooms and catering services. He has spent more time working the floor of his restaurant than he used to, he said.

While the labor market is tight, he thinks there are more workers than in 2008, when crude oil prices first reached

Weekly US oil, gas rig count up by 11 to 1,979

The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. is up by 11 this week to 1,979.

The Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,318 rigs were exploring for oil and 658 for natural gas. Three were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week Baker Hughes reported 1,776 active rigs.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas gained seven. Alaska, North Dakota and Pennsylvania each picked up two. Oklahoma was up by one.

Louisiana lost three, and Wyoming was down by two. Arkansas and Colorado fell by one.

Texas firefighter charged with setting wildfire

A volunteer firefighter in Texas has been charged with setting a wildfire last year.

Taylor Dupree Partain was charged with arson, a second-degree felony, in connection with a May wildfire in Jones County. The 24-year-old has been a lieutenant with the Hamby Volunteer Fire Department, just outside Abilene.

The fire was extinguished by local firefighters.

The Texas Forest Service said it began investigating Partain after he recently was charged with first-degree arson. He was arrested last week after a fire at Hamby United Methodist Church.

Partain remained jailed Friday in Taylor County on $110,000 bond. Jail officials had no information on an attorney.

Last year's wildfire season was the most devastating in Texas history. Blazes destroyed nearly 4 million acres and more than 2,900 homes, and 10 people died.

Texas Supreme Court limits Open Beaches Act

The Texas Supreme Court has issued a new ruling placing private property rights ahead of the state's Open Beaches Act.

The Texas court reheard the case after a federal appeals court questioned its first ruling. But the new ruling is essentially the same and says that if an act of nature erodes a beach, the landowner's right to the remaining property is not diminished by state law, even if it is now part of the beach.

The Open Beaches Act states that a beach up to the vegetation line is open to the public. But following Hurricane Rita, the beach in Galveston shrank and moved onto private property, prompting a lawsuit. The court ruling Friday gives ownership of the beach to the property owner.

Other violations include failure to ensure that the fire sprinkler system was adequate, use electrical equipment in accordance with its labeling, document the classification of hazardous locations for electrical purposes and ensure that electrical equipment was considered safe for the location where it was used.

Obituaries

William David "Billy" Burns

William David "Billy" Burns, passed away peacefully on March 29th, in Midland, Texas. He was born on July 24, 1943, in Brownwood, Texas. He was preceded in death by his parents, George and Ona Winn Burns.

He is survived by his siblings and their spouses, Simon Pierce Burns and Reba, Dr. Paul Burns and Toni, Mary Margaret Byrom and Charles Schwope. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews and their families, they include: Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Burns, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jaime Spellings, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Byrom, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Todd Burns and Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Metcalfe, III. He is also survived by numerous great nieces and nephews.

He enjoyed his early years growing up on his family's ranch in Brown County, Texas. He became an inspiration from a young age, as he bravely boarded the rural school bus each morning to attend school in Blanket, Texas. His Down's Syndrome never stood in the way of his fully engaging in family, church, school, and ranch activities. Returning to the family ranch was something he cherished throughout his life.

Members of First Baptist Church in Brownwood could rely on seeing Billy, with his big smile and Bible in hand, at church every Sunday. He loved his family and being a part of a life, which was much larger than his learning differences.

He never missed a day of reading the newspaper from start to finish. He especially thrived on all he read in the sports sections. The Dallas Cowboys and the Brownwood Lions were his favorite teams. He was arguably one of the greatest fans either team will ever have.

The ripple effect of having Billy in the family was a bond that made each of his relatives grateful to have him in the family. Billy attended every family gathering full of excitement to get to see his family together. His enthusiasm to have all the relatives united taught the importance of putting time with family as a top priority. His intentions were always genuine, he did not judge others, forgiveness was a given, his appreciation for everything was heartfelt. Billy's family considers themselves grateful to have been blessed with a relative with a learning difference.

Billy and his Mother relocated to Midland, following the death of his Father. When he moved to Midland he immediately became a beloved member of the MARC family. He made great friends, such as Billy Blanks, and had a full life here in Midland. He always looked forward to visits from his brothers and hearing all that was going on at the ranch. His family was always excited to hear of his latest job accomplishments and travels. He was happy to be a part of a community that offered him many options.

Each member of his family is grateful for all the caregivers at MARC and Camarie House, they became part of his extended family. The family is especially grateful to his sister, Mary Margaret, for the over 20 years of care that she gave her brother. Her selfless dedication and love was immense and tireless. Billy will be greatly missed by his family and everyone that knew him. He taught so many people about kindness, happiness, and acceptance.

In lieu of flowers the family would appreciate donations to either MARC or the Bynum School, P.O. Box 80175, Midland, TX. 79708. It is our hope that the Bynum School can grow to help more members of our community receive the education, life skills, and quality of life they deserve; MARC Inc, 2701 North A St., Midland, TX. 79705;and Byrom Burns Education and Ministerial Endowed Scholarship, Howard Payne University, 1000 Fisk St., Brownwood, TX. 76801.

He will be laid to rest Saturday afternoon at 3:30 p.m., April 1, 2012, during graveside services at Heflin Cemetery in Owens, Texas, with Rev. Paul Byrom officiating.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory of Midland. Online condolences can be made at: www.npwelch.com.

EPA pulls order forcing driller to provide water

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday it no longer is requiring a gas driller it had accused of contaminating private wells to provide water to two North Texas families.

The EPA submitted the withdrawal to the court in Texas on Thursday, not long after Judge Trey Loftin concluded residents in Parker County had collaborated with an environmental consultant to falsify video showing how their water — supposedly contaminated with methane — could be ignited.

It remains unclear whether the judge's ruling in January influenced the EPA to withdraw its order against Fort Worth-based Range Resources. But the agency said in a statement this move allows the focus to move "away from litigation and toward a joint effort on the science and safety of energy extraction." Range has agreed to conduct periodic testing at 20 area water wells.

The Texas Railroad Commission, which oversees oil and gas drilling, and Range Resources has long insisted drilling did not cause the water contamination.

The EPA and some Parker County residents had argued fracking had contaminated the water with benzene, methane and other toxic gases. Hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, is a drilling method used to extract oil and natural gas embedded in impermeable layers of rock. The process involves pumping chemical-laced water at a high pressure into the ground to release once out-of-reach gas and oil.

The method has allowed drillers to extract gas and oil from shale formations nationwide — and even globally — but has been accompanied by concern that it is not environmentally safe.

In northeastern Pennsylvania, the EPA announced earlier this month that testing of water wells had failed to show evidence of contamination. The agency had been delivering water to three of the 11 homes in Dimock, Pa., where residents accuse drillers of contaminating their water. Dimock has been at the center of fierce debate over the environmental impact of drilling in the Marcellus shale.

Range Resources and the Texas Railroad Commission both argued the aquifer in Parker County always has been laced with naturally occurring methane.

"We are very pleased to see that the EPA's order has been withdrawn," Range Resources spokesman Matt Pitzarella said. "It's important for people to know that their environment, health and safety is protected and hopefully this provides them with that comfort."

Ex-FLDS leader sentenced to 10 years in prison

A former polygamist leader found guilty of bigamy has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

A Midland County jury sentenced Wendell Loy Nielsen on Friday, two days after he was convicted on three counts of bigamy. He will serve the three sentences concurrently.

The 71-year-old Nielsen is the former president of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and was once a top lieutenant to Warren Jeffs in the polygamist group.

He also was ordered to pay a fine of $10,000 for each of the counts.

Testimony in the trial's sentencing phase ended Thursday.

Nielsen could have avoided jail but renounced his original plea deal with prosecutors because he felt the probation conditions were too restrictive.

Perry's security bill increases for presidential run

Gov. Rick Perry's failed run for president has cost Texas taxpayers more than $3.6 million in travel expenses and overtime pay to agents assigned to his security detail.

The Texas Department of Public Safety on Friday released its latest reports on travel expenses for agents assigned to protect Perry and his family.

Those figures, plus previously reports, show that the agency spent more than $1.8 million on food, fuel, lodging and other travel expenses between Aug. 10 and the end of January, protecting the governor as he crisscrossed the country.

Perry announced his candidacy on Aug. 13 and dropped out of the race on Jan. 19.

Travel costs are separate from the over $1.8 million the agency reports it paid agents assigned to Perry in overtime between August and January.

Home where Holly's band formed to be preserved

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — The Lubbock home where Buddy Holly and childhood friend Jerry Allison co-wrote "That'll Be The Day" is being moved to a site that memorializes the famed 1950s rock and roll pioneer.

The house where Allison spent some of his teenage years will find a home at the Buddy Holly Center in Lubbock, said Brooke Witcher, the center's director of museums and special events. The cultural arts group Civic Lubbock Inc., is paying for the move, she said.

"I am very pleased the old house is being redone," Allison — the only person to play drums for Holly's group, The Crickets — told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal in a story published Friday. "We had some great times there, practiced, formed The Crickets, wrote 'That'll Be the Day' there, and no telling what else."

Officials at Civic Lubbock said it's the closest they'll get to Holly's actual home. That home became part of a hog farm and eventually burned.

"No one with the city knew that was the house," said homebuilder Art Cuevas, who is credited with saving Allison's home.

Cuevas contacted city officials and offered to make repairs and see it was moved. A developer working on the property donated the house.

"This is going to be a great exhibit, and a super addition to the Buddy Holly Center," Cuevas said. "Visitors can see what it was like to grow up in West Texas in the 1950s, and see where the music by The Crickets and Holly was born."

Allison said he remembered his parents buying the house so he and his brother could be closer to Texas Tech University. He said that when Elvis Presley released "Heartbreak Hotel," he and Holly asked future Crickets' keyboardist Glen D Hardin over to practice "and do the piano part like the record."

"Glen D was uninterested," Allison said. "Then he later spent years touring and recording with Elvis."

Mark Bass, president of Civic Lubbock, said he hopes the home can open for visitors by late September.

The Crickets are being inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland next month. Holly was named to the hall in in 1986. Holly was killed Feb. 2, 1959, in an Iowa plane crash that also claimed 28-year-old J.P. "The Big Bopper" Richardson and 17-year-old Ritchie Valens.

"That'll Be The Day," released in May 1957, was Holly's first big hit. When the song hit the charts in England, it attracted the attention of teenagers Paul McCartney and John Lennon, who fashioned their band name, The Beatles, after The Crickets.

Today in history

Today is Saturday, March 31, the 91st day of 2012. There are 275 days left in the year.

Today's highlight:

On March 31, 1932, Ford Motor Co. publicly unveiled its powerful flat-head V8 engine; while not the first eight-cylinder engine, it was the first to be affordable to the general public, and proved very popular.

PROM

From 1A

No committee members ever has been to a prom, so the students said they planned it based on what they've seen in movies and what they want their prom to be.

Erin Barnes said "A Midsummer Night's Dream" seemed like a good theme because it would be easy to decorate and require minimal financial commitment.

Though they've managed to come to a consensus on many ideas, Three-in-one Green said there was a lot of debate and discussion.

"It's been kind of confusing because everyone had different ideas and we had to work to put them together," Green said.

Though the students are planning their own prom this year, the event will be planned by another group of students when they're seniors.

"We're establishing it where the junior class throws the prom for the seniors," said prom sponsor Daphne Rhoads. "The sophomores already are making plans for next year's prom."

Rhoads said she's excited to help the students coordinate this event, even though planning was stressful.

"This is a great learning experience for them and a meaningful part of high school," she said.

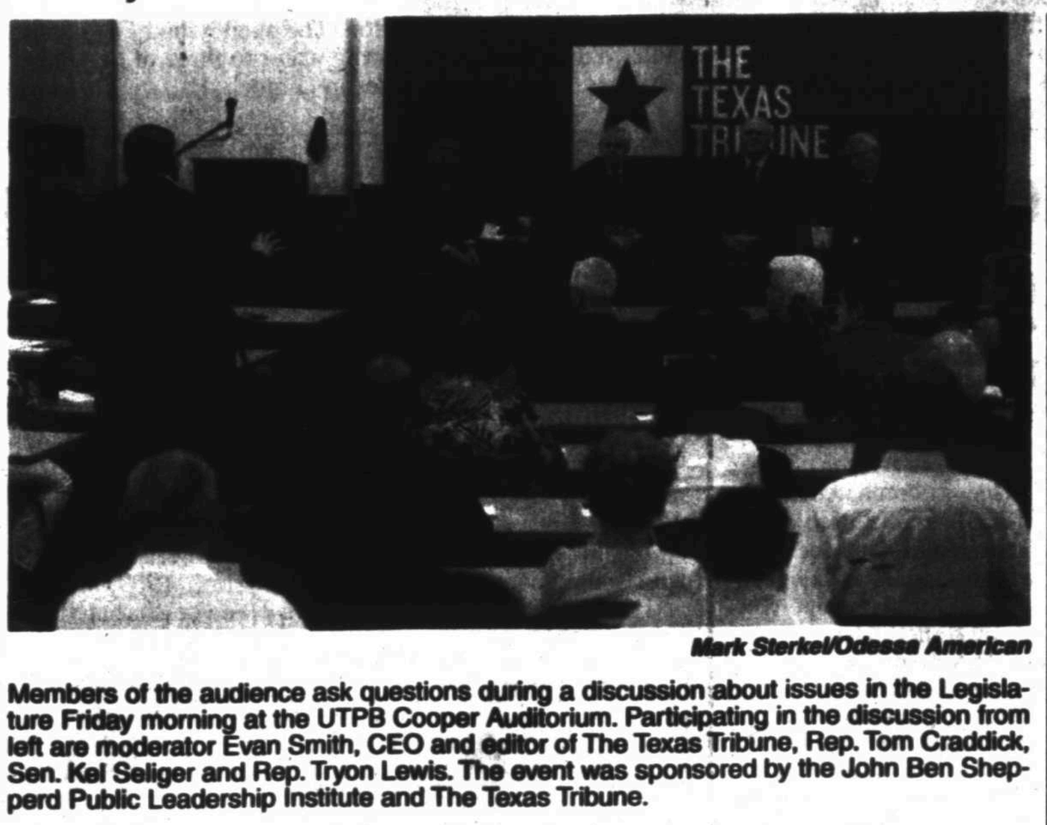

Yesenia Loya said she's excited to see her classmates dressed up in formal wear.

"We've never been in a situation where we get to dress up," Loya said. "I think it will be a lot of fun."

Nataly Escudero said prom will be like a reunion for the juniors because they don't see each other every day. With college classes dominating their schedule, the students are coming and going at different times, she said.

The school, which only has about 85 juniors, will crown a prom king and queen, Rhoads said. Students will vote after they've arrived at the event, and in the case of a tie, teachers will serve as tie-breakers.

Mark Sterkel/Odessa American

Members of the audience ask questions during a discussion about issues in the Legislature Friday morning at the UTPB Cooper Auditorium. Participating in the discussion from left are moderator Evan Smith, CEO and editor of The Texas Tribune, Rep. Tom Craddick, Sen. Kel Seliger and Rep. Tryon Lewis. The event was sponsored by the John Ben Shepperd Public Leadership Institute and The Texas Tribune.

State lawmakers say education a top priority

By Kathleen Petty
Staff Writer

ODESSA — If given the chance, area lawmakers agreed Friday they'd favor funneling more state funding into public education than was allocated during the most recent legislative session.

The state is grappling to find where that money would have come from and precisely how much is needed to effectively educate children statewide, said Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland; Sen. Kel Seliger, R-Amarillo; and Rep. Tryon Lewis, R-Odessa. The three took part in "The Hot Seat" forum that was hosted by the Texas Tribune and the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

"Education is the primary thing, in my opinion, Texas is responsible for funding," Craddick said.

The Midland representative said education funding is important not just for the well-being of children but also for the economic growth of the state. If Texas doesn't have an educated work force, it won't succeed in luring businesses.

"We've got this influx out here, but we can't hire people," he said. "All that goes back to education."

Seliger said twice during the 82nd legislative session he supported moves to use more money from the state's "rainy day fund" for public education. Additional money should be made available for schools, particularly because millions of dollars in Formula One funds are being considered for allocation to a race track, Seliger said.

He said the education system can't be measured purely by its funding. Some schools with $11,000 per student produce great results while others struggle. Figuring out what makes the difference and how much of a district's funding actually goes into the classroom is what matters, he said.

"Our success in education isn't going to be gauged by the amount of money we put into it," he said.

Craddick said more money should have been allocated. But, he and Lewis said constituents in West Texas didn't want to see additional money drained from the reserve fund so it would have needed to come from somewhere else.

"In the districts we represent, they don't want us to touch the rainy day fund," Craddick said.

He, Seliger and Lewis agreed the business-margins tax needs to be revisited because it was intended to provide more public education funding than it has produced.

Lewis said higher education also needs to be a focus of lawmakers.

He said he's concerned the burden of higher education is being transferred to those paying tuition and the state needs to ensure college remains affordable. That doesn't mean he would favor regulation of tuition by state leaders, but perhaps more state funding could go toward tuition, Lewis said.

In a recessionary budget like was passed in 2011, Seliger said that's difficult to pass.

Other "Hot Seat" highlights

- Seliger, Craddick and Lewis all declined an opportunity to endorse former Gov. Mitt Romney for president. However, Craddick said Midlanders are warming up to the candidate and that West Texas will support him. With the Obama administration continuing to regulate the oil and gas industry, Craddick said Midlanders will support whichever Republican runs against President Barack Obama.
- Lewis said he doesn't believe four-year completion rates at universities is a good way to measure success. If students want to take a year off in the middle to work or want to spend eight classes while holding down a job, Lewis said those decisions should be commended.

Lewis said legislators will need to be a priority for the state. He said the state needs $53 billion over 30 years to fund its water plan, which is something state leaders need to start addressing now.

- All three said they didn't take issue with the state budget only funding part of what will be needed for Medicaid reimbursements during the biennium. A special appropriations bill likely will be passed at the beginning of the next session to make up the difference. It's anticipated those funds will come from the rainy day fund, Smith said.

Seliger and Craddick added that community colleges, dual-credit programs and other opportunities allow for students to pursue higher education at an affordable rate. They want to ensure those programs continue, they said.

During the 83rd legislative session, Craddick said he expects the budget situation will be as challenging or more challenging that it was in the 82nd session.

Places like Midland and Odessa have had record sales tax revenues. But in other parts of the state, the economy is not booming at quite the height of the Permian Basin, he said.

Lewis agreed funding education again will be a challenge, especially because of a required increase in the share of the budget for Medicaid and because sales tax revenues account only for a small percentage of the budget.

Steven Schafersman, a State School Board candidate who attended the forum, said there was money during the last session for schools; legislators didn't prioritize like they needed to.

"Corporations are making hundreds of millions of dollars in this state," he said. "There's plenty of money."

In addition to school finance, Smith quizzed the trio of lawmakers on health care funding, their opinion of the leading Republican presidential candidate and water planning. Odessa's event was one of a handful the online media outlet has hosted.

"The reason we do events like this one is there needs to be dialogue," Smith said.

He told the about 70 people who attended the morning session he was glad to be in West Texas.

"Living in Austin all the time is rather like living in Disneyland," Smith said. "This is the real Texas."

Country star Jones remains hospitalized

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — A publicist for country star George Jones is knocking down a rumor that he is suffering from pneumonia.

Kirt Webster said Friday night that Jones remains hospitalized in Nashville with an upper respiratory infection. He is receiving antibiotics and doctors expect him to stay until Tuesday. The 80-year-old singer was admitted Thursday.

Jones released a statement saying "thanks to all my fans and friends for their prayers and support during this time."

The Saratoga, Texas, native is known for several classic country hits, including "White Lightning" and "He Stopped Loving Her Today."

JOBS

From 1A

$100 a barrel. What's driving growth now is the tremendous increase in business. Member restaurants are reporting double-digit increases, and restaurants are struggling to find additional employees, Morales said.

The oil and gas sector drove the increase by adding 200 jobs from January to February and 1,900 between February 2011 and February 2012, Taylor said.

Other sectors remained stable and wages remain strong. Wages even are increasing "simply because our skilled labor market is so tight," he said.

He said he doesn't think wages will stabilize until the region solves its housing shortage to bring in enough workers to fill the available jobs.

Morales said pay rates are as high or higher than in 2008. "There has been a significant increase," he said.

While it is a blessing to have the oil and gas industry doing so well, Taylor said it creates issues such as housing, water and the shortage of a skilled labor force.

Morales agreed and said there are restaurant managers living in apartments who have been trying for months to move their families to Midland. Housing boards have been told "we need true affordable housing and they say, 'Well, what's true affordable housing?' We tell them something in the $130,000 to $170,000 range; that's true affordable housing," he said.

Other challenges include high gasoline prices and employers having to pay overtime to the staff they do have to accommodate customers. Retailers also are challenged to accommodate the schedules of employees going to college.

Taylor said his office, which oversees 17 West Texas counties, soon will be launching a program encouraging younger residents to seek summer jobs.

"In the summer, we look forward to the kids coming to help, but then we lose them in the fall," Morales said. "We're grateful for the help for 90 days but on day 91 they're gone."

Statewide, the unemployment rate fell to 7.1 percent from 7.3 percent and was the sixth consecutive month the state's unemployment has declined and is the lowest since March 2009. For the third consecutive month, Texas added more than 20,000 new jobs, adding 27,800 nonfarm jobs in February. The Workforce Commission also said new claims for unemployment fell 28 percent from January to February.

Jury finds ex-nurse guilty in bleach deaths

Associated Press

LUFKIN — A former Texas nurse accused of killing five of her patients and injuring five others by injecting bleach into their kidney dialysis tubing was found guilty of capital murder Friday.

Kimberly Clark Saenz, 38, was fired in April 2008 after a rash of illnesses and deaths at a Lufkin dialysis clinic run by Denver-based health care giant DaVita Inc. She was charged a year later.

Her trial began March 5. Defense lawyers argued that Saenz was being targeted by the clinic's owner for faulty procedures at the facility, including improper water purification. They also suggested that officials at the clinic, about 125 miles northeast of Houston, fabricated evidence against Saenz. Prosecutors described claims Saenz was being set up by her employer as "absolutely ridiculous."

The mother of two now faces life in prison or a death sentence as the case moved to the punishment phase. Prosecutors had said they would seek the death penalty if Saenz was convicted.

Prosecutors had described Saenz as a depressed and disgruntled employee who complained about specific patients, including some of those who died or were injured. Her attorneys said she had no motive to kill any patients.

Two patients who were at the clinic on April 28, 2008, testified that they saw Saenz use syringes to draw bleach from a cleaning bucket and then inject it into the IV lines of two patients who subsequently died.

The licensed vocational nurse, on the job about eight months, was dismissed the following day and the clinic was shut down by DaVita and state health inspectors. It reopened about two months later.

Defense attorney Ryan Deaton argued that Saenz and others used syringes rather than measuring cups for bleach to ensure precise amounts were being used for proper mixing of cleaning solutions.

Bleach is commonly used to disinfect plastic lines and other dialysis equipment at the clinic. Saenz's attorneys said she was spotted measuring bleach into a syringe because she wanted to put the right amount into cleaning water.

Saenz was charged with one capital murder count accusing her of killing as many as five patients, and with five counts of aggravated assault for the injuries to the five other patients.

Task force has successful haul

Robert Almonte, U.S. marshal for the Western District of Texas, speaks Friday morning about the Lone Star Fugitive Task Force's success after a weeklong warrant roundup in Ector County. The group said they executed 75 warrants, arresting 65 "dangerous and violent" fugitives. The operation consisted of 25 officers from various state, local and federal law enforcement agencies. Those arrested were charged with mostly violent conduct, such as sexual assault against children, aggravated assault, aggravated kidnapping and assault on a public servant. Ector County Sheriff Mark Donaldson, from right; Gary Garnett, Homeland Security agent; Steve Clark, U.S. marshal; and Phill Maxwell, supervisory deputy U.S. marshal also participated. Almonte and Clark said the task force will focus on Midland's fugitives in the coming months.

Midland Development Corp. looks to advertise properties, add staff member

From staff reports

The Midland Development Corp. likely will add at least one staff member to its roster.

The board voted Friday to accept proposals from companies as they seek to hire an executive search consultant who would help the organization identify candidates for the MDC, said Pam Welch, interim president.

The board also heard a report from Craig Farmer, senior planner with Freese and Nichols, regarding the Highway 191 corridor study.

Farmer was commissioned by the MOTOR Metropolitan Planning Organization to work with local officials and other planners in developing a long-term plan regarding the Highway 191 area.

The plan being formulated has been in the works since the spring of 2011. It could include plans for backage roads in the area, neighborhoods, retail and commercial zoning and hike and bike trails.

The board also agreed Friday to have Welch advertise for requests for proposals regarding the listing of lots near Midland International Airport's Industrial Park Addition.

Welch said the MDC is in the beginning stages but a commercial real estate agent could help to increase advertisement of the land for use by a company.

Children's festival to benefit Bynum School set for today at Midland Center

From staff reports

Bynum School will host its eighth annual Helen Greathouse Children's Festival 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. today at Midland Center.

The event will include jumpers, video games, arts and crafts, entertainers and a concession stand, said Tracey Bush, the school's development director.

"It's a family event and a great thing to bring the kids to," she said. "Everything is kid-oriented from about the age of 3 to 12 years old."

Coming up

Check out photos from this event and more in Sunday's edition of the Reporter-Telegram.

Cost for the festival is $5 per person or $20 per family, Bush said.

"We want to make it an affordable afternoon for Midland families," she said.

The event is Bynum School's biggest fundraiser of the year. Proceeds provide a significant contribution to the operating budget of the school, which serves children with special needs, the sponsorship letter says.

A Candy Land preview party was held Friday evening for event sponsors and their families.

MURDER

From 1A

When the other three saw him smoking marijuana, they decided to join him, and that's when Lee said Whitworth whispered in his ear, "You need to kill Malibu (Chris)."

"At that point, I didn't even think," Lee said.

He said he took the bolt cutters and struck Easley in the back of the head. He then grabbed his knife and slit Easley's throat.

Lee said he was just stunned after he did it, but then Whitworth yelled at him to do something. He said he grabbed the bolt cutters again and started swinging them at Easley like a baseball bat.

He said he heard a "squish" sound and thought he hit Easley's eye. He stopped and dropped the bolt cutters on the ground.

"The sound of it has never left my mind ever since," Lee said.

Lee said Easley rolled over and was choking on his own blood, wheezing and making sounds as if he were suffering. He asked Whitworth how to "make him stop making that noise." He said Whitworth told him he needed to puncture Easley's lungs to let the air escape. After stabbing him, Lee said it took less than half a minute before Easley stopped.

Lee said Whitworth saw that he was in shock and told him to sit with Bostic while he dragged Easley's body behind a bush.

"I didn't want to hurt her," Lee said of Bostic.

He said they assaulted Bostic and then drove to their motel. He then took a long hot shower while Whitworth stood at the door asking if he was OK.

He told the court that Whitworth never threatened him but previously had told him he should kill someone. Lee said he never took his friend seriously but that in the early morning hours of June 6, he was distraught by losing his family members and his failing marriage and had no explanation for why he killed Easley.

"I wish I knew why. I wish I could take it back, but I can't," he said.

When asked if there was anything he wished to say to Bostic's or Easley's families who were present in the courtroom, Lee spoke only to Bostic.

"I never would have let you get hurt. If I wasn't in shock, if I wasn't in distress, I would never do those things. I hope one day you can forgive me," he said.

When cross-examined by his attorney, Lee said Whitworth kicked the bolt cutters toward his feet and that while they were driving out to the county, Whitworth had texted him that he needs to feel what it's like to get his first kill.

"I wish I could have been in the right frame of mind when I went out there. But I wasn't, so I can't change it," he said.

Morgan said his client is very remorseful and sorry for what's happened.

"He didn't want Chris' family or his family to have go through a trial," he told the Reporter-Telegram.

Chris' mother, Sheila Sullenbarger, placed a framed picture of her son on the ledge of the witness stand as she delivered a similar victim impact statement to Lee as she did Monday to Whitworth.

She; her husband, Edwin Sullenbarger; and son, Michael Easley, all stated they believe that justice was served. By Lee taking the plea offer, it helped their family by not having to go through another trial.

More than a dozen family members showed up each day in court, including some from Lamesa, to be there for Chris, Sullenbarger said.

"We're ready for the healing process to begin," her husband said.

Assistant District Attorney Laura Nodolf said justice has been done in the case and that she and the court staff are pleased with the guilty plea, as well as the punishment Lee received pursuant to the plea.

In regard to the Whitworth trial last week, she said the jury was very patient and attentive and made the right decision. She said she respects the guilty verdict, as well as the verdict on punishment that jurors delivered.

Spinach could be weapon against citrus scourge

Associated Press

WESLACO — In a lab not far from the Mexican border, the fight against a disease ravaging the worldwide citrus industry has found an unexpected weapon: spinach.

A scientist at Texas A&M's Texas AgriLife Research and Extension Center is moving a pair of bacteria-fighting proteins naturally occurring in spinach into citrus trees to fight a scourge commonly known as citrus greening. The disease hasn't faced this defense before and intensive greenhouse testing so far indicates the genetically enhanced trees are immune to its advances.

Next month, dozens of young sweet orange and grapefruit trees developed by Texas plant pathologist Erik Mirkov will be planted near Lake Okeechobee in South Florida to see how they fare in a commercial citrus grove.

"Some of these growers in Florida, they say 'If you can't have something for us in five years, if you tell me it's going to take eight we're dead,'" Mirkov said.

To hurry along the process, Mirkov and Southern Gardens Citrus, a subsidiary of U.S. Sugar that is funding his research, are pursuing government regulatory approvals while their field testing continues.

Citrus greening was first described in China in the early 1900s as Huanglongbing, which growers and researchers refer to as HLB. The bacterium is carried from an infected tree to healthy ones by the Asian citrus psyllid, a tiny dappled brown insect that showed up in Florida in 1998. The bacterium reproduces and spreads through an infected tree's vascular system making it difficult to take up water and nutrients.

Trees produce smaller fruit that drops to the ground prematurely, and eventually the trees die.

In 2010, a panel convened by the National Academy of Sciences reported that the sort of genetic engineering Mirkov and others are doing "holds the greatest hope" for creating citrus trees resistant to the bacterium. By that time, greening was already confirmed in every Florida county with commercial citrus groves.

Mirkov is not alone in his pursuit. He decided early on to only work with genes from foods that are already commonly eaten. But others are pursuing research with honey bee venom, a toxin from a beetle and other compounds. Even Mirkov's backer Southern Gardens Citrus is considering other approaches, including one that would create insect-resistant trees.

Southern Gardens Citrus President Rick Kress said they're looking for trees that are not only HLB-resistant, but also produce the fruit they need to be commercially viable.

"The bottom line is the citrus industry needs a solution," Kress said. "That's what's driving all of this."

The disease was confirmed in Florida in 2005 and is present in several other southeastern states and around the world, including major citrus producer Brazil. A study released earlier this year by the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences estimated the disease had cost that state's industry $3.63 billion in lost revenues since 2006.

By last year, more than 43 percent of Florida citrus trees had been infected with HLB and the rate is climbing so steeply that Jim Graham, a microbiologist at the University of Florida's Citrus Research and Education Center, expects it to double in the next year or two.

"It won't be long before Florida is 100 percent infected," Graham said. He said HLB has doubled the costs of growing citrus in Florida.

In January, researchers surveying groves in South Texas found infected orange and grapefruit trees in two groves across the street from each other about 10 miles from Mirkov's lab. California, second to Florida in U.S. production, hasn't detected the disease in its citrus groves.

Pete Timmer, professor emeritus at the University of Florida's Citrus Research and Education Center, was called a pessimist when he published an article two years ago on the future of that state's citrus industry. He predicted among other things that genetically enhanced citrus trees resistant to HLB would be widely available in 20 years, but by then there would be few small citrus growers left in the business.

ARE YOU AT RISK?

AARP Bulletin From May 20, 2011

According to a new study by Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and the National Institute of Aging, men and women with hearing loss are much more likely to develop dementia and Alzheimer's disease. People with severe hearing loss, the study reports, were 5 times more likely to develop dementia than those with normal hearing.

"Hearing Loss is now linked to many other health problems!"

Have you noticed a change in your ability to remember?

"The more hearing loss you have, the greater the likelihood of developing dementia and Alzheimer's disease. Hearing aids could delay or prevent dementia by improving the patients' hearing."

Bulldogs pound out 14 runs to blast Eagles

By Jordan Mason
Sports Writer

Midland High coach Barry Russell said his team won't be able to get away with the way it played defense Friday later in the season.

But, fortunately for the Bulldogs, the bats showed up against Abilene High, allowing them to run away with a 14-3 win at Zachery Field and remain undefeated in league play.

"We hit the ball great, we hit the ball really well, I'm proud of our offense," Russell said. "But defensively, I'm not that excited about the way we played today."

In just four innings, Midland High (15-7, 5-0) lit up the scoreboard at Zachery Field with 14 runs on 16 hits. But costly errors and the fact that five Abilene High batters reached on a walk or a hit-by-pitch made it hard for Russell to treat the victory like any 11-run win.

Bulldogs	14
Eagles	3

"We play somebody that swings it really well, we're going to be in trouble," Russells said. "We can't make errors and make walks.

"We're being lucky right now — we're not being good, we're being lucky."

The reason the Bulldogs were able to get by Friday was a barrage of hits at the plate, as Midland High scored in all four innings it batted in, scoring multiple runs in all but one of them.

In a precursor to the type of day it was going to be, Austen Wade opened the game with a triple on a fly ball to deep right before the next batter, Ryan Whittenberg, promptly drove him in with an RBI double to left. Jimmy Essman later drove him in with an RBI single to left that made it 2-0.

But the first inning was just a glimmer compared to the fireworks that came in the second inning, as the first eight Midland High batters reached despite just one walk during the span. The Bulldogs blew the game open when, with the bases loaded and Midland High up 4-0, Lance White stepped to the plate and ripped an 0-1 pitch to center for a bases-clearing triple that put Midland High up 7-0.

"It was awesome," White said of his big hit. "I knew (the pitch) was coming."

The Bulldogs added two runs on an RBI single by Travis Sims and a sacrifice fly by Connor Beck to go up 9-0 by the end of the second.

Yet Abilene High finally got on the board in the third, when Brandon Bullinger hit a sacrifice fly that scored Taylor Peables, who reached on a leadoff hit-by-pitch. It was the type of scenario that made it hard for Russell to be happy after the game.

"We put a big number up on the board, seven, and then we immediately go out and hit the first batter," Russell said. "We've got to quit doing that."

Midland High got the run back in the bottom of the inning, but Abilene High (9-8, 2-2) got to Will Taylor again in the fourth when two errors on attempts to

In error-prone game, Lady Dawgs take advantage of final mishap

By Jonathan Hull

It wasn't pretty, but a win is a win, and at the end of the day, the Midland High softball team remains alone in first place.

In a game that featured nine errors, it was only fitting that a fielding mishap led to the decisive runs as Midland High pulled out an 8-6 victory against Odessa Permian in a District 3-5A game at Audrey Gill Sports Complex on Friday.

"I think both teams did a good job of putting the ball in play honestly. I think both teams made some mistakes that we didn't see in the first game," Midland High coach Shawnda Vines said. "It wasn't a pretty game by any means, not on our part at all. We know we need to improve on defense and do a better job there."

The victory keeps the Lady Bulldogs

(18-8, 6-1 in 3-5A) alone atop the district standings, while Permian (20-4, 4-3) drops into a tie for third with Abilene High.

After Permian had tied the game at 6 with four runs in the top of the sixth inning, Midland High managed to answer with two runs in the bottom of the frame. However, both runs were unearned as seniors Naomi Posada and Val Sisneros crossed on a ball booted into right center field by Permian shortstop Jamye Ashley.

"When you give a good team like Midland High extra opportunities, they're going to take advantage of them and they did," Permian coach Lori Haltom said. "Give credit to our kids, they fought back hard, but Midland fought back a little bit harder."

On the play, designated player Marissa Urias hit a chopper back up the middle of the infield with runners on first and second and two outs in the inning. The ball was just out of reach of pitcher Elizabeth Craig, who managed to tip it with her glove.

Craig's tip altered the course of the ball just enough to throw off Ashley at short, causing her to miss the ball with her glove and essentially kick it into right-center field. Urias ended up on third on the play as Posada and Sisneros scored for an 8-6 Midland High lead. It was the seventh error of the day for the Lady Panthers.

It was a tough loss to swallow for Haltom, particularly after the Lady Panthers had fought back from a four-run deficit in the top of the sixth inning to tie the game after Brea Elizardo hit a bases-

Kentucky, Louisville gear up for civil war in Final Four

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Kentucky coach John Calipari likes to say there are no rivalry games at this point in the season.

Try telling that to the Bluegrass State, where basketball's version of the civil war — Kentucky vs. Louisville, winner plays for the NCAA title — has so divided the small state that senior citizens have actually come to fisticuffs.

"The fans take it as, whoever loses, it's their funeral, really," Louisville senior guard Chris Smith said. "It's really cut-throat, I would say."

The game today is the fifth time top-seeded Kentucky (36-2) and fourth-seeded Louisville (30-9) have met in the NCAA tournament. They split the previous four meetings.

Basketball purists may argue Duke-North Carolina or Kansas-Missouri are the game's biggest, most intense rivalries. But those are like quaint tea parties compared with the animosity between Kentucky and Louisville, which required government intervention to get them to schedule each other.

Calipari

Pitino

No, think Auburn-Alabama on the hardcourt, and you get the idea.

"We get along with most of them," Kentucky fan Pat Stahl said of Louisville fans, "as long as they don't talk to you."

Or, heaven forbid, say something at a dialysis appointment. A 71-year-old Louisville fan punched a 68-year-old Kentucky fan earlier this week after their discussion over tonight's game got out of hand.

To be fair, police say the Kentucky fan did flip off the Louisville fan.

"It all started with the racial lines in Kentucky," Louisville coach Rick Pitino said of the rivalry. "Now (it's) no longer racially motivated. It's just pure hatred."

It's a given that Louisville and Kentucky would be rivals, their campuses just 70 miles apart in a state where basketball is king. To hear fans of both schools tell it, however, the programs might as well be on different planets.

Kentucky is a college basketball blue blood, its seven national titles second only to UCLA, while Louisville has a nice little tradition going with two national titles.

Kentucky is the bigger school, and its campus is set in bucolic hill country. Louisville sprawls over several city blocks, smoke from a soy processing plant billowing overhead and railroad tracks cutting through the center of campus.

Big Blue counts most of the state among its fan base, too, while Louisville isn't necessarily even No. 1 in its own city.

In fact, about the only thing the two schools have in common is Pitino, who led the Wildcats to one national title and two other Final Four appearances in eight years at Kentucky.

Forget that engendering any warm-and-fuzzy goodwill with the Kentucky folks, however. Now that Pitino isn't theirs, Kentucky fans hate him, too.

"Since we got Rick, (the rivalry) is more on their part," Robert Coke said. "They're used to getting the cream of

Hawks shut down Lady Chaparrals in doubleheader sweep

Howard College's Rebecca Long, 7, slides in ahead of the tag by Midland College's Ashley Chavez to safely steal second Friday afternoon at the MC softball field.

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

Midland College softball coach Tommy Ramos has been coaching long enough to have been in the kind of situation his team faces after getting swept by rival Howard College in a doubleheader on a hot Friday afternoon.

Ramos has seen his team have a rough day at home only to bounce back the next day with a sweep on the road.

The No. 8-ranked Lady Chaparrals at least hope that they have a better day today in Big Spring after dropping both games to the Hawks, 10-1 in six innings in the first game and then 12-5 in the second, on their home field in a key Western Junior College

"We got off on the wrong foot today," Ramos said. "We didn't have energy. I don't think we were mentally here. I think we were just going through the motions. I can't say what it was that put us on that road but obviously everybody went down that road. We had bright spots and we had moments where could have made a difference, but we didn't have the effort or the energy to continue to push, plus (Howard) played well."

MC (31-9, 4-2 in WJCAC) was stifled in the first game by Howard pitcher Sandra Serna and allowed two big home runs by Olive Naotala and Kara Isbel in a run-rule defeat.

Then in the second game, Howard (28-11, 7-1) took advantage of Midland College miscues and scored nine unanswered runs in the come-from-behind victory.

The sweep was pretty sweet for the head coach Kelly Raines and her Hawks, who have now won 10 consecutive games.

"Anytime you can come to Midland and get two wins, you should feel really good about it," Raines said. "We feel we have a really great team. If we could get it all going, we feel like we can compete with anybody, and we did that today. I'm sure Coach Ramos doesn't feel like his

Roughnecks start new season in new league

From staff reports

ODESSA — A new season begins tonight for the West Texas Roughnecks and there will be plenty of new faces on the sidelines and on the field for the occasion. Not to mention, the Roughnecks are also playing in a new league.

West Texas plays its first Lone Star Football League game at 7:15 p.m. tonight at the Amarillo Civic Center, where the Roughnecks pay a visit to the Amarillo Venom. Both teams played in the Indoor Football League last season before making the move to the LSFL during the offseason.

The Roughnecks are under the tutelage of first-year head coach Brian Brents, who replaced longtime coach Chris Williams. Brents was the head coach of the El Paso Generals of the IFL in 2009 and led them to a 12-2 regular season record as well as the conference championship. He was named the IFL Coach of the Year because of that season.

Brents also spent two years as the head coach of the Mississippi Mudcats of the American Indoor Football Association in 2007 and 2008.

Brents will be leading an inexperienced team with defensive lineman Brandon Sesay — a former top national junior college recruit who signed with Texas Tech in 2008 — and receiver Jeremy Bishop the only two players listed on the roster with previous LSFL experience

But, the Roughnecks also return defensive lineman Jermaine Blakely, who has been a standout for the Roughnecks the last two seasons playing on both sides of the ball.

Drillers look to remain undefeated against Amarillo

From staff reports

The West Texas Drillers will look to stay undefeated as they take on the Amarillo Titans at 7:11 p.m. today at Grande Communications Stadium.

The Drillers are 5-0 this season and are coming off a 38-13 victory against the Texas Tornados in Lubbock.

Saturday will also be Breast Cancer Awareness Night. The teams will use pink footballs, and fans are encouraged to wear pink to the game. Plus, more than 40 breast cancer survivors will be honored at the game as the Drillers will raise money for Pink the Basin, Inc., for free mammograms.

Tickets are $10 and can be purchased at all 7-11 locations in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring.

Rebels drop second district game of season

From staff reports

ABILENE — Lee dropped its second district game of the season Friday, as Abilene Cooper scored all eight of its runs in the last three innings to earn an 8-3 win Friday at Cougar Field.

Lee (15-6, 2-2 in District 3-5A) built a 3-1 lead heading into the bottom of the fifth before Cooper (7-9, 3-1) tied the game with two runs in the fifth then won it with five runs in the sixth.

The Rebels actually outhit the Cougars 8-to-7, but Bo Thompson, who held Lee to just one extra-base hit, was able to shut the Rebels out after the fifth inning.

Mick Limon shut Cooper out over the first three innings before the Cougar bats came alive late in the game. Friday was Limon's first district loss in a game he started.

Midland High finally closed the door on Abilene High in the fourth, when it got four runs on five hits, starting with a two-run double by Wade, who ended the day 3-for-4 with a double and a triple. Whittenberg followed Wade with his second RBI single of the game before White got his fourth RBI on a single to right.

For White it was a fitting end to a nice day, but he and his Bulldog teammates weren't satisfied with remaining the only team without a district loss in 3-5A.

"We've got a lot of talent," Wade said, "but we just haven't put it all together yet.

SEMINOLE 11, GREENWOOD 1

Greenwood went toe to toe with the team with the best record in District 4-3A Friday but wasn't able to pull out the win as Seminole got 10 runs in the sixth and seventh to pull away in an 11-1 win at Greenwood Field.

"We just pretty much ran out of pitching, and they started hitting the ball," Greenwood coach Vince Callicoatte said.

Greenwood starter Braydin Moreland played well, holding Seminole to one run over nearly four innings.

Greenwood matched that run in the bottom of the third on a Zach Long RBI that tied the game at one.

That score remained the same until Seminole scored five in the sixth to grab control of the game then duplicated the effort in the sixth to put it away.

"I was proud of the kids because they played really bad last night against Fort Stockton and came back and played really well against Seminole," Callicoatte said.

FORT WORTH — Midland Christian scored all of its runs in one inning; as Matt Withrow impressed on the mound in a 4-1 road win against Fort Worth Christian.

A four-run third inning was all the run support Withrow needed, as he scattered three hits over seven innings and struck out eight to hand Fort Worth Christian its first district loss of the season.

Withrow was also one of two Mustange to drive in a run in the game along with Colton Chalker. Chalker went 2-for-3 in the game with two RBI.

Midland Christian has now won five straight games heading into the second game of its series against Fort Worth Christian at 11 a.m. today in Fort Worth.

GREENWOOD 5, SEMINOLE 3

Freshman Kassie Maddox made the most of her first varsity district game as the starting pitcher Friday, leading Greenwood to a 5-3 victory against Seminole in a District 4-3A game.

Maddox allowed three runs — none earned — on three hits and a walk, while striking out five batters. She also went 4 for 4 at the plate with a double and three RBI in what Greenwood coach Lee Anne Curry called an "impressive performance for her first district start."

Maddox was filling in for her older sister Kendall Maddox in the pitcher's circle. The older Maddox has been nursing a pulled groin muscle but is near 100 percent and should be available in Greenwood's next game — a non-district matchup against Abilene Wylie at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Lady Rebels drop crucial district game to OHS

From staff reports

ODESSA — The Lee softball team surrendered four runs in a two-inning span and dropped a critical District 3-5A game to Odessa High, 4-2, at Ratliff Sports Complex on Friday.

The win marks the first time in program history Odessa High (13-11, 5-2) has swept the season series from the Lady Rebels (13-12, 3-4 in 3-5A). The Lady Bronchos defeated Lee, 7-4, on March 6 in the first meeting between the two teams.

Odessa High scored a run in the bottom of the fourth for a 1-0 lead, but Lee immediately answered with two runs in the top of the fifth for a brief 2-1 advantage.

The Lady Bronchos pushed three across in the bottom of the fifth, though, and neither team managed to score for the remainder of the game. Kristin Dees picked up the win for Odessa High and also had the Lady Bronchos lone extra base hit with a double.

loaded triple to knock in three runs and then scored on a sacrifice fly to left by Kali Holcomb.

"It was a pivotal game because we've been off for a week, everyone has been off for a week, you want to come back and have that winning taste in your mouth again," Haltom said. "We didn't do enough today."

Midland High jumped on Permian starting pitcher Liz Hernandez in the opening inning and eventually chased her from the circle in the fifth. An impressive turnaround from the first time the Lady Dawgs faced Hernandez, who held them to just two runs in a 2-1 MHS victory on March 6.

"Against her the first time it was all outside (pitches) for me," Posada said. "I guess she wanted to switch it up (and came inside), but I'm glad we adjusted. All of us adjusted to her pretty well. Last time we didn't have as many hits as we did today. Our hitting got a lot better."

After Courtney Warren led off the bottom of the first with a walk and Gaby Muniz singled, Posada brought both runners home with a towering shot that went to the fence in left center for a double and a 2-0 lead.

The Lady Dawgs ended up stranding the bases loaded, however, and Permian answered with a pair of runs in the top of the second to tie the game at 2.

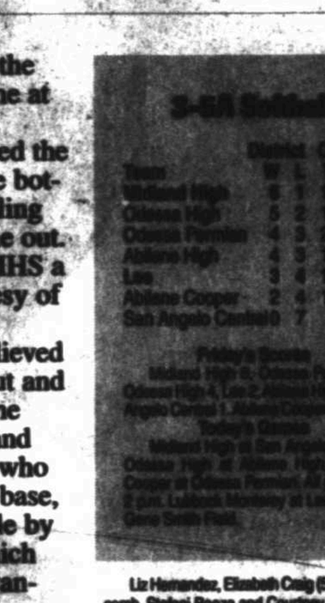

Warren again played the role of catalyst in the bottom of the third, tripling to right field with one out. She scored to give MHS a 3-2 advantage courtesy of a single by Muniz.

Hernandez was relieved by Craig with one out and a runner on first in the bottom of the fifth, and the first four batters who Craig faced reached base, including a RBI-triple by Merissa Ramirez which gave MHS a 6-2 advantage.

Midland's Rhino BJJ sends 4 fighters to compete in cagefighting event

By Ruben Ochoa
MRT Correspondent

Mixed Martial Arts' cagefighting will return to Odessa's Far West Event Center with "Rage," a 24/7, 15-bout amateur card at 7:30 tonight.

Midland's Rhino Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu will have four fighters competing at the event, and three of them will be making their cagefighting debut.

Rhino BJJ owner Brad Barnes said the main thing he's looking for from the combatants making debuts is to see how they react on fight night when the lights go on.

"We want them to come out and perform well and win, but at the end of the day its amateur, it doesn't count for anything but experience," Barnes said. "If they go out and lose then that gives us several things to learn from, and if they win then at least we know what's effective. Our big thing is to learn and grow as a fighter and as a person."

Barnes added that lots of preparation has gone into getting his first-time fighters ready for combat and that every student has contributed to the family-type atmosphere that has developed at Rhino BJJ.

"The guys have been working extremely hard, and our non-MMA students have helped tremendously in getting the guys ready for this event," Barnes said. "They have been willing to spar and help the guys prepare. The gym has become like a big family with everybody willing to help their brothers prepare."

Jon Smedley, David Lopezz, Ali Varraza and Juston Campos will represent Rhino BJJ at tonight's event.

Smedley, a youth pastor at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, started training in the past year and is hopeful to bring attention to MMA through his church.

"Last year, I was really overweight and once I started losing weight and got to a comfortable weight I got with Brad and started training," Smedley said. "Some people at church think its a little strange, but a lot of people are still unfamiliar with the sport but as they get exposed to it the better the understanding of the sport to them."

Barnes added that Smedley has worked really hard to lose weight and to learn jiu-jitsu.

"He's just doing this for experience," Barnes said. "I support him 100 percent, just to learn and to be able to say, 'I did this, and it was cool.' Same thing with Ali. We knew the fight was coming up and he was working really hard in the gym. We were like you're working really hard, "do you wanna fight" and he was like "yeah I wanna fight."

Varraza said that he's trained for MMA for about two years but this is definitely a new experience for him.

"I'm excited and probably on the actual day I will get some jitters," Varraza said.

He added that despite working long hours as an oilfield trucker he finds just enough energy to work at his craft.

"My brother and I have a truck company going in the oilfield," Varraza said. "Its hard to find time to train but I love the sport and I try to be here as much as I can."

The heavyweight division will be represented by Lopezz against Andy Ontiveros.

Although Lopezz is fairly new to the MMA scene, Barnes warned against taking him lightly.

"David's only been here a couple of weeks and he's having to learn a lot of stuff really quickly, but there's a lot to be said for not having a lot of technique but making up for it by being really strong and athletic," Barnes said. "It's not like we're getting somebody that doesn't know anything and hasn't gotten off the couch in three years."

Lopezz, a Hip Hop musician and singer/songwriter, said that he hit the ground running to get ready for this fight and that he will come out to one of his songs.

"I'm training as hard as I can. I don't know a whole lot about him. I just know that he's shorter than me and a lot stockier," Lopezz said. "I will be coming out to one of my own songs 'All I Know.' Looking at all the songs that inspire me that is the one that best describes me."

Also fighting at the event is Campos (2-0), a Lubbock native, and a former Eastern New Mexico University football player. He is currently a corrections officer at Culver Youth Home.

"Juston's one of the more talented fighters that I've seen in amateur," Barnes said. "He's one of the few guys that can get in trouble and work his way out of it and come out on top. That's rare because a lot of guys either mentally give-up or physically can't get out of it.

Campos added that the experience he's gained in previous fights has helped him to get ready for tonight's rumble.

"I'm the most prepared that I've ever been for a fight, Campos said. "And the weight cut is a lot easier once you get used to it with each additional fight."

MMA NOTES: Gates open at 6:30 p.m. ...Smoothie Factory is sponsoring the Rhino BJJ fighters. ...Tickets can be purchased at Far West Event Center for $25.

team had a great day. He has a really good team, but I feel our kids were ready to go today. We have some big sticks and they showed up."

Early in the first game, MC starting pitcher Yolanda Rios struggled with her command, but the Hawks only got one unearned run across in Rios' two-plus innings. Still, Rios was pulled in the third after she allowed three hits, hit three batters and walked two.

"(Rios) struggled today, and she couldn't seem to find her rhythm," Ramos said. "I think with her it's about being mentally tougher than she was today. I don't think she ever got comfortable out there, even to make adjustments. She doubted herself today."

While Rios had her struggles, Lady Chap position players were dropping like flies early as well. Second baseman Sam Kuakini (deep thigh bruise), center fielder Kayla Parra (concussion) and catcher Meghan Macias (hand) all had to leave the game because of injuries. Ramos said Macias may be lost for a while with a broken hand but won't know for sure until she gets X-rays.

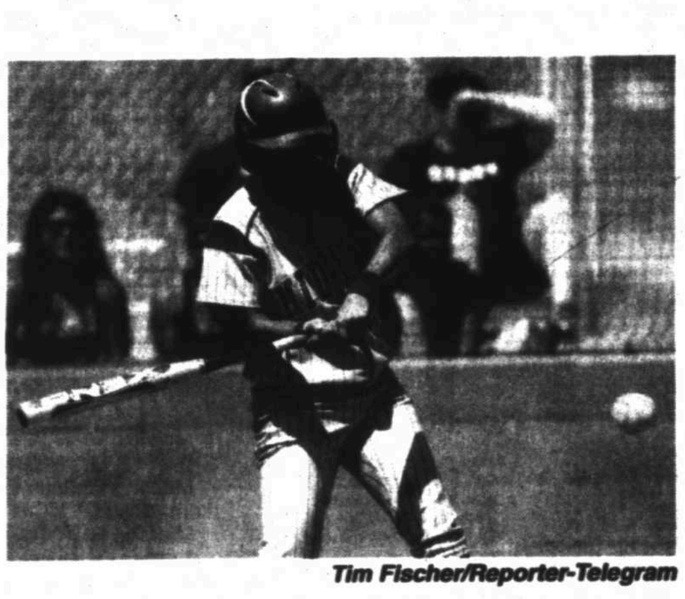

"That's just an example of how the day went for us," Ramos said.

Howard's bats then went to work against MC reliever Holly Herrington. In the fourth inning, Naotala — the leading home run hitter in the NJCAA — hit her 19th blast of the season with a three-run shot to right field.

Then in the sixth, the Hawks broke the game open with six runs, including a grand slam to right field by Kara Isbel.

MC's only run came on a solo shot by Debra Lovell — her 18th of the season — in the fifth.

But other than that homer from Lovell, the hot-hitting Lady Chaps were cooled down by Serna, who scattered three hits, struck out two and walked three in six innings of work.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Midland College's Diana De La Paz connects for a hit Friday against Howard College at the MC softball field.

The Lady Chaps had a better start to the second game, as they had a three-run first thanks in part to a two-run homer by Kelcey Gomez, and then had two-run third for a 5-3 advantage.

But then in the sixth, miscues began to rear their ugly head for the Lady Chaps. A fielding error by shortstop Diana De La Paz helped Howard score five unearned runs.

Then in the seventh, a fielding error by third baseman Lovell helped HC score four more unearned runs.

"We went up to the plate with the same approach," Raines said. "We looked for our pitch, hit the ball hard somewhere and they made a couple of mistakes and we capitalized on it."

Those unanswered runs were more than enough for Howard reliever Megan Granado who went from starting the game at catcher to getting her first win of the season by working four innings and allowing just one hit.

Ramos said the Lady Chaps took their lumps and were a bit humbled, but a lot could be learned from Friday's losses.

"Definitely these two games don't define who we are, because that is definitely not us," Ramos said. "This just reminds us that we have to come and play, give effort, be consistent with our approach and not sit back and wait for someone else to take the lead."

The series now switches to Big Spring's Foundation Field today with a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m.

Lovell said she is confident her team can bounce back.

"(Friday) was an off day," she said. "I hope we can take these losses on our home field and go back to their field, use it as motivation and do exactly what they did to us."

Jacks in 4th by themselves after win

From staff reports

WICHITA FALLS — Lawrence Cornellier had a hand in all of the Odessa Jackalopes goals, including putting two in the net himself, as he led the Jacks to a 3-1 victory against the Wichita Falls Wildcats at Kay Yeager Coliseum on Friday.

Cornellier teamed with Jalen Krogman to set up Ryan Doucet for a powerplay goal midway through the opening period, then scored two goals in the second. Cornellier's first goal was set up by Krogman, while the second came unassisted.

The Wildcats didn't get on the scoreboard until early in the third period. Jacks goaltender Connor Hellebuyck stopped 30 of 31 shots.

The Jacks (27-26-5 for 59 points) move into sole possession of fourth place in the North American Hockey League's South Division with a two-point lead on Corpus Christi (26-28-5 for 57 points) courtesy of the win.

Odessa wraps up its season with a two-game series on the road against Topeka. The first game is set for 7:05 p.m. today and the second at 6:05 p.m. Sunday.

FINAL FOUR

the crop and being top-notch, so it's hard when they see someone else doing well."

Think it's a coincidence that Kentucky sped up its plans to renovate Rupp Arena after Louisville decided to build the KFC Yum! Center?

But the bad blood has been simmering for generations.

Kentucky never scheduled in-state schools under coach Adolph Rupp, and former assistant Joe B. Hall dutifully followed suit when he took over as coach. Gov. John Y. Brown stepped in following their matchup in the 1983 NCAA Mideast Regional finals, now known around the state as The Dream Game, and told the schools to start playing each other.

Kentucky currently holds bragging rights in the annual in-state rumble, winning 18 of the 29 games, including a 69-62 victory at Rupp Arena on Dec. 31.

"All you hear from the fans is, 'Don't lose to the Cardinals. Whatever happens, Big Blue Nation better not lose to Louisville,'" recalled former Kentucky guard John Wall.

Fan is short for fanatic, after all.

There are some fans who can view the rivalry with detachment, however. Or at least reason.

Coke and his wife, Denise, sat behind Stahl, his brother Jim Joe, and their brother-in-law, Jamie Solomon, at open practice Friday, and security didn't need to run interference. When the Cardinals took the floor, one of those standing to applaud was Ken Berkins, proudly wearing his Kentucky blue after flying all the way from the Middle East to see his beloved Wildcats in the Final Four.

"My family would probably hang me if they saw me clapping for Louisville," Berkins said. "But we're just unbelievably excited to have two teams from Kentucky in the Final Four."

Solomon even said he'd root for Louisville if the Cardinals beat Kentucky tonight.

"But I'm a transplant," Solomon quickly added, as Pat Stahl shook his head in disgust.

Try as they do to rise above the nitpicking, even Calipari and Pitino can't resist the fray.

Both coaches were reminded Friday about a comment Calipari made back in October about Kentucky's uniqueness, which sure sounded like it was a slap at Louisville.

"There's no other state, none, that's as connected to their basketball program as this one," Calipari said then. "Because those other states have other programs."

Asked about that exact comment Friday, Calipari said, "I didn't say that," explaining that what he meant was Kentucky fans are scattered across every inch of the state while Cardinals fans are more concentrated in and around Louisville.

"We sleep with the enemy in Louisville," Pitino acknowledged. "We have many Louisville men and women that marry into Kentucky families. It's very difficult to swallow, to see that happen."

SAN ANGELO — All five members of the Andrews A / boys golf team placed in the top five of the medalist standings, allowing the Mustangs to pull away for a sizeable lead after the second round of the District 4-3A Tournament on Friday.

G.K. Morrison and Casey Fowler each shot 75 at Bentwood Country Club, giving them the lowest scores in the second round. Morrison ate first in the medalist standings with a two-round total of 143, while Fowler is tied for fifth with teammate Josh Baltzell and Greenwood's Tanner Young at 159.

Andrews' Hunter Montgomery is second in the medalist standings at 153, while Erik Wallnder is fourth at 158.

The Mustangs hold a commanding 58-stroke lead on second-place Fort Stockton (321-339—660). Greenwood is third and sits just 14 strokes back of Fort Stockton, which is a margin the Rangers could potentially make up in the third round, which is set for Wednesday in Andrews.

FALCONS SPLIT FIRST TWO GAMES OF SERIES WITH PANHANDLE STATE

GOODWELL, Okla. — The University of Texas of the Permian Basin started the three-game series with Oklahoma Panhandle State on the right foot winning the first game 7-2, but dropped the second 3-2.

The Falcons used a five-run sixth inning in the opener which extended their lead to 7-0.

Panhandle State scored single runs in the fifth and sixth inning, but UTPB starter and Lee grad Desiree Valero shut down the Aggies by allowing two runs off five hits while striking out two.

In the second game, Brandi Heath hit an RBI single to break a 2-2 tie which proved to be the difference as the Aggies upset the Falcons in the nightcap.

UTPB moved to 11-21 on the year and 4-4 in Heartland Conference play. The two teams will play the third and final game tomorrow at noon.

DUKE VON SCHAMANN LEADS TEXAS TECH TO SERIES OPENING WIN

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Texas Tech right-handed pitcher Duke von Schamann threw a complete-game two-hitter to lift the Red Raiders to a 9-1 victory over Kansas on Friday night at Hoglund Ballpark.

Texas Tech (16-11, 2-5 Big 12) claimed its sixth straight win over the Jayhawks (10-15, 0-4 Big 12) dating back to 2010, while von Schamann notched his third complete game of the season and his second in as many starts.

The game was tied at 1-1 going into the eighth inning when a two-out rally sparked the Red Raiders. Barrett Barnes got things going with a line-drive single to center field and Scott LaJeune followed with a single to left-center field to give Tech runners at the corners.

With designated hitter Kevin Whitehead at the plate, a wild pitch allowed Barnes to score the eventual game-winning run.

Texas Tech and Kansas will continue their three-game series on Saturday with a 2 p.m. first pitch. The series will conclude on Sunday with a 1 p.m. first pitch from Hoglund Ballpark.

CRICHTON'S GEM LEADS TCU TO 4-2 WIN OVER UNLV

FORT WORTH — The TCU Horned Frogs used a three-run fourth inning to earn a 4-2 win over UNLV Friday night at Lupton Stadium. Stefan Crichton tossed six shut out innings and struck out five to lead the Frogs to victory. The TCU defense turned a trio of double plays to keep the Rebels in check.

Crichton improved to 4-0 with another solid performance on the mound. He allowed six hits and struck out five in the victory. Justin Scharf twirled two shut out innings with a walk and two strikeouts. Kaleb Merck was touched for two runs (one earned) on two hits with a walk and two strikeouts.

The Rebels put the pressure on early as they got a pair of two out singles in the first, but Crichton got a fly out to end the inning, keeping the game scoreless.

Senior is eager to prevent life from going to the dogs

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old senior with a single, very controlling mother. It's impossible to have a sit-down conversation with her because she's always working to support us. She works as a dog groomer. She's always polite to her customers and friends, but she turns into a witch when it's just her and us kids.

I have never had any freedom. I go to school, come home and groom dogs, then it's the same cycle all over again. She makes me feel useless unless I'm working for her, and the truth is I think she wants me to live with her forever. She won't let me work, doesn't want me to go to college and won't give me my Social Security card or birth certificate, so I cannot get on with my life. Please help. — TEEN WHO NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR TEEN: Where is your father in all of this? If your mother doesn't want you to see your birth certificate, it may be that there's something she's afraid you will see. Her controlling behavior does seem excessive for a girl your age.

In a few months you will be an adult. If you wish to continue your education, you should talk to a counselor at school about it and inquire about scholarships, student aid and how to apply. Do not let your mother's disapproval discourage you from trying.

DEAR ABBY: I'm dating a hard-to-find kind of man. He is charming, funny, polite and very sweet. He is my Prince Charming, except for one thing. He's a racist.

I have asked him not to say demeaning things about people of other races to me because it upsets me. Most of his friends are like that, too. When he meets someone of a different race he's polite and friendly, but when he sees someone on TV, or walking on the street he makes derogatory comments.

I'm considering breaking up with him over this. Am I overly sensitive, or is this a legitimate concern? — TOO SENSITIVE IN TEXAS

DEAR TOO SENSITIVE: You're not overly sensitive. We are living in an increasingly diverse society that in years to come will only become more so. Birds of a feather tend to flock together, and so do racists. Unless you want to become increasingly isolated and surrounded only by people who think like your "Prince" does, find someone who thinks more like you do. You'll be happier in the long run.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin "Carla" just had a baby. She's in her early 20s, unemployed and living in a condo her parents bought her so she won't be homeless. Her deadbeat boyfriend lives with her. They smoke pot and love to party, although Carla has abstained since she got pregnant.

When I received an invitation to her baby shower, I declined. I don't think her having a baby is a good thing, and I didn't feel comfortable celebrating this "good" news. I have not offered my opinion on the subject, but when my sister asked me why and I told her, she called me selfish. Do you think she is right? — PRINCIPLED COUSIN

DEAR PRINCIPLED COUSIN: I don't think you were selfish for sticking with your principles. Nor do I think your unemployed cousin and her deadbeat boyfriend are heading down the road of parenthood in a responsible way. Because you didn't feel you would enjoy the event, you were right to decline the invitation.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 31, 2012:

You have get-up-and-go. Remember, you come first, because if you do not take good care of yourself, you will have nothing to offer. Others often challenge you, as they might not like what you are doing. You have a strong sense of direction; try not to waver. If you are single, you could meet someone who is always unhappy. Recognize the implications of relating to this type of person. If you are attached, your partner might be withdrawn and somewhat aloof. Show your caring manner anyway. You sometimes can experience lows in a relationship. CANCER could cling to you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Make plans around friends and family. You want to stay close to home, yet visit with loved ones as well. Decide to throw a spring gathering or a dinner — that way you can have it all. Tonight: A special person wants his or her time with you, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Return calls and respond to a special invitation, whether it is for today or not. Don't let others' attitudes color your day. Choose your mood and your company. Break away from your normal weekend style. Try something new, be it food, people or location. Tonight: You do not have to go far.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ Be aware of the expenses you might be adding to your budget. A discussion will help put someone at ease. Use sensitivity with a child or loved one. This person is not as upbeat as you are right now. Tonight: Time to treat someone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Share some of your ideas with others; the feedback could be quite surprising. You will learn a lot about those you hang out with. Be spontaneous. A domestic matter plays into your plans. You can see people relax as their personalities bloom. Tonight: You call the shots.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ Know when to pull back. You have a shining personality, but often your rays prevent other personalities from emerging. Let a loved one and/or neighbor create more of what he or she wants. Reverse roles from leader to follower. You can do it. Tonight: Donpdish. In fact, vanish while you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ No hemming and hawing allowed. You might want to take a stronger role in handling a new purchase and your finances. You might be unusually hard on yourself. Accept an invitation out, and you will see many friends. Tonight: You are the party!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Curb negativity, and you'll be able to enjoy yourself. See where the negativity is coming from and whether you can correct those thoughts. Others are thrilled to see you while you visit with an older relative or friend. Tonight: To the wee hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Keep reaching out for others you do not often speak to. Make plans that allow for-at least a mini-escape, be it a movie, drive or other activity. Give yourself a break from the daily grind. Tonight: Share this adventure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ A special relationship creates a stronger bond between the two of you. The level of caring is so intense that someone around you could feel as if he or she is isolated. You might see this attitude develop today. Tonight: Add a touch of spice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ You have little tolerance for anything but agreement. Someone also could make a request that you feel you have no choice but to respond to. Try to curb resentment, knowing that it is still your choice. Tonight: Among friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Go off and do what you have wanted to do. Go to the gym, take a walk and/or finish up your taxes. Once you clear these tasks, you will be up for some socializing. Tonight: Be with a favorite person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ Think in terms of gains and greater happiness. You need to let go of stressful situations, and open up to a new sense of possibilities. A partner might not go along easily until he or she notices how very content you are. Tonight: Let your hair down.

Galveston's grand hotels offer manly pleasures

By Greg Morango
Houston Chronicle

GALVESTON — I'm in the back of a Town Car enjoying a complimentary lift from the Tremont House to a lunch date on the seawall when the driver, a young townie, tells me that he and his high school buds used to call Galveston "Galvatraz."

The image of an island prison isn't particularly kind to the historic Gulf Coast city. But my driver was quick to say it was meant in local jest. After all, he has chosen to stay and work on the island where his parents and grandparents still live.

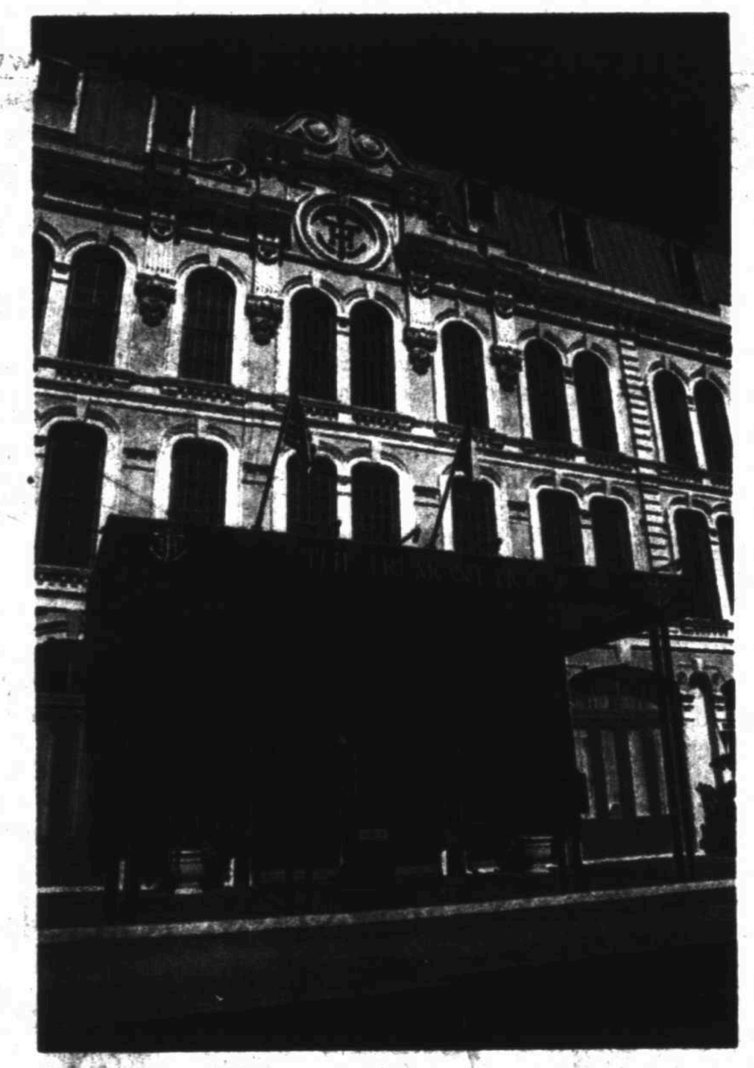

"Sometimes it feels like Galvatraz," he said. "But it's home."

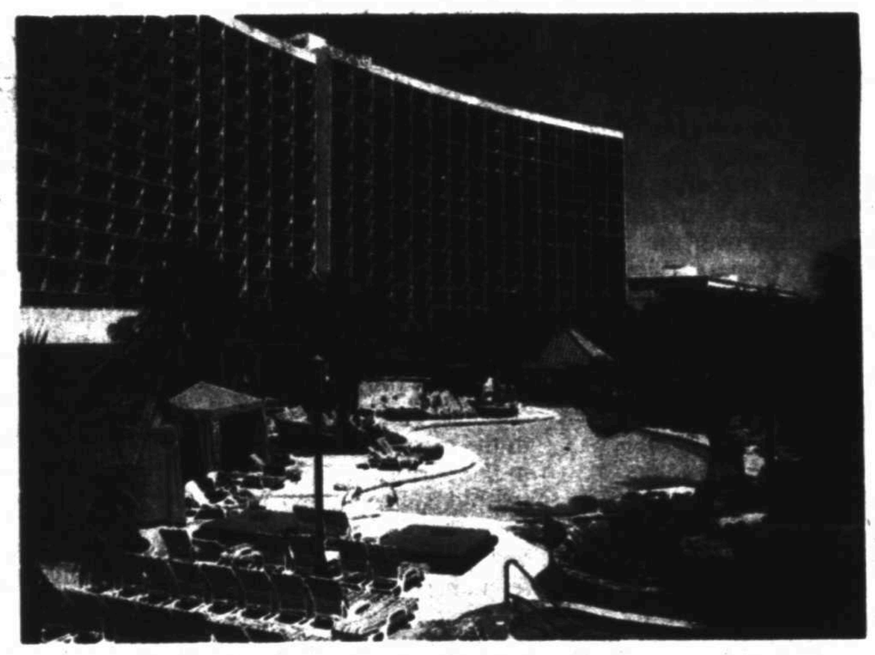

I say, lock me up and throw away the key.

At 45 minutes from Houston, Galveston is absurdly close for a vacation getaway but truly feels like you've reached a destination spot far from home. The local color is abundant, especially the divey element of touristy T-shirt shops and bucket-of-beer bars. But this particular weekend, I'm in the company of some very pretty ladies — the Hotel Galvez, the San Luis Resort and the Tremont House — three grand-dame hotels that know how to lay on the glitz and ladle out the glamour.

Some might see the level of service at the big three as something fashioned for the fairer sex, but each hotel

Never mind a room; get a hacienda

By Helen Anders

WASHINGTON — Texas' most under-the-radar luxury hideaway, Inn at Dos Brisas, just got even more luxurious, adding 2,950-square-foot haciendas for guests to stay in while they indulge in the highly rated restaurant, ride horses around the 313-acre property, throw a line in the lake and watch eerily gorgeous sunsets.

Inn at Dos Brisas (1000 Champion Drive, Washington, 979-277-7750, dos-brisas.com) offers top-notch service and amenities on a horse ranch and organic farm between Brenham and Washington, a two-hour drive from Austin. When I first checked the place out five years ago, I was taken with its four 730-square-foot casitas, luxurious cocoons with antique furnishings, 1,200-thread-count sheets and a little pantry stocked with snacks, water and soft drinks.

To those, Dos Brisas has now added five new, huge haciendas, with plans to build at least two more this year. Designed by Dos Brisas owners Doug and Jennifer Bosch,

Galveston's Bolivar Ferry big draw, bargain

Jessie Alderson/Houston Chronicle

A ship passes in front of a Galveston-Port Bolivar Ferry as the ship heads to the Gulf of Mexico Jan. 11, in Galveston.

Associated Press

GALVESTON — Galveston's Bolivar Ferry, Texas' version of the famous New York Staten Island Ferry, may be the best tourist bargain in the Lone Star State.

It's free, and the roughly 20-minute ride each way between Port Bolivar and Galveston is an entertaining diversion from the beaches and historic districts that are the biggest local tourist draw. Nowhere else in this vast state can you cross and share a waterway with ships on one of the world's busiest channels, feed scores of seagulls eager for bread or popcorn and spot dolphins swimming and diving within shouting distance of the boat.

"I've enjoyed it since I was a child," Destiny Perry-Inman, 30, of Kirbyville, said on a recent trip. "I'd come here every summer with my dad. I would recommend it to people who enjoy this sort of thing."

Passengers standing on the bow can get a saltwater shower as the nearly football-field-long ferry plows through a swell or the wake of a ship. At night, the lights and flares of gigantic petrochemical plants in nearby Texas City burn on the horizon to the northwest. A line of ocean-going freighters and tankers dots the horizon leading into the open Gulf of Mexico.

"We just love it," Millie Garfield, of Victorville, Calif., said, as she accompanied her daughter and 5-year-old grandson. "It's a neat experience for kids."

Garfield's daughter, Sarah Emerson, from Silsbee, about 90 miles northeast of Galveston, said whenever she gets visitors from out of town, the ferry is a must-do trip.

You don't get to see the Statue of Liberty on this crossing, but like its East Coast counterpart, which for decades has been hauling passengers between Staten Island and Manhattan, the Bolivar Ferry for generations has been carrying vehicles and passengers the nearly three miles across Galveston Bay from the island to the Bolivar Peninsula, a sliver of land separating the bay from the Gulf of Mexico about 50 miles from Houston. The ferry service runs 24 hours a day, seven days a week, halted only by the approach of a hurricane or tropical storm.

Officially, the ferry, run by the Texas Department of Transportation, is an extension of Texas Highway 87, which parallels the coastline northeast out of Galveston. It saves motorists a three-hour, 140-mile drive around the bay to Bolivar from Galveston.

"It is a state highway," department spokesman Hank Glamann says of the ferry. "It's just a chunk that happens to float."

The boats carried 1.4 million vehicles and nearly 4.4 million passengers in the past year. People can remain in their cars, get out and stand on the deck at the bow or stern or climb stairs to a second deck for a seagull's-eye view. The fleet's newest $23 million vessel is undergoing final preparations before entering service to expand the number of boats to six.

The busiest time of the year is June, July and August, and hours-long waits to drive aboard a boat are not uncommon. People merely wanting to take the boat ride can walk aboard and avoid the lines after parking at the ferry landing, where dozens of pelicans normally roost on the pilings with hundreds of seagulls.

Each boat can carry up to about 70 vehicles and 500 people. Those vehicles can include up to eight 80,000-pound 18-wheeler trucks.

Most of the ferries are named for former members of the Texas Transportation Commission and are painted the colors of the school they attended. They travel at a top speed of 10 to 12 knots but don't turn around. Their crews do. Each ferry is double-ended, meaning the captain and his first mate walk across the roof of the ferry's upper deck from one pilothouse to a second matching control room on the other side for the return trips.

"The best job I ever had," Capt. William Maxey, who's been piloting the ferries for 10 years, said from the pilothouse of the orange-painted M/V Robert C. Lanier. University of Texas alumnus Lanier was Transportation Commission chairman in the 1980s, then three-term mayor of Houston.

Maxey says weather is always a concern during his normal eight daily round trips, particularly fog.

"That's when we earn our money," he said. "It makes it interesting."

He remembers one instance when a lightning bolt struck the water near the vessel during a storm.

"There was fire coming out of the water," he said. "I've worked on a ship all my life and I'd never seen anything like that. You could feel the intensity."

The first ferry service began in the 19th century, when Galveston was the premier city in Texas, only to be crippled by the great hurricane of 1900 and subsequent construction of the Houston Ship Channel that fueled Houston's ascendancy as a metropolis. It's that channel, gateway to the world's busiest inland port, the ferries cross.

A private company that first ran scheduled, regular ferry service sold its two vessels to Galveston County in 1929. The next year, the county sold the ferries to the state. The first state-operated ferry went into operation July 1, 1934, and became so popular a 25-cent toll was imposed.

The fee was dropped in 1949.

"100 percent free public transportation," department spokesman Glamann said.

GALVESTON

has pampering tailored for guys.

Let's take a look at the boyish charms of each:

THE SAN LUIS RESORT

The San Luis gleams with Vegas sheen.

Our safari-theme room on the resort's top floor afforded incredible gulf views and a heart-stopping perch over the resort's scene-making pool area. But there's also Club Ten, a suite of 21 custom-designed VIP rooms that takes up the 10th floor. They offer iPod docking systems, DVD and CD players, plasma flat-screen TVs in the bedroom and bathroom and a complimentary bottle of champagne.

If you're looking for a bachelor party with your bros, this is a good place to have it. The resort's H20 pool offers private cabanas for rental where you can watch sports on your private TV while being served buckets of beers. At the swim-up bar, you can order signature drinks and al fresco sushi. Segue from the pool scene to dinner within the dark, clubby confines of The Steakhouse, a perfect place to tuck into a 20-ounce bone-in ribeye steak and a bottle of Pinot Noir. The San Luis Resort, 5222 Seawall; 409-744-1500

TREMONT HOUSE

I brought my iPod to the Tremont anticipating a docking station in my room so I could play Glen Campbell's Galveston. But as luck would have it, I heard the song being tickled from a grand piano in the hotel's stately white marble lobby. It was a good omen on a visit where I actually worried about bumping into a hotel ghost. (I overheard a very theatrical tour guide warning of the high likelihood.) Alas, no spirits, but plenty of spirited energy at this handsome building, which dates to 1879 and is the third structure in Galveston to carry the Tremont hotel name.

A corner suite in the four-story hotel was impressively outfitted: hardwood floors, 14-foot ceilings, a large television in the room (and another in the parlor), an expansive marble bathroom and an enameled wrought-iron bed with plush linens, coffeemaker and the iPod dock/radio that I never got to use. Why? We were too busy walking around the Strand District, where the Tremont is located. We walked to the nearby Port of Galveston for lunch and waved to passengers departing on a Carnival ship.

One of the hotel's most appealing features, the spiffy Rooftop Bar, offers panoramic views of the city from the hotel's fourth floor, plus the opportunity to nibble on meat and cheese boards while sipping a handmade cocktail or glass of wine. If I were a ghost, I'd haunt this place, too. Tremont House, 2300 Ships Mechanic Row; 409-763-0300

HOTEL GALVEZ

I don't mind admitting I have a man crush on the Galvez. Everything about the ridiculously handsome hotel endears it to me, from the lazy grand lobby to the comfortable rooms (small but crisply appointed) to the enticements of the pool and spa. All year long the magnificent hotel celebrated its 100th anniversary in ways grand and discreet. But that's the beauty of the Galvez — it knows when to put on the dog and when to elegantly stifle its bark.

So what is in it for guys? Well, other than being an excellent place to get away, masculine pleasures include the swank lobby bar (perfect for afternoon cocktails); the Spa at the Hotel Galvez (which has all manner of not-for-women-only body treatments including muscle soaking baths and massages); complimentary bikes for enjoying the town and 10 miles of seawall; fishing charters and water sports booked by an on-site excursion service; and access to the private billiard room on the seventh floor for guests who have booked a suite.

But one of the more indulgent man pleasures has to be the hotel's sumptuous Sunday brunch. A favorite of locals as well as weekend tourists, the brunch is a place to let out the belt another notch and make like a starving Viking at a sumptuous trough. The spread is nice, and the unlimited mimosas don't hurt.

Don't mind us while we sneak back upstairs for a nap before we're off to our next Galveston adventure. Hotel Galvez & Spa, 2024 Seawall; 409-765-7721.

HACIENDAS

From 1C

each Spanish-style house has a private pool, screened porch and outdoor shower and is decorated with antiques and art objects.

Why create a handful of extravagant accommodations instead of a big building with hundreds of suites? Because the Bosches prefer to cater to a small group willing to pay for an unusual experience rather than droves looking for a typical resort — something they can find in many parts of Texas that are easier to get to than the East Texas countryside.

Dos Brisas, a Relais & Chateaux property, attracts a lot of serious foodies, because it has the only Forbes (formerly Mobil) five-star restaurant in Texas. Those folks like to be coddled, and that's something Dos Brisas does well.

"We already have five stars for dining," general manager Wonny Rengersen said as she toured me around the property in a golf cart. "Now, we want to be known for five-star accommodations with exceptional dining."

Of course, it's expensive. A night's stay in one of those haciendas will set you back about $995. (Casitas start at $655, and prices on both change from time to time.) Add to that the cost of the prix-fixe dinner (five courses for $105; eight for $135), and it's a costly weekend. But you'll remember it.

The haciendas have an almost Hearst Castle feel, with soaring ceilings, expansive windows, French Oak floors and decadently plush bedding with mattresses so thick you almost need a running start to jump in. The bedroom and living room both have fireplaces and flat-screen TVs.

And the bathroom, well: At 575 square feet, it's bigger than most hotel rooms. The vanity, with two vessel sinks, seems to go on forever (10.5 feet, actually).

Climb into the huge, jetted tub or enjoy water sprayed from two directions in the shower. A separate water closet houses both toilet and bidet. Bath and shower products are L'Occitane.

Even the little dressing room is artful, with soft vintage lamps, a large set of drawers with leather pulls, plenty of hangers (they do want you to stay awhile), an iron and board, and a safe.

There's also a half-bath at the home's entrance, in case you want to host a party — which you could certainly do.

The kitchen is happy to deliver food and wine, and if you wanted to fill the living room, the porch and the patio (with pool), you could probably invite half of Washington over.

The one thing the house doesn't have is a kitchen. There's a little pantry and fridge for snacks, but that's it. The theory is that, having spent a lot of money to be within a quick golf cart's ride to a world-class restaurant, who'd want to cook? The gardens and greenhouses are vast and impressive, and the meals creative and delicious.

A memorable dinner at the inn features main ingredients you're familiar with — lamb, scallops, sea bass, for example — but you'll be amazed by the way chef Raj Dixit wields those items using his imagination and fresh vegetables and herbs from the gardens and greenhouses. The menu changes often to work with whatever's fresh and plentiful the day you're there, and a vegetarian menu is always an option.

Don't worry about what you'll do after dinner: Dinner takes all evening, after which you drive yourself to your casita or hacienda in a golf cart — carefully, if you've had the wine pairings.

While you dine, staff members visit your hacienda like elves, replacing the soft towels you've used with new ones, turning down the bed, arranging your toiletries into neat rows and leaving behind homemade cookies and candies such as nut brittles and chocolate-dipped strawberries and milk.

In the morning, elves come again with a huge breakfast to gear you up for a day of riding, fishing or perhaps a cooking class. Or, if you want, just hang out in that 2,950-square-foot hacienda. Relaxation is the prime directive at Dos Brisas.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
I read the classified section every week, but rarely do I venture beyond the general merchandise category. However since I had some time this week, I read the business service section. I was amazed at all the home-based businesses. One business offered to clean out my garage. Another advertised a service to send birthday cards to my relatives so I wouldn't forget. Both are tasks I hate to do. Then I saw a pet sitting service that would watch my dog when I go on vacation. They get $75 per day. That's almost $3 an hour to watch my basset hound sleep all day! All this got me thinking. Should I consider a new career? Any ideas on how I could start a business from home?

Carry: It seems dog sitting is a profitable business in your area. At $75 per day, I'd hope your dog gets sparkling water and breakfast in bed.

Cash: At that price, you could probably afford to get him his own hotel room on your vacation.

Carry: As you've already seen from your own classified section, there are an unlimited number of businesses you can start. Most of the ones you've seen advertised are service-based businesses that specialize in doing routine tasks, like cleaning the garage or remembering to send birthday cards.

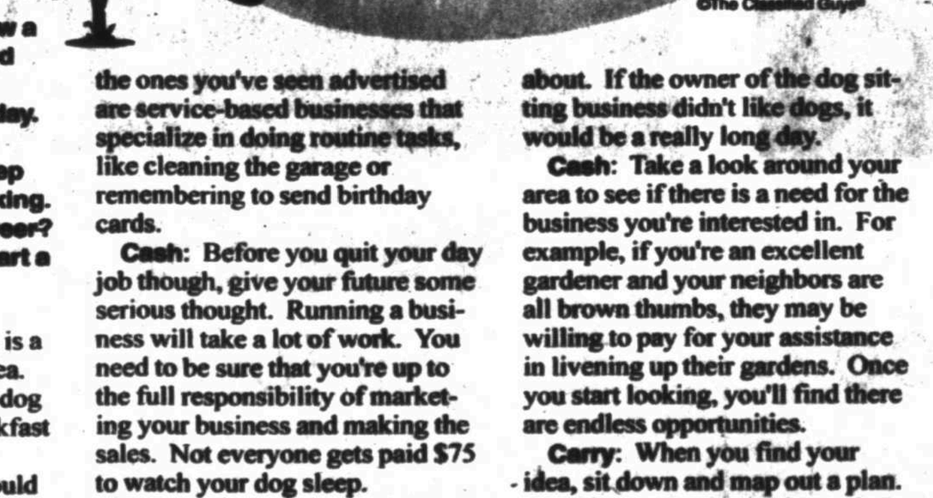

Cash: Before you quit your day job though, give your future some serious thought. Running a business will take a lot of work. You need to be sure that you're up to the full responsibility of marketing your business and making the sales. Not everyone gets paid $75 to watch your dog sleep.

Carry: The best business to start is one geared around your own interests, talents and skills. Since you'll need to spend a lot of time working at it, you want to create a job that you're passionate about. If the owner of the dog sitting business didn't like dogs, it would be a really long day.

Cash: Take a look around your area to see if there is a need for the business you're interested in. For example, if you're an excellent gardener and your neighbors are all brown thumbs, they may be willing to pay for your assistance in livening up their gardens. Once you start looking, you'll find there are endless opportunities.

Carry: When you find your idea, sit down and map out a plan. Calculate your start-up costs, income potential and hours that it will take to succeed.

Cash: With a little planning, you could find yourself in a great new career.

Fast Facts

Outside the Box

Not all small businesses turn into something as big as Microsoft or Amazon, but they are a crucial part of today's economy. According to the U.S. Small Business Administration and the U.S. Census Bureau, there were more than 5 million businesses with less than 4 employees. Those same businesses paid approximately 160 billion dollars in salaries to their employees. So remember that your one small idea for a business is part of a much larger picture.

Franchises!

Many people have thought about opening up their own business, but it can be a lot of work to start from scratch. That's what made franchise businesses so popular in recent years. It's estimated that 1 out of every 12 businesses is a franchise with a new one opening it's doors every 8 minutes. However, not all franchises are as large as McDonalds. Many of the fastest growing franchises are home-based businesses that offer services to the average homeowner.

At the Office

After working at the same company for ten years, my friend Mike had enough. Even though he had two kids and a wife to support, he quit his job and started his own mail order business out of the garage. A few months later I stopped by his house to see how he was doing.

As we talked he told me that he loved the business, but it had its good and bad. "The good," he said, "is that during the summer I'm around my kids all day long."

"What's the bad?" I asked.

As his son came screaming into the garage he laughed, "During the summer, I'm around my kids all day."
