Bye, Bye Bond Issue—Plan for the Future—At Southwestern—Best We Can Give—

City council members defer consideration of a bond issue to give this city an adequate and modern water system, on the grounds that the present time is not "psychologically good" for the election. Which is perhaps true. This writer would not pretend to dispute with the gentlemen of the council on matters of psychology or politics. The delay, however, should merit consideration for Commissioner Roy Carter's proposal of a $3,500,000 issue covering needs for storm sewers and many other improvements.

The trend of the most progressive municipal government seems to be toward large bond issues, providing for carefully planned improvements extending over a period of years. This seems much the better system, than the voting of bond issues for this and that when times are good, and refusing to vote them when times are not so good, but needs may be just as vital to public health and welfare.

Dallas voted $10,000,000 or more for a general program of improvement over 10 years. Austin, with a population of 40,000 or less, voted more than three million recently, and Waco is to pass on a similar program. These cities will get the most and the best for their public dollar.

Technically at least, the council still has before it for eventual consideration the original plan of P. B. Curd, former water commissioner, that the water system be mortgaged to care for its improvements and extensions. This seems to the writer a much more desirable plan. The persons who use water pay for the improvements. No increase in property tax is necessary. This is as it should be.

Mr. Curd had hoped, when the proposal was first made, that the city would be able to regain its large customers in the industrial plants if it provided an adequate supply of water of good quality. This seems quite possible and as Mr. Curd suggested, doubtless would bring an increased business that would in part take care of any necessary increase in water rates.

Dr. W. J. Johnson, presiding elder of this Methodist district, is one of a number of persons being considered by the board of Southwestern university for the school's president. The Wichita Falls man undoubtedly would bring a valuable capacity for accomplishment to the school in little Georgetown, Williamson county, and the selection would be a fortunate one. To Dr. Johnson, the oppotrunity of extending his sphere of work from one of the state's oldest universities would also have powerful attractions.

Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent of the Wichita Falls state hospital, is to ask the state for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the work of the institution here during the next two years. And of all requests for state funds, those for support of eleemosynary institutions deserve the most careful consideration. Most of the institutions are overcrowded with hundreds of unfortunates, unable to care for themselves and on the mercies of their fellow men. They should have the best the state can afford to provide.

PLAN TO FORM CLUBS AGAINST SMITH MADE

Resolutions Adopted Drag Democratic Nominee Over Coals

PARTY CONDEMNED

Houston Convention Gets Official Disapproval Of Committee

DALLAS, July 17. (AP)—Plans for establishing anti-Al Smith organizations in every county in Texas were laid today at a meeting of some 500 bolting Democrats here. More than 300,000 votes for Herbert Hoover from the Democratic ranks were predicted in the November elections.

Alvins S. Moody of Houston was unanimously chosen chairman of the organization committee and manager of the campaign in this state. Others on the committee are Mrs. J. Y. Webb, Mrs. Morgan Cox, Carr P. Collins, all of Dallas, and B. D. Sartin of Wichita Falls.

Six sets of resolutions scoring Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York for his message to the Houston convention in which he declared he would "point the way to a modification of the liquor laws," and vowing to "wrest Democracy from the grip of Tammany Hall," were passed without a dissenting vote.

Harmonious Meeting

The meeting, attended by many of the most prominent Democrats of Texas, was called for the sole purpose of planning a campaign to defeat Smith for president and to elect Hoover. That the meeting was in perfect harmony was evidenced by more than a score of speakers, who use this same topic, that of attacking the character of the Democratic nominee, flaying the political tactics of Tammany Hall and condemning action of the National Democratic convention in nominating the New Yorker as standard bearer of the party.

Virtually the only difference in the various speeches was the phraseology. Governor Smith was called "a traitor to the constitution of the United States, a tool of Tammany and an agent of the distilleries and saloons whose sole purpose in obtaining the presidency was the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and to let the bars of immigration down to the peoples of Southern Europe.

Tammany Played

"The purpose of this organization shall be the defeat of Governor Alfred E. Smith for president and the wresting of Democracy from the grip of Tammany Hall, the organization which while claiming to be Democratic, fought Samuel J. Tilden, fought Grover Cleveland, fought William J. Bryan, fought Woodrow Wilson and withheld its support from James M. Cox and John W. Davis.

"We resent and resist the efforts of Tammany Hall to nullify the Eighteenth amendment to repeal the enforcement statutes throughout the states as was done in the state of New York, to scrap the Volstead act and all enforcement regulations b ythe federal government and then finally repeal the Eighteenth amendment.

"We shall, as an organization, advocate without equivocation or reservation the maintenance of our prohibition statutes and enforcement law, and shall espouse the cause of prohibition and law enforcement in our congressional districts and in the election of our senators from this state, but it is not the purpose or plan of this organization as such actively to participate in any contest for any state office.

"We assert that Gov. Smith has bolted the National Democratic platform and thereby released every Texas Democrat who participated in the May primaries from voting for him."

State Campaign

Concerning organization for the state-wide campaign the meeting authorized a state campaign committee, composed of 31 men and 31 women, one of each to be selected from each of the 31 senatorial districts. This committee shall be authorized to fill vacancies and to appoint officers for a properly functioning organization.

Selection of electors and the method of putting their names upon the ballot was left to the discretion of the committee. It was this section in the organization committee's report that brought the first and only open dissension in the otherwise harmonious meeting

'Customer' at Lunch Room Flashes Pistol and Takes Away $275 Loot

Bandit Speeds Away in Roadster After Taking Costly Ring And Cash at Cafe On Iowa Park Road

A lone, unmasked bandit, eating a humburger in Roszell's cafe, 2 1-2 miles out of Iowa Park on the Wichita Falls road, suddenly confronted guests of the cafe and the proprietor with a pistol, robbed them of $36 and a ring valued at $350, about 9:30 o'clock Tuesday night. He sped away in a small two-tone roadster.

R. H. Ray of Electra and a woman whose name was not obtained by police, were preparing to leave the cafe when the man, who had entered a short time before, slipped between them and the door, and waving a pistol, demanded that they give him their money. He also made W. H. Roszell, proprietor of the cafe, open the cash register, from which he took only the currency.

When he attempted to slip a diamond ring from the woman's finger, Mr. Roszell told police, she pleaded with him for a minute. The bandit listened politely, but was insistent. He took the ring and $36 in cash from the two men. Mrs. Roszell also witnessed the holdup.

After the man had sped away Mr. Roszell attempted to follow him, he told police, but the man soon eluded his pursuer.

During the course of the robbery the bandit told Mr. Roszell to "Go ahead and tell the police about it. I like 'em. I might rob them, too." Iowa Park, Wichita Falls and Burkburnett officers were on a lookout for the bandits late Tuesday.

NOBILE ASKS TO QUIT ARMY

Explorer Wishes to Have Right to Explain Disaster

LONDON, July 17. (US)—General Nobile has requested the Italian government to allow him to resign from the army in order that he may tell the world the full story of his polar disaster, Universal Service learned today on good authority.

The government's reply acceded the request, but warned the general that if he makes any reference to incidents which occured while he was still a soldier, he will be liable to courtmartial.

The Italian explorer, who is fully posted as to the savage attacks made upon him in Scandinavia and Germany, wants to be at liberty to reply to the accusations and at the same time reveal the text of messages exchanged between himself at Kings Bay and his government at Rome. This, he has been warned by Premier Mussolini would be a breach of discipline.

Will Answer Charges

It has been officially denied at Rome that General Nobile was instructed to fly to the north pole on May 24, the anniversary of Italy's entry into the world war.

All kinds of stories have been printed in Germany to the effect that Dr. Finn Malmgren, the Swedish scientist, bitterly opposed the decision to make the flight on that day. His reason was that the weather was unsuitable. Majors Zappi and Marino sided with the Swedish scientist.

According to these stories, the three men left the red tent camp because they were unable to forgive General Nobile his venturesome dash in the face of the forecasts of bad weather.

It is these and other similar charges that the Italian general desires to counter, but he finds himself shackled by the fact that he is still a soldier on full pay.

Assassin's Victim

This is the latest photo of President-elect Gen. Alvaro Obregon received in the United States from Mexico City, where yesterday he was slain by a young assassin at a banquet. Just received from Mexico, this picture was taken since the general's election.

Obregon Credited With Placing His Nation in Reputable World Standing

Born a Farmer, Reared a Mechanic, Great Peace Loving General Killed on Return to Power

(By Universal Service)

General Alvaro Obregon, the Cincinnatus of Mexico, has lost his first and final battle in a struggle to make the great republic below the Rio Grande a progressive and prosperous nation.

Like his ancient Roman predecessor, Obregon was called from the plow to the battlefield to save Mexico from the chaos which had reigned since the abdication of President Porfirio Diaz, dictator of Mexico for almost 30 years, in 1911.

And like the Cincinnatus of old he rescued his country from the warring factions which were overrunning it and laying it waste; took the helm for four years and once more gave Mexico a standing of repute in the family of nations.

Answered Call Again

And again, like the old Roman, only 17 days ago, Obregon once more answered the call of his country and was reelected unanimously as president of Mexico for a six-year term, which was to begin on December 1.

But where the Roman Cincinnatus succeeded in preventing civil war between the upper and lower classes of Rome, the Mexican Cincinnatus was struck down by an assassin's bullet just as he was celebrating his triumph.

And thus, General Obregon, the only Mexican revolutionary general who never lost a battle, has lost his first one—the only one in which he did not put up a fight, albeit, the only one in which he had no chance to fight.

The picturesque military career of this great Mexican leader did not begin until he was 28 years of age. He was not reared to be a military man, but a farmer. He also was a student, a machinist and a merchant in Nogales, Sonora, the town of his birth.

Opposed Pillagers

Obregon first took the field as the leader of several hundred neighborn to protect their property from the looting of a band of marauding bandits, who were pillaging the surrounding country. It was Obregon, whose victory over the late Pancho Villa helped to make Carranza president of the republic in 1917. Three years later, he was the leader of the movement which overthrew the Carranza government.

With all of his military genius and his successes in the field, General Obregon was a man of peace. The keynote of his character, he sounded himself back in 1920. He said:

"I would rather teach the Mexican people to handle a toothbrush than to handle a rifle. I would rather see them in schools than upon the battlefields. I prefer any

HUERTA BITTER TO OLD ENEMY

Former President Acrid In Comment On Death

LOS ANGELES, July 17. (UP)—A bitter statement concerning the death of Gen. Alvaro Obregon was issued late today by Adolfo de la Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico and enemy of Obregon.

"I lament the passing of Obregon, because I would have liked to have him live long enough to pay for his many sins," De la Huerta said.

He described the general as the "most hated person ever imposed on the people of Mexico."

Coolidge Sends Note

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 17. (US) President Coolidge today sent the following message to President Calles of Mexico:

"To His Excellency Plutarco Elias Calles,

"I have learned with the most profound regret of the shameful assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon. I am fully aware of the distinguished service which General Obregon rendered to his nation and beg your excellency to accept my deep sympathy and that of the United States on Mexico's loss.

(Signed) Calvin Coolidge."

U. S. Mexicans Shocked

LOS ANGELES, July 17. (US)—"The news of General Obregon's death is a severe shock to me, knowing him as I did. I feel that Mexico has lost a gigantic figure of national importance. The assassin who cut short his life has brought about untold harm to the cause of enlightened and liberal government, not only in Mexico but throughout the world."

That statement was issued here today by Mexican Consul Alfonso Pesqueira.

PRESIDENT BY LAST MEXICAN VOTE IS SLAIN

Political Leader of Southern Republic Shot While At Luncheon

KILLER ATTACKED

But Friends of Slain Man Save Life of Young Assassin

MEXICO CITY, July 17. (AP)—Censorship was established in Mexico at 9:45 o'clock tonight.

MEXICO CITY, July 17. (AP)—All troops were ordered in barracks tonight in readiness to preserve order if necessary.

Saloons were closed as well as all theaters and places of amusement.

MEXICO CITY, July 17. (AP)—General Roberto Cruz, chief of police of Mexico City, was appointed tonight on orders from President Calles. The president named as Cruz' successor General Antonio Rios Zertuche, who had been very close to Obregon. Arturo R. Orol, another Obregon adherent, was named secretary general of police headquarters.

MEXICO CITY, July 17. (US)—General Alvaro Obregon, president-elect and outstanding figure in Mexican revolutionary politics, was shot to death this afternoon as he sat with a small party of friends at a political luncheon given in his honor.

His slayer was a slight youth, Juan Escapulario, who gained entrance to the gathering by posing as an artist. The killer was almost torn to pieces by friends of his victim.

Mexico's foremost soldier and politician was shot from behind, five bullets entered his body, killing him instantly.

Modest Setting

There was only a modest setting for the most dramatic killing in Mexico's stormy revolutionary history. The genial warrior who had fought his way to national leadership was in the zest of spirits following a demonstrative reception accorded him on his arrival in the capital.

With a small party of the intimate friends and advisors, he had gone to a luncheon at a small restaurant, "La Bombilla," in the picturesque and historic suburb of San Angel, one of the oldest white settlements in the new world.

Throughout the luncheon, General Obregon led the conservation, recalling anedotes for which he is famous throughout Mexico between more serious discussions of political topics of importance. The meal ended, the general rose with other guests clustered about him, and the conservation continued.

Obregon Hears Request

While the conversation was at its height, Escapulario accosted Aaron Saenz, former minister of foreign affairs, now governor of Nuevo Leon, and manager of the Obregon campaign. The youth asked:

"May I show this picture to General Obregon?"

The president-elect heard the question and turned around to see the picture of himself. From beneath the picture, a pistol shot was fired, and four more followed in rapid succession.

General Obregon slumped down, first into a chair and then sliding to the floor. A band a short distance off was playing so loudly that the musicians did not even hear the shots and had to be stopped.

Cruz Stops Melee

In the rush for the assassin, General Roberto Cruz, chief of the federal police, was among the first. Reaching for the assassin in the melee, Cruz shouted:

"Don't kill him! We must find out who is back of this."

With great effort, Cruz quited

Texas' Mexican Centers Speculative After Assassination; Visited State

DALLAS, Texas, July 17. (UP)—An air of speculation was rife in the "Little Mexico" sections of El Paso, Brownsville, Laredo, San Antonio and Dallas tonight as a result of the assassination of Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico.

Mexican consuls in those cities expressed the belief that no troubles will result from the assassination. Mexican Consul Rafael Avelgyra served as an officer under Obregon during the revolution.

In the Mexican quarter of Laredo, San Antonio and Dallas hundreds of Mexicans gathered in little groups to discuss the latest calamity in the political affairs of their native country. For the most part, they appeared shocked

"Deplorable as the death of General Obregon is to Mexico at this time, the principles he stood for will go on," commented Mexican Consul Lizandro, stationed at Del Rio on the border.

General Obregon was feted in Dallas and other Texas cities in 1920 before he assumed the presidency of Mexico for the first time. Accompanied by a staff of 80 men, Obregon was a guest of the State fair of Texas while in Dallas and local newspapers issued special editions printed in Spanish.

Friends of the slain leader said tonight that he had expressed the hope of making another friendly visit to Texas next year when he returned to the presidency.

Tom Love's Attorneys Promise To Take Ballot Fight to Supreme Court

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 17. (AP)—Attorneys for Thomas B. Love, who failed today in his efforts to force Cameron county to print his name on the ballot as a Democratic candidate for lieut. governor, said tonight they would move for a rehearing Wednesday.

Love was barred from the ballot by the county executive committee because of his announced opposition to the Democratic presidential nominee, Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York. The lower courts refused the barred candidate a writ of mandamus compelling the printing of his name and today the fourth court of civil appeals upheld the lower courts, ruling that if a man changed his political stand he should not expect the honors which his former party had to give.

Love's attorneys said that if the motion for a rehearing was denied they would carry the case to the supreme court.

day a good electrician, machinist, carpenter, or farmer to a soldier."

General Obregon repeatedly demonstrated his friendship toward the United States. He was vigorous in his opposition to Carranza's foreign policy and his antagonism toward this country. In speaking of foreign investors, he once said: "A country without a capital is like a country without blood."

Quelled Revolt

The real military career of General Obregon began in 1911 when he quelled the revolution of Pascual Orosco in the state of Chihuahua. It was in that campaign that he lost an arm, and retired to his farm in Sonora.

After President Madero had been slain and Huerta assumed the presidency, Obregon again became a military leader. In 1914, after over a month of bitter fighting, General Obregon defeated Villa at Colaya and Trinidad.

General Obregon and Carranza first met as rebels against the dictatorship of Huerta. They were both members of the party which took the name of Constitutionalists. When Carranza become president, he appointed Obregon his minister of war. As such he rode beside Carranza in the inaugural procession in Mexico City.

While serving as minister of war, General Obregon went to the border and negotiated with Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott and Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston for the withdrawal of the American troops sent into Mexico following the raid on Columbus, N. M. When he visited Washington to complete the mission he was the guest of President Wilson.

General Obregon broke with Carranza in 1919, after the former had announced his candidacy for the presidency. Meanwhile he had resigned his post as minister of war. In his announcement, Obregon inferentially assailed Carranza. He said:

"I am, and will be, a faithful friend to those who with blood and brawn answered the call of the country against Huerta who murdered Madero. But I will be the enemy of those who pretend that their service must be paid for with the same liberties which Huerta usurped and which we swore to return to the country."

Obregon Demoted

Angered by this pronunciamento, Carranza demoted Obregon to a lieutenant colonel and a trap was set for him. He escaped, however, owing to the friendship of supporters in the Mexican congress.

It was Sonora, Obregon's home state, which led the revolt against Carranza. On April 11, 1920, Sonora seceded from the Mexican union and other states quickly followed. Carranza fled early in May and Obregon and General Pablo Gonzales entered the capital. Gov. Adolfo de la Huerta, of Sonora, was chosen pro-provisional president, pending an election.

General Obregon was elected to the presidency and served four difficult years in which the victories of war took second place those of peace. During those four years the industrial and commercial life of Mexico, which languished for the preceding decade was largely restored. The railroads, which were dilapidated, were reconditioned and new lines built. And perhaps, his greatest achievement was to place thousands of homeless peons on lands of their own.

At the outset of his administration, Obregon formed the "Sonora Triumverate" with Elias Calles, the present president, and De la Huerta. At that time Calles was slated to succeed Obregon. An attempt was made by De la Huerta in December, 1923, to upset that program with a revolution, but it failed, when Obregon personally led the federal armies to crush it.

Friendly Towards America

Obregon repeatedly expressed and demonstrated his friendly attitude toward the American government. His international notes were vigorous and fearless.

It was under Obregon that the negotiations which have since led to the settlement of the land and oil controversies between the United States and Mexico began.

In completing his four-year term as president, Obregon set a unique record in Mexican history. It had been equalled but five times by his two score of predecessors in the last century. But even more unusual was his peaceful transmission of the reins of government to President Calles. That had been accomplished but once before in Mexican history.

When signs of a new revolution appeared in Mexico, in October, 1926, the Mexican congress passed a bill permitting a president who has served one term to become a candidate for office again, providing at least one term has intervened. It was clearly designed to permit Obregon to run again and he became a candidate.

Attempt on Life

The campaign for the presidency of Mexico was a tempestous affair. An attempt was made to assassinate Obregon on November 13, 1927. Two bombs were hurled at him in the gardens of Chapultepec castle. Obregon was on his way to a bullfight when four men threw the bombs at the car in which he was riding. His face was severely cut by flying glass and the automobile was partly destroyed. After treatment, he went to the arena and sent his wife word that he was "safe at the bullfight."

The four assassins were captured and executed on November 23.

Two of Obregon's rivals for the presidency—Generals Francisco Serrano and Arnulfo S. Gomez—were executed last October on charges of sedition.

Dana Bible Promises Fighting Aggie Team in A. & M. Meeting Here

"There is good material for a team at A. & M. this coming year, and while I will make no predictions, I will say that the boys will be in the game every minute, fighting in a clean way to win."

This statement was made Tuesday night by Dana X. Bible, Texas A. & M. coach at a picnic meeting of A. & M. former students at Westmoreland swimming pool.

Former students of the school from as far as Vernon and Seymour drove to Wichita Falls for the meeting which Guy Powell, president of the local A. & M. club said was the largest meeting of its kind ever held here.

E. C. McQuillan of A. & M. told of the student loan fund and said that $250,000 had been loaned to the students in the past five years without loss.

Swimming and a free feed preceeded the speaking.

Huerta Bitter To Old Enemy

gon's immediate family frequently visit here, none was in Los Angeles when the news of the assassination was received.

The Mexican colony, which is a large one, was shocked by the news. Even in circles politically opposed to General Obregon there was no sign of exultation over the manner of his death.

Vera Cruz Excited

VERA CRUZ, Mex., July 17. (US) This principal port of Mexico was in a ferment this evening following the receipt of news from Mexico City that President-elect Alvaro Obregon had been assassinated.

A censorship on telegraph lines affected all reports on the subject, and it was not until 5:30 p. m., apparently two or three hours after the shooting, that word was received.

There was great excitement on the streets.

The reports here stated that General Obregon was killed when a youthful caricaturist approached to show a picture and then fired from under his drawing-pad.

General Roberto Cruz, chief of police of Mexico City, is credited with preventing the immediate lynching of the youth by drawing his own revolver until he was able to calm the crowd.

EVANSTON, Ill., July 17. (UP) Vice President Charles G. Dawes, when informed tonight by The United Press of the assassination of President-elect Obregon of Mexico, sent the following message of condolence to U. S. Ambassador Dwight Morrow at Mexico City:

"Will you extend to President Calles and to the family of President-elect Obregon my deep sympathy in their great bereavement. The sad news has brought profound grief to millions of American hearts and we mourn with our Mexican brothers in their sorrow. To you personally, so dedicated to the cause of good will between the peoples of two great republics, I extend my heartfelt sympathy.

CHARLES G. DAWES."

Calles Shocked

MEXICO CITY, July 17. (US)—President Calles issued the following statement tonight regarding the assassination of General Obregon:

"I have suffered such a shock that I am completely stunned. The death of General Obregon is of transcendental importance to this country, since he represented the hopes and ambitions of the Mexican people. In my opinion Mexico has lost her greatest representative."

the crowd and gained custody of his prisoner.

The body of the dead general was taken in an automobile to his beautiful home on the Avenida Jalisco. Even ahead of the car, word of the assassination spread like fire through the city, and by the time the ambulance reached the vicinity of the home the crowds made progress almost impossible.

Soldiers hastily summoned by the military authorities cleared the street near the Obregon residence so that the automobile could approach and the body be removed.

Capital Is Stunned

Mexico City was stunned, but the bitterness of the presidential campaign which resulted in the execution of General Obregon's two rivals, Generals Serrano and Gomez, had left deep scars. Even at the monster reception in General Obregon's honor two days ago, political animosity had shown itself in cries of "death to Morones", who is a member of President Calles' cabinet but a known political foe of the president-elect.

In official quarters, the dramatic elimination of the man who led the last Mexican revolution to victory produced the gravest impression. Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador, immediately called Secretary of State Kellogg on the long distance telephone, giving him official news of the incident. He then called on President Calles and Foreign Secretary Estrada to extend condolences.

The Mexican presidential situation, of course, has been radically changed in a most fundamental manner. The constitutional amendment fixing the new presidential term at six years failed to specify whether it should apply to the present term of President Calles or to the coming rule of General Obregon.

Personal followers of the two men emphasized this point, but the trend of events was inevitably to the surrender by President Calles of the office at the end of the four-year period.

The speculation now is whether President Calles will merely hold on in office for an additional two years or will seek to find another president-elect to take over the post for the first six-year term.

OBREGON CONSIDERED MEXICO'S HOPE

WASHINGTON, July 17. (UP)—General Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico who was assassinated near the capital today, was looked upon in government circles here as the principal hope for a continuation of a strong and stable government in the southern republic.

American authorities saw in his re-election to the presidency a guarantee that the new friendship of the two governments which had sprung up as a direct result of the conversations between Ambassador Morrow and President Calles would continue uninterrupted with Obregon in office.

These conservations, which led to the settlement of the decade-old petroleum law controversy and at last reports were paving the way to peaceful adjustment of other major disputes, had been publicly endorsed by the president-elect.

What effect Obregon's death may have on this new-born friendship and on Mexico's program to rehabilitate itself financially and economically, no one in official circles dared predict tonight. As one of the wealthiest men in Mexico and because of his keen interest in his government's financial program, being carried out under Calles, it was thought here that in his administration Obregon would devote himself almost entirely to this problem.

While no formal comment was forthcoming from the state department or other administration quarters, it was said unofficially that the assassination will probably lead to a tightening of the drive against revolutionary activities in Mexico. It was believed that not only would the Calles-Obregon faction rally to the defense of the government, but that many moderate or half-hearted supporters of the present regime would likewise respond.

In many quarters it was thought improbable that Obregon's passing would lead to another revolution, although it was conceded that the government now has only one "strong" man left—President Calles.

Obregon's work during his first administration opened the way to a settlement of the many differences between the United States and Mexico. Outstanding was the Warren-Payne conference in Mexico City in the summer of 1923, during which Obregon in effect promised that there would be no confiscation of American owned property under the Mexican law and also promised to modify the petroleum law policy.

As a result of this conference the United States recognized the Obregon regime, which came into power by revolution. Late in 1924 the United States went further to prove its confidence in Obregon by laying down an embargo on the shipment of arms into Mexico at a time when Adolfo de la Huerta threatened to overthrow the Mexican government by revolution.

BOLTERS PUT AL ON COALS

Anti-Smith Body Flays Democrats

and this threatened rift was quickly smoothed over when it was explained that it was likely that the regular Republican party in Texas would permit the names of some anti-Smith Democrats to be placed on the ballot in place of some of the Republicans. This also was the only intimation that there has been any kind of trade, made with the Republican party. Although R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman from Texas, was in the city today, neither he nor any of the Republican leaders were present at the Democratic meeting.

After the meeting Mr. Creager said that "in event vacanies should occur on the electoral ticket, I should welcome recommendations from the anti-Smith Democrats for appointment of representatives in support of Herbert Hoover for the presidency."

About a dozen former Democratic leaders of the state, ministers and one Methodist bishop flayed Gov. Smith for his modification stand and predicted that if he were elected to the highest office in the land he "would turn America over to the liquor interests."

Although declaring the United States was facing one of the most serious crises, the speakers were in accord in predicting the election of Hoover. Speakers asserted that the Democratic party would suffer the greatest defeat in its history and predicted that more than 300,000 Democrats would bolt the party in Texas.

Perhaps the strongest indictment of the meetings was that made by Dr. J. W. Hunt of Abilene, president of McMurry college, who declared that the "vilest insult ever flung in the face of southern people was the action taken by the National Democratic convention in Houston when it nominated Gov. Smith."

He not only delivered a tirade against Gov. Smith and the Democratic convention, but scathingly denounced Senator Joe Robinson, Democratic nominee for the vice-presidency.

"Robinson went down there and sold his name to the party for the sake of a wet nomination and a wet vote," Dr. Hunt said.

"I had rather vote for Al Smith than Robinson. The Arkansas senator will not get enough votes in West Texas to line the inside of his hat. Coin and Corn is the shibboleth now of the Democrats.

"The Houston convention was the most damnable travesty on the name of Democracy ever pulled off in the south. They say that they will put us out of the party if we bolt the ticket, but in November they will find they have no party," he shouted. This brought cheers and virtually every one in the auditorium stood as they applauded.

Dr. Hunt said that he had just returned from a speaking tour of West Texas and asserted that his part of the state would vote overwhelmingly for Hoover.

V. A. Collins, former state senator, was the "keynoter." He warned that he was not speaking for any organization, but merely expressing his own views and beliefs as a citizen.

Creager Caustic

DALLAS, Texas, July 17. (AP)—In a caustic statement today, R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, asserted that "Gooseneck Bill" McDonald, former negro Republican leader, and J. M. O'Hara of Fort Worth could not control 250 votes in Texas.

Creager's statement followed the announcement yesterday of the Fort Worth leaders that they would support Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee, and that 250,000 members of the anti-Hoover faction of the party would likewise vote against the Republican nominee.

Creager's statement mockingly congratulated the "Al Smith Democrats" on their acquisition of McDonald and O'Hara.

"These men have never been real Republicans and I rejoice that they are now definitely placed where they belong," the national committeeman said. "I earnestly hope that this is a permanent alignment.

"Of course the statement that these men control 250,000 votes in Texas is palpably absurd. I seriously assert that Gooseneck Bill, O'Hara and their ilk cannot control 250 votes in Texas, let alone 250,000.

"In the recent Republican state convention, these men and others, led by Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach in an anti-Hoover movement, were able to bring into the convention only a little more than 10 per cent of its voting strength.

NEW FACES IN NEXT SENATE

Texas Solons Contest For Other Offices

By L. B. DELBECK
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Texas, July 17. (AP)—A possibility that only about half the old Texas senate will take its seat in the 41st legislature next year is apparent from the present situation.

Fifteen of the 31 senators are "holdovers" who are elected to serve through 1930, but four of them are running for other offices. If elected, they will leave only 11 holdovers coming back. Eight of the remaining 16 are running for reelection, only two having no opposition. If five of the eight are reelected, at least 16 senators who were here in the 40th legislature will be back. This does not count the "holdovers" running for other offices. In case they all are defeated and come back, the total, basded on the assumption that five of the eight running for reelection win out, would be 20 of the old group.

Eight Not to Return

The two contingencies mentioned, however, is expected to keep the total of returning senators between 15 and 20.

Eight of the old senators definitely will not return. A new solon will be elected from district 3 to succeed I. D. Fairchild, fatally injured in an automobile accident this spring. Senator Lloyd Price of Texarkana has moved from the First district to Fort Worth to join a law firm and will be succeeded by a new man. Besides these two, the following are not running for reelection: H. L. Lewis, Navasota, district No. 5; Pierce B. Ward, Cleburne, district No. 12; Julius Real, Kerrville, district No. 26; W. H. Bledsoe, Lubbock, district No. 30, and J. W. Reid, Canyon, district No. 31. They all will be supplanted by new faces.

Of the four holdovers seeking other offices, Senator J. W. Hall of Houston is reported to be making a good race for tax collector of Harris county, and Robert A. Stuart of Fort Worth for Tarrant county district attorney. Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, is running for Congress. Senator Tom B. Love of Dallas, is a candidate for lieutenant governor.

Two Opposed

The only two senators running for reelection fortunate enough to have opponents are Thomas G. Pollard and R. F. Berkeley, Alpine.

Others seeking reelection are: Charles R. Floyd, Paris, opposed by State Representative Tom Deberry of Bogota; Edgar Witt, Waco, opposed by State Representative W. R. Poage, Waco; R. S. Bowers, Caldwell, opposed by C. S. Gainer, Bryan; A. E. Wood, formerly of Granger, now of Austin, administration floor leader in the 40th legislature, opposed by John W. Hornsby of Austin; Carl C. Hardin, Stephenville, opposed by Fred K. Stroup, Temple; J. R. Smith, Breckenridge, opposed by Oliver Cunningham.

Holdovers besides those mentioned as running for other offices are: Miss Margie Neal, Carthage; H. F. Triplett, Beaumont; Julian P. Greer, Poynor; Ed Westbrook, Sherman; Joe M. Moore, Greenville; Gus Russek, Schulenberg; A. J. Wirtz, Seguin; Eugene Miller, Weatherford; W. D. McFarlane, Graham; Walter Woodward, Coleman; Archie Parr, Benavides.

Puncture-Proof Tire Offered by Company

A new puncture proof automobile tire is being offered by Montgomery Ward & company, according to officials of the concern here. The tire has a puncture sealing patent and is guaranteed by the company for 16,000 miles against punctures.

George B. Everitt, president of the company, is quoted by local employes as announcing introduction of a new tire, to be known as the Super-Service Riverside tire, bearing a guarantee of 30,000 miles, covering all kinds of damage. The new tire is fully described in the fall catalogue, which was released on July 15.

The line of automobile tires carried by the Montgomery Ward and company houses is steadily being increased, Mr. Everitt is further quoted. In addition to many new additions to the stock carried, a new "pay-as-you-ride" plan has been inaugurated by the concern to enable drivers to keep their automobiles in use.

PARDONS GIVEN TO ALSATIANS

Anti-French Leaders Win Freedom From Prison

PARIS, July 17. (AP)—Pardons for four Alsatian autonomous leaders, including two deputies, who recently were given prison sentences on charges of plotting against the state came before President Doumergue at today's cabinet meeting.

The president signed pardons for Joseph Rosse, who was elected a deputy in April and for M. Schall and M. Fassheur, autonomist leaders, but could not sign the pardon for the fourth man, Dr. Georges Eugene Ricklin, a deputy, since Dr. Ricklin had appealed from his conviction and refused to withdraw it. If the higher court affirms the conviction, Dr. Ricklin also probably will be pardoned, regardless of his attitude.

The four men had been sentenced to from one to five years in prison. Pardon of Joseph Rosse, French deputy elected last April and convicted afterward of plotting against the safety of the state in connection with the separatist movement and of the autonomist leaders Schall and Fasshauer, has brought a deep sigh of relief to Alsace.

This ends one chapter in the difficult readaptation of Alsatians, who have been shunted from one regime to another four times since the advent of the Christian era. Another painful chapter may be opened, old Alsatians say, if the French government should follow a course like that of 1924 when Herriot announced that the laws of France must be applied everywhere throughout the territory of the republic "one and indivisible."

This declaration of Herriot was taken in Catholic Alsace as a threat to apply to that province, despite the promises made by Poincare in 1918, the laws separating church and state and excluding religious instruction from the schools. Previously its religious convictions had been respected.

'AUCTION GIRL' TESTS SUITORS

Fairy Story Gives Idea For Selection

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 17 (AP)—Like the princess in the old fairy tale, Miss Beatrice Albert, "auction girl" from Siren, Wis., plans to test her suitors when they appear before her next week at her temporary home in Comstock, Wis.

Beatrice, who broke off relations with W. W. Goynes, crippled Spanish-American war veteran, after she had decided not to accept his marriage offer, now plans a "marriage derby" to select a mate by the trial and error method.

This is in line with her offer several months ago to marry any suitable man who would provide $6,000 for the support of her family.

The new plan, which she admits she obtained from a fairy story book, is very simple, the 19-year-old romanticist said.

Three men whom she never has seen have proposed marriage. One lives in Milwaukee, another in Chicago and a third in Omaha, Neb.

Beatrice wrote a letter to each asking them to come to Comstock, the home of an old friend of the Alberts, where the family has been living since it departed from the bungalow which Goynes furnished in Milwaukee.

Once at Comstock the three suitors will appear and offer their qualifications. The winner must possess youth, sincerity, good habits and good health—Beatrice said.

After that, if any doubt remains in her mind as to which she will select, the two most attractive suitors will be sent to try their mettle on some high endeavor (Beatrice hasn't decided what it will be), and the one who wins may claim her as his wife.

DEATH WISH IS FULFILLED

Gunman Shot To Death In Duel With Police

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., July 17 (AP)—An expert marksman's expressed desire to die was fulfilled last night when he was shot to death in a pistol duel with Assistant Police Chief J. J. Fain, who was abducted by the despondent young man.

After kidnaping the officer and forcing him at the point of a pistol to accompany him to a field two and a half miles from the city, John Weitzel, clerk for a manufacturing concern, opened fire on Fain. An exchange of shots followed and the young man fell dead with a bullet through his chest.

Because of his known intention to commit suicide, friends believe Weitzel engaged the policeman in a duel to accomplish his own death. Weitzel had told his father, Charles A. Weitzel, railway telegraph operator, that he intended committing suicide and two letters found in the young man's pockets told of a fear that insanity was creeping upon him and declared he was a failure at 25 years of age.

Several years ago he was seriously injured when thrown by a horse while serving an enlistment in the cavalry at Fort Bliss, where he became an expert marksman.

Ramblin'

with

Marie Theresa

CAN you eat a banana split without experiencing a bit of inferiority complex? Not even a slight tremor? Marie Thresa and a co-worker, yes we do work—ordered such a confection at one of the emporiums Tuesday, and settled down to eat 'em in peace.

But did we? The lad who took our order yelled out our order from the back of the parlor, and as the two banana splits came down the way, everybody turned around and gave us the once over. Looked at us from head to foot, as if expecting to see nails—big ones, in our shoes and mother hubbard dresses. Why had nobody told us that banana splits are sure signs of a day spent in town seeing the sights? Do all farmers order 'em?

A KIND reader seeing my weighty thought of Tuesday morning that it is too hot to ramble—gave me a tip on an embarrassing incident which happened to her Saturday. She missed a portable typewriter from its customary place in her car—isn't it grand to get thoughts when you're out riding around—I mean the kind of thoughts that you would write down—and immediately called every pawn shop in town, and notified police headquarters.

After a more or less bothered two days, she located the missing machine. In having her car filled as to oil and gas, the man at the filling station had removed the machine and forgotten to return it. What a disappointment to get it returned so prosaically.

JUST a few more weeks of comfort left for the ladies of the city. Within a few weeks we'll be togged out in fall clothes. How do you suppose you will feel in a transparent velvet frock, long and tight as to sleeves, high as to neck, short as to skirt length and heavy as to price tag? A navy or black felt hat, and dark pumps as well as a possible wrap, fur-trimmed sounds well for a complete ensemble.

Mercy! Can you imagine that garb in the worst heat of the summer? Yet that is exactly what is in store for us. Just take a peep into the windows of the downtown stores. The few that are not displaying advance fall models are sounding the death knell of the summer clothes by marking them down. Don't think you would even get 'em for those prices, otherwise.

All the ensembles thus displayed must be accompanied and set off with that "I'll-smile-if-I-smother" look.

ANOTHER disadvantage to these up in the air weddings is that you might so easily get over the county line and have to come to earth to have the knot tied. We have just finished reading of that happening.

Two Couples In Paris Spotlight

PARIS, July 17. (UP)—Deauville is attracted at present by the sight of two couples—one couple vehemently denying reports of divorce and the other couple hinting at marriage.

One couple is Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the much married and divorced American, and Lord Northesk, the husband of Jessica Brown, former Follies girl, who is seeking divorce. The other couple is the Prince and Princess Mdivana, the princess being better known as Pola Negri.

Recently there were reports from Hollywood that the Polish actress would divorce her titled husband. Both the prince and the actress were equally insistent in denying the divorce rumor.

Peggy Joyce and the titled Englishman were seen walking down the beach, arms around one another. Lord Northesk admitted he expected a divorce from the former Follies girl within a month and then he was asked whether his being accompanied by Miss Joyce was significant.

"Judge for yourself," he replied.

June Farm Prices Show Decrease

WASHINGTON, July 17. (UP)—Farm prices on June 15 were higher than a year ago but 2 per cent lower than the previous month, the department of agriculture announced today.

The June reduction was due largely to lower prices of cotton, wheat, rye, potatoes and butter, the department said.

Since June 15 the outstanding price changes have been further declines in wheat and potatoes and a recovery in cotton prices.

The crop reporting board estimated there were 46,695,000 acres of cotton under cultivation on July 1. This was 11.4 per cent greater than in 1927, but 4.2 per cent less than in 1926.

Hog prices showed a substantial gain, the department said, and a top price of $11.60 was recorded the first week of July.

Cattle prices in June reached the highest point since 1920. Receipts at seven leading markets, however, were 14 per cent smaller than a year ago.

Corn was reported bringing approximately 14 cents a bushel more than a year ago, with an average sale price of $1.02.

Wheat was 2 cents above the 1927 price, but 12 cents lower than a month ago, bringing an average of $1.32.

Tangier Question Solved For Fourth Time In Twenty Years

PARIS, July 17. (AP)—The Tangier question was "settled" again today for the fourth time in 20 years. A new record was signed by representatives of France, England, Spain and Italy which gives Spain full command of the gendarmerie in the international zone at Tangier.

A special commission, whose duties are to watch for intrigues against the Spanish protectorate, was created. This commission will also aid Spain in putting down such intrigues.

Italy was given increased representation on the legislative body of the international zone and was also given representation in the courts and similar tribunals.

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

Copyright, 1928, King Feat. Syndi., Inc.

"You are looking too absolutely sweet," remarks Cherie in not too polite a tone of voice to Dina. "And you look rather like a sweet girl graduate yourself," answers Dina in the same spirit . . . the discussion has been about clothes. They are both, if you will be kind enough to notice, wearing plain white dresses which, again according to Cherie, are like a good complexion—just the beginning of the ensemble. It's only because it's so early in the morning that you see them thus—Cherie in a sleeveless frock of white flannel, Dina in an even more sleeveless frock of white linen. It's much too early in the day for the makeup or the accessories that bring life and color to the home.

Let us present them an hour or so later. You may take our word for the slight tint of rouge, but you can see for yourself the additions to the white frocks. White as a background is smart—but the woman who knows summer fashions will add something like this: first to the left, a scarf composed of blocks of colored silk; next (Cherie) a matching scarf and hatband of polka dot printed silk; next (Dina) an accessory ensemble of hat, scarf and bag; right, another scarf, monogrammed and edged with red. White, we repeat, is smart this season. Even white shoes are smart. But unless it's combined with colored accessories white is still seen mostly on nurses, butchers, bakers and the like.

Eyeing Mothers Don't Scare Wooers Away From 'Real' Girls, Says Dix

The Mother Who Keeps an Eye on Her Modern Daughter, Who Knows Where She Goes and With Whom, Doesn't Scare Away Dates; on the Contrary, She Attracts Marrying Men Who Want Just Such a Wife.

A perfectly nice girl of my acquaintance went out with a perfectly nice young man to the movies. After the picture was over they decided that it was a fine moonlight night for a ride, and the ride made them hungry, and they stopped at a restaurant for a bite to eat and to dance, with the result that it was about 3 o'clock in the morning when they returned home.

Upon their arrival at the girl's house they found a mother waiting up for them who had been nursing her wrath to keep it warm and who told them in no uncertain terms her opinion of young people who stayed out that late and who flatly informed the young man that if he couldn't bring her daughter home at a decent hour he couldn't take her out at all.

When the crestfallen young man had retired the girl threw herself weeping in a chair and sobbed out: "You have driven him a-w-a-y! H-h-he will never come back any m-o-r-e! You-you-you ta-a-alked just like an old-fashioned mo-ther, and if you act-act-act that way I won't have any more d-a-t-e-s."

"I talked like a mother who is going to take care of her girls so long as she has the strength and intelligence to do so," replied the mother, "and if that keeps the boys away you are well rid of them and I am glad of it. But you needn't fear about this young man. He is a gentleman, and he will think more of you because you have a mother who is on her job."

"He'll n-e-v-e-r come a-gain," wailed the girl, "if I can't do like the other girls do." But her fears were unfounded. The next morning the young man sent mother a bunch of flowers with a polite note of apology, and he has been virtually camping on the doorstep ever since.

His casual interest in the girl deepened into a very real one by the knowledge that she has the sort of home and mother that a man would like his wife to have had.

The other day I asked a young man how he liked a certain dashing young woman who is visiting in our midst.

"Oh," he replied with a shrug of his shoulders and a cynical smile, "she is pretty and bright enough and loads of fun, but I don't think her mother has ever looked after her much."

I commend these two stories to the attention of those mothers whose alibi for permitting their girls to run wild and pet and drink and stay out all night is that if they don't do so their daughters will have no dates.

And they are so afraid that they will scare off some poor little shoddy corner sheik or drug store cowboy that they dare not raise a protesting voice or make an effort to protect their foolish, ignorant girls when they see them doing the things that they know lead to perdition for a woman.

Mother knows it is all wrong. She cannot bear to think of the lips on which her milk is scarcely dry swigging bootlegger gin out of a bottle. It turns her cold to think of her child being pawed over by the filthy hands of every Tom, Dick and Harry.

She lies awake at night hour after hour agonized with anxiety, wondering where Mary is and if she is in some parked automobile or dancing in some disreputable roadhouse. She knows what the neighbors are saying and her soul burns with shame when Mary comes in about the time the milkman arrives.

But she wants Mary to be admired. She wants her to be popular with the boys. She wants her to be rushed. She wants her to marry, and her idea of the way to achieve success for her daughter along these lines is to let the girl go ahead and to exercise no authority over her whatever.

Many women and many girls hold to the theory that men regard a girl's mother who looks after her as a sort of bugaboo and that she frightens them away as a scarecrow does the crows in a garden. Perhaps she does warn off those men who "bode a girl no good," as they used to say in the old melodramas.

But there is nothing that enhances a worth-while man's respect for a girl so much as for her to have a wide-awake, strong, vigorous mother who is keeping a firm hold on her. It gives a girl a background to come out of a home that is dominated by a woman who has ruled her household and brought up her daughters to fear God, obey their mother and respect Mrs. Grundy.

No man who visits a girl in her own drawing room, whose mother has pleasant little talks with him, whose mother invites him to dinner, whose mother knows just where they are going when he takes her daughter out and who knows that he must bring her home at a proper hour, ever treats her as he does the girl he picks up on the street, whose mother he never meets, whose home he never enters and who has her own latch key and can come and go as she pleases.

For the mother writes the girl's price tag. She knows that she holds her daughter cheaply when she does not try to protect her or guard her, and when she lets her run loose and men treat her as they have treated cheap women from the beginning of time.

But if the mother shows that she regards her daughter as something so infinitely precious that she must watch her with ceaseless vigilance, men intuitively recognize this and pay homage to the protected girl as being a little finer, a little better, a little more desirable than the girl whose mother has not thought her worth looking after.

Furthermore, mothers may be very sure of this, that they are not scaring off the marrying men when they keep a wary eye on their daughters and control them. A strict mother is a guarantee of character to her daughters, and when a man marries he wants a wife who has been brought up by a mother who had clean-cut ideals of conduct and held her daughters to them; who was particular about their associates and knew where they went and what they did and who guided them and who kept them sweet and pure and fit to be the wife of a fine man and the mother of fine children.

Billie Jean has as playmate a Boston terrier bull dog and the dog is certainly mistreated—can't get three feet away from his mistress without being hauled back forcefully.

Billie Jean has another peculiarity—she is hardly old enough to have cute ways—her mother says that, and that's that, but we are hardly young enough to take the lady at her word. We believe the lady of the picture has plenty cute tricks in store to be offered on the appropriate audience and under the exactly correct conditions.

City May Name Building For Newspaper Woman

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 17. (AP)—San Antonio, which has already honored two newspaper men by naming flying fields for them, is preparing to further honor the profession by naming its projected "little auditorium" after a newspaper woman.

Fenwick, who wrote for years for the San Antonio Express and News. Brooks field here is named after Sidney J. Brooks, a reporter for the San Antonio Light who was killed in an air crash while training for service in France. Winburn field is named after William Winburn who was killed while covering a story in an airplane. Brackenridge high school here is named after a former owner of the San Antonio Express.

LIGHT DIET IS AID IN SUMMER

Health Officer Makes Hot Weather Suggestions

DALLAS, Texas, July 17. (AP)—Dr. Manton M. Carrick, director of public health, stresses the importance of not over-eating during the hot summer months.

"Heavy meals during hot weather are not only unnecessary but are actually harmful," Doctor Carrick declared. "The diet during hot weather may well consist chiefly of fruits, salads and vegetables. Drink plenty of cool water. There is no satisfactory substitute for water."

Doctor Carrick advises housewives to minimize the number of heavy curtains, portieres, overstuffed furniture and other such things as retain heat. Their presence makes the home much hotter than it otherwise would be, he said.

Bathers should be careful to expose their bodies for short periods of time until a protective coat of tan has been developed. Also, Doctor Carrick pointed out, cool or tepid baths are more comfortable than ice cold ones.

Mothers are urged to be particularly careful of their babies during the hot weather. If improperly cared for the little ones suffer greatly and often die from diarrhea and enteritis, Doctor Carrick said.

Baby Care

Six suggestions for the care of the baby during the summer follow:

1. Nurse your baby; do not wean without consulting your doctor.
2. Water. Give the baby all he will take between feedings. Use cool boiled water.
3. Don't use enough clothes to make the baby perspire. Use white clothes.
4. Bathe the baby once a day. To cure prickly heat include baking soda and corn starch in the bath water.
5. Have the baby sleep out of doors as much as possible. Protect him from flies by covering the crib with white mosquito netting.
6. At first symptoms of diarrhea stop all feeding and call your doctor. Give as much cool boiled water as baby will take, offering water every 15 minutes to 30 minutes.

More Charm—

no blemishes now

UNDERNEATH a clear, smooth skin, healthy tissues—full of rich, red blood—thrive.

No worry about pimples now. Instead there is a certain satisfaction that gives confidence.

All this because rich, red blood is Nature's way of building and sustaining the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—through the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

Ernest Best of Lawton is here visiting his uncle, M. R. Smith, and family.

Mr. Chandler of Georgia was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Church Duke the week.

Rev. George A. Weems, pastor of the First Christian church, and Mrs. Weems, returned home the first of the week from Marlin where they spent a two weeks' vacation.

R. E. Brewster, superintendent of the Iowa Park schools, and Mrs. Brewster and little daughter, Carmelita, spent the week-end in Iowa Park. They are spending the summer in Denton where Mr. Brewster is taking courses in the North Texas Teachers college, also studying in Southern Methodist university in Dallas.

Miss Katherine Sue Ralston went to Denton Sunday to enter summer school at the North Texas State Teachers college, taking the trip to Denton with Mr. and Mrs. Brewster.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hall of Moran spent the week-end here, visiting the families of R. E. Hall and R. E. Golden.

Woman Owner of Mortgaged Mine Has Faith in New Gold Discovery

DENVER, Colo., July 17. (UP)—A woman reared in luxury but now reduced almost to poverty is making a last desperate effort to save the famous Matchless mine and the fortune which she believes still can be extracted from its depths.

The fact that the Matchless was sold at public auction at Leadville, today, has not discouraged Mrs. Elizabeth McCourt Tabor. Under the law she will retain title for six months and, if she can pay off a mortgage of $14,000 in that time, she will keep the mine.

"The mortgage will be paid off soon," she said today as she arrived in Denver to seek the funds which will enable her to put the Matchless on a paying basis again.

Former Society leader

As the wife of H. A. W. Tabor, former U. S. senator, Mrs. Tabor was a leader of Denver society. The Tabor fortune dwindled until all she had was the Matchless mine. The gold and silver that once had poured from its shafts long since has stopped, but Mrs. Tabor continued to cling to it in the belief that it would again prove a bonanza.

For 20 years she has carried on her fight. Five times she has snatched the mine back by raising the necessary funds just as foreclosure seemed certain.

Now it appears that the fight must end one way or the other at the close of the present period of six months' grace.

"I know my rights under the law and certainly will redeem the mine within a few days," she said.

Instead of her former corps of servants, Mrs. Tabor now has but one retainer, a faithful Slav miner who toils in the Matchless, seeking a new vein of gold. Apparently he has the same spark of faith which keeps Mrs. Tabor's confidence alive.

The woman's home, once a mansion, now is a tiny shack near the mine entrance. There she lives, except for the time she spends in Denver in search of funds guarding her property and dreaming of the time that it may serve to restore her to wealth and affluence.

Destitute Couple Assisted by Austin Papers in 'Good Samaritan' Drive

AUSTIN, Texas, July 17. (AP)—A newspaper appeal to the "Good Samaritan" instincts of its readers worked a seemingly miracle for an aged, exhausted, semi-delirious couple who staggered into Austin harnessed to a small wagon carrying their meager earthly goods to Del Rio from Waco.

Donations which poured in after the Austin Statesman printed the story of hardship and weary miles of dusty roads, provided a team of jennies to pull the wagon, and food, clothing and pocket money to send J. M. Wilkerson, 59 and "Mag," his 62-year-old Cherokee Indian wife, on their way.

Like figures in a dream, they staggered into Austin pulling their dusty wagon. Thirsty and hungry, they barely were able to tell their story. Their jennies had been poisoned, they said. Determined to reach home at Del Rio, they decided to tramp along, pushing and pulling the cart. At first they were suspicious of proffered help but finally were induced to halt and rest.

The new jenny team was donated by the Salvation Army. Food and clothing was given by others, some driving from as far as Fredericksburg with gifts. Cash contributions totalled $42.50.

Rudy Nebb's Goat Had Nothing On This Wichita Cow

A cow with a stomach full of nails was inspected Tuesday by Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector of the city health department.

"I have seen many odd things among animals," said Dr. Farrell, "but I have never seen a case befors of a cow trying to emulate the example of a goat.

"It just happened that the cow was an old dairy cow, and we were able to trace the nails. Repairs were made recently at the place on which the cow is kept. As the cow swallows its food almost whole and then chews it afterward, it had swallowed the nails which probably had fallen into the feed trough."

Services Held For Wichita Pioneer

Funeral services for G. W. Eagle, 77, pioneer Wichita Falls citizen, who died at his home, 1208 Fourteenth street, Sunday afternoon, were held Tuesday at 10 o'clock from the First Methodist church with Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Riverside.

Mr. Eagle was a native of North Carolina, being born in Statesville in 1850. He came to Texas in 1879 and first settled in Ellis county. The family moved to Wichita Falls in 1894 and had resided here for the past 24 years.

Mr. Eagle retired from active business about 10 years ago after having been in the coal and grain business for many years and later as the proprietor of a grocery store.

For 50 years Mr. Eagle had been an active member of the Methodist church and for 30 years he had belonged to the Woodmen of the World.

Among his survivors are his wife, three daughters, Mrs. A. L. Ford, of Denison; Mrs. H. C. Daken of San Antonio; and Mrs. J. Milton Erwin of 1109 Alma street; six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Active pallbearers were Arthur C. Howard, E. D. Trevathan, Leon Deaton, L. A. Gibson, J. N. Hutt, and Solon Downing.

Honorary pallbearers were Judge P. A. Martin, W. M. McGregor, Ed. Howard, J. A. Deaton, D. M. Hardy, D. F. Taylor, J. C. Ward, R. D. Donnell, and J. S. Bridwell.

'Traveling Beggars' Seek Church Aid

Charity Workers Expose Practice Here

The latest novelty in the line of begging was exposed Tuesday by Miss Myrle Neely, executive secretary of the community chest.

"A charity worker of one of the large churches told me a kind deed his church had done Sunday evening when it gave an old man, a member of that faith, rail fare to Dallas, and went so far as to put him on the train Sunday night," Miss Neely said.

"I then told him the sequel of the story.

"Monday morning, that same old gentleman was at the community chest office when we opened up. He told us the same hard luck story he had told the church people to the effect that he had relatives in Dallas. When we started to telephone these relatives in Dallas for confirmation of his story, he became greatly agitated and asked us not to. He said that first he wished to confer with the minister of a church of his faith here as he was certain the minister would help him. The denomination he told us about was a different one from the one he had tapped Sunday night.

"There are many beggars these days who are just traveling about at the expense of the communities through which they are passing, and we are endeavoring to make Wichita Falls unpopular with them."

Salary Hikes for Road Engineers Recommended in Budget Estimate

AUSTIN, July 17. (AP)—Salaries of the 17 division state highway engineers would be increased from $3,600 a year to $5,000 and that of the chief engineer from $8,000 to $9,000 under the budget estimate for the next biennium beginning September 1, 1929, submitted Tuesday to the state board of control by the highway commission.

Despite this, the commission's total estimate for the biennium, $1,546,700, is $9,960 less than the appropriation available for the present biennium.

The highway department expense is taken care of by its own funds and no demand is made on the state's general revenue.

It was pointed out to the board that county engineers are paid from $300 to $500 a month and yet a district engineer, having perhaps 10 or more counties under his direction gets only $300 a month at the most.

A strong effort was made in the 40th legislature to make the chief engineer's pay $10,000 a year, but the recommendation of the board of control for $8,000 finally was accepted. Since then, Former Engineer R. A. Thompson has been succeeded by Gibb Gilchrist.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Ironically, the first capture made by the "camera detective," a device invented by a New York policeman, was made in a church when a thief tried to rifle an alms box. When a thing equipped with one of the silent detectives is tampered with, a trigger snaps and a photograph of the thief or meddler is taken. Now that the device has proven its value, it is to be installed in banks, department stores, shops in which goods are sold by automatic vending machines and such places.

In Broadway theaters rows are indicated by letters. The first row is A. The markings jump from H to J. The I row was eliminated because ticket speculators bought up the seats and sold them as "first row." That meant slightly agitation for ushers and theater managers.

Having seats in AA shouldn't give a buyer a thrill. That's the 26th row. But ticket speculators often sell them to out-of-towners as "first row."

A carefully-planned press agent stunt failed because an encyclopedic-minded copyreader on a local newspaper knows his zoology. An actress returning from abroad announced that on a hunting trip in Africa she had personally captured a live tiger for presentation to Tammany hall and Al Smith as a mascot. She displayed a tiger snarling in a cage.

The ship news reporter, into whose lap the yarn was spilled lapped up the details and had the paper's photographer get plenty of pictures of the actress alongside the tiger cage. The story got as far as the copy desk. One of the readers remembered that there are no tigers in Africa.

Most of the bathing suits sold in New York stores are red in color.

A little more than a year ago Ernest Hemingway, bright young man, was living in France because it was the cheapest place to live and getting along on next to nothing because he had to. He wrote a book, "The Sun Also Rises," about his companions, and it turned out to be a best-seller. Now he is under contract to a magazine to write short stories at a guaranteed salary of $50,000 a year.

But there are famous and highly-paid story writers much less happy than Hemingway. Radio broadcasting and other things have made heavy inroads into the advertising accounts of many big concerns with resultant losses in revenue to national magazines and corresponding declines in the demand for fiction from the "big name" writers. Some of the typewriter-bangers are having to get along with last year's Rolls-Royce.

What do you want to know about New York? Ask C. K., 2200 Times building, New York, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Nobody, Nowhere, and Nothing

I love my friends, each one—and all;
I hearken to a friendship's call
To share its rise or share its fall.
(Who fights your cause when you are gone?
Whose vows can you depend upon?
—Nobody's!)

I like to scale the mountains grand;
I long to roam the far-flung strand
That lies within Adventure Land.
(But most of all, I like to go
The place that I'm not bothered so:
—Nowhere!)

I like to work, and strive, and toil
I revel in the grind and moil
Of making money—hoarding spoil.
(However, I'll admit it's true
There's something I would rather do:
—Nothing!)

Henrietta Pastor Holds Revival at Electra

One-Minute Sermon

My son, eat thou honey, because it is good; and the honeycomb which is sweet to thy taste:

So shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul: when thou hast found it, then there shall be a reward, and thy expectation shall not be cut off.—Proverbs, xxiv, 15-18.

For a Pet Cat

PERSONS with means, whether large or small, presumably should have the right to dispose of their wealth as they see fit, but what a business many make of it. The will of a Washington woman leaves a trust fund of $1,500 for the care of her cat during the animal's life. Pet cats at best add little to the world's sum total of happiness, and nothing to its resources. What a futile use of money, when children go without the necessities of life, much less the comforts.

Aerial Traffic Laws

THE OFFICIALS who have the final say-so on aerial traffic laws seem to be rather hard-boiled. Reputations mean nothing at all to them.

Bert Acosta, who flew across the Atlantic with Byrd, recently was fined heavily for breaking various air regulations. Now comes word from Montreal that Duke Shiller, one of Canada's most distinguished flyers, has lost his license for six months because the officials held him responsible for a recent airplane smashup.

The rules, evidently, are being enforced to the hilt without regard for big names. That is as it should be. It makes for safety and security.

A Captain's Suicide

DISPATCHES from Chile regarding the loss of the Chilean transport Angamos, which hit a rock and sank with 300 on board, say that when the ship's captain, Ismael Suares, found himself unable to prevent the catastrophe he committed suicide on the steamer's bridge.

One can easily understand that a captain might be unnerved at the prospect of a shipwreck that would cost many lives. Yet Capt. Suarez hardly acted in the best traditions of the sea.

Maritime records are full of tales of captains who went down with their ships. The stern rules of the sea require a captain to do all he can for the safety of ship, passengers and crew, thinking of himself last of all. The underwater ghosts of the old-time skippers, lolling in Davy Jones' locker, will hardly award a place of honor to this Chilean ship master who lost his head.

All Robots? Oh, No!

BERNARD SHAW'S current book on socialism has sorely riled Benjamin De Casseres, New York essayist, and Mr. De Casseres takes a column in the New York World to say what he thinks about it. He is pretty badly upset.

The equality of income proposed by Shaw probably appeals to most of us little more than it does to Mr. De Casseres. But the latter fairly sees red—to say nothing of Reds—when he thinks of it. After letting off steam for a column, he concludes:

"But I howl in vain. The world is going into a parasitic, feministic, deindividualized epoch. Whether it is Mussolini, Shaw, Communistic Russia, a rapidly socializing Germany or France or a federalized America, character and individuality wither everywhere, and in their place we behold the march of robots and state slaves."

That sounds very sad. Does it, though, mean anything in particular?

It does not—unless it means that we ought to turn the clock back to about 1800, returning to the days of hand labor and stage coach transportation, scrapping all the protective legislation by which we have tried to protect the weak from the strong, abolishing universal education and re-accepting the old view that the only people who have any business being comfortable, happy and well fed are those who were fortunate enough to be born into the propertied class.

The world, apparently, is parasitic because of such things as old-age pensions and unemployment insurance, feministic because women can vote, and deindividualized because the poor man as well as the rich can own luxuries. Character and individuality are withering because of mass production and the 44-hour week. Robots and state slaves are marching because chairs and egg beaters are no longer made by hand. There, brethren, is deep reasoning!

The present stage of society is not final, not fixed. We are still in a ferment. Glittering things are in sight; the absolute abolition of poverty and ignorance, for instance, can now be said to be a genuine possibility. Life is being made easier for the average man than was ever dreamed possible.

Does this average man tend to waste his leisure? Does prosperity bring vulgarity? Does the passing of illiteracy spawn tabloid newspapers? Perhaps; what of it? A revolution can't be consolidated overnight. Give us a chance.

The Apostle Paul was informed that it is hard to rebel against the inevitable. It is just as hard, and futile, now as it was in Syria 2000 years ago. The invention of the steam engine did more than end hard labor. It began a new epoch in civilization. A new order of things is being born. The outraged squeaks of those who can only look backward are not, after all, very significant.

CITY GOVERNMENT TESTED

The city manager form of government undoubtedly is one of the most successful methods of handling the business affairs of a municipality developed in the United States, as demonstrated by its practical use by several hundred American cities and towns, which have profited by their change from earlier systems to the newer and more efficient type of governmental machinery.

—Gainesville (Texas) Daily Register.

INTELLIGENCE IN MARKETING

Just what the harvest months will bring forth in Collingsworth county remains to be seen, but prospects at this time are exceedingly flattering. Those who have traveled over the county extensively report cotton conditions on the whole very good and the rain which fell last Saturday night and Sunday insured the maturing of a great deal early feedstuff. With just a few more good rains at the proper time this county will harvest a very bountiful crop.

That cotton will sell for a good price this fall seems to be conceded by all, which within itself means a great deal to those who raise this staple.

Collingsworth county, however, seems to have reached the point of not necessarily having to worry about production so much as it does about the price it can secure for it.

THEY WERE WRONG

Wichita Falls, Texas,
July 17, 1928.

The Wichita Falls Record News,
Wichita Falls, Texas.
Dear Editor,

I, Ezra, am a white, protestant, native born, Gentile, American. I was born in this country of parents who were grandchildren of native Americans.

I am a Democrat and I am a conscientious voter. My conscience prompts me to vote for Alfred E. Smith for president. There are those who oppose Smith because he is called a "wet." Others refuse to vote for him because he is a Catholic. Some dislike him because Tom Love opposes him.

For my part I know no other course than adherence to the will of the majority of my party. It would be unthinkable to vote for a man endorsed by Bone Dry Sartin and Tom Love unless that man were a Democrat and couldn't help it.

Today the so-called "Constitutionals"—God in that benevolence which is all seeing, forgive man that he give so high sounding a name to such a parcel of riff raff—gathered in Dallas for the first Konklave of Konstitutionals Kalled to Konsider Knocking the party which refused to be ruled by them, a wilfully blind minority.

They are opposed to Al Smith, they say, because he is "wet." They object to him because he is a product of Tammany hall. These are the reasons they give. Good reasons, no doubt. But I, Ezra, defy a man to uncover a person who was at the meeting who did not profess to be a "Protestant" American.

Who are these Constitutionals? These are they who know they are right and all the rest of the world is wrong.

Fourteen years ago a man began a war to conquer the world "for God and German culture." All his life long he had entertained but a single vision. He was a devout, God-fearing, albeit power-loving man. He knew that he was right. Today he is an exile from the country he once ruled, forsaken by his people. He was wrong.

A few years ago a great and noble man stirred a nation with his oratory. As though inspired by some unearthly power he pleaded for free silver, sounding around the world the speech of the cross of gold. He was a great man. He believed himself inspired by the God we worship and called upon him for aid. But no man ever advanced a theory more opposed to the facts which are economics than did Bryan. He knew that he was right; later he admitted that he had been wrong.

Three score years ago this country had ended the most disastrous civil war of modern times. The North believed one set of facts: the South believed a contrary set of facts. Both called upon the same God to help them. But one side was wrong.

The short, militant Corsican styled himself "the man of destiny." He believed he was right. But his destiny was death on the island of St. Helena, an outcast. He was wrong.

The religious zealots, sincere worshipers of the God we worship, who established the Spanish Inquisition which ruined a nation and terrified a world were as certain of the justness of their tactics as Tom Love (represented in Dallas today by Mr. Collins) professes to be sure of the righteousness of his methods. The God they worshiped, the same we revere, was called upon to aid them, even as the Rev. Atticus Webb calls today. They knew that they were right: Tom Love et al know that they are right: Men of the inquisition were irrefutably wrong.

Four hundred years ago the religious fanatics of the sixteenth century burned a man at the stake because he told of wonders of the future. Bacon told people of Europe of the day when men would drive horseless carriages; he told them of a time when a bit of powder might blow a hundred men to atoms; he was burned at the stake as a heretic by the God-fearing people of his day. They called upon their God, as we call upon ours, to witness their devotion to the cause of right. They knew that they were right: They were wrong.

Nineteen hundred years ago a man died upon the cross, nailed there by a race which knew He was no divine emissary. He taught things they considered contrary to their religion; His life was not just what their interpretation of the "prophets" would have had it. They knew that He was no Messiah, and the Christ, in the name of the God in heaven, in the name of Christ's own father, was nailed to the cross. They knew that they were right. We know that they were wrong.

Prohibition has not been the success we prohibitionists hoped for. I believe prohibition is right. Something is wrong with enforcement, if the amendment itself is right. Tom Love and his followers contend that America, in the first enactment of a law did that which no nation has ever done, hit upon the exact manner of enforcement, than which there is no other. Al Smith and thousands of others say it is the enforcement laws which are to blame. Perhaps, forgive, good friends, this suggestion—but perhaps Mr. Love et al may be wrong. Good men have been wrong in the past.

But, dear editor, I've written far more than I had intended to write. I had something to say about the Catholic angle of it. But I doubt your publishing even this one letter.

If you do, I warn you, I shall write again.

Ezra.

Battalion of Women Soldiers Used By Sandino in Carrying On Warfare

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia, July 17. (UP)—A "battalion of women" has been organized by General Sandino, Nicaraguan rebel chief, to aid his forces in their warfare against the government and American marines, according to General Jose Cefar Rivas, in an interview published in La Nacion today.

General Rivas said these women, now concentrated at Campo Bonanza, already "have done heroic service in battle" and have the full confidence of the revolutionary leader.

The women have fought side by side with the men and one of them, Senora Adriana Flores, died on the field of battle, according to Rivas.

The general said his wife and the wife of Sandino are in command of the women and both have been through a number of battles.

Margarita Arosa, Sandino's wife, replaced Senora Flores as a leader of the women when the latter was killed.

"These women have distinguished themselves in the fighting side by side with the men whose dangers they share without shirking," Rivas added.

Rivas asserted Sandino has a following of 2000 men, always short of food and half naked but well equipped with guns and ammunition.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, upon losing both father and wealth, consents to make her home with Clarissa Dean, and her father. Her fiancee, Nathaniel Dann, objects to this for he mistrusts Dean's motives. Dean plots to get Niel away from Virginia but fails.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter resolves to leave but Dean insists that she marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal that her father cheated him out of $100,000. Recklessly, she promises to earn enough in one year to repay him—or marry him if she fails.

Virginia realizes her plight when she discovers her bank balance is overdrawn, and she has to pawn a ring before finding a reasonable hotel in which to live. She goes to Niel's studio to tell him of her break with the Dean's, but she dare not reveal her compact with Dean.

Next day Virginia seeks advice from a broker friend as to how to make the hundred thousand. Then she invites his secretary to lunch and asks her how to find a business position. She supplies for a position at the agency.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXIV

Virginia awoke the next morning after a restful sleep following a perfect evening with Nathaniel. It wasn't quite perfect, of course, for there was always the shadow of Frederick Dean's monstrous bargain hanging over her. But she felt that she had turned the first stone that would build her bridge to freedom, and Niel was in one of his most charming moods.

There was no effort on his part to persuade her to do anything against her wishes. Marriage was not even mentioned. They were as two companions delightfully in love with each other and making the most of each pressing hour without clouding it by trying to insure future happiness.

For a moment Virginia lay yawning drowsily and half consciously waiting for the entrance of her maid to tell her the bath was prepared. Then her eye caught a glimpse of the sheet she had tossed away from her silk-clad body and she sat up, wide awake in an instant. The sight of the machine-hemmed cotton affair in place of the handworked linen sheets she was accustomed to was a sufficient reminder of the change that had come to her to dispel her dreamy illusion.

"Well, I suppose I might as well get up," she sighed. "Certainly no one's going to fix my tub today. I wonder if the water's still rusty."

It was, and again Virginia was compelled to limit her bathing operations to the waterglass exercises as she called her improvised shower.

She had scarcely finished drying herself when her telephone summoned her to answer a call from Mrs. Phelps.

"I've a place I think you could fill," she told Virginia pleasantly. "Can you come in this morning?"

"Certainly, Mrs. Phelps. What hour, please?"

"Ten-thirty."

"I'll be there promptly. Thank you very much."

Virginia slipped the receiver on the hook and then flung her towel on the bed with a carefree gesture. "Maybe no one would believe it but I think I'm thrilled," she decided, and then, catching sight of her unclad body in the dresser mirror, laughed aloud. "Virginia Brewster, what if this were a television telephone! Mrs. Phelps would never send a skinny like you out to work!"

She grabbed up the bathrobe she hadn't stopped to put on to answer the ringing of the telephone and threw it around her shoulders.

At 10:30 sharp she was telling Miss Laidstone she had an appointment with Mrs. Phelps.

"Ah, good morning," the latter greeted her presently. "You are really in earnest, aren't you?"

Virginia was taken by surprise. "In earnest?" she repeated wonderingly. "Why, of course I am. It is necessary for me to earn a living, Mrs. Phelps," she added gravely.

That lady smiled.

"Indeed?" she asked mysteriously. "I had thought you might have been acting on impulse yesterday. To be frank, I really did not expect you to respond to a call for your services, Miss Brewster."

Virginia gasped audibly. "How did you get my name?" she inquired when she had recovered her composure.

"Why, my dear, I recognized you at once but I did not say so because I wanted to find out, if I could, why you were masquerading under the name of Viola Browne." She looked at Virginia rather hard as she finished speaking and the latter felt a touch of discomfort.

"Because I do not wish to use a name that has no connection with my present circumstances," she declared a bit belligerently. "The Virginia Brewster that everyone seems to recognize her does not exist any longer. It is Viola Browne who wishes a position if you don't mind."

Mrs. Phelps motioned to a chair. "Do sit down," she said courteously. Then, "It does not matter to me what name you choose to assume so long as I know your real name. You see, I must protect my clients," she explained smilingly.

"Well, now that you know who I am, shall you accept my application?" Virginia wanted to know.

"Certainly, my dear. But you can readily understand that you will run the same risk of being discovered that you ran with me if I should send you to anyone who is familiar with the names in the social register."

"I suppose that's true," Virginia admitted.

"Occasionally, however, I have a client who is not interested in society. One came to me late yesterday afternoon, and while I cannot say that I think the position is ideal for you, Miss Brewster, it does offer the advantage of almost certain protection for your name. The point is, just what is your need for employment?"

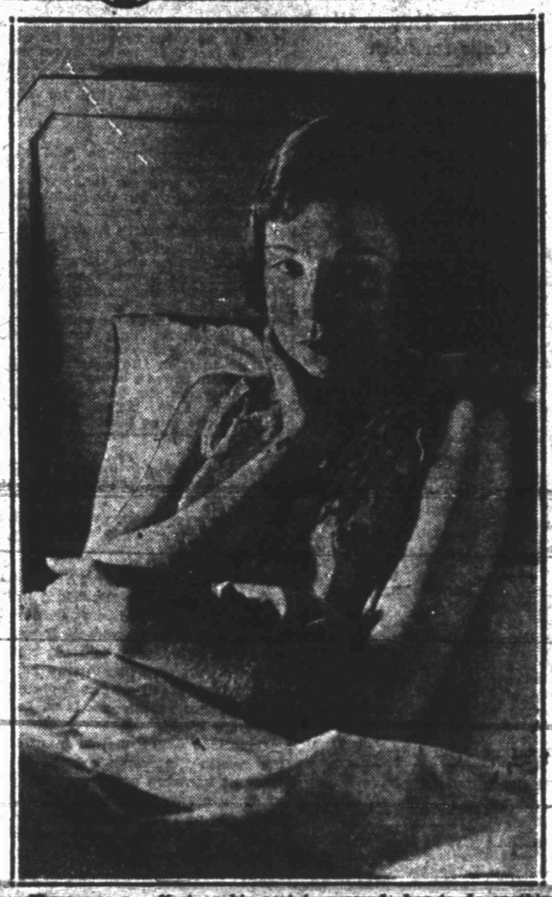

"It's immediate," Virginia revealed unhesitatingly. "I'm not acting on impulse, Mrs. Phelps, and if you think I could fill this place I'd like to try.

"I am sure you could give satisfaction, else I would not have called you," Mrs. Phelps assured her. "But in view of your inexperience and your background I believe you should wait until I've told you more about these people before you decide to accept the position."

"Well, if they aren't utterly impossible . . ."

"Naturally I cannot determine that. People do not put their worst foot forward when they come to see me, either seeking to obtain or give employment."

"That could hardly be expected."

There was no effort on his part to persuade her to do anything against her wishes. Marriage was not even mentioned.

"The name is Gernsner, and I've every reason to believe it has been changed from Gernschimal."

"That's one good thing to begin with," Virginia laughed. "At least they're considerate of other people's jawbones."

"I have met only Mrs. Gernsner," Mrs. Phelps went on. "She seems pleasant enough but not well educated. And there are children."

"What in the world does she want a companion for?" Virginia marveled.

"To escape from the children, haps. But seriously I believe ur duties would be to accompany her on shopping trips and to arrange her social functions, write her letters and, in general, to acquaint her with some of the refinements of living."

"Are they newly rich?" Virginia inquired doubtfully.

"Very."

"But if she is not interested in society, as you say, what would her social affairs be?"

"It is only my opinion, but I should say she will want to play the grand dame among her acquaintances. There will never be any occasion, I am sure, for you to come in contact with your former friends through her."

"That's an inducement," Virginia considered.

"The salary is excellent. They will be generous, I believe, but of course it is doubtful if you will find their company endurable."

"Well, I can't tell until I try it. Where do they live?"

"On Riverside Drive."

"Would I be given any time of my own?"

"Two evenings a week, Sundays and one weekday afternoon. It's quite fair."

Virginia thought she could hardly imagine herself not at liberty to go and come as she liked, but beggars cannot be choosers, she reminded herself sharply.

"I'll take it," she said firmly.

"It will not be permanent until after two weeks' trial," Mrs. Phelps informed her. "Shall I have Miss Laidstone telephone to ask when Mrs. Gernsner will see you?"

"If you will."

Virginia was told to come up right away. After a few minutes more with Mrs. Phelps, during which she received some helpful hints, she took a cab to the towering apartment building that sheltered the Gernsner family. She had given the address to the driver before she realized that she could have taken a bus and saved some money. "I'll have to be more careful," she admonished herself impatiently, not knowing that one no more learns to be poor in a day than to be rich.

She was admitted to the private foyer by a butler in a magnificent uniform. Virginia stared at him in amazement before she remembered that such startling sights were probably to be expected in this family. Above his crimson coat the man's dark, mustached face beamed, and he returned her stare with interest.

"What's your name?" he asked not at all impersonally.

Virginia told him and when he had gone to announce her she surveyed the foyer in which she had been left to wait with amused engagement.

Mahogany coat racks, hung with a miscellany of outer garments of various sizes, stood in a row against one wall, partly hiding a highly-colored lithograph from sight. Virginia felt it no loss.

There was a Spanish chest and a Hepplewhite chair beside it; an Italian refractory table and a big Chinese vase placed squarely in the center of it.

"They must have used a ruler," Virginia reflected in wonder at the precision with which everything seemed to stand in the direct center of something else.

"Madam Gernsner will see you in the parlor," the butler came to tell her shortly. "Follow me," he added grandly, and led the way to a door at the end of the foyer.

For the life of her Virginia could not avoid smiling at his gorgeous comic-opera back. He opened the door—and walked through it! Inside he held it open for Virginia to enter. "Miss Viola Browne," he shouted as she came in, and Virginia all but jumped.

"Now, now, Pietro, don't I tell you you should not shout the names?" a shrill voice scolded from a corner of the very dim room. A second later the same voice said coaxingly, "Come in Miss Browne; you should come right in."

For a moment Virginia hesitated. "Go on in, don't let her get your goat," the astonishing butler whispered to her.

Eight Arrests In Dredge Row

WHARTON, Texas, July 17. (AP)—The dredge which has been used by rice farmers to dam the Colorado river at Dry creek in an effort to obtain gravity water for their crops was being removed today upon demand of the dredging firm representing the state river commission to pass.

Starting removal of the dredge followed arrest of eight citizens of Wharton county and the swearing out of warrants for 25 others today as the controversy between rice farmers and the commission was carried into court.

The men arrested today were Will Durant, Harvey Foster, Willie Edelbach, E. D. Harris, F. G. Cobb, E. E. Wood, Walter Regan and Adolph Guest. They were placed under $250 bond to appear in court here for trial August 3.

The river commission sent its dredge here for the purpose of clearing a raft from the river. Taxes in the counties of Wharton and Matagorda were remitted for 25 years to provide money for that undertaking.

Spokesmen for the rice farmers said that 10,000 acres of that crop would be destroyed unless gravity water could be secured in the immediate future.

NEW LAW BANS 'THE CAPTIVE'

French Drama Stopped By Frisco Cops

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17. (UP) "The Captive," French drama, again is destined to a longer run in the courts than on the stage.

Fate of the play in San Francisco was virtually sealed late today when the board of supervisors unanimously passed an ordinance, effective immediately, making it unlawful to produce any play having sex perversion as its theme.

Asserted naughtiness of the production spoiled its opening night here when police officers mounted the stage from the orchestra pit and arrested the cast. Only about 500 words remained before the final curtain.

Words a Mystery

Legal authorities predicted the action of the supervisors would make those few unspoken words a mystery to theatrical audiences of the city forever. They pointed out that only a ruling that the ordinance was unconstitutional could result in victory for defenders of the play.

Earlier in the day the manager, Ben Giroux, four actors and four actresses had appeared in police court to answer one of two charges against them and two suits had been filed in federal court against city officers.

Trial of the cast for alleged violation of a city ordinance, which makes it unlawful to present a play offensive to common decency, was set for Thursday. The accused artists will be arraigned on the same day for conspiracy to violate a law, a felony charge.

The two suits in federal court were filed in behalf of Horace Liveright, New York publisher and owner of all rights to the play.

Loss Claimed

One asked an injunction to prevent police from further interference with presentation of the drama and the other alleged Liveright had suffered a loss "in excess of $20,000" because the play was stopped and demanded "fair and equitable reward."

An ordinance for the chief of police to appear on July 23 to show why the injunction should not be issued was made by Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure.

REALTOR FACES DEATH THREAT

Accomplice in Plot to Get $30,000 Surrenders

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 17. (UP)—Barney Goodman, real estate dealer, faced new death threats tonight because he has refused to give extortionists $30,000 and his wife's jewels.

While Goodman's friends and employes were receiving threats over the telephone that retribution was "coming off sure tonight." Robert Carahan, 34, recently convicted of bootlegging, appeared at police headquarters and said he was the "innocent intermediary" in the case.

Carahan had been missing since Thursday, the day after Goodman was abducted and tortured until he promised to pay the money. He hastened to surrender, he said, "as soon as he heard police were looking for him."

He denied he knew anything of the plot other than that he has been forced by the extortionist gang to act as an intermediary.

He was held for questioning and investigation.

One of today's threats was made to Goodman's chauffeur, another a member of his bodyguard, and a third to an office employe.

Goodman also received a telephone call from some who refused to give any name other than "Anderson," and who requested that he go to a suburban point to appraise some property.

Police believed that some of today's calls were from cranks or jokers. Goodman said, however, he recognized some of the voices as those of his kidnapers.

PEACHES

—can them

It's Easy—It's Economical with Gas!

Luscious, juicy peaches---how good they taste now as they come from the tree---and how good they will taste next winter when properly canned to retain their freshness and flavor!

Of course you are going to can a good quantity of peaches---as well as other fruits ---and vegetables. With natural gas to take care of the heating end of your canning . . . it's so much easier to can now than when wood or coal fires had to be laboriously started and kept going in hot weather.

Gas is quick, clean, cool, cheap---it makes home canning a joy instead of a burden.

You can depend on gas the year 'round---for canning and cooking in summer, for heating and cooking in winter, for hot water all of the time. Gas is the ideal fuel---the friend of the busy housewife---but never a more welcome friend than at canning time!

MESSENGER HURLS 6 TO 4 VICTORY AND BEARS EVEN SERIES

ROETZ CLOUTS 14TH HOME RUN

Boggess' Circuit Smash Is Decisive Factor

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Yesterday was not our Spudders' day. And it was the San Antonio Bears' day. Hence a 6 to 4 victory for Gibson's men an dthe evening of the series out at J. Alvin Gardner's palace of pastime.

The Bears played excellent ball behind the capable chucking of Andy Messenger. They looked much better than in the opening day when they were shut out, 10-0. The difference in pitching the two days caused that. They fielded fast and hit quite timely and hard, and I guess they deserved the ball game.

Still, it wasn't the Spudders' day. Bill Shores was batted off the hill in the third inning, which was the first tipoff that the winning streak of Galloway's Ten Gallons, which had extended to five, was menaced. Then George Payne, who really chucked very good ball except for this lapse I am about to narrate, had a tough break. He pitched a ball that struck Meyers' bat when the San Antonio catcher was dodging the curve, and it went for an infield hit. Then Georgie tossed a curve and Boggess, who likes hooks better than any sort of pitch, slammed the ball over the left field wall.

That Won the Game

That tragedy occurred in the sixth inning when the Spudders leading, 4 to 3, and really meant the ball game, although the Bears tallied one more in the eighth off Joe Kiefer, who had gone to the hill after Cvengros batted for Payne in the sixth.

Three of the four Spudder runs also were due to a home run. The Ruthian smack was perpetrated by none other than "Hot Dog" Roetz in the fourth inning. The rookie Roetz slammed one of Messenger's offerings over the left field wall with two comrades conveniently on bases. We tallied another in that round and things were looking pretty nice and it seemed Andy was about to go away from there.

But Gibson left the tall gentleman in there, whether from confidence in Andy or because he is in rather dire straits for chuckers. Anyhow, it was a wise move, as all the Spudders could do in the remaining innings was to get a couple more hits, though they threatened in the ninth.

San Antonio made 10 hits to nine by the Spudders.

Fielding Features

The contest was marked by some superlative fielding, with Fitzgerald making another remarkable catch, and Turgeon, Roetz, Nason and Mulvey also flashing some glittering plays.

Rabbit Benton smashed three hits, two of them doubles, to lead the attack for the Spudders. Emmett Mulvey, a corking hitter and a most excellent ball player, vied with Rabbit for honors of the day by also smacking three blows, one of which went for two bases.

The Spudders now lead the Dallas Steers by only one game in the race for second place, and the Bears still trail the Bovines by half a game.

San Antonio scored three runs in the third inning. Flaskamper led off with a single past third. Flippen sacrificed, Stanton to Turgeon. Mulvey singled to center, Flaskamper scoring. Grimes and Flaskamper strolled filling the bases. Nason singled to center, Mulvey and Grimes scoring and Chapman stopping at second. Meyers walked, again populating all the base lines. Payne relieved Shores and struck out Boggess and Messenger.

Spuds Score in Fourth

The Spudders scored all four tallies in the fourth. Eldred, first up, was passed. Jenkins singled to center, Eldred stopping at second. Roetz hit over the left field fence, Eldred and Jenkins scoring ahead of him. It was Roetz' fourteenth homer of the season and he is two circuit clouts behind Jenkins, the leader, and one back of George Blackerby of Waco. Stanton lifted to Nason. Lapan singled to left. Payne sacrificed, Messenger to Grimes. Benton doubled to center, Lapan scoring.

The Bears counted the tying and winning runs in the sixth. Meyers' bat hit the ball when he was ducking a pitch, and it went to deep second for a single. Boggess hit over the left field barrier, Meyers scoring ahead of him.

Gibson's men registered in the eighth with Kiefer hurling. Messenger singled to center after one was out. Flaskamper forced Messenger, Benton to Turgeon. Flaskamper stole second. Flippen walked. Mulvey singled to right, Flaskamper scoring.

The Spudders threatened in the ninth. Stanton led off with a single to left. Smith batting for Lapan, drove to deep center but Mulvey was under the ball. Lamb batted for Payne and hoisted to Chapman. Benton smashed a terrific drive to center but again the pesky Mulvey roamed far to pull down the ball.

Notes of the Game

Milt Steengrafe probably will oppose Dick Schuman, the southpaw, in the third and final of the series today.

Fitzgerald made a great running one-hand catch of Mulvey's drive in the first inning.

Boggess and Lapan were purposely passed in the second inning, each time filling the bases with two out. And on both occasions the pitchers, Messenger and Shores, flied out.

Lapan almost hit the ball, however, when he reached up and fouled a wide pitch.

Nason went into center field to grab Benton's drive in the third.

Turgeon sped into center field to make a superb snatch of Flaskamper's fly in the fourth.

Roetz went to his left to take Flippen's grounder in the fourth.

Mulvey went to the fence in the fifth to haul down Eldred's smash.

Turgeon handled seven chances and Roetz five without an error. Benton accepted six chances and his one misplay, a low throw, was not costly.

Outfielders were busy. Nason had eight "putouts," Mulvey five, and Fitzgerald four.

One Blow Wrecks Career

BOB MARTIN

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Staff Writer for Central Press

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 17.—Today I saw Bob Martin.

I caught at first glance again that same old boyish smile, mop of black hair, the giant wonderful shoulders—a sort of background for the bobbing heads in front of him.

Then he stepped into the open. Something was wrong. It was his stride. The rolling, zigzag gait of a sailor—the kind a gay gob acquires partly from his days afloat and partly from the few brief hours of the joys ashore.

A handshake. The smile of recognition, then a frown from a man puzzled over his new acquaintance, his whereabouts and the world in general.

And then he gave me facts—the strange story of Bob Martin.

Here it is:

Faces Life in Daze

Unless science comes to his rescue Bob Martin, who once flirted with the fame that came to Gene Tunney, will wander through the rest of his days a sort of derelict. Not punch drunk, as they say in ring parlance (unless it be from one punch).

He is not the victim of the recklessness of youth. He is sound in body and in mind—except for moments when he slips into darkness. Well, what was wrong with Bob Martin?

An impairment of the muscles and nerves that control the equilibratory apparatus of the human body leaves him incapable of moving at a rapid pace, rising or sitting without encountering a dizziness which at times overpowers him. And that same impairment halts or disrupts, at times, even the functioning of his brain.

Aware of the fact that he is roaming slowly toward the edge of the sidewalk as he plods his way about Huntington streets, Martin is unable to right his course as he desires.

Watching his eyes as he turns toward you suddenly, you see them quiver like those of a sleeping doll when its head is shaken violently, only Bob's eyes waver from side to side until they apparently come into focus again. During this period he is without the usual balance or equilibrium that the ordinary man or any creature has.

Blow Causes Blood Clot

Martin is probably a "case" in the eyes of physicians and specialists. That hasn't helped him to date, however. The consensus of opinion is that a blow on the head at some time or other produced a blood clot. This clot has passed away, but has left a so-called "scar" that impairs the usual movement or action of the nerves nearby—the nerves responsible for the normal functions destroyed.

To the layman—and Bob—a clearer explanation is made—that the "pendulum" in his brain, which swings back and forth to govern this equilibrium, is prevented from swinging freely by this scar. Touching this scar, it is halted, leaving Martin unable to regain his balance. This organism is directly related to the nerves of the eyes and brain, of course, and hence the action of the eyes, and the blank moments that leave him wavering mentally, as well.

Where Martin acquired this injury he doesn't know.

Bob's memory isn't impaired, except for those "cloudy" spells.

He recalls vividly the manner in which he broke into the boxing game.

There was a notice in a Y. M. C. A. hut in France. A plea for all who could box, wrestle, sing, dance or act, to volunteer their services to entertain their buddies. Bob volunteered to box. And laughs as he recalls the first bout.

His opponent, one Arthur Alexander, was 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighed 240 pounds. Bob knocked him out in two rounds.

Wins A. E. F. Title

"I guess that gave the boys and myself the idea I could box," says Bob, "and it wasn't long before I had won the heavyweight championship of the A. E. F. and then of the allied armies.

"Gene had won the light-heavyweight championship. I fought Tunney in a regularly scheduled fight of four rounds," says Bob, "and he outpointed me. After that we fought 18 times, but they were exhibition affairs for the boys, and so I suppose they don't count. I never thought then that Gene would become champion of the world.

"I wasn't thinking that I would be, either, but had my heart set on trying to get there."

Home again, and there came the brightest page in Bob's life. Ray Bronson, wise little fight manager, was waiting for him at the dock. A friendship and a working agreement between the two that carried Martin to some fame and to what now seems more important—a fortune—resulted.

The fortune has been blown away. Bob blames no one but himself—and perhaps the absence of a friend to advise him. The money came, too easy for a boy who had been working at day wages in a rubber factory when war was declared. Two thousand dollars were dumped into his big hands at a time. Then $2500. Then $3000. Two or three "big shots" netted him close to five figures. Came a desire for things that attract boys—big automobiles, with speed and the adoration of friends.

Bob Proud Family Man

But there were no women in this case. Love had come to Bob early. There are five youngsters now who gaze with pride on their big daddy. The youngest was only eight weeks old when I saw him.

The injury to Martin did not assert itself until a few short months ago.

He looks back on two incidents as being the possible cause of the trouble. There was his fight with the giant, lumbering Frank Moran in 1921. Martin lacked skill. He was game. Moran found Bob's head wide open for his famous "Mary Ann" blow. Some 18 or 19 times Moran drove it home. Most of the time Martin ducked enough to avoid being hit flush on the chin, but what may have been worse, the blows landed on the base of his skull, behind his ear. It is there that specialists say the clot formed.

Then there was the auto accident that followed a few months later.

"We were out riding in a new car," says Bob. "Then somebody suggested 'letting her out.' I did. At 78 miles an hour I hit a curve. They found me pinned down under the steering wheel. I was bruised and battered all over, my head included. It might have been then that I got the 'bad' bump."

Fortune Gone

"I earned just $265,000 in the ring—my end of the purses," concludes Bob. "A lot of it came after the Moran fight. Then, when I found I wasn't ever going to get to the top in the ring, I tried other things. I joined the state police in West Virginia for a time. Then back into the army. That was in 1925.

"I fought in exhibitions and one or two bouts in the service. It wasn't until a few months ago that all this came on."

Martin was discharged in May.

What does the future hold for him?

Well, he's getting 80 per cent full disability pension for disablement "not in the line of duty." That doesn't go very far in a family of seven.

Some time this summer Bob may join a vaudeville troupe. He's still Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the allied armies of the world war—you know. Still a great big, handsome chap, with his winning smile. He can walk to the center of the stage, lean nonchalantly against a helpful pedestal or chair back, and talk of the old days. Lots of folk will be glad to see him—he believes.

That's about what the future holds for him unless science, or some kind act of Providence, lifts the cloud that sends him about the streets these days a partial derelict.

Star Golfers Play In 'Met' Tourney

WESTFIELD, N. J., July 17. (UP)—The greatest gathering of golfers since the national open in Chicago will tee off Wednesday at the Shackamaxon club for the metropolitan championship.

Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge professional, who reached the peak of his game just in time to beat Bobby Jones in the playoff for the national open, will be the defending champion. Farrell shot four steady rounds in the metropolitan last year to beat out Bobby Cruickshank by one stroke.

Only three outstanding professionals will be missing this year—Walter Hagen, Jock Hutchinson and Jim Barnes. Chief among the stars who will try to lift Farrell's crown are Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, Willie Klein, Jack Forrester, Leo Diegel, Archie Compston, Mike Brady, Bill Mehlhorn, Bob MacDonald, George Dawson, Henry Cuici, John Golden, Maurice McCarthy, Goland Hancock, and Aubrey Boomer.

Rickard Lays Down Law to Gene 'As Fans' Interest in Go Wanes

So Wall Flower Becomes Life of Party, and Which Explains Tunney's Action Resembling Human Being

By ED FRAYNE

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 17. (US)—I have solved the great riddle of Speculator, the metamorphosis of James Joseph Tunney. As a matter of fact, there was nothing else to do in the camp today, as the chameleon champion determined that this was to be a day of rest. He took a long jaunt on the road early in the morning and loafed after that. He will box tomorrow.

So there was plenty of time to probe into the puzzling amiability of Mr. Tunney, and I employed it to good advantage. I suspected from the start that something dark was concealed beneath the lumber, and there is. It is Mr. George Tex Rickard, of course. I might have known.

My informant is as close to the promoter as any living being. He is one of the most important cogs in the ballyhoo machine. He probably would have his ears removed and his paycheck rescinded if I disclosed his identity. He was there or thereabouts, he said, on the important day when Tex waved his hand and the wonderous change took place.

Tex Tells Gibson

It happened in the Madison Square Garden office last Monday, he told me. The promoter had summoned Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, for an important conference. In his private sanctum, Rickard spoke loud and angrily, laying down the law. In effect, he said:

"Now, then, Gibson, I want a showdown. I'm sick and tired of this nonsense. I'm going to tell you a few facts.

"By the end of this week, the advance sale for this fight will have reached $500,000. We've got to sell another half million if my corporation hopes to show a profit.

"Don't interrupt me. You may think because we took in that much so quickly that there isn't anything to worry about in getting the other half. I know better.

Fans Holding Off

"We have taken in the easy money. We have been selling the people who go to heavyweight fights through curiosity. We have been selling to big companies that intend to hold sales conventions and to firms that will entertain buyers. Furthermore, this sale has taken months to achieve. We were taking orders long before the tickets were printed. The soft dough is all in.

"Now, I've got to sell this fight to the hard shelled fight fans. That's the toughest part of the job. They've been holding off. They're not so easy to please.

"And I need help, particularly from Tunney. We're paying him big money and I won't stand for no more of this foolishness. If he expects to be paid, he will have to help us get the wherewithal to pay him.

Demands Gene Change

"All I've heard for the past few months have been raps from the press about his inaccessibility. They say he isn't approachable. They say he doesn't care to talk fight. None of them want to go to his camp.

"He'll have to cut that out. He'll have to dig in and be nice. He'll have to exit himself to help us put this over. I'm entitled to co-operation from him, and you can tell him that I am going to insist on getting it. We have a hard row to hoe from now on, and if he wants my money, he'll have to help me make my crop."

Everyone, by this time, knows the effect of that conversation. Gene has made the most startling right about face the world of mitts ever produced.

The wall flower has become the life of the party.

KOPECKY WINS ROUGH MATCH

Parelli Loses On Forfeit; Moore Stops Bentley

Joe Parelli and Joe Kopecky, two "rough and tough" wrestlers who met in the main event of Promoter Alec Ross' wrestling and boxing show Tuesday night, fulfilled the fondest wishes of the fans, getting so hostile during the last fall that Referee Jack O'Brien was forced to concede the match to Kopecky when his opponent failed to break a strange hold.

The match was one of the best that has been put on by Ross in several weeks. It was so exciting from the start that only the shouts of the crowd dimmed the echo of the connection of resounding rabbit punches upon the heads of the wrestlers.

Each Gains Fall

Kopecky took the first fall in 10 minutes with a flying headlock. Parelli took the second with a body slam after 14 minutes of wrestling and slugging.

Actual fighting between Dempse Moore and Seaman Bentley lasted the total sum of 10 seconds in a scheduled 10-round exhibition. Dempse came from his corner with a two-fisted attack and drove the seaman to the canvas with a right to the body and an uppercut to the head.

Matlock Stops Lewis

Jack Matlock dropped Ted Lewis to the floor in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout after having floored him for four times in preceding rounds.

With the exception of an occasional flurry of left jabs Ted remained in the shell during the greater part of the bout.

The show was staged at the ball park.

Heeney Would Defend Title in England—Tex

NEW YORK, July 17. (UP)—The next heavyweight championship bout will be held in England if Tom Heeney defeats Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium July 26, Tex Rickard said today.

Rickard believes a bout in England would draw more than $1,000,000. He said Jack Dempsey might come out of retirement to meet Heeney if the latter gains the championship.

MODERN WOODMEN WIN

Modern Woodmen of America baseball team defeated the State Hospital nine yesterday, 4 to 2. The victors made six hits to three. Both teams made two errors.

Munn Barred Year For Poor Mat Bout

TULSA, Okla., July 17. (AP)—Because of the showing he made last night in his wrestling match with Martin Plestina, Wayne Munn of Kansas City, who gained fame in throwing Ed Lewis several years ago, was suspended for a year in all states governed by the national wrestling commission. His entire purse, governed by a percentage of the house receipts last night, was forfeited in the ruling issued by the city athletic commission suspending him.

The commission also recommended that Munn retire from the mat game. Plestina won the first fall in 29:17 and the second and final fall in 8:31, both with body slams. Munn made little resistance, which led the athletic commission to take its drastic action.

BROAD STREET 'Y' WINS

The Broad street nine shutout Fall's Clothing store team yesterday, 14 to 0, at Jalonic diamond. Charles Mann hurled a one-hit victory.

MORRIS BATTERY VICTOR

Morris Battery station scored another victory yesterday, defeating Swift and company nine, 19 to 2. Spence held the losers to two hits. Bateries: Spence and Flack; Conners, Taylor and Jones.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

TOMMY LOUGHRAN has fulfilled the promise made when he won the light heavyweight title that he would be a fighting champion. No wearer of the royal mantle in pugilism in recent years has shown a willingness to defend his crown against formidable battlers in decision mills as the king of the 175-pounders. But Tommy, in frequent fights since he became champion, has shown little to warrant the belief of himself and admirers that he is the next "man of destiny" in boxing. The title as champion heavyweight of the world seems safe for Gene Tunney so far as Tommy Loughran is concerned.

LOUGHRAN STILL is light heavy champ by grace of superb condition, boxing skill and ring generalship. Aside from those qualities he has shown nothing to indicate he is a fit adversary for Tunney—or any leading heavyweight. Lack of a soporific punch and aggressiveness would enable a hard-hitting heavyweight to beat him. Tunney would match Loughran in cleverness, and Gene would jab Tommy silly. Indeed, Tunney probably would knock out Loughran in rather speedy fashion.

Tommy was floored twice by Leo Lomski but his recuperative powers and superior boxing skill enabled him to pull through to win the decision in 15 rounds. Pete Latzo gave Loughran two terrific fights and the margin of Tommy's victories in both mills was very slight. In fact both decisions were hairline affairs. On the strength of his fights since he became champion Loughran is to be listed as not an extraordinary champion as regards real fighting ability. But he must be accorded all the praise and admiration due a fighter who would defend his title against all comers, regardless of the menace to his crown.

TRIS SPEAKER is the latest "candidate" for the post of managing the Chicago White Sox. Rumor emanating from Chicago shortly after Ray Schalk was deposed and Lena Blackburne handed the job was to the effect that the Texan would be offered the place and that he would accept. Tris, it is said, has a clause in his contract with the Athletics that provides that if he is offered a job as manager he shall be released by the Philadelphia club. With the Sox going well under Blackburne the Speaker gossip is temporarily hushed. However, if the pale hose tribe encounters a slump, which isn't unlikely it may be revived.

SPEAKER BACK in the role as a manager would not be surprising this season or next. Spoke was a success as leader of the Cleveland Indians, whom he led to the only world championship won by the Forest City. He is the type of boss greatly admired by the fans. Spoke, is a fighting, fiery leader. His players will play as Speaker directs, or the recalcitrants will be invited back of the club house to find out who is boss.

BUFFS HANDED WIN BY SPORTS

Shreveport Misplays Cost 10th Straight Loss

SHREVEPORT, La., July 17. (AP)—Ragged fielding made it easy for the Buffs to carry off the second game of the series with the Sports and hand the local club its tenth consecutive defeat. CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Charles Hanson Towne has edited the Designer, Smart Set and McClures. He is the author of much verse, several songs, numerous articles and 12 books.

Recently Mr. Towne wrote an article for Harper's, in which he discussed the secrets of success in writing.

Wonder why people call them secrets of success?—Everybody's always telling them to somebody else.

Mr. Towne's risibilities are tickled by the following:

"It seems to me that the very best story I ever heard," the big editor told me, "is about a soldier who was telling his experiences in the war to an old lady.

"'One day,' he began, 'we started out for Wipers—'

"'Ypres,' interrupted the old lady.

"'Well,' continued the soldier, 'as I was saying, we started out one day for Wipers—'

"'Ypres,' interrupted the old lady.

"'As I was saying, we were leaving for Wipers—'

"'Ypres,' interrupted the old lady.

"'Listen, lady,' broke in the soldier, 'you ought to do something about them hiccoughs!'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

The Skin

There are many shades of color to the human skin, and our place in society and the effect of our appearance upon other human beings is largely dependent upon our skin. A Hottentot or an Eskimo might be as intelligent and well educated as a white man, but he would never be accorded as high a position in white society.

There is much truth in the saying that beauty is only skin deep. But the skin serves other purposes than camouflaging our muscles and bones. It is a protective covering of the body, keeping out many dangerous germs, insects and poisons, and retaining the fluids and minerals that are essential to life.

The skin is also an organ of feeling, since most of our nerves of touch end in or immediately under the skin. It regulates the temperature of the body so that when we are too warm moisture is thrown off, and by the process of evaporation, keeps the body cool. The skin also conserves the heat of the body by driving the blood away from the surface into the inner organs that must be kept warm to preserve life. The skin assists the lungs and kidneys to excrete water containing various toxic waste products, which are so poisonous, that if they were retained, would produce death within a very short time.

There are two main divisions to the skin, an outer tough coating called the epidermis, and the inner soft layer, rich in blood vessels and nerves, which is known as the derma or true skin. The epidermis or outer layer consists of dead cells which are continually forced out from the inside. Since the only growing cells of the outer layer of the skin are located internally, near the dermis, these divide and force the older cells outwardly where they in time scale off.

Whenever an unusual pressure comes on the skin such as occurs on the soles of the feet or in the palms of the hands, the epidermal cells multiply with a great rapidity and produce an abnormal thickening. If the pressure occurs on a limited area as sometimes happens when a tight shoe is worn, a little mound of epidermal cells is built up which we call a corn or callous. This may be removed by various methods, but will always recur unless the pressure that caused the growth is removed.

A wart is a place where some irritating acid from the blood has gathered which causes the epidermis cells to grow and multiply much more rapidly than is natural. Cancer seems to be caused in much the same manner, and may occur either in the epidermal cells or in the connective tissues which bind the body together.

The difference in color of the various races and even of individuals is caused by the pigment in the lower cells of the epidermis. There is no difference in the color of the blood of different races. The outer layers of the epidermis are translucent, and partly transparent, which allows us to look through and see the coloring of the lower cells. Any exposure to the sun causes the coloring matter to become more abundant in the skin, and we term this tan. When a spot of the epidermis becomes unusually pigmented, we term the spot a freckle. This skin pigment is for the purpose of protecting the nerves and other structure beneath the epidermis from certain destructive rays in the sunlight.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. M. L. writes: "I am troubled most of the time by a drowsy, heavy feeling. It does not necessarily follow eating. I sometimes have it immediately upon arising. Will you please tell me the cause and remedy?"

Answer—You are probably suffering from some kind of toxic condition. Try eating less and exercising more. Take a good walk twice daily, finishing with a cold shower each time.

Question—Mrs. G. H. asks: "Will you please tell me what foods, if any, contain iodine?"

Answer—The following foods contain the largest amount of iodine: Asparagus, pineapple, cabbage, kidney beans, mushrooms, carrots, strawberries, shrimp and other shell fish.

Question—M. K. H. writes: "My husband has been ill with heart trouble for nearly a year—leaky valve. The heart specialist ordered complete rest, but he has insisted on taking two treatments a week from an osteopath, and his improvement has been very slow. Would not such treatment force the blood through the heart as rapidly as any other form of exercise."

Answer—Your husband will never be cured of heart trouble as long as he uses the "complete rest" treatment. Osteopathic treatments will surely be helpful to him, but he must get up and walk around several times daily in order to properly exercise the heart muscles. His diet should be very limited and care must be used to preclude any possibility of flatulence. Exercises should be taken while lying in bed, and the walking increased each day in order to develop the strength which is needed to overcome any heart derangement.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 17. (AP)—A further decline of about $1.50 a bale was followed by partial recoveries in the cotton market today. Prices made new low ground for the movement on early decline with October contracts selling off to 21.06, or 29 points net lower and 181 points below the recent high level. Offerings tapered off at this figure, and there were rallies on covering or rebuying which carried the price up to 21.32. This improvement was not fully maintained and October closed at 21.21, the general market closing easy at net declines of 12 to 23 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 12 points which was only a partial response to relatively easy cables. The market sold up a few points after the call on covering promoted by reports of rains in Mississippi and prospects for showers in eastern and central belt sections. July sold up to 21.10 and December to 21.13, but the rally met increased offerings and the market weakened under renewed liquidation which included heavy selling for Liverpool and continental account. For a time, the market was under great pressure and stop orders were uncovered as prices broke below previous low levels.

The market turned steadier in the early afternoon.

Reiterated reports of boll weevil infestation and belief that the technical position of the market had strengthened materially on the declines from the high prices late last month, promoted covering and as prices firmed up, buying attributed to the replacing of long cotton liquidated during the progress of the recent decline. October sold up to 21.32 on this bulge.

Exports today 3,376, making 7,363,548 so far this season. Port receipts 4,655. U. S. port stocks, 745,433.

Futures closed easy, 12 to 23 points lower; middling 21.50.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 17. (AP)—Cotton prices again developed a reactionary tendency today under liquidation by longs based on better crop and weather reports. October contracts traded off from a high of 20.78 to 20.50, or 28 points net down. In the final trading the option rallied to 20.74 but eased off again and closed at 20.64, compared with 20.50 at yesterday's close. The general market closed steady at net losses of 12 to 14 points.

Liverpool cables were 5 to 8 penny points lower than due and the market here opened easy in sympathy. First trades showed losses of 7 to 11 points but prices promptly recovered only to weaken under selling based on a more favorable weather map. December sold down to 20.48, or 22 points net lower.

As the morning progressed liquidation by longs increased. Before the offerings were absorbed December had plunged to 20.43, or 27 points off from yesterday's close.

Around mid-session the market steadied somewhat under covering by satisfied shorts and some buying promoted by the improved technical position of the market. And prices worked back to within 4 or 5 points of the highs.

In the late trading, however a renewal of liquidation carried December to 20.38, and despite the attempts of some belated shorts to cover the option closed at that figure, or net 12 points down for the day.

Further Ease in Call Money Rate Bolsters Stocks to Slight Rally

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, July 17.—Stocks rallied in very dull trading as money eased from a renewal of 6 to 5½ per cent today. Toward the close there were some accommodations received outside of regular channels at as low as 5 per cent.

A weak opening resulted from accumulation of selling orders but the rally was under way soon after trading commenced and most issues held well until the close. It was largely a technical comeback resulting from a momentarily oversold condition and that trading remained largely professional was evidenced by the smallness of the turnover of under 1,500,000 shares.

General Motors was leader again and jumped back 3⅜ points while other standard industrials rallied a point or so. Montgomery Ward was in good demand also. Atlantic Refining gained 4½ while other oils were practically unchanged. Railroads remained a little soft.

Cotton rallied after early weakness but the grain market remained irregular. Sterling and other foreign currencies were extremely quiet and held to narrow price range.

Colonel Ayres' expression of belief that the era of Coolidge prosperity was at an end brought forth statements from bankers and others who strongly disagreed with him. They believe the colonel is rather over-emphasizing the effect of the gold shipments that have taken place and equally minimizing the potential influence of the credit available through the huge supply of gold remaining in this country. They admit that the stock market correction may proceed further in order to erase the effect of the too rapid increase in amount of credit that the market was using but look for another general advance when such correction is ended inasmuch as major industries are enjoying greater activity than in previous years this season. They pointed to the easing in the call rate as evidence that a close watch is being maintained by the money powers so that nothing will be permitted to interfere with business expansion.

The statement of Mr. Raskob concerning further purchasing of General Motors for the account of the Managers Securities was regarded as the best answer to Colonel Ayres views.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
(Universal Service)

CHICAGO, July 17.—Grains closed irregularly today with most of the futures showing gains for the session. All the corn futures finished higher.

At the end wheat was ½c higher to ⅛c lower; corn was up ⅝c to 1⅝c; oats were ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower; rye was down ½c to 2⅛c.

The pit element has turned bullish on corn and local support combined with a good deal of short covering gave the market strength. It dipped right after the opening but regained its small loss within the first hour. After that it was working higher most of the ttime and closed near the top for the day.

Receipts of corn were large, up to nearly the 200-car mark. Reports from the belt were optimistic.

The consensus is that the total crop will be well over 3,000,000,000 bushels and perhaps the largest on record. These opinions are guesses, of course, but they are quite as trustworthy as the recent government estimate.

The strength in the market, however, turns on the old corn situation. The bulls in the July deal are still confident that they have the better of the argument. They suppose that ultimately shorts will have to cover in that future and put corn up to a high price.

Wheat was erratic most of the session, but appeared to be gathering strength. Sentiment on this grain remains intensely bearish.

Rye continued to look sickly. When this grain wont bull it is difficult to see sound reasons, outside of purely market conditions for expecting other grains to advance decidedly.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was unchanged to ½c higher; oats were unchanged; rye was quiet; barley was 2c to 3c lower.

HIGHER PRICES FOR GASOLINE

Still Better Figures for Motor Fuels Seen

TULSA, Okla., July 17. — Higher prices for motor fuels.

Refiners and natural gasoline manufacturers say that present spot prices cannot hold long and both look for higher quotations. Just how high they will go is anyone's guess.

The exporters who have cleaned up North Texas and Shreveport groups of high gravity gasolines several times this summer are responsible to a large degree. West Texas is also partly to blame. Many refiners are using considerable quantities of natural gasoline to bring gasoline made from West Texas oils up to where the purchasers will accept the product.

U. S. motor grade of gasoline is firmly pegged at 8½ cents a gallon. Natural gasoline prices, irrespective of grades, were held at 8¼ to 8½ cents.

Prevailing prices in group 3 Monday appeared to be:

Gasoline-Naphtha

Strong, with 50-52, 450 ep naphtha at 7½ to 7¾ cents; 56-58, 450 ep gasoline at 8 cents; 56-58, 437 ep (U. S. Motor) at 8 to 8¼ cents; 60, 437 ep (U. S. Motor) at 8⅜ to 8½ cents; 60-62, 400 ep, at 8½ to 8⅝ cents; 64-66, 390 ep, at 8⅝ to 8¾ cents; 64-66 375 ep, 8¾ to 8⅞ cents; 68-70, 350-360 ep, 9 cents.

Natural Gasoline

Strong and advancing. Grades AA and A, BB and B and C, held at 8¼ to 8½ cents.

Burning Oils

Unchanged with a few products slightly steadier. 41-63, water white kerosene at 4½ to 4⅝ for the 41-43 at 4⅜ to 5 cents; 38-40, distillate at 3 to 3⅛ cents; 32-36, gas oil at 2⅝ to 2¾ cents; 24-26, fuel oil 65 to 70 cents per barrel, and 14-16 fuel oil at 55 to 60 cents per barrel.

Chicago Market

Strong with U. S. Motor gasoline firmly pegged at 8¼ to 8⅜ cents; kerosene at 4½ to 4⅝ for the 4-43 grade, and fuel oil slightly firmer at 65 to 67½ cents for the 24-26 grade.

DUNLOP'S 40 YEARS

"WHAT OF IT? . . . Even if Dunlop has had the longest experience in tire-building, does that affect my car?

No. Not the mere fact of 40 years' experience. That might mean nothing. But, there is big meaning to you in the success of Dunlop's 40 years.

Such sustained success shows that Dunlop knows how to build maximum value into tires. The 26 million Dunlop tires now running form a world-wide evidence of Dunlop's superiority.

For 40 years . . . . year after year . . . . old friends have been sticking to Dunlop and new friends have been turning to Dunlop. These millions of motorists must be right. They have had experience in using Dunlops. They know.

As soon as you try a set, you, too, will know. You will find that Dunlop's successful experience means extra value to you.

"DUNLOP CITY"

Throughout the world, the productive Dunlop Properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

Dunlop challenges the world for the title, "THE WORLD'S GREATEST TIRE." Buy one for your car, run it against any tire; keep track of the cost per mile, and then buy your future tires as the test shows you should. FOR ECONOMY'S SAKE YOU OWE YOURSELF THIS TEST.

PHANTOM RADIO WORKS MAGIC

Telegraph Operator Makes New Discovery

NEW YORK, July 17. (UP)—Earl W. Davidson, telegraph operator of the Reading railroad, whose home is at Terre Hill, Pa., worked weird magic here today in tests with what he calls his "phantom radio," by talking between two radio receiving sets over the carrier wave of a broadcasting station.

Talking into an inexpensive loud speaker hooked up to his homemade phantom set, which was tuned to station WMCA, he communicated with Mrs. George Washington Wilson, who was listening by prearrangement to her loud speaker in her rooms at the Hotel Wellington, Seventh avenue and Fifty-fifth street. Her set, a four-year-old Radiola portable, with self-contained speaker and an indoor aerial, was also tuned to station WMCA.

New Discovery

Mrs. Wilson, whose late husband was commissioner of internal revenue at Washington, was able to hear everything Davidson said during a lull in broadcasting as clearly as though he had been speaking by telephone. The test was in daytime, while other stations were on the air with programs.

The test, conducted merely to demonstrate a new and revolutionary radio principle discovered by Davidson in his little farmhouse experimental laboratory near the village of Terre Hill, Pa., was the first of its kind ever made in New York. Davidson said it meant new and remarkable uses for radio in future, when he is ready to go into production with his phantom circuit.

The whole trick, he says, lies in the arrangement of the circuit, using a crystal and three ordinary tubes. With this circuit and three tubes he is able to bring in far-distant stations such as TLO, London, and elsewhere in Europe, as well as Los Angeles, Mexico City and Havana.

Old Settlers' Picnic Planned at McKinney

M'KINNEY, Texas, July 17. (Sp.) Plans for the annual Confederate veterans and old settlers' picnic and reunion which will be held here July 25 to 27, were made at a meeting of the picnic association at the Collins County bank. Ula Saunders will be president of the association.

Features of the celebration will include a fireworks display, a parade, a baby show, a dinner, and informal speeches by citizens. The local chapter of the U. D. C. and the Boy Scouts are planning on giving valuable service during the three-day event.

Industrial Conditions Now Above Average

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—Secretary Davis, after studying the monthly employment report made by the labor department upon conditions as they were at the beginning of July, expressed the opinion in a statement today that industrial conditions in the United States were better than they usually are at this season.

MORE TRIBUTE TO CARRANZA

Fallen Flier Honored By Throngs in New York

NEW YORK, July 17. (US)—New York and the nation continued today to pay reverent tribute to Captain Emilio Carranza, youthful Mexican ace, as his body lay in state in Campbell's funeral church.

Lines of sympathizers stretched four abreast for a block. The police admitted them 20 at a time every three minutes. They proceeded to the gold room on the third floor where the casket, closed since Monday, lay banked with flowers and draped with flags of many nations.

Women Hysterical

Two women dressed in white, who arrived in a foreign car, were quickly escorted to the bier. They knelt and prayed and began to cry hysterically. A man accompanying them led them out weeping but refused to give their names.

Floral tributes bearing messages of condolence from all over the world continue to arrive, and the cards are retained by a member of the Mexican consulate for return to Mexico City. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Horses Shipped

The six-horse team which will draw the caisson for the body with the charger to be led behind it, left West Point tonight by boat accompanied by a detachment of regular army men from the U. S. Military academy, and will arrive tomorrow morning. A military guard of 10,000 will accompany the caisson to Pennsylvania station and blow taps just before the departure of the funeral train for Juares, Mexico.

A guard of honor composed of 16 non-commissioned officers, all over six feet in height, was chosen today from among veterans of the regular army at Governor's island. The Mexican consul general's office notified General Ely that Lieutenant Armando Maraida of the Mexican army will also accompany the body on the train.

Stop at St. Louis

At St. Louis, where a stop will be made to change trains, another military guard will meet the train while the transfer is being made four dirigibles will hover over the depot and fly some distance with the funeral party.

Mexican Consul General Arturo M. Elias dispatched a messenger today to Chatsworth, N. J., with a purse of $500 to be presented John Henry Carr with the thanks of the Mexican government. Carr is the 26-year-old berry picker who came upon the body and wrecked plane of young Carranza last Friday after a lightning bolt had ended the "Mexican Lindbergh's" proposed non-stop return flight to Mexico City.

Morticians Turning To Advertising, Club Told

It is no longer unethical for morticians to use the medium of advertising, and within a few years they will be using advertising just as any other business today does, R. E. Shepherd, former mayor, predicted in an address on "Advertising in the Funeral Business," delivered Tuesday before members of the Advertising club. Mr. Shepherd is connected with the Burris-Shepherd funeral home.

"We advertise," he continued, "through the efficient service we render. The funeral business is one of the greatest fields for service, because there is the opportunity to help someone who really needs help."

In addition to making this address, Mr. Shepherd, assisted by Misses Jean Fisk, Frances Phillips, and Lorene Tucker, in a cycle of songs. J. W. Pyland was in charge of the program. A. E. Kelly, new president, presided over a short business session.

"All they have to do is to clip out this coupon and present it at the box office. The show is "Lady Raffles," in which Jack Dempsey's wife, Estelle Taylor, is starred. The program also includes a Ben Turpin comedy and Fox newsreel."

There is great expectancy in the motion picture world over the advent of the first of the talking motion pictures which will be all talking and without sub titles.

Few talkies have been made to date. So few, in fact, that Wichita Falls is getting each one just as soon as it is released. That is going some for a little old town in West Texas to be served ahead of many of the metropolitan cities.

There has been a lot of comment on Al Jolson's "The Jazz Singer," the first of the big talkies to reach the city. It played here for two weeks and broke a lot of records. Many of the big cities have not seen it yet. Many Wichitans were on vacation at the time the picture was presented at the Strand, and they failed to see it. It is the humble idea of this column that the picture was so remarkable, so powerful and so great in every way that it should be brought back to the Strand for just two or three days to let who did not have the chance before to hear and see Al Jolson in one of the greatest pieces of work he has ever done. It has not been the policy of the Strand to run Vitaphone pictures for less than a week, but we feel certain that if the people of the city really want to hear Al Jolson sing once again, that the Strand would be glad to make every effort to bring it here again.

Esther Ralston in "Half A Bride", now playing at the Olympic.

Many people have spoken of this on the street. If you would really like to have another chance to see "The Jazz Singer" we suggest you drop a card or a letter to the Strand and tell them so.

WOLF HUNTERS TO SOUTHWEST

Marauding Animals To Be Hunted in Oklahoma

WASHINGTON, July 18. (UP)—Wolves are roaming the foot hills of Oklahoma and Arkansas.

This report reaching the bureau of biological survey, department of agriculture, today sent a dozen expert hunters into the wolf-infested territory.

Not that the animals are dangerous to humans, but they are destroying thousands of dollars worth of valuable stock.

P. S. Young, director of the hunters, said the animals had increased beyond the ability of stock raisers and farmers to cope with. Scores of pleas for assistance have reached the survey office. But lack of funds prevented the government from extending aid until money for the new fiscal year became available.

Slowly but surely the government is overcoming the menace of the wolf to stock farmers. More than 600 federal hunters are in the field in practically every state from Arkansas west.

Last year the hunters accounted for 82,000 coyotes, 186 stock-killing bears, 47 grey wolves, 154 red wolves, 246 mountain lions and 3,677 bob cats—all of which were partially responsible for the annual destruction of $30,000,000 worth of stock.

CITY CHECKS SEWER BOOKS

Workers Start Task of Closing Records

Even though the time originally allowed to property owners for the payment of sewer rentals has passed, those who have not paid will be allowed to continue doing so while the books are being checked up, according to an announcement made by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, Tuesday afternoon.

"There are a great number of accounts, thousands of them, and it will take several days, possibly a week, to complete the check of the list," Mr. Fairtrace explained.

"Meantime, those who have not paid will be allowed to pay their sewer rentals. The city urges everyone who has not paid to do so at once and to take advantage of this open time. We are not guaranteeing any specific time for the payments now, as it is just a question of bookkeeping. As soon as that is completed, there will be no more payments and action will be started to cut off water and sewer service in accordance with the ordinance."

Monday was the heaviest day on record in sewer rental payments as $3000 was received by the department that day, a check of the records revealed Tuesday.

Dam Opponents' Methods Bared

WASHINGTON, July 17. (US)—Inside workings of the powerful public utility machine which deluged the middle west and southwest with propaganda against the Boulder dam project during the last two sessions of congress were exposed in records under investigation by the federal trade commission today.

The propaganda campaign was promoted by New York headquarters of the National Electric Light association, dominant organization of the power lobby, the records showed.

Public utility companies were assessed to foot the bills. Expenditures of this sort are charged in turn against consumers, on their bills, the commission's record shows.

George F. Oxley, chief propagandist of the light association, struck the keynote for the campaign in a letter to J. B. Sheridan, director of the Missouri propaganda committee. Oxley declared there was overproduction of many farm products. Editors were to be told that irrigation of land near the dam would bring more products on the market to "compete with products raised elsewhere."

Industrial development was to be represented as having the same effect on other sections of the country.

J. E. Hillemeyer of the Union Electric Light and Power company, St. Louis, urged Sheridan to turn out all possible printed matter "and get it reproduced as often as possible in some sections of the state in which it will do the best good as a means of offsetting improper and malicious inclinations."

Jury Gives Man Light Fine After Hearing Story of Big Fee Payment

W. L. Hamrick, convicted in 30th district court Tuesday on charges of driving while intoxicated, who asked for a suspended sentence upon a plea of guilty, was fined $10 and costs by a jury when it was announced by his attorney, Fred Weeks, that his client had paid a $100 fee to a man posing as a lawyer. The pseudo-lawyer told Hamrick, Mr. Weeks said, that he would arrange to have the case dropped if he would pay the fee.

During the course of his argument Mr. Weeks had told the jury of the incident.

Judge E. G. Thornton halted court for a moment.

"I should like to suggest that it is Mr. Weeks' duty to supply the grand jury with whatever information he may possess concerning the incident he describes," he told the attorney.

Prior to the interruption of the trial with Mr. Weeks' unusual information, Hamrick had pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and had testified that he had paid damages suffered by a second car in a minor collision with his automobile.

Gage McDemett, prosecuting the case, suggested that a small fine would be satisfactory to the state. The jury deliberated only a short time before the verdict was reached.

King of Cat Burglars Clears Mystery Of London's Most Baffling Robbery

LONDON, July 17. (US)—James McCraig, the king of cat burglars, sentenced to four years' penal servitude at Newcastle for taking part in a jewel raid, proudly boasted today that he is the author of the greatest robbery ever committed in England.

He is the man who stole the famous Wernher collection of antiques from Bath House, Piccadilly, on June 11, 1924.

The collection was formed by the late Sir Julius C. Wernher, the millionaire diamond merchant, and consisted of fifteenth and sixteenth century jewels and ornaments which cost him more than one million pounds. As a collection their value was infinitely greater.

Jewels Exhibited

They passed into the possession of his widow, who afterwards became Lady Ludlow, and were exhibited in glass cases in the red room on the first floor of Bath House.

McCraig, who was known in America as the "human fly" because of the ease and agility with which he climbed up the front of houses which he raided, came to London in 1922, after being liberated from Sing Sing prison.

Within a few weeks he had, with cat-like activity, climbed up the porticoes of so many London mansions and secured such a quantity of valuable jewelry that he was able to establish himself, with other criminals, in a luxuriously furnished flat in Jermyn street.

Has Receiver

One of his boon companions was a notorious receiver, who had a flat not far from Bath House. From this flat McCraig laid his plans for his raid on the Wernher collection.

On the night of June 11, 1924, McCraig, who has a slight stature, but with a strong, wiry frame, hid himself in the basement of Bath House. On the following morning the whole of the million-pound collection had disappeared from their cases, the doors of which had been broken open.

The thief had taken silk cushions from the parquet drawing room adjoining the red room, emptied them of their soft down, filled them with the thousand and one precious objects of art and had escaped by going up the servants' staircase and down an iron fire escape to the flat roof of the courtyard, from which he jumped over the wall into Bolton street, leaving only a trail of white down behind him.

One million pounds' worth of antiques had vanished, and Scotland Yard was puzzled to know how the "job" had been done and who had done it.

Six months later the world was astonished to learn that the whole of the collection had been returned intact to Lady Ludlow.

Mystery Deepens

The mystery deepened. It was not stated how or by whom the property was restored. All that was known definitely was that the treasures had not been returned through the agency of the police.

The police continued their inquiries, and eventually they satisfied themselves that McCraig was the thief, but there was not sufficient evidence to justify his arrest. It is believed that the receiver to whom he sold the treasures for a very small sum found it impossible to dispose of them without running grave risk of discovery, and decided by devious means to return them secretly to their owner.

James McCraig, alias George Enright, has told a friend of the part he played in this unparalleled robbery, but the facts about the final episode—the return of the treasures—have yet to be disclosed.

Angling Displaces Business As Hoover Beats Cal at Daily Catch

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 17. (UP)—Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, won fishing laurels today from President Coolidge.

Aside from selecting Hoover's successor as secretary of commerce and determining the part the president will play in the campaign, the most important business of the candidate and the president was fishing. They spent most of their time at the angler's art, and Hoover's catch was larger than the president's.

Between fishing excursions the new leader of the party and the old agreed upon the most propitious issues of the campaign. Hoover told Mr. Coolidge he would stress in his speech of acceptance at Palo Alto, Calif., August 11, the issues of continued Republican prosperity and efficient and economical governmental administration.

Mrs. Coolidge entertained Mrs. Hoover. The first lady escorted the wife of the candidate about the expansive summer White House grounds and rowed with her in a canoe paddled by secret service men.

GIRL, 9, KILLED IN CLARENDON

Services Held for Auto Victim

CLARENDON, July 17.—Willie Evelyn Hailey, 9-year-old daughter of L. A. Hatley, was almost instantly killed when she was struck by an automobile near her home last night. The car is said to have been driven by Jeff Addudell, farmer of the Brice community, who was returning to his home from Clarendon. The child, it is said, was accidentally struck while she was playing in the road, and an investigation of the tragedy was not ordered.

Funeral services for the victim were held from the home this afternoon. Burial was in the local cemetery.

The first person to vote in Wichita county, unless casting a vote from some other county by the absentee route, will mark his ballot Wednesday morning, the first day for those intending to be away from the county election day to scratch the ballot before leaving.

Residents expecting to be out of the county on July 28, or whose business may unexpectedly call them out of town on that day can visit the office of the county clerk within the next seven days and mark the ballot.

Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, has issued a warning to those who may not be here on election day that they must mark their ballot within three days of the election or go without a vote in the first primary.

Equalization Board Hears 102 Tax Cases

Hearings of the city board of equalization will open the second day Tuesday in the office of W. R. Hyer, city tax collector and assessor.

Monday there were 102 cases heard, and in only a few instances were there any reductions made, Mr. Hyer said. "The tax equalization board is holding pretty close to the values of last year," he explained. "Every effort is being made to hear the cases as quickly as possible, and the board is doing its best to work rapidly."

A line which formed with the opening of the office Monday morning continued until the office closed for the night.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 68

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.
