Coming Sunday

Testing

The mercury testing the heat of the political races is rising as the candidates enter their final week. A series beginning Sunday will look at the contested races on the Democratic and Republican ballots.

Moving

The recently restructured service program at High Sky Girls Ranch has youth, such as Stacy Shawn, left, Carrie Peyton, center and Jodi Peyton, and staff moving to the beat of a different drummer. Read about the girls ranch in Sunday's Lifestyle section.

Agreeing

A year and a half ago President Reagan appointed Midlander Ros Haley to UNESCO. Now the U.S. is considering withdrawing and Mrs. Haley agrees with that decision. She tells why in a special opinion page feature this Sunday.

Choir serenades new U.S. citizens

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Fridays are known for zany antics and unusual activities, so a bit of craziness is generally understood and excused.

But things progressed far beyond atypical in Midland's federal courtroom Friday afternoon.

The usual respectful hush was broken by the plink of piano keys, the harmonious blending of several youthful voices and enthusiastic applause.

Even the normally solemn face of Federal District Judge Lucius Bunton was wreathed in smiles as 50 newly naturalized citizens were greeted by a 29-member choir from Odessa College.

"I don't know when I have ever been so impressed with the ceremony welcoming new citizens," Bunton said. "It's warmed the cockles of my heart — whatever they are."

Usually a speaker delivers an address at the naturalization ceremonies. "We all understand the language of music," Bunton said in explaining why he arranged for the novel event.

About 100 persons attended the ceremony, which granted U.S. citizenship to people varying in age from 18 to 69 and representing nine countries.

The black-robed choir, led by Dr. Maurice Alfred, assistant professor of vocal music at OC, recently returned from performing in Switzerland. They sang several patriotic arrangements during the mini-concert, including "America the Beautiful," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

No music video could compete with the spine-tingling pleasure experienced by many of the listeners. "Every time I hear these songs I can't help but get a few tears in my eyes," Bunton said.

Reagan confers with Deng

PEKING (AP) — President Reagan began his final session of meetings with China's senior leaders this morning, conferring with Deng Xiaoping, after Reagan and other Chinese officials, seeking areas of agreement found instead differences over the CIA-backed mining of Nicaraguan harbors, the Middle East and Taiwan.

"I've been looking forward to meeting your excellency for two years," the 79-year-old Deng told Reagan. "It's useful when we talk to each other face to face on certain matters."

The Chinese crossed up Reagan earlier by heavily editing their nationwide television broadcast of a speech he delivered.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said U.S. officials regretted that Reagan's address was not presented in its entirety, but he acknowledged that the content of programs on Chinese television was an internal matter.

At his meeting with Reagan, Deng engaged in a dialogue with Mrs. Reagan, who was invited to attend a picture-taking session before the formal business meeting. Later, the Reagans planned to tour the 2,000-year-old Great Wall.

Deng said Mrs. Reagan's visit with her husband was too short and said, "I hope you will come next time and leave the president at home." To smiles all around, he suggested that Mrs. Reagan bring her grandchildren next time.

Later, in a separate picture-taking session, Deng told the 73-year-old Reagan, "you look very healthy and strong." He added, "Today we belong to the same age group. We are both in our 70s but in three months I will be in my 80s."

President and Mrs. Reagan and Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang use chopsticks at the state banquet held in the Great Hall of the People Friday night in Peking.

Reagan replied, "After the 70s it doesn't matter much. I will be there soon myself."

Deng told Reagan, "It is not a good thing to enter the 80s. When you reach the 80s, you will be much stronger than I am now."

In a long day that included two sessions with Premier Zhao Ziyang; a meeting with Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the Chinese Communist Party; a speech extolling the virtues of capitalism, and a state dinner in the Great Hall of the People, Reagan seemed to find a common theme — U.S. and Chinese opposition to the Soviet Union.

The two nations agreed that both can benefit in the development of their economic ties, and they announced that Hu would visit the United States.

"Today, the peace of the world is threatened by a major power that is focusing its resources and energies not on economic progress but, instead, on military power," Reagan said in a toast to Zhao at the dinner.

"To preserve the peace and protect our own sovereignty and independence, we stand together in opposing expansionism and hegemony," the president said in a reference to the Soviets.

The Chinese, in an apparent sign of disapproval of the president's harsh language about their northern neighbor, deleted from a delayed broadcast of a speech Reagan gave earlier in the day similar criticism of the Soviets.

"They just didn't want to offend a third country," said a White House official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name.

The broadcast also removed nearly all of the president's comments praising capitalism as well as a reference he made to God.

Speakes said that shortly before the program was aired, American officials were told that portions dealing with the Soviet Union would not be broadcast, Speakes said.

Even later, he added, "we learned that the broadcast also omitted several other segments of the speech — including key passages dealing with the president's view of values that Americans cherish, including religion and democracy."

Libyan embassy seige ends

LONDON (AP) — The police siege of the Libyan Embassy ended peacefully Friday, with the occupants filing out 10 days after submachine-gun fire from an embassy window killed a British policewoman and wounded 11 demonstrators.

Diplomats from Britain and Libya closed their embassies and flew home, with relations between the two countries severed.

Thirty Libyans emerged from the besieged embassy into the sunlight of St. James's Square. Police took them first to a holding building near Heathrow airport for questioning and customs clearance, then to the airport where they boarded a Libyan Arab Airlines plane and departed at 7:47 p.m. for Tripoli, the Libyan capital.

Britain's Independent Radio News network reported from Tripoli that the Libyan jet landed there 3½ hours later and the expelled diplomats were hailed as heroes. It said they were met by Foreign Minister Ali Abdussalam Treiki and a crowd of relatives and airport workers chanted "Down with Britain!"

Also in Tripoli, the Union Jack came fluttering down outside Britain's seaside embassy and Ambassador Oliver Miles with 11 staff members and their families flew home aboard a British Caledonian jetliner.

They arrived at Gatwick airport outside London to a champagne welcome from Foreign Office officials, led by Undersecretary Richard Luce, and relatives.

"We have nothing against the Libyan people. We would like to have good relations with Libya," Luce said. But he added, "we are entitled to expect certain standards of behavior...and the outrage of April 17 was...an unprecedented abuse of British law and of international law and the Vienna Convention" on diplomatic conduct.

Libya's state television marked the British departure with an angry commentary. In a broadcast monitored here, it accused Britain of being "barbaric and racist." It said Britain was taking orders from "Washington politicians" and was breaking "international values, customs and agreements."

British Home Secretary Leon Brittan, in turn, told a news conference that the murder of the policewoman was a "ghastly outrage which was a blot upon international relations."

He said he was glad "the presence that has been so damaging to London is now removed" and added "we will urgently look to see what lessons can be learned" involving public order and immigration.

"The procedure we will follow will make it very difficult for anyone to come in from Libya in the next few months," Brittan said. He also said the Foreign Office would review the Vienna Convention on diplomatic immunity and might propose amendments.

Court says 'nyet' to biker

MOSCOW (AP) — Nine nights of fun, eight juicy chickens, seven weeks a-fishin', six ripened melons, four quarts of berries, two troubled kidneys and a slightly dented motorbike.

That's not a Christmas list, but an inventory for a lawsuit stemming from what a newspaper called "an ordinary, very small traffic accident" in the Ukraine.

Find it hard to imagine how a chicken or a sunny day fishing on the banks of the Dnepr River relates to such a smashup? So did court officials in the Ukrainian city of Zoporozhe and so does the newspaper Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya (Socialist Industry).

"Even the most experienced servants of the court in Zoporozhe are only now recovering," the newspaper said.

The case began, it said, when a "daydreaming" cab driver hit a motorbike driven by one V. Basov. The bike was dented and Basov was slightly bruised.

A month later, police received a letter demanding an inquiry. Basov said that because he now is afraid to ride his motorbike, the cabbie should pay for it at a cost of about 520 rubles (a ruble is equivalent to about $1.20). He also sought reimbursement for a helmet, the recharging of the bike's battery and miscellaneous other expenses.

"While the militia officers were trying to figure out if this was a joke or not," the newspaper said, "Basov demanded that the cab driver urgently repay him for his jeans, worth 150 rubles, a jacket worth 80 rubles, and his shoes."

"But this was only the beginning," the article said. "A new message was written, which — for convenience — was divided into chapters."

Chapter One, titled "Good Nutrition During My Illness," listed eight chickens, at 15 rubles each, and various fruits and vegetables worth 100 rubles — including six melons and four quarts of berries.

Chapter Two, titled "Loss of The Moral and Physical Joys of Life," said Basov missed eight movies (about 10 rubles each); a theater show (25 rubles); and 50 days "swimming in the Dnepr River to feel mus-

It's time to change clocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans will lose an hour of sleep this weekend as the nation ushers in six months of daylight-saving time.

Standard time ends at 2 a.m. local time Sunday across the country except for Arizona, Hawaii and parts of Indiana, where the time change is ignored.

Although most people probably will change their time pieces Saturday night, others who have forgotten will find their clocks one hour slow when they rise.

If confused about which way to set the clocks, an old adage might help: "Spring forward. Fall back."

PBPA elects Bolger as its new president

From Staff Reports

RUIDOSO, N.M. — Perry Bolger of Midland was elected president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at its 23rd annual meeting here Friday.

Bolger, 45, is president and chief executive officer of Brazos Petroleum Co., Midland. He also is a director of Independent Petroleum Association of America, a director of United Bank of Midland and president of Trinity School Board of Trustees.

He graduated from the University of Texas in 1960 and held positions in commercial and investment banking before becoming an independent oil and gas operator.

Bolger succeeds Ken McPeters of Hobbs, who becomes chairman of the board of the 1,400 member oil and gas association.

Upon his election, Bolger named the following to serve on the executive committee of the association: George W. Bush, Frank Kell Cahoon, Ted Collins Jr., Arlan L. Edgar, Gene Floyd, Joseph I. O'Neill III, Dave Presley, all of Midland, and Charles R. Perry of Odessa.

Current committee members are Glenn Brant, Jerry Gahar, King Hughes, Budge McDonald, John E. Reid, W.A. Skees and Bill Stevens.

Suspect arrested in stabbing

From Staff Reports

A suspect has been arrested in the stabbing of a Midland High School student on the school's parking lot earlier this month.

In City Jail Friday under $50,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine was 26-year-old Randall Erskin Carter of 2400 Whitmire, Apt. 48.

Carter — a maintenance man at Midland Country Club — is charged with aggravated assault in the incident, which occurred as the 18-year-old girl was getting in her car about 1:30 p.m. April 11.

The girl told police a black man in his 20s approached and started making small talk. He then tried to force his way into her car and cut her on the face, neck and left shoulder when she resisted. Other students came to her aid and the man fled. The wounds required hospitalization.

Police said an eyewitness led them to Carter, who was arrested at the country club Wednesday afternoon. Police also said the victim identified Carter in a lineup Friday and that he is on probation for a theft charge.

Mondale says he will refund PAC contributions

LUBBOCK (AP) — Bowing to relentless criticism from rival Gary Hart, Walter F. Mondale said Friday that he will refund all political action committee contributions that made their way to his campaign through now-disbanded delegate committees.

The Democratic presidential front-runner also reversed his earlier stand that he would not count the committees' spending against the $20.2 million spending limit for the nominating process.

"In retrospect I think the committees should not have been created," Mondale told a news conference following a noontime rally here.

In a complaint filed with the Federal Election Commission, Hart contended the more than 125 "autonomous" committees of Mondale delegates violated federal election laws. Much of their money, according to FEC reports, came from big unions, including the United Auto Workers, the American Federation of Teachers, the Communications Workers of America, and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Mondale said his lawyers told him his previous stand on delegate committees was "legally defensible but in my judgment that's not enough."

"It's far more important to me to make clear my deep commitment to ethical performance than to lose what little advantage that money difference would make," he said.

He called upon the FEC to either abolish delegate committees or issue new rules clarifying what they can do.

Mondale said he still believed the committees were legal and authorized, but he said the federal rules governing them were so "very, very ambiguous" that he was taking this action to lay the controversy to rest.

The former vice president, who has refused to accept political action committee money for his national campaign, said he would see that all political action committee contributions were refunded.

He said he was doing this to "demonstrate my commitment to the ethical standards of government that are expected of a president." He said he wanted "to avoid not just improprieties, but the appearance of improprieties."

Campaign aide Maxine Isaacs said the campaign estimates that $500,000 received by the delegate committees will be counted against the spending limit, and that about $300,000 "will be found to have to be returned."

Ms. Isaacs said the money returned to donors will be PAC contributions and funds given by people who had already contributed the legal maximum of $1,000 to the Mondale campaign.

The committees had taken some financial pressure off the Mondale campaign, which is within $5 million of the $20.2 million ceiling.

On Tuesday, Mondale ordered the committees disbanded in an effort to quell the outcry from both Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, but Hart continued his criticism and said the money should be returned.

Earlier, addressing a luncheon crowd of 500 treated to free barbeque in an outdoor plaza at the Civic Center, Mondale castigated Hart and said again that he had waged an internal battle as vice president against the Carter administration's 1980 grain embargo.

In an interview with a local television station in El Paso earlier Friday, Mondale sharply criticized the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill which would offer amnesty to illegal aliens but impose strict sanctions against new illegal immigration, including criminal penalties for employers who hire undocumented workers.

White promises tax hikes

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White, in search of money for education reform, on Friday promised a broad range of tax hikes on purchases, gasoline and some luxuries — not including snuff.

"Don't touch snuff," he said with a laugh. "It's safe, let me assure you."

White said he wants a legislative consensus on tax increases before he calls a special session on public education. He confirmed that June 4 is a date "that has been mentioned" as opening day for the session.

The Legislature will review reform proposals drafted by the Select Committee on Public Education.

White said he has found "a great deal of favor" from lawmakers for raising the 4 percent sales tax to 5 percent, doubling the 5-cent a gallon gasoline tax and raising so-called "sin" taxes.

"That's generally the direction we're looking at this time," he said at his weekly news conference.

"It's a simple and understandable package. It's one that doesn't bear too heavily on any constituency in the state — the business community, the public generally, individual citizens, no particular industry will be burdened by it," he said. "I think it's a fair, broad-based approach to providing the money for broad-based educational improvement."

The governor said the money could be raised by increasing the taxes or chopping the long list of items and services exempt from the sales tax.

"All those exemptions are there because at one time or another they had the political vote, the 76 votes (in the House) to put them in an exempt position," he said.

Curtailing exemptions would be "a little more complicated approach to it and I'd rather see it go the other way."

The list of exemptions to the sales tax (established in 1961) is long.

"There are more exempt than there are taxed," said John Moore, director of tax information in the comptroller's office.

Moore said Comptroller Bob Bullock has looked at how much the state could raise by bringing some current exemptions under the sales tax umbrella.

About $470 million could be raised in 1985 (under a 4 percent sales tax) if the tax was stretched to cover services of architects, lawyers, physicians, dentists, advertising and public relations firms, home remodeling firms and others.

Fort Worth has cheapest houses, statistics show

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Fort Worth has the most affordable housing of the state's six largest cities, while Dallas has the least affordable, according to an index developed by the Texas Real Estate Research Center.

The statistics also showed that Texas is catching up to the rest of the nation in housing costs, according to Dr. Arthur Wright, a Texas A&M University economist who developed the index.

"According to the center's index, housing has tended to be less affordable nationwide than in Texas, but the difference is narrowing," Wright said.

The index, called the Texas Housing Affordability Index, defines affordable housing as that which could be afforded by 50 percent of the local households. At the 50 percent level, the index is 1.0. The higher the index number, the more affordable the housing.

Fort Worth is the only major Texas metropolitan area to have an affordable index value of 1.0 or higher in each of the past 11 years, Wright said.

The San Antonio area has had affordable housing index values above 1.0 in all years except 1981 and 1982. Austin and Houston ranked as areas with least affordable Texas housing in five of the past 11 years, and the Austin area has been in the less affordable range since 1980.

The Fort Worth area's affordability index value for 1983 was 1.30. The San Antonio and the El Paso index were 1.03, making those areas the only others to have an index level in the affordable range, Wright said.

"The booming Dallas economy caused home prices to rise so much that their 1983 index of .81 was the lowest of the areas reported. Austin and Houston had values of .85 and .89, respectively," he said.

U.S., China get down to business

An Analysis

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

AGANA, Guam (AP) — When Richard M. Nixon set foot in China in 1972 and became the first American president to visit that country, his arrival opened a new era in U.S.-Chinese relations.

It was a startling development in the diplomatic world, but it was not a trip intended to work out specific problems.

Nixon was followed to China by Gerald R. Ford, whose 1975 journey was intended to demonstrate that Nixon's opening to China was not just a fluke, and that the relationship could grow.

Now Ronald Reagan is following in the footsteps of his two Republican predecessors, after an overnight stop on this South Pacific island. In the view of his aides, his journey is intended to show that with the U.S.-Chinese relationship on a solid footing, the two countries can get down to normal business, and that means trade.

As he began his journey, Reagan met with trade industry representatives in Tacoma, Wash., and told them: "I go as something of a salesman, doing everything I can up to the limit of putting a 'Buy America' sticker on my bag."

U.S.-Chinese trade grew in leaps and bounds in the decade following Nixon's journey, but it has fallen recently.

From an historic high of $5.5 billion in 1981, it dropped to $4.4 billion last year. In 1983, the United States suffered a $71 million deficit with China, the first such trade deficit since 1977.

"The trade issues have become heavily politicized and have replaced Taiwan as the principal irritant in our relationship," said one senior administration official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name.

The disputes that make this subject even more difficult than the debate over the future of Taiwan, the island to which the Nationalist government fled from the communists in 1949, involve export controls and textiles. The question of textiles carries political overtones made all the more sensitive in a presidential election year.

While Reagan is unlikely, during his seven to eight hours of meetings with China's most senior leaders, to become a trade negotiator, the subject is an important element in his visit.

In a related area, U.S. and Chinese negotiators, at work several months, have been unable to agree upon an investment treaty, as Americans try to overcome what one said was the difficulty in negotiating such a pact with a country that operates a planned economy.

"It's meshing apples and oranges here, and it's proving very difficult to do," the official said.

The textile question is considered the most sensitive in the trade area because "the textile industry is flat on its back," the official said.

He said the Chinese would like the United States to remove all restraints on textile imports. "They'd like to sell as much as they could," he said.

When a U.S.-Chinese textile agreement expired and negotiations for a new pact broke down in January 1983, the United States imposed unilateral import controls, in a move to protect the American textile industry.

Peking responded by limiting its imports of U.S. synthetic fibers, soybeans and cotton.

A new textile accord was reached last July, but it was opposed by the U.S. textile industry. That opposition prompted further Chinese cuts in purchases of U.S. agricultural products.

The export control question deals with the shipment of high technology items to China. Under a recently worked out formula, the United States agreed to license exports at approximately twice the level of technology given to Warsaw Pact countries.

"As a result, it was pretty hard to implement this policy in many respects," he said.

Michigan's 'quote board' ten years old

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ten years after the first inanity earned a place on the pressroom wall, Michigan's lawmakers are managing to keep the popular "quote board" stocked with clumsy or nonsensical pronouncements.

Here is state Rep. Edgard Geerlings, R-Muskegon, declaring last October: "I don't know what the previous speaker said, but I agree with him."

Or House Speaker Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti, asserting in December: "You'd have to be blind to say it hasn't been heard."

Capitol reporters, fully expecting to hear more of such gems, gathered earlier this week to celebrate the anniversary of a ragged record of government officials sounding silly.

They popped champagne corks and snacked on cheese, guffawing as they re-read their favorites from the long list of misstatements, mixed metaphors and malapropisms uttered by legislators, governors, department chiefs and other Lansing notables.

Like the lawmaker who said in 1975: "I'm not afraid of hiding anything." Or the one who that same year declared: "The facts is beginning to submerge." Or a third, who urged: "Let's do something, even if it's wrong."

Or one who said in 1977: "It's always fair and equitable when you're looking for something for your district."

Over the years, the quote board has achieved some notoriety — Johnny Carson read several of its selections on "The Tonight Show," and it has been described in stories in Time, the Wall Street Journal and Reader's Digest.

At least one legislator has proudly pointed out to the governor where he — the lawmaker — was quoted. And another reportedly was so determined to achieve the honor he prepared a quote in advance — and was duly honored by unsuspecting reporters.

Others were irritated at being quoted outrageously out of context or when sounding silly, and at the inevitable stories written about the collection.

Some quotes have nuggets of wisdom: "There are no powerful lobbyists around here — there are only weak legislators," said then-Sen. Daniel Cooper in 1977.

But many are just confused: "Let's not rush into the china shop like a bullhorn," warned then-Rep. Melvin DeStigter in 1977.

The rules of the quote board are simple: An official must make the statement in public, such as in Legislative session or at a news conference. It helps if more than one reporter is a witness, but that is not absolutely essential for it to qualify.

There were previous attempts at setting down memorable inanities, but the current collection began with this April 24, 1974, quote from former Rep. DeForest Strang: "Michigan government is made up of three houses — the House of Representatives here, the Senate on the other side of the building, and the judiciary." He ignored the executive branch entirely.

Robert Berg, a former reporter and now press secretary to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, recorded Strang's statement and managed the quote board for several years. Official bound photocopies were kept — and one was given to Gov. William Milliken upon his retirement.

Many Milliken statements appear on the list.

Delay costs Detroit $275,00

DETROIT (AP) — A two-day delay returning a telephone call to approve a settlement in a police brutality lawsuit has cost the city of Detroit $275,000.

Dwight A. Ross had sued the city, claiming his neck was broken when he was beaten by police during an arrest in December 1980.

Ross agreed to a $225,000 settlement Tuesday, and Circuit Judge Charles Kaufman said he called Donald Pailen, the head of the city's law department, to get his approval of the settlement.

But the judge said Pailen did not return his call until Thursday — a day after a jury ruled in favor of Ross and ordered the city to pay him $500,000.

The National Weather Service forecasts snow for today for parts of Montana and North Dakota and rain for parts of Indiana and Ohio to the Gulf coast.

Nice weather forecast for Christmas in April

Warm temperatures and West Texas winds won't stop Midlanders during their 12th Annual Christmas in April program this weekend.

House renovations will take place under sunny skies with the mercury climbing into the lower 80s today.

Winds will be southeasterly at 15-20 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Partly cloudy skies will cover the area through Sunday. Lows tonight are expected to drop into the upper 50s with a high on Sunday in the upper 70s.

Friday's high of 78 missed the record high of 95, set in 1974, by 17 degrees. The overnight low of 45 was seven degrees warmer than 1934's record low of 38.

STATE

A drift of cool air moved into Texas on Friday, dropping temperatures from the record highs of the previous day and bringing the promise of a pleasant weekend over most of the state.

The cooler conditions were the result of a weak front that had moved eastward through most of Texas by Friday evening.

Over the eastern third of Texas, partly cloudy to mostly sunny skies were the rule, while clear skies dominated the rest of the state.

Afternoon temperatures ranged from the 60s over Northwest Texas to the 80s across East and Southeast Texas. Readings topped out in the 90s and near 100 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Winds were light and variable over most of the state, while westerly winds at 10 to 20 mph dominated the Panhandle.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy to cloudy skies over most of the state today. Some widely scattered showers are possible over the Panhandle.

Afternoon highs are expected to range from the 70s over Northwest Texas to the 90s and near 100 over far South Texas. Highs in the 80s were forecast for most sections.

NATION

A spring blizzard throttled the northern Plains and Rocky Mountain states Friday with fathom-deep snows and bone-numbing wind-chill temperatures, while thunderstorms and tornadoes threatened the upper Midwest.

Blizzard warnings and travelers' advisories were posted for parts of the Dakotas, Wyoming and Montana, where up to 6 feet of snow has fallen in some places and winds gusting up to 60 mph have driven wind-chill readings as low as 30 degrees below zero.

Further east, winds gusted up to 85 mph in Alexandria, Minn., and 56 mph in Chadron, Neb. Tornado watches were in effect over portions of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. The National Weather Service forecast severe weather for the whole upper Mississippi Valley.

A pack of tornadoes that raked the Midwest and Plains late Thursday killed at least 14 people and injured at least 100 others.

Record low temperatures for this date were broken or tied from Wyoming to New Mexico and from Southern California to Texas, including a record readings at Alamosa, Colo., where it got down to 13 degrees, and at El Paso where the mercury dropped to 35 degrees.

Showers and thunderstorms also reached from northern Georgia across the western portion of both Carolinas.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. EST ranged from 22 degrees at Douglas, Gillette and Yellowstone, Wyo. to 101 degrees at Brownsville, Texas.

For today, the weather service forecast rain and occasional thundershowers from the Great Lakes across much of the Ohio Valley, over the Tennessee Valley and the Appalachians, and from Mississippi through much of Georgia and from western portions of the Carolinas across western Virginia.

Scattered snow will head for parts of Minnesota, Colorado, southern Utah and northern Arizona, with widely scattered snowshowers over northwest Montana.

Jury finds Bower guilty of murder

SHERMAN (AP) — Lester Leroy Bower was convicted Friday of capital murder in the slayings of four men shot to death in an ultralight airplane hangar on a ranch near here last October.

Jurors deliberated for an hour and 45 minutes before returning guilty verdicts on all four counts.

Bower, 36, and his wife, Shari, showed no emotion when the verdicts were read, but their relatives and families of the victims broke down and cried.

The punishment phase was scheduled to begin this morning. Bower faces either death by lethal injection or life in prison.

"I'm absolutely stunned. I'm just amazed," said Bower's attorney, Jerry Buckner. "I cannot imagine a jury coming back in two hours on a case of this magnitude with that weak evidence."

"They won the battle, but they're going to lose the war," said Bower's father-in-law, Lee Wreyford. "It just means we'll have to go to work a little harder and expose the corruption of the law enforcement here."

Bower, an Arlington chemical salesman, was accused in the slayings of Philip Good, 29, a Grayson County sheriff's deputy; Jerry Mac Brown, 52, a Sherman interior designer; Ronald Mayes, 39, a former Sherman police officer; and Bob G. Tate, 51, a Denison building contractor.

The four were shot to death in a hangar on Tate's B&B ranch, northeast of Sherman, on Oct. 8. Investigators said one of two ultralight aircraft were missing from the hangar, and relatives said the men had gone to the ranch to meet a potential buyer of one of the planes.

Police seige of embassy ends

Britain last Sunday broke diplomatic ties with Libya over its handling of the April 17 shooting incident in which police Constable Yvonne Fletcher, 25, was killed. It ordered the Libyans in the embassy — perhaps including Miss Fletcher's killer — to leave by midnight. They were protected from prosecution by conventions on diplomatic immunity.

Police said a gunman had pointed a Soviet-made AK-47 automatic rifle out of an embassy window and shot at Libyan students chanting slogans against Col. Moammar Khadafy. Eleven Libyans were wounded.

About 1,500 people gathered Friday for Miss Fletcher's funeral at the cathedral in Salisbury, 83 miles west of London.

Police marksmen kept rifles trained on the embassy, or People's Bureau, for 10 days after the shooting. But they were forbidden to enter it because under the 1961 Vienna Convention, the building is Libyan territory.

The Libyans refused repeated British requests that they leave and allow the building to be searched.

On Friday, following a carefully negotiated script, diplomatic observers from Saudi Arabia, Syria and Turkey filed into the square and a Libyan go-between went inside the embassy shortly after 9 a.m.

He emerged leading a group of five Libyans. The process was repeated five more times. By 11 a.m., the last had left and a Scotland Yard spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, told reporters, "The siege is over."

Outside the square, out of view of reporters, the Libyans were searched for arms and explosives, witnesses said. "The police gave them a good going over with scanners," Roy Hamlin, owner of the Red Lion pub on Duke of York Street, was quoted as telling the Evening Standard newspaper.

"They were lined up against the wall and thoroughly searched," he was quoted as saying.

The Foreign Office declined comment on the reports, saying only the police "had satisfied themselves" that the Libyans were not carrying arms or explosives.

The Libyans, including 19 accredited diplomats, were loaded aboard seven green vans with blacked-out windows and driven 25 miles to the Civil Service College in Sunningdale, eight miles from Heathrow, for customs and questioning.

At the same time, a van carrying four large bags and assorted hand luggage went straight to Heathrow. On Thursday, 18 similar padlocked, lead-lined bags were taken to the airport.

Police acknowledged they could contain a murder weapon, but treated them as diplomatic pouches and did not search them.

In St. James's Square, detectives poured into the street in front of the embassy. Many went down on hands and knees to search for clues. But police said they would respect the embassy's diplomatic immunity until the midnight Sunday deadline.

After that, police said, officers would enter the building, clear it of any arms, explosives or other evidence and then seal it up. It will become a "discontinued mission," still Libyan property but under British control.

In Tripoli, Ambassador Miles handed control over to Italy, which has agreed to represent the interests of some 8,000 British nationals in Libya. Britain has advised the Britons to "consider their position carefully" in light of events.

Libyan Foreign Minister Ali Abdussalam Treiki invited Miles for a farewell meeting. "It was not just a sort of sweet nothing," Miles said by telephone. "He was looking to the future and so was I."

Two Britons are to remain behind to form a British Interest Section of the Italian Embassy. Two Libyans will remain in London to head an interest section of the Saudi Arabian Embassy.

The Home Office Friday night announced that Matooq Mohamed Matooq, one of four revolutionary students who seized control of the London embassy on Feb. 18 with Khadafy's apparent approval, had been deported.

Reagan confers with Chinese leader

Asked about the reception Reagan was receiving, Speakes said, "As far as the tone of the meetings, it's been extremely cordial. There have been no surprises in their statements. He added that Reagan and the Chinese leaders had found many "areas of agreement," including concern over the threat of Soviet aggression and the need for arms reductions.

Zhao made clear from the start of the day that the future of Taiwan, was a sticky point.

"The question of Taiwan remains a major obstacle to stable, sustained development of Sino-U.S. relations," he told American reporters in a brief news conference before his first business session with Reagan. He made similar comments at the end of the day in his toast to the American president.

But Speakes said these differences "have not in any way become an obstacle to the developing relationship" between the United States and China.

"Both sides have determined not to let it interfere," he said.

A senior Chinese official, briefing reporters on the condition that he not be identified by name, said Zhao told Reagan "we oppose meddling in the affairs of Central America by any big power. We are not in favor of some practices by the United States in this region."

U.S. officials had hoped that Chinese opposition to the Soviet Union would help win a friendly reception here for Reagan's Central American policy, keyed to halting Soviet support for leftist movements there.

Zhao was also said by the Chinese official to have told Reagan that unless the United States halts the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's missile deployment program in Western Europe and the Soviets stop their deployments in Eastern Europe, "the inevitable result wil be a progressive escalation of the arms race in Europe."

Zhao blamed both the United States and the Soviet Union for raising global tensions by continuing their arms race, ignoring Reagan's accusation of Soviet threats to world peace, the Chinese official said.

A senior Reagan administration official, also insisting on anonymity, acknowledged these differences and said Zhao mentioned the mines and U.S. support for rebels opposing the Marxist government of Nicaragua. The U.S. official said Reagan replied that no one had been killed by the mining, which has been halted because of congressional opposition.

The U.S. official, who took part in the Zhao talks, said Reagan and the premier "did virtually all the talking," although each was joined by about one dozen aides.

He said the two "appeared to enjoy the give and take," and that "the interpreters at times were clearly overloaded as the principals would get stirred up. The discussion was lively at times."

On the Middle East, he said that, as expected, the Chinese said they would like the United States to hold talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization, a step the United States has refused to take until the PLO rejects terrorism and recognizes Israel's right to exist.

The state dinner was held in the banquet room of the Great Hall of the People, relatively empty with only 500 diners. When Richard M. Nixon dined there on his historic 1972 trip to China, some 5,000 guests dined at the banquet.

Candidate says major issues economic

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — When you have ar economic problem, to whom do you turn?

Gary Condra hopes voters would answer this question: "An econo mist."

One of nine candidates seeking to fill the opening left by Kent Hance as U.S. Representative for the 19th Congressional District, Condra has made a living in agricultural economics.

"Just because they can talk about economics doesn't mean they can apply it," said Condra, most recently the extension agricultural economist at Texas A&M University.

"I think they're qualified in some profession," he said, "They're just not qualified in the right profession."

Condra suggested that all the major issues facing the federal government are economic. "In some areas, my voice will be heard as a professional," he said.

Because of his background and interests, Condra expects to get support from the farming population.

"I feel like I certainly have a greater appeal to the farm vote than the others," he said, "I would resist efforts to say I'm a one-issue candidate."

He listed education, food and fiber and defense as three areas that should get priorities in the federal budget. While suggesting funding should be continued in these areas, Condra called for cuts in other areas of the budget to cut the federal deficit.

"I'm concerned about the spread of communism into our hemisphere," said the Vietnam veteran about the Central America dilemma.

Condra called for a 1985 farm bill that would help the medium-sized commercial family farms which are suffering in numbers as larger farms prosper in the current market.

His version would:

—Stabilize what has been an up-and-down market.

—Restore the profitability to farming.

—Include long-run decision-making necessary in a business depending on nature.

—Maintain agricultural exports.

—Make participation mandatory.

"We have been trying to take a different approach," said Condra, calling for voters to "hire the right man for the job," rather than the best known politician.

Chapter Three, "Physical Pain I Have Suffered," listed Basov's kidneys, feet and one hand — and put the price of his pain, respectively, at 10, 50 and 100 rubles.

"A concluding chord in this symphony of man's greediness," the newspaper said, "was the seventh chapter, 'the need to continue kidney treatment,'" which listed a sanatorium stay at 315 rubles.

The total: 4,394 rubles or just over $5,270.

The court awarded Basov nothing. But that didn't satisfy the newspaper, which said: "It would be well for prosecutors to charge such extortionists, and let them pay the salaries of officials who spend days and weeks investigating deliberately absurd claims."

Swedish firm fined for selling American technology

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge fined a Swedish firm $3.12 million Friday for "treacherous conduct" in secretly selling to the Soviet Union the American technology that enabled the Soviets to use a civilian computer and radar system to track U.S. bombers.

The government said in court papers that executives of the Swedish company smuggled computer parts into the Soviet Union that enabled the Soviets to upgrade the radar system and increased their ability to defend themselves against manned bombers and to coordinate air attacks on Western Europe.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell accepted a plea of no contest from Datasaab Contracting A.B. but brushed aside a joint recommendation from the Justice Department and the defendant thathe fix the fine at $1 million.

He said he could have imposed a fine of more than $15 million but noted the cooperation extended by another Swedish company, L.M. Ericcson, after it took over Datasaab.

Ericsson discovered the violation of U.S. export controls, called it to the attention of the U.S. government and agreed to stop providing spare parts and service to the Soviets, minimizing the potential damage to the United States and its NATO allies.

Joseph E. diGenova, U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia, described Datasaab's action as "one of the most significant breaches of United States national security in the technology transfer area." The Commerce Deparment said the fine was the largest criminal penalty ever imposed for violation of the Export Administration Act.

A 12-page government document submitted to the court summarized the evidence the United States would have presented had the case gone to trial.

The paper said that in 1977, the Commerce Department authorized the export of parts and equipment in the radar system but imposed 10 restrictions intended to limit the system's capabilities only to track civilian aircraft for air safety purposes.

The government said Datasaab knowingly violated its export license for the export of an air traffic radar system known as TERCAS for "Terminal and En-Route Traffic Control Automated System."

"One of the plans devised by Datasaab called for the removal, prior to shipment, of the 12 sets of critical primary circuit boards for the primary circuit which gave TERCAS the highly sophisticated and advanced capabilities which the United States had strenously objected to," the government said.

"These circuit boards were then to be surreptitiously hand-carried to the U.S.S.R. labeled 'test equipment.'

"Indeed, beginning on June 9, 1977, Datasaab officials began carrying these critical primary circuit boards to the U.S.S.R. These trips continued even after Nov. 2, 1977, when Datasaab's president gave written assurances to the Department of Commerce that Datasaab would honor all license restrictions directed at limited TERCAS to secondard surveillance radar capability (for civilian aircraft carrying beacons)."

Gesell used the term "treacherous conduct" when discussing the government's allegations. Lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, representing Ericsson, did not contest those allegations.

Williams, however, did object to the judge's decision to impose a $3.12 million fine — a sum equal to the value of goods bought by Datasaab from the United States in partial fulfillment of its $75 million sale to the Soviets. Other parts came from Sweden and other countries.

Jackson: Hunger ignored

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson lashed out Friday at President Reagan and first lady Nancy Reagan for "feeding communist pandas" in China while ignoring the hunger problem in America.

The black Democratic presidential candidate also reminded Louisiana voters that his campaign led the fight to "get you the right to vote in the primary," scheduled May 5 by court order.

Jackson condemned Reagan for making a much publicized trip to China, while doing little in this country to deal with hunger.

"Children cannot get lunch programs at school. Old folks are sitting in the dark, lonely and cold, eating cat and dog food," Jackson told a crowd of about 1,500 at the Peabody High School in Alexandria. "The president's entourage is over there feeding communist pandas.

"Feed the American children. Feed the poor," he added. "Malnutrition is a crisis in our nation which is growing every day...While the malnourished here are 20 million Americans, they are feeding communist pandas in China."

Reagan did not personally visit the Peking Zoo, but Mrs. Reagan fed a baby panda and presented zoo officials with a check for $13,000, collected by American schoolchildren, to feed starving pandas.

In a statement handed out by aides, Jackson said Mrs. Reagan should pay more attention to feeding American children than Chinese pandas, but in his speech Jackson referred to the president.

Urging voters to "come alive May 5," Jackson took his campaign from Texas to Louisiana on Friday as he looked for support in the primary here and in Lone Star State caucuses that day.

Jackson also criticized the cheese and butter giveaway programs of the Reagan administration.

"I wonder if the president could survive off a butter and cheese diet," he said. "Along with butter and cheese, we need meat and bread.

"They should not be humiliated in public — standing in long lines and declaring their poverty publicly," Jackson said. "Man cannot live by bread alone. We also need our self-respect."

Jackson took credit for reviving the Louisiana primary after the state Legislature voted to abolish the primary and substitute a caucus system.

"There was an attempt to disenfranchise the state, to take away your primary," Jackson said. "The Rainbow Coalition and the Jackson campaign had to take the case all the way to the Supreme Court to get you the right to vote in a primary."

The candidate's supporters complained to the U.S. Justice Department that the shift violated the Voting Rights Act because the complicated caucus process discourages minority participation.

Louisiana officials fought the change in the courts, but a U.S. appeals court ordered the May 5 primary to replace caucuses that had been scheduled in early April.

Woman's hair cut in theater

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Katherine Moreci had let her hair grow for 17 years. Then somebody cut off the long braid while she sat in a dark movie theater.

"It's kind of like losing your best friend," said Mrs. Moreci, 40, of the incident.

She said she didn't feel anything unusual happening as she watched the movie "Weekend Pass" with her family. Her hair was braided and fastened with bands. It hung down her back on the outside of her seat.

She said a group of teen-agers sat behind her when the movie started, but moved after a while. She thinks they did it.

After the movie, her daughter noticed the braid was hanging by a small hank.

"I had no idea this was even happening," she said.

To smooth the cut, she had to have her hair trimmed to her shoulders.

Mrs. Moreci said she had gone bald 17 years ago after bleaching her hair and then having a permanent wave, and she vowed then that if it ever grew out she'd never cut it, even it it was "purple with polka dots."

"I didn't hear anything," she said. "I had no idea of what was going on. I just kind of went into shock. My hair was the one thing going for me. When it grows back, I'll be more careful."

Sweet Estes sits with her dogs at a stable in Denton. Ms. Estes started a riding class at North Texas State University as part of their physical education program in 1941.

DENTON (AP) — It's a different type of physical education class; students aren't confined by four walls. Rather, this classroom consists of four arenas where a student is graded according to how well one gets on, and stays on, one's high horse.

The class is offered at North Texas State University under either name; English or Western riding. Although some students who sign up for it at registration may do it to steer clear of the necessary discipline required in ballet classes or the endurance of jogging, other students who are now in the intermediate level of the classes say it's not for those looking for a free ride to an easy "A."

In fact — in English riding — it takes a bit more effort to stay in the saddle, said Lea Miller, who is a teacher's aide under the direction of stable owner Sweet Estes.

"We grade them on many things," said Ms. Miller as she eyed a young woman tossing a heavy Western saddle on the back of a horse during midterm exams week. Ms. Miller, along with several other aides, teaches both styles of riding to students in four classes and grades them according to how well they handle their horses.

"SHE DIDN'T put the saddle on as gently as I thought she should; she didn't think I was watching," said Ms. Miller as she jotted a grade onto the long sheet of paper. The student put the final touches to saddling her horse. Seemingly to the horse-riding novice, they were correctly executed. But Ms. Miller approached her and explained the proper way to tie a knot on the saddle girth. The student's efforts rated only a C-plus in saddling.

That was only one of many categories which are graded. Others include grooming, tying, bridling, leading, mounting, dismounting, walking and trotting the horse.

Diana Hansen, another teacher's aide, agrees stringent guidelines are used to grade the students' equestrian efforts.

"It isn't an easy A course. They are graded on proper form...if the rider leans the wrong way while going into a turn, he can lose a whole letter grade."

A person must know how to lean correctly on the horse and treat it gently at all times. If one leans too much forward or backward, the grade is lowered by one letter. The reason for such strict guidelines is that a person can fall off a horse if not properly balanced while riding on English-style saddles.

STUDENTS ARE taught how to put the bridle over the horse's head in a gentle way by carefully, but firmly, placing the bit in the mouth of a sometimes stubborn horse and carrying it over and behind its ears.

If a student doesn't tie a T-knot on the saddle or quick-release knot properly, they'll lose half a letter grade. And they must get every fact of grooming down pat or, after spending half an hour brushing the horse down, they'll lose half a letter grade for such infractions as a slightly muddy horse's hoof.

For those who have grown up in rural areas where horse riding is more common, the course is not so hard. But many students are the Rhinestone Cowboys or Cowgirls — often dressed in new, designer jeans — who haven't had much experience with horses before taking this class.

Sweet Estes, owner of the Sweet Estes Stables, started the class at NTSU in 1941. She now oversees the classes of approximately 60 students. She advises her students who are not sure which style to learn to try English riding first.

"I encourage them to take English. It will teach them better form (than Western riding)," Sweet said. Because the English-style saddle doesn't have the swell in the back or the horn like the Western-style saddle, it's harder for a person to stay on the horse.

BEGINNER CLASSES stress proper riding form. Jumping hurdles isn't taught until a student develops as an intermediate rider. Some students go on to compete in contests that are becoming more popular in the Denton area.

Are there solutions to world's problems?

By BARRY SCHWEID

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next week, rain or shine, 70 experts on subjects ranging from forestry to population control will pack themselves off to Wye Island, a remote outpost on the Chesapeake Bay, to see if there are solutions to some of the world's most pressing problems — or if we simply ought to give up.

When they get back three days later they hope to have answers, and to be able to persuade the U.S. government, the World Bank, businessmen and the media that their recommendations deserve attention.

The conference was organized by the World Resources Institute on a hopeful note. Once the key problems were identified, said James Gustave Speth, chairman of the steering committee, the next priority was "to try to move away from a gloom-and-doom psychology toward a more positive vision of an attainable future and to identify steps that can help us attain that future."

This is hardly the first time some of the brightest people in the world have tried to make the future livable. Sometimes their efforts are dragged down by politics, sometimes by the very enormity of the issues.

Speth, who once clerked for an eternal optimist, the late Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black, hopes this time the message will be different. "There's no cause for despair or pessimism," he said in outlining the conference the other day. "We haven't really scratched the surface of actions that can be taken to correct these problems."

They include growing populations, food supplies, carbon dioxide buildups and preservation of species.

Ultimately, the Reagan administration will have to be convinced the United States has a stake in addressing problems that mostly pinch the Third World.

Speth said the sales pitch will be to demonstrate that "these concerns are very much related to our long-term economic interest and to our long-term security interest."

He said the United States will not be able to resolve its security concerns in Central America, for instance, "until we have a more profound understanding of the relationship of resources and land-management to the future of people in the region."

A little more than half the 70 experts are Americans. They include former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Robert O. Anderson, chairman of Atlantic Richfield Co. of Los Angeles, and Russell E. Train, president of the World Wildlife Fund.

The others are from overseas, including a forestry and wildlife specialist from Peru, a drought control director from Upper Volta, a chemist from China's Academy of Sciences and the director general of Mexico's National Institute for Biological Resources.

There will even be an environmental activist from Sri Lanka, who has led a citizen's peace march around the island to promote civil harmony in his troubled country.

They would seem to have more on their plate than any 70 specialists can handle in just three days. But the problems are so related to each other the conference has an almost awesome scope. Land problems rub against forestry problems. Fisheries and pollution are inextricably linked.

Clearly, the world's capacity to provide energy and other resources is finite.

Speth said the participants were asked to think in terms of addressing the deterioration of resources and the environment in ways that can provide economic development and growth.

"What we hope will come out of this is a different message," he said, "not the message everyone heard so many times of pessimism about the future. It's a positive message that we can correct these problems with means that are within our reach."

Fairs began on saints' feast days

Fairs became popular at the end of the Middle Ages. The word "fair" comes from the Latin "feria," meaning a holiday or festival.

The first fairs, such as the famous St. Bartholomew's in England, were usually held within the walls of abbeys and cathedrals to celebrate saints' feast days.

Big Brother listens to employees

BALTIMORE (AP) — The next time you call an airline for a reservation or a magazine company for a subscription, there may be a third party monitoring your call: a computer.

It's not what you and the operator say to each other that matters to the computer, it's how long you chat.

In a growing number of service industries, phone calls are monitored by computer to gauge employee efficiency, and some workers resent it.

A telephone operator in Baltimore with 16 years experience was fired recently because computerized records indicated her speed didn't meet the "Average Work Time" standard established by her employer, AT&T Communications, a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Operator Maevon Garrett said AT&T officials told her "my quality of work was good but I overextended myself to customers and stayed on the phone too long."

Mrs. Garrett was later reinstated, with only a two-week suspension on her record, following a protest by the Communiations Workers of America.

Computerized tracking of job performance continues, and not just in the phone company, which pioneered the concept.

"WE HAVE time standards for reservation agents," said Trans World Airline spokesman David Venz. "We have certain time standards in which we essentially expect agents to make a sale or conclude a call."

"We know what the average conversation time is for whatever activity you are doing," said Jacqueline Mutnansky, operations manager for the phone banks in Chicago that take magazine subscription orders for Time Inc.

She said Time's Telephone Marketing Response Center has a standard "call time" for each type of call.

"You should have processed a specific number of calls and averaged a certain phone conversation time," Ms. Mutnansky said.

Officials at TWA and at the U.S. Postal Service said employees are not fired or transferred for working too slowly, but a bad Average Work Time report can lead to retraining.

"We look at it as just a way to see who needs further training," Venz said. "We feel it's a perfectly accepted practice. It's just looked on as a good tool to make employees more productive."

Average Work Time is "a hated concept nationally...It hits a real raw nerve," said Jeffery Miller, a national spokesman in Washington for the CWA, which represents telephone operators.

THE PHONE company's evaluation procedure is an example of "how the computer can turn workers into a production line type," Miller said. He said it causes operators "to try to get rid of a customer real quickly — for instance those who stutter or can't speak English."

Eleanor Street, a union official who recently retired after 38 years as a telephone operator, said operators don't feel a sense of achievement in serving customers when the length of each call is timed.

"Just imagine working under that pressure five days a week...Imagine what this does to your soul," said Mrs. Street. "What it does to customers is that they have become merely voices, someone to get rid of as soon as you possibly can."

Mrs. Street, who remains president of CWA Local 2110 despite her retirement, said, "I was told when I was trained you take care of quality, you take care of accuracy, and quantity and speed will take care of itself."

Charles Thornton, assistant vice president at AT&T Communications, said operators' wages and training make up the most expensive part of providing service.

The company's "first and foremost objective is providing high quality service," Thornton said, but it's also "very important to make sure our costs are low, and we are fair to the ratepayers."

AT THE Postal Service in Washington, spokeswoman Jeanne O'Neill said letter carriers are inspected annually by supervisors who accompany them to see whether "enough time has been allocated to deliver the mail."

Trails of paperwork follow disasters

AUSTIN (AP) — A year of too much rain, too little rain, too much cold, too much heat — plus a hurricane and the usual hail and tornadoes — has left more than one-third of the state a certified disaster area.

Depending on whether you believe federal or state officials, either 125 or 97 of the state's 254 counties are weather-related disasters.

Bettina Dickerson, a loan specialist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, sees the trail of paperwork that follows a disaster. She's seen enough, especially from Texas.

"I wish Texas would have declared the whole state a disaster area (after the record freeze). It's really becoming a problem," she said.

Disaster, and the federal paperwork and help that follows, is not new in many parts of Texas.

"It sure seems like it's been a routine every year," said Floyd County Judge Choise Smith. "Let's see, it seems like '73 was a fairly good year."

This time around it was a summer drought, ended by heavy fall rain — combined with an early freeze — that got Floyd County and other Panhandle counties on the USDA disaster list.

Two counties west of Floyd, Gerald Crump at the Farmers Home Administration in Littlefield is just starting to see Lamb County farmers file for disaster aid. Drought, heavy rains, freeze and hail over the course of the year devastated 1983 crops.

"WE HAVEN'T seen a good year since 1973," Crump said, reeling off the list of severe weather that's pummeled the county since then.

In 1979, he said, it was hail that "wiped out everything — trees, jackrabbits and picture windows."

"In 1982 it hailed once a week from the first of May through the 10th day of July," he recalled. "I took four weeks off. I was so depressed."

In mid-April there were differing accounts on the number of disaster counties. Laureen Chernow at the Texas Department of Public Safety emergency management division said the USDA had approved 58 disaster declarations and the Small Business Administration approved 69. Thirty counties were named disasters by both agencies.

But Ms. Dickerson at the USDA said her agency had approved 86 counties as disaster areas.

The declarations make county residents eligible for low-interest loans to help get them through a bad year.

A USDA official acknowledges that federal help is harder to come by than in past years. The change has shocked some farmers, according to Walter Bunch, special assistant to an undersecretary of agriculture in Washington.

"This administration has attempted to tighten that down," Bunch said of criteria for qualifying for loans. "It's hard to do once you've got the door open. I think we are making fewer emergency loans now than we did five or six years ago."

ONE OF the changes requires a 30 percent loss, instead of the previous 20 percent, in order to qualify for a disaster loan.

"It's safe to say that during the past couple of years a great many (farmers) were determined ahead of time that the government would step in and help them out," Bunch added. "We have been very hard-hearted."

Lamb County Judge Wayne Whiteaker said some farmers depend on the disaster declarations to get them through storms and droughts.

"A lot of farmers that are still operating would be out of business if it wasn't for these programs," he said. "We're down to the point where it's almost necessary to have a good year so these farmers can have a little bit of relief."

The point is, according to Smith over in Floyd County, you can't make a living by borrowing.

"Sometimes there's a little help there, but it always has to be paid back. If there's no money, it's hard to pay it back," he said.

The USDA and SBA loans vary according to the applicant's situation. Repayment periods are as long as 30 years, and as short as one. Crump said the largest loan application he fielded this year was a $103,000 request from a farmer who, because he was eligible for credit elsewhere besides the government, would have had to pay 13.75 percent interest. The farmer went elsewhere for the money.

FARMERS WITH no place to turn for credit are eligible for 5 percent government loans. The average loan in his county, Crump said, is about $25,000.

The 1983 losses were soothed, he said, by the federal government's now-ended Payment in Kind program, under which the government paid with commodities to entice farmers to keep some acreage out of production.

Crop insurance also cut losses in weather-ravaged regions.

Texas disaster requests have become somewhat infamous among the Washington bureaucrats who handle them.

Vatican receives reports about plot against pope

Pope John Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has received intelligence reports indicating that major international terrorist groups were plotting to attack Pope John Paul II during his to South Korea next month, Vatican and diplomatic sources said Friday.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be named, said the reports were put together by U.S. and Italian intelligence services and given to the Vatican.

Ambassador Joa-soo Kim, the South Korean envoy to the Holy See, confirmed that he had relayed the Vatican reports to Seoul but he would not discuss details.

Among the terrorist groups cited in the reports are Turkey's neo-Nazi Gray Wolves and the notorious Venezuelan terrorist, Carlos, the sources said.

"We are prepared for any eventuality," Kim said. "I am convinced that our security services are taking adequate precautions."

Dispatches from Seoul said earlier this week that President Chun Doo-hwan has ordered a full-scale anti-terrorism alert and assigned presidential guards to protect the pontiff. Some 3,000 policemen have reportedly been brought to Seoul from the provinces.

The increased security has also been seen as an effort to keep student anti-government demonstrations, which have been going on for weeks, from getting out of hand.

The pontiff is scheduled to visit South Korea May 3-7 as part of an 11-day tour that will also take him to Fairbanks, Alaska, Papua New Guinea, the Solomon Islands and Thailand. It will be his 21st overseas trip as pope.

John Paul was shot and seriously wounded at the Vatican by a Turkish gunman May 13, 1981, and narrowly escaped injury when a deranged Spanish priest lunged at him with a bayonet exactly one year later in Fatima, Portugal.

"We usually get a certain amount of threats on the Holy Father before a foreign trip, and we keep them to ourselves, but this time we thought they were serious enough to have the host government alerted," said a Vatican source. He added that the Vatican has "full confidence" in security arrangements being made by South Korean authorities.

The intelligence reports said U.S. and Italian law enforcement agencies have obtained evidence showing that terrorist groups were trying to enter South Korea from neighboring Japan, with possible assistance from elements close to Communist North Korea, the Vatican source said.

It was not clear why the groups were reported to have picked South Korea and not other stops on the papal trip.

The Gray Wolves, also known as "Idealists," are the private terrorist army of the neo-Nazi National Action Party of retired Col. Alpaslan Turkes, who is standing trial in Turkey on a variety of terrorism charges.

Turkish, Italian and West German investigators have said Mehmet Ali Agca, the Turkish terrorist serving a life term in Italy for shooting the pope, had ties with the Gray Wolves.

Agca was reported to have received a forged passport in 1980 from a Gray Wolves member — Omer Ay, 32, who was arrested in West Germany in February 1982 and extradited to Turkey in October. He is being tried in the central Anatolian town of Konya on charges of murdering a leftist politician in 1980.

West German police say the Gray Wolves, founded in 1968, have about 15,000 members, mostly in Turkey and West Germany.

Carlos, 35, whose real name is Ilich Ramirez Sanchez, has been a terrorist for more than a decade. Investigators say they have traced possible links between Carlos and Germany's Baader-Meinhof gang, Italy's Red Brigades, the Japanese Red Army and extremist Palestine Liberation Organization splinter groups.

He first became internationally known when he claimed responsibility for the Dec. 30, 1973, shooting attack on British-born Israeli businessman Joseph Conrad Sieff in London. Sieff suffered serious face injuries but was not killed.

Austrian police have said Carlos staged the Vienna kidnapping in December 1975 of 11 oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Investigators also have linked him with the 1974 seizure of the French Embassy in the Hague, the bomb attack on a Paris Jewish restaurant two days later in which two died and 30 were injured, and two 1975 bazooka attacks on El Al planes at Paris' Orly Airport.

Desegregation poses problem for black college

CHEYNEY, Pa. (AP) — Twenty-one years before the start of the Revolutionary War, the first U.S. college founded primarily for blacks was established at the request of a Quaker who himself held slaves.

Cheyney University, as it is now known, 147 years later, is still a pathway to upward mobility for blacks, a symbol of proud identity, while it strives to satisfy desegregation orders by attracting whites.

"We have not reached the point of the American society in America, that we do, there will always be a place for historically black universities such as Cheyney," says school president Dr. C.T. Enus Wright.

"There is a noble, a mission to which the majority of black students who need an opportunity to mature and become leaders and to reach all students who have an interest in ...," he adds.

"There have been those who question the continuing existence of historically black institutions. This university will survive. We are the oldest historically black university in the country, and we must maintain that character.

Samaritan robbed of car

CHICAGO (AP) — Henry Warren says he was more than willing to stop and help the woman whose stalled car was blocking traffic.

So he's a little bit chagrined that while he was pushing her Mercedes out of the roadway, she drove off with his Buick.

Warren, 51, was on his way home from his job when the woman's car stalled and blocked the road.

While he wasv pushing it out of the way, the woman — identified by police as Verena Hodges — walked over to Walker's car, got in and went home.

He reported his car stolen, rented another and drove to his home in Bellwood, a suburb south of Chicago.

Drug-related crimes frighten citizens

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Drug-related crime is officially reported to be on the rise in Spain, less than a year after the Socialist government softened some narcotics laws.

A spectacular increase in armed robberies is frightening many Spaniards and providing the Socialists' political opposition with its most effective weapon against what it calls government laxity.

When a druggist was shot and killed during a recent holdup in the industrial suburb of Orcasitas, furious neighbors almost succeeded in lynching the sister of the robbery suspect. The young woman had told police her brother was an unemployed heroin addict who robbed to support his habit.

Legislation passed last year decriminalized possession of soft drugs, such as marijuana, and allowed those formally charged with minor crimes to go free pending trial.

DURING A meeting in March to discuss what they called "problems related to citizens' security," Interior Minister Jose Barrionuevo and Justice Minister Fernando Ledesma agreed that three-fourths of all crimes committed in Spain were drug-related.

A subsequent Cabinet meeting presided over by Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez dealt exclusively with the increase in crime and what to do about it.

The Cabinet agreed to create the post of special prosecutor to deal solely with drug trafficking. The ministers also worked on amendments to the 1983 Criminal Justice Act to allow judges more leeway in keeping suspects in jail pending trial. And although the Cabinet maintained the distinction between soft and hard drugs, the ministers made clear their intention to mount a forceful campaign against all drugs, from marijuana to heroin.

Liberal sociologists and commentators point out that Spain has Western Europe's highest unemployment rate — at close to 18 percent — and that many of those involved in drug-related crimes are youths who have never held a job.

In an April 3 editorial, Spain's largest and most influential newspaper, El Pais, contended that the government was being scared off by the opposition's attacks and running the risk of "cooking up short-term palliatives rather than dealing with the fundamental causes of the problem."

INTERIOR MINISTRY figures published in February pointed to a 51 percent increase in pharmacy holdups from 1982 to 1983 and a 92 percent rise in armed robberies overall, including banks, during the same period.

Talk among residents of this outwardly placid capital of 4 million runs more and more to muggings and car break-ins.

In the Galician port of Vigo in the far northwestern part of the country, Inspector Jose Manual Taboada of the Narcotics Investigation Squad told The Associated Press that 95 percent of the assaults and armed robberies in the city of 300,000 were directly related to heroin trafficking and addiction.

The port, hard-hit by a decline in the shipbuilding industry and restrictions on fishing, has recorded 32 bank robberies so far this year.

In October 1982, the Socialists scored a landslide victory in general elections, capturing 202 of the 350 seats in the lower house of Parliament.

Among the planks in their election platform were proposals to decriminalize possession of marijuana and hashish and to empty the country's overcrowded prisons of suspects who had been waiting as long as two years for trial for crimes that carried sentences of less than a year.

DURING A SESSION of the lower house of Parliament on April 4, conservative opposition spokesman Jose Maria Ruiz Gallardon called for the Justice Minister Ledesma's resignation, charging that he bore the brunt of responsibility for the 32 percent increase in crime since the beginning of the year.

Ledesma replied that the security demanded by the opposition was "reactionary security which has nothing to do with either justice or freedom."

Communist Deputy Fernando Perez Royo told the same session of Parliament that there were 80,000 heroin addicts in Spain and that heroin traffic was a multimillion-dollar business "directly tied to the flight of capital from the country."

A foiled bank holdup in the northern Basque city of San Sebastian made front pages around the country after the two would-be robbers demanded heroin in return to the release of hostages. One of the gunmen was later found shot to death inside the bank.

Largest ad agencies listed

NEW YORK (AP) — Dentsu Advertising of Japan retained its ranking as the world's largest advertising agency in 1983, according to an Advertising Age annual survey released Sunday.

The magazine said the Tokyo-based agency had gross income of $437.7 million on billings of $3.21 billion. Second was Young & Rubicam of New York with gross income of $414 million on billings of $3.21 billion.

German ad agencies showed the biggest income growth for the year at 20 percent, the survey said, while French agencies jumped 19 percent, those in Great Britain climbed 18 percent and agencies in South Africa grew 17 percent.

U.S. agencies had a growth rate of 10.9 percent, the survey said.

The rest of the top 10 agencies, followed by their base of operations, gross income and billings, are: Ted Bates Worldwide, New York, $388 million, $2.59 billion; J. Walter Thompson, New York, $378.4 million, $2.52 billion; Ogilvy & Mather, New York, $345.8 million, $2.36 billion; and McCann-Erickson Worldwide, New York, $298.8 million, $1.99 billion.

Also, BBDO International, New York, $289 million, $1.95 billion; Saatchi & Saatchi, London, $253.3 million, $1.71 billion; Leo Burnett, Chicago, $216.5 million, $1.49 billion; and Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago, $208.4 million, $1.41 billion.

Poultry farmer feathers his nest

BELLEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Poultry farmer Buck Metz began raising chickens for their feathers as a hobby 12 years ago, using their hackles to tie fishing flies that tantalize trout.

His pastime is now the world's largest mass production specialty feather farm but is still unable to meet demand. Metz raises 60,000 birds a year, has distributors in 13 foreign countries and grosses nearly $1 million.

"People virtually can't get enough of his feathers. You have to stand in line and wait," said Dick Surette, publisher of the New Hampshire-based "Fly Tyer" magazine. "Before he came along, high quality feathers just weren't available anywhere. He's filled a real void for lots of avid fly tyers."

Since 1941, Metz Hatchery Inc. has raised chickens in a fertile valley 30 south of State College. It produces 12 million broiler chicks, accounting for half of the family's $4 million in gross annual revenues, and 16.8 million table eggs each year. The hatchery's annual chicken feed bill is $1.1 million.

Until Buck Metz got hooked on fly fishing, however, no other chicken farmer ever thought of breeding birds just for their feathers on a large scale.

"THERE WERE experts in fly tying and in poultry production. We put the two together. We were one of first to recognize the market potential," said Metz, 42, a third-generation poultry geneticist who has toiled meticulously to perfect the best hackle bloodlines.

"All of our competitors combined raise 10,000 to 15,000 birds a year. We're three or four times as big as rest of our competitors put together," he added in a recent interview.

The prized feathers are on the neck and saddle cape of Metz roosters. The feathers are long and narrow with enough flexibility to be tied to tiny fishing hooks. They have a minimum of web so they will float, and their colors appeal to fish by imitating insects.

The gross worth of an average feather chicken is $15. A top grade neck retails for $48, but has enough hackle to make 15 to 20 dozen flies and can last for several years.

Metz' first commercial hackle was a dun — a dull, drab gray feather matching the color of insects that are the staple of a trout's diet.

A HIGH QUALITY dun hackle was unavailable in natural shades, but the feather farmer found it by mating a black chicken with a white one. Metz now offers 15 colors and is experimenting with more.

"It's good old-fashioned hard work, attention to detail and learning from mistakes. There wasn't anything magical or any overnight discovery," said Metz. "We take a scientific approach. We run a full pedigree on all our birds. Genetics is the key. These are the best capes available in the world."

Chance played a part in Metz' feather business. His fishing mentor was George Harvey, who at Penn State University taught the country's first college credit course for tying flies. Harvey happened to be a school chum of Metz' father, Robert, and gave advice when Metz wanted to raise his own feathers.

"I didn't even know you used chicken feathers to tie flies. Then, with all the chickens we had running around here, I was too proud to pay somebody else for feathers. It really hurt me to fill out an order to buy chicken feathers," said Metz, who has a vanity license plate that reads "TY-FLYS."

THE 300,000 white leghorns on the Metz farm were unsuitable in color and quality for trout lures. But Harvey and Metz sought out Andy Miner, a retired Minnesota lawyer and a hackle hobbyist.

Metz obtained 144 eggs, 86 of which hatched chicks which became the foundation of Metz stock. Other bloodlines were added, and word soon spread about Metz hackle.

"It grew and grew. It got to the point where it was a hobby gone amok. It was too big, too involved, too time consuming to be a hobby," said Metz, who raised 1,800 birds in his first commercial year.

Metz now exports hackle to Belgium, Singapore, Japan, Australia, Austria, Canada, England, Denmark, Switzerland, France, Italy, West Germany and Sweden.

Former President Jimmy Carter has visited his farm and used Metz hackle. He and Carter fished for trout in Montana two summers ago, and Metz and his family have been guests at Camp David.

"The sport has grown tremendously. So has the sophistication of the people involved. We're not keeping up with the demand.

With spring trout season right around the corner, this is the busiest time for Metz. A crew of 16 women working in what used to be a garage process 700 to 800 hackles a day, skinning, cleaning, brushing and packaging the feathers. Other stock is being selected for next year's breeding.

Olajuwon goes pro

HOUSTON (AP) — Akeem Olajuwon, the 7-foot Nigerian who led the University of Houston to the NCAA championship basketball game the past two years, said Friday he would turn professional and skip his final year of collegiate eligibility.

"I've decided to enter this year's draft and forego my final year in school," Olajuwon said at a news conference. "I want to end speculation on my future so I can concentrate on my studies."

Olajuwon denied a report in Friday's New York Post that he had reached an agreement with the National Basketball Association's Portland Trail Blazers that would pay him $1.2 million a year.

Olajuwon said he made the decision to turn pro Thursday night, but discussed it with his parents in Nigeria a week ago and told them he would probably leave school.

"This is very hard to do," Olajuwon said. "I was thinking I was going to stay in school, but this is my decision. I'm going to have to live with it. It's best for me to enter the draft this year."

Olajuwon said his decision also was influenced by the fact that neither Houston nor Portland are nearing the NBA's ceiling on team salaries.

The center said he would like to have returned to the NCAA Final Four, but added, "there's no guarantee. That's the price I have to pay."

Houston coach Guy Lewis was "behind me 100 percent in whatever I would do," he said.

Lewis was out of town and not available for comment, but school spokesman Jay Goldberg said, "I'm sure he wishes the best for him."

Olajuwon said he plans to return home to Nigeria after final exams, and then return to the U.S. to begin preparing for an NBA career.

"I don't know what I'm going to play or how I'm going to do until I get to the pros," he said.

Olajuwon wound up his three-year career this season by leading the nation in rebounds (500), blocked shots (207) and field goal percentage (67.5). As a Cougar, he pulled down 1,067 rebounds, blocked 454 shots and shot 63.9 percent from the field. He finshed with a 13.3 point per game scoring average, including 16.8 this past season.

Akeem Abdul Olajuwon

Asked to name his most memorable moment as a collegian, he said the 1983 defeat in the title game against North Carolina State was etched in his mind.

"I can't forget that moment," he said.

On April Fool's Day at the NCAA basketball finals in Seattle, Olajuwon said he would be returning to Houston for his senior year. And Friday's news conference at the school was the third date Olajuwon had set to announce his future plans.

First he said the announcement would be May 2. Then he said it would be made May 5, the deadline for college undergraduates to declare their candidacy for the NBA draft.

Barkley follows suit, 2B

Houston's appearance in the Final Four was the third straight with Olajuwon on the team. In 1982, with Olajuwon a freshman, the Cougars lost in the semifinals to North Carolina. In 1983, rated No. 1 in the nation, Houston was upset in the finals by North Carolina State. This month, they bowed to Georgetown in the championship game.

The Trail Blazers and Houston Rockets must flip a coin to determine which club will get the first pick overall in the NBA draft. The Rockets, who had the first choice last year and selected Ralph Sampson, gained the privilege again this year for finishing last in their conference. The Trail Blazers have their division's right to participate in the coin flip by virtue of an earlier trade with the Indiana Pacers, who finished last in their conference.

Olajuwon, 21, has said he would be happy to play for either team.

The New York Post report Friday also said if the Blazers lost the May 10 coin flip with Houston, the team was working on a contingency plan — with similar terms — to sign Georgetown All-America Patrick Ewing. Ewing also is a junior but has maintained he would stay on for his senior year. The newspaper said NBA Commissioner David Stern was investigating the matter.

At Portland, Olajuwon would be reunited with former Houston Cougar teammate Clyde Drexler, who last year quit school a year early to turn pro.

"Either way, whatever he decides, Akeem can't go wrong," Drexler told the Houston Chronicle. "When you're a 7-footer, you can write your own ticket.

"I wish he would stay, but for me it was the best decision. Seven feet and 6-7 (Drexler's height) is a world of difference."

Olajuwon wound up at the University of Houston after he was noticed by an American coach while playing international basketball in his native Lagos, Nigeria in 1980. The coach, Chris Ponds, a friend of Lewis', thought Olajuwon might fit in with the Houston program and suggested the school would be a good place to visit.

His parents are in the cement business in Lagos.

Chaparral netters take high, low road in Region V

From Staff Reports

WACO — The Midland College womens' tennis team is tied for second after the first round of Region V tournament play here Friday. They still have a good chance of winning the tournament.

The men, on the other hand, are in a three way tie for third place and things are starting to look dim.

McLennan County Community College leads both the womens' and mens' divisions in the tournament with 11 and 10 points respectively. The MC and Cooke County women are in second place with eight points each.

For the men, Cooke County is one point off McLennan's pace with nine points while Midland College, Odessa College and South Plains are tied for third with five. The top two teams will advance to the National Tournament next month in Acola, Fla.

"The women still have a real good chance of being there," said MC coach Joe Williams. "The men, depending on how things go Saturday, have an outside chance of finishing in second place. It's kind of slim, but it's a possibility. We have some head-to-head matches with Cooke and if we win all of them we can still go."

Three Chaparral women are still alive in the singles competition. Liz Burris posted an easy 6-0, 6-1 victory over McLennan's Soraya Masanet. Jill Wertenberger matched Burris' victory with a 6-0, 6-1 win over Kay Izzard of Cooke County while Jane Howe came back after losing the first set to defeat Betty Chaves of Cooke, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

In doubles play, all three womens' teams are still in the competition, but only Burris and partner Nicole Barrett played Friday. The duo trounced Rhonda Branaman and Liz Tracy of Odessa College, 6-0, 6-3. The other two teams received first round byes.

FOR THE MC men, Sean Strickling picked up two points from a bye and a victory over McLennan's Mark Belcher in a two-set slugfest, winning 7-5, 7-5. George Schuldberg also tallied two points with his bye and victory over Rolando Zamora of McLennan, 6-3, 6-4.

In doubles competition, Andy Brunner and Strickling suffered a first round defeat to New Mexico Military Institute's Hiroshi Ito and Brian Frances, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4. The other two teams received byes.

"McLennan looks like its going to run away with the mens' title," said Williams.

Following are the results of Friday's matches and today's opponents for Midland College. MC players are listed first:

Barnes, Cranford earn honors

From Staff Reports

ROSWELL, N.M. — Midland College golfers Ed Barnes and Jeff Cranford were named All-Conference Friday as the Chaps finished the two-day, 54-hole NJCAA Region V golf championships in fifth place here at the New Mexico Military Institute golf course.

All golfers fought high winds and cold weather during the two rounds played Thursday with Barnes having more success than most. His first round was a 75 and his second a 71. On Friday, he concluded play with a 76 for a 223 total, good enough for fourth place in the medalist race.

McLennan's Roger Salazar and Henry Lopez tied for medalist at 217, leading McLennan to the Region V title with an 882 team total. New Mexico Junior College finished second at 909 with Roger Martinez placing third in medalist play at 220.

Both teams advance to the national tournament.

As to the performance of the Midland College golfers, Chap coach Delnor Poss said, "They played real well Thursday but just didn't have a good day Friday or we would have made it to the national tournament."

The Chaps' fifth place score was 929, 20 strokes off NMJC which won the last national berth.

"Ed Barnes played tremendous golf Thursday in winds that went as high as 80 miles per hour and temperatures in the low 40s," said Poss. "He shot 75-71 and that's a great score in those conditions. Jeff Cranford finished strong. He shot 73 Friday."

Cranford finished behind Barnes' 223 with a 79-82-73-234 while teammate Chris Gomez was one stroke back at 80-78-77-235. Danny Kloza fired 81-81-77-239 while Kurt Martin shot 83-84-76-243.

The elimination from the regional tournament ends the Midland College golf season and Poss was pleased with his players.

"This was the best group of young men I've ever had the privilege of working with," he said. "These are such fine individuals, citizens. They really are."

Finishing in third place at regionals was Odessa College with a 920 and fourth went to Western Texas at 927.

M-Cubs stay consistent

EL PASO — And the saga goes on...

The El Paso Diablos handed the Midland Cubs their eighth consecutvie loss Friday night, posting a 12-4 Texas League victory here.

El Paso jumped on Cubs starter Jim Boudreau early, collecting eight hits and six runs in the first three innings, knocking him out of the game for reliever Jorge Carpio after failing to get an out through four batters in the bottom of the third.

Carpio fared little better. In 2⅓ innings of relief, the Diablos picked up five hits and four more runs before the Cubs sent in Doug Potestio who lasted 1⅔ innings, giving up the final two runs on three hits.

Ray Soff entered the game in the sixth and went two innings, allowing three hits but no runs.

Bill Wegman picked up the victory to improve his record to 2-2 while Mike Villegas received the save. Boudreau suffered the loss and fell to 0-4 on the year.

Before letting things get out of hand in the middle innings, the Cubs managed to tie the game at 2-2 in the top of the third with a pair of home runs, solo shots by Darrin Jackson and Paul Noce, their first four baggers of the year.

However, El Paso wasted little time in pulling away. After scoring one run in each of the first two innings, the Diablos added four in the third and two in each of the next three for their 12-4 victory. Midland's final runs came one at a time in the seventh and eighth innings.

BOB BRUNDAGE

Reb playoff path treacherous

All the Midland Lee Rebels have to do to clinch second place in District 4-5A and earn their second consecutive berth in the bi-district playoffs this year is beat Midland High.

That's all?

Sure! The Rebels have a one-game lead over Odessa High going into today's 4-5A finale and if they win, they're in. It's as simple as that!

Is there any other way the Rebels can make it without beating the Bulldogs?

Yeah, they can lose to Midland High and if Odessa High loses to Odessa Permian, then the Rebels are still going to bi-district. Should Lee lose and Odessa High win, then the two will get together some time next week for a playoff game. Relax. Lee's in! Everything is still in the Rebels' favor.

Everything, that is, except Midland High. The Bulldogs aren't in Midland Lee's favor. If there's one thing Midland High knows how to do, it's beat Midland Lee.

Tim Whalen's scrappy 'Dogs have done it in the last three consecutive district games, once this year and both times last year. The two teams split in 1982, MHS winning the first, 4-2, Lee the second, 6-2.

In the three straight losses, the closest the Rebels have come to winning was in last year's 10-7 loss at Midland Lee Diamond. In the last five games, the Bulldogs have outscored the Rebels by a 37-18 count.

NOT ONLY can you look at past MHS-Lee matchups to see how the two teams stack up for today's 2 p.m. game, you can also look at recent results. Midland High, after losing badly to Abilene High in the first half of the season, was able to avenge the loss with a 14-11 victory on the Eagles' home turf.

The Bulldogs won by coming up with something they haven't had all year long: an overwhelming hitting attack. Take any two MHS district games and add their total hits together and you come up with 21, the number they connected with against the Eagles. That healthy performance has given the 'Dogs a respectable .306 team batting average.

By comparison, Lee has had only 20 hits combined in their past three ball games, a hitless trend that started at the onset of 4-5A play and has, if anything, deteriorated since. As a team, Lee is hitting a mere .261.

Individually, each team has a new hitting leader going into today's game. At Midland High, Chris Herbert has increased his average to .442, edging out Mike Timlin, .436, and Steve Wootan, .429, at the top of the stat sheet. Jimmy Phillips made his debut at No. 1 for Lee with a .410 average, passing Steve Woodlee, .400 and Bryan Willis, .389.

Darren Thorpe has the most improved average for Midland High, raising it from .227 to .314 in five games. For Lee, Keith McDonald was down to .182 six games ago and is now just under .300 at .297.

The hitting edge has to go to Midland High.

NOW, PITCHING. The Bulldogs have had two pitchers this year that have shown a degree of success, Timlin and Wootan. Either could get the start in this final game in their high school careers.

Timlin was called upon in the first meeting against Lee and did an admirable job, pitching the 'Dogs to a 7-1 victory in one-hit fashion. Wootan has had what Whalen calls "gutsy" performances on the mound. Wootan leads the team with a 3.28 earned run average while Timlin is second at 3.92.

For the Rebels, the only pitcher who has seen any consistent success is Willis. Abilene Cooper is the only team to mar his district season, and the Cougars did it twice. When he's been on, he's been nearly unbeatable. In 51⅓ innings of duty, the righthander has allowed 46 hits while striking out 59.

Braves rip Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Pete Falcone threw a three-hitter, taking a no-hitter into the seventh inning, and drove in three runs with a pair of doubles Friday night to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 6-0 victory over the Houston Astros.

Falcone, 1-3, lost his no-hit bid when Phil Garner hit a two-out infield single between the mound and third base. Falcone walked four and struck out four.

Falcone started the inning by walking Jose Cruz and Jerry Mumphrey consecutively. Two outs later, Garner hit a roller that third baseman Bob Horner gloved cleanly. But the ball was hit too slowly for any play.

Atlanta took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against loser Joe Niekro, 2-4, on solo home runs by Claudell Washington, his seventh, and Chris Chambliss, his third.

The Braves added another run in the fourth on consecutive doubles by Falcone and Washington as Atlanta extended Houston's losing streak to four games.

The Braves scored three runs in the seventh on Horner's run-producing double and Falcone's two-run double to the right-field wall.

The Astros other hits were a single by Kevin Bass and a double by Ray Knight in the eighth.

Only some fancy fielding by Horner and center fielder Dale Murphy allowed Falcone to take the no-hitter into the seventh inning. Terry Scott, pinch hitting for Niekro, led off the Astros sixth with a hard liner that Horner caught for the first out of the inning.

After Bass popped out, Enos Cabell hit a sinking liner toward center that seemed destined to be the Astros' first hit of the night. But Murphy made a diving, hard-charging catch, just above the Astroturf, for the final out of the inning.

Phillies topple Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Juan Samuel's two-run double highlighted a six-run eighth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the New York Mets 8-3 Friday night.

Bill Campbell, 2-0, who pitched one hitless inning of relief after starter John Denny was lifted for a pinch-hitter, was the winner. Doug Sisk, 1-1, was charged with the defeat in relief of Tim Leary.

Samuel opened the Phillies' eighth with a single, stole second and scored on Lenny Matuszek's ground-rule double. One out later, Joe Lefebvre singled to score Matuszek to put the Phillies ahead 4-3.

A bases-loaded walk by Met reliever Dick Tidrow to Ivan DeJesus brought home another run, and a passed ball by Met catcher Junior Ortiz scored the inning's fourth run before Samuel capped the rally with his double.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the first inning with the help of a two-base throwing error by Samuel at second base.

Reds rip Giants, 9-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Duane Walker, Dan Driessen and Dave Concepcion each homered to support pitcher Joe Price and the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-2 victory Friday night over San Francisco for the Giants' fourth straight loss.

The game was marked by two bench-clearing incidents, the second of which occured in the fifth inning after Price retaliated for an earlier hit batsman by hitting Cubs rookie starter Mark Grant.

Grant, making his major league debut, hit Ron Oester with a pitch in the third inning to bring both teams on the field. No blows were exchanged either time.

Price, 2-1, gave up four hits, struck out three and didn't walk a batter in seven innings, getting relief help from Tom Hume and Brad Lesley, who got the final five outs for his second save.

Bucs beat Cubs 3-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Pena slammed his fourth home run, and Rick Rhoden and Kent Tekulve combined to scatter eight hits, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Pena's homer, a solo shot with one out in the fourth, tied the score 1-1. Pittsburgh took advantage of a two-base throwing error by Cubs catcher Jody Davis to score the winning run off loser Chuck Rainey, 1-3, in the same inning, and the Pirates added an eighth-inning insurance run when Johnny Ray tripled and Bill Madlock singled.

Rhoden, 2-2, worked 7 1-3 innings, striking out five without walking a batter. Tekulve allowed singles to Ron Cey and Mel Hall and Davis' RBI grounder in the ninth, but held on to earn his second save.

After Pena's home run, Lee Lacy, subbing for the slump-ridden Amos Otis in left field, singled and stole second. He scored when Davis' throw bounced in the dirt at second base and skipped past center fielder Bob Dernier.

The Cubs' first run came in the second when Cey hit a one-out double to center and Hall followed with a single up the middle.

Rhoden retired 10 straight batters after allowing a two-out double to Ryne Sandberg in the third. The streak was broken by Leon Durham's leadoff single in the seventh, but Cey grounded into a double play.

Andujar hits Expos

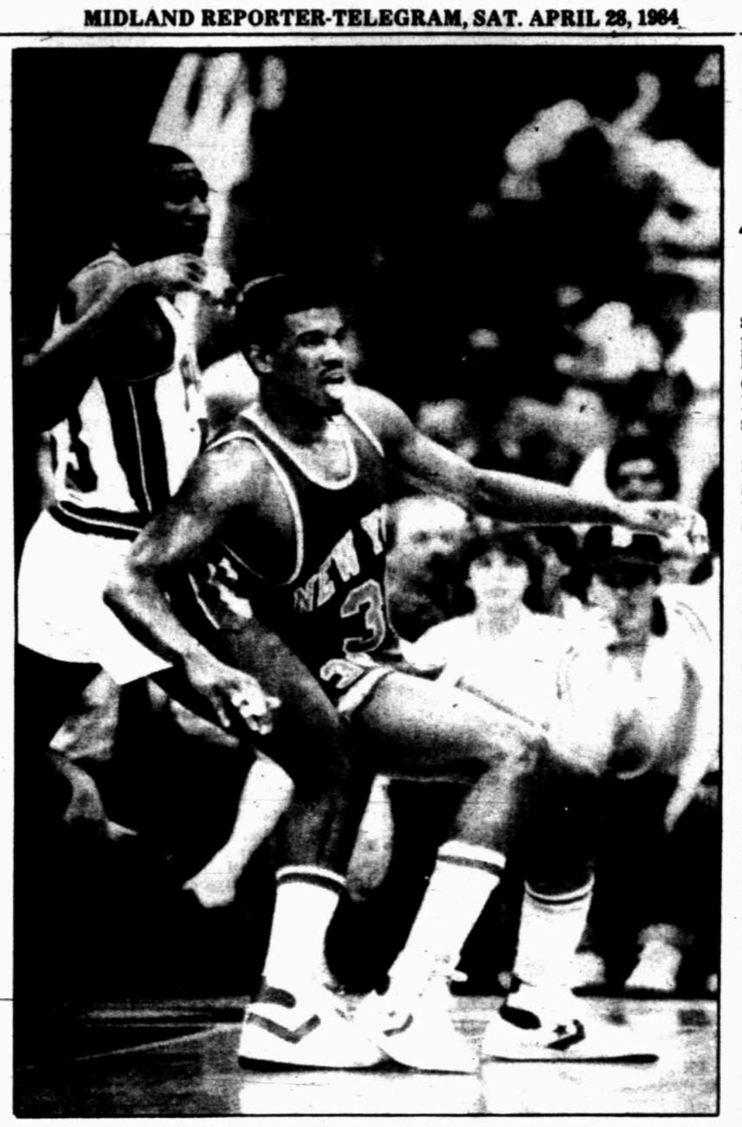

MONTREAL (AP) — Joaquin Andujar retaliated in a battle of brush-back pitches with Steve Rogers by belting a home run that broke a 2-2 fifth-inning tie, and the St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal 8-2.

Andujar, 3-2, who scattered 10 hits, threw a pitch under the chin of the Expos' Bryan Little in the third inning. Andujar was knocked down in his next turn at bat in the fifth inning by Rogers. Home plate umpire Bruce Froemming warned both benches, and on the next pitch, Andujar homered deep into the left field bleachers.

It was the fourth career homer for Andujar and his third against Montreal. He had not homered since Aug. 10, 1980.

The Cardinals moved ahead 5-2 in the sixth when Ken Oberkfell chased Rogers, 1-1, with a two-run double.

St. Louis added two more runs in the eighth against reliever Bob James on a squeeze bunt by Ozzie Smith and Lonnie Smith's fielder's choice grounder. Darrell Porter, George Hendrick and Tommy Herr singled consecutively in the ninth off Dan Schatzeder for another run.

New York's Bernard King and Detroit's Cliff Levingston (in light jersey) grapple for position in the Knicks-Pistons NBA playoff game.

King's smoking 44 gets Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Bernard King scored four of his game-high 44 points in overtime Friday night to lead New York to a 127-123 victory over the Detroit Pistons and give the Knicks their first-round playoff series three games to two.

The Knicks earned the right to face the Boston Celtics in a seven-game National Basketball Association semifinal series that begins Sunday in Boston.

King capped a phenomenal series in which he scored more than 40 points in the last four outings and averaged 42.6 points for the five games.

The Knicks had a 114-111 lead with 26 seconds remaining in regulation on a short jumper by King. But Detroit's Isiah Thomas canned a three-point jumper with 23 seconds left to knot the score.

After a New York turnover and a Detroit time out, Thomas made a move to the basket with nine seconds to go, but Darrell Walker stripped him of the ball and time ran out before the Knicks Trent Tucker could get off a final shot.

Detroit took a 116-114 lead with 4:45 remaining in the five-minute extra period on a basket by Bill Laimbeer.

However, Tucker tied it 20 seconds later on a jumper from the corner.

King put the Knicks ahead to stay with 3:29 remaining with a stuff that made it 118-116. The Knicks then ran off the next five points before Thomas canned another 3-pointer.

Thomas, who scored five points in the extra stanza, finished with 35 points for the Pistons, who were making their first playoff appearance in seven years.

Bill Cartwright scored 29 points for the Knicks and Ray Williams added 17.

Kelly Tripucka had 23 points for the Pistons.

The game was played in the Joe Louis Arena because the Pistons' regular home court in the Pontiac Silverdome had been booked for a motocross race. A crowd of 21,208, largest in Joe Louis history, saw the action.

Stars break Breakers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Chuck Fusina passed for five touchdowns to tie a United States Football League single-game record in leading the Philadelphia Stars to a 35-0 victory over the New Orleans Breakers Friday night.

The Stars, 9-1, won their seventh straight game before a crowd of 34,011, the largest of the season at Veterans Stadium.

David Riley and Willie Collier were on the receiving end of two touchdown passes each, and Steve Folsom scored the other TD.

The nearest New Orleans came to scoring was in the fourth quarter, when a 26-yard pass from quarterback Johnny Walton to Frank Lockett gave the Breakers a first-and-goal on the Stars' 2-yard line.

But on the next two plays, the Stars' George Cooper nailed New Orleans running back Marcus Dupree at the 7 and sacked Walton at the 15. After a running play, Walton's fourth-down pass to Lockett with 7:05 left was wide.

The Stars scored their first touchdown with 4:28 gone in the first quarter, when Fusina tossed a screen pass to Riley, who ran 47 yards into the end zone.

The Breakers then drove from their 23-yard line to the Stars' 14 before Garcia Lane intercepted a Walton pass in the end zone.

Philadelphia made it 14-0 at 4:12 into the second period on Fusina's 13-yard scoring pass to Riley.

The Stars increased their lead to 21-0 when Fusina threw an 18-yard pass to Collier with 13:05 gone in the second quarter.

With 9:13 elapsed in the third quarter, Fusina threw five yards to Folsom to make it 28-0.

The final touchdown came with 30 seconds left in the third period when Fusina passed eight yards down the middle to Collier.

'Boats dump Maulers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Rookie quarterback Walter Lewis threw for 264 yards and two touchdowns Friday night as the Memphis Showboats dumped the Pittsburgh Maulers 17-7 in a United States Football League game.

The former Alabama star completed 24 of 32 passes and had no interceptions as the Showboats collected their third victory in 10 games. He completed 11 of his last 12 passes in a drive that ended with the final whistle with the ball on the Pittsburgh 14.

The victory, before 30,640 at the Liberty Bowl, broke a three-game losing streak for the Showboats. The Maulers are now 2-8.

Pittsburgh, with Glenn Carano at quarterback, was unable to put together a single sustained drive in the face of a tough Memphis defense.

The lone Mauler touchdown came after Lewis fumbled on his own 13 early in the third period. Two plays later, Carano connected with wide receiver Jackie Flowers for the score.

Memphis scored first with 1:24 left in the first period.

Hogs lead

COKPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The University of Arkansas men's tennis team lost only one set while winning all nine matches Friday to hold on to a slim lead in the Southwest Conference tennis tournament.

The Razorbacks increased their point total to 67. The Texas Longhorns won eight matches Friday and brought their point total to 64, while Southern Methodist captured five matches to increase its total to 60.

Top-seeded Kelly Evernden from Arkansas was scheduled to play fourth-seeded Greg Hill of Texas A&M Saturday, while second-seeded Johnny Levine of Texas was slated to meet Houston's Dacio Campos.

Rounding out the men's standings after Friday's play was Texas A&M with 47 points, Texas Christian with 43, Houston with 36, Texas Tech with 15 and Rice and Baylor with 14 each.

In the women's division, Texas and SMU each won eight matches Friday and the Lady Longhorns held on to a one-point lead going into the second day of play.

Texas' Kathleen Cummings, the tournament's top seed will play Wendy Wood of Rice Saturday, while second-seeded Margared Redfearn of Houston will play Texas A&M's Nandini Rangarajan.

'Boy Gorge' Barkley eyes NBA

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Boy Gorge wants a slice of the professional basketball pie.

Charles Barkely, the 6-foot-6, 275-pound Auburn junior with a platter of nicknames such as Boy Gorge, the Crisco Kid, Breadtruck and the Round Mound of Rebound, said Friday he has decided to turn professional.

Barkley, a huge, agile and animated player who won high marks and wide notice at the recent U.S. Olympic basketball trials, said he has applied for hardship status with the National Basketball Association and expects to go high in the June NBA draft.

"I feel like if I go in the top five, the opportunity will be there," Barkley said. "I feel like it will be for the best."

He said "it doesn't really matter" which NBA team drafts him.

Barkley said he would talk more about his decision at a news conference Saturday.

Barkley is one of 20 finalists for the 12-member Olympic team.

His decision to turn pro would not affect his Olympic eligibility even if he signs a contract with an NBA team. Under the new clarification of an amateur accepted by the International Olympic Committee, a player may sign a professional contract, have an agent and be insured by the professional club and still be eligible.

"When I decided it was time to apply for hardship and get the letter in the mail, I got a little sad and I wondered at the last second if I was doing the right thing," Barkley told The Birmingham News. "Deep down — and I've thought about this for several months — I know I'm doing the right thing for Charles Barkley."

"That's my decision, and I hope everyone wishes me well," Barkley said.

Barkley said he's "excited at the opportunity to play professional basketball. To play against Dr. J and Moses and Kareem — it's a lifetime dream.

"Still, it's sad when I think about leaving Auburn. But I'm leaving with the program on a solid foundation. I'm still planning to stay in school and I'll do whatever I can to help Coach (Sonny) Smith in recruiting. I couldn't have gone to a better school or played for a better coach."

"We wish him the best," said Smith. "I've talked to several NBA people on Charles' behalf, and it looks good that he will be one of the top six players selected."

Barkley led the Southeastern Conference in rebounding the last three seasons. He helped Auburn to a 20-11 mark in 1983-84, the school's best record in a quarter of a century. Auburn finished second in both the SEC regular season and in the post-season tournament and made its first appearance in the NCAA Tournament.

"I think if we hadn't accomplished so much this year after so many years of losing and rebuilding, I probably would have stayed for my final year," said Barkley, who averaged 15.2 points and 9.5 rebounds last season.

Said Smith: "We'll miss that big guy."

Arkansas' Paul Donovan (left) takes the baton from Ed Williams en route to the Hogs' distance medley relays win at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia.

Pigs win in Penn

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Anchorman Paul Donovan of Arkansas took the lead at the top of the stretch and outran Villanova's Marcus O'Sullivan to win the distance medley relay Friday at the 90th annual Penn Relays.

In winning the event for the second straight year, Arkansas was clocked in 9 minutes, 26.55 seconds with Villanova about 5 yards behind in 9:27.69. Wisconsin finished third (9:32.97) and Arizona State (9:35.15) fourth in the day's feature event.

In other events, Fred Cleary of Arkansas won the 400-meter hurdles in 50.19, Robert Weir of SMU defended his hammer throw title with a toss of 218 feet, 6 inches and Paul Emordi of Texas Southern captured the long jump with a leap of 25-8.

In the distance medley, Wisconsin led at the end of the first two legs, the 1,200 and 400 meters. Arkansas was fourth after 1,200 and third following the 400.

On the third leg of 800 meters, Villanova's John Marshall took the lead with Arkansas' Ed Williams in close pursuit. Marshall held a slight edge when he handed the baton to O'Sullivan.

O'Sullivan held on until the field turned for home at the top of the stretch where Donovan overtook him and increased his margin slowly to the wire.

Villanova sought to regain the distance medley title it won here for 16 straight years until it was dethroned by Georgetown in 1982.

Donovan said he was happy that O'Sullivan held the lead at the start of the final leg.

"It's hard to get the feel of the pace when you're starting off. I wasn't that worried. I thought if I could be close with 200 yards to go I could beat him.

"At that point it turns into a strength race and I'm stronger than he is," Donovan said.

Said O'Sullivan: "I saw his shadow and I knew he was coming. I trained hard and ran hard and got nothing for it. There is very little consolation in finishing second. He was much stronger than me."

For Arkansas, leadoff runner Gary Taylor ran 2:54.4 in the 1,200, Bill Dupont 47.4 in the 400, Williams 1:48.1 in the 800 and Donovan a 3:56.7 anchor.

Villanova's John Keyworth opened with a 2:56.5 in the 1,200, and was followed by Chip Jenkins, 47.0 in the 400, Marshall, 1:46.3 in the 800 and O'Sullivan's 3:57.9 anchor leg.

Arkansas, which went home with three relay titles last year, also qualified for Saturday finals in the 400- and 800-meter relays.

Favored Georgia led the 400 qualifiers with a 40.19. Others in the final are Morgan State, Florida, James Madison and G.C. Foster (Jamaica).

Morgan State had the best 800 qualifying time, 1:22.2, and will meet Arkansas, Georgia, Tennessee, James Madison and East Carolina in Saturday's championship.

In a major women's event, Tennessee beat Louisiana State in the 400-meter relay.

Canadiens apply pressure to NY

NHL Playoffs

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Two games ago, the New York Islanders' goal was to match the feat of the Montreal Canadiens' dynasty of a generation ago — to win five successive Stanley Cups.

It still is, but first they'll have to match a feat of their own.

The Islanders are trailing the surprising Canadiens 2-0 in the best-of-seven Prince of Wales Conference final, which continues here Saturday and Tuesday nights.

"They won two games in their building," said Islanders center Bryan Trottier. "Now we have to win two games in our building. We've come back home to regroup."

Only twice in the history of the National Hockey League playoffs has a team rebounded from an 0-2 deficit to win a series. On each occasion — the Islanders against Pittsburgh in 1975 and, before that, the Toronto Maple Leafs against Detroit in 1942 — the team fell behind three games to none before turning things around.

All the dynasty talk is shrugged off by at least one of Montreal's players, Larry Robinson. The Canadiens are trying to win this series, and the cup, for themselves, not necessarily to preserve the singularity of the record set by the Montreal teams of 1956-60.

"The past is the past," Robinson said. "There is no connection between these players and the ones to won five straight cups. The similarity, obviously, is the uniform. But hockey was different then an the teams were different. There aren't even that many guys left from when we won four in a row."

The only ones remaining from those teams of 1976-79 are Robinson, Guy Lafleur, Bob Gainey, Steve Shutt, Mario Tremblay and Pierre Mondou, plus Coach Jacques Lemaire and General Manager Serge Savard, then players.

The Canadiens completely outplayed the Islanders in Montreal, registering 3-0 and 4-2 victories behind the goaltending of rookie Steve Penney, a staunch defense and a speedy attack led by Mats Naslund, Shutt and Mondou.

The Islanders, meanwhile, have generated little offense. Their forward lines have been disorganized, forcing their defensemen to carry the puck. Too often, they've had to dump it into Montreal's zone, chase and hope.

It hasn't worked.

"We don't want to let their forwards freewheel too much," said Montreal's Bobby Smith. "If the result is that their defensemen carrying the puck more, that's just how it's worked out. But it is to our advantage.

"We'll keep on the same game plan and I think we can continue to make it tough for them. We have even more confidence now than when we beat Boston (3-0 in the first round) and Quebec (4-2 in the second round).

"But the Islanders have come through lots of times. If there is one thing they won't do, it's panic."

Still, the situation is bordering on the desperate for the champs, who have not trailed a playoff series 0-2 since 1977 against Montreal. The Islanders have won a record 18 consecutive playoff matchups since then.

Left wing Bob Bourne, who earlier was sidelined with a separated shoulder, sprained his knee Thursday night and is doubtful for Saturday night's game. Defenseman Stefan Persson suffered a separated left shoulder when rammed into the boards by Ryan Walter in the second game. Defenseman Dave Langevin already is out with a separated shoulder and center Pat LaFontaine has a severely sprained ankle.

The Islanders have rallied twice in this year's playoffs, albeit not from as far behind. They were down two games to one to the New York Rangers in the opening round and trailed 1-0 after two periods of the fourth game before winning that one and then the fifth in overtime. And after losing the first game to Washington in the next round, the Islanders won four in a row.

In order to come back against Montreal, the Islanders need to solve Penney. They also could use the first goal of the game, something Montreal has gotten 10 times in 11 postseason games.

"Scoring the first goal means you are ready to play," noted rookie defenseman Chris Chelios. "But it means nothing as far as momentum against the Islanders."

The Canadiens would seem to have all the momentum to take this series, but as Penney said: "I'm not thinking about winning the series — yet."

Oiler goaltenders double trouble

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — If hockey had a bullpen, Edmonton goaltender Andy Moog would feel right at home.

When the Oilers' No. 1 goalie Grant Fuhr bruised an elbow in a third-period collision, Moog came on to preserve Edmonton's 4-3 playoff victory over Minnesota Thursday night. He'll probably leave his relief role and start off in the net in Saturday's third game of the best-of-seven Campbell Conference final, which Edmonton leads 2-0.

"I was a little bit anxious at first," the 23-year-old goaltender said. "But once I stopped that first shot, I got confidence and was glad to help out the team."

Moog had played only two periods of playoff hockey this season before squelching Minnesota's comeback bid, but he said the thought of being a goat never entered his mind.

"You just can't let yourself think like that," Moog said.

Fuhr was slammed into the post by Minnesota's 217-pound Paul Holmgren with 17 minutes to go and the score tied 3-3.

At first, Oilers' doctors thought Fuhr had hyper-extended the elbow, but after x-rays, it was diagnosed as only a bruise.

"He was under so much pain, I'd be surprised if he plays Saturday," Edmonton Coach Glen Sather said

Wadkins cards 67

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Bobby Wadkins, still searching for his first tour victory, continued his attack on The Woodlands Country Club's West Course with a 4-under-par 67 Friday to take a 2-stroke lead after two rounds of the $500,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

Wadkins, a 10-year tour veteran, shot a 5-under-par 66 in the first round, giving him a 133 total for the tournament, nine under par, and a 2-stroke lead over Bob Eastwood, who shot an erratic 69 for a 135 36-hole total.

Wadkins has had several narrow misses in pursuit of a tournament victory. He was involved in a playoff with Lou Graham in the 1979 Philadelphia Classic, losing on the first playoff hole. He also led last year's Colonial tournament in Fort Worth after three rounds but three-putted the final hole and missed out on a playoff.

Wadkins birdied two of the first three holes and chopped his way out of the trees to save par on the fourth hole to start his round.

He sank a 15-foot birdie putt on No. 6 and the only blemish on his round was a bogey on No. 9. Wadkins' bunker shot stopped three feet from the hole but he lipped out his putt.

Three strokes off the pace with 136s were John Mahaffey, Russ Cochran and Gary McCord. Mahaffey, who plays out of The Woodlands course, and Cochran each shot 3-under-par 68s, and first day co-leader McCord shot even-par 71 in the second round.

Lou Graham, who shared the first-day lead with McCord, shot a 1-over par 72 to join a group of eight golfers at 137.

Eastwood fired an opening-round 66 and kept up the surge in the second round.

Four straight birdies sent Eastwood 9-under for the tournament with six holes to play but he then bogeyed two of the final five holes to drop back to a 69.

Eastwood's birdie run started on No. 1 with eight-and three-foot putts and he ran in a 20-footer on No. 3. He hit into a bunker on No. 5 and went into the rough on No. 7 and had to settle for bogeys on both holes.

A&M baseball coach calls it quits

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Tom Chandler, head baseball coach at Texas A&M University for the past 26 years, announced his retirement Friday.

Chandler, whose retirement will be effective Aug. 31, said he was "convinced now is the proper time to announce my decision."

"I'm deeply appreciative of the support from the administration, the students and all Aggies everywhere," Chandler said. "I have tried to instill in my teams the high ideals and competitive spirit that embodies Texas A&M University."

Chandler is currently ranked in the top 15 winningest active baseball coaches in the nation. He has compiled 23 consecutive winning seasons. The Aggies were 36-12 entering a weekend series against Rice.

"We regret to see Coach Chandler retire," A&M Athletic Director Jackie Sherrill said. "However, we wish him and his family the very best. He has made countless contributions to the success of our baseball program, and we are deeply appreciative of his efforts."

Veteran Lakers draw "new kids"

NBA Playoffs

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The playoff-wise Los Angeles Lakers take on a "new kid" in the post-season tournament, the Dallas Mavericks, in a best-of-seven showdown beginning today.

The first game of the NBA's Western Conference semifinals begins at 2:30 p.m. at the Forum.

Los Angeles, appearing in the playoffs for the eighth time in the last eight years, breezed through its best-of-five opening series with a three-game sweep of Kansas City.

The Lakers wrapped up that series last Sunday in Kansas City and thus have had nearly a week of rest and recuperation.

The Mavericks, appearing in the NBA playoffs for the first time in their four-year history, fought their way to a 3-2 verdict over the Seattle SuperSonics in a series that ended Thursday night.

The Lakers, NBA champions in 1980 and 1982 and a 4-0 loser to Philadelphia in last year's title series, are heavily favored despite the fact that Dallas won three of five regular-season meetings.

Los Angeles' regular-season record of 54-28 was the second best in the league behind Boston's 62-20. The Mavericks posted a 43-39 record.

Dallas Coach Dick Motta said after Thursday's 105-104 overtime victory over Seattle in Dallas that he wasn't particularly worried by the short turnaround time to the next series.

He said he had asked assistant coach Bob Weiss to stay up all night studying the Lakers, and that, after practicing Friday morning, the club would depart for Los Angeles, with Weiss presenting his report during the flight.

"It is a little short but every time I've gone into one like this, it hasn't hurt us," said Motta, whose playoff coaching experience includes nearly 100 games at Chicago and Washington.

The series will reunite two former Michigan State stars, the Lakers' Magic Johnson and Jay Vincent of the Mavericks.

"I haven't been in a playoff game since Magic Johnson left Michigan State and now we're going to LA to play my old friend," said Vincent, whose two free throws with 17 seconds left in overtime turned out to be the difference in the series-deciding victory over Seattle.

"It's Magic here we come. I just hope we can give them a battle."

"We're ready. Bring 'em on," said Johnson.

Mark Aguirre, whose 29.5 scoring average this season was second in the league only to Adrian Dantley's 30.6, paced the Mavericks against the Lakers with an average of 31 points — including one 42-point outing — in the five 1983-84 regular-season meetings.

Johnson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who this year became the NBA's all-time top scorer, led the Lakers against the Mavericks, with Abdul-Jabbar averaging 25 points over the five games and Johnson averaging 19 while playing in four of the contests.

The Lakers may be without starting forward Jamaal Wilkes during the series. Wilkes, who has been suffering from a virus for the past six weeks, did not play in the opening series against the Kings.

Sixers: Boom to bust in 365 days

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers, who had hoped to start a dynasty with last year's championship sweep of the Los Angeles Lakers, instead kept a date with tradition.

Stung by the New Jersey Nets 101-98 on their own court, the 76ers' exit Thursday in the first round of the NBA playoffs marked a quick end to an injury-filled season.

The Sixers appeared to have the credentials to back up their vow of becoming the first team to win a second consecutive NBA crown since the Boston Celtics did so in 1969.

But they crumpled before the upstart Nets, whose three victories in the five-game series all came at the Spectrum. It was the first time in seven years that Philadelphia had dropped out of the playoffs in the first round.

The last time a defending champion was eliminated in the first round was in 1981, when the Los Angeles Lakers lost to the Houston Rockets.

"Our season had more valleys than peaks and the playoff was indicative of the season — two peaks and three valleys," said captain Julius Erving.

The 76ers, sporting the fifth best record in the history of the NBA, 65-17, took the 1982 title in lightning fashion. They literally swept through the playoffs, losing only one game en route to dethroning the Lakers.

The nucleus of the team — Moses Malone, Julius Erving, Maurice Cheeks — was ambitious and confident that they could repeat their performance. But the backup talent wasn't as strong, a lack of depth exacerbated by unusually hard luck with injuries.

Malone lost 10 games with a sprained ankle, and Cheeks, Bobby Jones, Clint Richardson, Franklin Edwards, Marc Iavaroni, Andrew Toney, Clemon Johnson and Leo Rautins missed a total of 88 games.

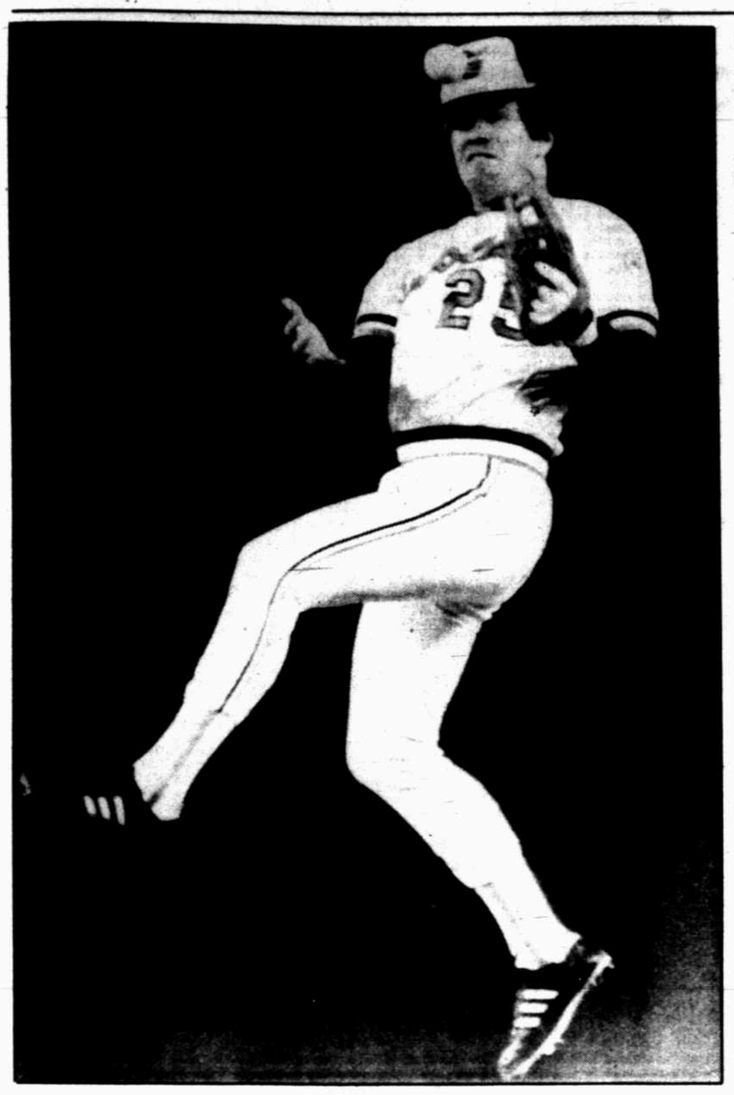

The 76ers finished with a 52-30 record, dropped the first two games of the series with the Nets here and won two in New Jersey to gain a tie that sent the series back here. But the jinx on NBA champions survived.

NBA coaches believe it's been hard to repeat because of the league's balance.

"There are many more talented players on the teams," says K.C. Jones of Boston, who played for many of the Celtic teams that won 11 of 13 titles between 1957 and 1969. "Teams are not as intimidated as they have been. I've seen that this year."

"And it seems that anytime you accomplish something there's a slight change in attitude," says Washington's Gene Shue. "Because the competition is so great even the slightest degree of change makes it easy for another team with a different type of attitude to come along and do it."

Erving had been so sure the 76ers would win Thursday that he told writers before the game they could "mail in the stats" for a Sixers' win.

Baltimore second baseman Rich Dauer boots the ball off the bat of Texas Ranger Curt Wilkerson. Wilkerson was safe and Dauer was tagged with an error.

Orioles slip by Texas

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Lowenstein rapped a run-scoring single in the 11th inning Friday night, giving the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Cal Ripken Jr. singled to open the 11th and moved to second on a wild pitch by Dave Tobik, 1-3, who also wild-pitched home the tying run in the 10th inning. After throwing two balls to Eddie Murray, Tobik issued an intentional walk to the Baltimore first baseman. Lowenstein then singled on a 2-2 pitch to score Ripken.

The winning pitcher was Sammy Stewart, 3-0, who pitched the final 1 2-3 innings, although he yielded an RBI single to Gary Ward in the 10th that gave the Rangers a short-lived 3-2 lead.

Baltimore tied it in the bottom of the 10th on Wayne Gross' single, an error by Texas shortstop Curtis Wilkerson on Floyd Rayford's that allowed pinch runner Todd Cruz to reach third and Tobik's first wild pitch.

Tippy Martinez, the second Baltimore pitcher, walked Wayne Tolleson to open the 10th and he was forced at second when Murray fielded an attempted sacrifice bunt by Wilkerson. Martinez was relieved after walking Billy Sample and Ward grounded the first pitch from Stewart through the middle for his first RBI since the second game of the season.

Texas starter Danny Darwin allowed seven hits over the first nine innings, including an eighth-inning home run to pinch hitter Jim Dwyer.

Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a single by John Shelby, a stolen base and a broken-bat single by Murray.

White Sox lose again

CHICAGO (AP) — Rich Gedman hit two home runs and Mike Easler added another to lead Dennis Eckersley and the Boston Red Sox to a 5-3 victory over the slumping Chicago White Sox.

The loss was the fourth straight for the White Sox, who have lost seven of their last eight games and are last in the American League West after winning the division a year ago.

Eckersley, 2-2, gave up a first-inning home run to Carlton Fisk but finished with a 10-hitter while LaMarr Hoyt, 2-2, took the loss, his second in a row after a 15-game winning streak.

Jays flush Royals 1-0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Doyle Alexander and Dennis Lamp combined on a six-hitter and George Bell drove in the game's only run with a bases-loaded grounder in the first inning to give the Toronto Blue Jays a 1-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Alexander edged hard-throwing rookie Mark Gubicza, 0-2, who struck out seven and walked three while surrendering seven hits in eight innings. Alexander, 1-1, a veteran right-hander, struck out two and walked one before Pat Sheridan opened the Kansas City ninth with a single and Lamp came on to earn his third save.

Brewers rout Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Caldwell fired a five-hitter and Charlie Moore drove in five runs to highlight a 16-hit Milwaukee attack as the Brewers routed the New York Yankees 12-0 Friday night.

Caldwell, 4-1, did not walk a batter and struck out two. The 35-year-old left-hander owns a 10-3 record in Yankee Stadium and is 13-6 lifetime against New York. It was his 23rd career shutout.

Moore capped a three-run second inning off loser Shane Rawley, 0-2, with a two-run single and tripled home two more runs off Bob Shirley in a three-run fifth. He also drove in a run with a grounder in the eighth. Jim Sundberg delivered a run-scoring double in the second inning and a two-run triple in a three-run third as the Brewers won for the first time in nine games at Yankee Stadium.

Stock car racing circuit aims for Twin Cities

ODESSA - The San Antonio-based All Pro/Central racing circuit will make its first stop at Twin Cities Speedway Friday and Saturday as drivers from a four-state area will compete in the Villa Vagabond Inn's 100.

The winner of the 100-lap event will collect $1,500. Early entries included Odessa's John Foster and Midlanders Bob Bolin and Junior Robertson. Foster took second in the series opener in San Antonio and third at Altus, Okla. Bolin was third at San Antonio and 11th at Altus while Robertson had 11th and eighth place finishes.

The speedway pit area opens at 5 p.m. Friday for drivers and the grandstands will be opened at 6 p.m.. Qualifying heats begin at 8 p.m. and will be followed by the 20-lap semi-late feature. Saturday the pits open at 1 p.m. and grandstands at 4 p.m. The All Pro Last Chance race begins at 8, followed by the Street Stock Division 20-lap race and then the Villa Vagabond Inn 100.

The Speedway is located five miles east of Odessa on Highway 80 near Odessa Country Club.

Baseball Promotion...

The Midland Cubs and Petroleum Museum have joined hands for a unique promotion that will hopefully introduce the museum to those who have not yet become acquainted with it. In conjunction with the museum's Professional Baseball in Midland exhibit, museum visitors will have an opportunity to register for tickets to future Cubs games. After May 23, 25 names will be selected from the registrants, each receiving two tickets. Also one registrant will win a print of the Tom Lovell painting, Five Miles Ahead of the Column.

The exhibit, tracing Midland's baseball history from the 1920s to the present through the use of artifacts, photographs and historic summaries, will be on disiplay through May 23. Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Hardy gains state entry

From Staff Reports

HAMLIN — Midland High long distance runner Claire Hardy competed in her final meet of the season before Saturday's State Track Meet in Austin.

Competing in the 3200-meter run in the State Qualifiers meet here, Hardy took nearly 10 seconds off her Region V winning time of 10:57 to easily win the event in 10:47.55.

Going into the race, Hardy was ranked fourth in the state of Texas in the 3200 and was 14 seconds off the pace set by Kathy Smith of San Antonio Churchill and Crystal McGuire of Dallas Highland Park, the only two ahead of her in the 5A rankings. The third girl is in a lowere class and won't be competing against Hardy.

"Until this race, Claire was running real good but hadn't been pushed," said MHS girls' track coach Brenda Mitchell. "Before, there was a 14-second difference between their (the two other 5A runners) best times and Claire and now there's only four seconds."

Mitchell said Hardy came out and ran a 1:11 first lap and hit 5:14 at the 1600-meter split, "three seconds faster than at regionals," said Mitchell. "The thing we're happy with is that she didn't feel taxed after the race. She didn't really push herself any harder than she did last week that she could feel physically, but the time was a lot faster.

"I think the real positive thing for Claire is she took the time off her best time and I think it helps her confidence to know she can do it."

Another 10 second increase like she came up with in the qualifiers, could make Hardy an upset winner at State Saturday.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, April 29, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Japanese Emperor Hirohito, conductor Zubin Mehta, poet Rod McKuen, Arizona Wranglers coach George Allen, all-time great Chicago White Sox shortstop Luis Aparicio, actress Kate Mulgrew, golf's Johnny Miller and St. Louis Cardinals quarterback Jim Hart share your birthday. Also born on this date: Duke Ellington and publishing giant William Randolph Hearst. Think positive and the sky is the limit! Your creativity brings you and your associates some wonderful luck. Those looking for new jobs find them. Learn how to say "no" before you find yourself in debt. Loved ones will be supportive once you explain how things stand. Romance is exhilarating.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A family problem could cause a strain on romance. A compromise is the best solution to a delicate domestic dilemma. Entertaining is a valuable tool in drumming up new business.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Feel free to do pretty much as you please today. New friends add glamor and excitement to the social scene. Respect other people's confidences. A careless word could upset someone's apple cart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Mental endeavors are favored over physical pursuits. Make a date with someone you have not seen recently. Entertaining is fine if you do not have to spend long hours in the kitchen.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You and the folks at home draw closer together. Invite friends over for a casual meal. Romance should be exciting. Do not flash your cash in public places.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Attending church gives you the opportunity to see old friends and gain new insights. Devote at least part of the day to creative work. Spend more "quality time" with offspring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept 22): Devote more time to your top priorities. Entertaining plans may have to be put on the back burner. A Leo's sudden generosity could bother you a bit. Adopt a wait-and-see attitude.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A sermon or conversation gives you fresh hope about an old problem. Some news regarding an elderly relative boosts your spirits. Think twice about making a commitment if you feel hesitant.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sidestep all business discussions and postpone travel. Domestic affairs require your immediate attention. Romance heats up. A great day for anyone looking for real estate to rent, buy or sell.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pay more attention to what a small child is saying. Someone's generosity warms your heart. A friend refuses to go along with a poor idea; everyone involved learns a valuable lesson.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Romance is very tempting. To protect your reputation, be very discreet. Postpone involvement in activities that will take you far from home. Write to those who are away at college.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Go ahead and mix business with pleasure today. Accept an invitation to meet someone who can offer you sound advice. Keep in touch with important contacts. Home study boosts your earning power.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Focus your attention on personal matters. A family member has an idea or project that could bring in extra income. Listen attentively.

One-woman show to play on Broadway

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — When former "Flamingo Road" star Barbara Rush originated a one-woman show in a tiny suburban theater, she didn't expect it to turn into a surprise hit that would carry her to Broadway.

"I never, when I began this, had grandiose ideas about it," said Miss Rush, who opens on Broadway May 3 in "A Woman of Independent Means." The best seller was adopted for the stage by its author, Elizabeth Forsythe Hailey, a longtime friend of Miss Rush.

The production at the Biltmore Theater will be the Broadway debut for both Miss Rush and Henry Mancini, who has written a theme and incidental music. Sets were designed by Roy Christopher, who also designed this year's Academy Awards show.

It's an unikely candidate for the stage, the engrossing tale of the author's independent-minded grandmother as told through letters.

"IT'S the eloquence of the letters that makes it such a valuable piece," said Miss Rush, taking a break at her Beverly Hills home from packing for a possible lengthy stay in New York. "I felt it would translate well to the theater. Do you know, I'm the only person who thought so? I showed it to four directors and they turned it down flat."

Finally, she discussed her idea with Norman Cohen, who agreed with her and directed both the production at the Back Alley Theater in Van Nuys, which has fewer than 100 seats, and the remounted Broadway edition.

For three months in the summer of 1983, in between other commitments, Miss Rush worked with the author and Cohen in refining the play.

It opened without fanfare in autumn, with performances on weekends only. Reviewers trickled in and issued raves.

"WHEN I read the first review, in 'Variety,' I just fell down," said Miss Rush.

The critique said in part, "...this deepening, shaded, and varied portrait represents Rush's best performance ever in a play that is cleverly written by Hailey and deftly directed by Norman Cohen."

Then came a Los Angeles Times review that called the play "delightful." The next day, the theater had 6,000 requests for tickets, Miss Rush said.

Among those making the trek to the San Fernando Valley during the five-month run were well-known actors and directors, including Julie Harris and Herbert Ross, she said.

"The biggest problem we had was the ticket problem, trying to get people in, said Miss Rush. "I was literally calling people and saying, 'Would you mind, since you've seen the show once, giving up your ticket?'"

MISS Rush said that although the Broadway production boasts new sets and costumes, she's been firm about retaining the play's simplicity.

"I do not want to ruin this show with improvements," she said. "I said I do not want a grandiose set. It has to be a living room of the mind because it has to be railway stations, a pastry shop, lots of things."

Miss Rush, who has numerous stage and TV credits, turned down several film offers to go to Broadway.

But she did find time to shoot the pilot for a situation comedy, "Help!" She plays a wealthy woman with an estate in Santa Barbara. While she travels, her staff members run wild, renting out her limousines and otherwise making a profit from her property.

If it sells and the show is a hit, Miss Rush said, she'll fly to Los Angeles on Monday mornings, shoot her scenes in the afternoon and fly back to New York on Tuesday mornings.

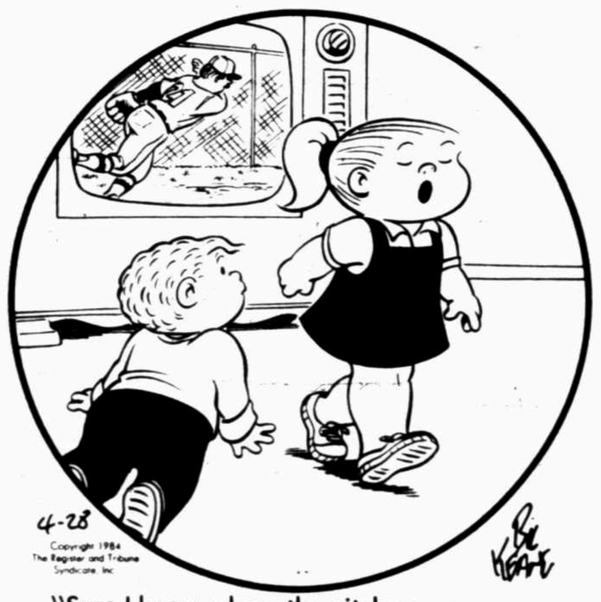

That would be a hectic schedule but she's willing to do it.

"There is no joy in this business like working on something of quality, something people will always remember having seen," she said.

Barber-Boros head Legends

Legends of Golf

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former champion Julius Boros and Miller Barber shot an 8-under par 62 Friday for a second-round lead of 127 at the $500,000 Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf.

Billy Casper and Gay Brewer, who played with the leaders, shot a 63 and were one shot back in second place at 128.

Boros, who paired with Robert DeVicenzo to win the 1979 Legends, was quick to credit has partner with Friday's success. Barber, 53, had six of his team's eight birdies.

"It's going to be Miller Barber today and tomorrow," said Boros.

Casper also praised Barber's play, saying, "It's a joy to watch." But he also sang his own praises and those of his partner, Brewer.

"We're smoking, and the birdies are jumping," said Casper.

DiVicenzo and Rod Funseth, the defending champions, rolled in five straight birdies for a 62 and a two-day total of 129.

First-round leaders Tommy Bolt and Art Wall and Mike Souchak and Ken Venturi fell back on Friday.

Bolt-Wall shot a 68 for a two-day total of 132. Souchak-Venturi finished at 69-133.

The DeVicenzo-Funseth birdie binge began on the ninth hole and extended through No. 13.

"A few more rounds like today and we may have a chance," said Funseth.

Funseth, who has been diagnosed as having lung cancer and said he has lost 25 pounds, described himself as 'really tired" when the round started, but said he got rolling with a birdie on No. 7.

The tournament allows champion golfers 50 and older to pair up and play best-ball scores. The winning team splits $100,000.

Par is 35-35-70 over the 6,584-yard Onion Creek Country Club course.

The tournament winds up with nationally televised rounds on Saturday and Sunday.

Michigan in recruiting controversy

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Controversy swirled Friday around the decision of high school basketball star Gary Grant to attend the University of Michigan, with three Ohio newspapers reporting that the NCAA was investigating the Wolverines' tactics in recruiting him.

Grant, a 6-foot-3 guard who averaged 23.5 points per game in leading McKinley to the Ohio Class AAA championship this season, announced Tuesday that he had signed a letter of intent to attend Michigan. He had also visited Ohio State, Kentucky, Illinois and Nevada-Las Vegas.

The Columbus Citizen-Journal said Thursday that the NCAA was investigating the matter, particularly the possible involvement of Nate Hubbard, uncle of former McKinley and Michigan star Phil Hubbard, who now plays for the National Basketball Association Cleveland Cavaliers.

The story alleged that Kentucky had blown the whistle on Michigan, a contention that was denied by Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall.

"That is not true," Hall said. "We do not know anything about the NCAA investigating."

The NCAA, as a matter of policy, does not comment on possible investigations or ongoing investigations until they are concluded.

But the Canton Repository and Akron Beacon Journal both reported Friday that McKinley Coach Mike Riley said he had been contacted by NCAA officials.

"Coaches from schools all over the country are telling me things that are going on with regard to (Nate) Hubbard and the Grant family," Riley was quoted as saying in the Repository's copyright story.

"It appears they (the NCAA) are making an investigation, and it doesn't seem like it is just a routine one," he said.

"I feel like I've been run over by a Mack truck," McKinley told the Beacon Journal. "Three or four hours after Gary's press conference, (the NCAA) contacted me to ask questions about Michigan and Gary's signing."

"I was shocked by what the NCAA already knew," he said. "The questions they asked were general in nature, and (they wanted to know) the positions of Canton natives who were close to Michigan."

Stephenson, McGeorge lead Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Veteran Jan Stephenson and rookie Missie McGeorge fashioned 6-under par 66s to tie for the opening-round lead in the $150,000 LPGA Orlando Classic tournament Friday.

Rosie Jones fired a 67 over the 6,276-yard, par-72 Cypress Creek Country Club course to stand alone in second place in the 54-hole event.

Cindy Hill, Cynthia Pleger and Lynn Cooke, a Canadian also in her first year, followed with 68s.

Stephenson, who is in her 10th year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association Tour and has posted 12 victories, used a new putter to overcome "inconsistent work on the greens all this year."

"I've been hitting the ball well for 12 months, but my putting has been terrible," she said.

She had two birdies on the front side and rammed home another four on the back nine — some for 12 and 15 feet — for a six-birdie, no-bogey round.

"It was important for me to hit those 12 to 15 footers," Stephenson said.

McGeorge, who earned her tour card last August on the fourth try, shot 33-33 for her best round as a professional.

"I never missed a fairway, that was my strength," she said.

"I felt comfortable on the greens. I was very relaxed. That was the key."

McGeorge's best finish this year was a tie for 22nd last week in St. Petersburg. She has won $4,266 in eight events so far.

She parred the opening hole but canned putts of 40 feet and 10 feet for birdies on the second and third holes. "That's when I could tell I was playing good," she said.

Jones said her 67 — "five birdies, no bogies" — was "my best round ever, ever, ever ... A few putts fell in. A lot more could have fallen. I could have had a 63."

Dot Germain, in a tie with seven others at 69, hit a four iron into the wind for a hole-in-one at the par-3, 165-yard 15th.

Vicki Alvarez, also at 69, holed out her tee shot on the par-3, 154-yard 13th.

The field of 131 pros and three amateurs will be cut on Saturday to the low 70s and ties.

NFL addresses Congress on franchise switching

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League, hit by two franchise shifts within two years, urged Congress Friday to enact legislation to restrict sports teams from moving from city to city.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, appearing before the Senate Commerce Committee, said passage of such a bill would "provide a clear, legal framework for addressing future moves ... and address the moves of the Raiders and Colts.

"This is a sad state of affairs, but it is the current reality," Rozelle said. "It is a case of the tail wagging the dog.

"Unless the Raiders' case is overturned, or Congress confirms the right of a sports league to determine the locations of its operations, the NFL will be unable to respect the interests of any community that a member team proposes to leave," Rozelle told the committee.

Colts' owner Robert Irsay failed to reach an agreement with the city of Baltimore for an improved lease and moved his team to Indiana last month.

RAIDERS' OWNER Al Davis moved his team in 1982 despite a vote by the league's owners to keep the franchise in place. A federal court subsequently ruled in favor of Davis. Oakland city officials, meantime, have sued under eminent domain to return the team to Oakland. The case remains in litigation.

The Professional Sports Team Community Protection Act, proposed by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., applies not only to football, but also to baseball, basketball, hockey and soccer.

The bill would create an arbitration board to help regulate the transfer of a team from its assigned home territory. League approval for a move would still be necessary.

As written, the proposal would be retroactive to Jan. 1 and would affect both the Colts' move and the New York Jets decision to leave Shea Stadium in Flushing, N.Y., for the more spacious Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

"This bill places a cloud over the Jets' move to New Jersey," Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J. said at the hearing. "New Jersey did not rob any market of its team. It was our facility that attracted the Jets and has attracted New York fans.

"If this bill is passed how are we ever going to get the major league baseball team we have never had?" Lautenberg asked.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., held up a Minneapolis newspaper noting that a group of Florida businessmen representing the Tampa Bay Baseball Group purchased a minority interest in the Minnesota Twins.

"The potential threat of a loss of a franchise is real to any city with a sports team," Boschwitz said. "Franchises are being shopped around with cities paying irresponsible owners ransom to get them."

In asking Congress to approve the proposed legislation, Boschwitz said: "Sports is not just another business and should not be auctioned off to the highest bidder."

INDIANA SENATORS Richard Lugar and Dan Quayle, in a letter to the committee, said they were prepared to make a "goal line stand" against the bill if necessary.

"My reading is that this legislation is very unlikely to get anywhere," Lugar said. "But in the unexpected event it should gain momentum, I want to assure my colleagues in the Senate that I am prepared to use my influence to block it."

The Maryland congressional delegation, accompanied by Baltimore Mayor Donald Schaefer, pleaded for passage of the bill.

"People in sports franchise cities have a deep emotional attachment to and a bonfide interest in the local teams," Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said. "That interest must be recognized and protected by the law."

"The tawdry drama enacted under the cover of darkness in Baltimore a few weeks ago is all the evidence we need to spur action," Mathias said. "Unless Congress addresses this problem promptly and decisively, the Colts and other teams will play their home games in unfamiliar towns that have sustained them through good years and bad and left high and dry."

Colt officials declined an invitation to appear before the committee. A telegram, however, from Colt vice president Michael Chernoff, stated the club's "strongest possible objection" to the bill.

"The Colts believe the bill to be unconstitutional and a total repudiation and violation of the basic principles upon which America is built," the telegram read.

The telegram was read by Gorton before a roomful of Colt fans, many bearing shirts and hats adorned with "The Colts Belong to Baltimore" and "Where's the Thief?"

BASEBALL — Negotiations between the Baltimore Orioles and the city over a new Memorial Stadium lease are continuing but both sides have given up hope of reaching an agreement by May 1, according to a published report Friday.

The Baltimore Evening Sun, quoting unnamed sources close to the negotiations, said the Orioles don't want to sign the six-year lease because it would hamper plans to play in a new stadium. If the city does not sign the lease by May 1, the city cannot receive the $7.5 million in state bond money for stadium improvements, approved by the Maryland General Assembly last spring. The legislation calls for the state and the city each to pay for half of the cost of the bond issue...

A.C.A. is an anonymous fellowship of adult children of alcoholics, (although all are welcome). Many of us grew up in alcoholic homes or are at the present time faced with dealing with the consequences of this disease in a parent, relative or friend. In this fellowship we have come to understand that alcoholism is an illness which we did not cause, cannot cure and cannot control. We have found by sharing our experience, strength and hope and by following the 12 suggested steps of AA we can live our lives in a more meaningful manner and can change our attitudes, old patterns and habits to find serenity, even happiness. Adult Children of Alcoholics meets Mondays at 8 p.m. at St. Nicholas Epsicopal Church, 2900 Princeton St. For more information, call the Midland Council on Alcoholism, 682-4721.

A SEMINAR ON RELATIONSHIPS — What makes love stay? How do you make a relationship work? What gets relationships in trouble and what about some of the specific problems such as sexuality and power structures? The central theme of this seminar will be "how toconnect" — because there is never a lack of connection or communication, just the wrong kind. The seminar will be taught by Steve Thomas, full-time faculty member in the Behavioral Sciences Department, Midland College. Steve is also a licensed Marriage and Family Therapist in private practice.
Thursday, May 3, 7-10 p.m.
Fee: $30.

... AND ABOUT MEN!!! — Today when the roles of men and women are questioned, it is unusually within the context of the Women's Liberation Movement. We make little effort to examine problems resulting from the normal upbringing of a man. What about understanding how men change? Or why they might want to? How about men who think there must be more to life than a wife, kids and mortgage? Is being a "success object" any better than being a sex object? What's all the talk about the "Peter Pan Syndrome"? How about some time devoted to understanding men, states Sam Guyton, R.N., M.A., and licensed professional counselor in private practice in Midland?
Tuesday, May 8, 7-10 p.m.
Fee: $30.

Judge extends hiring freeze in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. District Judge Nicholas Bua, saying proposed guidelines for politics-free hiring were inadequate, on Friday extended a temporary hiring freeze on city jobs for 10 days.

Under a ruling issued by Bua last June, the city was required to draft a plan showing how it planned to ensure that city employees were hired on a non-political basis.

When city attorneys revealed this week that the plan was not ready, Bua imposed the freeze, saying Thursday that "the time has come to put at rest this case."

Later Thursday, city attorneys presented a set of hiring guidelines to Bua, but the judge said they were inadequate and ordered a more comprehensive plan.

A hearing on the matter was scheduled for May 7.

Bua ordered the freeze for all but emergency positions and those exempt from a court order that bars political hirings and firings. About 42,000 city jobs are affected.

Bua also ordered that a fired deputy water commissioner be reinstated to a comparable position. The commissioner, Donald Tomczak, was a supporter of former Mayor Jane M. Byrne.

Bua warned the city would be "dealt with harshly" if Tomczak was not reinstated while the city appeals. City attorneys said Tomczak's $62,000 a year position was no longer in the budget.

However, lawyers on both sides agreed to a plan that would reinstate him.

Aides said Mayor Harold Washington planned a response to the hiring order Friday.

He said Thursday: "We have had trouble getting our team in place and that's been a serious impediment to the progress of the city. We're continuing to do within law all that is necessary to ensure we have the best possible people."

NORTHWESTERN BAPTIST CHURCH

began as a Southern Baptist Mission of Crestview Baptist Church three years ago. Now we are ready to become a church. You are cordially invited to share with us in the joy of this time at 3:00 P.M., May 6, 1984.

We also invite you to worship with us this this Sunday and every Sunday if you do not have a church home.

What do you think of when you see a Church?

To almost everyone, the sight of a slender steeple raised to the sky evokes certain emotions — awe, perhaps, nostalgia, maybe — the sense that by not going to church lately, you've been missing something!

Next time you see a church, take a good look ... and let yourself really feel what you see. If that makes you decide not only to look at the outside but also to go inside, that will be all to the good. For no matter how lovely a home you may live in, it can't compare with God's House. If you open the door, you'll find that, no matter how long you've been away, the welcome is warmer and more wonderful than you'll find anywhere else.

Crestview Baptist to stage musical 'Til Millions Know'

"'Til Millions Know," a musical drama by Mark Blankenship, will be presented by the Sanctuary Choir at Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas St., at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The drama portrays the 40 days of Christ's time on Earth between the Resurrection and the Ascension and includes the people he encountered and what he said to them.

Blankenship, composer of the work, is a former minister of music for Midland's First Baptist Church. He is the chief music design editor for the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.

Pianist for the drama is Linda Sellers and organist is Bettie Schuler. The cast includes Les Skinner as Peter, Judy Davis as Mary Magdalene, Ken Etheredge as Jesus, Todd Allen as John, Paul Wiseman as Cleopas, Tom McDaniel as Cleopas' friend, Wayne Steele as Thomas and Roger Alexander as Matthew.

The lyrics and drama are by Billie Pate.

Ty Morris, minister of music at Crestview, invites the public to attend this post-Easter celebration.

First UMC hosts speaker

Dr. Robert Monk, professor of religion at McMurry College, Abilene, will speak at the First United Methodist Church at 7:15 p.m. Sunday.

His topic will be "From the Beginning — Methodism Comes to America." The Vesper Service presentation is the first in a series of programs in First UMC observance of the Bicentennial of Methodism. The program with Monk is sponsored by the Bicentennial Committee of which Tom Coleman is chairman.

Monk is author of "John Wesley: His Puritan Influence." He is co-author of "The Methodist Excitement in Texas: A History of Texas Methodism 1814-1984," which will be released May 11.

He is also co-author of "Explaining Christianity" and "Exploring Religious Meaning," two texts used in teaching undergraduate studies in religion in colleges and universities.

First UMC is located at the corner of Illinois Avenue and Main Street.

Guest minister to return

Dr. Ernest J. Lewis will return as guest minister at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

His sermon will be "Father of Prodigals" Luke 15:11-32.

Lewis is executive director of the Presbyterian Congress on Renewal to be held in Dallas in January of 1985. He is a graduate of Wheaton College and Princeton Theological Seminary.

Lewis recently was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg, Pa., following pastorates in Haddonfield, N.J., Tulsa, Okla., Cincinnati, N.Y., Oklahoma City, Okla., and Evanston, Ill.

He has been active in a wide range of denominational activities, speaking assignments, television, radio and community activities.

The General Assembly awarded Lewis the 1984 National Preacher of the Year. He and his wife Jean have a daughter and two sons.

Church sponsors luncheon

A Ladies Luncheon of the Joy Fellowship, sponsored by Midland's First Assembly of God, will meet from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday in the church's fellowship hall.

Speaker for the month is from the Rape Crisis Center. The theme is "Run for Your Life."

Joy Fellowship is a response to the need of women for Christian fellowship. Through Joy Fellowship, which is a non-denominational organization, women are encouraged to work for Christ in the churches they attend.

For more information call Rebecca Pulis, 687-3600.

Unitarians meet in Austin

The Southwest Unitarian Universalist Conference is holding its annual meeting this weekend in Austin.

Representatives from the UU Church of Midland, including the minister, the Rev. Daniel Budd, are attending.

The conference theme is "Dreams for a Decade." Included in the schedule of events is a banquet speech by the Rev. David Parke, editor of the UU World, the association's monthly journal.

This annual meeting was held in Midland last year.

'Beyond the Cross' airs

"Beyond the Cross," released by Underground Evangelism, will be shown today at 6:30 p.m. at Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church, 3114 Travis St.

"Beyond the Cross" is a documentary about Ivan Moiseyev, a young Russian who was murdered for his faith. The movie was filmed by the church in Russia.

Woman to speak at MCF

Nora Lam will be speaking at Midland Christian Fellowship at 7 p.m. today and 10 a.m. Sunday.

Ms. Lam will talk about her deliverance from a Communist firing squad and the ministry God has given her among the Chinese people.

New Birds to perform

The New Birds and Brother Joe Daniels of Fort Worth will be appering in concert at the St. Ann's Spiritual Church May 5 and 6.

Performance times are 7:30 p.m. May 5 and 3:30 p.m. May 6. Mother Scott Williams is the pastor.

St. Luke's UMC to host service of consecration for music center

A special part of the consecration service of the new education and music facilities for St. Luke's United Methodist Church this Sunday will be the naming of the music center.

A proclamation will be read by the Rev. Jarrell Sharp, pastor, which states: "Mona Ruth Dickson has been a vital part of the ministry of St. Luke's UMC for the past 26 years.

"Through 23 years, she has shared her talents as church organist. Mrs. Dickson's music at the organ has inspired countless numbers of people to sing praises to God.

"Because of her love of Christ, her devotion to St. Luke's UMC and her sharing of her talents, we gladly and joyfully consecrate and name our new music center 'Mona Ruth Dickson Music Center.'"

The service will be held during the 10:50 a.m. worship hour. The Rev. Rex L. Mauldin, district superintendent of the Big Spring District, will be the preacher for the service.

Music for the Consecration Service will be a combined anthem, "Stanley York's "Father Lead Me Day By Day," sung by Carol Choir, Wesley Choristers, Chapel Choir and Chancel Choir. The Carol Choir will also sing Michael Jothen's "I Will Give Thanks."

Mona Ruth Dickson

The newly constructed facilities at St. Luke's will provide new classrooms for six adult church school classes. A family room will afford space for brides and their attendants.

All musical organizations will be grouped in the Mona Ruth Dickson Music center. The center is also designed for chamber music and recitals.

The print room has been enlarged as well as the restroom facilities. In addition to a face-lift for the present offices, three new offices have been constructed as well as an audio-visual room.

A foyer of more than 3,100-square-feet will give opportunities for after church receptions, art displays and a place for fellowship.

Following the Consecration Service, there will be a church-wide lunch served on the church lawn if the weather permits. If it does not, the lunch will be held in the Fellowship Hall. The meal is being prepared by adult church school classes and all are invited to participate. Entertainment for the lunchtime activities will include square dancing, soloist and guitarist Christy Craig and the cast of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" from St. Luke's Players.

Members of St. Luke's building committee include chairman Roy Williams, Sharp, Verna May Abel, Bob Angevine, Larry Crumpton, Ann del Llano, Joann Foster, Verne Griffith, Earl Groves, Scott Hickman, Sam Hilburn, Mark Parker, Jerry Pitts, Linda Sacra, Keith Thomas, John Wilson and Mary Jane Young.

Bert Bostic serves St. Luke's as minister of program and music and the Rev. Kenneth James is associate minister.

The Royalheirs

Group to present gospel concert

The Royalheirs will present a concert of gospel music at Bellview Baptist Church at 6:40 p.m. Sunday.

The Royalheirs has become a popular group on television and radio in the field of gospel music. Their music is a smooth blend of favorite hymns as well as traditional and contemporary gospel songs of the day.

Bellview is located at 1710 N. Big Spring St.

First Baptist sponsors talk by missionary to Indians

Elizabeth Elliot will speak at First Baptist Church, corner of Louisiana and Garfield, several times this Sunday and Monday.

Sunday at 9:45 a.m., she will speak for an Adult Sunday School Rally in the church sanctuary. Sunday at 5:45 p.m., she will speak to youth and parents in the Fellowship Hall and then she will talk during the 7 p.m. service.

Monday, Mrs. Elliot will speak at 10 a.m., following a women's coffee in the Fellowship Hall. Her topic will be "Man or Woman: What's the Difference?"

Mrs. Elliot and her former husband, Jim Elliot, were missionaries to the Quichua Indians in the eastern jungle of Ecuador. They were working on an orthography of that languge and the translation of the New Testament. In January 1956, Elliot was one of five American missionaries speared to death by a primitive tribe called Aucas, to whom they had gone to take the Gospel. Mrs. Elliot remained in Quichua working until 1958 when she went with her 3-year-old daughter and another missionary to live with the Aucas, working on language and translation. She worked with the Aucas until 1961.

Mrs. Elliot has authored such books as "Through Gates of Splendor," "These Strange Ashes," "The Journals of Jim Elliot," "A Slow and Certain Light" and "The Savage My Kinsman." Her most recent work is "Passion and Purity."

Elizabeth Elliot

She and her husband, Lars Gren, live in Massachusetts where she is writer-in-residence at Gordon College.

All talks are open to the public.

Church Women United to observe fellowship day

Church Women United will observe its annual May Fellowship Day Friday at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive.

St. Paul United Methodist Women, hostesses of the event, invites local church women to attend.

An executive committee meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. The worship service will begin at 10:30 a.m. followed by a covered dish luncheon at 11:30 a.m.

May Fellowship Day is a special celebration sponsored and observed across the United States by CWU on the first Friday in May. As Christian women gather for the annual observance, the May service for 1984 will have a distinctive Hispanic flavor.

Prepared by a group of Spanish speaking women in CWU, the theme, "The Family: A Portrait of Change," focuses on the family, so central to Hispanic culture.

As a minority in the United States, Hispanics number 20 million. By the end of the 1980s, they expect to be the largest ethnic minority in the country. As a group, they are experiencing a loss of identity through assimilation and want this May Fellowship Day to celebrate their Hispanic heritage.

CWU brings together more than half a million Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women into one "community of caring." Working through a national unit, 51 state units and more than 2,000 local units, these church women work for and fund a variety of local, national and global programs supporting the empowerment of women, human rights, justice and peace.

Mrs. Jack Monzingo is the local president of CWU.

Lutherans, Methodists issue report

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — An international team of Lutheran and Methodist representatives, after five years of dialogue, has issued a report recommending that their churches take steps to "declare and establish full fellowship of word and sacrament."

As a first step, churches were encouraged to provide for pulpit exchanges and "mutual hospitality at the table of the Lord."

The recommendations resemble those made by U. S. Lutheran-Episcopal and Lutheran-Reformed dialogues in which joint communion and exchange of clergy were endorsed.

The Lutheran-Methodist report says, "We rejoice that full fellowship in word and sacrament is currently practiced in some of our churches."

Church to have 'Super Sunday'

Sunday, Chaparral Center will be the site of the parish of St. Ann's Catholic Church's annual "Super Sunday," one time during the year when the entire parish meets for a day of worship and fun.

A 10 a.m. Mass will be celebrated by parish priests, the Rev. Cliff Blackburn, OMI, and the Rev. Frank Beasley, OMI. In past years, awards have been given to members for leadership, longtime service and devotion to the parish.

Three choirs, with one composed of the recent 1 communion class, will provide the music. Musical accompaniment will be by Fred Krieger, organist, and a brass ensemble. Directing the choirs will be Ed Leps and Mike Barta.

Following the service, there will be a picnic on the grounds. Each family is requested to bring a picnic lunch. The public is invited to the events. For more information call the church, 682-6304.

The Mission Society of the Greater Mt. Rose Baptist Church, 211 N. Tyler, will be hosting a Missionary retreat seminar. It will take place April 28, 1984. The retreat will start at 8:00 a.m. with registration and Continental Breakfast. The topic will be Power of Living and Power of Positive Thinking. The public is invited to attend. For further information contact Mrs. Clara Moore at 682-4777 after 7:00 p.m.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, right, and his sister-in-law, Ethel Kennedy watch as family members pass by with the coffin of her son, David, who was buried Friday in a Brookline, Mass., cemetery. David, the son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, is believed to have died from drug-related causes.

Kennedy buried in family plot next to grandfather

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — David Kennedy, troubled son of a slain senator and nephew of an assassinated president, was buried on a sunny hillside Friday, surrounded by mourning members of his family.

The flower-strewn casket containing the 28-year-old Kennedy's body was lowered into the earth alongside his grandfather, family patriarch Joseph P. Kennedy, in the family plot at Holyhood Cemetery.

A white canvas enclosure shielded about 45 friends and family members, including Kennedy's mother, Ethel, older brother Joseph Kennedy II, aunt Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and her daughter, Caroline Kennedy.

John Marquand, Kennedy's adviser when he was at Harvard and a close friend, said the mood at the service was somber. "There was a great sense of personal loss," he said.

"There were obviously tears," said a Kennedy family spokesman who asked not to be identified. "People did show their emotions."

Ethel Kennedy hugged members of the family including her brother-in-law, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The mourners placed wreaths of flowers on the simple wooden coffin.

One young member of the clan, a girl of 3 or 4, frolicked near the burial site while her older relatives wept.

The service was performed by new Boston Archbishop Bernard F. Law and the Rev. John F. Fitzgerald, a Kennedy cousin, known to the family as "Father Jack."

Their words could not be heard by spectators, who were kept some 250 yards away, but the archdiocese furnished a partial text.

"Let us pray for our brother to our Lord Jesus Christ who said, 'I am the resurrection and the light. The man who believes in me will live even if he dies and every living person who puts his faith in me will never suffer eternal death,'" the service by Law said.

"Lord hear our prayer," the family and friends were to repeat before reciting the Lord's Prayer.

"Understandably, it was a very emotional service," said the spokesman. "There were several prayers said by the entire group, the entire family. It was somber — it was understandably emotional."

The family left in a string of gray and black limousines. The coffin remained visible in the fading sunlight as cemetery workers made final preparations, then finally lowered it from sight.

Media representatives and knots of the curious were held outside the stone walls of the 37-acre private cemetery by a contingent of local and state police, Secret Service agents and the FBI. Security agents were stationed among tombstones to keep intruders away.

Two-hundred yards away, the uninvited watched quietly from behind a dip in a stone wall after they had been shooed away by law officers.

Mary Basiley, 78, of Brookline, stopped as she passed the group and noted that her family's burial plot is near the Kennedys' in Holyhood. "When someone has their grave near yours, you feel almost like neighbors," she said.

Kennedy died after a tragic odyssey that included bouts with drugs and alcohol and faltering attempts to make the grade at Harvard and to launch a career as a journalist.

The third son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was found dead Wednesday between two beds in a Palm Beach, Fla., hotel a few miles from the family's seaside mansion.

Jay Pintacuda, chief chemist for the Palm Beach County sheriff's crime laboratory, said traces of cocaine and the painkiller Demerol were found in Kennedy's body, indicating death was a "drug related incident."

He said 1.3 grams of "high purity" cocaine was found in the hotel room.

He added more tests will be needed to establish the cause of death. Chief medical examiner James Benz said it would take at least four to eight days to complete tests on body samples.

Before Kennedy's burial, the family held a private funeral Mass at his mother's estate, Hickory Hill, in McLean, Va.

His body, accompanied by family members, was then flown to Boston on a chartered airplane and driven 12 miles from Logan International Airport to the suburban cemetery.

The burial site was on a slight rise at Holyhood Cemetery, where the family plot was shaded by a towering hemlock and a carefully manicured hedge of yews and purple rhododendron. A large, squat granite monument carries the famous family name, stone crosses and lilies etched in its side.

A simpler, smaller headstone marks the resting place of Joseph Kennedy, with the dates 1888-1969 carved in the marble.

A separate headstone is erected for grandmother Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, the 93-year-old family matriarch who remained in Palm Beach and was reportedly shielded from the news of her grandson's death.

A third flat marker, referring to the infant son of David's uncle, reads simply: "Beloved son of Edward and Joan."

Kennedy's father Robert, and uncle, President John F. Kennedy, are buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Storm forces town to 'hole up'

RED LODGE, Mont. (AP) — Residents of this mountain town take snowstorms in their stride, but even they were impressed by the monster that dumped 6 feet of new snow on their community this week.

The storm, which began Tuesday, forced the town's 2,000 residents to hole up in their homes or resort to skis and snowshoes to get around. Snowplows were completely overwhelmed by the snow and towering drifts.

"People around here are used to spring storms," said Jim Moore, editor and co-publisher of the Carbon County News. "We have'em every year, and when one comes along they know to hole up. They're pretty well able to weather things like this."

Holing up was not easy on everyone, however.

"I've had lots of phone calls from older people," said Mayor Ron Kotar. "They can't see out and they can't get out. They're frightened."

The Rev. Harry Neeley of the local Episcopal church also had been receiving calls.

'We've logged 40 to 50 in the last 48 hours — none from anyone in immediate danger, but they sure are lonesome."

Ordinary shovel-type snowplows were unable to operate in the towering drifts since Thursday morning, said Randy Baum, the Highway Department maintenance supervisor.

"There's no equipment made to handle a storm like this," he said.

Drifts 15 to 20 feet high hid even the signs above stores downtown. A semi-trailer truck was snowbound across Main Street, along with several cars and pickups. Heavy snow that began Tuesday was continuing to fall Friday, and winds of 30 mph were whipping it into drifts.

"Boredom is the biggest problem," said Curt Braden, manager of the downtown Pollard Hotel. He said the hotel was half full with about 20 stranded truckers and downtown business people who could not get to their homes.

Assistant Fire Chief Gary McKittrick had been trapped at the fire hall for 48 hours. Sheriff's dispatcher Laurie Lehr, who came to work Thursday, said, "I'll probably be working until Friday."

One deputy was at the sheriff's office, but others remained at their homes around the county, Ms. Lehr said.

She added that a few motorists were stranded in various places, but all were safe. All highways in the county were blocked.

"We'll be a week trying to get around," said city street foreman Chuck Tresner. "We'll make some trails on the streets, ut from there on, I don't know what we'll do."

Teen sentenced to detention center

MAYWOOD, Ill. (AP) — A 17-year-old has been sentenced to a detention center "as an example to other people your age" for placing a concrete-filled milk can in a darkened street. Three people died when a van hit the 100-pound can on Christmas Day 1982.

Robert DeGraff, who pleaded guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter, was sentenced Thursday by Circuit Judge James J. Chrastka, who told the sobbing youth his act was analogous to "shooting a gun into a passing train."

Tavern to close after four decades

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — The Drafty Tavern, an Outer Banks institution for more than four decades, is closing its doors today because of declining clientele and real estate development.

Frequented primarily by fishing boat crews from nearby Wanchese, the tavern was relatively unknown to the thousands of tourists who annually visit the nearby beaches.

The tavern was the eating place chosen by Secret Service agents who guarded President Franklin Roosevelt when he visited "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama in 1937.

Deaf man cleared of child abuse

BARSTOW, Calif. (AP) — A deaf man learned from a courtroom TV screen that child-molesting charges against him had been dropped after two of his stepdaughters recanted allegations that he'd abused them.

Andrew Boykin, 45, who is 90 percent deaf, followed the court proceedings on a video transcription system that translated the stenographer's notes into text.

A third child who claimed to have been abused, Boykin's 13-year-old daughter, ran away from home Wednesday and has not been found, Deputy District Attorney Mark Clark said.

Judge: Polygamy not covered by amendment

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge ruled Friday that a policeman fired because he was a polygamist is not protected by the Constitution's guarantee of religious freedom.

U.S. District Judge A. Sherman Christensen, in a summary judgment of a lawsuit, said Royston Potter, 30, "has failed to establish that his dismissal as a police officer violated any constitutional right... The practice of polygamy by the plaintiff is not a fundamental right constitutionally protected by...the First Amendment or any right of priavacy or liberty under the 14th Amendment," the judge wrote.

Nature may solve problem of abundance of deer

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP) — On the sweeping lawn of an old estate, two deer graze like cows on yellowed grass. By the beach, the brush at the edge of the dunes has been nibbled bare. In the woods, a thin doe stands up lazily as intruders approach.

Wildlife biologists say it is a sylvan scene gone sour, a place where the balance of nature has been upset by an overabundance of whitetail deer.

But members of an animal protection group, Friends of Animals, say the problem has been blown out of proportion and that nature, left undisturbed, will set things right.

The debate concerns an estimated 165 deer at the 1,400-acre Crane Memorial Reservation, located on the seashore about 25 miles north of Boston. Last fall, reservation trustees and local officials proposed a special hunt to thin the herd by 75.

The hunt was canceled after protesters threatened to stand between the hunters and their quarry.

Since then, 17 deer — 16 of them fawns between 9 and 18 months old — have been found dead. Autopsies on four of the fawns showed the animals died of starvation, and evidence of malnutrition was present in the deer that were not dissected.

CHARLES SEDGWICK, chief of the wildlife clinic at Tufts University's School of Veterinary Medicine in Grafton, said the autopsied fawns weighed less than two-thirds of normal, showed abnormal wear to their teeth, had enlarged stress glands and had used up all reserves of fat.

"They were in pretty severe straits," he said. "I've been a veterinarian for 27 years and I haven't seen anything this bad for a long time."

Priscilla Feral of Norwalk, Conn., a leader of the Friends of Animals New England chapter, said death among fawns isn't unusual, and that state biologists are preying on the ignorance of the public to promote their goal of allowing hunting on the oceanside preserve.

"This starvation ruse is nothing more than a pandering to the heartstrings of the bleeding-heart public," she said. "Those fawns would have died regardless of whether hunters had slaughtered and wounded half the herd."

But James McDonough, a game biologist with the Massachusetts Department of Fisheries and Wildlife, disagreed.

"I don't know where they got that," he said. "We know there is a very high mortality rate among the immature fawns, but usually it occurs in the first two or three weeks of life. This is very unusual."

WHITETAIL DEER, easily recognized when they flee by the flash of white fur on their backsides, have been on the increase in the United States since the turn of the century and now number at least 13 million, said William Hesselton, a senior staff specialist with U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Massachusetts.

The population explosion is in part the result of a very high reproductive rate combined with declining numbers of natural predators.

"If we had the rate of return in investment that deer have in reproduction we would all be millionaires," said Aaron Moen, a professor of wildlife ecology at Cornell University who is widely regarded as an expert on whitetail deer.

Regulated hunting seasons have kept their numbers in check in most states, but wildlife officials say overpopulation has been a recurrent problem in places like Crane where hunting is not permitted or there is little natural predation.

In several states and on federally controlled lands, sharpshooters and special public hunts have been used to cut down herds, Hesselton said.

In several western states including Oregon and Colorado, officials have taken up public collections to feed deer and other wildlife threatened with starvation during a particularly harsh winter.

FEARING THAT THE deer population of Angel Island off Berkeley, Calif., would die of starvation, officials in 1981 transported 203 of the animals to the Myacamas Mountains. Nearly three years later, however, researchers found that only 85 percent of the herd had survived the new habitat.

A deer pauses to eat food out at the Crane Memorial Reservation in Ipswich, Mass., recently, where 16 deer are believed to have starved to death due to overcrowding the past winter. An animal protection group and area hunters have been debating for several months to determine whether the animals should be allowed to be hunted, or if nature, left undistrubed, will set things right.

Drought could hurt San Antonio, Austin tourism

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Drought conditions along the San Antonio-Austin corridor could discourage tourists this summer and, if prolonged, curtail some of the rapid development in the area, water resource officials say.

Edwards Underground Water District officials say the area could be in for economic hardship if spring waters in Comal and Guadalupe counties countinue to dwindle.

"If those springs go dry, it would be the equivalent of taking tourism out of San Antonio's economy," EUWD General Manager Tom Fox told the San Antonio Light.

Springs feeding both the Comal and Guadalupe rivers are "down to a trickle," Fox said, and some already have ceased to flow.

A "prolonged dry spell," which some area officials now are willing to call a drought, has caused water levels in the Edwards Aquifer to drop dangerously low, he said.

Fox predicted the Comal and Guadalupe county springs could dry up as early as mid-May, spelling disaster for tourism in the corridor.

Edwards officials say they fear a return to conditions similar to those experienced during the drought of 1956, when water levels in the aquifer dropped to a record low of 612 feet above sea level.

Current readings indicate aquifer levels are at 635 feet, with one test well in New Braunfels at 622 feet.

Oliver Haas, a Comal County EUWD director, said the problem was a combination of the dry weather and the area's rapid growth.

"A lot of people have moved here since the 1956 drought, and every one of them wants a glass of water."
— Oliver Haas, water district official

"A lot of people have moved here since the 1956 drought, and every one of them wants a glass of water," Haas said.

The small towns between Austin and San Antonio are sharing in the growth of the two metropolitan areas, and some planners believe Interstate 35 soon will become a fully developed suburban pathway.

But without water, that kind of growth would be impossible, EUWD engineer Russell Masters said Thursday.

"I don't think there is any doubt that development is going to be hurt," Masters said. "The Edwards in that region is very narrow anyway, and not much growth can occur except in the I-35 area."

But the general manager of San Antonio's water board said he sees no need for water conservation in San Antonio.

"If your springs run dry, you just pump some water out of a well to keep them wet," Robert Van Dyke said.

Springs at New Braunfels feed the Comal River, which provides some hydroelectric power and a large amount of recreational activities.

Haas said the Comal River "is so low right now you can't float down the river in an inner tube without getting hung up on rocks."

"There were some people down there last Sunday," he said, "but all they did was sit on the banks."

Haas measured spring flow yesterday morning at 117 cubic feet per second.

"Normally, we have about 300 cfs, so it's well below half," he said.

That's causing problems for the hydroelectic facility on the Comal River in New Braunfels.

Utilities Director Bob Sohn said the electric output was down from a standard 850 kilowatts to 180 kilowatts.

"Our turbines become inefficient at 80 cfs, and the springs are slowing down a the rate of 6 to 8 cfs per day," Sohn said.

Sohn said he expects to have to shut down the hydroelectric facility sometime next week if conditions do not improve.

However, he said, the plant provides only 1 percent of New Braunfels' total electricity, the rest coming from the Lower Colorado River Authority.

Judge bars woman from reclaiming child

BRYAN (AP) — A judge barred a white woman married to a black from reclaiming her daughter by a previous marriage, one day after the U.S. Supreme Court threw out as illegally biased a decision that awarded custody to the girl's father.

Texas District Judge Tom McDonald Jr. issued a temporary restraining order Thursday forbidding the removal of 6-year-old Melanie Sidoti from the custody of her father, Anthony Sidoti, 28. He scheduled a hearing on a permanent injunction for May 4.

The temporary order has no practical effect because Sidoti has 25 days from Wednesday, when the Supreme Court delivered its ruling, to ask for a rehearing by the high court.

McDonald said he was acting "in the best interests of the child," but declined to comment further on his ruling.

In a telephone interview Friday from her Florida home, the child's mother, Linda Sidoti Palmore, denounced the tactics of her ex-husband and his lawyers.

"It's utterly stupid," she said. "I don't see what their purpose behind it is — to think that a smaller court is trying to overrule the highest court in the U.S."

Mrs. Palmore said she had no intention of trying to regain custody of her daughter before the 25-day waiting period expired, but did not know what her attorney would advise her after that. Her attorney, Rob Shapiro, did not return a telephone message from The Associated Press.

Florida's 2nd Court of Appeals had awarded custody to Sidoti, an air-conditioner repairman, saying his ex-wife's interracial marriage to Clarence Palmore was grounds enough to award custody of Melanie to him.

The Supreme Court overturned the ruling, saying it was improperly based on racial prejudice.

Chief Justice Warren Burger wrote in his opinion that the "absence of any negative finding as to the quality of the care provided by the mother constitutes a rejection of any claim of (Mrs. Palmore's) unfitness to continue the custody."

Palmore, 27, is a warehouse worker and truck driver, said Mrs. Palmore, 38, a secretary at Tampa College.

The Palmores have no mutual children, but Palmore has a 3-year-old son and Mrs. Palmore has sons aged 19 and 16 in addition to Melanie.

Sidoti, who is remarried to a white woman, vowed after the Supreme Court ruling to continue to fight for custody of Melanie through Texas courts, based on grounds other than her mother's marriage.

Restraining order put on couple's ranch

KERRVILLE (AP) — A man charged with holding hitchhikers as virtual slaves on his isolated Hill Country ranch has been legally restrained from any transactions involving about half of the 1,300-acre property until his divorce is final.

State District Judge Robert Barton issued the order Thursday as part of the divorce proceedings between Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr. and his wife, Margaret.

Ellebracht; his son, Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr.; his daughter-in-law, Joyce Ellebracht, and three hitchhikers have been charged with murdering a one-eyed drifter who worked at the ranch.

The three family members also have been charged with aggravated kidnapping for allegedly luring hitchhikers to the ranch with promises of work and hot meals and then using guns, chains and cattle prods to force the drifters to stay.

All six people charged with the March 13 murder of Anthony Bates of Huntsville, Ala., are scheduled to be arraigned Thursday.

The senior Ellebracht's attorney, Richard Mosty, said the judge's order concerning the property was "a standard thing in any divorce case."

"It preserves the status quo until the final divorce settlement," Mosty said.

In effect, the order preserves half the property for Mrs. Ellebracht until a divorce decree is issued.

Mosty said the property enjoined represented "approximately half" the total of 1,300 acres. He described it as the southern portion of the property, which is located in the Hill Country community of Mountain Home.

Two of the drifters charged with murder — Mark Allen Hamilton and Darryl Hunsaker — have given statements to the FBI and Texas Rangers in which they admit participating in torture sessions involving Bates.

Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton said Bates was repeatedly tortured with an electric cattle prod until he weakened and died. The body then was doused with 10 gallons of gasoline and burned, he said.

Hamilton's statement says the third hitchhiker charged with the murder, Carlton Robert Caldwell, helped burn the body.

English policewoman buried

AP Laserphoto

Bow Street Police Station colleagues of Constable Yvonne Fletcher are pallbearers at her funeral service at the Salisbury Cathedral in London Friday. She died April 17 after being shot from a window of the Libyan People's Bureau.

SALISBURY, England (AP) — Yvonne Fletcher, the 25-year-old police constable slain outside the Libyan Embassy, was eulogized as "a diamond of a girl" Friday. Hours later the compatriots of her killer — and perhaps the gunman himself — headed for home.

An overflow crowd of 1,500 mourners filled Salisbury Cathedral for the funeral, watching somberly as Miss Fletcher's coffin was carried in by six constables. The coffin was draped with a deep blue Scotland Yard flag and topped by a bouquet of flowers.

Also on the coffin was her black and white uniform cap, which lay in St. James's Square in London from the time Miss Fletcher was mortally wounded April 17 until Friday, when a fellow policeman disobeyed orders and dashed into the square to retrieve it for her coffin.

A few hours later, the 11-day siege of the Libyan Embassy ended with the departure of 30 Libyans who had been holed up inside the mission since a gunman opened fire from a window, killing Miss Fletcher with a shot in the back and wounding 11 Libyan protesters.

It was not known if the gunman was among the Libyans who left Britain for home Friday under cover of diplomatic immunity.

Miss Fletcher's funeral was attended by most of the people of her native village, Semley, in whose church choir she once sang. Also present were about 400 fellow policemen, some of them in tears, the chief of Scotland Yard and Home Secretary Leon Brittan.

Chief Superintendent Bryan West, her commander, said in his eulogy that Miss Fletcher was "one of my best officers."

"WPC (Woman Police Constable) Fletcher, known by some as Fletch, by most of us as Superfletch, will be dearly missed," said West."She was truly a diamond of a girl."

Organ music swirled out of the 750-year-old cathedral into the sunshine during the 45-minute funeral. Later, Miss Fletcher's body was cremated in a private ceremony.

The entire squad from Bow Street Station, her London precinct, traveled the 83 miles to Salisbury by bus for the service. Police from other precincts were sent to Bow Street to fill in for the mourning men.

Among friends and relatives at the funeral were her parents Tom and Queenie Fletcher and Miss Fletcher's fiance, Constable Michael Liddle, who had been assigned to the demonstration and saw Miss Fletcher fall mortally wounded.

One of the dozens of wreaths at the cathedral came from the family of policewoman Jane Arbuthnot, who was killed when a car-bomb set by Irish Republican Army terrorists blew up outside Harrod's department store in London last December.

Miss Fletcher was the second policewoman to be killed in Britain since Sir Robert Peel formed the country's first police force in 1829.

At 5 foot 2½ inches, she was too short to meet the height qualification set by Scotland Yard. But the rule was waived because she was considered an outstanding candidate for the force.

Crisis helps Home Secretary's career

LONDON (AP) — For the first time, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher let someone else handle an international crisis, thrusting 44-year-old Home Secretary Leon Brittan into the spotlight as mastermind of Britain's confrontation with Libya.

The move has been a landmark in the political career of Brittan, the youngest member of the 21-member Cabinet and one of Mrs. Thatcher's cleverest and most loyal aides.

Brittan was in charge of the Cabinet crisis committee from April 17, when a gunman in the Libyan Embassy shot and killed a British policewoman, to Friday's climax of the 11-day siege, when the expelled Libyans trooped safely out of the building and were sent home.

The Libyan crisis became Brittan's partly because Mrs. Thatcher was starting a four-day visit to Portugal when it began, and Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe was in the Far East.

Brittan handled the crisis with a mixture of Thatcher-like hardline rhetoric — calling the gunman's action "a barbaric outrage" and saying "we will not be deterred from doing what is necessary" — and careful packaging of a message many Britons didn't want to hear.

"All the Libyan diplomatic staff in London...will now be required to leave the country," said Brittan, when his country broke diplomatic relations with Libya after five fruitless days of trying to get Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy to order the Libyans out and let police search the embassy for weapons.

In the end, the British did not storm the embassy, which is considered inviolate under international rules of diplomatic conduct, and the gunman went free.

Throughout the standoff, Brittan spoke in the measured — critics say pompous — tones that are a hallmark of the lawyer whose career has been a textbook of success in the ruling Conservative Party under Mrs. Thatcher.

Five years after Brittan was elected to Parliament in 1974 for the north England district of Cleveland and Whitby in Yorkshire, he got his first government job as an undersecretary in the Home Office under Mrs. Thatcher.

Two years later, when Mrs. Thatcher fired three top moderates, she promoted Brittan to the Cabinet as chief secretary to the treasury.

As he wielded the ax on state spending plans, the Financial Times dubbed Brittan the "likeable Scrooge." He became Home Secretary in 1983 when the Conservatives were returned for a second five-year term.

Heading a department whose scope ranges from controlling the police and prisons to immigration and pornography, Brittan rates with the foreign secretary, defense secretary and chancellor of the exchequer as one of Mrs. Thatcher's four top officials.

One of two bright sons of a Lithuanian doctor who emigrated to England in 1927, Brittan was raised in an Orthodox Jewish household in north London. His elder brother Sam is economics editor of Britain's prestigious Financial Times newspaper.

He won a scholarship to a private high school, followed by Cambridge University, where he was president of the debating society and graduated summa cum laude in law and English. He studied economics for one year at Yale University in the United States.

American financier ordered off island

PLYMOUTH, Montserrat (AP) — Fugitive financier J. David "Jerry" Dominelli was declared "undesirable" on Friday by authorities in this British colony, and he was given 24 hours to leave the island.

Dominelli was detained by police after being served with the expulsion order, but he was later seen leaving a police station with police escorts. The police department refused to explain why Dominelli was detained or why he was escorted.

In California, the San Diego Tribune reported that Dominelli's home had been surrounded by police officers and searched for two hours Friday before the financier was taken into custody.

"The governor, on the advice of the executive council, has ordered J. David Dominelli to leave the British colony under the Undesirable Persons Expulsion Act," said a statement released on behalf of British Governor David Dale.

The order gave Dominelli a departure deadline of 8 a.m. EST today.

Dale presided over a Friday morning meeting of the executive council to decide what to do about Dominelli, who had excellent relations with local officials in the past.

The government had earlier said it had received no formal request from the United States for Dominelli's extradition, but added that Montserrat wants to cooperate with Washington.

Dominelli said Wednesday at a press conference that he had broken no U.S. laws and planned to stay here.

Chief Minister John Osbourne, elected leader of the largely self-governing island of 12,000, was reportedly angered when Dominelli evaded government efforts to learn more about his problems in the United States — where federal authorities want information about the investors and millions in unaccounted-for funds from his bankrupt financial empire.

Dominelli defied a federal court order when he fled from San Diego on April 13. Upon his arrival in Montserrat, he said he would recover the investor funds and start a new currency trading or investment company to replace J. David & Co., which was declared bankrupt on March 21 by U.S. District Judge J. Lawrence Irving.

Louis Metzger, the court-appointed bankruptcy trustee overseeing the liquidation of Dominelli's firm in San Diego, has said that he has recovered only about $500,000 in J. David assets. Metzger had sought to have Dominelli jailed for failing to cooperate in the search for company assets, but the financier left the United States a week before he was scheduled to appear at a contempt hearing.

When Dominelli failed to show up, Irving issued no-bail warrants for his arrest.

Tass: Copter deliberately entered airspace

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass claimed Friday that a U.S. Army helicopter deliberately entered Czechoslovakian air space last week, and said Pentagon explanations of the incident were "obviously ridiculous."

Tass said the Czechoslovakian government issued a protest Wednesday to the U.S. Embassy in Prague about the incident, in which a U.S. Cobra attack helicopter entered Czechoslovakia from West Germany during a regularly scheduled reconnaissance patrol.

The Pentagon said Thursday that the chopper flew across the border because of "pilot error" and two Czechoslovak MiG-21 jet fighters fired at the unarmed craft without warning.

"At first the Pentagon tried to reject the very fact of a provocation against a socialist state," Tass said.

Government officials' wives speak out about living in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carolyn Deaver says her stomach turns all the time.

"Inevitably, we'll be criticized for something," says Midge Baldrige.

Sue Block was scared of moving to Washington, "and I would have been more scared if I'd known what we were getting into."

These are Official Wives, married to men in the Reagan administration. And recently they have been speaking out. They say the honeymoon is long since over, that it is emotionally exhausting to live in the limelight and that Washington can be a catty and vicious town. They fear the daggers might one day turn on them.

To many, it would seem that Carolyn Deaver, Midge Baldrige and Sue Block should have no complaints. They and their husbands are well liked, well respected and have survived three years in Washington with their reputations unscathed and their integrity unquestioned. No one is hammering them.

AP Laserphoto

The honeymoon is long since over for Official Wives, the women married to men in the Reagan administration, says Sue Block, left, wife of Agriculture Secretary John Block, and Ursula Meese, wife of Presidentail Counselor Edwin Meese III.

BUT THEY empathize with friends like White House counselor Edwin Meese III and his wife, Ursula, who have been caught in an awkward spotlight.

Many who come to Washington feel they live in a pressure cooker, even those who handle it well.

Mrs. Deaver, whose husband, Michael Deaver, is White House deputy chief of staff, said that when one administration family is criticized, all are affected.

"It seems to be a function of finding any slight error and making a large thing about it," she said. "It does affect you, whether you're in the (news) article or not. You feel that sooner or later, your time will come."

Many cheered when Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said at a press conference that he would not pay for his wife's use of government limousines when she used the cars to attend functions as a "Cabinet wife," such as charity and diplomatic receptions, or to attend offical events at night.

THERE WAS NO reason to think her actions were "illegal, immoral, unethical or anything else," Regan said.

In interviews, several Official Wives said they have been particularly shaken by the recent controversy surrounding the Meeses. A special prosecutor has been appointed to investigate charges involving Meese, including one that Mrs. Meese accepted a $15,000 loan from a man who later got a federal job.

Friends of Mrs. Meese said she was deeply upset by the controversy and that it was exacerbated by reporters and photographers who spent two weeks virtually camped in front of the Meeses' house.

Finally, she complained publicly.

"What has gone wrong with the country?" she asked one reporter. "...It's unbelievable. You should never feel uncomfortable going to church but when you have photographers there filming you when you leave ... Nobody should have to live that way. Nobody."

MRS. DEAVER said that whether one is a Democrat or Republican, the pressure of having one's professional and private life under a magnifying glass "is deflating and demoralizing."

"It reaches a point where you say, "I don't think it's worth it," she said. "It doesn't matter what party you're in ... To be tried by the press is awful. You have a real churning in your stomach all the time. You're under siege. It's not fun."

Mrs. Baldrige, who is married to Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, said the constant scrutiny discourages people from going into government life.

"It will deter capable people from serving," she said. "The country will suffer in the long run. I feel inevitably we'll be criticized for something."

Mrs. Block, who is married to Agriculture Secretary John Block, said in an interview last November that she is friendly with wives of men who have resigned from Reagan's cabinet and are no longer on the official circuit.

"IN WASHINGTON, when you're in, you're in," she said. "You have a title and prestige. But when you're out, it's like you vanish from the face of the Earth."

One woman who knows what life is like in a Washington sandstorm is Leilani Watt, wife of former Interior Secretary James G. Watt, who resigned last October after the years marked with controversy.

In a recent interview, Mrs. Watt said, "It's the scrutiny in every part of your life that is wearing. It seems that because you are a public official, you're held to a standard of being perfect. You're not perfect."

Nancy Reynolds, a lobbyist in Washington with close ties to the Reagan administration, said life in Washington can be like a soap opera.

"When you first come, everybody panders to your ego," she said. "Total strangers give parties in your honor. Two years later, the honeymoon is over."

Hart star of campaign season

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the world of stardom, where politics has a way of cashing in on the glamour and wealth of celebrity circles, Sen. Gary Hart has emerged as the year's star attraction.

While he won't be winning any Oscars Hart is the only Democratic presidential contender to sparkle in the glow of Hollywood's political spotlight these days.

Hart's list of entertainment-world supporters is growing so long that his campaign recently named a "celebrity coordinator" to keep track of them and to seek out others who are leaning toward the Colorado senator.

The other two candidates, meanwhile, remain largely offstage: Rev. Jesse Jackson is trying to start his own star machine, while Walter F. Mondale has yet to build a Hollywood coalition, beyond superstar Paul Newman.

With Mondale's substantial delegate lead, the celebrities' financial and attention-getting support could become increasingly vital to Hart as tightly contested primaries loom in Pennslyvania and other states.

Although Hollywood is no stranger to political activity, most celebrities kept a low profile in this year's presidential contest until Hart won the New Hampshire primary Feb. 28.

WHEN WORD OF Hart's upset win flashed on TV monitors during a news-break at the Grammy Awards ceremony, cheers went up throughout the star-studded audience and the stellar bandwagon began rolling.

Among Hart's celebrity supporters are his good friend Warren Beatty, along with Robert Redford, Mary Tyler Moore, Marlo Thomas, author Stephen King, Donna Mills, and all of whom have been active campaigners, said celebrity coordinator Patricia Duff.

Others include Jack Nicholson, John Denver, Hal Linden and Burt Bacharach. The campaign also lists John Forsythe, Margaux Hemingway, Jimmy Buffett, Tom Rush and Dan Fogelberg, who is scheduled to give a concert in June.

Bacharach orginally supported Sen. Alan Cranston of California.

"When he pulled out, Hart seemed to be a very logical choice to go to ... I like him. He's very alive. (He has) a good kind of energy and charisma about him. I'm also hoping to know more about his ideas," Bacharach said, adding that Hart poses an alternative to "older and less attractive" ideas of traditional politics.

"I DON'T THINK anybody in the world gave Gary Hart a chance before New Hampshire. I think his success there is what brought these people out," said Orion Pictures president Mike Medavoy, who brought several entertainers into the fold and organized Hart's first celebrity event — a dinner at 20th Century-Fox Studios in November 1982 that raised $90,000.

Some however, like singer Carole King, a top fund-raiser for the campaign, were with Hart long before his New England splash.

Miss King's 10 concerts since December, grossing $500,000, have been the campaign's principal money-making activity besides direct mail, said national fund-raising chairman Doug Rosen.

But Rosen said political commitments from celebrities aren't always the boon they seem. Often the celebrities can't commit to an event until it's too late to get much publicity, he said, "or something comes up and they cancel."

A $250-a-person Hart roast on April 1 in New York, featured Ms. Thomas, Linden, and John Denver and raised $130,000, according to the campaign press office.

"I JUST FEEL that more important than electing a Democrat is defeating Ronald Reagan," Linden said, explaining his involvement.

Calling Hart the "most electable" candidate, he added, "I see myself as another citizen with my inalienable right to political activity. I also feel I have a responsibility because of my visibility to have some idea what I'm talking about."

Refurbished house of first Texas banker gets grand opening

GALVESTON(AP) — Unlike his cohort Stephen F. Austin, you won't find any community in Texas named for Samuel May Williams.

But without Williams, the Rhode Island-born son of a sea captain, it's likely the founding days of the Republic of Texas would have been the final days. Austin would have been just another pioneer. And Texans wouldn't have been celebrating Independence Day.

Williams was Austin's friend, confidant and secretary. And more important, he was the money man for the War for Texas Independence.

His financial skills enabled him to raise dollars for the war effort against Mexico, supply the army and even purchase the first ships for the Texas navy. He eventually established the first bank in the state, the Commercial and Agricultural Bank in Galveston.

Unfortunately for Williams, however, being a banker in Texas in the 1840s and '50s was a most unpopular profession. After his death in 1858, his bank was shut and assets distributed.

So all that's left of Williams — and now finally restored after a rescue from the wrecker's ball — is the Williams house in Galveston.

A formal grand opening of the house — one of Galveston's two oldest buildings and the result of a $600,000 restoration effort by the Galveston Historical Foundation — was planned for Texas Independence Day.

"He never quite understood why people didn't like him," says Timothy Kingsbury, a spokesman for the historical foundation. "He felt he did great deal for Texas. But people felt he did a great deal for himself."

As Austin's secretary, Williams filled out the forms for land applications. For his work, he often was paid with land, Kingsbury says. But if people reneged on their land purchase agreement, Williams would wind up the land. Eventually, he amassed some 48,000 acres, making him one of the largest landowners in fledgling Texas.

"He was shrewd, very wealthy," Kingsbury says.

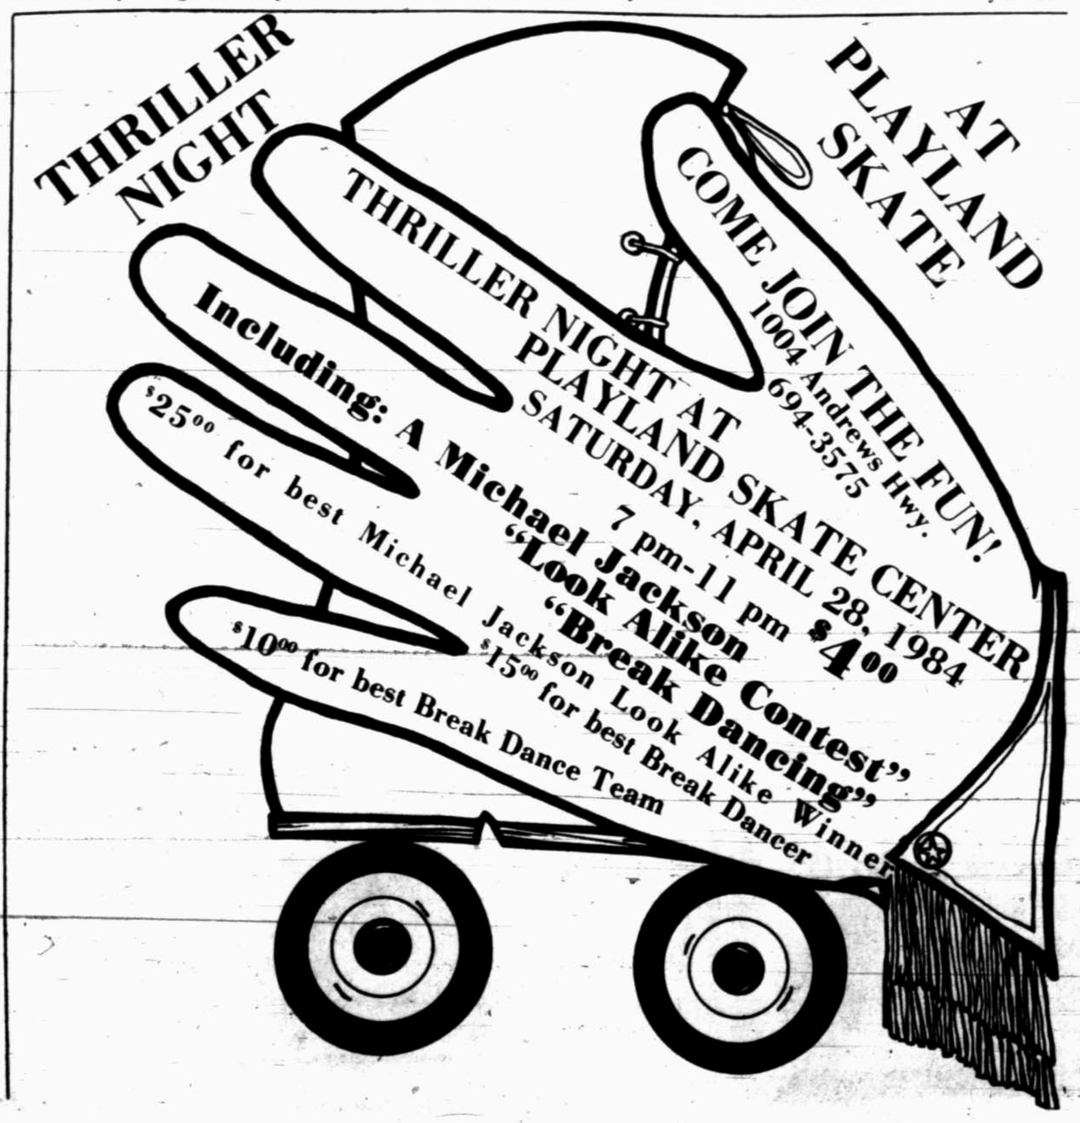

For his house, Williams chose a 10-acre site about two miles from the then-new town of Galveston, which he helped found. "It was way out of town," says Ann Ferguson, director of the refurbished two-story home.

Europeans spar over D-Day celebration

LONDON (AP) — With plenty of nostalgia and a hint of pique at the French, Britain is preparing to celebrate this year's 40th anniversary of the D-Day landings by dropping its paratroopers, along with Americans, over Normandy's Utah Beach.

That's where the American, French and British heads of state will be waiting at the focal point of French-organized ceremonies on the June 6 anniversary of the Allied invasion, which marked the beginning of the final defeat of Hitler's Nazi Germany.

Utah, like Omaha, is a beach where American forces went ashore on France's Normandy coast. British and Canadian troops assaulted three others, code-named Gold, Juno and Sword, in the final push against the Germans in World War II.

"The selection of Utah Beach may be surprising to the British," said Lt. Col. John Arthur, organizer of the British Defense Ministry's participation in the celebrations.

"However, this is a French decision and they feel it's the most suitable beach on which they can do what they want," Arthur said, outlining the Defense Ministry's plans at a news conference at London's Imperial War Museum.

"The selection of Utah Beach may be surprising to the British. However, this is a French decision and they feel it's the most suitable beach on which they can do what they want."

— Lt. Col. John Arthur, British Defense Ministry

WHAT FRENCH President Francois Mitterrand has done is to invite — and they're going — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and U.S. President Ronald Reagan to Utah Beach for the anniversary of the greatest amphibious operation in history.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is expected to be there too for the afternoon ceremony, along with veterans, sightseers and a huge press corps trampling the sand dunes.

Arthur chose his words carefully, evidently keen to avoid marring the occasion by hints of old rivalries about who won the war.

But British official sources hinted strongly that the queen may attend another ceremony on a "British" beach in the morning.

Britain's 3,000-strong Normandy Veterans' Association is pulling no punches about its feelings at celebrating the anniversary on Utah, where American forces commanded by Gen. Omar Bradley struggled ashore under fearsome pounding of German batteries.

"The truth is the Americans have always treated the British part in Normandy as a sideshow," Eric Bulman, head of the veterans' association was quoted as saying in a recent interview with London's Mail on Sunday newspaper.

AS A PRIVATE in the Royal Irish Hussars, a British regiment, Bulman was at Normandy — one of 176,500 men, including 70,500 Americans and 83,100 British and Canadians, who took part in the assault.

On the first day, 2,500 of them were killed and 8,000 wounded.

Also setting up celebrations — as he does annually — is a Normandy mayor, Raymond Triboulet, designated by France's late President Charles de Gaulle to run each anniversary as head of the Normandy Landings Committee.

The Defense Ministry's Arthur said the British have taken part in Triboulet's celebrations every year.

"We didn't know about the French government's plans until last autumn," said Arthur.

"But anyway we wanted to help in putting on a bigger show. This may be the last major opportunity for many veterans to make the pilgrimage because of their advancing years."

The Defense Ministry program includes a June 5 drop at Ranville by Britain's 2nd parachute regiment, known as the "Red Devils" after their caps. Ranville is the site of graves of men from throughout the Commonwealth, the association of Britain and its former colonies.

DURING THE main French-organized ceremony, the Red Devils will drop with American paratroopers, and a British guided missile destroyer, HMS Fife, will join warships from other allied nations off the coast. A light infantry company will parade with units from the other Allied armies.

"We're not organizing anything, just helping," said Arthur, "and we hope many British veterans will be there."

But Valmai Holt, tour organizer for another veterans' association, the Royal British Legion, returned from Normandy this month complaining the anniversary is shaping up as "chaotic" because of Mitterrand turning it into a state occasion.

"That (Utah) is an anathema to the British veterans who want ceremonies on their own beaches," said Mrs. Holt.

Mitterrand, she charged, could not have "chosen a worse location," arguing that Utah's high dunes will obscure most of the ceremony.

A spokesman for French Veterans Minister Jean Laurain quoted him as saying, "I have no comment to make on this subject."

Vietnamese building shrimp boats

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — In nine years, Queng Tran has chalked up accomplishments of which he justly should be proud.

Last year, he and his countrymen built three 45-foot shrimp boats. Earlier, he had built a 40-footer. Now he and other Vietnamese are putting together four more of the boats near the Rainbow Bridge, two of them 60-footers, and the other two 53 feet long.

He and his countrymen are demonstrating that hard work and resourcefulness still pay off in America.

But Tran and his friends are worried about this story seeing print.

"Americans yell at us," he said.

Hundreds of Vietnamese refugees who went into the Gulf shrimping business in the last five or six years made many American shrimpers decide it was time to quit shrimping.

And some of the American shrimpers didn't take the situation lightly.

Violence erupted down the coast in the Seadrift area in 1979 and climaxed in the killing of an American shrimper. Two Vietnamese charged in the killing were acquitted on grounds of self-defense.

The situation has cooled considerably since then.

The four boats under construction were started during the Christmas holidays. They are being built of pine, plywood and fiberglass. The builders first put together the keels and ribs, then applied plywood sheeting, then the fiberglass covering.

Tran, 25, speaks the best English of the Vietnamese working on the four boats and is the driving force in the group.

Nine years ago Tran, then 16, fled Vietnam with five brothers, two sisters, his parents and various other relatives. They left in a small boat and boarded a U.S. military ship offshore and then came to America by way of the Philippines.

The family located in Pennsylvania in the Pittsburgh area under the sponsorship of a Catholic church.

Tran finished high school, headed for Louisiana in search of a job and found one as a welder in Houma. He worked a year, saved his money.

"I save two or three thousand," Tran said.

His father was in the shrimp fishing business in Vietnam so it was natural for Tran to try his hand at shrimping. He and friends built the first boat at Palacios.

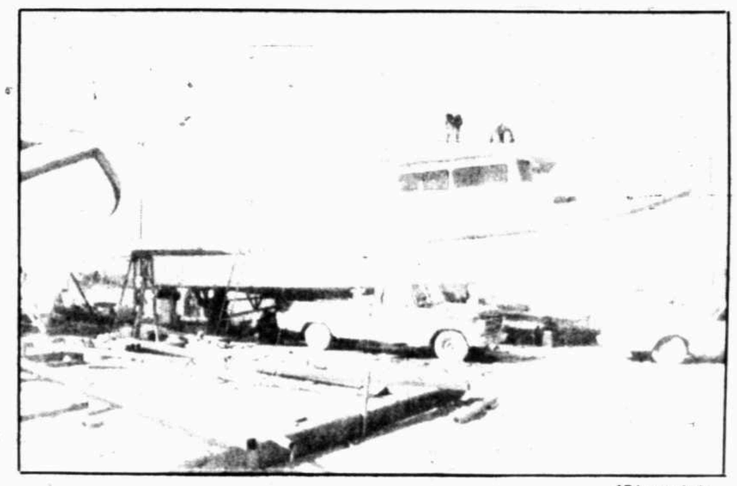

The four boats will join many others being built along the Texas coast.

Just how many new shrimp boats will appear on the scene is hard to tell. Ralph Rayburn, executive director of the Texas Shrimp Association places the number at about 100.

Last year Texas operators took out licenses to operate 7,733 shrimp, a 12 percent increase since 1979 and twice the number operating in 1969 according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, which licenses the boats.

John Valentino of San Leon whose family has been in the shrimping business for several generations, is vocal in his opposition to the Vietnamese movement into the Texas shrimping business.

He charges the news media has painted an unfair picture of the American shrimper as being lazy given to spending his time drinking beer. The Vietnamese, he says, are described as industrious.

Vietnamese put the finishing touches on one of the shrimp boats they have helped build in Port Arthur. Last year the Vietnamese built three 45-foot shrimp boats and now they are putting together four more, two 60-footers and two 53-footers.

Former foundling longs to find 'last chapter'

LUFKIN (AP) — A woman who recently learned she was a baby foundling 31 years ago has come to new discoveries about her past, but longs for the day when the full story is known.

"It's like reading a book and someone tore off the last chapter and you wonder what happened," said Marilyn Blanton Cuellar in a telephone interview from San Antonio.

Since an article about Mrs. Cuellar's original discovery about her past was published last month by the Lufkin Daily News, Mrs. Cuellar has received eight letters and about 20 telephone calls.

From the contacts, Mrs. Cuellar says she is now practically certain who her natural mother is — and says the woman has telephoned her, without, however, revealing their apparent close link.

So Mrs. Cuellar remains unsure of the reasons for her own abandonment in woods off FM 58, three miles southeast of Lufkin, in 1952.

"Only she knows the real truth of what led her to do as she did," says Mrs. Cuellar, who has no inkling of her natural father's identity.

The infant was discovered Oct. 19, 1952 by a squirrel hunter, James E. Burrous, who ran for help upon hearing the baby's cries. She was found covered with leaves and dirt underneath a small stick, a towel and woman's slip. Immediately she became the darling of the community, and adoption offers poured in.

THE GIRL, nicknamed Linda Joyce by nurses at Angelina County Hospital where she was taken, was eventually adopted by Benjamin Blanton, a journalist then working at a Wichita Falls newspaper, and his wife, Carolyn.

She is now married to San Antonio television anchorman Daniel Ray Cuellar Jr. and has three young children.

Mrs. Cuellar, who learned of her abandonment in the woods from a 1952 story in the Lufkin Daily, says she has been "deeply and greatly touched" by the letters and telephone calls, some of which have provided rich details of the episode and have apparently led to the discovery of her natural mother.

Mrs. Cuellar says information received from "many, many people" makes her "almost 99 percent sure" that her suspicion is correct.

But she declines to reveal her mother's name, concerned about causing the woman problems and maintaining hope for a reunion. She says her birth mother may need time to deal with the sudden resurfacing of the story.

Mrs. Cuellar will only say the woman is a grandmother, lives somewhere in Texas but not in Lufkin, and was "very young" when she gave birth.

"I don't know that I would come forward, especially if I was married and had children. That could really be quite a blow to the family," says Mrs. Cuellar.

AFTER THE recent article ran, Mrs. Cuellar says the woman telephoned her.

"When she said her name the bells went off. I thought, 'She's calling to tell me.' But it wasn't that way at all. So I just went along with whatever she said...

"She gave me her little two-bit information," relates Mrs. Cuellar, who thinks the woman tried to throw her off the trail by calling. "She covered her tracks very well."

Mrs. Cuellar says the caller showed unusual curiosity in the physical characteristics of Mrs. Cuellar and her children, which makes her think the woman was worried about being identified.

Mrs. Cuellar says she harbors no resentment toward her, only empathy and pity.

"The heart goes out to her. She must have really been physically and mentally tortured by it," she says.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Cuellar says she has learned other details of her early history, but prefers to protect her sources.

"I was left in a position where I'd be found," she says. "In fact I was only a few minutes old — at the very most I was only an hour old...I was not born in those woods. I was born nearby, and I will say very nearby."

MRS. CUELLAR says Cleo Burrous, the wife of the squirrel hunter, had been taken to the movies by her children on Oct. 19, it being Mrs. Burrous' birthday too.

Three of the couple's surviving daughters told Mrs. Cuellar that Burrous "was going to lie down and take a nap, but the dog kept barking. He was going to take the dog hunting, and the dog came straight to me."

Mrs. Cuellar also heard from "Shorty" Allen, a passing motorist flagged down by Burrous after Burrous heard the infant's cries.

"He said, 'If anyone should have gotten that baby, it should have been me, 'cause I loved it.'"

Mrs. Cuellar got a letter from Hazel Due, who stated she was at the house of her mother, Minnie Shivers, when Allen came by looking for a telephone. Mrs. Due said she removed the first leaf from the baby's face after Deputy Sheriff Luke Lankford arrived.

"I started to pick you up," wrote Mrs. Due, "but Luke Lankford pushed me back and picked you up himself and we headed for the hospital. I wanted so bad to hold you, but of course him being the deputy sheriff he wanted the honor.

MRS. CUELLAR says she also was contacted by Fannie Mays, a nurse at the hospital, and by Leon Jones, sheriff at the time.

Jones and his wife served as foster parents to allow her to legally remain at the hospital while the custody process went ahead, Mrs. Cuellar said.

The couple themselves had wanted to adopt her, Mrs. Cuellar said. But it was decided that she go out-of-town to avoid the glare of publicity.

Carson's boyhood home for sale

Johnny Carson

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP) — Comedian Johnny Carson's boyhood home is for sale again, but the present owners are having a hard time finding a buyer for the five-bedroom house.

"We've had it on the market since last October," Linda Kumm said Friday. "The economy has really hit the home market hard. Ours is no exception."

Mrs. Kumm and her husband Wayne and their four children moved into the home five years ago and now want to move to Arkansas.

Carson has visited the Kumms twice since they bought the home, including almost a full day when he returned to Nebraska to film a television special called "Johnny Goes Home."

Mrs. Kumm said they allowed one Carson fan to tour the home and that after a few minutes she went looking for him.

"I found him clinging to the woodwork in a doorway saying, 'This is Johnny's house, this is Johnny's house,' and wondered what I had gotten myself into," she said.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — An orchestra made up of Soviet emigres will put on concerts in 14 cities in the United States, Canada and Western Europe in May and June to pressure the Soviet Union into freeing dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov and his wife, organizers say.

"The only weapon we have is publicity. The Soviets can be embarrassed, can be forced to liberate them," Edward Lozansky, a former Soviet physicist and the organizer of the tour, said Thursday.

Lozansky is head of the International Sakharov Committee, a group of scientists who monitor human rights abuses in the Soviet Union.

Sakharov and his wife are in internal exile in the Soviet city of Gorky, and both are in ill health. Sakharov, who worked on the Soviet hydrogen bomb, has campaigned on behalf of Soviet dissidents and nuclear arms control, and won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975.

The dates for the concerts are: Rochester, May 9; Toronto, May 10; Boston, May 13; Washington, May 16 (this date, at the White House, is tentative); New York, May 21; Amsterdam, Netherlands, May 24; Brussels, Belgium, May 25; Bonn, West Germany, May 26; Paris, May 28; Bern, Switzerland, May 30; Geneva, Switzerland, May 31; Zurich, Switzerland, June 1; Milan, Italy, June 2; and London, June 5.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Reagan took a little California artistry with him to China.

The official gift Reagan gave to Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang on Thursday — a 15-inch tall bronze heron — was designed by California artist Wheatley Allen.

When he was governor of California, Reagan acquired a set of Allen's California Valley Quail to present to Japan's Emperor Hirohito in 1971. A bronze eagle was requested by Secretary of State George Shultz to present to West Germany's President Karl Karstens last October.

Allen, 42, of Mendocino, has been carving birds since he was 8.

Richard Nixon

SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon has placed his 13-room home up for sale and is asking for $2.3 million, a spokesman for a real estate firm said Friday.

"They already have several (potential) buyers," said Sol Abrams, spokesman for Murphy Realty-Better Homes and Gardens. The Nixons bought the house in July 1981 for $1.2 million.

Nixon has said he wants to find a smaller home because his wife Pat has been in poor health since suffering a stroke last fall. The house has five bedrooms, a wine cellar, tennis court and swimming pool.

A spokesman for Nixon did not return calls and it was not known where the former president planned to move. In March, the Nixons decided against moving into a co-op apartment in Manhattan because of publicity.

Thomas Noguchi

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney has asked that former county Coroner Thomas Noguchi be given another hearing on grounds that the Civil Service Commission that demoted him acted for political reasons.

Noguchi, 57, was demoted to physician-specialist in April 1982 by the county Board of Supervisors, which contended he had sensationalized the deaths of movie stars Natalie Wood, William Holden and others, mismanaged the department and spent too much time on outside activities.

A Civil Service hearing officer recommended in February 1983 that he be reinstated, but the full Civil Service Commission later voted 4-1 not to reinstate him.

Attorney Godfrey Isaac said he filed a petition Thursday asking that Noguchi's case be heard by a Superior Court judge. He said the commission "did not hear the evidence, they didn't read the transcript."

Milton Berle

LEBANON, Ill. (AP) — McKendree College has taken comedian Milton Berle seriously — by awarding the 76-year-old funnyman an honorary doctor of humanity of letters degree.

"Uncle Miltie" said he'd never gotten such an award before.

Berle was presented the sheepskin Thursday night at the school's 156th anniversary celebration.

He entertained nearly 1,000 people on hand for Founders Day activities at the state's oldest college.

Huck Finn still causing trouble

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Even at 100 years old, Huck Finn is still stirring up trouble.

Within months of its publication in 1884, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," Mark Twain's classic novel about a young man's trip down the Mississippi River with a runaway slave, was banned from the Concord, Mass., public library as "trash."

For years it was attacked for satirizing religious norms.

These days, the book faces criticism on grounds that it demeans blacks.

Teachers, historians and parents of prospective Twain readers gathered at Penn State University on Thursday for a three-day conference to celebrate the book's 100th birthday and debate its merits and applicability as an eucational tool in the 1980s.

Since 1976, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" has been challenged as mandatory reading in public schools from Davenport, Iowa, to Winnetka, Ill., to Houston.

"Black kids can be humiliated by it, white kids who are sensitive feel somehow culpable or guilty, and others have their racial biases reinforced," Margaret Allen of State College said in an interview prior to attending a panel discussion on the book.

Mrs. Allen, who is black, filed a complaint last November with the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission to contest the novel's inclusion on the ninth-grade reading list in the school district serving this rural college town.

The complaint, which is pending, was filed after Mrs. Allen's son, Antwi, was told to read the part of Jim the slave in class, allegedly because "he had a perfect voice for it."

The school district, while neither confirming nor denying the classroom incident of two years ago, has since made the book optional.

But Mrs. Allen wants it barred from the curriculum entirely, and she wants the English teacher who taught it to "be censured for manifestations of racial prejudice..."

Any educational value the novel might have "is not worth the cost of offending a whole race of people," she said.

But an English professor who was one of the two organiers of the conference said it is "a dangerous argument" to limit access to the book because of its racial tone.

"It's a kind of revisionist argument that says you should eliminate books on the basis of today's morals," professor Augustus Kolich of Penn State said at the conference.

"I think it's a dangerous argument because it says, 'There is only now.' "

Professors and novelists who gathered for the conference said the book holds a revered spot in American literature.

"Twain's was our first uniquely American novel," said John Bryant, associate English professor at Penn State's Shenango Valley campus. Bryant was the other primary organizer of the conference.

"His portrayal of characters and use of the language of the times are highly realistic. He uses precise descriptions of the Mississippi River, life along the river and unique American social problems of the time," he said.

Speaking at the panel discussion, novelist John Barth said, "The image of Huck and Jim going down that river on a raft is one of the four or five most profound, most transcendent images that the human imagination has ever come up with."

At the heart of discussions about the novel's treatment of blacks was Jim, a sympathetic character but one who — several professors argued — perpetuated stereotypes about blacks.

"The fraternity between Huck and Jim is a fraternity between boys. But Jim is a man who never reaches adulthood," said Fredrick Woodard, professor of English and Afro-American studies at the University of Iowa.

Woodard is co-author of a recent study of the novel that links blacks in the book to professional troupes of whites who would wear "blackface" to entertain other whites.

"The tradition of white men blackening up to entertain other whites at the expense of black people's humanity is at the center of 'Huck Finn's' portrayal of Jim and other blacks," the study said.

Bradford Chambers, spokesman for the New York-based Council on Interracial Books for Children, said teachers of the novel must educate their students about the times Twain wrote in, or else the book might foster racist attitudes. The council says it promotes "anti-racist and anti-sexist literature."

"What has happened is people are asked to teach it because the great academicians say it's such a classic, but they offer no help in how to teach it," Chambers said.

"We don't say ban the book, we say analyze it, use it as a teaching tool in its proper context," he said.

Europe's "Car of the Year." Your car for the future.

Audi 5000S Sedan

Audi When Audi created the new 5000S, they did more than design the most aerodynamically efficient sedan ever. They did it with style. Elegant, luxurious style.

That's why 53 journalists from 16 countries voted the Audi 5000S Europe's "Car of the Year." Drive it. You'll call it #1, too.

"WE WANTED A QUALITY LIFESTYLE, NOT GIMMICKS AND GIVEAWAYS..."

"...That's why, when John and I were transferred to Midland, we chose to live at Oakridge Apartments. Sure, we passed up a few gimmicks and giveaways offered by the other communities. But what we got instead is an apartment community superior to anything else we saw. New on the market this year, Oakridge Apartments are bright and beautiful with sparkling new amenities and lots of extras. But more than that, Oakridge is a real quality neighborhood. The people out here are just great, and the management team is the best we've ever had."
