The calm after the storm

Tuesday began with the threat of severe thunderstorms and tornados, but ended rather peacefully with a serene sunset. Only .21 of an inch of rain fell Tuesday and the threat of severe weather has all but disappeared, with only a 20 percent chance of rain set for tonight.

Major high-rise office complex, hotel planned

Plans for a major high-rise complex and luxury hotel were revealed today by officials of Texas Partners, owner of the Vaughn Building and adjoining property. The project, still in the preliminary planning stages, is envisioned as a complex in excess of 30 stories, with 350,000 square feet of office space.

Texas Partners, the owner/developer, is a partnership comprised of MGF Oil Corporation of Midland, and Ronald A. Harris Associates of San Francisco. The joint announcement was issued by R.O. "Jack" Major, president and chief executive officer of MGF, and Ronald A. Harris.

"We believe the addition of this substantial project in the very heart of Midland will help meet the growing need for quality office facilities, and also serve the needs of the business traveler," Major said. He noted the proximity of key financial institutions and oil companies to the proposed site.

The property is bounded by Texas, Marienfeld, Illinois and Big Spring streets, and includes all of the block except the HBF Building. Also included is the site of the old Petroleum Club.

Harris explained that the partnership is presently seeking a first class hotel operator to provide facilities superior to any in the area. "We plan to cater to the seasoned business traveler who is accustomed to, and expects, the best accommodations," he added.

A parking garage for 900 to 1,000 vehicles will be built as part of the complex. A health club on top of the parking facility will include indoor tennis and racquetball facilities.

Although the project is still in the preliminary planning stage, and architectural drawings are not currently available, a master plan is being compiled and will be released when completed. The total project cost will be announced upon completion of the master plan.

Major indiated that the office complex will be complemented by an attractive atrium of approximately 25,000 square feet. "We plan to make this project one that will meet or even exceed the high standards and expectations of Midland's business community," he said.

Project manager is Louis R. Williams, with offices in Suite 106, Vaughn Building, 683-4431.

Reagan 'protecting' sale of warplanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is going ahead with the sale of sophisticated radar reconnaissance planes to Saudi Arabia, but he's stalling in sending the plan to Congress in hopes of quelling strong opposition there and averting a threatened veto.

The White House formally announced the sale Tuesday — triggering criticism that it is a "dangerous action" and a "mistake" — but dropped plans to send the proposal to Congress next Monday.

"It may be a period of time before we send it up there," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters Tuesday.

One congressional source, who asked not to be identified, said the White House was stalling because a majority of the Senate opposes it, with 51 members ready to vote against it and 38 members planning to support it.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker Jr., who talked to Reagan by telephone shortly before the announcement, believes the president should not send the proposal to Congress until after the Israeli elections June 30 in hopes that opposition will have abated by that time, Senate sources say.

Baker was to fly from Knoxville today to meet with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to discuss the sale. He will meet with Reagan on Thursday.

When the arms package is sent to Congress, it will include the five AWACS command planes that have drawn the greatest opposition, as well as gear to enhance 62 F-15 jetfighters the Saudis have on order, Speakes said.

Opponents say the sale would increase the Arab threat to Israel, and that secret equipment on the AWACS — Airborne Warning and Control Systems — planes might be compromised.

Congress can block the sale with rejection by both the House and Senate, but the 30-day veto period does not start until the sale is formally presented to Congress.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said in a statement that he will try "to block this dangerous action."

He said the Saudis do not need the AWACS, which he called "offensive weapons that can easily be used to threaten the security of Israel, our closest ally in the Middle East."

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Near East subcommittee, called the sale "a mistake."

"It should be reconsidered," Boschwitz said. "This package appears to face certain defeat in the Senate."

But Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the package's fate in Congress depends on conditions the administration is trying to negotiate with the Saudis.

"It depends on what the package is and what understandings have been reached and what conditions are being laid down," Percy said.

He indicated that the negotiations deal with assurances that the AWACS and F-15s will not be used against Israel, and that secret electronics gear on the AWACS planes will not be compromised.

The Boston Globe reported today that the compromise the administration is working on also would make it clear that U.S. Air Force personnel would be pulled off the AWACS if the aircraft were diverted to a mission other than in defense of Saudi Arabia.

An Associated Press survey last week found that 45 senators, nearly half the Senate, are leaning or committed against the sale and another 20 are concerned about it.

In announcing the proposed sale Tuesday, Speakes told reporters "the president believes this step is essential to protect our interests in the region."

"Over the course of the last several weeks we have been reviewing the situation regarding the serious deterioration of security conditions in the Middle East and Persian Gulf region."

"Attacking crime is a new Administration policy. The best measure is prompt and quick sentencing and there should be mandatory sentencing for those who commit crimes with a gun."

— Vice President George Bush

He's one of the president's men

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reporter-Telegram political writer Lana Cunningham recently spent several days in Washington interviewing government officials and attending a briefing on President Reagan's economic plan. This article deals with Vice President George Bush and Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

WASHINGTON — Increased savings, more jobs and higher productivity. Those are three positive aspects to President Reagan's economic recovery package which centers around a hurt-all, help-all theory.

The budget cuts are the segment which will hurt many in the country; but all are to benefit from the tax cuts. Paying less in taxes by both the individual and the industry should stimulate the economy, contend Reagan's men.

Probably the one man in this country who promotes this philosophy as heartily as the president is the one who is next in line: Vice President George Bush. To back him up on that during a briefing for Sunbelt reporters was Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers.

"I'M CONVINCED the constituency wants to see this program tried," stressed Bush. The congressmen who are fighting it, he charged, "aren't looking to their constituency."

Compromise isn't part of the deal, he stressed, as did Weidenbaum. That would only hinder the expected effects of Reagan's economic package. "And the president is in no mood to compromise on cuts or taxes," Bush added.

Numerous economists who have had serious reservations about that aspect (tax cuts) have looked at that package and said this country needs those three years of cuts and across-the-board drop in rates, the vice president continued.

Somehow, the vice president doesn't come across as one of those uppity, untouchable high officials. He seems too much like the next-door neighbor.

During a news conference involving national and regional media, this former oilman who got his start in Texas business back in Midland displayed an air of ease and confidence. Unlike some officials who freeze at the sight of a roomful of reporters and cameras, Bush scratches his head and pulls on his ear while answering questions and seldom gets his feathers ruffled when asked the same question three times.

After the news conference, regional reporters take a tour of his office in the old Executive Office Building. He greets each person with a smile and handshake, comes up with a remark about each town, and encourages reporters to comb the room for details.

"Pull out that center drawer on my desk," he urges. "It's got all the signatures of former vice presidents, including Dwight Eisenhower. I think it's fascinating. Oh, and don't forget to look at the pictures of my two grandchildren."

The office will be remodeled and turned back into its original colors and design, "but it's all being done with private money," he laughs.

THE HARDEST PART of the battle lies ahead for the president's men. "Yes, we'll have to fight to get it through, particularly in the House," Bush said of the expected battle over the program after Easter recess. But he, like the rest of that circle of administrators, believes inflation will begin to curb by the end of the year.

Reacting to a criticism for a plan to cut funds for law enforcement in large cities, Bush replied, "Attacking violent crime is a new Administration policy. The best measure is prompt and quick sentencing and there should be mandatory sentencing for those who commit crimes with a gun."

He pointed to part of the economic program which calls for lessening of government regulations on business. Bush, who was appointed by Reagan to head up that drive, said it should increase the country's productivity.

Consul seeks to clarify Israel's concerns

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

Conflict with Lebanon and the Palestinian Liberation Organization currently is the most pressing concern of the State of Israel, consul general of Israel Tzion Evrony said recently on a visit to Midland.

The 31-year-old Evrony, an eight-year veteran of the Israeli Foreign Service who has served as consul from his Houston office since 1978, was in the Permian Basin to meet with Jewish factions and "clarify the Israeli position" on Mideast political intrigue.

"Our concern (with Lebanon) stems both from our vital security considerations and the systematic barbaric annihilation of the Christian community by the Syrian army in Lebanon and by the PLO terrorists," he said. He noted that Lebanon is under foreign occupation, with 30,000 Syrian troops present as well as 15,000 PLO terrorists which constitute a "state within a state."

Evrony described the situation in Lebanon as "genocide of the Christian community by the Syrians and the PLO," rather than as a civil war, and stressed that Israel will continue its support of the Christian faction and not allow it to be destroyed.

THE ONLY SOLUTION to the crisis, he said, is immediate withdrawal of all Syrian troops and restrictions on PLO activities in the country.

"The PLO has used Lebanon as a base from which it launched its attacks on civilian targets in Israel," he said. "The PLO terorists have attacked schools, buses, and put bombs in markets. Innocent civilians, children and women have been killed."

As a result, he said, Israel will continue to attack PLO bases in Lebanon.

"This is the only way to prevent them from attacking our population," said the consul. "We believe that...our air attacks on PLO bases are acts of self-defense with the highest moral justification. The aternative is that the PLO terrorists will continue their criminal attacks unhindered."

Another major area of concern to Israel, he added, is the beefing up of Saudia Arabia militarily by the United States, which recently agreed to the sale of F-15 fighter planes and anti-tank missiles.

"ISRAEL IS opposed to the decision of the (Reagan) administration to sell additional sophisticated equipment, (such as) the F-15...and Airborne Warning and Control Systems," said Evrony. "It will endanger Israel and enable Saudia Arabia to attack targets in Israel."

Saudia Arabia, claims the consul general, has put forth a false image to the American public. "Saudia Arabia is not moderate at all — it is the most extreme enemy Israel has, a backward, feudal sheikdom ruled by 3,000 princes," he said. "It opposed the peace process between Israel and Egypt and is the main financer of PLO terrorists...that call for a jihad, a holy war, against Israel."

Evrony said Americans tend to believe the Saudia Arabians are helping the United States by producing vast quantities of oil, but he feels ulterior, self-serving motives are behind their actions.

"Saudia Arabian oil policy is based on purely economic (factors)," he said. "They produce 10.3 million barrels per day, and they will continue to produce at this level, and continue to sell at moderate prices, because it serves their own best interests. They

Clark, Berrigan to leave for Ireland

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyer Ramsey Clark and the Rev. Daniel Berrigan say they will fly to Ireland tonight to meet with IRA guerrilla Bobby Sands who is near death on a hunger strike in a Belfast jail.

Berrigan said he will address a rally of Sands' supporters on Sunday. He said Clark, a former U.S. attorney general, will attempt to act as Sands' lawyer and has applied to visit Sands in jail.

Sands, a 27-year-old Irish Republican Army member recently elected to the British Parliament, is said to be in critical condition from his hunger strike. Sources at the Maze prison said he would probably be moved to the military wing of Belfast's Musgrave Park hospital this week so he could be given care if he decides to start eating.

Sands is demanding that imprisoned IRA members be given political-prisoner status by the British government.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has ruled out such status, saying the inmates were imprisoned for their crimes, not their politics.

"I think the main thing is to try to mitigate the violence that is building around the fate of Bobby Sands," Berrigan, a Roman Catholic priest, said of his trip. "It's about time that all sides made some concessions. We're going to try to talk to all sides."

Berrigan said he and Clark will probably stay with families of IRA prisoners while in Ireland.

Lebanese flock to bomb shelters

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The shell-fire war between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen spread east from Beirut to the Roman Catholic city of Zahle, and 200,000 residents hurried back into underground shelters after nearly two weeks in the sun.

Zahle, 30 miles from Beirut on the eastern side of the Lebanon Mountains, was battered by Syrian artillery during seven days of fighting early this month.

The shelling resumed Tuesday after a cease-fire lull in which Red Cross convoys trucked in food and brought out about 42 seriously wounded residents. As before, each side accused the other of firing first.

"We can't take any more," said Dalal Kassouf, a housewife huddled in a basement apartment with her 18-month-old son.

"Let's die and get it over with," she said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut.

There were no immediate casualty reports from either side.

Syrian gunners first zeroed in on Zahle on April 2 to stop militiamen of the rightist Christian Phalange Party from finishing a mountain road that skirted the Syrian-held Beirut-Damascus highway to link Zahle with the Christian strongholds to the west. The fighting spread to Beirut the next day.

Before a cease-fire took hold April 8, the Syrians had driven the Christians from their all their hilltop positions around Zahle, and Syrian guns were trained down on the city from all sides.

Syrian sources said their government feared the pro-Israeli Christians would allow Israel to use Zahle as an anchor for an end-run invasion of Syria, skirting the heavily fortified Golan Heights frontier.

In Beirut, meanwhile, the heavy artillery and mortars that shattered the cease-fire Monday thundered from both sides of the Green Line frontier, hurling shells into residential areas in Christian East Beirut and the Moslem West.

Newspapers said 100,000 Beirut residents took to shelters as the shelling killed at least 21 people and wounded more than 80 others Monday night and early Tuesday. The firing continued without letup through Tuesday, but later casualty figures were not available.

The Beirut international airport, closed Tuesday morning because of the shelling, reopened briefly that night to allow three Boeing 727 jetliners of Lebanon's Middle East Airlines to take off with about 100 passengers each, bound for Saudi Arabia, Jordan and the Ivory Coast.

Christian mortar shells exploded around the planes as they took off, but they were not hit, officials said. After the takeoffs, the airport was closed again.

Lebanese army guns also exchanged fire with the Syrians. Three Lebanese soldiers were killed near the Beirut race track, which had not been hit in the previous firing, and 17 soldiers were wounded in suburban Hadass. Syria does not report its casualties.

"Explosions are coming from every direction," said a Christian woman by telephone from her basement apartment in East Beirut. "My son's ears are bleeding from the ear-shattering blasts."

"The situation is very bad," said Moslem Prime Minister Safik Wazzan as he and Christian President Elias Sarkis tried to negotiate a 19th cease-fire and head off a renewal of the 1975-76 civil war.

Japanese nuclear bosses face indictments

TOKYO (AP) — The government has threatened executives of a nuclear power plant with criminal prosecution for failing to report a spill of radioactive waste water that exposed 56 workers to possible contamination and leaked into a nearby bay.

Official of the Mnistry of International Trade and Industry, which has overall responsibility for Japan's nuclear power plants, said publicly they doubted the company's version of the second mishap this year at the Tsuruga nuclear power station on the Japan Sea, 200 miles west of Tokyo.

Officials of the company also did not report the first accident, three months ago, as required by law, and no charges have been filed. But the government said that accident was "still under investigation."

International Trade and Industry Minister Rokusuke Tanaka said if an investigation finds that officials of the Japan Atomic Power Co. violated the Electricity Utility Industry Law by failing to disclose the second leak immediately, they would be prosecuted and "rigorously punished." The maximum penalty is a three-year prison term.

Dr. Hideo Uchida of the Nuclear Safety commission said the Tsuruga plant was shut down April 1 when regulatory officials discovered the company had failed to report a radioactive water leak in January.

That leak, which officials described as "not particularly serious," resulted from a "hair crack in the turbine," according to Fumio Amano, chief reviewer of the Nuclear Safety Bureau. The company failed to report it until an employee told the bureau about it, he said.

While the plant was closed to repair the turbine, the second, more serious leak came to light when regulatory officials discovered higher than normal levels of radioactivity in Urasoko Bay nearby.

The second leak, which Amano called the worst in Japan's nuclear power history, has stirred a new uproar among the nation's nuclear power opponents and demands that the company's top executives resign.

In its first public statement on the second accident, the company said workers apparently failed to shut off a valve on the plant's filter sludge tanks on March 8. Water contaminated by radioactivity leaked out, eventually spilling through a general waste drain into the bay.

There was no official report on how much radioactive water spilled into the bay. Press reports have said anywhere from five to 40 tons.

Eight workers tried to clean up some of the spilled water with mops and plastic buckets, then subcontractors were called in to deal with the leak. In all, the company said, 56 persons were in contact with the radioactive waste.

The company said the 56 received very low levels of exposure — a maximum of 155 millirems, compared to the government's safe limit of 3,000 over a three-month period.

American fighters chase Soviet jet

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Two American jet fighters buzzed a Soviet commerical jetliner near Bahrain in the Persian Gulf earlier this month, and chased it for a while before turning away, an Indian government official said here today.

The official, who declined to be identified, was commenting on a local newspaper report that Bombay airport received "danger signals" from the Aeroflot jetliner during the reported April 2 buzzing incident.

Local press reports said the plane was on a flight from Karachi, Pakistan to Aden when it sent out the signals, which were received by airports in several Persian Gulf cities.

There was no immediate American or Soviet comment on the reports.

Rain cools temperatures

The rain has cooled temperatures somewhat during the past few days and more rain may do the same tonight and Thursday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Skies will become party cloudy and it will be cooler tonight, with a slight 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Tonight's low will be near 50 degrees, according to the weatherman.

Winds will take a whirlwind circle tonight and Thursday, beginning this afternoon with northwesterly winds at 15-20 mph. Winds will come from the northeast at 10-15 mph tonight and finally from the east at 10-15 mph on Thursday.

Temperatures will continue to be cool on Thursday with a high expected in the upper 70s.

The rainfall recorded for Tuesday was only .21 of an inch; however, the month-to-date total is up to 1.69 inches, while the year-to-date total has increased to 3.48 inches.

This morning's low was a muggy 60 degrees. The record low for the date was set at 36 degrees in 1931.

Tuesday's high was 74 degrees, while the record for the date was 98 degrees, set in 1965.

Jewelry among reported thefts

Reported jewelry thefts were among the cases under investigation by city police today.

Mrs. J.A. Stellar, 3205 Marmon Drive, told officers a gold ring with four diamonds was taken from her residence about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday. The ring was valued at $3,250.

Two gold rings and $3 in cash were reported stolen from the C.O. Puckett residence at 2401 W. Cuthbert Ave. No value was listed on the rings.

Three radio-stereo combination sets worth a total of $800 were reported taken from the Honda of Midland Co., 4000 W. Wall St., while an electric typewriter valued at $1,200 was reported missing from the C&K Petroleum Building.

A 1979 Ford pickup truck belonging to the Mobile Producing Co., Wall Towers West, sustained heavy engine damage after its starter locked up and the vehicle caught fire near the Rogers Ford Co. on West Industrial Road about 2:10 p.m. Tuesday, city firemen reported.

Midland girl critically burned

A 7-year-old Midland girl was in critical condition this morning in an Oklahoma City hospital, where she was flown Tuesday afternoon after her clothing apparently caught fire at her home Monday night.

Trudy Frazier of 1121½ Carrizo St. was reportedly playing with matches and suffered second-degree burns over 60 percent of her body in the incident, which occurred about 7 p.m. Monday.

She was initially treated at Midland Memorial Hospital and then transferred by charter plane to the Children's Burn Center at Oklahoma City Memorial Hospital about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. She suffered burns to her neck, abdomen, buttocks and thighs.

Aliens on a naturalized high

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The day's "most important" event for 42 people turned out to be their giving up their alien "green cards," renouncing their loyalty to foreign powers and pledging allegiance to the United States of America.

It was naturalization day in U.S. federal court in Midland.

"We are today conducting the most important of our affairs," U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton said in prefacing the ceremony Monday.

Forty-two aliens from eight countries were seated in two separate-but-equal groups: in the jury box and across the bar in the spectators' arena in the George Mahon Federal Building. Most — 30 — were from the Republic of Mexico. The 12 others were from the Netherlands, West Germany, Great Britain, Vietnam, the Philippines, Jordan and India.

Quietly looking on were about 50 spectators, including family members and friends of the soon-to-be ex-aliens and members of a federal jury in recess.

Among the onlookers was an exhausted 6-year-old lad, Aaron Calderon, who, rather than observe, slept soundly next to his grandmother, Patrasinio Calderon. His aunt, Hermila Park, 35, of Odessa, was getting her certificate of U.S. citizenship. Like the others, she freely exchanged her billfold-size "green card," which verified her legal-alien status, for a suitable-for-framing U.S. Citizenship Certificate.

JUDGE BUNTON, DRAPED in his black ceremonial robe and amicably speaking in his abbreviated West Texas drawl, asked U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service examiner Bart Rumaker of El Paso if all was right and well with the alien-petitioners who were on the verge of U.S. citizenship.

The exchange was ceremonial.

"Are you satisfied...that each petitioner is entitled to be admitted to United States citizenship?" the judge queried.

"Judge Bunton," responded Rumaker, "I am so satisfied."

Thereafter, the judge asked Court Clerk Bobbye Pieper to administer the "Oath of Allegiance" to the United States.

"...You hereby declare, on oath, that you absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty...(and) you will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States of America against all enemies, foreign and domestic,...so help you God."

The 42 pledged allegiance.

"This (naturalization) is one of the most important of our functions as a court," said Bunton, who also noted the importance of the jury which he had recessed while the court conducted the naturalization ceremony. "It falls my lot to preside over this proceedings." And he did so with obvious relish, pride, and delight.

"It's something I enjoy doing...welcoming new citizens to this country."

Judge Bunton invited a lawyer from Midland and a physician from Odessa to speak to the new U.S. citizens and to impress upon them their rights and responsibilities as U.S. citizens.

THE JUDGE described the lawyer, Reagan Legg, as "one of the most outstanding attorneys in Midland. He's been my friend since (law) school days (in the late 1940s)."

It was as if the judge were qualifying his friend, the lawyer, to address "the class" of 42. Legg responded in kind.

"There's not a better lawyer," Legg said of Bunton. "There's not a better judge."

Thereupon, Legg got down to the text for the occasion.

The lawyer said the people of "this nation are responsible" for the laws of the land.

"Freedom without laws is also impossible," he said. "Liberty without a set of rules for conduct could not ever be achieved."

Legg noted that people continually complain about the nation having too many laws, and, he said, "maybe we do." But those laws are "enacted, hopefully, for the protection and benefit of all the people," he said.

"Without laws, we wouldn't have the great things that we cherish."

THE PHYSICIAN, Dr. W.C. Stewart, also spoke to inspire.

"For you," he told the 42 converts, "I can think of no more important moment in your life."

He spoke of three basic forms of government: monarchy, oligarchy, and democracy.

—A government ruled by prince and king.

"That's bad," he asserted.

—A government ruled by nobility and royalty.

"That's bad," he said again.

—A government ruled by the people.

"That's bad," too, he said.

Of all the "bad" forms of government, a nation "in the hands of the people is the best plan," Stewart said of a representative form of government.

None is without its trials.

"All governments cause us problems," Stewart said, "and all governments cost us money."

But along with those liabilities, America still is a "great, wonderful country."

"IF AMERICA IS any one thing," the physician assured the citizens, "it is a dream and an idea."

Stewart, who told the citizens that many ancestors of Americans were "brought to this country in chains," reminded them of their newly-won rights, including the privilege to register to vote.

"Don't worry about whether your vote counts or not," Stewart advised and explained: "We are responsible" for "what we try to do whether it (anything) happens or not."

The judge again spoke from the bench.

"This (U.S. citizenship by naturalization) is not something that's lightly come by," Bunton said. "This is not something that's freely given. Everybody didn't make it."

The judge encouraged the 42 to get involved in U.S. government. "You've earned the right to participate."

And he welcomed them to their new homeland.

"We've got all colors of skins, different colors of hair, different backgrounds," the judge said. "Religions are different among the 42 of you.

"All of you are welcome," he said. "We're glad to have you."

Aaron Calderon, 6, sleeps soundly next to his grandmother, Patrasinio Calderon, while his aunt and 41 other aliens from eight lands become naturalized in federal court in Midland. "Oh, I feel so nervous," the aunt, Hermila Park, 35, of Odessa and formerly of Mexico, said later. The boy yawned.

Foreigners are now U.S. citizens

Forty-two aliens from eight nations were naturalized in a ceremony Monday in the courtroom of the George Mahon Federal Building in downtown Midland.

U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton presided over the ceremony, which was the first here since last Aug. 27, when 16 foreigners from nine lands were granted United States citizenship.

The 42 new American citizens are natives of eight lands: Mexico, the Netherlands, Vietnam, West Germany, Great Britain, the Philippines, Jordan and India. Most — 30 — formerly were aligned with the Republic of Mexico.

They will make their homes in nine West Texas cities and towns: Midland, Odessa, Crane, Marfa, Monahans, Andrews, Penwell, Pecos and Balmorhea. Their average age is 35, while their ages range from 18 to 61.

The 42 citizens by countries of origin and their U.S. home towns are:

—Great Britain: Gillian Wall, 39, of Crane.

—The Netherlands: Gerda Cornelia Feenstra, 30, of Odessa.

—West Germany: Christa Tankersley, 36, of Monahans.

—Jordan: Hania Ahmad Al-Khateeb, 31, of Midland.

—India: Bharatraj Shankarlal Chopra, 28, of Monahans; Ashok Khosla, 35, of Odessa.

—The Philippines: Pandora Melag Davis, 26, of Midland; Nenita Catanus Ward, 29, and Merla Clarito Ball, 35, both of Penwell.

—Vietnam: Hop Van Nguyen, 25, and Anne Marie Builta, 35, both of Midland; and Thoi Tan Ngo, 38, of Odessa.

—Mexico: Maria Graciela Villa Lara (name changed to Graciela Lara), 28; Luz Elena Cano Paredes, 24; Manuela Armendariz Baeza, 45, and Ignacia Villa, 31, all of Midland.

Luis Armando Silva, 33; Jacinta Benavides, 37; Alicia Aurora Rubio, 21; Lorenzo Torres, 32; Esthela Robles, 48; Pabla Ibanez Veloz (named changed to Lena Ibanez Veloz), 32; Catalina Fierro Uranga, 18; Hermelinda Quintanar, 39; Enrique Guzman (named changed to Enrique Gutierrez Guzman), 26; Maria de la Luz Aguirre, 34; Felipa Rodgers (named changed to Fela Rodgers), 49; Lorenzo Manuel Macias, 34; Maria Luisa Pacheco, 34; Esther Hernandez Ramirez, 31; Hermila Park, 35; and Arturo Mendoza, 20, all of Odessa.

Engracia Juarez Emiliano, 37, of Andrews.

Abel Lujan Sanchez, 49, of Balmorhea.

Antonia Cardiel Arredondo, 58; Atilano Arredondo, 61; Yolanda Candra Rayos, 26; Marta Reyes Pacheco, 61; Jose Rodriguez Bravo, 51; Elida Garcia Vasquez, 22, and Socorro Carrasco Renteria, 38, all of Pecos.

Alma Rose Baeza, 26, of Marfa.

Bush backs budget cuts

Weidenbaum slipped into a foreign language in which "bracket creep" sounded more like a science-fiction monster from outer space. But he assured the audience it's an economic term which describes a very real situation for most Americans today.

IN PLAIN ENGLISH, bracket creep happens every time a worker gets a small raise and finds himself in a higher tax bracket. Thus, the extra money he was going to take home winds up in Uncle Sam's pocket.

Reagan's tax proposal would realign the tax brackets in an attempt to reduce this "creep" on American society, according to Weidenbaum.

In addition, marginal tax rates have hindered American workers' productivity and, thus, the country's, he charged.

"If we don't reduce the marginal tax rate, by the end of the century the average worker will be at the 50 percent tax bracket."

Reducing these rates, Weidenbaum said, "would bring a faster expansion of the private sector. This would mean less welfare and food stamps and should create 12 million new jobs by 1986." It would mean, in short, that the more money one makes does not put him into a higher tax bracket.

White House charts show that the nation's productivity level dropped from 2 percent in 1977 down to below the zero mark in the area of minus .33 percent in 1980.

Taxes have entered into the behavior of people who are at the tax margin. "Why should they work overtime when it all goes into taxes?"

A Walter Matthau look-alike, Weidenbaum contended that the interest rates would drop and productivity would increase, thus boosting the U.S. ranking on the international market.

HE WAS CHALLENGED on his assertion that personal savings would increase under the tax cut part. But Weidenbaum used history as an example in defending his theory.

The last time there was a major cut came under the Kennedy-Johnson Administration, he said. When the bill was enacted, "savings immediately escalated. And when an income tax surcharge was added, then savings dropped."

The combined budget-tax cuts is an innovative plan, he said. And the squeals from the public is typical. "No one thinks they're getting enough."

Instead of complaining, Weidenbaum advised, "Don't look at the hole; look at the doughnut."

School centers to continue

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

School board trustees decided to continue the on-campus suspension centers at Midland and Lee High Schools for another academic year, following a lengthy discussion on the matter at their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The centers, which have been operating for a year now, cost $105,000 to operate last year, with $67,000 of that amount coming from state and federal coffers, and the remaining $38,000 derived from local tax money, according to Maridell Fryar, director of the project.

The average daily population at the Lee center is 5-8 students. The average at Midland High is 15. Their function is to punish miscreant students and, at the same time, provide them with the opportunity to continue their studies — under supervised conditions.

"It's a very worthwhile project," Fryar told trustees. "It's a punitive situation that still allows students to profit academically. They receive full credit for the work done at the centers. It's always seemed contradictory to me to tell students who are skipping school that we're going to kick them out of school."

In an apparent mood of fiscal conservatism — spearheaded by Trustee Ann Page — the board turned down Fryar's request for adding two "instructional aides" to the project, after noting that its outside funding diminishes over a five-year period and the school district will ultimately have to pay the total cost of the program.

A scheduled report on how to better control drug and alcohol use on campus was tabled until the board's May 12 meeting after Trustee Ron Britton said participants in preparing the report had been "caught in the middle of budget reviews" and were unable to complete it.

Tustees Tuesday also approved plans to send board President Parker Humes and board member Bill Jackson to New York City May 4 to present a recently approved bond issue package to financial czars in the Big Apple.

Humes and Jackson will be accompanied on the two-day trip by school Superintendent Dr. James Mailey and Director of Finance Don Furgeson. The $6.5 million in bond money will pay for construction of two new elementatry schools and repair projects at the city's two high schools.

In a related matter, trustees emerged from an executive session and announced they have offered Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church $25,000 for church property on the east side for construction of the new DeZavla Elementary School. The district already owns property on the far north side, where the second new elementary school is to be located.

There was no immediate word on whether or not church officials will accept the $25,000 offer, which trustees said is the appraised value of the land.

Evrony believes modern Israel fulfilled prophecy

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

In the Hebrew scriptures the prophet Ezekiel was given an astounding vision by the "Lord God": a valley scattered with dry bones upon which sinew, flesh and skin suddenly formed so that they lived and stood up, "an exceeding great army."

Ezekiel was told, "These bones are the whole house of Israel. Oh my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel."

The bones "got up," believes Israeli consul general Tzion Evrony of Houston, on May 14, 1948, when for the first time since Titus and his Roman legions slaughtered hundreds of thousands of Jews in overthrowing Jerusalem in 70 A.D. Israel became a sovereign nation in the ancient homeland promised Abraham and his descendants.

"The creation of the state of Israel is fulfillment of Biblical prophecies of Isaiah and Jeremiah and Ezekiel, chapter 37," said Evrony, in Midland recently to address the Jewish community. "What is exciting about Israel is that we are the same people that lived there 3,000 years ago; we have the same religion; we are speaking the same language."

IN THE 2600 years since Ezekiel's prophecy, the Jews have been dispersed throughout all nations of the world, subjected to all manners of inhumanity and suffering, from the slave markets in Egypt to the Nazi gas chambers of Hitler. And through it all they had lived with fear so intense that prophetic application of Moses' words in 1500 B.C. seemed appropriate:

"The Lord will scatter you among all peoples, from one end of the earth to the other...your life shall hang in doubt before you; night and day you shall be in dread, and have no assurance of your life. In the morning you shall say, 'Would it were evening!' and at evening you shall say, 'Would it were morning!' because of the dread which your heart shall fear, and the sights which your eyes shall see." (Deuteronomy 28:64,66-67)

And yet, the prayer of the Jew was always, "Next year in Jerusalem."

"This is what's unique about the state of Israel," said Evrony. "After 3,000 years the Jews who were exiled by the Babylonians (in 586 B.C.) and the Romans in the year 70 A.D. kept faith with Jerusalem, with the land of Israel."

The involuntary dispersion is over for many of them now, ever since David Ben-Gurion read the Declaration of Independence establishing a Hebrew nation to be called the State of Israel. Evrony's birth to Jewish parents in the revived nation the following year made him a member of the first generation spawned by free Jews in their homeland since the fall of the Southern Kingdom in 586 B.C.

BUT THE FEAR remains, for tiny Israel — 1/40th the size of Texas — already has been racked by war four times in its brief 33-year history, and again is at the center of international concern as a "cup of poison to all the nearby nations" and "a heavy stone burdening the world." (Zechariah 12:2,3)

The return to the ancient homeland and enmities spawned by conflicting ideologies have plunged Israelis into the midst of potentially the most explosive area in world history — between the U.S.S.R. ("the greatest enemy of the free world") to the north, and the rich oil resources of the Persian Gulf to the south, where 60 percent of international oil is concentrated, says Evrony.

"We believe that...our air attacks on PLO bases are acts of self-defense with the highest moral justification."
— Tzion Evrony

Were the U.S.S.R. ever to attempt to satisfy its hunger for the Persian Gulf, he believes, it would have to do so by trying to come through the Hebrew nation.

"Israel," says Evrony, "is the only reliable deterrent against Soviet expansionism in the Mideast, the only stronghold against Communist aggression."

The situation has brought some ultra-conservative scholars to see in it an analogy with the events prophecied in Ezekiel 38. But as for Evrony, he is not sure to what extent the story has a bearing on modern-day Israel.

EZEKIEL 38 details the invasion of Israel ("the land where people were gathered from many nations") by Gog, of the land of Magog, described three times as being to the "uttermost north" of Mount Moriah. Even while the Jews still were victimized by the Diaspora and long before the U.S.S.R. arose to worldwide prominence, some scholars identified Magog linguistically and geographically with Russia.

"That Russia occupies a place, and a very momentous place, in the prophetic world has been admitted by almost all expositers," wrote Dr. John Cumming in 1864.

"I don't know if there is any connection between the political scene today and the prophecy in Ezekiel 38," said Evrony, "but the fact is the Soviet Union cut its diplomatic relations with Israel in 1967, the Soviet Union supports our greatest enemies, the PLO and other Arab countries, and I would say the Soviet Union is not right now our best friend."

The Temple on Mount Moriah, destroyed by Roman invaders in 70 A.D. so that "not one stone was left upon another," also is the subject of Hebrew prophecy, as Ezekiel, in vision, is taken within what is regarded by some scholars as the millenial temple. Although Evrony says Christians frequently ask him whether the temple will be rebuilt, he says Israel has "no intention to build the temple now or in the future."

FEW DENY THAT if the Dome of the Rock — situated directly on the only spot Hebrew law allows the Temple to be situated — ever were destroyed by Israel to make room for its Holy of Holies, a Holy War surely would be spawned with the Moslem world.

So instead, says Evrony, Israelis will worship in a central synagogue currently being built in Jerusalem.

But faith in Biblical promises, says the member of the "new Jewish generation," still is inherent in Israeli philosophy, and few forget that the terrifying invader Gog and his hordes in Ezekiel 38 are completely annihilated before they reach Israel's cities.

Obviously, only time — and world events — will determine for sure in Evrony's mind whether the U.S.S.R. is a "Gog" destined to meet destruction at the hands of a tiny nation standing in its pathway to the Persian Gulf.

Consul seeks to clarify Israel's concerns

need the money to finance their huge development project."

What is really needed, said the Israeli consul, is for oil consuming nations to organize and "stand together against the OPEC countries."

IN DISCUSSING international events during the past two years — such as the invasion of Afghanistan by the Soviet Union and the commandeering of U.S. hostages by Iran — Evrony said basic lessons should have been learned by the free world.

"First, we see Soviet expansionism," he stated. "In the last few years the Soviet Union has taken over Angola, Mozambique, Ethiopia, South Yemen, Afghanistan...and there are Cuban troops in the whole amount of Africa, South Yemen.

"We see continuous Communist expansionism almost everywhere in the world, and especially in the Mideast, where the Soviet Union is looking hungrily toward the Persian Gulf."

It is up to the joint efforts of Israel and the United States, he said, to stifle further aggression in the area.

"It has been proven," he said, "that Israel is the only reliable ally that the United States has in the Mideast, a true friend and a strategic asset. Freedom does not have many defenders, and Israel is among the surest of them all."

EVRONY SAID the military and economic support provided Israel by the U.S. "helps us to protect the interests of the free world."

Another lesson which should have become apparent, he said, is the need for free nations to guard themselves against international terrorism.

"There have been statements by President Reagan and Secretary Haig showing their understanding that there is a need to fight international terrorism," he noted. "They say (this) should be one of the main goals of American foreign policy. They understand what we Israelis have known all along — that terrorism is an international disease, a constant threat to the civilized world, and only with international cooperation can we (purge this) phenomenon from our lives."

Evrony claimed that Israel is facing the most brutal terrorist organization imaginable in the PLO, which carries in its charter the goal of destroying the Hebrew nation. The Soviet Union, he said, plays a major role in that "PLO terrorists are trained in the Soviet Union, they are armed by the Soviet Union, they are financed by the Soviet Union, and they are supported politically by the Soviet Union."

EVRONY SAID that in view of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, "anyone who calls for creation of an independent Palistinian state in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza district, simply calls for a Soviet satellite in the heart of the Middle East. It would be like a Soviet enclave on the other side of the Potomac River. Soviet troops would be flown to the state, if such a state were formed, within 24 hours."

However, he said, signs are evident in the Middle East that perhaps peace might eventually reign without challenge, following the peace agreement reached by Israel and Egypt.

Evrony said conditions of the agreement have become fully realized, with an exchange of ambassadors, open borders, and mutual trade.

However, claims the consul, it came at a great price for Israel.

"The world is not fully aware of the magnitude of the Israeli concessions for this peace treaty, the great sacrifices that Israel has made in human, economic and strategic terms," he said.

Evrony noted that by March, 1982 Israel will have evacuated the entire Sinai Peninsula, despite having invested "$17 billion in roads, settlements and three military airbases very important to us strategically."

However, he added, the most painful sacrifice Israel must bear is the loss of invaluable oil reserves.

"AS PART OF the peace treaty, we handed over to Egypt the Alma oilfields which suplied 25 percent of Israel's oil consumption, 165,000 barrels per day," he noted. "These oil wells had the potential of supplying 100 percent of Israel's oil."

Israel now is almost entirely dependent on foreign oil to meet its demands, he said, having paid out $2.4 billion for its 1980 supply compared to only $1.2 billion the year before.

"This is one of the main reasons for the high rate of inflation (in Israel)," he stressed.

However, he added, all sacrifices will be worth it if a lasting peace results.

"We believe in the Chinese saying that even a journey of 1,000 miles starts with a first step forward, and we believe the peace between Israel and Egypt is the first step toward a comprehensive peace agreement," he said. "It will create mutual understanding and trust. We hope that other Arab nations would follow Egypt's (lead)...and understand that no one will gain from another war, (while) everyone will benefit from the fruit of peace."

Post reporter harmed blacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The only black to participate in the decision to award a Pulitzer Prize to a black Washington Post reporter for a story that turned out to be fake says the reporter did her greatest injury "to blacks in newsrooms all over the country."

Roger Wilkins, an associate editor of the Washington Star, said in his Tuesday column: "The essence of journalism is to tell the clearest truths we can see to our readers."

DEATHS

Pauline S. Dean

LOVINGTON, N.M. — Services for Pauline Sams Dean, 76, a member of a prominent Lea County ranching family, were Tuesday in the First United Methodist Church. Burial was in a Lovington Cemetery under the direction of Smith-Rogers Funeral Home.

She died in a Hobbs, N.M., hospital Saturday night after injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Midland, Texas, on Jan. 4.

Mrs. Dean was born Aug. 25, 1904, at Knox City, Texas. She was the daughter of Carl E. and Ada Thomas Sams. The family moved to New Mexico from West Texas and settled near Lovington in June 1912.

Mrs. Dean attended Lovington public schools and graduated in the Lovington High School class of 1923. She was married to Otto L. Dean Aug. 17, 1927, in Lovington. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church and was a member of the Lovington Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. She served as a worthy matron in 1932.

Survivors include her husband of the ranch; two sons, Jerry Dean and Bob Dean, both of Lovington; four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Frank L. Ramsel

GARDEN CITY — Graveside services for Frank Lesley Ramsel, 86, of Garden City were to be at 2 p.m. today in Garden City Cemetery with the Rev. Larry Howard officiating and directed by Ross Funeral Home of Sterling City.

Ramsel died Monday night in a Sterling City hospital.

Born Aug. 7, 1894, in Giddings, Ramsel was a ranch worker and a member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include his wife, Mildred Ramsel of Garden City; and two sisters, Daisy English of Phoenix, Ariz., and Katie Lowdaury of Bowie.

S.A. Cox

KERMIT — Services for S.A. Cox, 49, of Kermit, brother of Vastine T. Cox Jr. of Midland, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Faith Baptist Church. Burial will follow in Kermit Cemetery, directed by Cooper Funeral Chapel of Kermit.

Cox died Monday night in a Kermit hospital after an illness.

Born Jan. 2, 1932, in Limestone County, Cox was a resident of Kermit for 31 years. He was a maintenance worker for El Paso Natural Gas and a member of the Baptist Church.

Other survivors include his mother, a brother, and a sister.

Paul Harris

LINDSAY, Calif. — Paul Harris, 68, of Lindsay, Calif., brother of Lee May of Midland, Texas, died Monday after a sudden illness.

Services are pending in Lindsay.

Harris was born and raised in Mount Vernon, Texas. He had lived in California for the last 40 years.

Saudi Arabia becoming powerful military force

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, considered too weak to become involved in a Middle East war just 7½ years ago, is well on its way to becoming a dominant military power in the Moslem world and a major worry for Israel.

The transformation of Saudi Arabia from minor to major military status is underscored by the Reagan administration's announcement Tuesday that it wants to sell the oil-rich desert country five sophisticated radar reconnaissance planes called AWACS, as well as equipment to improve the firepower and range of 62 sophisticated F-15 jet fighters.

The administration decided to go ahead with the sale despite strong opposition from congressional supporters of Israel. Leaders of the Jewish state say the sale threatens Israel's security in any future war with Arab states.

But Saudi Arabia had pressured the administration to proceed quickly on its request for the AWACS — Airborne Warning and Control Systems — aircraft.

Saudi Arabia, with its vast oil supplies and reputation as a pillar of moderation, has become increasingly important to the United States since U.S.-Iranian relations were broken off. The United States, in arming Saudi Arabia, hopes to build an anti-Soviet coalition in the Persian Gulf.

AP Analysis

But even before the Iranian crisis and the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, U.S. administrations had begun courting Saudi Arabia as a major ally and had begun building up Saudi forces.

U.S. intelligence officials said in 1973 that a lack of military strength made the Saudis reluctant to become embroiled in the Yom Kippur War between Israeli and Arab armies.

Since then, the Saudis have been spending freely on arms because of their huge oil revenue.

Until now, the Saudis have bought almost $35 billion worth of arms, equipment and military construction from the United States. According to a report recently sent to Congress, the Saudis are expected to buy an additional $4.4 billion in military gear this year and another $4 billion next year.

This will bring the overall total of Saudi arms purchases, most of them since 1973, to about $43 billion.

The Saudi total dwarfs the more than $20 billion which Iran bought from the United States before Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was deposed. Much of the Iranian purchases were canceled after the revolution in 1979.

These are the main features of the enormous Saudi military development which began in the Nixon administration and has continued unabated:

—For the Navy, the Saudis purchased 29 ships and constructed deepwater ports on the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, ship repair yards, training facilities, a naval headquarters and a naval academy.

Junta wants no aid with strings

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Daniel Ortega Saavedra, leader of Nicaragua's left-leaning ruling junta, says his nation will accept no more U.S. funds that have strings attached.

He apparently referred to Washington's suspension last month of the final $15 million of a $75 million economic aid package for Nicaragua. The funds were cut off after the Reagan administration accused Nicaraguan of helping to funnel arms to leftist guerrillas in neighboring El Salvador.

Ortega told reporters Tuesday that he complained about the suspension to three U.S. democratic congressmen, here on a fact-finding mission. He also said he denied Nicaragua was moving arms to the Salvadoran rebels.

Missile system opposed

DALHART, Texas (AP) — Air Force officials say they have has no plans to import water for construction of the MX missile system if it is located in Texas and New Mexico.

At one of a series of hearings in areas being considered for the multi-billion-dollar system, Air Force Col. Bill Sims said the government plans to lease or purchase water rights for the 30,000 acre-feet of water that would be needed during the peak construction year. Demand then would drop to 13,000 acre-feet for the two bases in West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

The amount would equal about 7 percent of the water now used in the area, he said.

A lack of water was but one of the reasons cited as New Mexicans joined High Plains residents in voicing opposition to placing the system in their states at Tuesday's hearing.

Travis Nelson, chairman of the Quay County, N.M., board of commissioners, said a lack of water would be the primary problem involved in locating the missiles in his area.

And Mayor Joe B. Keast of Dalhart said he had not "found anything concrete in the impact statement that assures me that our taxpayers would not be saddled with a long-term indebtedness to pay for facilities needed during the boom phase created during the construction period."

Bomb blast kills six in Tehran

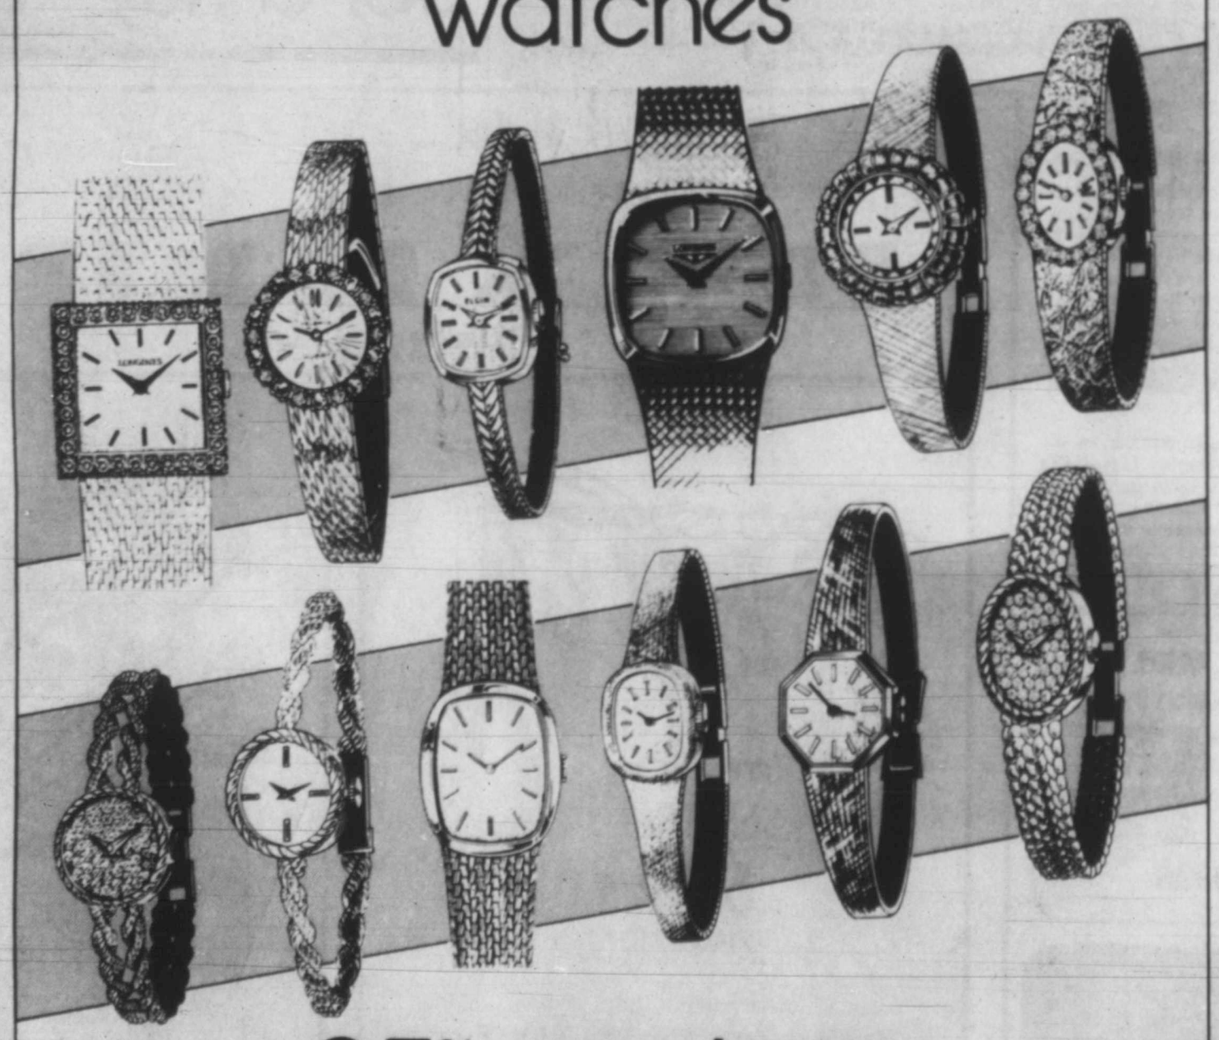

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A bomb explosion on the outskirts of Tehran killed six people today, reliable official sources in the Iranian capital reported by telephone.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, denied rumors that there had been an attempt to assassinate Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution.

They said the bomb explosion was the only unusual incident reported. They said the religious and political patriarch is confinedby his ag and health to his residence miles from the site of the explosion, which occurred near the late shah's Niaberan Palace.

Houston police put handcuffs on two suspects apprehended after a Purolator armored car was help un Tuesday in Southeast Houstong. One guard was killed with another taken hostage for a short time and released unharmed. The men were caught in a field of weeds behind a discount store.

Police follow bloody trail, apprehend suspected robbers

HOUSTON (AP) — A trail of blood leading into an overgrown section of Houston led police to two men who were arrested in connection with an ambush on an armored car, the slaying of its driver and the theft of $600,000, officers say.

A 21-year-old Houston mechanic and a 24-year-old unemployed laborer were arrested and jailed Tuesday after the robbery of a Purolator Armored Inc. car, the second armored car robbery on the Gulf Freeway in four days.

No charges were filed immediately.

Purolator officials declined to comment on the incident.

The armored car was robbed at midday in a department store parking lot in a scene one witness described as "like something in a movie."

Detective Jerry Welch said the robbers apparently had been waiting in the lot, and when the armored car arrived "they jumped out and held guns on it."

Oliver Gonzales Flores, 29, was gunned down as he stepped from the vehicle, said John David Hester, who saw the incident.

"He didn't have a chance to unbuckle his holster," Hester said.

A second guard, an unidentified woman, was held at gunpoint briefly by the robbers but was released unharmed, Welch said.

The robbers, wearing baseball caps and olive jump suits, fired at least 10 times at the bullet-resistant Econoline before they broke a window, entered the vehicle and then sped away, investigators said.

The pair had trouble starting the armored car, said another witness, Lester Jackson, then had trouble closing the doors.

"They were having to try to hold the doors and try to drive at the same time, and they're all going crazy," Jackson said.

Welch said the robbers then drove to a vacant construction shed a block away and then fled into weeds on foot.

Police, acting on tips from citizens, followed a trail of blood and arrested two men.

Police also found a 12-gauge shotgun and a 9mm pistol and recovered five blood-spattered money bags.

Technologist joins MMH lab staff

Arthur Hauser recently joined the staff of Midland Memorial Hospital as administrative technologist for laboratory services.

A medical technologist with a specialty in microbiology, Hauser came from Loveland, Colo., where he served as administrative technologist and head of the laboratory at McKee Medical Center, a private 80-bed hospital.

After receiving his B.S. from Colorado State University in 1974 with a double major in microbiology and medical technology, he took his internship at St. Anthony's Hospital in Denver. In 1975 he passed his boards and obtained his medical technology certification.

In 1980, while at McKee Medical Center, Hauser was appointed microbiology section chairman for Region VIII of the American Society for Medical Technology.

Art and his wife, Jean, have two sons, Brian, 6, and Geoffrey, 2.

Tax board discusses legal aid, data firm

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

A lengthy discussion of possible legal services and a study for a possible data processing firm took up most of a meeting of the Midland County Appraisal District board of directors Tuesday in the County Courthouse.

More than an hour of the monthly meeting was allotted to a continued discussion of legal services for the board, which oversees the property appraisals for the city, county, school district and hospital district.

"We really need two lawyers," board chairman Gil Thompson explained. "One to collect (delinquent taxes) and one to advise you on the tax laws and represent you in tax trials."

However, Thompson said after polling some local firms, he found "none want to get involved in the collection part."

Thompson suggested hearing from Jack Hart and Associates, who deal with delinquent tax collections on a percentage basis. He said any additional fees for such a service should be passed on to the delinquent taxpayer, however no such resolution has been passed by that board.

Legal representation first came up at the March meeting when directors discussed the possibility of using the county and city attorneys offices, using a young "part-time" in-house attorney or hiring a firm on a contract or percentage basis to collect delinquent taxes for the districts.

However, no decision was made on the matter.

Director Bud Lea, who represents the Greenwood school district, pointed out the problem with a percentage-based service is collectors are frequently "skimming it off the top" by taking on cases delinquent by only a year rather than those the districts have been trying to collect for several years.

Director Joe Nuessle, representing the city, said he thought legal services should protect the taxpayer as well. "It's the taxpayer's right to file a lawsuit against any taxing unit in this district," he said. "I don't think we can get a young part-time attorney to handle that. We need somebody with some seasoning."

Charlie Welch, director representing the county, objected to any discussion. "I understand the attorney for this board is the county attorney. Now if he wants more help, we can authorize that..."

County Attorney Robert Rendall disagreed. "I don't know of another county attorney that's even attending the meetings (of an appraisal board)!"

Rendall agreed with Nuessle in hiring a full-time attorney for the board. "You'll have no problem keeping him busy," Rendall explained. "He could spend most of it just figuring what he can or can't do according to the statute" under the truth in taxation laws.

Directors finally agreed to continue discussion of legal services at the May 20 meeting, when Hart will be invited to give a synopsis of the service he offers.

Another battle ensued at the meeting over an auditor's report on "search" procedures for a data processing unit or service for the board to use in figuring the tax rolls.

In other board news, board members:

—Authorized the hiring of an assistant chief appraisal officer in January 1982.

—Awarded a bid for contract labor on mineral and oil-related personal property to Prichard & Abbott for $45,000.

—Decided to remain in city office space for the next fiscal year.

—Allowed for new budget to reflect additional salaries of the assistant chief appraisal officer and an in-house attorney.

—Set up a special meeting for May 1 at 9 a.m.

—Changed regular meetings to the third Wednesday of each month at 9 a.m.

Convertible industry climbing towards top again

DETROIT (AP) — When the last U.S.-built convertible rolled off a Cadillac assembly line in April 1976, there were those who said the convertible was dead.

But the convertible has refused to die and, in fact, appears to be making something of a comeback.

"Convertibles were a major industry, then dropped out of sight and are now back as a cottage industry," says a Ford Motor Co. analyst.

Gary Forbis opened a custom auto shop in Port Sanilac, Mich., in 1971 and until 1976, specialized in small-volume customizing jobs such as limousines, body extensions and a few convertibles.

Since 1977, however, the convertible business of Forbis' National Coach Engineering has increased steadily to more than 350 conversions per year, which are sold worldwide, says the firm's purchasing agent, Rick Zeien.

"We've had a remarkable growth since (1976)," Zeien says. "The market was ready for it."

Zeien says National Coach even offers a conversion kit so mechanically adept car buffs can transform their own cars to convertibles.

The customizing shops have not only kept the American convertible alive but appear to have given the manufacturers some new ideas.

Last month, Chrysler Corp. announced plans to offer a convertible based on its popular K-car. The No. 3 automaker will contract with at least one independent firm to convert hardtop K-cars into convertibles but Chrysler has not identified the contractors.

The Chrysler convertible will go on sale in about a year and will cost around $13,000, says H.K. Sperlich, executive vice president for engineering and product development.

It will be the first convertible made in the United States since the 1976 Cadillac Eldorado. Volkswagen of America's Rabbit convertible is imported.

"We're getting into it because we sense there's enough of a market," Sperlich says.

The question of market demand is what caused the convertible's demise in the first place. At their peak of popularity in 1963, convertibles accounted for only 7 percent of new car sales, and by 1968 claimed only about 4 percent of the market.

American Motors Corp. stopped offering convertibles in 1968, followed by Chrysler in 1971 and Ford in 1973. General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick and Oldsmobile divisions phased them out in the 1975 model year and Cadillac followed suit a year later.

"The interest in the convertible had dwindled, most likely because of the innovative styling (such as T-roofs and sun roofs) and the continuous upsurge of people buying their cars with air conditioning," says Cadillac spokesman Norb Bartos.

But while domestic manufacturers were dropping convertibles because the costly assembly lines and low volume made them unprofitable, enterprising customizing shops were discovering they could make money transforming hardtops into convertibles.

One of the largest conversion companies, the California-based American Custom Coachworks, now has 11 plants and claims production "in the thousands" annually.

"We have not been able to build enough cars at any given time," says Robert Taylor, an American Custom Coachworks vice president.

He says the cost of a converted car runs from around $15,000 for a Toyota or Datsun to around $19,000 for one of GM's X-body compacts to around $40,000 for a Cadillac convertible. Taylor's company contracts with individual car dealers to turn out convertibles.

For a major manufacturer like Chrysler, the conversion process eliminates much of the high cost of designing and setting up an assembly line for a separate model, which, in turn, allows the automaker to make a profit on a smaller number of sales.

"The goal of our program is to sell a few thousand," Sperlich says. "We can make money on this at a very low volume and we think it will enhance (our) line of cars."

Disease fails to keep California surfer down for long

By NANCY RAY
The Los Angeles Times

LA JOLLA, Calif. — From his third-floor room at Scripps Memorial Hospital, Chris O'Rourke can almost see the surf. But it will be a while before the 22-year-old La Jollan again grabs his board and heads for the reef breaks.

O'Rourke has been a serious surfer since he was a sixth-grader. That was when his family moved into a home across the street from La Jolla's Windansea Beach.

Before he was old enough to qualify for junior surfing competition, he was competing in the men's professional events and winning.

But, in recent years, O'Rourke's promising competitive career in surfing has been interrupted by Hodgkins' disease, cancer of the lymph glands.

A series of operations on his spline, lungs and brain along with radition and chemotherapy treatments have sidelined him more than once. But he always comes back.

It was when he was 18, and getting ready for a trip to a surfing competition in Australia, that a girlfriend first spotted a small lump on O'Rourke's neck and advised him to have it checked.

He did not. He went ahead with his trip and the surf meet. But the lump became larger, so he consulted an Australian doctor who told him it was only a swollen lymph node.

On his return, O'Rourke read a magazine article about Hodgkins' disease and feared the worst. He went to another physician and his self-diagnosis was confirmed.

Since then O'Rourke has been in and out of hospitals and clinics. But always, he has returned to the beach and to the thing he does best: surfing.

Although California has produced few world-class surfers in the last few years, O'Rourke has earned a reputation as the state's best prospect to return California to its one-time dominance of the sport.

The surgery and treatments that have scarred his lithe surfer's body have not dented O'Rourke's spirit. He is still heading for the top.

Chris Ahrens, a writer for an Australian surfing publication and a close friend of O'Rourke, recalled that after O'Rourke returned home from an operation to remove a brain tumor, "It was just a few days and he was out there surfing again."

The operation had required that a portion of O'Rourke's skull be removed, leaving a part of his brain protected only by skin covering.

"I went over to see him and he told me that he had been surfing that morning. He had borrowed a hockey helmet, like skateboarders wear, to protect his head," Ahrens said.

O'Rourke now routinely wears the protective headgear while surfing, marking him as clearly among his fellow surfers as does his radical surfing style.

O'Rourke sometimes has been forced to break off his surfing to bicycle or hitch a ride to the hospital for scheduled radiation treatments and, more recently, for chemotherapy. But, before long, he is back griping mildly about the effects of the treatments; they make him tired and sometimes unable to paddle out beyond the surfline to catch another wave.

He has been counted out in competition many times in the last five years, only to come back and rank with the top pro surfers again.

Last month, O'Rourke celebrated his 22nd birthday in Australia, judging a surfing meet and well enough to surf himself despite his debilitating disease. Then he lost the use of his legs.

After he returned to La Jolla, he underwent surgery to remove — for the second time — a tumor on his spine. Explortory surgery of his lungs showed no new spread of the disease, suspected when he developed pneumonia.

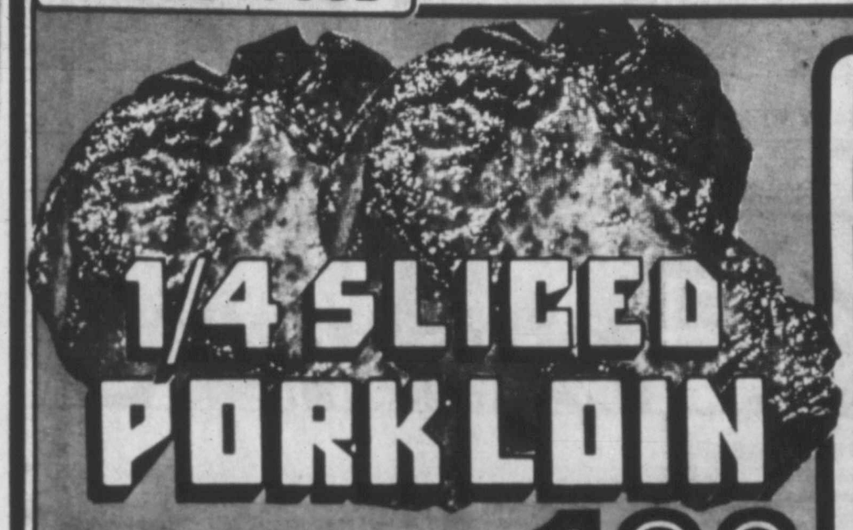

Dr. Richard Anderson, a La Jolla oncologist treating O'Rourke, expressed optimism that the young surfer will soon return to his world of waves and surf competition after his present hospital stay and further chemotherapy treatments.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, April 23, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: England's most famous poet and playwright, William Shakespeare, was born on this date. Also sharing this birthday with you: young actress Valerie Bertinelli and former child star Shirley Temple Black. This is a year of great promise for you! Emphasize your strong administrative skills and you will climb to new heights in the business world. The level you reach on the ladder of success depends largely on how you work. Be willing to make temporary sacrifices in return for long-term gain. Domestic harmony is very important to you and you know how to maintain it. Romance will be filled with surprises and excitement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A willingness to learn new skills will increase your earning power. Self-improvement projects enjoy favorable influences. Proceed with caution when discussing delicate personal matters. Follow your heart where romance is concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stand on your own two feet! Use new professional knowledge to advance career. A promotion or raise is inevitable. Believe in yourself and others will follow suit. Spend evening with close friends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make better use of your time by reorganizing your priorities. Get rid of outdated business procedures. Parting with an old friend may be painful. Work at widening your social circle.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can avoid trouble with business associate by working behind the scenes. A conference taking place late in the day may hold a special message regarding the future. Be flexible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The work day passes quickly. Do not let neighbors intrude on your privacy. Shopping will lift your spirits. Check bank balance before purchasing luxury item. A hobby is an effective antidote to boredom.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Oct. 22): Be generous with your time, assistance. Lend a hand where it is deserved. Profits from financial transactions are greater than expected. Pay less attention to mate's faults. Emphasize the positive!

LIBRA (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Constructive criticism will give you new insights. Pay bills on time to maintain credit rating. Try to find a diplomatic way to discuss sensitive issues with mate or partner.

SCORPIO (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Business may take you on a long trip. If overseas travel is involved, get passport updated. Romance takes a serious turn. You may be thinking of setting a wedding date!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make a special effort to avoid controversy, confrontations today. Knowledge and diplomacy are your greatest assets now. A new sense of purpose is part of the picture. Let loved ones know your intentions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not try to hide your true feelings from mate or loved one. Avoid those who like to gossip. You should sympathize with a friend's financial problems but resist lending money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be on your guard when doing business with a competitor. Your enthusiasm could cause you to go too far. Tonight is a good time to read that new book.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be sure to take advantage of any new opportunities you see today. It is to your benefit to move quickly. Make certain you have your facts straight when negotiating.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

If you have a friend who boasts that he is an excellent bridge player, give him this hand. Any declarer worth his salt should breeze home with the contract.

After South received heart support from his partner, he made a game try in diamonds. With a maximum for his original raise, North happily accepted by leaping to four hearts. This was a sound contract, but declarer failed to make full use of his powerful trump holding.

West led the king of clubs, and South was happy with the dummy that came down. It seemed that he needed no more than to pick up the queen of trumps for his contract, and he was odds-on to fell the lady. He won the ace of clubs and cashed the ace-king of hearts, but this time the favorite did not come in.

All was not yet lost. Declarer could still make the hand if West held both high spades and something good developed in the minor suits, such as the queen of diamonds being onside or guarded only twice. But that was not to be. Declarer ended up losing three spade tricks and a trump.

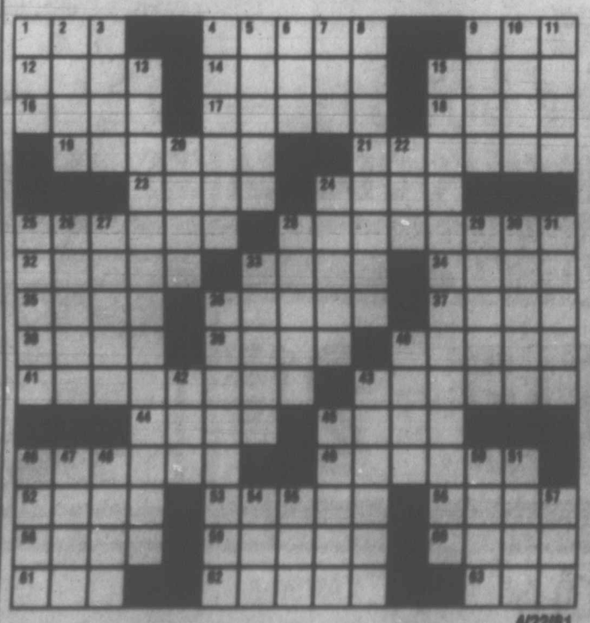

Observe what would have happened had declarer taken a simple precaution at trick two. Instead of drawing trumps right away, declarer should first ruff a club in his hand. Now when he cashes the high trumps and the queen does not drop, declarer is a tempo ahead in the game.

Declarer continues by cashing the ace-king of diamonds and ruffing a diamond in dummy. He returns to his hand with a club ruff and leads his remaining diamond. If West ruffs in front of dummy, one of dummy's losing spades will go away, so West must sluff. Declarer ruffs in dummy and then scores his own last trump by ruffing a club as West has to follow suit. In all, declarer makes seven tricks in trumps (five via ruffs), plus three minor-suit winners, and in the process he telescopes his four losers into three.

Thematic music opens door for composer

By GEORGE DEWAN
Newsday

NEW YORK — It is nearly 7 p.m. Conversation in the dining room almost drowns out the grabble of the unattended television set in the next room. Then a staccato, trumpteting musical summons from the box breaks through: Pah, pah, pah-pah! Pah, Pah-pah-pah pah-pah! Everyone knows by the sound that Frank Reynolds awaits with ABC's "World News Tonight."

Music by Bob Israel!, whose name may be as little known as his themes are recognizable.

The viewer may not be able to hum Israel's tunes on command, but when one of his musical themes opens a television program, there is often an instant connection. The 46-year-old Columbia University School of Music graduate has written thematic music for programs as varied as ABC News, "The Doctors," Monday Night Football, "The Price Is Right," "Marlo and the Magic Movie Machine" — and dozens of other soap operas, sports programs and prime-time dramatic features. His company, Score Productions Inc., does original music for 55 television episodes a week.

"Creating thematic music for television, a feature film, anything in this idiom — you've got to put together something that can happen quickly, and be memorable," Israel said in a recent interview at his New York office. "So that if the viewer is out of the room he will hear those sounds and say, 'That's the show. I want to see it, so let's get back in and look at it.' It's the only way to grab them. Music."

The music is almost always there, but rarely remembered. "Many viewers are unconscious of the fact that there is music with shows," Israel said. "If you say to somebody, 'What do you think of the music to the boxing show?' they'll say, 'What music?' But if you tok that music away from the opening, they'd feel that there is something wrong with the show; it doesn't have a kind of emphatic beginning. It's as if you're coming into the middle of something.

"Thematic music, in contrast to background music, gives a show a bracket," he said. "It gives it an identification on the audio level. It also enhances the opening of a show, and makes it seem important. It creates the feeling of the beginning of something. Just as the closing credits, which usually are a reprise of the opening, help to create the feeling that it's the conclusion, that something's happened, that it's the end of an event."

Unlike a symphonist, who might take an hour to make his musical point, Israel often works in seconds. He recently completed a 58-second program-opening score for this season's new weekly ABC Pro Bowlers' Tour, to begin in January. Second by second, the music has to follow the graphic line of the choreographed bowling action. "The ball comes straight at you, and you are really behind the pins, and the pins splatter. All of this has to be hit (accented) by the music. Somehow I've got to go through the entire process of this bowling opening and convey a musical theme that has strength, that has melody and that has continuity."

Israel said he spent the better part of a weekend writing the music. "I wrote six pieces and discarded two of them. The piece that we've about to record was the last thing I thought of, and it came to me on Sunday night as I was about to have dinner. It's a strange process. I could be into a project, and I could be talking to you, or taking a walk or listening to a piece of music and this thing will be forming in my head. I'll sit down at the piano and I'll see if my instincts are right. If they are, and I'm lucky, I can knock it off, in terms of the melody, in an hour. The 'World News Tonight' theme I wrote in 45 minutes."

One assumes that the music fora visual image of a bowling ball rolling down an alley would include the sound of a real bowling ball rolling down an alley. Not so. Israel used an electronic synthesizer. "We're not going to use the actual sound of a bowling ball because it would sound ludicrous. It's not musical, it's not in a particular pitch. It might conflict with the harmony of the piece."

Ironically, the civilian society into which Estright will venture has long assumed that military men are compensated for low salaries with such perquisites as housing allowances, cut-rate shopping facilities and free medical benefits.

That is no longer true. Military perks are less attractive these days; in addition, many similar benefits, such as health insurance, are commonplace in the civilian sector.

Free housing remains a major military selling point, but there are problems. When it is available, enlisted men usually must take base housing, which often consists of cheesebox apartments in look-alike blocks of row houses. When base quarters are not available, housing allowances rarely match inflated rental levels — particularly in urban areas, where demand invariably outstrips supply.

Moreover, while prices at base post exchanges and commissaries generally are cut-rate, there is a catch: Choices are narrow and usually limited to top-of-the-line items, forcing many enlisted men to spend more than they wish, even at reduced prices.

Equally limited is the free treatment offered servicemen at most military medical facilities, where low pay and the absence of a draft have produced a serious shortage of qualified physicians.

"We are treated like second-class citizens," said Sgt. Jorge Nicholas, 33, a 10-year veteran entrusted with troop training, one of the Army's most demanding jobs. "There is no medical concern shown for us," he added.

So lengthy is the normal wait at military facilities, and so haphazard the treatment, Nicholas said, that he usually opts to pay for civilian care. "I really can't afford it," he said, "but what kind of life is it if you can't have decent medical help?"

A mean one, answers Col. Richard E. George, commander of Fort Dix's Walson Army Hospital, who conceded that Nicholas' complaints were substantially justified.

"I've got real staff problems — numbers and otherwise," said the colonel, who explained that his hospital — like most military medical centers — is burdened not only by personnel shortages, but also by the professional shortcomings of those who serve.

"I've got some slots filled by uniformed personnel that would be better off empty," he said. "But you get what you pay for, and we're not paying much."

Although many of his colleagues have left the Army, creating significant shortages in the critical area of training, Nicholas, whose gross monthly pay is $943, said he will probably stay — reluctantly.

"I'm locked in," he explained, citing one of the service's prime benefits: the ability to retire at half-pay, with other perks, after 20 years' duty. "I've thought a lot about leaving," he added, "but I've already done 10 years, and I'm one of those people who's scared about old age and security."

So is Sgt. James M. Clay, a 13-year veteran who is responsible for quality control on all aircraft maintenance work done by the Fort Dix Flight Detachment.

Clay, who oversees the professional and personal welfare of 12 enlisted men, earns $1,220 a month for a demanding job that, in civilian society, would pay three to four times as much. He is so financially strapped that, by his own account, shopping for Christmas gifts began in his household last July.

"We need sufficient time to do some price-comparing," he said, "and also to lay away some money."

Shortly after starting his summer Christmas shopping, the 31-year-old staff sergeant recalled, he confronted the most difficult decision he has ever made: whether or not to stay in the military.

He chose to stay, largely because of time already invested. "Thirteen down, seven to go," Clay said of his years in service.

Canada's film board acclaimed over world

NEW YORK (AP) — It started out as a propaganda branch of the Canadian government, founded by an Act of Parliament to "initiate and promote production and distribution of films in the national interest and in particular ... to interpret Canada to Canadians and to other countries."

Back in 1939 it seemed extraordinarily ambitious for a country that was still pretty provincial. But now, more than 40 years later, the National Film Board of Canada, with headquarters in Montreal, has more than attained its goal. Despite continuing financial limitations, the NFB — still an official government agency — has become one of the most respected filmmaking institutions in the world.

It has received more than 2,000 awards, including Oscars, Palmes d'or and Robert Flaherty prizes, and is the model for other government-backed film boards.

In recognition of the NFB's continuing achievement and contribution to cinema techniques, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences presented the NFB with a special Oscar in 1980.

A current tribute at the Museum of Modern Art in New York is a retrospective which includes 275 of what are considered exceptional films in three categories: documentary, animation and fiction. Presented in three parts, the final one closing Sept. 15, the retrospective will continue in Chicago and Los Angeles in 1981-82.

Not many Americans are aware of the organization that brings them the short subjects and animations that fill in time at so many movie theaters.

"No, we're not a household word," admits A. Kenneth Shere, U.S. general manager for NFB.

Government film commissioner and chairman of the NFB, James de B. Domville, says that in Canada "people know we win a lot of awards and they know we're respected. But I'm not sure they know what or who we are."

Who they are now are 1,000 government workers in administrative and creative capacities who work with free-lancers and contract personnel to produce a wide range of films for the Canadian government and for the general public around the world.

Who they used to be were a small hardy group in a still-new industry under the leadership of a Scotsman named John Grierson, who had founded two film boards in England and is credited with inventing the word "documentary."

Grierson produced informative shorts, such as "Tomato Canning," "How To Build A Good Cesspool" and "Teeth Are to Keep," (which, says Shere, is still shown) to educate the Canadian public. Projectionists carted their own projectors in their own cars to isolated villages to show these shorts and carry out Parliament's mandate.

At the same time, World War II erupted and Grierson produced the "Canada Carries On" series. One of that series, "Churchill's Island," won Hollywood's first Oscar for a documentary.

Says Shere, "The United States dominated and still dominates the feature film industry. That left us with the documentary."

It also left them in animation, having allowed Norman McLaren the freedom to experiment and popularize optical printing and drawing directly on film. McLaren, the originator of "hand-drawn sound," made the NFB one of the world's leading animation centers.

Animator Derek Lamb has produced two Academy Award-winning pieces, including "Every Child," made for UNICEF to commemorate the year of the child.

Light opera comes to life

Photography — Brian Hendershot
Story — Georgia Temple

Countdown time ends at 8 p.m. Friday. By then all systems must be go. If they're not, they must appear to be.

For when the curtain rises in Theatre Midland's Theatre I Friday night for the gala $35-per-person premiere of Midland Opera Theatre's production of Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," the illusion must be complete. The performance is being held in honor of out-going Midland College president Dr. Al G. Langford and his wife.

Tickets may be purchased for the four performances by going by Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., or calling the box office at 682-4111. Other performance times are 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, with tickets priced at $8 for adults and $5 for students.

Last year marked Midland's first locally produced opera, "Die Fledermaus." The three sell-out performances of the Midland College production were a success. Those associated with this year's production are hoping Midlanders will be as enthusiatic in their support this year as they were last spring.

Last minute details are being attended to this week with Thursday night marking the full dress rehearsal. Dr. Charles Lawson, a member of the music faculty at MC, is the general director and conductor. The sung-in-English light opera will be accompanied by a 30-piece orchestra.

Local principals include James Huddleston as Zeta, Bambi Lawson as Valencienne, Jane Ward as Anna, Richard Mathis as Camille, Barry Green as Cascada, Jay Scheumack as St. Brioche, Mark Andrade as Bogdanovitch, Sherri Elliott as Sylviane, Mark Guinan as Kromov, Jo Christiani as Olga, Steven Porterfield as Pritchitch, Bonnie Hanssen as Praskovia and Shaun Gilstrap as Njegus. Also playing a leading role is New York tenor Matthew Murray.

Chorus members include Tina Carroll, Helen Cumbie, Eyvette Nieto, Kevin Gillette, Charles Tobias, Jeanne Haralson, Kim Harrelson, Dennis Longhorn, Diane Martin, Steven Porterfield, Sherry Simpson, Judy Smith, Cathy Sypert, Eve Vaughn, Cyndie Watkins, Gene Greenwood, Perry Frank and Joel Ball.

Costumes and sets for the opera are from the San Diego Opera Company which designed them for "The Merry Widow" production featuring Beverly Sills.

Now, after months of hours of planning, working and assembling the many parts, it is almost time for "The Merry Widow" to come to life.

Movie director sometimes gives more than audiences can take

By RICHARD HARRINGTON
Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — David Cronenberg makes his living out of murderous telepaths, vampiric transplants, soul-sucking parasites and uncontrolled mutations. He has unloosed these and other biological horrors upon an all-too-suspecting public in five previous horror movies including "Shivers," "Rabid" and "The Brood." And now he is terrifying audiences with the $4.5-millon "Scanners."

But sitting in his Washington hotel room, shoes kicked under the couch, legs curled under his slight frame, a hand drifting occasionally to his horn rims, the quietly intense 37-year-old Canadian director seems more the biochemist he almost became than the man many critics regard as the king of schlock horror films.

"It's a conspiracy of darkness," he says of the sicence-fiction-horror genre. "The audience is putting themselves in my hand, much as with the doctors and scientists in my movies. I really think audiences want as much as you can give them."

He has often given them more than they can take. His earlier films made lavish use of gore tech, and he is a master of audience-gagging special effects. In "The Brood" (1979), Samantha Eggar exorcises her inner demons by growing them in wombs outside her body. In "Rabid" (1977), Marilyn Chambers is a victim of scientific experimentation that turns her into a vampire; after she works her way through the hospital blood bank donor by donor, the disease spreads like . . . rabies, causing people to foam a green ooze at the mouth and attack each other.

And "Shivers" (1975, original titles: "Orgy of the Blood Parasites" and "They Came From Within") deals with sexually transmitted parasites who romp through people's bodies; one set pops through a victim's chest and splaters across a doctor's face, leeching out his blood.

But now Cronenberg feels he has moved beyond "intoxication with the power to shock an audience by magic and flash. So many filmmakers have a tendency to guarantee a reaction without taking structure into consideration."

In "Scanners," Cronenberg has effectivelvy mixed external combustion with internal intensity. The Cartesian schism between mind and body — a theme that has occasionally made his films obtuse despite their carnage — is downplayed in his newest feature. "Scanners" deals with a coven of telepaths who can literally blow people's minds: Cronenberg's concept of telepathy is not mind-reading but the joining of nervous systems. Some of these adepts, or "scanners," become homicidal rebels, and the drama of the film revolves around which side will prevail. There are still enough bulging veins, ripped flesh and apocalyptic encounters to satisfy his old fans, but "Scanners" is essentially a witty and stylish sci-fi adventure.

As a boy, Cronenberg was an avid eptymologist and lepidopterist, and the sense of detail he once applied to butterflies and moths has extended to his films. His settings have names like the Somafree Institute of Psychoplasmics or the Canadian Academy of Erotic Inquiry. His props are realistic — such as a fictional 1945 Life magazine ad touting the wonders of a drug called Ephemerol (with a telepath-producing side effect). His dialogue is convincingly interlarded with pop sicence straight out of "psychology Today," and he portrays the captains of commerce as willing hencemen to mad science.

Cronenberg's father was a writer and publisher for a magazine called True Canadian Crime Stories, and also contributed story lines to Canadian comic books during World War II. Before he was 10, Cronenberg had plotted out a career as a novelist, though he enrolled at the University of Toronto majoring in biochemistry and biology. Raised "on horror movies and C.C. Comics," Cronenberg stopped reading science fiction at 17 and ended his career in biochemistry as a college junior. "Though I was fascinated by the interface between man and technology in the universe at large, the reality of scientific study was boring. But the idea of it was very fascinating."

Cronenberg started making films in college, graduating from 8mm to 16mm as soon as he could afford it. In those days, he was also his own cameraman and editor. He made two surreal shorts ("Transfer" in 1966 and "From the Drain" in 1967) before moving on to "Stereo" in 1969. That film also depicted artifically induced telepathy with a soundtrack representing the jumbled thoughts and communications of the telepaths. The avant-garde aspect of the film brought him his first attention and the start-up money for a second film, "Crimes of the Future" (1970). That one dealt with a pestilence instigated by additives in cosmetics, resulting in a strange effluence with a bizarre attraction for bystanders; subplots dealt with foot and lingerie fetishes. It was not until 1975 that Cronenberg finally directed his first major feature, "Shivers." Its budget of $1.5 million arrived only after three years of trying to get the government to help finance the venture.

"Canadian horror films of the time were gothic, stiff," he recalls. "It would have been easier to finance a comedy or a Canadian Nationalist Art Film. The government liked those," he says condescendingly. The powers at the Canadian Film Development Bureau ("mandarins and culture czars," Cronenberg calls them) were horrified at the venture — until it earned back their investment in record time. Other problems included the "nationalist conditions" that set a limit of two foreign actors per film for government-financed ventures: Those stars have included Chambers, Eggar and Oliver Reed in "The Brood" and Patrick McGoohan in "Scanners."

Cronenberg, who writes as well as directs his own films, litters his conversation with references to Descartes, Nabokov, Burroughs, Freud and McLuhan. His film vocabulary is free of the weight of artistic history and propelled by respect for such other genre masters as John Carpenter, Brian De Palma and Nicholas Roeg, whose "Don't Look Now" is the "most frightening film" Cronenberg has seen. Recent favorites include "Texas Chain Saw Massacre," "Raw Meat" and "Private Parts."

The director frowns on the more obvious shockers that have splattered screens recently.

Fall fashion to be exotic

NEW YORK (AP) — As usual, models are parading some pretty exotic stuff produced for fall by high-fashion designers. And, as usual, the designers also are showing lots of touchable, wearable, elegant clothing.

An observer at Perry Ellis' fall show on Tuesday shook her head as knee-length, purple, pleated pantaloons flounced past.

"You'd wear it to market, of course," she muttered dryly.

But the same woman breathed a sincere "oh, nice" at the sight of Ellis' drab green suit of culottes under a narrow, fitted jacket.

Every designer, it seems, is offering a few exotic twists for fall:

There are lots of wide, ruffled collars similar to those that tickle a clown's chin; there are trousers with leather leggings that button down from the knees over the shoe tops; there are stiff metallic skirts and blouses and jackets and trousers that seem to be aluminum or cadmium but turn out to be treated leather. And more. Much more.

But most of New York's designers are offering mostly classical, pretty clothing. Dresses are slender and belted. Length varies with the lines of the dress, ranging from above the knee to near the ankle. Tunics are narrow and so are trousers. Nearly everyone is showing off waistlines. For the most part, fabrics are soft, clinging.

Giorgio Sant'Angelo is showing slim, feminine jersey pantsuits nipped at the waist with soft leather cummerbunds; there are long sheaths belted loosely at the hips and sleek formal evening gowns decorated with swirls of glittering jeweled flowers; there are dresses and blouses adorned with soft leather designs.

LIVING TODAY

Fighting mildew problems

By SHARON HILLIS
County Extension Agent

There's "hope" for solving today's mildew problems, plaguing West Texas energy-tight houses where moisture has become trapped.

"Prepare ahead of time" to avoid mildew problems is the best rule of thumb. To prepare, remember the key is a well-ventilated house.

AHEAD OF TIME STEPS

Most mildew problems will focus on the bathroom and closets. These areas need more ventilation and more heat. As a general prevention step, you can use dehumidifiers or ventilate the house more thoroughly and frequently. For a more concentrated airing — in the bathroom, for example, install a small ventilating fan. In closets, install an incandescent (conventional or ordinary) light, and keep it burning during warm, humid weather. One 75-watt bulb should generate enough heat for a closet as large as six-feet square.

FACE TO FACE STEPS

Even the best ahead of time steps can't always prevent mildew, although certainly they will help reduce its possible damaging effects. So if you're face to face with prolonged humidity, be ready to fight mildew!

Start by even ventilsting the house even more and use heat to dry out the house. If mildew doe- start growing on walls and ceilings, wash them with a stron solution of chlorine bleach. Be careful with the coloth you use and change cloths often so you don't spread the mildew to uncontaminated areas.

For mildew-stained ceilings and walls, you can try washing them with ⅓ cup trisodium phosphate, one quart chlorine bleach and three quarts warm water. If the stains aren't too bad, this will help in some cases.

Remember, though, washing the walls and ceilings with chlorine bleach will help remove mildew, but it does not keep mildew from returning. Again, only enough ventilation and heat can really stop mildew.

If you plan to repaint walls or ceilings, use a paint that has a mildew retardant. Do not paint a mildewed wall until you remove the mildew and dry the wall well. Otherwise, the mildew will come back again.

To get mildew stains and odors out of upholstered furniture, take it outside and sweep it with a broom to remove as many mildew spores as possible. Then vacuum to remove embedded spores. Discard the vacuum bag so spores don't spread.

Then air furniture in the sun for several days. Be sure to bring furniture inside at night to keep it out of damp night air. After airing in the sun, remove stains with a mild detergent solution. If that doesn't work, mix lemon juice with non-iodized salt, rub it on the stains and allow them to bleach in the sun with the solution still on them.

Use the same on mattresses. Be sure to expose the mattress to hot air and sun.

To clean mildewed books, open them and let the pages air and dry in a warm room or, even better, in the sun. Then brush off the mildew.

Clean cloth covers with a cloth dipped in mild soap suds or detergent and wrung out. For leather covers, use a diluted solution of alcohol.

To get mildew off a leather-covered chair, wash with saddle soap or a cloth dampened slightly with diluted rubbing alcohol. Then wipe dry.

Familiar faces

NEW YORK (AP) — Which direction do the following familiar faces face — the Camel cigarettes camel, the eagle on the Great Seal of the United States, the Mona Lisa? Are they looking to your left or to your right?

The answer: they face the viewer's left.

According to a national scientific journal, when a right-handed artist draws a face in profile, he tends to show it facing left.

This is so probably because the artist wants to outline the essential features first — eyes, nose, mouth — and then work back.

Ever hear a rubber band?

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — "There's nothing cheaper than a rubber band, plus it's reusable," said the president of a rubber company here.

His company is one of only six major rubber-band manufacturers in the United States.

"The cost of a single rubber band is so small, you can't even figure it," he says.

To illustrate, the executive said rubber bands for wrapping newspapers for home delivery cost about $1 a pound, which contains as many as 4,000 bands.

DEAR ABBY

Bowlegged teen-ager seeks straight answers

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen my problem mentioned in your column. I'm bowlegged. I am 18 and not a bad-looking guy, but there's a separation of about five inches between my knees when I stand up straight.

I am so self-conscious about this that I'm afraid to ask a girl for a date. My parents tell me not to worry about it, but I can't help feeling inferior and deformed. I even went to a doctor and asked him if something could be done, and he just laughed at me.

Abby, do you know of any bone specialist who could break my legs and reset them? Or maybe put my legs in braces to straighten them out? Or am I too old for that? I would do just about anything to have straight legs like other guys.

Please don't tell me to thank God that I can walk. (Everybody tells me that.) I am praying that you won't let me down. — BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE

DEAR BOWLEGGED: You have a problem that is far more serious than bowed legs. It's the way you perceive yourself. Please see a psychologist or psychiatrist. He (or she) will not laugh at you. Your THINKING, not your legs, needs straightening out. In the meantime, consider this "prayer":

"God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference.

DEAR ABBY: How does a person get a letter to you? Our newspaper NEVER prints your address. Also, do I have to sign my name in order to be answered in your column? — WONDERING IN HONG KONG

DEAR WONDERING: Write to ABBY, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. And you need NOT sign your name. Because column space is limited, obviously every letter will not appear in print.

DEAR ABBY: I loved your answer to the Minneapolis man who was embarrassed by the loud laughter of his lady-friend whenever they went to a comedy. (You said, "Hearty explosive laughter is characteristic of an uninhibited, outgoing personality — a healthy plus.")

For 25 years, my sister-in-law told me to "hold it down" every time I laughed in public. Even when others around us were laughing more loudly than I, I was told to "tone down" or "be quiet." (Sometimes she wasn't that polite.) It put a damper on my spirits and spoiled my fun, so as much as I like this sister-in-law, I have quit going places with her.

I can't help how I laugh. People have told me I sound like Phyllis Diller. Well, I take that as a compliment, as she seems to be a lady who enjoys life to the fullest and isn't afraid to be herself. — LOVES TO LAUGH IN NORWALK (Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

HINTS FROM HELOISE

College graduate loves keeping house

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently, I read in your column a request from readers to reveal their housekeeping "hates." I have to say I honestly and truly have none. I love keeping house! I'm not ashamed to admit it either... and I'm a college graduate with credits toward my Master's degree.

But I do have one problem: How does one KEEP the house neat and clean? Before I leave for work in the morning, I always straighten up before I go and my family has been taught to pick up after themselves. Being mere mortals, though, they slip up at times.

I'm sure some sage must have said at one time, "I can only keep some of the house clean some of the time," etc. Love your column. — S. Sandson

+ + +

Then let that suffice, dear heart! I sometimes think most women expect too much of themselves and let those unending chores nag endlessly at their peace of mind.

As long as the house usually is picked up and neat-looking, the deep cleaning can be done a little at a time.

The main thing is: Don't expect the house to always look perfect. Families aren't perfect, being, as you said, just "mere mortals."

So quit feeling guilty and enjoy your home. Besides, a house with a lived-in look is more fun to be in anyway. — Hugs, Heloise

WHEELCHAIR LAP ROBES

Dear Heloise: To those who would like to do something for people in wheelchairs, make lap robes or quilts for them out of any suitable fabric. (The size should be about 45 by 54 inches).

Attach ties near the corners on the top edge. These can be tied to the chair arms and the quilts will not slip off the patient's lap.

Convalescent homes love to have these. — C. Copenhaver

POURING SPOUT

Dear Heloise: My husband cut a one-inch V-shape piece out of the seal of a large jar of coffee creamer and made a perfect pouring spout.

It's so easy to fill a container for table use or just to shake a little into a cup of coffee. — Grace Meyer

LABELS FROM ENVELOPES

Dear Heloise: I have a hobby which requires labeling many things. So, I cut off the adhesive part of any envelope which comes to me in junk mail, etc. These labels are also good to use for canned goods.

My box is overflowing! — A.M. Mayor

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: I am one of those individuals with very oily skin. I can put on a white shirt immediately after showering and, in an hour's time, the collar will look as if I had been working in a coal mine.

However, I find that by rubbing a stick-type anti-perspirant on my neck after showering the ring-around-the-collar is greatly reduced. — Harold

NEATER DRAWERS

Dear Heloise: I've found an easier way to have my 2- and 3-year-old put their clothes away and get dressed with less instructions from me.

I placed pictures on the drawers corresponding to the items each one contains. They are enjoying their independence and so far the drawers are staying much neater. — Beth Mathews

THREAD TRICK

Dear Heloise: To reduce static cling in a spool of polyester sewing thread, keep it in the freezer when not in use.

Works great! Actually seems to keep it from breaking so easily too. — Gale

Former official testifies Agnew took share of payoffs

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A former state official accused of sharing kickbacks with Spiro Agnew has testified he never saw any money actually being paid to the former vice president, but says it was clear to him Agnew got a share of the payoffs.

Jerome B. Wolff, who headed the State Roads Commission in 1967-68, testified Tuesday that he, I.H. "Bud" Hammerman and Agnew, a former Maryland governor, split kickbacks from consulting engineers awarded state contracts for highway work.

Wolff was a key witness in the trial of a civil suit filed by three taxpayers and joined by the state that seeks repayment of $298,110 in alleged bribes and interest from Agnew.

The trial, which opened Tuesday, was in recess today to allow prosecutors to prepare witnesses.

Agnew served as governor from 1967 to 1968, when he left to become vice president in the Nixon administration. He resigned that office in 1973 after pleading no contest to an income tax charge.

Prosecutors contend the alleged kickback deal began in the mid-1960s, when Agnew was Baltimore county executive, and that the payments continued while Agnew was vice president.

Agnew has consistently denied that he accepted any kickbacks or other illegal payments.

Under cross-examination by Thomas R. Harrison, Agnew's lawyer, Wolff said Agnew never asked him for any money and "never said to me that he was getting anything."

Wolff said, however, that it was clear to him that Agnew was getting a share of the money.

In her opening statement, Assistant Attorney General Diana Motz said the three men received at least $207,500 from consulting engineers, including $120,000 which they shared and $87,500 which Agnew is alleged to have received directly from two engineering firms.

Both Hammerman and Wolff were named in the original suit.

Hammerman, a former Agnew adviser, has paid back $30,000 plus $22,455 in interest and is no longer a party to the suit. The state has agreed to drop its claim against Wolff in return for his testimony.

Once Wolff is dropped as a defendant, only Agnew will be left, making him the sole target of the state's attempt to recover the $298,110, which includes $177,500 in alleged income plus interest.

Mrs. Motz said the state may raise its claim later.

"It is clear that in abusing his high office, defendant Agnew seriously injured the people of Maryland," she said, contending the alleged bribes resulted "in higher contract prices or inferior work or a loss of the best bargain — or all of these things."

According to Wolff, Hammerman came to him in early 1967 to propose that after Wolff selected potential recipients of consulting contracts, Hammerman would solicit them for payments of 3 percent to 5 percent of the total contract amounts.

Wolff said he asked for one-third of the money, but said he couldn't get that much because Hammerman came back later and said Agnew wanted 50 percent of the money.

Wolff testified he received more than $30,000, a quarter of the money which he said was solicited by Hammerman and delivered in white envelopes. He said Hammerman also got one-fourth of the money and Agnew got the other half.

Also testifying Tuesday was U.S. Attorney Russell T. Baker, who was an assistant prosecutor when Agnew was charged with tax evasion in 1973.

Under cross-examination by Harrison about why Wolff was not indicted, Baker said prosecutors had intended to charge Wolff despite his cooperation but changed their minds "when Agnew got treated the way he was treated, with that very lenient deal."

Baker was referring to the fact that Agnew got a suspended sentence after pleading no contest and resigning the vice presidency, a deal worked out at the insistence of Elliott Richardson, then the U.S. attorney general.

Baker said outside the courtroom that Agnew "was able to extort out of Attorney General Richardson a very favorable deal by holding the office of the vice president hostage."

Baker said he was not being critical of Richardson, for whom he expressed respect: "In retrospect, he may have been right."

Voters cast ballots in four states

By The Associated Press

Voters in Oakland, Calif., decided they didn't want to raise taxes to boost the police force, and citizens of Minot, N.D., agreed not to go into banking as voters cast ballots in four states.

Meanwhile, the GOP minority in the U.S. House of Representatives got a boost when a 29-year-old Republican state representative planning for a life in Washington was chosen to fill the 4th Ditrict Congressional seat left vacant by federal budget director David Stockman, also a Republican.

Annapolis, Md., voters chose candidates for mayor, and Oakland's mayor was re-elected over opposition from three other candidates.

Mayor Lionel Wilson had supported Oakland's Measure A, which would have imposed more than $39 million in extra taxes on homes and businesses over the next four years so the city could hire 88 more police officers.

Oakland has the highest crime rate in California, up 7 percent from last year, at a time when the police force has declined 14 percent in four years, according to Wilson.

The proposal needed the approval of two-thirds of those voting, a requirement imposed by tax-cutting Proposition 13. But it didn't even get a majority.

"I'm very disappointed at this point, but I'm anxious to see what happens ultimately," Wilson said. "We need at least a demonstration that voters want better public services."

In Minot, voters turned out in large numbers for a single-issue election to defeat by a 5-1 margin a proposal that would have established the nation's first city-owned and operated bank.

"Free enterprise is still alive and well in America, especially in the Midwest part at Minot," said Ken Johnson, who chaired a task force of businessmen opposed to the idea.

Backers of the idea said the City Bank of Minot would have provided more revenues for city services and municipal wages without the need for more taxes.

In Michigan's 4to Congressional District, state Rep. Mark Siljander easily defeated his Democratic opponent in their race for Stockman's House seat. Siljander campaigned on a platform of Reagan-style tax cuts and budget cuts with the backing of the Moral Majority and anti-abortion groups.

"We've got a person that appears to be a rubber stamp," said his opponent, Cass County Commissioner Johnie Rodebush. "I hope his record in Washington will be a lot better than it was in Lansing."

In Cadillac, Mich., six of seven board members of the Cadillac Area Public Schools were voted out of office in a special recall election sparked by the board's elimination of bus service for the 3,000 students.

"We don't see it as a victory for glory," said Barbara Gregg, one of the organizers of the recall campaign. "It was something that was needed, and we need to get people to work together now to pull our town together."

The recall movement began five months ago when board members implemented threatened cuts in spending after residents turned down a millage increase for the fourth time in a year.

Mrs. Gregg said Concerned Citizens of Cadillac began circulating recall petitions because the board failed to provide bus service and extracurricular activities and charged students to use the schools after hours. Booster organizations later began to pay for extracurricular activites and the schools were opened after hours.

State officials have said that if a quorum of four board members did not remain after the election, the governor could appoint enough members to form a quorum until a new election could be held.

In Annapolis, Democrats picked a 38-year-old helicopter pilot as their candidate for mayor.

John C. Astle will face Republican Richard L. Hillman, a lawyer who was uncontested, and independent Irving Mager Jr., an engineer, in the general election.

Acting Mayor Gustav J. Akerland, who took over in March when the mayor resigned to move to Florida, shot himself in the head and died last week. Investigators found notes in his office indicating he was despondent over the city's fiscal woes.

Nation's worst air disaster produces record settlements

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury's award of nearly $2.3 million to the family of a man who died in the nation's worst air disaster brings to more than $8.3 million the total reached in the past month in cases stemming from the 1979 DC-10 crash in Chicago, attorneys say.

Attorney Bruce Walkup, who handled six of the seven recent suits, said a Superior Court jury voted 11-1 Tuesday to award $2.287 million to the family of 36-year-old Jack Donahue, who earned $60,000 a year as personnel and sales manager at Gallo Wine Co. in Modesto.

The May 25, 1979, crash, which occurred after an engine fell off the jumbo jet, left 273 people dead.

The suit against McDonnell Douglas Corp., maker of the DC-10, and American Airlines, claimed loss of financial support, love and affection on behalf of Donahue's wife and two children.

The case was the last of six handled by Walkup to be settled, the lawyer said Tuesday. He said he had withheld word of the other settlements — four of them by verdicts and one by out-of-court agreement — until all cases were resolved to avoid publicity that could prejudice jurors.

An out-of-court settlement for $1.35 million was reached Monday on behalf of the wife and two sons of 36-year-old James Pint of Newport Beach, an insurance annuity salesman, Walkup said.

Last Wednesday, a jury awarded $1.2 million to the family of Richard Keely, 51, of San Francisco, a engineer with Bechtel Corp. Keely was returning from a trip to Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania, where he was part of a special team working on safety problems.

In late March, Walkup said, juries awarded:

—$675,000 to the family of Terence Cady, 53, of Northridge, western sales manager for U.S. Gypsum. Cady was returning home from a business trip for his birthday party when the accident occurred.

—$275,000 to the relatives of American Airlines stewardess Carmen Fowler of Hawaii. Her parents live in San Diego.

—$750,000 to the relatives of 56-year-old Ross Pohlson of Arcadia, a technician who was in Chicago on temporary loan to American Telephone & Telegraph.

In a case handled by attorney Larry R. Feldman, a Superior Court jury on April 7 awarded $1.8 million to Sharon Lent, 40, of Woodland Hills, whose husband and two sons died in the crash. At that time, that was the largest amount awarded in the crash.

No decision has been reached by attorneys for Douglas on whether to appeal any of the judgments, said company spokesman Jack Cooke.

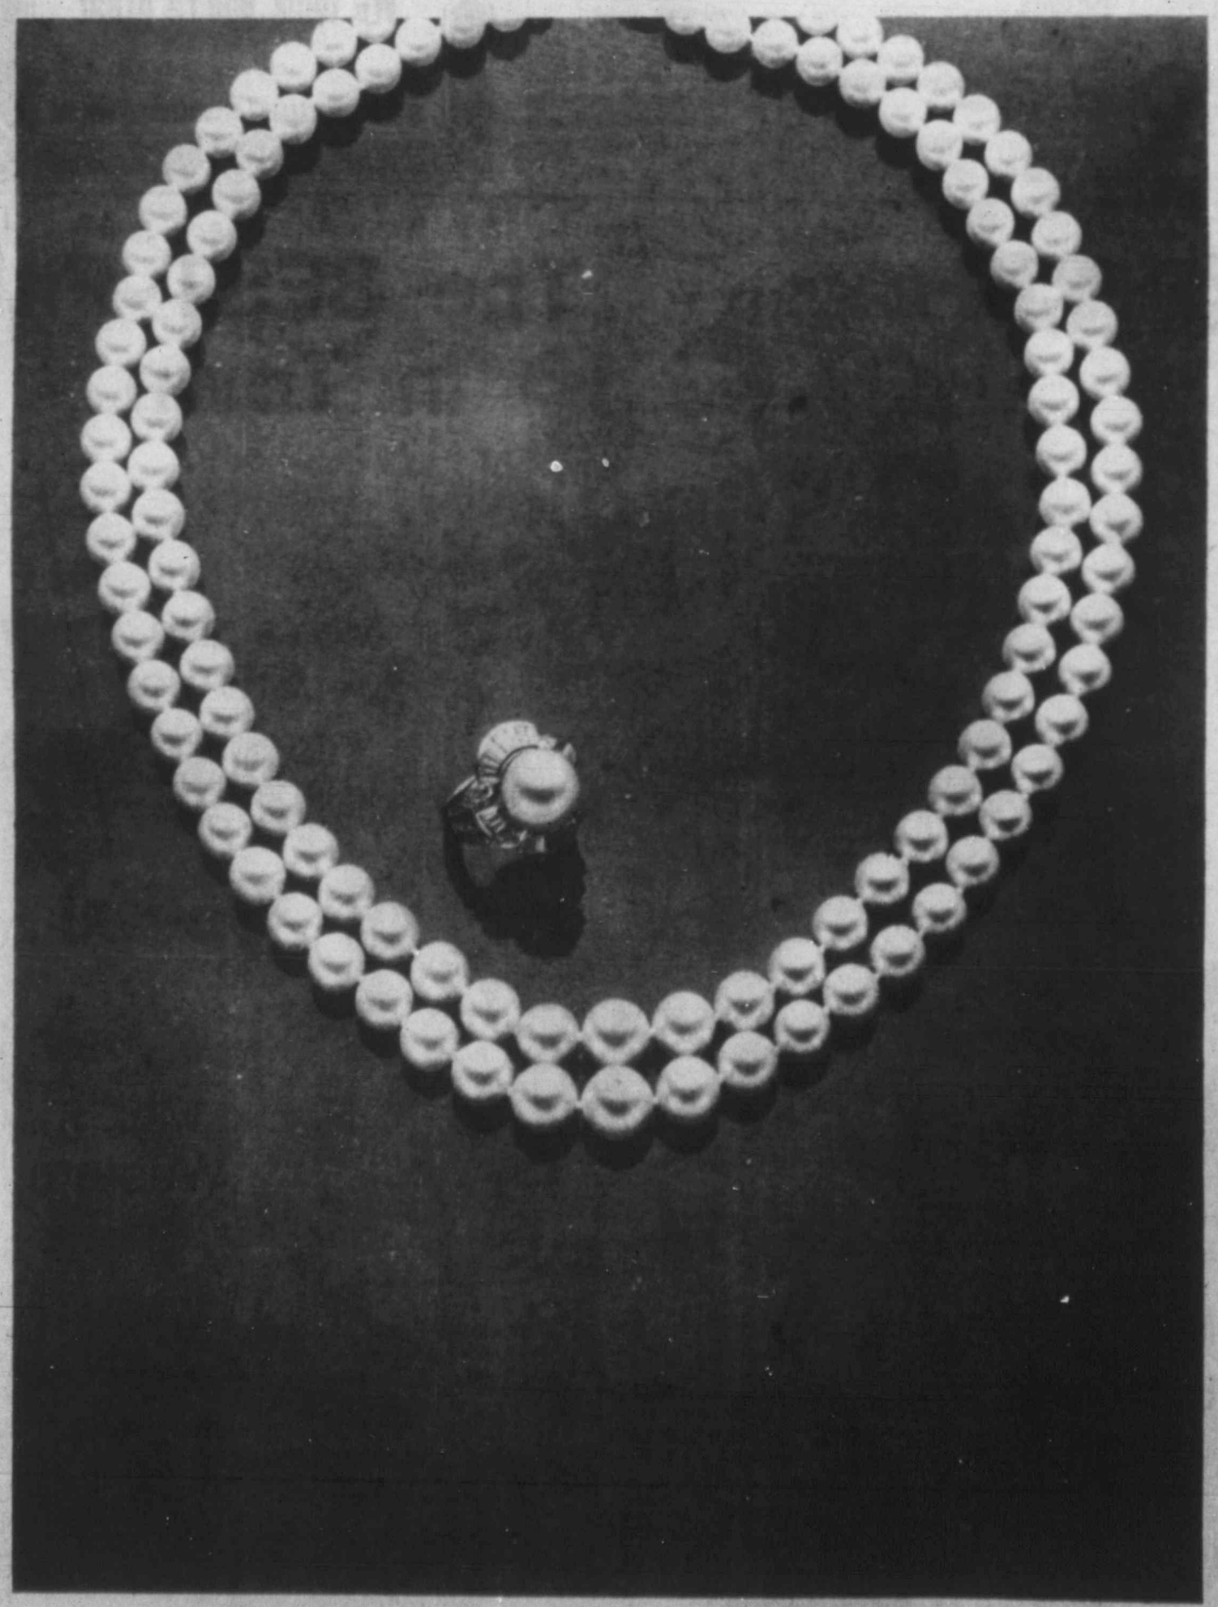

American Airlines lawyers could not be reached for comment, company spokesman Tom Gallagher said.

Final chapter written in Billy Carter - Libya case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department, writing the final chapter to Billy Carter's Libyan affair, concludes there was no wrongdoing in the White House or anywhere else in the Carter administration. But it still says the former president's brother lied to investigators.

Michael E. Shaheen, the Justice Department's chief internal investigator, turned over a final report Tuesday to Solicitor General Wadz H. McCree and the department's criminal division, which earlier had decided not to seek any charges in the case.

A statement issued by the criminal division saying it would examine the material Shaheen developed "and reach a conclusion whether it warrants further action" could provide the only epilogue to the story.

But the division earlier sought only a civil settlement with Billy Carter, who registered as a foreign agent for Libya and acknowledged receiving $220,000 from the radical Arab regime. A charge of lying to government agents is rarely filed in the absence of other criminal charges.

Shaheen's report specifically said former President Carter; his attorney general, Benjamin Civiletti; and former national security chief Zbigniew Brzezinski committed no illegal acts.

The 10-page report concluded a nine-month investigation in which more than 50 people — including the former president, Brzezinski and Civiletti — were interviewed.

Shaheen said President Carter was interviewed under oath at the White House last Dec. 19 and was asked about his advance knowledge of his brother's dealings with Libya and about his own directions to other government agencies as a result of those dealings.

"Our primary conclusion is that no government officials or employees have been shown to have engaged in illegal conduct," Shaheen wrote. "Nothing suggests that President Carter acted to frustrate or impede the Department of Justice's investigation of Billy Carter or that he sought to assist his brother in attempts to engage in business transactions with the Libyans."

The president's younger brother registered as a foreign agent after 18 months of prodding by the Justice Department but contended most of the money was in two installment payments on an unconditional $500,000 loan.

Shaheen repeated his conclusion, contained in an interim report last October, that Billy Carter had lied in first denying he received any money from Libya and then not telling the truth about the nature of the payments.

The final report also concluded that Civiletti acted within his legitimate discretion when he told President Carter at the White House on June 17, 1980 that his brother probably would not be prosecuted if he registered as a foreign agent. Two weeks later, Billy Carter registered.

Shaheen said Civiletti and Carter gave the same account of that conversation, declaring the attorney general had given no details of the investigation.

"In response to questioning, President Carter stated that he had no advance warning, and little direct knowledge, of Billy Carter's dealings with the Libyans," the report said.

The president acknowledged, "in retrospect," that using his brother as a go-between with Libyan diplomats during the Iranian hostage crisis in 1979 obviously would have enhanced Billy Carter's prestige with the Libyan government. But Jimmy Carter said he did not "focus" on that likelihood at the time

Shaheen reiterated his previous conclusion that Civiletti "dissembled" at a July 24 news conference at which he denied any White House contacts on the Billy Carter case.

The following day, Civiletti acknowledged the conversation with the president. The verb "dissemble"is defined in Webster's Third New International Dictionary as "to hide under a false appearance; conceal with intent to deceive; feign."

Of Civiletti, Shaheen concluded, "There is no evidence that he sought to obstruct or impede the criminal division's handling of the Billy Carter investigation."

Shaheen also concluded that "the Department of Justice pursued a thorough, competent investigation of Billy Carter's requirement to file as a foreign agent for the Libyan government." No one has been indicted on criminal charges under the Foreign Agents Registration Act since 1963.

Shaheen also reviewed the State Department's decision to release two Boeing 727 aircraft to Libya and State Department efforts to keep the White House apprised of Billy Carter's activities.

He concluded that the release of the planes was "based solely on foreign policy considerations" and that the information passed to the White House by the State Department was "consistent with its normal responsibilities."

The investigation also looked into Brzezinski's telephone call to Billy Carter in which the national security adviser, based on U.S. intelligence reports, confronted the president's brother with information about a deal he was negotiating to obtain Libyan oil for an American firm.

Shaheen concluded that "the evidence supports his (Brzezinski's) view that his actions were appropriate."

Shaheen said he also would forward a copy of his final report to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which had earlier investigated the Billy Carter case.

Fish may not be rare after all

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (AP) — The snail darter's place on the endangered species list may be endangered.

Armed with new evidence that the 3-inch fish — which held up a multi-million-dollar dam project for two years — may not be so rare after all, seven biologists were meeting here today to determine if the snail darter deserves protection under the Endangered Species Act.

The biologists, members of the Snail Darter Recovery Team, have studied the fish since its discovery in 1973, in the path of the Tennessee Valley Authority's $136 million Tellico Dam.

Because the fish was on the federal endangered list and believed to exist only in the Little Tennessee River, work on the project was held up until Congress passed a special exemption from requirements that its habitat be preserved.

Now the snail darter has been found in four other eastern Tennessee waterways.

"It indicates that the darter is more widespread than we originally thought," said Gary Hickman, a TVA biologist and team member.

"Whether that was a fiasco, I don't know," Hickman said, referring to the snail darter-dam controversy. "That was the best information at the time," he said.

Hickman said the team would have to decide whether the fish should be left on the endangered species list or reclassified as a threatened species — a step that could lead to removal of its protection in a year or two.

The latter, Hickman said Tuesday, was more likely. It would give biologists time to look for specimens in other places and see how snail darters transplanted in two other streams are adapting to their new environments.

The panel's recommendations will be forwarded to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which has the authority to change the snail darter's status.

The snail darter isn't affecting any current construction projects.

Dr. David Etnier, a team member and University of Tennessee zoology professor, discovered the snail darter in 1973 while poking around in the Little Tennessee, seven miles below the Tellico Dam construction site.

On Nov. 1, 1980, after the Tellico Dam project was finished, he found a few snail darters in South Chickamauga Creek near Chattanooga. He found more March 23 in the nearby Sequatchie River, and specimens have since been found in Sewee Creek and upper Watts Bar Reservoir.

TVA officials attribute the recent snail darter findings to luck, because the federal utility tried in vain for several years to locate specimens in places other than the Little Tennessee.

During that time, the tiny fish brought a project of the nation's largest utility to a grinding halt. The U.S. Supreme Court decided in 1978 to preserve the darter's habitat — a decision Congress and President Carter bypassed in 1979 by approving a special exemption to the Endangered Species Act.

Tellico was one of the last of a series of dams TVA built for power generation and flood control in its seven-state region. Although proposed in 1939, work wasn't started on it until 1963.

TVA officials said the dam would provide electricity needed to lure industry to the region.

Ford backs cuts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gerald Ford says the best way to help the nation's poor is to cut federal spending and inflation, just like President Ronald Reagan wants to do.

The former president said he has told the White House he would work to help sell Reagan economics to Americans.

"The poor people of this country have suffered more by the high inflation of the last four years," he said Tuesday. "By trying to get some successful handle on the problem of inflation we're doing something for the poor."

AHHH...From a feeling emerges a creation—a cigar

By AL MARTINEZ
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Victor Migenes, his expression intense and his concentration absolute, stretches a binder leaf of Honduras tobacco on the cutting board, smooths it with the palm of his hand and trims it with quick, short strokes of his chaveta.

When it is the way he wants it, the way 60 years of making cigars has taught him it should be, he selects three more leaves, the fillers, and lays them atop the binder: a leaf from Ecuador, a leaf from the Dominican Republic and a Havana-seed from Honduras.

"It is the blending that matters," he says in broken English without looking up from the bench where he sits hunched over a work table scattered with bits of tobacco leaves and marked by 10,000 cuts of the chaveta.

"Without the right blending...."

He doesn't finish the sentence, but instead concentrates on cutting a small bit of leaf to fill a hole, so that the cigar he is making will pack evenly.

"The most important thing," he says, rolling the tobacco tight with his palms, "is making the 'bunch.' You have to put the filler leaves straight or the cigar will not draw.

He trims again, then adds a drop of tragalconto — tobacco glue — to hold the bunch together, puts it into a mold and the mold into a press.

When he is satisfied it has been properly molded, Migenes takes it out and wraps the cigar in an aromatic cameron leaf from Africa, adds another drop of the glue, rolls it tight with the flat side of his cutter, trims the lighting end and holds it up, completed, to the fluorescent light.

"Ah," he says, the words encompassing a mixture of emotions. "AHHH...."

For that quiet and exquisite moment, 73-year-old Migenes is an artist stepping back from his canvas to observe what he has created.

One simply does not make a cigar, he will tell you, carefully sweeping leftover bits of tobacco into a drawer that is part of the bench.

One must have a feeling for what he is doing, and from that feeling, that sentimiendo, emerges the creation. The cigar.

Migenes learned the cigar-maker's art from his father and knew even as a boy in his native Puerto Rico that he had the feeling, a talent passed down at least three generations, maybe more.

"You either have it," he says, lighting the cigar he has just made, billows of smoke around him, "or you don't."

Migenes is only 5 feet, 5 inches tall and wears a snap-brim hat at a jaunty angle. He has been making cigars in Los Angeles 41 years. Longer than anyone else, he says.

For the last 29 years, he has had his own business, and the rich and famous come to his small "factory" on the fringe of downtown Los Angeles to buy his victinos, his brevas and his internationals.

Hugh Hefner is a customer, and Migenes proudly displays a letter from Playboy magazine on his wall.

Actor George Hamilton buys his cigars from the shop Migenes calls La Plata, the Silver. So do Harry Morgan, who plays Col. Potter on television's "MASH," and actor Dennis Weaver.

"I could name you polticians too," he says, "but maybe th3y don't want me to say, you know? And women. A lady from Pasadena and one from Beverly Hills. More and more women..."

Migenes' combination factory and shop is in an old 1,500-square-foot building. It is a place rich with the aroma of tobacco and the music of four Cuban cigar-makers that Migenes employs.

They sing all day, he says, songs from old Cuba, the soft and easy melodies that pre-date Castro, and they drink strong black coffee from shot glasses.

"I treat them good," Migenes says, "because they are artists. You cannot find good cigar-makers anymore."

He names them: Juan, Lorenzo, Manolo and Manuel, and the woman Hilda from El Salvador who strips the tobacco leaves of their stems and puts them in cylindrical cellophane containers.

"We call Lorenzo 'medio pollo' — half a chicken — because he is so small," Migenes says. "Lorenzo!" he c$lls to the worker. "How many inches are you!"

"Fifty-nine!" Half-a-Chicken calls back in Spanish, and everyone, including Lorenzo, joins the boss in laughter.

"Medio pollo!" Migenes says, and they laugh again.

Migenes is in his eighth marriage and runs his business with the help of his 19-year-old son, Tito.

Tito, he explains with perhaps a touch of sadness, does not make cigars. "I dont have the feeling," Tito says.

Migenes would like the boy to take over La Plata when he retires. He doesn't know when that will be.

"My own father worked until he was 93," he says, "then went into the hospital for three days and died. I liked him vey much. That's why I started making cigars. I wanted to please my father. He was a good man."

But, he observes, peering through the billowing smoke of his cigar, he does not intend to work until three days before he dies.

He intends to travel and dine in fine restaurants and spend time at the beach, in the warmth that reminds him so much of Puerto Rico — "the Island" — sipping cognac and watching the sunlight on the waves.

The likelihood, Migenes explains, is that he will live long because he goes to bed early and doesn't eat too much and limits himself to six cigars a day, never more.

Also his father lived until he was 93 and his mother, still living, is 99.

Migenes visits her at least once a year in San Juan. Also once a year, he travels to Florida and New York to buy the 50 bales of tobacco he uses each year; the fillers, the wrappers and the binders.

Once a politician, always a politician for South Dakota

WEBSTER, S.D. (AP) — He's through running for office but there's still a "hi" or "hello" for everyone he meets. Today he's walking. It's only a block to the cafe where he has his afternoon coffee and cookies.

Most people he greets are friends, and Sigurd Anderson calls them by name. But even strangers get a smiling "hello" from the retired politician, 77.

Anderson served his county, state and nation in executive and judicial roles spanning 37 years. He lost but one election — his last.

Folks could call him "governor" and some do. They could call him "judge" and many do. Mostly he's "Sigurd" or "Sig" to the people along Main Street.

Friendliness comes easy. Anyone who doesn't like people should never go into politics, he says.

Except for the fact that his wife, Vivian, has suffered a stroke and is unable to live at home, retirement is pleasant. Reading and correspondence fill office hours. His memories are rich.

Anderson was born in Norway. His father immigrated in 1905 to the Canton, S.D., area, and worked as a farmhand. The following year, his wife and 2-year-old Sigurd came from Norway.

"The first eight years of my life was a series of embarrassments," Anderson recalls. "I was laughed at because of my pure white hair, the way I talked, my funny clothes."

After grade school, Sigurd worked a couple of years as a farmhand before entering Canton Academy. By then, his parents had bought a farm and could pay for his board with eggs and milk.

He entered South Dakota State on a scholarship but scarlet fever forced his departure after four months. Later he resumed farm work. Anderson studied, even while plowing with a three-horse team, and became certified to teach country school. A $90-a-month teaching job paid double what he got as a farmhand.

In 1928, he enrolled at the University of South Dakota. After graduating with honors, he taught one year in Rapid City and then moved to Webster to teach history and coach debate.

But even as a boy he had dreamed of being a lawyer. Anderson entered the USD law school, compacted three years of study into two, and was graduated in 1937, again with honors. He returned to Webster and waited for clients.

"To fill out the ticket" in 1938, the young Republican dared to challenge the Democratic state attorney. The GOP campaign featured 40 schoolhouse meetings. Anderson spoke and accordionist Myron Floren entertained. Anderson and other Republicans won most offices.

In 1941, he was appointed an assistant attorney general. Next followed three years in the Navy.

He was back in Webster in 1946, ran successfully for attorney general, and, in 1948, was re-elected.

In 1950, he won the gubernatorial nomination in a close primary race with war hero Joe Foss and three others. Anderson defeated Joe Robbie, now owner of the Miami Dolphins football team, in the general election. Two years later, Anderson won re-election.

Then, once again it was back to Webster, but a call soon came from the White House. On appointment by President Dwight Eisenhower, Anderson served 9½ years on the Federal Trade Commission.

In 1965, he tried to regain the governorship but lost to Nils Boe in the primary. Again, Sig Anderson became a Webster lawyer.

Anderson still keeps his office, upstairs over a drug store, but doesn't practice law. He has no staff, no secretary. He reads three South Dakota daily newspapers, a half-dozen legal publications and a Norwegian-language newspaper. His correspondence is "tremendous." Pressure groups seek opinions and money. Individuals write for job references.

Anderson remains active in the GOP, the Lutheran church and Masonry. He's serving his seventh term as grand orator of the South Dakota Grand Lodge of Masons.

He's up at 7 daily and in his office by 8 a.m. Most nights he's in bed by 10, unless there's a speech. In 75 talks last year, he focused mainly on patriotism, something he feels is "vastly neglected."

"There's no change in basic American ideals," he says. "I try to tell what's great about America, to get down to the very essence of patriotism, of morality, of what's expected of us as citizens. That's trite, but, by Jove, it's what's going to make or break this nation!"

Court: Some questions up to judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a defendant is accused of a violent crime against someone of a different race or ethnic background, the trial judge should question prospective jurors for possible prejudice, the Supreme Court says.

While making that principle clear in a 6-3 decision Tuesday, the court left it up to the judges to decide whether jurors should be questioned about prejudice merely because a defendant is a member of a minority group.

In another decision Tuesday, the court ruled that police cannot search a residence without a search warrant if all they have is an arrest warrant for someone who does not live there.

In the jury case, the three dissenting justices said the majority's opinion reduced a defendant's protection against being tried by a prejudiced jury.

"Even when there are no 'special circumstances' ... indicating an unusual risk of racial or other group bias, a member of the Nazi Party should not be allowed to sit in judgment on a Jewish defendant," the dissent said.

The majority upheld the 1979 conviction of Humberto Rosales-Lopez, a Mexican-American accused of smuggling illegal aliens into the country at Imperial Beach, Calif.

Rosales-Lopez asked the trial judge to ask potential jurors whether they would be influenced by his ethnic background.

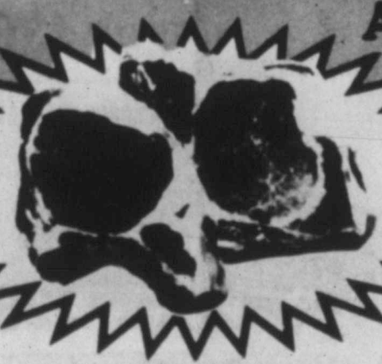

The judge did not ask that question, but did ask prospective jurors whether they had any feelings about "aliens".

The Supreme Court opinion by Justice Byron White said "there can be no doubt that the jurors would have understood a question about aliens to at least include Mexican aliens," and the judge excused two jurors because of their answers. That was good enough, the opinion said, to protect Rosales-Lopez.

The 7-2 warrant decision did not appear to disturb the court's past acceptance of warrantless searches "incident to the arrest" of someone who lived in the home being searched.

The decision overturned the conviction of Gary Steagald, who had been sentenced to five years in prison on charges of possessing cocaine.

Former janitor says he paid money to defendant

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A one-time Capitol janitor, testifying in the state's clemency-for-cash retrial, says he paid $15,500 to a member of former Gov. Ray Blanton's administration to secure the release of four prisoners.

Arthur Brandon told a U.S. District Court jury Tuesday that he worked with the families of the inmates to arrange the prisoners' release.

Brandon, who was not charged in the clemency scandal, testified that he turned most of the money over to Charles Benson, who was extradition officer during Blanton's term. Benson, who is charged with conspiring to sell paroles and clemencies, has pleaded innocent.

Brandon said he talked to Clifford Brown about the release of Brown's sons, Calvin and Ricky.

"I said to Brown, 'These people are a little different from any other administration," Brandon said. 'They'll want money to get your sons released.' I told him I would take his boys' names to Mr. Benson and see what he could do."

Brandon, now a Nashville Electric Service employee, said when he told Benson the Browns did not have much money, the one-time extradition officer said he could arrange the pardons for $2,500 each.

Brandon said he told Brown the pardons would cost $6,000 — $1,000 of which he said he kept for himself.

The former janitor also said he turned over $5,500 to Benson for the release of John Henry Gant and kept none for himself. He said he paid Benson $5,000 to get James Webb Anglin out of prison. Brandon said he received $1,000 from that deal.

Brandon said on one occasion Benson was out of the office so he gave the money to Eddie Sisk, Blanton's former legal counsel.

Sisk and Charles Frederick Taylor, a former Tennessee Highway Patrol officer assigned to Blanton's security staff, have pleaded guilty to conspiracy in exchange for sentences of not more than five years. They have not been sentenced.

A fourth defendant, William Aubrey Thompson, a former Hamilton County Democratic committeeman, pleaded guilty in February in exchange for an additional four months on his 2½-year prison term on an unrelated income tax conviction.

Blanton, who was governor from 1975 until he was eased from office three days early on Jan. 17, 1979, is not charged. Fellow Democrats ousted Blanton two days after he pardoned three people and granted clemencies to 49 inmates. Blanton is on trial in a courtroom down the hall from Benson's trial for allegedly accepting kickbacks from the sale of state liquor licenses.

The first clemency-for-cash trial ended in a mistrial.

Kleindienst facing arraignment today

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst faced arraignment today on 14 counts of perjury, but any trial on the charges appeared to be months away, prosecutors said.

Kleindienst, who resigned while serving under President Nixon during the Watergate scandal, was indicted by a Maricopa County grand jury April 14 following investigations by the Arizona Bar Association and the state attorney general into his role in an alleged pension-milking scheme.

In an interview shortly before the indictment was made public, the Tucson lawyer denied having lied to the bar association and denied any wrongdoing in connection with the pension. He declined comment after the indictment was returned.

Phil MacDonnell, head of special prosecutions and chief counsel to Arizona Attorney General Bob Corbin, said pretrial motions could last six months and that the trial itself could last a month of more because of the complexity of the issues involved.

The state bar has recommended to the Arizona Supreme Court that Kleindienst be suspended from practicing law for one year because of his alleged perjury and unethical conducting during investigations of an alleged $7 million Teamsters union health and welfare fund scandal.

The bar contends that Kleindienst kept silent when he heard testimony he knew to be false during the insurance investigation, that he lied in his own testimony in connection with that investigation, and that he perjured himself when the bar association asked him about those and other matters.

During the Watergate scandal, Kleindienst pleaded guilty to a charge of having given false testimony to a Senate hearing on a payoff scandal involving International Telephone and Telegraph. He was censured but wasn't suspended.

Clements OKs inmates' release

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements, acting upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, has authorized the release from prison of five persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area.

Donald Jackson was paroled to Dawson County officials after serving and earning four years and nine months of a six-year term. Jackson was convicted in August 1978 in Midland County of burglary of a habitation.

James William Myers was paroled to Colorado officials after serving and earning 10 years and four months of a 20-year sentence. Myers was convicted in January 1975 in Ector County of aggravated robbery by a deadly weapon.

Robert Mark Olivas was paroled to Arizona officials after serving and earning one year and 10 months of a three-year term. Olivas was convicted in August 1979 in Brewster County of arson.

John Richard Olivas was paroled to Ector County officials after serving and earning two years and eight months of an eight-year sentence. Olivas was convicted in January 1979 in Ector County of burglary with intent to commit theft.

James Alex Rabon was released on mandatory supervision to Coleman County officials after serving and earning all of a five-year sentence. Rabon was convicted in October 1978 in Ector County of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit theft.

Recommendation favorable

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Education Committee gave a favorable recommendation Wednesday to legislation sponsored by its chairman, Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, designed to strengthen the "degree mill" act.

Senate Bill 1129 would extend the powers of the College Coordinating Board to certify private institutions chartered out-of-state but operating a campus in Texas.

Stephen Walsh, president of Austin's St. Edward's University, testified that "the law...has served a valid purpose," and that all students in Texas "must be protected not against quality opportunity, but opportunism."

Kenneth H. Ashworth, commissioner of higher education, also testified in support of the legislation.

Cities agree to accept rates set by PUC

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Four cities appealing a $5.26 million electric rate hike granted Community Public Service Co. have agreed to accept rates set by the Public Utility Commission.

The PUC had granted Community Public Service an increase to $5 for the first 20 kilowatt hours plus 3.08 cents for each kilowatt hour thereafter. The rates affect 447,000 customers in various counties across the state.

The cities of Pecos, West Columbia, Hillcrest Village and Brazoria appealed that rate, but Monday agreed not to pursue the appeal.

Rates in Pecos previously had been $1.20 for the first 15 kilowatt hours and 4.9 cents per KWH up to 55 KWH, while rates in the other cities were $2 for the first 20 KWH and 3.8 cents per each KWH up to 80 KWH.

Rafael's return to hospital seems as mysterious as disappearance

DALLAS (AP) — His disappearance has not been explained but Rafael Delgado's return to Children's Medical Center hospital was an occasion for rejoicing to his doctors, his family and the police.

"I was so happy," said Mary Delgado, Rafael's mother.

"It's just tremendous," said Dr. Heinz Eichenwald, hospital chief of staff.

Rafael is a month-old child, suffering from seizures that result from a brain infection, and he was abducted from his hospital bed shortly after midnight Tuesday, 10 minutes after a nurse had checked his crib.

He remained missing most of the day, with police and doctors issuing dire warnings that 24 hours without medication could spell death for the infant.

Finally, he was returned to the hospital by police officers and ambulance attendants after an anonymous tipster notified police there was an abandoned child inside a soft drink crate behind a store eight miles from the hospital.

"Some people found him in a Coke box behind the Best-for-Less Food Mart," said police information officer Bob Shaw. "They (patrolmen) don't think he had been there very long."

The infant was taken hurriedly to the hospital where Eichenwald and his pediatrician, Dr. Ron Perkin, examined him, verified he was Rafael and returned him to the intensive care unit.

"The baby is in good shape," Eichenwald said, adding that "a great load has been lifted" with Rafael's return.

The child's vital signs were stable and "we will continue his therapy," said Perkin. "I couldn't be happier."

Rafael was born prematurely at a hospital in suburban Mesquite and was immediately transferred to Children's Medical Center when he developed a breathing difficulty.

He recovered from that problem, caused by immature lungs, but by then doctors had spotted a central nervous system disorder and have been treating the child with a dose of anti-convulsant medicine every 24 hours since then.

Doctors publicly pleaded for Rafael's return after Tuesday's abduction because the child's seizures resemble drowsiness rather than nervous twitching and any person who tried to feed him in that condition ran the risk of killing him.

"Without proper training most people wouldn't be able to detect a seizure in such a small infant," said Perkin. "The baby just appears sleepy, but he isn't able to take feedings appropriately."

If feeding was attempted, the formula "could get in his lungs," Perkin continued. "There is a chance the child could die from asphyxiation."

Paramedics return Rafael Delgado, a month-old infant with a seizure disorder, to a Dallas hospital Tuesday after he was found in a box behind a grocery store.

YMCA slates 9 mini-courses

Beginning Thursday, the Midland YMCA will conduct the first of a series of nine mini-courses. Each mini-course is a short, 1½-hour introduction to a specific topic to provide education and increase awareness.

Mini-course topics include: Exercise Principals, Smoking Cessation, Stress Management, Healthy Back, Weight Management, First Aid, CPR: Obstructed Airway Maneuver, Risk Factors Management, and Health and Nutrition.

Classes begin at 5:15 p.m. and are limited to 30 participants. Fee for each mini-course is $5.

It is estimated that more than 50 percent of premature deaths in the United States are caused by lifestyles. Health is influenced by genetic factors, the environment in which one lives and works, and personal habits concerning diet, exercise, smoking and dealing with stress.

The lifestyle choices that one makes daily are shaped by a powerful complex of influences within the culture. However, the individual who wishes to change long-held habits can learn the skills necessary for behavior change, according to the Y.

The purpose of a health education program is to assist those who are interested in obtaining additional information/skills related to maintenance of good health. The courses are entirely on a voluntary basis to interested employees.

This program is greatly dependent upon the collaborative efforts of local companies and many community service agencies.

IBM Corporation has requested the YMCA to provide the full range of mini and comprehensive courses to its employees on a nationwide basis.

Beginning in September, the aforementioned mini-courses and seven comprehensive courses will be offered to employees of companies in the Midland service area.

Y officials expressed gratitude to the following groups and persons for providing resource people to teach some of the courses: American Heart Association, American Cancer Society, Family Services of Midland, Medical Weight Loss Clinic, and cardiologist, Dr. Brian Mohr.

For further information about this program, contact Bob Smith at the Central YMCA at 682-2551.

Organization sets alcoholism education

The Midland Council on Alcoholism is sponsoring Alcoholism Education Week through Saturday.

The Education Week is designed to increase public awareness of alcoholism as an illness and to promote understanding of the problem. Alcoholism is a treatable illness and there are many local services available to help the problem drinker and members of the family.

Alcoholism, according to a release from the Midland Council on Alcoholism, is a family illness since all family members suffer along with the alcohol abuser. Therefore it is equally important for the immediate family to seek help. Early detection of the problem can often preserve the family unit. If problem drinking is left unchecked, eventually it can destroy the family.

Alcoholism is one of America's four major health problems, along with cancer, heart disease and mental illness. But alcoholism is the only one of the three over which a person can have much control. Recovery can be accomplished if he or she seeks and follows a treatment process.

The National Institute on Alcohol and Alcohol Abuse states there are 10 million persons 18 years and older who are alcoholics or problem drinkers. In addition, there are 3.3 million teen-agers between 13 and 17 who are problem drinkers or alcoholics.

The Midland Council on Alcoholism, a United Way agency, serves Midland as an education, information and referral agency. Call the Council for information or personal assistance at 682-4721. It is a 24-hour service.

Alamo YMCA offering free swimming lessons for women

May is Ladies Month at the Alamo YMCA and all ladies are invited to the Y for a free swimming lessons class during the entire month. Beginning May 4 and lasting through May 27, this class will meet from 11 a.m. to noon on Monday and Wednesday for four weeks. These lessons are for beginners only.

The Alamo YMCA is making this special offer to give each woman in the Midland area an opportunity to learn to swim, as well as learn safety skills for out of the water.

This class will be taught in the shallow water at a warm temperature to ensure the enjoyment of each of the participants. Participants need not be members of the YMCA.

The nursery will be open during this class and all swimming classes. No prerequisites are required to join. Individuals may register at the Y at 901 N. Midland Drive, or call Genie McCartney at 694-2529 for further information.

Baptist leader to run again

DALLAS (AP) — The Rev. Bailey Smith, leader of the Southern Baptist Convention, has decided to run for another term as president of the nation's largest protestant denomination, he said, so he can continue his work with Jews.

"I think Jewish people and Christians both want to eliminate human hurt, we want to rid this world of bigotry and bitterness and hatred and work together to do everything we can to foster human love," he said.

U.S. Navy rescues 317

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Six U.S. Navy ships rescued 317 Vietnamese refugees from the South China Sea within 12 hours Tuesday night and today.

One of the ships, the destroyer John Young, was returning from Singapore where it unloaded 177 Vietnamese it picked up April 17. One of its lookouts spotted a 35-foot boat adrift this morning off the southern coast of Vietnam, and the ship rescued 25 men, 20 women and 26 children from it.

Spokesman Ray Fredette said Navy officials had determined no reason for the recent increase in departures from Vietnam. U.S. ships have picked up more refugees in less than a week than they got in the previous three months.

Since the U.S. 6th Fleet increased its rescue efforts in July 1979, more than 5,700 refugees have been taken from boats and rafts, Fredette said. Vietnamese picked up by U.S. ships usually are given the opportunity to settle in the United States after orientation and training at refugee camps in Asia.

Fredette said the first rescue late Tuesday night was made by the guided missle cruiser Bainbridge which found eight men, four women and five children in a boat 300 southwest of Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon).

A few hours later, the destroyer Elliot found 96 Vietnamese aboard a boat without food or water. The refugees were reported in fair to good condition.

Polish paper blasts comments on maneuvers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu today strongly criticized recent Western concern over Warsaw Pact military exercises in an around Poland.

"Never before had we witnessed such a mighty slanderous campaign as the one launched in connection with the latest 'Soyuz-81 (alliance-81)' Warsaw treaty maneuvers," the paper said in an article carried by the official PAP news agency's English language service.

"The institutions specializing in waging a psychological war against the socialist states resolved to intensify the state of social excitement by spreading false information about alleged preparations to trespass on the Polish borders by the armies of other socialist states concerned about developments in Poland," Trybuna Ludu wrote.

Western observers had feared that the month-long maneuvers, begun in early March, could provide a cover for Soviet military intervention to halt Polish reforms begun during last summer's labor revolt.

"Now we know that the fanning of an atmosphere of artificial anxiety around our country was also aimed at creating an appropriate climate of fear," the paper said.

It claimed this would be "convenient for breaking the resistance of West European communities protesting an intensification of armaments and the deployment of new American nuclear missiles on the European continent."

Meanwhile, the Soviet ambassador to Warsaw, Boris Aristov, expressed renewed Kremlin confidence that the Poles can solve their own problems.

"The Soviet people are convinced that the Polish People, Polish communists, will manage, under the leadership of the Communist Party, to solve their complicated tasks and ensure leading the country out of crisis, Aristov said, echoing a statement earlier this month by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Nuclear explosion reported

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The Soviet Union detonated a powerful underground nuclear explosion early today in Western Siberia, the seismological institute of Sweden's Uppsala University reported.

The explosion measured 6.9 on the Richter scale of the institute's seismograph. The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion. An earthquake measuring 6.9 would be capable of causing severe damage.

There was no immediate Soviet comment on the report.

Singing of Scriptures in Praise

Midland Christian Fellowship

Sunday April 26

3 SERVICES

10:00 a.m. -11:00 a.m. -7:00 p.m.

Don and Faith Dunlap have been actively involved in a full time traveling ministry over the past nine years. From the beginning they have been instrumental in leading people into a fresh approach to praise and worship, through the singing of Scripture music.

Don and Faith Dunlap with their unique presentation of singing, sharing, and teaching are a truly powerful combination. They have adopted as their theme, "His Word Our Song." This couple feels that the singing of scriptures in praise provides an effective way of leading people into a greater understanding of worship. Along with the worship emphasis, Don's ministry spontaneously mixed with his own natural humor, makes his messages and their practical applications unforgetable! The Dunlap's have participated in many church conferences and inter-denominational gatherings, including regional conventions sponsored by the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International. They have also appeared as music guest for the General Council For The Assemblies Of God. Don and Faith have enjoyed being special guests on the 700 Club with Pat Robertson, and The PTL Club with Jim Baker.

Self-employed workers major part of Canton changes

By MICHAEL PARKS
The Los Angeles Times

CANTON, China — Late in the afternoon, Poon Meilin and her daughter-in-law wheeled their fried pork and noodle stand down the block toward the Pearl River in the center of Canton. Finding their usual spot, they set out small tables and stools, started their charcoal cooking fires, and waited for the first of the three rush hours that they get each evening.

"It's Friday night so business should be good," Poon said, estimating her take at roughly $65, half of which would be after-tax profits. "The weather's nice, so there will be many young people out for a stroll, maybe some window-shopping, and later in the evening they will want a snack of noodles and fried pork."

Poon was not literally rubbing her hands together with glee at the brisk trade prospects for that evening, but a large measure of satisfaction was evident in her voice and manner as she talked about this simple noodle stand and how it has helped change her family's life.

"In the past year, we have done all right, really all right," she said as her daughter-in-law, Ng Lam, interpreted her rapid Cantonese. "In fact, we have earned more than we did in the past five years together...We are not rich, but we have a new television, a refrigerator, a washing machine and, this week, a new motorbike."

Poon is not the Colonel Sanders of Cantonese fried noodles, but one of thousands of small-time entrepreneurs who have been permitted in the past 18 months to open food stands, run fruit and vegetable carts, repair shoes and bicycles and hawk a variety of goods from clothing to fountain pens to toys.

Five years ago, they would have been called "capitalist tails" and sentenced to hard labor. Three years ago, they still would have been rousted by police and sent back to their assigned workplaces on probation. Now, policemen are among Poon's regular customers, and she and the other food stand operators, repairmen, hawkers and self-employed workers are an important part of Canton's changing face.

"More has happened here in the past two years than the previous two decades," one Guangdong province official said, venturing a private but widely held opinion. "There are many ideas about these changes — that we are correcting 25 years of leftist mistakes, that we are becoming like Hong Kong, even that we are growing bourgeois — but I think we are doing just what comes naturally."

Among the other facets of changing Canton:

—A consumer boom. Retail sales were up 21 percent last year over 1979, and the variety of clothing, textiles, shoes, furniture, radios, television sets, cameras, tape recorders and other products is proliferating. Some foreign products now compete with Chinese articles. To help sales of major items, such as refrigerators and washing machines, stores now offer credit and installment loans.

—Housing development. With Hong Kong companies promising to provide more than 15,000 flats in apartment blocks that they will build in cooperation with Cantonese companies, local officials have been able for the first time to reduce a family's waiting time for new housing, and residential construction is now getting top priority.

—Economic growth. Despite the national economic retrenchment, Guangdong province's industrial output rose nearly 9 percent last year, led largely by light industry, up more than 15 percent, and foreign trade, up 27 percent. Economic growth provided 450,000 badly needed new jobs in the province last year, and 350,000 more will be created this year, according to provincial figures. Urban wages rose an average of 20 percent, and per capita rral incomes 22 percent. when the national budget deficit, one reason for the retrenchment, is mentioned, Guangdong officials smile quietly and note that they had a modest surplus last year.

—Political stability. Canton has been spared the in-fighting that has characterized national politics for the past eight months — officials here shudder at the mention of those conflicts at the top, knowing how they have been played out at the local level in other provinces — and there seems to be widespread approval of the pragmatic philosophy that is replacing Maoist ideology. "To go back would be insane," a senior Cantonese journalist said when asked if the leftists might ever make a comeback.

The changes are evident everywhere, and street activity measures the quickened pulse of the city.

Fleets of imported taxis, new trucks and a few privately owned cars crowd the streets. The city of 3 million people now has more than 1 million bicycles — and 6,200 motorbikes, a figure expected to triple in the next three months. Bright neon signs light the once black nighttime streets, and billboards and other advertisements actively promote a consumer society.

Flared and bell-bottomed trousers, blue jeans, brightly colored shirts, modish shoes and purses, and carefully styled hair are all growing so common that it is hard to tell whether a person is from Canton or the neighboring British colony of Hong Kong.

Hong Kong-style pop music is heard more frequently than revolutionary marches, and so many people defy government orders not to watch Hong Kong television that Cantonese broadcasting officials find themselves, like American television network executives, rearranging their programs to get the most competitive schedule.

Often one has the strange sensation that Canton is slowly merging, economically and socially if not politically, with the British colony 125 miles down the Pearl River, and that this, in fact, is China's strategy for the eventual reincorporation of Hong Kong and the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao.

Thousands of visitors come from the two colonies each day, bringing even more consumer goods for their relatives here. A large proportion of the 5,000 or more joint ventures and similar business deals that Guangdong province will sign with foreign partners this year will be with Hong Kong companies. Hong Kong newspapers and magazines are sold here, and there is direct telephone dialing to Hong Kong.

"Economically, Canton and Hong Kong are organically linked now," says a Hong Kong banker with an office here. "Certainly, Guangdong's economic growth in the past year and a half has come largely from foreign trade, principally with, or through, Hong Kong. For Hong Kong, the Guangdong connection is increasingly important for growth, particularly with the prolonged economic difficulties in the West limiting other opportunities. It is still premature to speak of an integrated Hong Kong-Guangdong economy, but that is where these changes are leading very, very quickly."

When Ren Zhongyi took over recently as the Communist Party's first secretary in the province, he made this a clear goal. Guangdong will becoce "a national pivot and window for contact with foreign countries," he said. "The central government has given us great powers, and it will now be seen whether we are able to use them."

The development of an export-based economy will not be limited to a few special zones or industries, Ren continued, but should involve the whole province, an economic reorientation with sweeping social implications.

But there is considerable uneasiness about the extent of foreign influence and bourgeois tendencies already, and Ren warned that the "encroachment of corrupt bourgeois ideology" must be fought.

Reagan plan in hard-sell phase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The campaign for President Reagan's tax and spending cuts is into the hard-sell phase as his strategists seek to reverse a slump they say was inevitable even before their boss was sidelined.

They figured that the early surge of support would fade a bit and that there would have to be a springtime lobbying drive to regain momentum.

That has been made more difficult with the president's own role limited as he recuperates from the bullet wound he suffered on March 30. But public opinion polls also indicate that Reagan's job approval rating increased after the assassination attempt.

As the House and Senate approach May action on the budget-cut phase of his economic program, Reagan is expected to take up the campaign in a broadcast address which likely will be his first major public appearance since the assassination attempt.

His strategists would like to make it a nationally televised speech, for maximum impact as the budget votes near. But that depends on the extent of his recovery. If the president is not fully fit and looking it by the end of the month, the speech probably will be limited to radio.

Over the next two weeks, the administration will be dispatching every emissary who might be able to help persuade a conservative Democrat or a wavering Republican to stick with the administration in the key budget votes ahead.

Members of the Cabinet got their instructions Monday: make every public appearance possible and pay special heed to members of the House who are straddling the fence or near it. They reportedly were told that polls conducted for Reagan show public support for his spending cuts remains strong and that the message should be stressed to congressmen as evidence that their constituents want them voting with the president.

Reagan, his schedule limited during his convalescence, has been on the telephone to members of Congress. He is seeing governors and other political leaders at the White House as part of the effort to rally backing.

Vice President George Bush is on tour for the Reagan economic program, and former President Gerald R. Ford has been enlisted to speak for it, too. He is part of an administration effort aimed at the Southern home of conservative House Democrats whose votes could swing the budget outcome.

Four administration lobbying teams are handling that phase of the campaign.

One White House official, who asked that his name not be used, said the effort is concentrated on about 45 congressional districts, most of them in the South. He said administration head-counters figure that if they can cement 25 to 28 wavering votes, they can win on the budget cuts.

The second half of the battle, over tax cuts, may prove the more difficult. Reagan wants a cut of about 30 percent over the next three years, with Congress committing itself to the whole package now. The Democrats have countered with a one-year tax bill, offering reductions somewhat smaller than those in the first year of the Reagan plan.

"We don't anticipate compromising on the budget or the tax cuts," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes. "We're encouraged by our general discussions with members of Congress."

Society of Petroleum Engineers slate meeting

The Permian Basin section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers will hold a buffet meeting today 5:30 P.M. at Ranchland Hills Country Club. Professor James T. Smith will be the main speaker.

Smith, chairman of the Petroleum Engineering Department at Texas Tech University will present a layman's application of type curve analysis." He will explain the basic concept of type curves emphasizing the analysis of well test data which is difficult to interpret using conventional means due to formation damage or wellbore storage.

He has served on the society's continuing education and textbook committees and has chaired the SPE Editorial Review Committee in 1978.

SPE is an international society of 40,000 engineers, scientists and managers which disseminates technical information related to the production of energy resources through wellbored.

The social hour begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner and program at 6:30 p.m.

Acquisition announced

The acquisition of Oilfield Lines Inc. located in the Big Spring Industrial Park by Kiddie Inc. will result in increased production consequently resulting in increased employment possibilities Oil Inc. board chairman Charles S. Christopher said.

Through there will be no administrative changes, employment is expected to go up 150 openings by the end of the year and 200 more next year.

Oil Inc. manufactures oil field equipment specializing in drilling rigs and claims to have two of the largest machine shops in the world.

Grove Manufacturing, a Kiddie division, might locate a plant in Big Spring, Christopher said.

Area projects announced

Chalmers Operating Co. Inc. of Abilene has completed the No. 1 Pierce "10" six miles northeast of Maryneal in Nolan County.

The lower Strawn lime oil discovery pumped 50 barrels of 39 gravity oil plus 50 barrels of water in 24 hours from perforations made from 6,570 to 6,580 feet with a gas oil ratio of 500 to 1.

The well is bottomed at 6,965 feet with a 4½ inch casing set on bottom

Designated the No. 1 Jones "469", location is 2,310 feet from the south line and 990 feet from the west line of section 469, block 97 of the H&TC survey, and 1¾ miles south of an 8,232-foot Mississippian oil production in the Seven J, West Field.

KING COUNTY

Medders Oil Co. of Wichita Falls has completed the second well and 3/8 mile extension in the Pitchfork (Tannehill) Field.

Producing from perforations made from 3,693-3,702 feet, the No. 2 Pitchfork-Maverick "B" pumped 128 barrels of 36 gravity oil in 24 hours with a gas oil ratio of 8 to 1.

Commission calls for Yates test

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission voted Monday to authorize a 45-day test if the Yates Field can produce oil at a rate of 150,000 barrels a day without damaging the reservoir.

Commissioner Mack Wallace called the West Texas field "one of the last great remaining oil fields in this nation."

The Yates Field was discovered in 1926 and has produced more than 784 million barrels of oil. Remaining recoverable reserves are estimated at 1.25 billion barrels.

"I am not yet convinced that long-term damage to the reservoir can be averted" if a higher rate of production is approved, Wallace said.

Marathon Oil Co. asked the three-member commission to increase the field's most efficient rate (MER) from 125,000 barrels to 150,000 barrels. In 1976 and 1978, at Marathon's request, the commission raised the MER from 50,000 to 100,000 barrels and to 125,000 barrels, respectively.

Wallace said the commission "must be as certain as is reasonably possible that an increase in the MER for the Yates Field will not cause irreparable reservoir damage and deprive this state and the nation of a needed energy source for the long term."

He said a five-day production test in March had not provided sufficient data to support an increase in the MER.

Under Wallace's motion, the commission staff would oversee a 45-day test at 150,000 barrels a day, then return to 125,000 barrels a day, pending a commission decision.

Activities reported in District 8

A wildcat, locations and completions were announced over the weekend in Texas Railroad Commission District 8.

HOWARD WILDCAT:

McCann Corp. of Big Spring will drill a 9,500 foot prove 4.5 miles southeast of Bif Spring.

The No. 2 Flanagan "A" is located 660 feet from the south, 467 feet from the west lines of section 18, block 31 of T-1-S, T&P survey.

The location is 3,500 feet southwest of a dry and abandoned hole, No. 1 Howard drilled to 7,465 feet and abandoned on April 11, 1970. It is also 1 mile southwest of No. 1 Choate, a depleted oil production with the total depth of 9,352 feet and abandoned on May 2, 1964 in the South Hutto Field.

MITCHELL LOCATION:

Texas International Petroleum Corp. of Oklahoma City will drill a 25,840 foot deep well in the prolific Dixon Field five miles north of Silver.

The No. 23 Edwin Parks is located 1,980 feet from the south and 660 feet from the east of section 2, block 12 of H&TC RR Co. survey.

It will be drilled to 7,070 feet for Ellenburger; Strawn at 24,469 feet; Odom at 24,917 feet and Mississippian at 25,840 feet.

The location is one mile east of No. 1 Barkley, a dry and abandoned location drilled to 6,362 feet and abandoned on April 8, 1956.

WARD FIELDTEST:

Hi—Po Inc. of Monahans will drill a 2,500 foot well four miles west of Royualty in the Payton Filed.

The No. 2 Boradland was originally drilled as a wildcat by Holborrk & Page Co. to the total depth of 8,521 and was plugged and abandoned June 15, 1963.

The location is adjacent to No. 1 G. R. Bentley, a dry and abandoned wildcat and 1,700 feet northwest of No. 1 P. L. Bordland, a completed oil production. Both these wells are below 2,500 feet.

WARD OFFSET:

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland has potentialed a 6,316 foot west offset to the Scott (Cherry Canyon) Field one mile southeast of Barstow.

The No. 1 Barstow "26" is located 3,200 feet from the northeast and 660 feet from the northwest lines of section 38, block 33 of H&TC survey.

It is flowing 48 barrels of 41.8 gravity oil, 45,000 units of gas per day and 180 barrels of water with the gas to oil ratio of 938:1 and flowing tube pressure of 150 PSI.

Perforations were made from 6,109 to 6,121 feet with 1,500 gallons of acid and fractured with 10,000 gallons of acid and 17,000 pounds of 20/40 sand.

Top of pay depth is 5,756 feet and the plug-back depth 6,150 feet with the ground-level elevation at 1,560 feet.

It was drilled in the Delaware pay at 4,770 feet and Cherry Canyon at 5,756 feet. The test was originally contracted for 6,500 feet.

WARD LOCATIONS:

Chama Petroleum Co. of Dallas has finaled two prolific tests four miles southeast and northeast of Monahans.

The 5,660 foot No. 1 Sealy Smith foundation is located 1,320 feet from the north and 660 feet from the east lines of section 19, block A of G&MMB&A survey.

It is pumping 100 barrels of 36 gravity oil and 110 barrels of water per day with 25 lbs. of casing pressure through perforations made from 4,792-5,288 feet with 4,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 36,000 gallons of acid and 54,000 pounds of 20/40 sand.

Top of pay depth is 4,792 feet. Ground-level elevation 2,730 feet and a 5½-inch casing was set at 5,710 feet.

The Glorieta pay was reached at 4,790 feet and Clearfork at 5,029 feet.

The second field test, 5,621 foot No. 2 Sealy Smith Foundation is located 1,980 feet from the north and east lines of section 19, block A of G&MMB&A survey.

The well is pumping 100 barrels of 37 gravity oil and 120 barrels of water per day with the casing pressure of 20 pounds through perforations made from 4,516 to 5,283 feet with 6,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 60,000 gallons of acid and 100,000 pounds of 20/40 sand.

The top-of-pay depth is 4,516 feet, ground-level elevation of 2,741 feet and a 4½ inch casing was set 5,700 feet.

The Glorietya pay was reached at 4,516 feet and Clearfork at 5,055 feet.

Toney shots down Celts

BOSTON (AP) — The first battle is over. With cool Andrew Toney's final salvo, the Philadelphia 76ers captured their thrill-filled opening confrontation with the Boston Celtics.

Certainly, the second engagement here tonight can't be as intense.

"I think it will be more so," said Philadelphia's Caldwell Jones following the 76ers 105-104 victory in the opening game of their National Basketball Association playoff series.

"It will be all-out war, like the war of the worlds. Everything's on the line. We can't afford to let them get their confidence back," Jones added.

Confidence may not be as important a weapon for the Celtics to restore to their arsenal as good foul shooting, a productive running game, or crisp ball movement.

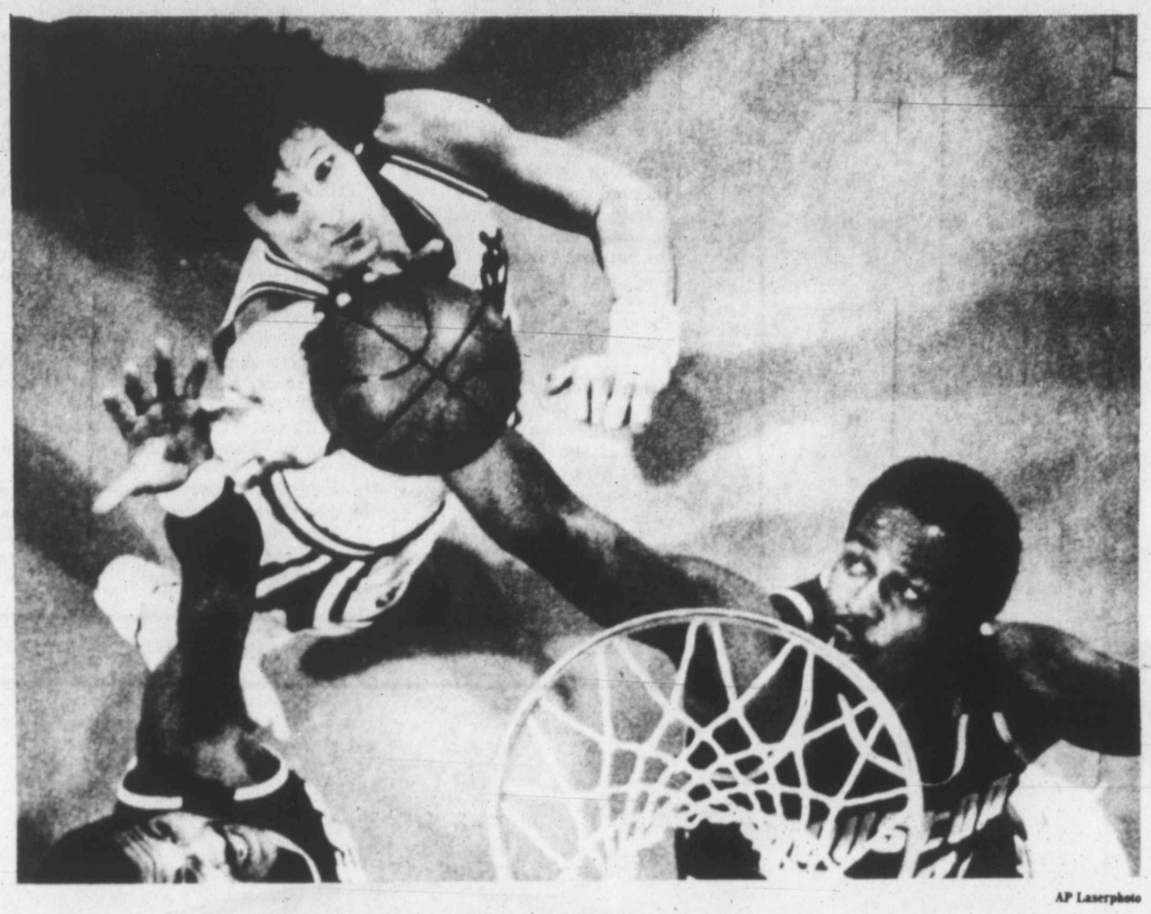

All were in short supply Tuesday night when Toney calmly canned two free throws with two seconds left.

The setback cost Boston the home-court advantage it gained on the last day of the regular season by beating the 76ers here, 98-94. That triumph had given them the Atlantic Division crown over Philadelphia.

Houston Rocket's Moses Malone, right, is controlling the boards as he beats teammate Calvin Murphy, left, and Kansas City Kings' Scott Wedman, top, to a rebound during the National Basketball Association Western Conference Playoff Series in Kansas City's Kemper Arena Tuesday night. The Rockets defeated the Kings to take a 1-0 lead in the series.

Generous Kings hand Rockets win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Never in their long history of National Basketball Association playoff games have the Houston Rockets met an opponent as generous with turnovers as Kansas City was Tuesday night.

Twenty-five times the Kings turned the ball over. Kansas City's sloppy ways, plus Moses Malone's 29 points, triggered a 97-78 victory that gives the Rockets a 1-0 advantage in the best-of-seven Western Conference finals between the only two sub-.500 teams to make this season's playoffs.

"I didn't think our club was as prepared as it could have been," said Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "I think they were a little better prepared than we were. They were aggressive, and caused many ofthe turnoers. But we made a lot of mistakes. We'll play better next game."

Malone, held to just 10 points in the first half, unleashed a 19-point effort after intermission and triggered a third quarter surge to put the Rockets in control. Houston took charge for good with a 16-8 run at the start of the fourth period that turned a 70-63 lead into an 86-71 bulge.

Game two of the series is tonight in Kansas City.

"It was a very important win," said Malone. "It's up to them to win tomorrow (tonight). We're going to come back here and play the same way."

The Kings pulled a surprise move by starting point guard Phil Ford, who had not played since he suffered an eye injury Feb. 22. But although the Rockets admitted they were caught off guard, Ford was obviously rusty, winding up with only five points and committing five of the turnovers.

Forward Robert Reid, who scored 19 points for the Rockets, credited Houston's pressure defense with throwing the Kings out of rhythm.

"We never did let up on the pressure," he said. "Phoenix let Ernie (Grunfeld), Sam (Lacey) and Scotty (Wedman) shoot the bal and those guys can flat-out shoot. We pressured the ball and made them use the clock."

Grunfeld wound up with 20 points while Wedman had 19 and Lacey six.

"Now we have a little bit of breathing room," added Reid. "But this game is over and we have to come out more aggressive than we did tonight."

Bill Dern pitches Rebels past San Angelo, 8-1

SAN ANGELO — Bill Dern, earning his first District 5-5A baseball start, tossed a five hitter and led the Midland Lee Rebels to an 8-1 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats here Tuesday.

The win gives Lee a 1-0 second half record while the Bobcats fell to 0-1, but the Rebels have yet to finish the first half. They were to do that today at 4 p.m. against Midland High at Memorial Stadium with a share of the first half title on the line for the Rebs.

But the second half is clean for Lee, thanks to Dern, who KOed nine Bobcats with strikes Tuesday while walking one. Dern also had three hits in the game and drove in a run. Dern's single in the first scored Randy Velarde to get the Rebel offense going.

Lee then erupted for three runs in the second to put the game away on key hits by Barry Blackwell and Ronnie Smedley. Lee also got two unearned runs in the fifth and seventh innings.

Midland High has yet to get in a second half game since its contest with Big Spring was rained out Tuesday. So the Bulldogs may be able to finish the first half before starting the second. That is if Lee and Midland High can get their tussle in today. The field is still very wet.

In the only other 5-5A contest Tuesday, Abilene High, which has already earned a share of the first half title with Cooper, got off to another fast start in the second half with an 6-0 win over Odessa Permian. That was the first second half outing for both teams. Mike Hargesheimer, now 6-5 on the year, pitched the shutout with 10 strikeouts, including three in the seventh with a runner on third.

Lazado's homer sinks Cubs

EL PASO — El Paso's Willie Lazado hit a two-out homer to right field in the bottom of the ninth inning here Tuesday night to lift the El Paso Diablos to a tight 4-3 Texas League baseball victory over the Midland Cubs.

The last gasp homer by Lazado evened the current series between the two clubs at 1-1 with three games to play. Lazado has been on a Texas League tear to open the season. He has hit safely in his first 12 games. Lazado also homered off the Cubs in a loss Monday.

Lazado's blast ruined a fine outing by Midland's Randy Clark, who pitched a five-hitter only to lose in the bottom of the ninth with two outs.

The Cubs delivered a 12-hit attack, but couldn't put the game away. El Paso's Larry Montgomery got the win with two innings of runless relief. The Cubs got nine hits off starter Mike Madden, but came up with only three runs.

El Paso got two runs in the first inning off Clark when Doug Loman singled and Stan Davis followed with his fourth homer of the year. The Cubs closed the gap to 2-1 in the third when Mel Hall singled hom Bill Morgan from second.

El Paso took a 3-1 lead in the bottom of the third when Clark walked Johnny Evans with the bases loaded.

The Cubs struck for a run in the fourth when Morgan drove home Jack Upton from second with a single and tied it in the seventh when Hall scored on an error by outfielder Jim Hansen after a single by Kornfeld.

Lozado ended it all in the ninth with his dramatic two-out homer.

The two teams play again tonight. The Cubs return home Saturday to face Amarillo at Cub Stadium in a 7 p.m. contest.

Miles tosses Pup no-hitter

Billy Miles tossed a no-hitter to lead the Midland High Bullpups to an 8-0 victory over the Odessa Ector junior varsity at the Memorial Stadium diamond Monday.

Miles struck out eight Ector batters and walked two in his seven innings of work. Four Ector runners reached safely on Bullpup errors, but catcher Tommy Davis threw out two runners trying to steal.

The Bullpups put the game away quickly with seven runs in the first. Hipilito Zarate led the MHS attack with two hits and two RBI. Mark Williams and Davis also contributed key doubles to the 11-hit attack.

MC golfers 5th

OKLAHOMA CITY — The Midland College women's golf team moved closer to fourth place in the Oklahoma University Invitational golf tournament here Tuesday.

MC's 640 two round total is only two strokes behind third place Nebraska. Oklahoma State leads the tourney with 593 while Oklahoma is second with a 617 and OSU's No. 2 team is third with a 627.

OSU's Val Skinner took the medalist lead after a 66 Tuesday for a two-round total of 142. First day leader Dorea Mitchell of OU is second with a 150.

MC's was led by Deborah Latham with a 76 and Debra Kargetta followed with a 79. Wendy Swift, 80; Michelle Wilks, 81; and Sheryl Bunton, 92, were other MC members.

The tournament ends today with the final 18 holes.

Knepper pitches, hits Astros past LA

By The Associated Press

Those modern-day hitless wonders, alias the Houston Astros, came up with a new way to record a much-needed victory.

"It was outstanding pitching by the pitcher and outstanding hitting by the pitcher," Manager Bill Virdon said Tuesday night after Bob Knepper fired a three-hitter and doubled and scored the only run as the slow-starting Astros cooled off the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0. "It doesn't matter how; we just needed to wio."

The Astros, defending champions in the National League West, not only ended a four-game losing streak but beat the Dodgers for the first time in five meetings and handed them just their seeond loss in 11 games.

"This was an important game for us to establish that we can beat Los Angeles and that we are not psyched out by them," said Knepper, who was obtained in an off-season trade with San Francisco. "Numerically, this was an important victory. You don't want to go 2-20."

Elsewhere, the Montreal Expos trounced the Philadelphia Phillies 10-3, the Atlanta Braves hammered the Cincinnati Reds 10-1, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Chicago Cubs 8-0 and the San Diego Padres shaded the San Francisco Giants 3-1. New York and Pittsburgh had the day off.

The Astros, who have won only three of their 11 games, pinned the loss on Jerry Reuss when Knepper doubled to the right field wall and scored on Cesar Cedeno's third-inning single.

Knepper yielded singles to Pedro Guerrero in the second and fifth innings and Dusty Baker in the seventh. He didn't walk a batter and struck out three.

"In San Francisco after three or four losses the throats would tighten up and everybody would be drinking a lot of water," Knepper said of his years with the Giants. "Here, you'd have thought we were 8-2. I've never been nervous with this team. The whole atmosphere is so relaxed.

Reuss, making his first start of the season after missing two outings with a pulled leg muscle, said he was "satisfied with my game. How could I not be? He outpitched me and he outhit me, too."

Expos 10, Phillies 3

Rookie Tim Raines rapped out four hits, including a two-run single, and tied a club record by stealing four bases while Scott Sanderson scattered 10 hits. Raines broke a 2-2 tie against loser Dick Ruthven in the fifth when he scored on Rodney Scott's single and the Expos poured five runs across in the sixth, including two-run singles by Raines and Ellis Valentine. Gary Carter homered for Montreal's first two runs.

The Expos are counting on Raines to replace Ron LeFlore, last year's NL stolen base leader, who left the club as a free agent. The 21-year-old left fielder boosted his average to .444.

"I just want to play 162 games as hard as I can," Raines said. "Then at least I'll know that I've done my best. I don't look at it as replacing Ron LeFlore. I'm just going out each day and playing the game the way I'm capable of playing."

Braves 10, Reds 1

Tommy Boggs pitched eight scoreless inning and drove in two runs and slugger Bob Horner, without a run batted in this season, drove in four, three with a homer in the Braves' seven-run ninth. Claudell Washington, who had three hits, got Atlanta's first one off Mario Soto, a single in the fourth. He stole second and continued to third on catcher Johnny Bench's throwing error. Horner followed with a sacrifice fly. The Braves made it 2-0 in the sixth when Ed Miller singled, stole second and scored on Washington's single.

"It certainly helps when you score runs," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. "We just haven't been able to get many in this year. With our run production as it is, I'm grateful that we are 5-5. With the kind of pitching we've been getting we should only have one loss."

Cardinals 8, Cubs 0

Gene Tenace and Tom Herr drove in two runs apiece in St. Louis' six-run third inning to back the five-hit pitching of rookie Andy Rincon. George Hendrick also had two RBIs with a double and triple. Rincon retired 17 of the last 18 batters as the Cubs suffered teir eighh consecutive loss and ninth in 10 games. The Cardinals have won five in a row.

Padres 3, Giants 1

Chris Welsh posted his first major league victory by allowing an unearned run and three hits in seven innings. It was the second start for the 26-year-old left-hander, obtained in a trade last month with the New York Yankees. The Padres snapped a string of 21 scoreless innings in the fifth when Ozzie Smith dlivered a two-out, two-run double off Doyle Alexander.

Webb to defend bowling title

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Securing his second Professional Bowlers Association title in three weeks, Wayne Webb appears to be tuned up for defense of the Firestone Tornament of Championships this week.

Webb, of Tucson, Ariz., upset top-seeded Mark Roth of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., 227-199 in the title game and claim the $12,000 first prize in the Greater Hartford Open.

Roth and Webb gained some ground of the tour's money leaders, but Earl Anthony of Dublin, Calif., and Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., continued to lead the tour with $104,700 and $89,500 respectively.

NEW YORK (AP) — The 17th annual All-American Collegiate Golf Foundation dinner will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here on June 9, approximately two months earlier than usual.

The dinner has been scheduled to coincide with the Westchester Golf Classic, which usually is held in August. But the PGA event was moved to June 11-14 this year.

The dinner will pay tribute to the eight members of the 1981 All-America team. Selection of this year's team will be made June 1, after the NCAA championships.

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — The first annual National Soccer Hall of Fame professional exhibition match will be played May 6 by the Pennsylvania Stoners and the New York United at Damaschke Field here.

The game by the two America's Soccer League teams from Allentown, Pa., and Hempstead, Long Island, will be a benefit for the soccer center, which has plans to obtain an interim site by the end of this year, a spokesman said Tuesday.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State took first place away from Miami of Florida again this week in the latest Collegiate Baseball newspaper poll.

The two teams have alternated their hold on the top slot in three previous polls this season.

Arizona State, 40-9, climbed back on top after the Sun Devils swept a three-game series over Southern Cal in Los Angeles, the first such string of home defeats in 40 years for Trojans' Coach Rod Dedeaux.

Arizona State is 20-1 in the Pac-10 Conference.

Miami, 43-4, dropped three recent road games. The Hurricanes opened their season with a 40-game home stand.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Mobil Corp., which sponsored the indoor track and field championships at New York in February, says it will also sponsor the outdoor championship meet here in June.

Mel Pine, public relations coordinator for the oil company, said Tuesday it has committed $2 million over the next four years to track and field sponsorship.

Lee, MHS golf girls advance

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Coach Paula Ferguson's girls golf team at Midland Lee hopes lightning can strike twice while Midland High wants to cap a highly successful golf season with a trip to state.

The Rebels and Bulldogs, along with six other schools, will open the two-day Region I Girls Golf Tournament in Lubbock Thursday at 9 a.m. on the Meadowbrook Municpal Golf Course located at the Mackenzie State Park. The top two teams and medalistswill advance to the state meet in Austin next week.

Last year, MHS won the District 5-5A title only to see the second place Rebels earn the honor to play at state.

MHS and Lee are the only schools to represent the district since girls' golf was started three years ago.

This year, coach Mary Baird's Midland High squad won its third straight District 5-5A title with a combined stroke total of 1,018. Lee finished second in the district battle with a 1,087 total stroke count.

Senior Ann Coombes, a three year letter winner, is the Bulldog ringleader. Coombes won her second straight district medalist title this season. Because the district medalist title, Coombes was also medalist winner at the Big Spring and Del Rio invitationals and at the Amarillo Relays Golf Tournament.

Janice Littlefield, a junior, was the runner-up district medalist. Littlefield, holding down the number two position on the team, won medalist honors at the Midland Fall Tournament and was runner up at Big Spring and Del Rio.

Grabbing third place medalist honors in the district was Bulldog sophomore Kelle Mobley. Mobley plays in the number three spot for the Purple Pack.

Rounding out the district champion squad are senior Teresa King, a three year letter winner, and Melissa Baldridge, a junior who lettered for the first time this season.

Midland High, winners at the Midland Falls Tournament, Big Spring and Del Rio Invitationals, Amarillo Relays, and district meets at San Angelo, Midland and Big Spring, wants to add the district and state crowns to its impressive list of first-place trophies.

Lee didn't win as impressivley as its cross town rivals but are still in the hunt for a return trip to state.

Leading the Rebel hopefuls are Penny Sutcliffe and Gayla Strickland. Sutcliffe finished fourth and Strickland fifth in the district medalist dog fight.

Other girls making the trip to Lubbock for the Rebels are Ellie Mee, Kari Watson and Lelia Lockhardt.

Cooper leads 5-5A golf play

ABILENE—About the only criticism of the Abilene Cooper golf team is that the Cougars don't know their No. 1 team from their No. 2 team. It really doesn't matter all that much since the Cougars are running one-two in the District 5-5A golf standings with one week left of play.

Cooper's No. 2 team shot a team 280 for a 1243 total, four strokes better than Cooper's No. 1 team, which shot a 302. San Angelo is 18 strokes back at 1265.

Midland Lee No. 1 is sixth with 1342 while Midland High No. 1 is seventh at 1355.

Cooper's Ron English and San Angelo's Ronnie Fletcher are tied for first in medal competition at 299 going into next week's final round of play at Big Spring.

Team Totals—1. Abilene Cooper No. 2 280-1243. 2.Abilene Cooper No. 1 302-1247. 3. Central No. 1 294-1265. 4. Odessa Permian 312-1333. 5. Odessa 223-1341. 6. Midland Lee No. 1 312-1362. 7. Harrision sets pact at relays

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The University of Pennsylvania's Frank Harrison won two events and took a slim lead Tuesday during the first five events of the decathlon competition at the Penn Relays.

Harrison, with 3,956 points, led Houston's David Saye, who had 3,934.

Harrison won the 100-meter dash in 10.9 seconds and the 400 in 49.7 seconds. He also placed second in the long jump, third in the shot put and tied for fourth in the high jump.

Bradshaw must make career choice

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Even if television or movie roles don't materialize, Terry Bradshaw must decide whether he really wants to play football any longer.

That was the appraisal Tuesday from Dan Rooney, president of the Steelers, as he maintained his wait-and-see approach in the face of mounting hints that the Pittsburgh quarterback will leave the team for an acting career.

"If Terry comes back, he's going to have to come back under the right conditions," said Rooney.

"I said this from the very beginning. He has to want to be a football player, and that's the only way it can be."

Meanwhile, the Steelers are currently being cautious not to back Bradshaw into a corner.

"I'm trying to be as noncommital as I possibly can be," said Rooney.

Yet the Steeler president acknowledged that recent remarks attributed to Bradshaw suggest he won't be a Steeler next season. And Rooney said the Steelers will wish Bradshaw the best — and do their best without him — if he chooses show business.

"Terry has been a great football player and more particularly he has been really a good person who has tried to do everything he could for the team, the city and himself," Rooney said.

Bad weather wrecking 5-5A baseball schedule

Coach Tim Whalen at Midland High and his counterpart, Ernie Johnson, at Midland Lee decided to to move their games Saturday so their players could have a long weekend for Easter. It's a move that may have backfired on the two mentors.

Last week's rains gave the players an extended holiday but there is plenty of action scheduled for them this week. Unfortunately, Mother Nature has already wrecked part of the plans.

Midland High's regularly scheduled game with Big Spring Tuesday was postponed due to wet grounds. This means that the Bulldogs, 10-9, 3-3, now have four games to makeup—against Midland Lee, Odessa Permian, Big Springs, and a non-district meeting with Monahans.

The Rebels, 10-6, 4-2, and Bulldogs are to meet today at Memorial Stadium diamond for a 4 p.m. shoot out if the weather cooperates. The dates for the Bulldogs'makeup games with Permain and Big Spring are not known at this time. Monahans is scheduled to play the Purple Pack Thursday, April 30, at Memorial Field diamond starting at 4 p.m.

Lee has also suffered from the rains. The Rebels were to have opened second-half district play last Saturday against Odessa High but that game was postponed due to the holiday. The Lee-OHS game has been rescheduled tentatively for April 30 at 4 p.m.

Whalen is concerned with all the postponed games. He said, "Once it gets dry enough to play we might have to play every day of the week just to catch up."

If MHS and Lee get their game in today as scheduled they will have completed the first half of District 5-5A play.

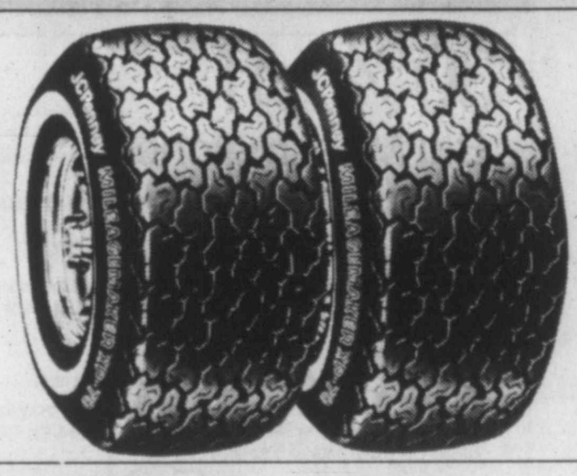

In Odessa, OHS and Permain will have already played a second-half game before the first-half schedule was completed. The Bronchos are playing at Abilene Cooper today while Permain plays host to Abilene High. On Saturday, Permian goes to Big Spring while Odessa High entertains San Angelo in 2 p.m. games.

Odessa High and Permian had their first-half ending game postponed last week because of wet grounds. The makeup game for the contest has been set for this Thursday at 4 p.m.

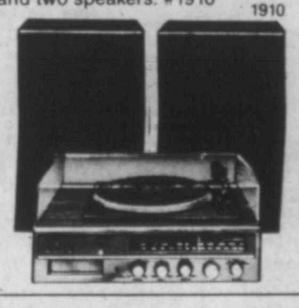

The other district teams all have at least one district game to makeup.

Flyers dislike own hockey medicine

By The Associated Press

Aggressive, pressure hockey always has been the trademark of the Philadelphia Flyers. They won games and championships by outhitting opponents and outhustling them in the corners.

Suddenly, however, the Flyers are getting a taste of their own medicine — and they don't like it.

Whether the Flyers can do anything tonight about the way the Calgary Flames have outplayed them in winning the last three games of their best-of-seven quarterfinal series will determine if Philadelphia is eliminated from the National Hockey League playoffs. The Flames, who had never won a postseason series prior to sweeping Chicago in the opening round this year, lead three games to one.

ALL THREE other NHL playoff series stand at 3-1, with the New York Islanders attempting to knock out the Edmonton Oilers, the New York Rangers looking to eliminate the St. Louis Blues, and the Minnesota North Stars hoping to end Buffalo's season. Only the defending champion Islanders will be at home.

"It's often said that games are won and lost along the boards," noted Flames defenseman Brad Marsh. "That has been Philly's success. They've got big forwards who can go in and dig the puck out. But we've got some big guys too. We've got to keep going after them."

Added Calgary forward Jim Peplinski concerning the Flyers bad-guy reputation, "If they want to get chippy, they've got to understand that they'll just get twice as much back. We can play it any way they want."

In all three of their one-goal wins, the Flames were outshot by Philadelphia. But goalie Pat Riggin has been outstanding, especially in the second and third games, when he made 42 and 47 saves respectively. Riggin did not play in the first game, a 4-0 Philadelphia triumph against Rejean Lemelin.

"I'm sure they're frustrated," added Marsh, the Flames captain. "They played two pretty good games in Calgary but we're getting the goaltending."

AND THE FLYERS are making uncustomary mistakes, the kind they rarely committed in reaching the Stanley Cup finals last year.

"We work, work and work," said Philadelphia center Bobby Clarke, "we get there, louse it up and give it right back."

"We have a challenge to respond to," added Flyers Coach Pat Quinn, whose team was sixth in the overall NHL standings to Calgary's seventh this season. "There has been a challenge all the way. But it's certainly a lot bigger right now."

The Oilers, Blues and Sabres could say the same thing. Each must rise to the occasion or go on vacation.

Edmonton, which wound up 14th during the season but surprised Montreal in three games in the opening round, can't afford to make many mistakes against the first-place Islanders.

"They capitalize on every mistake we make," said Oilers Coach Glen Sather. "We'll need a perfect game back there to beat them."

The Islanders will be without stalwart defenseman Stefan Persson, who suffered a broken jaw Monday night. Still, the Islanders are solid favorites to clinch the series.

"The greatest thing a team can have is playoff experience," said New York's Bob Nystrom, who scored the Cup-winning goal last spring against Philadelphia. "They've (the Oilers) got it all, including exceptional talent. And a year in the playoffs is certainly not going to hurt them."

THE BLUES'S main hurt is to their pride. After finishing an impressive second in league standings, they've been dominated by the Rangers' forecheckers and speedy skaters.

The Rangers have gotten numerous breakaways and clear shots at Blues goalie Mike Liut, an All-Star who has appeared tired in this round after playing every minute of an exhausting five-game preliminary series with Pittsburgh. The Blues defense has not been effective.

"I think maybe we have them frustrated," said New York's Ulf Nilsson. "They've been down and have had to open up. That's given us even more chances."

St. Louis' Wayne Babych, a 54-goal man this season, thinks the Blues aren't pressing the Rangers enough.

"We're giving their defense too much time," he said. "All year, our defense made teams make mistakes. Now it's not happening."

Rankin Red Devils win District 7-A track crown

STERLING CITY—Rankin won both relay events in capturing five first places to win the District 7-A track meet over 39 points over second place Sterling City Tudesday.

Dave Stieb getting no runs

By The Associated Press

Dave Stieb has enough goose-eggs to whip up a major-league omelet.

But it's leaving a bitter taste.

Stieb has started three games for the Toronto Blue Jays this season. He has also lost three games this season.

In the 21 innings he has pitched, the Blue Jays have given him no runs. None. Zero. Zilch.

Mariners 3, Angels 0

Floyd Bannister's two-hitter and RBI singles by Richie Zisk, Jim Anderson and Bruce Bochte enabled the Mariners to beat California.

Red Sox 10, Rangers 4

John Tudor, a left-hander, is unique. He finds Fenway Park a fun place to pitch. In his career the Boston southpaw is 7-1 in the bandbox and 3-6 away from it. Against Texas, he scattered nine hits and, of the Rangers' runs, one was unearned and two others came by way of walks.

Yankees 2, Tigers 0

Doug Bird isn't really a starter but he's the only right-hander the Yanks can use in that role for now. He's a stranger among the lefties — Ron Guidry, Tommy John, Rudy May and Tom Underwood.

MTC has events planned

The Midland Tennis Club is a non-profit organization that offers people of all ages and levels of expertise a chance to compete in the sport of tennis and MTC has several upcoming events for its members.

There are regularly scheduled weekend tournaments which are played at the Midland High and Midland Lee tennis courts. Membership dues are $20 for the first year and $10 a year after that.

Dues are paid at S.D. Armstrong's Tennis Shop, 906 W. Tennessee just behind Midland High. It is also the location that entrants must register for a tournament by 6:30 p.m. on the Thursday preceeding the event. On the following Friday, entrants are to check the bulletin board for scheduled play.

Tournaments upcoming are Men's Singles, April 25-26; Women's Singles, May 2-3; Men's Doubles, May 9-10; Women's Doubles, May 16-17; Mixed Doubles, May 23-24; and Men's Singles, May 30-31.

Sampson still mulling plans

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia basketball All American Ralph Sampson "is very outspoken about the fact that he has not made a decision yet" whether to turn professional and enter the National Basketball Association draft this year, says Detroit Pistons General Manager Jack McCloskey.

McCloskey, who met here Tuesday with the 7-foot-4 sophomore and Cavalier Coach Terry Holland, heads one of two teams trying to get Sampson to enter the NBA draft in June.

SAMPSON MET last week with Donald Carter, owner of the Dallas Mavericks, the other team vying for the Harrisonburg, Va., native's basketball talents. Detroit and Dallas will flip a coin April 30, five days after Sampson's decision deadline Saturday, for the No.1 draft pick.

Sampson has indicated "he'll have his decision Saturday afternoon," said Virginia sports publicist Doug Elgin.

What that decision will be is anyone's guess, but Holland has said he thinks he'll be able to keep his star center for another year.

"I don't think there's any 100 percent right solution," he said. "That's the tough part.

"I think he sees the advantage of staying in college. If all things were equal, I think he'd stay in college. But let's face it, there is a large financial consideration to be made."

Both Dallas and Detroit have promised to make Sampson the wealthiest No.1 draft pick ever.

Holland said talk about money at the Tuesday meeting with McCloskey was "very general. It was along the lines of, 'You know what our first offer was — more than what any rookie has ever gotten. We're willing to start there and negotiate up.'"

MCCLOSKEY SAID he didn't press Sampson for an answer during the 30-to 45-minute meeting in Holland's office, but "it would be very surprising to me if he does come out."

Asked why, he said, "It's what wasn't there. There was no attorney there."

No direct comment was available from Sampson, but in a tape released by Virginia's sports information office he said: "I'm in the process of evaluating my stay here at the University of Virginia and what benefits I will have if I do turn pro this year."

He said Dallas was "really not pushing the issue" because of future first-round draft picks, but "Detroit is saying, 'We've got to have you; we need you.' It's two different types of situations."

Trevino's name on 'blacklist'

LONDON (AP) — American golfer Lee Trevino and Formula One motor racing champion Alan Jones of Australia are among 128 international sportsmen and women named on a "blacklist" in London Wednesday.

The list, issued by SANROC, the South African Non-Racial Olympic Committee, is to be submitted to the United Nations Special Committee Against Apartheid. It is hoped that governments will bar sportsmen named on the list

All those named have either played sport in white-minority ruled South Africa since January 1, 1981 or have "been involved in providing respectability for apartheid sport."

Don't push Nicaragua

Perhaps the Reagan administration felt it had no realistic choice but to terminate U.S. economic aid to Nicaragua. The Central American nation did deserve some penalty for serving as a conduit for Soviet-financed arms to leftist guerrillas in neighboring El Salvador. However, Washington should be careful not to push Nicaragua's left-leaning Sandinista government into Cuban and Soviet arms.

Some might argue that Nicaragua is already there, and certainly the Marxist rhetoric of some members of the government may give that impression. But words are not the true measure of what is happening in Nicaragua today. The country has a mixed economy. There is an active private sector. Political dissent is possible. And what has helped keep both the private sector and dissent alive is U.S. economic assistance.

The administration no doubt is under heavy pressure from its own hard-liners to end all aid to Nicaragua. Termination is what the letter of the law requires if Nicaragua were guilty of spreading terrorism in other countries.

Thus cutting off the $15 million in remaining economic aid may be aimed at placating those hard-liners.

However, the administration wisely did not demand that Nicaragua also return $60 million already spent, another penalty that could be imposed under the law. And Washington left the door open for resuming food-aid shipments in the near future.

The Sandinista government has been contrite. It badly needs assistance to overcome the massive problems caused by the destructive civil war that ousted the long-time Somoza dictatorship. The State Department has acknowledged that the arms flow through Nicaragua has all but stopped since U.S. aid was originally suspended earlier this year.

The trick is not to let the U.S.-Nicaragua relationship deteriorate any further. If America wants stability in Central America, the last thing needed is a radical Nicaragua firmly in Havana's grasp. The administration has made its point. It is time now to see what can be constructively achieved between Washington and Managua.

Signs of the storms

The late-afternoon rumbling of thunderstorms in and around Midland has heralded the arrival of spring in the Permian Basin.

Anyone who has lived in the Basin for any length of time should be familiar with the damage spring and summer storms can bring — torrential rainfall that turns city streets into rivers, hailstorms that batter houses and automobiles, gusting winds that can cause severe damage.

And, of course, the possibility of tornadoes is particularly high in this spring and summer season.

Many of these storms, intense enough to damage property, also can pose a threat to life. Mostly they strike with fury and are short-lived. Oftentimes there isn't much advance warning by information systems regarding dangerous or destructive storms.

It's always best to take no chances. During this spring and summer season, Midlanders and other Permian Basin residents would be wise to seek information systems, but also to watch for the natural warning signs of the storms — cloud banks laced with lightning, increasing wind velocity, a change in temperature and changing cloud color. These and other signs can tip residents to a coming severe storm. Then steps can be taken to secure and protect property and life.

BIBLE VERSE

And he shall send forth his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other. Matt. 24:31

ART BUCHWALD

Pulitzer Prize winner one the paper won't forget

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Jason Robards was in his office gently snoozing, when Robert Redford, his assistant managing editor, came in to see him.

"Have you got a minute?" Redford said.

"What is it?" Robards asked in his gravelly voice.

"I've got good news and bad news," Redford told him.

The good news is that one of our reporters won the Pulitzer Prize."

"That's great," said Robards. "Put it on the front page. What's the bad news?"

"The bad news is the story she won it for isn't true."

"On second thought you'd better put it in the food section."

"I don't know what happened," Redford said. "She swore every fact was true."

"Why didn't you check it out with me first?" Robards said.

"We did. You were the one who OK'd the story. Don't you remember, we came to your house late at night, and you came out on the lawn in your bathrobe and read it under the street lamp."

"Oh, my God. It's coming back to me now. Isn't that the girl who graduated Magna Cum Laude from Vassar?"

Redford said, "Would you believe Magna Cum nothing Laude from the University of Toledo."

"I need a drink," Robards said. "Who else knows about this?"

"Just myself and Dustin Hoffman," Redford said.

"Well, that gives us time anyway."

"I'm not so sure. Dustin now works for ABC and they're going to lead with it tonight on the evening news."

"OK, we blew it," said Robards. "But I don't want a coverup. I want us to play this story straight down the line. Put your best reporters on it, dig up all the facts, talk to everyone you can, get statements from everybody from the Pulitzer Committee to the Mayor of Washington D.C."

"I gotcha boss. If there's a smoking gun we'll find it," Redford said.

"Do you still see 'Deep Throat'?" Robards asked.

"All the time. He works in the garage where I park my car."

"Well, see what he knows about the Pulitzer gang. Find out where the money's coming from for the Prize. Talk to all the wives of the editors, and find out where they were the night the story was printed. One of them has to break."

"I just thought of something. I used to date a girl who worked in the city room. Maybe she knows how the article got in the paper."

"Good idea. Take her to dinner and whatever."

The secretary came in. "President Nixon's on the phone."

Robards picked it up. He listened for 30 seconds, and hung up.

Redford said, "WHAT DID HE SAY?"

"Nothing. He just gave me a Bronx raspberry."

"At least you know who your friends are when you make a blooper," Redford said.

"People forget so soon," Robards said. "OK, let's get back to business. I won't accept any facts on how we blew it, unless it's confirmed by two sources."

"Don't worry, boss. We won't rest until we get to the bottom of this. I have a friend at the FBI who owes me a favor. He might be willing to open his files for us."

"Good," Robards said. "If anyone asks you what you're doing, tell him you're working on a story about how many husbands Gov. Carey's wife really had."

"I'll get on it right away," Redford said. "What are you going to do now?"

"Me?" said Robards. "I'm going to call my agent and see if I can get out of this lousy movie."

Crooked firms still get federal contracts

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — If your next-door neighbor gets rooked by an incompetent contractor, common sense tells you not to hire the same firm to work on your house. Unfortunately, no such prudence guides federal agencies when they shell out millions of the taxpayers' dollars in government contracts.

Poor performance or outright fraud may get a contractor blacklisted by one agency, but this doesn't stop officials of other agencies from awarding lucrative contracts to the same firm — even when they are well aware of the company's bad record.

Government auditors estimate that some $25 billion a year is lost through fraud and waste. As part of a continuing series on the squandering of public funds by inefficient or dishonest contractors — sometimes apparently in league with corrupt federal officials — I'll offer some disturbing examples of agencies turning a blind eye to a contractor's inefficiency or wrongdoing:

— A General Services Administration investigator recently told the Senate subcommittee on oversight of government management about the strange case of Transco Security. He testified that Transco systematically overbilled the government, charged for services not rendered and falsified work records of guards, many of whom were untrained.

After a lengthy investigation, the General Services Administration suspended Transco for fraud. But that didn't stop the Environmental Protection Agency and the Defense Department from giving Transco 20 more contracts totaling $1.3 million.

— According to congressional testimony and documents in confidential government files, Mayfair Construction Co. of Milwaukee was suspended by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1978. The firm had been awarded $16 million in contracts from 1975 through 1977 to convert Apollo facilities at the Kennedy Space Center into the launch for the space shuttle.

Besides delays in the construction schedules, NASA turned up falsified certificates of skill for Mayfair welding inspectors and other instances of "questionable paperwork," a space center official told my reporter Judy Grande. The FBI is looking into the possibility of kickbacks to government employees. Unabashed, Mayfair is seeking an additional $6 million on its NASA contract.

The year following Mayfair's suspension by NASA, Vandenberg Air Force Base and the Army Corps of Engineers awarded the company a $3.1 million contract. Officials said they hadn't heard about the suspension.

The top brass at McConnell Air Force Base went even further: Though aware of the NASA suspension, they gave Mayfair a $4.2 million contract — over the objection of the base's contract officer. The contract has already brought disagreements over quality control, work schedule, completion dates, personal safety and overall contract requirements.

— The Robinson Electrical Co. of New Orleans was low bidder to modernize the wiring of that city's Desire Housing Project, the largest low-rent complex in the nation. The work cost the Department of Housing and Urban Development $1.65 million.

Three years after the job was done, the housing complex was plagued by blackouts. Three engineering firms hired to investigate reported that poor workmanship and the use of aluminum instead of copper cables were possible causes of the blackouts. It's estimated that it will cost HUD $1.5 million to put things right.

Despite this — and the company president's perjury conviction involving other government contracts — HUD has been unable to blacklist Robinson. An administrative law judge ruled that the perjury conviction was a technicality and did not warrant such drastic action. The questions of poor performance were also dismissed because too much time had elapsed and the housing authority had accepted Robinson's work at the time.

Footnote: Mayfair Construction officials and the president of Robinson Electrical Co. did not return repeated phone calls to get their side of the story. A Transco Security official said she would ask the firm's attorney to respond to questions. The call never came.

OIL ROIL: Mobil Oil, the most vocal of the "Seven Sisters" of Big Oil, is hopping mad over a 2 percent New York State tax that the corporation isn't allowed to pass along to its customers. Mobil, which has a multi-million-dollar public relations budget, refuses to pay the state's gross receipts tax, claiming that the pass-through prohibition is unconstitutional. The tax has already brought in $106 million from less stubborn oil companies. James Tully, New York's commissioner of tahadion and finance, says Mobil will be treated "like any other tax delinquent." Meanwhile, Mobil is suing in federal court to avoid the 2 percent tax on its enormous earnings.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Energy Secretary James Edwards will hold a public meeting with 22 corporate big shots on April 30 to discuss national energy policies. They are the secretary's "special advisory commission," and the public meeting will be held in the afternoon. The real meeting, though, will be an invitation-only luncheon the same day. Press and public are not invited to that one.

— Members of the Kennedy and Ford families weren't the only ones who had a terrible feeling of deja vu as they watched the films of the assassination attempt on President Reagan. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. remembered the attempt on his father in February 1933, when the president-elect was shot at in Miami. The gunman missed, but fatally wounded Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 22, the 112th day of 1981. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 22, 1898, the first shot of the Spanish-American War was fired when the "U.S.S. Nashville" captured a Spanish merchant ship off Key West, Fla.

On this date:

In 1541, St. Ignatius de Loyola was elected first head of the Jesuit religious order.

In 1864, Congress authorized the U.S. mint to use the motto "In God We Trust" on coins.

In 1889, what came to be known as the "Oklahoma land rush" began when thousands of homesteaders swarmed into the territory and staked out claims.

And in 1915, during World War I, poison gas first was used by the German army.

Ten years ago: Haitian President Francois Duvalier died, and his son, Jean-Claude, was sworn into office.

Five years ago: The West German manufacturer of the Volkswagen announced it would invest $250 million in a car assembly plant in the United States.

One year ago: Boats manned by Cuban exiles from Florida headed back for the United States with more than 200 Cuban refugees aboard.

Today's birthdays: Violinist Yehudi Menuhin is 65 years old. Actor Eddie Albert is 73.

Thought for today: It is a funny thing about life: If you refuse to accept anything but the best, you very often get it. — W. Somerset Maughan, British novelist (1874-1966).

'True Believers' want answers to Karen Silkwood mystery

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — A myth must be fed to be perpetuated, and this has happened often in the story of Karen Silkwood, a martyr to True Believers in the anti-nuclear power movement. The latest nourishment is "The Killing of Karen Silkwood," a book coyly charging the FBI with covering up the truth, and offering yet another unverified scenario explaining her death.

Those souls who never heard of Karen Silkwood are advised that she was a troubled young woman who worked in the Kerr-McGee plutonium laboratory near Oklahoma City, became contaminated with plutonium, and died when her car went off the road and struck a wing-wall of a concrete culvert.

As a union activist spying on Kerr-McGee, Karen got into all manner of scrapes. It has never been determined how the plutonium got into her apartment where she contaminated herself. A gang of activists eventually sued Kerr-McGee on behalf of her estate, had two of their counts dismissed, but, employing the notion of "strict liability," won on the charge of negligence by the giant energy corporation.

Kerr-McGee was ordered to pay $10.5 million in damages to the Silkwood estate. The verdict is being studied by a U.S. appellate court in Denver, and a ruling is expected within the next few months. Meanwhile, the anti-nuclear movement has a field day with their martyr.

So the other night, here in Washington, some 400 activists crowded into an auditorium provided by the National Educational Association to cheer a speech by Richard Rashke, author of the new book purporting to tell the real story of Karen's death.

Now Woodward and Bernstein had "Deep Throat" — the mysterious source in their Watergate book. So Rashke has "Echo," whom he described in a radio talk show as an "FBI agent of authority placed very high in the FBI headquarters," who read a "secret" document describing a heretofore undisclosed "chase" of the Silkwood car the night she died.

Rashke says that he has not seen the document, nor can he get it, "but I know that it exists." Asked if he thinks Kerr-McGee had Silkwood killed, Rashke says, "no comment, because I don't want to get involved in libel."

When he was asked on WOR radio (New York) "Who killed her?", Rashke replied: "Would you like me to speculate? I think it was a federal law enforcement agency of some kind."

But why would the feds want to kill poor Karen? Because, Rashke speculates, she had called a friend three weeks before she died to report that 40 pounds of plutonium was missing from the Kerr-McGee plant. By this reasoning, federal agencies had to cover up the disappearance of the plutonium or its transfer to a friendly country.

Rashke says the FBI or the CIA are the possible killers of Silkwood. Nowadays, Rashke and other anti-nuke folks cite a "friendly country" as being protected in a coverup of improper plutonium shipments. A couple of years ago, these activists were more specific and said, "Israel."

Kerr-McGee, weary of all the dark charges and black cats in the basement, makes it clear that the missing 40 pounds can be explained by a miscalculation in the original count plus the fact 17 pounds of plutonium was determined to be in the pipes at the plant. Moreover, says Kerr-McGee, the plutonium processed in their plants wasn't the kind used in making nuclear weapons, so why would anyone want to steal it?

The True-Believers who gathered at this Silkwood "benefit" shut out such explanations. Their attention is focused on current crusades against nuclear power plants, the Reagan budget, the CIA and intervention in El Salvador. They riveted on the British Broadcasting Corporation's far overdone anti-nuclear film, "Karen Silkwood, 1979," which depicted the late Sen. Bob Kerr as an evil force capable of corrupting a young president named John F. Kennedy, and creating a corporation so powerful that it "doesn't have to shout, only purr" to get its way.

Ah, with all the political rhetoric reminiscent of the Sixties, guitars strumming and folk singers singing, it was a night that Bella Abzug or Abbie Hoffman would have relished, if just for old time's sake.

Rashke tempered his anger with an attempt at understanding. Silkwood's death "wasn't first-degree murder," he allowed, "because even the people trying to force Karen off the road couldn't see the wing-wall. Perhaps it was second-degree murder. I can't say."

He explains that her pursuers were after vital documents which would have reflected badly on Kerr-McGee. To this date, those incriminating documents haven't been found. Many doubt they ever existed.

"The FBI knows who shoved her off the road," Rashke shouted to the Believers. "We ought to pound our fists on the table, and demand answers."

The only recourse now, Rashke says, is President Reagan. "The president is the only one that can get access to the FBI files, assuming they haven't shredded them already and that they would cooperate with the president."

"Echo" told him about the FBI coverup. And when "Echo"" isn't talking, Rashke has "Sierra" (his CIA source) and even "Fairy Godfather," his inside man in the Oklahoma City constabulary.

My, oh, my. That evening was like an old-fashioned revival meeting.

Many refugees cross border from Afghanistan into Iran

Agence France Presse

TEHRAN, Iran — More than 1.5 million refugees have crossed the border from Afghanistan into Iran since the Soviet intervention 16 months ago.

More come daily, especially when fighting intensifies between Afghan guerrillas and Soviet and Kabul government forces. Ahmad Archi, deputy director of political affairs at the Iranian Interior Ministry and a member of the Afghan Refugees Coordinating Council, estimates that the figure could be as high as 1.8 million, about the same as the number in Pakistan.

Iranian aid is strictly humanitarian. Refugees are concentrated in the frontier provinces of Khorasan, Sistan and Baluchistan, either in special camps (off-limits to foreign journalists) or in towns where they have friends or relatives, Archi said.

The coordinating council caters to "all the daily needs" of the refugees, in conjunction with the Red Crescent and the provincial governors. Clothing, food and financial help is provided, along with education for the children.

Two Afghan resistance organizations — the Islamic Party of Afghanistan and the Islamic Movement of Afghanistan — have prominent headquarters in Mashhad, capital of Khorasan, and the holy city of Qom, 50 miles south of Tehran. But Iran, while condemning "Soviet aggression," insists its aid is on purely Islamic grounds.

"Our aid is that of Moslems for their deprived brothers," Archi said. It was aimed at making up for "the defaulting by international organizations such as the United Nations."

Archi added, "If we sent them back they would be killed. ... some beg us either to let them in or shoot them on the spot."

The refugees have also included a "small number" of troops who had deserted from the Afghan government forces, Archi said.

When the exodus began, Tehran laid down strict rules, banning the recruitment of guerrillas in Iran, the supply of arms across the border and interference in internal Iranian affairs.

However, an official of the Afghanistan Islamic Party at Mashhad said 50,000 guerrillas crossed the frontier every month.

And on the first anniversary of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan last Dec. 27, several hundred demonstrators stormed the Afghan and Soviet embassies in Tehran, breaking windows and furniture and burning the Soviet flag.

Sunbelt now on defensive

By DAN BALZ
The Washington Post

Regional warfare in Congress has escalated with the creation of a Sun Belt Council designed to prevent the Northeast and Midwest from taking too big a piece of the federal budget.

More than 90 House members from 17 southern and southwestern states have joined forces to counterattack the Northeast-Midwest Coalition and what they believe has been a significant shift in the flow of federal funds from their region to the North.

"We really resisted forming it, but we felt it was forced on us by our Northeast and Midwest colleagues, who have a case of terminal paranoia," said Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, the council chairman. "They blame all the problems of their area on the formula for federal grants, which is pretty absurd."

John Buchanan, a former Alabama congressman who is serving as the council's staff director, called the new caucus "a counterforce, not so much to serve regional interests of the Sun Belt, but to protect the rest of the country from the highly effective efforts of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition on behalf of their region, usually at the expense of the rest of the country."

Said Rep. Bob Edgar, D-Pa., chairman of the Northeast-Midwest Coalition, "If they are organizing out of fear that we were winning too many battles, I appreciate that compliment, but as I look at the Reagan budget it doesn't look as though it's tilted from South to North."

Edgar's group has argued that President Reagan's proposed budget cuts will fall most heavily on the Frost Belt, and is organizing to soften the blows as the budget makes its way through Congress.

Buchanan said the Sun Belt Council, which disagrees with its northern brethren on the bias in the Reagan budget, will try to prevent the North from having its way in the distribution of the cuts.

He said the new caucus will work to reverse a polic6 that now targets defense spending to areas of high unemployment, fight to get a larger share of energy assistance funds, which now go more to the colder northern states, and argue that propos3d cuts in welfare actually fall more heavily on the largely black, rural poor in the South rather than welfare recipients in the North.

"Sun Belt is really an unfortunate term," Buchanan said, "because it fosters the image of states prospering at the expense of the East and Midwest. The reality is that some (Sun Belt) states are doing very well and others are not doing well at all."

The caucus, formed on !pril 8 after several years of aborted attempts, will have a budget of under $100,000 and a small staff, Buchanan said. It will work closely with the Southern Growth Policies Board, the Southern Governors Association and the Southern Legislative Council.

"We're going to have a modest effort, but I think it will be eno7gh to put straight some of (the other side's) outrageous propaganda and statistics," Wilson said. "They've got 40 or 50 staff people who turn out reams of false documents every week."

The Northeast-Midwest Coalition, formed in 1976, includes 213 House members.

Daniel testimony complete

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Attorneys for both sides in the sensational Daniel child custody suit have completed their presentations, after Liberty County Sheriff C.L. "Buck" Eckols admitted he threatened to have Vickie Daniel arrested if she went to her husband's funeral.

Eckols was the last witness called before attorneys for Mrs. Daniel rested their case in the suit, filed by Jean Daniel Murph to wrest custody of Mrs. Daniel's two youngest children. Rebuttal testimony began today.

Mrs. Murph's attorneys completed their presentation almost three weeks ago in the long-running court action.

Mrs. Daniel, 33, has been charged with murder in her husband's Jan. 19 shooting death at their home and Mrs. Murph, sister to the former Texas House Speaker, claims that helps make Mrs. Daniel an unfit mother.

Mrs. Murph seeks custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1, youngest sons of Vickie and Price Daniel Jr.

Eckols was called to the stand by Mrs. Daniel's lead defense attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes of Houston, in an effort to show local law enforcement officers were prejudiced against Mrs. Daniel in their investigation of Daniel's death.

Eckols denied the charged but admitted he once told a Daniel relative Mrs. Daniel could be arrested if she attended Daniel's funeral.

Earlier, Haynes succeeded in having a brown paper bag and its contents admitted as evidence in the case.

New NBC series based on gay character

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sidney Shorr," a prime-time series planned by NBC for broadcast in the fall, is based on a pilot movie with a gay leading character — though the network says homosexuality never was intended to be the focus of the plot.

"One might presume that he is (homosexual)," Irv Wilson, an NBC programming executive, said Tuesday. "He talks in the movie about a relationship he once had with another man."

Tony Randall, an Emmy-winner for "The Odd Couple" on ABC in the the mid-'70s who has been cast as Shorr, has on several occasions described the character he plays as homosexual.

"When I saw the script for the movie," said Newton Dieter of the Gay Media Task Force, "I was pleased to see this warm, sympathetic character, clearly gay, shown in a positive light. When the story was developed for the series, his homosexuality became incidental.

"Basically, NBC had said, 'This is not really about homosexuality.' They would be happy to see the sex thing go away," Dieter said.

The issue arises nonetheless in an atmosphere of increasing pressure on the networks from the Coalition for Better Television and similar groups concerned with sex and violence on TV.

An NBC spokesman, Alan Baker, said the network had not been contacted by any of the media watchdog groups regarding "Sidney Shorr."

The Rev. Donald Wildmon, head of the National Federation for Decency and a leader of the Coalition for Better Television, said, "All we know is what we read in the papers," but added:

"I think that NBC will have a lot of trouble getting sponsors for a program like that, at the full rate. I know they will."

The series from Warner Bros. Television is based on a made-for-TV movie, "Sidney Shorr," completed several months ago but still not scheduled for broadcast. The network said it would schedule the film in the future.

Randall described the pilot as "the best thing I've done in years."

NBC, in its news release, said Randall's character is "an artist employed by an advertising agency who enjoys a platonic relationship with a girl half his age and her daughter. The relationship develops to the point Sidney raises his friend's daughter as his own."

Betty Ashley, a spokeswoman for Warner Television, said homosexuality was not the key issue in the pilot. "He was living with a man who died, and he was lonely," she said. "It's the story of a lonely man and how he is affected by a young child."

NBC, in last place in prime-time since mid-1977, is struggling to gain a competitive foothold in the three-way race, with little apparent success.

CBS wins prime-time race by big margin

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Winner by a whisker over ABC a year ago, CBS overwhelmed the competition in the three-way race during the 1980-81 TV year, season-long figures from the networks show.

The A.C. Nielsen Co. says a point in the ratings for a prime-time program represents 778,000 homes, and CBS' lead at the end of the 1980-81 season was 1.6 — an average rating of 19.8 to 18.2 for ABC and 16.6 for NBC.

CBS said Tuesday the margin was its largest since the 1973-74 season, when the network defeated then-runnerup NBC by 2.4 points.

The networks say CBS' rating for the 25-week season means in an average prime-time minute during the period, 19.8 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to CBS.

CBS won the three-way race for the 1979-80 season by one-tenth of a point over three-time champion ABC.

NBC argued that the recently completed season began Sept. 15, but ABC and CBS held off new programming for more than a month, citing the 10-week actors' strike as the delaying factor. CBS was the No. 1 network in the longer NBC season, too.

CBS's "Dallas" was the week's No. 1 program, as it had been 17 times in the last six months, while "60 Minutes," last season's top-rated show, finished fourth in the week ending April 19.

In addition, CBS listed "Private Benjamin," introduced two weeks ago, in fifth place, and a companion sitcom, "The Two of Us," in 11th.

CBS' rating for the week was 17.3, to 15.8 for ABC, which won the weekly competition the two previous weeks, and 13.9 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 17.3 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to CBS.

NBC's average rating was the for any network since the week ending Sept. 16, 1980, when the same networ registered 12.7.

The rating for "Dallas" was 31.3. Nielsen says that means of all the country's TV-equipped homes, 31.3 percent saw at least part of the program.

ABC got a boost from "The Ten Commandments," an Easter perennial, which finished ninth.

NBC listed three of the week's five lowest-rated programs, a movie, "Family Plot" in the No. 66 position, followed by "Disney's Wonderful World," an ABC movie, "The Fifth Musketeer," "NBC Magazine" and ABC's "Omnibus."

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Dallas," with a rating of 31.3 representing 24.4 million homes, "M-A-S-H," 25.5 or 19.8 million, "Dukes of Hazzard," 25.2 or 19.6 million, and "60 Minutes," 24.9 or 19.4 million, all CBS; "Three's Company" 22.7 or 17.3 million, ABC; "Private Benjamin," 22 or 17.1 million, CBS; "Diff'rent Strokes," 21.5 or 16.7 million, NBC; "House Calls," 21.1 or 16.4 million, CBS; Movie-"The Ten Commandments," 20.8 or 16.2 million, and "Too Close for Comfort," 20.7 or 16.1 million, both ABC.

The next dozen programs:

"The Two of Us" and "Magnum, P.I.," both CBS; "Facts of Life," NBC; "Lou Grant" and "Alice," both CBS; "Love Boat," ABC; "Hart to Hart" and "Greatest American Hero," both ABC, tie; "The Jeffersons," CBS, and "Happy Days," ABC, "Bob Hope Special," NBC, and "That's Incredible," ABC, three-way tie.

1-3-1: GENERAL PENALTY; CONTINUING VIOLATIONS: Whenever in this Code or in any ordinance of the City an act is prohibited or is made or declared to be unlawful or an offense or a misdemeanor, or wherever in such Code or ordinance the doing of any act is required or the failure to do any act is declared to be unlawful, where no specific penalty is provided therefor, the violation of any such provision of this Code or any such ordinance shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200.00); provided, however, that if the minimum or maximum penalty provided by this Code for any such offense is less or greater than the maximum penalty provided for the same of similar offense under the Laws of the State Statute shall be minimum or maximum penalty under this Code. Each day any violation of this Code or of any ordinance shall continue shall constitute a separate offense.
Any person who shall aid, abet or assist in the violation of any provision of this Code or any other ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished as provided in the preceding paragraph.
In any prosecution for the violation of any provision of this Code, it shall not be necessary for the complaint to negative or for the State to prove any exception contained in this Code concerning any prohibited act, provided, however, that any such exception made therein may be urged as a defense by the person charged by such complaint.

The calm after the storm

Tuesday began with the threat of severe thunderstorms and tornados, but ended rather peacefully with a serene sunset. Only .21 of an inch of rain fell Tuesday and the threat of severe weather has all but disappeared, with only a 20 percent chance of rain set for tonight.

Major high-rise office complex, hotel planned

Plans for a major high-rise complex and luxury hotel were revealed today by officials of Texas Partners, owner of the Vaughn Building and adjoining property. The project, still in the preliminary planning stages, is envisioned as a complex in excess of 30 stories, with 350,000 square feet of office space.

Texas Partners, the owner/developer, is a partnership comprised of MGF Oil Corporation of Midland, and Ronald A. Harris Associates of San Francisco. The joint announcement was issued by R.O. "Jack" Major, president and chief executive officer of MGF, and Ronald A. Harris.

"We believe the addition of this substantial project in the very heart of Midland will help meet the growing need for quality office facilities, and also serve the needs of the business traveler," Major said. He noted the proximity of key financial institutions and oil companies to the proposed site.

The property is bounded by Texas, Marienfeld, Illinois and Big Spring streets, and includes all of the block except the HBF Building. Also included is the site of the old Petroleum Club.

Harris explained that the partnership is presently seeking a first class hotel operator to provide facilities superior to any in the area. "We plan to cater to the seasoned business traveler who is accustomed to, and expects, the best accommodations," he added.

A parking garage for 900 to 1,000 vehicles will be built as part of the complex. A health club on top of the parking facility will include indoor tennis and racquetball facilities.

Although the project is still in the preliminary planning stage, and architectural drawings are not currently available, a master plan is being compiled and will be released when completed. The total project cost will be announced upon completion of the master plan.

Major indiated that the office complex will be complemented by an attractive atrium of approximately 25,000 square feet. "We plan to make this project one that will meet or even exceed the high standards and expectations of Midland's business community," he said.

Project manager is Louis R. Williams, with offices in Suite 106, Vaughn Building, 683-4431.

Reagan 'protecting' sale of warplanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is going ahead with the sale of sophisticated radar reconnaissance planes to Saudi Arabia, but he's stalling in sending the plan to Congress in hopes of quelling strong opposition there and averting a threatened veto.

The White House formally announced the sale Tuesday — triggering criticism that it is a "dangerous action" and a "mistake" — but dropped plans to send the proposal to Congress next Monday.

"It may be a period of time before we send it up there," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters Tuesday.

One congressional source, who asked not to be identified, said the White House was stalling because a majority of the Senate opposes it, with 51 members ready to vote against it and 38 members planning to support it.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker Jr., who talked to Reagan by telephone shortly before the announcement, believes the president should not send the proposal to Congress until after the Israeli elections June 30 in hopes that opposition will have abated by that time, Senate sources say.

Baker was to fly from Knoxville today to meet with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to discuss the sale. He will meet with Reagan on Thursday.

When the arms package is sent to Congress, it will include the five AWACS command planes that have drawn the greatest opposition, as well as gear to enhance 62 F-15 jetfighters the Saudis have on order, Speakes said.

Opponents say the sale would increase the Arab threat to Israel, and that secret equipment on the AWACS — Airborne Warning and Control Systems — planes might be compromised.

Congress can block the sale with rejection by both the House and Senate, but the 30-day veto period does not start until the sale is formally presented to Congress.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said in a statement that he will try "to block this dangerous action."

He said the Saudis do not need the AWACS, which he called "offensive weapons that can easily be used to threaten the security of Israel, our closest ally in the Middle East."

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Near East subcommittee, called the sale "a mistake."

"It should be reconsidered," Boschwitz said. "This package appears to face certain defeat in the Senate."

But Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the package's fate in Congress depends on conditions the administration is trying to negotiate with the Saudis.

"It depends on what the package is and what understandings have been reached and what conditions are being laid down," Percy said.

He indicated that the negotiations deal with assurances that the AWACS and F-15s will not be used against Israel, and that secret electronics gear on the AWACS planes will not be compromised.

The Boston Globe reported today that the compromise the administration is working on also would make it clear that U.S. Air Force personnel would be pulled off the AWACS if the aircraft were diverted to a mission other than in defense of Saudi Arabia.

An Associated Press survey last week found that 45 senators, nearly half the Senate, are leaning or committed against the sale and another 20 are concerned about it.

In announcing the proposed sale Tuesday, Speakes told reporters "the president believes this step is essential to protect our interests in the region."

"Over the course of the last several weeks we have been reviewing the situation regarding the serious deterioration of security conditions in the Middle East and Persian Gulf region."

"Attacking crime is a new Administration policy. The best measure is prompt and quick sentencing and there should be mandatory sentencing for those who commit crimes with a gun."

— Vice President George Bush

He's one of the president's men

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reporter-Telegram political writer Lana Cunningham recently spent several days in Washington interviewing government officials and attending a briefing on President Reagan's economic plan. This article deals with Vice President George Bush and Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

WASHINGTON — Increased savings, more jobs and higher productivity. Those are three positive aspects to President Reagan's economic recovery package which centers around a hurt-all, help-all theory.

The budget cuts are the segment which will hurt many in the country; but all are to benefit from the tax cuts. Paying less in taxes by both the individual and the industry should stimulate the economy, contend Reagan's men.

Probably the one man in this country who promotes this philosophy as heartily as the president is the one who is next in line: Vice President George Bush. To back him up on that during a briefing for Sunbelt reporters was Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers.

"I'M CONVINCED the constituency wants to see this program tried," stressed Bush. The congressmen who are fighting it, he charged, "aren't looking to their constituency."

Compromise isn't part of the deal, he stressed, as did Weidenbaum. That would only hinder the expected effects of Reagan's economic package. "And the president is in no mood to compromise on cuts or taxes," Bush added.

Numerous economists who have had serious reservations about that aspect (tax cuts) have looked at that package and said this country needs those three years of cuts and across-the-board drop in rates, the vice president continued.

Somehow, the vice president doesn't come across as one of those uppity, untouchable high officials. He seems too much like the next-door neighbor.

During a news conference involving national and regional media, this former oilman who got his start in Texas business back in Midland displayed an air of ease and confidence. Unlike some officials who freeze at the sight of a roomful of reporters and cameras, Bush scratches his head and pulls on his ear while answering questions and seldom gets his feathers ruffled when asked the same question three times.

After the news conference, regional reporters take a tour of his office in the old Executive Office Building. He greets each person with a smile and handshake, comes up with a remark about each town, and encourages reporters to comb the room for details.

"Pull out that center drawer on my desk," he urges. "It's got all the signatures of former vice presidents, including Dwight Eisenhower. I think it's fascinating. Oh, and don't forget to look at the pictures of my two grandchildren."

The office will be remodeled and turned back into its original colors and design, "but it's all being done with private money," he laughs.

THE HARDEST PART of the battle lies ahead for the president's men. "Yes, we'll have to fight to get it through, particularly in the House," Bush said of the expected battle over the program after Easter recess. But he, like the rest of that circle of administrators, believes inflation will begin to curb by the end of the year.

Reacting to a criticism for a plan to cut funds for law enforcement in large cities, Bush replied, "Attacking violent crime is a new Administration policy. The best measure is prompt and quick sentencing and there should be mandatory sentencing for those who commit crimes with a gun."

He pointed to part of the economic program which calls for lessening of government regulations on business. Bush, who was appointed by Reagan to head up that drive, said it should increase the country's productivity.

Consul seeks to clarify Israel's concerns

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

Conflict with Lebanon and the Palestinian Liberation Organization currently is the most pressing concern of the State of Israel, consul general of Israel Tzion Evrony said recently on a visit to Midland.

The 31-year-old Evrony, an eight-year veteran of the Israeli Foreign Service who has served as consul from his Houston office since 1978, was in the Permian Basin to meet with Jewish factions and "clarify the Israeli position" on Mideast political intrigue.

"Our concern (with Lebanon) stems both from our vital security considerations and the systematic barbaric annihilation of the Christian community by the Syrian army in Lebanon and by the PLO terrorists," he said. He noted that Lebanon is under foreign occupation, with 30,000 Syrian troops present as well as 15,000 PLO terrorists which constitute a "state within a state."

Evrony described the situation in Lebanon as "genocide of the Christian community by the Syrians and the PLO," rather than as a civil war, and stressed that Israel will continue its support of the Christian faction and not allow it to be destroyed.

THE ONLY SOLUTION to the crisis, he said, is immediate withdrawal of all Syrian troops and restrictions on PLO activities in the country.

"The PLO has used Lebanon as a base from which it launched its attacks on civilian targets in Israel," he said. "The PLO terorists have attacked schools, buses, and put bombs in markets. Innocent civilians, children and women have been killed."

As a result, he said, Israel will continue to attack PLO bases in Lebanon.

"This is the only way to prevent them from attacking our population," said the consul. "We believe that...our air attacks on PLO bases are acts of self-defense with the highest moral justification. The aternative is that the PLO terrorists will continue their criminal attacks unhindered."

Another major area of concern to Israel, he added, is the beefing up of Saudia Arabia militarily by the United States, which recently agreed to the sale of F-15 fighter planes and anti-tank missiles.

"ISRAEL IS opposed to the decision of the (Reagan) administration to sell additional sophisticated equipment, (such as) the F-15...and Airborne Warning and Control Systems," said Evrony. "It will endanger Israel and enable Saudia Arabia to attack targets in Israel."

Saudia Arabia, claims the consul general, has put forth a false image to the American public. "Saudia Arabia is not moderate at all — it is the most extreme enemy Israel has, a backward, feudal sheikdom ruled by 3,000 princes," he said. "It opposed the peace process between Israel and Egypt and is the main financer of PLO terrorists...that call for a jihad, a holy war, against Israel."

Evrony said Americans tend to believe the Saudia Arabians are helping the United States by producing vast quantities of oil, but he feels ulterior, self-serving motives are behind their actions.

"Saudia Arabian oil policy is based on purely economic (factors)," he said. "They produce 10.3 million barrels per day, and they will continue to produce at this level, and continue to sell at moderate prices, because it serves their own best interests. They

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyer Ramsey Clark and the Rev. Daniel Berrigan say they will fly to Ireland tonight to meet with IRA guerrilla Bobby Sands who is near death on a hunger strike in a Belfast jail.

Berrigan said he will address a rally of Sands' supporters on Sunday. He said Clark, a former U.S. attorney general, will attempt to act as Sands' lawyer and has applied to visit Sands in jail.

Sands, a 27-year-old Irish Republican Army member recently elected to the British Parliament, is said to be in critical condition from his hunger strike. Sources at the Maze prison said he would probably be moved to the military wing of Belfast's Musgrave Park hospital this week so he could be given care if he decides to start eating.

Sands is demanding that imprisoned IRA members be given political-prisoner status by the British government.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has ruled out such status, saying the inmates were imprisoned for their crimes, not their politics.

"I think the main thing is to try to mitigate the violence that is building around the fate of Bobby Sands," Berrigan, a Roman Catholic priest, said of his trip. "It's about time that all sides made some concessions. We're going to try to talk to all sides."

Berrigan said he and Clark will probably stay with families of IRA prisoners while in Ireland.

Lebanese flock to bomb shelters

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The shell-fire war between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen spread east from Beirut to the Roman Catholic city of Zahle, and 200,000 residents hurried back into underground shelters after nearly two weeks in the sun.

Zahle, 30 miles from Beirut on the eastern side of the Lebanon Mountains, was battered by Syrian artillery during seven days of fighting early this month.

The shelling resumed Tuesday after a cease-fire lull in which Red Cross convoys trucked in food and brought out about 42 seriously wounded residents. As before, each side accused the other of firing first.

"We can't take any more," said Dalal Kassouf, a housewife huddled in a basement apartment with her 18-month-old son.

"Let's die and get it over with," she said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut.

There were no immediate casualty reports from either side.

Syrian gunners first zeroed in on Zahle on April 2 to stop militiamen of the rightist Christian Phalange Party from finishing a mountain road that skirted the Syrian-held Beirut-Damascus highway to link Zahle with the Christian strongholds to the west. The fighting spread to Beirut the next day.

Before a cease-fire took hold April 8, the Syrians had driven the Christians from their all their hilltop positions around Zahle, and Syrian guns were trained down on the city from all sides.

Syrian sources said their government feared the pro-Israeli Christians would allow Israel to use Zahle as an anchor for an end-run invasion of Syria, skirting the heavily fortified Golan Heights frontier.

In Beirut, meanwhile, the heavy artillery and mortars that shattered the cease-fire Monday thundered from both sides of the Green Line frontier, hurling shells into residential areas in Christian East Beirut and the Moslem West.

Newspapers said 100,000 Beirut residents took to shelters as the shelling killed at least 21 people and wounded more than 80 others Monday night and early Tuesday. The firing continued without letup through Tuesday, but later casualty figures were not available.

The Beirut international airport, closed Tuesday morning because of the shelling, reopened briefly that night to allow three Boeing 727 jetliners of Lebanon's Middle East Airlines to take off with about 100 passengers each, bound for Saudi Arabia, Jordan and the Ivory Coast.

Christian mortar shells exploded around the planes as they took off, but they were not hit, officials said. After the takeoffs, the airport was closed again.

Lebanese army guns also exchanged fire with the Syrians. Three Lebanese soldiers were killed near the Beirut race track, which had not been hit in the previous firing, and 17 soldiers were wounded in suburban Hadass. Syria does not report its casualties.

"Explosions are coming from every direction," said a Christian woman by telephone from her basement apartment in East Beirut. "My son's ears are bleeding from the ear-shattering blasts."

"The situation is very bad," said Moslem Prime Minister Safik Wazzan as he and Christian President Elias Sarkis tried to negotiate a 19th cease-fire and head off a renewal of the 1975-76 civil war.

Japanese nuclear bosses face indictments

TOKYO (AP) — The government has threatened executives of a nuclear power plant with criminal prosecution for failing to report a spill of radioactive waste water that exposed 56 workers to possible contamination and leaked into a nearby bay.

Official of the Mnistry of International Trade and Industry, which has overall responsibility for Japan's nuclear power plants, said publicly they doubted the company's version of the second mishap this year at the Tsuruga nuclear power station on the Japan Sea, 200 miles west of Tokyo.

Officials of the company also did not report the first accident, three months ago, as required by law, and no charges have been filed. But the government said that accident was "still under investigation."

International Trade and Industry Minister Rokusuke Tanaka said if an investigation finds that officials of the Japan Atomic Power Co. violated the Electricity Utility Industry Law by failing to disclose the second leak immediately, they would be prosecuted and "rigorously punished." The maximum penalty is a three-year prison term.

Dr. Hideo Uchida of the Nuclear Safety commission said the Tsuruga plant was shut down April 1 when regulatory officials discovered the company had failed to report a radioactive water leak in January.

That leak, which officials described as "not particularly serious," resulted from a "hair crack in the turbine," according to Fumio Amano, chief reviewer of the Nuclear Safety Bureau. The company failed to report it until an employee told the bureau about it, he said.

While the plant was closed to repair the turbine, the second, more serious leak came to light when regulatory officials discovered higher than normal levels of radioactivity in Urasoko Bay nearby.

The second leak, which Amano called the worst in Japan's nuclear power history, has stirred a new uproar among the nation's nuclear power opponents and demands that the company's top executives resign.

In its first public statement on the second accident, the company said workers apparently failed to shut off a valve on the plant's filter sludge tanks on March 8. Water contaminated by radioactivity leaked out, eventually spilling through a general waste drain into the bay.

There was no official report on how much radioactive water spilled into the bay. Press reports have said anywhere from five to 40 tons.

Eight workers tried to clean up some of the spilled water with mops and plastic buckets, then subcontractors were called in to deal with the leak. In all, the company said, 56 persons were in contact with the radioactive waste.

The company said the 56 received very low levels of exposure — a maximum of 155 millirems, compared to the government's safe limit of 3,000 over a three-month period.

American fighters chase Soviet jet

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Two American jet fighters buzzed a Soviet commerical jetliner near Bahrain in the Persian Gulf earlier this month, and chased it for a while before turning away, an Indian government official said here today.

The official, who declined to be identified, was commenting on a local newspaper report that Bombay airport received "danger signals" from the Aeroflot jetliner during the reported April 2 buzzing incident.

Local press reports said the plane was on a flight from Karachi, Pakistan to Aden when it sent out the signals, which were received by airports in several Persian Gulf cities.

There was no immediate American or Soviet comment on the reports.

Evrony believes modern Israel fulfilled prophecy

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

In the Hebrew scriptures the prophet Ezekiel was given an astounding vision by the "Lord God": a valley scattered with dry bones upon which sinew, flesh and skin suddenly formed so that they lived and stood up, "an exceeding great army."

Ezekiel was told, "These bones are the whole house of Israel. Oh my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel."

The bones "got up," believes Israeli consul general Tzion Evrony of Houston, on May 14, 1948, when for the first time since Titus and his Roman legions slaughtered hundreds of thousands of Jews in overthrowing Jerusalem in 70 A.D. Israel became a sovereign nation in the ancient homeland promised Abraham and his descendants.

"The creation of the state of Israel is fulfillment of Biblical prophecies of Isaiah and Jeremiah and Ezekiel, chapter 37," said Evrony, in Midland recently to address the Jewish community. "What is exciting about Israel is that we are the same people that lived there 3,000 years ago; we have the same religion; we are speaking the same language."

IN THE 2600 years since Ezekiel's prophecy, the Jews have been dispersed throughout all nations of the world, subjected to all manners of inhumanity and suffering, from the slave markets in Egypt to the Nazi gas chambers of Hitler. And through it all they had lived with fear so intense that prophetic application of Moses' words in 1500 B.C. seemed appropriate:

"The Lord will scatter you among all peoples, from one end of the earth to the other...your life shall hang in doubt before you; night and day you shall be in dread, and have no assurance of your life. In the morning you shall say, 'Would it were evening!' and at evening you shall say, 'Would it were morning!' because of the dread which your heart shall fear, and the sights which your eyes shall see." (Deuteronomy 28:64,66-67)

And yet, the prayer of the Jew was always, "Next year in Jerusalem."

"This is what's unique about the state of Israel," said Evrony. "After 3,000 years the Jews who were exiled by the Babylonians (in 586 B.C.) and the Romans in the year 70 A.D. kept faith with Jerusalem, with the land of Israel."

The involuntary dispersion is over for many of them now, ever since David Ben-Gurion read the Declaration of Independence establishing a Hebrew nation to be called the State of Israel. Evrony's birth to Jewish parents in the revived nation the following year made him a member of the first generation spawned by free Jews in their homeland since the fall of the Southern Kingdom in 586 B.C.

BUT THE FEAR remains, for tiny Israel — 1/40th the size of Texas — already has been racked by war four times in its brief 33-year history, and again is at the center of international concern as a "cup of poison to all the nearby nations" and "a heavy stone burdening the world." (Zechariah 12:2,3)

The return to the ancient homeland and enmities spawned by conflicting ideologies have plunged Israelis into the midst of potentially the most explosive area in world history — between the U.S.S.R. ("the greatest enemy of the free world") to the north, and the rich oil resources of the Persian Gulf to the south, where 60 percent of international oil is concentrated, says Evrony.

"We believe that...our air attacks on PLO bases are acts of self-defense with the highest moral justification."
— Tzion Evrony

Were the U.S.S.R. ever to attempt to satisfy its hunger for the Persian Gulf, he believes, it would have to do so by trying to come through the Hebrew nation.

"Israel," says Evrony, "is the only reliable deterrent against Soviet expansionism in the Mideast, the only stronghold against Communist aggression."

The situation has brought some ultra-conservative scholars to see in it an analogy with the events prophecied in Ezekiel 38. But as for Evrony, he is not sure to what extent the story has a bearing on modern-day Israel.

EZEKIEL 38 details the invasion of Israel ("the land where people were gathered from many nations") by Gog, of the land of Magog, described three times as being to the "uttermost north" of Mount Moriah. Even while the Jews still were victimized by the Diaspora and long before the U.S.S.R. arose to worldwide prominence, some scholars identified Magog linguistically and geographically with Russia.

"That Russia occupies a place, and a very momentous place, in the prophetic world has been admitted by almost all expositers," wrote Dr. John Cumming in 1864.

"I don't know if there is any connection between the political scene today and the prophecy in Ezekiel 38," said Evrony, "but the fact is the Soviet Union cut its diplomatic relations with Israel in 1967, the Soviet Union supports our greatest enemies, the PLO and other Arab countries, and I would say the Soviet Union is not right now our best friend."

The Temple on Mount Moriah, destroyed by Roman invaders in 70 A.D. so that "not one stone was left upon another," also is the subject of Hebrew prophecy, as Ezekiel, in vision, is taken within what is regarded by some scholars as the millenial temple. Although Evrony says Christians frequently ask him whether the temple will be rebuilt, he says Israel has "no intention to build the temple now or in the future."

FEW DENY THAT if the Dome of the Rock — situated directly on the only spot Hebrew law allows the Temple to be situated — ever were destroyed by Israel to make room for its Holy of Holies, a Holy War surely would be spawned with the Moslem world.

So instead, says Evrony, Israelis will worship in a central synagogue currently being built in Jerusalem.

But faith in Biblical promises, says the member of the "new Jewish generation," still is inherent in Israeli philosophy, and few forget that the terrifying invader Gog and his hordes in Ezekiel 38 are completely annihilated before they reach Israel's cities.

Obviously, only time — and world events — will determine for sure in Evrony's mind whether the U.S.S.R. is a "Gog" destined to meet destruction at the hands of a tiny nation standing in its pathway to the Persian Gulf.

Consul seeks to clarify Israel's concerns

need the money to finance their huge development project."

What is really needed, said the Israeli consul, is for oil consuming nations to organize and "stand together against the OPEC countries."

IN DISCUSSING international events during the past two years — such as the invasion of Afghanistan by the Soviet Union and the commandeering of U.S. hostages by Iran — Evrony said basic lessons should have been learned by the free world.

"First, we see Soviet expansionism," he stated. "In the last few years the Soviet Union has taken over Angola, Mozambique, Ethiopia, South Yemen, Afghanistan...and there are Cuban troops in the whole amount of Africa, South Yemen.

"We see continuous Communist expansionism almost everywhere in the world, and especially in the Mideast, where the Soviet Union is looking hungrily toward the Persian Gulf."

It is up to the joint efforts of Israel and the United States, he said, to stifle further aggression in the area.

"It has been proven," he said, "that Israel is the only reliable ally that the United States has in the Mideast, a true friend and a strategic asset. Freedom does not have many defenders, and Israel is among the surest of them all."

EVRONY SAID the military and economic support provided Israel by the U.S. "helps us to protect the interests of the free world."

Another lesson which should have become apparent, he said, is the need for free nations to guard themselves against international terrorism.

"There have been statements by President Reagan and Secretary Haig showing their understanding that there is a need to fight international terrorism," he noted. "They say (this) should be one of the main goals of American foreign policy. They understand what we Israelis have known all along — that terrorism is an international disease, a constant threat to the civilized world, and only with international cooperation can we (purge this) phenomenon from our lives."

Evrony claimed that Israel is facing the most brutal terrorist organization imaginable in the PLO, which carries in its charter the goal of destroying the Hebrew nation. The Soviet Union, he said, plays a major role in that "PLO terrorists are trained in the Soviet Union, they are armed by the Soviet Union, they are financed by the Soviet Union, and they are supported politically by the Soviet Union."

EVRONY SAID that in view of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, "anyone who calls for creation of an independent Palistinian state in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza district, simply calls for a Soviet satellite in the heart of the Middle East. It would be like a Soviet enclave on the other side of the Potomac River. Soviet troops would be flown to the state, if such a state were formed, within 24 hours."

However, he said, signs are evident in the Middle East that perhaps peace might eventually reign without challenge, following the peace agreement reached by Israel and Egypt.

Evrony said conditions of the agreement have become fully realized, with an exchange of ambassadors, open borders, and mutual trade.

However, claims the consul, it came at a great price for Israel.

"The world is not fully aware of the magnitude of the Israeli concessions for this peace treaty, the great sacrifices that Israel has made in human, economic and strategic terms," he said.

Evrony noted that by March, 1982 Israel will have evacuated the entire Sinai Peninsula, despite having invested "$17 billion in roads, settlements and three military airbases very important to us strategically."

However, he added, the most painful sacrifice Israel must bear is the loss of invaluable oil reserves.

"AS PART OF the peace treaty, we handed over to Egypt the Alma oilfields which suplied 25 percent of Israel's oil consumption, 165,000 barrels per day," he noted. "These oil wells had the potential of supplying 100 percent of Israel's oil."

Israel now is almost entirely dependent on foreign oil to meet its demands, he said, having paid out $2.4 billion for its 1980 supply compared to only $1.2 billion the year before.

"This is one of the main reasons for the high rate of inflation (in Israel)," he stressed.

However, he added, all sacrifices will be worth it if a lasting peace results.

"We believe in the Chinese saying that even a journey of 1,000 miles starts with a first step forward, and we believe the peace between Israel and Egypt is the first step toward a comprehensive peace agreement," he said. "It will create mutual understanding and trust. We hope that other Arab nations would follow Egypt's (lead)...and understand that no one will gain from another war, (while) everyone will benefit from the fruit of peace."

DEATHS

Pauline S. Dean

LOVINGTON, N.M. — Services for Pauline Sams Dean, 76, a member of a prominent Lea County ranching family, were Tuesday in the First United Methodist Church. Burial was in a Lovington Cemetery under the direction of Smith-Rogers Funeral Home.

She died in a Hobbs, N.M., hospital Saturday night after injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Midland, Texas, on Jan. 4.

Mrs. Dean was born Aug. 25, 1904, at Knox City, Texas. She was the daughter of Carl E. and Ada Thomas Sams. The family moved to New Mexico from West Texas and settled near Lovington in June 1912.

Mrs. Dean attended Lovington public schools and graduated in the Lovington High School class of 1923. She was married to Otto L. Dean Aug. 17, 1927, in Lovington. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church and was a member of the Lovington Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. She served as a worthy matron in 1932.

Survivors include her husband of the ranch; two sons, Jerry Dean and Bob Dean, both of Lovington; four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Frank L. Ramsel

GARDEN CITY — Graveside services for Frank Lesley Ramsel, 86, of Garden City were to be at 2 p.m. today in Garden City Cemetery with the Rev. Larry Howard officiating and directed by Ross Funeral Home of Sterling City.

Ramsel died Monday night in a Sterling City hospital.

Born Aug. 7, 1894, in Giddings, Ramsel was a ranch worker and a member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include his wife, Mildred Ramsel of Garden City; and two sisters, Daisy English of Phoenix, Ariz., and Katie Lowdaury of Bowie.

S.A. Cox

KERMIT — Services for S.A. Cox, 49, of Kermit, brother of Vastine T. Cox Jr. of Midland, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Faith Baptist Church. Burial will follow in Kermit Cemetery, directed by Cooper Funeral Chapel of Kermit.

Cox died Monday night in a Kermit hospital after an illness.

Born Jan. 2, 1932, in Limestone County, Cox was a resident of Kermit for 31 years. He was a maintenance worker for El Paso Natural Gas and a member of the Baptist Church.

Other survivors include his mother, a brother, and a sister.

Paul Harris

LINDSAY, Calif. — Paul Harris, 68, of Lindsay, Calif., brother of Lee May of Midland, Texas, died Monday after a sudden illness.

Services are pending in Lindsay.

Harris was born and raised in Mount Vernon, Texas. He had lived in California for the last 40 years.

Saudi Arabia becoming powerful military force

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, considered too weak to become involved in a Middle East war just 7½ years ago, is well on its way to becoming a dominant military power in the Moslem world and a major worry for Israel.

The transformation of Saudi Arabia from minor to major military status is underscored by the Reagan administration's announcement Tuesday that it wants to sell the oil-rich desert country five sophisticated radar reconnaissance planes called AWACS, as well as equipment to improve the firepower and range of 62 sophisticated F-15 jet fighters.

The administration decided to go ahead with the sale despite strong opposition from congressional supporters of Israel. Leaders of the Jewish state say the sale threatens Israel's security in any future war with Arab states.

But Saudi Arabia had pressured the administration to proceed quickly on its request for the AWACS — Airborne Warning and Control Systems — aircraft.

Saudi Arabia, with its vast oil supplies and reputation as a pillar of moderation, has become increasingly important to the United States since U.S.-Iranian relations were broken off. The United States, in arming Saudi Arabia, hopes to build an anti-Soviet coalition in the Persian Gulf.

AP Analysis

But even before the Iranian crisis and the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, U.S. administrations had begun courting Saudi Arabia as a major ally and had begun building up Saudi forces.

U.S. intelligence officials said in 1973 that a lack of military strength made the Saudis reluctant to become embroiled in the Yom Kippur War between Israeli and Arab armies.

Since then, the Saudis have been spending freely on arms because of their huge oil revenue.

Until now, the Saudis have bought almost $35 billion worth of arms, equipment and military construction from the United States. According to a report recently sent to Congress, the Saudis are expected to buy an additional $4.4 billion in military gear this year and another $4 billion next year.

This will bring the overall total of Saudi arms purchases, most of them since 1973, to about $43 billion.

The Saudi total dwarfs the more than $20 billion which Iran bought from the United States before Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was deposed. Much of the Iranian purchases were canceled after the revolution in 1979.

These are the main features of the enormous Saudi military development which began in the Nixon administration and has continued unabated:

—For the Navy, the Saudis purchased 29 ships and constructed deep-water ports on the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, ship repair yards, training facilities, a naval headquarters and a naval academy.

Junta wants no aid with strings

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Daniel Ortega Saavedra, leader of Nicaragua's left-leaning ruling junta, says his nation will accept no more U.S. funds that have strings attached.

He apparently referred to Washington's suspension last month of the final $15 million of a $75 million economic aid package for Nicaragua. The funds were cut off after the Reagan administration accused Nicaraguan of helping to funnel arms to leftist guerrillas in neighboring El Salvador.

Ortega told reporters Tuesday that he complained about the suspension to three U.S. democratic congressmen, here on a fact-finding mission. He also said he denied Nicaragua was moving arms to the Salvadoran rebels.

Missile system opposed

DALHART, Texas (AP) — Air Force officials say they have has no plans to import water for construction of the MX missile system if it is located in Texas and New Mexico.

At one of a series of hearings in areas being considered for the multi-billion-dollar system, Air Force Col. Bill Sims said the government plans to lease or purchase water rights for the 30,000 acre-feet of water that would be needed during the peak construction year. Demand then would drop to 13,000 acre-feet for the two bases in West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

The amount would equal about 7 percent of the water now used in the area, he said.

A lack of water was but one of the reasons cited as New Mexicans joined High Plains residents in voicing opposition to placing the system in their states at Tuesday's hearing.

Travis Nelson, chairman of the Quay County, N.M., board of commissioners, said a lack of water would be the primary problem involved in locating the missiles in his area.

And Mayor Joe B. Keast of Dalhart said he had not "found anything concrete in the impact statement that assures me that our taxpayers would not be saddled with a long-term indebtedness to pay for facilities needed during the boom phase created during the construction period."

Bomb blast kills six in Tehran

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A bomb explosion on the outskirts of Tehran killed six people today, reliable official sources in the Iranian capital reported by telephone.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, denied rumors that there had been an attempt to assassinate Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution.

They said the bomb explosion was the only unusual incident reported. They said the religious and political patriarch is confinedby his ag and health to his residence miles from the site of the explosion, which occurred near the late shah's Niaboran Palace.

Once a politician, always a politician for South Dakota

WEBSTER, S.D. (AP) — He's through running for office but there's still a "hi" or "hello" for everyone he meets. Today he's walking. It's only a block to the cafe where he has his afternoon coffee and cookies.

Most people he greets are friends, and Sigurd Anderson calls them by name. But even strangers get a smiling "hello" from the retired politician, 77.

Anderson served his county, state and nation in executive and judicial roles spanning 37 years. He lost but one election — his last.

Folks could call him "governor" and some do. They could call him "judge" and many do. Mostly he's "Sigurd" or "Sig" to the people along Main Street.

Friendliness comes easy. Anyone who doesn't like people should never go into politics, he says.

Except for the fact that his wife, Vivian, has suffered a stroke and is unable to live at home, retirement is pleasant. Reading and correspondence fill office hours. His memories are rich.

Anderson was born in Norway. His father immigrated in 1905 to the Canton, S.D., area, and worked as a farmhand. The following year, his wife and 2-year-old Sigurd came from Norway.

"The first eight years of my life was a series of embarrassments," Anderson recalls. "I was laughed at because of my pure white hair, the way I talked, my funny clothes."

After grade school, Sigurd worked a couple of years as a farmhand before entering Canton Academy. By then, his parents had bought a farm and could pay for his board with eggs and milk.

He entered South Dakota State on a scholarship but scarlet fever forced his departure after four months. Later he resumed farm work. Anderson studied, even while plowing with a three-horse team, and became certified to teach country school. A $90-a-month teaching job paid double what he got as a farmhand.

In 1928, he enrolled at the University of South Dakota. After graduating with honors, he taught one year in Rapid City and then moved to Webster to teach history and coach debate.

But even as a boy he had dreamed of being a lawyer. Anderson entered the USD law school, compacted three years of study into two, and was graduated in 1937, again with honors. He returned to Webster and waited for clients.

"To fill out the ticket" in 1938, the young Republican dared to challenge the Democratic state attorney. The GOP campaign featured 40 schoolhouse meetings. Anderson spoke and accordionist Myron Floren entertained. Anderson and other Republicans won most offices.

In 1941, he was appointed an assistant attorney general. Next followed three years in the Navy.

He was back in Webster in 1946, ran successfully for attorney general, and, in 1948, was re-elected.

In 1950, he won the gubernatorial nomination in a close primary race with war hero Joe Foss and three others. Anderson defeated Joe Robbie, now owner of the Miami Dolphins football team, in the general election. Two years later, Anderson won re-election.

Then, once again it was back to Webster, but a call soon came from the White House. On appointment by President Dwight Eisenhower, Anderson served 9½ years on the Federal Trade Commission.

In 1965, he tried to regain the governorship but lost to Nils Boe in the primary. Again, Sig Anderson became a Webster lawyer.

Anderson still keeps his office, upstairs over a drug store, but doesn't practice law. He has no staff, no secretary. He reads three South Dakota daily newspapers, a half-dozen legal publications and a Norwegian-language newspaper. His correspondence is "tremendous." Pressure groups seek opinions and money. Individuals write for job references.

Anderson remains active in the GOP, the Lutheran church and Masonry. He's serving his seventh term as grand orator of the South Dakota Grand Lodge of Masons.

He's up at 7 daily and in his office by 8 a.m. Most nights he's in bed by 10, unless there's a speech. In 75 talks last year, he focused mainly on patriotism, something he feels is "vastly neglected."

"There's no change in basic American ideals," he says. "I try to tell what's great about America, to get down to the very essence of patriotism, of morality, of what's expected of us as citizens. That's trite, but, by Jove, it's what's going to make or break this nation!"

Court: Some questions up to judges

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a defendant is accused of a violent crime against someone of a different race or ethnic background, the trial judge should question prospective jurors for possible prejudice, the Supreme Court says.

While making that principle clear in a 6-3 decision Tuesday, the court left it up to the judges to decide whether jurors should be questioned about prejudice merely because a defendant is a member of a minority group.

In another decision Tuesday, the court ruled that police cannot search a residence without a search warrant if all they have is an arrest warrant for someone who does not live there.

In the jury case, the three dissenting justices said the majority's opinion reduced a defendant's protection against being tried by a prejudiced jury.

"Even when there are no 'special circumstances' ... indicating an unusual risk of racial or other group bias, a member of the Nazi Party should not be allowed to sit in judgment on a Jewish defendant," the dissent said.

The majority upheld the 1979 conviction of Humberto Rosales-Lopez, a Mexican-American accused of smuggling illegal aliens into the country at Imperial Beach, Calif.

Rosales-Lopez asked the trial judge to ask potential jurors whether they would be influenced by his ethnic background.

The judge did not ask that question, but did ask prospective jurors whether they had any feelings about "aliens".

The Supreme Court opinion by Justice Byron White said "there can be no doubt that the jurors would have understood a question about aliens to at least include Mexican aliens," and the judge excused two jurors because of their answers. That was good enough, the opinion said, to protect Rosales-Lopez.

The 7-2 warrant decision did not appear to disturb the court's past acceptance of warrantless searches "incident to the arrest" of someone who lived in the home being searched.

The decision overturned the conviction of Gary Steagald, who had been sentenced to five years in prison on charges of possessing cocaine.

Former janitor says he paid money to defendant

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A one-time Capitol janitor, testifying in the state's clemency-for-cash retrial, says he paid $15,500 to a member of former Gov. Ray Blanton's administration to secure the release of four prisoners.

Arthur Brandon told a U.S. District Court jury Tuesday that he worked with the families of the inmates to arrange the prisoners' release.

Brandon, who was not charged in the clemency scandal, testified that he turned most of the money over to Charles Benson, who was extradition officer during Blanton's term. Benson, who is charged with conspiring to sell paroles and clemencies, has pleaded innocent.

Brandon said he talked to Clifford Brown about the release of Brown's sons, Calvin and Ricky.

"I said to Brown, 'These people are a little different from any other administration," Brandon said. 'They'll want money to get your sons released.' I told him I would take his boys' names to Mr. Benson and see what he could do."

Brandon, now a Nashville Electric Service employee, said when he told Benson the Browns did not have much money, the one-time extradition officer said he could arrange the pardons for $2,500 each.

Brandon said he told Brown the pardons would cost $6,000 — $1,000 of which he said he kept for himself.

The former janitor also said he turned over $5,500 to Benson for the release of John Henry Gant and kept none for himself. He said he paid Benson $5,000 to get James Webb Anglin out of prison. Brandon said he received $1,000 from that deal.

Brandon said on one occasion Benson was out of the office so he gave the money to Eddie Sisk, Blanton's former legal counsel.

Sisk and Charles Frederick Taylor, a former Tennessee Highway Patrol officer assigned to Blanton's security staff, have pleaded guilty to conspiracy in exchange for sentences of not more than five years. They have not been sentenced.

A fourth defendant, William Aubrey Thompson, a former Hamilton County Democratic committeeman, pleaded guilty in February in exchange for an additional four months on his 2½-year prison term on an unrelated income tax conviction.

Blanton, who was governor from 1975 until he was eased from office three days early on Jan. 17, 1979, is not charged. Fellow Democrats ousted Blanton two days after he pardoned three people and granted clemencies to 49 inmates. Blanton is on trial in a courtroom down the hall from Benson's trial for allegedly accepting kickbacks from the sale of state liquor licenses.

The first clemency-for-cash trial ended in a mistrial.

Kleindienst facing arraignment today

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst faced arraignment today on 14 counts of perjury, but any trial on the charges appeared to be months away, prosecutors said.

Kleindienst, who resigned while serving under President Nixon during the Watergate scandal, was indicted by a Maricopa County grand jury April 14 following investigations by the Arizona Bar Association and the state attorney general into his role in an alleged pension-milking scheme.

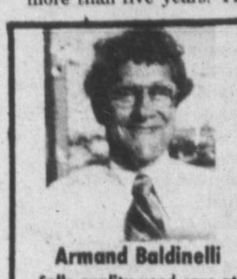

In an interview shortly before the indictment was made public, the Tucson lawyer denied having lied to the bar association and denied any wrongdoing in connection with the pension. He declined comment after the indictment was returned.

Phil MacDonnell, head of special prosecutions and chief counsel to Arizona Attorney Generel Bob Corbin, said pretrial motions could last six months and that the trial itself could last a month of more because of the complexity of the issues involved.

The state bar has recommended to the Arizona Supreme Court that Kleindienst be suspended from practicing law for one year because of his alleged perjury and unethical conducting during investigations of an alleged $7 million Teamsters union health and welfare fund scandal.

The bar contends that Kleindienst kept silent when he heard testimony he knew to be false during the insurance investigation, that he lied in his own testimony in connection with that investigation, and that he perjured himself when the bar association asked him about those and other matters.

During the Watergate scandal, Kleindienst pleaded guilty to a charge of having given false testimony to a Senate hearing on a payoff scandal involving International Telephone and Telegraph. He was censured but wasn't suspended.

Clements OKs inmates' release

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements, acting upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, has authorized the release from prison of five persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area.

Donald Jackson was paroled to Dawson County officials after serving and earning four years and nine months of a six-year term. Jackson was convicted in August 1978 in Midland County of burglary of a habitation.

James William Myers was paroled to Colorado officials after serving and earning 10 years and four months of a 20-year sentence. Myers was convicted in January 1975 in Ector County of aggravated robbery by a deadly weapon.

Robert Mark Olivas was paroled to Arizona officials after serving and earning one year and 10 months of a three-year term. Olivas was convicted in August 1979 in Brewster County of arson.

John Richard Olivas was paroled to Ector County officials after serving and earning two years and eight months of an eight-year sentence. Olivas was convicted in January 1979 in Ector County of burglary with intent to commit theft.

James Alex Rabon was released on mandatory supervision to Coleman County officials after serving and earning all of a five-year sentence. Rabon was convicted in October 1978 in Ector County of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit theft.

Recommendation favorable

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Education Committee gave a favorable recommendation Wednesday to legislation sponsored by its chairman, Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland, designed to strengthen the "degree mill" act.

Senate Bill 1129 would extend the powers of the College Coordinating Board to certify private institutions chartered out-of-state but operating a campus in Texas.

Stephen Walsh, president of Austin's St. Edward's University, testified that "the law...has served a valid purpose," and that all students in Texas "must be protected not against quality opportunity, but opportunism."

Kenneth H. Ashworth, commissioner of higher education, also testified in support of the legislation.

Cities agree to accept rates set by PUC

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Four cities appealing a $5.26 million electric rate hike granted Community Public Service Co. have agreed to accept rates set by the Public Utility Commission.

The PUC had granted Community Public Service an increase to $5 for the first 20 kilowatt hours plus 3.08 cents for each kilowatt hour thereafter. The rates affect 447,000 customers in various counties across the state.

The cities of Pecos, West Columbia, Hillcrest Village and Brazoria appealed that rate, but Monday agreed not to pursue the appeal.

Rates in Pecos previously had been $1.20 for the first 15 kilowatt hours and 4.9 cents per KWH up to 55 KWH, while rates in the other cities were $2 for the first 20 KWH and 3.8 cents per each KWH up to 80 KWH.

Self-employed workers major part of Canton changes

By MICHAEL PARKS
The Los Angeles Times

CANTON, China — Late in the afternoon, Poon Meilin and her daughter-in-law wheeled their fried pork and noodle stand down the block toward the Pearl River in the center of Canton. Finding their usual spot, they set out small tables and stools, started their charcoal cooking fires, and waited for the first of the three rush hours that they get each evening.

"It's Friday night so business should be good," Poon said, estimating her take at roughly $65, half of which would be after-tax profits. "The weather's nice, so there will be many young people out for a stroll, maybe some window-shopping, and later in the evening they will want a snack of noodles and fried pork."

Poon was not literally rubbing her hands together with glee at the brisk trade prospects for that evening, but a large measure of satisfaction was evident in her voice and manner as she talked about this simple noodle stand and how it has helped change her family's life.

"In the past year, we have done all right, really all right," she said as her daughter-in-law, Ng Lam, interpreted her rapid Cantonese. "In fact, we have earned more than we did in the past five years together...We are not rich, but we have a new television, a refrigerator, a washing machine and, this week, a new motorbike."

Poon is not the Colonel Sanders of Cantonese fried noodles, but one of thousands of small-time entrepreneurs who have been permitted in the past 18 months to open food stands, run fruit and vegetable carts, repair shoes and bicycles and hawk a variety of goods from clothing to fountain pens to toys.

Five years ago, they would have been called "capitalist tails" and sentenced to hard labor. Three years ago, they still would have been rousted by police and sent back to their assigned workplaces on probation. Now, policemen are among Poon's regular customers, and she and the other food stand operators, repairmen, hawkers and self-employed workers are an important part of Canton's changing face.

"More has happened here in the past two years than the previous two decades," one Guangdong province official said, venturing a private but widely held opinion. "There are many ideas about these changes — that we are correcting 25 years of leftist mistakes, that we are becoming like Hong Kong, even that we are growing bourgeois — but I think we are doing just what comes naturally."

Among the other facets of changing Canton:

—A consumer boom. Retail sales were up 21 percent last year over 1979, and the variety of clothing, textiles, shoes, furniture, radios, television sets, cameras, tape recorders and other products is proliferating. Some foreign products now compete with Chinese articles. To help sales of major items, such as refrigerators and washing machines, stores now offer credit and installment loans.

—Housing development. With Hong Kong companies promising to provide more than 15,000 flats in apartment blocks that they will build in cooperation with Cantonese companies, local officials have been able for the first time to reduce a family's waiting time for new housing, and residential construction is now getting top priority.

—Economic growth. Despite the national economic retrenchment, Guangdong province's industrial output rose nearly 9 percent last year, led largely by light industry, up more than 15 percent, and foreign trade, up 27 percent. Economic growth provided 450,000 badly needed new jobs in the province last year, and 350,000 more will be created this year, according to provincial figures. Urban wages rose an average of 20 percent, and per capita rral incomes 22 percent. when the national budget deficit, one reason for the retrenchment, is mentioned, Guangdong officials smile quietly and note that they had a modest surplus last year.

—Political stability. Canton has been spared the in-fighting that has characterized national politics for the past eight months — officials here shudder at the mention of those conflicts at the top, knowing how they have been played out at the local level in other provinces — and there seems to be widespread approval of the pragmatic philosophy that is replacing Maoist ideology. "To go back would be insane," a senior Cantonese journalist said when asked if the leftists might ever make a comeback.

The changes are evident everywhere, and street activity measures the quickened pulse of the city.

Fleets of imported taxis, new trucks and a few privately owned cars crowd the streets. The city of 3 million people now has more than 1 million bicycles — and 6,200 motorbikes, a figure expected to triple in the next three months. Bright neon signs light the once black nighttime streets, and billboards and other advertisements actively promote a consumer society.

Flared and bell-bottomed trousers, blue jeans, brightly colored shirts, modish shoes and purses, and carefully styled hair are all growing so common that it is hard to tell whether a person is from Canton or the neighboring British colony of Hong Kong.

Hong Kong-style pop music is heard more frequently than revolutionary marches, and so many people defy government orders not to watch Hong Kong television that Cantonese broadcasting officials find themselves, like American television network executives, rearranging their programs to get the most competitive schedule.

Often one has the strange sensation that Canton is slowly merging, economically and socially if not politically, with the British colony 125 miles down the Pearl River, and that this, in fact, is China's strategy for the eventual reincorporation of Hong Kong and the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao.

Thousands of visitors come from the two colonies each day, bringing even more consumer goods for their relatives here. A large proportion of the 5,000 or more joint ventures and similar business deals that Guangdong province will sign with foreign partners this year will be with Hong Kong companies. Hong Kong newspapers and magazines are sold here, and there is direct telephone dialing to Hong Kong.

"Economically, Canton and Hong Kong are organically linked now," says a Hong Kong banker with an office here. "Certainly, Guangdong's economic growth in the past year and a half has come largely from foreign trade, principally with, or through, Hong Kong. For Hong Kong, the Guangdong connection is increasingly important for growth, particualry with the prolonged economic difficulties in the West limiting other opportunities. It is still premature to speak of an integrated Hong Kong-Guangdong economy, but that is where these changes are leading very, very quickly."

When Ren Zhongyi took over recently as the Communist Party's first secretary in the province, he made this a clear goal. Guangdong will becoce "a national pivot and window for contact with foreign countries," he said. "The central government has given us great powers, and it will now be seen whether we are able to use them."

The development of an export-based economy will not be limited to a few special zones or industries, Ren continued, but should involve the whole province, an economic reorientation with sweeping social implications.

But there is considerable uneasiness about the extent of foreign influence and bourgeois tendencies already, and Ren warned that the "encroachment of corrupt bourgeois ideology" must be fought.

Reagan plan in hard-sell phase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The campaign for President Reagan's tax and spending cuts is into the hard-sell phase as his strategists seek to reverse a slump they say was inevitable even before their boss was sidelined.

They figured that the early surge of support would fade a bit and that there would have to be a springtime lobbying drive to regain momentum.

That has been made more difficult with the president's own role limited as he recuperates from the bullet wound he suffered on March 30. But public opinion polls also indicate that Reagan's job approval rating increased after the assassination attempt.

As the House and Senate approach May action on the budget-cut phase of his economic program, Reagan is expected to take up the campaign in a broadcast address which likely will be his first major public appearance since the assassination attempt.

His strategists would like to make it a nationally televised speech, for maximum impact as the budget votes near. But that depends on the extent of his recovery. If the president is not fully fit and looking it by the end of the month, the speech probably will be limited to radio.

Over the next two weeks, the administration will be dispatching every emissary who might be able to help persuade a conservative Democrat or a wavering Republican to stick with the administration in the key budget votes ahead.

Members of the Cabinet got their instructions Monday: make every public appearance possible and pay special heed to members of the House who are straddling the fence or near it. They reportedly were told that polls conducted for Reagan show public support for his spending cuts remains strong and that the message should be stressed to congressmen as evidence that their constituents want them voting with the president.

Reagan, his schedule limited during his convalescence, has been on the telephone to members of Congress. He is seeing governors and other political leaders at the White House as part of the effort to rally backing.

Vice President George Bush is on tour for the Reagan economic program, and former President Gerald R. Ford has been enlisted to speak for it, too. He is part of an administration effort aimed at the Southern home of conservative House Democrats whose votes could swing the budget outcome.

Four administration lobbying teams are handling that phase of the campaign.

One White House official, who asked that his name not be used, said the effort is concentrated on about 45 congressional districts, most of them in the South. He said administration head-counters figure that if they can cement 25 to 28 wavering votes, they can win on the budget cuts.

The second half of the battle, over tax cuts, may prove the more difficult. Reagan wants a cut of about 30 percent over the next three years, with Congress committing itself to the whole package now. The Democrats have countered with a one-year tax bill, offering reductions somewhat smaller than those in the first year of the Reagan plan.

"We don't anticipate compromising on the budget or the tax cuts," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes. "We're encouraged by our general discussions with members of Congress."

Activities reported in District 8

A wildcat, locations and completions were announced over the weekend in Texas Railroad Commission District 8.

HOWARD WILDCAT:

McCann Corp. of Big Spring will drill a 9,500 foot prove 4.5 miles southeast of Bif Spring.

The No. 2 Flanagan "A" is located 660 feet from the south, 467 feet from the west lines of section 18, block 31 of T-1-S, T&P survey.

The location is 3,500 feet southwest of a dry and abandoned hole, No. 1 Howard drilled to 7,465 feet and abandoned on April 11, 1970. It is also 1 mile southwest of No. 1 Choate, a depleted oil production with the total depth of 9,352 feet and abandoned on May 2, 1964 in the South Hutto Field.

MITCHELL LOCATION:

Texas International Petroleum Corp. of Oklahoma City will drill a 25,840 foot deep well in the prolific Dixon Field five miles north of Silver.

The No. 23 Edwin Parks is located 1,980 feet from the south and 660 feet from the east of section 2, block 12 of H&TC RR Co. survey.

It will be drilled to 7,070 feet for Ellenburger; Strawn at 24,469 feet; Odom at 24,917 feet and Mississippian at 25,840 feet.

The location is one mile east of No. 1 Barkley, a dry and abandoned location drilled to 6,362 feet and abandoned on April 8, 1956.

WARD FIELDTEST:

Hi—Po Inc. of Monahans will drill a 2,500 foot well four miles west of Royualty in the Payton Filed.

The No. 2 Boradland was originally drilled as a wildcat by Holborrk & Page Co. to the total depth of 8,521 and was plugged and abandoned June 15, 1963.

The location is adjacent to No. 1 G. R. Bentley, a dry and abandoned wildcat and 1,700 feet northwest of No. 1 P. L. Bordland, a completed oil production. Both these wells are below 2,500 feet.

WARD OFFSET:

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland has potentialed a 6,316 foot west offset to the Scott (Cherry Canyon) Field one mile southeast of Barstow.

The No. 1 Barstow "26" is located 3,200 feet from the northeast and 660 feet from the northwest lines of section 38, block 33 of H&TC survey.

It is flowing 48 barrels of 41.8 gravity oil, 45,000 units of gas per day and 180 barrels of water with the gas to oil ratio of 938:1 and flowing tube pressure of 150 PSI.

Perforations were made from 6,109 to 6,121 feet with 1,500 gallons of acid and fractured with 10,000 gallons of acid and 17,000 pounds of 20/40 sand.

Top of pay depth is 5,756 feet and the plug-back depth 6,150 feet with the ground-level elevation at 1,560 feet.

It was drilled in the Delaware pay at 4,770 feet and Cherry Canyon at 5,756 feet. The test was originally contracted for 6,500 feet.

WARD LOCATIONS:

Chama Petroleum Co. of Dallas has finaled two prolific tests four miles southeast and northeast of Monahans.

The 5,660 foot No. 1 Sealy Smith foundation is located 1,320 feet from the north and 660 feet from the east lines of section 19, block A of G&MMB&A survey.

It is pumping 100 barrels of 36 gravity oil and 110 barrels of water per day with 25 lbs. of casing pressure through perforations made from 4,792-5,288 feet with 4,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 36,000 gallons of acid and 54,000 pounds of 20/40 sand.

Top of pay depth is 4,792 feet. Ground-level elevation 2,730 feet and a 5½-inch casing was set at 5,710 feet.

The Glorieta pay was reached at 4,790 feet and Clearfork at 5,029 feet.

The second field test, 5,621 foot No. 2 Sealy Smith Foundation is located 1,980 feet from the north and east lines of section 19, block A of G&MMB&A survey.

The well is pumping 100 barrels of 37 gravity oil and 120 barrels of water per day with the casing pressure of 20 pounds through perforations made from 4,516 to 5,283 feet with 6,000 gallons of acid and fractured with 60,000 gallons of acid and 100,000 pounds of 20/40 sand.

The top-of-pay depth is 4,516 feet, ground-level elevation of 2,741 feet and a 4½ inch casing was set 5,700 feet.

The Glorietya pay was reached at 4,516 feet and Clearfork at 5,055 feet.

Society of Petroleum Engineers slate meeting

The Permian Basin section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers will hold a buffet meeting today 5:30 P.M. at Ranchland Hills Country Club. Professor James T. Smith will be the main speaker.

Smith, chairman of the Petroleum Engineering Department at Texas Tech University will present a layman's application of type curve analysis." He will explain the basic concept of type curves emphasizing the analysis of well test data which is difficult to interpret using conventional means due to formation damage or wellbore storage.

He has served on the society's continuing education and textbook committees and has chaired the SPE Editorial Review Committee in 1978.

SPE is an international society of 40,000 engineers, scientists and managers which disseminates technical information related to the production of energy resources through wellbored.

The social hour begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner and program at 6:30 p.m.

Acquisition announced

The acquisition of Oilfield Lines Inc. located in the Big Spring Industrial Park by Kiddie Inc. will result in increased production consequently resulting in increased employment possibilities Oil Inc. board chairman Charles S. Christopher said.

Through there will be no administrative changes, employment is expected to go up 150 openings by the end of the year and 200 more next year.

Oil Inc. manufactures oil field equipment specializing in drilling rigs and claims to have two of the largest machine shops in the world.

Grove Manufacturing, a Kiddie division, might locate a plant in Big Spring, Christopher said.

Area projects announced

Chalmers Operating Co. Inc. of Abilene has completed the No. 1 Pierce "10" six miles northeast of Maryneal in Nolan County.

The lower Strawn lime oil discovery pumped 50 barrels of 39 gravity oil plus 50 barrels of water in 24 hours from perforations made from 6,570 to 6,580 feet with a gas oil ratio of 500 to 1.

The well is bottomed at 6,965 feet with a 4½ inch casing set on bottom

Location is two miles south of a 5,994-foot Strawn oil production in Withers Field in section 10, block X of the Texas and Pacific survey.

* * *

Also in Nolan County, the R. L. Adkins Corp. of Sweetwater has staked a location for a 7,200-foot wildcat six miles southeast of a 5,506-foot lower Canyon oil production in the Maryneal, South Field.

Location is 1,993 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the west line of Section 69, Block X of the Texas and Pacific survey.

Texas Oil and Gas Corp. of Midland has announced plans to drill an 11,000-foot wildcat trest in Lynn County, six miles southwest of the town of New Home, one mile northeast of a 9,803-ffot Strawn Lime oil production in the Tahoka Field, and ½ mile northeast of an 11,028-foot wildcat failure.

The new test is the No. 1 Powell "D" located 660 feet from the south line and 1,980 feet from the west line of section, 140, block 12, of the EL&RR survey.

BORDEN COUNTY:

Nortex Gas and Oil Co. kof Midland has filed application to drill an 8,800-foot new field wildcat in Borden County, 12 miles northeast of Gail and ½ mile southwest of an 8,381-ffot wildcat failure.

Designated the No. 1 Jones "469", location is 2,310 feet from the south line and 990 feet from the west line of section 469, block 97 of the H&TC survey, and 1¾ miles south of an 8,232-foot Mississippian oil production in the Seven J, West Field.

KING COUNTY

Medders Oil Co. of Wichita Falls has completed the second well and 3/8 mile extension in the Pitchfork (Tannehill) Field.

Producing from perforations made from 3,693-3,702 feet, the No. 2 Pitchfork-Maverick "B" pumped 128 barrels of 36 gravity oil in 24 hours with a gas oil ratio of 8 to 1.

Commission calls for Yates test

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission voted Monday to authorize a 45-day test if the Yates Field can produce oil at a rate of 150,000 barrels a day without damaging the reservoir.

Commissioner Mack Wallace called the West Texas field "one of the last great remaining oil fields in this nation."

The Yates Field was discovered in 1926 and has produced more than 784 million barrels of oil. Remaining recoverable reserves are estimated at 1.25 billion barrels.

"I am not yet convinced that long-term damage to the reservoir can be averted" if a higher rate of production is approved, Wallace said.

Marathon Oil Co. asked the three-member commission to increase the field's most efficient rate (MER) from 125,000 barrels to 150,000 barrels. In 1976 and 1978, at Marathon's request, the commission raised the MER from 50,000 to 100,000 barrels and to 125,000 barrels, respectively.

Wallace said the commission "must be as certain as is reasonably possible that an increase in the MER for the Yates Field will not cause irreparable reservoir damage and deprive this state and the nation of a needed energy source for the long term."

He said a five-day production test in March had not provided sufficient data to support an increase in the MER.

Under Wallace's motion, the commission staff would oversee a 45-day test at 150,000 barrels a day, then return to 125,000 barrels a day, pending a commission decision.

Lee, MHS golf girls advance

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Coach Paula Ferguson's girls golf team at Midland Lee hopes lightning can strike twice while Midland High wants to cap a highly successful golf season with a trip to state.

The Rebels and Bulldogs, along with six other schools, will open the two-day Region I Girls Golf Tournament in Lubbock Thursday at 9 a.m. on the Meadowbrook Municpal Golf Course located at the Mackenzie State Park. The top two teams and medalistswill advance to the state meet in Austin next week.

Last year, MHS won the District 5-5A title only to see the second place Rebels earn the honor to play at state.

MHS and Lee are the only schools to represent the district since girls' golf was started three years ago.

This year, coach Mary Baird's Midland High squad won its third straight District 5-5A title with a combined stroke total of 1,018. Lee finished second in the district battle with a 1,087 total stroke count.

Senior Ann Coombes, a three year letter winner, is the Bulldog ringleader. Coombes won her second straight district medalist title this season. Because the district medalist title, Coombes was also medalist winner at the Big Spring and Del Rio invitationals and at the Amarillo Relays Golf Tournament.

Janice Littlefield, a junior, was the runner-up district medalist. Littlefield, holding down the number two position on the team, won medalist honors at the Midland Fall Tournament and was runner up at Big Spring and Del Rio.

Grabbing third place medalist honors in the district was Bulldog sophomore Kelle Mobley. Mobley plays in the number three spot for the Purple Pack.

Rounding out the district champion squad are senior Teresa King, a three year letter winner, and Melissa Baldridge, a junior who lettered for the first time this season.

Midland High, winners at the Midland Falls Tournament, Big Spring and Del Rio Invitationals, Amarillo Relays, and district meets at San Angelo, Midland and Big Spring, wants to add the district and state crowns to its impressive list of first-place trophies.

Lee didn't win as impressivley as its cross town rivals but are still in the hunt for a return trip to state.

Leading the Rebel hopefuls are Penny Sutcliffe and Gayla Strickland. Sutcliffe finished fourth and Strickland fifth in the district medalist dog fight.

Other girls making the trip to Lubbock for the Rebels are Ellie Mee, Kari Watson and Lelia Lockhardt.

Cooper leads 5-5A golf play

ABILENE—About the only criticism of the Abilene Cooper golf team is that the Cougars don't know their No. 1 team from their No. 2 team. It really doesn't matter all that much since the Cougars are running one-two in the District 5-5A golf standings with one week left of play.

Cooper's No. 2 team shot a team 280 for a 1243 total, four strokes better than Cooper's No. 1 team, which shot a 302. San Angelo is 18 strokes back at 1265.

Midland Lee No. 1 is sixth with 1342 while Midland High No. 1 is seventh at 1355.

Cooper's Ron English and San Angelo's Ronnie Fletcher are tied for first in medal competition at 299 going into next week's final round of play at Big Spring.

Team Totals—1. Abilene Cooper No. 2 280-1243. 2.Abilene Cooper No. 1 302-1247. 3. Central No. 1 294-1265. 4. Odessa Permian 312-1333. 5. Odessa 223-1341. 6. Midland Lee No. 1 312-1362. 7. Midland No. 1 325-1355. 8. Big Spring No. 1 326-1356. 9. San Angelo No. 2 326-1359. 10. Abilene No. 1. 316-1365. 11. Midland Lee No. 2. 333-1410. 12. Permian No. 2. 336-1429. 13. Harrision sets pact at relays

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The University of Pennsylvania's Frank Harrison won two events and took a slim lead Tuesday during the first five events of the decathlon competition at the Penn Relays.

Harrison, with 3,956 points, led Houston's David Saye, who had 3,934.

Harrison won the 100-meter dash in 10.9 seconds and the 400 in 49.7 seconds. He also placed second in the long jump, third in the shot put and tied for fourth in the high jump.

Bradshaw must make career choice

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Even if television or movie roles don't materialize, Terry Bradshaw must decide whether he really wants to play football any longer.

That was the appraisal Tuesday from Dan Rooney, president of the Steelers, as he maintained his wait-and-see approach in the face of mounting hints that the Pittsburgh quarterback will leave the team for an acting career.

"If Terry comes back, he's going to have to come back under the right conditions," said Rooney.

"I said this from the very beginning. He has to want to be a football player, and that's the only way it can be."

Meanwhile, the Steelers are currently being cautious not to back Bradshaw into a corner.

"I'm trying to be as noncommital as I possibly can be," said Rooney.

Yet the Steeler president acknowledged that recent remarks attributed to Bradshaw suggest he won't be a Steeler next season. And Rooney said the Steelers will wish Bradshaw the best — and do their best without him — if he chooses show business.

"Terry has been a great football player and more particularly he has been really a good person who has tried to do everything he could for the team, the city and himself," Rooney said.

Bad weather wrecking 5-5A baseball schedule

Coach Tim Whalen at Midland High and his counterpart, Ernie Johnson, at Midland Lee decided to to move their games Saturday so their players could have a long weekend for Easter. It's a move that may have backfired on the two mentors.

Last week's rains gave the players an extended holiday but there is plenty of action scheduled for them this week. Unfortunately, Mother Nature has already wrecked part of the plans.

Midland High's regularly scheduled game with Big Spring Tuesday was postponed due to wet grounds. This means that the Bulldogs, 10-9, 3-3, now have four games to makeup—against Midland Lee, Odessa Permian, Big Springs, and a non-district meeting with Monahans.

The Rebels, 10-6, 4-2, and Bulldogs are to meet today at Memorial Stadium diamond for a 4 p.m. shoot out if the weather cooperates. The dates for the Bulldogs'makeup games with Permain and Big Spring are not known at this time. Monahans is scheduled to play the Purple Pack Thursday, April 30, at Memorial Field diamond starting at 4 p.m.

Lee has also suffered from the rains. The Rebels were to have opened second-half district play last Saturday against Odessa High but that game was postponed due to the holiday. The Lee-OHS game has been rescheduled tentatively for April 30 at 4 p.m.

Whalen is concerned with all the postponed games. He said, "Once it gets dry enough to play we might have to play every day of the week just to catch up."

If MHS and Lee get their game in today as scheduled they will have completed the first half of District 5-5A play.

In Odessa, OHS and Permain will have already played a second-half game before the first-half schedule was completed. The Bronchos are playing at Abilene Cooper today while Permain plays host to Abilene High. On Saturday, Permian goes to Big Spring while Odessa High entertains San Angelo in 2 p.m. games.

Odessa High and Permian had their first-half ending game postponed last week because of wet grounds. The makeup game for the contest has been set for this Thursday at 4 p.m.

The other district teams all have at least one district game to makeup.

Flyers dislike own hockey medicine

By The Associated Press

Aggressive, pressure hockey always has been the trademark of the Philadelphia Flyers. They won games and championships by outhitting opponents and outhustling them in the corners.

Suddenly, however, the Flyers are getting a taste of their own medicine — and they don't like it.

Whether the Flyers can do anything tonight about the way the Calgary Flames have outplayed them in winning the last three games of their best-of-seven quarterfinal series will determine if Philadelphia is eliminated from the National Hockey League playoffs. The Flames, who had never won a postseason series prior to sweeping Chicago in the opening round this year, lead three games to one.

ALL THREE other NHL playoff series stand at 3-1, with the New York Islanders attempting to knock out the Edmonton Oilers, the New York Rangers looking to eliminate the St. Louis Blues, and the Minnesota North Stars hoping to end Buffalo's season. Only the defending champion Islanders will be at home.

"It's often said that games are won and lost along the boards," noted Flames defenseman Brad Marsh. "That has been Philly's success. They've got big forwards who can go in and dig the puck out. But we've got some big guys too. We've got to keep going after them."

Added Calgary forward Jim Peplinski concerning the Flyers bad-guy reputation, "If they want to get chippy, they've got to understand that they'll just get twice as much back. We can play it any way they want."

In all three of their one-goal wins, the Flames were outshot by Philadelphia. But goalie Pat Riggin has been outstanding, especially in the second and third games, when he made 42 and 47 saves respectively. Riggin did not play in the first game, a 4-0 Philadelphia triumph against Rejean Lemelin.

"I'm sure they're frustrated," added Marsh, the Flames captain. "They played two pretty good games in Calgary but we're getting the goaltending."

AND THE FLYERS are making uncustomary mistakes, the kind they rarely committed in reaching the Stanley Cup finals last year.

"We work, work and work," said Philadelphia center Bobby Clarke, "we get there, louse it up and give it right back."

"We have a challenge to respond to," added Flyers Coach Pat Quinn, whose team was sixth in the overall NHL standings to Calgary's seventh this season. "There has been a challenge all the way. But it's certainly a lot bigger right now."

The Oilers, Blues and Sabres could say the same thing. Each must rise to the occasion or go on vacation.

Edmonton, which wound up 14th during the season but surprised Montreal in three games in the opening round, can't afford to make many mistakes against the first-place Islanders.

"They capitalize on every mistake we make," said Oilers Coach Glen Sather. "We'll need a perfect game back there to beat them."

The Islanders will be without stalwart defenseman Stefan Persson, who suffered a broken jaw Monday night. Still, the Islanders are solid favorites to clinch the series.

"The greatest thing a team can have is playoff experience," said New York's Bob Nystrom, who scored the Cup-winning goal last spring against Philadelphia. "They've (the Oilers) got it all, including exceptional talent. And a year in the playoffs is certainly not going to hurt them."

THE BLUES'S main hurt is to their pride. After finishing an impressive second in league standings, they've been dominated by the Rangers' forecheckers and speedy skaters.

The Rangers have gotten numerous breakaways and clear shots at Blues goalie Mike Liut, an All-Star who has appeared tired in this round after playing every minute of an exhausting five-game preliminary series with Pittsburgh. The Blues defense has not been effective.

"I think maybe we have them frustrated," said New York's Ulf Nilsson. "They've been down and have had to open up. That's given us even more chances."

St. Louis' Wayne Babych, a 54-goal man this season, thinks the Blues aren't pressing the Rangers enough.

"We're giving their defense too much time," he said. "All year, our defense made teams make mistakes. Now it's not happening."
