Wageman: Board key to FNB's future

By DAVID C. SODAMANN
Business-Energy Editor

It's no secret now — if it ever really was — First National Bank of Midland is in relatively bad shape.

Can those charged with turning that state of affairs around accomplish their goal?

Yes they can, said Thomas J. Wageman, FNB's president and chief executive officer. Wageman, himself a board member, took charge of the bank only two months ago. He accepted the post at the ailing bank, he told the Reporter-Telegram in an exclusive interview Friday, because the board is so "stout."

"If you were looking at an ordinary board, you might put a question mark behind it. I think this is an extraordinary board. There isn't a bank in the country that could have gone through what we've gone through, and be in as good a shape as we're in today. I lay a lot of that to the quality, integrity and the strength of that board," Wageman said.

"By strength, I'm not just talking about financial strength...I'm talking about what I call moral fiber. In my mind, they're heroic. They don't give up. They haven't given up.

"I think they're incredible. I haven't seen anything like it in my business experience," Wageman said. "In a way, they embody a lot of characteristics of Midland and what it stands for. I think the term they use out here," the Chicagoan said, "is 'stout.' They're stout. They don't panic. They're worth whatever it is I can give them."

First National has called a meeting of shareholders on Friday, at which its financial problems will be addressed. The board proposes that the sale of new stock be authorized as a way to raise badly needed capital. In a proxy statement accompanying the announcement of the meeting, it was stated the bank's current capital level is "inadequate from a regulatory and operating viewpoint." It is a widely held belief that if First National fails, the effect on Midland could be enormous. Wageman wouldn't predict in detail the possible result if FNB failed; he offered an almost ominously brief prediction, however. "If we have problems," he said, "everybody in town is going to have problems. It's not in the interest in this community for this bank not to prosper."

A senior bank officer, who provided the Reporter-Telegram with background information about the bank's situation, said that FNB's future is tied closely to Midland's.

Often, when big banks fail, smaller banks, savings and loan and credit unions with money on deposit in the large institution are badly hurt financially. Wageman wouldn't say how many smaller firms might be affected.

"I don't have any idea," Wageman said. "I wouldn't even speculate. We really don't talk about our customers and their deposits, but we serve the region. So anything that effects the bank adversely effects the region.

"Now that may sound a little callous," Wageman said, "but my focus is on First National Bank of Midland. We have very important work to do. This is not a Johnny-One-Note kind of organization."

Wageman said he is occupied with staff and organizational problems, policies, programs and procedures, loan administration and review and dealing with recruiting. "And we're paying attention, importantly, to our capital plan."

Wageman suggested FNB was lulled by the economic boom the region enjoyed throughout 1981 and, before it realized what was happening, found its solvency crumbled by the bust that followed in 1982.

Midlanders show support for FNB

Midland citizens Friday began marshalling their forces to show support for troubled First National Bank.

A gathering of bank supporters will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Midland Center. Said a spokesperson, "The purpose of the gathering is to give Midlanders an opportunity to express appreciation to First National Bank for its long and faithful service to everything that has permitted our area to grow, prosper and become a great place to live and work.

"First National Bank is an integral part of our community and we share the good times and the bad times. It is time to say 'Thanks, First National. We believe in you,'" said a news release.

The public is invited to what is billed as a "town hall meeting." Among those planning the program are Naomi Tillett, Dorothy Ervin and Margaret Ortloff.

Friday also saw the adoption of resolutions of support by the Executive Committee of Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Midland County Bar Association.

The chamber resolution read "Be it hereby resolved that the Midland Chamber of Commerce does express its appreciation to First National Bank of Midland for its long history of leadership and service to Midland, and further, that the Midland Chamber of Commerce supports the bank in its effort to remain one of the leaders in the area's civic and economic development."

The Bar Association approved a resolution reading, "Whereas, the Midland County Bar Association, in recognition of the contributions to and support of this community made by First National Bank of Midland, Texas, wishes to publicly express its appreciation to the bank;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Midland County Bar Association go on record expressing its appreciation to the First National Bank of Midland, Texas for its long service to the citizens of this area and to wish the bank every continued success."

Jobless rate lowest in 17 months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate fell to 9.3 percent in September, the lowest in 17 months, the government reported Friday. Most Americans — whites, blacks, men, women and teen-agers — shared in the improvement, and nearly 400,000 jobless found work again.

The White House hailed the news as "extremely heartening," but Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., said it was still "a national disgrace" and top executives of some of America's biggest corporations said unemployment remained a critical national issue.

The Labor Department said total U.S. civilian employment climbed by 382,000 people in September to a record 101.95 million. At the same time, the labor force increased by 107,000 to 112.37 million people.

That left 10.4 million Americans still unemployed nine months after the recession peak of 12.5 million out of work last December, for a jobless rate of 9.3 percent last month compared with 9.5 percent in August.

The unemployment rate was 10.8 percent in December, the highest level in 42 years. By comparison, the rate was 7.4 percent when President Reagan took office in January 1981.

"It is extremely heartening to see our people going back to work in significant numbers," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters traveling with Reagan to a speech before Republican women in Louisville, Ky.

The president himself said in his prepared remarks, "Unemployment, which tragically is often the last indicator to turn around in a recovery, is on a downward path." He said the economic recovery is gaining strength and "America is getting well."

In Washington, Mitchell said the level of joblessness still was disgraceful. "I am concerned with the fiber of America...that seems to accept high unemployment rates," he said. "I find it incredible that we make these euphoric statements about minuscule drops in unemployment."

State jobless rate up 1.2 percent

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' unemployment rate went against the national trend and jumped by 1.2 percent in September to 8.5 percent, but an analyst insisted Friday that doesn't mean the state's economic recovery has stalled.

"I am concerned, but not alarmed. I wouldn't be inclined to think the recovery in Texas is being aborted. We're simply moving forward at a very slow rate," said economic analyst Terence Travland of the Texas Employment Commission.

The 8.5 percent rate in Texas means an estimated 659,000 people are out of work, Travland said.

Nationally the rate in September was 9.3 percent, down from August's 9.5 percent.

Travland said Texas was lagging behind the nation's economic recovery because the state had "special problems" during the recession — the oil and gas slump and the peso devaluation in Mexico that depressed the economy along the Rio Grande.

He said the recovery in Texas "is quitely likely going to be slow and tedious and somewhat painful."

Banks reveal moderate number of new accounts

A check of activity at Midland banks Thursday and Friday, in the wake of larger-than-normal withdrawals at First National Bank during the same period, revealed increased deposits and opening of accounts but in most cases in moderate numbers and amounts.

Texas American Bank's Kathy Atkin said TAB opened three extra new accounts desks and "We have seen an increase in deposits over the past two days. There is more traffic but the dollar amount of new deposits is not large and the increase in activity has not yet been significant to our operations."

"We have had a lot of activity and that's about all I can say," Jerry King, marketing chief for First City National Bank of Midland, commented.

Mid-Cities National Bank, formerly MetroBank, has seen "a very small increase in inquiries," according to Wendell Hoover, head teller.

A Petroplex Savings spokesperson said the S&L was "calling in extra assistance" but downplayed the amount of new accounts activity.

Bob Craig, spokesman for Western State Bank, said, "Yes, we have had an increase in activity to about three times the usual number of accounts opened on a normal day." Perhaps 25 people would open accounts with Western State, he said, adding "Now (in the last few days) it is much more than that."

Invariably, banking officials included in their remarks words of strong support for First National Bank during its current capital crunch.

Panic at 3,000 feet leads handicapped girl to her death

Skydiving accident kills girl with artificial leg

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mary Lou Sohm wanted to "show the world" that her artificial leg couldn't stop her from skiing, dancing and bicycling. But when she tried skydiving for the first time, panic at 3,000 feet led to her death, her instructor said.

Ms. Sohm, 25, froze in a fetal crouch instead of assuming the spread-eagle position that would have allowed her gear to activate automatically. Her instructor, Don Mumma, watched helplessly as she plunged into Otay Lake.

"The girl was not clumsy at all — she was a very alert, agile individual," said Mumma, operator of the San Diego Air Sports Center in nearby Chula Vista. "She went through the training exceptionally well.

"But the only thing we can't train people for is panic — and that was the problem. You see it happen, yet there's nothing we could do about it."

Friends say the Mission Valley advertising secretary moved with her family from Chicago in 1964 and led a determinedly athletic life after she lost a leg in an auto accident. The boyfriend she met on a dance floor didn't realize she was handicapped.

"When she told me she had an artificial leg, it really blew me away," said Geno Algarin, 30, a Spring Valley teacher. "She just had the air about her that nothing was wrong with her at all."

"When she told me she had an artificial leg, it really blew me away. She just had the air about her that nothing was wrong with her at all."

— Geno Algarin, Mary Lou Sohm's boyfriend

Another friend, dentist Dale Sutton, credited Ms. Sohm with helping him finish a 75-mile bicycle trip through Mexico from Tecate to Ensenada. Pedaling next to her on the nine-hour trip, he asked if she needed company.

"She said, 'Oh I'm doing pretty good — I'll make it'" Sutton recalled. "Here I was about dying — but she inspired me to finish.

"I think she was of the feeling that she wasn't that handicapped. She was going to show the world that, 'By God, I'm going to carry on like I did before — and more.'"

That included joining friends on a birthday outing Wednesday at Summa's parachute school. In day-long instruction they were taught to extend their bodies after stepping from the aircraft, allowing static lines to trigger a small pilot chute which in turn opens the main canopy.

If needed, a reserve chute can be activated by a handle grip.

But Ms. Sohm, the last one out of the Cessna, unexpectedly curled into a fetal position and froze. Mumma said that trapped the pilot chute under her arm and sent her plummeting past three friends.

"Had she just moved her arm and let the chute go, it would have done its thing," said Mumma. She finally activated the reserve about 300 feet above ground, but "by then it was too late."

Mumma said her death was the first among some 20,000 successful jumps since he opened his school two years ago.

Authorities said Thursday that Ms. Sohm's equipment was working properly.

Chance of thunderstorms forecast

The drought remains, coolness is in and there's a chance for thunderstorms today and light rain tonight and Saturday.

But the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport offered no promise of a break in the drought.

He did tender a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms through mid-day today, allowed that same probability for light rain tonight and a chance for light rain on Sunday.

The high today is to be in the upper 70s, and winds are to be southwesterly at 5-15 mph until noon, when they are to shift northeasterly at 10-20 mph and are to be gusty.

The low tonight is to be in the mid-50s. The high Sunday is to be near 70.

Friday's peak temperature was 94 degrees, while the record high for the date is 100 degrees in 1979. The low Friday was 68 degrees, and the record low for the date is 33 degrees in 1976.

Game wardens' responsibilities vary

But border patrol not a duty

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A game warden's duties have been misunderstood by many, according to Terry Lloyd of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"I know I've been cussed out for being a border patrolmen and everything else," Lloyd told the West Texas Justices of the Peace Association's 24th annual conference Friday morning.

Although their responsibilities vary, border patrol is not one of them, he said.

At the turn of the century, Lloyd said certain types of wildlife were scarce, such as deer. "Today, we can boast of more deer than any other state," he said.

Since 1912, Texas game laws have been enacted; however, effective Sept. 1, game wardens were given regulatory authority on bag limits, means and methods and opening and closing of the seasons.

"That enables us to make changes overnight if we need to," Lloyd said, adding their "recommendations are set, supposedly, on sound, scientific data."

Terry Lloyd

According to Lloyd, who has been game warden of Midland, Upton and a part of Crockett counties for about three years, the state is divided into 10 regions with 30 districts.

"There are about as many game wardens as there are counties but some counties require as many as five to 16 wardens," the 17-year Parks and Wildlife veteran said.

According to a film shown during Lloyd's presentation, Texas operates one of the toughest training schools which includes 950 hours of law enforcement training and mandates the top mental and physical condition of participants.

Instruction at the training center in Austin includes training in search and seizure and gathering of evidence. Participants also are experienced in the proper use of all firearms and radio and written communication.

Duties of game wardens, on call 24 hours a day, are enforcing protection laws of game, fish, water pollution and water safety.

Game wardens are expected to help boaters in distress, assist in water searches and administer assistance in rescue operations. Experience in civil service mock disasters also is included in the training.

Many game wardens serve in the coastal areas to prevent illegal fishing operations, Lloyd said. Raids on fisherman with illegal nets, ropes and trout lines are not unusual and confiscated items, such as shrimp, are put up for bid and the money used for conservation research, according to the film.

Locally, the game warden has just completed a 18-month long investigation in conjunction with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on violations of the U.S. Airborne Hunting Act. The investigation revealed illegal hunting from a helicopter in West Texas, the Permian Basin and Mexico.

About seven people were fined a total of $43,000 and netted up to eight years in federal institutions, Lloyd said.

"So it's not always just a $200 fine," he added.

Jobless rate lowest in 17 months

In Hot Springs, Va., the Business Council, composed of executives from major U.S. business companies, forecast further modest declines in unemployment in the next year, but said they will be "not nearly enough to erase unemployment as a critical public issue."

Martin Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, was asked about that statement before he addressed the council. "Of course, as long as unemployment is high, it's a critical public issue and it has to be dealt with," he replied.

But he added, "I think people are confident that as long as they continue to see the unemployment rate falling that progress is being made and that there's nothing to be overly concerned about."

Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers, said the report "again illustrates the surprisingly rapid improvement in employment opportunities."

William Dunkelberg, consultant for the National Federation of Independent Business, said the rate "will continue to go down; we've got a lot of kick left in this recovery."

The latest report said unemployment rates dipped last month to 8.7 percent from 8.8 percent for adult men and to 7.8 percent from 8 percent for adult women. The two categories are most likely to include family breadwinners.

For other categories, the rates were:

—Teen-agers, 21.8 percent, down from 23 percent in August.

—Whites, 8.1 percent, down from 8.2.

—Blacks, 19, down from 20.

—Hispanics, 13.1, up from 12.9.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

The report also included an alternate unemployment rate for all workers, including the more than 1.6 million military personnel in the United States. That rate declined to 9.1 percent from 9.4 percent in August.

In an added bright note, the department said the number of "discouraged workers," those not counted as unemployed because they have given up looking for jobs, totaled 1.6 million people in September, down 100,000 since June when the statistic was last calculated.

The September total for these people was down 240,000 from the recession high of more than 1.8 million at the end of 1982.

But the report said that "whites accounted for most of this improvement as blacks continued to account for a disproportionate share of the discouraged total," at 31 percent.

The number of people who have been looking for work for six months or longer rose slightly — to 2.506 million from August's total of 2.447 million.

The report said more than 2.8 million jobs have been created as the economy has recovered from recession this year. The gain was "about evenly divided between adult men and women, with no appreciable rise for teen-agers," the report said.

Janet Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee there were strong September increases in hours worked by factory employees and in overtime hours. Both, she said, suggested that factories probably would be hiring more workers in the future.

"Unemployment is still very high, however," she said.

Under questioning by Mitchell, she said only about one-third of all jobless workers are covered by unemployment insurance. Some are young people seeking their first jobs, she said, but many are job losers who have used up their six months of eligibility under regular state-run programs.

State jobless rate up

The figures released Friday were seasonally adjusted, to compensate for factors that occur about the same time each year and cause the raw rate to fluctuate. The seasonally adjusted figure for August was 7.3 percent. Texas' rate peaked in March at 9 percent.

"Next month I wouldn't be too surprised if we didn't see some reduction" in the state's jobless rate, he said. "The long-term trend is down. I believe it will resume that direction."

Nick Santangelo of Dallas, chief of economic analysis for the Department of Labor's Southwest region, agreed with Traviand that Texas was still enjoying an economic recovery, modest though it may be. He said more than half the increase in unemployment is the result of the "re-entrance into the labor force" of people who have not worked for a month or more.

"Based on a nice picture of economic recovery over the last few months, more people have come back looking for work," he said, adding that this group did not include so-called "discouraged workers."

A large group of the new unemployed are "voluntary job leavers," people who have left their jobs because they "perceive that getting another job is easier," Santangelo said.

"In a period of recession, the voluntary job leaver figure is about zero. People are scared if they leave their jobs they won't be able to find another one. There is kind of a rosy outlook on the part of people as they perceive the economy," he said.

Santangelo said Texas' economy generally lags behind the national economy by three or four months. He predicted the state unemployment picture will improve in the coming months.

He said the corridor from Dallas through Austin, San Antonio and Bryan-College Station continues to be the strongest economic sector of the state.

"I'd like to be optimistic, and I think we have every reason to be," Santangelo said. "The recent jump in unemployment isn't indicative of the general state of the economy."

Man jailed for attempted murder

A southside man remained in the county jail Friday after being arrested on attempted murder charges in an incident Thursday night that left a local woman hospitalized in guarded condition.

The victim, 45-year-old Arlene Mullin of south Midland County, was stabbed by a man who told her he would take her to see a car that she might be interested in buying, according to sheriff's deputies.

He instead took her to an area along a rural road east of Midland, where she was stabbed in the back after being blindfolded.

The man then drove the victim to an oil lease near Greenwood and left her there. He eventually returned and was taking her to the hospital when he ran out of gas.

A passing motorist stopped and assisted in getting the victim to Midland Memorial Hospital, deputies said.

The suspect, 18-year-old Albert Roy Sanchez of 1520 S. Terrell, was arrested on a warrant signed by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine. Bond had not been set by press time Friday.

Deputies said the incident began about 4 p.m. Thursday and ended six hours later.

Man holds up Stanton grocery

STANTON — A young man, in his late teens or early 20s, held a pistol on Flores Grocery Store clerk Adelina Villa about 7:15 p.m. Friday, told her to "give me all the money" and ran off after she did, according to law enforcement reports.

The robber, dressed in a white Western shirt and blue jeans, had rolled the money up and put it in his jean's pocket and then fled, said a spokesman for the Martin County Sheriff's Office.

"No shots were fired; nobody was hurt," the spokesman said.

While Ms. Villa was being robbed, a customer was in the store's restroom.

Stanton city police and the Texas Department of Public Safety are investigating the robbery.

Amount of money taken in the hold-up was undetermined.

The grocery store is located off old U.S. Highway 80 west of downtown Stanton.

Man jailed for sexual assault

A rural Midland man was in the county jail Friday night under $25,000 bond in connection with the aggravated sexual assault of a 26-year-old housewife.

Justice of the Peace Robert Pine set the bond on 17-year-old Ricardo Salinas of County Road 140-West.

Salinas is accused of sexually assaulting the woman during a two-hour period after breaking into her rural home and attacking her with a large knife about 1:15 a.m. Friday.

Following the attack, the suspect fled in the victim's car and was apprehended in Crane, according to sheriff's deputies, who said the woman suffered cuts to her hands and wrists.

Board key to FNB's future, says Wageman

"I have the sense it (the boom) was so strong, and so good, that people believed it would never end," said Wageman. "I suppose if we were a smaller bank, and less important to Midland, we wouldn't have participated as strongly as we did in that boom. But being who we were, we had to, I suppose."

FNB's troubles can be traced, in large part, to the fact it has loan heavily to the Permian Basin's energy industry. That industry has been hit hard by the recession and, as a result, many oil and gas firms are unable to make loan payments.

It's a "sin" in banking circles to over-concentrate loans in a particular segment of the economy — such as the oil and gas industry — as FNB has done because of the trouble it can lead to. But, Wageman said, First National didn't have any choice.

"There is nothing in Midland that is not energy-related — nothing," Wageman said. "Consumer lending is driven by energy in this town. Real estate lending, from home improvement loans through residential mortgages, to commercial and industrial development, they're all energy driven. This is an energy town. I don't know how a bank gets diversification in this town.

"In terms of practicing your business, prudence would dictate diversification. I'm telling you, I don't believe that's possible here," Wageman said.

Teen gets 45 years for shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — One of three high school students accused of robbing a Pasadena convenience store where the manager was shot to death has been sentenced to 45 years in prison.

Michael Lewis, 17, along with two classmates and a 20-year-old man, made store clerk Eddie Flores, 20, lie on the floor last Nov. 1 while they took beer, cigarettes and money, prosecutor Lyn McClellan said.

After the others left the store, Lewis allegedly shot Flores in the head and chest, fatally wounding him.

Lewis was arrested Jan. 14 on a warrant for an unrelated robbery and told officers about his role in the Pasadena holdup. A capital murder charge was reduced because of his age and lack of a criminal record, McClellan said.

Webb County D.A. sues paper

LAREDO (AP) — Webb County District Attorney Julio Garcia has filed a libel suit seeking $1.5 million in exemplary damages against the Laredo Times and its city editor, Bill Bouldin.

Garcia claimed a story written by Bouldin in Tuesday's newspaper was "intended to injure him...and deprive him of his good name and reputation..."

The story was about Garcia's official position in a driving-while-intoxicated case. It concerned a defendant represented by lawyer Jose Rubio, who rents office space from Garcia. Garcia claims the Times did not check the facts of the story as fully as it should have.

The district attorney is seeking $1.5 million for "humiliation, embarrassment, mental pain and anguish" and $1.5 million in exemplary damages claiming the Times published the story with actual malice and willful intent to injure him as a public figure.

School wants 14,000 computers

HOUSTON (AP) — Officials of the University of Houston want to install 14,000 personal computers, at a cost of $70 million, for use by students and staff members at the school's four campuses.

The computers would be tied into a network connecting University Park, the school's Downtown College and campuses at Clear Lake and Victoria, and be plugged into existing school computer systems.

If completed, there would be one computer for every four students, plus an individual computer for each faculty member, said Richard Van Horn, chancellor of Houston-University Park.

Man sentenced 85 years for rape

HOUSTON (AP) — One of two men believed by police to have abducted and raped 36 women has been sentenced to 85 years in prison.

Robert Lee Nickerson, 24, was convicted and sentenced Thursday by a jury for raping two women last Nov. 1.

The victims, who had gone to a Halloween party together, were abducted at gunpoint and driven to a nearby parking lot where at least two other men joined the original abductors. The women were blindfolded with their clothes and raped repeatedly for about three hours, investigators said. Afterward, they were robbed of their money and jewelry and left nude in the lot as the rapists drove off in their car.

Some Houston schools may close

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Independent School District will study low-enrollment schools to decide whether some should be closed or could be run by sharing principals, Superintendent Billy Reagan says.

Manhunt goes on in slayings at restaurant

KILGORE (AP) — Police said Friday they are hunting for three Tyler men in connection with the slayings of five people abducted during a robbery of a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant.

The men, who have a history of armed robbery, are in their 20s and one is believed to be driving a white van, said Assistant Police Chief C.R. Headen.

Headen expressed hope that the three would provide the first major break in the case, in which police previously have said they had no definite leads or suspects.

The five were abducted Sept. 23 during a robbery in which about $2,000 was taken and their bodies were found the next day on a rural Rusk County road. Each had been shot in the back of the head.

Tyler police have issued an arrest warrant for a 22-year-old man, the youngest of the three suspects, in the armed robbery of a convenience store Sept. 26. No warrants have been issued in connection with the Kilgore slayings, however.

"I do not know if these people have any relevance to this case or not," Headen told the Longview News. "Anyone who has a history of robbery in this area we want to talk to. We're working on the assumption that if they have a history of armed robbery they're violent.

"We're not just locked in on these three. During the course of this investigation we run up on a lot of people that are wanted by other departments."

All the men wanted for questioning have been seen frequently in Kilgore and Longview, Headen said.

The man wanted by Tyler police is said to be carrying a .357-caliber pistol and have a cut on his arm. The second man is 25 and the third is 29.

Investigators believe at least two weapons were used in the Rusk County slayings and have said one might have been a pistol.

Authorities believe a van or other large vehicle was used to take Opie Hughes, 39, Mary Tyler, 37, David Maxwell, Joey Johnson and Monte Landers, all 20, to the remote field between Overton and Henderson where they were found shot to death.

But Headen said investigators do not know for sure the suspects were driving a white van.

"I'm sure that would be taken into consideration," he said. "(But) we're sure not locked into a white van."

Six Texas Rangers — the most on one murder case in recent years — are working on the investigation, along with Kilgore police and the Rusk County sheriff's and district attorney's offices.

A $50,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons involved. Authorities have questioned and released a number of people.

Bell requests per-call billing

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell, bolstered by a survey showing Texans are interested in local measured service, will ask the Public Utility Commission to approve the per-call billing system as an alternative to flat-rate monthly bills.

Carlin Brandt, Bell division staff manager for revenue requirements, said the request would be made late this year or early in 1984.

Committee to review executions

AUSTIN (AP) — Members of the Texas Board of Corrections, complaining of a "circus atmosphere" outside the prison during preparations for an execution, named a panel Friday to review the way the state puts condemned prisoners to death.

In an aborted execution Tuesday night, convicted killer James David Autry lay strapped to a wheeled stretcher with intravenous needles inserted in both arms for about an hour before a stay was granted by a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

Board member Harry Whittington said the review should encompass the time the prisoner is taken from his cell at the Ellis Unit until he is pronounced dead, an should address among other things "demonstrations and the use of public property."

"All that noise and circus atmopshere is disturbing to the dignity and decorum of the occasion," Whittington said, referring to demonstrators who drank beer, carried plackards and chanted outside the prison Tuesday night.

Board Chairman Robert D. Gunn said, "It's a very serious time to us all and we don't approve of the circus atmosphere that was in the area outside the Walls Unit that night."

Rampaging pig blamed for fire

MADBURY, N.H. (AP) — A rampaging pig was blamed for causing a barn blaze that roasted more than 100 hogs and left two firefighters with minor burns, fire officials said Friday.

Fire Chief Ken Wolcott said Friday a pig tore up a barn belonging to Madbury Police Chief George Taylor. The rampaging pig knocked over a heater, which ignited Wednesday's blaze, Wolcott said.

Firefighters saved one sow and four piglets in an adjacent trailer, but at least 100 pigs died. Two firefighters received minor burns, Wolcott said. One was treated at a hospital and released, he said.

Board rules slapping justified

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A man fired for slapping another worker was justified in his action because the employee had bitten his finger and wouldn't let go, the Job Service of Iowa Appeals Board ruled in granting unemployment benefits.

Darrell M. Morris, of Des Moines, "merely was attempting to free his finger" from the worker's mouth "when he struck him with his open hand," the board said Thursday.

Morris, part of a cleaning crew on the kill floor of the Swift Independent Packing Co. plant, was fired Dec. 31 for fighting on the job. But the panel reversed a hearing officer's decision, determining that Morris was "not the aggressor."

Scientists urge pesticide program

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — A panel of scientists trying to counter gypsy moth infestations in five California cities has urged that the state adopt a pesticide program including helicopter spraying in San Diego.

The Gypsy Moth Science Advisory Panel, made up of scientists and government specialists, met Thursday at the University of California-Davis and recommended ground spraying of the controversial pesticide carbaryl in San Jose, Danville, Oakland and Livermore as well as in San Diego. Aerial spraying would be done only in an inaccessible area along the San Diego River, officials said.

Man will get his $10,000 back

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — A man who reported losing $10,000 in cash at a state park will get the money back, authorities said.

The Southboro man, whose name was being withheld by authorities, raced up Mount Holyoke on Sept. 14 looking for his missing jacket just minutes after police arrived to retrieve the garment and its contents — a three-inch wad of small bills totaling $10,000.

"Based on our investigation, our determination is that the money is his," Edward Etheredge, assistant district attorney for Hampshire and Franklin counties, said Thursday.

Drug probe leads to 18 men's arrest

BALTIMORE (AP) — A four-year drug probe described as Maryland'd largest narcotics case has resulted in the indictments of 18 men, according to federal Drug Enforcement Administration officials.

Fifteen Maryland men and three others from Florida were named in the three indictments resulting from a joint probe by the DEA and the Internal Revenue Service, George Brosan, head of the DEA's Baltimore field office, said Thursday.

Brosan said the investigation spanned several states and resulted in the seizure of more than 100,000 pounds of marijuana.

Arrest made in slaying of Redford's daughter's beau

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — FBI lab test results provided "the turning point" for the arrest of a 24-year-old college dropout in the slaying of Sidney Wells, boyfriend of the daughter of film star Robert Redford, police said.

Thayne Smika

Thayne Smika, who had shared a Boulder condominium with Wells and Wells' brother, Samuel, was arrested late Thursday at his parents' home in Akron, a town in northeast Colorado.

Smika, who was being held in the Boulder County Jail, was to appear before Boulder County Judge David Torke later Friday.

Smika was arrested after police said they gathered sufficient evidence to obtain a warrant in Wells' death. He died from a shotgun blast to the back of his head Aug. 1.

"The turning point was obviously the information derived from the FBI," Boulder Police Chief Jay Propst said of Smika's arrest.

Court documents show that items sent in for testing included a pair of Smika's boots that possibly were stained with blood, materials from his car and pieces of carpet from the condominium.

Wells, 22, of Longmont, was the longtime boyfriend of Shauna Redford, the 22-year-old daughter of actor and director Robert Redford. She was studying art at the University of Colorado, but university officials said she has not enrolled for the fall semester.

Miss Redford's family attended Wells' funeral.

Police Lt. Bill Spotts said the latest results arrived Thurdsay morning from FBI labs in Washington, D.C., and Torke signed an arrest warrant that afternoon.

Drug developed to induce abortions

PEKING (AP) — Chinese scientists have developed a safe, convenient, effective and economical medicine to induce abortions, the nation's leading newspaper reported Friday.

The People's Daily said the medicine, developed from the Asian herb trichosanthes, is given by injection and is 92 percent effective during the first three months of pregnancy. It can be used up to the first six months of pregnancy, it added.

Side effects are slight, the paper said.

Woman released after ransom paid

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) — Anita Puntorieri, a physician's daughter kidnapped last August, was released after her family paid $300,000 ransom, police said Friday.

The 22-year-old woman was set free Thursday night near her home at Gambarie, a few miles from the Aspromonte mountains in the southern region of Calabria, police said.

Miss Puntorieri told police she was kept chained to a camp bed for the entire time she was held captive.

French jets reportedly fly to Iraq

MORLAIX, France (AP) — Five French Super-Etendard jet fighers left a base in western France Friday for delivery to Iraq, informed sources reported.

Iran has warned that if France delivered the aircraft to its adversary in the Iran-Iraq border war, it might blockade the Hormuz Strait at the mouth of the Gulf through which much of the world's oil is shipped.

The Iraqis are said to want the aircraft, which carry Exocet missiles already sold to Iraq, to attack Iranian oil terminals.

Seismic waves detected near China

KJELLER, Norway (AP) — The Seismological Institute said Friday it registered seismic waves from a probable nuclear test explosion in Xinjiang, China.

The tremors Thursday measured 5.3 on the Richter scale of earth movement, the institute said.A spokesman said the institute delayed the announcement by one day because the data needed to be analyzed.

Minister fired for abusing position

MOSCOW (AP) — The minister of light industry for the Russian republic has been fired for abusing his position, the newspaper Sovietskaya Sossiya reported Friday.

The paper said Yevgeny F. Kondratkov was accused of numerous offenses but did not give details. A successor was not reported.

The Russian Republic, the largest of 15 in the Soviet Union with 141 million people, stretches from the western Soviet Union, including Moscow, across Siberia to the Soviet Far East.

Improved U.S., China ties could hurt Sino-Soviet relations

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

PEKING (AP) — Negotiations to improve relations between the Soviet Union and China probably won't make much headway because of recent, dramatic improvement in ties between the United States and China.

"A breakthrough just isn't in the cards and it is not in the interests of (Vice Premier) Deng Xiaoping to move ahead with the Soviets at this sensitive time," said one foreign diplomat.

"If anything, the Chinese will be more intransigent with the Soviets" after the successful visit of U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, he said. The diplomat discussed the talks on condition he not be identified.

Weinberger discussed selling weapons to China and reached an agreement on military cooperation on his five-day trip to China last month. He said the "growing threat" of the Soviet Union made U.S.-China discussions "extremely important."

Diplomats said China will take a hard line toward the Soviet Union partly because the talks come just before a major party meeting. At a time when leaders are consolidating power, no one wants to be seen as making concessions to a foreign power.

The Communist Party Central Committee opens a plenary meeting on Sunday or Monday to launch a three-year camapaign against opponents of the present reformist line. Foreign policy also will be discussed.

The third round of Sino-Soviet consultations on improving relations opened last Monday and a strict news blackout was imposed.

No progress reports will be issued and the Chinese press has not reported the talks are underway. The talks are expected to last two or three weeks, with two or three formal sessions a week, plus other informal meetings.

The first consultations were held in Peking one year ago and no substantive progress was made, although China wants to improve trade, economic, technological, cultural and other relations.

Canada passes China in gold

Canada has passed China to become the third largest gold-producing nation, according to the Gold Institute. Canada's 1982 output rose to about 1.84 million troy ounces from 1.41 million in 1981. China's 1982 production was about 1.77 million troy ounces, compared with 1.69 million in 1981.

An Analysis

The Soviet side, headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid F. Ilyichev, wants to discuss concrete steps toward normalization. The Chinese side, headed by his counterpart Qina Qichen, wants to concentrate on removing major political and foreign policy obstacles.

China now has increased the list of obstacles to include the presence of Soviet SS-20 missiles in the Far East. The other obstacles, considered threats to Chinese secruity, are the deployment of Soviet troops along the Sino-Soviet border and Mongolia, Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and Soviet backing for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia.

The Soviets have refused to discuss these obstacles in bilateral negotiations, calling them "third country" issues. Foreign diplomats, however, speculated that the major improvements in Chinese-U.S. relations might prompt the Soviets to make some small gesture, like declaring willingness to discuss mutual troop reductions along the border.

China and the United States achieved a major breakthrough in relations last month that greatly disturbed the Soviets. Weinberger announced that President Reagan and Premier Zhao Ziyang would exchange visits next year.

He also announced in Peking that China and the United States are actively discussing sales of U.S. defensive weapons to China, incuding anti-aircaft missiles, anti-tank weapons and high technology that China could use for early warning systems.

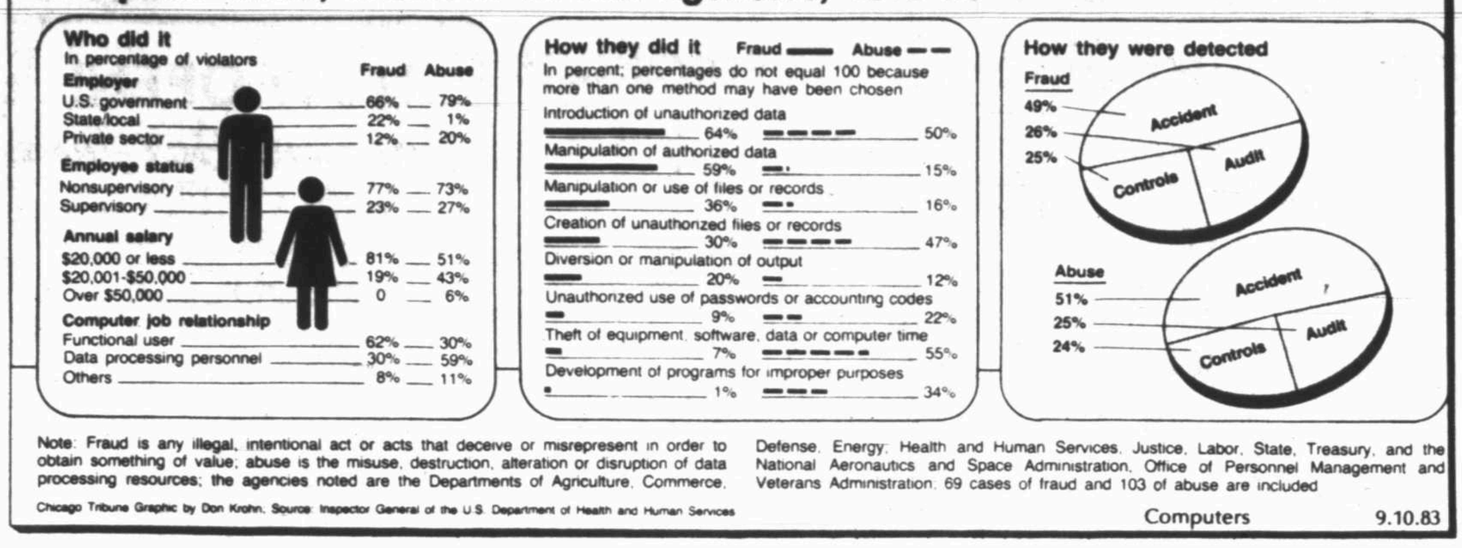

The Soviet Union always has been deeply concerned about the prospect of a military relationship between China and the United States. Some foreign analysts suggest that the improvement in Chinese-U.S. relations could make the Soviet side even more convinced that China's interest in better Soviet relations is merely tactical.

TV reception will be affected

DENVER (AP) — Solar radiation is playing havoc with satellite signals across the nation this week, but most people likely will never know the difference, according to experts.

Joe Hirman, chief forecaster for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said the problem occurs around the annual equinoxes, when the sun lies directly above the Earth's equator.

During these twice-yearly periods, the sun, orbiting satellites and receiving dishes on the ground are in direct alignment.

Computer soothes overweight, underconfident

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Need a little reassurance? Want to feel that you're healthy, lovable, attractive or just plain OK? Now there's a psyche-soothing computer program that offers this kind of help for the overweight and underconfident.

These subliminal messages are available through "Expando-Vision," the first product of Stimutech Inc., which is marketing the product using the slogan, "Straight to the Mind's Eye."

The messages flash at one-thirtieth of a second on a television screen hooked up to a home computer — faster than the eye can consciously catch them, but perceptible to the subconscious.

"I like my body," "I exercise daily," "My body is healthy," they tell people who want to lose weight. "I'm OK."

For boosting sexual confidence, there's: "I see me lovable," "I see me desirable," "I am attractive," and "I'm OK."

"They are all positive and you have to subconsciously want to respond," said Dr. Wallace LaBenne, an Ann Arbor psychotherapist, professor of educational psychology at Eastern Michigan University and chairman of a board of scientists that developed the "Expando-Vision" messages.

"Very few people question whether it works," said Michael Erb, Stimutech vice president for marketing. "The two questions we receive most are, 'Is it legal?' and 'When can I get one?'"

Because the messages are not broadcast, but rather are supplied by a $39.95 cartridge through an $89.95 device plugged in between a home computer keyboard and a television, "Expando-Vision" does not violate Federal Communications Commission regulations banning subliminal messages, Erb said. The device will be available by mail order starting Oct. 17, although 75 Michigan residents have been testing it.

"There are an awful lot of people out there who want to change their behavior in some way," he added. "With no advertising yet except word of mouth, already we have more than 100 check-in-hand orders. We've had people tell us they went out and bought a microcomputer just so they can use the product."

One of the testers is Karen Pawlovich, an analyst for the state Department of Management and Budget.

"I work in government so I never say anything is absolute," Ms. Pawlovich said. "But I believe the concept is excellent. There's high potential gain and low risk, so I said, 'Go for it.' I think they're nice messages ... particularly, 'I'm OK.'"

Tatarian synonymous with journalism

By R. H. GROWALD
Copley News Service

He mentions Professor Ricardo Galeazzi-Lisi and the wide mouth is up at the corners and the eyes narrow into glee and the heads nod. Strike up the band! Look at what marvels journalism commits!

He is Roger Tatarian, an archdeacon of American newspapering, and he has been editor-in-chief of United Press International. He has been America's champion at world journalism conferences. Colby College has hung the Elijah Parish Lovejoy Award for Outstanding Service to Journalism around his neck.

He's also about as near beloved by reporters as an editor can be. And now Tatarian was describing the big and smaller worlds of a life in the higher reaches of American journalism.

And there he was in Italy, running the UPI operation and Pope Pius XII was feeling poorly and Professor Galeazzi-Lisi offered his services to mankind.

Tatarian's hands gesture palms up. He says the professor, personal physician to Pius, had told Tatarian he would supply to UPI — and to no other — sickbed and deathbed news of the Pope.

For a little money of course. Professional courtesy. No checks please.

UPI paid for the exclusive news. So, it turned out, did UPI's rival news services and the broadcasting networks and newspapers and magazines.

Professor Galeazzi-Lisi conned them all. Tatarian sighs as Santa Claus or Mighty Mouse might.

"You could not buy Professor Galeazzi-Lisi," says Tatarian, raising a finger. "You could only rent him."

Tatarian — journalism's style requires him to be so mentioned; to colleagues, he is Roger — left UPI in 1972 to regain his health. Heart stuff. He became a professor of journalism at California State University, Fresno. Newspapers from Boston to San Diego also charter him to coach their editors and reporters.

For Tatarian, a child of Fresno, is a man of Big Stories. He served in Washington, D.C., almost four decades ago and watched Harry S. Truman take the Himalayan step from Just Plain Harry to Mr. President. "We saw an evolution of HST, almost overnight, from a chief executive with an apologetic manner to a self-confident president."

"At first, we in the Washington press were sorry for Harry Truman. A few weeks later, the sorry was gone."

Tatarian had made other reporters sorry for themselves. Just out of Fresno State in 1938, where he met his wife-to-be, Eunice, Tatarian joined United Press and went to Arizona and, oh, big story whoopla and all that, Winnie Ruth Judd happened.

La Judd had butchered a few persons and shipped bits of them to Los Angeles (a French study shows that body-in-the-trunk killers have a great fondness for the letter L, which may have been the reason Judd shipped to Los Angeles and why the baggage master at Lyons, France, dreads unclaimed trunks). Put behind bars, she escaped.

"This was the 1930s, not today. At that time all America, even the world, thrilled to the drama of Winnie Ruth on the loose. The world's press descended on Arizona."

Judd was caught and jugged. Several battalions of reporters galloped from the announcement room to tell the world. There were only two telephones.

One was on a press room table and much howling, gouging, elbowing, kneeing, gurgling, whining, demanding and other jollities ensued as that phone was wrestled for by all the reporters. Except Tatarian.

Banking undergoes change

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The banking industry is taking another step on the road to deregulation, and it will mean new, more flexible certificates of deposit for consumers.

Federally insured banks and savings institutions are free to pay whatever rate of interest they want on savings certificates with maturities of 32 days to 2½ years. They also can set their own minimum denominations and maturities and can use any method of compounding they choose.

Allan Friedman, an economist with the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, said the changes are not expected to set off the kind of competition that developed when money-market bank accounts made their debut.

"This is more of an evolutionary change," he said. "Most people are not expecting a real prolonged rate war."

Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., said, however, that the deregulation of the certificates is "fraught with peril for consumers." He said that when new accounts were introduced in the past, they were accompanied by an "advertising blitz that has been long on interest-rate hype and short on disclosure." He said financial institutions should be required to spell out the details of their offerings more clearly.

The savings league has prepared a primer on the changes, which were authorized by the Depository Institutions Deregulation Committee. Here are some of the basics:

Q. What kind of certificates are affected?

A. Just about all of them. Interest rate ceilings are removed from the six-month certificate and the "small saver" certificates which run for 18 months to 30 months. Previously, the interest rates on those deposits were linked to the rates on U.S. Treasury securities of similar maturities.

Masks created for 'dance of the devils'

LA PAZ, Bolivia (A) — The senior craftsman of Bolivian folklore works in a tiny room in a slum of La Paz, surrounded by the masks of devils, monsters, saints, Inca warriors and African slaves.

Antonio Viscarra has dedicated 65 of his 77 years to the creation of these colorful headpieces that come alive in the dance of the devils and other popular rituals of this South American country.

"My grandfather taught me how to make these masks," says Viscarra, who is passing his skill to one of his own eight grandchildren, 13-year-old Antonio Lopez.

Viscarra is the oldest of about 20 mask makers in La Paz and the mining city of Oruro. They sell their work to middlemen who rent in turn to the social, business and fraternal groups that organize hundreds of dances.

Working on a promise to the Virgin Mary, these performers draw thousands of Bolivian spectators and foreign tourists to carnival in Oruro each February or March, to the Feast of the Great Power in La Paz each June and to scores of village and mining center festivals.

The dance of the devils, or diablada as it is called in Spanish, is a 12th-century Roman Catholic rite brought to Bolivia by the Spanish colonizers and adapted to the pagan superstitions of Quechua and Aymara Indians about gods and spirits floating around in the tin mines of the Altiplano.

Devoted to the Virgin of the Mines, patron saint of Bolivia's most important industry, the dance pits an archangel against a troupe of demons in a struggle between good and evil, with complex choreography practiced for months.

In the 4-foot-square workshop adjacent to Viscarra's one-room home hang the figures that take part in the ritual — the helmeted archangel with her sword and mirror-like shield, bearded black faces representing Africans who slaved in the mines under colonial rule, and China Supay, the devil's blue-eyed mistress, resplendent in a Spanish conquistador's helmet.

The old master fashions his devil masks from plaster, cloth and paint. They bear bright red, gold and green horns, white pointed ears and sharp triangular teeth made of glass. Lucifer, accompanied by a three-headed dragon, is the ringleader. Others go by the names of the seven deadly sins: sloth, gluttony, lust, avarice, pride, wrath and envy.

In the workshop, which faces a small courtyard and outdoor kitchen where pigeons, parrots and cats mingle with several of his grandchildren, Viscarra talks with excitement about his masks, their origin and place in Bolivia's history.

"El Chuncho is this Indian figure," he said, pointing to a mask with a feather headdress and beads hanging from its neck. "El Chuncho used to live in Tiwanacu, near Lake Titicaca, and adored the Inca queen and chieftain. The Incas fought with Indians from an area that is now Peru, which explains the gashes on his face."

"Now," he added, "their descendants recreate battles with the Spanish who came and conquered them."

Like most Bolivians devoted to their country's rich folklore, the mask maker is poor. His wife says they barely survive on what he earns. But the work, he says, makes him "a contented man."

"People always want to buy my work," he tells a visitor who is asking prices. "Twenty dollars for this one," he says, pointing to an elaborate devil's mask that took him and his grandson a month to make.

Thinking he is charging too much, Viscarra then offers to lower the price. He has no idea that his works are considered priceless collectors' items that are being outnumbered by mass-produced plastic masks.

Murals to grace highway

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Colorful wildflowers normally don't turn heads.

But the flowers arranged by Evelyn Cunha do because they grace an 8-by-22-foot wall along Fresno's year-old crosstown Freeway 41, in one of California's few highway mural projects.

Howard Growdon, a Fresno department store clerk, came up with the idea of viewing art at 55 mph more than three years ago as a community service project for his Jaycees chapter.

"Thinking about projects for the club, I got to wondering what we could do to help the freeway," he said. "Because of the economy and all, I figured it would be brown and barren a long time before the state got around to landscaping."

He was right. The state Transportation Department does not plan to begin landscaping the freeway until next spring.

So, nine murals have been made, and four have been erected on block walls built on open areas at interchanges, in a project that has been accomplished without any public funds.

Growdon, who gave up his studies at Fresno City College to devote himself to the murals, needs another $7,000 to get the other five in place.

"When I got the idea for this, I knew nothing about making a mosaic," said the 24-year-old Jaycees vice president. "I had to learn everything from scratch, from the kinds of materials available and what was suitable for us and why, and the laws which would be involved in installing them on a roadway."

A selection committee asked for sketches of murals with simple but bright color schemes and suggested themes of family life, culture, business, agriculture and industry for the beautification work.

Mrs. Cunha, who considers herself an advanced amateur oil painter, submitted 10 designs, and the committee chose her wildflower picture featuring about 20 species native to the San Joaquin Valley.

That one is already in place, as are murals depicting the sun rising over the San Joaquin Valley, raisin-grape workers, and modernistic cubes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The way in which you handle a difficult problem endears you to an older family member. Confront your detractors. A travel opportunity could lead you to change your romantic plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You deserve a break from a pressure-cooker situation. Find a quiet place to read a book or get together with someone cheerful. Romance can wait for another day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Romance is more fulfilling than in the past. Count your blessings! Some tough business decisions lie ahead. Spend this afternoon getting organized for the busy work week ahead. Loved one is supportive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A child helps you open up and enjoy life to the fullest. Get promises in writing if you have been too trusting in the past. Neighbors could interfere with your family plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have faith in yourself and your fondest dreams could come true. Others follow where you lead. Tell loved ones what is bothering you. Romance moves into high gear for a young couple.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Face up to your family responsibilities. Otherwise, you only prolong the inevitable. You may be getting too involved in with someone. Remain true to your high ideals. You can do better.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Now is the time to take a trip you had to postpone. Get away from those negative individuals who have held you back. Entertaining helps you expand your social circle.

Disney movie debuts

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a familiar story told in a new, visually captivating way — and just in time for the World Series.

Roy Scheider, an Oscar-winning actor of considerable versatility, plays Billy Young, an aging, fading ballplayer whose success at bat seems to be all that motivates a fatherless city kid named Alex.

"Tiger Town," scheduled to premiere Sunday night, is the first movie made exclusively for The Disney Channel pay-cable TV network. And it's all that you might expect of a family film: heartwarming, hopeful, inspirational, slightly sentimental and, with an important exception, not particularly original.

"If you believe in something, with all your heart, you can make it happen," Buddy, unaware that his hours are numbered, tells his 11-year-old son Alex, played by Justin Henry, an Academy-Award nominee from the movie "Kramer vs. Kramer."

BUDDY'S deathbed pep talk fairly sums up the story line, and that might have been a killer but for Alan Shapiro's loving eye.

Shapiro, the writer and producer, grew up in Detroit, where "Tiger Town" is set, and attended — like Alex — Louis Pasteur Elementary School. Ultimately, Shapiro's hometown sensitivity is the difference between a mediocre film and a good one.

The ballpark scenes, shot in and around stylish and imposing Tiger Stadium, have to be among the best ever made for a dramatic film. Shapiro uses the park, empty or full, with the delicate touch of one who has been there, and often. He treats the several street scenes in the same, neighborly way, notably one inside the Eastern Market, and another at the Belle Island park.

IT'S mid-season when the film opens, and the Tigers are in last place. Billy "The Hawk" Young, 39 and struggling through his last season, can't buy a hit, and the fans are on his back. "Hang it up now, Young!" one angry spectator shouts as Billy whiffs on three pitches. "You're a bum!"

But Alex won't settle for that. After Buddy dies, the youngster takes to heart his dad's simple thought — believe in what you want with all your might — and it works. Every time Alex shuts his eyes and wishes as hard as he can that the Tigers will win, and Billy will get the decisive hit, it happens.

Young begins to raise his batting average, the Tigers start to win, and even Sparky Anderson, the team's real-life manager who plays himself in the film, is more optimistic. "Maybe with a little help from above," he says, "I think we have a shot."

TROUBLE is, Billy is convinced he's got to be at the ballpark for the magic to work. And that means cutting out of school early to catch the game.

The supporting cast is outstanding: Ron McLarty, who appeared in "That Championship Season" on Broadway and in London, plays Buddy, and Bethany Carpenter, who is active in Detroit-area theater groups, is Nancy, his wife.

Sportscasters Ernie Harwell, who is the voice of the Tigers in Detroit, Al Ackerman and Ray Lane contribute to the artfully recreated sporting atmosphere.

"Tiger Town" is a classy production, right down to Mary Wilson's rendition of the National Anthem on the final, climactic day of the season, and Louis Armstrong's classic version of "Sunnyside of the Street" played over the closing credits.

Manilow gives royal performance

LONDON (AP) — Singer Barry Manilow was treated at a hospital and released Friday after spraining his ankle on the stage of London's Royal Festival Hall, his agents said.

The 37-year-old pop-rock singer injured himself Thursday night while performing before a sell-out crowd that included Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, and Princess Diana.

"He just sprained his ankle on stage," said a spokesman for London publicists Rogers and Cowan. "It swelled up after he walked around on it, and we decided to let the doctor take a look."

Earlier, Manilow, a bachelor, had been given some motherly advice from Princess Diana.

"You must get married," Diana, 22, told the slender singer-songwriter from Brooklyn, N.Y. "You need somebody to look after you. You must put on more weight."

Manilow would not say whether he plans to obey the royal command from the willowy princess, who lately has been urged to put on a few pounds herself.

But he said: "The princess was absolutely charming. I was very impressed with her."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Conan the Barbarian has married his female warrior-companion, Red Sonjia, on a movie set at Universal City.

Thursday's wedding united Tommy Jack Wadsworth and Leslie Talbert Faulkner, one of the three sets of muscular young men and lovely warrior-women who perform in an attraction at Universal, a few miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The couple met in May, when they began training for their roles in the stage show, which opened in mid-June as a spinoff from the film "Conan the Barbarian," said Universal spokesman Milt Petty.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Keeping a relationship private can be difficult, especially when you're dating the reigning Miss America, Vanessa Williams.

Bruce Hanson, 22, said recently his telephone finally has stopped ringing, but only after he changed the number three times.

The Syracuse University finance major from Albany, N.Y., has been dating Miss Williams, 20, for the last four years. Since she was crowned Miss America on Sept. 18, his profile has gone up considerably, he said.

One magazine even "tracked down my grandmother, who is a real estate agent in Scarsdale, N.Y., to ask questions about me and Vanessa," said Hanson, who prefers privacy.

Miss Williams, a musical theater major from Millwood, N.Y., has not been back on the campus since the pageant although the couple is able to talk by telephone almost every night, Hanson said.

ST. JOHNS, Antigua (AP) — Reggae singer Jimmy Cliff has been barred from entering this Caribbean nation because of his performances in South Africa in 1979, the government said.

The Jamaican-born entertainer was scheduled to perform next month as this Caribbean nation celebrates the second anniversary of its independence.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday, "Jimmy Cliff is on the list of names published by the United Nations as artists, performers and sports personalities who have visited racist South Africa to perform."

The government "has reaffirmed its commitment to the policy against apartheid," the spokesman said.

LIHUE, Hawaii (AP) — Sarah Purcell, a co-host on the "Real People" TV series, married Los Angeles dentist Robert A. McClintock in a ceremony performed aboard the cruise ship SS Constitution.

About 700 guests aboard the ship and an additional 300 people at dockside cheered Thursday as flowers were dropped from two helicopters hovering above Nawiliwili Harbor on the island of Kauai.

A flotilla of 35 boats circled the harbor after Miss Purcell, dressed in a pale peach gown, and McClintock, in a white tuxedo, repeated their marriage vows. Each has been married previously.

The couple will honeymoon "somewhere in Hawaii," a spokesman for the TV show said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Columnist Jimmy Breslin plans to join Charles Dickens, Fyodor Dostoevsky and Norman Mailer in the pantheon of writers who produced novels under deadline pressure to fill empty wallets.

"I compare myself to nobody except in the field of need," said Breslin, whose novel "Table Money" will be written in three-times-a-week installments for the Daily News, starting this Sunday.

The novel is the story of Owen Madden Morrison, a Vietnam War veteran who digs tunnels in New York City and must deal with a wife who rebels against his traditional ways.

But why write under weekly deadline pressure?

"As father neglected to leave an estate in order, and as since then I have received no royal or parliamentary grants of money, I must type fast for a living," said Breslin, author of "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight."

Author frightened by suit filed by Sinatra

Kitty Kelley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Author Kitty Kelley said Friday she intends to continue her research into the life of Frank Sinatra and write a book about him despite his $2 million suit to stop her from interviewing his friends and associates without permission.

Surrounded by representatives of writers' groups, she held a press conference to say that while she still considers the singer "the most fascinating man in America," she is frightened by the lawsuit he filed Superior Court in Los Angeles. The suit seeks $2 million in punitive damages.

Miss Kelley said she has been interviewing and doing other research for a year, but that she has not written a single word. "I will continue the research and I will write the book," she added.

Officers of the American Society of Journalists and Authors, the National Writer's Union, the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press and Washington Independent Writers joined in a statement saying:

"The suit seeks to silence this writer long before she speaks for fear that her message will be uncomplimentary and will interfere with this celebrity's goal of reaping the exclusive profits from 'setting the record straight' — as he sees that record."

The phrase comes from Sinatra's complaint that he has "chosen to keep private many of the private events of his life" and that he has informed his friends "that at such time as he decides is appropriate, he will set the record straight as to many such aspects of his life."

The writers' spokesmen said Sinatra's action, if it succeeds, would have a chilling effect on other writers attempting to write a biography. "We cannot let this go unresponded," one spokesman said.

She told reporters she has not yet been served with Sinatra's complaint and has not replied in court. She has a contract with Bantam Books for the Sinatra biography, she said, but that the publisher is taking the position it is not involved in the suit until the book is out.

Reagan's face selling beer in England

MANSFIELD, England (AP) — Whether he knows it or not, President Reagan is selling beer in England.

Reagan's face is featured on large billboards throughout central England on advertisements for Mansfield bitter beer.

"He might be president of the most powerful nation on earth," the caption reads, "but he has never had a pint of Mansfield."

Mansfield Brewing Co. said Friday it got permission from the White House to use the president in its latest promotion. Richard Lewis, Marketing Director for the company, said it sent a proof copy of the poster and received a letter back from a White House aide — whom he did not identify by name — saying that Reagan had no objection to use of his picture and name and wishing the company "good luck."

Lewis said Mansfield would not have carried on the campaign if there had been any complaints from the White House or the American Embassy in London.

Chesapeake Bay being cleaned up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indians in James Michener's novel, "Chesapeake," called the legendary bay "the river of rivers in which the fish of fish abound." Captain John Smith, in the same pages, found it "calm and hospitable, majestic in size. Its potential cannot be imagined."

But the vast Chesapeake, the largest estuary in North America with the largest blue crab harvest in the world, is no longer the pristine estuary John Smith knew.

And federal researchers are asking Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia to organize a 10-year, $1 billion-plus cleanup.

The 64,000-square-mile basin includes the urban centers of Baltimore, Washington, Richmond and Hampton Roads, Va., and Harrisburg and York, Pa. The James, Patuxent, Potomac, Rappahannock, Susquehanna and York rivers are major bay feeders carrying agricultural, industrial and urban pollutants.

Environmental Protection Agency scientists said last month that grasses, clams, oysters, shad and perch are declining, while toxic chemicals, heavy metals, nutrient pollution and other consequences of "human activities" are on the rise.

State enviromental agencies are responding to the crisis with varying degrees of effort and financial support.

John Roland, Chesapeake Bay project coordinator for the Virginia State Water Control Board, said the bay is "salvageable as long as we recognize that problems are developing and deal with them now."

His state is drafting a $6 million, two-year package to be followed by a more extensive eight-year, $150 million plan. Similar comprehensive efforts are under way in Maryland.

Pennsylvania, meanwhile, is planning to encourage farmers on a voluntary basis to reduce crop runoff with conservation techniques.

The 440-mile Susquehanna, the "mother river" of the bay, stretches from New York's Finger Lakes through central Pennsylvania to the head of the Chesapeake. It accounts for 40 percent of the nitrogen nutrients in the bay and discharges three times as many pounds per day of copper, nickel, lead, zinc and other heavy metals as its nearest competitor, the James River.

"We are initially looking at nutrient problems," said Bill Cook, special assistant to Pennsylvania's environmental secretary. "We do not feel that we are creating a toxics problem in the Chesapeake Bay."

The nutrients cause overgrowth of plankton and other aquatic life that block sunlight, helping to kill plants and create what scientists call a near-desert on the bottom of the Chesapeake — affecting the crab harvest in some areas.

Cook said Pennsylvania is well ahead of Maryland and Virginia in requiring phosphorus removal from sewage, and said pre-treatment programs recommended by EPA are still in discussion stages at the agency.

He said the voluntary soil conservation plan will work because farmers in Lancaster County and other agricultural areas along the Susquehanna lose $2,200 per acre or $90 million a year by allowing fertilizer and manure to run off their fields.

"Farmers are becoming more and more aware of the economic benefits to them to save the soil on their land. We feel we'll have a cooperative farm community," Cook said, adding the state will use EPA money for education.

Asked about Pennsylvania's relatively narrow focus, which will involve few if any state dollars, he replied, "Look at where the Bay is in relation to Pennsylvania. It's downstream."

He said Gov. Dick Thornburgh is cooperating because he is "a good neighbor" and because reducing nutrient flow into the Susquehanna will help Pennsylvania agriculture, "our number one industry."

Torrey Brown, Maryland's natural resources secretary, said his state is drafting a plan that will cost "many millions over many years."

Major initiatives in the Maryland package, to be presented at a December summit meeting of the three governors, include upgrading sewage treatment plants to remove phosphorus and dechlorinate waste, and improving pretreatment of industrial waste, heavy metals and chemicals.

Other parts of the plan include aid to farmers to implement ssoil conservation techniques; stopping shore erosion; a duck-rearing facility; a rockfish and shad hatchery; public education; and forest preservation. Many programs would utilize state funds.

Virginia's Chesapeake plan, one of Gov. Charles Robb's priorities when the state legislature returns in January, contains a number of pilot programs that will be expanded in the eight-year plan if they work, Roland said.

Big ticket items in the state-funded draft plan include $1.5 million for grants and tax incentives to farmers who control sediment runoff; and $1.7 million for a chlorine discharge control program that would cleanse effluent from municipal sewage treatment plants.

Pilot programs would test porous pavement that absorbs rainwater and reduces urban runoff; make loans and grants to low income families to improve shoreline residential sanitation; and identify areas where toxic chemicals are a problem, Roland said.

He said other monies would be used to improve monitoring of kepone and other pollutants, replant aquatic grasses, develop a fisheries management program for oysters and blue crabs and repair sewer lines to prevent overflow.

The longer-term plan would earmark $94 million to upgrade sewage treatment plants and $15 million for pretreatment programs at municipal plants receiving industrial waste, Roland said.

Homeowners seeing red over pink streets

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Since the Roaring '20s, residents of a ritzy neighborhood have taken pride in their pink-paved streets, but now the rose-colored roads are bumpy and cracked, sparking an uproar that has homeowners and officials seeing red.

The city says it's too expensive to repave the 2.9 miles of pink Portland concrete, and suggestions to charge the 170 residents an extra fee or patch the roads with plain black asphalt has been met with anger.

"It's an unusual situation," complained George Webb, St. Petersburg's assistant public works administrator. "There really is no clear-cut policy on it."

Built in the early 1920s, the streets of Pinellas Point have been a source of local pride in this tree-lined community on the southern tip of St. Petersburg. Everyone wants the streets to remain their original color, but few have volunteered to pay the extra cost.

David Fischer, a neighborhood resident and former city councilman, said the city has ignored the Pinellas Point streets.

"The city would have maintained them if they were asphalt," Fischer said. "But the city got into a very tough bind (with pink concrete.) It's an awkward situation."

Robert Meachem, who lives on one of the pink streets, said: "Nothing's been done for those streets for years. But we've still been paying taxes. It's now time for us to be on the receiving end."

At the urging of the Greater Pinellas Point Civic Association, city public works officials have been asking residents for their opinions.

The residents were told it would cost $2.03 million to replace the streets with pink concrete. The city is calculating how much that would mean in extra fees for each property-owner.

Cost "might become an issue," said Dan Schramek, president of the civic association. But he said residents are inclined to keep the bumpy pink streets if it means they'll have to drive over black asphalt instead.

"It's really a good safety feature," Schramek said of the broken concrete. "It really does control the speed of traffic down there."

Canada weaves cloth profits

Canada's clothing industry, which comprises about 2,000 establishments and in 1982 employed some 90,000 workers, produced apparel valued at $4.2 billion. Export sales of clothing and fur goods were roughly $245 million.

Rebs exploit AHS bobbles

ABILENE—Give the Midland Lee Rebels a break and they'll hit you over the head with it. Give them more than one and they'll beat you into the ground.

Converting turnovers into points was the main difference in Lee's 35-0 victory over Abilene High Friday night at P.E. Shotwell Stadium.

The Rebels turned two fumbles and two interceptions into 28 points in the second and third quarters.

Lee's linebacker Michael Johnson set up the first TD when he recovered a Guy Sims fumble on the 39-yard line late in the first quarter. On the first play of the second quarter, fullback Isaac Garnett scored the first of his three touchdowns on a 13-yard run. Kicker Craig Kamradt booted his first of five extra points.

ON ABILENE'S first series of the second half, Johnson set up the second TD when he stepped in front of a Nicky Russell pass for an interception and carried it to the 25. Garnett scored from 16 yards out and the Rebels were up 14-0.

Rebel Sergio Ochoa fell on Sims second fumble of the game following the kickoff, this time on the Abilene two. Garnett punched the ball over on his first try to give Lee a 21-0 advantage. The final turnover came with 1:29 remaining in the quarter when Ricky Jackson intercepted a Russell pass and ran 69 yards to the end zone.

"I thought we played a good football game," said Lee head coach Spike Dykes. "Anytime you shut someone out, you are playing super. The defense read the plays well on those interceptions and our defensive line was putting lot of pressure on the quarterback."

LEE'S defense was putting a lot of pressure on the entire Abilene High offense. On the night, the Rebels allowed only 49 yards rushing and 85 passing. They held Russell to 4-for-13 and 33 yards and twice intercepted him. Steve Stacy hit 6-of-12 for 52 yards.

"I think we got fired up in the second half," said Johnson. "We came out real strong. We knew we could play better than we did in the first half. We wanted to come back to show what the Rebel defense could do."

"We knew we couldn't lose the game because we'd be 1-2 in district and from there it would be hard to come back and win the title. We were trying to tell Permian something, that loss to San Angelo was a mistake."

Garnett led the offense with 82 yards rushing on 18 carriers and three TDs, the most he's ever scored in one game.

He credits his success to the line.

"I had a difficult time running inside," he said, "They were coming down on me inside, but that made it easier to run outside. I still think I did a pretty good job. I had great blocking in front of me from the linemen, but I always have that."

LEE'S outside rushing didn't seem to miss the blazing speed of injured running back Walter Jones, who, according to Dykes, "didn't have him suit up for the game. He was questionable early in the week and we let him sit this one out."

Billy Gibbs helped pick up the slack. On six carries he rushed 51 yards to give the Eagles something to think about, other than keying on Garnett. "Billy played a great game," said Dykes.

The only other Rebel rusher to break the half century mark in the game was Dennis Motta, who replaced starter Jeff Motley when things were well in hand.

Motta on his only carry scooted the left sidelines for 50 yards to set up Lee's final TD early in the fourth quarter. Tyrone Thurman picked up 25 yards on eight carries and gained six on each of his final two carries, the last going into the end zone.

Midland High quarterback James Welborn (14) is in good hands behind the blocking of Randall Collins (42), Steve Lindsey (72) and Jeff Daily (77). Protection like this gave Welborn another 211 air yards to add to his District 4-5A league leading total of 1,094.

Dawgs raze Cats, 39-21

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland High's Royal Air Force is quickly making Midland "Explosion City, USA" after another 39-21 bombing attack over Abilene Cooper Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

MHS is an Air Force. There is no other way to describe them. They hit from long range, short range, medium range and even send in the infantry once in a while.

Flight leader James Welborn found his trigger finger ready for the kill again Friday as "General James" tossed four touchdown passes to lead the 4-2 Bulldogs to their second straight victory for the first time this year. Welborn had 211 yards in his all-out attack to increase his District 4-5A passing leadership to 1,305 yards to go with his 14 TD bombs.

AND WHEN "General James" couldn't find the target early, receiver Allan Foret got things started with a 61-yard TD toss to Todd Shiplett to open what was an eventful scoring evening of 60 points.

"I guess I'm doing pretty good," said Foret of his passing effort. "I'm one of two on the year. I wonder if I will catch James."

But Foret is a receiver of Welborn missles for the most part and he again caught five passes for 75 yards and a touchdown. Shiplett, who made Foret look good, was the top target with 90 yards on three receptions, two of which went for points. It was an awesome offensive performance.

After the lead changed hands six times and Cooper owning a 21-18 lead in the third period, Welborn took matters in his own hands. He hit Foret with a 29-yard scoring toss and came back with a three-yard strike to Shiplett after a 53-yard run by Jeff Pulley set it up. MHS led 32-21 and it was over.

KEITH BYRD added points with an 87-yard interception return late in the game.

But the start wasn't as easy as the finish. The Foret to Shiplett miracle started things off late in the first period, but Cooper led 7-6 after a 46-yard run by Allen Gunter, who led all rushers with 131 yards.

MHS bounced back as Welborn hit Darrell Davis with a TD toss of three yards, but Cooper answered with an 11-yard TD bomb from Doug Hadley to Mike Arnold for a 14-12 lead. Still, MHS answered the bell as Welborn connected for 59 yards and a late second quarter TD to Randall Collins for an 18-14 halftime lead.

Cooper struck first in the third period when Hadley punched in a sneak, but MHS then turned on the offense to blow it open and the defense sparkled.

Even though it is hard to say that any defense was played in a game of 60 points, MHS did have some very big moments. Byrd and Bret Flinn came up with interceptions. While Jimmy Essman, Steve Missel (twice), John Atlee, Byrd and Terry Hannon all came up with big sack plays.

THOSE KIND of plays were desperately needed too since Cooper quarterback Doug Hadley had 206 yards passing before going out with an injury in the fourth period.

When George Rogers of New Orleans ran for 206 yards against St. Louis on Sept. 4, 1983, he became only the second man in National Football League history to gain 200 or more yards on the ground in a season-opening game.

O.J. Simpson ran for what was then a single-game record 250 yards in Buffalo's opening game of 1973, Sept. 16 of that year, against New England. Simpson went on to a one-season ground-gaining record of 2,003 yards.

Pecos upsets Andrews

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

In the end, a disconsolate David Visentine surveyed the damage and issued his conclusion.

"It's like I just told the team," said the Andrews coach, "We're a very talented football team that just self-destructed."

Visentine's glum demeanor was worthy of the Mustangs' 17-0 loss to Pecos. Andrews, after a 3-0 start, has now fallen to 3-2. More importantly, both losses have come in district play. The Mustang loss to Pecos has put Andrews in an early season hole that is growing deeper.

In the end, the game was a rock-em, sock-em, grind it out battle. Andrews never got any breaks, and created a few for the surprising Eagles, 3-2, who have now posted back-to-back shutouts over the district favorites. Pecos stunned Fort Stockton last week, 14-0.

The Eagles didn't do anything fancy against Andrews. In fact, the Pecos game plan was remarkably simple. It was also quite effective. Pecos utilized a slew of sturdy backs diving between the tackles to great success. Strictly basic football, but nevertheless the Eagles ran right at Andrews, daring the Mustangs to halt the onslaught.

They never did.

In all, Pecos rammed 53 carries into the teeth of the Andrews interior, and netted 235 yards on the ground. That is barely four yards a crack, but it was all the Eagles needed.

Meanwhile, Pecos defended against the option attack of Andrews, and in particular quarterback Bill Morrison. When Morrison is on, as he was in Andrews' three wins, the Mustang offense is deadly.

But Morrison could never break loose, and the one time he did, a 25-yard scamper in the first period, it was negated by a penalty.

Morrison gained six yards on eight tries for the night. The rest of the Mustang ballcarriers also had no success, and Andrews totaled only 66 yards rushing on 33 attempts.

"At one time, we were a good football team," Visentine said. "Now we're not. I hate that, because we have a good bunch of kids."

Visentine was left visibly hurt by this one. "We're very disappointed and very disgusted," said the coach, in his first year as the head man at Andrews. "We've just got to regroup."

In the opening quarter, the Mustangs seemed to be playing well. 33 of their total rushing yards were gained in the quarter. Andrews had the best chance to score, but Morrison's canceled long gainer wiped out the drive.

Pecos got its' first touchdown in the second quarter. After gaining only 14 yards and one first down in the opening frame, Pecos drove 77 yards in five plays to score. The drive's key play came on a first and ten from the Eagle 35.

Halfback James Wilson had gotten the first on his second carry of the game, and got the ball again. Wilson found a seam, cut back to the right and rambled down the near sideline 60 yards to the Andrews five. Sammy Contreras, on his first tote, took the next snap into the end zone off the dive play. Nolberto Legarda's point after was missed, and the 6-0 lead held until halftime.

BATTLE SCENE

No. 1 atmosphere still pervades OU-Texas

Oklahoma and Texas may not be on TV this year, but the annual garrish blending of Orange and Red in the Cotton Bowl today still constitutes a stepping stone toward the national championship for the winner.

This is especially true if preseason pretenders keep falling off the trestle. There aren't all that many left. Of course, somebody usually survives without a blemish, but that doesn't mean it can't happen that. However, the last time it did was in 1936, and even Penn State won with a loss last year, although SMU was undefeated, if tied.

The Longhorns, of course, are undefeated. Oklahoma suffered that opening game loss to Ohio State, but that would soon be forgotten with a win over Texas and another, further down the road, over Nebraska.

Although Nebraska is the undisputed No. 1 team in the land, frankly that schedule isn't doing them any good. OU Coach Barry Switzer said after the Husker win over Penn State he didn't think Nebraska was as dominant as it was a year ago. The suspicion here is that the Huskers, despite all the talent, may not be able to survive the first team that plays them close, simply because of the inadequate preparation.

At Lubbock tonight, Texas Tech could be in for trouble, if post-game statements last week are any indication. After beating A&M, one of the Raiders commented, "Tonight was the first of four home games and we could go to Texas with a 5-1 record," the kind of thinking that will get a team upset in a hurry.

Beating the spread...

The SWC...

Oklahoma plus 4½ over Texas—Should be close, so go with the points. The outcome may depend on how many times Marcus Dupree drops the ball.

Baylor plus 7 over SMU—Is there ever a seven-point difference in this game?

New Mexico plus 10 over Tech—Raiders didn't score enough points last week to be giving away points this week.

TCU minus 9 over Rice—On the way back from OU-Texas last season, I almost got to see this one at Fort Worth, but got locked in my motel room.

Aggies minus 2 over Houston—One of these teams is going to snap out of it one of these weeks. Maybe the quarterback change will help the punchless Aggies.

The others...

Oklahoma State plus 27 over Nebraska—The Cowboys are undefeated. How good they are we'll find out today, but this may be that close one mentioned above. No laughing, please.

Penn State plus eight over Alabama—Lions beginning to come on and this is a chance to regain some lost prestige. However, looking over the teams they've beaten...on second thought, can I change that pick?

West Virginia—I don't care who they are play. Nobody's going to beat the Mountaineers this week.

Auburn minus 8 over Kentucky—Wildcats meet match.

Florida minus 17 over Vanderbilt—Vandy steps out of its class.

Look ma', no points...

North Carolina 35, Wake Forest 13—Deacons tamed.

Air Force 21, Navy 19—Anything can happen here.

Notre Dame 17, South Carolina 14—Gamecocks played Southern Cal last week and Irish this week, talk about perfect timing.

Ohio State 28, Purdue 10—Buckeyes' only loss to Iowa.

Wisconsin plus two over Illinois—After big win over Hawkeyes, can Illini come back to earth in time?

Michigan State plus 14 over Michigan—This is supposed to be a traditional, intrstate scrap, so it's should be hotly contested and close, I think.

Foris, Smith pace Rangers

WATER VALLEY—Todd Foris scored twice and Roger Smith gained 109 yards rushing as the Greenwood Rangers defeated Water Valley, 20-7, here Friday night.

The win raised Greenwood's district record to 3-0 and its season's mark to 4-2. Water Valley is 3-3 and 0-3.

Greenwood returns home next Friday to play Irion County.

Foris broke for 21 yards with 4:53 left in the first period to give the Rangers they never relinquished. Foris' eight-yard run and a two-point conversion run by Smith made it 14-0 before Water Valley cashed in on Terry Gaughin's 11-yard run to make it 14-7 heading into the final period.

Smith ended the suspense with 7:36 left in the game by scoring from the one.

Bryant, Arredondo stoke up Tor attack

LAMESA—Overcoming an early lead, Lamesa rode the passing of Craig Bryant and the running of Gilbert Arredondo to a 28-13 victory over Snyder Friday night.

The win was Lamesa's second in five games and evened the Tors' District 4-4A record at 1-1. Snyder is now 0-5, 0-2.

After Chad Peterson shocked Lamesa with a 79-yard scoring run less than four minutes into the second period, Bryant got busy, firing a 20-yard TD pass to Mark Murphy. Frank Gonzales kicked the point to tie it at 7.

With 3:55 to go in the half, Bryant struck a gain on a 70-yard scoring pass to Blake McKinney.

With 15 seconds left in the half, Arredondo scored on a one-yard run and then cashed in again on a 20-yard run in the third quarter.

Edmonton's Gretzky is back

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — The Winnipeg Jets let center Wayne Gretzky loose at the wrong times Friday night and the Edmonton scoring sensation responded with two key goals in the second period to lead the Oilers to an 8-6 National Hockey League victory.

Gretzky, seeking his fifth straight scoring title at the age of 22, broke a 4-4 tie with a shorthanded goal at 9:56 of the middle period, then put the Oilers ahead 7-5 when he finished off a three-on-one break at 15:47 of the second.

Glen Sather, coach and general manager of the Oilers, wasn't impressed with the game, but he refused to blame his goaltending or defense.

NC State denies cheating claim

BASKETBALL—Reports that North Carolina State violated NCAA rules in recruiting high school star Chris Washburn are "absurd, ridiculous, crazy," Coach Jim Valvano said. The 6-11, 245-pound Washburn, one of the top center prospects in the nation, has made a verbal commitment to attend N.C. State in 1984. He recently transferred from Fort Union Military Academy in Virginia to Laurinburg Institute near Laurinburg, N.C. The Sporting News said the Wolfpack coaching staff had counseled Washburn on the transfer. Valvano said. "It was a family matter." Texas favored by four

Coaches claim odds meaningless

DALLAS (AP) — Texas may be a four-point favorite over Oklahoma in the 78th showdown between the two teams Saturday, but coaches for both teams say the odds don't mean a thing.

Neither Fred Akers, coach of the No. 2-ranked and unbeaten Texas Longhorns, nor Barry Switzer, coach of the No. 8-rated and once-beaten Oklahoma Sooners, would predict victory in the emotional contest, in which the underdogs often have upset the oddsmaker charts.

"I see Oklahoma as a football team that possesses the talent they had during their great years," Akers said. "It is always a very exciting and tough physical ball game, and past records of either team have no significance.

"I can't see this year's game as being any different from any of the other 77."

Switzer concedes that Texas has a better team but says quality may not be the deciding factor.

"Texas is definitely the better team. They've got the record. They've performed better. But in this series it isn't always the better team that wins," said Switzer.

"I look on this year's Texas team as a group that is about as good as Fred (Akers) said they were going into the season. Their offensive line is without a doubt the best, in my opinion. They've got the best defense in the nation," said Switzer.

Oklahoma entered the game with a 2-2 record last year but stunned the 'Horns 28-22 with then-freshman Marcus Dupree galloping 63 yards for a touchdown.

The Longhorns have rolled over Auburn, North Texas and Rice while Oklahoma has defeated Stanford, Tulsa and Kansas State but lost to Ohio State.

The game again pits old Arkansas teammates — Akers and Switzer — against each other. Akers has a 4-2 record against Switzer since becoming Longhorn head coach.

"If we could win it could put us back into contention for the national championship," said Dupree, who had 151 yards rushing and three touchdowns against Kansas State last week.

Dupree, who has a bruised nerve below his left knee, said, "I felt like I was at about 85 percent (against Kansas State). Hopefully I'll be 100 percent for Texas."

Texas holds a 46-28-2 all-time series lead. However, since World War II the Longhorns lead only 19-17-1.

Oklahoma has knocked the Longhorns from the unbeaten ranks seven times since 1945.

One of the keys will be for Oklahoma to stop its siege of turnovers against the tough Texas defense. The Sooners have lost the ball 11 times with fumbles this season.

Permian rally beats Bobcats

SAN ANGLEO — Odessa Permian overcame a 21-17 halftime deficit here Friday night to beat the San Angelo Bobcats 37-21 in the state's spotlight game.

The victory leaves Permian as the only unbeaten team left in District 4-5A with a perfect 6-0 season mark and an unblemished 3-0 district record. San Angelo is now 5-1 and 2-1.

The Harris Ratings had the two teams listed as the top two in the state and Permian proved its No. 1 status.

A three-yard Bevans Hoffman TD in the second quarter gave San Angelo a 21-14 lead before the half and before Kirk Strahan's 36-yard field goal.

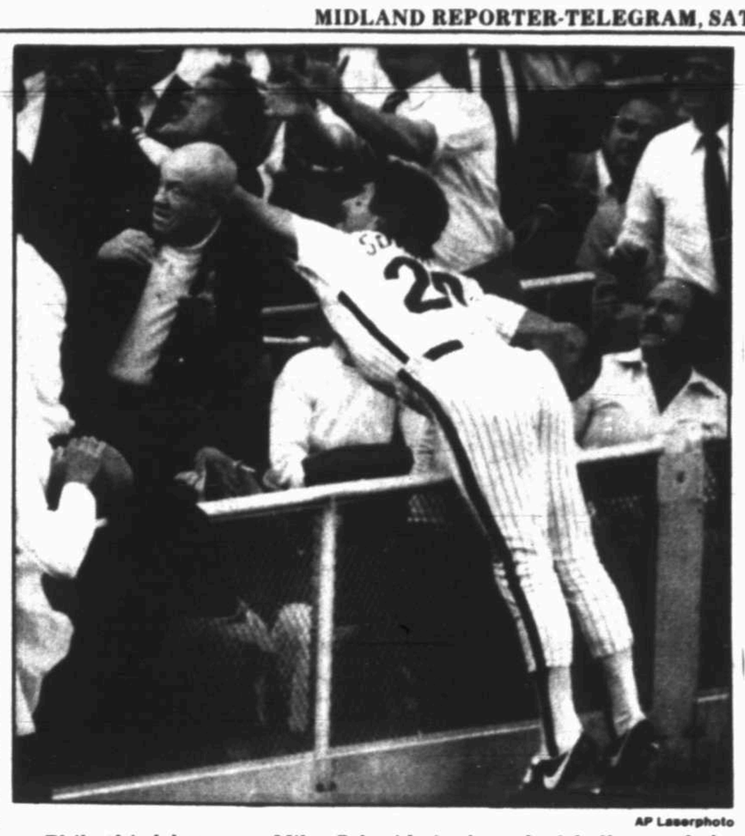

But Permian erupted 20 second half points and stopped San Angelo cold with good defensive play.

SMU, Baylor to clash

Tech hosts New Mexico

By Associated Press

Saturday's contest between Texas and Oklahoma may have overshadowed another game taking place only 20 miles away, but the outcome of the latter matchup will have a greater impact on the Southwest Conference race.

Southern Methodist, ranked No. 13 and owning a 20-game unbeaten streak, hosts the Baylor Bears in Texas Stadium. Seven of the last eight games between the two teams have been last second thrillers, with the record since 1975 split 4-4. Last year, SMU won 22-19 in Waco.

This year, SMU is a seven-point choice over the Bears.

"It's always a good battle," said Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "They've beaten us the last two years. They're tough."

THE BEARS are fresh off a 42-21 thumping of Houston while SMU routed Texas-Arlington 34-0.

SMU coach Bobby Collins, who has yet to see his team lose since he became the Mustang boss two years ago, said, "You have to be impressed with a team that beat Brigham Young.

"There is no doubt they will be fired up for us. Last year they really shut us down. They had us down 13-0 at half."

Meanwhile, No. 2-ranked Texas was a four-point favorite over No. 8 Oklahoma. In other games involving SWC teams, Texas Tech was a 10-point favorite over New Mexico, Texas Christian was picked by nine points over Rice, and Texas A&M was a two-point selection over Houston.

The Raiders will be going for their third straight against the Lobos, but New Mexico, 10-1 last year, is hungry for a win this year. Tech could have troubple if it is looking back at the Aggies.

The Texas Aggies will have a new starting quarterback at the controls, freshman Kevin Murray, when they host the Cougars.

Murray replaces the much heralded John Mazur, who has yet to get the Aggie offense into gear.

The Aggies lost 3-0 to Texas Tech last week with Murray playing most of the second half.

HOUSTON also has made some changes at quarterback with Quince Harris and Gerald Landry taking over from senior Lionel Wilson.

Unknown leads Southern with 133

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Little-known Sam Torrance of Scotland shot a 67 Friday to take the second-round lead in the $250,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament with a seven-under-par 133 total.

Joe Inman went on a birdie binge with five on the front nine and finished with a 65 to move into second place alone at 135, two shots back.

At 136 were Scott Hoch, Gary Koch and Wally Armstrong. Hoch had a 66, Koch a 69 and Armstrong a 68.

The 30-year-old Torrance, making his first appearance on the U.S. pro tour this year, had five birdies, including one from 50 feet and a pair from 30 feet,in wresting the lead from first-round leader Payne Stewart.

Carlton goes for jugular

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It wasn't as if Philadelphia was starting a complete novice when rookie Charles Hudson took the mound in Friday's pivotal third game of the National League Championship Series with Los Angeles.

Why, only last year, Hudson had pitched a playoff game for the Class A Peninsula Pilots of the Carolina League against the Durham Bulls.

It was not quite as good as the sparkling four-hitter he used to beat the Dodgers 7-2 and move the Phillies within one game of the World Series.

"We had clinched the division with the best record in A ball," Hudson recalled. "I don't know, maybe we were overconfident, but we only scored one run. I gave up four, three home runs in five innings."

Then the young right-hander, who had never pitched beyond baseball's lowest leagues until this season, reflected on the nine-strikeout performance that gave the Phillies a 2-1 edge in this best-of-five pennant playoff.

"I'd rather be here," he said, "than there."

So would the Phillies who go for the flag Saturday night with 300-game winner Steve Carlton trying to finish off the Dodgers.

Los Angeles, beaten by Carlton in the opener 1-0, will counter with Jerry Reuss, who lost that game.

Hudson had help Friday from Gary Matthews, who slugged a home run and two singles, driving in four runs. It was a bit of a role reversal for Matthews as well after he struggled to a .258 regular season with just 50 RBIs. He found himself benched frequently during the season, but said he never lost faith.

His philosophy was capsuled in the message on his T-Shirt — it said, "I Am The Sarge."

"I got it from Pete Rose and it means, 'Take Charge,'" Matthews said. "I try to hustle and give 100 per cent. That's Pete's motto and mine, too.

"I'm not going to lie to you, I would have liked to play more than I did this season."

But Matthews had company on the bench: Rose.

"Perhaps there hasn't been a player in the history of the game who's given more than Pete, and he missed more than 20 games down the stretch," Matthews said. "It was eating him up. But I figured if he could take it, I could take it. I just tried to make the best of the situation and be ready to contribute whenever they called on me."

Hudson, who spent his first two professional seasons in Class A ball, was called up from the minors May 31. He had an 8-8 record that included two losses to Los Angeles.

The Phillies scored twice in the second inning, without benefit of a base hit when Dodger starter Bob Welch issued one-out walks to Matthews and Greg Gross.

Welch, who had been bothered with bursitis in his left hip, was forced to leave the game at that point. The reliever was Alejandro Pena, who won 12 games during the regular season, two of them shutouts against Philadelphia, which lost 11 of 12 against the Dodgers.

With Bo Diaz at bat, Pena threw a wild pitch, allowing the runners to advance. His next pitch was high and glanced off catcher Jack Fimple's glove for a passed ball, allowing Matthews to score. Gross took third and scored a moment later on a grounder by Ivan DeJesus.

In the third, the Phils made it 3-0 as Joe Morgan opened the inning with his first hit of the playoffs. Rose singled to right, sending Morgan to third. Joe Lefebvre hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Morgan.

The Dodgers mounted their only attack in the fourth. Dusty Baker opened with a single and with two out, Mike Marshall smashed a long home run, reducing the lead to 3-2. But that was to be their last hit of the game.

Matthews got one of the runs right back with his second home run of the series, tagging a 3-1 pitch from Pena leading off the fourth. In the fifth, the Phillies got two more when Rose got his second hit,dashed to third on Mike Schmidt's double to center. Beckwith came in to strike out pinch-hitter Sixto Lezcano but Matthews followed with his two-run single for a 6-2 Philadelphia lead.

Chicago's Ron Kittle is restrained by plate umpire Nick Bremigan after he was hit by pitch thrown by Mike Flanagan in Friday's American League playoff game.

Flanagan throwing 'duster'

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Flanagan scoffed at suggestions he deliberately hit Chicago's Ron Kittle with a pitch in the fourth inning of Friday night's American League playoff game.

"When I'm ahead 4-1 and trying to keep the leadoff man off base," the Baltimore pitcher cracked, "I always go after him. He's never looking for the ball inside when it's a 3-2 count."

Flanagan insisted he had trouble with his control throughout the game, which the Orioles won 11-1 to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series.

"Rick (catcher Dempsey) would call for the ball inside and I'd throw it outside," Flanagan said. "That was my game plan — don't throw it to the glove."

Flanagan, staked to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Eddie Murray's homer, allowed five hits during his five-inning stint before giving way to Sammy Stewart, who permitted one hit the rest of the way.

"I did all right considering I had no velocity, no control and no curveball," said Flanagan. "Sammy did a great job behind me and Eddie in front of me."

Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli contended Flanagan was having trouble with his control and added that Chicago's Richard Dotson "was having the same kind of problem early in the game."

Dotson struck Baltimore's Cal Ripken with a two-out pitch in the top of the fifth, then came in close on Murray, prompting umpire Nick Bremigan to warn both pitchers and benches that no more such pitches would be tolerated.

Ripken smiled as he trotted to first after being hit on the left hip, but said it was "probably only an adverse reaction."

"I have no way of knowing if he tried to hit me," Ripken said. "Only he (Dotson) would know that."

Dotson said although he did not talk with Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa about retaliation, he said, "I got the word, get the first two men out and hit the third."

Ripken said Murray's home run was especially important because it took the Chicago crowd out of the game early.

Bulldogs' aerial game too versatile

"Well, we expected a wild affair and we had one, didn't we?" said MHS coach Pat Culpepper as he hung up the phone after checking in with his mother. "I don't know, but maybe Gunter just finally got tired. We have a bunch of scraggly kids, but they know they can score and they just never let up. I think our kids played hard.

"As long as our games are, with all the passing, I think people are worn out after playing us. I get worn out watching them."

The Bulldogs are now 2-1 in 4-5A action and in position to make a heavy run at a playoff berth. MHS used the Cooper game last year to start a late season rally and the Bulldogs are one game up on last year's pace.

MHS hosts Odessa High in a key 4-5A battle next week at Memorial Stadium and a victory there would put the Bulldogs in good position for a run at that playoff berth again.

Alabama faces Penn State on TV

College Football

By Associated Press

Third-ranked Alabama visits Penn State, which stopped defending its 1982 national championship during an 0-3 start (the Nittany Lions are now 2-3).

These folks first hooked up in the 1959 Liberty Bowl, with Penn State winning 7-0. But Alabama has taken the last four and this will be the first time the Crimson Tide has faced Penn State with anyone but Bear Bryant at the helm.

Alabama is 4-0 under Ray Perkins, who is beginning to sound something like his old coach.

"Penn State has lost three games, but they are the defending national champions and they've got a pretty good track record," says Perkins. "I still think they've got a great program and a great football team. We had mistakes against Memphis State (last week) that we can't make and expect to beat people like Penn State."

TOP-RATED Nebraska visits Oklahoma State — unranked, but also undefeated — for the start of Big Eight play. Rounding out the Associated Press Top Ten, fourth-ranked North Carolina entertains Wake Forest, No. 6 Ohio State plays host to Purdue, seventh-ranked Auburn visits Kentucky for a night game, No. 9 Florida hosts Vanderbilt and 10th-ranked Arizona is at home with Colorado State under the lights. Fifth-ranked West Virginia is idle.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Georgia is at Mississippi, Louisville at No. 12 Miami of Florida, Baylor at No. 13 Southern Methodist at night, No. 14 Michigan at Michigan State, Northwestern at No. 15 Iowa, Syracuse at Maryland (tied for 16th), Oregon State at Washington (the other No. 16), No. 19 Illinois at Wisconsin and No. 20 Brigham Young at Wyoming. Arizona State, No. 18, is not scheduled.

Alabama-Penn State will be televised nationally (CBS, 2:45 p.m.) in only the third regular-season meeting between the schools (the other three were in bowls). Penn State has been embarrassed the last two years (31-16 in 1981; 42-21 a year ago, the worst beating ever suffered by a national championship team) and Coach Joe Paterno can only hope the Nittany Lions have improved since the start of the season, especially when the other team has the ball.

"I just don't know if it's possible to stymie a good offense these days," Paterno said after last week's 36-25 victory over Rutgers. "I just don't know what good defense is any more. You used to be able to hold a team to a touchdown, or a touchdown and a field goal, and think you did a good job. Now, you might hold a team to three touchdowns and feel satisfied that your defense played well.

"ALABAMA has that kind of offense, and it concerns me very much. Their quarterback, Walter Lewis, impresses me greatly. He had an outstanding game against us last year. He reminds me quite a bit of Nebraska's quarterback, Turner Gill, who can also pass and run equally well."

The Nebraska-Oklahoma State clash pairs two unbeaten teams in a Big Eight game for the first time since 1975, when Oklahoma and Colorado were both 3-0.

In the last two decades, Nebraska's record hasn't mattered when the Cornhuskers meet the Cowboys. Oklahoma State took the first two meetings in the series in 1960-61, but Nebraska won the next 11 and has captured nine in a row since a 17-17 tie in 1973. That adds up to 20-2-1.

"Nebraska is a great challenge," says OSU Coach Jimmy Johnson. "There are many who think this is the best college football team ever. What can I say that hasn't been said. Our only concern is that we play to the best of our ability. We can't control how good Nebraska is."

"Nebraska is a machine and they've been a machine all four years I've been here," says Cowboy guard Kevin Igo.

Pecos upsets Andrews

In the third quarter, Andrews fell apart offensively. On third down and five from their 41, Morrison fumbled the snap away on the Mustangs' first possession. Pecos quarterback Sonny Orona promptly found Legarda drifting past safety Eloy Baeza at the ten, and Legarda strolled into the end zone. Lightning had struck. Orona added a two point conversion on a sweep right, and Pecos lead 14-0.

Pecos put the game out of reach by doing what they had done all night - control the ball. The Eagles drove from their 32 to the Mustang six, where Legarda kicked a 23-yard field goal to ice the game. The drive lasted an incredible eight minutes and seven seconds, and left Andrews with no time to recover even if they could have. On this night, not likely.

Mariners give ax to O'Brien

SEATTLE (AP) — Dan O'Brien, president and general manager of the Seattle Mariners for the past five seasons, was fired by owner George Argyros Friday and replaced by Hal Keller, O'Brien's long-time lieutenant.

It was Argyros' second major firing in less than four months. He dismissed popular Manager Rene Lachemann on June 25. Lachemann was hired Monday to manage the Milwaukee Brewers in 1984.

In what the club called a move to restructure the front office, Keller, 56, was given the title of vice president-baseball operations and general manager.

There has been speculation about O'Brien's demise since a Seattle newspaper report on Sept. 22 that Argyros was entertaining ideas about replacing O'Brien, 53, with Dick Wagner, who was fired as general manager of the Cincinnati Reds on July 11.

Braves' Phil Niekro, 44, seeks release

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro, convinced his knuckleball can still retire major league batters, requested and received his unconditional release from the Atlanta Braves on Friday.

"It's been a great marriage," Niekro said as he ended his 25-year association with the Braves organization. "I guess right now it's come to a divorce."

Niekro, the oldest player in the major leagues at 44, said he wanted his release so he could try to land a spot on another major league team.

"I think they'll be surprised what's left in Phil Niekro," he said during an interview with reporters in the Braves clubhouse, where he appeared to remove his personal belongings from the locker he has used since 1966, the year the Braves moved their franchise from Milwaukee to Atlanta.

Niekro pitched his final game in an Atlanta uniform one week earlier, a 3-2 setback at San Diego in a game that mathematically eliminated the Braves from the National League Western Division race won by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

During his 20 seasons in the National League, Niekro compiled a 268-230 record, giving him the most victories by a right-handed pitcher in the history of the franchise, which began in Boston in 1876.

There were published reports at the conclusion of the regular season that Niekro did not figure into Manager Joe Torre's pitching plans for the 1984 season.

He said Friday that "basically, they asked me to retire. Basically, quit pitching. Thanks, but no thanks, I don't feel like retiring. Phil Niekro is not a quitter."

Hudson couldn't sleep...

Matthews couldn't swing bat, but...

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gary Matthews had a bad batting practice and rookie pitcher Charlie Hudson couldn't sleep the night before the game. But the two combined Friday to lead the Philadelphia phillies to a 7-2 National League playoff victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I didn't hit the ball well in batting practice today, so I tried to hit a little more," Matthews, the left fielder, said after he knocked in four runs, including a solo homer in the fourth inning.

All Hudson did was strike out nine in his first major league playoff victory. And, he said he was surprised at his control.

Matthews, who was tied for the National League lead in game-winning RBIs last year, had an up-and-down summer. At one point he was nicknamed "Platoon Sergeant" by his teammates in reference to his lack of playing time.

"Not playing, period, is a low point," he said. "But it's not a time I want to dwell on. I just tried to stay strong and keep in shape."

He also homered for the Phillies in Wednesday's 4-1 loss to the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

"But the last time I said I was on a tear I went into a slump, so I'm not going to say that now," he said. "I'm just going to try to keep seeing the ball."

Hudson admitted he had a hard time sleeping the night before, but once the game started said he settled down.

"I had read in the paper that I was 0-2 against the Dodgers and that they had beaten us in 11 of 12 games. I just decided to forget the past and put their backs against the wall," he said.

Third baseman Mike Schmidt, 1-for-3 with one RBI, said he felt the tide turned on Matthews' home run.

"When (Mike) Marshall homered for them to make it 3-2, the momentum kind of swung to their side and that kind of quieted the crowd," Schmidt said. "For our first hitter (Matthews) to put the ball out of the park, brought it back to us."

The victory was the Phillies' first at home against the Dodgers in three playoff series. But the Phils weren't ready to haul out the champagne.

"We're in the driver's seat but the Dodgers are like us," said Pete Rose, who had three singles and scored twice.

"They play real well when they've got their backs to the wall," he said. "And we've just got to play consistent baseball from here on out."

LA isn't dead yet

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda refused to declare his Dodgers dead after they lost 7-2 to the Philadelphia Phillies Friday to fall behind 2-1 in the best-of-five National League championship playoffs.

"When we started this playoff, I understood it to be best-of-five," said Lasorda. "They've only won two. You have to win three. Until they win three, we're still in this thing."

Phillies rookie pitcher Charlie Hudson, who held the Dodgers hitless after a two-run homer by Mike Marshall in the fourth inning, drew praise from both Lasorda and Marshall.

"He pitched a good ballgame to give us four hits in nine innings, and he held us to two runs. He must have pitched a good ballgame," said Lasorda.

Red Devils falter, lose to Grandfalls, 22-6

RANKIN— Rankin's Red Devils fought a tough battle but a scoring pass as the first half ended and a late touchdown gave Grandfalls a 22-6 7-A district win.

Tim Norris scored in the first quarter for Grandfalls and Bobby Brown's point after was blocked. Five minutes later Brown added a 35 yard field goal for a 9-0 Grandfalls lead.

Rankin, 1-4 and now 1-1 in the district, answered with a two-yard touchdown run from Charles Freeman. The two-point pass failed.

Grandfalls, 2-2-1 and 1-1 in district, scored with no time on the clock as the half ended on a 30-yard pass from David Acosta to Norris.

The pair hooked up again early in the fourth quarter to make the final score 22-6. Rankin gained 139 yards rushing to Grandfalls' 233, and were outgained in first downs 16-11 and passing yards 78-14.

The Devils visit Iraan next week.

Bronchos smother Big Spring Steers

ODESSA — Odessa High's Bronchos escaped the District 4-5A cellar here Friday night with a 35-6 victory over Big Spring, who has yet to win a district game.

The OHS victory gives the Bronchos a 4-2 season mark and a 1-2 district reading while Big Spring falls to 2-4 and 0-3 marks.

OHS got four touchdowns from tailback Charles Hunter, who scored on plays of 68, 21, 16 and two yards. Jeff Wright scored the other TD for OHS.

Big Spring didn't score until the fourth period when Robert Porras took in a five-yard pass from Mark Johnson.

OHS will test Midland High in a 4-5A battle next week while the Steers face Abilene Cooper.

McCamey nips Reagan's Owls

McCAMEY — McCamey scored eight fourth quarter points here Friday night to survive its District 8-2A opener against the Reagan County Owls, 8-7.

Reagan County took a 7-0 lead in the third period when Timothy Thompson scored from 24 yards out and Ernest Baker hit the PAT.

But with time running out, the Badgers mounted a drive and Ray Zarate scored from three yards out to make it 7-6 and then Zarate hit Steve Brown on the two-point conversion for the victory.

McCamey had a slight edge in the statistics also, but it all came down to the two-point play.

McCamey is now 4-2 on the year while Reagan County fell to 1-5.

Turks seek better living

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Omer Cift, 33, runs a thriving video casette lending business in the glittering new Kugulu shopping mall in this capital city.

A year ago he quit his job as a pharmacist in the city Social Security Hospital and has not looked back since. "I feel sorry for the five years I wasted in university to get my diploma," he says with a sad shake of his head.

Next door to Cift's video shop is a children's boutique owned by Turgay Ucaner, a 35-year-old lawyer. Another neighbor is Ilker Atalay, an economist selling women's clothing. Cift's chief rival in the video business is another economist. Across the hall, a woman architect and her city planner husband run one of Ankara's most popular gift shops.

"More than half the shopkeepers in this mall have university educations, as do the manufacturers they buy from," Cift explained. "Notice the improved quality of toys and even window dressing. Education does make a difference."

Cift and his friends are part of a growing army of university-educated Turks who have chucked their diplomas to seek a better living elsewhere.

Thousands trained as architects, mathematicians, geologists, archeologists or economists are selling lottery tickets, running hamburger joints or working as garage mechanics.

They are the result of an educational system marked by its complete failure to project and adjust to the future demands of the job market and the needs of the economy.

There are few vocational schools in this land of 47 million. Most youngsters go through a college preparatory course in high school and then line up in front of crowded universities that can offer scarce admissions.

Applications to universities were swollen from 41,000 in 1966 to a peak of 467,000 in 1980. To cope with the stampede, successive governments opened new universities in remote provinces. The numbers jumped from four universities three decades ago to the current 27.

In the hurry to boost admissions by any means, quality of teaching staff had to be ignored.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH TODAY'S CHURCH?

Some say it's a drag. Some say the sermons aren't relevant. Some say it's full of hypocrites. Do you really believe that? Or has someone just told you that. Don't let someone make your decision for you. Let us help you decide for yourself at Northwestern Baptist Church.

MAY WE COME IN?

Let us introduce ourselves . . . WE are the hundreds of millions of earnest souls the world over who believe it's God's world and He makes a difference.

We worship Him and seek inspiration in His truths. We bring our children to His house for religious education. We encourage their growth in the faith of our fathers. In our every day pursuits we try to live up to our convictions. Failing . . . we seek God's help as we try again.

Our spiritual heritage is yours also. In worship each week we share its reverent expression.

May we come into your life? Please come into ours!

Hollowell UMC plans to celebrate 37th year

Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St., is planning to celebrate its 37th anniversary Thursday through Oct. 16. Churches in the city will be participating in the celebration.

The Rev. Luther Henry, a former Midlander who now resides in Fort Worth, will deliver the keynote address at the anniversary hour set for 3 p.m. Oct. 16. Hollowell was Henry's home church when he was a child.

He received a bachelor of arts degree from Huston-Tillotson College, Austin, in 1962 and a bachelor of divinity degree from Gammon Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., in 1965 and was awarded an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Huston-Tillotson in 1977. Henry has held pastorates in Temple, Waco and Dallas.

Henry serves as director of the Conference Council on Ministries, Central Texas Conference. This is his second appointment as a council director, having served as district superintendent of the Fort Worth West District during the interim. He is the first black to receive appointments to both of these offices in the Central Texas Conference.

The Rev. A.W. Washington, pastor of Goodwill Baptist Church, will be on Thursday's program and the Rev. Robert Lathan, pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, will be on Friday's program. Both services are set for 7:30 p.m.

A 6:30 p.m. reception will be held Oct. 15 honoring all former pastors and their families who are returning for the celebration.

The Rev. Hadley R. Edwards, the church's pastor, will preach at the 11 a.m. service Oct. 16. Edwards is attending Perkins School of Theology, Dallas.

Hollowell was organized as Hudson Chapel Feb. 10, 1946, under the leadership of the Rev. Jessie Hudson. It was dedicated in 1947, when the Rev. C.L. King was pastor.

The small group met at the Carver School Building for a brief period before moving to 100 S. Lee St. It was renamed Hollowell Chapel in honor of the Rev. Howard Hollowell, pastor of First UMC from 1945-50.

A new church building was built and completed in April 1962 on the present site at 400 S. Marshall St. Bishop Alsie H. Carleton performed the Celebration of Dedication in 1975. A parsonage was purchased in 1976 and the debt retired in January 1983. A generous gift from John Wilson, a member of St. Luke's UMC, provided the landscaping at the church facility in 1982.

The public is invited to attend the anniversary celebration.

ARE YOU A GOOD NEIGHBOR?

One day an expert on Moses' laws came to test Jesus' orthodoxy by asking Him this question: "Teacher, what does a man need to do to live forever in heaven?"

Jesus replied, "What does Moses' law say about it?"

It says, he replied, "that you must love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind. And you must love your neighbor just as much as you love yourself."

"Right!" Jesus told him. "Do this and you shall live!"

The man wanted to justify his lack of love for some kinds of people, so he asked, "Which neighbors?"

Jesus replied with an illustration: "A Jew going on a trip from Jerusalem to Jericho was attacked by bandits. They stripped him of his clothes and money and beat him up and left him lying half dead beside the road. By chance a Jewish priest came along, and when he saw the man lying there, he crossed to the other side of the road and passed him by. A Jewish Temple-assistant did the same thing; he, too, left him lying there.

"But a despised Samaritan came along, and when he saw him, he felt deep pity. Kneeling beside him the Samaritan soothed his wounds with medicine and bandaged them. Then he put the man on his donkey and walked along beside him till they came to an inn, where he nursed him through the night.

"The next day he handed the innkeeper two twenty-dollar bills and told him to take care of the man. 'If his bill runs higher than that,' he said, 'I'll pay the difference the next time I am here.'

"Now which of these three would you say was a neighbor to the bandits' victim?"

The man replied, "The one who showed him some pity." Then Jesus said, "Yes, now go and do the same."

Leaders will deal with conflicts

NEW YORK (AP) — A world conference of religious leaders is planned by the interfaith Appeal of Conscience Foundation "to confront the festering, ever-deepening religious conflicts that imperil world peace."

Rabbi Arthur Schneier, president of the foundation through which Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Jewish and Protestant leaders work for human rights, cited interreligious conflicts in India, Iran, Ireland and Lebanon.

He told a foundation dinner that the current era could become known in history as the "age of religious wars. Baha'is, Catholics, Hindus, Jews, Moslems, Protestants and others have all been involved in violent sectarian strife.

"While these conflicts have social and economic roots, they have been exacerbated by and charged with religious hatred."

He said the foundation will convene an international conference of religious leaders of all major faiths in 1984 to seek ways to reduce the conflicts and "reach some common appreciation that religion does not serve God when it fans the flame of war against men made in God's image."

Texas drought leaves cattle dead on highways

FORT STOCKTON (AP) — Dead cattle and calves orphaned by a year-long drought litter some lands in West Texas, an austerely beautiful area known more for spacious skies and oil rigs than a scorched Earth.

Cattle, their ribs showing in rows beneath their hide, assemble near windmills where water once was plentiful. Now only buzzards seem to thrive because just 2.21 inches of rain has fallen this year at this ranch town where 13 inches is normal.

"There are a lot of ranchers walking around with long faces. It's psychologicaly depressing for them to see cattle dying on the range," Pecos County agricultural extension agent Jennifer Truby said. "They have a lot of emotional attachment to their animals."

OFF MCCAMEY ROAD, a solitary black-and-white calf is crumpled on the dusty ground. There are no other cattle in sight, except the dead cow attracting flies and buzzards beside the fence near Highway 67.

Just beyond the barbed-wire fence, a wispy thatch of weeds grow in the drainage ditch — remnants of a rainstorm last week that dropped two-tenths of an inch of rain.

The calf apparently can walk no farther for forage. And from a look at the horizon, there is nothing for the skinny calf to eat except noxious weeds. Poisonous weeds such as the African Rue and yellow-bud Broom Snake increasingly are being eaten by cattle desperate for feed.

WITH THE GROUND nearly barren of any growth after 15 months of drought over a 27-county section of Texas, ranchers from Big Spring to Alpine and Pecos to Ozona are crying for help. Last month, the U.S. government declared the 27 counties a federal disaster area.

Texas Agricultural Commissioner Jim Hightower says the conditions mimic the Dust Bowl of the 1950s. Upton County agricultural extension agent Kent Powell agrees: He half-jokingly suggests any insects seeking food near parched Rankin should bring their own.

The hardest hit of the West Texas lands are near Pecos, where in some places they haven't recorded rains since July 1982, and Garvin, Ms. Truby said.

For a Pennsylvania-sized area of Texas to go so long without rain spells disaster for the rancher and for the consumer, who likely will pay a higher price for beef due to a meat shortage. Texas has more head of cattle than any other state.

AP Laserphoto

West Texas has been scorched by a year-long record-breaking drought, which has depleted grazing land and killed cattle who eat noxious weeds or die from starvation. This cow died near Highway 67, about eight miles from Fort Stockton, where only 2.21 inches of rain has fallen this year.

THE TEXAS CROP and Livestock Service reports 617,000 head of cattle were in the Lone Star State at the first of the year. Ranchers in Hereford, in the Texas Panhandle, report up to a million head of cattle sometimes assemble in feedlots near Amarillo and Hereford.

But in Fort Stockton, the Pecos County seat and an oil and ranching center of 8,000, the results of the rain shortage are dramatic, Ms. Truby said. There are 80 percent less cattle than last year, she said.

Some cattle have died after drinking area oil sludge, Ms. Truby said. "I don't know what is in that stuff, but cattle try to eat it or ingest it, and then die. Sometimes, they're not too smart."

MANY RANCHERS border on bankruptcy because they have been forced to feed their cattle and sheep with grain and cottonseed. They have in worst cases fed their animals with imported food for a year.

Now, with the normal summer rains gone, they will have to feed their livestock until next summer, Ms. Truby said. "It'll be next year before there's any new growth on the ground. Until then, they'll have to feed (the animals)," she said.

Trucks hauling hay rumble on Highway 67, carrying life-saving feed for area cattle and sheep. Ranchers who were able have shipped their animals to New Mexico, central Texas and the Panhandle, where grazing land is available, Ms. Truby said.

BUT THE emergency loan program initiated by U.S. Agriculture Department Secretary John Block has not helped many Texas farmers. The $10 billion loan program doesn't help those who borrowed to the hilt, she said.

Pecos ranchers, for example, have borrowed $150,000 in some cases from the local bank for emergency feed for their range animals. More loan programs don't interest them, and to date, no Texas farmer has applied for the federal loan program, state agricultural officials say.

Instead, many favor a controversial measure currently being debated by the House Appropriations Committee, which has given Block an ultimatum that could result in emergency legislation.

The committee Wednesday told Block he either can pay half the cost of emergency livestock feed, or release 75 million bushels of federally-owned reserve feed grain to ranchers trying to eke a living out of their scorched pastures.

Frog may hold scientific secrets

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two types of frogs are helping scientists make the leap toward solving a pair of great puzzles: how long it takes species to evolve from common ancestors and how long ago Earth's continents broke off from a single land mass.

Researchers at the California Academy of Sciences and at Yale University will try to find out if the two frogs, found separately in New Zealand and the Pacific Northwest, share common roots.

"Would you believe it? The families of these frogs have the oldest living lineage of all the frogs in the whole world," said Robert Drewes, chairman of the California academy's herpetology department.

"We can find the fossils of their ancestors in rocks that date back as far as 135 (million) to 190 million years ago — all the way to the Jurassic period."

According to Drewes, scientists at Yale will help determine how closely the frogs are related with the help of new techniques in molecular biology that will allow them to study the double-strands of DNA of each frog. DNA, or deoxyribonecleic acid, contains the genetic code and transmits hereditary patterns in living things.

At Yale, biologist Charles Sibley and his colleague, Jon Ahlquist, plan use heat to break the double DNA strand in two, he said. They will then recombine a single strand from each and test its resistance to heat.

Through earlier studies with 1,000 species of birds, the Yale scholars found that each Centigrade degree of heat it takes to split the hybrid DNA means a difference of 1 percent in the genetic makeup of the birds.

Drewes, leading the research in California, is microscopically examining the two frogs' common traits.

"That tail muscle alone suggests great age — a bit of tissue left over inside their bodies from the time before frogs learned to jump — perhaps a common descent from salamander," he said recently.

Although the habits of the two types of frog — the Leiopelma hochstetteri of New Zealand and the Asaphus truei of the Pacific Northwest — differ greatly, they share many primitive characteristics.

British Caribbean yields new nation

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts (AP) — Princess Margaret lowered the Union Jack at a midnight ceremony here, marking the birth of the 12th nation from the British Caribbean.

Nationhood for the two-island state of St. Kitts-Nevis will cap a rush to independence that has swept the region since 1962, while increasing the U.S. role in the region.

The total population of the new nations, including the Bahamas southeast of Florida, Belize on Central America's Caribbean coast and Guyana on South America's northeastern shoulder, is under 5 million.

They are some of the Western Hemisphere's least-developed nations. The healthiest, Barbados, gains half its foreign exchange from tourists.

Their weak economies and small sizes make them potential pawns in global power struggles.

A leftist coup d'etat on Grenada in 1979 has led to Cuban construction of an airport U.S. officials fear will become a Soviet-Cuban military base.

Strongman Moammar Khadafy of Libya has been linked to opposition groups on the pro-U.S. islands of St. Lucia, Dominica, Antigua-Barbuda and Trinidad-Tobago.

The United States has provided equipment and training for a new regional security force, which it hopes St. Kitts-Nevis will join.

President Reagan's recently passed Caribbean Basin Initiative, giving U.S. businesses tax incentives for investing in the region and allowing 12-year, duty-free entry to most Caribbean imports, was presented as a plan to counter "adventurism" by building up economies.

On St. Kitts-Nevis, the Reagan plan is expected to lure light industry that will help diversify the economy away from sugar. The cane fields employ nearly 30 percent of the work force and account for more than half of all exports, but declining prices and production have made sugar a drain on the economy.

While the government welcomes the jobs new factories will bring, its top priority is developing agriculture for a nation whose food imports last year equaled 41 percent of domestic earnings.

Tourism, which draws only about 30,000 visitors a year now, is expected to grow. The St. Kitts airport has been improved, hotels refurbished and a deep-water harbor dredged to accommodate cruise ships. The Reagan plan also gives tax breaks to U.S. business conventions held in the Caribbean.

St. Kitts-Nevis boasts green, mountainous scenery and a British-French-American historical legacy that includes the church where Britain's Lord Nelson was married and the birthplace on Nevis of Alexander Hamilton, a U.S. founding father.

Discovered and dubbed St. Christopher by Christopher Columbus in 1493, St. Kitts was first settled in 1623 and, grouped with Nevis and Anguilla, became Britain's first colony in the area.

Its move toward independence has been hindered by its small size — 144 square miles combined and 44,000 people — and inter-island rivalries. Such rivalries are common throughout the region and scuttled the 1950s British plan for a single West Indies Federation.

Anguilla, separated from St. Kitts by French and Dutch islands, felt little solidarity and a lot of neglect, and rebelled in 1967.

British paratroopers landed to keep order, and London agreed to keep the island of 6,500 as a colony.

Even though only two miles of water separate St. Kitts and Nevis, the people have maintained separate identities stemming from different cultures left by the various European colonizers.

AP Laserphoto Map

The new nation's complex constitution gives Nevis unprecedented power among the Caribbean's multi-island states — Antigua and Barbuda, Trinidad and Tobago, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, and Grenada and two sister islands.

Nevis will have its own legislature for local laws, its own premier, and guaranteed representation of one-third of the central government, with barely a fifth of the total population.

The constitution also gives Nevis, but not St. Kitts, the right to secede from the federation anytime two-thirds of its people vote to do so.

"There have been certain conflicts between the islands of St. Kitts and Nevis — and Anguilla when it was present. So we had to address the situation as we found it with the resultant strife and difficulties that existed over the years," said Prime Minister Dr. Kennedy Simmonds.

He said the constitution protects the Nevesian minority.

"The affirmative action in the United States for black people is such an action which seeks to provide some measure of protection for the minority," he said.

Opposition Leader Lee Moore notes that Simmonds' party holds only three of nine seats in the central government and stays in power in coalition with the two seats Nevis currently has.

To appease Nevis, Simmonds' People's Action Movement has created "an Orwellian absurdity, the idea that some people are more equal than others," Moore charged.

Moore's Labor Party will boycott the independence celebrations, which figure to be the region's last for some time. The remaining British possessions — Anguilla, Cayman Islands, Montserrat and British Virgin Islands — have shown little interest in nationhood.

U.S. hasn't decided whether Soviets knew jet was civilian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has not made a final judgment as to whether the Soviet Union had prior knowledge that the Korean Air Lines jetliner downed by a Soviet interceptor was a civilian aircraft, the State Department said Friday.

The statement by department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg was prompted by a New York Times report that American intelligence experts have come up with no evidence that Soviet air defense personnel knew the identity of aircraft before it was shot down.

A senior Pentagon official, meanwhile, said Friday that "we don't think the pilot knew" the Korean plane was a civilian airliner.

However, this official said, "We think people on the ground in the Soviet radar control center did know."

The Pentagon official spoke on the condition he remain anonymous, and he refused to elaborate.

Romberg, while saying no final judgment on that question had been made, insisted that the incident was a violation of international law and of procedures established to identify and warn intruding aircraft.

Nonetheless, Romberg appeared to alter somewhat the administration's previous emphasis when he said the administration has made no judgment on whether the Soviets were aware that the KAL plane was a civilian aircraft.

A week after the tragedy, for example, the under secretary of state for political affairs, Lawrence Eagleburger, said it "strains credulity" to suggest that the Soviets were unaware of the plane's identity after tracking it for 2½ hours.

On Friday, Romberg said: "We don't know for sure. How can we possibly know for sure? We've never said that we did.

"We have said they had every opportunity to know, that they had every responsibility to take steps which would have let them know...and if they didn't do it, they were negligent or incompetent or both."

Recession crunches Latin exiles

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, still a haven for thousands of Latin revolutionaries, has cut back on its financial aid to exiles because of pressing economic difficulties, government officials say.

Mexico continues a long-standing policy of support or at least tolerance for Central American revolutionaries, but the administration of President Miguel de la Madrid has moved to slow the flow of refugees into Mexico and cut aid provided to those who take asylum.

The government also is trying to discourage the settlement of refugees from Guatemala's military regime inside Mexico's southern border.

Officials say the moves are part of an austerity plan de la Madrid promised when he took office last December.

Wisconsin lawmakers name state dog

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Some legislators thought the Assembly was barking up the wrong tree, and even the sponsor called his bill to designate an official state dog "something to laugh about."

Still, without debate, legislators designated the American water spaniel as Wisconsin's state dog.

Rep. Francis Byers, sponsor of the bill, called it a change of pace from more weighty legislative issues. "We do need something to laugh about," he said after the voice vote, which included a few loud "nays."

Byers wanted to speak from the floor on the measure but was persuaded to remain in his seat to speed the bill to the Senate. "I was going to recite some doggerel," he said.

His bill won support from an eighth-grade class from New London, where the first American water spaniel recognized in the United States was bred in 1920. The breed became one of only five of 147 breeds recognized by the American Kennel Club that are native to the United States, Byers said.

Dentist makes house calls for elderly

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Lena Hagemeister insists on good care for her teeth, despite the fact that she's a few months shy of her 101st birthday.

But a failing heart and continuing troubles with a previously broken hip make it extremely difficult for her to visit a dentist's office.

Instead, her dentist brings his office to her.

Dr. Marvin Farrimond packs portable versions of most dental tools into two suitcase-sized containers, puts them in the back of his Chevrolet Blazer and takes them to the Four Seasons Nursing Center, where Mrs. Hagemeister has lived for more than a year.

"It means a whole lot to me," said the great-great-grandmother, who reared 10 children of her own on a ranch in Yoakum.

Mrs. Hagemeister is one of nearly 50 patients being served either in their own homes or in nursing homes through a dental group formed by Farrimond a year ago.

The practice was the first in the state — and only the second in the nation — catering to homebound patients.

"I think certainly the dental community needed to have a service of this type available," said Dr. John D. Cochran, president of the San Antonio District Dental Society, which approved Farrimond's program in May 1982.

A similar plan is under way in Houston, and a home-care dental practice is expected to open in October in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, said Dr. Frederick W. Radke, a San Antonio-based dental consultant who instigated the program here, as well as the first one in New Orleans nearly three years ago.

Radke, a former professor of geriatric dentistry at Louisiana State University, finds experienced dentists in cities with large numbers of older people and teaches them how to take care of the older clients and use the new portable equipment, available for the past three years.

He currently is training dentists in Little Rock, Ark.; Kansas City and Des Moines, Iowa; to treat patients either confined to their homes or living in nursing homes.

"The big thing here is the tremendous number of people who are in this category," Radke said. He estimated at least 20,000 people in San Antonio are homebound or patients in nursing homes.

Within the next decade, Radke said he expects the dental needs of older Americans to increase markedly.

Formerly, only three out of 10 patients in nursing homes had most of their teeth left, Radke said. But by the early 1990s, because of improvements in dentistry and more preventative treatment, seven out of 10 nursing home patients are expected to still have their teeth, he said.

Farrimond's program, which started with just two other dentists, has expanded to include three others.

He said he has been visiting patients in nursing homes ever since he came to San Antonio 21 years ago, but "on a very limited basis."

Fillings could be checked, as could the basic state of the teeth.

"We still didn't have the portable equipment," he said. "We could align a denture, but we would still have to bring it back to the office to do it."

All that has changed.

Using the new portable equipment, dentists now can drill, clean, polish and fill teeth. They can do root canals, make casts for dentures, and make sure they'll make a proper fit.

The portable units have two drills, suction devices, a rinse sink and a water tank, all of which folds into a 20-inch-high, 2-foot-long case.

For Mrs. Hagemeister, it meant having her upper dentures refitted and her eight lower teeth kept free of decay and gum diseae.

"He's done a good job," she said. "He's got it where I can eat again."

WWII corvette to be preserved

H.M.C.S. Sackville, the sole survivor of Canada's 123 World War II corvettes, has been taken out of service, but retired Naval officers are planning to ensure its preservation.

Launched in May 1941, the Sackville performed convoy-escort duty in the North Atlantic. Target date for its restoration is May 1985, the 75th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Navy.

FDA removes certain drugs from market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Friday that its outside scientific advisers have finished a review begun in 1972 of the safety and effectiveness of ingredients used in the $6 billion worth of nonprescription drug products bought each year.

The review has led to removal of hexachlorophene and zirconium from many over-the-counter preparations and made hydrocortisone treatments, used for topical pain and itching, available cheaply and without a prescription.

The FDA estimated that the switch to nonprescription status for hydrocortisone has saved consumers $200 million a year.

But the process has come under fire from critics who say it has been too slow. Public Citizen's Health Research Group, founded by Ralph Nader, is suing the FDA in an attempt to force it to act more quickly to remove from the market or order reformulated hundreds of products whose ingredients haven't been proven safe and effective.

ABOUT ONE-THIRD of the ingredients scrutinized during the long review were proven effective and safe. The rest need more proof if manufacturers are to continue using them, according to the FDA.

There are about 300,000 over-the-counter drug products on sale. The review involved about 700 different ingredients, but many of them were used in several types of preparations.

Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler said the submission of the final report from the Food and Drug Administration's 17 advisory groups was a consumer landmark.

This report, 58th in the series, was on nonprescription vaginal products. One of the advisory panels said that povidone-iodine is safe and effective in treating vaginal complaints like irritation, itching and soreness but a doctor should be consulted if there are other symptoms.

"The completion of this last report on the effectiveness and safety of over-the-counter drugs is a milestone in drug history. All American consumers will greatly benefit from the information consolidated in these reports," Mrs. Heckler said in a statement.

BUT IT WILL take the FDA five years to six more years to transform all the panel recommendations into federal regulations. FDA spokesman Ed Nida estimated that only about 25 percent of the panels recommendations have gone through the regulatory process.

The Public Citizen's Health Research Group suit is pending before the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. The group is seeking FDA action against popular, name-brand products which may contain one ingredient proven effective and others which have no such proof.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the group, also has begun a nationwide promotional campaign in connection with the group's book on the subject, "Over the Counter Pills that Don't Work." He contends that consumers spend $10 billion a year on nonprescription drugs and that as much as $4 billion of it is wasted since products are overpriced or contain ingredients which haven't been proven safe or effective.

The Proprietary Association, trade group for the nonprescription drug industry, denies Wolfe's contention and estimates consumers spend $6 billion a year on the products.

Acting FDA Commissioner Mark Novitch said results of the review process can be seen in the marketplace even without final regulatory action in all ases. Manufacturers have paid attention to the recommendations and have sometimes reformulated products without being prodded to do so, and consumer information and warnings have been improved, he said.

SEVEN WIDELY used ingredients have had new restrictions placed on their use as a result of the review.

Hexachlorophene once was used in deodorant soaps, but it now is available only by prescription for antimicrobial purposes because of data showing it could damage the central nervous system. Zirconium was proven safe when used in antiperspirants, but it was eliminated from aerosol products because it might cause lung nodules.

Camphorated oil was removed because it was frequently mistaken for castor oil or cod liver oil and swallowed. Camphorated oil, which was used as a liniment, is toxic.

Tribrosalan was found to make skin sensitive to light and was removed from drugs and cosmetics. Bromides and scopolamine were removed from sleep aids because of safety worries. Sweet spirits of nitre was found ineffective and a risk for infants and removed from the market. It had been used to reduce fevers in children, as a diuretic and to treat intestinal spasms and gassy colic in infants.

Other products which once were available by prescription and now are sold over-the-counter include fluoride rinses and gels for cavity fighting, two antifungal ingredients for infections like ringworm and athlete's foot, and seven antihistamine or nasal decongestant ingredients for colds and hay fever.

THE LAW requiring that both presciption and nonprescription drugs be safe and effective was passed in 1962. A similar review of prescription drug ingredients was finished in 1969.

The nonprescription drug review employed about 300 panel members and staff who examined 20,000 volumes of data during 508 meetings over 1,047 days.

All he wants is a home — a place to bed and chow down. And someone with a kind heart and a big yard is welcome to apply for this husky-shepherd mix breed at the Midland Animal Control Shelter at 1601 Garden Lane.

A GOOD USED CAR... MORE CAR FOR THE MONEY.

Year in and year out, cars depreciate in value. You've heard it. But it's not true! Cars only depreciate each year in price, not in value, because the next year's models have arrived.

There's a difference between price and value. Today's late model used cars, specially those that received good care, actually can give you as much value as a new one. When you can buy a good used car for thousands of dollars less than a new one, that's real value. Our reputation for offering good value for the money is your best assurance... buying your used car.

"WE WANTED A QUALITY LIFESTYLE, NOT GIMMICKS AND GIVEAWAYS..."

"...That's why, when John and I were transferred to Midland, we chose to live at Oakridge Apartments. Sure, we passed up a few gimmicks and giveaways offered by the other communities. But what we got instead is an apartment community superior to anything else we saw. New on the market this year, Oakridge Apartments are bright and beautiful with sparkling new amenities and lots of extras. But more than that, Oakridge is a real quality neighborhood. The people out here are just great, and the management team is the best we've ever had.

1-, 2- and 2-bedroom studio apartment homes are available now. Take Loop 250 to N. Holiday Hill Road and look for the giant American flag.
