Hairston Dies, Wife Injured In Auto Wreck

Mrs. Tom Hairston, the former Vee Ann Mitchell of Artesia, is reported in serious shock at Memorial General hospital in Las Cruces following an auto accident early on Thursday morning which killed her husband of one month and a youth accompanying the couple.

Hospital attendants say Mrs. Hairston apparently suffered a broken rib, a cracked rib, and possibly severe internal injuries.

Mrs. Hairston's husband, Tom N. Hairston, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hairston of Roswell, was killed instantly in the automobile wreck about three miles south of Las Cruces.

Paul Beedle of White City, a cadet at New Mexico Military Institute, died at 4:30 a. m. Thursday morning in Memorial General hospital from severe injuries sustained in the accident.

Not Injured—

J. D. Posz, also an NMMI cadet and a passenger in the car, was not seriously injured.

Dona Ana county sheriff's officers said the accident occurred at 1:30 a. m. Thursday 3 miles south of Las Cruces. Police said the young couple and Hairston's two friends were returning to Las Cruces from El Paso.

Apparently, officers report, Hairston fell asleep, losing control of the car. The vehicle smashed into a cottonwood tree, demolishing the left side.

Police said Hairston may have awakened seconds before the crash and attempted to swerve, since the auto hit the tree sideways rather than head-on.

Both Hairston and Beedle were sitting on the left side of the car. Posz was asleep on the right rear seat.

Married Feb. 5—

Mr. and Mrs. Hairston had been married exactly one month when Thursday's crash took Mr. Hairston's life. They were married Feb. 5 in Roswell.

Hairston, a graduate of NMMI in Roswell, was a sophomore in the college of business administration at New Mexico A&M college, Las Cruces.

Mr. and Mrs. Hairston were residing on the A&M campus.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mitchell, Mrs. Hairston's parents, Thursday were reported in Las Cruces to be with their daughter.

Mr. Hairston's body was taken to Roswell for burial services Sunday afternoon, while the body of Mr. Beedle was flown to White City for funeral rites.

An Editorial— School Welfare Depends on Earnest Effort of Boards

RECOGNITION THAT the school problems of North Eddy county are serious and the financial outlook for our schools is very grave has come from all portions of Eddy county over the last 1½ months. Yet as we approach the last quarter of the fiscal year the two school boards primarily concerned with reorganization proposals have taken no official steps to solve these difficulties.

An impartial, state-appointed survey team composed of experts in educational finance surveyed the county in December and came up with a plan it thought could equalize assessed valuations per child in Eddy county.

Opposition from South Eddy county came largely on the basis of the proposed division line which would have divided the county into two large school systems with headquarters at Artesia and Carlsbad. Loving also protested the proposal, but its objections were anticipated by the state committee, which suggested an alternative third district be set up for the Loving area.

Differences between Artesia and Carlsbad were compromised in a meeting held in Artesia in January, although the meeting ended in a disagreement when the Artesia board was asked to guarantee the new county bill would not be introduced to the legislature. The Artesia board, of course, could not make any such promise.

Two members of the Carlsbad school board on Feb. 14 issued news releases declaring they were in sympathy with Artesia's views on the school problem.

George Harley, president of the Carlsbad board, declared "I immediately saw the injustice of an equalization of taxable valuations for students throughout the county, and made an effort to arrange for a meeting of the Carlsbad board of education at an early date to discuss the matter in detail. In the meantime, several other interested citizens of Carlsbad called me and made the same suggestion regarding a meeting of the two boards that Mr. McCollum had made."

Virgil O. McCollum, member of the Carlsbad board, said in his statement issued at the same time "We were both aware of the inequalities that existed in tax valuation as they applied to the school districts involved, and I told Mr. Brown that I was in sympathy with the problem." (McCollum refers to T. E. Brown, Sr., of Artesia, with whom he discussed the school situation in Santa Fe in the opening days of the legislature.)

All school boards of North Eddy county have gone on record as joining with Artesia in approval of the state survey committee report.

The state board of education takes the position that Carlsbad and Artesia must get together on a compromise of their past differences before it will take any action toward reorganizing the county along lines recommended by the state survey committee.

Such a reorganization would have to be approved in the very near future to become effective at the start of the fiscal year which begins July 1. School systems are already preparing their operation budgets for next year.

Consolidation of Hope with Artesia puts a heavy burden on the now-enlarged Artesia district because of commitments to people of Hope and expenses which overbalance revenue in that area.

We believe it is time for the county's two school boards to once more get together officially, to forget past differences, to devote themselves to an increasingly serious problem which threatens to lower the caliber of education we can give the young people of our schools.

Five Conferences Scheduled For Opportunity Unlimited

Further conferences to outline the Opportunity Unlimited program of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce have been scheduled for next week, Pres. Stanley Carper announced Thursday.

Five meetings with small groups of civic leaders have been scheduled to begin next Tuesday, Carper said.

More than 60 civic leaders attended two breakfast sessions devoted to the Opportunity Unlimited program Tuesday and Wednesday this week, C. C. Mgr. Paul Scott has reported.

Meant for Absentees—

Carper said next week's meetings are primarily designed for those members of the Chamber of Commerce who did not attend meetings scheduled this week.

Conferences will open with an outline of the chamber's 1953 program, a discussion session on the program with suggestions from guests invited, and an outline of chamber financial requirements.

Carper reported response to Opportunity Unlimited so far has been "very gratifying."

He observed that the chamber budget has been increased about 20 per cent to cover 1953's expanded program as well as meet deficits from its 1952 operations.

Average increase in pledges have been about 14 per cent, the president said, which is, Carper said, "a fine indication of how much our civic leaders believe in the chamber, the city, and themselves."

Pledges for Difference—Pledges for new members are expected to make up the difference between amount of budget increases and pledge increases.

Members of the board of directors will divide themselves into teams of three to invite guests to next week's five meetings. The conferences will be in small groups with not more than 25 people attending, the president said.

Opportunity Unlimited seeks to explain to Artesia's people that if their time, talent, and money are given without limit, the community has an unlimited opportunity for growth and prosperity.

Keynote of the campaign has been that the "Chamber of Commerce Is YOU," pointing out to

Four of Five Cities to Send Representative

Artesia will be represented in Washington by a delegation March 12 when the civil aeronautics board (CAB) sits to hear oral arguments seeking reversal of an opinion which would deny Artesia and four other cities proposed air service.

In making the announcement Thursday, Stanley Carper, Chamber of Commerce president, said "All cities on the proposed Pioneer airline route except Clovis will send delegations to the hearing."

"Artesia," he added, "will represent Clovis' views in the case. Roswell, El Paso, and Amarillo organizations have individually assured us they will have delegations in Washington."

Ask For Support—

Carper also announced civic organizations, individual business houses, and private citizens are being urged to contact members of the New Mexico Congressional delegation for support in the appeal.

Kiwanis club, first approached, Thursday unanimously endorsed a resolution to support the chamber of commerce and appeal to proper agencies.

Other organizations, as they are contacted and held meetings, are expected to act similarly, Carper said.

W. M. Siegenthaler, Artesia attorney, will represent the city in Washington, Carper said. Siegenthaler presented the city's original case before Examiner Herbert K. Bryan last May in Dallas.

At five cities affected by the Examiner's adverse decision have already filed briefs taking exceptions to the examiner's findings and recommendations.

Not Large Enough—

Bryan in his decision said he felt the other four cities on the proposed Amarillo-El Paso route were already adequately served by air, and Artesia was not large enough to be a good generator of sufficient air traffic.

Junior High to Give Variety Show Tonight

A repeat performance of Junior High Varieties of 1953 will be given tonight at 8 p. m., in Senior high school auditorium, Justin Bradbury, band director, has announced.

The repeat performance is made necessary because of the unexpectedly large crowd which turned out for last night's hit performance of the variety show.

Bradbury reports a large number of disappointed ticket-buyers could not be accommodated in the high school auditorium, forcing rescheduling of the show.

REA Travelers Are Invited to National Tourney

Through an invitation from national Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) headquarters, the REA Travelers of Artesia will play in the western division tournament opening March 16 in Denver. Paul Frost, Central Valley Co-op manager, announced Thursday.

The invitation from national AAU headquarters came after state AAU officials sought to bar the Travelers from competing in state contests, won Wednesday night by the Santa Fe Sellers.

The Artesia team may enter the AAU tourney in one of two ways:

1—If one of the 32 teams invited fails to attend, the Travelers will be placed in the tourney bracket to replace the missing team.

2—If all 32 do come, the Travelers will be matched against the Santa Fe Sellers March 15. The winner will play a West Texas team, deciding which goes into the tourney.

If the Santa Fe Sellers fail to appear at the tournament because of the second alternative, it is expected the Travelers will go into the bracket in their place.

"While we are not over-optimistic," Carper said, "we are not pessimistic about our chances for a reversal. There have been changes on the CAB lately which may mean a change in policy, as well as a general change in government attitude."

"I would like to stress to all civic organizations and interested firms and individuals that this will be the last chance we have for sometime to make a case for airline service," Carper said.

Trout Jaw Tags Turn Up Information on Growth

One of the more important tools used by fisheries biologists is the jaw tag used on trout. By means of these tiny metal rings, they are able to determine the age, growth, survival, and migrations of trout provided, however, that the anglers cooperate by returning the tags they find among their catch and turning them in along with pertinent information.

Biologist Roy Barker recently reported the results of a three-year fish tagging program in New Mexico, beginning in December, 1929. During that time, Barker tagged and released a total of 13,171 trout in lakes and streams.

Of the total number, 7,190 six to 12-inch rainbows were planted in streams; 1,200 six to eight-inch brown trout were planted in streams and 4,781 six to 12-inch minnows were planted in lakes.

Checking his records, Barker concluded that during the first fishing season following the planting of tagged trout, he received a total of 2,127 tags—a low percentage of return.

From the return tags, Barker deduced that: growth per month varied from .06 of an inch to 1.45 inches; growth per year varied from .7 to 6 inches; migration of the tagged trout was mostly none to one-half mile downstream; also, the best month for recovering tags was the one immediately following the opening of the trout season.

By the way, if you happen to have a tag or two left in your tackle box from last season, Roy Barker would still like to have it. Try to include the following information if you can remember it: place where trout was taken, approximate size, date when caught.

District Warden A. L. "Bear" Turner delivered a rather unusual three year old buck deer to the Albuquerque zoo last Monday after it was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Ake of Magdalena.

The buck has a long and varied history, beginning in his fawn years, when Warden Bill Humphries of Las Cruces retrieved him from some people who had picked him up in the woods. Humphries passed the buck to Turner at Magdalena, who, in turn, passed him on to the Akes who agreed to raise the little fellow on their C Bar N ranch.

Gradually, the buck became a nuisance about the ranch yard, especially whenever there was a pick-up truck in sight. Somewhere, the deer had picked up a dire hatred of pickups and he would charge them on sight. On one occasion, he charged headlong into a pickup and broke his antlers off but this just made him hate his chosen enemy worse than ever.

Finally, the Akes decided to get rid of the deer before he had all their friends riding in limousines, so they called on Turner again who loaded the deer into his horse trailer and delivered him, safe and sound, to his new Duke City home.

Of the four measures sponsored by the state game department in the current legislature, three have already been killed and the fourth is still in committee.

The three, all very dead, are: An amendment to the fish and game code which would recognize as beneficial, the appropriation and use of water for fish and wildlife.

Legislation clarifying the powers and duties of game wardens.

A bill classifying the cottontail rabbit a "game animal" and requiring a license to hunt them.

Still in the works is a measure which would permit the Game Commission to lease or sell oil, gas, timber or mineral resources on lands under its control, provided that such resources may be advantageously disposed of without interference with the purpose for which the lands were originally acquired.

United States Must Share With Others, ENMU Academic Dean Tells Kiwanians

If the United States wishes to breed Communism, "we just have to sit tight, shut the door, never think of sharing with others," Dr. Martin Cole, academic dean at Eastern New Mexico university, told Artesia Kiwanis club Thursday noon.

Dr. Cole compared the modern day struggle between free countries of the world and Communism with the Biblical battle between the Philistines and Israelites, led by David as captain.

Edna Ferber caught the spirit of things that should be in her latest book, Dr. Cole said, in which she contends nothing is too good for the individual's community, state, and nation.

"If there is nothing lacking in your community, it is most unusual," Dr. Cole declared. "Because there are things lacking, it is necessary to have civic groups such as Kiwanis to help improve in every way."

"Just the spark of a little imagination will do marvelous things through such a group as this, with just a little courage and daring," he added.

Lenin, Dr. Cole pointed out, said

Communism is so good in theory it will conquer the world without war.

"Is there nothing we can say about democracy with the same courage in our belief?" challenged the speaker.

Guests at Thursday's meeting were Paul W. Scott, Bill Keys, V. F. Lowery, Art King, Max Brown, Rufus Waltrip, Dr. Owen C. Taylor and John Farmer.

Philip Dillara was introduced as Junior Kiwanian of the month.

Scott, Chamber of Commerce manager, asked and received from Kiwanis a resolution supporting the chamber's program to seek airline service for Artesia.

Plattor Party Wins Free Fishing In Resort Town

A day's free fishing at Guaymas, Mexico, has been awarded Cliff Plattor and his Artesia party for having the best catch over a number of years, according to Tom Jamison of Hotel Playa de Cortes, Guaymas.

Jamison wrote Plattor "our resort has been fished by more big-game fishermen and our fleet used more than any other fleet in the world. You happen to be the top fishermen of Guaymas, Mexico, per weight in fish, for the last 21 years."

"Consistently your parties catch more fish each trip than any other I know. At present we have as many people fishing from Artesia as from the entire state of California. We continue yearly to appreciate the skillful, sportsman-like, downright good fishermen who come from Artesia."

In recent parties with Plattor at Guaymas have been Tom Boyd, Howard Achen, Wayne Paulin, Ralph Nix and Jack Palmer.

In the last two trips at Guaymas, Plattor and his party caught 1900 pounds of red snappers. Plattor says he'll accept the free day's fishing "in the near future."

Lake Arthur

Mr. and Mrs. John Lane and children, Viola, John D. and Mr. and Mrs. Ferrin Cummins and daughter, Glenda of Roswell, spent Sunday visiting the Lane sisters at Carrizozo.

Ralph Hershey was calling on old friends and acquaintances in Lake Arthur Sunday. He called on Will Foster and E. C. Jackson.

Bethel Baptist Church Continues Plan To Raise Building Remodeling Funds

Bethel Baptist church at N. Seventh and Church will continue its building fund campaign this Sunday with the second in a series of six special services, Rev. J. H. Horton announced this week.

Out-of-town guests will be featured at special services scheduled for the next five Sunday afternoons at 2:30, Rev. Horton said. This Sunday guests will be from Corinth Baptist church, Alamogordo, under auspices of the Bethel choir.

Goal in the fund campaign is $3,000 to cover cost of remodeling the First Presbyterian church building, donated to the Bethel church by the Presbyterian congregation. The church building will be moved to the N. Seventh and Church location.

The junior church will be in charge Sunday, March 15, when special guests will be from Mt. Olive Baptist church of Carlsbad under direction of Rev. F. R. Williams, pastor.

March 22 the Sunday school will lead the program featuring Pilgrim Rest Baptist church of Carlsbad, of which W. C. Griffin is pastor.

Young Matrons Missionary Society is in charge of the March 29 program at 11 a. m., and the Senior Mission Society the 7:30 program for March 29.

Close of the drive will be the first Sunday in April, Rev. Horton said, with members of the Church of God in Christ as special guests under direction of Elder E. C. Cox and sponsored by the board of ushers.

The public is invited to attend all services during the campaign.

Columbus Boy Choir Shows Power Of Faith in Firm Belief of Music

The celebrated Columbus Boy Choir School, originally established in Columbus, Ohio, is a materialization of faith—faith in the power of music to influence and strengthen character, faith in the response of American youth to the musical stimulus, and the faith of one man in the support of his fellow citizens for an ideal.

That man is Herbert Huffman, founder-director of the Columbus Boychoir, which will appear here in concert at 8 p. m. March 11, in Senior high school auditorium.

Huffman has brought into being a unique institution. He has created a school that offers musical training of the highest caliber combined with a fully accredited academic course.

At the same time he has created a concert choir that, in a comparatively short space of time, has won international recognition and is generally conceded to be the finest organization of its kind in the country today.

To realize his vision, Huffman has surmounted great difficulties. He began with the loan of a building from the Broad Street Presbyterian church in Columbus. Local organizations and public-spirited citizens contributed funds. Only half the necessary money was raised the first year, but so inspiring was Huffman's ideal that teachers voluntarily lived on half pay in order to get the project underway.

When the school opened its doors in 1940, there was an enrollment of 30 Columbus boys. Today, there are well over 70 students, and they come from states throughout the union and Canada.

4-H Girls Can About 8 Million Quarts of Food

A creditable showing was made by 4-H members throughout the country in 1952 in preserving the surplus of food produced on the home front, thus stretching the much-needed family dollars to be spent for living. Reports indicate that 4-H young people, especially girls, canned and preserved in other ways a very considerable quantity of fruits, vegetables, and meats. About 8 million quarts of food were canned according to recommended practices.

This was a decrease in food preservation by canning, but was offset by a 50 per cent increase in food preservation by freezing, when compared with 1951. In all, nearly 4,000,000 quarts were frozen either in new deep freezers at home or in well-equipped freezer lockers in the home community. Impetus was given to this method of preserving food through 4-H team demonstrations by club members in many parts of the country. In addition a large amount of food, as in past years, was preserved by brining, curing, drying or storing, in accordance with well-tested preservation practices. Equipment and supply shortages have worked hardships in some areas during the year, as did shortage of many garden crops due to unfavorable weather conditions. Understanding Is Better

CONSIDERABLE PROGRESS is being made in the efforts of the physicians and surgeons of osteopathy to enjoy their rights and privileges over the entire nation and indications point toward an agreement sooner or later between the schools of medicine and the schools of osteopathy and medicine.

A case which has attracted nation-wide attention, the Audrain county case in Missouri, has now been passed on by the St. Louis court of appeals with a favorable decision for the osteopaths.

The appeals court upheld three of the rulings of the circuit court of appeals of Audrain county, Missouri. The ruling granted the right of the osteopaths to practice in hospitals operated wholly or in part by public funds under the county hospital law in the state of Missouri.

The decision affirmed that "osteopathic physicians are practitioners of a school of medicine and are physicians and surgeons within the meaning of the Missouri laws regulating their practice rights." The court granted them the right to practice in the Audrain county hospital subject only to the reasonable rules of the hospital.

The court also assured the "absolute right" of the patient to select his own physician. The osteopathic profession has long supported the principle of freedom of choice of personal physician by the patient. The court held that the ruling of the board of trustees in prohibiting the osteopaths to practice in the county hospital in Audrain county is illegal, unreasonable, discriminatory, void and of no force and effect.

Recently the attorney general in the state of Oklahoma ruled prior to the construction of a county hospital that the hospital would have to be open to the practice of osteopaths and their patients when it is completed.

In another case in the State of Oregon a bond issue for the construction of a $700,000 hospital lost by a two to one margin because of the failure of the board of trustees of the proposed hospital to guarantee an open staff hospital permitting the osteopathic physicians and surgeons to practice in the proposed hospital.

In Toronto, Canada, a 20-year-old fight by the osteopaths has resulted in a victory for them. The report states that "the 20-year battle of Ontario osteopaths for the right to govern, license, and examine members of their profession ended in victory with the announcement that the provincial government that a board of directors of osteopathy has been established."

Probably the most encouraging sign, however, is the latest development in the question of cooperation between the American Medical Association and the American Osteopathic Association. This movement took a new turn, according to reports at the clinical sessions of AMA recently in Denver, when the "house of delegates" marked time on the scheduling of conferences with the American Osteopathic Association apparently waiting for the osteopathic association to make the first move in the matter of utilizing M.D.'s as instructors in schools of osteopathy. It has been understood the suggestion, which could lead to a proposed amalgamation, tion of the two schools of medicine, would provide for medical men to teach medical courses in the osteopathic schools.

All of these, of course, are signs of our times and they indicate progress in our programs for aiding and helping those suffering from illness or needing medical and hospital care.

New Mexico has a law very similar to the Missouri state law concerning the operation of hospitals operated wholly or partly with public funds. The day will come when the decision will have to be made in this state.

It will be better for all, the professional men and the patients, if an agreement is worked out satisfactory to all instead of the matter having to be settled in a court.

The Houses We Need

PERMITS for another flock of those new houses out in southwest Artesia have been filed and the houses themselves will soon spring up, booming the city's building industry, etc.

While it's always fine to see abundant new construction being carried on in the city, there are two places where we think the city is lacking in providing houses for its people:

1.—Local contractors and real estate people let someone else beat their time in filling the gap in Artesia's housing need; the laments you hear come easy enough after someone else had the vision and initiative to do the job. Only now is a major construction job being contemplated in collaboration by an Artesia real estate agency and a construction firm.

2.—Houses which sell for $10,000 with a $1,000 down payment and $250 closing costs—or more—leave a lot of people who sincerely desire home ownership still piling up rental receipts. Consider the young couple making $300 or $350 a month with a child or two. They're getting on their feet and have plenty of overhead. As often as not when they go to move into a new house they'll have to spend another $1,500 on furnishings. For them the answer has not yet been found in Artesia, and we think they constitute a sizeable market.

Men who want to do something about housing can also take a look at the city's north side, where there's a crying need for both better rental and sale properties. No one can tell us that just because folks live north of Chisum street and have lower incomes, they don't yearn for decent housing, too.

There is a challenge in Artesia's housing situation for men with vision and energy. We know from the experiences of one that the financing of such projects is not easy.

Yet when housing is not forthcoming from private enterprise to meet the needs of all the people, private interests are begging for the do-it-all people in government to fill the gap.

Just as she abhors it anywhere else, Nature abhors a vacuum in private business, too.

Let's Talk to CAB

WE'D HATE TO THINK that when the civil aeronautics board convenes in Washington next Thursday there won't be an Artesia representative there to protest the decision of Examiner Herbert K. Bryan in advising against extension of Pioneer air service to this city.

Bryan's recommendation tersely noted all other cities on the proposed Amarillo-El Paso flight except Artesia already have airline service, and in his opinion Artesia isn't big enough yet to get a good generator of air traffic.

Yet the CAB has granted air service to other cities in New Mexico smaller than Artesia and in some cases only half the size of this city.

It is peculiar to the nature of Artesia's economy that frequent out-of-town trips are needed by executives in the oil and other industries, including mushrooming potash workings now coming closer and closer to Artesia.

Artesia superficially is unfavorably situated—air service-wise—between two large cities, Roswell and Carlsbad. But closer examination of the facts will show Artesia traffic makes up a good deal of traffic at those two points.

This city in our opinion has a dandy case for air service and the men to present it. Let's go to Washington.

THIS LAND OF ENCHANTMENT—

Jack Dempsey Backs Up, Says If Folks Want Two Congressional Districts, We'll Have 'Em

"IF THE MAJORITY OF THE people of our state desire two congressional districts, I think we should have two districts," says Rep. John J. Dempsey.

Dempsey is one of two congressional representatives from New Mexico elected at large under the present system. State Rep. Virgil O. McCollum is seeking to change all that with his bill to divide New Mexico into north and south congressional districts.

Says Virgil: The southern part of the state doesn't get representation the way things are now set up.

Under his bill, one representative would be elected from the northern half of the state, the other from the southern half of the state.

Virgil presumably would be a candidate to be the first U. S. representative from the southern part, according to common capital talk.

AN UNIDENTIFIED DISC-shaped object with colored spots has been reported near Alamogordo by two men who should know what they are talking about.

T. B. Hooliday, president of Land-Air, Inc., which handles instrumentation for Holloman air development center, and John Proctor, the firm's vice-president, issued a statement describing what they saw:

"The night was clear and the object stood out against the starlit sky as a brilliant orange-yellow disc, appearing to rotate slowly."

"There was no indication that it formed part of an airplane or other object as there was no silhouette of such configuration against the sky."

The object was reported to move west to east at an upward angle of about 10 degrees for 2½ minutes before shooting abruptly upward and disappearing within four seconds.

NEW MEXICO'S HOUSE OF representatives has laid claim to about half of the state of Texas, but offered to compromise the claim by settling for a fourth of all mineral rites in the Longhorn state.

A joint memorial stated as fact that all Texas west of the Nueces river is actually part of New Mexico.

"If New Mexico were to assert its right to such lands, the citizens of Texas would no longer be able to rant, rave, puff, and blow-hard in all manners known to mankind, expounding the greatness of said state," the memorial said.

YEAR OF THE BIG WIND

NEW MEXICO EDITORS ARE SAYING—

While We in New Mexico Need Two-Inch Rain, It's Piddling Snows That Are Saving Wheat

TWO-INCH RAIN

Everything considered, conditions in Roosevelt county are downright encouraging, despite the outbreak of pessimism prevalent for the past 45 days.

This is strictly on the basis of comparison with how bad things could get, if fate, or whatever element has control of "situations" really tried to hex this county.

For example, while we really need a two-inch rain, those little piddling snows we have been getting, and this cool weather, are saving the wheat. Our fields are not blowing nearly so badly as those in the Texas wheat growing sections where they had a complete crop failure and have no protective stubble.

Of course, a lot of our people are having to stretch their loans at the bank over another 12 months, and a few of them have gotten discouraged with dry weather and have given up. But when you recall some of the real personal privations of previous drought years, you must conclude that things will have to get a lot worse before we are justified in wearing the long faces we are prone to put on now.

We have the word of Arthur Jones that there's not a thing wrong here that a 2-inch rain wouldn't cure. And we are sure to have two inches of rain between now and next Christmas—although it might not all come at once.—Portales Daily News.

24-INCH PIPELINE

They want to make mighty free with Lea county's money in the Legislature. One of the recent proposals for spending the flood of tax money this county sends to Santa Fe is to issue bonds backed by the severance tax.

Lea county oil and gas tax would be used to build a new prison in Santa Fe or Los Lunas, to improve the state mental hospital at Las Vegas, to improve the Springer Industrial School, and to carry on the State Capitol building program.

If our money is to be spent, it is only fair that the state build its new prison in Lea county. Then we would have that 90-some payroll, plus the business of supplying food and other items to the penitentiary.

Our tax-money goes to Santa Fe in a 24-inch pipeline and returns for Lea county's benefit in a soda straw.—Hobbs News-Sun.

BACKFIRING

There is a little book now in print which is titled "How To Make Friends, and Influence People," and we would recommend strongly that Paul Case, chief lobbyist for the liquor interests should read it from cover to cover. He certainly is not doing the clients he represents any good by viciously attacking the entire press of the state in an effort to take the heat off the fair trades law which gives the liquor interests special protection in the matter of prices and profits. The utterly ridiculous efforts of the liquor interests to make their business a little more profitable by imposing an importer's license on citizens bringing back a few bottles of hooch for their personal use from Juarez was just what was needed to awaken the people and the Legislature to the fact that the liquor dealers are being guaranteed some things by law that other merchants aren't.

The statement by Case that newspapers are interested in repeal of the fair trades law from a strictly mercenary and selfish standpoint of increased advertising is almost as ridiculous as the bill which brought up the whole matter for public attention. —New Mexico State Record.

LIQUOR PRICING LEGAL?

The heated and intemperate discussion of the question about the fair trade liquor law has bypassed one of the important points of the subject.

It is a brief directive in the state constitution, article IV, section 38—"The legislature shall enact laws to prevent trusts, monopolies, and combinations in restraint of trade."

That may bear on the liquor situation in New Mexico. First, New Mexico liquor retailers may buy only from New Mexico wholesalers. Both are required by law to mark up their prices to or above a level defined by law. Wholesalers exercise exclusive rights in state trade. Retailers, by virtue of a law passed in 1951 limiting the number of retail licenses on a population basis have been constituted as a monopoly. The population requirement has operated to prohibit the issuance of more licenses in any city of the state until some remote date in the future when the population is greatly increased.

The 14-year-old law has never been tested in court. One case was taken into U. S. district court but settled before it came to trial, another filed in the state district court was also settled before trial.

Aside from the questions of morality and fairness in the liquor pricing issue, it seems that there may be a serious question of the constitutionality of the 1939 law. —Tucuman Daily News.

PRaise FOR DULLES

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' first foreign policy address was in many ways a firm and heartening reaffirmation of the struggling peoples of the free world that "you can count on us."

From the foreign policy course we have been following in the past was a hint by Dulles that the U. S. is going to take a long, hard look at the contribution of western European nations toward the common defense against Communism. If those nations are laying down on the job, Dulles indicated, then the U. S. must revise its own planning. Dulles, incidentally, is going to inquire into this situation personally on his forth-coming trip to Europe.

THOUGHTS IN PRINT

Most Illogical Argument Against Progressive Education Is 'Red Tool'

Some thoughts on progressive education and its alleged kinship to communism from a New York Times editorial:

There are rational arguments for and against progressive education; and reasonable people can and do differ over the pros and cons. But one of the most ill-founded arguments against progressive education is the argument that it leads to, or is a tool of, or is somehow connected in a sinister way with, communism. Such an argument was made at a meeting here in New York by Dr. Bella V. Dodd, a former Communist, who said the Communists were using progressive education as a means of encouraging students for the day when they could "take matters into their own hands." Whatever Dr. Dodd meant by that remark, the inference to be drawn from her observations is that progressive education and communism go hand in hand.

Progressive education may be good or bad, but at least it has the merit of being at the opposite pole from communism. Progressive education has as its goals freedom of thought, independent search for facts and the greatest degree of individualism possible within the necessary bounds of an educational system. What resemblance is there in this to the rigidity, the rote, the discipline, the orthodoxy of communism? If Dr. Dodd, as a teacher, is against progressive education, well and good; but it is certainly muddying the waters to drag in an argument over communism where it does not belong.

The "readability boys and their word-counting machines" give Stephen E. Fitzgerald a slight pain the vocabulary. In the Saturday Review he writes:

The readability men seem to forget that foreign and complex words—yes, even long words—can have qualities of zest and color and impact totally lacking in their plainer equivalents.

Lincoln, for example, might have said: "Eighty-seven years ago, the people who were here before we were started a new country. They had two main ideas. One of these was the idea that it is good to be free. The other idea was that everybody ought to be thought of as being just as good as everybody else."

This may or may not be clearer than Lincoln's original very conceptual language—clearer, perhaps, to a readability expert—but I doubt that we would have remembered it so well.

Good advice on budget-balancing from an expert. — Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois: America can start balancing its budget today simply by stepping up to the counter and buying only what it really needs at reasonable prices.

COFFEE TALK—

Bulldog-Rat Terrier Puppy Given Child to Replace Dog Shot Saturday

MRS. JACK HUGHGINS RECEIVED several offers from people wanting to give her three-year-old daughter a puppy following the shooting of the Hughgins' pet by the city dogcatcher last Saturday.

Mrs. Hughgins says they accepted a combination bulldog-rat terrier from Mrs. Del Smith.

Mrs. H. also reports she wasn't at all happy with the story in Tuesday's paper, even though it did bring them another puppy. Mrs. Hughgins says the statements of the dogcatcher were not factual, and if the paper had called her, she could have given the correct facts, such as to point out her home at 508 S. Thirteenth is not in the "fairly open spaces," even if they do have 40 acres there.

Mrs. H. is contending the dogcatcher was unforgivably wrong in shooting the wrong dog, and is asking the newspaper to hand down that verdict, even though a paper can't be judge and jury of all the grievances, however serious, which arise in community life. We attempted only of report both sides of the story.

Mrs. Hughgins says the following paragraph represents her viewpoint, only it should be worded stronger: "Mrs. Hughgins contends the dogcatcher made an unforgivable mistake and had no right to shoot the dog there in the first place."

THANKS TO GENE NUNN up at Hill Lines, the Advocate has finally received its long-lost engraving machine, a mere 400-pound wooden crate which somehow got lost for a week evaded a network of telephone and teletype messages.

The machine was shipped from Denver, but labels on it came off, and so it wound up in Hill's dock at Amarillo. Piecing together what might have happened, the Artesia office was checking Salt Lake City, El Paso, Los Angeles, and Chicago to see if it had been mistakenly picked up.

Meanwhile, Hill in Amarillo was getting ready to ship the thing to Jamaica, N. Y., the return address on the thing. Fortunately, Gene reached them in time.

The engineer to set the thing up is expected any day now, and soon, and at last, the thing should be working.

DRILLER MGR. EARL PERRY came enthusiastically into the office this week to say he'd signed Bill Haley on a trade for Melvin Miller, and Artesia now completely own Haley.

Haley's acquisition is another in a long line of successful trades Perry has made through the war. Most fans are familiar with the names which have been announced in the Advocate from time to time and can appreciate that Perry has a high-powered aggregation.

From the looks of things, Artesia is going to me a mighty strong first division contender this season—and from the first day, too.

OILMEN AND INTERESTED folks are looking for copies of the new Southeastern New Mexico oil directory put out by the Roswell Geological Society. Can get a copy of the same from Ed Kinney in Artesia, up on second floor of the Booker building.

PROBABLY NO SINGLE story in recent Artesia's contained more type typographical errors than this one Tuesday: "County Byron de Poma, noted archaeologist, explorer, author, speaker, 'man about the world,' and a price among men will be next guest speaker of Knife & Fork club. The meeting will be at 7 p. m. March 3 at Presbyterian parish hall."

Most folks noticed "County" for "Count," "price for prime" and "Knife & Work" for "Knife & Fork." But the most confusing part was dropping the 1 in the copy after March, which should have read March 13.

No matter how much we checked something like that happens every once in a while; we're glad most folks have a sense of humor and can understand that in the thousands of typographical characters in every issue of the paper there's bound to be some less-than-perfect characters hanging around.

Lack of Help from Key Men Hinders Eisenhower in Economy Campaign

By JOHN E. DEMPSEY

Congressman from New Mexico

WASHINGTON, March 5.

After six weeks in office President Eisenhower is confronted with the difficult problem of carrying out his oft-made campaign promise of reducing expenditures by the executive branch of the government to the point where the budget can be balanced. The president, without doubt, wishes sincerely to do that, but he is not getting the help to which he is entitled from those he has appointed to key jobs in his administration. So far, it would appear they have let him down.

Nor has there been any evidence up to this time that the people the president has placed in high positions of defense, have taken any serious steps toward elimination of the waste in government spending that was revealed by armed services committee investigations during the 82nd Congress.

Secretary of Defense Wilson, for instance, has been in Washington but little of the time since he took office. He has, therefore, been forced to rely on the advice of the same men who made reports on which the original Truman budget was based. They are not going to admit they were wrong in their original estimates and requests. President Eisenhower is entitled to better service than that. The same might well be said of the failure of Budget Director Dodge to come up with any constructive economy plan, helpful to the president up to this time.

Instead the president and congressional committees have been told by Secretary Wilson, Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Budget Director Dodge that they are finding it virtually impossible to cut the budget as submitted to the Congress early in January by President Truman. They have pointed out, also, that they cannot see how a reduction in taxes can be made this year and probably not in 1954.

Secretary Dulles apparently has joined the spenders and wants more money for foreign aid than was appropriated last year. Budgets aren't balanced that way. On the other hand Chairman Reed of the House ways and means committee, which handles all tax legislation, introduced a bill to cut individual income taxes 5½ per cent this year. He stakes his reputation as an authority on taxation on his assertion that the cut can be made and not throw the budget out of balance. Of course, he predicated his statement on a proper reduction in government spending. I believe Chairman Reed is right. I believe also that President Eisenhower recognizes the fact that his administration must find a way to cut spending and taxes if it is to keep faith with the American people.

It is evident that a majority of the members of both branches of Congress are awfully in favor of as heavy a cut in the budget requests of all departments as can be made without injury to essential government functions. It is my belief President Eisenhower takes the same position whether his appointees do or not. In his recent news conference he said, according to press reports, that "balancing of the budget will be terrifically difficult. But he did not rule out the possibility of doing it. He added the true observation that if it had been easy it would have been done years ago."

It always has been difficult to balance the budget. It always will be, as long as the government continues the pressure tactics they have used to get every possible dollar they could. If any of them ever come before the Congress with a plan for saving money instead of spending it, the millennium will be here.

Senator Carlson of Kansas, one of the president's closest advisors, said he believes there can be a tax cut this year and has come out flatly with the statement that "the budget can be cut from 10 to 13 billion dollars." He said he believed it could be reduced to 66 billions. It has been my contention right along that the maximum necessary to run the government adequately, including defense and mutual security programs, is 68 billions and that, have felt, is a generous estimate. The president will at least find plenty of support in Congress for an economy program, including tax cuts.

While breast cancer is the commonest cancer among women of your age, it is also highly curable if treated properly before it has spread beyond a local area in the breast itself.

Doctors tell us that women are much more likely to be the first to discover the earliest signs of breast cancer. That is why you should know the correct and most thorough way to examine your breasts for any lumps or thickening.

Art Exhibit Set For Roswell Open To Area Artists

An art exhibit to include entries from New Mexico and Texas artists living within a radius of 150 miles from Roswell is planned for late April or May, at the Roswell Museum.

Paintings in oil and water color, small sculpture, and photography in color prints or color slides are eligible for submission to the jury of selection.

Several towns in Texas and New Mexico fall on or within a few miles of the circumference line of the 150 mile radius.

In Texas—Hereford, Lubbock, Lamesa and Monahans are at the circumference with Pecos a few miles inside. Las Cruces, Elephant Butte, Belen, Tijeras, and Las Vegas, with Logan a few miles nearer Roswell, are on the outer boundary in New Mexico.

Artists living in these towns or those nearer Roswell and also Roswellians are eligible to send entries to the jury. They should indicate their interest by writing immediately to R. V. Hunter, director of Roswell Museum, so that plans for the show can be developed.

A nominal entry fee will be charged each artist who submits work to the jury. Fees will be applied to expenses of the show.

A jury of three who will make the selections for display will include a professional artist, a member of a museum staff and a teacher of art. The method of selection will permit entry in the show of any item chosen by one member of the jury. Each item shown will be designated as having received one, two, or three votes by the jury. This method is intended to help the public understand why the items were selected.

'Naked Spur' Opens Sunday At Landsun

"The Naked Spur" opens Sunday at the Landsun theater with an all-star cast including James Stewart, Janet Leigh, Robert Ryan, Ralph Meeker and Millard Mitchell.

A hard-hitting adventure-drama of three men who are motivated by greed in joining up to track down a fugitive with a price on his head, this picture was filmed in Technicolor on locations in the Colorado Rockies, some of them in altitudes of 14,000 feet.

It was directed by Anthony Mann, who has such previous hits to his credit as "Bend of the River" and "Winchester 73," and was produced by William H. Wright.

James Stewart plays the man who pursues Robert Ryan half-way across the country in the hope of cashing in on the $15,000 reward offered for the killer, dead or alive. Meeker and Mitchell, the first a discredited soldier; the second a gold prospector, are the two men who join forces with Stewart.

With Janet Leigh as the girl who becomes a pawn in a game in which each of the men attempts to outwit the other.

The ruse by which Ryan is captured, the subsequent intrigues, double-cross, fist fights and gun play which mark the trek as his captors attempt to bring the killer out of the mountainous region, the final disposition of the girl, and the story's climax amid the swirling rapids of a flood-swollen river, make "The Naked Spur" a drama of cumulative excitement.

Palpitations of the heart, or "flutters," are not necessarily an indication of heart disease, says your Heart Association, which is now conducting the 1953 Heart Fund.

Books to be discussed Saturday are Robert the Robot, The Big Brown Bear, The Ya-Ya, Herman the Brave Pig, and Happy Jack.

The radio book quiz program is a project of the American Association of University Women.

Cause of Disease Discussed By Local Doctor

When the cause of sinus trouble is a subluxated vertebra, the Doctor of Chiropractic is able to correct that cause and so allow your body to begin the process of health restoration. In sinus trouble as in any illness, it is vitally important to remember that the primary spinal cause of that illness must be removed before complete health recovery can be expected.

A subluxation is located through the Chiropractic examination which indicates the exact place in the spinal column where the vertebra is out of its correct position, as well as the direction and degree of subluxation. With this knowledge the Chiropractor is able to give the adjustment which brings about replacement of the vertebra to its proper position. When the vertebra is correctly aligned, it ceases to interfere with the flow of vital life force and the sinuses as well as all other organs of the body can receive necessary vital life force to maintain health.

In any illness, remember—Chiropractic adds life to years and years to life.
