

Colonel Montgomery commands 64th FTW

With more than 400 bluesuiters ready to pass in review, the command of the 64th Flying Training Wing passed from Col. Richard A. Ingram to Col. Monte D. Montgomery during change of command ceremonies here Thursday morning.

Directing the change of command was Gen. B.L. Davis, Air Training command commander.

Six squadrons, 438 men and women, took part in the change of command parade. The 62nd Army Band from Ft. Bliss Texas played while a static display of three T-37s and three T-38s formed a backdrop for the ceremony.

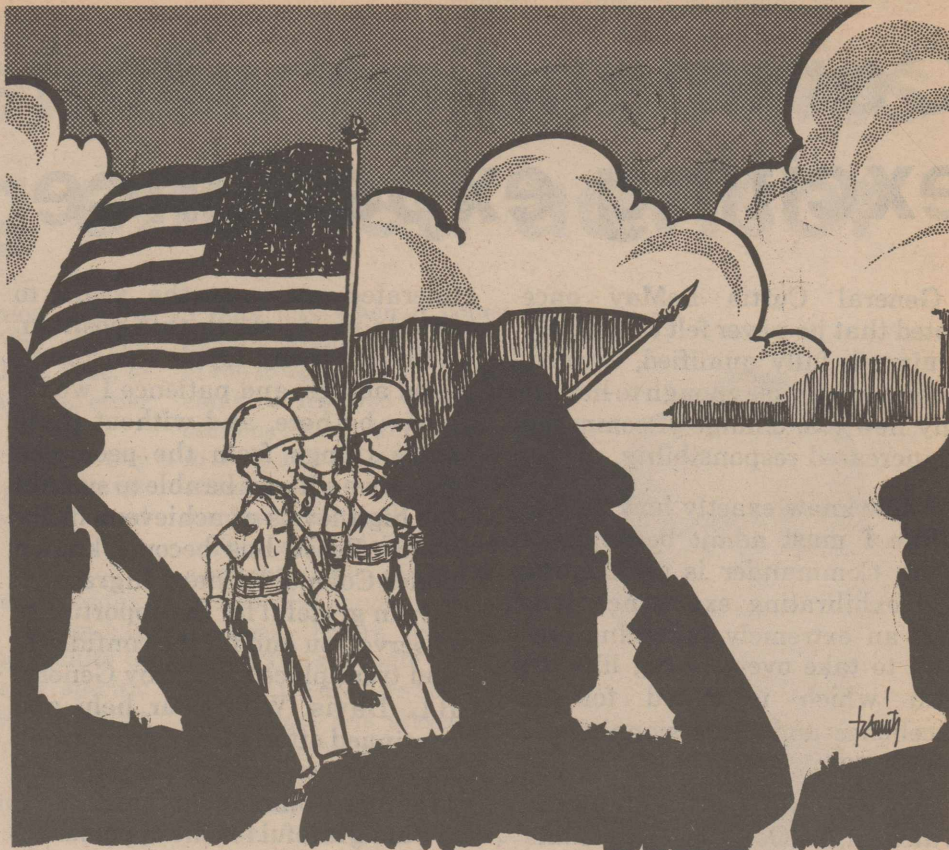

Several dignitaries were on hand for the mid-morning change of command, including Lubbock Mayor Bill McAlister.

The military parade marked the end of Colonel Ingram's 18-month reign as wing commander and signaled the beginning of a new challenge for Colonel Montgomery. A brigadier general selectee, Colonel Ingram moves on to Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he will serve as the Commandant of the Air Command and Staff College.

A common denominator for the two colonels is that both have served as base commander and deputy commander for operations at Reese.

Hill views civilian retirement plan

The Congress is expected to pass legislation before Sept. 1 that will reduce current annuities depending upon a civilian retiree's high-three salary. The purpose of the action is to obtain fiscal year 1981 savings.

In a message to civilian personnel officers, Director of Air Force Civilian Personnel J. Craig Cumbe outlined major provisions of the proposed legislation. The House proposal would:

- Eliminate look-back comparative computation. This would eliminate after Sept. 1 the current comparative computation formula allowing civilian employees to retire with annuities based on current status or at an annuity that the employee would have received retroactively if retired before the last cost-of-living adjustment.

The last COLA was 6 percent, effective March 1. Elimination of the look-back computation would be permanently effective for all employees retiring after Aug. 31.

- Prorate initial COLA. Proposed legislation would eliminate permanently the automatic full COLA percentage due initial retirees. Instead, a retiree would receive one-sixth of the next COLA for every full or partial month actually retired.

For example, an employee retiring may 15 would receive two-thirds (one-sixth each month for May, June, July and August) of the estimated 7.5 percent COLA due Sept. 1. No longer would an employee be able to retire the day before the COLA due date and receive the full COLA percentage.

- Defer March 1981 COLA. The proposed legislation would retain the Sept. 1, 1980, COLA and defer the March 1, 1981, COLA to Sept. 1.

Flying Tiger

A Confederate Air Force P-40 Warhawk, complete with Flying Tiger markings, takes off from Reese after stopping here for a South Plains Appreciation Days press conference. The aircraft is one of several Confederate Air Force planes that will be on static display and flying demonstrations here during Reese's two-day open house, Aug. 16 and 17. The antique aircraft will add extra meaning to this year's open house and World War II reunion. Included in the scheduled events are a chili cookoff, barbecue dinner, street dance, Jaycee pancake breakfast and demonstrations by the Confederate Air Force, Air Force Drill Team, Navy Parachute Team and an Air Force Attack Dog Team. The activities begin at 10 a.m. on Aug. 16 and at 8:30 a.m. on Aug. 17.

Commanding wing exciting experience

General Curtis LeMay once noted that he never felt completely equipped, fully qualified, trained, informed, or wise enough to handle any new job, change of command or increased responsibility.

I now know exactly how he felt. While I must admit becoming a Wing Commander is an exciting and exhilarating experience, it is also an extremely humbling one. And to take over a wing like the 64th which is noted for its excellence and professionalism is doubly so.

I am well aware of the multitude of airmen, NCOs, officers, civilians and members of my family who have trained, molded, and tolerated me over the years to enable me to reach this position. Without their loyal assistance, good advice, and patience I would never be here, and without these same things from the people of Reese we will not be able to sustain the high levels of achievement for which Reese has become known under Colonel Richard Ingram.

I am grateful for the opportunity to serve you and for the confidence and trust placed in me by General B.L. Davis. With your help and continued efforts I am sure we can maintain our reputation as Air Training Command's finest.

I am grateful for the opportunity to serve you, but please remember none of us can do it alone.

Broken vacuum

Recently while washing and vacuuming my car at the Auto Hobby Shop I used the pay vacuum cleaner because the free one was in use. I deposited 25 cents and the cleaner had no suction.

I asked the attendant if he could get it to work and was told the BX office had the key for the machine and they had no way to open it or return the money I lost.

If the BX owns the machine, the keys should be kept at the Hobby Shop so they will have access to it. It seems ridiculous that the only reason the machine doesn't work is the bag needs emptying.

We are sorry for the misinformation given you. The vacuum is not owned by the BX but by the Hobby Shop.

Employees at the Auto Hobby Shop were briefed on procedures of refunding money in case of a malfunction. You will get your money back.

Long hot wait

Why does it take so long for the housing contractor to repair air conditioners?

The ground rules we have to abide by in resolving air conditioner problems with the contractor are quite complex and leave much to be desired.

The air conditioners actually are covered by two warranties—one year on initial installation and five years on the compressor which could be voided by unauthorized work.

Efforts made by the Base Contracting Division and Civil Engineering have produced a procedure to give better response time on air conditioning outtages. Your individual case took five days, a marked improvement over previous situations other housing occupants have had to face.

Pool parking

I'd like to know if the abandoned cars in the swimming pool parking lot can't be moved? They are using up space that patrons of the pool could be using.

The Security Policy have surveyed the parking lot and identified two vehicles that were possible abandoned. Both vehicles have been cited and attempts are being made to contact the owners to rectify the matter.

We appreciate the concern and solicit every member of the base to help us help you.

Who's complaining? Maybe it's you!

An AFNS editorial

Darn this and dang that. How many times a day do you find yourself complaining about "the system?" How many complaints do your people hear in a week?

There used to be a saying "the troops ain't happy unless they're complaining." That brand of happiness should not be commonplace in any organization especially among supervisors. Dissatisfaction can be infectious, and if you are constantly complaining, you may be infecting the morale and effectiveness of your people.

People are spending good money in this country to attend 10-hour positive-thinking rallies. Although such total immersion may not be necessary, we could probably all benefit from a mid-morning attitude adjustment period.

A former deputy chief of staff for manpower and personnel was fond of telling a story about having a positive perspective. "In the Pentagon we had a sign in the hall," he said, "that read: 'There are no such things as problems, only opportunities.'"

"But," the general went on, "some scallawag captain had penned under the sign, 'I constantly find myself surrounded by insurmountable opportunities.'"

The point is not that we don't all have difficult, if not insurmountable, jobs to do. But there are too many scallawag captains, lieutenants, majors, techs, chiefs and generals who are openly critical of the roadblocks.

Before you complain in front of your staff about how far you have to go, be sure you have complimented them for how far they have already brought you. Make sure you are as liberal about passing out "warm fuzzies" — genuine compliments — as you are about awarding "gotchas."

A lot of good people have been leaving the Air Force recently. Frankly, people we thought were in for a career. Some of their comments as they cleared the base were, "It just ain't worth it" and "Nobody really cares anyway." Pretty down in the mouth attitude, right! But where did it come from? Certainly not from you... or did it?

Chief Martin becomes wing enlisted advisor

Reese's new senior enlisted advisor sees his job as one requiring two loyalties. One, to the enlisted force and the other to the wing.

That's how CMSgt. Coy Martin Jr., said he perceives his duties as Senior Enlisted Advisor.

When interviewed Tuesday, Chief Martin said that he had not yet had the opportunity to sit down and discuss specific policies with Reese's new wing commander, Col. Monte Montgomery, but that he felt confident that his general outlook on his duties will remain the same.

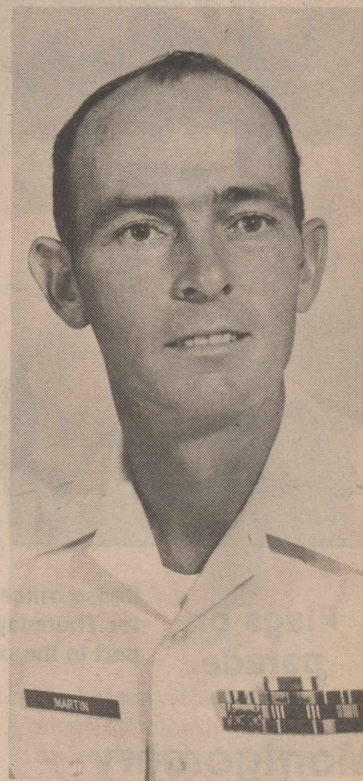

"I have a responsibility to the enlisted force here," he said. "And, I am committed to that responsibility."

Chief Martin went on to say that one way that he plans to carry out that commitment is by being available to people whenever needed. "I don't have a duty day when it comes to helping people," he said. "If one of the troops has a problem that can't be resolved in the duty section, I want that individual to come and see me in the office, at home or wherever suits that airman's interest."

This isn't Chief Martin's first assignment as a senior enlisted advisor. He served in that post overseas before coming to Reese. The graduate of both the NCO and Senior NCO Academies, has served as the chief maintenance for the 1958th Communications Squadron since his arrival here in June of 1979. He has spend just over 21 years in the service.

"I consider myself people oriented," said Sergeant Martin. "I realize that our enlisted people need to see improvements in pay, facilities and in many other areas. All I can promise is that I'll do my best to promote the advance of the enlisted force and the wing."

Chief Martin*Hospital seeks CPR volunteers

Qualified volunteers are needed to serve as cardiopulmonary resuscitation instructors here. The call for volunteers is part of a program designed to teach CPR to all military personnel at Reese and throughout the Air Force.

The training program, directed by Lt. Gen. Paul W. Meyers, the Air Force surgeon general, requires that all bluesuiters receive a basic two-day CPR course and a four-hour refresher course each year.

Capt. Dave Fintel, project officer for the program here, said Monday that 20 volunteers are needed to help get the program off and running at Reese.

"I hope to get at least one volunteer from each squadron," said Captain Fintel.

Volunteers will be scheduled for a special instructor training course on Aug. 23 and 24. It will be conducted by the American Heart Association. To qualify for the class, volunteers must have already completed the basic CPR course.

Deadline for volunteering is Aug. 20. To sign up for the CPR instructor's course, members should contact Captain Fintel or SSgt. Fred Pepper at Ext. 3186.

According to General Meyers, the profit from this modest investment will be enormous in the number of lives saved. The surgeon general said that he is confident that CPR can help keep many injured people alive until professional medical assistance is available.

Independent studies indicate that more than one-quarter of the people victimized by heart attacks each year die within a couple of hours, often before they can be rushed to a hospital. Through CPR, health officials believe that figure can be significantly reduced.

Congress considers civilian retirement

Semiannual COLA would resume in March 1982 unless future legislation permanently mandated one annual COLA.

The Senate proposal would defer the Sept. 1, 1980, COLA to March 1, 1981. Also, under the Senate bill, semiannual COLA would resume in September 1981. The Senate bill would not eliminate the lookback or prorate the initial COLA. It is reported, however, that the Senate is expected to accede to the House version.

The final version of his legislation must await reconciliation of the two versions and passage by both bodies. Substantial changes could be made before passage.

Cumbey said it is not the intent of the civilian personnel directorate to encourage employee retirements but to keep the work force informed. He said further information would be released promptly upon receipt. (AFNS) positions in his first tour of duty here from 1972-1976. He also served as commander of the 54th Flying Training Squadron at the outset of that tour. Colonel Ingram returned to Reese in February 1979 to assume duties as Wing Commander.

Colonel Montgomery is continuing his first assignment at Reese. The 1956 graduate of Rutgers University became the Base Commander here in July 1978 and moved to the deputy commander for Operations slot in November of last year.

A special farewell salute to Colonel Ingram was held Sunday night at the Officers' Open Mess. Highlighting the affair was the announcement that the park connecting the under-construction commissary and base exchange will be dedicated Ingram Mall.

Col. Gerald W. Ellington, currently the assistant deputy director of Readiness Development, Air Force deputy chief of staff, Operations Plans and Readiness, Washington, D.C., will replace Colonel Montgomery as deputy commander for Operations in September.

10 Airmen get July Article 15s

Ten Reese airmen received Article 15s here during July.

Four of the airmen involved were charged with failure to go. Other violations included the use of provoking language, being absent from the organization, breaking restriction, being drunk and disorderly, stealing telephone services and failing to comply with Air Force Regulation 35-10.

A total of 92 days of extra duty and 49 days of restriction were handed out to those receiving Article 15s. All 10 were directed to forfeit some of their monthly pay and several had suspended reductions in grade.

Lieutenant saves Lubbock resident

A bizarre series of coincidences involving a Lubbock man and a Reese officer had a very happy conclusion recently.

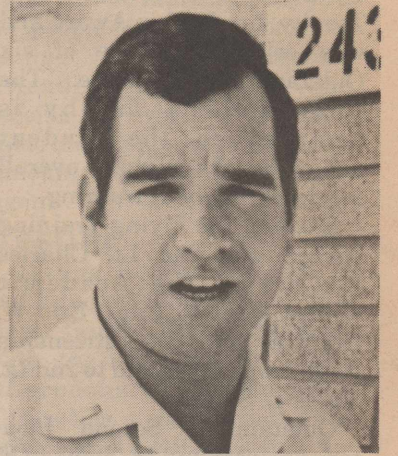

Second Lt. Chris Kelleher, recently assigned to the Registrar's Office at the Reese Hospital, pulled a resident of his apartment complex from a smoke filled room and revived him, possibly saving his life. Although there was no actual fire caused by a pot left on the stove, the man was unconscious from smoke inhalation.

The coincidences proceeded like this:

Lieutenant Kelleher, a prior-service enlisted man, has spent six-and-a-half years in Air Medi-Vac as a corpsmen. This experience provided him with the necessary knowledge to resuscitate the victim. He had just finished in-processing at Reese the day of the incident, which put him in the right locale in the nick of time. Finally, the lieutenant took temporary quarters at the apartment complex while he looked for a house; and was given an apartment directly across the walkway from the victim.

At 10 on the night of the incident Lieutenant Kelleher and his wife were preparing to go to bed, but kept getting a smell of smoke. Investigating the odor, he located the source and got the manager to open the apartment. Smoke poured out and the rescuer was forced to stay near the floor and search for those inside by feel.

Finding the unconscious man on the bed where he had fallen asleep while cooking, Lieutenant Kelleher was unable to locate a pulse, even after shaking and slapping him. Dragging him from the room to the balcony, the lieutenant gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and quickly revived the victim.

Not satisfied to simply save the man's life, Lieutenant Kelleher reentered the apartment to locate the source of the smoke, still unknown to him at that time. Finding the burning pot, which had started to melt from the extreme heat and had tilted over against the wall, he removed it with a dishtowel, scalding his hands in the process. This action very likely averted a serious blaze.

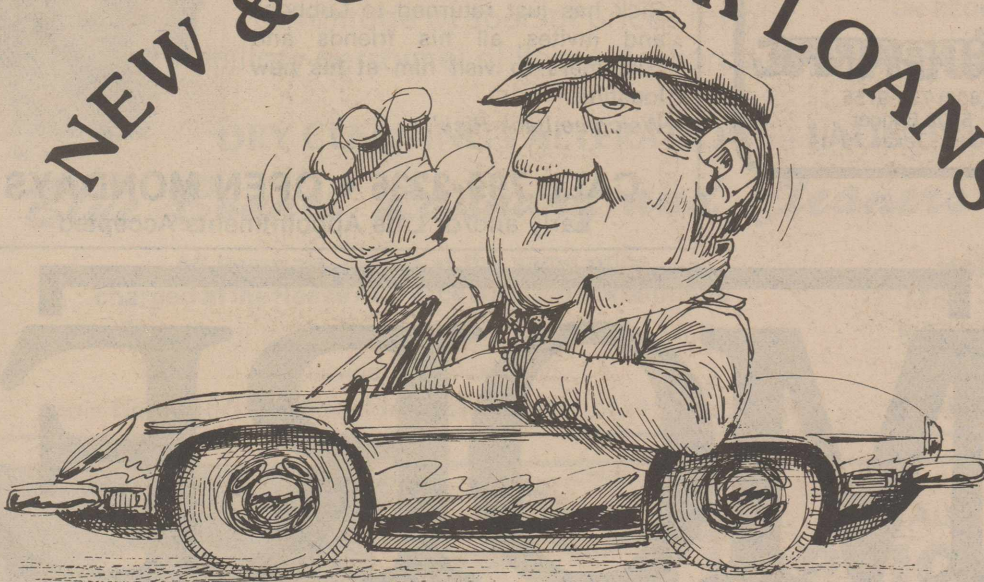

For his efforts, his Squadron has nominated Lieutenant Kelleher for the Airman's Medal.

Open House

Residents of Reese Village are being requested not to drive to the South Plains Appreciation Days Open House and World War II Reunion. A shuttle bus will run through the Village to a drop off point very close to the Open House activities. One base official said that those riding the shuttle will have a much shorter walk to the various events than those who drive.

The shuttle will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 16 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Aug. 17.

Come and mingle

Flying and how it was done back in the "Big One" is guaranteed to be the most talked about subject at the Confederate Air Force welcoming dinner Aug. 15 at the Officers' Open Mess.

Reese people can mingle with some "veteran" pilots and soak up some World War II nostalgia, and enjoy Mongolian Barbecue for $6.50 per person. The dinner is open to everyone on base and starts at 6:30 p.m.

Good work

Eleven Reese airmen earned "honor grad" laurels recently for high scores on their end-of-course exams. Honorees include: Amn. Linda Morris, Amn. Robert Carden, Amn. Carlos Stark, A1C Michael Taylor, A1C Scott Kerr and A1C Elijah R. Davis, Field Maintenance Squadron. Others are: A1C Douglas Brinkmeyer, Amn. Gyan Smith and Amn. Robert Dusch, Organizational Maintenance; A1C Jose L. Sotelo, Air Base Group; and Amn. Edwin Frazier, Resource Management Squadron.

Check rides

Commissary sale

The Air Force Commissary Service will hold its fourth anniversary sale Sept. 15 through Oct. 15. The sale will offer special low prices from participating vendors. Commissary patrons saved more than $2 million during last year's sale, commissary service commander Maj. Gen. Charles E. Wood said.

Family grows

A new name was added to the Air Force family recently, SSgt. and Mrs. Michael Bernard are the parents of a six-pound baby boy. Congratulations!

Finance notes

Accounting and Finance officials remind personnel preparing cash collection vouchers (DD Form 1131) that the "receiving office" block should be left blank, except when being submitted by Food Services, the Commissary or Hospital personnel.

People going on a permanent change of station assignment must report to the Travel and Military Pay Customer Service Area at least 30 days prior to their final outprocessing date with Personnel.

In addition, the officials pointed out that when married members get divorced that they are required to report the divorce to Accounting and Finance and to furnish a copy of the divorce decree.

Defensive Driving

A Defensive Driving Course sponsored by the Lubbock Citizens Traffic Commission will be conducted in Bldg. Heise sinks birdie putt; grabs second ATC title

Kevin Heise of Reese birdied the first hole in a sudden death playoff to win his second consecutive ATC Open Golf Tournament.

Deadlocked at 294 after four regulation rounds with Dennis Detiege of Keesler AFB, Miss., Heise sank a fifteen foot putt to win the playoff. Heise, usually best-known for his driving, putted spectacularly after getting accustomed to the fast greens at Randolph on the first day.

Jack Kearney of Reese took fourth in the open competition. Reese finished third overall in the tourney.

Rounding out the Reese team was the senior division team of Fred Bloom and Conrad Pekola, the handicap division team of Coy Martin and Phil Davidson. Lorena Repall was the lone woman member of the team.

Ronald Steele of Lackland set the pace in the senior division posting a 293 for his four rounds. He was followed by Floyd French of Lowry AFB, Colo., with a 309 and Herman Griffin of Lackland with a 310.

Dee Dean of Lackland took first place in the ladies division carding a 265 for 54 holes. Mary Hughes of Williams AFB, Ariz. was second with a 273 followed by Diane Phillips of Sheppard AFB, Texas, with a 276.

The only better time than today to buy a home was yesterday. Yes, interest rates are higher than in our recent history. But as inflation continues, the mortgage payment you commit to today will be paid for with cheaper and cheaper dollars. Remember that inflation pushes up the value of the home you own; it also pushes up the cost of the home you postpone owning. Thus waiting for lower interest rates usually results in higher down payments and higher monthly payments. Postponing buying also delays the tax shelter of interest you can claim for ownership. Should you buy now and interest rates subside substantially you can refinance, or depending on your lender's policies, negotiate for interest adjustment. Explanations about procedures or consultations about marketing the home you now own may be obtained from any of our professional staff of realtors. We welcome your inquiries and say "thanks" for past opportunities to meet your buying and selling needs.
