Panama nullifies election after day of violence

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The Electoral Tribunal nullified the election late Wednesday after paramilitary forces beat the opposition presidential and vice presidential candidates with pipes and baseball bats as soldiers stood by.

Both sides had claimed victory in Sunday's balloting, which international observers and the opposition claimed were rigged by forces loyal to strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who heads the 15,000-strong Defense Forces.

Related story, page 3-A.

"The elections of May 7, 1989, are declared annulled in their entirety," Yolanda Pulice de Rodriguez, head of the Electoral Tribunal, said in a nationwide broadcast. "Constant vote stealing at the polls, vote buying, and missing tally sheets made proclamation (of a new president) impossible."

She said the outcome of the elections was "altered by the obstructionist action by the many foreigners called in by foreign or domestic political forces without invitation."

AT-A-GLANCE

Protesters in Panama City are questioning the official vote count in Sunday's presidential election and soliciting international support to stop the government from installing the candidate of General Noriega, Panama's de facto ruler.

Population: 2,370,000 (1989 est.)
Area: 29,208 sq. mi.
Government Type: Constitutional Democracy, centralized republic
Acting President: Manuel Solis Palma
Chief of Defense: Manuel Antonio Noriega
Defense: 2% of GNP (1985)
GNP: $4.4 billion (1985)
Languages: Spanish (official), English
Religions: Mostly Roman Catholics
Organizations: United Nations (International Monetary Fund, World Bank), Organization of American States

Thursday.

"By this action Noriega has demonstrated his contempt for the Panamanian people," he said.

After the election was declared null, the city went quiet as truckloads of soldiers moved into the streets. The soldiers searched any vehicle that moved as the trucks dropped squads off throughout the city.

Calls to opposition leaders found none at home.

The government meanwhile said nothing about rescheduling the election.

While the White House and State Department had no immediate comment, Terry Kneebone, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Panama City said, "It makes it worse."

"Noriega has closed out his options," he added.

Earlier Wednesday, supporters of Noriega, Panama's de facto leader since 1983, beat opposition presidential candidate Guillermo Endara and his two running mates with iron bars and bats as he led protesters alleging electoral fraud.

Soldiers made no attempt to intervene during the attack, in which Endara suffered a gash in the head that required eight stitches.

Officials said one of Endara's bodyguards was killed and four soldiers were wounded in a gunfight. Witnesses said some of the candidates' bodyguards leaped out of cars and fired at the attackers.

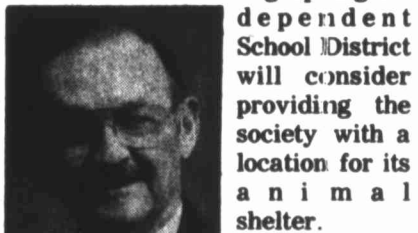

Later Wednesday, Endara was taken from his campaign headquarters on a stretcher after a second attack. The New York Times reported Endara "had difficulty walking and his speech was slurred."

Officials consider site for shelter

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Big Spring Humane Society officials were optimistic Tuesday when told that the Big Spring Independent School District will consider providing the society with a location for its animal shelter.

BILL CROOKER

The society has been looking for a new location since November when homeowners near the shelter at 4200 Wasson Road began complaining of excessive noise and smell from the shelter.

County commissioner Bill Crooker, who has been leading the effort to relocate the shelter, told a group of society officials and area homeowners that the society may be able to relocate on 2½ acres at the former Center Point school property, owned by the Big Spring school district.

The property is now used by the district's agriculture department, which raises pigs and sheep on the land.

Marvin Wise told the 10 people at the meeting that the district would consider making "one of those deals you couldn't afford to turn down," provided the district agriculture department could find somewhere else to keep its animals.

"If they find a place before August, they'll consider moving and turn it over to us," Wise said.

The location appears to meet the society's needs because it is not in a residential area, and utilities such as electricity and water are available at the site, Crooker said.

Humane Society officials Bettie Cox and Margaret Lloyd said if the district would provide the society with the land, the agriculture department could continue raising the sheep and pigs at the site, but in separate pens.

Wise said he would discuss the proposal with Bill McQueary, BSISD superintendent. Wise also asked Crooker to look into the possibility of housing the sheep and pigs at the Howard County Fair barns during the three to four months the agriculture department would need a place to keep the animals.

Gun sellers: Ban to have little local effect

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

There are currently 10 proposed U.S. congressional bills that, if passed into law, will restrict the sale of semiautomatic assault weapons. But, even if such legislation is approved it will likely not have a major effect on the sales of guns in Big Spring.

According to local managers of businesses selling guns in Big Spring, such firearms are not readily available locally, primarily because of the expense of acquiring such weapons.

On March 14, the U.S. government suspended import of a select group of imported military-style semiautomatic assault weapons. "When they announced the ban on importation that just automatically drove the price sky high," said Terry Robertson, owner of Dibrell's Sporting Goods.

Robertson said "maybe two or three people" this year have asked him if he could acquire military-style semiautomatic guns, but Dibrell's not does normally sell such firearms, he said.

No standard definition of an assault rifle has been passed into law, a fact that is complicating the debate over restricting such weapons.

However, the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms uses the following general guidelines: The guns have a distinctive military appearance, are black or camouflage colored, fire high-powered bullets, are capable of carrying a bayonet, use an external clip that carries 20 to 32 rounds, and fire a shot for each pull of the trigger.

The only gun Dibrell's has carried recently that could be classified as an assault weapon is a SKS Norinco clip-fed model made in China that the shop agreed to sell for a local individual.

As for selling military-style assault weapons on a regular basis, Robertson said, "The price would be prohibitive because it's simply supply and demand. The price has just inhibited anybody from buying and keeping them."

Asked if Wal-Mart, which also sells guns, carries assault weapons, sporting goods manager Laura Averette said the store does not sell such guns.

"We're just not able to order anything like that," she said.

"You can't get them now," said Aubrey Weaver, owner of City Pawn Shop. "I've had people ask about getting them, but they've just about doubled in price."

Although the importation of the AK-47 has been banned, Weaver said American-made assault weapons such as the Colt AR-15 can still be sold, but such guns are in short supply and the price is prohibitive for small shops.

"I've called for some people, but the price has gone up so high. Everyone wants one now that they are (proposing to ban the sales of such guns)."

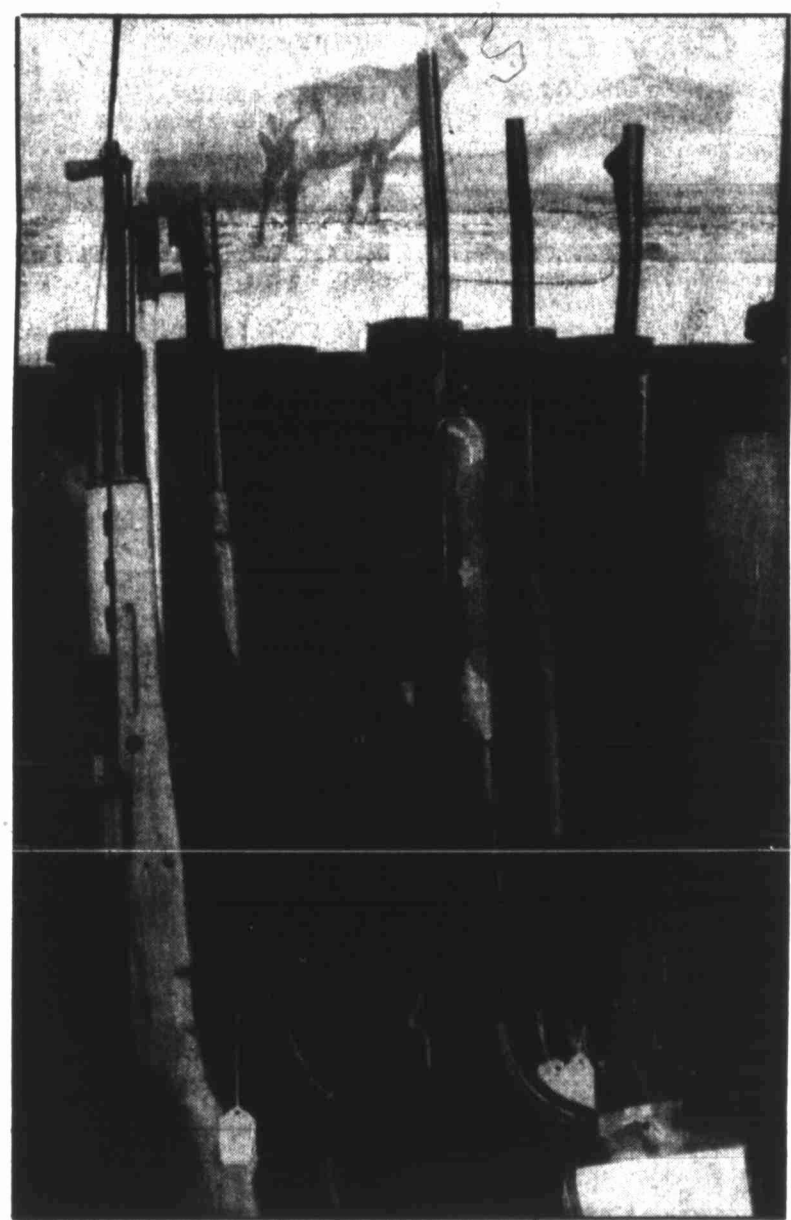

The manager of Golden Pawn Shop refused comment when asked if his shop sells assault weapons.

A ban on assault weapons as defined by the Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms would not affect business at Dibrell's, but Robertson is concerned about how Congress will attempt to define the guns.

It is highly unlikely a ban would include all semiautomatic weapons, but if such legislation were passed, it would affect gun sales at Dibrell's and other local gun dealers.

Even .22 caliber guns can be equipped with clips that would allow a person to fire more than 20

• GUN BAN page 3-A

A Norinco semiautomatic gun made in China, on far left, is the only firearm Dibrell's Sporting Goods has carried recently that is considered a military-style assault weapon. Imports on five types of assault rifles have been restricted and U.S. congressional legislation is pending that would restrict the sale of American-made assault weapons.

Tax appraisal board endorses 1990 budget

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

Howard County's tax appraisal board endorsed its 1990 budget Wednesday evening — a budget that does not include expenses for a state-mandated reappraisal — setting the stage for taxing entities to accept the budget or sue the district.

Howard County's Chief Appraiser Keith Toomire said after the meeting he considers a suit by any of the taxing entities "highly unlikely."

Those entities that could choose to sue the district include: Howard College; the school boards of Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan; the city governments of Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan; and the commissioner's court of Howard County.

Toomire said he has already received assurances that no suit will be filed by Big Spring's city council or Howard County's commissioners court; he said he intends to speak with other area taxing entities as time and scheduling permits.

A proposed budget of $369,665 will be submitted to the taxing entities for their approval but cannot be finalized until September, Toomire said.

In other business, the board: • Amended the appraisal office's personnel manual regarding sick leave. The new regulations now expand the amount of sick leave a person with over five years of service to the appraisal district from a previous maximum of 30 days accrued to an allowable 60 days accrued.

Employees evacuated

FORT WORTH (AP) — Fumes from a leaking gasoline-powered generator sent 35 employees to hospitals, but all were released without injury, officials said.

Capt. Roy Knight of the Fort Worth Fire Department said many of the 125 employees at American Service Telemarketing, a telephone soliciting firm for American Service Insurance, reported headaches and nausea Wednesday morning from breathing gasoline fumes.

Joe Dorrough, a fire department dispatcher, said all of the affected employees had been treated and released from Fort Worth hospitals by 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Knight said about 30 rescue workers used several ambulances, private cars and a Fort Worth city bus to transport 35 employees to local hospitals after the 2 p.m. incident.

Judge: Surrender notes

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — State District Judge James Barlow has ordered a television reporter to surrender his notes that name a confidential source that led him to an interview with a man accused of killing a policeman.

Barlow gave KMOL-TV reporter Brian Karem until noon today to hand over his notes or risk a contempt of court citation.

Karem said following a brief hearing Wednesday that he will risk going to jail rather than surrender his notes and violate the confidence of a news source.

"I hope it doesn't come down to that, but they can't have my notes," Karem told the San Antonio Express-News.

Karem reported on a March 28 newscast that he had spoken by telephone with Henry David Hernandez, and that Hernandez had confessed to him that he had shot San Antonio police officer Gary Lee Williams to death a day earlier.

Radar balloon damaged

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. (AP) — Radar coverage to detect drug smuggling across the U.S.-Mexico border continues despite damage sustained by an $18 million Aerostat inflated by swirling winds, the Customs Service says.

The Aerostat at Fort Huachuca was damaged Wednesday as it was moored close to the ground at the Army base in southeastern Arizona, said Charles Conroy, a Customs Service spokesman in Houston.

Conroy said a dust devil, which he described as a miniature tornado, struck the helium-filled balloon, which is equipped with sophisticated look-down radar.

Making some points

AUSTIN — State Rep. Lena Guerrero, D-Austin, makes two points as she argues in favor of not changing the Texas Department of Agriculture's structure. The House gave tentative approval to a measure Wednesday to extend the life of the department, but amended the measure to create a six-member board to regulate pesticide use.

Both the House and Senate have passed proposed budgets, and a conference committee has been negotiating on the final spending plan to total more than $46.5 billion for the next two years.

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock has a simple message for lawmakers hunting for up to $600 million more to balance the budget. The well's gone dry.

Although an upturn in the economy allowed Bullock last month to increase his official projection of state income, he said that's all there is for the 1990-91 state budget unless lawmakers want to add new taxes.

"Santa Claus has dropped down the Capitol's chimney several times this session, but he's gone back to the North Pole. Lawmakers shouldn't expect any more gifts in their stockings," Bullock said.

Both the House and Senate have passed proposed budgets, and a conference committee has been negotiating on the final spending plan to total more than $46.5 billion for the next two years.

But legislative leaders this week unexpectedly announced they still find themselves $300 million to $600 million short of paying for all needed services.

"He's saying there's not going to be any last-minute miracle," Deputy Comptroller Tony Proffitt said of Bullock's warning Wednesday.

"He told them, 'What you see is what you've got.' They can either cut (spending) or they can approve some new taxes," Proffitt said.

Bullock's revenue estimate is a critical element in the budget-writing process. The comptroller must certify that the Legislature's spending blueprint will balance with expected income before it can take effect.

Bullock in April raised his estimate of available funds. But that projection included money that would be raised by passage of eight bills still are pending in the Legislature. Proffitt said passage of all eight still would leave lawmakers facing the $300 million to $600 million shortfall.

"They're still in excess (of available revenue). That's something their budget process is going to have to deal with," Proffitt said.

In a letter to Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and lawmakers, Bullock noted that he proposed in January a 7-cent a pack cigarette increase. Combined with federal matching funds, that would provide about $400 million more for human service programs.

But Clements this week flatly rejected that idea.

"There's not going to be any cigarette tax. You can forget that," Clements said.

Three cult members charged in leaders' slayings

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three members of a cult blamed for the ritual deaths of 15 people on the U.S. border have been charged in the weekend killing of their leader and his right-hand man, Mexican authorities said.

But Sara Aldrete Villarreal, Omar Francisco Orea and Alvaro de Leon Valdez have not been charged in the ritual slayings of at least 15 that occurred on a remote ranch near the border city of Matamoros, said a spokesman for the Mexico City attorney's general office.

Marco Antonio Diaz de Leon, director of judicial proceedings for the attorney general's office on Wednesday said his office can only file charges for crimes that occurred within its jurisdiction.

It was unclear whether homicide and other charges arising out of the Matamoros case were currently being prepared separately by federal officials in Matamoros or if such charges would have to wait for adjudication of the Mexico City case.

Aldrete, 24, known as the "god-mother" or "witch" of the cult; Orea, 23, a journalism student at the National University in Mexico City; and Alvaro de Leon Valdez, 22, were charged Wednesday in the Saturday killings of cult "god-father" Adolfo de Jesus Constanzo, 26, and right-hand man Martin Quintana Rodriguez, 23, in a Mexico City apartment.

De Leon Valdez earlier this week publicly confessed to reporters that he shot the two men to death upon Constanzo's orders as police moved in.

The three also were charged with criminal association, resisting arrest, shooting a firearm against authorities and injuries in the Saturday shooting that was followed by a gunbattle with police.

Those three, along with two other Mexico City women arrested Saturday, still have not been arraigned, Diaz de Leon said. An arraignment date was not announced, but officials said it could be held today.

Texas, soup company reach agreement

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is one of nine states to reach a $15,000 settlement with Campbell Soup Co., which agreed to change certain health-related advertising practices and not make false claims about the nutritional content of its soups.

Attorney General Jim Mattox announced the agreement Wednesday, saying the settlement followed an investigation by the attorneys general of the nine states into advertising claims by the soup company.

In the settlement agreement, the states alleged that Campbell advertised that certain soups were high in fiber, "when in fact the soups were not high in fiber," Mattox said in a statement.

Campbell also advertised that its soups were a source of calcium when they weren't, he said.

The agreement also says Campbell "generally mischaracterized the health effects of its soup products," Mattox's statement said.

Pressure intensifies on U.S. as Panamanian violence grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, reportedly considering sending U.S. troops to Panama, weighed options today he might take in concert with Latin allies against Panama, where rioters attacked opposition leaders and Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega nullified elections.

Congressional leaders who emerged from a strategy session with the president predicted there would be near unanimous support on Capitol Hill for Bush's decisions, which were taken as U.S. dependents in Panama were being moved to U.S. military bases for safety.

"The president is proposing constructive steps in concert with other countries," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. "The president and his people are still consulting with leaders of other countries that are concerned."

House Speaker Jim Wright told reporters after the White House session, that Bush, "expressed the absolute determination to protect American lives. In that we certainly do support him."

He said Bush would make a "definitive statement" today on what he proposes to do, but Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said that decisions were still being made as of this morning.

Cranston said it would be "leaping to a conclusion" to assume the U.S. actions would involve military response, although Pentagon officials said earlier that Bush was "leaning toward" beefing up the U.S. forces in Panama.

Ambassador Arthur Davis, concerned for the safety of the Americans, asked the 152 dependents of diplomats to move to military bases, and embassy spokeswoman Cynthia Farrell said from Panama that the move was underway.

The president met this morning with his national security advisers before the meeting with congressional leaders. NBC News reported he would tell the lawmakers he had decided to deploy the troops.

"We've been waiting to see how the election results came out. It's clear the people want Noriega out. We now have to make our choices on the basis of this robbery that Noriega has perpetrated on his own people." — Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger

Pentagon officials who asked not to be identified told The Associated Press the Defense Department has been told Bush "is leaning toward" deployment of 2,000 to 2,500 combat troops to Panama to reinforce the American military presence there. But the sources stressed today that no final decision had been made and that no "execute order" had been received.

"It looks like its going to go that way; sending down some more troops," the source said. "But there is nothing definite and we're not saddling up the nrtire 82nd Airborne."

The sources said that if Bush ordered a new deployment, combat soldiers would likely be dispatched from the 7th Light Infantry Division at Fort Ord, Calif., and not from other bases around the country.

The sources also stressed the American troops, if dispatched, "would be strictly augmentation forces to help protect dependents."

"We're not going to storm anything," said one source. One official called the plan "a show of force that is being orchestrated at the White House. We're not sure about the goals from a military standpoint besides our continuing concern about American dependents."

Rioting broke out in Panama following Sunday's presidential elections, branded as fraudulent by observers and the Bush administration. The opposition claimed victory and Noriega tossed out the election results late Wednesday, hours after armed civilians mobbed and beat several demonstrators in the streets, including presidential candidate Guillermo Endara.

Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger confirmed Bush was considering sending American troops into Panama, where about 12,000 military and diplomatic personnel live in and around Panama City.

"We've been waiting to see how the election results came out. It's clear the people want Noriega out," Eagleburger said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America." "We now have to make our choices on the basis of this robbery that Noriega has perpetrated on his own people."

U.S. military forces in Panama are on heightened alert. There are 10,000 troops based at installations along the 50-mile long Panama Canal.

Neither the White House nor the State Department had any immediate comment on the decision by Panama's Election Tribunal to nullify the election.

"General Noriega has thwarted the desire of the Panamanian people for democracy by conducting a fraudulent election," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday. "He has now escalated this to include violence against opposition leaders."

Fitzwater and other officials declined to say what options the president is considering, including whether he will beef up the military forces.

Big Spring bus driver Linda Willadsen took seventh place in the "Rodeo" event; Robert Garcia took 14th place in the training course test.

More than 100 people were registered for the course, 19 of them from Big Spring. The top 15 drivers were awarded prizes.

Quinones tenders resignation

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Big Spring Downtown Steering Coordinator Teri Quinones will resign at the end of the month, members of the board disclosed today.

"She's done an excellent job, just a wonderful job in helping us accomplish our projects," steering committee member Shirley Shroyer said.

Quinones said she will resign her position of three years so she can begin advanced studies with the American Graduate School of International Management in Arizona.

Quinones said although she has thought of returning to school ever since finishing college, her decision to pursue graduate studies is a fairly recent one.

"It's been a recent thing, it's been in the works since March," she said.

Quinones said she will continue to work until she leaves for Arizona. "I'm working until the last day, we still have a lot of work to do," she said.

Shroyer and Porter said a new director will be hired to replace Quinones, but had few details to add.

"All we know now is that the committee will hire a replacement," Shroyer said.

Porter said, "Before we hire, we hope to clarify points about who we are and where we are." She said this was necessary because of the number of changes the non-profit organization has gone through since it was first formed.

Quinones credited the City Council, County Commissioners, Chamber of Commerce and members of the Industrial Foundation as well as private companies and citizens for their support in attempting to renovate Big Spring.

Board members said Quinones' resignation as director of the committee will not bring any major changes in steering committee policies.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

- A man who resides in the 2400 block of Alabama Street reported the theft of a $150 radar detector, $300 compact disc player and two tires, valued at $140, from his vehicle.
- A man who resides on Howard County 76 reported $3,000 damage to his fiberglass swimming pool.

Howard College, SWCID to graduate 179 students

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Howard College will graduate 179 students Friday, 145 of which will participate in the college's commencement ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

College officials expect 117 Howard College students to participate in the ceremony, 15 SouthWest Collegiate Institute of the Deaf students, and 13 General Equivalency Degree students.

Twenty-five Associate Degree Nursing graduates and seven dental hygienist graduates are included in the 145 Howard College students scheduled to participate in the commencement.

A pre-graduation ADN and dental hygienist pinning ceremony will be held Friday at 5 p.m. in the coliseum's East Room.

The SWCID Award Convocation will be Friday at 2 p.m. in the SWCID student union building.

Student commencement speakers will be Howard College graduate Stacey Ream and SWCID graduate Maryann Hathaway.

Paul Ausmus and Dicky Stanley will speak at the ADN and dental hygienist pinning ceremony.

red. His doctor said the left side of his body was partly paralyzed."

Patilla Hospital early Thursday denied Endara was being treated there.

Endara's two vice-presidential candidates, Guillermo Ford and Ricardo Arias Calderon, were bloodied but not injured as seriously. News reports said scores of others were injured.

The three candidates were leading a motorcade through the capital when they were attacked by civilians wearing red "Dignity Battalion" T-shirts and wielding an assortment of sticks, bats, pipes and rubber whips.

Armed civilian Noriega supporters, often members of paramilitary "Dignity Battalions," have frequently taken part in breaking up opposition demonstrations.

"They beat me in the head with an iron bar," said Endara in a brief hospital interview. "I saw Arias on the ground with me," he said, referring to his first vice presidential candidate.

Arias Calderon told The Associated Press that Ford had been arrested and taken to an undetermined location.

The incident took place at a Defense Forces blockade, and opposition bodyguards shot four soldiers, said Defense Forces spokesman Capt. Eduardo Lim Yueng. He said a second lieutenant was critically injured.

Davis said one of Endara's bodyguards was killed.

It was the first time soldiers suffered gunshot wounds since Noriega came to power in this nation of 2.2 million.

Endara, sitting in a wheelchair, displayed the stitches doctors put in the top of his head.

"I blame Noriega for everything bad that has happened in the Republic of Panama. I hope he leaves soon," he said.

Angry crowds broke windows and burned at least six cars in the downtown area.

Sheriff's log

The Howard County Sheriff's Department reported the following incidents:

- Melvin Lee Ford, 28, Dallas, was arrested on a charge of possession of marijuana under four ounces. Bond is set at $5,000.
- Dawayne Arnette Jones, 28, Dallas, was arrested on a charge of possession of marijuana under four ounces. Bond is set at $5,000.
- Derrick C. Bryant, 25, Dallas, was arrested on a charge of possession of marijuana under four ounces.

Robertson said local gun buyers have not expressed much concern about proposed legislation to ban specific types of semiautomatic weapons. But, he added, "I think when they get legislation that comes a little closer to becoming a law, people will be more vocal one overregulated.

"It greatly dilutes one person's power, which we've had a problem (with). With a six-person board, it will give agriculture a much stronger position."

Hightower said the amendment was the only "hickey" for his department. The bill, which already has won Senate approval, requires another vote before returning to the Senate for its action on House amendments.

The amendment by Rep. Rick Perry, D-Haskell, says other board members would be the state chemist appointed by the director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; agriculture school dean of Texas Tech University; dean of the University of Texas School of Public Health in Houston; environmental epidemiology program director of the Texas Department of Health; and chief of the groundwater conservation section of the Texas Water Commission.

The board would give the commissioner "the intellectual expertise, the scientific expertise" to make pesticide decisions, Perry said. He said board members would not "let politics or philosophy get involved" in pesticide regulation.

"Stop the emotionalism and the politicism," he said in urging House members to approve the amendment. They did so with an 88-54 vote.

Hightower said the amendment is proof of his assertion that chemical company interests led an attack on his office. He said a board would not provide the access and quick response to farmers that a single elected official does.

Fraser said, however, the amendment has nothing to do with the chemical lobby.

"This should be interpreted as a big victory for agriculture," he said.

Responding to the assertion that way or the other."

Russell Middleton, a spokesman for U.S. Representative Charles Stenholm, said bills written by Rep. Howard Berman, D-Calif., and Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., have generated the most debate thus far. Both would seek to define what an assault weapon is and restrict the sale of such weapons in the United States.

Middleton said Stenholm is "concerned" about the legislation, but has not yet come out in support or opposition to pending legislation.

"At this time, the question is what they will define as an assault weapon," he said.

It was a chemical lobby victory, Gov. Bill Clements said. "That's absolute nonsense, just like a hundred percent of the other things that this man says... To the contrary, it gives us better control and will assure us of a better environmental situation."

Clements, a Republican, has declined to say whether he would veto the sunset bill.

"This issue all the way through here has not been the commissioner. The issue has been, really, the pesticides and what's right for the state," he said.

Fraser said he will vote to sustain if the governor does, veto if sunset bill.

"The question is still whether the governor will veto the sunset bill," he said. "But for some reason that fails, we're in a much more positive position than we were yesterday. Agriculture is much better represented."

"It's a compromise position. If for some reason we're not successful in changing from an elected to an appointed position, it gives us a stronger position on pesticides."

Rep. Lena Guerrero, D-Austin, said lawmakers could give their constituents good news and bad news about the amendment. She fought adding it to the sunset bill, which she sponsored.

"You get to say... The good news is, you get to elect the ag commissioner. The bad news is, he doesn't have any power," she said.

Fraser, who still supports an appointed commissioner, said the amendment will only dilute the ag commissioner's power in a way that will help the people the commissioner is supposed to represent.

"I voted for the amendment," he said. "I voted against the sunset bill because I still believe that if agriculture is going to have representation that we'll never get it from an elected position because Dallas and Houston elect our commissioner."

Weather

By early today, rainfall over the past 24 hours had totalled nearly 1 1/4 inches at New York's John F. Kennedy Airport and over 1 1/4 inches at Pittsburgh.

Flood watches were in effect throughout the day for southeast New York state and much of southern New England.

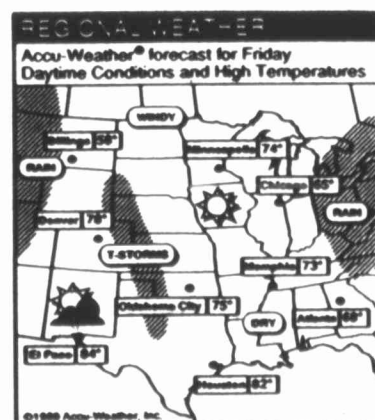

Behind the rain, overnight temperatures dropped into the 20s and 30s over the northern Great Lakes.

Further west, showers and thunderstorms were widely scattered across the Rockies.

A low pressure area off the California coast scattered rain across portions of the state, with the heaviest rainfall in the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys.

Winds were strong and gusty across the desert regions of Southern California.

Today's forecast called for rain and thunderstorms from the northern and middle Atlantic Coast states across the lower Great Lakes and upper Ohio Valley; afternoon and evening thunderstorms across the northern and central Rockies, parts of Utah and Nevada and western Texas; scattered showers over the northern Pacific Coast.

Train a luxury we can't afford

High-speed trains have been a staple in Europe and Japan for many years. They often roar across the crowded countryside at 120 to 180 mph.

But do we need such trains in Texas? The German High Speed Consortium of West German companies thinks so. Of course, they would, since they make many of these trains.

Such an idea wouldn't be bad if the consortium planned to use private money to build its $4.7 billion train route. But it wants public money to help build the system, money Texas can't afford.

A bill now in the House would create a state agency, the Texas High Speed Rail Authority. This would create another expensive bureaucracy the state doesn't need. The bill also asks the state to subsidize the line — at an estimated $2.7 billion during the life of the project.

Does Texas really need another train line? Certainly the airlines can get there even faster in most cases. With air fares as low as $19 between Dallas and Houston, for example, the train cannot offer lower ticket prices — without huge taxpayer subsidy.

Considering its debts and plentiful transportation, Texas doesn't need a high-speed train.

What goes around, comes around

Sanctimony, U.S. Rep. Newt Gingrich is learning, can be a two-edged sword.

Gingrich is the Georgia Republican who has been foremost among the tormentors of House Speaker Jim Wright, who is now struggling to work his way out from under a number of ethics charges leveled by Gingrich and others, quite a few of them having to do with a dubious book-publishing venture through which the speaker profited quite handsomely — and, perhaps, improperly.

Interestingly, even as Wright's travail continues, Gingrich himself is under the gun — for (wouldn't you know it?) a publishing venture which some of his detractors claim has a certain gamy aroma about it. And — just as was the case with Wright — there have also been allegations that Gingrich's wife, Marianne, received gifts in violation of House rules. How's that for symmetry?

Prison reform bill good start

A massive prison reform bill before the state Legislature may be the beginning of the end of Texas' prison nightmare.

Although county leaders have legitimate concerns about some provisions of the legislation, its overall impact would be significant.

Texasans are unified in their disgust and desperation regarding the state prison system. There are too many prisoners and not enough prison beds and crime continues to increase.

The number of prisoners in county jails is a growing problem.

We agree with this assessment and think the burden of housing convicted felons should remain a state responsibility.

Overall, however, the prison reforms are substantial and worth the persistent efforts by both county and state officials. The Texas prison system must be expanded and overhauled as soon as possible.

Aid from state bar commendable

The State Bar of Texas has agreed to co-sponsor a free legal clinic in South Texas that would provide assistance to Central American detainees. Bar members are to be commended for this action that will give refugees needed legal help in their attempts to fight deportation.

Word of the bar program comes as Central American refugees are being detained and deported in increasingly large numbers.

There are few attorneys in the Rio Grande Valley who provide free legal services for immigration matters. The bar's pro bono program will ensure that the rights and interests of Central Americans are protected during Immigration and Naturalization Service hearings. The clinic will open by the end of May, bar officials predict, and an estimated 3,000 people may benefit from this worthwhile program.

Congress should support aid plan

Changes are taking place in Poland, and President George Bush has a sensible plan for helping to bring about reforms in that communist country, which once had close ties to the United States.

Bush has proposed a $1 billion aid package for Poland, but the assistance would be conditioned on the progress of economic and political reforms undertaken by the government. The hope of American aid already has led to reinstatement of the Solidarity union, which has been the main opponent of the regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Poland is planning to hold the first free elections in 40 years.

Solidarity has been outlawed for eight years. When Jaruzelski and Solidarity leader Lech Walesa shook hands recently, the government of Poland was making a public admission that its oppressive methods have been a failure.

Poland's dire economic straits are further evidence that communism is not working in that country.

If Poland goes ahead with political and economic reforms, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev would be bolstered in his own reform movement inside the Soviet Union. Once the Polish and Soviet people get tastes of freedom, they will want more and are unlikely to tolerate the old ways any longer.

This is good for the cause of freedom, world peace and is certainly good for the United States.

Congress should support the president's plan for helping Poland to heal itself.

Convicting a phony docudrama

By ART BUCHWALD

Not one but two juries brought in a verdict on Ollie North last week. One was composed of 12 men and women in Judge Gesell's courtroom. The other consisted of millions of people sequestered in their living rooms, who judged Col. North based on what they saw and heard in a tough TV docudrama called "Guts and Glory."

I don't know how Gesell's jury reached its decision — but this is how I reached mine. Like most Americans, I assumed that everything depicted in the docudrama was factual. I was all set to buy the whole package, until the second episode when I saw a scene that I couldn't believe. Ollie parked his car on Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House — locked it, walked into the Executive Office Building and left the car there all day.

"No way," I yelled at my wife. "I don't care how much national security was involved, Ollie could never have had permission to park in front of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave."

"Docudrama people don't make things up," my wife Bill Casey told him to leave his car there," my wife suggested.

"Not Bill Casey," I told her. "He was no fool. If Ollie had left his automobile in that location in real life, they'd have towed it away, and then everyone in the D.C. impoundment lot would have known about the arms swap in Iran."

Art Buchwald

My wife, who has read up on every aspect of Irangate, said, "Suppose that Casey told Ollie it was okay for him to park in front of the White House, but if the cops caught him, he'd be the fall guy and be forced to take the hit."

"It's possible," I admitted. "However, in order for Ollie to use the parking spot, a lot more people must have been in on it. For example, if North got a ticket, wouldn't Gen. Secord have paid it?"

"Not necessarily. If Ollie was caught, he could say that he knew leaving his car in a No Parking space was wrong, but he didn't know it was illegal."

I added, "There is another scenario. Instead of Ollie showing up in traffic court, he could have given the parking ticket to Fawn Hall and told her to shred it. Fawn admitted that she'd do anything for him."

"I don't like the way Fawn keeps touching Ollie all the time in the miniseries," my wife said.

"Neither do I," I agreed. "On the other hand, you can't have someone like Fawn in the movie and have her do nothing."

"If we accept the basic premise of the docudrama, who else besides Casey, Poindexter, McFarlane and Fawn knew that Ollie illegally parked his car in front of the White House?"

"George Bush," I told her.

"How did he know?"

"Bush's main task as vice president was to keep track of everything that happened on Pennsylvania Avenue."

"Did President Reagan know?" she asked.

"I'm sure he did, but he had to say that he would never approve of any illegal parking unless the driver was delivering dresses to Nancy in the White House."

"I only hope that the producers of 'Guts and Glory' can prove everything we just saw. Otherwise people will get the impression that he had no respect for the law," she said.

"Ollie saw it differently. He was a marine, and a marine believes that he can park anywhere he pleases."

My wife wanted to know, "If Ollie was so important, why didn't they give him a decent parking spot inside the White House grounds?"

"They couldn't," I explained, "because Ollie was involved in a covert operation."

Pornography a putrid trap

To the editor:

It is Saturday morning as I write. I have awakened with memories of last night's venture. I sat listening intently while a man told me that discovering pornography at the age of puberty was one of the main factors in his killing women.

Ted Bundy, before he was executed for the brutal murders of which most of us are aware and which included a twelve year old girl, asked a psychologist to hear his last statements.

That interview was video-taped and that is how it was that I sat face to face with a murderer and listened to how he made the gradual descent into sexual violence that ended in the rape and dismemberment and death of innocent victims.

The man who was called to the prison at the convicted killer's request is one of my heroes. The vocal predators who like to pick apart the highly motivated workers for good have attacked Dr. James Dobson, one of the most highly respected professional psychologists and counselors on the world scene today.

The editor of a soft-core porn magazine, who considers himself America's sex counselor, is in the attack mode again. The current issue of his magazine has an article ridiculing Bundy for his confessions just before his death. He who has not, in my opinion, experienced commitment to the true son of God resident within himself continues to express the rebellious son of God who chooses to know evil.

On the other hand, Ted Bundy told us in his last interview that he had accepted the forgiveness of God. He hoped that the innocent victims of his crimes and their families could find it in their hearts to forgive him. I don't think that many people in the world want to open their eyes to see a convicted serial killer's efforts to share what he learned in his lifetime.

I felt that Ted Bundy was trying to tell me that error in the form of pornography (that which expresses the animalistic side of sex and leaves out the spiritual) can and does lead some human beings down a devilish path to depravity.

When I was a little girl my mother taught me that a little angel sat on one shoulder and a little demon sat on the other and they both make suggestions. She taught me to listen to the good suggestions. Life was simpler, then, for me. The voice of truth could get through because there were fewer distractions from the destructive side.

When I was about nine, my conscience became very active. Some good people told me that if I would receive the son of God into my life, I would be forgiven of wrongdoing and helped to be good. I believed that. I still do.

To my dear friends who buy, sell and use pornography I would like to make a request. Please protect the children and people like me of sensitive conscience from the pain and suffering that turns a precious treasure, our sexuality, into a putrid trap.

Had hassles with voting

To the editor:

This morning (Saturday) I went to vote. To begin with, I do not see why people who live on the south side of town have to go to the north side of town to vote and, quite frankly, I was very uncomfortable going over there alone.

When I got to the North Side Fire Station and got out of my car, I was given "wolf whistles" and some kind of remarks were made by three Hispanic males who were across the street carrying "Vote for Mize" placards.

I am a fat, gray-haired senior citizen and men would have to be hard up to be giving me whistles of any kind, so I ignored them and convinced myself that I was imagining things.

When I got inside the fire station to vote, I was told that I was in the wrong place. I told them that the paper said that was where I should vote and she informed me that she did not have a voters list for the precinct I was in.

I had to show her that on top of the ballot box it had my precinct listed. She finally had me sign something and let me vote. The polling place was poorly organized.

When I went back to my car to leave, the same three males across the street gave a repeat performance of the wolf whistles and remarks.

This kind of an experience is totally uncalled for and does not inspire a person to ever want to vote again.

Thanks for good news

To the editor:

I enjoyed reading an article in the April 27 Herald which was written about Police Chief Joe Cook visiting Ms. DeAnda's fifth-grade class.

Too often the public reads only negative items about the poor economy, crime, accused police brutality, and mounting taxes. It was refreshing to read something positive about the police, teachers, and the future of citizens of Big Spring all in one article.

I, for one, would like to read more articles like this.

Beyond the realm

Now here's a really tough guy

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

A favorite hobby among us news types is to compile lists of the best this or that — you know, things like all-star teams, or the tallest building or the best places to eat.

Such was the case recently when a few of us were discussing who deserved the honor of the world's toughest man. Several votes went to Mike Tyson, the heavyweight boxing champion. Others voted for the space shuttle astronauts while another, obviously still stuck in his childhood, voted for his father.

Well, folks, the above-mentioned people are indeed tough, but I think I've got a winner: Joe Bean.

Who's Joe Bean, you may ask? Well, it just so happens Mr. Bean recently won the Laconia, N.H. Jalapeno-Eating Contest by downing 20 of the peppers in a minute.

That's right, 20 in one minute. And if that's not tough, I'll kiss your mother-in-law.

Think about it: To win this contest, Bean had to eat a jalapeno every three seconds. Shoot, it takes me longer than that to blink.

And, that's not all. He ate 20 in the contest's final round, but in an earlier qualifying round he downed 24 of the little bombs in a minute, according to an Associated Press report.

The reason he wasn't able to repeat that performance in the finals, he said, was because he had stomach cramps.

No kidding, Klondike. It's a wonder he still has a stomach.

For anyone who has been in a coma or hasn't lived in Texas more than 15 minutes, a jalapeno is nature's answer to nuclear weapons.

The peppers are proof that big things do indeed come in small packages. These deceptive, little green vegetables pack enough of a wallop to bring even the biggest hombre on the block to his knees, crying like a newborn.

And this guy ate 20 of them in a minute?

I sure don't want to meet him in a deserted alley; he might breathe on me. (Now, there's a thought, women. Instead of shelling out much bucks on spray mace, simply down 10 or 12 jalapenos before you go out for the evening. If some guy tries to accost you, just give the idiot a sample of what hell must feel like.)

I'm not exactly a wimp, but eating 20 jalapenos in a minute is a mite out of my reach. For that matter, eating more than two in an hour might be stretching things a bit.

My mother introduced me to jalapenos at an early age. To this day, I believe it was a plot on her part to make me drink my milk. Heck, after biting down on one of those things, you'll drink almost anything, including swamp water, DDT, Liquid Drano and whatever water the dog didn't get.

They are that nasty. So, my hat's off to you, Mr. Bean. Mike Tyson may have a mean uppercut, but you've got a more effective weapon at your disposal — acid breath.

Just don't get too close, OK?

Exxon increases spill workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials say they doubt Exxon Corp. can clean the oil from hundreds of miles of rocky Alaska coastline by next September, although the oil company stands by its self-imposed deadline.

Exxon announced Wednesday that it plans to sharply increase the number of workers assigned to coastal cleanup duties and deploy more barges and boats to the effort. The decision to increase manpower came after Bush administration officials said Exxon's earlier summer cleanup plans were inadequate.

But Adm. Paul A. Yost, the U.S.

Coast Guard commandant, told a Senate hearing that despite the increased manpower, he considers it "almost impossible" for Exxon to clean all the oil from more than 300 miles of shoreline by the Sept. 15 target date.

Skinner said the Bush administration will closely monitor the effort and direct Exxon back to work next spring if the cleanup does not meet expectations.

Nevertheless, William D. Stevens, president of Exxon USA, told openly skeptical senators the company "fully expects to clean up" the beaches by September, after which poor weather would likely make efforts impossible.

Fire kills 500,000 lab mice

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Fire killed about 500,000 research mice at the Jackson Laboratory, and the loss will set back scientists around the world who depend on its purebred strains, officials said.

Four construction workers who were remodeling the building where the blaze broke out Wednesday afternoon were hospitalized, and at least two firefighters were treated for smoke inhalation, officials said.

"We managed to save what are called the foundation stocks... the original genetically defined strains" of mice, said Director-designate Kenneth Paigen. "It will take us time but we will be able to reproduce what was there."

Earl Green, a former Jackson director, said it would take six to eight generations of mice, or about two or three years, to replace the animals.

With an annual budget of $27 million, the lab produces between 2 million and 3 million mice a year and provides them to scientists throughout the country, Europe, Africa and the Soviet Union.

Its major customers include mammalian genetics researchers at the National Institutes of Health, Harvard, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as well as major hospital research centers, said Barbara Trevett, a Jackson spokeswoman.

During years of breeding, the lab has produced 1,700 strains of mice by genetic accident.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 15-year-old girl is suing the boy who was supposed to take her to the high school prom, contending he owes her about $50 for the shoes, flowers and hairdo she never got to wear.

"I talked to him on April 2 and he said he already had his tux and the tickets," said the Berean Christian School freshman. "I was very upset when he didn't show up."

"She didn't believe me when I told her I fractured my ankle," said Marlon Shadd, a student at Palm Beach Lakes High School.

Shadd also said he had to go out of town that night.

Both students appeared Wednesday at the Palm Beach County Courthouse after Miss Mangrum's mother filed a court claim demanding that Shadd pay $49.53 — the cost of the shoes, flowers and the hairdo. The $280 dress was returned to the store.

Filing the claim cost $31.75. Trial was set for July.

FBI reportedly lacks evidence in bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI doesn't have enough evidence to seek an indictment despite the CIA's conclusion that Iran was responsible for last year's bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland, The Washington Post reported in today's editions.

A CIA assessment of the Dec. 21, 1988, bombing has concluded that Iran hired a Syrian-based Palestinian organization to carry out the operation, sources told The Post.

The sources also said the FBI is investigating the possibility that one of two American college students who had Arab boyfriends may have been the unsuspecting courier who carried the bomb onto the flight.

The explosion over Lockerbie, Scotland, killed 270 people. The flight had originated in Frankfurt, West Germany, and stopped in London before heading to New York.

The CIA is confident of its conclusions blaming Iran, but the FBI doesn't believe sufficient evidence exists to seek indictments against the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, the newspaper said.

The organization is headed by Ahmed Jibril, who with his senior aides met at least once last fall with Iranian officials in Tehran, the Post reported.

Published reports previously have linked Jibril's organization to the bombing.

Jibril has denied that his organization planted the bomb but acknowledged in an ABC News interview broadcast last Friday that his group routinely used the same kind of explosive device that investigators say blew up the Pan Am jumbo jet.

Jibril's first lieutenant, Hafez Dalkamoni, who Jibril said commonly built and used the bombs, is jailed in Germany after a police raid last October that netted weapons and three bomb devices like the one used to blow up Flight 103.

Jibril has denied that his group receives money from Iran but has said he shared Iran's outrage at how the United States last year shot down an Iran civilian passenger plane.

U.S. to urge elephant protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration says it plans to come to the rescue of the African elephant, whose numbers are being threatened by ivory hunters.

Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan said Wednesday he has told U.S. representatives to an international conference next October to push for increased protection of the elephant.

The United States at the meeting will urge that the African elephant be placed in a more protected classification under the international endangered species treaty, thereby prohibiting any of the 101 treaty nations from engaging in the commercial trading of ivory.

Since 1978, the number of African elephants found in 34 countries has declined from 1.5 million to as few as 400,000, according to the government and private groups. The number continues to decline at a rate of 8 percent a year, largely at the hands of ivory-seeking poachers, they say.

Last year the United States imported $32 million worth of ivory, most of which originated with the African elephant.

Senate delays action on FSX deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concern over Japanese involvement in a suspected Libyan chemical weapons complex has delayed Senate action on the controversial $7 billion FSX fighter deal with Japan.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee had been set to vote Wednesday on the FSX, but the vote was postponed until after a closed-door intelligence briefing today on the Libyan complex.

Sen. Frank H. Murkowski, R-Alaska, requested the briefing, saying, "I want to be certain that our co-producers of the FSX, or their associates, are not also co-producing chemical containment components for Libya."

Resolutions of disapproval to try to block the FSX deal have been introduced in the Senate and House. But even if the resolutions are passed, a two-thirds majority in both chambers would be required to override a likely presidential veto.

Under the deal, General Dynamics and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries would jointly develop and produce the FSX, an advanced version of the American F-16, for deployment by Japan in the late 1990s. General Dynamics is headquartered in St. Louis, but most of the FSX work would be done at its F-16 plant in Fort Worth, Texas.

Arab League declares new truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Arab League envoys today declared a new truce in a 2-month-old bloodbath in Lebanon after rocket and artillery duels between Christian and Syrian gunners killed 20 people and wounded 62.

Gen. Michel Aoun, who commands 20,000 Christian soldiers fighting an alliance of Syrian and Druse Moslem forces, ordered his gunners to abide by the cease-fire, a spokesman said.

There was no immediate public reaction from his foes, but the Voice of Lebanon radio station, in Christian east Beirut, and the Moslem Voice of the Nation, the most popular broadcast in west Beirut, quoted "reliable sources" as saying the Arab mediators conveyed the cease-fire order to both sides.

It was the fifth cease-fire called by the Arab League in the current round of fighting, the most destructive of Lebanon's 14-year-old civil war. All others have collapsed.

Thursday's casualties raised the overall toll to 357 people killed and 1,385 wounded since the fighting broke out March 8, by police count.

The latest confrontation broke out two days after Aoun ordered a blockade of illegal ports run by the Moslem militias. The militias deprive the state treasury of about $100 million annually in lost customs dues.

Senior's club meets for luncheon

The Mighty Oaks Senior Citizen's Club recently met in the fellowship hall at East Fourth Baptist Church for a luncheon and program, with Gertrude McCann, president, presiding.

The 1989 Sweetheart, Zelma McClahan, was presented with a silk flower arrangement.

Barry Clayton presented the "Life of Christ" with chalk art and background music.

On June 29-30, members will travel to Albany to see the "Fandangle" at old Fort Giffin.

McCann appointed the following committee:

Kitchen: Margaret Frnaks, Katherine Weidel, Lenora Willingham and Myrtle Platt.

Decorating: Zelma McClahan and Cletha Clayton.

Sheet Ins. & Telephone: Gladys Holden and Lillian Patton.

Music: Serena Farrell.

Tours & Fund Raising Projects: Maudie Jones, Trudy Unger and Ora Lee McMullian.

Mighty Oaks will host a box supper auction May 16 at 6 p.m. College Baptist and First Baptist Church senior citizens are invited to attend. For more information, please call 267-6476.

Callie Bennett and Trudy Unger conducted blood sugar, blood pressure and pulse workshops.

Graham to serve as commander

E.W. Graham, commander of American Legion Post 506 Big Spring, was elected to serve a two-year term as commander of District 19 at the organization's convention conducted April 29-30 in Seminole.

Also attending from Big Spring were Donald McCray, Ollie Branscom, Den Douglas, C.D. Urban and John Martinez.

A dinner and dance was held on Saturday night and election of officers on Sunday.

New officers from Big Spring elected to serve for two years include Ollie Branscom, service officer; and Donlad McCray, adjutant.

The State convention will be held in Houston in October.

Society plans annual fundraiser

The American Cancer Society met May 2 at Day's Inn for a called meeting. President Nancy Crenshaw presided and called the meeting to order.

Katie Grimes stated that Mrs. Stan Partee's residence will be the host home for the ACS's annual wine and cheese fundraiser.

The wine and cheese event will be a June 1 garden party hosted by the ACS board. Mrs. Guy Talbot will order the invitations. Linda Elrod will organize the food. Katie Grimes will be in charge of wine, lemonade and glasses. Cinda Stanley will be in charge of decorations.

Nancy Crenshaw read the proposed slate of officers for the year beginning in September. They are: Linda Elrod, president; Lisa Brooks, vice president; Lucy Bonner, secretary; and Diane Woods, treasurer.

The meeting adjourned until September.

Yater presents club's program

John Yater, newly-appointed director of Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, gave a slide presentation May 2 to the American Association of Retired People at Kentwood Older Adult Center.

The slides showed how the patients are given exercise of all types. Yater answered questions about the facility.

A short business meeting was conducted. Members enjoyed games and a covered dish luncheon.

The next meeting will be June 6 at 10:00 a.m. at the Kentwood Older Adult Center, 2805 Lynn.

DAR members meet at Days Inn

Captain Elisha Mack Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Monday in the Bridge Room at Days Inn, with Mrs. John Key, regent, presiding.

Mrs. A.A. Kelly shared the need of supporting Strategic Defense Initiative in launching additional satellites for military use.

Mrs. Jack Alexander brought a message from president general, who said that Mrs. Wayne Douglas Tiner, past state regent, was elected recording secretary general at the recent National DAR meeting in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. John Damron told of the Cahokia Mounds of Illinois, a prehistoric civic center and ceremonial center of the Mississippian culture (AD-1000-1300). The State Historic Site may be viewed year-round. Cahokia is the largest prehistoric site north of Mexico. Monks Mound is the largest earth works in the New World. Excavations are made in June and August.

Damron also told of more recent findings of Spanish Conquistador Hernando de Soto, who landed in Florida in 1539. Recent archaeological discoveries in downtown Tallahassee, Fla. are believed to be de Soto's 1539-40 winter encampment.

Mrs. John Webb was introduced as a new member. Mr. Webb and children Laurie and John Jr., were visitors. The next meeting will be in September.

Male virgin strikes out in dating game

DEAR ABBY: Are the women in this country nuts, or am I? We are constantly being told that all the good men are either married or gay — as though single men are at the bottom of the barrel, or else why would they be single?

I can't answer for all single men — only for myself. I'm 27 years old, considered fairly good-looking, average height and weight, in good physical condition, my hair is thinning a little — I wear glasses, and yes, I am shy with a capital "S." Surprise — I am still a virgin! So what?

I graduated from college at 22 and have worked as a bartender for the last few years. I've saved my money and have been accepted by a good law school this fall.

During the last few years, I've been involved with four women. I guess I screwed up with the first three by revealing my virgin status. Two thought I was lying and dumped me. The third classified me as a "geek."

I kept silent with the fourth. Unfortunately, once we reached a more intimate stage, my nervousness ruined everything. I suppose this would have been OK at 16, but at my age, she thought something was "wrong" with me. Hey, ladies, I'm an intelligent, sincere, sensitive man — a gentleman. How about a survey, Abby? Is an inexperienced, decent single guy disqualified in the search for a mate? — STRIKING OUT IN FLORIDA

DEAR STRIKING OUT: I don't need a survey to tell me that decent women want decent men. I also know that virtue and virginity don't necessarily go hand in hand. There are virginal cads and experienced people with hearts of gold.

Since by your own admission you are shy with a capital "S," get some counseling to overcome your shyness, and the rest will fall into place. There are singles groups, square dancing, cooking classes, workout gyms. Get going. The longest march in the world starts with one step.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to express my sympathy for "Old-Time Salesgirl," who deplores the lack of consideration shown by prospective customers who mistreat garments they try on, then reject.

A similar attitude toward all things, even including their own possessions, has become the hallmark of a much too large proportion of young adults, and sadly, many of their parents.

This "hooray for me and to heck with everyone else" attitude disgusts and infuriates this Victorian respecter of others' rights and property, but my only recourse is to attempt to compensate for those bores. Yes, I'm the chump who picks up the box of cereal or the toy from the store aisle and tries to find its rightful place on the shelf, who reorganizes the scrambled greeting cards in the rack, and who straightens the twisted garments on their hangers while shopping.

I do these things by natural compulsion, for the sheer satisfaction of knowing that I may have lightened another's daily burdens. So, cheer up, "Old-Time Salesgirl," there are still a few considerate old squares on your side. My bride of 43 years is another of this same archaic breed. — FRED LEE MONTGOMERY, GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR MR. MONTGOMERY: How refreshing to learn that amidst the cactus in Arizona, an orchid blooms — make that two, and greet your good wife for me.

Wedding bells? Wedding bells! Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for +$2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054 (postage and handling included).

Nominate your hero

MIDLAND — Nationally-known paramedic Robert O'Donnell will be one of six real-life American heroes who will comprise the panel that will choose the award recipients of the 1989 "G.I. Joe Search For Real American Heroes."

O'Donnell, of the Midland Fire Department, was part of the team who helped save Jessica McClure from an abandoned well which she had fallen into.

Other members of the panel include:

Captain David Cronin — who miraculously landed United Airlines Flight 811 in Honolulu, Hawaii after the plane's fuselage tore off in mid-air.

Police Officer Steven McDonald, who while attempting to prevent a robbery in New York City, was shot and paralyzed from the neck down. He has become a hero to the handicapped, publicly supporting wounded police officers and other disabled people.

Colleen Cooke, a 12-year-old national award recipient from the 1987 "G.I. Joe Search For Real American Heroes," Colleen earned the honor for her courage in leading her seriously injured father through a rugged five hour trek to reach medical help.

Mary Lee Elden, former editor of the "Kids Did It" column of National Geographic World, is currently manager of the National Geography Bee, a spelling bee which is sponsored by National Geographic World.

Sgt. Slaughter, the first real-life member of the G.I. Joe team, Sgt. Slaughter is an avid supporter of various children's charitable causes including Children's Health Fund and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"Outstanding children are this country's future and it is important to recognize their heroic actions," says Wayne Charness, associate vice president of Hasbro Toys.

The 1989 "G.I. Joe Search For Real American Heroes" is an award recipient program which honors and acknowledges children who have performed noteworthy deeds such as a lifesaving feat, community service, personal achievement in the face of unusual circumstances or helping others to attain personal goals. Nominations for the hero search can be sent to: "The G.I. Joe Search For Real American Heroes" 225 Park Avenue South, 17th Floor, NY, NY 10003. The hero search is based on the classic G.I. Joe hero action figure.

SMMC hosts annual program

Scenic Mountain Medical Center recently hosted its 12th Annual Kindergarten Days, with more than 800 kindergarten-age boys and girls viewing a "pretend T and A operation" put on by the hospital employees and hospital volunteers.

A child was picked from each session to be the "pretend patient", then taken to the admitting office, lab, and X-ray and even a shot in the "Hip Pocket" before going to surgery.

The program is designed to familiarize children with hospital surroundings.

As the children left the building, volunteers gave them their choice of a nurse or doctor's cap to take home with them.

"The 'cast' enjoyed the skit as much as the children and are looking forward to next year's event," said a hospital spokesperson.

Dance to benefit BSSH service

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys will perform at a western dance Friday to benefit the Big Spring State Hospital's Volunteer Service.

Some of the proceeds will go into a fund that will finance the construction of a greenhouse to be used for patient therapy, Higgins added.

Nix's Big Spring-based band performed at President George Bush's inauguration earlier this year, and Higgins said, "They're the best in Texas as far as we're concerned."

Proceeds from the event will "help patients at the hospital who don't have the money for personal items such as books, paying for GED testing, bus tickets —

'Scandal'ous Hurt: What's the fuss about?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The scandal about "Scandal" is much overblown, declares John Hurt, star of the movie about naughty goings-on among the high and mighty in 1960s England.

The British actor was recently in Los Angeles for the opening of the film, and he termed the fuss over its X rating "a storm in a teapot."

"The scene that was allegedly the demon was what we call 'the orgy scene,'" he said. "It was certainly not a sexy scene. It was really a rather tawdry, nasty scene behind closed doors with a particular tired old (upper) class."

"It was directly opposite to what the protagonists, Christine Keeler and Mandy Rice-Davis represent, the 'Swinging '60s.' It was a different kind of permissiveness."

"Scandal," which concerns the sex revelations that helped topple Harold Macmillan's Tory government, was handed an X rating by the Motion Picture Association of America's rating's board. After making a few snips from the orgy scene, the film was rated R. An X would have meant box-office death — few bookings, fewer ads.

Hurt viewed the film before and after the cuts and concluded: "It says the same thing. Apparently somebody took exception to what is known as 'rocking motion.' The 'rocking motion' went, and something else was put in its place."

The reaction in England to "Scandal" was something else. "We had quite a lot of flak for making the film. The Establishment somewhat closed ranks, really. What I call 'the poor old Jack syndrome' came up. 'Why drag him through it again?'"

"Which is understandable, I suppose, but most of the criticisms were made by people who hadn't read the script or certainly seen the film. That's not surprising, I suppose, because they may have thought that we were making some kind of specious movie. Which is not the outcome at all."

"Poor Old Jack" is John Profumo, Britain's former minister of war, a married man who was bedding Keeler at the same time she was having an affair with a Soviet naval attaché and suspected spy.

"I can't say that we did (Profumo) a favor, but I think the film has put him in a different light," Hurt said. "Our perception is different from the public's perception at the time, largely gleaned from the sensationalist press."

Hurt portrays the late Stephen Ward, an osteopath who was charged with pimping for his celebrity clients.

"I think it's pretty clear from the evidence that he was a scapegoat," the actor said.

With his gaunt face and intense manner, John Hurt has made a specialty of difficult portrayals. The most notable was the title role in "Elephant Man," which drew an Academy nomination as best actor.

"Robert DeNiro would do something like 'Raging Bull' the same year," Hurt said about the actor who won the prize that year.

He was the mad emperor Caligula in "I, Claudius," and the eccentric homosexual Quentin Crisp in "The Naked Civil Servant."

In "Champions," he was a famed jockey who conquered cancer, the inmate of a Turkish prison in "Midnight Express" — for which he received an Oscar nomination as supporting actor.

Bugged about insects? Here's the answer to your problems

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

We have had a variety of calls in to our office recently — many of them of such a common nature that I am developing this week's article around them to perhaps assist many of you with similar such problems.

We have had several calls related to ground nesting Bumblebees. Sevin, liquid formulation, applied at night, when the bees are inactive, is the recommended treatment.

According to Victor Lucero, our County Entomologist the use of a regular flashlight covered with red cellophane will not attract bees to the light source when out scouting for the nests.

Many are concerned with the deformed rose buds on their plants this spring. These were caused by early infestations of thrips and more recently by aphids. Both may be controlled by the application of Malathion or Sevin insecticides or sulphur dust, again according to Lucero.

Pecan casebearer spray date questions have been coming in. Daily heat units are being calculated to enable us to more accurately predict when this moth will emerge and have a peak egg lay. Keep in touch with this column

Brothel stock didn't sell

RENO, Nev. (AP) — An attempt to create America's first publicly held brothel has flopped for lack of interest, but the underwriter says he will try to restructure the sale of the Mustang Ranch.

Eric Walloga of American Wallstreet Securities Inc. said Wednesday his company had negotiated an extension of the sale until Oct. 31.

Meantime, buyers of shares in the bordello will get their money back, according to a statement from Walloga's company in Tampa, Fla.

Wednesday was the deadline for the 3-month-old bid to take the Mustang Ranch public through a $23.3 million stock offering at $20 a share. Walloga has said his company is about $5 million short of its goal.

The 102-room brothel 10 miles east of Reno is owned by Joe and Sally Conforte.

to find out the recommended spray dates to most effectively control this pest.

How to control Yucca has been a popular call this spring. This range invader can be controlled with some success by the application of Grazon ET mixed at the rate of 3 oz. per gallon of diesel. Spray the center of each plant thoroughly anytime of the year. This will be a slow acting kill so have patience and even at best will not give a 100% control but is the best method we can still recommend at this time.

We have also had an unusual amount of calls this spring related to problems with Afghan (often called Mondale) pines. In most cases a compound problem has existed. During last year's period of high humidity, many Afghans were hit with a fungus similar to Black Spot in roses. Upon close examination of the needles, a small dark ring can be found on each infected needle near its center. Dead or dying tissue leads away from the ring towards both ends of the needle, giving the tree the appearance of a general die-back.

The trees, thus weakened, were then hit by our hard, late freezes and further damage occurred. Some of the most severely damaged trees are likely to die. Less affected ones can be helped by treating them with a fungicide, such as Benlate, followed with ample watering throughout the remainder of the season. Hopefully, some recovery can then be had. Be careful to not overwater, as Afghans are a semi-arid plant.

Some calls have also come in regarding seedling problems in home gardens. Most of these have been related to cool weather. Dampening off is the situation that occurs when a young plant develops a dark ring at ground level that completely encircles its basal stem. The young plant dies in almost all cases. This is more of a physical problem than anything else. Cool nighttime temperatures is the cause of this. Warmer weather should help this problem.

A few callers have complained about the cut-worm in home gardens. This pest is a night feeder and hard to find in the day light hours when it is hiding beneath the ground level. If this is a problem treat the soil around your plants with Diazinon and thoroughly water it in. It is a difficult pest to control but this treatment may help.

The codling moth is already causing damage to apple crops. This pest lays eggs in young developing apples from petal drop to the ripening stage. It is a most difficult insect to control but spraying with Malathion or Sevin every 10 days to 2 weeks on a regular basis will help.

Our Native Plant Trail project is turning into a quite successful activity, thanks to the support of the folks in our community. We have about half of the identified plants now sponsored. If you would like to participate with this project, please call our office at 267-6671 and select a plant from those remaining on our list to help us complete this project.

Former Coahoma Bulldogette basketball player Shana Fowler, who just finished a two-year stint at Grayson County College, has signed a letter-of-intent to play for Pan American University in Edinburg.

Fowler is the fourth member of Grayson County to sign with a NCAA Division I school, according to Grayson coach Bill Brock. Fowler had two good years at Grayson, as the Lady Vikings won back-to-back conference titles. Grayson compiled a 56-6 record in Fowler's two years there.

notes

Nicknamed "The Rock" because of her solid performances, Fowler, a 5-10 forward, had more than 200 points and 200 rebounds her freshman year. This year as a starter, she averaged 10 points and nine rebounds per game. She shot 78 percent from the line and 49 percent from the three-point line.

She was a first team all-conference and honorable mention all-region selection. She also was selected to Who's Who for American Junior Colleges, and compiled a 3.2 grade point average while receiving her Associate's degree in business.

Howard College will be hosting boys and girls basketball camps this summer at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The boys day camp will be June 26-30, the girls overnight camp will be July 10-14 and the girls day camp will be July 17-21.

Entry fee is $150 per player for the overnight camp. This will cover room, meals, equipment, tuition and camp T-shirt. A $25 deposit is required with the remaining amount due upon registration.

Day camp will cost $75 per participant. This will cover tuition, equipment and a T-shirt. A $25 deposit is required.

Campers will be separated according to level of expertise and age. Competitions will be categorized as: Seniors, Juniors, Mid-Level and Little Dribblers.

Members of the staff will be under the direction of Howard coaches Steve Green and Royce Chadwick. The staff will consist of Howard College assistant coaches, high school coaches and members of the Hawks and Lady Hawks basketball teams.

For more information call Teri at the athletic department at 267-6311.

While on the subject of camps, Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene will be hosting baseball camps this summer.

Head coach Lee Driggers and assistant coach Johnny Corff have slated the camps. Camp 1 is June 26-29, and is recommended for boys 8-11. Camp 2 is July 10-13, Camp 3, July 17-20, and the advanced skills camp, an overnight camp, is slated for July 24-29.

All camps except the advanced skills camps cost $125 per camper. The advanced overnight skills camps cost $275.

For more information call Coach Corff at 670-1494 or 673-7502 after 5 p.m.

At West Texas State University in Canyon, the Buffalo Camp of Champions Passing Camp, for football players will be June 4-9 at the university.

Youth ages 8-17 years of age can participate in the camp. The West Texas State University coaching staff will run the camp. Cost is $265 per camper, and this includes room, board, instruction, shirt and photo.

This will be a non-contact camp, geared to the passing game for all positions.

For more information call West Texas head football coach Steve Graf at (806) 656-2677.

The Permian Basin Girls Basketball Association will be conducting tryouts for team members to participate in the Basketball Congress International Tournament in Lubbock July 15-19.

The teams will consist of young ladies with high school eligibility left. The prestigious tourney will feature teams from across the United States.

For information on tryouts write the Permian Basin Girls Basketball Association, P.O. Box 116, Tarzan, Texas, 79783.

Now here's to a baseball team that got very little coverage this past season, but had a very good year.

The Big Spring junior varsity baseball team finished with a 13-5 overall record and a 10-1 district mark. Comprising the team were: Louis Soldan, Sammy Viera, John Downey, Shane Myrick, Robert Lara, Joe Downey and Kevin Rodgers. Also on the team were: Jason Mills, Allen Corley, Eric Torres, Gerald Cobos, Shannon Coots, Dimas Morales, Artie Gutierrez, Patrick Chavarria and Brian Oliphant.

The Ninth Annual Tall Town 10,000, a road race for runners, will be May 20 in Midland. The race will start at Chili's Restaurant in the Colonnade Shopping center on Loop 250 and Garfield.

There will be a 10K race, two-mile race and a two-mile fitness walk.

Entry fee is $10 for entries postmarked before May 16, $12 day-late entries. Awards will be presented to the top three male and female finishers in each age group.

For more information contact Jeni Winegarner at 684-6464 or Karen Hagner at 699-5617.

Now news from the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association...

In nine hole scramble play on the front nine Monday, Tammy Newsom, Martha Saunders and Betty Ray Coffee shot a one-under-par 36 for first place. Finishing second, one stroke back, was the team of Annie Ward, Dee Jenkins and Georgie Newsom.

A record was set in Thursday's couple play on the front nine. The team of Joe and Patsy Sharpnack and Don and Roxie Belew shot a blazing nine-under-par 27. Jimmy and Linda Rogers and Gerald and Romana Harris finished second with a 30.

In other news, Annie Ward and Patsy Sharpnack won third place in the first flight in the Riverside Country Club Ladies' Low-Ball Partnership in San Angelo Tuesday.

In bowling news, Big Spring's Donna Wright is in third place in the Texas Women's Bowling Association state competition in El Paso.

In Division 5, Wright has a singles total of 1471. Kerri Abair of Fort Worth leads the division with a 1550. Dora Buisson of Amarillo is next at 1477.

In baseball action, local semi-pro team Red Sox lost their first game of the season when they split a doubleheader with the San Angelo Roadrunners Sunday at Roy Anderson Complex.

Frankie Rubio was winning hurler in the Red Sox's 10-2 win. Adam Yanez had two hits and Beef Armendarez homered for the Sox.

San Angelo won the second game, 3-1, as the Roadrunner pitcher fired a four-hitter. David Roach took the loss for the Red Sox. Yanez got two hits for the Sox and Raymond Ontiveros drove in the Sox's only run.

The Red Sox are 9-1 for the season. The Sox play May 21 at Roy Anderson when they host San Angelo Bud Light.

Hawks seeking state berth

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Howard Hawks will try a different route to reach the state baseball tournament when they travel to Dallas to take on the Richland College Thunder Ducks Friday and Saturday in a best of three series.

The winner of the series advances to the state tournament. In the past, the top two teams from Region V advanced to the state tournament. This year the top team advances to state, and the second team hosts the third place team from Metro Athletic Conference, and the third place team, which is Howard, travels to the Metro Athletic Conference second place winner for a best of three series.

Richland, coached by Marty Salfen, finished second in the Metro behind Vernon Junior College. The Thunder Ducks have a 30-21 overall record and 14-8 conference mark. Howard was 12-11 in region play and 4-2 overall.

Richland is a team on a roll. After a slow start — they were 17-19 at one time — the Thunder Ducks won 13 of their last 15 games.

Coach Salfen says the key to his team is defense and pitching. "We played our best at the end. We've got eight freshmen starters and they are coming together now. We're a decent hitting team, but our strength is excellent defense and our pitching keeps us close," said Salfen.

The Thunder Ducks feature three left-handed starters.

Howard assistant coach Frank Anderson said Chad Murray is one of the best juno hurlers in the state. "They're a good team," said

Howard College second baseman Darrin Glenn has been Howard's leading power hitter this season. Going into this weekend's series, Glenn has 14 home runs and 64 runs batted in.

Anderson of Richland. "Chad Murray is one of the best pitchers in the state. He won 12 games as a freshman."

Coach Salfen readily admits Murray is his ace. "Chad Murray is the best pitcher we've got. He's been hurt this year and has just recovered. He's got a 4-1 record; his only loss was a 3-2 decision to Seminole (Okla.), and he struck out 12 that game."

The Thunder Ducks can also counter with Alen Fivash (7-6) and Steve Ousley (5-1).

Richland is led in hitting by shortstop Troy Williams, who has a .397 batting average, and outfielder Randy Creel, who's batting .392.

Its top power hitter of late has been outfielder Mike Norris, who's only been starting a month. He has nine home runs. Catcher Martin Bass has 13 homers.

Salfen says the home field advantage doesn't mean much, and he knows Howard is a good team. "The home field advantage doesn't help much like in football and basketball. The only thing that helps us is that we don't have to make the drive Howard does, but they're used to doing it."

"Howard is probably the best third place team in the world," said Salfen. "I know Howard will be an awful tough opponent. They have an excellent tradition and coach Griffin (Howard head coach Bill Griffin) is one of the best around."

In comparing common opponents, Richland split two games with McLennan, beat Hill two of three and lost a two-game series with Ranger. Howard lost three of five to MCC, beat Ranger four of six, and split with Hill, 3-3.

Coach Anderson says a lot of what happens depends on his team's batting. He has been getting good pitching from Curt Schmidt, Corey Zielinski and Greg Kroger. All have .ERA's under 3.00.

"We're going to have to swing the bat a little bit," said Anderson. "Hopefully our pitching will hold up like it has been all year. I've been waiting all year for us to bust out. This is probably the best talent we've had in my three years here. If we're going to play good, now is the time."

Something to prove

Big Spring Steer tracksters want state gold medal

By RUTH COCHRAN
Staff Writer

Ben Gonzales and Dennis Hartfield have something to prove.

The Big Spring track stars will run in Friday's Class 4A state track meet in Austin's Memorial Stadium, and both have set goals that ultimately could lead to championships.

Gonzales, a senior, has been to the state meet before, but he's making his first trip in the 800 meters. As a sophomore, he was successful in the 1,600 meters and the 3,200 meters, qualifying for state in both.

This season he switched to the shorter race, and even greater success is within reach.

DENNIS HARTFIELD

The 18-year-old has recorded the second fastest clocking in 4A state competition with a 1:55.56 and figures to run even faster at state. "Gonzales said he wants to run under a 1:55 — and he thinks he can do it."

"I don't know. I've never had anyone take me all the way to the end — push me," he said.

Gonzales never dreamed he'd be chasing a state title in the 800. He started running as a sophomore when he finished basketball season.

"I don't know if I would have been in track if I hadn't done that good," Gonzales said of his surprising sophomore year.

High expectations brought him back for his junior year though. His third place at state in the mile made him want a title pretty badly. Eligibility problems, however, kept him out of the state meet last year.

This season his coach, Randy

Britton, talked Gonzales into giving the 800 meters a try. It turned out to be a pretty good idea.

"I'd run it a couple of times before and I did OK," Gonzales said. "This year I broke the record at the West Texas Relays."

Gonzales' capabilities were no surprise to Britton.

"He has enough natural endurance and he has good enough leg speed to be a good half-miler," Britton said. "I convinced him that the 800 was probably his race and he trained accordingly."

With stiffer competition, Gonzales might have headed into the state meet as the heavy favorite instead of the solid second choice, Britton said.

"I'd say he's going to win it, but that's going pretty far out on a limb," Britton said. "He's going to finish in the top three. Ben has the fastest regional time."

Gonzales figures he could use the title — and a rest.

"Bur out is beginning to be a factor," he said. "I've been at it all year. I'm almost glad this is the last week."

Gonzales is glad it's almost over, but Dennis Hartfield is just glad he's even got a shot at the state title.

The senior wasn't an instant star in the 100 meters, although he qualified for the regional meet both his sophomore and junior years.

For Hartfield, the road to success was filled with hard work and steady improvement. As a freshman his times weren't worth talking about, but he improved to a 10.8 his sophomore year and a 10.7 his junior year.

This season the 19-year-old has ripped through the 100 in 10.4. He feels 10.2 or even 10.1 is within reach if everything comes together.

"Since district, I haven't run well," Hartfield said. "I had a bad

Tubb to meet familiar foe

By RUTH COCHRAN
Staff Writer

Halloween could come real early for Andrew Minter.

The Dallas Highland Park sophomore may be in for some nasty tricks Friday at the state tennis tournament in Austin; he faces Big Spring's Rocky Tubb in the tournament's first round.

Tubb, the Steers' super sophomore, extended Minter to three sets last summer before losing. But that was almost a year ago.

Since then, Tubb has learned a few things and he's not the same player Minter was able to beat. Still, Tubb knows he's fighting an uphill battle.

"He's ranked eighth in 16 (and under boys) and I'm 15th," Tubb said of his rival's seeding by the Texas Tennis Association. "I'm not sure how I'll do. I'll just play each match as good as I can. Whatever happens happens. I've got a real tough first round."

Tubb's coach, Dave Hay, feels it's Minter who may be facing a tough first round.

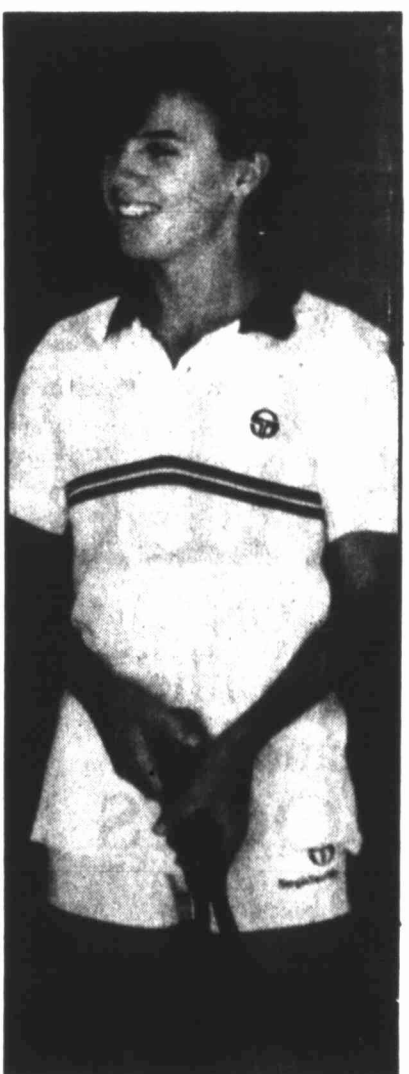

"I expect a real hard fought first match," Hay said. "The two went three sets the last time they played each other."

"I think his (Tubb's) improvement have been impressive."

"Rocky's added new dimensions to his game. He still prefers hitting from behind the baseline, but he's got a strong serve and solid volleys."

Of course, Minter may have expanded his game too, Hay concedes.

"I think he (Minter) is going to be very surprised at some of the differences in Rocky," Hay said. "But, I have no gauge to measure the improvement in the other boy as well."

Big Spring sophomore Rocky Tubb will be making his first trip to the state tennis tournament.

Tubb can measure his improvement easily. As a freshman last season, Tubb qualified for regional play but was eliminated. This season he won district then went on to take second in the region to Crowley's Sean Cobb.

Tubb said he expected more success this season.

"I thought I would at least go to regionals," he said. "I wasn't too sure (about state) because I knew there would be at least two seniors there who were real good."

The 16 year old beat one of those seniors to gain a berth in the regional championship match with Cobb. Tubb will face the senior again if both win their first round and second round matches Friday.

It would be a tough match for Tubb because Cobb is one of the few players that can intimidate him. Because most of the players he faces are older and bigger, Tubb said he doesn't worry about that anymore.

"I just play," he explained. "I don't really think about it."

Tubb didn't let too much intimidate him when he started playing tennis four years ago — he was having too much fun.

"My brother Binky, when he started I started playing," Tubb said. "It took me about a year before I started winning. I didn't really care. I was just playing for fun."

"I started getting better and I started liking it more."

Success has put Tubb on the court four hours a day most days of the week. That cuts into his personal life, but Tubb said it's worth it.

"It kind of gets in the way, but I like it so much it doesn't really matter," he said.

Although he loves the game and his future looks promising, Tubb is cautious in talking about a professional career.

"I want to play for a college and just whatever happens after that," he said. "But I want to go to college."

Ben Johnson in scuffle

TORONTO (AP) — Ben Johnson, world record-holder in the 100-meter dash and disqualified from the 1988 Olympics after testing positive for steroids, suffered minor injuries in a fight involving five men in the city's swank Yorkville district early today, police said.

Johnson had just left a nightclub and was driving his mother's car about 1:45 a.m. when he slowed to allow a group of pedestrians to cross the street. As they were crossing, a man banged on Johnson's car, police said.

Police said that when Johnson got out of the car to challenge the men, he was punched in the face. They said another man then jumped on the hood of the car and kicked in the windshield, causing $700 in damage.

Johnson chased a suspect and held him until police arrived, Sgt. David Donald said.

Johnson was treated in a hospital for a broken tooth and swollen lip and was released.

John Cesar, 24, was charged with mischief over $1,000. Police were looking for the man they said assaulted Johnson.

Desai Williams, also a member of Canada's Olympic track team, and a woman friend were in the car during the incident but were not involved in the altercation, police said.

Johnson was stripped of the gold medal in the 100-meter dash at the Seoul Games after testing positive for a banned anabolic steroid. The scandal sparked a federal inquiry into drugs and amateur sports.

Coahoma sophomore tries hand at first state outing

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
For the Herald

COAHOMA — "If I can do my best, and with all that adrenalin going, I would like to place in the top three," said state-bound Sarah Hanks, the Coahoma half-miler.

She added, "Coach Meissner (Coahoma track coach) is a great coach and he has made me work and I mean really work hard, and it has paid off. Marray (Maddox) has been very very important to me. He has made me work after school, he has ran with me when he has been sick, and helped me by pushing me to the limit. Now I'm going to state and I want to show my appreciation to my family, Coach (Meissner) and Marray for helping me get to Austin."

Hanks, a sophomore will be competing in the Class AAA state 800 meter run. This will be her first trip to the state competition level. She was clocked at 2:24.57 good enough for a regional first place finish. Asked if there will be any tracksters that are able to finish in front of her she responded, "Brittany Miller from Llano will be there and she finished second in the regional meet, she can be very tough competition," said Hanks.

Hanks transferred to Coahoma from Stinnett last year. "When I first got to Coahoma I had a negative attitude because of all the talk that the Bulldogettes went to state every year. I felt very pressured being that I wanted to be part of this team, but I did not know if I would be good enough to compete."

"After the first day my attitude changed because everyone made me feel part of the team. I also wanted to be part of a winning tradition and the Bulldogettes do have a tradition to follow."

"At Stinnett I was moved every week from event to event. I felt that my last year was wasted. Coach Meissner told my dad and I at the start of the year that I would be running the 800 meters, so different coaching has also changed my attitude due to the fact that I can concentrate on my style and give it my all in that event."

Her coach, Truman Meissner refers to Hanks as the "little girl" due to the fact that she weighs a mere 105 pounds. But this small package of dynamite is capable making loud noises in the next three years with a top three finish this weekend.

"Sarah received the Fightin Heart Award at the Banquet (Coahoma All-Sport Banquet) so that will tell you that she has a lot of heart and dedication. We're looking for her to finish in the medal race. It's going to be tough to win, but one can never tell when the gun sounds," said Meissner.

A former Bulldogette, Robin Musser from Atlanta, will be competing against Hanks, she has the best time with a 2:19.

Hanks will be in front of alot of her family from her mother, Sharon's side of the family. "All my family on my mom's side of the family will be there. My dad (Pete) and mom will be there," said Hanks. "If I can finish in the top three this year I will be happy, I'll have two more years and from there maybe University of Texas, that's where Marray and I plan on going to college."

Pistons win opener

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons, like a champion prize fighter, soften you up with round after round of body blows and then punch your lights out.

That's how the Pistons swept Boston in the first round of the NBA playoffs and that's how they beat the Milwaukee Bucks 85-80 in the first game of their second-round series Wednesday night.

The knockout punch has come in the fourth quarter of their last three playoff games, in which the Pistons have outscored their opponents 71-36.

The Bucks, who beat the Pistons four out of six games during the regular season, led much of the game and had Detroit down by as many as 13 points.

The Pistons, feeling the effects of an eight-day layoff, were sluggish in the first half, trailing 49-38 at halftime.

In the Pistons dressing room at halftime, there was a real fear they might be kissing away the homecourt advantage they earned with an NBA-best 63-19 record.

Bill Laimbeer scored six of his 19 points in the final minute and the Pistons held Milwaukee to 11 points in the fourth period.

start at regionals," where he ran a 10.9.

Hartfield's attention wavered briefly at the start and he was slow out of the blocks. Although he managed to make up enough ground to qualify for state, he was battling a hamstring injury since then.

He figures the hamstring and the starting blocks won't be a problem in Austin.

"I'll be alright by Friday," he said. "I want to get first."

Hartfield has been aiming for the gold since the beginning of the season.

"I was going to work hard enough to do my best," he said. "I knew if I worked hard enough I'd make it to state, probably."

Britton thinks Hartfield has as good a shot as anybody. He already owns the second best time in 4A (behind a 10.39), and a mistake-free race could give the senior a win.

"He's come on this year more than he did last year," Britton said of Hartfield. "He's developed considerably each year. I think he's a year away from being a pretty good sprinter."

Britton said he just hopes Hartfield can get a good start then run through his injuries.

"(The start) is the difference between winning and getting fifth or sixth," Britton said. "He has a slight tendon problem right now. But maybe he'll get excited down there and forget about it."

And a win could generate a little excitement about Hartfield. Although Gonzales has received some interest from various col-

Lakers 130, Sonics 108 INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Pat Riley believes there's a simple explanation for the Los Angeles Lakers' inspired play thus far in the NBA playoffs.

"When you watch the Lakers right now, what you see is that they still want to win," he said. "They want to win and move on."

The Lakers, thought by some critics to be on the decline after winning two consecutive NBA titles, suddenly look rejuvenated — and hungry.

After three lopsided wins over Portland to open the playoffs, the Lakers moved to a 2-0 lead in their second-round, best-of-7 series against Seattle with a 130-108 rout Wednesday night.

Los Angeles took the opener 113-102 last Sunday. The series now switches to Seattle for games Friday and Sunday.

James Worthy, who seems to peak in the playoffs and was the MVP of the league championship series last season, scored 30 points on 13-of-16 shooting in the Lakers' latest victory.

He was one of eight Lakers in double figures, as A.C. Green and Byron Scott had 16 points each, Orlando Woolridge had 13, and Magic Johnson and Mychal Thompson chipped in 12 points apiece.

The Bucks led 48-39 at halftime, but Dumars and Mark Aguirre each hit four points in a Detroit run that cut Milwaukee's lead to 56-54 with 5:18 remaining in the third quarter.

leges, Hartfield is still hoping. "He can be a pretty good sprinter," Britton said of Hartfield. "I hope somebody will pick him up. He wants to run."

A special someone

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Shane Clay is a pretty special kid. Not just because he knows how to make folks in town feel like they are his only customer, nor because he is especially diligent at his job. It's also because he told me that the greatest person in the whole world, the one who inspired him the most, helped him the most and influenced him the most in a positive way, is his mother.

And it wasn't just that he said it, but the way he said it. Shane's face lit into a smile when he told me about his mother, Shirley Clay.

Shane shared with me that his mother helped him in many ways, that without her help, he wouldn't have done as well as he has in school, work and other aspects of his life.

"My mother is very, very special," he said.

Mother's Day is this coming Sunday, and I must, as Shane did, share some neat things about my mother.

...When my brothers and I were very small she recited poetry for us in the most beautiful voice. My favorite was Annabel Lee by Edgar Allen Poe. I can hear her voice just like it was yesterday. The Highwayman and The Raven were my brothers' favorites. She also read to us from The Wind and The Willows. She read much more but I remember her voice the most on these.

I believe the reason I love literature, and love to write, is not just that she took so much time to read to us from the classics, but because her passion for them created the same passion within us.

My mother could always outrun every kid on the block. This made my older brother, Michael, particularly angry, because he always thought girls (mothers or not) should never ever run faster than boys. My younger brother, Steven, and I thought it was the greatest thing in the world, and what she didn't know until right now was that we made bets all morning with the kids on the block about how she could beat them. We usually made between $1.50 and $2.

My mother can't, no matter how hard she tries, refrain from laughing when she hears the theme song to The Pink Panther. No one knows why — not her family, friends or any of the doctors she's seen over the years. It's something we've all learned to accept.

It's rather strange, though, to be sitting in a nice restaurant, the kind with a piano bar in it, and suddenly the guy who just played Summertime picks up the beat with The Pink Panther theme, and you want to crawl under the table before you hear the first suppressed giggle. For Ruby Payne to suppress a giggle is like Mt. St. Helens trying to suppress the flow of lava — when it starts it's going to be awhile before it stops.

You probably think I'm only going to share things with you that are going to embarrass my mother. Not so. I'm not going to tell you how she laughs at people who stub their toe. I won't tell you how she becomes so involved in eating an ice cream cone that she forgets where she is. You have never seen anyone celebrate the moment until you've seen my mama eat an ice cream cone.

I remember how my mother cried as she looked across an Arizona desert for the first time. I remember how she cried when she looked across the same desert for the last time. She has an affinity for cacti and gila monsters and those beautiful southwestern sunsets. If I had the means, I would bring her the same desert and sneak it in her dreams at night.

My mother has never bragged about her cooking ability. However, I do remember a special kind of cookie she made way back when cookies were more important than breathing. They were sort of like sugar cookies rolled in cinnamon. If I came home from school, and Mother was not there, I would eat one of those because they were the next best thing to one of her afternoon hugs.

Clay not your average paperboy

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Edna Hale "just loves" Shane Clay.

She makes sure to meet him each weekday at the door of Stanton Care Center at right around 4 p.m. so she can get a fresh copy of The Big Spring Herald and The Midland Reporter Telegram.

"On Thursdays, I stand here at the door and get my Stanton Herald, too," Hale said. "I don't reckon I mind just talking to Shane, either. I say I want my paper and I do, but I sure do like to visit with this sweet boy."

Shane Clay is 20 years old now, but he has been delivering newspapers to Edna for six years.

"One day, when I was 14, my current boss drove by my house," Clay said. "I was outside picking up aluminum cans. He asked me if I would like to have a job throwing newspapers."

"I told him I would ask my mom and dad and see what they thought. About a week later I started throwing newspapers, and I've been throwing them ever since."

Clay said the best part of throwing newspapers is the opportunities to meet new people. "Druce Cawthron and Mrs. Petrie are a couple of my friends at the nursing home here in town. They really depend on me for the paper every afternoon, plus we've all just become good friends."

He explained, also, that there are those times when the business of throwing newspapers isn't so much fun. "There are the customers who get mad at me when the subscription price of a paper goes up. It's never my decision to make the cost of reading a newspaper increase. I'd just as soon the price stayed down so everyone would have a chance to read the news."

"Also, one of the hard aspects of the job is having to keep up with stops and starts on subscriptions, they happen more than most people think, and there's people that go out of town for just a few days, and ask me to keep up with them being gone, then starting them up again when they're back."

Clay said that even though subscriptions can be a lache, he is always happy to get new ones.

"If someone wants a newspaper to start the very next day after they

Ag department seeking comments on ARP

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is asking for public comments on the percentage reduction, if any, for an acreage reduction program (ARP) for the 1990 wheat crop, according to Nestor Hernandez, county executive director of the Martin County ASC Office.

A decision will be announced of any 1990 wheat ARP no later than June 1. If the 1989 ending stocks for wheat are estimated to be below one billion bushels, the ARP may not exceed 20 percent for the 1990 wheat crop.

USDA also requested comments on other provisions of the 1990 wheat program and the program provisions that are common to the 1990 crops of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice.

Comments will be considered along with information concerning the outlook for domestic and foreign supply and demand before final program decisions are made. Comments on these additional 1990 wheat program provisions are requested:

- The percentage reduction for any paid land diversions (PLD). A PLD for the 1990 crop of wheat is not proposed.

- Whether a marketing loan and related provisions should be implemented. Marketing loans for the 1990 crop of wheat are not proposed.

- The premium and discount schedule for the 1990 crop of wheat and other determinations necessary to carry out the wheat price support program.

Comments also are requested on the following council program provisions for the 1990 crops of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice:

- Whether the production of approved nonprogram crops should be allowed on underplanted, program-crop permitted acreage, also known as conservation use (CU) or 0/92 and 50/92 acreage. These crops include sweet sorghum, goat, sesame, sunflower, sunflower, castor beans, mustard seed, cramble, plantago ovate, flaxseed, triticale and rye. Other commodities which could be approved are those for which no substantial domestic production of market exists but that could yield industrial raw materials which might be imported, or commodities grown for experimental purposes.

- Whether the production of alternate crops should be allowed on acreage conservation reserve (ACR). The alternate crops are the same nonprogram crops as those listed in the preceding paragraph, as well as other commodities.

Haying and grazing must be permitted, except during a five-consecutive-month period during the seven months between April 1 and Oct. 31, 1990, as established by the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, unless it is determined that having of grazing will have an adverse economic affect. Unlimited haying and grazing may be permitted in the event of a natural disaster.

- Whether to require offsetting or cross compliance. USDA proposes limited cross compliance requirements (except forcats and FLS cotton) but not to impose offsetting compliance requirements for the 1990 commodity programs. For a producer to be eligible for benefits for a crop of wheat, feed grains (except oats), Upland cot-

Election winners sworn in

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

After canvassing last Saturday's election returns, the Stanton City Council administered the oath of office to three newly elected aldermen during last Monday's regular meeting.

Gene Wheeler, write-in candidate, and Lester Baker replaced outgoing councilmen Bill Wheeler and Steve Garlington.

James Jenkins, who had been appointed by the council earlier in the year to replace the late Howard Jenkins, was elected to complete the term of that office.

Mayor Danny Fryar stated that outgoing council members Wheeler and Garlington were to be commended for their dedication to public service while serving the city of Stanton.

"Both of these gentlemen have done great jobs," he said. "They've served the city well."

Fryar added that he is looking forward to the service of the new members as well. "I'm happy that we have new blood. Gene Wheeler was interested enough to begin a write-in campaign to win a seat, and we need that kind of interest. James Jenkins and Lester Baker are also fine gentlemen who will be great assets to the council."

Fryar said that voter turnout was better than expected for non-contested seats. Eighty-six people voted on Saturday, while 20 sent in absentee ballots.

Other council action included lengthy discussion on the problems facing several local residents concerning the condition of neighbors' yards.

A Stanton resident appeared before the aldermen to describe what he called "lots of junk that constitutes fire and health hazards." He said that he had had trouble with the neighbor several times, and though law enforcement procedures had been carried out on six different complaints, the neighbor "just filled the yard up with junk again," the Stantonite said.

After consulting City Judge Roy Pickett, the council voted to declare the items in the neighbor's yard as junk according to definition set by city ordinance, and enforce the ordinance accordingly.

Kyle Lomax of Parker, Smith and Cooper, Inc., gave a presentation to the council on the selection of streets for sealcoating. According to a study by the engineering firm, earlier sealcoating had been extremely effective in maintaining Stanton streets in the past. Lomax stated that the total construction cost for city would be $34,000.

"This total is for $1 a square yard of sealcoating as opposed to $8 a square yard for total reconstruction of streets," he said. "Sealcoating is cheaper, lasts much longer and is lots more effective."

After Alderman H. Baker moved to select streets for the sealcoating and for accepting bids to do so, the motion passed.

Chamber applauds Cavazos' challenge

The Texas Chamber of Commerce applauded the challenge by U.S. Secretary of Education Lauro Cavazos "to quicken the pace of education reform" made in his annual report card on the nation's educational performance and announced the formation of a statewide task force to address the business community's responsibility to the state's public schools.

Larry Milner, president and chief executive officer of the Chamber, said that the organization's leadership agreed with Cavazos that the nation's school performance was "merely average" or "stagnant."

The Chamber board moved fundamental education changes to the top of its priority list as its April meeting and assigned the job of implementing a program of research and recommendations to one of the organization's major councils, according to a chamber release.

Milner said that Secretary Cavazos' report reinforced the Chamber's determination to move deliberately and decisively on the overall education quality problem.

Clay

call me, I'll make sure they get one that very next day. I really want to meet everyone's needs.

"Sometimes I get frustrated, though, and think of doing other things because I can't get going on time or something happens and the papers are delivered later than usual to where I don't feel I am meeting those needs.

"My boss, Rex Duke, helps me deal with these things. He reminds me that being late and stuff like that is going to happen, that it's all part of the job."

Clay said that having had the job since he was 14 years old has given him a sense of responsibility that others his age might not have.

"Learning how to handle money at a young age, money that I went out and earned, has helped me a lot," Clay said. "Learning what I could and could not spend, knowing how much to save, all of that helped me acquire a sense of responsibility very early in life. At the age of 20, I've had almost seven years of experience in learning how to handle money."

Clay said that he would advise any young person who may want to throw newspapers as their first real job to remember that they are dealing with people, not numbers.

"The folks around here count on me not just to get their newspaper to them everyday, but they count on my friendliness, my smiles," Clay said. "Some of the older people may not have even talked to someone else on a particular day, and they look forward to having contact with a caring person."

Mary Rodriguez, Activities Director at Stanton Care Center, agreed. "Shane doesn't just deliver the paper. He is so sweet to the residents. Several of the residents stand near the door around 4 p.m. just so they can talk to him," she said. "When they see him coming, it just makes their day."

Clay has friends outside the local nursing home, too.

"Sometimes I even get Christmas presents," Clay said. "I don't ever want anyone to think they need to do that, but when it happens, it reminds me of how much more my job is than just throwing a newspaper."

"Mrs. Winnie Thompson always makes me the best cookies you ever tasted, and others do similar things. Folks in Stanton are so nice. It's just really easy to work here, even when things aren't going perfect, because no sooner do you get frustrated at something than you look up to see Edna Hale standing at the door grinning at you like nothing in the world could make her happier than taking a newspaper right out of your hands."

Clay said that although he has been in the newspaper business for many years, he isn't sure he will stay there.

"I do like throwing newspapers, but I think I'd like to be a policeman someday, because I know I could really help people — plus, I wouldn't mind putting bad guys behind bars," he said.

"No matter what I do in the future, I know that the experience I gained in the last few years is really going to help me. It's not just managing money, and making sure the news reaches folks on time."

"This job taught me about people, about how people depend on people all the time whether they realize it or not. And, it did teach me lots of responsibility."

Shirley Clay, Shane's mother, agreed. "Shane is very responsible. He has worked very hard for a long time. I'm really proud of him."

Edna Hale is proud of him, too. "This boy, Shane, comes to see me everyday. He don't have to stay but a minute, but he always stays two."

Council

City Secretary Jimmy Mathis said Tuesday that about 29 blocks in various sections of town were selected for the coating process. He added, however, that the list of streets is subject to change.

The council voted unanimously to allow Leroy Kargl to use only the width necessary out of road easement for access to the (proposed) landfill, and by doing so allow Kargl to use remainder of land as long as it does not interfere with the City's landfill.

Lomax then reported on the state's rules and regulations concerning the creation and operation of a major landfill.

The council resolved the three year phase-in method of paying expenses of the Martin County Appraisal District as well as appointing new members to the board of the Appraisal District.

The governing bodies of Martin County, the city of Stanton, the Grady Independent School District, the Sands Independent School District, the Stanton Independent School District, the Martin County Underground Water District, and the Martin County Hopital District will now each be represented in the Appraisal District.

It was further resolved that the change in the method of selection, and the number of members of the Board of Directors of the Appraisal District, will become effective upon the adoption of resolutions by three-fourths of the taxing units participating in the Appraisal District.

Further council action included an unanimous vote to commend and support the Convent Restoration committee by official letter. Other action included the vote to spray the trees in the city's parks.

The council voted to match funds with the Permian Basin Drug Task Force in order to maintain the city's membership in the Force.

The Permian Basin Drug Task Force is based in Midland, and represents counties and cities within Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties. The matching funds for Stanton will total $375.

Joel Haragan has been named mid-school principal for the Knox City-O'Brien Consolidated Independent School District. He will teach half a day and be a principal half a day.

Mr. Haragan taught science at Stanton Junior High and coached boys basketball, football and track.

Since leaving Stanton, he has been a varsity girls basketball coach at Ropesville and Knox City. He has taken his team to the state playoffs three of the four years he has coached varsity level basketball.

Mr. Haragan's wife, Linda, is also a former teacher and coach at Stanton Junior High.

Mrs. Haragan coaches varsity girls volleyball and track at Knox City. Her volleyball team was regional finalist this year. She has also been her husband's assistant basketball coach the past four years.

The Haragans have two sons, Lance and Braden.

Noon Lions Club elected a new slate of officers for the ensuing year in their meeting May 2. Victor Taylor will be the new Boss Lion.

Eugene Byrd introduced the new editor of the Herald, Stacy Payne, as guest speaker. After a period of questions and answers, Stacy asked members to try down any suggestions they had to make it a better paper.

On Saturday, the Stanton Middle School sixth, seventh and eighth grade bands will participate in concert, sightreading, solo, and ensemble competition at Snyder High School.

The sixth grade beginners band will perform two selections on stage. The seventh and eighth grade intermediate band will perform three tunes. All students attending will compete in individual solo competition and, in addition, all sixth-grade bandmen are entered in the small ensemble contest.

Directors Kirke McKenzie and Rick Lee state that many weeks of hard work have gone into the preparation for this contest. This will be the first contest experience for the beginners band.

Each student participating will receive a rating and a judges critique sheet. Medals and trophies will be awarded to all first division performers.

Laureate Alpha met May 4 in the home of Pauline Wood. Dinner was served and afterward, Mary Prudie Brown presided during the business meeting. Several announcements were made and old business discussed.

Mrs. Brown installed new officers for next year. President, Margaret Rouche; Vice President, Sammie Laws; Secretary, June Reid; Treasurer, Mamie Roten; Extension Officer, Helen Ruth Louder; Reporter, Pauline Wood. Members, who have been studying Australia the past year, then went to the home of Mrs. Louder, where they viewed the movie of that country, "Man from Snowy River."

Besides the members aforementioned, guest, Blanche Eberly of Fort Worth, was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin W. Lee Sr., of 503 Lamesa Hwy., were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary, Saturday, April 8, 1989, with a dinner at their home.

The celebration was hosted by their family of six children and 16 grandchildren.

Hospice: Help when it's needed

By SHIRLEY TOTTEBEN

During my mother's illness, Hospice played an important role. I was leery in the beginning, thinking "How could they help?" but I quickly realized how loving and caring the staff and volunteers were and how helpful and supportive they could be.

I was tied down almost totally with my mother, as she had become bedfast after an infection in January because of cancer. She went downhill quickly after that. I talked to the people at Hospice and they asked what areas I needed help.

At first, they mostly sat with mother to give me a few hours out. As she worsened, they helped bathe her, change her bed, took her vitals, encouraged me, visited her and helped take her to and from the doctor or hospital.

I was having trouble facing the fact that my mother was dying, too, but the anger and stress made me irritable and unhappy.

One day, Ingrid called me to the office and had along talk with me. She made me face the facts of the situations and explained it was okay to be angry and frustrated.

I remember I cried a lot.

She also told me mother had a right to know so we could talk about it and she could get prepared. Ingrid said we should discuss our feelings and fears with each other.

I was so unsure. I thought it would be cruel, but decided it might help mother understand why I was so angry and frustrated.

I did it! Mother, of course, already knew but we opened up with each other and discussed our fears and thoughts and ended up in each others' arms, sharing our love. Things were different for us after that.

We talked openly with each other and grew even closer. I will never be sorry for the closeness that talk created. After that, some of the stress and frustrations eased — and all the anger. That wouldn't have happened without Hospice.

When mother took a turn for the worse shortly before her death, I called Hospice. I was not left alone with her at any time. Someone from Hospice was always with me with the exception of the last night when we had volunteer sitters from the church.

In the early morning hours when Mother's condition worsened, I called the LVN from Hospice. She was there within minutes and stayed until other Hospice people arrived. There were at least three of them there with members of the family when mother passed away.

They were there to comfort and help in anyway they could. I could not have made it through this ordeal without them.

Like you, I didn't know much, if anything about Hospice or what they did.

First, there is Ingrid Williamson, a loving caring lady who really wants to help and does; Billy Hamilton, always ready to help anyway he can — more than a counselor; his wife, Nita, does paperwork, but also sits, cares, and comforts the RN who evaluates.

Then there are the sitters who volunteer their precious time because they care and want to help.

Hospice can help with the patient, help the caretaker, counsel, advise, encourage, with medical supplies, paperwork, sit and support the family when life seems darkest. But best of all: They're there if and when you need them.

However, they also need help. They can't do their jobs without public support, contributions, and volunteers. And they can't help you unless you ask for their help. That's why they're there. Use them! They know what they're doing and they are good at it.

Best of all they care and want to help. Let's not let Stanton lose this organization. We need them.

My mother used to wake up by singing a song about how beautiful the day was. My brothers and I just hated that song because we associated it with having to wake up and go to school each weekday. I wonder if they, like myself, ever long to hear her voice singing to them in their adult sleep. When I become really blue I look into my mother's gray-blue eyes and feel peace.

Happy Mother's Day to all mothers and grandmothers out there.

Piano students to audition

Fifteen Stanton piano pupils from the Class of Phyllis Mason have registered as candidates for membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians, sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Teacher Division of The American College of Musicians, of which their teacher is a member.

This group of young piano hobbyists will play in the National Piano Playing Auditions, St. Luke's Methodist Church, Midland and strive for local, district, state, national or even international honors, which the organization will confer according to the number of pieces chosen that each student can perform in the presence of an examiner.

More than 105,000 piano pupils across the nation will participate in this annual event being held in 759 music centers and every entrant worth his salt will be certificated, given a gold or bronze embossed pin, a year's Membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians and Piano Hobbyists of the World.

Begun at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, in 1929, national headquarters are still maintained in Texas, where Rules and Regulations are available on request free of charge by addressing Piano Guild, Box 1807, Austin, Texas 78767.

The names of the local entrants, pupils of Phyllis Mason are Jaclyn Chandler, Laci Chandler, Kassie Graves, Stacy Graves, Kyle Herm, Laura Herm, Jalyann Graves, Karla Hull, Jeremy Louder, Jody Louder, Ashley Miller, Amanda Mason, Katy Mason, Ashley Rine and Stephanie Wilson.

Band wins sweepstakes

For the second consecutive year, the Stanton Band was awarded the University Interscholastic League's Sweepstakes Award for having earned Division I's in Marching, Concert and Sight Reading.

On May 1, the band traveled to Crane and performed a concert before a panel of three judges: J.S. King of Plainview, Phil Anthony of Coronado High School, Lubbock and Mike Marsh of Eldorado High School. All judges gave the band Division I's, the highest rating a band may be awarded.

After the concert performance, the band then participated in the Sight Reading portion of the contest. A selection was given to the band to play; one the band had never played before.

After a time period of seven minutes of instruction, they performed the selection one time and were rated by a panel of three judges: Warren Thaxton, Abilene, Doug Fry, Abilene, and James Mallow, Brady. Again, all three judges gave the band a Division I.

The panel of judges in concert were quoted as saying, "This is a VERY FINE AA Band with good players in every section. Congratulations to you and your fine director." — Mike Marsh. "An excellent job. Great preparation and attention to detail. Congratulations! I know you are proud of your band." — Phil Anthony.

The instrumental department of Stanton ISD will be performing a final concert on May 18 in the High School Auditorium at 7 p.m. It is free and open to the public.

By MARK HOELSCHER

Water Level Maps are now complete for 1989 and we would encourage all interested individuals to come in, view them and take a copy home for future reference.

To build the maps, we measured depth to water in 63 wells throughout the county during the month of January. We then adjusted the readings to mean sea level and plotted them on a county map.

Our next step was to draw contour lines according to the data points. Since water always flows downhill in our unconfined aquifer system, we can now look at the resultant map and determine direction of groundwater flow.

Also, we are now in the process of building a similar map of water qualities throughout this county. Hopefully this will tell us where we are in terms of how good our water really is and make it easier to prove contamination when it does occur.

We would strongly encourage everyone in Martin County to bring a sample of their well water into our office to be included in this study.

For the record

Due to lack of space in last week's edition of The Herald, part of Sands' Honor Roll was omitted. Below is the remainder of the Honor Roll, beginning with Fourth Grade.

WHAT SITS OUT BACK, RUNS SUMMER AND WINTER, AND SAVES YOU MONEY?

A heat pump. And there are three good reasons you should get one. A HEAT PUMP COOLS, HEATS AND SAVES.

Replace your old air conditioner with a new electric heat pump. It's a high efficiency air conditioner in summer. In winter, it's your most energy efficient heating system, especially when the temperature is above 32°

TEXAS IS HEAT PUMP TERRITORY.

Since it stays above freezing 94% of the time in our area, you can't beat a heat pump for money-saving efficiency.

A HEAT PUMP CAN SAVE $130 A YEAR.

Compared to a gas furnace, a heat pump is more energy efficient. And TU Electric's low rates make heating and cooling your home with a heat pump an even better value. Tests have shown you can save $130 or more a year by installing a heat pump.*

GET MORE INFORMATION.

You can find out more about the amazing heat pump, including details on rebates, from your local heat pump dealer.

TU ELECTRIC
A Commitment To Service

*Typical costs based on 1,658 sq. ft. home, comparing 9.0 SEER heat pump to 9.0 SEER air conditioning unit with a gas furnace, using TU Electric rates. ($0.0385/kWh winter electric rate, $0.0651/kWh summer electric rate.)

Music club holds luncheon

The Stanton Music Club held its annual Spring Luncheon at the Community Center with the hospitality committee in charge and all members assisting.

Mrs. Gary Clevenger, president, introduced Dr. Michael Jordan from Midland College who directed the Midland College Jazz Ensemble in a program of jazz music from the 1930s through the 1960s. Members of the ensemble from Stanton are Rena Harris and Danny Koonce.

Concluding the musical program were two selections from the local group, "Shout for Joy."

Mrs. Tull Ray Louder presented the members with a certificate from the Corsicans Fruit Cake Company for top sales. Mrs. Glenn L. Brown presented a national certificate of merit for a 100 percent yearbook done by the club.

She also reported on the National Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs to be held in Fort Worth, April 24 to May 2, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Chamber studies rural healthcare

Martin County residents may be affected sooner than they think by the current state of rural health care in other parts of the state.

Rural health care could be a life or death matter to any citizen of Texas who had an accident or medical emergency while traveling through the state, members of the Texas Chamber of Commerce and legislators were told at a breakfast meeting last week.

Problems with rural health care delivery in Texas were reviewed at the regular biweekly legislative breakfast of the Texas Chamber of Commerce by Larry Milner, president and chief executive officer of the chamber, Rep. Mike McKinney and Sheryl Boyd, Ed.D of the Department of Internal Medicine of the Texas Tech Health Science Center. Both panelists were members of The Special Task Force on Rural Health Care Delivery that made its report to the Governor and the legislature

The panelists zeroed in on the declining number of health care facilities in rural areas of the state. Rep. McKinney said that 72 Texas hospitals failed in the past five years, most of them in rural areas. One of the latest was the hospital in Leon County where Rep. McKinney, a physician, practices. Last year alone, 17 hospitals in the state closed their doors.

Let's Move Texas Agriculture Forward!

And boost the economies of our rural areas.

Texas' small towns are built on agriculture, but they're slowly dying because of politics in Austin.

As long as the head of agriculture in Texas is elected by the people of Houston, Dallas and other big cities, our small towns will continue to wither and die.

Our state needs an experienced top agriculture official who truly represents farmers and ranchers and other rural Texans.

We need an agriculture commission to replace the current system of elected commissioner.

- An agriculture commission with a professional executive director who has true agriculture experience would remove politics from the system.
- A commission would give urban Texas consumers actual input on future agriculture policy instead of being at the mercy of a politician's trendy whims and the interests of foreign nations.
- A commission would provide a constant review of ag programs through public hearings, with more direct input from agricultural and consumer leaders.
- A commission would permit continuity of long-range programs needed to restore agriculture's contribution to state output!
- Very few states elect a single agriculture official as we do in Texas.

Grady's Morales captures gold in state track meet

COMANCHE — Naomi Morales came back a gold medal winner in the first ever six-man state track meet here Saturday.

Morales, a senior, helped paced the Grady girls to a seventh place finish with 24 points. Rochester, powered by the performance of sister sprinter-long jumpers Sharon and Karyn Brown, won the meet with 60 points. Jonesboro was a close second with 58 points and Harper was third with 56 points.

The Grady boys scored eight points. Loraine, on the strength of wins in the 400 and 1600 meter relays, won the boys state crown with 48 points. Strawn scored 38 points, good enough for second, and Rule was third with 37 points. District 11-A team Klondike was sixth with 26 points.

Morales won the shot put with a throw of 37-4. She has a best of 38-7.

her throw at the state six-man meet was more than three feet better than second place finisher Amy Ragan of Southland. Morales also threw the discus 89-1 to finish fifth.

The Lady Wildcats also got third place points from high jumper Sheri McMorries and quartermiler Jo Gay Tunnell. McMorries, a sophomore cleared 4-10 to win a silver medal. Despite nursing a injured hamstring, Tunnell ran a 63.81 for third in the 400 meters.

The Grady boys were paced by a fourth place finish in the high jump by junior Scott Glaze. Glaze cleared 6-0 to score four points for the Wildcats.

The other points for the Wildcats came in the 1600 meter relay where Grady finished fifth. The foursome of senior Jullian Valle (55.2), sophomore Danny Valle (53.6), Glaze (56.1) and freshman Chico Hewtt (54.6) ran a 3:39.69.

Earlier this season the foursome had run a 3:36.0, a Grady school record.

Grady boys coach Lenadro Gonzales said this has been an enjoyable track season.

"I was pleased with the turnout we had this year," said Gonzales. "Last year there was six boys in track, this year we had 15. I'm proud that we have numbers now because you can build on numbers. Next year we'll have good depth."

"The guys really put forth good effort. They enjoyed themselves and they reached their goals. They found how you have to be a goal-setter to accomplish things."

Warden: Poaching on decrease in area

There's not a lot of poaching in Howard and Martin Counties, according to Game Warden Wayne Armstrong.

But if would-be poachers get caught — it could mean a hefty chunk out of their pocketbooks.

Hunting from a public road, where Armstrong says most of the poaching takes place in the two counties he covers, has a minimum fine of $25 and a maximum fine of $500.

"If poachers are caught it's megabucks," said Armstrong. "... the fine will be closer to $500 than $25 — I can assure you of that."

Armstrong, who has been game warden in the area for seven years, said there used to be a lot of poaching in the two counties but "it has kind of slowed down a good bit now."

"It was all kinds of poaching — deer, turkey, quail, dove — shooting dove off the powerlines and stuff like that."

"It happens all the time still but it kind of goes in spurts. The last year or two it hasn't been that big a problem."

Armstrong says a new game warden has to get out and "beat the bushes more" but once he gets established people who see illegal poaching will call and report it.

"I've been here going on seven years. That helps a whole lot. People know what you will file on and what you won't."

"I've got a bunch of good landowners. Most of them will file on you (for poaching and trespassing). I haven't got but about a dozen in the whole county who won't file on you for trespass."

"Whenever you get someone that helps you like that, it makes your job easy."

Poaching problems in Martin and Howard Counties are different, Armstrong says.

"I don't have any more poaching in Martin County than I do in Howard, it's just a different situation. I've got a lot of deer night work over here (Howard County). But most of the problem in Martin County is during dove and quail season."

"There's no deer in Martin County to speak of. Howard County, on the other hand, has good hunting. We're at the north edge of the Edwards Plateau, and of course you know that the Edwards Plateau is where all the good deer hunting takes place."

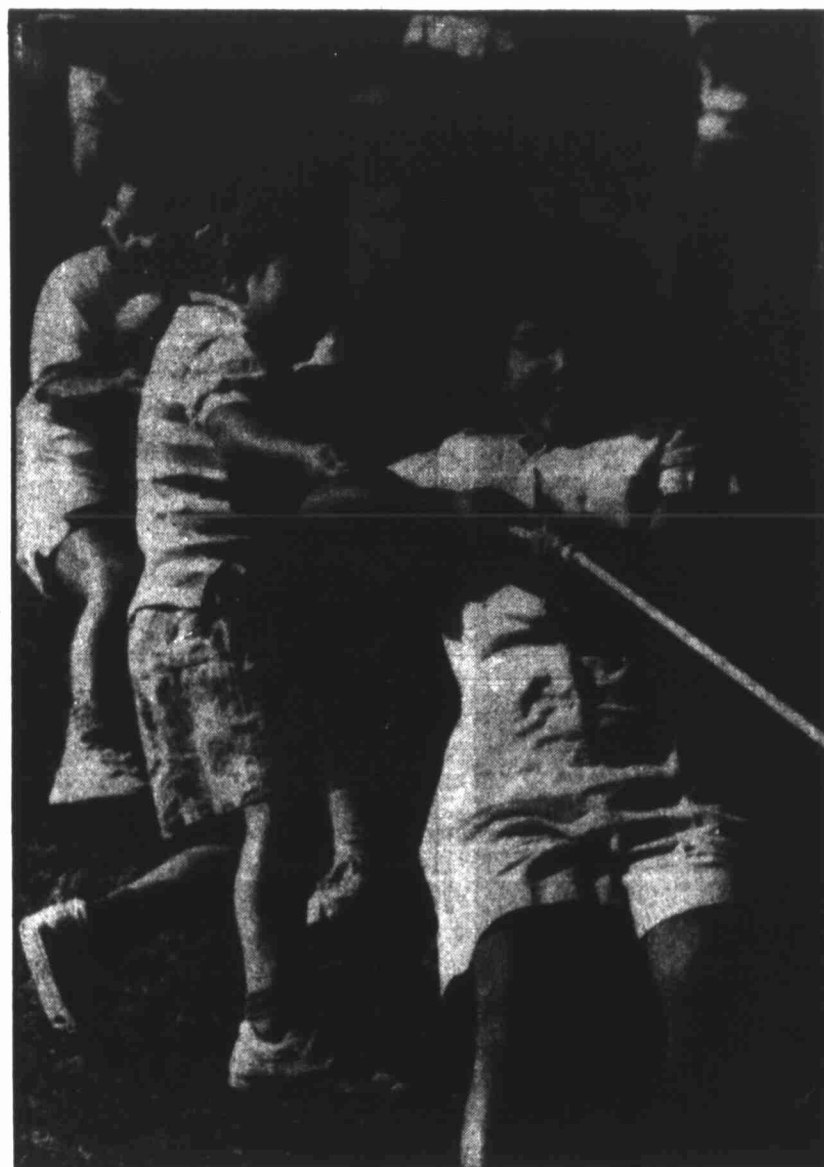

Armstrong said that the best deer he had seen come out of Howard County had a 27 1/2 inch spread.

"That was the biggest spread I've seen come out of here since I've been game warden. I'm sure that's not the rule but the exception."

Poaching has been more of a hunting problem than a fishing problem, Armstrong said.

Martin 4-Hers place in region competition

Some 70 Martin County residents traveled to Alpine this past weekend for 4-H round-up competition. These youths learned to organize their thoughts and present them to an audience.

First place ribbons were presented in three competition areas to Martin County 4-H'ers. Jason Williams and Suzie Ruth placed first in Citizenship & County Government Awareness. They did their presentation on the involvement of the community in the Convent project.

Kelly Harrell placed first with her demonstration on how to use a VCR. The demonstration was done in Electric Energy Competition. Jacob Reid and Jan Holland placed first with their demonstration on how to grow your own alfalfa sprouts. They are certainly headed for a healthy life style of eating.

Four teams received second place awards. In Family Life Educational Activity, Amanda Riley, Beinda Riley and Amy Groves did a skit about table manners.

Justin Burch and Sally Averitt talked about the many uses of a Cowboy's Bandana. Kelly Riddle and Brandon Lipps competed in Agronomy. The boys told how to take a soil sample and interpret the results of a soil test. John Bryan and Chris Meier used their Scouting experience to teach how to build a safe camp fire.

Third place awards went to the following three teams: Trey Harrell and Josh Madison did a demonstration on Soccer Rules.

Jennifer Adkins used her love of showing cattle to talk about points to look for in choosing a show steer. The Share the Fun team did a take-off on the Gong Show. Ryan Webb played the announcer.

Courtney Epley did an off-key version of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow". Jason Hopper (dressed as a girl) did a panomime of Cindy Lauper. Whistling tummy buttons gave us all a chuckle when performed by Jason Hopper and Jeremy Louder. With hair standing on end, and a bouquet of flowers in his hand, Jeremy Louder did his rendition of Alfalfa (from the Little Rascals). Sonja Hopper, Janie Lewis and Misti Carder did two dance routines. Team coaches were Lou Smith and Betty Hopper.

Martin County 4-Hers extend their thanks to the Methodist Jr. High Youth for their performance of Positive I.D. and their moral support during competition. The production was done by Kari Ruth, Stacy Tollison, Angela Hagins, Casey Reid, Trey Hinojosa, and Roy Posey. Kenny Stewart manned the lights. Penny Clevenger was the director.

The group was accompanied by County Extension Agents Kathryn Burch, Greg Jones, and Victor Lucero. Parents, friends, coaches, and other relatives also accompanied the group giving a total of some 70 people from Martin County attending the event.

Morales, Glaze, Terrell capture top honors at banquet

HERALD STAFF REPORT
LENORAH — Flying High in '89 was the theme of the Grady All-Sports Banquet here Tuesday night and 120 people attended the event that salutes Grady High School athletes.

Coming away with the most prestigious awards — the Best All-Around Male and Female Athlete were a pair of juniors and a senior. Grady coach Randy Peel presented the All-Around Female Award. Peel said, "This young lady has done a very good job this year. I'm real proud of her, she's worked hard all year." Then he presented the award to senior Naomi Morales. Morales played basketball and threw the shot put and discus in track.

This year she won the shot put at the district meet, regional meet and six-man state track meets. She will compete Friday in the Class A state track meet in Austin.

Grady coach Tommy Terrell then presented All-Around Male Athlete Award. He said the recipients had all the ingredients it takes to be an all-around athlete. He listed the ingredients as: 1. Being ready to play at all times; 2. Dedication to the game; 3. Hard work throughout the year; 4. Willingness to do whatever it takes to win; and 5. Desire to excel.

He then presented the awards to juniors Scott Glaze and Scott Terrell. Both athletes played football, basketball and track. Both were all-district performers in football and basketball, and Terrell qualified for the regional track meet in the pole vault.

The awards banquet was begun by Mistress of Ceremonies JoGay Tunnell, who called on Tim McKaskle to give the invocation.

Then coach Johnny Tubb gave all Grady High School athletes their letters of awards. First year lettermen received jackets, and veteran lettermen received GHS letters for their jackets.

Coach Peel then presented the Most Dedicated Lady Athlete Award. He said this young lady "is an athlete the others can pattern themselves after." Miss Tunnell received the award.

Grady Head Coach Leandro Gonzales then presented the Fightin' Wildcat Award to Julian Valle. Gonzales said Valle was the "most devoted, most consistent and most dependable."

Cheerleader sponsor Lynn Smith read off her rap version praising the Grady pep squad. Then she presented flowers to cheerleaders Tunnell, Sheri McMorries, Laurie Romine and Carrie Nelson.

Smith presented the Football Hero Award to senior Kenneth Garza. Coach Gonzales followed by presenting the Football Sweetheart Award to Tunnell.

Grady senior bound for state

LENORAH — Naomi Morales has broad shoulders, and it's a good thing, because she will be carrying a lot of weight on them this weekend at the state track meet in Austin.

Morales, a senior, will be competing in the Class A state shot put competition Friday night at Memorial Stadium. It will be her second trip to state competition. Last year she finished fourth in the shot, with a toss of 35-4.

This year Morales has thrown the eight-pound ball 38-7. Going in to this weekend's competition, she has the best throw. There are a host of shot putters in the 37-foot range, though.

Morales already has one state title under her belt. Last Saturday she won the gold medal at the six-man state track meet in Comanche. Her throw of 37-2 was almost four feet better than the second place finisher.

She admits she didn't feel about that meet as she does about this state meet. "I didn't feel any pressure because coach had told me there wouldn't be that much competition. I wasn't worried."

The state Class A meet is where Morales' broad shoulders will be coming in. "I feel the pressure," she said of being the favorite going into Friday's competition. "I feel like I have to win because I have the best throw."

Her coach, Randy Peel, seems confident that his star shot put can handle the pressure. "Naomi handles pressure well. At Levelland (Region I-A meet) she was behind on her first two throws. Then she came back and got ahead on her third throw. I'd say that's handling pressure," said Peel.

Morales credits much of her added improvement to more work in the weight room, not only under the close supervision of coach Peel, but also dad Joel, who frequently works out with his daughter on the weights.

"I lifted every other day, doing a lot of repetitions," said Morales. "Sometimes I think my dad pushes me harder than coach Peel. I've just started liking lifting. I found out that it makes me better."

Naomi also says she's gotten quicker in the ring. "My form is about the same but I'm a little quicker this year. I guess it just comes from practice."

In the stands at Austin, watching her every move, will be dad and mom Henrietta.

The Grady shot putter has been a picture of consistency the past two years. In 16 track meets, she has only been beaten in the shot put four times. Her only loss this year was at the Klondike meet. Sterling City's Kendra Rushing threw a season-best 36-10, beating Morales by eight inches. Rushing will be at the state meet.

Naomi feels the 9 p.m. throwing time Friday is to her benefit. "I don't like to throw in the sun. I rather be throwing when it's cool," she said.

Coach Peel said another strong factor for Naomi is that she gets stronger as the competition goes. "She likes to peak at a certain time, and that's usually during her third, fourth and fifth throws. Usually, she'll hit a good one during one of those throws," said Peel.

"I really don't know why I throw better later. Maybe I get my adrenalin flowing," said Naomi.

Coach Peel has a sure, but simple theory for his shot putter this weekend. "If she throws 38-7 I'm not worried. If she throws in the low 30's it'll be tight. It'll be finger-nail biting time."

Morales is aiming for a 40-foot throw. "I want to at least throw 40-feet. I've got to win... I'd better do it or else. It's what my mother wants for Mother's Day."

Bufs' banquet honors best Stanton athletes

HERALD STAFF REPORT
The Stanton Buffalos Booster Club hosted the annual Athletic Banquet on Tuesday at Bonnie's Restaurant. Coach Dayle Ruth, Stanton High School Athletic Director, said that more than 200 people attended.

Clovis Hale, assistant coach for the University of Texas Longhorns, spoke to the athletes and their parents.

"Coach Hale gave a great speech," Ruth said. "The message was good. He told the students to never give up, to keep going, and to find what you really want and go for it. We are really pleased that he was able to attend."

Several awards and recognitions were presented to the athletes. Most Improved Athlete went to Stacie Tom and Matt Myrick. Mitzi Koonce and Kenneth McCalister were the recipients of the Newcomer of the Year awards.

Kevin Barnes and Anthony Inman tied for the 110 percent Award. The female student receiving the award was Karen Graves.

"The 110 percent Award is received by those who go way beyond the call of duty," Ruth said. "They never give up. They always give their best shot, and these three athletes did that all year."

The award for Best All Around Athlete was presented to Kaki Elmore and Kellie Glaspie. Robert Jones also received the award.

"Both Kaki and Elmore are outstanding athletes," Ruth said. "They played basketball and golf and excelled in each sport."

"Robert Jones participated in all sports and performed very well in each," Ruth added. "He was All-District running back for the last two years. He was outstanding in basketball and track, too. He is quite a long jumper."

Brad Holland received the Coaches' Fighting Heart Award. "This award goes to the athlete that is strong in both body and spirit," Ruth said. "This is for the student who never gives up no matter what happens."

"The student who receives the Fighting Heart Award has been the one who sets the best example for others to follow. Brad Holland hurt his back two years ago and never once gave up. He's truly a great leader — a very courageous young man."

Cheyenne Romine, daughter of Jackie and Toby Romine of Grady, participated in the YWCA State Gymnastic meet held in San Angelo on May 5, 6 and 7. The 9-year-old won third Place in All-Around competition as well as third Place, Vault; third Place, Uneven Bars; fourth Place, Balance Beam; and sixth Place, Floor.
