Japan Gets Heaviest Raid

5,000 Tons Of Bombs Hit Fields, Cities

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
Associated Press War Editor

Great flights of carrier planes and Superfortress gave Japan its heaviest mauling of the war today.

Perhaps 5,000 tons of explosives and incendiaries were loosed by sea-borne planes raking airfields of Southwestern Japan in a two-day attack, and by 350 Superfortresses in setting fire to the aircraft city of Nagoya for the second time within eight days.

As the war closed in on Japan, Tokyo reported medium bombers from Iwo Jima raided a guardian island 200 miles south of the capital city and a fleet of Allied submarines began moving from Indo-China waters into the China sea toward Japan.

American forces on the Philippines invaded their 24th island, advanced on all fronts and counted a total of 262,000 Japanese soldiers killed in the campaign, to 18,579 American casualties, including 3,813 killed.

Fighters and bombers from Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier forces, reported to number 1,400, swept over Kyushu, Shikoku and Southern Honshu island for eight hours Sunday, and Tokyo radio reported they returned to the attack at 6 a.m. today.

Between those two strikes some 350 Superforts rained 2,500 tons of fire bombs on Nagoya, on Central

British Public Disturbed Over Pending Crisis

LONDON, March 19—(AP)—Public agitation mounted today with persistent rumors of an impending food crisis and it appeared that the rising tide of civilian alarm might force some announcement in commons shortly.

Disclosure by Washington that the United States planned to cut lend-lease meat supplies by 87 percent during the next quarter has caused a mild sensation through England.

London newspapers pointed out yesterday that the new allotment of 25,000,000 pounds in the next three months, contrasted with 200,000,000 pounds for the present quarter, would break down the ration of American meat to less than one ounce per person per week.

Throughout the nation the Washington announcement made front page news and newspapers devoted editorials to discussions of British needs. The Sunday dispatch used all its editorial space on the subject, urging a "continuance of American generosity," which it said was necessary in this sixth year of the war.

Colombia Liberals Hold 2-1 Majority

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 19—(AP)—Nearly complete returns from Colombia's congressional elections yesterday indicated today that the liberals would retain a two to one majority in the chamber of deputies.

It appeared certain, however, that the communists had won at least five seats—an increase of four.

Fugitive Says Adolf Knows the Jig Is Up

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Copyright, 1945, by The Associated Press

BONN, Germany, March 19—(AP)—A man who is a fugitive from German authority because he was implicated in the July 20 bombing attempt on Hitler's life has told me that the fuehrer, fully aware that the war is lost, now peps himself up from time to time watching movies showing the purging of generals and nobles who died for their part in the plot.

My informant, who gave a complete story of the bomb plot, is a man I have known for years and in whose integrity and veracity I have a firm belief.

Here is his story:

The bomb attempt failed because Hitler did not receive his officers in a concrete bunker July 20, but in a wooden shed to show Mussolini and high Italians he was not afraid of air raids. The Italians were scheduled to attend a ceremony incorporating remnants of the fascist army into the wehrmacht.

The bomb's effectiveness had been calculated on the assumption that the explosion would occur in a much smaller room than where Hitler at this time sat. The bunker, with concrete walls, was to heighten the impact of the blast.

Secondly, it failed because at the moment of the explosion, Hitler stepped to a cupboard to look for a magnifying glass. The bomb had been placed under his chair.

Even so, Hitler was badly hurt. His hearing apparently has been impaired permanently. His right arm was injured, but nursed back to health by Professor Gohrband, noted Berlin physician. He also suffered some burns.

As an aftermath of the nerve-wracking experience, Hitler fell seriously ill in the second half of September. Since then he often loses his memory, and for days is unable to function as chief of state and supreme commander of the wehrmacht. Occassionally he swoons. Frequently speech fails him, or he can pronounce words only with great difficulty.

These facts, my informant said,

Black Shortage Causes Tire Cut

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—The OPA has ordered a deep slash in passenger tire allocations for April because of an acute shortage of the vital tire ingredient carbon black.

The agency announced that only 1,000,000 tires will be available for rationing next month, as compared with 1,600,000 in March. Steps have been taken to increase the carbon black output.

This 37½ percent cut reduces the monthly allocation below the 1,500,000 mark for the first time since last May, and pushes farther into the future any release of new tires for "A" card motorists.

Because of the general seriousness of the supply situation all tire ration certificates dated earlier than last Dec. 1 will be canceled on April 1, OPA said. Drivers holding such certificates may use them until that time if they can locate tires.

More Squeeze Anticipated On Home Front

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—A new and tighter squeeze on food, shoes, tires and manpower may become even more discomforting to the home front as the Allies close in on Berlin and Tokyo.

Government officials frankly predicted this today, saying there will be little if any relief as long as the two-front war continues. They added that civilian meat allocations—cut to the lowest point in ten years for the April-June quarter—are not expected to increase much before both Germany and Japan are defeated.

A 12 percent cut in the home front's meat supply was announced over the weekend as the OPA slashed April passenger tire quotas 37 percent below this month's level.

In another reflection of the war's quickening pace, selective service said that to retain more young and irreplaceable men in industry it will be necessary to draft more men over 29.

These moves followed closely announcement last week of a deep cut in the amount of leather available for civilian shoes because of increased military demands.

"There is no doubt about it, the people at home are facing the tightest all-around supply situation of the war, and it is going to get worse before it gets better," a highly placed official said.

The cut in civilian meat allocations will give the armed forces four percent more in the next three months than in this quarter. It means rationing at home at the rate of 115 pounds a person a year—30 pounds less than last year and ten pounds under the 1935-39 average.

Announcing the meat program, the office of war information also disclosed that sharp reductions in lend-lease meat shipments have been ordered to maintain this country's supply at what it termed a safe level. Britain will get only 25,000,000 pounds, compared with 207,000,000 pounds this quarter, evidently because Britain's meat reserves are now sufficient to sustain her. The balance of lend-lease shipments—300,000,000 pounds—will go to Russia in accordance with a long-standing agreement.

School Aid Bill High on Senate Argument Roster

AUSTIN, March 19—(AP)—A bill providing $14,000,000 annually for state aid to rural schools topped the senate's calendar today, and much interest centered in scheduled committee hearings on controversial legislation.

The senate committee on civil jurisprudence will hear witnesses on the so-called white primary bill at a public hearing at 3:30 p.m.; the senate committee on commerce and manufacturing will hold a public hearing on the so-called fair trade practices bill at 7:30 p.m.; and a night hearing was set by the state affairs committee of the house on a bill creating a Texas natural resource commission.

Out in force to oppose Sen. Weaver Moore's bill repealing numerous election laws is the state democratic executive committee, contending the bill unnecessarily stirs up the race question and would hopelessly muddle the election statutes.

Moore's bill was written as a result of the U. S. supreme court's decision last summer, holding that Negroes could vote in Texas primaries. The court held that primaries, so long as they were sanctioned and governed by state statutes, could not be closed to Negroes.

The fair trade bill and the white primary bill were both recommitted for further hearing upon order of the senate.

Lawmakers Rap Petrillo, Lewis

AUSTIN, March 19—(AP)—The Texas senate today by a roaring voice vote, unanimously adopted a strongly worded resolution by Maj. Allan Shivers of Beaumont who criticized James A. Petrillo "czar of the musicians union for exacting tribute from the families of servicemen who are dying to keep America free and John L. Lewis head of the United Mine Workers of America planning to follow the precedent."

Speaking in behalf of his resolution, Shivers said:

"The language of the resolution may be a little strong, but in my opinion it is not.

"Yesterday I saw two things in marked contrast. One was a news story telling how John L. Lewis had demanded a 10 cent a ton levy on coal produced and one in which it told of how Petrillo had succeeded in exacting his tribute on each musical recording, to be paid into a fund for which only he is accountable.

"Then, by contrast I saw a news reel of the German breakthrough in Belgium in December and how our men were fighting and dying and I wondered what men like Lewis and Petrillo were doing. Were they sitting in warm, comfortable offices wondering about their tribute or were they thinking of how many of our men were fighting and dying on foreign soil?

"Apparently with official condolence, or at least without any effective measures of prevention, Petrillo is exacting tribute from families of service men and Lewis is planning to follow in his footsteps.

"It is not this type of freedom or liberty I want to come back to and I believe my opinion is shared by other men of the service

Preliminary Is Waived, Pearce's Trial Isn't Set

BULLETIN

District Attorney Walter Rogers said this afternoon the 31st district grand jury had been called for Wednesday morning to study the Pearce case, as well as other matters.

Examining trial of Garland Pearce, 25-year-old typewriter and adding machine repairman here, was waived this morning when his lawyer, John Sturgeon, and his father appeared with him in the court of the examining magistrate, Justice of the Peace Charles Hughes.

Bond was set at $10,000, and Pearce was then returned to the Gray county jail. Bond had not been posted at noon today.

Pearce, former serviceman, is being held in connection with the fatal shooting of Leonard Brown, 48, driver for a local taxi company, early Saturday morning at the cab station, corner of Cuyler and Francis.

The two are said to have argued about the length of life of a driver's license.

Funeral rites for the victim were scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. from the Harrah Methodist church here, with the Rev. Wells officiating. Burial will be at Memphis, Texas.

The family, members of which arrived early today from California, said Brown's body would lie in state at the home of his father, W. L. Brown, at 917 Ripley street, from this afternoon at 4:30 until time for the rites.

80,000 Foe May Be Trapped

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press War Editor

Tanks of the U. S. Third army sliced to within 14 miles of the Rhine gateway city of Mainz today, and with advancing Seventh army troops deepened wedges threctening a double entrapment of perhaps 80,000 Germans fleeing the great Saarland triangle under punishing aerial strikes.

Americans in the Remagen bridgehead—still expanding slowly despite collapse of the Ludendorff bridge—fought on the edge of the plain running north to the Ruhr. In the north, Germans apparently were pulling back from the Holland area north of Nijmegen.

Armored columns of the Third army thrust to within 22 and 45 miles of junctions with the American Seventh army in the Saar triangle, and the two armies steadily were closing these gaps menacing envelopment of sizable portions of battered German divisions.

Two Armies Forming Pincer

One push south of Birkenfeld carried to within 22 miles of Seventh army troops pushing up behind Saarbruecken. A still greater pincers was closing father east in the Kaiserslautern area, where vanguards of the Third and Seventh armies were 45 miles apart. Third army tanks had pushed across the Nahe river at Bad Kreuznach and were 19 miles from Kaiserslautern, Seventh army troops, gaining up to half a dozen miles along a 50-mile front, were 26 miles from that highway escape center.

Northeast of Bad Kreuznach, the Fourth armored division captured Sprendlingen, 14 miles southwest of Mainz, one of the principal escape routes for Germans in the huge, dwindling Saar pocket.

Russian forces struck westward along the Pomeranian coast from fallen Kolberg, on the flank of the First White Russian army fighting for Stettin and the mouth of the Oder river. Pressure to topple Stettin, where fighting surged in outer suburbs, mounted.

Patrol clashes marked the Italian front, with Germans still resisting strongly along the line south of Bologna. Italian volunteers fighting with the Allies seized and held a German strongpoint between Cuffiano and Riolo de Bagni, five miles south of Imola.

Front dispatches said the Ludendorff, which collapsed Saturday from strain due to severing of a main girder by German demolitions when it was caputred March 7, could be repaired. Pontoon bridges still were feeding troops and supplies, if not heavy equipment, across the Rhine. Americans crossed the Ruhr-Frankfurt superhighway at a new point, and seized an airfield east of the highway.

Man Is Found Dead in Canadian Hotel Room

CANADIAN, March 19 (Special)—A verdict of death from natural causes has been returned in the death of a man who was identified as Fletcher Castoria Kisterson.

Kisterson was found in his hotel room at about 8 o'clock p.m., Sunday by G. K. Engle, owner of the Moody hotel. Kisterson had registered there early Saturday afternoon.

Canadian authorities checked with draft board officials at Wilson, Oklahoma, the place Kisterson was registered, and found that a brother, whose name was not learned, lived in Kilgore, Texas.

The body is at Stickley funeral home here awaiting arrival of relatives.

Lobbying Charge Hearing Slated For Airing Today

AUSTIN, March 19—(AP)—Vance Muse of Houston, an official of the Christian American organization and W. M. Akin of the congress of industrial organizations were top witnesses scheduled to come before a house investigating committee today.

The committee was created last week to investigate certain alleged lobbying both for and against pending legislation which would outlaw closed shop clauses in labor contracts.

Some members indicated after the first two sessions they would move to call the investigation off if it did not develop more tangible evidence than was initially brought out.

Rep. Ennis Favors of Pampa, author of the resolution that started the inquiry, told the committee that he had no concrete evidence of practices alleged in his resolution. Other witnesses told the committee they had no knowledge of any money being offered or accepted by legislators in connection with the bill.

Muse appeared before the committee at its first session and left his local address, declaring he was ready to testify at any time.

The 1945 Pampa chamber of commerce membership drive, was opened with a kick-off breakfast at the Courthouse cafe this morning.

Members were given their supplies and instructions by Paul Carmichael, chairman of the membership committee, and by C. P. Pursley, chamber of commerce president.

The chamber has a membership of about 220 now, and the goal set is 200 new members. The drive closes April 8 with a noon luncheon at which time Carl Benefiel will outline the plans of the post-war planning committee of which he is chairman.

Maine Senator Enters Argument On Water Treaty

WASHINGTON, March 19—(AP)—A controversy originating 3,000 miles southwest beckoned the state of Maine today into the senate scrap over ratification of the Mexican water treaty.

"We may be 3,000 miles away," said Senator White of Maine, the republican leader, "but I believe we have a very real interest in the controversy."

Here is the way White reasons it: The pending treaty affects the waters of the Colorado river, which flow into Mexico from the United States, and also the Rio Grande, boundary line between the two countries. Maine likewise has a boundary river, the St. John, which separates her from New Brunswick, Canada.

The Mexican treaty would vest general administration in an international boundary and water commission. Opponents of the treaty contend the commission would have "totally unprecedented power," including the right to executive its own decisions.

That's the same point that bothers White.

"If the commission is to have the right to build such structures as it sees fit on a boundary stream, and divert waters from one country to another, the precedent that would be established in the treaty would be of very vital interest to us—in fact, to the whole northern tier of states," he said.

"I intend to devote what spare time I have looking into that question."

Rain Slowing Up Work on Farms

By The Associated Press

Showers and mild temperatures were general overmost of Texas today and the rains were causing numerous farm work interruptions.

A fire loss estimated at $33,000 was recorded when lightening struck an oil storage tank of Burkburnett.

Reports of rains hindering planting came from such representative points as Paris, San Antonio, Dallas, Fort Worth, and Waco.

At Burkburnett 12,000 barrels of crude oil and a 55,000 gallon steel tank of the Gulf pipe line company were destroyed when lightning struck and set it on fire last night. Unofficial estimates placed the loss at $33,000.

Bexar County Agent H. A. Fitzhugh said rains in the San Antonio area had delayed planting of feed crops at least two or three weeks, but small grains already in the ground were making unusual growth.

Decline of the Cuss Word

H. L. Mencken discusses profanity in the Columbia university quarterly, American Speech, with the scholarship and enthusiasm which he typically bestows upon our language. We find it a little hard to share his nostalgic regret of the passing of true profanity since the Civil War, with only faint revivals in the World Wars of 1918 and today.

But we do share his concern at the substitutes which are replacing cuss words for purposes of invective. Mr. Mencken lists such tags as plutocrat, capitalist, communist, fascist, radical, Rotarian, isolationist, anti-Semite, nazi and new dealer by way of illustration.

He is careful to call these words "intrinsically innocuous," which they are. But in intent and connotation they can become exceedingly opprobrious. They can accuse a man of anything from smugness to treason.

Used specifically, of course, they are perfectly good and necessary words. But they throw upon their user the burden of documentary proof. This proof the user is frequently unable to give, and the listener is too frequently unwilling to demand it.

General insult is preferable to particular accusation. And most of us, if we had to choose, would rather be called a damned fool than a communist or fascist. So if this new vogue for categorical calumny continues, we are going to join up with Mr. Mencken in a movement to restore damns and hells to a more general use.

Incredible Statistics

This is a war of staggering incredibility. Even a person who feels confidently at home in discussions of infinity and eternity probably finds some of the wartime statistics as mind-staggering as do the rest of us.

The national debt is quite beyond comprehension in terms of actual money. Its increase or limitation or eventual reduction is an even dizzier subject. We just can't see how a nation can pay our almost $300,000,000 every day to run the war—even when William L. Batt of the WLB comes along, as he did the other day, to show where some of the money has gone.

Mr. Batt's figures on four and a half years of American war production are as staggering as the rest of the statistics. More than 87 billion rounds of small arms ammunition; over 11 million rifles and carbines; 246,845 airplanes; 130,000 tanks; 51,000 landing vessels, and so on. This is information to make America stand in silent awe at its own productiveness.

But the most awesome and incredible thing of all is that shortages can threaten and exist, in spite of these tremendous totals. Our production figures are something to stand and admire only briefly. For production is only a race with expenditure. And the weapons of war, like the dollars that buy them, are spent at a prodigious rate.

When Tokyo is occupied and the Mikado fallen, then will be time enough for America to stand back, mop its brow, and stare in sober unbelief at the astronomical cost of victory in planes, ships, guns and cash.

The Nation's Press

FREE WORKER'S MAN THE ARSENAL

(The Chicago Daily Tribune)

William L. Batt, vice president of the war production board, in releasing figures on the tremendous output of American war industries in all categories, said that our production of war materials now is equal to that of "all our allies and enemies" combined. The staggering figures he disclosed should be cause for pride in every American and they will send a chill thru our enemies. Yet on the other side of the government street from Mr. Batt, Mr. Roosevelt and the New Dealers are saying that we have fallen down on the job and that only a forced labor bill will enable us to hold our heads up among our allies.

Mr. Roosevelt a few years ago liked to say that this country would prove itself the arsenal of democracy. Now he wants to forget democratic methods and to introduce a totalitarian system into the arsenal, so that as commander in chief he will boss not only the man in uniform but the civilian worker. In his behalf Secretary of War Stimson has been raising the principal clamor for a work draft.

Mr. Stimson recently made a radio speech bemoaning the fact that we have not "organized our workers." He stated: "In this we are alone among our allies. While we have no service law, Britain and Russia have been working under such laws since the very beginning of the war. We alone are depending upon voluntary and, therefore, ineffective methods of organization among the workers who are producing the arms and equipment of our soldiers and furnishing them with their ships and all the other necessities of war."

We think it necessary to emphasize that phrase "voluntary and, therefore, ineffective." There, in four words, you have the New Deal approach to everything. Regiment us all and we'll become effective—or, at least, Mr. Roosevelt's command over us will become effective. Allow us to remain free and we'll be ineffective."

Will we become as effective as the Russians, or the British, who know the joys of regimentation? If so, our production will slump to a fraction of present output, for the "organized" British and Russians, together with all our enemies, are just managing to produce what free American labor is producing.

Russia's population is, perhaps, 175,000,000. Britain's is 45,000,000 and, with the dominions, perhaps 70,000,000. There are 90,000,000 Japanese and something like 70,000,000 people in the German sphere. We are producing more war materials than all the 380,000,000 people divided among our allies and our enemies, which is to say that, man for man, we are outproducing them about 3 to 1, and in addition, are making our proportionate contribution of fighting men.

In every comparison free American labor outstrips foreign impressed labor. The British cotton textile mission disconsolately reported that American workers produce from 1.25 to 10 times more per hour than do Lancashire workers. American coal miners produce four tons more of coal a day than they did two years ago. In England, under compulsion,the miner is producing only one ton more a day. Today American workers are producing 30 per cent more rubber per man per day than they did two years ago. Aircraft workers are producing 83 per cent more per man than two years ago. All this has been done without slave labor.

We have not the slightest need for the importation of foreign models to utilize our productive resources and our man power. We can teach the rest of the world. The other nations are inefficient failures in comparison.

The only objective which can be attained by totalitarian control over the people is the political result of establishing a clique and its leader in control of the life of every one. That is the only purpose of the proposed work draft legislation.

"No Inflation Coming"

I have just read a booklet written by a self-styled investment counsellor, William J. Baxter, on the subject of "No Inflation Coming."

His whole argument is that because we can produce so much there will be no inflation. His contention is that engineers will prevent inflation.

What Mr. Baxter does not seem to understand is that it is not engineers alone that make it possible for great production. Great production requires moral leadership, and in that we are almost bankrupt. There can be great enough production to prevent inflation so long as the public follows men who believe in no eternal, immutable laws. Production and improved living standards are a result of morality, not of engineering alone. Trusting in engineering alone without morality is a delusion and a snare.

Another thing Mr. Baxter overlooks in "No Inflation Coming" is that economic laws do not change with the location or the age. If we put more weight on one side of a scale than on the other, whether it be in Germany, Russia or the United States, no matter how big or small the scale, the result will be that one side will go up and the other down. We cannot continue to print bonds as money and have unlimited borrowing from the banks without having that kind of medium of exchange called money buy less and less. If the process continues, it is a mathematical certainty that a dollar will not buy a toothpick. The question, the answer of which is not yet a certainty, is how long we will continue to permit such immoral leadership that fools the gullible public by borrowing instead of taxing.

This Mr. Baxter who is now advising the public and duping people who buy his book is the same Mr. Baxter who a few years ago advised people to buy Japanese bonds, who said that Mussolini would be a great leader of Europe, who said it was almost like taking candy from a baby to take money from those who were willing to bet Roosevelt would defeat Willkie. Now this same Mr. Baxter writes a book saying there is no inflation coming.

He does not seem to know what money is. He seems to think credit is money as he uses the words interchangeably.

Do not misunderstand me. I do not contend that there will be any continuous rise in prices. We may have a temporary deflation, but so long as the government continues not to balance the budget and to issue more and more bonds that can be converted into mediums of exchange, the trend in money prices will be upward.

I do not mean to say that an ounce of gold will buy less, but a politically printed piece of paper called a dollar will gradually buy less and less, taken over a period of time if we continue to pay our government costs by borrowing instead of taxing.

The National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

DYNAMITE—The most politically embarrassing problem on Capitol Hill today is the proposal to give permanent, legal status to the committee on fair employment practice, which now strives to prevent job discrimination only by the authority of an executive order.

Although the bill received a favorable report from the house labor committee several weeks ago, the rules committee has not moved to touch this piece of dynamite. No hearings have been held preparatory to sending it to the floor for debate and action. Labor Committee Chairman Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, has been threatening to obtain immediate consideration by the petition method. By this system she must get 218 members' signatures to wrest the measure from rules and bring it to the house itself.

The republicans would like to use the plan as a means of widening the split among democrats, figuring that Southerners and administration proponents of the scheme will clash bitterly. Should one of their men join with the six Southern democrats on rules, they could bottle up the bill and thereby force Mrs. Norton to make every man stand up and be counted when she circulates her petition.

But the GOP-ers fear that this strategy may cost them voters in the various groups which would benefit from the suggested law, especially among the colored people. Moreover, Governor Thomas E. Dewey has sponsored and procured the enactment of a drastic anti-discrimination statute in Albany. Open opposition to a federal counterpart would be interpreted as repudiation of the party's 1944 presidential candidate.

It is believed that the proposal will pass the house through a combination of republicans and administration democrats, but it will face a filibuster and more serious difficulties in the senate. The bill's backers, especially the CIO, want President Roosevelt to issue a public demand for action. But the White House seems content to let congress deal with the question without giving any advice.

POLITICS—Senator Joseph F. Guffey has informed friends that he will probably run for governor of Pennsylvania instead of seeking re-election when his term expires in 1946. He hopes that he can negotiate a deal by which the state's present republican governor, Edward Martin, will step aside and seek a place in the upper chamber.

Mr. Guffey looks on senatorial life as a chore. His great ambition is to be boss of the Keystone state, and he thinks he can assume that role more effectively in Harrisburg than in Washington. He has an excellent attendance record, but he has not made more than a few speeches in his career as a lawmaker. Nor does he burden himself with committee labors. He is the perfect type of legislative wheel horse.

As governor of Pennsylvania, Mr. Guffey would be a great help to F.D.R. should the President seek a fifth term or, as everyone expects, try to nominate his successor four years hence. Joe would control the second largest group of delegates in the convention, and he has deviated from the White House only a few times, most notably when he opposed confirmation of the "Stettinius team" in the state department.

With "Governor" Guffey stringing along with Governor Maurice J. Tobin of Massachusetts, James M. Mead as governor of New York, Frank Hague holdining the reins in New eJrsey, Ed Kelly in Illinois, and with the South leaping aboard the White House bandwagon, Mr. Roosevelt would probably command a majority in the convention for himself or his favorite for the next presidential nomination.

It may seem somewhat early for the politicos to start discussion of 1948, but they don't believe in doing tomorrow what can be done today to catch the grand prize. Anyway, the Guffey plan to head for Harrisburg is generally regarded as part of a well-organized program to keep the new deal faction in control of the party machinery.

RANKIN—House members are privately peeved at Representative John E. Rankin's open demand that stenographers reporting their speeches for the Congressional Record take down and perpetuate for was studded with such expressions as "loud and prolonged applause." applause," "rising and cheering," etc. The vociferous publicity seeker from Mississippi exposed a racket to win acclaim back home and votes at the polls.

Many congressmen insert notations of approving demonstrations even when there has been no reaction of any kind. Few weeks ago, a speaker addressed a late afternoon group of no more than six. All save one were drowsing or reading newspapers. Even had they yelled at the top of their lungs, they would hardly have been heard in the cloakrooms. Yet the Record the next day was studded with such expression as "loud and prolonged applause."

Although he holds the record for long-distance talking on the floor, the Mississippi member has been dubbed "Silent John" by the newspapermen who cover the house. He won that sobriquet some years ago when he sent copies of a statement to the press gallery which began, "Representative John E. Rankin of Mississippi today broke his long silence—"

SERVICE — Statistical-minded Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, wife of the senator from that state, has come out with the rather startling information that only 22 members of the present senate served in that body before F.D.R. entered the White House in 1933. And only 97 men in the house preceded him to Washington!

UPTON CLOSE:
Are We Ignoring Chief Lesson of This Awful War?

By UPTON CLOSE

Let's take renewed confidence in our victories, let's take fulsome pride in our allies

But let's not lose the lessons of this awful storm of fury, death, destruction, misery and sorrow which has swept around the world. To do so now simply sets the stage for another storm soon. Such another storm would, I feel sure, crush the fair cities and the great factories of your and my country as the present one has crushed the two older continents.

The first lesson of this insane fury and brutality is that "He who takes the sword shall perish with the sword." Christ said it. It is in the oldest philosophies. The newest laboratory exa.nples are: Japan, Italy, Germany.

When I heard Nippon's polished leaders, years ago, talk about Asian prosperity carved out by the bayonet, I shuddered. When I heard Hitler rant and boast at Danzig in September, 1939, it made me sick. Here, now, six years later, before our eyes, are the fruits of trying to get prosperity with the sword.

Certainly, we must apply this lesson—to our own side and present friends, as well as to present enemies. He who takes the sword to do himself good at the expense of others shall perish with the sword, whether he be a present or ex-ally of Hitler; whether he be a present ally of the United States or not. That goes for ourselves, too. It goes for Stalin and his red army and his grasping diplomats. Or else Christ was wrong. And the present wars hold no lesson.

Are the American people such dupes that they do not sense this? They sense it, all right. But many an American citizen is cynical about it, lets himself feel helpless about it, and lets a propaganda steam roller puffing the new smear word "perfectionist" lay him flat, while a weakling of a Truman out of a vast smugness proclaims: "We are entering the most glorious era in the history of mankind!"

I have never heard that a glorious era came from the giving in by people of higher development to the blind instincts of those of lower development.

Now, as a historian, I believe that Europe is on the point of being united at long last—fifteen hundred years after the Roman Empire fell. Charlemagne failed to do it, the Church of Rome failed to do it, Napoleon, the Kaiser and Hitler failed to do it. Russia, with an overweight of manpower greater than the barbarians had when they swept over Rome, will now do it. Russia has been implemented to do it by Franklin D. Roosevelt's United States government—whether he planned it that way or not. Yes, very likely Europe may be about to be united by the brutal sword of a despot and the trickery of a group whose defmition of morality is whatever aids in seizing power. But if this nation twines its sword with the brutal sword of any European aggressor this nation, too, will perish. The reaction always comes: "He who takes the sword will perish by the sword!"

Churchill must have planned that after the German rival had been crushed, we, of America, would protect His Majesty's empire against the Russian menace. Otherwise, Churchill doesn't make sense.

But it is time, now, for AMERICANS to learn THEIR OWN LESSONS from these brutal twentieth century wars. It is time for US to make sense.

The first lesson: that Musso and Hitler and Hiro inevitably get theirs needs no more teaching. The second lesson is now the important one. It is known by all simple people but never alluded to by our great leader or his disciples: that the next menace to world peace, the next aggression upon human rights and decency, the next armed seizure of the properties of men, big and little, will not come—is not coming—from Italy or Germany or Japan. Now, if the loss of our sons, if the scattering of our treasure, if the world's misery and our own war years' experiences mean anything to us, they must mean that although the American sword may properly be placed with others behind any just human principle and basic law, it must not be placed behind forces of aggression. —Or we, too, shall perish with the sword instead of being protected by it.

YOU know, fellow Americans that you and I were got into this internationalist idea—this idea of pooling our wealth and strength in a world government—on the basis that other powers wanted an internationalist world—a sort of United States of the world with equal justices and freedom to all states—and were only waiting for us to join in this great ideal. But now it is clear that the two other great powers chiefly wapt us to excuse their aggressions, guarantee their territorial grabs and finance their selfish economics. Stalin and Churchill make it as plain as statesman can by word and deed, that they are NOT ready for the internationalist world.

We were asked into church. Standing now, willingly, at the door, we see it is not a holy place. We gaze at little peoples being choked and robbed and big fellows sparring for mastery of the sawdust floor of Europe.

Shall we lend our sword to this? "He who taketh the sword (unjustly) shall perish with the sword!"

Our sword is now mighty enough to protect ourselves. Using it to protect the injustice of others could not long keep war away from us.

WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

There are more important events happening in the fighting theaters than the collapse of the Remagen railway bridge, yet the sensational manner of its capture and the subsequent establishment of the American bridgehead on the East bank of the Rhine have given this great steel structure a high place in public imagination; it's one of the highlights of the war.

It is good to hear that it can be repaired quickly and that meantime its loss won't hamper the U. S. First army in holding its mushrooming bridgehead. However, that's not quite the whole story. There's the possibility that the Hitlerites may take advantage of this accident to stage a major counterattack on the bridgehead before the broken span can be replaced.

A big-scale counter-assault is much overdue already, partly because the Germans were caught by surprise but largely owing to their lack of sufficient manpower.. If they withdrew troops from other parts of their Rhenish line, they would lay themselves open to amphibious crossing by the Allies who are all set for just such opportunities. However, the nazi retreat in the Saar and Palatinate, under the assault of the American Third and Seventh armies, presumably will mean the withdrawal of German forces across the Rhine, and these might be used for an attack on the Remagen bridgehead.

While we have moved huge quantities of equipment and supplies across the Rhine, the steel bridge would be invaluable in the event of a heavy and protracted enemy attack. At the time we captured the bridge we quickly threw at least one pontoon bridge, and maybe more, across the river to supplement the railway structure. But the pontoons don't take the place of a steel structure for heavy traffic like artillery. Also, the First army needs every crossing of the river it can secure at this juncture while it's building up its manpower and supplies on the east bank, and pushing out into the open.

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 — The camera, they say, does not lie. Oh, yeah? "The camera is the biggest liar in Hollywood," Byron Haskin said.

Haskin ought to know. For 20 years he has been lying—with the aid of a movie camera.

Behind a door mysteriously labeled "Special Effects" Haskins has proved that you can fool some of the people all of the time.

"As the good sculptor conceals the marks of his chisels, so the good motion picture craftsman must conceal the gigantic mechanics of his own expression," Haskin says.

Remember that convoy sequence in the movie "Action in the North Atlantic? All those Liberty ships being attacked by German U-boats?

Haskin staged and directed the whole thing—beneath sunny California skies in the bay at Santa Barbara, Calif.

His Liberty "ships" were 15 feet long, powered by automobile motors and operated by men hidden inside. Bomb and torpedo hits were electrically controlled flashes of powder. Smudge pots provided the fog. The underwater submarine shots were filmed in a tank back of the studio.

LIKE GREAT BIG COMBERS

The scenes were shot at Santa Barbara bay because the small waves there matched the scale of his Liberty ship models. In Haskin's camera they looked like North Atlantic combers.

This and other imaginative celluloid finally have won for Haskin a director's berth with the Hal Wallis unit at Paramount. When Wallis left Warner Bros., Haskin went with him. His first directorial assignment is "The Crying Sisters."

"Mission to Moscow" was another Haskin achievement.

He remembers it with a laugh because in that one he even fooled Hollywood. Working from a postcard, Haskin put such an authentic looking Hamburg railroad station on the screen that several rival studios thought it was the real thing, taken before the war, and telephoned Warner Bros. asking to rent the film for movies of their own.

Actually it was an intricate combination of full scale people, miniature trains and towers painted on glass—four different shots blended into one.

In the film biography of a great modern composer, the actor playing the title role couldn't play the piano.

Haskin solved the problem. He filmed a scene of the gentleman who actually does the playing at the piano with a black velvet hood over his head. Then he photographed the head of our hero and stuck it on the piano player's body.

55 EDDIE CANTORS!

It was an old trick, though, which Haskin had used once before in "Thank Your Lucky Stars," in which Eddie Cantor is seen playing every instrument in a 55-piece orchestra.

A native of San Francisco and a graduate of the University of California, Byron Haskin landed in the movies as an extra after his discharge from the navy in World War I.

Two days later he became assistant director and he has been behind the camera ever since—proving that the camera does not lie is a lie.

It's Not Raincoat He Wants—Cigarettes!

NORFOLK, Va., March 19—(AP)—State Senator James Hoge Tyler, 3rd, lost his raincoat at the Virginia club, but that's not what worries him most.

He posted a notice at the club, which read, "Will the person who took my raincoat by mistake Thursday, March 15, please return the cigarettes in the pocket."

Peter Edson's Column:
SPEAKING OF JUDGE VINSON'S RECORD:

By PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 19—Henry Wallace wasn't enough of a businessman to be head of the 14 billion dollar federal loan agency and reconstruction finance corporation setup, so the President nominated Judge Frederick Moore Vinson, whose past business experience seems to have included directorships of a 10-million-dollar bank at Ashland, Ky., and a two-million-dollar bank in his home town of Louisa, Ky., plus a little dabbling in real estate along with his Louisa law practice.

Having a big operator of these qualifications at the head of the biggest banking combination in the world makes everybody in Washington happy, including both Henry Wallace and Jesse Jones.

Whatever inconsistency you may find in this turn of events is further accentuated by a closer scrutiny of some of Judge Vinson's acts in the two years that he has been director of economic stabilization. The memory of man runneth short, but just to keep the record straight and to go into the dance with both eyes open, there are a few half-forgotten facts that should be allowed to speak for themselves:

You may remember the businessmen's battle on subsidies—evil corrupting, un-American subsidies. OES Director Vinson not only supported them but ordered them put on canned vegetables and flour and such staples.

Not only that, but it was Judge Vinson who ordered the ceiling put on live cattle back in October, 1943. Remember how that was damned by those stalwart businessmen, the farmers and stockmen?

TURNED DOWN RAIL RATE RISE

Further to demonstrate his sympathies for business, Judge Vinson refused to approve rate increases for the railroads and he turned down a 35 cents per barrel increase in the price of crude oil.

Perhaps the high point in Vinson's record as a pro-businessman came in the fall of 1943 when he issued a directive to war production board and office of price administration empowering those agencies to order production of essential civilian goods at manufacturers' costs or a maximum of costs plus 2 percent. This was the famous "profit limitation" directive which scared industry half to death and brought businessmen scampering down to Washington to find out what went on.

Opposition to this directive became so acute that early in 1944 Judge Vinson issued a "clarifying statement" which in effect sucked back the worst part of the order by saying it was to apply only to textiles. Actually, the directive was used in only a few instances and is today practically a dead letter.

But this is the closest the administration ever came to limiting the profits of business, and it was issued over the signature of this same Fred M. Vinson who now is named to head the biggest bank in the world, organized to save business.

This other side of Judge Vinson's record is being recalled in Washington today not in any effort to belittle his abilities but merely to put in proper perspective the popular conception that he is the perfect answer to a conservative banker's prayer, another Jesse Jones.

ACTUALLY, HE'S A POLITICIAN

The record shows that Vinson is primarily another democratic politician, and in some respects he has shown himself just as liberal or whatever you want to call it, as Henry Wallace.

As one of Vinson's aides admits, "Wallace has probably been more of a businessman than Vinson, but that wasn't why they turned Wallace down—it was his ideas." Well, look at Vinson's ideas.

Of course no man with Vinson's record—a brilliant lawyer with seven terms in congress plus six years on the federal bench and nearly two years as director of OES—could fail to absorb a vast store of knowledge on financial affairs. In congress he was chairman of the ways and means subcommittee on internal taxation, sponsored pay-as-you-go taxation as early as 1937, authored the veterans' bonus bill and co-authored the coal stabilization bill with Sen. Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania.

To Vinson's credit as a pro-business advocate there should also be chalked up his opposition to wage increases. He has followed and enforced the President's stabilization policy to the best of his ability.

But with the miners' biennial boil coming to a head and with more and more insistent demands from labor to break the Little Steel formula, Judge Vinson in leaving OES is getting off an awfully hot seat at a very opportune time.

Death's BRIGHT DIAMONDS

I

I CAME up on deck. I looked out across the harbor at pier 14 a mere 400 yards away. And I felt very, very good.

Then behind me someone coughed. I turned. There stood Booker. In the shelter of the windscreen, he lit a cigaret. On his lips was a wintry smile. That little feeling of self-congratulation which one experiences on coming safely through a hazardous affair evaporated.

"Well, Trent," Booker leaned his arms on the rail beside be, "we made it."

My presence on the boat was explained by an encounter with a buzz-bomb which had figuratively blown me out of the pilot's seat of a B-17 to a position of temporary retirement before going back to my old job of aircraft designing. Booker's presence on the boat remained unexplained. Booker went on:

"Back to Boston and the little girl on Beacon Hill, eh?"

"Eh," I said.

"Then to your desk at the Beacon Aircraft." Booker's thin lips curved in a derisive smile.

I looked at him. I hadn't remembered being so confidential.

Booker stared down into the water where the October winds made plumes of foam. He dropped his cigaret into the harbor.

His eyes rested speculatively upon me.

"The Hudsons are very influential people," he said. "The little girl on—"

"Miss Hudson," I said.

He smiled.

"She would take a lot of supporting."

"Would she?"

"This war is not going to last forever, Trent. When it is over, there will be an oversupply of airplane designers. You might like to fortify yourself against that eventuality."

"Life insurance?" I asked.

"No." He did not smile. "You would not be a good risk."

It wasn't so much what he said; it was the way he said it.

"That sounds like a threat."

"Good heavens, no." He laughed and I observed that his teeth needed attention. "I am merely giving you an opportunity to cash in on a risk which you must inevitably take. You are not responsible for the accidents of birth and environment. But you can take advantage of them instead of suffering because of them."

"I haven't the faintest notion of what you're talking about," I said, "and I am not in the least interested."

He took out a cigaret and tapped it on his thumbnail. All the warmth had gone out of his face.

"Listen, Trent," he said. "I'll be at The Vendome in Boston until Tuesday. Think it over and get in touch with me."

"If I'm half as sleepy as I feel," I said, "I won't wake up until Wednesday morning."

PAT HUDSON was the loveliest girl I knew. She stood on the platform beside Charley Strand

Illustrated by Walt Scott

"Prosit," said Pat.

and together they are two of the very few people in the world who really care what happens to me. Charley is single, sane, and blessed with a very rare sense of immediacy. Now he sensed something sentimentally unique in the situation and he was effacing himself bravely by looking with false interest at everything but Pat and me.

"Hello, Nick" Pat said. "No torpedoes?"

"One," I said and held my hands apart. "That far away."

She shuddered and touched my arm very gently.

"What a blow that would have been to my aspirations."

I happened to glance across the platform and Booker went by. Unsmiling, he looked at me.

"How odd," said Pat.

"Remember me?" Charley asked.

"Remotely." I took his hand and spoke to Pat. "What's odd?"

"That man. Who is he?"

I looked after Booker.

"Nobody," I said. "Why?"

"He looked at you so strangely."

"He wasn't looking at me." I took her arm. "Come along while I park this baggage."

We went to the University Club where I dropped my bags and Charley had Raoul send up a bottle of Hermitage which signaled a moment to be remembered. Gravely we clinked glasses.

"Prosit," said Pat.

"You can't do that," Charley informed her. "That's a German toast."

"Charley." Pat looked at him. "You're not going to start that."

"Eric's got her into that," he said.

"Eric?" My glass stopped in the air.

Charley and I exchanged glances. We had never had much difficulty in coming to an agreement about Eric.

"Hasn't Eric been drafted yet?" I asked.

"You know he's too old," Pat said.

"I had forgotten," I said. "It always seemed to me that anyone who does so much talking ought to supplement it with a little fighting."

"It has been hard for Eric—being of German descent." Pat's tone was defensive. "After all, he is a naturalized American."

"If he hadn't been naturalized," Charley said, "he would have ended up as a corporal in the German army."

"And Eric would not have liked that," I said.

"Please," Pat interrupted us. "Let's not talk about it any more. I'm sorry I brought up the subject of Eric."

"Listen," Charley said. "I've got tickets for the Harvard-Navy game. How about you two meeting me there?"

Somehow the struggless of twenty-two V-12 boys on a football field seemed curiously remote. I shook my head.

"Not today, Charley."

"You're tired," said Pat.

"A little. I haven't really slept for ten days."

"Take me to lunch. Food will do you good and after that you can sleep."

"I could do with a little of that," I said.

And Charley threw up his hands.

"You'll be sorry." He grinned. "Meet me at the Parker House at 5:30 and I'll tell you the score."

Little did we suspect what that innocently-made date was to get us all into.

WHITE MAGIC FOR BRIDES

Courtesy N. Y. Dress Institute

This Spring's bride will look just as beautiful, and perhaps even more demure, than did her great-grandmother. She may wear creamy satin or billowy organdy, but her dress will fulfill her fondest dreams.

New York's famed designers of wedding gowns are showing lots of bridal dresses inspired by Southern Belle fashions, complete with hoopskirts and bonnet headdresses. The charming dress pictured is typical, with its shorter but fuller train, its wide, full ruffles and its quaint bertha neckline.

Other bridal dresses feature apron skirts and peplum effects, and a number have set-in midriffs to show off a tiny waist.

Very few sleeves are short, since today's bride prefers the long, tight sleeve pointed over the wrist or a full, bracelet sleeve. A few dresses have detachable sleeves and trains which may be cut off to make a lovely dance dress for wear the Summer through. For the most part, though, this Spring's bride wants the heirloom type of gown that she will wear once, breathlessly, and put lovingly away.

The bride's headdress is most frequently a very full fingertip veil of fine net, falling from a little circlet or bonnet of fluted or gathered net, or a headdress to match her gown, in organza, lace or chiffon.

Gracie Reporting

Consolidated News Features

Well, I see the Duke of Windsor has resigned his job as governor of the Bahamas, and according to rumore, he and Wallie may come to the United States to seek their fortune.

GRACIE

My gracious, if if he's not satisfied with jobs like being king and governor, he certainly isn't going to be happy on the swing shift at Lockheed. But if he doesn't want to be a riveter, he could always become a movie star. Of course, it doesn't pay so much, but it's pleasant work.

The movie people have nice long vacations, or as they call them, "strikes." If that doesn't interest the Duke and Duchess, I formally invite them to join the ranks of the radio teams. Who knows, maybe some day "Ed and Wallie" may become as famous as Fibber and Molly, Amos 'N' Andy or that darling couple, George and Gracie.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui, many women say, has brought relief from the wrong-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion. Thus help build resistance for the "time" to come. Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to period functional periodic causes. Try it!

One of five million reasons why you are waiting for a telephone

U. S. Army field telephone set

More than 5,000,000 military telephones have been made by Western Electric, our peacetime supplier of telephone equipment. Each one adds to the reasons why 200,000 people in the Southwest are waiting for telephone service.

Besides telephones, Western Electric is making for the armed forces thousands of switchboards, millions of miles of wire and cable, hundreds of thousands of combat radios, radar equipment and automatic gun directors. Little time and few skilled hands are left to make "civilian" telephone equipment.

That's why it's hard to say when everyone now waiting for new telephone service will get it. At best, it will not be soon. Thanks for your continued understanding.

Coach Coffey Maps Big Schedule for Pampa Thinclads

Football Banquet To Be at Brown Ranch Saturday

Otis Coffey, Pampa high school athletic director, has released a heavy schedule for the next few weeks for hopefuls in both track and football.

A meeting was scheduled at 1:30 this afternoon of all the boys in high school to determine which boys would be interested in sports participation.

Special emphasis will be on track this week, Coffey is trying to arrange for a meet here sometime during the next few days.

Although Coffey has had very little time to devote to track because of the late finish of the basketball season, 36 boys had signed up for the sport up to last Thursday and Coffey estimated today that there may be more than 50 out in the next week.

Many of the boys work after school and it will take a few days to adjust their schedules so they can go out for track.

However, big news in the local sports picture is the annual football banquet to be held at the ranch of Dr. R. Malcolmn Brown, Saturday night. The banquet will be in the form of a huge barbecue. Coach Coffey said that the school was furnishing a half of a calf for the event. The football boys will bring their dates and Coffey said that all the girls were to bring the salad.

Coffey said that, although he had not had much opportunity to work with all the track squad he had noticed several promising candidates, among them Joe Cree, Don Humphreys, Bernie Brown, Auldis Bettis, and Horace Saunders.

The following boys had reported up to last Thursday: Kenneth Grantham, Virgil Fish, Lawrence Baines, Randall Clay, Bob Cochran, Warren Jones, Clarence Jones, Joe Cree, Lonnie Williams, Bernie Brown, Johnny Campbell, Don Losher, James Harrah, Auldis Bettis, Eugene Turner, Bill Nellis, Billy Payne, Darrel Robbins, Horace Saunders, Earl Prostle.

W. C. Hugins, Don Humphreys, Bill Dixon, Charles Laffoon, Gene Lane, Jimmy Terrell, Don Taylor, Charles Spencer, Bill Washington, Jerry Barber, Bill Hukil, Wayne Davidson, Harbard Cox, Kelley Anderson, and Glenn Carey.

War Department Intervenes in Baseball Feud

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, March 19—(AP)—A "feud" between Larry MacPhail, president of the New York Yankees, and Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, apparently broke out on Sunday, but the quick intervention of the war department ended any misunderstandings that might have disturbed the serenity of the American League.

The "trouble" started when MacPhail appeared at the Atlantic City camp of the Yankees accompanied by Lt. Bert Shepard, 25-year-old war hero, who had drilled last week with the Senators at College Park, Md.

As Shepard, a fighter pilot who had lost part of one leg in combat, worked out with the Yankees at the shore, word got around that MacPhail had "kidnapped" him and that Griffith was fuming.

At this point the war department stepped in and explained everything. Shepard, it appeared, had been in the office of Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson with a group of convalescents and had expressed a desire to work out with the Yanks.

Snead Is Two Shots Ahead Of McSpaden

CHARLOTTE, N. C. March 19—(AP)—Sammy Snead came up to the climax of his personal struggle with hill 455 yesterday only two shots ahead of Byron Nelson and Jug McSpaden in the final round of the $10,000 Charlotte open golf tournament.

If it had not been for three straight bogeys on the hill, rugged No. 9 at the Myers park club, Snead would have a comfortable five-stroke lead and a stranglehold on his fourth tournament in a row and his seventh of the winter swing.

As it is, the dapper Virginian faces a real test in standing off the closing rush by his chief rival Nelson, who winged in yesterday with a sweet 66 to pick up three strokes on the leader.

As the big three headed into the last round they stood like this:

Snead	65-68-69—202
Nelson	70-68-66—204
McSpaden	66-70-68—204

Yesterday some 6,000 fans swarmed over the course.

Too far back to pose any real threat for first money came Sam Byrd, the ex-ball player, with a 209, Gane Kunes of Hollywood, Fla., with 210, and Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., at 212.

Grass Experiment Plots Are Developed

LONGVIEW, March 19—Grass experimentation plots are being developed in many of the 71 counties comprising its area, the East Texas chamber of commerce, through its agricultural department, announced today. These grass "laboratories" are sponsored by the regional chamber.

"Part of the answer to our pasture problems may come out of these experiments," the manager of the agricultural department stated. "New interest is expressed in all parts of East Texas in grasses and pastures."

The grass experiment plots are in charge of vocational agriculture classes. Grasses and clovers adaptable to East Texas are grown and tested. Each community is encouraged to grow the kind of grass that could be best used in its own area.

Improvised Piers Are Big Help in Europe

NEW YORK, March 19—Improved piers, at which any ship afloat can tie up and discharge its cargo of supplies or personnel, have been installed in a number of European ports serving our military forces on the continent, Waldo G. Bowman, editor of Engineering News-Record, McGrew-Hill publication, says in an air mail report from the European theater of operations.

"Of floating design, involving the use of strings of 5x5x7-ft. steel pontoon units assembled and moved into position by the navy Seabees, held there by pile dolphins constructed by army engineers with their floating equipment, and connected to the shore with Bailey bridge spans installed by army engineers, the piers represent the fruits of army-navy cooperation at its best.

"Erection of the Bailey bridge is a most exacting task associated with the floating dock construction because it has to be coordinated with the fast moving tides."

Health Officer Says 'Clean Up'

AUSTIN, March 19—A good old fashioned spring house cleaning in every city and community in Texas would do a great deal toward furthering good health in this state, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, who said in Austin today, "From a practical standpoint the old adage that 'Cleanliness is next to Godliness' is still well worth emphasizing."

A general clean-up program of state-wide proportions with the objective of bettering health conditions for our citizenship should include surface cleaning, drainage, the graveling of streets and alleys, the cleaning of all parks and playgrounds and the clearing of weeds and rubbish off of vacant lots.

"The destruction of mosquito breeding places and fire hazards, the proper disposal of garbage and trash and the general cleaning up of all premises will be," said Dr. Cox, "of inestimable value in helping to keep down summer health hazards. Good community housekeeping and ordinary sanitary measures require the prompt removal of all waste matter in and around yards and homes in order to abate the danger of disease.

"Such a clean-up program will also eliminate fire hazards, which in itself may help to avoid property damage or deaths by fire."

News of Service Men in Shamrock And Vicinity

FOR HEROIC SERVICE

Sergeant Robert F. Rushing, 26-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Rushing of Shamrock, has been presented the Bronze Star for heroic service with the 90th infantry division in Germany.

The citation accompanying the award, dated February 4, 1945, read in part:

"For heroic service in support of operations from 6 to 23 December 1944 in the vicinity of Germany. During the river operation, Sergeant Rushing distinguished himself in the performance of outstanding service as chief of section.

"He selected strategic machine gun positions, and on many occasions, exposed himself to intense artillery shelling to direct effective machine gun fire upon the foe.

"His heroic service facilitated the destruction of many objectives on the far side of the river and was in accordance with military tradition."

LEG WOUND

Sgt. Jackson C. Scruggs, 26, was wounded in action on January 2, and is in a hospital in Belgium. He is the son of Mrs. W. C. Scruggs of Shamrock.

The youth's injury consists of a leg wound.

Sgt. Scruggs was serving with the 332nd engineers, and has been in the European theater two and one-half years.

He attended Shamrock high school and was connected with the state highway department before entering service.

His wife and son, Thomas Richard, reside in Olton.

SLIGHTLY WOUNDED

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Lister of Kelton received a telegram from the war department stating their son, Pfc. Vaughn Lister, had been slightly wounded in action February 20.

The parents later received a letter from their son, dated four days after the accident, in which he stated that he was in a hospital "with a few scratches," but would be back on duty soon.

Pfc. Lister is in the communication department, infantry, and drives a jeep transporting news from the front lines back to headquarters. He is stationed in France.

The former Shamrock high school student has been in service two years and has been overseas since December 15, 1944. His brother, Sgt. R. O. Lister, Jr., is with the 87th division, infantry, in Germany.

MISSING IN ACTION

Pvt. Charles Ray Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newman Riley of Twitty, has been reported missing in action since February 23.

The parents are confused over the message and have hopes that it is incorrect, since they have received a letter from their son which was dated February 25, two days after the war department reported him missing.

Pvt. Riley, a graduate of Wheeler high school, where he was a football star, had been in the infantry of the 1st army, but recently wrote that he was now with the 63rd infantry division of the 7th army.

The 19-year-old youth had been in service since July, 1944, and left for overseas January 19. Prior to leaving he trained at Fort Sam Houston, Camp Fannin, and Fort Meade, Md.

WAR PRISONER

Pvt. Homer L. Lawler, previously reported as missing in action since December 21, has been reported by the war department to be a prisoner of the Germans.

His wife, the former Miss Eula Fae Richardson, who now resides at Floydada, has received a card and a letter from him. The card was dated January 6 and the letter January 16.

Pvt. Lawler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie C. Lawler. His brother, Pvt. Joseph (Jake) Lawler, was killed in action in Italy on July 26, 1944. Two other Lawler brothers are in service, Marine Private First Class Roy L. Lawler who is in the Pacific and Pvt. Charlie B. Lawler of the infantry who left the states recently.

Homer, 30, was reared in Shamrock and attended the local schools. He began his military service in January, 1941, training at Fort Sill, Okla., and Camp Atterbury, Indiana, before going overseas last October.

He was with the 423rd infantry, 106th division, serving with a medical detachment.

VISITING

MEET OVERSEAS

T/4 Bert Woollard and Sgt. Odell Woollard met in England recently. Both have been overseas since December, 1943. Sgt. Woollard is stationed in France with the 79th air service squadron and was sent to London to school. While there he met T/4 Bert Woollard, who is with the 96th general hospital in England. Both are well and in fine spirits, but eager to be home.

WEEKEND VISIT

Chaplain Robert B. Mathis and family were in Shamrock last weekend from El Paso. Mrs. Mathis and the children have returned to Shamrock after being with him for sometime.

ARRIVE AT SHAMROCK

Huey Cook, Jr., A.R.M. 3/c and Mrs. Cook arrived last week from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huey Cook, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. McDonald. He will report to San Diego, and she will remain in Shamrock with her parents for the duration.

EN ROUTE

Pvt. Donald R. Vearner of Little Rock, Ark., has been here on seven-day furlough. He was visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Vearner. Pvt. Vearner is en route to Fort Ord, Calif.

Hitler Story

explain why Hitler's radio speeches of Jan. 1 and Jan. 30 aroused so much controversy as to whether the speaker actually was Hitler. Recordings, my informant believes, are made during Hitler's lucid moments and the best parts put together for broadcasting.

Hitler not only knows the war is lost, but since last July 20 has been aware that he is opposed by what my informant called the "elite of post-Bismarckian Germany"—the nobility, military caste, big industrialists, the bankers and intelligentsia among labor. This weighs on him even more heavily than the matter of defeat, since he ascribes defeat not to himself or his regime but to what he considers disloyalty among these "better" class Germans.

His hatred for them knows no bounds. At frequent intervals he has shown a repulsive, revolting film of the hangings of Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben, Ulrich von Hassel and the others condemned as conspirators. He then snaps out of his fits of despondency, deriving a vicarious, sadistic satisfaction from seeing this sorry evidence of his triumph over his adversaries at home.

The technique of the hangings was gruesomely novel from two respects. The victims were hanged naked in violation of all tradition. A wire instead of a rope was used and the condemned were hoisted slowly. Their sufferings lasted at least five to eight minutes, during which they bled profusely.

Hitler, in his consuming hatred for his domestic enemies, issued a sweeping order for the arrest and trial in the star chamber people's court of "all who by virtue of their position or family connections might conceivably have been implicated in the attempt on his life or in contact with its plotters."

And then, through Martin Bormann, successor to Rudolf Hess in the nazi party hierarchy, Hitler ordered the arrest of all persons of any consequence who, in the past, had not shown themselves "politically unqualifiedly trustworthy." This included persons who, though members of the nazi party, were not considered 100 percent "safe."

The implication in the death plot of Count Hellsdorf, Berlin's chief of police, had shown how disaffection pervaded the nazi ranks.

"A reign of terror began within Germany which the outside world may never comprehend," my informant said. "Friends whom we knew to be politically harmless disappeared over night. We never saw them again. Only 25 miles from here, up in Cologne, it was no common sight to see eight or 12 bodies swing from a gallows. There they were left 24 hours exposed to public view as an example."

My informant estimated that from 1,200 to 1,600 persons were immediate victims of the plot's aftermath—convicted of complicity by the people's court. Beyond them, he added many thousand of Germany's "better people" were liquidated, many noble families wiped out.

Pacific War

Returning airmen, sent to finish up the job they started a week ago today when they burned over a two square mile area damaging seven war plants, reported "we burned hell out of it."

They said "beautiful explosions" shot white sheets of flame above thousands of fires spouting up throughout Nagoya. Scattered blazes appeared to merge rapidly and envelop much of the densely populated city, a fourth of whose workers are employed in aircraft plants.

The alarmed Japanese parliament heard a plea for more firemen to fight incendiaries that have burned black holes in the center of Tokyo, Kobe, Osaka and Nagoya; exemption of firemen from military duty; and faster evacuation of the cities already denuded of 20 to 30 percent of their population. Parliamentary elections were suspended.

All colleges and schools, except the first grade, were ordered closed to put students and teachers alike into work in war industries.
