★★★★Class Graduations On Tap★★★★

Sue's Views

By Sue Cannon

A real upsetting ruling recently concerning the use of natural gas for irrigation purposes has been very much in the news. Several farmers in the area attended the two day meeting which was held in Lubbock.

Now, it seems to come to light that possibly General Motors is one of the high powers behind the whole thing.

John C. White, Commissioner of Agriculture of Texas, wrote a letter to T.A. Murphy, chairman of chief executive officer of GMC. We felt that it deserved to be seen by other farmers in our area, so we are printing it.

"It is clear from my personal observation and from the record of the Federal Power Commission that General Motors has aggressively committed your corporate might and money against the farmers of irrigated land in Texas and other states. In apparent callous self-interest to get all the natural gas your industries can use, General Motors is unquestionably leading the cause to get this essential Texas fuel away from irrigation pumps which make possible the production of much of the nation's food and fiber.

American farmers who water their land with the help of pumps - many of them manufactured by General Motors - are still perplexed as to how and why the Federal Power Commission made the unusual decision to lower agriculture's priority status in a hearing that was advertised as a rate-related proceeding.

The Federal Energy Administration and all other government energy spokesmen have established the clear top priority of agriculture for access to essential energy resources. The Federal Power Commission, in a move that indicated the commission's total lack of knowledge and further lace of concern has acted totally against stated national policy. The misleading insistence that farmers can switch to alternate fuels - and General Motors counsel's pressures that they be required to do so practically overnight - represents bureaucratic irresponsibility at its worst and corporate arrogance at its most flagrant.

The added cost of conversion - including the pumps and other equipment that would have to be bought from certain giants in the motor industry - is secondary to the loss of efficiency that would result in such a forced changeover. Even if the alternate liquid fuels - diesel and gasoline - were available in the quantities that would be required, the cost and logistical requirements for transportation and storage would be overwhelming. Ninety percent of Texas electricity is generated by natural gas - fired boilers. A switch to electric power would cause close to twice as much natural gas to be used through energy efficiency loss. And the cost would be at least quadruple to farmers who are barely staying economically alive as it is. It makes no sense.

And still General Motors and your high-priced lawyers continue an elitist pursuit against the people of the soil, either oblivious to or unconcerned about the damage you are doing to the one segment of our economy that has been able to keep the nation's head above water. If General Motors continues to aid and abet the cause against our food and fiber productivity, prices will rise again for things the people have to have, and I don't mean new cars.

General motors' legalistic cajoling and wheedling of the FPC, an insulated bureaucracy if there ever was one, into giving GM the farmers' gas may be good for General Motors lawyers; in the long run, it is not only bad for the U.S.A. but for General Motors as well. I intend to resist it and to call on the farmers and consumers and if necessary the courts of America to do the same.

To Be A Senior

By Rex Boyles

About 12 years ago, during the early morning hours of late August, several Moms and Dads turned on bedroom lights and roused several small and excited "brand-new" first graders. It was "time"....

Can you Seniors remember that first day of school? Can you remember how eager you were for that school bus to come or for that first bell to ring? Do you remember that empty feeling you had when you left Mom and Dad at the door and had to go into that "jungle" of strangers and giants alone? Can you remember how spooked you were wondering which class was yours, where the bathrooms were, and when were you supposed to show the teacher how smart you were?

If you remember at all, you know that you are feeling a whole lot like that now. Bathrooms and buses won't bother you much now, but you may find yourself feeling super excited, kinda sad, or sorta puzzled in the next few months. You will feel these things not because you are a little kid again but because you are facing the same "time" that you faced 12 years ago.

It's "time" Seniors.

Just like it was 12 years ago, it's "time" TO LEAVE.

This time you will be leaving school and much more. You'll be leaving special people and places. You'll be leaving certain buddies, girl or boy friends, and pals. You'll be leaving familiar places: classrooms, living rooms, work-out fields, band halls, courts, lockers and hang-outs.

Once again you'll be leaving Mom and Dad at the door, and just like 12 years ago it's "time" to leave. You may feel kinda sad, and you ought to 'cause you've invested a lot of heart here.

"It's "time" Seniors.

Just like it was 12 years ago, it's "time" TO BEGIN.

As you step out of that school at graduation, you are stepping into a new kind of life with new attitudes, new decisions, and new responsibilities. Everything from your graduation clothes to your relationship with the family will be "brand-new." Everything from religion to insurance will take on a new emphasis. New jobs, new friends, new ideas, new understandings and new duties will all be a part of this "time"; and just like 12 years ago it's "time" to begin. You'll feel super excited, and you ought to 'cause you've earned the right.

It's "time" Seniors.

It's "time" to leave some old and good things.

It's "time" to begin some new and better things. Just like 12 years ago you may feel sorta puzzled 'cause it's a "time" of change.

When you leave that auditorium, things will never be the same. You're life will begin to make rapid changes. During this time, but a little sad, be a little excited, and even be a little sacred 'cause it is that "time."

As some old and familiar things fade, as your new and exciting opportunities rush in as your whole world turns over, please don't forget the Man.

As you leave, please don't leave Jesus. As you begin a new life, please begin it with Jesus. As you struggle with changes, please remember Jesus, who changes not.

Congrats Seniors. I hope God blesses each one of you.....Rex.

Everything But The Kitchen Sink

By Mozelle Trotter

Enough's e'nuf - I'm ready for the tornado season to be over and it's barely begun.

It's pretty unnerving for "watches" to occur during the daylight hours but it's just plain unfair of old Mother Nature to allow clouds to come up when we can't see!

Did you realize that 18 years have passed since Olton's tornado. ("They" are always referring to that May 11th as The Lubbock Tornado - it's become a proper name.)

It was a bit spine-tingling one evening this week when the television weatherman took time to give a few helpful "what to do's."

"If you don't have a basement or cellar, get into a closet in the middle of the house and pull a mattress over your head."

Hah! I might just have to blow away! Why I couldn't get into one of my closets even if my name was Fibber McGee. And as for a mattress! The only way I could get a mattress in my closet is to have a week's notice on emptying the clutter trap.

Nuf said!

Here it is graduation time again. Graduation - that's the most complex word! For the graduate it's the day they've awaited for centuries. For fathers, it's the first step of a giant financial evaporation. And for mothers, it's the day that comes too soon, the day that pulls strings - heart and apron.

"Pomp Circumstance" never fails to send chills down my spine even though Number One Son and Little Son (they'll disown me someday) have graduated.

But it's a Red Letter Day regardless of whether you're the graduate, his parents, his friend or acquaintance. So congratulations, Seniors of '75!

Here's an inside look at pasture fertilization.

More choice cuts from every acre. That's what you've got coming to you when you fertilize pasture the way it deserves.

It's an investment that just keeps on paying off: Actual tests show a complete fertilization program can increase profits on beef gains by over $135 an acre.

"All right," you say, "that sounds good. But what fertiiizers are right for my particular pasture. (And remember, I've got plenty of other expenses.)"

Look us up. We're your Olin Agent and we are in the business of making you more money out of beef. We can put together a fertilization program that will make your pasture grow like a nine-year-old's hair. And your profits.

Already up to your neck in programs? Rest easy. All you'll probably need are two good fertilizers — Ammo-Phos Fertilizer and Olin Urea.

Together they give you balanced pasture fertilization. Ammo-Phos is a chemical combination of plant foods in the form of uniform pellets which dissolve quickly and ensure even feeding. And Urea makes the perfect nitrogen topper for lengthening your growing season and increasing forage yields.

So call us. We believe all the service you can use just naturally goes with fertilizers as good as these. Which is the kind of thinking that makes us

MRS. EDDIE MOORE

Cook Of The Week

Recipes are shared this week by a housewife who's been preparing meals in Olton for almost 47 years. Dovie and Eddie Moore moved to Olton in October of 1928 and have lived at the corner of 9th Street and Avenue C since 1939.

Dovie and Eddie met when her brother brought him for a visit to their home. Dovie remembers, though, that it was her sister that he dated first. The two celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary in December, 1972.

The Moores lost a little daughter soon after moving to Olton and a son, Truman, was killed in an automobile accident in 1971. They have another daughter, Cloma (Mrs. Wayne Bateman) of Canton, and two sons, Wayne and Benny, both of Olton. They have nine granddaughters and one grandson and a little great-grandson.

Dovie enjoys handwork but says she doesn't do much anymore. She used to do lots of quilting, embroidering and crocheting. She enjoys sewing. Although she enjoys working with flowers and a garden, she says that their pretty yard is "strictly Eddie's." She enjoys cooking and says she likes "just about everything but mushrooms."

The Moores attend Hopewell Baptist Church. Dovie finds a lot of satisfaction from radio ministry and reading religious tracts and books.

Off The Top Of My Hat

By Murdell Shipley

Through the years, I have been on hand for severa' kinds of beginning but this is my first time for a rodeo club. Our official name is Olton Youth Rodeo Association, Inc. and I'll bet you thought "Sue" was bad.

Since we have a meeting house, we decided we would have regular meetings. These will be the 3rd Tuesday of each month. Everyone is always welcome any time.

Another thing the kids are very grateful for is the men who are taking so much time to check out various things connected with this project. Even doing everything he or she can, they realize that in some matters it just takes "Pop" to get the job done. So give him, as well as Mom, a pat on the back.

Another fella who is just tops on the totom pole is K.Y. Givens.

We added a little more money to the kitty by way of his facilities and the Silver Bells by washing cars.

You would be surprised at the favorable comments I have heard on this project and at the people who use to be rodeo enthusist and are looking forward to being again.

Really though, in this part of the country, what could be more natural? Check your abstract and see what your land was first used for. A dollar to a doughnut it was grazing cows. What do you think those cowboys did for fun. I have my doubts that it was "dragging Main" probably something like rodeo!

GRANDSON GRADUATES

Mrs. Campbell Is Initiated

Mrs. Teresa Campbell was initiated into Phi Delta Kappa, society of professional educators, in ceremonies held May 2.

The professional fraternity in education has as its chief purpose promotion of free public education as essential to the development and maintenance of a democracy. Members support the continuing interpretation of the ideas of research, service and leadership, and the translation of these ideals into a program of action appropriate to the needs of public education.

Mrs. Campbell, who resides in Lubbock, is currently a counselor for Texas Rehabilitation Commission, working with Cooperative School Programs in this area. She is daughter of Mrs. Audie Thomas and the late Jack Thomas. Her husband, Curtis, is a former teacher in Olton schools.

HOW'S The Electric Company DOING?

Let's ask Bert Ballengee — Reddy's financial man.

"It takes money to build for the future so that you'll have a dependable supply of electric power. We'll need $345 million over the next five years. Of this amount, we'll have to borrow $200 million. And, at today's interest rates, it's easy to see why electricity may cost more. But, it's all part of creating the good electric service you've come to expect from The Electric Company."

VICE PRESIDENT – FINANCE

Bert regularly visits the financial centers of the nation keeping in touch with the financial market and arranging for the millions of dollars it takes to assure your electric future.

Our Friend & Yours

Janice Sivley

The smiling face of Janice Sivley appeared at the second teller's window of Olton State Bank in November, 1973, only three months after her husband, Robert Sivley, had assumed the position of Olton High School principal.

Moving to the city from Poolville, she brought with her five years of previous experience in other banks. Remaining at the center window since that time, her friendly and efficient service has won many friends, both for herself and for the Bank.

Native of Childress, she is graduate of Colorado City High School and attended McMurry College, Abilene. She is mother of two children, Rob, who is eleven, and Shelle, nine. The family attends First Baptist Church where she teaches sixth grade girls Sunday school class.

Mrs. Sivley admits that her hobby could well be called "people", since everything she has done has been in connection with meeting people. In addition to her banking experience, she served as Weight Watchers lecturer in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, before assuming a similar post in Olton upon her arrival here.

Resource Room Education

Individualized Help

(Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles concerning special education programs of H.P. Webb Elementary. This week we learn of the help offered through the resource room special education.)

The majority of primary and intermediate level students being served by special education classes in H.P. Webb Elementary have been diagnosed as L/LD - language and/or learning disabled.

A Spanish speaking child who speaks and understands very little, if any English, is not language disabled according to the L/LD definition and does not meet the eligibility criteria for the program.

"A learning diability is any condition which causes a child's school achievement to be substantially below his potential in spite of average or above average intelligence. It is assumed there is an absence of gross biological disorders. They may be divided into three categories: cognitive, behavorial, and motor, (Robert R. Ferrald)."

The state definition for an L/LD child is one who is so deficient in the acquisition of language and/or learning skills including, but not limited to, the ability to reason, think, speak, write, spell, or to make mathematical calculations, as identified by educational and/or psychological and/or medical diagnosis that they must be provided special services for educational progress. The term "language and/or learning disabled children" also applies to children diagnosed as having specific developmental dyslexia.

The eligibility criteria for the L/LD child to enter the program is: Physician's written report of general medical evaluation and evaluation indicating positive neurological findings or a written report of educational appraisal which will include assessement of abilities and disabilities and instructional and behavioral recommendations for teaching which describe educational environment and specific methods and strategies which will maximize learning.

The children coming into the program in H.P. Webb are examined by a physician, receiving just a physical examination. A neurological examination would be given if deemed necessary.

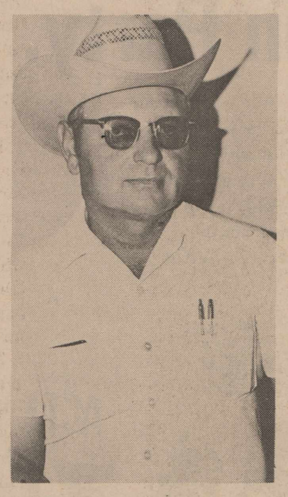

The procedure followed to bring a child into the program is: his teacher fills out a referral form in which she makes an informal assessment of his abilities, disabilities, and needs. She secures a signed permission form from his parents allowing him to be tested and to have a physical examination from the local doctor. The tests, consisting of several measurements - ability, achievement, personality, and emotional stability are administered by the diagnositcian who serves the Olton and Hale Center schools. Using the information gathered in the appraisal and the teacher referral, she makes a diagnosis, what his abilities and disabilities are, possible causes, that is whether his disability to learn is caused by an auditory, visual, etc. problem. Then the diagnostician along with his resource room teacher works up an education plan for the child, using materials and methods he can best learn by.

The student is officially in the program when the Admission, Review and Dismissal Committee meets and discusses his case, then signs him into the program. This committee consists of the principal, Ray Kinnison, the student's regular classroom teacher, the diagnostician, and the resource room teacher. This committee also meets when his teachers feel the child is ready to go back into the regular classroom full time. The committee meets at the end of the year and assesses the student's progress and further needs, if any. He is then put back into the regular classroom full time or kept in the resource room another year, or until he is able to function on level in the regular classroom.

The primary grades are taught by Oneta Gary. The curriculum in that area consists of language development, reading, arithmetic, perceptual training, social adjustment, and arts and crafts.

The intermediate grades are taught by Lillian Rape. Curriculum on that level consists of perceptual development, oral language development, reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, vocatioanl orientation and arts and crafts.

The curriculum for the child is as individualized as possible, meeting his needs. He begins on a level where he can function, given assignments easy enough that he can experience success, but difficult enough to challenge him.

Career Education Presented To Lions

A slide film presentation on "Career Education," compiled by teachers in the local schools was presented to Olton Lions Club at their regular luncheon meeting recently in the Agricultural building. Presenting the film was Larry Shackelford; program chairman was Robert Sivley.

The presentation was shown last month at a Region 17 Education Service Center workshop directed by Laura Maxey and other local teachers, Shackelford, Tommy Hancock, Gayle Allcorn, Deborah Smith, Marsha Johnston and Lucille Bley.

Pilot programs were begun last year in a few area schools and is being expanded with the 1975-76 school year. Olton schools will become a pilot in this expansion in a kindergarten through twelfth grade career education program.

Working this year in cooperation with Plainview schools in preparation for this program, the film presentation was of work done locally from grades 1 to 12, showing student interviews with business people and other facets of the program.

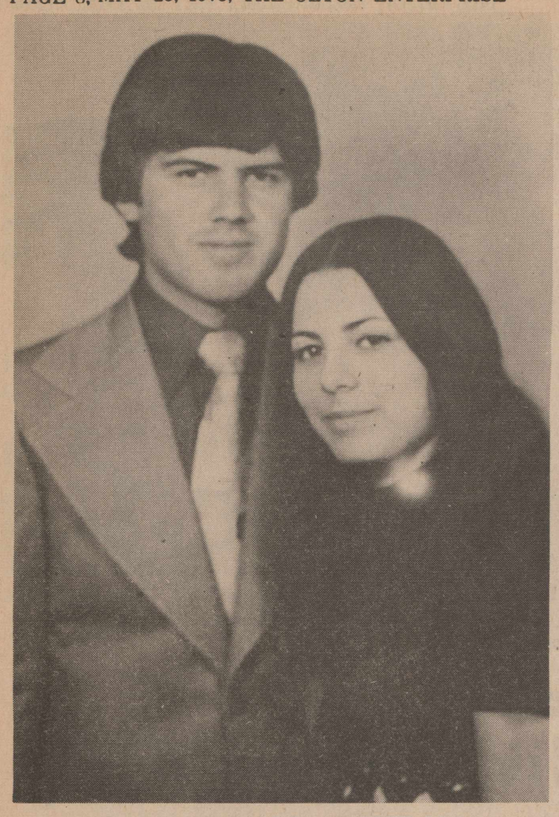

A tape library was begun using the interviews made this year. These and future taped interviews will become a resource library for the program.

Beginning with kindergarten, and even initiated with the younger Early Childhood students, an awareness of the world of work will be given the students of Olton schools.

Following awareness, youngsters will then be led in exploration of careers and at the high school level will delve into more detailed, specific areas of career possibilities.

TEXAS TALK

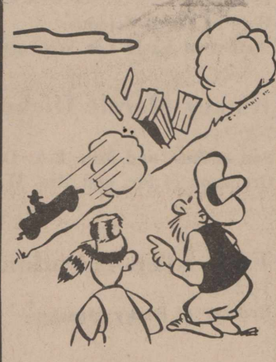

By Billy Davis

A marked decline in the number of varieties being grown commercially is one of the unusual things about Texas' number one cash crop . . . cotton. In 1910, F. J. Tyler, in an article entitled Varieties of American Upland Cotton, reported for the United States Department of Agriculture that there were 613 varieties of cotton being grown. Sixty-five years later there are fewer than 50 with only about ten of those commonly used. Two reasons are predominant for the unusual turn-around. First the boll weevil infestation wiped out many susceptible long-staple varieties. Second, producers have developed the varieties they like best and are satisfied with the increases in crop yields, the storm resistant boll (for machine harvest) and the generally shorter growing season provided by relatively few types. Evidence of the success of the varieties being used is amply illustrated when comparing current yield per acre with that of 1950.

A Special

Memorial Day Tribute

To Our Departed Loved Ones

It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all,--
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call;
They throng the silence of the breast,
We see them as of yore,--
The kind, the brave, the true, the sweet,
Who walk with us no more.
