DRANK SHOE CLEANER

Woman's Jewels Worth $10,000 Are Found On Her Person

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Florence Manley Hood, 28, wife of Walter M. Hood, wealthy Birmingham, Ala., lawyer, died in a hospital here today after she had swallowed poison at her hotel. The police believed she committed suicide but an inquest will be held tomorrow.

John Cashin, official of a couch manufacturing company who told the police he had registered at her hotel as her husband, was held for questioning. He said Mrs. Hood came here Friday to invest in some property and that he had been with her since her arrival. Mrs. Hood's husband was notified in Birmingham and was expected to attend the inquest.

Mrs. Hood was wearing jewelry valued at $10,000 when a physician found her in her room after she notified the hotel manager that she was sick. Before becoming unconscious she told him she had drunk slipper cleaner, a bottle of which was found lying on the floor.

Cashin said he had last seen Mrs. Hood at supper in his hotel last night, when he had reprimanded her for drinking.

August Johnson, F. W. D. Employe, Dead After Long Illness

BORN IN NORWAY

Had Been Resident of Wichita County Town Since 1908

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 15.—Death claimed another aged Electra citizen at 9 o'clock Saturday night in the St. Joseph's hospital in Fort Worth. August Johnson, 62, who for the past 17 years has made his home in Electra, died after an illness of one month.

Mr. Johnson was born in Norway in 1863, and at the age of 18 he came to America, landing in Galveston. In 1886 he married Mrs. Johnson at Manor, Texas. In 1908 he and his family came to Electra, where he became foreman of the Fort Worth and Denver section house, a position he held until the time of his death.

Mr. Johnson is survived by his widow and four children, all of Electra, Will Johnson, Sam T. Johnson, Mrs. Mary Kiselwick and Mrs. Alice Eggenberg.

The body arrived Sunday afternoon from Fort Worth, but funeral arrangements have not been completed, awaiting the arrival of relatives. Rev. C. H. Napier, pastor of the Lutherian church, will officiate. Burial will be here. Mr. Johnson has been a devoted member of the Lutherian church and leaves many friends in Electra.

FUNERAL IS HELD FOR MRS. E. D. REED SUNDAY

Mrs. Reed is survived by her husband, a small daughter, Nettie Lou, her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Swafford, two sisters and four brothers.

Will Rogers to Drag Out Wichita's "Skeleton" and Air Him Out Here Tonight

"I Am All Run Out of Dry Cracks Tonight," Says Famed Humorist, As He Proceeds To Entertain Reporter on Midnight Interview.

Will Rogers, cowboy humorist and former Follies star, arrived in Wichita Falls yesterday to fill a speaking engagement here tonight and last night was looking for the town's "skeleton" around which he will wind his "dry cracks" this evening. Rogers, tired from a strenuous day at polo, and a dinner party in the evening, said he was "run out of dry cracks" last night, whereupon he proceeded to unload himself.

Feels Very Safe.

"Yes, sir, I can go to bed tonight and sleep with a feeling of perfect confidence that when Old Sol wakes up in the morning that I'll have a ...of over my head and a floor under my feet. In Hollywood they showed me cities that they built one day and fore down the next. Took pictures one day and then they were through with them. Back east they think the whole west is like that. 'Wichita Falls' they say, 'Oil town-boom-slow death-eternity.' But they ain't nothing to that. I was sure surprised, but I do believe that they'll take some more pictures here tomorrow. That hotel looked pretty stable early this afternoon and it ought to look that way again after I get a little sleep."

It was Will Rogers talking, and a Record News reporter listening. Scene: rear platform of Mr. J. A. Clarity's private car at midnight Sunday. Rogers is here to speak at the Junior college auditorium tonight, in connection with a program by the DeReszke singers.

Likes This Southwest.

"You know, I like this southwest country. Sort of like home. I was born an draised over at Claremore, east of Tulsa, so I'm not so far wrong at that. Lots of cow atmosphere around. They gave me a pony out there this afternoon and told me to play polo. We had a good game and the fellows I played with were the luckiest I've ever met. We won that match 10-5 and I don't see yet how we done it.

"Down here you people treat me like I was somebody. Most of the time when an actor or somebody like that goes on tou reverybody looks on him like he was somebody different. Well, here I'm just one of the fellows, and that's what I want to be."

The reported was dubious. This man was a humorist, with an international reputation. King George himself had been known to lead off his after-dinner talk with, "as my friend, Will Rogers says—" There wasn't anything funny about saying the hotel wasn't going to fall down over his head, and that was only passable about them going to take some more pictures here tomorrow. Didn't he know any jokes The reporter's reputation was at stake; shouldn't he spring something better than that For instance, one about the traveling salesman.

Not a Humorist

"No," Will Rogers answered him, "I'm not a humorist. And I don't know nothing funny to tell you. I've only been here a day and I've seen just the best side of your town. I've got to spend tomorrow looking for the skeleton I know is lying around in a closet somewhere. Then I'll tell them all about it tomorrow night and thank heaven that a prolonged drouth in Texas will probably limit the number of vegetables they'll have on hand for their an rewair."

Rogers spent yesterday afternoon in a polo game with Kinmere Club team, following his round of exercise with dinner at the Country Club. When interviewed last night he was in the company of F. J. Clarity, Fort Worth and Denver executive, Bob Yarborough, Fort Worth banker, and others. Those living in Fort Worth left early this morning in Mr. Clarity's private car for that city, Rogers spending the night at the Kemp hotel.

That Silver Tongue.

And so it was that Rogers first exercised his silver tongue in this city.

Rogers has risen to fame as a Follies star by native wit and natural drollery. In the Follies, he has attained the rank of one of the nation's greatest humorists.

From the Follies he has gone into the recital or concert business, much as the writing humorists of another day used to do. His success so far, in thirty-eight of seventy-five engagements contracted for a fee of it is understood, $100,000, has justified him in this rather unusual proceeding.

"Boy," said Will, or words to that effect, "this is the life. I'm having a great time trotting around the country. The only trouble is that I'm afraid I won't be able to sleep tonight unless somebody shakes the bed every five minutes or so to fool me into believing it's on a train.

Likes to Travel.

"Going around like this is a thousand times better than being stuck permanently in New York, getting only the regular theater-going crowd to speak to.

In Special Car.

Mr. and Mrs Rogers and their party arrived yestereday afternoon in a special car on the F. W. & D. from Fort Worth. Included in their party were Amon G. Carter, well-known Texas publisher, W .K. Stripling and Herman Gartner of Fort Worth.

During the afternoon Mr. Rogers startled Wichita Falls polo enthusiasts by making five goals, winning for the Oklahoma team on which he played. Rogers was able to hit the ball on both sides of his horse with ease Rogers proved a remarkably good polo player, his experience with the best player of the East and Europe showing itself in his ability to hit the ball quickly on either side of his horse. Paired with Jim Minnick of Oklahoma City, Rogers, although fatigued from his long speaking tour, wielded his polo mallet with the loose-jointed dexterity characteristic of his former life as a cowpuncher and lariat artist.

So eager were the polo fans that they inveigled him into another game at Fair Park at 2 o'clock this afternoon. After the game, Rogers was hurried to the Country club.

Dinner at Club.

Mr. Rogers and members of the Music club which sponsored his lecture here tonight were entertained at the Wichita Falls Country club at a dinner party last night, at which local poloists were hosts.

Judge Britain, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Carter and Charles Featherstone of this city spoke at the dinner, at which Dr. J. H. Fletcher was toastmaster.

At the dinner were: Amon G. Carter, W. K. Stripling and Herman Gartner of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Will Rogers, and the following Wichitans: Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bryan, Miss Lucile Freet, Miss Anita Monroe, Miss Vician Railey, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Huff, Judge Britain, Mrs. Lois Parker, Miss Annas May Holt, Mrs. Horace Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Prendegrast, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Featherstone, J. C. Eastuow, Huston Cowden, Jerell Gose, Sam Beaty, Dave White, Glen Offield and Mr. Shirley; Jim Minnick of Oklahoma City and Lieutenants McClure and Hensley of Fort Sill.

Ponzi, Formerly a Wichitan, Now In Florida Land Boom

Charles Ponzi, famed "get-rich-quick" financier and believed by some Wichita Falls citizens to have been an accountant for a local firm, in 1918, is operating in Florida real estate. He has a scheme to buy Florida land on a large scale and market the lots all over the United States at $10 each. Ponzi is said to have been in Wichita Falls shortly before his internationally famous Boston financing scheme which resulted in his conviction and a term in prison.

He says he will pay off investors who lost in his early operations if his Florida operations are successful.

SOUTH TOLD TO KEEP ITS EYE ON MANEUVERS

Temperance Board Launch Broadside On Al Smith

WALKER IS INCLUDED

Trip of Mayor-Elect to Georgia Basis For Statement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. (AP)—A sweeping attack on "Governor Al Smith as a proposed presidential candidate," and on Tammany Hall in general, was made here tonight by the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church.

In a statement based on the Southern trip of Mayor-Elect Walker of New York, the board declared it was "exceedingly doubtful if the democrats would carry a single Southern state with Governor Al Smith as candidate for president and it is not certain that they could carry any state at all."

"Let the South be on its guard," it said, "let all America be on its guard."

"Murder Morality."

The statement declared the South would be "interested to know Mr. Walker's connection with New York's odorous prize figiting game and with those elements in New York which are doing their best to murder American standardds of morality." Asserting that press reports stated that the mayor-elect was in the South presumably in the interests of Tammany and Governor Smith, it said Governor Smith's proposed advancement, "in view of the circumstances of the last campaign," was "astonishing effrontery."

"Mr. Walker, who will experience a courteous hospitality not given Mr. McAdoo's Southern delegates in New York," said the Methodist board's statement, "need not be mislead thereby into believing the Southwill support the country's foremost political champion of the liquor interests.

"Let Us Remember."

"Let the South remember the defiance by Tammany of the democratic decision rendered by the South. West and large portion of the East that the liquor traffic shall not be legalized and protected in its exploitation of the American people. Let it remember the propaganda which is symtematically organized to incite crime in the South and West in order that the prohibition law may be overthrown by these criminal activities. Let it remember that Governor Al Smith and his friends were the first political group in America to introduce a religious issue into a convention of a political party, an atrocious thing to do in any country where all religious stand upon the same basis.

"The effort to make it appear that Governor Al Smith's opponents are prejudiced against his religion is as false now as it was then. To a man they have more respect for a good Catholic than they have for a bad Protestant.

"Insults and Epithets."

"But they will never accept as a president, a man whose conduct of his office as governor promoted the effort to stabilize a condition of nullification in America's greatest state and incited ignorant and criminal people throughout the country to violation of the law. Let the South remember the insults and epithets that were showered on the delegates who refused to be bullied into this political conspiracy."

Declaring the country needed two strong political parties, the board added that "if Tammany or a Tammany candidate is allowed to direct the nomination at the next democratic convention, the South knows that for all practical purposes there will be but one party when the people march to the polls in November."

THE WEATHER

"I wish my Sunday school teacher and school teacher wouldn't get me all mixed up about the way the world was made."

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.
The Other Party.

The League of Nations! I'll agree
To love the German, French and Russ;
There's no one willing-er than me
To put away the blunderbuss,
I love to love my neighbors, love
The rich and poor, the bad and good.
But I must make exception of
One person in the neighborhood.
You see, a telephone we've got.
And, though to love is very fine,
There's still one person I cannot—
The other party on our line.

I know, of course, that holy writ
Is full of lofty passages;
I've read the Bible quite a bit,
And try to do just what it says.
It says to love your enemy,
His sins forgive, his faults condone,
But that was written, you'll agree,
Before we had the telephone.
I'll love your neighbor as yourself,
At loving folks I'll surely shine—
Except that demon, imp and elf,
The other party on our line.

I'll love Republicans if you
Would have me vote Republican,
And I'll vote Democratic, too,
To try to please my fellowman.
I'll love the grand old party, yes,
Some other party not so old;
There isn't anyone, I guess,
I couldn't love if I were told.
But there's a party I forgot,
One party that I must decline
To ever love, no matter what—
The other party on our line.

Childress Autoist, at Point Of Pistol, Forced to Help Pull Rum Car Out of Ditch

And Then the Bootlegger, After Offering $10 And Pint of Liquor, Goes Merrily On To Wichita Falls With Load of Whiskey

CHILDRESS, Nov. 15.—"I'm not a hijacker!"

"Just a bootlegger in distress!"

A Childress man enroute from Fort Worth to Dallas one night this last week had those two remarks addressed to him, he told a newspaper man here. It was shortly after midnight on the thirty mile paved stretch between Fort Worth and Dallas when the Childress man developed trouble with the steering gear to his car.

He stopped, tinkered with the radius rod a minute and was getting going again when a man stepped out of the darkness onto the running board of the car and stuck a gun in his face.

Obeyed Orders.

"I'm not a hijacker."

It was the man with the gun who spoke. "I've got 400 quarts of whiskey in a car in the ditch here and I've got to get pulled out some way. Back up just a bit, and I'll hitch up to you."

The Childress man, so the story goes, was too astonished to speak. He complied with his instructions and in a minute the whiskey-runner's car was out of the ditch and ready to go.

The man put his gun up, untied the two cars and walked over to the Childress car. "When I left Dallas there were two cars folowing me and I thought they were hijackers," he explained. "In taking this curve I slid into the ditch. I tried to stop a dozen cars but all of them whizzed by and it began to look as if I was stuck here until you stopped a few minutes ago.

On His Way to Wichita

"I have to get into Wichita Falls with this load before daylight, and there was nothing left but to hold you up as I did.

"Here," the whiskey runner said and he took a ten dollar goid certificate from one pocket, and a pint bottle of whiskey from another, and proffered both to the man in the car. "Now, beat it!" he said.

And one headed toward Dallas, and the other toward Wichita Falls.

Waggoner Hires Special Train To Sister's Bedside

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 15—(AP)—Guy Waggoner, multi-millionaire of Fort Worth, missed train connections here today, and rather than wait, hired a special train for New York City, where his sister, Electra, was said to be dying. The special, which will reach New York at 3 a. m., tomorrow, cost the Texan $5,900. He tried without success to charter an airplane.

Vernon Cotton Yard Is Burning

VERNON, Nov. 15.—Fire destroyed about 30 bales of cotton in the Vernon cotton yards today. The flames were discovered early this morning and apparently extinguished after several hours work, but fire broke out again during the late afternoon and was still burning about 8 o'clock tonight.

No buildings were damaged.

TWO WILDCATS HOLD INTEREST IN NO. TEXAS

Atlantic-Sigler and Kentucky-Jackson Due For Completion

Two wildcat wells hold the chief interest as the week in north Texas oil fields begins. In southern Wilbarger county Atlantic Oil Producing company stand a good chance of completing their No. 2, Sigler-Waggoner, northwest of the old Sigler wells, for a big well, while in north central Archer county Kentucky Oil corporation's No. 1, Annie P. Jackson, north of Clark Hill, is testing a sand in the neighborhood of 1,425 feet. Elsewhere completions will savor mainly of routine development, a number of new wells expected south of Megargel, southeast of the Litchfield area and southeast of the old Comac pool where Texhoma has poened a new producing area with their Oldham wildcat.

Casing On Bottom

Atlantic Oil Producing company had run the five-inch casing yesterday and w ereon bottom. The well was fairly well cleaned out and the intermittent flowing and two hour's swabbing Friday had filled a 250-barrel tank. It was expected to drill into the lime pay at 2,453 feet this morning. The well is located in the southwest corner of the northeast forty of the northwest quarter of section 51, block 2, a half-mile northwest of the old pool, where three wells are producing from a 2,000-foot pay.

Completion in Kentucky's well on the Annie P. Jackson land, in the southwest corner of the Aldridge survey, north of Chalk Hill and east of the Lomax-Barkley-Meadows area, will be rather important in the development of that area. The status of the well was something of a mystery yeterday but it is known to have a sand showing some oil at a depth of about 1,425 feet.

Weather Man Smiles On Wichita Sunday

The weather man made another heroic effort to freeze up north Texas with winter weather Sunday, but the best he could do was send a crisp and zestful temperature, a cloudless sky and a light wind that gave a thoroughly ideal day.

The cold north wind and heavy cloud blanket that swept over the city Saturday afternoon died out before midnight. The clouds were dispersed and the wind faded away, with the result that Sunday dawned bright and clear and with a typical autumn temperature.

There was nothing Sunday night to indicate anything but a continuation of fair weather Monday.

Sunday School Class Has 'Daily Dozen' at Opening of Services

Had your calisthenics yet?

"When you get up in the morning and just before going to bed at night," Walter Camp used to say in his directions on how to build up a healthy physique.

But they're doing it at Sunday school, too, now. "Before we go further into today's lesson, Brother Blankety-Blank will lead us in calisthenics," will be the order henceforth if the example of Judge Kay's Bible class yesterday is followed elsewhere.

Just prior to the song service yesterday morning, C. C. Frazee, physical director at the Junior college, took the platform at the Strand theater before more than 300 men who had gathered to hear Judge Kay's lecture and led the congregation in a few well-chosen exercises. "1-2-3-4; inhale; ex-hale; up, down; right, left."

The ordeal lasted some three or four minutes. Comment after the service indicated that the drill was very popular and it is understood that it will be continued as an institution in the Sunday evening class services.

THE MOST FASCINATING STORY OF WICHITA FALLS' MODERN DAY PROBLEMS STARTS SOON IN RECORD NEWS

It's All Settled Now--Farmers Battle Longhorns For Title

Ed Hughes' Column

ERNIE JARVIS.

Ernie Jarvis, England's crack flyweight, appears to be making astonishing progress toward the world's flyweight goal. The little Englishman has thus far hurdled Black Bill and Johnny Breslin. In his last fight he endeavored to account for Young Dencio, the dangerous Filipino, but only succeeded in making a fair showing.

Despite his successes, Jarvis thus far has not impressed this writer as a great fighter. He is lively, a bit clownish, clever enough and altogether mildly interesting. But the boy has not the fascination of Jimmy Wilde or the late Pancho Villa. In a word, he lacks topnitch class, particularly in the matter of hitting. Jarvis could not punch his way out of a paper bag, so to speak. In nine cases out of ten the man who cannot hit can never create a healthy sensation.

Wilde was a terrific hitter, the greatest of his weight, probably, that ever lived. Villa could not wallop in the same class with Wilde, but he was a punishing enough hitter in all conscience. Jarvis has made such decided headway here, largely because of two things. One is that the flyweight class has deteriorated sadly. The material against the midgets is mighty mediocre in quality. The other reason is that Jarvis differs from most European glovemen in that he can stay the Americans at infighting. It is gradually dawning on John Bull that there is something to boxing besides an educated straight left.

As things stand now it would appear that only Genaro or the champion La Barba, can stop Jarvis' advance to the flyweight pinnacle. Jarvis is probably being "built up" for an international title clash with the champion.

If La Barba is as classly as described he should have little difficulty whipping the Englishman.

Class Minus Wallopers.

The flyweight class, however, will never whip the boxing public into a foam of excitement until a real hitter enters the class. Genaro and La Barba are both ordinary smiters in point of knockout power.

For a time it looked as if Al Brown, the lengthy, skinny, colored youngster, would revive interest in the class with his knock-em-dead punch. But all of a sudden he lost his wallop. Some whispered that Brown found it too hard to get matches when he was dropping them regularly. Others maintain that his style was solved, and that by carrying the fight to him Brown was not so likely to "get the jump" on his man.

At any rate Brown, the one-time sensation, is now just one of the herd.

Hugh H. Baxter, of the New York A. C., one of the most consistent athletes this country ever produced, is "up in arms" over the "Western roll" system of high jumping by which Harold Osborne has established his marvellous marks. We quote an interesting article written by the veteran in a recent issue of the Winged Foot:

"Is the world's running high jump record a fake? This may seem a rather startling statement to make, but if it is true as many persons believe, then probably all the world's high jump records made since 1895 would be open to suspicion, as the holders all used the style commonly known as the "Western roll."

"This method of jumping has been a fruitful source of discussion among critics of tracks and field sports ever since it was introduced, and the consensus of opinion seems to be that it is somewhat of a misnomer to term the style high jumping at all, as in reality it is a combination of high jumping and vaulting—the point where the high jump ends and the vault begins being determined by the ability of the performer.

"What the roller really does is this; —He jumps as high as he can in a perfectly legitimate way, but when he begins to have trouble with the crossbar he resorts to the vaulting method.

"To accomplish this he rests his arm and hand along the crossbar, and gives a strong downward pressure; this achieves a double purpose: the downward pressure on the crossbar helps to shoot the body into the air, exactly as a man would do in a one-hand vault over a fence; secondly, it depresses the light Olympic crossbar from a few inches to possibly a foot.

"Over the lowest point of this depression the athlete rolls his body; a very clever use of the arms and hand as he is falling enables him to push the bar tight against the uprights; the bar will then spring back into place.

"Sometimes the bar will bounce off entirely, but in the majority of cases it remains on the pins. I am informed that at the recent national championship meeting, held in San Francisco, the ends of the bar were wrapped with adhesive tape.

"If this method were employed in the case of the running high jump it would of course have a tendency to keep the bar in place after the pressure of the athlete's arm had released. If, after the bar has returned to its original position, we apply the measuring stick, it will show a height of, say, six feet six inches from the ground, whereas when the athlete actually crossed the bar it was perhaps not more than six feet from the ground.

"A simple solution of this problem, and one which would do away with all discussion, would be to use some sort of clip or other device, which would admit of the athlete touching the bar and perhaps even shaking it slightly, but when a strong downward pressure was applied (as in the rolling style) it would immediately drop to the ground.

"Nothing of the foregoing must be understood to reflect in any way upon the sportsmanship of the athletes using this style. There is no rule in this country or, to the best of my knowledge, in any country, which prohibits it, and if an athlete adheres to the rules of the game, what more can be asked of him!

"It would seem, however, that the time has come for the enactment of some rule which will do away with the 'high-jump-vault,' just as the old pole-climbing method of pole-vaulting, in which many world's records were made prior to 1890, was eliminated by the American authorities, and subsequently by the International Olympic committee."

Mr. Baxter appears to have hit the nail on the head. The writer always considered Osborne's jumping a remarkably entertaining combination of jumping, vaulting, and elementary acrobatics. And if, as Mr. Baxter points out, adhesive tape was used on the ends of the bar in the championships, then it was nothing more than vaulting, providing the jumper touched the bar.

COWBOYS TAKE LEAD IN T I A A GRIDIRON RACE

Varsity Uses Reserves In Easy Game With Arizona

BALDWIN HITS STRIDE

Jones and Washmon Rank As Loop's Premier Field-Goalers

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 15.—(AP) Narrowing of the Southwest conference championship field to the Texas Longhorns and the Texas Aggies by A. & M.'s 17-0 win over the Rice Owls, and Simmons college taking the lead in the T. I. A. A. by its 9-7 triumph of the Cowboys over the Trinity university Tigers were major developments of Texas football last week. S. M. U.'s hard-earned 7-6 win over the Baylor Bruins and T. C. P.'s 3-0 victory over the Arkansas Hogs also merit attention of the praise-dispensers.

Second-string performers of the Longhorns won an easy victory over the Arizona university Wild Cats, but the game was interesting because the Steers flashed in Leopold Irwin a sturdy performer—who may be the orange and white offense ace against the Texas Aggies Thanksgiving day at College Station.

Baldwin, all-state high school back for Wichita Falls in 1923, before the season started was expected by many to be the outstanding Longhorn back of the season. Until Saturday, however, his work was disappointing, and some of those who had predicted brilliant performance by him were ready to term him a "fizzle", until he got started against the Wildcats.

Leo Hard to Stop.

It was noticeable that Baldwin on his sweeping dashes around the wings started far behind the line of scrimmage. The big fellow is a bit slow in starting, but given time to gather momentum he is exceedingley hard to stop. Saturday he used the stiff arm to advantage.

Baldwin is an accurate passer and a fair punter. Many Longhorn partisians who saw this 180 pound streak in action Saturday predicted Coach "Doc" Stewart would start him against the Farmers. However, it is doubtful the orange and white head coach at the start of the fray would break into so effective a combination as the one made up of Captain Wright, Max Saxon, Rufus King and Maurice Stallter. Baldwin is likely to get his chance, only in event this combination fails to function against the stalwart Aggies.

In troubling Coach Heisman's Owls the Texas Aggies showed a drive and spirit that must have brought forebodings to Coach Stewart of the Longhorns, who scouted the game. The Longhorn coach learned little new about the plays Coach Bible has taught his men. The cadets relied on straight football, their powerful forwards boring holes for the fleet, hard hitting backs.

The Aggie triumph set the stage for what is certain to be a memorable gridiron combat, the Turkey day fracas between the Longhorns and Aggies. This attraction, since its inception years ago, has been notable for the desperate efforts to win exerted by both elevens.

Victor Has Clear Title.

Traditional rivalry will be made keener this season by the fact that the victor will have a clear title to the conference championship. Not since 1921 has result of this game determined the conference champion ship. In that year the game ended in a scoreless tie, but the Farmers claimed the championship because, though neither the Aggies or the Longhorns had met with defeat, they had played more conference games.

Coach Stewart's Longhorns appear to have an advantage in the back field, but what ever superiority the back of the like performers of the orange and white may posses over the Aggie backs is balanced by the superior Aggies forward wall.

Two of the strongest, best coached elevens ever to battle in the T. I. A. A. meet Wednesday at Waxahachie and the Simmons college Cowboys won 9-7. To earn a clear title to the championship, the Cowboys must win Thanksgiving day over "Dad" Amis' strong Howard Payne Yellow Jackets. Howard Payne has a great team and Cowboys will be extended to the limit to win.

Estes, the fleet youngster who gathered in a punt and, shaking off a number of tacklers, raced through a broken field for the Cowboys' winning touchdown, is a sensational back any football coach would welcome to his squad.

Coach Frank Bridges' Bruins, after a poor showing against the Longhorns, "came back" in great style Saturday against the Mustangs, losing what in sport parlance is known as a "heart-breaker." The Steeds had been picked by most scribes to win by a fairly substantial margin; but the Bruins exhibited a spirit of fight that kept them in the running to the last.

Jones Has Brilliant Toe.

Mann, young quarterback of the victors, played a great game; while Jack Jones of the losers kicked two goals from the field to score all the points of his eleven.

Jones is one of the greatest place kickers the conference has known, and his work has certainly earned him consideration for an all-conference berth. With possible exception of Saxon of the Longhorns, he has no superior as a defensive back, and within the forty yard line, he is as apt as not to boot the leather through the posts for three points. His booting of a field goal against Texas with a heavy, water-soaked ball from the 43 yard line must go down in the record as one of the most brilliant feats of the conference season.

The Mustangs forward against the Bruins showed a fight that must have warmed the heart of Ray Morrison, head coach. The S. M. U. forward wall stiffened and hurled back the Bears, after Baylor had fought its way to the two yard line.

Washmon All of T. C. U.

To Johnny Washman belongs the distinction of having scored all points made by his team in its two conference victories. The week before, Washmon's place kick defeated the Texas Aggies in the biggest conference supset of the season and Saturday the splendid T. C. U. pivot man booted the placement goal that enabled Matty Bell's men to win over Coach Francis Schmidt's Razorbacks.

The T. C. U. Horned Toads have confounded the wiseacres. Before the start of the season they were consigned by many prognosticators to the cellar. They are now certain of finishing in second place or in a tie for second honors. Should the Longhorns defeat the Aggies, the Toads would finish in second place. Should the Aggies win over the Steers, they would finish in a tie with the Longhorns for second place.

Coach Bell has a team about the equal of any in the conference, a team that boasts a splendid defense and a better than fair offense.

Lane Leads East In Point Scoring

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Lane of Dartmouth, with 18 touchdowns scored, leads the east in the matter of individual scoring on the intercollegiate gridiron. Five points astern is Eddie Tyron, with 14 touchdowns and 19 points after touchdown. Lane has scored a total of 108 points while Tyron has amassed 103. These two leaders are far out in front in the race for the honors and the season is virtually over.

"Swede" Oberlander of Dartmouth stands third with 72 points while Graham of Fordham is fourth with 71.

Lane leads in touchdowns scored with 18 while Graham of Fordham is leading the field in the matter of kicking extra points after touchdowns with 26.

Four Leaders Still Unbeaten In South Conference Race

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15.—(AP) —Several surprises made football in the south interesting Saturday although the undefeated teams came through as expected, leaving Alabama, Tulane, Washington and Lee and North Carolina with clean conference records. Alabama has won six games and the other three four.

Alabama's 34 to 0 defeat of Florida was greater than forecast, a tentative limit of three touchdowns having been set by close followers of the game. Maryland's opposition to Washington and Lee, as indicated by a score of 7 to 3, was of a sterner character than expected. Tulane in winning fro mSewanee, 14 to 0, ran almost true to form as two to three touchdowns was considered about the lay of the football land for the day.

SIMON PURES HOLD SESSION IN PITTSBURGH

Lots of Yap Yap At Huge Convention to Decide This and That

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The American amateur athletic union is in session and upon its actions men and women will rise to fame and cities will learn of the award or rejection of their offers for the annual classics of the sport world.

The interchanging of votes of delegates of the various cities in an effort to land championship meets for their cities was much in evidence during the opening hours of the convention today. Everywhere sessions were being held prior to the get-togethers of committees.

The records committee from an early caucus is reported ready to admit all of the records submitted. No protests have been filed and none are expected.

The sesqui-centennial committee from Philadelphia is finding considerable opposition in its effort to land all of the national championships, indoor and outdoors, for that affair next year. The committee is making an effort to obtain enough strength to ward off the opposition coming from New Orleans and the Southern Pacific association, Los Angeles, both of which are bidding for the national outdoor championships.

For the indoor championships no bids have thus far been received and delegates are of the opinion that a situation similar to that of last year may arise. At that time no bid was made for the indoor event and the metropolitan association came to the rescue.

The return of interest in the long distance running race in America is evidenced, Assistant Secretary Daniel J. Ferris said, by four cities bidding for the national marathon race. They are Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit, with chances for any of them about equal.

Minnick and Will Rogers Lead Oklahoma City Polo Quartet To 10-5 Victory of Wichita Falls

Will Rogers and Jim Minnick aided by Dick Goodman and E. Pendegrast of Wichita Falls carrying the colors of the Oklahoma City polo club took the Wichita Falls polo four to a 10-5 cleaning in a spectacular contest over the Texas-Oklahoma fair grounds course Sunday afternoon.

The same teams are scheduled to hook up in a return match this afternoon on the fair grounds field at 2 o'clock.

Play Sunday was scintillating at almost every angle with Minnick and Rogers displaying keen horsemanship, and abetted by the goal scoring proclivities of Goodman, led the Sooner state four to a flashy victory.

Mr. Rogers, nationally famous lecturer, rehearsed his next "extemporaneous" address yesterday while astride a polo pony and in the thick of flying-mallet melee, so a team mate and an opponent confided. The substance of the declamatory wizard's speech could not be heard on the sidelines, but it could be seen he was busily engaged in some sort of discourse.

Quite a bit of excitement was caused spectators when Dave White's pony stumbled and fell with him. White was dazed for several minutes, but came back and resumed play. Pendegrast's horse also took a spill but neither was hurt.

HIGHER MONEY RATE SCARES WALL STREET

Advance By Boston Reserve Bank Causes Caution By Traders

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The upheaval of the financial markets following the advance in the Boston federal reserve bank's rediscount rate last week created some uncertainty regarding the state of business throughout the country, which a series of subsequent favorable developments largely dispelled.

In view of the feverish excitement which had prevailed in speculative quarters for the past month, it was not unnatural that the stock market should take fright at the rise in the Boston bank rate to four per cent which was at first interpreted as a warning signal from federal reserve authorities, that the time had come to curb unbridled speculations.

A study of the situation, however, quickly revealed that the higher rate at Boston was justified and probably necessitated by an enormous expansion of rediscounting at that center, largely due to acceleration of the textile industry. The situation at New York was not analagous, but the meeting of the local bank's directors on Thursday nevertheless, was watched with intense interest for a possible alteration in the rate, which would have implied a general expansion of credit that could not well be ignored by the securities market.

Advance Is Forecast.

The New York rate was maintained at 3 1-2 per cent but bankers indicated the increased business which would naturally be attracted here by the lower charge would eventually force an upward revision. So far this year the plentiful supply of funds which has contributed to the buoyancy of the stock market has come from outside sources, representing the offerings of interior banks to the call loan market.

Indications are that muc hof this money will not be drawn back to finance business requirements and that a gradual tightening of the general credit situation will result.

The most important developments of the week were not so much in the nature of the new business as in the recognition of past prosperity through larger dividends and favorable earning reports. The general motors corporation, through declaration of $5 extra dividend with value of more than $25,000,000 set a new high record for cash disbursements to stockholders in any peace time year. Two large oil companies—Phillips and General Petroleum increased their annual dividened rate, provided new financing for expansion and reported big gains in current earnings. The news fro mother industries was correspondingly favorable.

Rail Business Prospers.

With the railroads establishing a new high monthly earnings record of $134,584,916 in September, present indications point to a net income of more than $1,000,000,000 for the entire year. Freight traffic has continued well above a million cars weekly despite the stoppage of the anthracite coal movement, which is usually an important item during the fall.

The increase of almost 400,000 tons in unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation was the largest monthly gain of the year, giving concrete evidence of an influx of buying orders. Expanding operations and an upward price trend continued to favor the industry.

Grand and petit jurymen have been summoned to report to the court and, if past custom is followed, it is presumed $50 fines will be assessed against all those summoned and who fail to appear.

Lagging Cotton Prices Are Stimulated By Bad Crop News and Bullish Report

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The main event the past week was publication of the government estimate of the crop based on conditions prevailing Nov. 1. Tais estimate of 15,386,000 bales represented an increase over the preceding estimate of 160,000 bales. That the report was larger than generally expected was shown by the faet that prices crumbled nearly seven dollars a bale, or 137 points frfom the prices prevailing just before the estimate was issued, December contracts dropping from 19.70 down to 18.33.

This attracted trade buying as well as a good deal of covering by satisfied shorts and prices recovered more than 80 points the following day.

The recovery was made more pronounced subsequently by the weekly weather and crop reports to the effect that picking had ceased over a considerable portion of the belt and that a considerable amount of damage had been done by heavy rains.

There was some reaction late in the week on news that British spinners proposed to reduce working hours in mills using American cotton, but this was not sufficient to offset the trade demand for lower months contracts.

The upswing of prices was given fresh impetus Saturday by the census report, showing that domestic mills consumed during October, 543,079 bales of lint cotton, a much larger consumption than anticipated. December contracts Saturday advanced to 29.23 or 19 points above the low level reached Monday last.

Banker Praises Community Chest

Wichita Falls, like every community, owes it to itself to provide a reasonable amount of welfare work for those of its people who through circumstances perhaps beyond their control stand in need of help.

This is the belief of W. M. McGregor, president of the First National bank, who yesterday added his approval to those of other business men here for the community chest.

"I heartily approve of the chest idea, of the way it is managed and of the manner in which it is applied," Mr. McGregor declared. "There can be no question, I think, of the need of some method of organized relief work here; its accomplishments in the past have shown it to be capably and efficiently administered; and I believe the expenditure of the community's funds have been guided by sound judgment and in a way that will bring the maximum amount of good.

The three day community chest drive this year will start Monday, Nov. 23 and continue through Wednesday, the 25th. In those three days—in less time if possible, it is hope dto raise $55.00 which is the total set by the budget committee as being needed in welfare work for the next 12 months.

KAY TAKES HIT AT INTOLERANT CHURCH SPIRIT

Decries Plan to Limit College Profs. to Church Members

Judge Kay scored churchly intolerance in matters of science and evolution in his address at the Strand theatre yesterday morning. The plan to have professors in church schools subscribed to the creed and doctrine of that church before they can hold their jobs may sound good to the man who doesn't stop to think about it, but a little contemplation will show that it will fill the school with liars and nincompoops for professors and teachers," he said. An audience of 332 heard the judge's address.

Judge Kay said:

"Now, St. Paul was mobbed by a bunch of fellows who said he wasn't teaching the old law. I poke a little fun, sometimes, here, at the scientists and evolutionists, but, after all, I am one of those who believe that:

"Thro the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."

We are not doining much if we cannot improve on our ancestors. Your ancestors, and mine, were hanged for smuggling and stealing cattle on the coast of England, a thousand years ago. If you don't believe that, hire some of these specialists to run up your family tree. You wouldn't go that far back, though. The Texas man, after all, has got a pretty good bump of caution. He would stop back in Georgia or South Carolina,—and he might find something there.

Lots of Religion.

A man might have an abundance of religion, and not be a christian. A man might suffer violently with religion, and, yet, not be in touch with the Master.

There are many kinds of religion, and I am going to say something to you this morning which may be a failure and, yet, I think that it is the most important thing that I have ever said to you. Man has never, yet, been able to form a creed to fit his endeavors and his ambitions in religion, in government, in science, in art, or in anything. We praise the constitution of the United States and, yet, we are forever trying to amend it. We praise the laws of the United States and, yet, congress grinds out more and more, almost unceasingly. We praise the law in Texas, and, yet, the legislature furnishes a new book every year, so that in the building that is called "Government," we never take the scaffolding down, never get ourselves satisfied with it, never reach completion, and never put the roof on it. It is so in science. You can't find, anywhere, great doctors of science that agree on the creed. It is so in art, and it is so in religion. And, in fact, this great truth that man is unable to form a creed grows out of the further fact that "that that was good yesterday, is not good today," and that things that would satisfy us yesterday, will not satisfy today.

Hits Conference.

I notice down here in some of the Methodist conferences, (and I am a Methodist and don't mind knocking a little on them on occasion), they wouldn't let a wide, polished, young preacher, well educated man, of high character, into the conference, because he didn't subscribe to the Apostles' creed. Now, the Apostles' creed is not in the Bible. It is a formula that some doctors in the church put together, to tell men that they must believe that or perish.

I notice that the (Baptist church and Methodist church, and some other churches, are saying that professors in the church schools ought to subscribe to a certain formula of doctrine before they are employed.

Now, that sounds pretty good to a man that doesn't stop to think, but, that is going to fill the schools with liars and nincompoops for professors and teachers, because that is the trouble about a creed, that a liar can subscribe to it. Did you ever stop to think about that! That, the first fellow to take shelter under a creed, is a fellow that says he believes it! You are helpless when you come to him, because you cannot look into the human mind and know what the subject believes. He has got you. He has got you more ways than you can count.

Here is another church that says, we just take the Bible for it. We haven't got any creed. There is more than one church of that type. I wonder what a fellow that couldn't read would do in that kind of a church, because he couldn't have it explained. If they explained it to him, it would be a creed. He would be down and out. A public school system would be his salvation. I am leading up to something here that is more important.

Don't Worship Bible.

We ought not to worship the Bible. I don't think I yield to any man in my belief and my love for it. I believe it in the sense that it is inspired, but I don't worship it, because we are, no where, told to worship the Bible. You say, just take the Dible and run the church by it! You know the church ran 400 yeass before they ever had a Bible, and grew faster, relatively, than they are growing now. I said, 400 years. It was 397 years, and it was a thousand years before they ever had all the books bound together in one. What am I leading up to here! Religion is in the human heart, and in human conduct, and not a formula or a ceremony. Here's a fellow says, "We take the Bible for it." No he doesn't. He just takes spots in the Bible. You will always notice that, if you will watch him. He doesn't take this particular spot that I am going to call your attention to. St. James says that pure and undefiled religion is to visit the fatherless, and the widow, and to keep yourself unspotted from the world. Ah, you can't lie about that, and you can't hop up and say: "I believe it," and let it go at that, but we come now in sight of a religion that has to be lived.

You have to live it. And, I know that whatever standing and character and reputation I have in Wichita Falls consists wholly in what men think of my everyday life and walk. It wouldn't do any good for me to get up here and say that "I will give my body to be burned," that "I subscribe to this tenet, and that faith, and that belief, if I am not right in my walk and in my life."

What is, then, the right kind of religion! It is a religion that shines in your face. It is a religion that loves God. It is a religion that loves your neighbor and your fellowmen. It is a religion that loves good men and little children. Ah, it is a religion that makes your life worth something to the community.

Creeds Discussed.

What did the Savior say,—that you must subscribe to His creed! No! I don't believe I ever did talk about the Methodist doctrine in this Sunday school class, but I am going to surprise some Methodists here this morning. To hear them talk about it, and to hear some doctors and professors talk about it, you would think we had got the Bible worked out to where we knew exactly what I mean. Here is all the Methdists ever said about the Bible,—everything. "We believe that the scriptures contain all that is necessary to salvation." That's all there is. Go ask the preacher. I expect you wouldn't believe me about that, but go ask him.

What did Christ say! He didn't say, "Here is a great book which you must understand or perish," but, He reached down and picked up a little child, and held it away up and said: "Unless ye become as one of these, ye shall not enter into the kingdom." Now, little children are simple. I wish that men could understand that the religion of Heaven, and the religion that is to save the eartha, is a simple religion. I can't understand the great philosophies of the church, I can't understand much that is in the Bible, but I can look far backward and see the Roman soldiers marching up to a place of the skull, and I can see the Nazarene, fainting under His cross, and I can see the Jews mocking Him.

And, I can know that there He suffered, and that He died for you and for me, and I think that is enough to know, and that we should make our life conform to His life. He came to give us life; not philosophy. He came to give us life more abundantly. He said so.

Let us go out saying that "the only religion that I can pass off to people in Wichita Falls; the only religions that I can make people here believe in, is a religion of 24 hours a day, seven days in the week, with a consecrated life, and a contrite spirit, and a becoming modesty, walking along, perhaps not perfectly, but ever upward and onward," setting forth in your life, and walk, and conversation, that you have been with God.

BOND MARKET FIRM DESPITE HIGHER MONEY

Even Reactions to Stock Exchange Break Are Mild and Brief

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—With remarkable equanimity the bond market last week refused to take alarm over the advance in the Boston reserve bank's rediscount rate to 4 per cent—a development that caused great consternation in more speculative quarters. At the same time investment circles showed a contrasting receptiveness for favorable news, which gave the market an appearance of strength unequalled in many weeks.

Retention of the New York bank at 3 1-2 per cent at a time when Wall Street feared a chance in line with the earlier action at Boston acted as a tonic to bond trading. Aggressive bidding immediately developer for all classes of bonds extending an advance which already had made considerable headway.

The collapse in stock prices which followed the tightening of credit in the Boston district nationally caused some unsettlement in bond dealings but the reactions were mild and short lived. An alaysis of the situation revealed little ground for apprehension over general credit conditions and also colored away uncertainties which had been retarding the progress of the bond barket. Confidence that a slight stiffening of money rates already had been discounted many traders resumed purchases of bonds on a large scale, contending that prices had become more attractive in recent weeks.

Settlement of the Italian debt to the United States was welcomed in the financial district as a constructive development for both Italy and the United States. Its immediate effect here will be the reopening of Wall Street's credit facilities to the Italian government. Virtual assurance has been given by New York bankers that a loan of $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 will be provided to assist Italy to restore the gold standard and stabilize its currency on a devalued basis.

Italian industrial and public utility bond issues aggregating $50,000,000 or more will follow the flotation of a government loan. One of the first borrowers will be a large hydro-electric enterprise, which may eventually obtain more than a $30,000,000 in this market with this large volume of financing in sight, bankers are giving careful consideration to Italy's credit rating, since it has no bonds outstanding here.

With its continental neighbors making progress in their financial program, fortified by American loans, France has given indication of making another effort to settle its debt to the United States. Because of the liberal terms granted to Italy it is believed that the French will now be able to obtain a satisfactory agreement. Extension of a large private loan to France merely awaits such a settlement.

Trading in listed bonds was featured by the strength of the railroad and oil company lines, many of which moved up briskly late in the week in sympathy with the rise in these stocks.

Among the bond offerings tentatively scheduled for next week is a $15,000,000 note issue for the national dairy products corporation, which will finance the acquisition of the Sheffield farms company.

Budget Buying For Men Inaugurated By P. B. M. Co.

The budget buying plan for Society Brand clothes as inaugurated in the men's department of P. B. M. company, local department store, will attract wide interest as a new departure in the realm of fine men's wear. By this means, fine suits and overcoats are purchased in ten divided payments, called the "Ten Pay Plan." Economy in buying, and the ability to select much finer clothing than before, are the two main advantages of the plan, according to Jack C. Bernard, manager of the establishment. In explaining the idea Mr. Barnard declared that the plan was evolved as the result of a budget plan worked out by a large bank which made provisions for the expenditure of a size income, but in the lower brackets the plan made no provision for the purchase of clothing of the better grades except at so much a month.

PINCHOT ON THE WAR PATH.

Governor Gifford Pinchot is on the war path again. Regular republicans of Pennsylvania of the machine type, won all the offices on November election day. They fairly swamped the Pinchot reformers. Now Governor Pinchot says that Andrew W. Mellon and his men are responsible for the non-enforcement of the liquor laws in the state of Pennsylvania, and that bootlegging is a brazen industry.

In order to better conditions, he is going to do his best to settle the hard coal strike and to run for the senate against Senator George W. Pepper next year. He says all the good women are for him, all the men who favor enforcement are for him, and clean minded people generally are for him. If so, how is it that the republican regulars of the machine type have defeated all his programs and baffled all his activities.

Senator Pepper is in a bad way. His fences have been broken. Regular republican leaders in the city of Philadelphia, the Pepper home, have served notice on Pepper that they will fight his re-nomination and re-election next year. Senator Pepper knows the reason why. All the machine leaders insist that General Smedley M. Butler should be returned to the marines. If Butler isn't returned, then Pepper is not to be returned to the senate.

Pinchot is for Butler. He is for the retention of Butler. He has begged the president to keep Butler on his job at Philadelphia. If Butler is kept there, the machine regulars in the great cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are going to pick a candidate of their own, and it is a good betting proposition that if they pick one, they will put him over when the time comes.

All the cities of Pennsylvania are wet, most of the wets are lined up with the republican organization. In this number will be found thousands of men who called themselves democrats in the days of Grover Cleveland democracy and before the late William Jennings Bryan obtained his strangle hold on the neck of the democratic donkey.

Bryan did not strangle the donkey, but he drove a million democrats into the republican camp in the state where money kings and steel and coal barons dictate the policies of the hour and name the national law-makers almost regardless of political affiliations. Business is business in Pennsylvania, and a way down here in Texas, if the surface signs are correct, business is getting to be business in and out of the political world.

Petroleum is in evidence. Manufacturing is in evidence. Lumber is in evidence. Gas is in evidence. There are 200,000 cotton farmers in the state, and some day cotton may be in evidence. This is a hard boiled age, and the dollar counts. In Woodrow Wilson's time, when the world war was on, reactionaryism was not in flower, and all the people of all parties were willing to make sacrifices and vote the last dollar and the last man

SYNTHETIC GEM STONES.

One reason why a certain amount of credence was given to the German professor, Dr. Adolphe Miethe's claim to having produced synthetic gold from quick silver was that scientist's previously undeniable synthetic production of a number of gem stones. His gold production seems now to have lost caste as others, pursuing his exact technique, have gotten no more gold from mercecury than the possible gold impurity in the raw material. But his gem stones remain analytically true though they are distinguishable from the direct products of nature by the greater purity of the man-made rocks. The accidental variations in natural stones have not been imitated, and these very flaws, if they may be so termed, give to the real stones a value much greater than the chemically perfect synthetic product.

According to a recent cable from Berlin, there remain today only diamonds, emeralds and pearls that cannot be manufactured synthetically on a commercial scale, and we all know, of course, that the pearl, while not manufacturable in the sense that the ruby is, may be and is artificially grown in the oyster shell by the Japanese. The diamond can be produced in minute particles only, and as far as the emerald is concerned we do not know whether even that approximation to success has been attained.

"On the average," says the Berlin cable, "the synthetic stone is half the value of the genuine stone," though of course that ratio varies immensely because of the wide difference in the true stones themselves according to their purity, color, fire and numerous other qualities that are recognized and appraised by the jewelry trade and the connoisseur.

So it is seen that nature has a way of her own, and even when we imitate her too perfectly she balks, our efforts at replacing her products.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

CREAGER ON THE TWO PARTY SYSTEM.

National Committeemen Rene B. Creager of Texas insists that the two party system is necessary for th progress of Texas and to the efficiency of state government. Boss Creager tells the truth, but is a political platform or rather the platform of a political party, all bunk to be feed to the people. If so, why and how.

In 1926 the republicans will hold their first state primary in Texas for the nomination of all candidates on public office. This will give the state the two party system. There are more than two million men and women of voting age in Texas. It is safe to predict that poll tax payments will fall below the $1,300,00.00 mark.

NO IMMEDIATE CAUSE FOR ALARM.

When the professor informed his class that the world might come to end in a hundred million years, one of the young men in the class looked suddenly up, and asked him anxiously to repeat his statement.

"It is possible," said the professor, "that the world may not be in existence a hundred million years from now. And he outlined the reasons for his deduction.

The youth smiled, as one reassured.

"Thank you professor," he said, "That relieves me. I first understood you to say one hundred thousand years."

Most of us think sometimes about possible collisions with comets or other sidereal estrays, and have an anxious moment or two wondering how it will fell to be suddenly melted into nothingness by the heat engendered from the impact.

But after a few minutes of waiting, with no sound of the approach of another celestial body, we feel better.

Just now a good many people are despairing for the future, because girls use lips sticks and some cigarettes, and here and there are a few smouldering wars which have not yet been extinguished by the fire department at Geneva.

We are also prone to grieve over the preponderance of interest in football in the colleges, and the lack of excitement over work in class rooms.

Then too, it depresses us to see so many people getting worked up over moving picture actresses and their divorce proceedings, and being quite lethargic about their own chances of contributing something lasting to the uplift of civilization.

But there seems to be no immediate cause for worry.

Doubtless when King Tut was tucked farefully away in his gold encrusted coffin, the folks coming home from the funeral bewailed the decadent state of the times, and said that things were not like that in the olden days.

They were not, it is true. They were very much worse.

And they were worse in Tut's time than in our own, for then only kings and nobles had much fun in life, most of the population apparently being employed long hours in building tombs for them.

Today the general public can get quite a bit of enjoyment out of motion pictures and radios, without spending very much money, and there are plenty of cheap excursions to the sea shore and other watering places which furnish excitement—one of the cardinal necessities of a happy existence.

If the world would come to an end tomorrow, it would be worth living until that time in order to see what was going to happen in the way of new inventions, or new political changes.

Most of the industrious can get a kick out of life, and the ambitious can find ways and means to climb up out of lowly stations and "be somebody."

Education is pretty widely disseminated, there is a large accumulation of good books to read, and without traveling extensively one can visit the uttermost part of the earth by means of the news reel.

Thinking back from what is to what was, we see that we are getting along pretty well, eating better, knowing more, and enjoying our work to a greater extent.

So there is no immediate cause for despair.

IF SUMMER DOESN'T COME.

There seems to be some sort of combination of weatherologists which threatens to deprive us of the "good old summer time" for two years running. Herbert J. Browne, the widely known ocean meteorologist, predicts an unusually severe winter ahead with a late spring and very little summer. The same conditions will rule through 1926 and 1927, with the result that we will have what is known as "timbol winters," that is, three winters without any intervening summers.

These conclusions are derived from a study of ocean surface temperatures, which in turn are ruled by the heat radiated by the sun. This solar radiation for three years past has been below normal, with the result that the oceans have cooled to a marked degree. It is feared that crop conditions will be altered so as to seriously interfere with production and some of the scientists, more pessimistically inclined, go to the extent of predicting that there will be great suffering.

Of course, as Einstein has convinced us, everything is relative and when the statement is made that there will be no summer it should be taken with a grain of relativity. There will be summer in the tropical regions. They may not be as long or as hot, but it will be summertime for all reasonable purposes. In the temperate zones, where summer is short-lived anyway and always, it means that there will be virtually no summer if the temperature remains below the summer stage. Similarly, when it is predicted that a hard winter is ahead, it doesn't mean much to us down here on the edge of the gulf. Perhaps we will have a lower average temperature and a longer winter, but it isn't going to be severe in the sense that winters and severe in Minnesota, Michigan or Wyoming. As a matter of fact, we could do with a little more winter and a little less summer, hence the weather bugs fall to throw a fright into people in this section.

THE CHILD AUTHOR.

The world is agog over the fact that a new guardian has been appointed for Nathalia Crane, 12-year-old poetess. Nathalia has publishd two volumes of "poetry" and has another volume under way, and her royalties are so large the court thinks a new guardian is necessary to keep track of the income.

Many critics have praised Nathalia for her work. Dispatches say her poems have puzzled "educators, psychologists and publishers by the profound knowledge of human nature shown in them."

Such samples as have been published (some of them have even been sent over the wires) are a credit to a 12-year-old child, but not to a 15-year-old, or to a grown person. They are remarkable chiefly because a child wrote them, not for any value of their own. Mostly jingles of the Mother Goose type.

It is strange that a child "poetess" should set the literary world by the ears. Not a great many years ago another child wrote a "novel" which created a great stir. It was a finished work, and had every earmark of having been written by one of the shrewdest satirists of the time. Perhaps the child wrote it, but no one could believe it after having read the book.

The publisher of Nathalia's poems scoffed at doubts upon the authorship. He said he would be willing to swear that Nathalia wrote them.

THE LIMIT.

A man in Georgia offers to pay $1,000 for the body of "Dutch" Anderson, famous bandit. He wants to exhibit it to the curious, at so much per look.

The worst part about it is that if his offer were accepted he would get his $1,000 back many times over.

Think for a minute about what that implies as to the mentality and intellectual advancement of some of our citizens.

Today's planetary aspects are dis- Today's planetary aspects are dis- then occurs, and they become adverse, and continue so until dusk, when they again revert to the favorable stage. If you have conceived any plan of an original and an initiative nature, and are simply awaiting an auspicious opportunity for its consummation, it would be well to "start something," or, at least, make a beginning, during the early part of the day, as optimism will prevail and courage will dominate you. Later on, a great amount of selfcontrol will be needed to establish poise. The evening presents the prospect of happy hours, spent in intellectual, social or recreative pursuits.

Children born today will enjoy an infancy almost entirely free from all ailments. Just prior, however, to reaching their "teens," they will need a fair amount of care and tuning up, as they will show a predilection to outgrow their strength. In character and disposition, they will at no time be angelic, and at all times difficult to control.

Even in early childhood, they will display that wul of their own, which, later on, will get them into all sorts of trouble. Their redeeming characteristics will be loyalty, truthfulness, and abounding affection, and fickleness will be unknown to them.

If today is your birthday, you are a devoted friend and lover, and find more satisfaction in giving than in receiving. In your early day, you were always willing to sacrifice your own interests and pleasures in order to promote the happiness and enjoyment of others. This attitude is now a habit, and you are both unselfish and considerate. Some of your associates take advantage of your quiescent nature, and unjustly impose on you. When carried to extremes, a consciousness of what is going on stirs you, but, even at such time, you can always find some excuse for what is really inexcusable.

Your life is not destined to be very successful in a material sense, but, spiritually and morally, you give comfort to all around ou, and are content to be happy, even though you may not be prosperous.

POEMS THAT LIVE

The Lore-Lei.

I know not whence it rises,
This thought so full of woe—
But a tale of the times departed
Haunts me—and will not go.

The air is cool, and it darkens,
And chimly flows the Rhine;
The mounatin peaks are sparkling
In the sunny evening-shine.

And yonder sits a maiden,
The fairest of the fair;
With gold is her garment glittering,
And she combs her golden hair.

With a golden comb she combs it,
And a wild song singeth she,
That melts the heart with a wond rous
And powerful melody.

The boatman feels his bosom
With a nameless longing move;
He sees not the gulfs before him,
His gaze is fixed above.

Till over boat and boatman
The Rhine's deep waters run;
And this with her magic singing
The Lore-Lei hath done!

—Heinrich Heine.

HOW IT STARTED

"Hussy."

Strange and labyrinthian are the ways of words! The most prosaic used words today may conceal in their syllables a fascinating story of bygone days, while others of more colorful meaning today may bark back to a most insignificant origin.

It is in the latter category that we must place the word "hussy" which although taboo in polite speech is familiar to all of us as a scathing and contemptuous characterization of a worthless woman or girl. It is of the day of the Puritans, of the ducking stool and the whipping post, when public opinion was not as broad and charitable as it is today, that the term reminds us. For it is in literature of that period that it is most frequently found, the women of those days being more free in denunciation of other women for the slightest offense, particularly in the case of those who were more attractive to men than themselves!

"Hussy" as it is known to us, is merely a corruption of housewife which in early English took the form of "huswife." Usage in the intervening centuries shaded its significance to the connotation of the word today.

SUB ROSA BY MIMI

Jealous Jessie.

Of course we're all jealous of someone or something at heart. The green-eyed monster leaves few of us alone.

But most of us have the good sense to realize that a display of our jealousy, rather lowers our pride.

We don't like to tell our special man that we simply hate the girl he went with before he knew us.

We don't want our best friend to know that we resent her acquaintance with the new girl in our set—that we fear she may be drifting away from us.

And so we take precautions to keep our stormy emotions out of sight of the public eye—and we even hide our feelings from those we love best.

Jealous Jessie, however, seems to feel no such need for secrecy about her deepest feelings.

She is engaged to a good looking man, and that's a pretty hard business for the most normal of girls. It's almost more than Jess can stand.

Bob, her fiance is a nice quiet youth who hasn't any aspiration to be a sheik—who doesn't care at all about other girls, really—but who very naturally recognizes a pretty girl when he sees one.

He was simply amazed one evening at dinner when upon his remarking that an awfully pretty girl had just entered the restaurant, Jessie blazed out at him in a perfect passion of anger: "That's right, admire other girls all the time. Can't you even sit down to dinner without watching for someone you can flirt with? I'm sure I don't think she's pretty. She looks fairly ordinary to me."

Bob let that slide. He concluded that all women were rather flighty and his fiancee was no different from the rest.

But when a few evenings later he brought over an old photograph book to show her some snaps, and she, upon discovering some pictures of his old sweetheart, tore them out of the book with many fiery words, Bob was forced to the conclusion that he'd pledged himself to marry a bottle of vitriolic acid.

Now Jessie has him completely under her thumb. She won't let him dance more than once with another girl in the course of an evening.

She permits of no references to any of his past sweethearts. She storms and weeps if he comments on the fact that her best friend is rather good looking.

It can't be supposed that Bob has the same respect for her he once felt. He can't possibly admire and esteem her as a girl of dignity and common sense.

And with the rest of her crowd, she is simply a laughing stock.

Her best girl friends have turned against her because they find friendship with her too exacting a business. All this because she hadn't learned the art of self-control—because she hadn't mastered Old Man Jealousy.

Better be sure that you've got the Old Man thoroughly under control if you want to hold the admiration of your fellows.

A DAZZLING MYSTERY STORY BY TWENTY FAMOUS AUTHORS

"BOBBED HAIR" with Marie Prevost is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Aunt Celimena, searching for her niece, Connemara Moore, finds herself—not Connie—aboard a mysterious motorboat in Long Island Sound. Young David Lacy, thinking he is in Connemara's company, discusses sweetly, but becomes more abrupt when he discovers his mistake. Connemara was to have announced her engagement tonight, but disappeared from auntie's Connecticut home. And what a night of adventure it has been!

CHAPTER XII—Continued

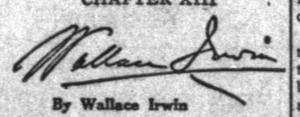

"An' you fool enough to still try to run for it," he said in frank disgust. "You ain't never been much loaded up with brains, Swede, an' that's certain. O' course," he added placatingly, "if you'd bumped off the Scotchman, that'd been different again. But with him loose, an' all this crew on board, we ain't going outside on no run tonight. Not us! You call Doc in on this. He's got a bean on him. He'll back me up."

The Swede appeared reluctant, but somewhat impressed by this logic.

"Well-ll," he muttered, doubtfully. "You want to head back to the usual place, then, an' lay low till tomorrer night. That it?"

"You're right, that's it," Pooch said with decision, "an' damn quick, too."

CHAPTER XIII

By Wallace Irwin

Connemara could swim; she'd learned when she was four years old and practiced every summer. While she had never reached the cup winning, near professional class, she handled herself in the water with such ease that "amphibious" was employed in her praising almost as often as "delicious" when in a very simple one-piece bathing suit she played in the Sound like a goldfish; a goldfish in a costly aquarium with castles and bridges and orchids, or even, to some observers, like an angel fish in the coral caverns of the southern seas.

"Home, Bugle, let's go home!"

But swimming in the dark in a tightish dress and high-heeled slippers are two different things. Instead of serving her as propellers, her legs seemed to be excess baggage.

"I don't know where we're going, but I'm on my way too," she said recklessly to McTish, when, after making a long, deep dive following his, she sped through the water and came up near him.

"Don't talk," he returned curtly, "and swim as quietly as you can."

It was very dark, and it was getting rough. McTish was on her right, and when she turned to look for him in the darkness, nasty little waves slapped her in the face. Still, she knew he was there, for talk as he might about swimming quietly, he was breathing like a grampus. And she could see a blob, less black—a little—than the night when she turned his way.

It was hard work to swim, impeded as she was. She stopped swimming, and, treading water, balancing herself in the waves as a real swimmer can, tried to kick off the silver slippers which so hampered her feet. But they were dancing slippers with complicated interlacing straps which, like the complications they had helped to weave, had first to be unfastened. McTish, she perceived indistinctly, was going past her. She gave up ridding herself of the slippers. They were a nuisance, but she could manage. The dress, however, was another matter and too great a burden.

"McTish!" she called. "Wait!"

Treading water, she pushed up the belt which Sweetie had knotted so securely round her hips and managed to wriggle the whole thing off over her head, and let it go on the water.

"My new dress too," she sighed.

It had been hard to do, and taken longer than she'd realized. She was getting cold. That McTish would leave her she had not dreamed, but, as in her new freedom she took long, powerful strokes, driving herself somewhere, she realized that he was not there. She was alone, alone in Long Island Sound, in the dark, in the middle of the night. She knew she should have been terrified, but after the preceding hours any peace, even a black and solitary peace, seemed grateful.

She did not feel the cold now, and swam easily for an hour, wondering with each stroke where it was taking her. The shore, she thought vaguely, could not be far ahead. Well, she was in no hurry; the shore when she reached it—if she did—would be just another problem. No place to go, no food, no clothes, no friends. And after this, anyone with whom she talked would be a friend or a policeman. No more chance acquaintances, please!

What a goose she had been! Marrying either of them, or both of them for that matter, would have been preferable to this adventure, since it had got wet and dirty and rough and lonesome. It was probably the lonesomeness which Connemara minded most, and next the fruitlessness. She'd lost a home and a sapphire bracelet, probably her reputation, maybe, even yet, her life. And what had she gained? Only experience, and that of dubious quality.

If she'd had her nerve, she told herself, she'd have kept that fifty thousand and let Aunt Celimena's money go hang. Then she might have married or not as she pleased, or started a shop or a movement, or gone on the stage or made candles or batiks. She's made a mess of it any way you took it. Even McTish had deserted her. Or had they just lost each other in the night?

She felt tired and turned over on her back to rest. Not a start, not a ray of light, and only the sound of water rushing past her ears, and the lap of little waves on her face. Was it very different from this when you died? Didn't you just see nothing and hear nothing, and feel nothing? She was feeling very little, oh, very little.

But she heard something. A small boat, probably a canoe by the muffled drip and swish, was coming near her. She heard low voices, on a basso grumble which carried distinctly. "Come, home, Bugle! That's a good boy!" And a heavy body splashed into the water. It began to swim. A curious stroke, thought Connemara, who knew all strokes by name. But this one she could not classify.

Connemara was as nearly frightened as she had ever been. The strange swimmer was coming nearer and nearer. What new terror was this night to hold? Whoever it was, was close beside her. She would float, and avoid any new encounter by attracting no attention. She was very tired, and unless she was sure it was a friend, she preferred to spend the rest of this night alone. Surely there was not much more of it.

Closer and closer the sound came. She took a long stroke, and the gurgling, puffing swimmer was upon her. That collision was a blessed thing, though not with man or woman. Wet fur brushed her shoulder, and the friend-seeking nose of a dog was thrust into her face.

"Nice boy!" she said quickly in a low voice, and awkwardly caressed him, meanwhile maintaining a precarious balance. The answer was a rumbling pleasant growl.

"Dear thing!" she whispered. "Home, Bugle, let's go home!"

For the first time since she had left the hampering peace of her aunt's house, where living had become so suddenly and completely complicated with hair and suitors and wills and working girls, Connemara felt she had a friend.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE DESERT UNVISITED

I often have thought that some day I should go
To that typical tropical land
Where the camels move on, in a slow solemn row
O'er the wind shifted billows of sand;
Where the palms in the distance loom weird and unique
And no sounds breaks the silence for the week after week—
Save perhaps the occasional shriek of a sheik
As he wails out a word of command.

I pictured these worthies in robes all of white
At the head of the deep laden van,
And gleaming like bronze in the dawns' early light
With their faces encrusted with tan;
While over the sand dunes their courses they laid,
As forth through the sunshine the caravan swayed,
Like some terrible, grand and impressive parade
Of a solemn Arabian Klan.

But the sheik has abandoned the stately burnoose,
And of late he is commonly clad
In clothes that were built for American use,
And whose fit is exceedingly bad.
Moreover great tortoise shell glasses he wears,
Through which as to distant oases he fares,
Toward the palms in the offing he solemnly stares—
And I don't think I'd fancy the lad.

So my ticket to Cairo will never be bought,
And when to the desert I go
I will go as a native American ought
By the way of the cinema show.
Where the sheiks wear the clothes that their forefathers wore
And pilfer such maids as they chance to adore,—
I can see the real thing without leaving this shore
And be back in an hour or so!

ONCE UPON A TIME

THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—I

by W. J. ENRIGHT.

THERE WAS A TINY LITTLE GIRL WHO LIVED ALL ALONE IN A BIG PUMPKIN ON THE EDGE OF THE WORLD. THE PUMPKIN MADE AS PERFECT A LITTLE HOME AS YOU MIGHT SEE ANYWHERE AND THERE WAS SCARCELY A THING YOU WOULD WISH FOR IN YOUR OWN HOUSE THAT SHE DIDN'T HAVE THERE.

SHE WAS SO SMALL THAT SHE WAS AFRAID TO PLAY WITH BOYS AND GIRLS OF THE USUAL SIZE AND THOUGH THE RABBITS AND THE SQUIRRELS AND THE BIRDS CAME TO VISIT HER OCCASIONALLY THEY HAD SUCH A HAPPY TIME AMONG THEMSELVES THAT IT ONLY MADE HER FEEL MORE THE SADNESS OF BEING ALONE. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

OFTEN WHEN SHE WENT TO BED THE WIND WOULD STEAL UP TO HER PUMPKIN AND MISCHIEVOUSLY ROCK IT TO AND FRO, AND IT WASN'T A VERY PLEASANT FEELING KNOWING THAT TO SLIP OFF THE EDGE OF THE WORLD MEANT FALLING DOWN, DOWN, DOWN TO NOBODY KNEW WHERE.

WELL, ONE NIGHT THAT IS JUST WHAT HAPPENED. THE WIND TIPPED THE PUMPKIN A WEE BIT TOO FAR AND OVER THE EDGE IT WENT, TWISTING, TURNING AND TUMBLING. THE LITTLE GIRL HELD TIGHTLY TO THE EDGE OF HER BED, BUT YOU CAN IMAGINE HOW FRIGHTENED SHE WAS.

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon R. T. Couch and R. T. Couch Oil corporation by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the seventy-eighth judicial district; to appear at the next regular term of the seventy-eighth district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the court house thereof in Wichita Falls, on the first Monday in December, A. D., 1925, the same being the seventh day of December, A. D., 1925. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the thirty-first day of July, A. D., 1925, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 17273B wherein, the Continental Supply company is plaintiff and R. T. Couch, R. T. Couch Oil corporation of Texas, a corporation, P. S. Shackelford, F. J. Holmes, South Texas Commercial National Bank of Houston, Texas, and C. E. McCutcheon are defendants. Said petition alleging that on and about May 17, 1924, defendant R. T. Couch was the owner of the oil and gas leasehold estate, and all rights thereunder covering the west 50 acres of east 60 acres of north 120 acres of J. W. Robertson's 320 acre survey, Ctf. 1575, Abst. 252. Pat. No. 610, Vol. 14, Wichita county, Texas; that by agreement between plaintiff and defendant R. T. Couch, plaintiff was to furnish defendant certain machinery, tools and supplies for the development of said tract of land for the discovery of oil or gas thereon, the quantity of machinery tools and supplies necessary for said development not being known to said defendant, but said defendant agreed that he would pay the plaintiff the amount charged therefor at the end of each month, but that the debt for said machinery, tools and supplies wuld not be due and enforcible until the defendant had fully developed said lease, or purchased machinery tools and supplies from the plaintiff to the value of $10,000 that the defendant would make such payments upon account as he could from the proceeds of said leasehold estate; plaintiff says that from May 17, 1924, to June 16, 1925, it regularly and continuously furnished said defendant for the development of said leasehold estate, machinery, tools and supplies to the value of $10,200.99, which sum defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff, but said defendant, R. T. Couch is entitled to a credit for merchandise returned and cash payments made in the sum of $5,515.68, leaving a balance due and unpaid for said machinery, tools and supplies on June 16, 1925, of $4,684.61, which sum is long past due; that defendant has often been requested and demanded to pay said sum, but has failed and refused to pay the same or any part thereof, to plaintiff's damage in said sum of $4,684.61 with legal interest thereon.

Plaintiff further says that on about Feb. 18, 1925, defendant, R. T. Couch transferred and assigned all his assets, consisting of oil and gas leases, including the leasehold estate and described, and all personal property used in connection therewith to R. T. Couch Oil corporation of Texas; that defendant R. T. Couch Oil corporation of Texas, agreed to assume and pay off all the existing indebtedness of defendant R. T. Couch incurred in development and operation of said property as consideration for said assignment and conveyance. That said indebtedness owing this plaintiff by R. T. Couch was at the time of said conveyance one of the debts assumed by said R. T. Couch Oil corporation of Texas, as consideration for said property; that said machinery, tools and supplies above mentioned, were used in the development and operation of said lease above mentioned and described, that said R. T. Couch Oil corporation has been benefitted by said machinery, tools and supplies, and at the time of filing this petition was using said machinery in the operation and development of said lease, and by reason thereof said R. T. Couch Oil corporation of Texas is bound and obligated to pay the plaintiff said sum of $4,684.61, with legal interest. Plaintiff further says that on June 25, 1925, after giving notice in accordance with law filed with the county clerk of Wichita county, Texas, its itemized statement of said machinery, tools and supplies so sold and delivered to said defendants showing the date of delivery, amounts, and the sums charged therefor, and claiming a lien upon said oil and gas leasehold estate covering the above described tract of land, the oil wells thereon, and all the buildings, equipment and improvements situated thereon, and used in connection therewith, and further claiming a lien upon the machinery, tools and supplies so furnished by it to said defendant Couch, as provided by the constitution and the statutes of the State of Texas. Said materialman's lien is recorded in Vol. 21, page 149, lien records of Wichita county, Texas, to which reference is here made.

Plaintiff alleges that it is informed and believes that defendant C. E. McCutcheon, F. J. Holmes, South Texas Commercial National Bank of Houston, Texas, and P. S. Shackelford are claiming some right, title or interest or lien in and to said oil and gas leasehold estate hereinabove described, but that whatever right, title or interest said defendants or either of them may have on, or assert in and to, said oil and gas leasehold estate, the same is subordinate, inferior and subject to plaintiff's right, title and claim by reason of its materialman's lien thereon.

Plaintiff prays for citation against each and all of said defendants and that it have judgment against defendants R. T. Couch and R. T. Couch Oil corporation of Texas, jointly and severally, for the sum of $4,684.61, with legal interest; that its materialman's lien above mentioned be declared by the court a first and prior lien upon said oil and gas leasehold estate, and that the same be ordered foreclosed as against all the defendants herein, and that said property be sold in accordance with law in satisfaction of the plaintiff's judgment rendered herein, that it recover its costs, and have all other relief, either at law or in equity, special and general.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said court, at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the sixth day of November, A. D., 1925.
