Solons Gather at Austin For Legislature Opening

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Jan. 12.—Legislators gathered here today preparatory to the opening of the legislature at noon tomorrow for the four-month regular session.

Projected legislation is flying thick and fast. Lobbyists were here early, scouting the capitol corridors and delving into proposed measures.

Work of organizing the various committees is expected to occupy both branches for the first few days.

Governor Moody's last message is in the hands of the printers and probably will be read Wednesday.

Mrs. F. C. Miller returned Sunday from Abilene, where she attended a meeting of the sixth district, Federated Women's Clubs, Saturday. Mrs. Miller represented the Ballinger Shakespeare Club, which is affiliated with the federation.

Date is Set to Unveil Memorial

American Legion members from all parts of Texas will attend the unveiling of a giant memorial tablet at Austin next Wednesday, January 14. Invitations have been extended to every former service man and woman, to all parents and relatives of lads who died in the service, and at 4 o'clock on the above date Gov. Moody will deliver the address and unveil the huge tablet.

Four years ago the legislature of Texas appropriated $10,000 for a bronze memorial tablet to be placed in the memorial stadium of the University of Texas, to bear the name of each Texan who gave his life during the World War. The slab has been under construction for the past four years. It is 60 feet long, 9 feet high and bears the names of more than 5,000 men and women. Parents of those who died in the service are especially asked to attend the unveiling ceremony.

Many Rural Guests are Invited To Annual C. of C. Banquet

Included in the list will be two boys who were winners last year and who were not eligible for competition this year for county prizes but who have won in state or national contests. Ira Klutts of Crews and Buster Caudle of Hatchel are the two lads and will occupy seats of honor at the banquet. Klutts has recently returned from Chicago where he won a free trip. He also won the calf given by the T. & P. railway company at the Texas State Fair last year. Caudle has won many honors in poultry raising.

Clark Case Before the U. S. Supreme Court Soon

By Sam Bledsoe
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Whispering stops abruptly in a semi-circular room almost under the capitol dome. The audience rises.

A voice begins: "Oyez, oyez, the Honorable, the Chief Justice and—" The supreme court is in session, and before this body is to come the decision of Judge William Clark of New Jersey holding the Eighteenth amendment unconstitutional.

Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice, sits in the center of the bar overlooking the spectators. He is a big man and his fan-shaped beard is white. It is a bold lawyer who does not regard him with awe. He looks like a chief justice.

If his honors were medals—and he has a collection of them, too—they would weigh him down. He is a New Yorker, was governor of the state for two terms; has been associate justice of the court over which he presides; was the Republican presidential candidate in 1916; Coolidge's secretary of state; judge of the Permanent Court of International Justice and named chief justice in 1930 to succeed William Howard Taft.

At the right of the chief justice sits Oliver Wendell Holmes. Ninety years have stooped his body but his head with its abundant snowy hair is magnificent, his mind quick and keen.

His father was Oliver Wendell Holmes of Boston, wit, author, aristocrat and physician. The son is wit, author, aristocrat and jurist.

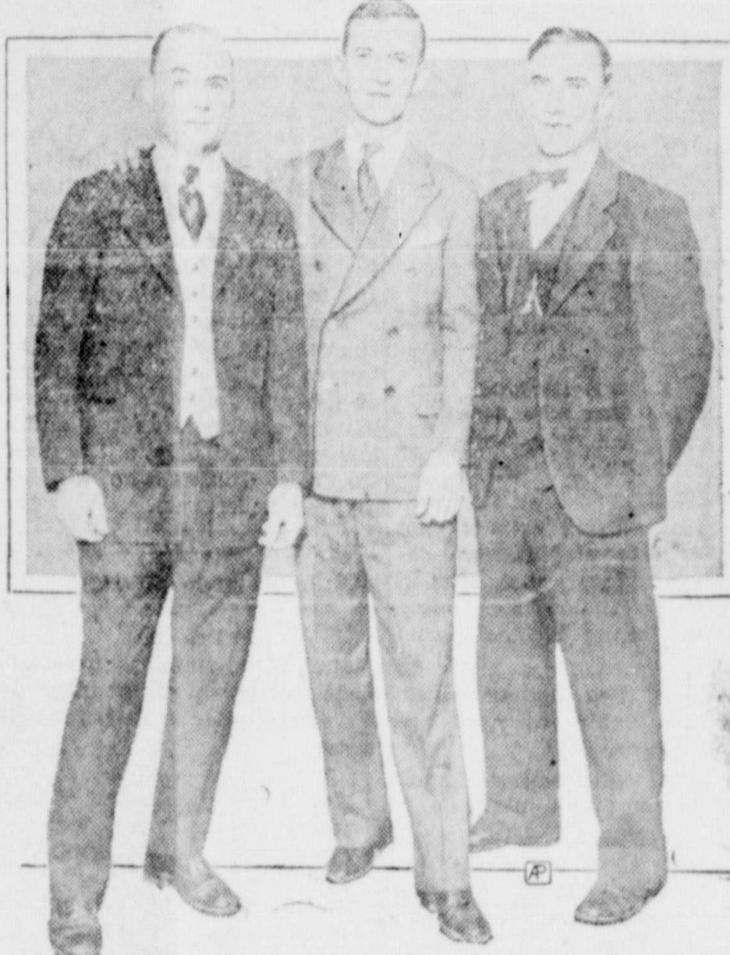

They call him "the great liberal" and his dissenting opinions have become legal classics. He was a member of the bench in 1920 when the court by an unanimous decision held the Eighteenth amendment constitutional.

Willis Van Devanter sits to the left of the chief justice. Born in Indiana and educated at Yale, he went to Wyoming when the state was a territory. He was an assistant attorney general and was named to the supreme bench in 1910 by Taft. Lawyers who have argued before him have squirmed under his penetrating questions.

He is the court specialist in Indian laws and treaties. He delivered the 1920 decision holding the Eighteenth amendment constitutional.

JUDGE WILLIAM CLARK

James Clark McReynolds, a Tennessean and a bachelor, sits by Holmes. He was attorney general from March, 1913, to August, 1914, when he was appointed associate justice.

He is blunt and direct, as many a lawyer attempting oratorical heights has learned. McReynolds also participated in the 1920 decision.

Louis Dembitz Brandeis is a Kentuckian, born in Louisville and educated abroad and at Harvard. He was named an associate justice in 1916 by Woodrow Wilson and confirmed after a sharp fight.

Some senators viewed his liberal attitude with distrust. He did not change them and goes along with Holmes many times on questions involving broad matters of public policy.

Brandeis is an authority on law affecting the interstate commerce commission and railroads.

George Sutherland sits to the right of McReynolds. He was born in Buckinghamshire, England.

educated at the University of Michigan, went to Utah and was a United States senator. He was appointed by Harding in 1922.

Pierce Butler, at Brandeis' left, did not emigrate. He was born in Minnesota and in 1922 when Harding appointed him to the bench he was practicing law in St. Paul. He sides more frequently with Sutherland, McReynolds and Van Devanter than with Holmes and Brandeis.

Harlan F. Stone, at the extreme right, is a New Yorker. A member of President Hoover's "medicine ball cabinet," he was expected by many to become chief justice when Taft resigned.

Some Senate progressives thought him too conservative when he was named by Coolidge in 1925, but paradoxically his views coincide many times with those of Holmes and Brandeis.

Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia is the youngest member of the bench. He made his reputation as a prosecutor in the oil lease cases. He was named just after the Senate had rejected Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina in 1930, and pleased men as far apart in political tenets as Norris of Nebraska and Reed of Pennsylvania.

These are the jurists who will pass upon the Clark decision.

(By Associated Press)
SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 12.—The last official act of former Sheriff Alfonso Newton before turning over his office to his successor, Sheriff Albert Hauser, was to dump $10,000 worth of liquors into the sewer.

Fliers Believed Lost in Atlantic

(By Associated Press)

HORTA, Azores Islands, Jan. 12.—The storm-swept Atlantic Ocean today is believed to have claimed the lives of two more trans-oceanic fliers, Mrs. Beryl Hart, 27-year-old red-haired widow, and her co-pilot and instructor, Lieutenant William S. McLaren, who left Hamilton, Bermuda, Saturday on the second leg of their New York-to-Paris flight, with the Azores as their immediate goal.

The plane, long overdue, carried no radio and the gasoline supply was sufficient only to last until 6 o'clock last night.

It is considered possible that the fliers might have reached the western European or the Moroccan coast but it is believed improbable. Because of a north-easterly gale it is considered impossible for the ship to survive if forced down on the ocean.

NATIONAL GUARD MAY ADOPT NEW GUN PRACTICE

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 12.—The Texas National Guard is considering adoption of a device aimed at cutting the cost of training machine gun companies and at the same time permitting indoor target practice in inclement weather. The device provides all the advantages of machine gun training at a minimum cost and can be used for inside ranges, impracticable with regular machine guns.

It was perfected by Capt. E. C. Gregorie, Ninth Infantry, and Lt. O. D. Sugg, Headquarters, Third Brigade, San Antonio.

The device is a .22 calibre revolver connected to the water cooler of the machine gun. A wire connects the trigger of the pistol with the trigger of the machine gun, the muzzle of the machine gun being just above the muzzle of the smaller weapon. The bullet strikes the exact spot at which the machine gun is aimed, tests showed.

The gunner being trained in machine gun firing receives as much actual benefit from use of the device as if using a machine gun, being able to learn direction and control of fire.

The cost of firing a machine gun has been placed at 14 cents each time the trigger is pulled while the smaller device can be operated for less than one cent each time.

MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 12.—Chained to the roof the gasoline-soaked Garrett school house in which he allegedly assaulted and murdered Miss Velma Colter, 19, teacher, Raymond Gunn, negro, was burned to death today.

After being seized from officers near the court house here, the black was marched toward the school, a quarter of a mile from this town.

Clothing was stripped from the upper part of Gunn's body. Furniture was removed from the school building and heaped about the grounds. Gunn was taken to a spot in the building where the young woman's body was discovered, those nearest him declaring he confessed his guilt. He was then taken to the roof, chained across the ridge pole and the torch applied. One long piercing shriek arose above the crackling flames played about the negro's head. Before death, the negro raised himself and waved at the crowd, which contained hundreds of women.

The crowd, orderly throughout the lynching, remained near the property until the school was reduced to ashes.

MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 12.—A mob seized Raymond Gunn, negro, charged with slaying Miss Velma Colter, young rural school teacher, as he was being taken from the jail to the court house here today for arraignment.

No one was hurt when the mob took the accused negro from the officers despite the presence of eight deputy sheriffs, national guardsmen and a battery of artillery.

The mob started for the rural school house at Garrett, where Miss Colter was criminally assaulted and slain, December 16, apparently with the intention of lynching Gunn.

THE RUNAWAY HORSE

"I've turned the time backward this evening," announced the Little Black Clock.

The children were never worried that his magic would give out. They knew how he had been given plenty to last him for all the adventures he wanted to take.

Just as he had spoken the children saw, at the end of a nearby street, a horse running for all he was worth. He was pulling a wagon after him, but no one was in it.

"Runaway horse! Runaway horse!" shouted the people who appeared from everywhere, while the horse galloped on, paying no attention to anyone.

"Whoa! Whoa! Whoa!" shouted the people. Parents pulled their children indoors. It seemed that the horse might at any moment dash on the sidewalk.

And then along the street, coming toward the horse, was a policeman, waving his arms in the direction of the horse.

But he had jumped up and caught the horse and now he was talking gently to the horse, soothing him, quieting him.

"It was because of that automobile," the Little Black Clock said, "that the horse became frightened."

And John and Peggy laughed. It was certainly some time since an automobile had frightened a horse!

ABILENE, Jan. 12—Ignace Jan Paderewski, world's premier pianist for the past third of a century, will make his only appearance in West Texas during his present tour of the United States when he plays at the Simmons University auditorium here on the evening of February 16.

The return of Paderewski has been hailed by musical critics as the greatest single event of the musical season. He arrived for his seventeenth tour of this country in October and has already scored sensational success in the great cities of the East.

This is in all probability Paderewski's farewell tour of this country as the great artist is 75 years old. Critics of New York and Chicago, have already acclaimed him as still the world's greatest living pianist, however.

BETWEEN WAVELENGTHS

By C. E. Butterfield (Associated Press Radio Editor) The new year may bring a somewhat different setup to broadcasting.

This fast moving art is not anywhere near stabilization despite the ten years it has been in existence. In that time many innovations have become commonplace.

There are two factors which may become highly important before New Year's, 1932. They are synchronization of network stations and television.

Synchronization, in which at least two stations can transmit identical programs on the same wavelength, offers many possibilities, engineers believe, due to the fact that it carries with it the hope of clearing up the broadcast jam to a certain extent.

Plans have been completed to tie four NBC stations together, in groups of two each, for a practical demonstration of synchronization somewhat different from the experiments which have been under way by WOC and WHO since last summer.

It goes without saying that television will bring many alterations to the program set-up and broaden considerably the scope of radio. When an actual start is to be made still is to be determined.

Developments near the close of 1930 indicated that it was further along than some of the optimistic had hoped.

Mention of synchronization also brings to fore the moot question of a fourth nation-wide chain. The success of the three now in operation, two by NBC and the other by CBS, has led to many off-the-record discussions of what could or could not be done in the way of an additional network, but nothing concrete has developed.

Among the possibilities might be cited the splitting of CBS into two networks, or the establishment of a third group by NBC. Also included in this conjecture have been references to entirely separate groups, with WOR often mentioned as the New York key station.

Speed and Thrills in Love Drama at the Palace

Whirling along at a breath-taking speed! Whizzing ahead at a thrill-a-minute! And bang! You come up short against a tremendous climax. That's the feeling you get watching "Manslaughter" at the Palace Theatre, where it opened a three-day run yesterday afternoon.

Speed is the sensation that stands out most vividly as "Manslaughter" opens. Claudette Colbert, its capricious heroine, runs wild in an orgy of fast-driving, fast-living, careless, carefree, utterly selfish and thoughtless. You see her flying over the highways in a monster motor; flashing over the waves in a tilting aquaplane; dancing, loving with reckless abandon. And then pulled up short by a tragedy caused by her own daring.

Claudette Colbert, beautiful, young, talented, endowed with great wealth and assured position, lives life riotously. Her every whim is a reality. She falls in love with Fredric March, but, when she cannot wind this handsome young district attorney around her frivolous fingers, she casts him off. Then the tragedy—and the district attorney is forced to prosecute the girl he loves for manslaughter.

Here is a strange mixture of love and hate in which love triumphs. The supporting cast adds to rather than detracts from the superb performances of the leading players.

YOUR ACRE OF DIAMONDS

From far off Asia the story comes to us of a Persian farmer of long ago. Someone showed him a diamond and told him that these valuable stones could be found by merely digging for them. Afire with ambition, the farmer rented out his vineyard and roamed the world in search of diamonds. Years later, coming back a sadder but wiser man, he found his vineyard neglected, his vines withered and dead.

Realizing then how foolish he had been, he started to dig up the old vines in order to plant new ones. What was his astonishment to find that just below the old roots were diamonds—scores of them—wealth such he had been searching for years. All the time it had been at his own door—needing only a little deeper digging, a little extra effort, to reach it.

Many people are like the Persian farmer. They look with longing eyes on the positions of influence, growing incomes, and broad opportunities other young people are enjoying in banks, railway offices, wholesale and brokerage houses, oil concerns, and the like—thinking such stepping-stones to success beyond their own reach—when, as with the Persian farmer, these golden opportunities are right at their own doors.

Thousands upon thousands of young people have found their diamond of opportunity through the world-famous Draughon training. It has brought them good positions to begin with, opportunities for promotion, and association with successful men and women.

If you are willing to put forth a little extra effort, to dig a little deeper, the great field of business is the richest of all mines in opportunity today, as proved by the hundreds of young men and women who step out into good positions every year through our Employment Department.

If you would like to know more about these opportunities which are right at your own door through the Draughon training, at College or by Mail, clip and send the coupon today for free booklet, "Proof of Positions." Address, Draughon College, Dept. BL, Dallas, Wichita Falls, Abilene or Lubbock.

About New York

By Richard Massock
NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Down in Cherry Hill, in the dingy shadows of the Brooklyn bridge, is a new seacoast of Bohemia.

It is there that El Catalan is host to hundreds of hungry and thirsty Spaniards and other hundreds of Bohemians.

El Catalan is to Cherry Hill what Sam Schwartz, Romany Marie and other Greenwich Village cellar restaurateurs were to the Bohemians before the war.

El Catalan also is official chef to the Spanish colony and serves generous portions of the classical "lechón asado" or roasted pig of Old Spain, washed down by Malaga wine, which he himself pours out of a goatskin.

New Bohemia

The dwellers of Cherry Street are mainly Spaniards who have lived in New York for several generations. There they gather to read the news of the world and the gossip of their own New York in Madrid paper fully a month old.

There they meet to discuss informally impending political changes in the old kingdom and the football games played in Brooklyn by teams of Latin-American cousins.

While the Spaniards prattle, journalists and Bohemians of Manhattan exchange their own tattle at a long table in the ceter. They come from nearby newspaper offices and from the not-so-far Greenwich Village.

They are writers and copy readers, reporters and columnists, painters and actors, explorers and radio entertainers. Occasionally a new type of Bohemian—the adventurous aviator—drops in.

The latter is usually the noisiest. He can outdo his fellows in extravagant yarns, stories of perils in the air, or countries far away. And he is as popular in the crowd as the long haired, pale faced poet whose triple toast drunk in Martell, a Spanish brandy, brings the crowd to their feet.

Spanish Colony

Cherry Street was not always Spanish. Back in revolutionary days, the Dutch and English aristocracy lived there. Not far from El Catalan's dark restaurant may be seen the plate marking the house where George Washington delivered his inaugural address.

The corner billiard hall is the clubhouse of Cherry Street Castilians and the stores with Spanish legends across the doors sell Spanish peas, olives ad turrones, the almond meal candy traditional of old Spain.

The Spanish-speaking population of New York is sizable—some 150,000 strong. Many are Porto Ricans. Cubans follow in numbers, with Venezuelans, Mexicans and Central Americans in close order, and a few Uruguayans, Chileans and Argentines trailing. The majority live in lower Harlem, where they even have a theatre for Spanish-language talking pictures.

But the natives of Spain live apart. Cherry Street is their new Spain, where the Andalusian lisp mixes readily with the guttural tones of the Basque and the dialect of the Catalonians, above the Americanese of the visiting Bohemians.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Theater Guild goes in for melodramatic expose in its newest production, "Midnight."

The play pretends to reveal the woes that beset a man who wishes nothing more than to be a dutiful and law abiding citizen. In this case, he is Frederick Perry, foreman of the jury, which has just decided that a murderer must die in the electric chair.

He is beset by newspapers, defense attorneys, cranks, morons, and all the others of the interested mob. Having done his duty as a citizen, he finds that he is to be persecuted for it.

In this case ironic tragedy enters his own home. On the night the murderer has been sent to death is to be executed, his own daughter kills her gangster sweetheart. Must he condemn his own daughter, just as he did another man's daughter, to the chair?

Unwieldy

"Midnight" has its thrills, but it is of unwieldy and confusing dramatic structure. It is ably acted by such players as Linda Watkins, Harriet MacGibbon, Glenn Anders and Francis Pierlot. The authors are newspaper folk, Claire and Paul Sifton. Their experience has well equipped them to write a play about dutiful citizens, district attorneys and reporters.

Billie Burke, who is also known as Mrs. Flo Ziegfeld, has returned to the stage in a romantic and not too serious comedy called "The Truth Game." It has been written by the versatile Ivor Novello, who also plays the leading male role.

Phoebe Foster and Viola Tree are other featured members of the cast, and they compose a brilliant and humorous quartet.

Matinee Idol

As usual Novello has written for himself a role to be played by a matinee idol. He is a young man who falls in love with a young widow. He knows, but she doesn't, that he is her distant cousin who will inherit her fortune if she should marry again.

It all comes out in one of these parlor games where everyone tells, or is supposed to tell, the truth and nothing but the truth. The widow has all but decided to give up her fortune for love, when she discovers her suitor's true identity.

She feels that he is merely after her for the fortune that will be his if she marries, and here we have an artful second act curtain.

In the third act, naturally, the lovers make up their differences.

EAST TEXAS TOWNS HAVE VERY ODD NAMES

(By Associated Press)
NACOGDOCHES, Tex., Jan. 12.—Old time names still cling to many places in east Texas, and many cemeteries and churches still bear the early day pioneer names.

Rake Pocket was for many years the name of the community in Rusk county, which today is known as Pine Hill. Lick Skillet was the name given to a community on the Louisiana line in the eastern part of Panola county. Buck Snort was the old time name of a town in the western part of Shelby county. The name still holds, although the town moved to Timpsom when the railroad built through the country from Houston to Shreveport.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A strange luncheon was given in New York a couple of weeks ago. It was given in an exclusive hotel by an imperial Romanov for her boss, a Fifth Avenue merchant, who employs her as a designer.

A few days later New York's literary set was invited formally to meet H. I. H. The Grand Duchess Marie of Russia.

The luncheon was in celebration of the grand duchess' first anniversary as an American business woman. The tea was given to present her as an author of a court memoir, ironically entitled "Education of a Princess."

Alone, Lonely Life

It is a proud and tragic book the Grand Duchess Marie has written of her life up to her escape from the bolsheviks, after the family fortunes had hopelessly toppled. It is proud in its family history, tragic in revealing how little prepared a princess may be for contact with a hostile world.

Marie's life was so circumscribed that she had little knowledge of her own country. Under an autocracy, a prince is scarcely a free man. His destiny is ruled by his monarch.

Marie's destiny was even worse, for she was a sort of stepchild, figuratively and literally. Born in 1890, to the Grand Duke Paul and Princess Alexandra of Greece, she was never to know a mother's love, for her mother died in the birth of Marie's brother, Dmitri, when Marie was a year and a half old.

The children, cousins of Czar Nicholas II, spent most of their childhood at the summer palace of their Uncle Serge and Aunt Ella. Their father was banished by his brother, the czar, for a morganatic marriage.

Violent Experiences

Uncle Serge was assassinated in the revolution of 1905. Aunt Ella became a nun.

Marie meanwhile had been married, with all the unhappiness of a political match, to Prince William of Sweden. The marriage was annulled and she was a Red Cross nurse at the front when her brother, Dmitri, and Prince Felix Yusupov conspired to assassinate the dark and powerful mystic, Rasputin. The story of how Dmitri's implication in the murder, his exile and the revolution tore apart an already disunited family and how she and her second husband, Prince Serge Putiatin, the man of her choice, escaped by their wits and by good luck from the soviet, is the most dramatic narrative of a book that is colored by the scenes of aristocratic experience.

Marie's education was in what Americans call the school of hard knocks.

FARM WOMEN SAVE MUCH PRODUCE BY CANNING

(By Associated Press)
TROUP, Tex., Jan. 12.—Farm

women and their daughters in eight southeast Texas counties canned more than 1,000,000 containers of home-raised food during the fall and early winter, according to a survey by Miss Gertrude Blodgett, district home demonstration agent in the extension service of Texas and the United States department of agriculture.

Her report was based on inquiries by home demonstration agents in the counties of Rusk, Walder, Jasper, Shelby, Nacogdoches, Polk, San Augustine and Orange, as to the sale of such goods to merchants, and on records of home demonstration club members.

Every farm family in the area would have 30 cans of food, if the output were divided evenly.

Remember what our school books taught us about the lives of inventors who lived many years ago? How often we used to read, "He went on with his experiments in spite of the laughter of his friends, and the ridicule of his neighbors."

How different is the modern state of mind! This age is remarkable for its keen awareness of progress . . . the eager willingness of most of us to accept new things, and better ways. The skeptical person is the exception—expectancy is the rule. If we read about an invention that will wash the middle of our backs, we say, "Fair enough; tomorrow there will be an automatic way to keep our noses powdered."

New things and better ways are announced regularly in this paper . . . in the advertisements. Every day you may be expecting something that will make your life easier, pleasanter, more healthful. Possibly a new electric contrivance, or a car that's easier to drive, or a new idea in breakfast foods. Follow the advertising columns . . . and sooner or later you'll get the good news. People who make it a point to know what's going on read the advertisements every day.

FATHER OF MRS. PAPE DIES IN MISSISSIPPI

After an illness that had extended over a period of four years, and a confinement of a year or more, Mose H. Allen died today at his home ten miles east of Corinth, aged 78 years. He died at the homestead where he was born and had made his home for a period of more than three quarters of a century. Though the building in which he was living at the time of his death had taken the place of another burned on the site it was built on the same location.

He was a sturdy citizen of former days, a member of the Baptist church, and esteemed for his fine faith and confidence in humanity. He was known throughout the county and section and was highly esteemed. His suffering had been prolonged and the sympathy of a wide section was given him during that period.

The burial will take place Saturday at Jacinto following the funeral service which will be at the home, which service will be conducted by a lifelong friend of the family, Rev. J. W. Potts.

He is survived by his wife and seven children. The children are: Mrs. E. C. Pape, Ballinger, Texas; M. F. Allen, Haleyville, Ala.; S. W. Allen, New Site, Ala.; Mrs. E. C. Riter, Plantersville, Miss.; Mrs. T. H. Johns, Corinth, route 8; G. H. Allen at the home and Mrs. N. E. Neely at the home.

There is also one brother living, B. G. Allen, whose home is at Jacinto. He is 82 years of age.

The above story concerning the death of Mose H. Allen was taken from a Corinth, Miss., paper. Mrs. E. C. Pape, a daughter of Mr. Allen, lives near Ballinger and she and her family are well known here. Mrs. Pape and one of her children visited her father at Corinth, Miss., last July and spent several weeks with him. She did not return to the old home to attend the funeral on account of the long trip which would require some time to make.

300 Farmers Here Saturday for Report

Approximately 300 Runnels county farmers were here Saturday afternoon to attend a meeting called by the Texas Cooperative Marketing Association to hear the report of that organization and the plans for future operation. T. N. Carswell, of Abilene, was the principal speaker and delivered the annual report to the 250 members of the organization who were present and to about 50 other farmers.

Mr. Carswell devoted part of his time to answering attacks that had been made on the federal farm board recently and then went into a lengthy report of what had actually been accomplished by the organization since it has been in operation. At the close of his report all members present voted to adopt the report and also the plans and work done by the federal farm board.

He told of the work done particularly in the seventh district which embraces a large part of this section of Texas. He stated that many of the branch offices, including the Ballinger office, would likely be kept open the year around or as long as there was any cotton in the county to be sold.

Mr. Carswell urged that the present membership of the cotton co-op start a campaign to secure new members for the organization and have contracts signed for the beginning of the next cotton season. His report showed that Texas had gained 40,000 members during the year.

A general summary of the cotton situation was given by Mr. Carswell in which he showed that the carry-over of approximately 2,000,000 bales from last year would have another carry-over of about 1,000,000 added to it this year. He stated that the South was losing its prestige as a cotton producing section and showed how Russia and other foreign countries are cutting in with production and a better grade also. This production is cutting into the South's market and must be met in a number of ways, mostly, however, by producing a better staple. He stated that the Texas Cotton Seed Association had bought a large part of the pedigreed cotton seed and had stored it in large warehouses and would cooperate with members of the organization in furnishing good pedigreed seed at a fair price.

Those present at the meeting were delighted with the attendance and the interest shown both by members and other farmers attending and hearing the report.

Banquet Tickets Are Selling Slowly

A check up of banquet tickets sold at local drug stores Monday morning showed that only a few have been bought to date and a rush meeting of the committee was called for the purpose of completing the program and staging a whirlwind campaign.

J. D. Motley, secretary of the chamber of commerce, stated that a committee would start either Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning to canvass the city and offer the tickets for sale to individuals, urging them to buy and also to bring rural guests. Arrangements are being made for the serving of 250 at the dinner and if all places are filled more than 250 tickets must be sold here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Club women are holding meetings all over the county the first part of this week getting arrangements made for the preparing of their part of the menu and will assemble the food here Friday afternoon in the kitchen of the banquet hall.

All numbers for the program have been secured and the committee will hold a session at once and arrange them in order on the program and have them printed. This program will also carry the annual report and menu and will be a souvenir to carry home after the banquet is over.

---By Pap Cemetery Ass'n. Elects Officers

Stockholders of the Ballinger Cemetery Association met Monday morning in the directors' room of the Ballinger State Bank for the purpose of attending to business pertaining to the closing of the fiscal year and to fill a vacancy, also electing a new secretary-treasurer.

A. R. Murchison was elected as director and secretary-treasurer to fill the place made vacant by the death of E. D. Walker. Mr. Murchison accepted the position and all books and records have been turned over to him. The new secretary has been instructed to issue tax notices as soon as possible.

Directors and officers elected for 1931 are as follows: E. Shepherd, president; C. J. Lynn, vice-president; A. R. Murchison, secretary-treasurer; J. McGregor, Mrs. G. M. Vaughn and Mrs. R. P. Kirk.

A resolution was ordered prepared and spread on the minutes extending sympathy to the loved ones of the former officer, E. D. Walker. Committeemen were named to draft the resolution in the name of the association.

President Shepherd stated that as soon as cold weather was passed the directors plan to be making improvements at the burial grounds, continuing the program which has been underway for some time. For this reason the directors urge citizens to pay their cemetery taxes as early as possible so the work will not be handicapped for lack of funds. Tax receipts are the only revenue the organization has and beautification and maintenance of the cemetery depend entirely on the taxes.

During recent years a great deal of work has been done and Evergreen Cemetery has been made one of the prettiest in this part of the state. Lack of sufficient funds now, it is pointed out might be harmful to what has already been accomplished.
