No instant response to Soviet plan

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said today the West will not make an "instant response" to a Soviet proposal to eliminate hundreds of short- and medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe.

Shultz commented at a news conference after he briefed 10 NATO foreign ministers on his three days of talks in Moscow.

"We have examined alternatives" to the Soviet proposal, he said. "We will make a decision promptly about our next steps."

But in a jab at the Soviets, Shultz said, "For some reason they think there should be an instant response from us."

He said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies were discussing arms reduction but they "were not going to jump to any quick conclusion." Even so, he said the NATO ministers provided "a universal welcome of the results of my Moscow visit."

NATO Secretary General Lord Carrington said, "What has got to be done now ... is an overall assessment of (Soviet leader Mikhail) Gorbachev's proposal and our possible response."

He said the NATO allies agreed to "begin immediately to consider the implications to allied security of the proposals under negotiation."

Shultz, who arrived in Brussels from Moscow on Wednesday, said the Soviet proposal would have a significant impact on NATO's defenses.

A treaty based on the Soviet proposal would eliminate hundreds of American medium-range nuclear missiles NATO considers essential to deter agression.

The Soviets in turn would eliminate, over a five-year period, all their medium-range nuclear warheads except 100 to be retained in Asia.

Easter closings due here

The Easter weekend will produce a mixed bag of closings in Snyder and Scurry County Friday.

The three public schools in the county will all be closed Friday, and the holiday will extend over into Monday for both Hermleigh and Ira schools. Snyder classes will resume Monday, however.

No holidays are planned for Western Texas College students. Regular classes will be held Friday and the administrative offices will be open.

The Scurry County Museum on the WTC campus will be closed Easter Sunday, however, and the Senior Citizens Center will close both Friday and Monday.

Regarding governmental entities, Friday will be a holiday for staffers with the city and county.

Both city hall and the courthouse will be closed. Also closed Friday will be the Scurry County Health Unit and the county library, which will close Saturday also.

Friday is not an official holiday for either state or federal employees.

The Texas Employment Commission will be open all day, but staffers at the highway department will have a holiday beginning at noon Friday.

The driver's license office in the county jail building will be closed all day Friday.

All federal offices, to include the ASCS and SCS in the Ag Service Center, will be open Friday.

For the county's post offices, it will also be "business as usual" Friday.

All Snyder financial institutions will be open Friday as well.

The Easter observance here will include a Scurry County Ministerial Alliance-sponsored presentation, "How Great Thou Art" by David T. Clydesdale.

This musical and dramatic portrayal will cover the events of the 100 piece art show set at 'Germanfest'

An art show and sale will be a part of "Germanfest 1987," an event scheduled weekend after next as a fund raiser for Noah Project, the locally-based haven for abused women and their children.

Because food for the event must be ordered ahead of time, the cutoff for reservations is this coming Monday. The buffet line will feature Bratwurst and Knockwurst sausages, German potato salad, German bread and WeinKraut.

Cost will be $25 per person. Reservations should be made by sending a check to P.O. Box 425, Snyder, 79549.

All proceeds will benefit Noah Project Inc. of Snyder, a family violence shelter which provides refuge, counseling, legal advice and social services to women and children of Scurry, Nolan, Mitchell, Fisher and Kent counties.

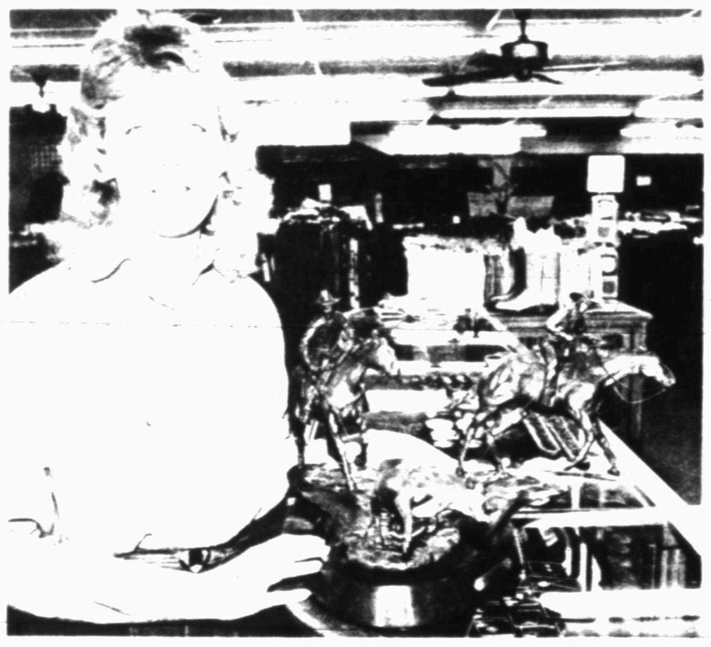

"Germanfest 1987" is planned at the historic Diamond M Ranch on Saturday, April 25. Some 100 pieces of art will be displayed.

These will be provided through the Fenton and Whitehead Gallery based in San Angelo.

On display and offered for sale will be bronzes by Robert Taylor and Rick Jackson; original paintings by Wayne Baize, Gary Morton, Steve Devenyns and Garnet Buster; and prints by Wayne Baize, Howard Terpning, G. Harvey Chun, Frank McCarthy, Bev Doolittle, Robert Bateman and Penni Anne Cross.

The evening's highlight is expected to be the appearance by

Welfare staff works toward adoption of homeless

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of three articles profiling the local Children's Protective Service Division. The division's annual Child Welfare Board meeting is due Monday.)

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Myths about adoptions and foster care will be the subject of the annual Child Welfare Board meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday, at the Senior Center.

Adoptive families are needed in Scurry County for children who have been abused or neglected and for "special needs" children, according to Winona Curfman, regional foster home recruiter for Region 14.

Several children, usually older ones, are now available for adoption. These children have been either abused or neglected or both by their parents.

The state moves to have parental rights terminated only after working with the family for as long as two years.

When this decision is made, the local child welfare representatives place the child in foster homes while adoptive parents are sought.

The average age of a child presently available for adoption is 10-11, but some are as young as four, Curfman said.

Often they are siblings and, whenever possible, she said they make every effort to place the children together. Some are minorities and some are biracial.

According to Curfman, all the children have emotional problems due to abuse or neglect and all are in need of a stable, loving environment.

"These children may be both physically and emotionally damaged and in order for adoptive parents to be able to deal with them we have special

SWCD banquet slated 'with honors' tonight

The annual Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District awards banquet is slated at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Willow Park Inn.

The district will honor its farmer and rancher of the year; local teachers who have emphasized conservation teachings in their classroom; and area school students who entered prize-winning posters and essays using conservation as the theme.

W.J. Fuller, who farms in the Dunn Community, will be recognized as Conservation Farmer of the Year; and Van York, who ranches in eastern Borden County, will be named Conservation Rancher of the Year.

Outstanding conservation teachers honors will go to Joe Ramey, representing the district's rural schools; and Jo Ann Williams, chosen from Snyder schools.

Charlie Henderson, chairman of the Upper Colorado SWCD board, will serve as emcee.

Directors will be presenting awards during the evening. These include Walter Stirl, Leon Sterling, Burl Belew and W.L. Wilson Jr.

SCS staffers include Terry Hefner, district conservationist, and Ricky Linex, range conservationist.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "When politicians talk about democratic cycles in government, they really mean they have us taxpayers going around in circles."

We're told our problem with government is we simply don't understand the language. That may be right, as double-talking is a great way out of an uncomfortable situation.

If one has difficulty looking you straight in the eye, he or she often resorts to the trusty standby of mumbling and stumbling their way through an answer that does little more than occupy time.

Someone has compliled a glossary of political terms which are great diversionary tactics:

Concur generally--I haven't read the information, and don't know exactly what it's all about, and don't want to be bound by anything I say.

In conference--I don't know where he is, out for coffee most likely.

Passed to a higher authority--Pigeonholed in a more sumptuous office.

Appropriate action--Do you know what to do with it? We don't.

Transmitted to you--You hold the bag for a while. I'm tired of it.

For necessary action--We don't know what they want, so you figure it out.

Reorientation--Getting used to work again.

Reliable source--The guy who told the guy you just met in the washroom.

Unimpechable source--The guy who started the rumor in the first place.

Note and initial--Let's spread the responsibility for this. Why should I take all the blame?

Will take under advisement--If we figure it out before you forget about it, we'll let you know.

Spearhead the issue--You be the goat.

Q. — Is Stacy Dam being named for an individual like Lake J.B. Thomas and Lake E.V. Spence?

A. — Stacy Dam is named for the Stacy community, which is the nearest identifiable point from the center line of the dam. Because of this, the now defunct community was first referred to on engineering maps of the site. "Stacy" is not necessarily the name which will be used for the lake the dam will create, however. Water district officials note the option of naming the lake is still open.

In Brief

No ruling yet

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — It is likely to be at least 20 days before a federal judge issues a ruling on whether the state should pay up to $24 million per month in fines for failing to make improvements to the prison system, attorneys said.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice toured the Jester III Unit near Richmond yesterday.

Local

Pre-trial today

The last scheduled pretrial hearing in the capital murder trial of Amanda Lynn Miles, 20, of Colorado City was slated to begin at 9 a.m. Thursday in 51st District Court in San Angelo.

Jury selection for her trial is scheduled to get underway there April 27.

Miles is on trial in connection with the shooting death of Snyder convenience store clerk Jack Huddleston in March of 1986 during a robbery of the College Ave. Allsup's.

Her trial was moved to San Angelo from Snyder in light of publicity generated by the trial and conviction of her co-defendant, Dorsey Lee Johnson Jr., last November.

Rodeo invite

Scurry County school students are invited as guests for the opening performance of the Western Texas College intercollegiate rodeo Thursday night.

The complimentary tickets were to be picked up at the schools.

Students in Colorado City, Roby, Rotan and Gail will be guests for the Saturday afternoon performance.

The rodeo will run through Sunday. It will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students. Box seats are $6 each.

Sing tonight

The public is invited free of charge Thursday night to the Western Texas College choir's spring concert.

It will begin at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Amy Carter, Abbie Hoffman are acquitted in CIA protest

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Amy Carter, acquitted along with 1960s radical Abbie Hoffman and 13 others in an anti-CIA demonstration, plans a lifetime of civil disobedience, and her father, the former president, says he's proud.

The jury returned innocent verdicts on all charges stemming from the Nov. 24 demonstration against CIA recruiting at the University of Massachusetts. The defendants had argued that CIA actions justified an illegal protest to try to stop the agency.

"The people of Northampton, a jury of six in Northampton, have found the CIA guilty of a larger crime than trespassing and disorderly conduct and decided we had a legitimate right to protest that," Miss Carter, who blocked a bus carrying arrested protesters, said as she left the Hampshire County district court.

She said the verdict meant "we aren't necessarily taking all the stuff we're force-fed on the news each night from President Reagan."

Miss Carter, 19, a sophomore at Brown University in Providence, R.I., was one of three defendants accused of disorderly conduct. Hoffman was among a dozen defendants accused of refusing to leave a school building.

Each defendant had faced up to six months in jail and a $500 fine.

"There's hope for the future," said Hoffman, 50, who was a defendant in the Chicago 7 trial in 1968. "This was a brave jury."

As the defendants and their supporters doused each other with champagne at their headquarters, Miss Carter said, "I don't know what is in the future, but I am sure I am going to be involved in this sort of thing for the rest of my life."

Former President Jimmy Carter said in an interview Wednesday night in Decatur, Ga., that he was proud of his daughter.

"Amy is a very shy girl, contrary to the image you see projected in the news media. But she believes very strongly in what she's doing," he said.

"She has been, reluctantly I would say, involved in issues of importance to her. Amy's been arrested four times."

AIDS 'trigger' found

NEW YORK (AP) — A protein produced by a blood cell when it is activated to fight infection can prod a dormant AIDS virus into reproducing, a step that can cause the deadly disease, according to a study published today.

Researchers may be able to delay the appearance of AIDS in infected people if they can block production of the protein or prevent cells infected with the AIDS virus from being activated, said study co-author Dr. Gary Nabel.

The report appeared in the British journal Nature with a study by other scientists showing that a West African AIDS virus is far different from the AIDS virus found elsewhere.

Nabel's research follows previous observations that after the virus infects a white blood cell called a T-cell, it often remains dormant until the immune system activates the cell to help fight another disease. After the virus begins to reproduce within T-cells, it kills them, crippling the immune system and bringing on AIDS.

The new experiments show that an activated T-cell produces a protein that binds itself to a particular piece of genetic material from the AIDS virus, said Nabel.

The genetic material acts like a switch to turn on virus replication, and the binding of the protein turns the switch "on," said Nabel, a molecular biologist at the Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research in Cambridge, Mass., where he wrote the paper with Dr. David Baltimore.

Aviation ground school planned

Western Texas College will offer an aviation ground school for the private pilot in evening classes starting April 21.

Classes are to meet from 7-10 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays through May 28. Fees are $165 per person, which includes all materials.

Jorge Vincent Costales will be the instructor. All flying will be done separately from the course and a plane will be available through Costales.

Students must be 15 years of age or older to enroll. Minimum enrollment will be five, with the maximum set at 10.

To pre-register call 573-8511, ext. 240.

32nd conference ends in Abilene

ABILENE--The 18th District Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers Association 32nd spring convention concluded Wednesday.

The year the conference featured three workshops: eating disorders, teen suicide, and runaways. A class for new officer information was provided. Dr. David Wray of Highland Church of Christ was the guest speaker.

Awards presented included outstanding volunteer program, big 1500 award, parent education, outstanding membership, publicity and history book, J. Fox attendance, traveling trophy, Webster leadership and gavel award.

The Life Membership banquet was held Tuesday. Host schools for the conference included Abilene's Madison, Reagan, Crockett and Long.

Scurry County is in the 18th District.

Dear Abby

Woman Wonders If Lover's Cheatin' Heart Belongs to Her

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been having an affair with the husband of a friend of mine. It's been going on for over two years. We get together about three times a month. There are times when I feel guilty, but not very often.

We meet in the daytime at a motel — nothing fancy. We spend about three hours together (in bed). We can't go out in public because everybody knows him. He rarely calls because he's busy with business. He only calls to ask me to meet him. He has never said he loves me — only that he "needs" me. When I tell him I love him, he keeps telling me how much he "needs" me. (What is that supposed to mean?)

He has never bought me a gift, and he has plenty of money. I'm not a gold digger, but a little gift would be nice to show he's thinking of me. I wanted to buy him a birthday present and he told me not to because his wife would wonder where it came from.

Abby, can you figure this relationship out? I can't. What do you call it, and where is it going?

FUNNY FACE
(HIS NAME FOR ME)

DEAR FUNNY FACE: I would call it an accommodation for him (strictly physical). When he says he "needs" you, that's what he means. He needs the sex you provide. He doesn't tell you he "loves" you because he wants no involvement on an emotional level. The relationship is going nowhere, and if you're smart you will put an end to it before you get caught or become addicted to him — whichever comes first.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I bought a home together. We both work. There are two people in her life who dislike me intensely — her father and her best friend. I dislike them both because they have continually bad-mouthed me to my wife.

I feel that when a husband and wife own a home in partnership as we do, both parties should have approval concerning who should set foot on their property.

More explicitly, I feel that I have the right to bar a person from our property whether I am home or not. (I would honor that request without question if my wife asked me to.) My wife insists that it is her right to invite anyone she wants to our home as long as I am not there.

There can be no compromise here. Either one of us has the right to keep someone off our property, or we don't.

What is your opinion?

STANDING FIRM

DEAR STANDING: Loosen up. A marriage without compromise is tenuous at best. If your wife has agreed to entertain people you dislike only when you are not home, that seems reasonable enough to me. But for you to "bar them from the property" whether you're at home or not seems petty and unreasonable.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just moved into a beautiful new home that I love dearly, but here's the problem: His parents live next door with his sister and brothers, and they come over here every single day and never leave until late at night.

Abby, we've been married only four months, and in those four months we haven't had any privacy at all. Everybody in his family has keys to our house, and when we go out, we come back to find the place full of his kin and their friends — eating and drinking everything in sight. What should we do?

FED UP IN WISCONSIN

DEAR FED UP: Lay down the law, call in the keys and inform your kin that they are not to come over without calling first to see if it is convenient. (No dropping in uninvited.) And if you have trouble getting your house keys — change the locks.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Friday, April 17, 1987

In the year ahead, you'll be operating on a rather grand scale. Regardless of your involvement, you'll figure out ways to do things bigger and better than you ever did.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might learn of something untrue that another has said about you. Don't bother to defend yourself because your friends have already taken care of it. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you are involved in has good chances for success, but it still contains some flaws. Start correcting them today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Where an important issue is concerned today, be careful not to take hearsay information as gospel. To be on the safe side, double-check your facts and sources.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are now in a productive cycle. If there are tasks that you have been neglecting, push yourself harder today and get them done.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might try to hide something today from the one you love to spare his or her feelings. This condition is manageable, so don't make a big deal out of it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Guard against tendencies today to worry about things that will never happen. Instead, focus your thoughts on all the good situations you can bring into being.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Events will work to your benefit today if you don't rock the boat. Treat minor mishaps with the lack of attention they deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something unusual may occur in your financial dealings that will initially appear to have negative overtones. However, it will turn out to be a profit in another guise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Gambles are generally an exercise in futility, but today you might be able to achieve your ends by taking a chance where the odds are in your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's been said, "If you want to command attention, whisper instead of shout." Today, you'll be more effective influencing others if you maintain a low profile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't put restrictions on your thinking today where a new venture is concerned. Grand expectations will motivate you to try harder.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you have been doing a good job lately but believe you haven't been properly compensated, this is a good day to have a serious discussion with your boss.

A saying by "anonymous" has it that "Anybody who isn't confused isn't well-informed."

The "Charge of the Light Brigade" took place Oct. 25, 1854, during the Crimean War battle of Balaklava. An English brigade of 600 men charged the Russian army against hopeless odds and suffered heavy losses. Wrote the poet Alfred Lord Tennyson: "Theirs not to reason why ... Theirs but to do and die."

Anticipating a bad split

You don't have to play bridge long before you realize that suits sometimes split rather badly. Who can explain why even experts sometimes play a hand without providing for the possibility that such a bad split will occur? Today we have what seems like a simple deal. Declarer will win the opening lead and play a club or two. If either defender is able to hold up clubs until the third round, declarer will still make his contract by the simple expedient of switching to diamonds after winning two club tricks. Although the defenders may attack the heart suit, they will not have time to set up hearts before declarer takes nine tricks. But look what happened in the actual play.

At trick two, declarer led a low club to dummy. East took the ace and led the queen of hearts. Now declarer started after diamonds, but there was no time. When he forced out the second high diamond, the defenders took two more heart tricks to set the contract. How is the contract always made, after the spade opening lead?

Declarer must be careful to lead the queen of clubs from his hand at the second trick. Now, if East ducks, declarer can go after diamonds. If East takes that club queen with his ace, declarer can still garner enough tricks by ducking a second club all around and subsequently taking four club tricks, enough for his contract.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Finding out about epilepsy

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Two years ago, my daughter (who is now 18) developed a tendency to have seizures. Where can we get more information on epilepsy?

DEAR READER — Epilepsy encompasses a range of brain disorders that are all characterized by repeated episodes of convulsions, sensory disorders or similar abnormal behavior. The brain malfunction can be caused by head injury, brain tumors, brain infection, intoxication, chemical imbalances within the body or inadequate circulation to the brain surface (cerebral cortex). Convulsions result from abnormal, uncontrollable electrical discharges from nervous tissue.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on EPILEPSY. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title. You may also contact the Epilepsy Foundation of America (4351 Garden City Dr., Landover, MD 20785) for additional information.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For months I had vague pains everywhere, insomnia and frequent urination. Finally, my digestion deteriorated so badly that I made an appointment with a doctor. Two days before I saw him, I stopped using all milk products. The improvement was dramatic and unbelievable. I had been using milk treated with lactase, but apparently that wasn't enough. Do you have any thoughts about this apparent allergy?

DEAR READER — Ordinarily, patients with milk intolerance lack a specific intestinal enzyme, lactase, that digests milk sugar (lactose). The use of pre-treated or pre-digested milk products (such as yogurt or Lactaid) usually solves the problem of gas, abdominal cramps and bowel disorder. However, some people may be allergic to the non-lactose components of milk. Ask your doctor for a referral to an allergist who, by testing, can pinpoint the exact component in milk to which you may be sensitive.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My job requires sitting most of the day. By 5 p.m., I am bloated with gas, feel quite uncomfortable and look pregnant. Walking relieves the problem. What causes this buildup?

DEAR READER — Prolonged inactivity can retard intestinal peristalsis, the muscular contractions of the bowel wall that propel digested food to evacuation. When the intestine becomes sluggish, gas pockets and bloating will appear. Discomfort results. I suggest that you try to move around more during the day. Take a short walk around the work place in midmorning and midafternoon. Use part of your lunch hour to walk — and, by all means, try to get some walking in before work and after the whistle blows.

Lyng: food poisoning organisms in chicken a longtime problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not really a new disclosure that almost four out of 10 chickens reaching consumers are contaminated by food poisoning organisms, says Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng.

The salmonella problem has been around for many years and does not translate into incompetence in the Agriculture Department's inspection system, Lyng said in a letter released on Wednesday.

Lyng's defense of the USDA's inspection system was sent to Thomas Devine, legal director of the Government Accountability Project, which describes itself as "whistleblower support" group based in Washington, D.C.

Devine on March 30 informed Lyng of widespread contamination in poultry plants. Devine said that because of contamination, a large portion of the nation's chickens are infected with salmonella food poisoning organisms by the time they reach consumers. The contamination and a rise in food poisoning were tied "to a breakdown in USDA's poultry inspection program," Devine said.

Ten former or current employees of the department's Food Safety Inspection Service, which oversees poultry inspection and grading, were said to be the main sources of Devine's case against the USDA agency.

Lyng, who was on his way to Japan for trade talks next week, said the claim that raw meat and poultry may be contaminated by salmonella and other organisms is not new and that USDA scientists and officials, and scientists around the world, "have been saying this for years."

"Much of what the employees have written seems to have been occasioned by an Associated Press article that went out over the wires on Feb. 17," Lyng wrote. "The article called attention to findings by FSIS that 'nearly four out of every 10 chickens (sold to consumers) are contaminated'. The actual statistic referred to is 36.9 percent, and was the result of a survey performed in 1979."

Devine's whistleblowers had challenged the USDA survey figure, alleging that salmonella contamination rates are "at an all-time high" and at times rise to 90 percent or higher in some plants.

Lyng said the scientific paper in which the statistic was reported was not published until 1982, however. Since then, he added, USDA officials "have repeatedly mentioned this finding in the last several years in speeches, reports, letters, and private and professional discussions. From time to time the information has been published by the mass media."

A number of statements by the whistleblowers "appear to be based solely on personal experience or observation" and, when they are not mistaken, "their view is a narrow one that does not take into account the national perspective on the state of meat and poultry inspection."

The Senate Agriculture Committee has scheduled hearings later this month on USDA's inspection program, and the National Academy of Sciences is expected to release a report on the health-risk aspects of federal poultry inspection.

Braziel surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record corn harvest is producing surpluses in Brazil, which may be forced to reexport some corn bought from the United States, says an Agriculture Department report.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wednesday in a brief trade report that Brazil is studying whether to ship out 490,000 metric tons of U.S. corn and 215,000 tons from Argentina as a way of reducing supplies.

Brazil expects to harvest a record corn crop of 25.5 million tons, with about 20 percent of the harvest completed, the report said. Brazil has bought 1.2 million tons of corn from the United States. Normally, the crop yields about 21 million tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn.

Brazil last exported significant quantities of corn in 1984-85. Since then, rising domestic use has outpaced production, leading to a sharp increase in corn imports.

"Men make history and not the other way around," according to Harry S. Truman, the 33rd president of the United States.

North's secretary gave him documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North's secretary, Fawn Hall, turned over to him documents she removed from his White House office the day North was fired, sources familiar with the investigation into the Iran-Contra affair say.

Investigators for both independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh and congressional committees now have copies of those documents, along with a wealth of other material, according to sources familiar with the investigation who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Among the other items obtained by investigators is a calendar record of North's telephone calls, meetings and other contacts maintained by Miss Hall. One source described the record as "90 percent accurate" and said it included North's travel arrangements.

With congressional hearings into the sale of arms to Iran and the alleged diversion of profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels set to begin in three weeks, there were these other developments:

—North and his secretary destroyed so many documents in a brief period before President Reagan fired North that their White House shredding machine backed up and jammed under the load, a source familiar with the investigation said.

Rodeo opens tonight; WTC seeks good run

Time's a wastin' but Coach Bob Doty believes his defending national champion Western Texas College men's team can pull back into the Southwest Region race with some good scores over the final three rodeos.

Western wants to start tonight as it hosts the annual Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo at Scurry County Coliseum. Showtime is 8 p.m. Area students will be admitted without charge if they have tickets which have been distributed by the schools. Regular ticket prices are $4 for adults and $3 for students. Box seats are $6.

The rodeo continues at 8 nightly through Saturday and includes 2 p.m. performances Saturday and Sunday.

"We have (had) two good rodeos and the rest of them have been in the 100's. I think if we can average between 250 and 270 points these last three rodeos we can make it real close," Doty said in summing up the situation.

Teams add up scores from their best five rodeos in making up a season total. Western's top five rodeos have been a 150 at Eastern New Mexico, a 170 at Sul Ross, a 145 at Texas Tech, a 285 at West Texas State and a 280 last weekend at New Mexico Junior College. Tossing out the 145, 150 and 170 and replacing them with 250s would make a major difference in WTC's current total of 1,030, which is currently in fourth place. The top two teams in the region will advance to the College National Finals Rodeo.

Doty said he hopes that the rodeo being held at Scurry County Coliseum will help the Westerners.

"I think maybe it has a little advantage. Everybody seems to get pumped up a little more. We have more parents come to our rodeo and hopefully that will work to our advantage," he said.

Tarleton State University leads the men's race with 1,287.5 points, followed by Odessa College with 1,220 and Sul Ross with 1,065. There are 12 colleges and universities entered in the team competition.

In the women's division, Western is fifth overall with 400 points. Eastern New Mexico leads with 860 and Texas Tech is second with 705.

The rodeo will include some of the nation's top competitors, including current Southwest Region all-around leader Jim Sharp of Odessa. Sharp leads the region in the bull riding and saddle bronc.

Others include Andy O'Neal of Tarleton, Todd Watkins of Sul Ross, and Western Texas' Mike Carrillo and Keith Hudson.

The women's all-round is being led by former WTC cowgirl Shelly Eldridge Tate, who competes for Eastern New Mexico. She leads the region in the goat tying. Another former WTC ex, Canita Cass, leads the goat tying for Texas Tech. Current Western performer Jessie Colburn is second in the standings of the barrel race to Tarleton's Luann Bradley.

Cowboys waive Rafael Septien

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys officials say they had no choice but to boot veteran placekicker Rafael Septien after he pleaded guilty to a charge of indecency with a 10-year-old girl.

The team waived Septien Wednesday, one week after he pleaded guilty to the charge and was placed on 10 years probation.

"I knew we would receive adverse public reaction when we did not take this action immediately, but we wanted to investigate all the ramifications of our decision," team President Tex Schramm said.

He called the decision "a sad episode for everyone, but Rafael is no longer a member of the Dallas Cowboys."

By Wednesday afternoon, Septien's nameplate had been removed from its place above his locker at the Cowboys' practice facility at Valley Ranch.

Septien, 33, said he hopes to be forgiven and that another team will give him a chance to play.

"I'm sorry this happened this way," Septien said. "I was looking forward to end my career with the Cowboys, and unfortunately it's not going to be that way. It doesn't look like it."

Schramm and Coach Tom Landry gave prepared statements which were read by team spokesman Doug Todd in a telephone interview from San Diego.

"We cannot ignore the contributions on the field of Rafael during the past 10 years, and that is why this has been so difficult. Ultimately, we had no alternative but to take this action," Schramm said.

"The Cowboys and this community always have enjoyed a special relationship and this will continue to be our highest priority."

Landry said it was "a tough decision that had to be made."

"Rafael has been an important part of our team for 10 years. I have always been inclined to help a player overcome his problems within the confines of our team. Sometimes, this is not possible," he said.

"I only hope Rafael can pick up the pieces and again be the type of person we have known these past 10 years," Landry added.

In exchange for 10 years deferred probation and a $2,000 fine, Septien pleaded guilty April 8 in Denton to the charge of indecency with a child. He was indicted Jan. 22 in the sexual assault of a 10-year-old girl, who was a friend of his roommate's daugher.

He originally pleaded innocent to a sexual assault charge, calling it a "total misunderstanding." That charge was later reduced to indecency with a child as part of the plea

Scott, Downs pitch squads to impressive NL victories

by The Associated Press

Mike Scott and Kelly Downs were almost as dominant as a pitcher can be, yet the spotlight eluded them.

Scott threw a one-hitter and Downs had a three-hitter Wednesday night, but the masterpiece of the evening was thrown in the American League where Milwaukee's Juan Nieves pitched a no-hitter against Baltimore.

Still, Scott's 4-0 win at Los Angeles and Downs' 1-0 victory in San Diego were not exactly weak efforts. Both were dominant.

Scott, of course, has been that way for nearly a year. After a poor start last season, Scott made his split-finger fastball dance and he rode it to an 18-10 record and the National League Cy Young Award.

Against the Dodgers, he was virtually unhittable, yielding only a third-inning single to Mariano Duncan and striking out 10.

"I don't know how he could have been any better unless, of course, he had pitched a no-hitter," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said. "He looked pretty overpowering to me. He gave up one hit, retired 15 in a row, was in complete command of all of his pitches."

The Dodgers wondered if Scott had a little help in holding such command. Like the New York Mets in last year's playoffs, the Dodgers accused Scott of scuffing the baseball.

"The scuff marks (on the balls) were all identical," Dodgers pitcher Rick Honeycutt said. "I don't know what grade of sandpaper he (Scott) was using, but it was a finer grade."

Also Wednesday, it was New York 4, Philadelphia 1; Pittsburgh 3, Chicago 1, and Atlanta 4, Cincinnati 3.

Astros 4, Dodgers 0

Scott threw a no-hitter last September in the Astros' division-clinching win. He beat the Dodgers 4-3 on opening day for his other 1987 victory.

Billy Hatcher, who's hit in all nine of the Astros' games, homered, doubled and singled to account for half the Houston runs. His solo homer in the fourth off Alejandro Pena, 0-1, gave Scott the lead. The Astros upped their record to 7-2, equalling the best starts in the club's history - in 1972 and 1980.

Giants 1, Padres 0

While San Francisco continued its torrid start behind the three-hit pitching of Kelly Downs and a home run by Candy Malonado, the Padres continued to falter.

San Diego, 1-8, is off to the worst start in the 19-year history of the franchise. Counting spring training games, the Padres have won only once since March 27 and have lost 16 of 17 since then.

The Giants improved their record to 8-2, their best start since 1979, and moved into first place in the NL West.

Downs, 1-0, outlasted Padres starter Storm Davis, 0-1, who allowed only four hits in eight innings. Downs struck out seven and walked one.

Mets 4, Phillies 1

The Mets used the long ball and stingy pitching by Sid Fernandez, David Cone and Doug Sisk. Gary Carter and Darryl Strawberry hit consecutive home runs in the seventh inning off Kent Tekulve to break open a tight game. Strawberry has hit in all seven Mets game, including four home runs and 11 RBI.

Boston hands Texas seventh season loss

BOSTON (AP) - Wes Gardner paid off for the Red Sox on Wednesday, striking out seven in three innings as Boston defeated the Texas Rangers, 5-4.

The Red Sox, with a 4-4 record after losing their first three games, open a four-game series with the Toronto Blue Jays tonight, sending Roger Clemens, 0-1, to the mound against southpaw Jimmy Key, 2-0.

The Rangers, whose 1-7 start equals their worst in club history, hit the road for Milwaukee.

After Dwight Evans put Boston ahead by one with the third grand slam of his career, McNamara didn't hesitate to go to Gardner after Texas put runners on second and third on a walk and an error with none out against starter Bruce Hurst.

On just 14 pitches, Gardner struck out Pete Incaviglia, Larry Parrish and Don Slaught. Gardner was nicked for an infield hit by Odibe McDowell to start the eighth, then struck out two of the next three batters. He retired the side in order in the ninth, two on strikeouts.

Gardner, noted mainly as a sinker ball pitcher, relied mostly on his fast ball, especially the cross-seamer, as he dazzled the Rangers on 40 pitches, 28 for strikes.

Erich's body found

DALLAS (AP) - The body of professional wrestler Mike Von Erich was pulled out of a lake today near where his car was discovered abandoned, Denton County Sheriff Joel Dalton said.

The body was found during a dragging operation that began Wednesday afternoon after the 23-year-old wrestler's car was found near the entrance to a park on Lewisville Lake, about 25 miles north of Dallas.

His family had reported him missing on Monday. He had been last reported seen Saturday afternoon, when he posted bond on drug and alcohol charges.

His car was found beside the lake Wednesday afternoon, and officials said a note was found that begun, "I am in a better place."

Von Erich's 1986 gray Mercury Marquis was found on a dirt side road near the entrance to Pilot Knoll Park. A resident called authorities about the car Wednesday afternoon, saying it had been there several days.

Von Erich was the youngest of three wrestling Von Erich brothers, sons of Jack and Doris Adkisson. The father once wrestled as Fritz Von Erich. The brothers grew up in the Denton County community of Lake Dallas.

Nieves hurls no-hit game

BALTIMORE (AP) - After pitching the first no-hitter in Brewers history, 22-year-old Juan Nieves said he was going to try to relax on the plane back to Milwaukee with a good Spanish novel.

But while Nieves and his teammates relax and enjoy their club-record 9-0 start, the rest of the American League is probably wondering when the Brewers amazing start will end.

The Brewers equalled the third best start in American League history Wednesday night with a 7-0 victory over Baltimore, a no-hitter that was capped by a brilliant diving catch for the final out by Milwaukee centerfielder Robin Yount.

"People think this start is a joke," said Nieves, who became the youngest pitcher in 15 years to hurl a no-hitter. "But we are for real and this is just a taste of what is to come. We are in a tough division and we're going to go out and go after people."

TCU, Sam Houston tap Western den; McKnight signs

NEW DUSTER -- Snyder High School standout Stephanie McKnight signed a scholarship this morning to play basketball for Coach Kelly Chadwick's WTC Dusters. (SDN Staff Photo)

Lady Tiger becomes Duster

Two-time All-District 2-4A choice Stephanie McKnight, a standout player for Snyder High School, signed a basketball scholarship with Western Texas College this morning.

"I'm really looking forward to working with her," beamed Coach Kelly Chadwick, whose Dusters were 31-4 last season after winning conference and regional titles.

McKnight averaged 16 points as a senior while playing point guard for Coach Ken Housden's Lady Tigers at Snyder High.

A second-team all-state choice, McKnight was recruited by several colleges, but elected to go to Western Texas.

"It's close to home," she grinned, "and Coach Chadwick is a real good coach. They were fourth in the nation last year and that says something about the program."

Chadwick said there was no doubt about McKnight's abilities, despite the fact that her 5-3, 5-4 height will make her small in basketball terms.

"She's 5-4 but she plays about 5-8," said Chadwick. "She can play the point guard or the second guard and I think we'll have a great situation with her and Kayla (returning point guard Kayla Thompson) on the floor at the same time. Stephanie is an excellent ball handler and a fine shooter. I suspect we'll have her shoot the ball more than she did in high school.

"Defense will be her weakness for awhile, but that's a common problem with kids when they move from high school to college ball. A lot of high school players are good shooters, but you have to play good defense in college," said Chadwick.

"I really think she can be a big asset to us in our transition game. With her and Kayla and Bonnie (Bonnie Detrixhe) we should be able to run the ball real well if we can find somebody to rebound for us."

McKnight is the first player Chadwick has signed for next season.

Cat golfers at Sweetwater

SWEETWATER -- Snyder's Tigers, coming off of their best effort in several years, hope to move up in the standings as they compete in the final Boy's District 2-4A Golf Tournament here Friday.

The Tigers are out of the running for a regional tournament berth, but could finish as high as fourth overall with a good showing here.

Snyder shot a 314 last weekend at San Angelo to vault from 10th to seventh in the standings with a 1,390 total. The Tigers are just 14 strokes out of fourth place overall.

Andrews A-team leads the standings with 1,247 strokes in four matches. Sweetwater A is second with a 1,316, followed by Big Spring with 1,350 and Monahans with a 1,376.

The top two teams will advance to regional competition.

Playing for Snyder varsity will be Mike Trull, Marc McQueen, Chad Sellars, Ken Meckley and Wade Hatter. Vying for the JV group, which has a 1,665 total, will be Coy Berryman, Robin Kraatz, Ron Baker, Brett Morton and Mike Forshee.

Lady Tigers try Monahans

MONAHANS -- Snyder's Lady Tigers look to wrap up a regionals berth as they compete in the final Girl's District 2-4A Golf Tournament here Friday.

The Lady Tigers, coming off of their best performance in history last Saturday in Fort Stockton, are in second place in the district standings behind Andrews.

Snyder shot a school-record 342 last week to win at Fort Stockton. The effort put the Tigers at 1,097 after three tournaments. Andrews leads the race with 1,073.

The top two teams in the district advance to regional competition. Andrews is the defending 2-4A and regional champion, but Snyder is the defending Class 4A state champion.

Snyder looks to clinch another berth to regionals this season, since the district's third place team, Big Spring, is 60 strokes behind with a 1,157.

Playing for the A-team will be Leslie Light, Lea Ann Thompson, Angie Lay, Camille Reed and Kristi Neill. Competing for the Snyder B-squad will be Jamie Leatherwood, Missy Trull, Rachel Everett, Sabrina Cross and Michele Anderson.

Sign with Sam Houston State...

Marr, Robinson pen names; to play for another Chadwick

GiGi Robinson and Dee Ann Marr, regulars on Western Texas College's conference and regional championship basketball team, signed this morning with Sam Houston State University.

"Both come highly regarded," grinned SHSU Coach Royce Chadwick, who is the son of Duster coach Kelly Chadwick.

The sophomores are the first Dusters to sign with a four-year college following a season in which Western finished fourth at the NJCAA National Tournament. Wendy Milner will be attending the University of Alabama but will not play basketball, and All-American Brenda Welch is expected to announce her decision on where to play soon.

Royce Chadwick was serious in his statement.

"Getting players from his program is kind of like getting returning players. I learned coaching from my dad so we do a lot of things very similar. I think these girls will be able to step right in for us," said the younger Chadwick.

"They know the system," echoed his father. "Royce assisted me at Amarillo and we run basically the same program. Dee Ann and GiGi will fit right in with what is going on there. I think both girls are real fortunate to have this opportunity to play Division I ball."

Sam Houston State will be playing in the Southland Conference next season with North Texas State, UT-Arlington, Southwest Texas State, Stephen F. Austin, Northwest Louisiana, Northeast Louisiana and McNeese State. The Southland champion receives an automatic berth in the women's NCAA National Tournament.

Cal State, Houston and Baylor are all on SHSU's schedule next season.

"It's a good program and a good coach and he runs some of the same offense and all that we used here," said Dee Ann Marr, a 5-11 Weatherford native who has interior design and elementary education as a double major.

Marr averaged 7 points, 3.6 rebounds and 3.7 assists for the Dusters last season.

"She's a wing player who can shoot the three-pointer which is very important in division I basketball," said Royce Chadwick. "I felt when we started recruiting we needed to sign a guard who could really shoot and we have that in Dee Ann."

Robinson, a 6-0 post from Snyder, averaged 7.6 points and 5.3 boards as a sophomore at WTC.

"We feel GiGi will fill the gap we had with a forward-post type girl. She has good size and good ability and she's an excellent basketball player," said the SHSU coach. "We see her as being a big factor for us next year.

"The character these two girls have will be a big asset to our program. We're real happy to have both of them," he added.

"It's hard for a girl that's been in a junior college program sometimes to step in and play right away because different coaches coach differently. But in this case, because our programs are so much alike, I think GiGi and Dee Ann will be able to contribute right away," said Kelly Chadwick. "I feel like they'll do a good job for Royce and Sam Houston State because they've done a good job here."

John Lewis inks scholarship with Texas Christian Frogs

John Smith, standout guard for Western Texas College the past two seasons, signed Wednesday afternoon to play basketball for Texas Christian University.

Smith is the second WTC sophomore to ink with a Top Twenty program. Teammate Alvin Lee signed with the University of Alabama last week.

"I visited TCU and I got along with the fellows real well up there," said Lewis, a 6-1 player from Lubbock. "I was a little confused until I took the visit, but I liked the players and the coach and the campus really caught my eye. Plus, I have a few relatives in the area."

Lee had been recruited by a number of universities, including UT-Arlington, San Jose State, Oklahoma State, Arkansas and Texas Tech University.

"I didn't really ever think about Tech because that's too close to home. For a while I didn't want to even stay in Texas," said Lewis. "But now I'll be close to home, but not that close. I talked to my mother about it and she said she would be behind me where ever I went."

Lewis averaged 19.8 points, six rebounds and four assists for Western Texas as a sophomore.

"I think John picked a great place. He made a good choice," said WTC Coach Phil Spradling. "He knows they (TCU) need a second guard and that's what John really is. I think he'll get a chance to play right away. I think he's one of the most underrated players in our whole league - in Texas even - and I think people will be surprised at how well he'll do at Texas Christian."

Lewis' signing left only one sophomore yet to move on to a four-year school. Amos Jones is still considering, and should be making a decision in the near future.

"I'm sorry we had to lose all of these young men. We'd really like to have them back," said Spradling. "They are great players and great young men."

bargain.

After the pleading guilty last week, Septien said, "I'm relieved that this matter has been resolved in the best interests of all parties."

Septien was living with a friend in The Colony, a community in Denton County about 25 miles north of Dallas, while separated from his wife when the the girl was molested Dec. 28, officials said.

The probation terms also require Septien to undergo psychiatric treatment, avoid alcoholic beverages and notify probation officials the first and third Tuesday of each month beginning April 14.

Passion play performance set

The Scurry County Ministerial Alliance will conclude this year's observance of Holy Week with a presentation of the traditional passion play entitled "How Great Thou Art" by David T. Clydesdale.

This musical and dramatic portrayal will cover the events of the last week from Palm Sunday to Easter morning, culminating with the later Ascension. The rather graphic depiction of the crucifixion is not recommended for viewing by small children.

A first-ever effort by the Ministerial Alliance, this project will involve singers, instrumentalists, and actors from six Snyder churches: Colonial Hill Baptist, First Christian, First United Methodist, Lighthouse Assembly of God, First Presbyterian, and St. Elizabeth Catholic Church. About 65 individuals will be participating in the play.

The play will begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Colonial Hill. A nursery will be provided and there will be no admission charge.

Dancing legalized in West Texas town

ANSON, Texas (AP) — Dancing is legal now, but there won't be any dancing in the streets over the change.

The Anson City Council, meeting in emergency session, passed the ordinance legalizing public dancing for the first time since 1933, Mayor Gene Rodgers said.

Rodgers said the ordinance replaced an outdated, discriminatory one, which allowed certain dances but not others.

But members of Footloose, a group of parents who support allowing supervised dancing for students, are upset about restrictions placed on dances and the way the ordinance was passed Tuesday.

The six-page ordinance, which passed unanimously, sets up guidelines for dances, the mayor said. Restrictions include a stipulation that no dances be conducted within a certain distance of a church, he said, and that no one dance after 12:01 a.m.

And no dancing is allowed on city property, including the streets, in the West Texas town north of Abilene.

"You've got to have guidelines," he said, "You've got to protect the people."

Footloose president Mercy Torres said, "I think it (the ordinance) is worse than the one we had before. There are too many restrictions, too many 'don'ts and not enough 'dos.'"

Paul Davidson, a musician and Footloose member, said he disagreed with some provisions in the new ordinance.

Banning dancing on city property limits the facilities available for dances, he said.

"If the city lets the Chamber of Commerce rent a building for its banquet, then I should be able to rent that building for the same price and should be able to hold a dance," he told the Abilene Reporter-News.

The ordinance makes it tough on public dances, but allows private dances without admission charges, which would force Footloose to foot the bill, he said.

"It's unfortunate that a few parents have to take the burden of protecting our children (by sponsoring dances) and keeping them off the streets," Davidson said. "The city is not cooperating."

Davidson said the emergency meeting "took everybody by surprise." He said he was told there would be three readings of the ordinance at council meetings.

Rodgers said an emergency session was called so that the ordinance could be passed quickly so the city could get on with other business.

He said national media coverage portraying the city as divided over the issue was not true.

"I think this has been blown completely out of proportion," he said. "We have other things we need to do."

Passing the ordinance in an emergency session puts it into effect immediately and bypasses the usual three readings.

Davidson said the new ordinance makes it easier for private dance hall operators than for those holding a public dance in Anson. Neither Footloose members nor residents want dance halls in Anson, he said.

According to the ordinance, Davidson said, before a permit is granted for a public dance, the city secretary must determine if the applicant is "of good moral character" and must inspect the building where the dance is to be held.

Mayor Rodgers said it is possible for a private dance hall to open.

"It's legal if they want to," he said. "Personally, I don't look for them to last long."

A permit will cost $25, Mrs. Torres said, and the fine for violating the ordinance is $200, compared to $15 under the old ordinance.

The law also includes steep liability insurance requirements.

"It's hard to tell if we won anything, lost anything or are back to square one," Davidson said. Most people in Footloose believe they were not treated fairly, he added.

Davidson, who penned a song "There Ain't No Dancin' in Anson" two years ago, said the ordinance might be cause to write another verse to the song.

Obituaries

Jack Thomas

Graveside services are set for 11 a.m. Friday in the Fluvanna Cemetery for James E. (Jack) Thomas, 68, who died Tuesday in Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

Thomas, a resident of Lubbock and a security guard at Pyramid Plaza, suffered a gunshot wound to the head. Peace Justice L. J. Blalack ruled the death a suicide.

Officiating at the service will be Don Campbell, minister of the Fluvanna Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife, Easter; a daughter, Jackie McCutcheon of Alvin; two brothers, Pete Browning of Snyder and Sam Browning of Albuquerque; two sisters, Mrs. Burl Belew of Fluvanna and Mrs. Bill Lewis of Lovington, N. M.; and four grandchildren.

Study says U.S. embassy in Soviet Union is unsound

WASHINGTON (AP) — The uncompleted U.S. Embassy in Moscow, besides being riddled with Soviet listening devices, has important structural problems that must be fixed before it can be occupied, a federal study shows.

After a six-month congressionally mandated study of the building's structural soundness, the National Bureau of Standards concluded that the embassy probably could be suitably repaired in less than a year and without major reconstruction.

If the building were in the United States, repairs probably would cost about $1.5 million, the agency estimated, but costs could run substantially higher in Moscow.

Among the problems found by the agency's structural experts were joints and reinforced concrete columns and walls which were not completely filled with the concrete needed for them to reach their full design strength; cracked walls in several places; and the potential for "progressive collapse" in the floor system.

Floors were designed in some instances without an adequate margin of safety, raising the possibility that failure of one structural member could lead to a chain reaction of collapses, the report said.

"It's not normal building practice," bureau spokesman Matt Heyman said Wednesday. "Some of the problems were clear-cut and should have been obvious" to the builders. In some cases, he said, joints left unfilled were later covered over with a layer of cement that hid the defect.

The bureau's study focused on the eight-story chancery building at the center of the $191 million embassy complex, which has been under construction for eight years.

The findings come on top of revelations that the building also is riddled with listening devices planted by Soviet spies during construction. Some members of Congress have suggested that the structure probably can never be cleaned of all the bugs and may have to be bulldozed. The agency did not examine the costs or feasibility of "de-bugging."

Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., a frequent critic of the government's handling of the embassy matter, said Wednesday he would ask Congress to pass a resolution urging the State Department never to occupy the chancery.

the Texas Tech German Dancers.

During the buffet, set from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., "Das Glockenspiel," a German Oom-pah band, will perform.

Dr. Meredith McClain, associate professor of German at Texas Tech, will present a humorous history of the Germanic heritage in the state at 6:30 p.m. The dancers are scheduled to perform from 7 until 8 p.m.

The Furr's Corporation will donate the food for the affair with the dancers also donating their time. Noah Project board members plan to cover the band's fee themselves. Event organizers emphasized that the donations will mean that nearly 100 percent of funds raised will directly benefit the shelter.

Adoption criteria outlined classes for them as well as support groups," Curfman explained.

She said not all the cases are severe, but some children have to be placed in therapy both before and after placement.

"We are looking for basic, solid citizens. We do ask for references and we do conduct criminal checks. Plus, we get to know the prospective adoptive parents through the special classes," she said.

"We are not looking for perfect people, but they do need to be stable," Curfman said. "We encourage people with special skills such as medical or educational to adopt. Some of these children have experienced so much trauma in their life that they could not focus on their schoolwork and are therefore behind their grade level."

However, she said, it is not necessary to be proficient in any particular area to qualify as an adoptive parent. The main thing these children need is "love and stability."

She said they are also open to single parent adoption. "If a child has been sexually abused, it is often easier for them to overcome the trauma if they are adopted by a single parent," she explained.

Curfman noted it is not as expensive to adopt as some people may think. The average adoption costs from $400 to $700, in comparison to private agencies which can charge thousands of dollars.

She said the Child Protective Service Division does not charge for their assistance. Legal and court costs are the only fees adoptive parents have to consider.

She said the parents of these children also do not cause problems for the adoptive parents because once their parental rights have been terminated, historically they do not harass the adoptive parents.

The options for the biological parents keeping their child are explored at length before the parental rights are terminated.

At least five children are available now for adoption in Scurry County. They are presently in foster care. However, prospective adoptive parents have a 44-county area to choose from if they desire, she said. Rick Booz of Abilene is the adoption worker for the Scurry County area. He can be reached at 673-7811.

Curfman also said they have a "crying need" for sponsor families. Sometimes a child has been so severely abused that they are sent to a treatment facility. Since the rights of his parents have been terminated, these children "have no one."

A sponsor family accepts the child into their home for visits and holidays, thereby giving them a taste of a "normal family life."

The sponsor family also works with the treatment center and visits are arranged as part of the treatment.

"We hope the sponsor family would be able to keep the child on a long term basis, but there is no pressure to do so," Curfman explained. "Sometimes the relationship just doesn't work out."

Ideally, she said a sponsor family would work with the child all through treatment and then adopt. However, Curfman said there is an element of risk involved since the child may not be available for adoption after all.

"Our judgement is pretty good, but there is always the chance that our case is not as good as we thought and that is why these adoptions are considered risky," Curfman said.

Ideally, if a family could serve as both the fostering and the adopting family, then the child would never have to be moved again, Curfman said.

For more information regarding these programs, individuals should call 573-6501.

(Part III will focus on foster parents.)

Daughter fights family in competency hearing

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Several relatives of a wealthy woman facing commitment to a mental institution have themselves been treated for manic depression, testimony in a court battle shows.

Leslie Negley, 37, who a doctor said suffers from manic depression, is fighting with her family over whether she needs treatment for mental illness.

Ms. Negley's mother, Nancy Brown Negley Wellin, testified Wednesday she became concerned because her daughter, who normally is frugal, began spending large sums of money and pulled her two children out of school.

Ms. Wellin is the daughter of George Brown Sr., one of the founders of the construction giant Brown & Root Inc.

"I feel my daughter needs professional help. She absolutely must have it to get well," Mrs. Wellin, who lives in New York, told a probate court jury. "I would like her well enough to handle her own affairs."

Mrs. Wellin said however, that she, her other daughter and Mrs. Wellin's sister have been hospitalized for manic depression, a disorder characterized by dramatic mood swings.

Mrs. Wellin has charged that her daughter, whose fortune is worth about $3 million, has been taken advantage of by a religious group to the tune of more than $100,000.

Mrs. Wellin said her son, William Walter Negley, should manage her daughter's estate. The jury could order Ms. Negley to a maximum 90 days treatment in an institution if found she has a mental illness, officials said.

Dr. William B. Donovan, a psychiatrist who treated Ms. Negley, said she is a manic depressive. He said she declined to answer some questions during an evaluation, fearing that the answers would lead to more hospitalization.

"She has the notion that almost everything she does is guided by the Holy Spirit," he testified.

Bexar County Assistant District Attorney Jay Norton said committing Ms. Negley to a mental institution would be in her best interest.

State prosecutors have jurisdiction in mental health matters, but do not initiate commitment proceedings, Norton said.

Ms. Negley bought several cars and gave away about $40,000 in cash to people she met at a religious gathering. Lisa Ramos, a member of a religious group called the "Remnants," said Ms. Negley gave her and her husband $20,000 each.

Part from dish reported stolen

Police are investigating a misdemeanor theft report filed Wednesday evening involving a block down converter from a satellite dish antenna.

Charles Minyard of Rt. 3 reported the incident to police.

The converter was taken from the antenna at his residence just north of U.S. Highway 84 on Ave. Q. No value was estimated for it.

In other action Thursday, police jailed six subjects on misdemeanor charges including four charged with public intoxication.

One man was charged with driving while intoxicated and one was arrested on a warrant for revocation of misdemeanor probation.

New efforts focus on coloring books

CEDAR HILL, Texas (AP) — A new coloring book includes the pictures of hundreds of missing children and will be distributed to schools, in an effort to reach students who might recognize a friend or classmate.

"Children are the best place to go to in looking for missing children," said Bill Vogue. "We want to provide these coloring books to schools and teachers at cost. Some of the missing children might be in the classrooms we reach. We feel that somewhere, a teacher or child will be looking through the book and say, 'Hey, this kid is in my class!'"

"America's Country Cousins" will chronicle the adventures of his real-life grandson, Jeremy, 11, and his love of fishing and animals. But it also devotes almost half of its space to photographs of missing children. Opposite each of the 31 cartoons to be colored is a page with pictures of 12 missing children — 372 photographs in all.

Beginning in June, a new coloring book will come out every three months, and the pictures will be updated, Vogue said. He will print the number of his 24-hour hotline that someone could call with the whereabouts of a missing child.

The coloring book, featuring drawings by artist Buddy Rose, is a project of an organization, also known as America's Country Cousins, started by Vogue.

A contractor, Vogue said now that he is 60, he decided to put other ventures aside and devote full time to locating missing children.

"The task sounds impossible, but I want to try. I want to know that I've done something good with my life."

Vogue said a possible arrangement with a national retail store is in the works, in which the company would buy large quantities of the coloring book and make them available to children and schools.

Bundy correspondence skuttles visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. lost his chance to leave a mental hospital unescorted to spend Easter Sunday with his parents following an uproar over revelations that he corresponded last year with triple-murderer Theodore Bundy.

St. Elizabeths Hospital withdrew its request Wednesday for a 12-hour pass for Hinckley, who was committed to the mental hospital after his 1981 attempt to assassinate President Reagan.

The hospital said it wanted to take a detailed look at documents taken Tuesday night from Hinckley's room "to assess the clinical significance of writings and other materials belonging to Mr. Hinckley which were heretofore unexamined by the hospital staff."

Hospital officials gave no indication what the writings were, but they apparently are in addition to the correspondence with Bundy, who is awaiting execution on Florida's death row for the slayings of a 12-year-old girl and two sorority sisters.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker accepted the hospital's decision and also agreed to a request by the U.S. attorney's office to seal documents and writings taken from Hinckley.

Hinckley, 30, was acquitted by reason of insanity of the March 30, 1981, shootings of Reagan, presidential press secretary James Brady and two security officers. He has been under treatment at St. Elizabeths ever since.

Hospital officials, who said they are undertaking a thorough review of the Hinckley case, were blasted by prosecutors for not turning over all relevant documents prior to this week's court proceedings.

The government and the court clearly were surprised at a hearing Monday when psychiatrist Glenn Miller disclosed that Hinckley had requested the prison address of mass murderer Charles Manson, had received mail from Manson disciple and presidential attacker Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme and had written to Bundy several times.

"The fact that the hospital did not know he was pen pals with Ted Bundy raises very serious questions," U.S. Attorney Joseph diGenova said.

In court Wednesday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Adelman said, "For goodness sake, here we have a situation where Mr. Hinckley is communicating with a mass murderer."

"We have seen and heard evidence that raises doubts in the government's mind as to the management of Mr. Hinckley's case at the hospital," he said.

Adelman said hospital psychiatrist Joan Turkus became aware of Hinckley's correspondence with Bundy on April 7 but it was not revealed to the government until Miller testified Monday.

Hinckley's lawyer, Vincent Fuller, argued against sealing Hinckley's documents.
