Texans remember nation's veterans on Memorial Day

The Associated Press

Thousands of Texans observed Memorial Day the way it was intended, honoring U.S. servicemen who lost their lives on behalf of the nation with memorial services, parades and other commemorations.

As in past years, World War II and Korean War veterans dominated the crowd at ceremonies at Waco Memorial Park.

Veterans of all wars, including Desert Storm, were remembered, though.

"Because of you we live in the greatest nation on earth," U.S. Rep. Chet Edwards said at Waco Memorial Park's service, which featured a fly-over by the Army National Guard.

Edwards, a Waco Democrat, said he wants children to know more about what their ancestors have given to the United States by fighting to protect it.

At Houston National Cemetery, Louise Edwards stood for the rifle salute and taps and shed a tear for her husband, a veteran.

"My husband is buried here. He died in '77," she said. "My father and brother were vets, too. So, this is my roots. I come here every year."

At Fair Park in Dallas, the celebration centered on a Vietnam veterans memorial wall similar to the one in Washington, D.C. The Dallas memorial lists Texans who died during the war.

Each of the 3,272 names on the list were read in remembrance. Wreaths were placed around the monument, taps and "Amazing Grace" were played, and flags flew at half-staff.

For the first time, Vietnamese war casualties and veterans also were remembered.

"I am very touched when I see my comrades over here. Some of them I knew," said Vietnamese veteran Huang Dao, who was tearfully reacquainted with several people he has not seen in decades.

Another Dallas memorial featured disabled veterans and included a flyover by the Confederate Air Force.

A 70-boat Memorial Day parade through downtown Denison featured country singer Reba McEntire. She sat on a float with white and blue stars and waved to the crowd, calling out "How are y'all" in her Oklahoma drawl.

In Port Neches, between Beaumont and Port Arthur, about 100 people gathered at Veterans Gardens in Oak Bluff Memorial Park to remember those who fought for their country and didn't make it back.

"I hear people say, 'you should try to forget,'" said Janes White, commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4820 and a World War II veteran. "I don't want to forget. We owe it to our friends buried here and elsewhere."

In San Angelo, around 50 local residents joined U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, Mayor Dick Funk, Bishop Michael Pfeifer and retired Col. Charlie Powell for a morning commemoration ceremony.

"We are here to remember the hundreds of generous men and women who made the ultimate sacrifice for God and their country," Pfeifer told the crowd.

Gramm stressed need to preserve the nation's military. "America must be strong so we may remain free, even when the lion is about to lie down with the lamb," he said. "Because if America is the lion, we will always know that we will be safe."

"The meaning of Memorial Day is remembering that others have died to protect the freedom we have today," he said.

Several veterans said they appreciated the San Angelo service.

"I'm grateful for a nation that recognizes its heroes," said Gordon Dalton, who served with an army coastal artillery detachment in World War II.

Moore Board gets Pathfinders report on two-year plan

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Big Spring residents who want to get a first-hand look at the direction Moore Development For Big Spring Inc. is taking toward economic development are invited to a special meeting at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Dora Roberts Community Center during the regular meeting of Moore's board of directors.

Joe White of Dallas-based Pathfinders, an economic development consulting professional, will present a two-year plan of action or Targeted Industry Plan for Moore Development.

Moore Development Executive Director Danette Toone said Pathfinders was hired by Moore Development to take a look at Big Spring and help Moore Development take a more specific direction with economic development.

She added, "I'd like to have everyone come out and see what it is Moore Development will be doing for the next two years."

The contract Moore Development has signed with Pathfinders states by following their recommendations, Moore Development will be able to create 100 new jobs in a two-year period or Pathfinders will refund the fee paid to it by Moore Development.

Toone said, "Their plan is specific and aggressive and we'd much rather have the 100 jobs than our money back. Pathfinders have added to its plan of action what it calls it "quick strike" program.

She added, "White's presentation will be one of the first items on the agenda and will be approximately 10 to 20 minutes long. This is going to be our direction for the next couple of years and it's a good opportunity for the people who want to know what were doing and why we're doing it to have some questions answered."

Other items on Moore's agenda includes the director's report; new industry and attraction, including an update on items like the outlet mall project; discussion of the City/County Grant Partnership; and discussion of the Business Development Center at Howard College.

Attendance growth affects Moss Elementary

By SARA SOLIS
Staff Writer

Excessive growth in attendance at Moss Elementary led the Big Spring ISD School Board to approve the purchase of a portable building during its meeting last Thursday.

Moss Elementary School Principal Ronald Moss requested the portable building in a letter to the board. "We opened an additional second-grade class in the fall of 1994, an additional third-grade class in the fall of 1995 and are projecting the need for an additional fourth-grade class for the fall of 1996," Moss said in the letter.

"We have a situation at Moss. Enrollment is projected to grow from 245 in 1995-96 to 300 next year," said Murray Murphy, an assistant superintendent.

The growth at Moss is unusual in that enrollment figures district-wide have more or less flat-lined.

"There's been a shift in population in the Moss area," Murphy said, noting that another contributing factor to the increased population is a larger than usual enrollment of special education students at Moss.

Special education classrooms require a much lower teacher/pupil ratio, increasing the need for additional rooms. Moss said the school currently houses 14 students in the preschool program for children with disabilities and has a projected enrollment of 15 to 16 for the fall of 1996.

The school's self-contained classroom is also full and is projecting an enrollment of 13 to 14 students next year. "This will require two teachers and two aides to maintain that many profoundly handicapped students in one classroom ... We desperately need two rooms to effectively maintain this program," Moss said.

According to BSISD Superintendent Bill McQueary, the alternative to installing a portable building at Moss would be to rearrange the district. "That's a big undertaking, you'd have to redesign an entire district ... and make students living in that area attend another school."

Redistricting would be a long, complicated process, he said. "At this point in the scheme of things we want to recommend this (the purchase of the portable building) to you," McQueary said addressing the board. Another alternative to the portable building mentioned at the meeting was the construction of a new wing at a cost of approximately $350,000.

Considering cost and timeliness, the board approved unanimously the purchase of the portable building.

Ron Logback, assistant business manager for the district, said the portable building will house two classrooms and will cost about $52,000, including installation costs. The district currently has similar portable buildings at Washington, College Heights and Marcy Elementary Schools, as well as at the Anderson Kindergarten Center. However, this will be the first portable building at the Moss campus.

Logback said the district will be accepting bids on the building and if everything goes as planned, it should be installed by the first of September. The building will be located on the north side of the school within the fence line.

"That's a big undertaking, you'd have to redesign an entire district ... and make students living in that area attend another school."

Council to review Fuqua tonight

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

One of the items highlighting the Big Spring City Council's meeting tonight will be the council's one-year review of the performance of City Manager Gary Fuqua.

The city manager's review is an annual function of the council.

Fuqua was hired last summer after the council completed a five-month search to replace former City Manager Lanny Lambert, who left Big Spring to become the same position in Abilene.

When Fuqua was hired, Mayor Tim Blackshear said one advantage of having him was that he brought to the job experience from within the city's own system.

Blackshear said then, "We have a unique situation in the Gary came up through the ranks of our system."

One of Fuqua's first major functions was to keep the city's master plan as a top priority and to restructure several City Hall offices.

OBITUARIES

Roger A. Carr

A dedicated husband, father, grandfather, patriot, veteran and citizen. He was born on a farm in Plain Twp. Wood County, Ohio, the son of Dwight C. and Dollie Mae Avery Carr. He graduated from Bowling Green High School in 1939 and attended Bowling Green State University for two years. Enlisting in the Army Air Corps in 1942, he graduated from pilot training in 1944. After a distinguished 23 year career, he retired from the Air Force as a Major in 1965. He then began working in the Civil Service in 1966 and retired at Tinker Air Force Base in 1981 with over 38 years of combined Federal Service. Through the years he enjoyed fishing, hunting, skeet shooting, bowling and genealogy. He was a charter member of the Mixed Satellite Bowling League at Planet Bowl and he bowled until his health forced him to quit a few years ago. He was a member of the Oklahoma, Connecticut and Ohio Genealogical Societies and also a member of the Medina, Wood and Ashland, Ohio County Societies. He traced and proved his ancestry to a Revolutionary War Veteran and is a Son of the American Revolution. He also proved 14 Ancestors as First Family of Wood County, Ohio. Roger is survived by three sons and a daughter: Colonel Larry A. Carr of Brooks AFB, San Antonio, Texas; LtCol M. Scott Carr of Peterson AFB, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Charles R. Carr, Operations Manager for Fina Oil & Chemicals in Big Spring; and Barbara L. Butcher, wife and mother, Lucas, Texas. Roger also has 11 grandchildren. Helen, his loving and devoted wife of 46 years preceded him in death by 4 years. It is only appropriate that this great man should leave us on Memorial Day - the day we remember those who have given so much to their country. As a testament to Roger's firm commitment to the importance of education, any and all donations should be made to your won children's college fund or to the Educational Fund or Church of your choice.

'Mission: Impossible' breaks Memorial Day weekend record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mission: Impossible" grossed an estimated $56.9 million over four days, a record take for Memorial Day weekend.

Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. also projected "Mission: Impossible" will break a record with $75 million in earnings in a six-day period, from Wednesday through Monday. That would surpass the six-day record of $74.1 million held by "Jurassic Park."

The film also surpassed the three-day May debut record of $41 million earned by "Twister," by taking in $45.4 million Friday through Sunday.

Together, "Mission: Impossible" and "Twister," which took in $37.1 million in its third week, led the film industry to its biggest Memorial Day weekend ever, according to Exhibitor Relations.

State's curriculum rewrite first in more than a decade

AUSTIN (AP) — For the first time in more than a decade, Texans are taking a hard look at what students are expected to know.

Educators, parents, curriculum specialists and business representatives already have teamed up to compile a first draft of essential knowledge and skills for various subjects.

Now they're working on a second draft that incorporates feedback from educators, business people and others. Beginning in August, more Texans will get a chance to comment on the revised draft.

The key difference from current subject requirements is a subtle but important shift in focus: Rather than specifying what educators should teach, it will detail what skills students should have, said Geoffrey Fletcher, associate commissioner for curriculum and assessment at the Texas Education Agency.

"The language you will see should focus on what students should know and be able to do, as opposed to what the teacher will do to the student," Fletcher said.

"This is the first wholesale look at the entire curriculum that we've had since the early '80s," he added. "It's been 12 years, which happens to be about the lifetime of a student in school."

The purpose of the effort is to ensure students can demonstrate "the knowledge and skills necessary to read, write, compute, problem solve, think critically, apply technology and communicate across all subject areas," Education Commissioner Mike Moses said in a letter to school superintendents.

The rewrite is expected to be adopted by the State Board of Education next year, then will go toward forming the basis for statewide tests and the adoption of instructional materials.

The rewrite might be implemented in different subjects at different times, depending on the extent of curriculum changes, Fletcher said.

For subjects with big changes, it may take longer to inform parents of the expectations and to give teachers professional development they may need, he said.

Senate Education Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, describes the effort's goal as simple.

He said when he gets letters from high school students who've been instructed to write their senator, "Sometimes I just want to hold my head up the grammar — or lack of grammar — and the spelling and the sentence structure and so forth.

"And so I hope that the end result is first, the people in industry and business will begin to see a high school student that exhibits a high school education.

"Second, I hope we're preparing students so when they go to college, they don't have to spend the first year getting them up to college level."

AFL-CIO, business support renaming street for Chavez

HOUSTON (AP) — The efforts of a Hispanic group to get the city to rename Wayside Drive in memory of labor leader Cesar Chavez have drawn support from the AFL-CIO and business leaders along the street.

Blanca Hernandez-Blanco, a member of the Cesar E. Chavez Street Renaming Committee, said the group wants to honor the founder of the United Farm Workers of America who died in 1993 after dedicating a lifetime to pressing for equal rights for migrant laborers.

"We have the database of about 700 property owners along Wayside, and we're trying to get letters out to them since many of them are located out of town," Hernandez-Blanco said.

Students make about $1.8 million in investment fund

FORT WORTH (AP) — Many students at Texas Christian University are investing their time as well as the school's money to learn how to manage a stock portfolio.

A group of handpicked students works on the Educational Investment Fund year-round, deciding if and when to hold stocks and when to fold them.

The fund was established in 1973 with a donation of Alcon Laboratories stock worth about $600,000, given by William C. Conner, a co-founder of the eye-care company and a chairman of the university's board of directors.

The fund was the first in the country to be controlled entirely by students who vote whether to buy, sell or hold various stocks. Since its inception, more than 500 students have managed the fund, making about $1.8 million.

New pepper: Patent pending, but pique persists

DALLAS (AP) — In a state where the fiery jalapeno is an official product and some Texans even put chiles in their beer, a picante sauce maker's new heatless pepper has become a burning issue.

But, jumpin' jalapenos! This cool concoction comes from the folks at Pace, whose advertisements once jokingly proposed a lynch mob for anyone daring to serve picante sauce "from New York City."

The San Antonio-based company is proud of its creation, but kept it a secret as long as possible.

The clandestine plant-breeding program was dubbed "Operation Big Chill." They were so hush-hush about it that the seeds were grown in Hawaii and at a secluded South Texas greenhouse.

Insurance companies dispute figure in lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — Double rounding of insurance premiums cost motorists only one-tenth of the $109 million sought by plaintiffs' lawyers, attorneys representing Texas Farmers Group contend.

Six South Texas motorists are suing Farmers and subsidiary Mid-Century insurance companies and Allstate Insurance Co. They contend the companies overcharged Texans by $109 million over 10 years through illegal calculations.

An analysis by the accounting firm of KPMG Peat Marwick, provided by the insurance companies' lawyers, shows its clients' calculations between 1992 and 1995 cost consumers $10.8 million.

Long-lost JFK assassination film found

Scenes reveal commotion surrounding Dealey Plaza following shooting

DALLAS (AP) — Long-lost television news film has emerged from the day President John F. Kennedy was assassinated, including the only known moving picture of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson from that day.

The 45 minutes of silent 16mm footage — mostly unaired sequences or outtakes — also include a rare shot of Jack Ruby at Lee Harvey Oswald's "press conference" the night the president was killed.

The film was secretly rescued from a Dallas-Fort Worth TV station's trash, hidden beneath a house for years and largely forgotten after efforts to sell it languished, The Dallas Morning News reported today in a copy-right story.

The footage by photographers from then-independent station KTVT apparently was overlooked or judged unimportant in the days after the assassination, as happened at other Dallas stations.

The film was generally thought to have been destroyed, but finally surfaced this month. Only a fraction of it has ever been shown publicly.

The black-and-white clips do not show the president's motorcade under rifle fire in Dealey Plaza on Nov. 22, 1963, and offer no obvious evidence toward settling the case's many controversies.

But the film contains unique scenes before and after the assassination and represents an important addition to the historical record, according to the few authorities who have viewed it.

Among the newly discovered moving pictures:

— the moment at Love Field when a beaming president and first lady, holding hands, approach their open-topped limousine for the ride through downtown Dallas.

— the stunned chaos as attention focused on the Texas School Book Depository;

— the immediate surge to find an assassin in the railroad yard behind the grassy knoll; and — Vice President Johnson leaving the hospital after the researchers and the public will be able to view it as part of the JFK Collection.

"This is significant historical film, much of which has never been seen," said Richard Trask, an archivist and specialist in the case's photographic record. "The film gives us some important, previously unavailable views which could add significantly to our understanding of what happened immediately after the assassination."

Only a careful — even frame-by-frame — analysis will tell researchers who did what and where in the moments after the fatal shots as they try to reconstruct and resolve history.

"Who knows what we might find in there?" Trask said.

There are new views of the Kennedys' appearances in Fort Worth, greeting the crowd at Love Field in Dallas, the motorcade, several suspects and witnesses in police custody and Oswald after his arrest.

Much of the film focuses on the confusion and heartbreak that engulfed Dealey Plaza and Parkland Memorial Hospital, where the president was declared dead.

On the day Kennedy was slain, Roy Cooper Jr. was a photographer on a small news staff, scrambling to cover a national tragedy as a daily news story.

It took him three years to let anyone in on his big scoop.

"He told us he took clippings out of the wastebasket that hadn't been used or even looked at," said Helen Sturges, whose husband, Eli Sturges, was Cooper's close friend.

"He said: 'It's been under my house.'"

She said the men made one duplicate of the film for Sturges as a backup. Cooper, who worked at KTVT until retiring in the early '90s, kept the original.

There was some intrigue along the way, real or imagined.

"When Roy came to us, he was terrified," Mrs. Sturges remembered. "He didn't want anybody to know about it."

The '60s was a time of "secreteness," she said, and the men didn't know exactly what stories their film might tell, or whom to trust. They feared that the FBI, or supposed conspirators involved in the president's murder, might seize their prize.

Whatever steps they took to sell the film failed to attract a buyer. After Sturges died, Cooper gradually lost touch with his friend's family and never again mentioned the film to them, Mrs. Sturges said.

Recently, Mrs. Sturges' daughter, Janet Veazey, arranged to turn the film over.

She was an 8-year-old schoolgirl when Kennedy was shot, she said. She recalled her childhood boredom when her dad and his best friend would close the curtains tight and screen the film. She hasn't seen the footage in nearly three decades, she said.

This is significant historical film ... gives us some important, previously unavailable views which could add significantly to our understanding of what happened immediately after the assassination.

Barge ruptures in Houston Ship Channel

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas General Land Office will expedite the formation of a Vessel Safety Task Force following Buffalo Marine Service Inc.'s second spill in about two months, a spokesman said.

Bob Mann, a spokesman for the General Land Office's oil spill prevention and response division, said Monday that the task force had been on the drawing board. But Sunday night's spill means "it's going to be stepped up even faster."

The task force will study inspections, the loading of vessels, whether barges should be retired automatically at a certain age and other issues.

Members will include representatives from the Coast Guard, Environmental Protection Agency, industry and government, he said.

The Buffalo 286 barge buckled in the Houston Ship Channel, north of Galveston and east of Clear Lake, said Coast Guard

Lt. Emile Benard. Although the vessel carried about 667,000 gallons of intermediate fuel oil, only one or two of 12 tanks ruptured, Benard said. Each tank holds 2,500 barrels, roughly 105,000 gallons.

OUR VIEWS

It's time for us to voluntarily conserve our water supplies

We're in a drought, and even though people don't like to use that word, it's a fact.

Farmers are at a critical point in the decision-making process as to whether or not to try and make a crop and ranchers are buying hay to feed the livestock from the herds they've not yet sold off.

Here at home, it's time for voluntary water conservation measures.

If the current pace is maintained, Big Spring will come in with less than 4.5 inches of rain for the entire year - which would be a new record for the least amount of rainfall in a calendar year. Currently, that mark still stands with 1917's 4.68 inches.

Officials of the Colorado River Municipal Water District have begun to blend waters from Lake O.H. Ivie and Lake E.V. Spence to stretch the available water in West Texas.

To the north, Lake J.B. Thomas is virtually dry. There, CRMWD officials are utilizing a number of "pump-back" procedures to literally try to squeeze every drop of moisture possible out of the 44-year-old lake.

To help city and CRMWD officials maximize our water, it is time for us citizens to exercise better judgement in the use of water.

We've all heard the bit about not using a dishwasher until you have a full load, but it's time to practice that. It's also time to limit the length of showers and to turn off the water while we brush our teeth and wash dishes by hand.

Outside of the home it's time to water early in the morning or late in the evening. By so doing, we lessen the chances of evaporation.

Taking that practice to another step, eliminate the use of a sprinkler and either lay the hose on the ground and let it soak or spend a few dollars and purchase a handheld watering wand that you can hold a few inches above the ground as you water.

When you wash your vehicle, use a bucket to hold the wash water and then, when you're finished, rinse quickly.

But by all means, don't leave the hose laying on the ground with the water running.

This is about more than avoiding the bad taste of water from Lake Spence - it's about having enough water to use and it is the responsibility of us all!

Parents set bad examples for today's students

By BILL MAXWELL
St. Petersburg Times

Today's newspaper headlines and lead stories on nightly news about the troubles of young people shock me, and I often find myself becoming smug about how "different" kids were in "my day."

Last week, for example, after reading of a Florida high school student who punched his science teacher in the face and of an elementary school student who insisted on wearing a T-shirt bearing a banned logo, I recalled my own high school days. Would I or any of my classmates have punched a teacher or insisted on wearing contraband apparel? Absolutely not.

Let me state right now that I do not believe that children of my generation were better humans than youngsters are today. I do believe, however, that the society in which we lived was less complex and, perhaps, wiser than that of today.

Why? A major reason is that the lines of authority were clearly drawn, and I do not romanticize the past when I say that children were children and adults were adults. Many of today's readers will be offended by such blunt talk, but the fact is that the adults of my childhood - especially our teachers - enjoyed far greater control over their young charges.

In my elementary school, the wishes of our teachers and principal were the law. We were not permitted, for example, to wear certain clothes on campus, and boys could not wear hats or caps inside a building under any circumstances. On the rare occasion when a girl wore revealing clothing, grownups dealt with her firmly and promptly.

Few of us thought twice about accepting adult authority. We naturally knew that our teachers were smarter than us, that they were more experienced and more educated, that they could navigate the perilous realms of uncertainty and make sense of the world for us.

I recall, for instance, when my 9-year-old sister was killed by a drunken driver. In addition to my mother's nurturing, my homeroom teacher, Constance Howard, set aside a few minutes each day to console me and to let me talk about my loss. How wise Mrs. Howard was. How she impressed me, a mere 14-year-old who had seen his sister die, whose sadness was unbearable at times. Even at that young age, I respected Mrs. Howard's ability to measure my grief and to literally give me the will to face each new day. No peer could have helped me. I needed the guiding hand of an adult, one who set good examples in her own life.

In his 1923 book, "The Challenge of Youth," Alfred E. Stearns, then-principal of Phillips-Andover Academy, warned future generations of adults and teachers who would, unthinkingly, denigrate the young: "(O)ur criticisms have seldom been constructive and our complaints have not always been fair. And youth, responding normally to the conditions with which it finds itself surrounded, as youth has always done, has sensed the injustice of our self-righteous attitude, has resented our interference, and has left us more helpless than before. For youth did not create these conditions. Youth found them ready-made. The responsibility for their existence rests squarely upon us of older and supposedly wiser years."

At the risk of over-generalizing, I must say that too many adults, especially parents, fail to understand the principles outlined above. Each day, parents and their children undercut the authority of their schools by challenging the rules that students should follow while others are responsible for their welfare.

Each time a child who wants to preach on campus is supported by his or her parent and prevails, society at large loses because the authority of the school is compromised. Each time a child wins the right to wear a banned T-shirt, society loses. Sensible rules are necessary in a sober society.

When I was a reporter in Fort Lauderdale, I watched a parent slap a principal because the principal had disciplined the child. Every student witnessing the incident clapped and cheered. From that day on, the principal was ineffective as a leader. Eventually, she was replaced. Why? Because she did not have the support of other adults.

And how often does the American Civil Liberties Union defend the right of a student newspaper editor to print articles that the publisher, usually the principal, forbids? These are bitter victories because they teach budding journalists the wrong lessons. In the real world, publishers and editors give the orders and the writers either obey or join the unemployment line. Do student journalists have First Amendment rights? For sure. But, if they seek successful careers, they had better learn to respect the rules of the profession.

In my day, most parents supported and respected the authority of teachers and other adults in the schools. Our parents did not want to hear our complaints about school. In fact, they conspired with our teachers against us.

Today, though, many parents view schools as hostile places that take away the rights of their children. Today, many parents think nothing of suing their schools in the name of their children. In my day, such litigiousness was unthinkable. Adults trusted other adults to do the right thing, to make the right decisions.

In truth, today's children, like those of my generation, want to be children. And they want adults to be adults. They want guidance. They need it. The problem is that too many adults are too irresponsible to be adults, thereby relinquishing their natural authority.

Management vs. labor and other notes and comments

By CLIFFORD D. MAY
Scnpps Howard News Service

Whenever there's a strike, you hear people proudly say: "I don't know what the issues are, but I come from a strong, old union family. No way I could cross a picket line."

How come you never hear anybody proudly say: "I don't know what the issues are, but I come from a strong, old management family. No way I can resist crossing a picket line?"

I think I'm becoming obsessed with weight watching. The other day on the TV news there was a story about a killer on the loose. He was described as 5 foot 9 and 150 pounds, and my first thought was: "Hmmm. Admirably slim!"

It's hard being a moderate. Every time I go to a football game I think: "Why can't these guys settle this peacefully? Have they considered mediation? Have they talked to a conflict resolution counselor?"

It should not go unremarked that of the six Supreme Court justices who voted against Amendment 2 (Colorado's ban on homosexual rights laws) and in favor of an expanded notion of gay rights four were appointed by Republican presidents. Of those four, two were appointed by that old right-wing extremist, Ronald Reagan.

It is simply wrong and immoral to kill people in an effort to teach people that it is wrong and immoral to kill people," said Stephen Jones, defense attorney for Timothy McVeigh, suspect in the Oklahoma City bombing.

That's a clever argument, but if you follow where it leads you'll have to conclude that it also is wrong and immoral to take the property of thieves in an effort to teach people that stealing is wrong and immoral, and that it must be a bad idea to imprison kidnappers in an effort to teach people that it's not right to deprive people of their freedom.

In the world that Jones and those who share his philosophy would create, only innocent people would be punished.

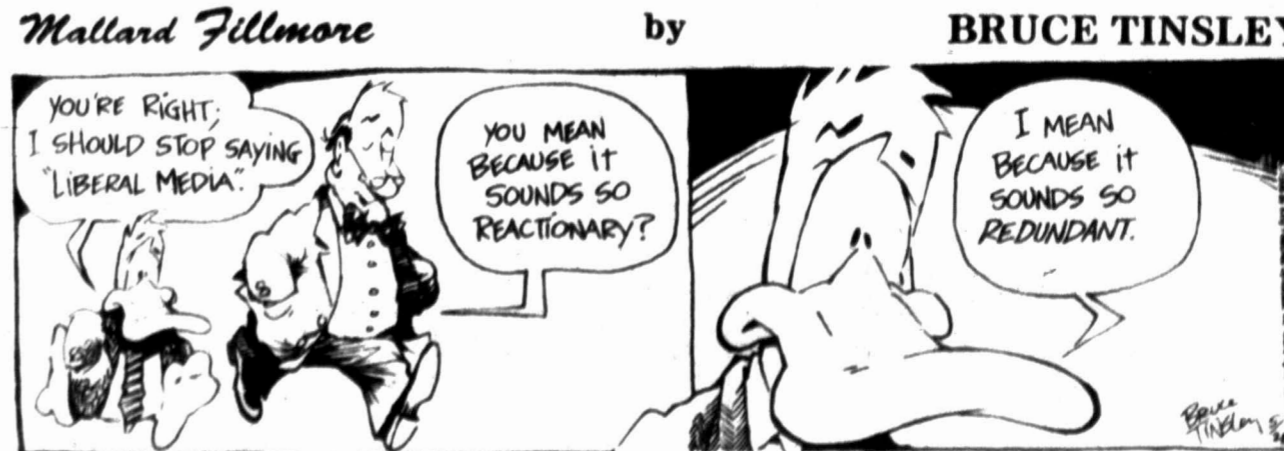

On average, men die earlier than women. That's a fact. Why isn't it a crisis? Why isn't it cited as evidence of discrimination against men? Why isn't anyone protesting that where mortality is concerned, men hit a glass ceiling, crack their skulls and croak?

Three things Americans can't stand: politicians who spend their own money on their campaigns, politicians who spend special interest money on their campaigns and politicians who spend taxpayer money on their campaigns.

Did you see where the federal Bureau of Land Management is promoting birth control for wild horses in the West? Well, I have one question for the BLM: Have you tried preaching abstinence? Is it so unrealistic to expect a little filly or mustang to "Just Say No"?

INTERNATIONAL BRIEFS

Final day of Israeli campaign lukewarm

HOLON, Israel (AP) — It was billed as a dramatic ending to a lackluster campaign: Prime Minister Shimon Peres would venture into towns that once rioted against him. Benjamin Netanyahu would meet with Arabs whom his party has offended.

Voters will be making what could be the most important decision in Israel's history — whether to continue Peres' peace policies or to elect a challenger who opposes further land-for-peace deals with the Palestinians.

But symbolism aside, the last full day of campaigning before Wednesday's elections had an appropriately lukewarm finish. Although they ventured into potentially hostile territory, both candidates appeared before friendly audiences.

Throughout the race, the Israeli tradition of combative campaigning has been checked by the trauma of a recent assassination — and the fact that neither candidate set pulses racing, even among supporters.

Yeltsin fulfills campaign promise, visiting Chechnya

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin fulfilled a campaign promise today by traveling to the secessionist republic of Chechnya, one day after signing a cease-fire deal with the Chechen rebel leader, officials said.

Yeltsin planned meetings with civilians in the Chechen capital Grozny as well as with Russian troops who have been fighting for 17 months to defeat the rebels' independence drive.

The trip, three weeks before presidential elections June 16, is likely to boost Yeltsin's popularity as polls show that the war in Chechnya is the main concern of Russian voters.

The president traveled first to Russian military headquarters in Mozdok, 80 miles north of the Chechen capital in the neighboring republic of North Ossetia, the ITAR-Tass news agency said.

The truce agreement — signed Monday in the Kremlin between Yeltsin and rebel chief Zelimkhan Yandarbiyev — was hailed as a presidential campaign coup but met with immediate skepticism that it would end the year-and-a-half-long war.

Maid testifies on abuse in exported female labor

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — While working as a housemaid in Oman, Nenet kept a pair of scissors hidden under her pillow to protect herself from the sexual advances of her employer's son.

"I might kill him," she wrote to her mother in the Philippines. "He wants me and he is insistent."

Nenet, who spoke on condition that her last name not be used, spent 20-hour days cleaning, ironing and cooking — with no days off — while trying to avoid her harasser. She finally convinced her employer to let her go home to the Philippines by fabricating a story that her 3-year-old child was ill.

Nenet's experience is becoming increasingly common, according to about 50 U.N. experts who began meeting in Manila on Monday to discuss the growing problem of abuse associated with exported female labor.

Ukrainian president ousts previous premier

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — President Leonid Kuchma named a long-time supporter as his new prime minister today, after ousting the previous premier and accusing him of jeopardizing reforms for personal gain.

Pavel Lazarenko, a 43-year-old Soviet-era collective farm boss and former vice premier, is the new prime minister.

Kuchma dismissed Yevhen Marchuk on Monday after an emergency government meeting during which he reproached the premier for bringing the country to a state of "economic crisis" and for concentrating his energies on "his own political image."

Marchuk, a former KGB officer, today rejected those accusations.

"The historical roots and reasons (for Ukraine's current problems) run much deeper than the premier," he told reporters. "History will put everything in its place," he said.

Lapsed taxes cost nation $2 billion this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has lost almost $2 billion this year because it isn't collecting industry taxes that died due to haggling between Congress and the White House. The losses are mounting daily.

Beneficiaries range from petroleum and chemical companies, no longer paying millions into the Superfund for toxic waste cleanup, to airline passengers saving a few bucks each after a federal tax on air tickets expired.

Two other environmental taxes have lapsed. One hit gasoline and other fuels to pay for pollution from leaking underground storage tanks, and the other targeted crude oil to finance cleanups of major oil spills.

The government stopped collecting Superfund taxes in January because lawmakers were unable to fashion a compromise on reauthorizing the toxic cleanup law acceptable to the Clinton administration.

The tax generated about $4 million a day, mainly from petroleum and chemical companies. That means almost $600 million in revenue has gone uncollected in the first five months of this year, the Environmental Protection Agency said.

A $3 billion surplus already exists in the Superfund account, enough to cover about 18 months of cleanup. EPA officials warn the cushion is not large enough, and cleanup programs soon will be hindered.

"Fees collected from oil and chemical companies are essential to our ability to clean up toxic waste sites," EPA Administrator Carol Browner said. "The loss of these revenues is unfair and will soon jeopardize communities waiting for cleanup action."

Republican leaders like Rep. Bill Archer of Texas, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, strongly oppose reinstating the tax until agreement is reached for overhauling the Superfund law.

Archer believes the program has not worked. His spokesman, James Wilcox, said Archer "will not institute any type of tax again until the issue is resolved."

Some lawmakers and tax experts say the failure to collect the taxes is making it harder to balance the budget, because both the airline and environmental cleanup funds are counted as revenue in calculating the deficit. In addition, Republicans in the House have pushed through legislation for temporary repeal of a 4.3-cent increase in the gasoline tax enacted in 1993.

If agreements can be reached to reauthorize the lapsed taxes, lawmakers could recover some revenue losses by passing retroactive laws.

The biggest cumulative loss so far is from the tax on airline tickets, which cost the Treasury $1.3 billion through the end of April, officials said. The tax lapsed after President Clinton vetoed the GOP's balanced budget plan. It is paid by consumers, so airlines probably have realized little direct benefit.

A nickel-a-barrel tax for the oil-spill fund lapsed at the end of 1995 because the fund reached its ceiling of $1 billion and the administration and Congress couldn't agree to raise the ceiling.

The White House argues $1 billion is too little to deal with a major spill. It wants an increase to $2.5 billion.

Abortion measure caught amid presidential politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's veto of a ban on late-term abortions has given the volatile subject renewed attention that the president's opponents are in no rush to end.

The Roman Catholic Church is condemning the medical procedure from the pulpit. Anti-abortion groups are using Clinton's veto to energize supporters nationally. Republican nominee-in-waiting Bob Dole said the president's veto "pushed the limits of decency too far."

And sensing a good wedge against Clinton, Republican leaders aren't hurrying to schedule override votes.

"Bill Clinton is so much on the extreme end of the abortion issue with this veto that this is probably the strongest abortion issue out there, politically speaking," Ed Gillespie of the Republican National Committee said.

An aide to House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, said he sees little possibility of a veto-override vote before mid-summer because of the press of other business and attempts to line up votes.

The House passed the ban by more than the two-thirds majority needed to override, the Senate vote fell far short. Even die-hard abortion opponents say an override there is a long shot.

Those who stand with the president are feeling pressure.

A case in point: the rebuke of Sen. Christopher Dodd, head of the Democratic National Committee, by a parish priest in Connecticut, his home state. The Rev. George Parker of St. Joseph Church in Thompson, Conn., returned Dodd's $5,000 donation, plus interest, because Dodd supports legal abortion and opposed the ban of what critics call "partial-birth abortions."

"The money was considered blood money," Parker said.

Kate Michelman, director of the National Abortion Rights Action League, said Republicans are trying to determine "when is the most propitious time for a veto override to highlight the issue, give it the best resonance against the president in terms of a campaign issue."

Harvard failed in responding to girl's appeal

NEW YORK (AP) — Harvard University failed to respond to a desperate appeal for help from a student who two years later stabbed her roommate to death and then killed herself, The New Yorker magazine reported.

Sinedu Tadesse stabbed Trang Ho, 20, one year ago today in the dormitory room they shared. Tadesse, a 20-year-old junior, was found hanging from a rope in the shower.

After the tragedy, Harvard said Tadesse never indicated that she needed any help.

But during the summer after her freshman year, the Ethiopian pre-med student wrote a letter to a Harvard law student whose name she said she picked out of a campus telephone directory, said the report in this week's New Yorker.

"I am desperate," said the letter, which was forwarded to a dean and placed in Tadesse's file. "As far as I can remember, my life has been hellish ... Year after year, I become lonelier and lonelier."

The magazine reported that two university officials who knew Tadesse read the letter, but neither one discussed it with her.

The story also suggested that limited mental health services on the Cambridge, Mass., campus may have kept a therapist she had been seeing since her freshman year from realizing what might happen.

Chicago 'bulls' way into finals

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Michael Jordan has made a career of playing his best when it matters most.

When that wasn't the case against the Orlando Magic in last year's playoffs, when he repeatedly failed in the clutch and cost his Chicago Bulls a chance at the NBA title, it devastated him. So he promised the world — and himself — that it would never happen again.

And it hasn't. After three games in which an ordinary Jordan was all the Bulls needed, Jordan shifted into extraordinary gear Monday. He scored 45 points as the Chicago won 106-101 to complete a sweep of Orlando and dethrone the Magic as Eastern Conference champions. "Jordan is Jordan," Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal said. "That's why he's the best player in the world."

Said Magic coach Brian Hill: "I thought coming into (Monday), we did a more-than-respectable job on Michael. He got his guys involved throughout the series, which was critical for him to do, to not approach this series as he was going to win it by himself."

"But when he had to — and I thought he had to because we had to beat down everybody else — he went out and got it done. It's the greatness of Michael Jordan."

His greatness, Hill predicted, will carry Chicago past either Seattle or Utah in the NBA Finals. The championship series will start Friday if the Sonics can close out Utah tonight.

"Very honestly, I don't think Michael's going to be denied," Hill said. "This is all about a testament to his will and his excellence ... and their excellence as a team."

Though Orlando was swept out of the playoffs for the third straight year — and though the Magic failed to do their part to make the matchup live up to its Series of the Century hype — Hill had no complaints about his team's effort.

Starters Nick Anderson and Horace Grant, as well as top reserve Brian Shaw, were out with injuries. Nevertheless, Orlando jumped out to a 15-4 lead and stayed ahead until late in the third quarter. Led by Penny Hardaway's gutsy performance, the Magic forced Jordan to be sensational.

"I thought we answered any questions anybody had about the heart and will of our team," Hill said. "Unfortunately, there's a guy wearing number 23 out there, and we just couldn't overcome what he did."

No. 23 led the Bulls to titles in 1991, 1992 and 1993 before retiring. But when Jordan returned last season, he made numerous crunch-time mistakes in a second-round loss to Orlando.

Tigers' skid reaches new low

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just when it couldn't get any worse for the Detroit Tigers, it did.

One out away from ending an 11-game losing streak, the Tigers blew a two-run lead in the ninth inning and dropped a 5-4 decision in 13 innings to the Royals in Kansas City.

The Tigers have lost 12 straight — their longest losing skid since 1989 — and 32 of 36. Their 12-39 record is by far baseball's worst and already has fans scrambling for record books to compare the Tigers to the 1962 New York Mets, whose 40-120 record is the poorest this century.

There was some good news, though. The Tigers' team ERA did drop below 7.00 — to 6.99.

Detroit rookie manager Buddy Bell said the latest loss wasn't even the Tigers' toughest this season.

"I know that's hard to believe," he said.

The Tigers led 4-2 in the ninth but made three errors, including two on one play by third baseman Travis Fryman. Detroit also wasted a three-hit, eight-strikeout effort in the major league debut of Justin Thompson, who left with a 4-1 lead after six innings.

"Those were errors of aggression, and what happened out there had more to do with their speed than anything else," said

Bell, shaking his head. "I don't think it was so much what we did wrong. It was where they hit the ball and their speed."

With the score 4-4, Sal Falsano led off the 13th with a single off Randy Veres (0-4), the sixth Tigers pitcher. David Howard sacrificed, but rookie catcher Raul Casanova's throw to second was too late. Bip Roberts then singled home the winning run.

Jeff Montgomery (1-2) allowed one hit in three innings of shutout relief.

Thompson, who ranked among the International League leaders in strikeouts, wins, shutouts and ERA, fell behind in the first on Joe Vitiello's RBI single. The 23-year-old left-hander got out of a jam in the third by striking out Craig Paquette to end the inning with the bases loaded.

"It wasn't as terrifying as I thought my major league debut would be," he said. "I just let my instincts take over, I guess."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Texas 3, Cleveland 2; Boston 10, Oakland 3; Toronto 5, Chicago 4; and New York 16, California 5.

At Arlington, Texas, Kevin Elster scored from first on Darryl Hamilton's double, sliding head-first under catcher Sandy Alomar's tag in the ninth inning.

Padres doing a worst-to-first job in West

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After Memorial Day, the first big checkpoint of the season, the San Diego Padres had a five-game lead in the NL West.

San Diego, last in 1995 with a 47-70 record, won for the fifth time in six games when it beat the Montreal Expos 4-3 Monday night. Joey Hamilton pitched eighth strong innings and scored the go-ahead run in the eighth.

"But there's still lots of baseball left," cautioned Padres manager Bruce Bochy.

San Diego has been in first for 55 days, the Padres' longest run at the top since 1985, the year following their last NL pennant.

"It's too early to get excited about things like that," Bochy said. "Now if this were September, maybe we'd be feeling something different."

With the score 3-3 at Olympic Stadium, Hamilton (8-3) opened the eighth with a single off Jeff Fassero (3-5) and scored on Wally Joyner's two-out double.

"It's been a lot like last year, when we lost a lot of close ones," Expos manager Felipe Alou said.

Montreal has lost four straight and 10 of 12.

"Fassero pitched well after giving up the three runs," Alou said, "but I don't remember having too many opportunities to win."

In other games, Atlanta routed Chicago 9-1, Florida beat Cincinnati 6-2, Houston beat Pittsburgh 5-3 and Colorado beat St. Louis 5-2. Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco and Philadelphia had Memorial Day off.

Hamilton allowed three runs and six hits. Trevor Hoffman finished for his 10th save.

Hamilton, who has a decision in all 11 starts, is second in NL victories behind Atlanta's John Smoltz, who's won 10 consecutive starts since losing his opener.

"Smoltz is up in a tree right now," Hamilton said, laughing. "I lost a couple on the road and they put me back a bit, but I'll catch him."

Andujar Cedeno hit a two-run homer in the fourth following Jody Reed's RBI single.

Braves 9, Cubs 1

Tom Glavine (6-3) won his fifth consecutive decision and Ryan Klesko hit his second career grand slam. Atlanta won for the eighth time in 11 games and is 21-6 since April 26.

Glavine, unbeaten in eight starts, allowed one run and four hits in seven innings, struck out six and walked one, increasing his career record against Chicago to 11-5.

Defending champions breeze at French Open

PARIS (AP) — Defending champions Thomas Muster and Steffi Graf had little trouble putting away their first-round challengers today at the French Open.

Muster gained control after a tough first set and went on to defeat unseeded Frederick Fetterlein of Denmark 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, while Graf breezed by Larisa Neiland of Latvia 6-3, 6-2 in less than an hour.

Two-time winner Arantxa Sanchez Vicario downed Andrea Glass of Germany 6-2, 6-3.

Fetterlein, who has never gotten past the second round in a Grand Slam, gave second-seeded Muster pause with some grueling rallies to win four straight games in the first set.

Groaning back at Muster's stroke-for-stroke growl, Fetterlein took the seventh game with three aces in a row and led 4-3. But Fetterlein lacked staying power and Muster roared back to win the next three for the set.

Muster broke serve in the first game of the second set and

TENNIS

Fetterlein never recovered. Fetterlein, ranked 107th, defeated Muster last year on a hard court in Tel Aviv but couldn't match him on clay.

It was Muster's first time back on Center Court since beating Michael Chang in last year's final.

"I had all the memories from last year," Muster said. "It's a great feeling to go out there and play again."

"There's no pressure on me to win the tournament this year," Muster said. "I have nothing to prove. I feel like I'm in good shape and everything is working well for me."

Asked about any problems with the twisted ankle he suffered last week, Muster said: "Just a little bit with the warm-up. Once I get moving, I'm quite right."

Graf, a four-time French Open champion, is one of the few leading players not suffering from an injury. She's fully recovered from foot surgery in December.

Their first meeting on clay, Neiland lasted longer than expected, but it wasn't sparkling tennis for either. Graf piled up 19 unforced errors, compared to Neiland's 23. Graf had defeated Neiland in their four past faceoffs.

"It was a good first match to have," Graf said. "I had some nice shots, and I was fielding the ball fine."

Neiland is a doubles specialist who won the French Open doubles title in 1989 with Natasha Zvereva, but her Grand Slam singles record was limited to the Wimbledon quarterfinals in 1994.

Jennifer Capriati, the American back for the first time since making the quarterfinals in 1993, lost to China's Yi Jingqian 6-3, 7-5. In 1990 she made the semifinals at 14. She now ranks 106th in the world since her short comeback this year.

In other matches, No. 13 Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands beat Noszaly

Sandor of Hungary 4-6, 7-6 (7-2), 6-1, 6-4 and 14th-seeded Marc Rosset of Switzerland defeated Carl-Uwe Steeb of Germany 6-4, 6-4, 6-0. Andrei Medvedev defeated Nicolas Lapentti of Ecuador 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Among the women, Japan's seventh-seeded Kimiko Date of Japan defeated Asa Carlsson of Sweden 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Brenda Schultz-McCarthy, No. 8, of the Netherlands downed unseeded Alexia Dechaume-Balleret of France 6-4, 6-4 and Jana Novotna, No. 10, easily put away fellow Czech Ludmila Richterova 6-1, 6-2.

For Pete Sampras and Andre Agassi, the French Open's red clay has been kind to them. So far.

Despite rain, despite Agassi's profane outbursts and unforced errors getting him into trouble, despite Sampras' recent back troubles, the two Americans got through their first tests on Monday.

"Haven't been a lot of clay court days for me this year. I felt I got off to a good start," the top-seeded Sampras said.

More bum luck sidelines Horse of Year candidate

NEW YORK (AP) — First a bum foot, now a lung infection. The tale of woe continues for Unbridled's Song, beaten favorite in his last two races, including the Kentucky Derby.

The latest revelation came one day after Unbridled's Song lost by 2 1/2 lengths to James First Punch in the Peter Pan at Belmont Park. He was fifth as the favorite in the Derby on May 4.

"He's still in the ball game, but it may take a little time," trainer Jim Ryerson said.

While he said there was no definite timetable, Unbridled's Song's next start might have to wait until either the Haskell at Monmouth or the Jim Dandy at Saratoga, both on Aug. 4, followed by the Travers on Aug. 24.

As for the Belmont on June 8, that didn't seem likely. "He had to show us he was in good shape to run in the Belmont, and he's shown us in his last two races he's probably been better," Ryerson said. "From his last two races, he's telling us the Belmont is not the direction to go."

Back at his barn at Monmouth Park on Monday, Ryerson revealed that Unbridled's Song was diagnosed with a lung infection after the Peter Pan. He said he didn't know "what bearing the lung infection had on his performance. He did not bleed, but to what degree the infection compromised his performance, I don't know."

Ryerson said Unbridled's Song had "a good stream of mucus leading to his lungs" after the race and a culture showed the infection.

That was the bad news. The good news, Ryerson said, was that he came back sound and did not appear to be bothered by a patch on his left front foot, which was injured in the Wood Memorial on April 13.

$1.4 million paycheck eases Lazier's pain

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Somehow, Buddy Lazier's aching back doesn't seem to bother him quite as much now.

Maybe it's the medication. Maybe it's a $1.4 million paycheck. More likely, it's his place in history as a winner of the Indianapolis 500, even under the crazy circumstances that split American auto racing into two hostile camps.

He doesn't really care.

"You don't really feel the pain," Lazier said at Monday night's Victory Dinner. "You do, but you don't because it's such a special event."

"You never know if you're ever going to be able to make more than one trip there. You don't even know if you're going to be able to make one. So when you do, you want to relish it."

Lazier, who shattered his back in a crash at Phoenix in March, still has trouble walking with a cane. But he had no trouble driving on Sunday and beat Davy Jones in a checkered-flag sprint that was every bit as fierce as any Indy race with all the big-name drivers.

"I really hasn't sunk in yet," Lazier said.

"I had a very small amount of sleep last night. It's amazing how you can be so wide awake and so tired. The first thing I had to do was look over and see the (victory) wreath, because the wreath was sitting on a couch in our room. Then I knew it wasn't a dream."

INDY 500

Lazier was one of only 16 veteran drivers in Sunday's race because of the defection of Championship Auto Racing Teams to the inaugural U.S. 500 at Michigan International Speedway.

He started fifth, stayed close to the front all race and took the lead with a pass of Jones in the closing laps. He wheeled into Victory Lane and had to be helped out of the car because of the pain.

But never did he think he couldn't make it, he said.

"The toughest part of the race was after the last pit stop. I came out of it fourth and my crew chief said, 'You have to pass everybody in front of you.' Then it was a dogfight. That was the toughest moment."

Standing in a corridor at the Indiana Convention Center before the Victory Dinner, Lazier said he was still in pain.

"I can really feel it throughout the body. I've got some real problems with pain, and you pay a certain price, the way the injuries were," he said.

"I'm under strict orders to lay in bed for seven days after the event," he said. "They want to take a look at it after I've been laying down for seven days, and then we may take a look at doing some operations to limit the amount of nerve irritation."

"But it's bearable, especially if you have a little pain medicine," he said.

And a winner's share of $1,367,854 from a record purse of $8,114,600, the biggest prize package in auto racing history, doesn't hurt, either.

The purse broke the mark of $8.06 million set last year.

Jones, who finished less than one second behind Lazier, received $632,503, the second-largest payoff to a non-winner of the race. Third-place Richie Hearn, the only other driver to finish all 200 laps, earned $375,203.

Alessandro Zampedri, who finished fourth, received $270,853, and fifth-place Roberto Guerrero won $315,503.

Tony Stewart, who was named rookie of the year, took home $222,053 for finishing 24th.

SPORTS BRIEFS

A's down Cards, Lions

The A's took a 7-2 win over the Cardinals in recent National Major League action.

Jon McKinnon pitched a complete-game four-hitter, and helped his cause with a triple and single. Robert Garza tripled and Ryan Tant added two singles for the A's.

Derek Wilson threw a six-hitter for the Cardinals.

The A's came back the next day and took a 28-2 victory over the Lions.

Justin Petrowski was the winning pitcher, while Kyle Nichols took the loss.

Landon Adkins had a double and triple, Garza tripled again, and Jared had a triple for the A's.

Jimmy Wallace hit a two-run homer for the Lions.

The A's improved to 9-2 while the Cardinals fell to 1-10 and the Lions dropped to 3-9.

Da Brats cruise to win

In local UGSA softball action, Da Brats improved to 5-2 with a 17-4 victory over the Blue Angels.

Jerrica Canales was the winning pitcher, while Juanita Valedex took the loss.

Da Brats combined solid defense — they pulled off a triple play and two double plays — with sound hitting for the win. Krysha Bearden had a triple, while Julie Garza, Krystal Shuttlesworth, Jessica Canales, Jancy Crow and Amy Lang added hits.

In more recent action, Da Brat knocked off Clueless by a 14-7 score Wednesday. Amy Lang and Krystal Shuttlesworth combined for the win, while Angie Phillips was tagged with the loss.

Misty Padilla was two-for-three with two singles, and Jancy Crow and Jessica Canales added a pair of singles each. Krysha Bearden had the big blow, a solo home run, while Shuttlesworth tripled and Julie Garza singled and tripled.

Dream Team edges Deal With It

Dream Team rallied for three runs in its last at-bat to take a 9-8 victory over Deal With It in UGSA Division IV action.

Heather James and Sarah Fanning combined to take the win, while Jackie Martinez was the losing pitcher.

Top Hitters for Dream team included James, Sunni Smith and Lisa Hernandez, who each had a double. Honey Belew had two singles, and Melissa Martinez and Stephanie Stone each had a hit for Deal With It.

Dream Team improved to 2-0, while Deal With It fell to 0-2.

Tennis tourney June 15

The Tall City Adult Open Tennis Tournament will be held June 15-16 in Midland.

Events include men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles. Entry is $18 per team.

Track and golf all that's left of once-proud conference

On July 1, Texas Tech and Baylor will officially join the Big Eight to form the Big 12; TCU, Southern Methodist and Rice will be part of the Western Athletic Conference; and Houston will join Conference USA.

TCU's Fisher and Weir-Smith could've joined a list of dramatic champions as the unseeded pair reached the men's doubles finals against top-ranked Justin Gimelstob and Srdjan Muskatirovic of UCLA.

The Horned Frogs won the first set in a tiebreaker (7-3), then dropped the next two 6-4. The third set was tied at 4 with both teams holding serve when the Bruins finally broke serve. One of their points in that pivotal game came when Weir-Smith was assessed a double-fault because his hat blew off. UCLA went on to win the final set 6-4.

"Right now, it's really hard to be excited about being in the finals, especially when you're up a set and a break in the second," Weir-Smith said. "We were happy to be in the finals, being unseeded, but it's very disappointing to lose."

Moros and Taylor had reached the women's finals by dropping the first set and winning the final two of their previous three tournament matches.

It briefly looked as if they may do it again as Moros and Taylor fell 6-1 in the first set then led 3-1 in the second.

But the nation's top-ranked tandem of Florida's Stephanie Nickitas and Dawn Buth corrected themselves and took the next five games for the sweep.

"We just never got in a rut, so everything was kind of on the positive side," said Nickitas, who used to team with Moros to form the world's top-ranked junior doubles combination.

And now there are only two events left.

DALLAS (AP) — All that stands between the Southwest Conference and extinction is this weekend's NCAA men's golf championships and the NCAA outdoor track and field meet.

Hopefully, things will get better at those events than this past weekend, which featured a series of disappointments in baseball, tennis and women's golf.

Texas bowed out of the baseball NCAA regional it hosted on Saturday, then, on Sunday, Texas Tech was eliminated in the semifinal of its home-field regional and Rice came up 10 runs shy of a first College World Series trip.

In tennis, Texas Christian's unseeded tandem of Ashley Fisher and Jason Weir-Smith reached the men's finals before losing in three sets, while Texas' sixth-ranked duo of Cristina Moros and Farley Taylor took only four games in losing the women's finals.

In women's golf, a missed 40-foot putt on the 18th hole Sunday left Texas a stroke shy of forcing a three-way tie, leaving the Lady Longhorns third. Kelli Kuehne finished ninth, 10 strokes out of first.

Each defeat seemed tinged with the same sorrow and bitterness that brought the league to within weeks of being broken up.

On July 1, Texas Tech and Baylor will officially join the Big Eight to form the Big 12; TCU, Southern Methodist and Rice will be part of the Western Athletic Conference; and Houston will join Conference USA.

Playing before the largest crowd ever at Dan Law Field, Tech was an out away from a 10-7 victory over top-ranked and top-seeded USC only to allow six straight runs, the final three on a full-count homer by Jeff Inglin.

"What makes this so disappointing is I feel we let our fans down," Red Raiders coach Larry Hays said.

out in the ninth off Jack McDowell (5-3) and stole second on a pitchout. Frazier got caught off second by shortstop Omar Vizquel on Elster's grounder for the second out.

Hamilton followed with a double down the right-field line that bounced into the corner. Right fielder Manny Ramirez chased it down and threw to second baseman Carlos Baerga, whose relay throw to the plate arrived as Elster slid past Alomar.

Roger Pavlik (7-1) pitched a six-hitter for the Rangers, striking out five and walking none. Red Sox 10, Athletics 3

At Oakland, Calif., Jose Malave had four RBIs, including his first major league homer, and Troy O'Leary added a three-run homer for Boston.

Malave, called up from the minors last Thursday, had a two-run homer, a two-run double and a single in five at-bats.

Tim Wakefield (3-5) threw an eight-hitter, striking out seven, to get his first complete game since last Aug. 8 against Cleveland.

Steve Wojciechowski (5-1) lasted just 1 2-3 innings, allowing five runs and six hits. Blue Jays 5, White Sox 4

At Toronto, John Olerud hit a grand slam to help rookie Marty Janzen win his first major league start as Toronto ended Chicago's eight-game winning streak.

Olerud hit his second career grand slam in the third inning to back Janzen (3-0), who gave up three runs and five hits in seven innings.

Mike Timlin gave up an RBI single to pinch-hitter Dave Martinez with two outs in the ninth, but struck out Frank Thomas with runners at the corners for his eighth save.

Olerud's ninth homer of the year came off Alex Fernandez (5-3).

WRITING A CLASSIFIED AD

Start your ad with the item for sale, service you are offering, or job title of the person you're looking for. Be descriptive. The detail information is what sells the item to the reader. Always include the price of the item. Avoid abbreviations they only confuse the reader. Run your ad for an ample length of time. Remember, always check your ad for correct phone numbers, addresses, etc., on the first day of publication.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

(Never known to Fail)

O Most beautiful flower of Mount Carmel, Faithful vine splendor of Heaven, blesses mother of the Son of God, Immaculate virgin assist me in my necessity.

O Star for the sea, Help me and show me here you are my mother. O Holy Mary Mother of God Queen of Heaven and earth. I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to secure me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power.

O Mary conceived without sin, Pray for us who have recoured to Thee (3 times). Holy Mary I place this cause in your hands (3 times). Say this prayer for 3 consecutive days and the you must publish and it will be granted to you.

PUBLIC NOTICE
PROPERTY TAX PROTEST AND APPEAL PROCEDURES

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these appeal procedures if you have a concern about:
-the value placed on your property
-any exemptions that may apply to you
-the classification of an agricultural appraisal
-the taxable status of your property
-the local governments which should be taxing your property any action taken by the appraisal district that adversely affected you.

Informal Review

Taxpayers are encouraged to make an appointment with an appraiser to discuss their property value. You should bring information to substantiate why you feel the property value is incorrect.

Review by the Appraisal Review Board

If you can't resolve your problem informally with the appraisal district staff, you may have your case heard by the appraisal review board (ARB).

The ARB is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals or other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the appraisal district to make the necessary changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice of protest) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notice of the time, date and place of the hearing. The hearing will be informal. You and the appraisal district representative will be asked to present evidence about your case. The ARB will make its decision based on the evidence presented. You can get a copy of a protest form from your local appraisal office.

Note: You shouldn't try to contact ARB members outside of the hearing. The law requires ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they haven't talked about your case before the ARB hears it.

Review by the District Court

After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision, you have the right to appeal to district court. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you receive the ARB's order. If the appraisal district has appraised your property at $1,000,000 or more, you must file a notice of appeal with the District Court within 15 days of the date you receive the ARB's order.

More Information

You can get more information by contacting your local appraisal district office. You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district or from the State Comptroller's Property Tax Division at P.O. Box 13526, Austin, Texas 78711-3526.

DEADLINE FOR FILING PROTESTS WITH THE ARB

Usual Deadline

On or before May 31 (or 30 days after a notice of appraisal value was mailed to you, whichever is later).

Late protests are allowed if you miss the usual deadline for good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have good cause.

Late protests are due the day before the appraisal review board approves records for the year. Contact your appraisal district for more information.

Special Deadlines

For change of use (the appraisal district informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

For ARB changes (the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

If you believe the appraisal district or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually February 1). The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence about whether a required notice was mailed to you.

"The deadline is postponed to the next business day if it falls on a weekend or holiday."

HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 29:

You have direction and strength in projects close to your heart. Do not underestimate abilities or creativity this year. You have a rare opportunity to grow and develop. Your talents emerge and help you in all walks of life. If you are single, romance blooms and could be very tender and gentle. A loved one is unusually vital to your well-being. If attached, your relationship becomes even more important. You might decide on a deeper commitment. SCORPIO helps you accomplish a lot.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Profound evaluation is necessary before you take the next step in a partnership. Someone thinks he can pull the wool over your eyes. Show him how astute you are. Do not push an authority figure too hard. Financial possibilities open up. Tonight: Talk with your best friend. *****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take others with a grain of salt. Bafflement marks an interaction with a co-worker. Be direct and insightful. Listen carefully to feedback. You have the precision and drive to make changes. News from a distance is significant. Tonight: Go to a favorite restaurant. *****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Get a lot done quickly. Elegance is natural for you. You see a situation differently from a friend. Graciously offer your perspective. A business partnership is important in making a decision. Intimate talks are hazy now. Tonight: Burn the midnight oil. *****

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Heed your instincts, and follow through with a domestic matter. For you, family is always primary. Gain a deeper perspective of the mechanics at work. You find much to be joyful about. A loved one adds that extra touch. Tonight: Midweek playtime. *****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Get the answers you need through interactions with others. Pace yourself. There is much to do and achieve. You get a lot accomplished and are able to break through a work-related problem. You are full of data and solutions. Tonight: Bring home some extra work. *****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial and money changes are likely, but you do not have to add to the risk. Your softer side emerges with a child. Listen to his side. Imagination will help you be more empathetic. Clear up unnecessary confusion. Tonight: Run errands on the way home. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You spring out of bed, ready to go. Take care of personal matters quickly, and ring some telephones. Settling things comes easily. Clear your desk. Forge ahead with a work-related issue. Check out a money-making idea. Tonight: There's no stopping you at work. *****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Do some thinking. Follow-through is key. Ensure that your manner of operation is correct. By evening, you are ready to take action. Direct your time with care. You have a lot to accomplish. Communications are not as clear as you think. Tonight: Do whatever suits you. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) The daytime hours flow for you. A partner accomplishes a lot and encourages you to join in. Focus on goals; this is your strong suit. Refuse to be diverted from the winning trail. Accept an expression of caring. Tonight: Take a night off; you deserve it. *****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Accept the limelight, and get as much done as possible. Find out what is up with a co-worker. Explore the circumstances behind a change. You make strong decisions and move in new directions. Others consider you a leader. Tonight: Don't deny friends your company. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Make phone calls, seek out news and be ready to take a leap of faith. Much is going on behind the scenes at work. Question your alliances with care. A friend has important feedback. When you are sure of yourself, take action. Tonight: Stay at a hot spot until closing. *****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Make a heartfelt attempt to connect on a soul level. New understandings are possible. You mustn't be reticent about changes. Finances are enhanced because of an investment and with the love of a family member. Be bold in your thinking. Tonight: Go where the music is. *****

Unless rift heals, race here to stay

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Star wars, car wars. The bitter rift that created two races in two places — on the same day — shows no signs of going away.

Whether it's run next time in California, Texas or back in Michigan, the U.S. 500 is sticking around as a direct challenge to the more prestigious Indianapolis 500.

That's barring an unforeseen and unexpected compromise between the powers of Championship Auto Racing Teams and Indianapolis Motor Speedway president Tony George.

"We have certainly committed to run the U.S. 500 in the future. Obviously we're not averse to a resolution with the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. But we're certainly realistic about that, and that's probably a very unlikely prospect at this stage," CART president Andrew Craig said after the running of Sunday's inaugural U.S. 500.

"We're committed to this race. This event will not go away." When George decided to give 25 of 33 spots at the Indy 500 to members of his Indy Racing League, CART bolted and created its own race, billing it as "The real cars, the real stars ... The Real 500."

But never has there been a more unreal sight than the one on the final pace lap for Sunday's race at the Michigan International Speedway.

A front row collision between pole sitter and eventual winner Jimmy Vasser and Adrian Fernandez created a 12-car melee, a real mess and the worst of all beginnings for a new race that claimed it had a better product.

There for all to see and for many to snicker at was a littered race track with parts and tires all over, with expensive cars sitting helplessly in the infield and pointed awkwardly in all directions. All before the race even began.

No one was seriously injured. But crews and teams frantically maneuvered to get backups ready so the race could be run. And it was after a 61-minute delay.

But this from the best cars and the stars? "It was stupid," said veteran Bobby Rahal, whose racing team partner is David Letterman, known for his "Stupid Human Tricks" segment on late-night TV.

"They've made themselves look like fools as far as I'm concerned," A.J. Foyt, an outspoken critic of the rebel race, said from Indy.

"I don't think this race has lost its integrity," said Mario Andretti, who won at Indy in 1969 but was in Michigan where his son Michael raced. "I'm sure they're laughing at Indianapolis. ... Young or old, we're pretty much vulnerable to this type of thing. The front row forgot it was a 500-mile race."

Team owner Derrick Walker had a unique perspective on the dueling 500s. He had two cars entered at Michigan and another one at the rookie-heavy Indianapolis 500.

"It's ironic," he said of the U.S. crash. "It shows that it can happen with experienced drivers as well as rookie drivers."

When Vasser came across the finish line, nearly 11 seconds ahead of Mauricio Gugelmin, the starter waved both the traditional black-and-white checkered flag and the American flag.

Sonics can end series

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics can join Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls in the NBA Finals tonight.

Still, until the Sonics actually eliminate the Utah Jazz, the Chicago Bulls might as well be the Vancouver Grizzlies or Toronto Raptors.

"We're not talking about Chicago right now," Nate McMillan emphatically said Monday.

Leading Utah 3-1 in the Western Conference championship series after an 88-86 victory Sunday in Salt Lake City, the Sonics will be looking to close out the Jazz and reach the Finals for the first time since their 1979 NBA Championship.

The Bulls wrapped up the Eastern Conference series Monday with a 4-0 sweep over Orlando. If the Sonics win tonight, the NBA Finals would begin Friday in Chicago.

Except for Game 1 of the Seattle-Utah series, a 30-point Sonics' blowout here, Seattle has had to play with Shawn Kemp in foul trouble: Kemp fouled out of Sunday's Game 4 with 1:37 to go after playing 23 minutes.

Kemp is averaging 27 minutes and 16 points against Utah.

"We want him to stay on the floor to help us," Seattle's Gary Payton said. "If we go to the next level, then we will need him in the games."

"Our A personality is with Shawn on the court," Sonics coach George Karl added. "But even when Shawn is not on the court, we still win games."

And what does Kemp think? "It's not up to me, it's up to the officials," he said.

Meanwhile, the Jazz are facing elimination in the West title series for the third time in five years.

Utah's Karl Malone, 32, and John Stockton, 34, are nearing the ends of their careers. They don't know how many seasons they have left, let alone how many West championship series.

"The series is not over," Utah coach Jerry Sloan insisted. "That's what you have to be strong enough to realize."

Amaury Telemaco was pounded for eight runs — three earned — and seven hits in 3 2-3 innings. Chicago has lost five straight and eight of nine.

Marlins 6, Reds 2

Al Leiter (7-4) won for the first time since his no-hitter against Colorado on May 11, allowing both runs and three hits in eight innings at Joe Robbie Stadium.

Jeff Conine hit his ninth homer, his third in two days. He also singled in two runs in Florida's four-run first against John Smiley (4-5), who gave up five runs and seven hits in four innings.

Astros 5, Pirates 3

Craig Biggio tripled, doubled and homered in his first three at-bats as visiting Houston won its fourth straight and reached .500 (26-26) for the first time since May 10.

Darryl Kile (6-3) pitched a six-hitter and struck out 10 in his first complete game since a no-hitter against New York Mets on Sept. 8, 1993.

Zane Smith (2-3) lost his third consecutive decision, allowing five runs — three earned — and six hits in five innings. Pittsburgh (19-31) fell a season-low 12 games below .500 and has lost seven of eight and 16 of 20.

Rockies 5, Cardinals 2

Ellis Burks and Larry Walker homered in the first off Todd Stottlemire (4-3) and Eric Young had three hits at Busch Stadium as Colorado won for the ninth time in 11 games.

Kevin Ritz (5-4) allowed two runs and five hits in six innings. Bruce Ruffin pitched the ninth for his sixth save.

Stottlemire gave up four runs and seven hits in seven innings and struck out eight.
