"LONE EAGLE" GETS EAGLE FEATHERS

To Navajo Indians at Albuquerque, Colonel Charles Lindbergh is the "big boss of the air." That's what Hastin Bi-Ni-Na, left, and Hastin Chlah, right, termed the famous flyer when Lindy stopped there and they presented him with a Navajo war bonnet made of buffalo and squirrel skin and eagle feathers. The "lone eagle" accepted with thanks, but refused to wear the war bonnet.

United Charity Chest Planned

PROPOSAL PRESENTED BEFORE B. C. D. IN MEETING TODAY

Plan for a community chest was introduced this morning at the regular session of the Lubbock Board of City Development, but action on the proposal was postponed until the next meeting of the organization.

Discussion of the community chest plan followed interviews conducted by Richard Cavett among leaders of the majority of city organizations. According to Cavett, representatives of civic organizations have expressed themselves as being unanimously in favor of such a plan. Under such a proposal one campaign or financial drive would be put on for the support of all the publicly supported organizations instead of having separate drives for each organization. Red Cross, Boy Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls, the Salvation Army, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., and perhaps other organizations, would unite in the community chest drive. This plan has been adopted in a large majority of American cities and all communities using the plan are heartily in favor of it as well as are the supported organizations.

NORTHEASTERN CHINA LIKELY TO BECOME FIGHTING SCENE

(By Associated Press)

HABIN, Manchuria, July 12.—Northeastern China boiled today in ferment of Sino-Russian antagonism, which admittedly may have the gravest consequences.

Habin itself spent a night bordering on panic, with near riots and wild scenes occurring every time a train on the Chinese Eastern railway, seized yesterday by the Chinese authorities, departmen from the station.

Russians fough with Manchurian police in many parts of the wealthy province, and there were reports here that Soviet troops in Eastern Siberia were ready to move eastward into Manchuria at a moment's notice.

Thirty expelled Russian officials of the railroad were started at 6 p. m., yesterday for eastern Siberia, and nearly 100 others with orders to move in twelve hours were leaving the province today.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES HAVE BILLS

OFFICIALS ARE SEEKING ADEQUATE MONEY FOR COLLEGE

Figures for Texas Technological college's appropriation will be likely determined this afternoon as free conference committees from the senate and the house delve into the bills near the end of the third special session of the Forty-First Legislature at Austin, according to an Associated Press dispatch to the Daily Journal.

Dr. P. W. Horn, president of Texas Tech, and H. T. Kimbro, director, are in Austin in the interest of the appropriation.

ADJOURNMENT HANGS ON SCHOOL MEASURES

AUSTIN, July 12 (AP)—Free conference committees from the Senate and House today grappled with educational and departmental appropriation bills with the end of the third special session just around the corner.

The two houses yesterday adjusted their differences on eleemosynary institutions and rural aid but there was an expression of belief among the lawmakers that there would be more difficulty in agreeing on what amount to be allowed state supported schools and departments of government. The House educational measure is approximately $500,000 less than that approved by the Senate, the difference being represented by one building allowed John Tarleton Agricultural college at Stephenville and several minor items.

G.O.P Secretary Scores Senators

WITHINGTON GIVES OUT STATEMENT TODAY ON 'BLACK-TAN'

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, July 12 — Charging slanderous statements about private citizens by Texas senators and declaring false an alleged intimation he was secretary of a Black and Tan organization, Leonard Withington, secretary and director of republican state headquarters, has issued the following statement:

"Apparently the invasion of Texas by Senator S. W. Brookhart has encouraged one or two Texas senators to make unsupported, slanderous statements about private citizens and hide behind the skirts of senatorial immunity, when they well know that the same statements made outside that immunity would bring personal or legal redress.

Is Wholly False

"The intimation that I was secretary of a Black and Tan organization is wholly false.

"I never have had anything to do with any Black and Tan organization. I have never had any political contact, direct or indirect, with negroes, and everyone who knows me knows I have been bitterly fought by every Black and Tan leader in the state. I have held party office only in the organization headed by R. B. Creager and Eugene Nolte, which everyone knows to have a complete white leadership.

Facts Stated

"With regard to alleged payment from republican funds to Senator Tom B. Love, the facts are these:

"When the Hoover campaign in Texas began, only a few leaders thought there was a chance to win. Practically no national leaders thought so, except Mr. Hoover, James W. Good and a few others of Mr. Hoover's associates.

ADAMS PROPOSES NEW PARTY PLAN

DALLAS, July 12. (AP)—A suggestion that the chairman of the democratic executive committee be selected by members of that body, and not by the party's candidate for president, as had always been done before the last presidential campaign was made here today by Jed C. Adams, democratic national committeeman for Texas.

"I have thought for some time," Mr. Adams said, "that it would be a good thing if the committee were to pass resolutions to this effect."

If the committee should name its chairman, the committeeman would have the presidential candidate name his own campaign chairman. This chairman, when the campaign was over, would resign, and would not mixed up with the party fortunes during the four year interval before the next election.

REPORT SHOWS CATTLE GOOD

FALL MOVEMENT TO BE EARLIER; RANGES IN FAIR SHAPE

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, July 12—Although Texas rangers had begun to deteriorate July 1 due to lack of rain and high temperatures, cattle have held up well and are somewhat better than usual at this time of year, the livestock report of the United States department of agriculture, issued here revealed.

The humid condition has been relieved somewhat during the past week by abundant rains and in many areas grass has begun to green again, the resume detailed. Calves, lambs and kids in most counties have been above the average and the young animals are strong and healthy.

The July 1 condition of ranges in the state was 87 per cent, six points lower than one month ago. The figure, however, is above the five-year average.

Condition of cattle, although slightly below that of last month and last year, is above the average, the stock report said. Cattle and

NEW ORLEANS, July 12 (AP).—Under shot gun guard of United States marshals, gang crews today began the repair of the street car tracks and the removal of obstructions placed on the rights of way by strikers preparatory to the operation of street cars either tomorrow or Sunday.

The strikers offered no interference to the work, and the federal marshal did not anticipate any disorders when the cars are started under the protection of United States deputies and police by authority of a federal injunction. The city has been quiet since the riots of last week as the result of the starting of a few cars operated by strike-breakers.

The negotiators for settlement of the strike, now in its eleventh day, continued conferences.

He Made It Back For The Date Okeh

BY W. W. CHAPLIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—Last Sunday night, which the calendar says was only a little over four days ago—the city editor of the New York office of the Associated Press said to one of his reporters:

"I have a little assignment for you, Bill, a run out of town."

"Okeh," said the reporter, "where to?"

"Los Angeles," said the city editor.

"Have a heart, Boss," said the reporter, "I got a date next Friday I just can't break."

"Nobody asked you to," said the city editor, "You'll be back for it, ahead of time."

And so began the fastest round trip between the Atlantic and Pacific by a regular passenger system in the history of transportation.

The reporter's assignment was to go along on the inaugural journey of the trans-continental air transport, the air-rail line with which Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is connected. He left New York Sunday night, spent Tuesday night in Los Angeles, and was back in New York this morning, four days and a half for a journey of 5,714 miles.

"Hello Bill," said the city editor. "Pretty soft for you. Regular vacation. Let's have a little story about it."

"Have a heart Boss," said the reporter. "Look here are some notes I made along the way. Let one of the boys put it in

DECREASE IN GRAIN YIELDS IS FORECAST

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE GIVES CROP ESTIMATES

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Decreased yields this season in grain crops below last year's harvest were forecast last night by the department of agriculture in the basis of information on July 1 conditions.

Of the major grains, only rye was estimated to show an increased production, although reports from producers included in the survey showed that up to July 1 the weather was 2.7 per cent more favorable for crops than last year.

Estimates Given

Estimates for leading crops, compared with the 1928 harvest, follow:

Corn, 2,662,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,636,000,000 harvested last year; wheat 834,000,000 and 902,000,000; oats 1,247,000,000 and 1,449,000,000; barley 317,000,000 and 357,000,000. The rye forecast was for 41,900,000 bushels compared with 41,700,000 a year ago.

In the country as a whole the condition of crops averages 3.7 per cent below the 1918-1927 average, the department commented.

The separate wheat crop estimates were winter wheat 583,000,000 compared with 578,000,000 harvested last year; durum wheat 58,000,000 compared with 93,000,000, other spring wheat 193,000,000 and 231,000,000.

Acreage Decrease

Decreased acreages were indicated in corn, oats, rye, rice and potatoes, and increased acreages were planted to wheat, barley flaxseed, cotton, hay, sweet potatoes, tobacco, beans, peanuts and sugar beets.

Of the crops reported on, increased yields over 1928 were estimated in flaxseed, tame hay, beans, tobacco and sugar beets. Decreases were shown in hops, broomcorn, sweet potatoes, potatoes, pears, apples, peaches and rice. Particularly por yields were estimated in fruit crops, pears being estimated at 10,800,000 bushels compared with 24,000,000 bushels last year; peaches 47,100,000 bushels compared with 68,400,000 and apples 154,000,000 bushels compared with 186,000,000 bushels last year.

The acreage (in thousands) condition and indicated production (in thousands of bushels) of important crops in some of the producing states follow: Corn:

State	Acres	Condition	Forecast
Oklahoma	2,928	69	49,498
Texas	4,786	67	81,479
Kansas	6,369	72	119,228

WINTER WHEAT:

State	Acres	Condition	Forecast
Oklahoma	4,263	10.0	44,972
Texas	2,339	13.5	31,576
Montana	489	77	8,096
Kansas	11,268	69	138,393

(Oklahoma and Texas condition figures represent indicated yield per acre).

ACREAGE INCREASES FOR CANADA GRAINS

OTTAWA, Ont., July 12 (AP)—The total area estimated as sown to wheat in Canada for the season of 1929 is 24,305,300 acres, as compared with 24,119,140 acres finally reported for 1928, an increase of about 1 per cent.

The area of fall wheat to be harvested is estimated at 897,700 acres, as compared with 819,028 acres in 1928, an increase of 10 per cent. Spring wheat occupies 23,407,600 acres, as against 23,300,112, an increase of less than 1 per cent.

These estimates were issued today by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Oats Decrease.

For oats, the area sown is estimated at 13,100,000 acres, as compared with 13,136,516 acres in 1928, showing little change. Barely sown is estimated at 5,158,500 acres, as compared with 4,880,740 acres in 1928, an increase of 6 per cent. The area planted to potatoes is 368,000 acres, as compared with 599,063 acres, a decrease of 8 per cent.

The acreages devoted to later sown drops are estimated for 1929 as follows, the corresponding figures for 1928 being given with brackets: peas, 139,000 (154,469; beans 73,700-70,276).

SEATTLE, Wash., July 12 (AP)—W. A. After speeches of confidence by Parrot Newberry of Arkansas, Judge H. B. Porter of Texas and others, the vote was taken.

American Beauty To Compete In Europe

SIMMONS PLANS TO KEEP FIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, who opposed Alfred E. Smith in the last campaign, plans to continue his fight to overthrow the "control and domination" of the party by "Raskob, Tammany Hall and its affiliated organizations."

The ranking Democrat of the senate finance committee made this assertion today in denying reports that his recent statement assailing the house tariff bill, issued through the Democratic national committee, had "an connection whatever with the controversy within the party over the control of its national organization."

He had no other purpose, he added, than to "promote the fight against a bill which he regarded as discriminatory, unfair and dangerous."

The resolution calling for adjournment Wednesday was passed, and its author, Representative Phil Sanders, later recalled it from the table and made an attempt to amend the resolution so the houses might be able to adjourn tomorrow. Action was frustrated when a roll call revealed no quorum in the chamber.

Oil Field Worker Is Victim of Gunshot

GAINESVILLE, July 12 (AP).—George Hensley, 40, oil field worker, was found dead in the orchard at the farm home of his father, William Hensley, near St. Jo today. Shortly before the body was found a shot was heard. A note in his clothing asked his parents and wife to forgive him. He was said to have been in ill health for some time, and was preparing to move his family to West Texas.

airplanes flew by and had to quit."

Slade Hulbert of the refuelling ship said after last evening's reloading of the endurance plane's fuel tanks that both men were "slicked up spick and span." The window curtains had been supplied when their supper, principally fried chicken, was sent up. "Chicken sure was good and much enjoyed," said another note.

Seem Bent On Highest

The fliers seemed bent on setting a record that would discourage other seekers of the endurance honors.

They passed the previous mark of 174 hours 59 seconds Tuesday afternoon. Since yesterday morning, however, they have been sticking close to the airport, probably because of the N. A. A. requirement that to make an official record a plane must land at the airport from which it takes off.

During the monotonous days and nights of circling the fliers have covered about 18,500 miles.

Whittier Is Millionaire

Discovery was made last night that Paul Whittier, one of the backers of the flight and pilot of the refuelling plane, is a "millionaire pilot". A son of the late Max B. Whittier, southern California oil magnate, he is many times a millionaire by inheritance. He flies for "the love of it."

The "millionaire pilot" commented yesterday that 'Mendell and Reinhart stayed up so long I had a birthday." It was Whittier's 25th yesterday.

A. E. McManus, partner with Whittier and W. G. McAdoo, Jr., in the Culver City airport, was a lieutenant in the Royal Air Corps during the world war. He is well known in Toronto, Canada. He praised the military training received by Mendell and Reinhart as playing a large part in their success.

Patent 'Chutes Will Drop Airmail Sacks

KANSAS CITY, July 12 (AP).—A parachute designed to meet the government's needs for landing mail from airplanes has beben perfected and patented by Andrew Reed and W. C. Turner of Kansas City.

Their 'chute consists of an aluminum frame 18 inches in diameter, across the top of which a timing device is attached. A metal cup in the center of the frame holds the strings and lower end of a small parachute.

The contraption may be released from any height with the timer set o allow time for the load to clear the plane. The moment it is loosed, two arms that close over the 'chute spring open and release the load. As many as 20 of these parachutes may be stacked in a single plane.

calves are fat and the fall movement is expected to be somewhat earlier than usual as range conditions have been good during the spring. The movement of cattle and calves to market has slowed down and is near a standstill. Contracting of calves has practically ceased.

According to the report, range price of Texas cattle averaged at the beginning of the month approximately the same as a month ago but about 45 higher on the head basis than July 1, 1928. Sheep prices declined materially during the past 30 days and the average price of goats remained unchanged.

Appeal Is Filed On Radio Application

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—The Universal Service Wireless, Inc., today filed in the court of appeals of the District of Columbia notice of an appeal from the action of the federal radio commission in assigning to a single corporation 20 trans-oceanic short wave radio frequencies for handling press communications.

The appellant is a subsidiary corporation formed by the Hearst newspapers and news services. The suit contends that the order requiring formation of one corporation open to all the country's press on an equal basis is a direct negation of a previous order by the commission granting short waves to Universal Service Wireless.

shape, will you? I told you I got a date today."

The notes showed that the reporter, with two plane loads of other air-rail passenbers left New York by train on the inaugural journey of the T. A. T. They took to the air at Columbus, Ohio, Monday morning and flew to Waynoka, Okla., that night they entrained for Clovis, N. M., taking a plane there Tuesday morning and arriving in Los Angeles that night, 48 hours after leaving the Atlantic coast.

The only one of these passengers from New York to start right back was the reporter, who left Los Angeles by Wednesday morning, making the same plane and train hops as on the way out and arriving here this morning.

The trip was without untoward incident of any kind.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"From an impatient spirit, Oh, Lord, deliver us!"

This prayer is especially applicable to warm weather, I think. I know it is for me, and I am judging others by myself. Hasty words come quickly when one is "hot and bothered." Do you remember in Dickens' "Little Dorrit," the girl with the "terrible temper" was advised by her employer to count five and twenty before she spoke, so that she should give herself time to speak with discretion? Does anyone read Dickens now, I wonder? Does one have time and patience to do so in this hectic age?

Here's a sample of impatience. A youth writes and wants his answer to be in the peaper surely four days later. It is past the date and I just had a chance to open this letter, so he is going to be disappointed.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a boy 20 years old, and whenever it rains I get the blues, and when I see the moon I get the blues and I also get them when I go to bed and hear music. So could you help me, please? "The BLUES."

All of us have more or less of that feeling at such times, my lad. But we don't mind. I venture to say. One feels blue, but so dreamily, poetically blue that it's a real pleasure, don't you think? Makes you feel you're not like the common herd. If the feeling is too acute, get a jolly book and read it when the moon shines and when it rains and just before going to bed.

A LONESOME GIRL: Take the advice of two girls who wrote some time ago and whose letter was published in this column. You are just wasting time trying to win a boy whose love has cooled, and will only succeed in making yourself loook cheap in his eyes. Be brave, and make up your mind that your sorrow shan't make other people unhappy, and in time you will feel better. We're all made like that, dear.

"LONESOME" AND "UNDECIDED": You both have plenty of time for boys later on. Why not do as your parents wish and have a good time with girl friends and at home until you are older?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have read the Living and Loving column and thought I would tell Nobody's Child to be happy, for she has a mother, and a mother surely is the grandest thing on earth.

"I have no mother. My mother died when I was only 18 months old. Father married again and my step-mother was a cat. She would beat my brother and me and tell us if we told father she would kill us.

"When I was 13 my brother, only 18 months older, and I thought we would leave home, but we talked to one of our friends and she said we had better stay at home, for who would care for us out in the world? Now, Virginia, I am 18 and glad I stayed, for my father taught brother and I right and taught us to be somebody. Our step-mother has been dead some time. Do you think a woman like that will go to heaven?

"A MOTHERLESS CHILD."

No woman who abuses children will ever get to heaven, I am sure, dear. Step-mothers have a hard, hard time, too, trying to play mother to children. They are often misunderstood. But nothing excuses cruelty to helpless children. I am glad you stayed at home, too, and that you have found happiness.

BESSIE: I am sorry you love this boy so much and he can not seem to love you in the same way. Don't quarrel when you do see him. All I can advise is to be brave about it. It's something that happens to all of us sometime.

WONDERING MOON: If the young man really cared for you he would find some way to see you. The only way to make his mother like you is to be worth liking.

DOLLY: If you are so stubborn you will not speak to the boy when your mother advises you to, will you do it if I tell you to? One must have faith in one's friends, you know, and not believe stories about them without investigating.

* * *

A WORRIED SWEETHEART: No matter what anyone says, don't marry until you feel you can settle down and be content.

CITY COMMISSIONERS SELECT SITE FOR AIRPORT

PURCHASE OF 640 ACRES IS AUTHORIZED

FIELD TO BE FIVE MILES NORTH OF CITY ON HIGHWAY NINE

Lubbock City Commissioners authorized at their regular meeting Thursday afternoon the purchase of 640 acres of land, five miles north of Lubbock, at a total consideration of $40,000, for a municipal airport, bonds for which have already been voted.

This section is a part of the B. M. Jones estate, and at present is being used by the Lubbock Air Service, Inc., an organization which is conducting a flying school and using planes for commercial flights.

Inspected Many Sites

George E. Benson, T. B. Duggan and Dr. E. F. George compose the committee which recommended the site, following inspection of every possible location within reasonable proximity of the city.

Highly impressed with the field, Jim Kelly, famous co-pilot of the "Fort Worth" endurance flight, who visited recently in Lubbock had this to say: "I think this is the best possible site the city could choose. There are no hazards, the topography of the land is good, and the field is near enough to the city. With the additional expenditure for improvements, as provided by the bonds, Lubbock should have one of the best airports in Texas." Kelly made this statement after an air inspection of all possible sites near the city.

The airport bonds, $75,000, have not yet been sold, but as soon as sale is made the commission will advertise for contracts on the proposed improvements.

Advertise For Bids

Advertising for bids was authorized by the commission for pavement on 19th street between Avenues N and Q and also for paving bids on 7th street from Avenue I to J.

A careful review of the property owners agreable to paving of 10th street was made and at this time it appears dubious if the paving will be justifiable unless a larger number of property owners manifest a willingness to sign property liens. The commission expressed a desire to urge this particular pavement a short time longer and intimated that unless a greater interest was shown on 10th street the proposal would be abandoned and efforts directed toward the paving of other areas. Members of the commission said it would be a considerable disappointment to the city to be forced to abandon the 10th street project and it is hoped that a new complex on the situation may be apparent at the next meeting.

Report on Water

A report was received from L. J. Doty, who has completed the test of a water well in the northwest part of the city, and he was instructed to proceed with the completion of the well which, in a comparatively short time, will add materially to the water supply of the city. In this connection the city will contemplate the immediate making of further water supply, though at this time the city's supply is ample and has been passed by the state board of health as absolutely pure.

The following men were named on the board of equalization and will hold their first meeting next Monday, July 15: J. A. Hodges, J. F. Perry and C. A. Burrus. At this meeting the board will mature plans for the equalization of the city's tax renditions. The present taxable valuation of the city of Lubbock is approximately $21,200,000.

Audit Received

An audit was received from the H. V. Robertson company, of Amarillo, which revealed that the accounting system adopted during the past year by the city brought a remarkable improvement in the status of the records and that the city was to be particularly congratulaed on the creation of the office of City Auditor, which office is now being held by D. D. Martin. Special stress was made upon the improvement made in accounting in the electrical and water departments. At a very early date the city will publish a comparative balance sheet showing an accurate status of the city's total assets and liabilities.

Abernathy Man's Funeral Is Held

Funeral services for John R. Davis, 70, of Abernathy, were held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Rix-Sanders funeral home, with the Rev. W. P. Jennings officiating.

Burial was in the Lubbock cemetery.

Davis was killed on July 2, when he was struck down by an automobile while going to the aid of a woman who had driven her car into a cement curvert at Abernathy.

Several Abernathy citizens were here for the services. No relatives are known to survive.

'LACK OF PEP' CAUSES NAMED

DOCTOR SAYS FLU, WAR BAD LIQUOR AND GAS FROM CARS CAUSE

(By Associated Press)

PORTLAND, Ore., July 11—Persistent consequences of the influenza epidemic, the mental effect of the World War, bad alcohol and an atmosphere saturated with carbon monoxide due to increasing automobiles were blamed today by Dr. C. Dowden, Louisville, Ky., for the constant complaint of American people of exhaustion, or "lack of pep."

Dr. Dowden, who with other prominent doctors, held the spotlight of the American Medical Association convention here until the House of Delegates, governing body, went into seassion, said that only about one in five persons complaining of exhaustion had a specific underlying disease.

Dr. William Gerry Morgan of Washington, D. C., unanimously was chosen president elect of the association. Dr. Ernest A Sommer of Portland was elected vice president without opposition. Dr. Olin West of Chicago, was reelected secretary. Dr. Austin A. Hayden of Chicago, was re-elected secretary. Dr. Austin A. Hayden of Chicago was renamed treasurer and Dr. W. C. Warnshuls of Grand Rapids, Mich., was continued as speaker of the House of Delegates.

SECOND SHOOTING VICTIM IS DEAD

AUSTIN, July 12 (AP)—Hours of dogged fighting against death were lost last night when Mrs. D. A. Bush died at a local hospital, the second victim of pistol shots fired Wednesday at her home. Her husband, secretary of the Austin Street Railway, was charged in two counts with murder shortly after her death.

Mrs. Bush's sister, Mrs. Otis White, was mortally wounded in the shooting.

The murder charges replace complaints for assault with intent to murder. Bush's examining trial will be held later in the week.

Divorce proceedings by Mrs. Bush, started last week, were blamed for the slayings.

College Women Earn More But Unwisely

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 12 (AP)—College women earn more than women of less education, but fail to enter the fields where chances of financial rewards are greatest, the National Federaion of Business and Professional Women's clubs was told tonight.

Dr. Margaret Elliott, asistant professor of personal management at thte University of Michigan, said that of 1,752 college women replying to a questionnaire, 55.5 per cent were engaged in teaching.

Only 3.7 per cent of this group earn more than $3,000 a year, she said, while 8.2 per cent of the women engaged in commerce and 7.2 per cent engaged in manufacturing receive salaries above $3,000.

Movement Launched For Mustang Statue

AUSTIN, July 12 (AP)—A move to raise a fund of $50,000 for construction on the capitol grounds, of a monument to wild mustangs which once roamed Texas Plains was launched Thursday by Ralph R. Ogden of Austin.

Col. Ike Pryor and Herbert Kokernot of San Antonio, Tom Waggoner and Ranger Captain Tom Hickman of Fort Worth, and Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi were suggested by Ogden as a committee to manage the project.

LONDON (AP)—Recent opening by Lord Mayor of two blocks of tenements in New Street, Aldgate, marked the completion of a slum clearance program initiated by the city ten years ago. The scheme called for the demolition of 151 houses and displacement of 885 persons, 250 of whom were rehoused on the same area. Accommodations for the other 635 were erected in Wenlock Road.

The world series of 1887 was played at 15 games in eight cities.

A.-B. NINE AND RAILMEN IN DEADLOCK

A SEVEN-SEVEN TIE IS PLAYED THURSDAY; GAME ON TODAY

Auto-Barbers and Santa Fe teams of the Lubbock City League hooked up in a royal battle at Merrill Park Thursday evening and when darkness came, the count was deadlocked at 7-all.

Coming from behind in the late innings, the Railroaders knotted the count and battled the Chisum crew to a finish in a contest marked by frequent squabbles and near fist-ouffs.

Game Called

Umpire Miller called the game in the last half of the seventh after the Auto-Barbers had put across the tying run with none down. For five innings, the Chisum crew enjoyed a 2-0 lead with Evo Marshall doing a fine job of hurling. Dunlap's smash to right field that B. Wilson allowed to get away, scored Luenberger with the First Santa Fe tally.

Three more markers in the sixth put the Railroaders in the lead but the Auto-Barbers came back in the same round with a brace of runs that tied the score again at 4-4. Both teams counted one in the seventh but darkness halted hostilities before the Auto-Barbers had completed their turn at bat.

White In Form

While Marshall was holding the Santa Fe sluggers to seven hits, the Auto-Barbers were pecking away at the delivery of White for a total of eight safeties. The Santa Fe mound ace whiffed nine batsmen during the course of seven innings.

MOE MAY BECOME WESTERN CHAMP

KANSAS CITY, July 12 (AP).—Portland, Ore., again may be the home town of a Western amateur golf champion despite Frank Dolp's failure to defend his title at the thirtieth annual tournament at the Mission Hills Country club here.

The excellent tournament spirit of Don Moe, another Portland boy, who rallied to win his quarter-final match 4 and 3 from Carey Ballew, jr., Kansas City, after being four down at the end of 18 holes, has made him more than ever the favorite of the four semi-finalists who begin another 36-hole grind today.

Moe is paired today with John Lehman, Gary, Ind., Big Ten golf champion from Purdue in 1928. Lehman eliminated last year's runner-up A. L. (Gus) Novotny, of Chicago, 1 up to gain a semi-finals place.

Art Sweet, golf writer from Chicago and Gilbert Carter, dark horse from Nevada, Mo., meet in the other semi-finals match. Sweet won easily from H. J. Kaiser, Racine, Wis., 8 and 7 while Carter defeated Lawrence Moller, Quincy, Ill., 2 and 1.

Young Clark Learns About Game Weights

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—William Watson Clark, young southpaw of the Brooklyn Robins, knows why pitchers weaken in the closing innings of a game, especially during hot weather.

Clark pitched the Dodgers to a 9 to 6 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals the other day but was lucky to last out the game. He explained it this way:

"Before the game I got on the scales and weighed 167 pounds. After the game I weighed 156 pounds, a loss of eleven pounds."

Clark, however draws some satisfaction out of the fact that a big dinner, plenty of water, a good night's sleep and a heavy breakfast brought him back to his original weight the following day.

RICHEST RACING IS ON TOMORROW

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP).—The richest racing season, the American classic at Arlington park, will be decided tomorrow.

The prizes for the winner probably will be the three-year-old championship of the season, and $60,000 in added money—with the greatest field that has lined up this year ready to go to the post for the mile and a quarter test.

Rain yesterday promised a heavy track at best, but there were no indications that any of the outstanding thoroughbreds would be scratched for that reason. Col. E. R. Bradley, owner of Blue Larkspur, the favorite, said the winner of the Withers and Belmont Stakes would start on any kind of a track. Supporters of Clyde Van Dusen, winner of the Kentucky derby, were cheered at the prospect of a heavy or even muddy strip, for it was in the mud and rain the son of Man o' War won the Kentucky event.

Virginia Wilson of Chicago once scored 71 over a Pittsburgh course, the lowest round recorded for a woman golfer.

BASEBALL HOD-CARRIERS—THEY TOTE THE BRICKS; OTHERS GET THE GRAVY

Here are five of the hod-carriers of baseball — the lads who don't hog the cheers, but are always "in there" working hard to win. Left to right they are: Miguel "Mike" Gonzales, Earl Combs, "Bing" Miller, Riggs Stephenson and Wally Schang.

BY WM. M. BRAUCHER
NEA Service Writer

When the tumult and the shouting are passed around, a certain number of gilt-edged heroes get all the gravy, and everybody forgets about the guys who carried the hod. But just try to build a ball club or a sky shanty without 'em.

Every ball club has them. They are not spectacular enough to be stars. Baseball is their game nd they play it in a steady efficient way, year in and year out—without the cheers that the Ruths, the Cobbs and the Hoyts and Groves' get.

Earl Combs of the Yankees is a member of the union in good standing. He leads off for the Yankees and there isn't a better lead off man in baseball.

Barrow Picks Right

With Combs, down in Louisville in 1923 was a pitcher named Whalen Dean. Both Combs and Dean were on the market. Edward Generous Barrow of the Yanks was offered one or both the young men. He proved himself altogether foolish by taking Combs, while Dean went to the Giants. Dean is playing the outfield now for Dayton and Earl is in there every day, playing steadily, surely, without being bothered by the cheer leaders.

And did you ever hear of Miguel A. Gonzales? Mention him in a conversation and some sap is sure to think you're talking about a Cuban fighter. Gonzales has been catching baseballs and snuffing out runners since 1913 when he came to the Braves. After he was with the Braves he was sent to Long Branch for a year, then Cincinnati grabbed him.

After that he put in four years with the Cards. The Cards shipped him to the Giants. Thence he was sent to St. Paul, and believed washed up, in 1922. In 1924 he was right back with the Cards and in 1925 was traded with Freigau to the Cubs for O'Farrell.

Today, after being shunted from pillar to parking place in the big leagues, he's catching for the Cubs and they're calling him the smartest catcher in the National League.

In the collection of stars on Connie Mack's roster, the name of Edmund John Dark-Folks Boston Blackie Miller is often overlooked. Like Gonzales, Miller has been up and down. He has been traded, awarded and bought—Clinton, Ia., to Detroit, to Peoria, to Detroit, to Atlanta, to San Antonio, to Little Rock, to Washington, to Philadelphia, to St. Louis, to Philadelphia. This year he has been playing a fine game for Mack, without cheers, and when you're talking about .330 hitters, don't leave him out.

Miller is the butt of all sorts of nicknames from his teammates because in summer he tans up to the shade of George Godfrey. Besides being one of the best liked plaers by his teammates in the American League, Bing is the gum-chewing champion of Philadelphia.

Since the Yankees let Wally Schang go his way to the Browns in 1926, they have wished plenty of times that they had him back. He is another the crowd never went crazy about, but he always has been a good ball player. Schang has played in six world series, starting with Connie Mack's penant winners in 1913 and 1914. He played with the Boston pennant winners in 1918 and went with the Yanks in 1921-22 and 23.

Pep Young's Sacrifice

Among the unsung heroes was Pep Young of thhe Giants, who gave his life for a slide to second base. McGraw deemed Young the best player he had, but the crowd didn't think so. The Giants' right fielder suffered from Bright's Disease and had been warned by doctors and ordered by McGraw not to slide. But a tight spot came, Young hit the dirt and died as a result.

Riggs Stephenson for years was a member of thhe hod-carriers' union, but this year with the Cubs has been promoted to bricklayer. Cleveland fans used to wonder why Speaker kept him around. It seems that Riggs couldn't throw Cleveland sent him to the American Association in 1924 and he played with Indianapolis and Kansas City for two years.

The Cubs brought Riggs to the fold in 1926 and he hasn't batted under .300 since, his marks being .338 in 1926, .344 in 1927 and .324 last year.

Rube Bressler, Moe Berg, Fred Lucas, Joe Judge and John Miljus are other members of the local in good standing. They carry the bricks and the other guys do all the work.

TEXAS LOOP IS UNSETTLED

WATER AND BASEBALL CLUBS SETTLE SOON TO OWN LEVEL

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is difficult to get worked up over the present unsettled condition of the pennant scramble in the Roberts circuit after looking back and seeing what it would have been if they hadn't split it ten days ago.

Water and baseball clubs generally can be counted upon to seek their level sooner or later, and it is altogether possible that the second half will develop into the same sort of hair-raiser that was in progress when that famous meeting took place July 2, but there still are a lot of mourners.

Just Supposing

Just supposing they hadn't split, which is as good warm weather pastime as any, the Sports and Spudders would be deadlocked today for the lead, with the Dallas Steers a game behind and Fort Worth five and a half games out. That, however, is just so much pea soup as far as the second heat is concerned.

Waco now is in the throes of another of those ambitious spells that made the Cubs so generally respected the first month of the season. By trimming the Buffs yesterday, 4 to 2, behind some fine pitching by Bill Harris, the McLennan county nine displaced the Bisons as runners-up to the Spudders, who ran afoul of Bill McCabe and dropped one to the Cats, 4 to 3.

Steers Fight Back

The Steers, crippled but still battling, came back after dropping four decisions in two days and walloped the Sports, 11 to 2, in their Louisiana opener. Charlie Barnabe, the Herd's knock-kneed southpaw, established himself a little more firmly as the league's premier curver by registering his fourteenth victory in this game. He has lost three.

Beaumont and San Antonio divided a pair of pretty mound duels in the Magnolia city. Elmer Hanson, big Shipper righthander, allowed the Tribe only four hits in blanking them, 2 to 0, in the first. Then Neal Baker, the veteran collegian, exacted the Redskin's revenge by limiting the Exports to three singles in the nightcap and stopping them similarly, 2 to 0.

Of the five exhibitions reeled off, Fort Worth's victory over the Spudders possibly was the most portentious. The Snyderized Kittens are getting pitching since Big Pancho went behind the bat, and they promise to become dangerous as the standing becomes oriented. The Spuds rapped McCabe 10 times, but after the first inning he had them going through the hoop. Larry Bettencourt appeared as a pinch hitter for the Spuds and went without.

CUB ATTEMPT AT GIANTS IS 1-GAME SHORT

PIRATES ADD TO LEAD THURSDAY; IS TWO GAMES NOW

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The crucial battle of the Polo Grounds is being conducted to the complete satisfaction of the Pirates, who have yielded not one inch of ground since they overhauled the Cubs on Independence Day. The Bruins and the Giants split a tedious double-header beneath Coogan's Bluff yesterday as the Pittsburgh Rough Riders stampeded the Phillies once more at Baker Bowl.

The Pirates added half a game to their lead by tossing the Phillies 6 to 2, while the Cubs were wining and losing. The half-game gain was registered in the all-important games-lost column where, until yesterday the Buccaneers were on even terms with Chicago. The Pirates now lead the Cubs by two games and the Giants by five and one-half. The situation of the New Yorkers is even worse than the figures indicate, as they have lost eight games more than Pittsburgh and seven more than Chicago.

Fitzsimmons Rapped

Fred Fitzsimmons was rapped for eleven hits and was poorly supported afield in the opener, and the Cubs had little difficulty in winning, 8 to 3. They earned enough runs to win, but unearned ones are just as valuable as any other sort on the scoreboard.

Defeated in the opener, John McGraw still had the courage to toss Bill Walker, the southpaw, against a team which had not bowed to a lefthander since the venerable Clarence Mitchell had a good afternoon eight weeks ago. The Giants finally won by 16 to 12.

Braves Shut Out

Red Lucas shut out the Braves by 6 to 0, giving further proof of the seriousness of Jack Hendricks' intention to quit the cellar. The Braves now are only one game away, but a gain of one game will not turn the trick for the Reds as they have played fewer games than the Bostonese.

The Robins bowed to the Cardinals 6 to 3 at Ebbets Field, receiving a check in their attempt to crash the first division. The fourth rung now is four games away.

Rain Causes Twin Bills

Rain halted all important activity along the western front in the American League. As a result the Mackmen will meet the Browns in double-headers today and tomorrow while the Yanks will play two against the White Sox tomorrow.

The games that were played in Ernest Barnard's league saw the Red Sox tame the Tigers by 15 to 8 as the Senators downed the Indians, 9 to 3.

Billings, Detroit pitcher, Alexander and McManus executed a triple killing of Red Sox in the seventh, while Alexander cut in with an unassisted double play in the ninth.

PLAN ALL-INDIAN TOURNEY

DUBLIN, Iris Free State, July 12 (AP)—The United States and five other countries are competing in the Irish international grand prix motor car races here at Phoenix park today and tomorrow.

There are two races, each for a cup and $5,000. The race today is for cars with engines not exceeding 1,500 cubic centimeters and the one tomorrow for cars with engines larger than 1,500 cubic centimeters. Each race is at 300 miles.

Captain Malcolm Campbell, who has lately returned from South Africa where he went in search of new speed records, is the chief British hope.

The United States is represented by a Chrysler.

Laverne Fator was leading the eastern jockeys when set down by officials at the Aqueduct track. He had ridden 32 winners.

GUARANTEED Ford used cars

USED CARS
of many makes are traded in for the new Ford

SOME people think we accept nothing but used Fords for trade-ins when selling the Model A. That is a wrong impression. Cars of many makes are traded in for the new Ford—some low priced and some not so low—and many of them are unusual bargains in unused transportation.

There is a definite reason why we can offer you extra value in these used cars. The value of the new Ford is so high, and the cost so low, that excessive trade-in concessions on buyers' used cars are not possible. In other words, we set the trade-in figure at just what the used car is worth.

This means that when we offer a used car for sale, there is no "padding" the price to take care of an unreasonable trade-in allowance. Our used-car department is based on a spirit of fair-dealing . . . fair-dealing with the first owner who makes the trade-in, and the second owner who buys the unused mileage.

Model T Fords are reconditioned, and carry a guarantee. Other makes are priced strictly according to the unused transportation in them. Come in today and see some of the bargains we are in a position to offer. For example:

NEW BEACON MASTER SERVICE STATION OPENS SATURDAY

FIFTEEN MEN TO SERVE IN NEW CONCERN

HAROLD GELIN TO BE MANAGER; IS BIG ORGANIZATION

Formal opening of the new Beacon Master Service Station, located at the corner of 13th street and Avenue L, will be held Saturday, July 13, according to an announcement made late yesterday by Harold S. Gelin, manager.

With the opening of this new station Lubbock motorists will be afforded one of the most complete, up-to-date and modern places of service in West Texas. The new organization will offer every service for motorists. Firestone gum dipped tires will be handled, and tire repairing, gasoline, oils, alemite, batteries, battery service, and laundry are offered while a Cowdrey brake tester is in transit. The brake testing department, as all of the others, will be equipped with the very latest devices. The slogan of that department will be "When you start can you stop?"

Has Beacon Light

The new station covers 75 x 156 feet of space. The building is of reinforced concrete and was erected at an approximate cost of $60,000. On the extreme northwest corner of the building is a tower and in this tower is a revolving beacon light to guide motorists to the station, thus the name Beacon Master Service is derived.

According to the manager, one gallon of oil will be given free of charge on Saturday to every car visiting the station and filling their gas tanks, providing five gallons of more are used. Also to children, accompanied by their parents, a balloon will be given while flowers have been ordered for the ladies.

Return From Factory

Harold S. Gelin, manager, has just returned from a trip to Akron, Ohio, where he spent several weeks in the Firestone factory studying tire construction and service. He feels that after his experience in this concern, he is fully prepared and qualified to sell and service his product. In explaining the gum dipping process, Mr. Gelin stated that it was a patented procedure which saturates every fibre with rubber, giving a much more strong and flexable tire. Road heat causes a greater deterioration in the service of tires than any other single factor and through the gum dipping process this internal heat and friction is eliminated, he said.

A tire is now on display at the new station which was the first balloon casing ever to be sold in this city. It was fitted to a heavy automobile in 1923 and, after 6 years of continuous wear, an affidavit being made to this fact by the dealer, the tire was removed from the car in July, 1929, for exhibition purposes.

Fifteen Are Employed

In speaking of his plans and those of the organization he represents, employing some 15 men, Mr. Gelin said: "We will give to the people of Lubbock the kind of service that we ourselves would want entering a service station."

The structure was designed and built by John Gelin while Shelton Lumber company furnished materials. Lubbock Sash and Door company furnished plate glass and finishing materials, Sherrod Brothers, hardware, and Hart and Wier were cement contractors.

WHAT NEXT?

New Chickens Have No Wings Or Toenails

OMAHA, July 12 (AP).—The modern trend toward increased production has hit the egg industry. With it has come a new type chicken—without wings or toenails.

Dr. R. T. Renald, Omaha poultry facier, announced today that after five years experimentation he has produced a brood of such chickens.

Normal hens, said Dr. Renwald, are bothered each year with moulting of their wing feathers; during this period, egg production falls off. The new type of hen, having no wings, can keep right on laying the year round, producing on the average Dr. Renwald hopes, 300 eggs per year.

In addition, the new chicken will be easier to keep in a yard since she can't fly or scratch.

Army To Lend Tents For Boy Scout Meet

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Recalling the service rendered by Boy Scouts of America in the world war, the secretary of war will lend army equipment to the 1,500 scouts attending the world jamboree in Birkenhead, England, July 31 to August 15.

Columnist Tells Of His Marriage To Showgirl

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—The New York Daily News today said:

"Gladys Glad, highest paid and most beautiful show girl in the world, made a great mistake yesterday afternoon. She became the wife of Mark Hellinger, who is hardly the highest paid and certainly not the most beautiful columnist in the world.

"In the absence of Mayor Walker, who was originally scheduled to officiate, the ceremoney was performed in the municipal building by City Clerk Michael J. Cruise. Mr. Cruise was in excellent form and the marriage was run off in smooth fashion."

Hellinger for some time has conducted a Broadway column in the Daily News.

(Special To The Journal)

PLAINVIEW, July 12.—Plainview's three banks had deposits totalling close to six million dollars at the close of business Thursday. The First National bank exceeded the three million dollar mark for the first time in its history, and the Plainview National the two million mark. The exact total was $5,863,116.

The crest of the wheat movement has been passed in this section, and with favorable weather prevailing for another ten days the crop will have been practically harvested. Excellent test, high protein content, and splendid yields are characterizing the wheat produced this year.

UNCLE SAM ALWAYS GETS HIS MAN

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE ARRESTED AT POST YESTERDAY AFTER EIGHT-YEAR SEARCH

The old slogan of federal operatives, "The federal government always gets its man, even if it takes years to do it," was recalled here yesterday with the arrest of M. W. Donahoo by Oscar Brothers, United States deputy marshal of this city.

Donahoo, charged with using the mails to defraud the Pipes Grain company of Oklahoma City and the Anchor Grain company of Wichita, Kansas, of $1,300 on Dec. 23, 1921, was followed for eight years.

In those years he kept a step ahead of the federal men as he traveled in California, South America, and finally returned to his former home state of Texas. He had been in Texas 15 days when arrested, officers said.

He was brought to the Lubbock county jail yesterday afternoon by Deputy Marshal Brothers and will be held here until decision can be made on his extradition. Mr. Brothers said he has allowed Donahoo until today to decide whether he will fight his extradition to Oklahoma or not. Should he decide to waive extradition papers, he will likely be returned within a few days, otherwise he will be kept here until Governor Moody acts on his plea.

Thought For Today

And they were haughty, and committed abomination before Me, therefore I took them away as I saw good.—Ezekiel 16:50.

All that the wisdom of the proud can teach is, to be stubborn or sulen under misfortune.—Goldsmith.

The Creative Artist

America comes in for a good deal of high-toned criticism every so often, because of the way it "glorifies" its business men.

Foreign-born visitors and native-born novelists have told us repeatedly that we are a small-souled, dollar-worshipping folk because we have so much respect for our great industrialists. The theory seems to be that any man who can write even a third-rate novel or paint even a fifth-rate picture has something of the divine spark in him, while the factory owner or railroad magnate is a cross, unimaginative and utterly sordid sort of chap.

Perhaps all of this is quite true. But now and then it seems as if our finest artists—our most imaginative creative workers—are in truth the business leaders.

Consider, for instance, the two famous Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland.

The outlines of their story are quite familiar. They started out as real estate developers, prospered, bought a railroad, prospered with it, bought several more, built a vast union terminal for their home city and put together one of the largest railroad systems in the country out of the lines they had bought.

They made themselves very rich doing it. On the face of it there seems no reason to claim any especial creative genius for them.

Yet they are artists—using an entire city as their medium.

They have taken scores of square miles of rolling country land outside of Cleveland and transformed it into home sites. That, to be sure, has been done by any number of real estate operators, but the Van Sweringens have done it in a new way. They have put these suburbs far out in the country, away from noise and smoke and dirt—and then have used their railroad lines to make these outlying villages actually closer to the heart of the city, in point of time than other neighborhoods not half so far away in actual miles.

They have done this on such a scale that the whole future development of Cleveland is being changed. Indeed, it is predicted that the population of the city itself may actually decrease in the next few years because so many citizens are moving to the new suburbs.

Now this is something more than the work of ordinary real estate men. It is a movement of extreme importance. It may quite conceivably point the way in the matter of urban development for the whole country, and solve the perplexing problem of the modern city—how to grow in size and yet provide decent living conditions for the inhabitants.

The work these brothers are doing is making Cleveland a beautiful, charming city. It is, quite literally, making a better sort of life possible for many thousands of people. It is alleviating the worst features of our urban civilization.

Who can deny that business men of this type are creative geniuses as well? Do such men need to tip their hats to supercilious scribblers?

Has Benefits

Senator Bingham's proposal that congressional immunity to the law of libel be abolished, so that a speech delivered in Congress be subject to action in the courts just the same as any speech delivered by a private citizen, is not as attractive as it may look at first glance.

To be sure, some senators and congressmen do, occasionally, give vent to wild, and irresponsible statements under protection of teir immunity. Yet, in the long run, the benefits to the country at large outweigh the drawbacks.

Congress is a place for plain speaking. Would the Teapot Dome situation, for instance, have been exposed so thoroughly if the libel law had been hanging over the heads of the senators who uncovered that mess of corruption?

THE PLAINSMAN Says

That Girl on Broadway says those people who find fault with women's dress have scant reason upon which to base their arguments.

"To The Editor—This is food for your editorial page and we trust you will exercise same."

That was a foot-note on an opinion received through the mails by the editor of the Avalanche-Journal publications and bearing upon the sprinkling of several hundred citizens who were watching the fire at the Kuykendall Chevrolet company here the other night. Briefly, the opinion was a scathing denounciation of the action and of Fire Chief W. E. Twitty—but there was no signature on the opinion, hence it will not appear in the columns of either of the two local publications.

The Avalanche-Journal has plenty of space to give to the public for such matters which bear upon publice problems. As a matter of fact, the two dailies are glad to receive communications from citizens, whether or not they agree with the editorial policies of the papers, providing they are not unnecessarily long, are to the point, are not libelous and have the names of the writers attached to them. Neither paper, however, will publish opinions of any kind which are not signed.

When the Avalanche-Journal newspapers present editorial views the editor, whose name appears upon the masthead of the papers, stands responsible for those views. There is no secret concerning their authorship—no effort made to cloud the identity of who wrote them or why they were writeen. The written word, you know, stands for a long time and it is essential that the authorship be known. In making the rule against annonymous opinions The Avalanche-Journal papers feel that they are not asking any more from contributors than they themselves give the public.

Write to the Avalanche and Journal. These newspapers want your views on any topic of public interest and are more than glad to present them to the public. But when you do it sign your name. Otherwise the adopted policy in this regard will automatically consign them to the waste-basket.

The writer of the communication in question may be right in his contention that the fire department and the fire chief 'pulled a boner' in sprinkling the crowd. The Plainsman doesn't know—he was 650 miles away from Lubbock at the time of the fire. But from what the boys in the office say and from what several citizens have advanced in the matter the wetting down of spectators out of the way of the fire-fighters was uncalled for and an error in judgment. However, who was right and who was wrong has nothing to do with the angle of the question being taken up here. Had the name of the writer accompanied the opinion it would have gone in the paper. Since the name was omitted it did not and will not be published in these columns.

That Man on Avenue Q says the easiest thing to grow in a home garden is tired.

Police officials and the city administration in general appear to be very much exorcized over the accident which sent Motorcycle Patrolman C. E. Luce to a hospital, seriously injured. The Plainsman doesn't doubt that the public joins with the unfortunate partolman's fellow officers in regret but even so sympathy won't heal the hurts or prevent a reoccurrance.

A local young man, who, it is claimed was being chased by Officer Luce at the time of the mishap, has been questioned variously in regard to the matter but staunchly denies knowing anything about the accident. Whether he figured in the trouble or not cannot be said but no matter whether it was this young man or another citizen makes little difference in what really occurred. The motorcycle officer, in pursuit of his duty, fell victim to a serious accident because of a city street was not graded as it should have been. That's the trouble in a nut shell.

The Plainsman doesn't like to take the "I-told-you-so" attitude about anything but regular readers of this column and the editorial comments will recall that time and time again have appeared suggestions that more attention be paid the public streets of the city. Had the intersection, where Officer Luce met his mishap, been graded as it should have been the mishap would not have occurred whether he was chasing a traffic law offender or merely patrolling the streets as he is supposed to do.

As The Plainsman sees it the sweeping investigation being made by the city in this regard might well be enlarged to take into consideration steps which in the future will keep the streets in better condition. Motorcycle officers have enough trouble without being thrust into needless accidents—especially accidents caused by carelessness upon the part of the city.

Treasury Department To Destroy Three Or Four Billion Dollars In Paper Money As New Bills Come Into Style

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NE Service Writer

WASHINGTON, July 12 — It seems rather tragic because one can think of so many nicer things to do with the money, but the Treasury will be destroying three of four billion dollars in currency within the next year or so.

All the money we are now carrying our pockets is headed for the devouring currency macerators in the Treasury building and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing here. It was bound there anyway, but the issue of the new small currency will speed up the process somewhat, although all the old bills aren't coming back in a flood because most of the new money will be issued only as the old bills wear out.

It's Fun to Watch

The average life of a dollar bill is only seven months and lives of other bills longer in proportion to their denominations, so Treasury officials expect to have our pockets filled principally with the new currency well within a year. Issuance of it began July 10.

With an easily produced pass, one can watch the destruction of a few million dollars either at the Treasury or the Bureau. Several million dollars are destroyed daily under the most careful supervision. Your correspondent attended one such session in the basement of the Treasury building, where a single macerator eats up from one to three million dollars at a time. This macerator takes care of the worn national bank notes; those at the Bureau destroy the U. S. currency and federal reserve notes.

The macerator is a large churn, resembling a big red apple about 12 feet in diameter, operated by a steam engine which has been doing business in the Treasury since 1873, reducing millions of dollars to pulp each day. The principle is somewhat similar to that of a cooker in a paper mill.

When the money is dumped in the churn is about half full of a mixture of water, soda ash and lime. While the chemicals destroy the silk fibre and attack the coloring matter, 110 knives, some stationary and some revolving, cut the paper to tiny bits. No whole money is thrown in. The banks returning the currency slice it neatly in two.

Special "destruction committees" are appointed from among officials at both the Treasury and the Bureau. It's their job to see that there isn't any monkey business. At the Treasury Secretary Mellon has appointed John F. Moran as chairman of the national bank note destruction committee.

Mr. Moran and two other members are accompanied to the macerator by a bank agent. The doomed money is brought from the Treasurer's office in trunks, each of which has three trays. Tray by tray, it is carefully dumped from a raised platform into a square hole, about 14 inches, in the top of the macerator.

Each member of the committee has two keys. These are for three separate locks to clamp down the hatch of the macerator after the money goes in and three separate locks which must be unlocked before the machine can begin operation. After unlocking the latter and locking the former each member puts his key in his pocket. They return together an hour or two later, unlock the hatch and gaze upon the pulp to see if it is sufficiently mashed. It generally is.

Make Paper of It

The pulp is then strained through a wire basket underneath which is designed to catch any large pieces insufficiently macerated. It is then put into a drain box, allowed to drain for 24 hours and carted off to the Bureau, where it is pressed and rolled for sale to paper manufacturers and souvenir makers at something less than $20 a ton. Once a year the Bureau advertises for bids on this stuff; it disposes of about 3,000 tons a year.

William H. Easterday, 72 years old, who superintends the Treasury macerator, has been destroying millions daily since 1909. His big day came in the post-war period, when he made pulp of $140,000,000 in a single maceration in which nothing less than a $10,000 note went into the hopper.

Two macerations a day are expected for a while during issuance of the new currency.

Have Bear Story

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.—J. C. Marshall and Bud Dodge of Detroit, who have been camping at White River, have a story of a hungry bear. The animal climbed on top of their closed car while they were fishing. He tried to claw a hole in the roof to get at food. He couldn't so he pushed the auto into the river.

Rivet Is Gold

NEW YORK—There's a golden rivet in a Wall Street skyscraper. The first one driven for the new building of the bank of the Manhattan company was of gold.

Wins First Though

CALGARY, Alberta—Lee Ferris, "The Canada Kid," a champion all-round cowboy, is in a hospital as the result of riding a steer and winning first money after the animal had goughed his right eye out.

Dress Flights

NEWARK, N. J.—Airplane pilots in full evening dress and silk hats will take folks similarly attired over New York City tonight. The flights will be after ceremonies christening of a new biplane of Mrs. George F. Kunz, wife of the vice president of Tiffany and company. She is a flier herself.

Claims Record

KATONAH, N. Y.—A champion commuter has been discovered by the New York Central. H. S. Chapman, of this town has made the round trip to New York every business day for 29 years, covering a total mileage of 1,046,938. Katonah is 42 miles from New York.

POZNAN (AP)—Poland is celebrating her tenth anniversary of independence with a $9,000,000 exposition in this city. The exhibition buildings have been constructed with the idea of later conversion into living quarters to help solve a local housing problem. The city of Poznan and the exhibitors raised 90 per cent of the total cost.

New Rural Postal Station Installed

(Special to The Journal)

TAHOKA, July 12—A new rural sub-station post office to be known as Tahoka-New Home Rural Station, has been opened at New Home a small inland town fifteen miles northwest of here. Another such office was opened at Draw southeast of here several months ago. These sub-stations are very unique in this section, according to Postmaster D. A. Parkhurst, there being only a very few rural sub-stations in Texas.

It is reported Gene Tunney already has paid Mrs. Fogarty $62,500. You could hardly blame her for suing, could you?

Dallas Chief Flays Attack On Signals

DALLAS, July 12 (AP).—W. C. Graves, Dallas police commissioner, today ridiculed a report from Chicago that it was impossible to get pedrestrians to obey traffic lights.

"Alderman Thos. Bowler is talking through his hat and out of a gross ignorance of human nature when he said you can't make pedestrians obey the lights even with 16 cops to a corner," Graves said.

"The Dallas law which halts pedestrians on a red light is one of the most perfectly enforced and obeyed ordinances on the books. It has reduced greatly the number of accidents since enactment six years ago."

Members Of Banking Firm Are Indicted

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—Members of the firm of Clarke Brothers, a private bank that failed to open two weeks ago after having done business for 80 years, were indicted today by a federal grand jury for conspiracy and using the mails to defraud.

Three younger brothers of the founder, the late William H. Clarke, were billed—James Rae Clarke, Hudson Clarke, jr., and Philip L. Clarke—together with John F. Bouker, who joined the firm recently.

Henderson Farmer Grows Freak Plant

TROUP, July 12 (AP).—A hybrid, half irish potato and half tomato, grew on a potato vine on the M. R. Renfro farm in Henderson county. The freak vegetable was a result of cross-pollination. Some tomatoes are planted near the potato vines.

A similiar hybrid was reported by a farmer near Alto, Cherokee county.

Gilbert Swan

Going Places With Swan

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 12.—They've started calling this place, "Broadway, California."

Entering the lobby of the Roosevelt hotel is very much like crossing 44th Street and Broadway a year ago. Every one and his brother is here getting some of the California "pay dirt" that has become so easily achieved since the movies learned to talk.

Somewhere in Kansas the good old silver dollar reappears. But in the Roosevelt lobby the talk is big money. It's not the old table cloth money, which is jotted down during the noon lunch hour at the Astor—but the real do-re-me.

The bright-lights boys seem to lose their night life pallor. A healthy tan actually appears upon faces that have not known the sun in many years. They have their own cars. They talk shop incessantly and they seem to like it. I wonder what will finally happen.

Everyone from Al Jolson to Gus Edwards crosses the lobby tiling within a few hours. Edwards who has checked up more theater discoveries than I can recall, stops to tell me about his latest—a Mexican gal by the name of Ameda. She's playing lead to John Barry, more in his first talking movie, "General Crook." Stopping at the studio to say hello to Alan Crossland, who is directing, it's easy to believe that Edwards is just as right in his selections as he ever was.

What amused me was the almost religious awe in which the whole studio awaits each word of Barrymore. From card boy to officials a religious suspense awaits his each word. Oh well —

This is certainly the bonanza town for the Broadwayites! Sammy Lee, for instance, must have dropped everything but his shirt in a musical show last winter. Now he's a walking advertisement for the mint. One of Broadway's best dance arrangers, he's showing the chorines of the talkies how to step.

A group of ex-Broadwayites gather in a corner and begin to talk about the "big street." When they go back they'll have plenty of spending money. Meanwhile any number of drifters come in, "on prospect." The Roosevelt is cluttered with Broadway cinema writers who have come out here because there's little to write about at home.

Those who "want to get away from it all" go into Los Angeles to the Biltmore. There I ran into Paul Whiteman on his coast-to-coast tour. And it did seem to me that he had slipped off a few pounds. Eddie Rickenbacker was there, too, with much talk of aviation. And Steve Hannagan, who handled Jack Dempsey and Tunney, was going about as mysterious as ever. It's a funny place.

The visitor from the "big city" is, somehow-or-other, discovered "over night" and thereafter begins an onslaught of invitations. Hollywood is cluttered with "personal publicity representatives." Each of these has what Hollywood calls "a stable of performers." Immediately the visitor is invited to a hectic shindig, at which the publicity representative rounds up most of his crew and "stages a party." Somewhere betweeen evening and morning a serious effort is made to "impress" the visiting correspondent. All the virtues and possibilities of "the stable" are discussed with boresome monotony. You earn your recreation here. Most everyone seems to have a publicity "ace in the hole".

If it happens to bother me just a little bit, it's because I weary of the superficial pretense. After all, though, they have to appear in the public eye—and it's any old port in a storm, including Gilbert Swan.

Which seems to me just a little bit too bad.

SEA FISH HEALTHY FOOD AS IT CONTAINS IODIN DIETICIAN POINTS OUT

Sea Fish Are Fine for Flappers

It was Dr. E. E. Slosson who coined the phrase, "Fish are fine for Flappers." I have designated sea fish in my title. I'll give you the reason.

It has been proved conclusively that simple goiter—that is, an enlargement of the thyroid gland without any other symptoms — is due to either a deficiency of iodine in the diet or water, or to some derangement of the intestinal tract which prevents its absorption if the normal amount is taken. Young folks, especially girls around puberty, when there is rapid growth of all the organs (and women during pregnancy), are prone to have this simple goiter. Sea water is high in iodin. Therefore, sea fish (this includes shellfish) are high in iodin. Therefore, you see why sea fish are fine for flappers.

I have read that goiter is unknown in Japan. This is probably because the Japanese are the greatest fish eating nation in the world. Of course, the fact that the island is small and sea air is available to all (and sea air contains minute traces of iodin) may also account for the lack of goiter there.

Sea fish livers, especially that of the cod, contain iodin in comparatively large amounts. We have attributed the value of cod liver oil to its vitamins A and D (growth and anti-rickets vitamins). No doubt its iodin content has a share in its value.

In the so-called goiter belts, where the soil has been leeched of its iodin so that vegetation and water are lacking in it, goiter can be prevented by the use of iodin medication. Naturally, that must be supervised by a physician. This plan is advised and is being followed now by the younger population in the goiter belts, with very great success. It should be remembered that iodin is one of the needed elements for all, as it is necessary for the proper functioning of the thyroid gland, which has so much to do with the correct chemistry of the body.

So, then, let us have sea fish once or twice a week, at least, on our menus and if we feel that we may not be getting enough iodin, then use the iodized salt. Investigation of this salt has shown that no harm has ever come from its use. Or take some cod liver oil daily.

There has long been an adage that fish is a good brain food. There may be some foundation to this, especially if we say sea fish, and include the fish roe, or eggs, for these contain substances called phosphoglipins, which resemble the fats found in the tissue of the brain.

CO-OPERATION URGED TO CARRY OUT FLOOD CONTROL PLANS BY W. M. WHITTINGTON, Congressman From Mississippi.

(William Madison Whittington was born at Little Springs, Miss., May 4, 1878. He is a graduate of Mississippi college, later obtaining an L. L. B. degree from the University of Mississippi. Admitted to the bar in 1900, he began his law practice at Meadville, Miss. In 1904 he removed to Greenwood where he was a member of the city council for four years. From 1916 to 1920 he was a member of the Mississippi senate and again from 1924 to 1925. He resigned and was elected to congress from the third Mississippi district and is now serving his second term. He is a democrat and president of the Mississippi Baptist Education Commission.)

The recent request submitted to President Hoover by senators and representatives from the lower Mississippi valley, asking for an executive interpretation of the flood control act to provide for compensation for flowage rights in floodways and diversions, created an agitation for amendments to the flood control act of 1928. The interest was increased by the request of the Louisiana levee board to the chief of engineers for permission to raise the levees in the so-called fuse plug area in the vicinity of Arkansas City.

William M. Whittington

The flood of 1929, with the highest recorded gauges in the history of the Mississippi river at Greenville and Arkansas City, except in the flood of 1927, has intensified and renewed agitation for an emendatory act. The backwater area in the lower Yazoo basin was larger than estimated, and with the late high water this year, there was unprecedented damage and destruction.

Scarcely any money crops will be grown in the backwater area this year. There have been two excessive and successive floods in one season.

The flood control act provides for investigations and surveys of tributaries of the Mississippi river, and it is expected that the reports of the Yazoo river and other tributaries will be submitted in a few months.

While others may ask delay and advocate postponement, I favor continued co-operation in the execution of the project. The act itself provides for compensation for flowage rights. I maintain that the levees along the main river must be supplemented by diversion and floodways.

CHAPTER XLVIII

It was Sunday morning the fourth day of Curtis' almost fatal illness. Nan rose from a chair in the front hall and faced Dr. Black, who had just come downstairs from his usual early morning visit to the little patient. The mother and father were still with Curtis; now was Nan's opportunity, but her voice was so choked with agitation that at first the doctor could not understand what she was trying to say to him.

"Yes, yes, child! The boy's going to be all right," Dr. Black assured her, taking the girl's writhing hands and forcibly separating them. "You mustn't let yourself go like this, Nan, you'll be my patient next."

"I said—" Nan gasped, struggling to release her hands, "that if Curtis is going to get well, then I'm—I'm not needed any more, and I can go—"

"Go?" Dr. Black interrupted with sharp astonishment. "Go where, child? Are you crazy?"

"I believe I am!" Nan moaned. "If I'm not now, I will be, unless I get away! I tell you, I can't stand it any longer, Dr. Black!"

"So—you're a quitter, Nan?" the old doctor asked gently.

"Yes, a quitter, if you want to call me that!" Nan agreed passionately. "I can't stand it any longer—the three of us, John, Iris and I, under the same roof. There are some things too hard for human endurance, Dr. Black—"

"Nan, why did you marry John Curtis Morgan?" the doctor interrupted gravely.

"You knew! Because he and Curtis needed me." Nan flung up her head and glared at her former champion.

"You didn't love him?" Dr. Black insisted gently.

"That's not fair! You know I loved him—love him now with all my heart," Nan cried. "But I married him because he needed me—he and Curtis."

"And you're willing to quit now, because you believe you are no longer needed?" the doctor prodded.

"They have—her!" Nan reminded him vehemently. "They both seem to want her—more than me—"

"Listen, Nan! I'm telling you, in all serfousness, that they never needed you more . . . No, wait! Listen to me! Have you thought what would happen to John Curtis Morgan if you desert him now? You would be leaving him at the mercy of every scandal monger in the town. His fair reputation, which no one has guarded more jealously than you have, would be ruined. Iris Morgan is not his wife. As it is, with you here as a chaperon—"

A wild, hysterical laugh ripped out of Nan's throat. "That's—good!" she gasped. "I'm needed as a sop to convention! My sole functions now are to be a servant to Iris Morgan and a chaperon—oh! Delicious irony!" And she laughed again—a dreadful sound.

"Stop it, Nan!" the doctor commanded, almost roughly. "I know it's purgatory for you, child, but you've got to stick until Curtis is well enough for me to send that woman packing. I can't do it now, with the boy still as sick as he is. But I give you my word, Nan, that I'll send her back across the street as soon as Curtis is unquestionably out of danger of a relapse . . . You've borne a great deal, child. Can't you do this one thing more for the man you love?"

Nan stared at him a long minute, her eyes tragic, beaten. Then, "I suppose so," she said drearily.

And so, for another week, she endured the thousand and one humiliations which Iris' cruel ingenuity contrived for her. Like a servant, she waited upon the nurse, the child, and the woman who had taken possession of the home as if she were its legal mistress. During that week of waiting for release, which seemed like a year, Nan's only comfort was in the child. It was an exquisite joy to watch life and health slowly flowing back into his wasted little body, to see his black eyes widen and glow with welcoming love when she paid her brief, surruptitious visits to the sick room.

Every vestige of his temporary hostility to her, engendered and cruelly fostered by his mother, had disappeared. He clung to Nan with weak, demanding little hands, which she sometimes had to remove forcibly when Iris—her eyes blazing with jealousy—entered the room.

By the time another Sunday arrived, the child was so definitely convalescent that Nan was sure her hour of release was almost upon her. Her heart heavy with the pain of parting, Nan watched for her opportunity to pay what might be her last visit to little Curtis Morgan. It came at 4 o'clock that Sunday afternoon. Iris and John Morgan had been with him for a while after lunch, but were now in the drawing room together. The nurse tapped at Nan's bed room door.

"Could you sit with Curtis a while, Mrs. Morgan? I really must get out for a breath of fresh air, and Dr. Black told me to trust no one but you with giving him his medicine. It's ready on the bureau. He's to have two ounces of cereal at half past 4, too."

"I'll be very careful," Nan promised. "Please don't hurry back. I want to be with him as long as possible today."

The nurse gave her a long, measuring glance, full of sympathy and shrewd speculation. Nan turned sharply away, toward Curtis' door, for betraying tears were welling into her eyes.

"How do you feel, darling?" she asked Curtis, as she stopped to kiss his thin white cheek.

"I feel normal," the little boy told her, proud of his new word. "My pulse is normal, and my temperature is normal. I guess I'm about the normalest boy they is."

"I know what you are!" Nan cried, her voice breaking. "You're the most adorable boy 'they is,' and I love you to distraction."

"What's distraction," he demanded, interestedly. "I love you, too, Nan. I love you to distraction. But what is distraction, Nan?"

It was a happy hour, in spite of the hard ache of pain in the girl's heart. Dr. Black found them both laughing joyously over a bit of Curtis' impish nonsense when he invaded the room at 5 o'clock, followed by Iris and John Curtis Morgan.

"Well, this looks something like!" the doctor applauded.

"He says he feels 'normal,' Doctor," Nan laughed, shakily. "I'll leave you with your patient now—"

"No, young lady, you stay right here!" the doctor ordered briskly. "Let's look into this 'normal' business. Hand me his chart, please . . . Umm! Splendid! No temperature for three days. Pulse strong and regular . . . Appetite good . . . Well, well! Looks like you can't pull this invalid stuff much longer, young man!"

"Can I go back to school?" Curtis asked eagerly. "Can I, Dr. Black?"

"Pretty soon," the doctor evaded. "Well, Iris," he turned to the woman who stood, with narrowed eyes and flaring nostrils, at the foot of the bed. "You may go home this evening. No need—"

"Home?" Iris shrilled. "This is my home! . . . Jack!" She turned to her former husband, stretching out her beautiful hands. "You won't send me away from—from my baby, will you?"

The man did not answer, but Nan saw that his eyelids and mouth quivered and tightened with pain.

"Answer me, Jack!" Iris insisted, her voice rising hysterically, as she flung herself upon his breast. "Oh, Jack! I love you so! You can't send me away now! I've paid so dearly—"

As the man's arms lifted, slowly, Nan waited to see and hear no more. With a choked cry she ran from the room.

In the sanctuary of her own room she stood for a moment against the closed door, panting, dashing the tears from her eyes. Then, resolutely, she ran to her little escritoire, seated herself, pressed her fingers to her temples for a minute, then began to write furiously.

"Dear John—" she wrote. "I'm going away. I suppose Iris will have to go, too, for a while, until I can give you your legal freedom. But Curtis is doing so well now that the nurses and the servants can take care of both of you. Forgive me if I am causing you inconvenience, but I know you will be glad that I have taken this step. Please don't think I blame you—"

She was so absorbed in her letter, and her heart was pounding so furiously, that Nan did not hear the opening of the door leading into the bath room between her and her husband's room. She heard nothing, had no intimation of her husband's presence until his voice, directly behind and above her head, crashed through her intense preoccupation with grief and renunciation:

"What are you doing, Nan?"

She dropped her pen, turned in her chair and raised tragic, startled brown eyes to his face. The fact that he was smiling faintly seemed to her the most terrible of all the dreadful things which had happened to her.

"Writing to you," she managed to answer. Then she seized her almost finished letter, thrust it into his hand.

He read it at a glance; then, to her amazement, his long fingers tore it deliberately across, doubled the fragments and tore them again. The bits fluttered into the waste basket beside the little desk.

"We musn't have that—to remind us," he said huskily.

"But—but—" Nan stammered, slowly rising from her chair.

Her husband stretched out his arms, then dropped them slowly. "There is just one question, Nan, before I—throw myself on your mercy: Do you want to be free—to marry Willis Todd?"

The question was so absurd, so unexpected, that Nan stared at him blankly before she could gather her wits to answer: "Willis Todd? Are you crazy, John? Or—are you just trying to save my—pride?"

"Then—why are you going to leave me?"

Anger at the man's stupidity flared in her brown eyes and clenched her small fists. "If you will make me say it—I'm leaving you because I love you so terribly I want you to have anything you want—even Iris!" she cried furiously.

His arms reached out again, and this time they did not drop; they closed about her rigid, angry little body so fiercely that she gasped for breath.

"Darling, blind little Nan!" Morgan whispered huskily, his lips against her tossed, short brown hair. "Don't you know I don't want anyone but you?"

After an interlude in which words had no place, Nan lifted her tear-wet face from his breast. "I don't think I'm such a blind little fool as you say," she insisted tremulously.

"That night—our night—I asked you how you would feel toward Iris if you ever saw her again, and you said you didn't know—"

"I was trying to be truthful," he answered soberly. "I really didn't know. But I soon found out, darling. I felt sorry for her, a sort of pitying affection. No man can feel wholly indifferent to a woman who has been his wife for eight years. But I knew that I loved you more than ever. The contrast was—illuminating. But was deeply shocked—for all of us—when Iris came back as she did, not knowing she was divorced. Then, when I wanted to talk it all out with you, you shut me out of your heart and your room—"

"I thought you loved her," Nan told him. "I didn't want you to

ALIENATION IS CITED IN SUITS

WICHITA, Kas., July 12. (AP)—Two suits in which husbands seek a total of $195,000 for alleged alienation of affections of their wives were filed in district court here today.

Attorneys for J. L. Adamson of Blackwell, Oklahoma, filed suit for $100,000 against J. B. Yount, Wichita oil man, the petition charging Yount stole the affections of Ethel Crane Adamson, the Oklahoman's bride of three months.

M. A. Wallingford, wealthy retired stockman of Ashland, Kansas, filed suit for $95,000 against C. D. Abel, of Wichita. He alleged Abel induced Mrs. Wallingford to open a tea room at Winfield in 1927 and at that time began suit for her affections. The Wallingfords were married 26 years ago and have five children. Abel, divorced recently, gave Mrs. Wallingford expensive gifts and induced her to come to Wichita at one time, it was charged.

come to me out of a sense of duty, with Iris in your heart—"

"Poor Iris! I don't know what is to become of her, but she must not come between us again—"

"Poor Iris," a mocking voice cried from the door which Morgan had left open. "If you're really interested, Jack, read this! Read it and laugh at what a fool I almost made of myself! Read it!" she repeated, almost hysterical with triumphant joy.

Morgan's hand did not release Nan, so she was obliged to advance with him toward the woman in the doorway.

"It just came!" Iris' excited voice went on, as she extended an opened telegram toward her husband's unwilling hand. "The boy took it to my house across the street, and I wasn't there. Wasn't it lucky that one of the neighbors saw him and sent him over here with it? What a joke on me if it had come too late, too late! Read that, Jack, and don't worry about 'Poor Iris' again!"

Morgan held the telegram so that both he and Nan could read is message. It was a day letter; filed in Los Angeles:

"Just received your letters forwarded to me here. Missed you terribly. Ashamed of the way I treated you. Please forgive me. Delighted to hear of your divorce. Can you join me here immediately? Of course we will be married. Stopping at Biltmore. Lining up new proposition. All my love. Bert."

Even then, Nan tried to spare her husband. When she realized that the telegram was from Bert Crawford and that the ugly secret from which she had protected the man she loved must now come to light, she tried to cover up the signature, but John Curtis Morgan gently lifted her head, and held it against his heart as he finished reading.

"May I congratulate you, Iris?" he said, with curious gentleness, as he gave back the yellow sheet. "I hardly dared hope that Crawford would—"

As he hesitated, Iris finished his sentence for him: "Would do right by our Nell?" She laughed hysterically. Then, "Well, to tell you the truth, Jack, I didn't either, or I should never have tried to make you take me back! Well—thank heaven heaven for that quixotic sense of honor of yours, Jack! You two ought to be happy, you're both so damnably good! . . . I've got to run now, and pack! If I hurry, I'll just have time to make the 8:10 for Los Angeles."

When she had gone forever, leaving a ripple of excited laughter and invisible wreaths of perfume behind her, Nan turned puzzled, incredulous eyes upon her husband.

"You—knew about Bert Crawford and Iris?"

"Yes," he agreed, without explanation. "Otherwise I should have waited much longer to get a divorce. Judge Haskell knew, too, but he agreed to my keeping the charge of—infidelity out of the divorce petition. . . . But—let's try to forget it all now, and be happy. There's a very important subject to be considered—our belated honeymoon. Would you very much mind, darling, if a certain little convalescent joined us?"

Surgeon Says Planes To Spread Diseases Rapidly

PORTLAND, Ore., July 12. (AP)—A prediction that the airplane may cause the rapid spread of plagues throughout the world was made here today by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummins head of the United States health bureau, attending the American Medical Association convention.

The health officer said the greatest danger of a sweeping epidemic like the plagues of old lurks today in India.

"And airplanes may carry death to India," he said. "Dangerous plauge spots still exist in the world and the coming of the airplane may spread disease far more rapidly than it ever spread before."

CLEAN-UP IN LAMESA HELD

CITY IS UNDERGOING IMPROVEMENT THIS WEEK IN DRIVE

(Special to The Journal)

LAMESA, July 12—The third big annual clean-up drive launched by the civic department of the local chamber of commerce got under way Monday of this week. J. E. Barron is general chairman of the drive and has captains and subcaptains working under him in all sections of the city.

The drive is launched to cover extensively the entire city and ridding the incorporation of old cars, weeds, cans, and all unsightly obstacles that mar the looks and health of the populace. Lamesa will after this week, be one of the cleanest cities in all West Texas, so says Barron. Mayor E. E. Warren has declared a clean up proclamation for the week and the city officials are co-operating with the entire citizenship for a cleaner town. Along with the large number of trees and shrubbery planted in Lamesa last spring the clean-up now will add considerably to the already attractive appearance of the city.

The Most Unreasonable Cuss!

Mr. and Mrs. Snowshoe Al Engage in Correspondence —Mostly Collect—With Their Hard-Boiled Landlord

By SNOWSHOE AL

THE author submits the following correspondence to uphold his claim that our present-day landlords are narrow-minded and ill-tempered.

April 15, 1929.

Dear Snowshoe Al:

My building contains 60 apartments, including one occupied by you. I have received complaints from 59 of my tenants to the effect that you and your wife indulged in a loud, disturbing battle every night last week. I ask you, is that nice?

Sincerely,
Adolph Schmeercase.

SNOWSHOE AL

April 20, 1929.

My Dear Al:

I have a leter before me from Mrs. Matilda Eaglebeak, who occupies the apartment directly beneath yours. Mrs. Eaglebeak complains that last Thursday mroning there was a short but terrific rumpus in your apartment, and it brought down considerable plaster from her ceiling, thereby smashing a table lamp and two vases.

It also shook three pictures from her walls and caused her canary to die of heart failure. I am sending Mrs. Eaglebeak my personal check for $50 to help soothe her feelings, and I'd appreciate it very much if you would be a trifle more careful in the future.

Respectfully,
Adolph Schmeercase.

SNOWSHOE AL

April 25, 1929.

Dear Al:

You undoubtedly have in your possession a copy of the lease you signed last October, and I respectfully call your attention to a clause therein which prohibits the keeping of cats, dogs or other animals in my building.

Mrs. Ostheimer, who lives across the hall from you, has just called me on the phone to inform me that your front door was open this morning and she saw six little white kittens playing on one of your rugs. I am compelled to ask you where the six kittens came from. Respectfully,

Adolph Schmeercase.

April 30, 1929.

Mr. Snowshoe Al:

I have received several letters from ladies in the Schmeercase Apartments who seem to be under the impression that you are maintaining a "beer flat." They call my attention to the fact that you show no signs of having a legitimate occupation; in fact, they claim you seldom leave the building. They further state that your apartment sometimes shakes with uproarious laughter during the daytime. I certainly do not want a beer flat in my building and I hope the ladies are wrong about this. I should be pleased to hear from you—by MAIL. Lay off the COLLECT telegrams!

Yours truly,

Seems to be looking up, and lots all over town are worth a little more money than they were 60 or 90 days ago. STOCKS TAKE RISE TODAY

OPENING SEES HIGHER ACTIVITIES; NEW UTILITIES UP

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—The stock market was lifted sharply higher at the opening today, when feverish buying cropped out in the Utilities. A block of 11,600 shares of Consolidated Gas was taken at 144, a new top and up 7 1-2 points; a block of 20,000 shares of United Gas Improvement at 53, a new high and up 1 1-2 points, and a block of 15,000 shares of National Power and Light, up 3 1-2 points. Public Service of New Jersey, United Aircraft and Montgomery Ward rose 2 to 3 points, Auburn Auto 4 1-2, Union Carbide 3 1-2, and several issues mounted 1 to 2 points.

Loans Inspire

The impressive bullish demonstration was inspired by the decline in brokers loans, which, although amounting to only $14,000,000, came after about a month of successive large increases.

A block of 10,000 shares of U. S. Steel was taken at 200 1-4, up 1-4 points. Underwood Elliott Fisher rose 7 points, Commercial Solvents, Midland Steel products preferred, Westinghouse Electric, Johns Manville, General Electric and National Supply 4 to 5. In the utility group, Standard Gas and Electric and American Power and Light also reached new record prices in moderate advances.

American Can Up.

American Can once more reached new high ground with a gain of about a point, and other shares moving up 1 to 2 points included American Telephone, Radio, Anaconda, International Telephone, Gold Dust, New York Central, American International, Northern Pacific, Kroger Groceries, Gillette, Safeway Stores, Bethlehem Steel, National Cash Register and Curtiss Aero. Texas Corp., however, sagged nearly a point.

Foreign exchanges opened barely steady, with cables 1-16 lower at $4.85 1-16.

YOUTHS DISCOVER CAREER IS SHORT

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 12 (AP).—Clyde Farrar and Elmer Windham, 14 year old Oklahoma City Youths, discovered a career as an Oklahoma bank bandit can be brief. They were in jail tonight, after admitting robbing the First National bank of Edmond, Okla., of $730 late Thursday.

The boys hopped rides to Edmond this morning and decided to get some money from the bank.

Windham, he told officers slipped into the bank, snatched a stack of bills from a tellers window and ran outside were Farrar was waiting. They then went to the Oklahoma City highway, where they were waiting to get a ride back home when caught.

"I hadn't any idea I got so much money" Windham told county officers tonight. "It must have been all the bank had."

Lubbock Man Could Hardly Get Around At Times, He Says

Before Taking Orgatone Loftis Had Suffered 10 Years From Rheumatism

"Before I started taking Orgatone at times I was so badly crippled up with rheumatism in my legs that I could hardly get around, but it's different with me now," said H. P. Loftis, a well known farmer living in rural route 5, Lubbock, Texas, recently.

"I had been in a bad fix for going on ten years," continued Mr. Loftis, "of course, not so bad all the time as I have been for the past two years, but enough to make me suffer a lot. My legs pained me so at times, I could hardly get any sleep for the agony I suffered. Then, about five years ago, stomach trouble set in, and nearly everything I ate disagreed with me, and I suffered a lot with gas and bloating and finally got so I lived mostly on light diets but that didn't seem to help me any and I got awfully weak and run down. This rheumatism and stomach trouble caused me a lot of worry because I really wasn't fit to do my work as I wanted to. I had tried all kinds of medicines, and treatments without being helped any and got so I never expected to be well again.

"Then I read about Orgatone and saw a statement by a man I know so I decided to give Orgatone a trial and I'll never forget how that medicine started right in to help me—it was simply wonderful and I could hardly believe it myself. I hadn't finished the first bottle until I was feeling a lot better so I kept on taking the medicine and now my rheumatism is not only completely gone, but all my stomach trouble as well, and I can sit down to the table now and eat as big a meal as anyone else. I am just so thankful to be free from my troubles that I can't say too much in praise of Orgatone."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific preparation and is sold in Lubbock, exclusively by the Bowens Drug Store, who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

COTTON OPENING IS QUIET TODAY

NEW ORLEANS, July 12 (AP).—The cotton market opened quiet but steady with higher cables responsible for an initial gain of 5 to 6 points. As the weather was dry and crop accounts were favorable the market weakened and October dropped to 18.18 to 18.12 and December from 18.39 to 18.32, or one point under yesterday's close.

Trading was only moderate and at the end of the first hour the market was quiet and near the lows.

More or less trade buying followed reports of weevil damage in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas and after easing off 8 to 9 points October rallied to 18.28 and December 18.44, or 14 to 15 points above the lows. The market was quiet all morning with trading slack. At midsession the undertone was steady and prices were near the top.

MARKET IS FAIRLY AT OPENING IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP).—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 9 points to a decline of 2 points. There was a little covering by July shorts and some buying of later deliveries on relative steady cables, but the demand was supplied by selling on a favorable view of weathe rreports.

October eased off from 18.29 to 18.26 but offerings were not heavy an dthe market while somewhat irregular held fairly steady within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotation at the end of the first half hour.

Offerings were light later, and prices worked higher on covering which may have been inspired by a belief the technical position had strengthened sufficient to warrant expectations of a week-end rally. The better tone reported in the stock market, was also a factor on the advance and the market at midday was steady with October at 18.38 and January at 18.57, or about 6 to 12 points net higher.

OIL NEWS NOTES

WICHITA FALLS, July 12 (AP)—The old northwest pool, northwest of Burkburnett in Wichita county, in 1920 said to have been the most active pool in the nation, made a bid for a comeback today with a discovery by the American Refining company of a new sand in the heart of the district.

The company's number 5, Mrs. Lillis Morgan well, Lucinda Meadows' survey, topped the new sand at 1,553 feet and has an estimated flow of 150 barrels daily. The field generally had been regarded as depleted.

LIBERTY, July 12 (AP).—The Yount Lee Mitchell oil well number 17 came in at South Liberty last night with a reported estimated initial flow of 800 barrels 22 gravity oil daily. Pay was struck at 3,787 feet.

WICHITA, Kan., July 12 (AP).—The Greenwich oil pool of Sedgwick county was extended a mile and a half to the northeast today when the Miller estate well, by Hartman and Skaer, began flowing within ten minutes after the bit struck the chat at 3,890 feet.

The well is in the SE NW of 2-26-2, a mile and a half from the Lygrisse well, the pool opener.

Bank President Held For Banks' Failures

BARTOW, Fla., July 12 (AP).—John L. Fouts, president and director of four central Florida banks, all of which failed on May 15, was arrested late last night on information filed by State Solicitor Hardin Peterson, charging him with having violated the state banking laws.

Ben Sayers, Scotch professional, once won a wager by playing a course in fours—18 of them.

WITHINGTON

deaf ears. Mr. Creager decided to make an effort to convince the national leaders there was a chance in Texas.

Had Survey Made

"He had an elaborate survey of the situation prepared and he asked five Hoover democrats and a group of republicans to go to Washington to explain the situation and show that we had a chance to win. He said the Texas republican campaign fund would pay $200 toward the expenses of each of the democrats.

"Everyone knows that $200 will not begin to pay the expense of a 10-day trip to Washington and Chicago. These busy men gave their time and made no charge, but were reimbursed for part of their traveling expenses. No payment but this $200 was made to Senator Love, and this was done at Mr. Creager's insistence.

"No letter carriers' contributions went toward Senator Love's $200 which was paid out of an initial campaign fund raised to start the campaign by a dozen or more leading republicans."

WAR BREWING

Eastern followed seizure first of its Soviet agencies in Northern Manchuria telephone and telegraph agencies and arrest of certain Russian officials and employes. M. Melnikov immediately demanded release of the imprisoned men by noon yesterday. The Chinese seized the remainder of the road forthwith. All churia were closed and the labor unions disbanded.

The Chinese Eastern railway was constructed by the Russian imperial regime at a cost of 350,000,000 rubles (about $180,000,000) and was a contributing factor to the Russo-Japanese war. Hitherto under two agreements, dated 1920 and 1924, its directorate has been a board of ten, half Russian and half Chinese.

Advices from Changchun state the Chinese have completed taking over the railway works there and have arrested several Soviet officials, sending them to Harbin.

Reserves Join Forces.

Soviet reservists in the Chinese Eastern railway zone are reported to have received orders to join the forces in Siberia.

A Manchuli dispatch, describing the crossing of the border by the first Russians deported, quotes leading officials as threatening: "We are leaving empty handed, but will return with rifles."

Chinese troops in Manchuria are estimated to be an equivalent of fifteen divisions.

KANSAS SEES CHANCE FOR RELIEF IN FLOOD

TOPEKA, Kas., July 12 (AP).—Clear skies today offered some relief to Central and Southern Kansas, swept by flood waters as the result of heavy rains, at Hutchinson and Salina, and other smaller towns, anxiously waited for possible inundation.

Bull creek last night reached its crest at Sterling after entering several store buildings and filling basements. Today the water was receding. Sterling is believed in no danger from waters of Cow creek which still threatens to invade the fashionable north end district at Hutchinson.

Farther south, along the Arkansas river and other lesser streams, a flood condition prevailed but no new danger of inundation of towns was reported. Great damage has bbeen done to farm lands and wheat still in the fields.

One death was reported in the flood when Roberta Audrye Orange, 11, drowned in McPherson while wading in flood waters in the yard of her home.

VALUATIONS IN SULPHUR LANDS LOW

ADMISSION REVEALS LAND SOLD AT $100 RENDERED AT $14

(By Associated Press)

WHARTON, July 12—An admission that land that had sold for $100 an acre was rendered for tax purposes for about $14 was made at today's hearing here into the valuation of sulphur properties of Wharton county.

A citizen's committee is attempting to show that the properties of the Texas Gulf Sulphur company in this county should be rendered at $120,000,000 for tax purposes instead of $4,000,000, claimed by the company to be the value of the properties.

The admission was gained on the cross-examination of Brooks Gary, who testified regarding the leasing of a 100-acre tract and a 30-acre tract to the company.

The sulphur company placed on the stand J. F. Hutchins, manager of the Pierce estate, who testified that the estate produced a net earning of $144,000 in 1927. This move was looked on as an effort to show that tax values were discriminatory in the county, giving the company grounds to carry the case to the higher courts should the commissioners' court here rule against it in this hearing.

MOSCOW (AP)—The city of Moscow is planning to establish a health resort a few miles from the city in a heavily wooded tract whose aromatic atmosphere, according to physicians, is more efficacious in the cure of certain wide-spread ailments than the sub-tropical climate of the resorts in South Russia. STRANGE SEQUEL TO CASE BEGUN

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 12 (AP).—A strange sequel to the case of Henry D. Olson, found innocent of killing a filling station attendant after being convicted of the crime and sentenced to prison, was begun here today.

A fifty thousand dollar damage suit against the lawyer who defended Olson, Harry B. North, was filed by Olson who charges that North knew the real slayers and permitted Olson to make the long fight for his life and receive the prison sentence.

After his conviction, Olson jumped his bond and did not know the real slayers, two Rockford youths, now in prison, had been found until he read the Associated Press account, telling him he might go home.

After the boys confessed the killing Olson returned to Rockford, appeared in courtand was declared innocent.

The other suit is that of J. Q. Hanna vs. P. G. Webb, seeking $500 damages, and charging dispossession of four lots.

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—American tariffs on herring and granite mean much hereabouts. Last year 40,000 barrels of herring left northeast Scotland for the United States. James Stewart, president of the Aberdeen Chamber of Commerce, said that an increase in the duty on granite would leave the trade "as dead as those for whose resting place the stone is often intended."
