Doors Always Open—On the Air—Modest Wichitans—In 72 Point—

Editors and newspaper owners of Northwest Texas in convention here have long paid Wichita Falls a pretty compliment in the selection of this city as the meeting place each year. Wichita Falls in return values no friendships more highly than those which have linked the common interests of Wichita Falls and its neighbor cities through the press of this section. It perhaps may be too much to expect that this tradition be continued indefinitely, yet Wichita Falls will be sorely disappointed if it is unable to welcome editors of Northwest Texas again in 1929.

Wichita Falls radio fans who have not done so should desert their dials for one night in the near future and pay a visit to the local station whose programs have received such wide acclaim since the opening a few night ago. Judging from the number of telegrams pouring in to KGKO, it is headed for a place as the most popular station in Texas.

If efficiency and ability in work and courtesy and desire to please the public in manner mean anything in the radio world, then the staff of the station here will not be long in making KGKO known over the nation.

Wichita Falls has long needed a radio station, an agency to broadcast to the world the talents of our entertainers, the possibilities of this section and the worth of our commercial enterprises. These duties are some times performed by the residents of a town by the power of their lungs, but not so Wichita Falls. The Wichitan abroad is the most modest person known in a nation of advertisers.

◆ ◆ ◆

If this writer picked a quarrel with the average resident of Wichita Falls, it would be that the average resident of this city is too little conscious of the possibilities and accomplishments of his home town. We have an unusually large number of men and women who unselfishly devote a considerable portion of their time to the upbuilding of Wichita Falls in every way. But, too, many of ardlardlardladladlu too many of us pittle about our small daily tasks with little thought or pride in their accomplishments, or faith in their visions.

◆ ◆ ◆

Man power and woman power, determination and loyalty from bank president to day laborer, build more cities than abundant natural resources. Wichita Falls can count off more than half its population, industries and wealth as being the creation of individual enterprise and ability. It could easily be a half-abandoned boom town of temporary structures but for the courage and work in the past of a few leaders. And if you don't believe cities with populations in the thousands can become deserted, visit with the once-roaring now abandoned mining towns in the Rockies.

◆ ◆ ◆

There is a "country correspondent" who has served this newspaper for two years with a devotion that is surprising. His sole interest is to secure publicity which he hopes will aid his home town, a village that doesn't even secure mention on most maps. Each news item is prepared with infinite pains, and thoroughly read and discussed if it appears in print. He has the aid of the village citizenship which counts the days in the hope that the magic of publicity will begin to work.

◆ ◆ ◆

Good things should come to such men and such towns. And in this case, the writer has come to hope with the village that something fine—or disastrous—it's the same in newspaper publicity—will happen to the town, so that its name will be blazoned across Page One in 72-point instead of tucked away on the Market Page with a 12-point caption.

CARNES AFFAIR STARTS ACTION

Baptist Executive Board Favors Plan

DALLAS, Sept. 7. (AP)—Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, at a meeting of the executive board of the Baptist general convention of Texas here today recommended that the affairs of every home mission board in the state handling money should be investigated to the fullest extent.

Dr. Truett returned yesterday from Atlanta, where he and former Governor Pat M. Neff sat upon the board which uncovered a shortage of $1,000,000 in the accounts of Clinton S. Carnes, former treasurer of the Baptist home missionary board.

"If any person connected with a church organization does not beg for an investigation of his affairs after the scandal at Atlanta, he should be discharged in 15 minutes," declared Dr. Truett.

While 50 per cent of the money collected in Texas goes to Atlanta for disbursement, the remainder stays in Dallas and is disbursed from here, it was explained.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR CARNES' HOLDINGS

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 7. (UP)—The first legal action against Clinton S. Carnes, missing Southern Baptist Home Mission board treasurer, resulted today in appointment of receivers for his holdings.

Thomas Howell Scott, Atlanta lawyer, and Leon O'Neal, realtor were named by Superior Court Judge J. B. Hutcheson to conserve all assets of Carnes until a complete audit reveals the extent of shortage in his mission board accounts, preliminary estimated at $1,000,000.

AGENTS HELD IN BRIBE PLOT

Harry Sinclair's Attorney Traps Revenuers

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (UP)—Two middle-aged revenue agents who were said to have tried to out-smart Harry F. Sinclair were released on bail today pending the action of a federal grand jury after one of them had been caught with $10,000 of alleged bribe money tucked away in the crown of his Panama hat.

Federal agents arrested Elmer F. Andrews as he was leaving the office of Sinclair's attorney, Reginald W. Ragland. They took off his hat and down about his shoulders fluttered the $10,000 in marked bills.

The oil magnate identified them as the ones he had given to the attorney to give to Andrews, a revenue agent, and the case was immediately presented to the grand jury by United States Attorney Tuttle.

Tuttle said Andrews and a fellow agent, Edward F. Brown, had offered to save Sinclair a quarter of a million dollars on his 1925-26 income tax for a bribe of $87,500. The $10,000 in marked money was alleged to have been first payment on the bribe.

Sinclair claimed exemption for $250,000 representing losses on his racing stable and $1,250,000 representing losses in the Selah Oil company. Brown was sent out by the government to check up on the losses.

According to the evidence presented to the grand jury by Tuttle, Brown and Andrews offered to report the losses as acceptable if Sinclair would pay them for their trouble. The oil man is said to have asked for an opportunity to consult with his attorneys.

Attorney Ragland then set the trap by which Andrews was caught.

Brown and Andrews were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Cotter. Brown's bail was fixed at $2,500 and Andrews' at $3,500.

Court's Decision in Demo Fight Timed Just Before Meeting Today

Leaders of Opposing Factions Clash in Hearing on Injunction Plea Before Judge Martin

J. W. Nicholson, erstwhile chairman of precinct 17, the Carrigan school, and one time member of the Democratic county executive committee, predicted Friday afternoon that he would occupy his "rightful place" on the committee at a called meeting at the courthouse Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Edgar Scurry, county chairman, was emphatic in his statement that he would not recognize Mr. Nicholson as a committee member at Saturday's session.

Hearing of evidence in the petition of Mr. Nicholson that Mr. Scurry be restrained from removing him from the committee and from appointing a successor to Mr. Nicholson was completed before Judge P. A. Martin in 89th district court Friday afternoon, but no decision will be handed down until 9 o'clock Saturday morning, just a few hours before the meeting of the committee, Judge Martin announced Friday.

Court Test

The injunction hearing is the first protest to be made in the courts of the dismissal last Tuesday of 15 members from the county executive committee by a vote of 13 to 24.

Alton V. Grant represented Mr. Nicholson at the hearing and Mr. Scurry was represented by C. C. McDonald and F. W. Fischer.

Hearing of testimony in the case, in which both Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Scurry were called upon by the opposing counsel grew heated at intervals.

"I don't think I signed a pledge to support the Democratic nominee," replied Mr. Nicholson to a defense question, "but if I did it was with reservation."

"Mental reservation, Mr. Nicholson?" suggested a defense attorney.

"Well, yes, and I made an agreement with the committee that if Al Smith were nominated I would not support him," Mr. Nicholson replied.

Mr. Grant then began an examination of Mr. Scurry.

"Do you expect to allow Mr. Nicholson to participate as a member of the executive committee?" he asked.

"I certainly will not allow Mr. Nicholson or any other Republican to have a voice in affairs of the Democratic executive committee," Mr. Scurry replied heatedly.

"Will you state to the court the reasons why you will not allow Mr. Nicholson to participate in the activities of the committee after he has been duly elected as a precinct chairman?" Mr. Grant asked.

Defense attorneys objected to the question, but Mr. Scurry waived aside the protests, stating that he desired to answer the question.

"For the reason that the Democratic executive committee is a body organized by the Democratic party to transact its business and no traitor or deserter has a right there to further the interests of the Republican party," Mr. Scurry said.

At the conclusion of the hearing

SMITH SCORED BY SPEAKER

Thomas Bitter in His Personal Abuse

Assailing Al Smith as an implement of Tammany hall, as a steadfast supporter of liquor interests and a friend of Harlem, New York's negro colony, and praising Herbert Hoover as a farm boy, a mining engineer, a statesman and a Democrat, Bascom Thomas addressed a gathering of about 400 at Bellevue park Friday evening in the interest of the Republican candidate for president.

The prelude to Mr. Thomas' attack upon Governor Smith, whom he variously characterized as a "liar, a disgrace to the nation, a tool of Tammany hall and a depraved degenerate spawn of humanity," was an eulogy to bolters.

"It is in good company which I found myself," Mr. Thomas eulogized party bolters. "Even in modern times we find the bolters. Woodrow Wilson bolted the Democratic party. So did W. J. Bryan and Grover Cleveland."

Predicts Victory

In his opening remarks Mr. Thomas deplored the need of the Smith following for "the old time religion." He predicted that Hoover would carry Texas by a majority of 100,000.

"Al Smith," he declared, "is not fit to be elected dogcatcher in this or any other state of the union.

"Smith is dishonest. His record shows that. Four times he took oath as governor of New York to enforce the laws. He did not enforce them, but repealed the state prohibition amendment in New York," Thomas charged.

Mr. Thomas referred to a list which he said was a record of Smith's vote on various local option and prohibition laws which he previously had read and which he said he had copied from a radio address a few days ago. Mr. Thomas frequently prefixed his charges and statements with "it has been said."

"It has been said," he intoned, "That Hoover two years ago entered an order segregating the whites and the blacks in his de-

Woman Prosecutor Flays Press In Attack On Al's Tammany Record

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Sept. 7. (UP)—In a severe attack on Governor Smith and Tammany hall, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, appealed to the Ohio conference of Methodist Episcopal ministers tonight to unite their forces behind Herbert Hoover.

Mrs. Willebrandt declared that Tammany "for underworld connections and political efficiency is matched no place else in America."

She said Smith was the one governor in the entire country who "pulled down one of the 46 pillars the people had erected" for support of the 18th amendment.

"But the audacious governor was unconvinced by such reasoning," she continued. "Tammany wanted the least possible prohibition. Tammany had reared him; gave him his power. Tammany's desires were his convictions."

"They have prepared well for this critical hour," Mrs. Willebrandt continued. "Newspapers in rural and Southern communities were bought by New York money and have switched from a long settled dry policy to preaching the doctrine of 'it can't be d—'"

LOOP SHOOTING AND BOMBING ROCKS CHICAGO

Henchman of Al Capone Killed On Crowded Street

COP'S HOUSE BLASTED

Double Outbreak Causes Fear of Another Gang War

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. (UP)—Boldly defying the law today, the underworld spoke with bombs and bullets in two separate outbursts which resulted in damaging a police captain's home and in the death of Tony Lombardo, reputed liquor "king" and former henchman of Al "Scarface" Capone.

The shooting of Lombardo in the center of the loop district was the most daring affront the underworld has made to the law in many months. Thousands of persons enroute to their homes were thrown into a frenzy when two men drew revolvers from their pockets and shot down Lombardo and Jimmy Ferraro, a companion. Ferraro is in a critical condition in a hospital.

The shooting occured a few hours after the home of Captain Luke J. Garrick, commander of the Des-

Plaines street police station was bombed. The bombing caused police heads to fear the underworld was preparing a resumption of reprisal attacks such as occurred here a few months ago.

Bombed After Raid

Garrick had lead a squad of men armed with axes to crash the doors of the Minerva Inn, a noted gambling dive, and the bomb was believed to be the underworld's reply.

Lawrence "Dago" Mangano, owner of the gambling house, was arrested and booked for the bombing when witnesses told authorities he had boasted he would "blow Garrick's home sky high."

Mrs. Anna E. Garrick, wife of the police captain, who was suffering from heart disease, was buried from her bed by the blast and suf-

SCHOOLS PLAN NEW METHOD

Pupils to Talk Most in St. Louis Classes

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7. (UP)—Pupils will do more than 80 per cent of the talking in the St. Louis public schools under a new plan of instruction inaugurated this year. Teachers, with their allotment of but 20 per cent, will use their time in stimulating the minds of the students to induce self-activity in "thinking and problem solving."

Conscientious teachers have had this method of instruction in mind for some time, thinking the pupils should be guided particularly in emotional development, character and appreciation for music, literature and fine arts.

F. M. Underwood, district superintendent for schools in the southern half of the city, directly responsible for the origin of the plan here, explained the method worked out by himself with the aid of principals of schools in his district.

The outline includes problems in history, geography, literature and other subjects selected to challenge the curiosity and capacities of pupils and thus give them knowledge through direct thought rather than the former method of memorization, imitation and the mere following of instructions.

To Study Politics

This year, under the new plan, pupils will learn the essential facts about the first presidential campaign in which William Jennings Bryan was a candidate by imagining themselves voters of the period expected to judge for themselves the party deserving support and their stands on the free silver and other questions.

Debates and discussions growing out of the differences between pupils are expected to give them permanent knowledge of the party differences and national conditions during that period.

In like manner, they will study geography from the general standpoint of social and economic factors finding out, by deduction, the reasons for the locations of large cities, industrial centers, agricultural districts and other general information.

Memorizing will be ordered only when the need for it is clearly apparent. It would be necessary in forming habits of correct pronounciation, physical posture, writing forms and like problems, but mastery of history dates and other statistics will be reduced to a minimum, Underwood said.

Character Building

He believes that character building which will result from correct emotional development is the most important need of school children today and that, properly directed, emotional reactions in children during their school years will do more than any other one factor in decreasing the number of criminals, morons, delinquents and other unsocial members of society.

According to the district superintendent, the field of emotional education has been but lightly touched by even the most modern of handbooks of education and for that reason efforts in that direction will be somewhat slow and clumsy at first.

"It is the biggest thing in education today," Underwood said. "Juvenile authorities have discovered that the most outstanding characteristics about inmates of institutions for juvenile delinquents is their violent emotional reactions. It is their inability to control their emotions that has caused them to commit the crimes which placed them in reformatories. It is the emotions and not intellect that causes crime.

"In emotional teaching, the success or failure of the plan will depend entirely upon the teacher. She must have the creative abilities of a playwright and producer in providing settings which will stimulate the emotions of her pupils to create receptive moods. More important than that, she must appreciate music, literature, notable characters in history, and the beauty of things herself, else she can never give appreciation to her pupils."

Tax Imposed by Chicago Racketeers Exacts Huge Tribute From Practically Every Line of Business

Here's what has often happened in cases where membership in a racketeer's "protective organization" (at high fees) has been declined by a business man. This picture shows wreckage in one of many Chicago bombings. Inset is Terry Druggan, former iron-handed "beer baron," who was prominent in the "beer racket" in Chicago.

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of eight daily articles on racketeering, the nation's new "big business," by James P. Kirby, special writer for this newspaper and NEA Service.

By JAMES P. KIRBY
NEA Service Writer

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Within the past year 27 manufacturers with payrolls aggregating $10,000,000 moved out of Chicago because they would not or could not pay the tribute demanded by the racketeer, according to information compiled by the Chicago Chamber of Commerce.

Out of the maze of ingenious rackets operating in Chicago, it is difficult to single out the most glaring example of effrontery on the part of the racketeer, who uses dynamite and stench bombs, kidnaping and mayhem to enforce his demands.

Take building excavation as an example. Engineers employed by the racket, according to Walter G. Walker, former assistant state's attorney and now counsel for the Employers' association, survey the area to be excavated and then notify the contractor that he should add sufficient to his bid to guarantee five cents per cubic yard to the racket.

The average contractor has learned by experience that it is cheaper to comply with this demand than to attempt to reconstruct steam shovels and engines after the job has been sprinkled with "pineapples," as bombs are called.

Retail fish dealers have learned that the racket's price is cheaper than stench bombs thrown into their stores or kerosene spilled over bins. Fruit and vegetable dealers, with practically no police protection, have decided it is better to pay than to suffer a similar or worse fate.

The cleaning and dyeing industry is the most highly organized and perhaps the most lucrative to the racketeer. Its ramifications are amazing and include four distinct groups of employers and employes, all interwoven in such a manner as to appear to contradict the ordinarily accepted divisions of capital and labor.

In the retail group, employer and employe are in one group all paying initiation fees and dues to the racketeer. Prices are kept up and any cleaner reducing prices to stimulate business generally gets a bomb or finds that clothing has been destroyed.

According to authoritative information, many of the garages in Chicago pay $1 a month to the racketeers for each car stored. Motorists have found it advisable to patronize these garages. Those who use other garages have found tires and the tops of their cars slashed. In one day in Chicago recently, 61 cases of such automobile sabotage were reported.

Attempts have been made to form a racket among apartment house janitors, and the milk men and the ice and the ash and the garbage men in racket-controlled groups have been instructed to withhold their services from apartments where janitors are not contributing to a racket.

The racketeers also sought to dominate a butler and housemaids union, and apparently became so powerful in this group that the American Federation of Labor revoked the charter of this organization. Organized labor has strongly opposed the rackets and has appointed a special committee to investigate the activity of the racketeers. It has denounced former labor leaders such as the late "Big Tim" Murphy, who is said to have been involved in some of the rackets and was a victim of racketeering vengeance early this summer.

Not only are business organizations the target of the racketeer but the professional man as well has been more recently singled out.

The racketeer recognized the possibilities of making physicians, who are subject to late night calls in outlying sections of the city, pay for the protection membership in the newest racket would assure.

So suddenly there appeared the announcement that an organization of physicians and surgeons was ready for members and the doctors were invited to join. By whom? Well, not by a physician. The invitation was extended by one Izzy Braverman, once indicted along with "Big Tim" Murphy and numerous other racketeers for the murder of a police lieutenant, and later acquitted.

The Chicago Medical society, through its official journal, advised its members against joining the "league," and thus far it has made little headway. The principal advantage to the doctors invited to join was the promise that fees long overdue from patients, would be collected, at 25 per cent to the league.

Perhaps the methods used by the collectors are methods not ordinarily sanctioned by members of the medical profession, for there are many ways of making a man pay.

Monday: What Chicago is doing to clean up racketeering.

SCOPE OF RACKET IS WIDE ONE

No business or profession seems immune from the racketeers in Chicago, so tremendously have racketeering organizations spread. Excavating contractors have found it cheaper to add five cents a cubic yard to their bid, as tribute to the racketeers, than to replace dynamited steam shovels and wrecked machinery.

Fish dealers find it cheaper than having their stores befouled with stench bombs; grocers pay rather than have coal oil sprinkled over their vegetables; the cleaners and dyers have learned their lesson.

Public garages pay a tribute of $1 per month per car rather than have their patrons' tires and tops slashed.

Even physicians and surgeons have been caught in the net.

Child's Love For Parents Is Only Uncritical Admiration, Says Dix

Sad Plight of the Bachelor Who Married, and Whose Wife Expects Him to Act as a Model for the Children—An Old-Fashioned Husband With a Modern Wife—A Case of Marrying Mother, Too.

Dear Miss Dix—When I married I was an old bachelor well set in my ways. I loved my pipe, my ease, my beer, my frankly yellow-back novels and magazines, my cigarets and a good game or so. My wife is a splendid woman, a good cook and manager, a fine mother and homemaker. We have plenty of money and seven children. But here is the trouble:

My wife has taught the children to adore, trust and idealize me. They think I can do no wrong, and I have had to give up all my agreeable vices because I have to live up to what they think father is. So I go to Sunday school and church and shave every day and dress for dinner and am particular in my table manners, because the children expect it of me.

Now my wife is teaching our 14-year-old son how to be a modern perfect husband when he marries, and I have set the example. I find myself writing a list so I'll remember our wedding anniversary and the wife's birthday. I find a perfect husband must be gentle, courteour, tender, loyal, true, a pal and chum, affectionate, and so on. Well, my virtues are nothing to get excited about yet, but where will it end? Don't you feel sorry for me?

A "PERFECT GENTLEMAN."

Answer: I'll say it is a strain to have to live up to one's blue china and always put the best foot foremost, but you must feel repaid for all it costs you when you receive the adulation of your youngsters.

There is nothing in the world as flattering and that goes quite as much to our hearts as to have a child admire us and believe in us and aspire to be what we are. It is the only uncritical admiration any of us ever get, for even the grown-ups who approve of us do so with reservations. They think that we are beautiful—but we make up and get our complexions at the drug store. We are clever—but a little over-rated. We have achieved success—but it was mostly a matter of luck. And so on.

But to the child we are little tin gods. We can do no wrong. We are the fountain of wisdom and goodness and nobility and courage. We are incarnate virtue, and so, because we could not bear the look of disillusionment in the worshiping eyes, we have to live up to what the child thinks of us, no matter how much it cramps our natural style.

But I will say, O martyr to virtue, that you are a good picker of a wife, and that there has been no more astute husband-manager since the days of Scheherazade than you have got. Personally, I salute her with reverence and admiration because she proves my favorite theory.

Which is: That it is better to feed a husband on applesauce than on lemon frappe, and that if wives would spend more time extolling their husbands' virtues and less in knocking their faults they would get better results.

For great is the power of suggestion. Let a wife once firmly implant in her husband's mind the idea that she considers him a sort of domestic Simon Legree, so she doesn't expect anything of him but grouchiness and neglect, and the man almost inevitably adopts that attitude toward her. What's the use, he thinks, of doing anything for a woman who is going to nag and find fault, no matter what he does and who doesn't understand or appreciate him, anyway.

On the contrary, if the wife celebrates her husband's good qualities in the market place, if she brags of his goodness to her and exhibits his presents to admiring and envious friends, if she tells how he never forgets an anniversary, why he simply has to make good. He has to understudy the fancy sketch that she has made to the public.

If you don't believe this, just watch the face of the next man when his wife is telling the neighbors that she never goes anywhere because John is so absorbed in his business that he never thinks of his poor wife, and note the face of the man whose wife is telling the world that she has the grandest husband on earth, that he gives her the best time, and you won't need to be a prophet to know which woman's husband is going to take her out to the theater and blow her to supper afterward.

And certainly the woman who teaches her children to reverence their father has taken the surest way there is to keep him walking the straight and narrow path. For there are not many men who would tread a crooked way if they knew their little boys were following in their footsteps.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Two years ago I married a lovely girl endowed with brains, beauty and personality. But here are some things I have been thinking about lately. She is modern. One month after we were married she returned to her old job. Claims that she loves it and won't stay at home and just sit. Meets many people and brings them home to meet me. I'll admit they are a fine lot, but is it right for her to have men friends? Is it right for her to go to lunch with them? For them to bring her home? I am still very much in love with her and she is in love with me. She is sincere and faithful and has lots of plain common sense. She is generous and kind, but a little indifferent to what people think. Do you think there is any danger of her becoming the subject of gossip? —THINKING.

Answer: Very likely. But no matter what a good-looking young woman does she is always subject to that. You can't escape it so long as you live in a world where the chief indoor sport is talking about our neighbors.

If your wife did not work in an office, but spent her time going to bridge parties and matinees and playing golf at the country club, and so on, she would be equally liable to be gossiped about. There is more tittle going on over teatables than there is across office desks. And in ballrooms as well as offices there can always be found plenty of men who will try to flirt with a pretty married woman.

So you can pay your money and take your choice, for there is not any more danger to the woman in once place than the other. It is all up to the woman. If she loves her husband and is honest and honorable, she will go straight anywhere, and if she doesn't care for her husband and is weak and vain and without any rock-bottom principles, she will take the crooked path no matter where she is.

The trouble is, my friend, that when you marry a modern girl you have to accept her modern ideas. Apparently you did this. You knew that it brought her into association with men who were her fellow workers, so the best you can do is to suppress your jealousy and put a good face on the situation. If the girl has all the good qualities you ascribe to her, she is worth the sacrifice of a good many of your old ideas about woman's place being in the home and a husband having before you married her that she wanted to go on with her work, and exclusive rights to his wife's society.

At any rate, you can comfort yourself with the thought that very likely she will soon get tired of her job and be glad to stay at home. I should recommend one small infant, that requires attention 24 hours a day, to keep her home.

—DOROTHY DIX.

OH, THESE WOMEN ! ! !

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (US)—New York is crammed full of smart folks. Now someone has opened a jewelry store in the Ziegfeld theater building, midway between the stage entrance and the theater entrance. The window is filled with gorgeous diamonds big enough to send a thrill down the spine of Peggy Joyce.

As one of the chorus remarked today: "If candy and flowers wont, diamonds will."

Miss Grace King, of Philadelphia, says that students at Columbia university are well dressed and not too dignified, but that they lack the all important it.

As there are 14,000 summer students at Columbia this year and they are from over 40 countries, the remarks would indicate that it is pretty scarce, and not prevalent in educational centers, where women are bent upon learning from something besides experience.

A girl stenographer on Wall street won the prize for making the best corn muffins. And she passes many a delicatessen on her way home each day!

The guess is she won't stenog very many years.

The new fall hats are tight around the forehead, and down on both sides like the things Cleopatra used to wear. If there is anything that Cleo did that the modern Miss has forgotten she will do it—just give her time.

A woman tried to tell me yesterday that there are places in New York so very exclusive, that they won't sell you anything unless they know who you are.

I know the only fun some of the salespeople have is ritzing the customers—but I'd hate to go into any place in New York with plenty of money expecting them to refuse it because they didn't know me.

A pretty brown eyed lady says she can stand married life as long as she has some man interested in her, but she would have a get a divorce if her husband objected.

Tis that—if you can.

"Ugh!" she shuddered. "This is my day off and that looks exactly like my boss. Let's get out."

And they got.

An old lady goes into an antique jewelry shop and talks business to the man behind the counter. He took what she had and gave her some money. So came out looking a bit sad and hungry, and she walked slowly up the street as if she wouldn't care much if she didn't get across the street in time.

I looked into the window and saw trays of old jewelry, and I wondered if they all came from people like the little old lady.

I though of the woman who went to a pawn broker's home in Chicago once, and asked him to give her just a few days more to redeem her diamond engagement ring. It was all she had and she had pawned it when he husband was ill. Later he died. The pawn broker said he could do nothing. She told him that some day something would happen to him—worse than what was happening to her. She felt sure of it.

When his son was killed she went to his attorney and told this story of retribution.

The committee in charge report a large crowd is expected at the affair as clubs and groups are already making reservations. It is requested that those desiring to play make their reservations not later than Monday, with Mrs. J. W. Ginsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hardy and grandsons John Jr. and Dan Hewitt Chambers, have returned from a vacation trip to points in New Mexico and Colorado.

W. C. W. Brown, 1720 Lucile street, who has been in Battle Creek, Mich., for several months under treatment at the sanitarium, has returned home and is reported much improved.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Not all the baseball talent in New York is to be found at the Yankee stadium or the Polo grounds; there is still a lot of it lying around loose in the downtown streets adjacent to Broadway, from Chamber street, north to Bond street. But peculiarly, up to the present, no enterprising promoter has stepped forth to take advantage of the opportunity to weld the individual teams into a league; but that may be something for the future.

As the case now stands, however, these downtown teams are furnishing lots of amusement for both themselves collectively and the groups that accompany them as fans, augmented by knots of pedestrians who halt to spend a few minutes in watching the battle of wits between the pitchers and batters.

The writer has found by experience that so engrossing does the game become from a spectator's standpoint that whereas it was the intention to stand and watch for "just a few moments," very often it turns out that you find yourself standing there until each side has had its "lick," and sometimes two. For don't imagine for a minute that these downtown street ball games are not interesting and engrossing, for they are not games between teams of boys, but teams of young men and they throw as much energy and endeavor into the games as they would be expected to do were they playing for fat salaries such as baseball players receive.

Where do these teams come from? Well, the writer did not go far enough to delve into that under certain conditions, chiefly because most of the moments when the games are under headway are too tense to permit the discussion of extraneous subjects like localities, personnel and regular occupations. One's conversation—and particularly if he is an outsider in the sense that he does not belong to the regular group—must be confined to the chances of the batter making a hit or the fielder catching the ball if hit in his direction. These relevant questions have a good chance of bringing a reply from those who are equipped to know, but unfortunately the average spectator is satisfied merely to confine his interest in the game to watching that which he sees and nothing else. Consequently the source of these teams must remain in doubt.

Those who live far from New York and who get here seldom, if ever, have long read in the various prints about "everybody" being out out town in the summer in this town of our.

A party of them, all in the same family, came to New York the other day for the first time. An observant young lady in the party observed rather silently all through the first day in town and at dinner she opened up.

"Well," she observed, "if 'everybody's' out of town in the summer in New York, I'd hate to have to make my way around here in the winter when 'everybody' is in town.

"Still, I know that must just be an expression. I know most of the people must not be out of town. I have a feeling that most of them are still in town. Still, with all these people—and I never saw so many together at one time as we saw in the subway this afternoon—they seem to manage somehow to get to wherever they are going and to live and live happily. You know, we have been into several apartments and they seem to have homes here just like they do everywhere else. Funny, isn't it?"

ABE MARTIN

Ther's not a ray o' hope in either party platform fer th' feller who likes an occasional lamb chop. Talk about a cunnin' ruse. Stew Nugent got into th' good graces o' Grocer Lon Moon t' th' extent o' two cases o' lemon extract by tellin' him the King's Daughters wuz t' give a big banquet.

A Way of Escape

IF YOU have the idea that the world is pretty well explored, cultivated and tamed by this time, consider the task that Senor J. Tozzi Calvao, Brazilian engineer, has set himself.

Senor Calvao is going to lead an expedition far up into the steaming jungles of the Amazon, along a torrential river that has never yet been seen by white men.

He is looking for lots of things; but chiefly he wants to find out about the legendary "Pe de Garrafa" that the back-country Indians tell about.

"Pe de Garrafa" is called, in English, the bottle-footed monkey. It bears this odd name because its footprints, in soft mud, look exactly like the mark that is made by pressing the butt end of a bottle into the ground. And, if the legends are true, it is a fearsome beast.

According to reports, this member of the monkey tribe is a man eater. It is very large, very powerful and very fierce, and is so tough and hardy that a well-placed bullet from the most powerful rifle often will not knock it out. Hunting tigers, apparently, could be no more dangerous than hunting this animal.

One is compelled to wonder, at times, why men set themselves such tasks as Senor Calvao has chosen. The senor is a man of means and position; the world can be quite an entertaining place for such a man, with many ingenious devices to provide amusement and interest. Why should he voluntarily go up into the remote Amazon country looking for a fabulous ape that eats men?

Perhaps it is the very security and ingenuity of modern civilization that makes a man undertake such a quest. Danger, in itself, can be a great spice for the monotony of life; and in this particular case there seems to be something more involved. There is an outlandish, bizarre quality to the whole thing that might make a strong appeal to a resident of a modern city.

Senor Calvao has been living in New York. While there are, in all conscience, outlandish people and things enough there to satisfy anyone, they are all the artificial products of modern society. Up in the headwaters of the Amazon, where man-eating apes prowl through damp, suffocating jungles, is nature in her most savage and demoniac mood. If Senor Calvao is not able to find his escape from civilization there, he will never find it anywhere.

There Is No Land Like This

ARTHUR GUSTAV SORLIE is dead. He was the governor of North Dakota. His parents came from Norway. He was a native of Minnesota. He was born in 1874. On a farm of course. He deserted the farm at 19 and worked in a bank. He opened a general store. He became a traveling salesman. Then he engaged in the fuel and seed and feed business. He accumulated a fortune. He became a non-partisan in politics. Breaking away from the Republican party he became one of the leaders of the non-partisan movement. He was not a farmer but he was interested in extensive business enterprises and he gave his influence and his time to the demands of the non-partisans and their political campaigns.

He was elected governor in 1924. He defeated another American Norseman, R. A. Nestos. Nestos was the governor of North Dakota from 1922 to 1924, but the non-partisan, Sorlie, put him away at the polls. Sorlie was re-elected in 1926. He did not seek renomination this year. He desired to retire to private life at the end of his term the coming January. He had made a tremendous success as a business man and as a political leader. He died in harness, in office.

And now another man who fought his way from the lower rung to the top of the ladder will take his place and fill out the unexpired term of Sorlie. Walter Maddock is the new face in the North Dakota picture. He is a real dirt farmer and is rated a self made man.

Where a Million Will Be Sent

NATIONAL Chairman John J. Raskob has made the interesting announcement that the middle west will receive one-fourth of the total budget of $4,000,000 to be raised by the Democratic party for the campaign.

Half of this sum or $1,000,000 will be spent in the 600 rural counties of the 10 corn belt states and the remainder in the industrial and metropolitan communities. Chairman Raskob is a business man. He boldly declares the national committee plans to spend $500,000 in selling the Democratic platform to the farmers of the Middle West, and he feels that it will cost as much more to sell the platform to the non-farmers of the section.

"Equality for agriculture" is to be the slogan of the sellers who will do the spell binding in the 10 corn belt states. Four-fifths of the weekly newspapers in the corn belt states are Republican. This high-powered former executive of General Motors is going to push an advertising campaign in the corn and wheat belts and advertising costs money.

This is true. But advertising that tells all the story brings results. Publicity is the thing and the trained writer of advertising, political or otherwise, is the boy who knows how to parade the selling points.

EARLE'S POLITICAL FUTURE

Now comes the report that Earle Mayfield will make an effort to succeed Dan Moody as governor. We would not appear in the role of advisor to Mr. Mayfield, but, if the indicator is not misleading, it appears to us that the gentleman has been given an unmistakable punch, signifying that the pee-pul have had enuff of what he returns as a public servant.. It appears so.

STAMFORD LOOKS TO SANTA FE

Information from a reliable source has been given The American to the effect that the Santa Fe railroad is on the eve of building a line from Fort Worth to the plains and that Stamford has a fighting chance to get the road. We are not at liberty to use the name of the person giving the information, but he declares it can be relied upon. The American is passing this on to its readers for what it is worth.

It will be recalled that some three years ago, the Santa Fe surveyed several possible routes for a line from Fort Worth to the plains. One of the lines which was run by the surveyors ran from Post through Stamford and Breckenridge to Fort Worth.

Since final approval has been placed upon the purchase of the Orient by the Santa Fe, possibly the Santa Fe is ready to take up with the Interstate Commerce Commission the matter of building the new east and west branch. We don't know, but possibly the matter is worthy of the attention of the "powers that be" in Stamford.

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Old Winthrop Martenet, famed but eccentric scientist, who died seven years before the story opens, was survived by

Maxwell Martenet, his rather colorless son, who mysteriously disappeared and has been given up for dead for the last four years by

Julia, his wife, and

Hannan, his son, who inherits his grandfather's strength of character. On his return from abroad, Hannan is given a letter by

Mr. Curry, the family lawyer, written by Old Winthrop himself, warning the young man against

Horace Peters, and finishing with the command, "Don't open the iron door until the clock stops." At Valhalla Notch, Old Winthrop's mountain estate, a strange clock and an iron door guard the secret which Ernest Mallingham endeavors unsuccessfully to discover. His attempts to stop the clock by dynamite finally bury the house with all its guests, in a landslide.

Viola Lane, pretty but mysterious girl, also tries to unravel the mystery.

John Breck, the caretaker,
Runty Duck, a guest,
Kate Wynne, a maid, and
Dr. Speck, a physician, all try vainly to penetrate the secret of the iron door.

What Happened to Runty?

For a time the group, Mallingham included, stood in a frozen trance staring at the iron door that had closed on Runty's fate. Runty's screams and the hideous pall of mystery that had engulfed him had acted as a paralyzing shock.

Mallingham was the first to stir. Pushing the others ahead of him, he stepped out from the hall and sank into a chair. For once in his life his iron composure was utterly shattered. A recent vision of terror was haunting his gray eyes; the lines about his mouth were slack and drooping.

The others crowded about him, having forgotten for the moment the uproar over their heads. For that matter, the noises up there were no longer quite so terrifying. It seemed as if the forces of destruction had temporarily surrendered the stage to a drama of another kind.

Horace Peters, himself shaken and unstrung, came forward and offered a flask.

"Drink deeply, Mally. You need a bracer."

Mallingham quaffed down a great swallow, shrugged and swept back a bank of gray-tinged hair from his forehead. He fixed a long, dull gaze on Julia Martenet, whose eyes seemed to reflect all the horror mirrored in his own.

"What happened, Mally?" asked Peters, his teeth chattering. "We didn't see anything, you know. You wouldn't let us come close enough. We heard a voice, that's all."

Mallingham shrugged limply. "The voice doesn't bother me. I understand about that. But the other things— You heard Runty's scream."

"Awful!" said Peters shakily. He fortified his nerves with a long drink before he returned the flask to his pocket. "What do you suppose happened to Runty?"

"Heaven knows."

Peters moistened his parched lips and stared at Mallingham.

"Tell us the rest, Mally. Don't try to spare our feelings. A few cold shivers more or less make no difference."

"But there is nothing to tell."

"Didn't you see anything?"

"Nothing—only the most awful darkness I ever looked into." Mallingham spoke in tense, short-clipped syllables. "I saw Runty walk straight into it, disappear from sight. Then the scream. That's all."

"It was enough," Peters commented. "If what happened to Runty was half as horrible as the yell he let out, it must have been something hellish."

Mallingham looked up at Old Winthrop's portrait. With a colored silk handkerchief he mopped the moisture from his brow. His composure was gradually coming back.

"My fault," Julia murmured. A sort of frosen calm set on her face. "I suggested it. It wouldn't have happened if—"

"Save your self-reproaches," Mallingham interrupted. "Likely as not we are all going to die soon enough. Runty merely hastened the inevitable."

"All right for you to be philosophical, Mally, but I am scared stiff," Peters confessed. "It's bad enough to be buried alive without all this devilish business going on besides. First Curry is murdered. Then Runty gets a dose of hell behind the iron door. Wish I was out of this spook hatchery."

"And there's Hannan," he chattered on, as if trying to drown his uneasiness in a flow of words. "Hannan drops out of sight in New York and turns up here at Valhalla Notch with a knife wound in his shoulder. I don't like these sudden disappearances and reappearances. Worse still, nobody seems to have any explanations to offer."

Mallingham strolled over to where Julia sat. "Peters talks too much," he said in an undertone. "I tried to squelch him, but it can't be done. By the way, have you seen Hannan?"

Her only answer was a shake of her bobbed, pale-yellow head. "Isn't anybody going to do anything about Runty?" she asked after a pause.

"What is there to do?" Mallingham sent a scowling glance in the direction of the iron door. "I fear Runty is done for. Nobody can help him."

"But it doesn't seem fair to leave him like that. He sacrificed himself for the rest of us."

"At least," Julia suggested, "somebody ought to go and see what has happened to him."

"And meet the same horrible death?"

"Would it matter very much? You said yourself that we are all going to die anyway."

"True, but I don't care to hasten the tragic moment. And nobody else in this room looks courageous enough to volunteer for the task. There's Dr. Speck. Maybe he is in a more heroic mood."

The physician, who had stepped out for a few moments, appeared at the door just then. With his awkward gait, his face looking very determined under his shock of red hair, he walked straight toward the little hall that communicated with the iron door.

"Where to, doctor?" asked Mallingham in a faintly jeering tone.

"In there," said the doctor, pointing.

Mallingham arched his fine brows. "Why?"

"Your friend is in there, isn't he?" The physician measured Mallingham's powerful and nattily garbed figure with a somewhat contemptuous gaze. "Well, somebody has to find out what's happened to him. I wouldn't desert a scurvy mongrel pup the way you are deserting Mr. Duck."

"Ah, another hero in our midst," Mallingham gibed. "All right, you're welcome to the glory, doctor."

"You're crazy," Peters shouted hoarsely. "You'll never get back alive. The devil himself is behind that door."

"Then I want to see what a pair of fists will do to him," said Dr. Speck calmly.

With his limp and gangling gait he started down the hall. Gasping and muttering excitedly, the others ran after him and huddled at the entrance to the passage. Then, with a moan of terror, a young woman rushed through the throng. It was Kate Wynne, Mrs. Martenet's black-eyed maid. She had been standing at the door, watching and listening, a look of mingled dread and determination in her pretty face.

"Wait!" she cried, running up and catching the physician's sleeve. "You're not going in there alone. I won't let you."

"Why, Kate, it's all right." The doctor looked at her with the helplessness of an overgrown boy. "Nothing is going to happen. I'll be back in a little while. I just want to see—"

"No, you won't! Not alone." She made a fierce effort to pull him away from the door. With scorn in her black, snapping eyes she turned and looked at the men in the gathering. "Isn't there one of you who's got nerve enough to go with him? Mr. Duck was your friend, not his. Are you all cowards?"

No one moved. Mallingham gave her a smiling, supercilious look, but the other men lowered their eyes. Julia stared at her maid as if she had just discovered a new and surprising quality in her.

"All right, then," Kate declared. "I am going with you."

"Now," Dr. Speck remonstrated, "don't be a little fool. It will be all right."

"You know what happened to Mr. Duck."

"No, I don't. He probably got scared, nothing else. There, now—"

Gently he tried to push her away, but she clung to him with the strength of a young, vigorous animal.

"You're not going in there," she declared. "Not unless I go with you."

Dr. Speck sighed helplessly, then looked at Mallingham. "She's a bit hysterical," he announced. "Hold her, will you? I won't be gone long."

"Anything to oblige," said Mallingham ironically. He gathered the girl in his powerful arms and tore her away from the doctor. She scratched and tore and kicked. Her black hair fell in disheveled curls about her white face, animated by a boundless fury. Mallingham merely laughed and tightened his grip around her heaving shoulders.

"Don't be too rough with her," Dr. Speck admonished. Then he walked straight to the door. The knob turned in his hand. The hinges squeaked a little. Kate, alternately sobbing and screaming, lunged out with all her remaining strength, but again she was powerless against Mallingham's quiet mastery.

Again the iron door squeaked. A hush had fallen over the watchers. With a firm step Dr. Speck passed across the sinister threshold. A voice in the black interior intoned a warning:

"If you value your life, don't enter until the clock stops."

Dr. Speck looked back, saw Kate writhing weakly in Mallingham's restraining embrace, then squared his shoulders and walked with a firm step into the appalling blackness.

Someone gasped. Julia staggered faintly and leaned against the wall. The group of watchers stood in a breathless, motionless tension. Even Mallingham looked as if the darkness beyond the forbidden door had bewitched his senses. Kate hung swooning in his arms, her lids drooping over half-glazed eyes.

"Mr. Duck!" the doctor was calling, his voice sounding weirdly unreal in the darkness. "Mr. Duck! Where—"

He broke off abruptly. The listeners heard nothing more. There was something appalling in that sudden interruption, as if some monstrous hand had strangled the words. The iron door started to close. A trembling moan of horror broke from Julia's lips.

"Ghastly!" Peters mumbled. "Even ghastlier than Runty's scream."

Mallingham looked down at the girl in his arms. She had fainted.

WE TWO

If some bold fate should come, my dear,
And leave no souls but we two here;
Were we together every hour,
Our home a gorgeous, happy bower,
And were you as you are right now,
And I should be the same, somehow,
Through day or night, or hot or cold,
The whole shebang would soon grow old.

And we would fight, and fuss, and slur,
Yes, soon our love we would inter.
I'd move, sweet girl, to far Siam;
I'm sure that you'd not give a——
While you would go where'er you please,
To Glasgow, Rome, Antipodes;
And we would pray both long and sweet,
That we would never, never meet.

Although I love, and so do you,
It's great this world contains a few
Of other folks but you and me——
Somebody else to know and see.
Were you too constant, I'd grow sick
Of you, and go take arsenic.

LOCKNEY SEES BUILDING BOOM

New Depot and Church Being Constructed

Special to The Record News

LOCKNEY, Texas, Sept. 7.—Fine crop prospects coupled with the time nearing for the inauguration of regular train service over the new Fort Worth and Denver South Plains line, have lent impetus to the building program of this city.

H. B. Adams, publisher of the Lockney Beacon, has entered into a contract calling for the erection of a modern brick building that will house his paper in Lockney. The office will be located on South Main street.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new freight and passenger station of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains Railway company. The depot will be of brick construction.

The new $30,000 Church of Christ will be ready for occupancy as soon as the pews are placed in position.

A modern stucco residence has recently been completed in East Lockney by W. E. Norris and workmen are now busily engaged in the erection of five other residences in Lockney and vicinity.

Gil Boosted as Calles' Successor

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7. (AP)—A strong movement in favor of Emilio Portes Gil, secretary of the interior, for provisional president to succeed President Calles is seen forming here, where he and Gen. Manuel Peres Trevino, governor of Coahuila, are among those most prominently mentioned for the post.

The situation, which has been subject to almost constant change since the assassination of the president-elect, Alvaro Obregon, first thrust it upon the nation, seems now to favor Gil, who is a former governor of Tamaulipas.

ATHLETICS TIE YANKEES FOR AMERICAN LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Mackmen Defeat Red Sox Twice While Champs Lose Pair to Nats

Grove Beats Ruffing, 1-0 and Rommel Rescues Nightcap; Senators Hammer Zachary and Hoyt for Easy Wins

BOSTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics went into a tie for first place in the American league today by winning a double header from the Red Sox while the Yankees were losing two to the Washington Senators.

Both leaders now have won 87 and lost 47 games, for standings of .649.

Connie Mack's crew won the opener today, 1 to 0, Lefty Grove besting Charley Ruffing in a pitchers' battle. Grove limited the Red Sox to four hits while the Macks made six blows. Grove struck out 11.

The Athletics made eight hits while the Red Sox hammered nine knocks in the second game, but the A's made their hits count. Rommel hurled the last seven innings after Earnshaw and Orwoll were removed for unsteadiness, and is credited with the 7 to 3 victory.

Marty Griffin, a former Fort Worth pitcher, held the Macks to three hits in more than seven innings. He also made three blows himself, one a double. Scores; first game:

DAILY DOPE

By

LARRY DAILEY

FIVE SPUDDERS have been sold to the St. Louis Browns, and every one of them stands a good chance of making the grade, eventually if not by next season. But of that quintet the one who is certain to receive the greatest consideration from Dan Howley will be Tom Jenkins. That Tut will stay in the big league this trip is almost a certainty. He has all attributes of a major league ball player. Jenkins is without a batting weakness. On occasions he will look weak against a certain pitch. And then he will whale the same sort of toss out of the lot. Of course, he doesn't like left-handed chunking to any extent. But Tut can and does hit the portsiders with about as much success as that had by other good batters who swing from the near side of the plate.

Jenkins is a great outfielder. He is fast, a sure ball hawk, and is the possessor of a riflelike whip. His speed makes him a dangerous base runner, too, though Tom is inclined at times to take too many chances on the base lines. Jenkins was with the Boston Red Sox a few years ago. In fact, he came to the Spudders from that club in a deal that sent Howard Fitzgerald east. But Jenkins wasn't the ball player then he is now.

◆ ◆ ◆

BUCK STANTON, first baseman; Herb Cobb, pitcher; Eddie Roetz, third baseman and Ike Danning, catcher, are the other Spudders sold to the Browns. Danning, however, has played all this campaign with the New Haven club of the Eastern league, on option from the Spudders. Stanton stands li le chance of sticking with the Browns next season. But I hardly think he was purchased for that purpose. In Lu Blue and Guy Sturdy the Browns own a pair of efficient, experienced first baseman. But Blue is more than 30 years old and Sturdy not far from 30. Building for the future, the Browns grabbed Stanton for the great prospect he is, with an eye to a couple of seasons off.

◆ ◆ ◆

COBB DEVELOPED rapidly this year. Last season he was only a rookie. Herb still has much to learn of pitching. But he has so much natural ability that he might be retained by Howley to stick around and absorb knowledge on how to pitch in the big league. Roetz hasn't played regularly this season. His terrific long-distance hitting doubtless was the main factor in his sale. He is a year or two away yet as a big leaguer. Eddie needs to find a position to which he is best adapted, which I believe is third base. He isn't a shortstop or second baseman. Eddie's tendency to overplay the ball and none too much speed would prevent him from achieving stardom around the keystone bag. But he has a fine throwing arm, and at third base they knock 'em down and throw 'em out. They don't have time to fight the ball over there, the ball gets to them too quickly for that. So I'd say that with his hitting the kid's regular job should be third base.

◆ ◆ ◆

DANNING SEEMED all that a good catcher should be when he was here in the spring. But he is only a mediocre hitter. Still, catchers must first be catchers and then hitters, and Danning is an excellent receiver and has a fine throwing arm. Danning's sale illustrates the vagaries of baseball. He wasn't retained as one of the two Spudder maskmen this spring; yet he goes to the big leagues for a trial.

Coyotes Look Fine in Waurika 'Game'

McCallum's Squad To Return Home Today

Craterville, Park, Sept. 5.

Dear Larry:

The squad is looking lots better today than previously. We have two linemen slightly injured, but all the rest of the boys are feeling fine.

Bud let us scrimmage Waurika for 30 minutes today and the team looked 100 per cent better than ever.

Dick Hambrick is going greater than ever. Harlan Ray and Johnnie White, two men from junior high, are looking good as ball carriers. Howard Scott is developing into a good end. His weight is helping him a lot.

We like the camp fine—but we like home better. We will be home sometime between 9 and 3 o'clock Saturday.

Yours,
BLACKIE.

Indians to Start Grid Work Monday

More than 15 candidates for the Junior college football team met with Captain Ox Edmondson Friday in the first squad meeting of the season.

Coach E. A. Baggett, who is attending a coaches' meeting in Dallas was unable to attend the meeting.

The Indians will get down to real work Monday, it was said by Captain Edmondson.

Buffs Buy Southpaw Hurler From Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio, Sept. 7. (UP)—Jim Jordan, second baseman, and Lee Cunningham, third baseman, both of the Dayton Aviators of the Centeral league, have been sold to the Rochester club of the International league.

Marvin Gudat, lefthander, also of the Dayton club, has gone to Houston of the Texas league in a deal which brings a pitcher to the Aviators from Houston next spring.

Senators Buy Stewart From Birmingham Club

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7. (UP)—The Washington Senators again have purchased "Stuffy" Stewart, base stealing second baseman, whom they sold to Birmingham last year. Stewart batted .330 and stole 61 bases with the Birmingham Barons this year.

CUBS TROUNCE REDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. (AP)—The Cubs pounded Lucas and Luque for 19 hits and routed the Reds, 11 to 1 in the opening game of their series today. Root pitched perfect ball for the Cubs and was never in trouble, allowing only four hits. Score:

Reserved and Box Seat Tickets For Playoff Games All Sold

Grandstand Ducats Available for Wednesday and Thursday Contests; Fans Speculate on First Baseman

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Our Spudders close the Texas league championship season today and tomorrow, and none other than the Fort Worth Cats will furnish the opposition out at Athletic park. It's a good break for the Wichita Falls club that Jake Atz' merry men are to oppose them in these games. For the reason that the Cats, finishing in third place, are sufficiently strong to give the Spudders real battles.

These contests will be tuning-up affairs for the Spudders for the start of the playoff with the Buffs here Wednesday and Thursday. The Atzmen are particularly strong in pitching, and the excellent curvers on that staff will offer plenty of batting practice to our nine.

Today's game will be started at 4 o'clock and play tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

Editors at Game Today

The Spudders took a deserved layoff yesterday, the first rest they have had since the arduous and successful pennant fight. Skipper Jeems Galloway has given the word to "bear down" their best for the games with the Cats. They will taper off with drills Monday and Tuesday, to keep their batting eyes attuned and their arms limbered up for the start of the playoff.

Sale of reserved and box seats for the two games here started—and ended yesterday. Two hours after the prized tickets were placed on sale at the Miller and the Renfro drug stores, they were all taken. Not a box or reserved seat ducat is available for the two games here, and Secretary Guy Airey is besieged by fans for tickets. But it's a case of the demand exceeding the supply, and there is nothing to alleviate the situation.

Sale of grandstand seats will be started today and it is probable that tickets for every seat in the grandstand will be sold by tomorrow or Monday. They are 5000 grandstand seats available.

Two members of the Spud hospital list are mending rapidly and will be able to participate in the playoff. Joe Kiefer, suffering a badly bruised foot, and Tom Estell, who sustained a split finger, said yesterday they will be ready for work if called upon.

Other Cripple Doubtful

Buck Stanton, starry youthful first baseman, who is limping from a pulled ligament in a knee, probably is out of the playoff and it isn't likely that Catcher Doc Smith, who fractured a pair of ribs, will be ready for the Dixie series. Whether Stanton is able to play in the Dixie series will be determined by his recovery between now and that date.

What's that, Oswald? Oh, yes, we're not in the Dixie series—yet. But looks mighty good, mighty good.

Speculation of fandom here concerns the guardian of first base. Ed Roetz who isn't a first baseman by trade, and Ed Kallina, who is, have played the bag in recent games. Skipper Galloway was a great first baseman and mighty hitter, but he hasn't played regularly for two years and that is a terrible handicap.

It might be one of those three—or it might even be Howard Fitzgerald, who was a first baseman in collegiate days and who in a few innings Thursday in a game with Dallas indicated he could give a satisfactory account of himself at the initial station.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Fats, Proteins and Carbohydrates

If we wish to have a correctly balanced diet, it is necessary that we understand the different food classifications and their use in the body. Since the starches are apt to cause the most trouble I have listed all starchy foods in one group, even if they also contain protein. I have not listed them in the proteins, as is sometimes done by dietitians who do not understand food combinations.

One of the difficulties which I frequently encounter is in teaching people not to combine acids with starches. Patients will sometimes complain that the combinations were not good for them and I may find upon inquiry that they combined tomatoes with peas, under the impression that tomatoes are not a fruit and that peas are protein.

Protein food is the most important material for building and repairing the body cells. If more protein it used than is necessary for this, it can be converted into energy. Protein is found in the protoplasm of every living thing. After extensive experiment, I have been able to classify the proteins into the following classification with regard to their use in the body.

Good proteins are lean beef, mutton, chicken, turkey, rabbit, fresh fish, such as sole, halibut, black bass, cod, perch and tuna, eggs, cream and cottage cheese, gelatin, frog legs, turtle, and milk.

Fair proteins are dried beef, pork, fresh tongue, veal, lamb, wild fowl, salted cod, salmon, lobster, clams, shrimp, oysters, crawfish, nuts, mackerel, domestic goose, ducks, and crab.

The not advisable proteins are kidney, lungs, liver, smoked tongue, sausage, hot dogs, bologna, brains, corned beef, sweetbreads, pickeled pig's feet, limburger cheese, canned meat and fish, salt mackeral, hamburger steak, or dried beans.

Carbohydrates include both starches and sugars. The majority of people use far more starch than their bodies require, producing fermentation, stomach acidity, biliousness, catarrah, tonsilitis, throat trouble, skin eruptions, liver and kidney disorders. Starch is not essential to life, and I obtain better results with sick people by eliminating it from their diets until they regain their health. It may be used in moderate amounts by healthy people, provided they will take the pains of properly masticating it so that the saliva may have an opportunity to act upon the starch before the latter enters the stomach. Starches should never be used at the same meal with acid food, and seldom with proteins. Those with strong digestions may usually take a small amount of real whole wheat bread with the ordinary meal of good combinations.

The good starches are potatoes, green corn, macaroni, spaghetti, vermicelli, noodles, Hubbard squash, rice, cornbread, cornmeal, whole wheat biscuits, wholewheat flour, gluten bread, shredded wheat, barley, canned corn, water crackers, large carrots, turnips, parsnips and beets. The starches include all of the cereal products, bananas, peas, dried beans, tapioca, sago, potatoes, and most of the fully developed root tubers.

Sugars combine better than the starches, and may be recognized by their taste.

Fats and oils, or hydrocarbons, are present in most seeds, especially nuts, also fatty meat, cream, butter, avocados, olives and palm fruit. This may be used in limited quantity for heating and lubrication.

Questions and Answers

Question: E. S. writes: "I am 38 years of age and have never snored before, but it is becoming something regular with me the last year or so. I shall appreciate it very much if you will advise me in regard to your treatment of fasting and dieting."

Answer: Snoring is usually caused by inability to breathe freely through the nose while you are sleeping. This is because of an inflamed condition of the membrane inside the nose which is engorged with catarrhal mucus. As soon as you get rid of your catarrh through living on the proper diet, your family will be delighted to notice that you are no longer snoring.

Question: Anabelle asks: "How did 'Roquefort' cheese get its name?"

Answer: This cheese was named after the French village of Roquefort where special herds of sheep that supply the milk are pastured. Much care is given to the diet of these sheep, and even the water that is supplied is whitened with barley-flour. Roquefort cheese, itself, goes through a very long process of preparation before it reaches the market. It is, however, a very good protein food when used in proper combination with other foods.

Question: V. L. writes: "So much saliva comes from my stomach it irritates my mouth and it is always sore. What should I eat to prevent this acid stomach?"

Answer: Saliva is formed in the mouth and does not come from the stomach. The gastric juice of the stomach is acid and will irritate your gums if it comes into the mouth. Live on good food combinations to overcome the hyperacidity of the stomach.

Gehrig was born in New York City and he was graduated from Columbia university with dreams of a career as a lawyer. He stands 6 feet 1 inch, weighs 200 pounds, bats left-handed, throws left handed and would have you believe that the following is a true joke:

"I was walking down Broadway recently," Gehrig told me, "and was approached by a Jewish panhandler, who said:

"'I'm dyink frum toist. Could you pliss giff to me a buck for a cup of coffee?'

"'A dollar for a cup of coffee?' I replied. 'What's the matter with you—can't you get a sandwich and some coffee for a quarter?'

"'Say!' replied the indignant beggar, 'are you tryink to tal me how to run my business?'"

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (394) OUR PRESIDENTS

The famous book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was published in 1852, and the dispute over slavery grew more bitter. In the election that year Franklin Pierce of New Hampshire was chosen. Pierce was a Democrat and defeated the Whig candidate, General Winfield Scott and a Free Soil candidate, J. P. Hale.

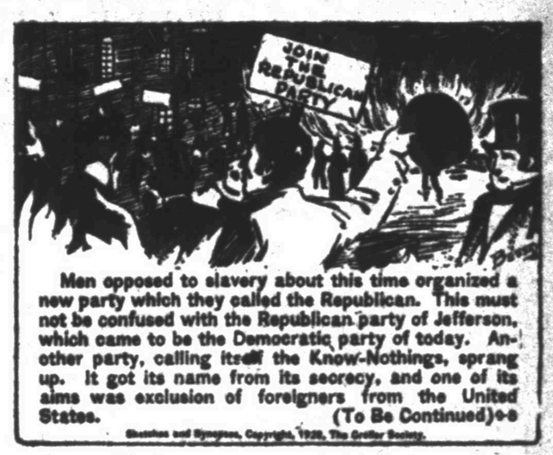

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1921-28.

Stephen A. Douglas persuaded Congress to make two territories of Kansas and Nebraska, giving them the right to choose between slavery and freedom.

Kansas became a battlefield, with immigrants from the north and south ready to fly at one another. The feud was long and bitter.

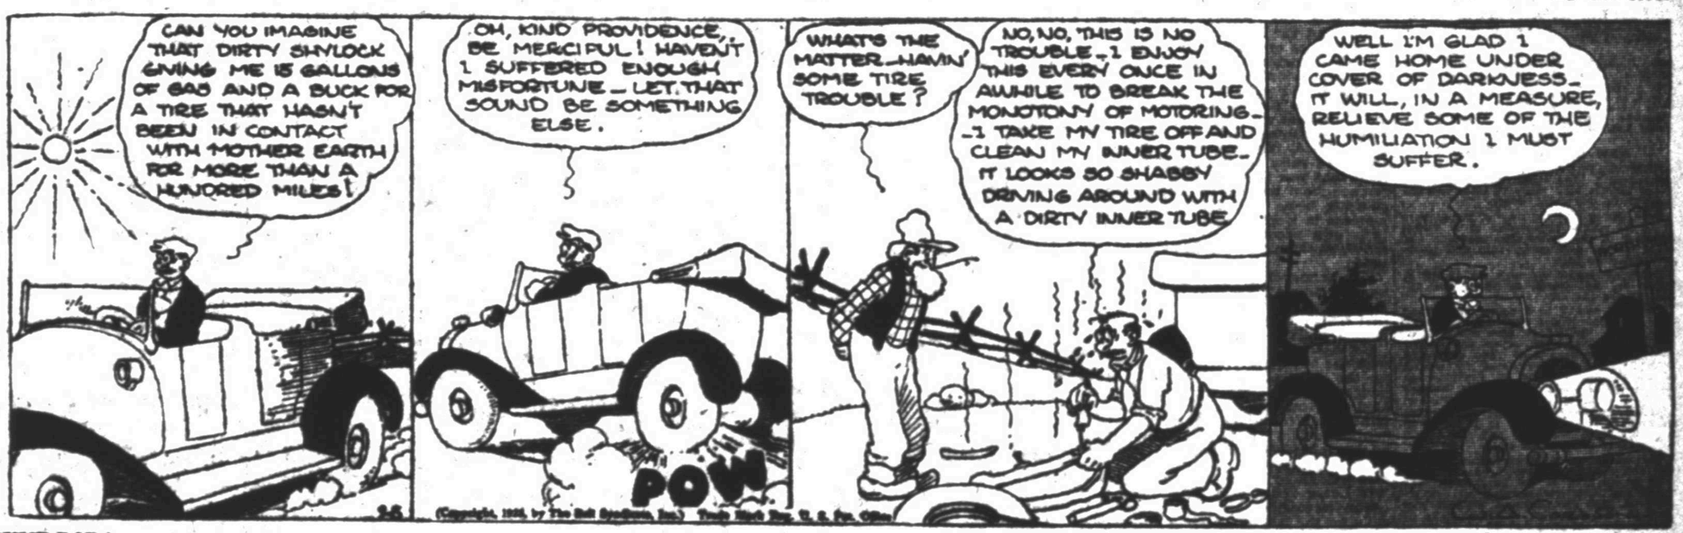

Men opposed to slavery about this time organized a new party which they called the Republican. This must not be confused with the Republican party of Jefferson, which came to be the Democratic party of today. Another party, calling itself the Know-Nothings, sprang up. It got its name from its secrecy, and one of its aims was exclusion of foreigners from the United States.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—The cotton market was steady today on covering and trade buying, promoted by unfavorable crop advices from the south. December contracts sold up from 18.91 to 19.08 or 11 points net higher, and closed at 19.00, compared with 18.97 at the close of the previous day. The market closed steady at a net decline of 1 point on May, but generally 2 to 5 points higher.

The market opened unchanged to a decline of 5 points under southern selling, liquidation or realizing, influenced by relatively easy early cables from Liverpool and prospects for rather better weather in the belt. Offerings were comparatively light, and after having been absorbed, the market became firmer on covering for over the government report to be published after the close of the market tomorrow. Trade buying was reported, and the afternoon advance which carried prices about 8 to 12 points net higher was accompanied by reports of improving demand for forward shipment from Europe. Business failed to broaden on the advance and the market attracted a little more southern selling or realizing around 19.22 for October and 19.00 for March. This supplied the immediate demand and closing prices showed reactions of 8 or 10 points from the best.

Two more private crop reports were published, one placing the condition at 61.3 and the indicated crop at 15,000,000 bales, while the other made the condition 58.5 and the indicated crop 14,396,000 bales. The average of the private reports published during the past week or 10 days shows a condition of 59.9 and a crop indication of 14,508,000 bales.

Advices from the south emphasized further deterioration chiefly as a result of shedding or insect damage.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7. (AP)—Realizing and eleventh hour liquidation caused the cotton market here today to close net unchanged to one point down.

Until the end of the market prices were 10 to 12 points higher due to a bullish summary of the Texas crop condition and to reports of damage by rain and floods in the eastern belt.

December traded as high as 18.60, 12 points up, but closed at 18.48, net unchanged for the day.

Liverpool was 2 to 4 points lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 5 points. The market soon rallied, however, on the Texas crop report and further rain in the eastern belt. The climb upward was pushed along later by reports of overflowing streams in Georgia and the Carolinas doing considerable damage to crops.

Before mid-session October had traded up to 18.50 and December to 18.57, 13 to 14 points above the early lows and 8 to 9 points above the previous close.

The market ruled steady after mid-session and rallied additionally on short covering in advance of the government crop report due tomorrow morning and on reports of good spot demand. October rose to 18.52 and December to 18.60, 15 to 17 points above the lows and 10 to 12 points higher than the previous close. These prices were the highs of the day.

In the late trading there was a wave of realizing and some liquidation by belated longs in advance of the government report and the earlier gain was lost, the market closing virtually unchanged.

Two additional private crop estimates were issued, one making the crop 14,396,000 bales and the other 15,000,000.

Port receipts 35,056, for week 119,562, for season 493,408, last season 800,930. Exports 31,343, for week 140,397, for season 402,982, last season 467,985. Port stocks 530,728, last year 1,193,191. Combined shipboard stocks at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 82,777, last year 70,129. Spot sales at southern markets 42,505, last year 39,171.

Stocks Surge Into New High Levels With Talk of 'Election' Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (US)—Stocks surged into new high ground today in the face of the bearish reserve bank statements and the 4½ per cent government financing. Montgomery Ward bears suffered most as stop loss orders were touched off in a skyrocketing advance of 20 points of which 13 was retained to the close.

Steel, General Motors, Sears Roebuck and Nickel were others to score outstanding advances, with buying added to by talk of "an election market."

Public Service of New Jersey featured a strong utility group, jumping into new high ground, as it was absorbed in big blocks coincident with further merger talk. Orders piled into commission houses from all parts of the country so that the volume jumped over the 4,700,000 share level.

Only momentary setbacks were experienced despite further calling of about $20,000,000 more loans by the banks and a sustained 7½ per cent money rate. Banks reported some increase in funds available from out-of-town toward the close.

No serious interference with the stock market between now and election was the report broadcast throughout the street that offset the influence of the bearish reserve bank statements. It was inferred therefrom the money powers would go as easy as possible and that there would be no further advancing of the rediscount rate. However, if the market continues to run away as indicated today, the reserve would be forced to raise the rate again. At least that was the only possible inference from the weekly statement showing some $114,000,000 further increase in loans of local banks for their own account just before the $2,000,000,000 mid-month turnover of funds.

The announcing of treasury financing on a 4½ per cent basis was the strongest indication possible that tight money is here to stay for quite a while.

Keith-Albee's strength, together with the buying in Warner was due to the expectation of early announcement of merger. Those behind the consolidation, it is maintained, plan formation of a huge organization that will be prominent in all branches of the theatrical and movie industries. Electric Auto Lite was under absorption again as was Loose Wiles with the same group interested that was responsible for the last outstanding moves in these shares. Skyrocketing of Montgomery Ward was entirely due to the short interest that is locked in the stock. Armour "A" was put into new high territory by the western people who first took an interest over a fortnight ago, as told of here at that time.

Bullish interests continued to work for a following in the oils with Texas Corporation, Tidewater Associated, Mexican Seaboard and Richfield receiving best attention. The first named has achieved the recognition of leader of the independent group.

Richfield remains under the sponsorship of the California interests who first took it in hand some six months ago and who look for further gain in earnings now that the Pan Pete Western acquisition is going through. Railroad and copper shares were overshadowed by the excitement in the selected industrials but displayed a firm undertone.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 7. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Light receipts stimulated demand for hogs resulting in a 10 to 25c price advance; shipping demand was broad at the river markets and a full advance was scored at several of these points; Chicago had a top of $13.20, only 5c under the recent high mark of $13.25; the supply, estimated at 41,000, was 4,800 short of a week ago, and 12,200 less than the same day last year.

Fat lambs were on a strong to 25c higher basis, despite the fact that total offerings of around 53,500 were 9,000 more than last Friday, and 200 in excess of a year ago; aged stock held steady price levels; choice range lambs in Chicago realized $15.75, while best westerns at Omaha topped at $15.35.

Cattle supplies around the circuit were estimated at 12,800 as compared with 13,251 a week ago, and 11,919 the corresponding day last year; killing classes of cattle held firm at the week sharp advance; choice medium weight steers in Chicago topped at $17.90, demand next week should have considerable breadth as eastern dressed beef markets are closing the week in a good condition; more liberal receipts would tend to stimulate the demand for stocker and feeder classes and thus prevent packers from breaking values on the desirable grades of grassers.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 7. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 800; market mostly 15c higher; top $12.15; truck top $11.65; bulk medium to choice 175 to 220-pound rail hogs, $11.65@12.15; bulk 175 to 240-pound truck hogs $11.40@11.60.

Cattle—Receipts 2,400; calves 700; receipts mostly plain mixed butcher classes, good to choice fat cattle practically lacking in all divisions of trade; she stock and cutters strong, other classes generally steady; calf quality unattractive, trade slow, weak to around 25c lower; some fairly good heavy calves $11.25@11.50.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 7. (AP)—Hogs—800; mostly 15c higher; top $12.15; truck top $11.65; medium to choice 170 to 220-pound rail hogs $11.65@12.15; 175 to 240-pound truck hogs $11.40@11.60.

Grain

GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. (US)—Grains advanced today, but the markets closed irregularly and in a way that did not increase bullish confidence. The spasmodic action of September corn may have been influential in spreading an aspect of general strength through all the futures for a time. That advanced 3 cents, and then broke 1½ cents in a few minutes at the end of the session.

At the close wheat was ⅛ to ⅜ higher, corn was unchanged to 1⅜ up; oats were ⅛ to 1¼ higher; rye was unchanged to 1 up.

All the strength in all the futures looked to be due to short covering. If that were the case the markets were left technically much weaker at the close.

The present upturns look like advances that are not unusual just before a government report. Shorts get frightened by imaging well nigh impossible figures and cover.

The government report will be out Monday, which also is the calendar date for selling wheat.

Production of wheat is so enormous on this continent that it is difficult to see how any advance can be maintained until after the period of heavy receipts. Arthur Cutten told me today that he is not interested in the grains. He added:

"I can not see any chance of a bull market in wheat now with the period of big receipts that lies ahead. Next month the receipts in Canada will be very heavy."

Although September corn made a considerable display of strength and closed abovee the offer price, the other corn futures were very draggy by comparison. May corn closed right where it did the day before, March was up ⅛, and December ⅜.

Not much of a bull market in that. The high price of the September future and its hectic, ephemeral strength gives, I think, as false an idea of the situation in the new crop futures as July corn did. Bulls will be fortunate, it seems to me, if the general level of the deferred futures is maintained, to say nothing of a big advance.

Weather conditions for the maturing new corn crop are ideal. It is getting warmer and the crop is maturing with great rapidity, according to reports brought in from nearby parts of the belt.

Should we have an ideal September and October as we had last year there is no telling how much above the largest estimate the corn crop will yield this year. Should liquidation set in corn prices might fade away very rapidly. However, there may be no danger of decided liquidation for a week or so yet. As long as bulls believe there is a possibility of a shift to cold weather that might produce a frost scare, they are likely to hang on.

But all danger of frost will be over in another week or 10 days with good weather.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was 1 to 2 up; oats were ½ to 1 up, rye was firm; barley was steady.

Curtis Interests to Establish Air Schools Over Nation by New Plan

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—The Curtiss aeroplane interests today announced a project by which it is hoped to place aviation at the service of the public more generally than ever before.

A $10,000,000 company, to be known as the Curtiss Flying Service, Inc., is to be formed to inaugurate the country's first nationwide air taxi service, to establish properly equipped flying schools throughout the country, and to form a nationwide sales and service organization for the products of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Co., similar to automobile sales organizations, and the first in the airplane industry.

The company will be able to start operation almost immediately, as it will take over all of the business and assets of the flying service which was established in 1910 as an exhibition company with $20,000 capital. Casey Jones, head of the old flying service, is to be president, and O. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor company, is to be chairman of the board of the new organization.

Mr. Keys explained that the first step to be taken will be the ordering of complete equipment for 25 flying fields to be situated throughout the country.

The flying school program calls for the establishment of primary schools in various parts of the country to train air enthusiasts for private pilots' licenses, while three advanced schools, providing complete training for regular transport pilots, are projected, one for the East, one for the Middle West, and one for the Pacific coast.

We regret this misunderstanding and as a matter of fairness to all concerned make this correction.

Chemists Oppose Making Soap From Petroleum

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. (AP)—Chemists can produce soap or the flavor of peaches from petroleum, but they do not expect American petroleum to be diverted, at least for a long time, from its principal function, propelling automobiles.

This message was delivered to the Society of Chemical Industry today by Dr. Benjamin T. Brooks.

Brooks said that chemistry would follow the lines of economic usefulness in developing by-products from petroleum, and that some day there might be use for fatty acids of petroleum to make soap, in order to release for use in foods some of the vegetable acids which at present go into soap making.

First Junior High School Begins Session

Special to The Record News

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 7.—The Graham schools opened Monday with increased enrollment over opening day last term, and with all members of the faculty in position. The high school opened with usual ceremonies.

The junior high school was the scene of especial interest in view of the fact several talks were made by members of the school board and faculty.

This is the first year for junior high in Graham schools. The board decided that to fill the Shawnee school building as it should and relieve a congested condition in the high school building, also to refrain from going to any expense of voting bonds ofr more improvements to be added to the high school building, a junior high was necessary. The department was opened with appropriate addresses from the members of the school board.

Rev. J. E. Montgomery, pastor of the First Christian church, led in devotional followed by short talks from H. L. Tidwell and Judge S. A. Penix, secretary and president of the school board.

Superintendent I. T. Gilmer introduced Mr. Matthews, who in turn introduced each representative of his faculty board. Plans are in progress to organize a junior high orchestra and glee club to be under the supervision of Miss Katherine Bills, who was pipe organist for three years at Trinity university.

The boys' athletic club is being formed to be coached by Mr. Key assisted by J. E. Montgomery, and the members of the squad are now practicing. The first challenge to come to the team was Olney Junior high and was accepted, the date to be set later.

The girls' athletic club is being formed under the supervision of Miss Burns and others of the teachers' staff.

An improvement across the front of the junior high building is the recently completed concrete curb, gutter, and landing, built by the city of Graham.

RITES TODAY FOR BURRAGE

Services for Wichitan At Fort Worth

Funeral services for B. A. Burrage, 26, clerk of the Fort Worth and Denver railway here, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident Sunday while en route from Wichita Falls to Fort Worth, will be held at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon from a Fort Worth funeral home, according to word received by friends here.

Mr. Burrage had been a resident of Wichita Falls for about a month having come from New Orleans to work. He was traveling with Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Burk to visit his mother in Fort Worth when the accident occurred near Bowie.

He is survived by his wife and a six-month-old son; his mother, Mrs. Annie Burrage; and one sister, Mrs. Marjorie Self of Fort Worth.

fered from the shock. She was taken to a hospital, where, it was said, she was in a critical condition.

Colleta Klauke, 7-months-old granddaughter of the Garricks, was found in her crib under a pile of debris. She suffered slight cuts.

Gang Rivalry

The shooting of Lombardo and Ferraro was believed by police to be the rusult of a struggle between the Joe Aiello gang and the Lombardo forces for supremacy of the "alky" trade in Chicago.

A few weeks ago police found a cache of guns and ammunition planted across the street from the home of Lombardo in Cicero and since that time the reputed liquor lord has been in hiding.

Aiello and Lombardo, police said, have striven to take over the West Side "alky" trade once held by the famous Genna brothers gang, which has been annihilated.

Frank Uale, New York bootlegger who was slain several weeks ago in Brooklyn, is reported to have dictated that Lombardo should take over the "business." New York authorities, working on the Uale murder, concluded the bootlegger was slain by Chicago gangsters but no arrests were made.

The shooting late this afternoon was staged sensationally. Offices and stores in the "Loop" had just released employes for the day and the sidewalks were crowded with men and women when the loud reports of revolvers sounded. The crowds scattered in all directions. Two men fled down the street leaving Lombardo and Ferraro lying on the sidewalk.

Shot From Rear

Neither of the victims had a chance to protect themselves, as revolvers were found in each of their pockets. Witnesses said the two men who did the shooting attacked Lombardo and Ferraro from the rear. Two bullets struck Lombardo, one in the head, another in the neck. Ferraro also had two bullet wounds, both in the back.

The revolvers used by the attackers were thrown into the street. They dodged through the crowds with Patrolman Leslie Finlayson in pursuit. One of the two men fled into the entrance of a large building and was captured. He gave the name of Joseph Lolardo of Cicero. A revolver was found in his pocket.

A bank book showing a deposit today of $25,337, was found in Lombardo's coat pocket. Ferraro on a hospital bed defied police and doctors to engage him in conversation. He refused to answer any questions the police asked and shoved a doctor away when the latter attempted to feel his pulse.

Chicago may look for another gang war as the result of the shooting, police said tonight.

Demo Fight Decision Today

Judge Martin announced that he would give his decision on the injunction at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Should the decision be in Mr. Nicholson's favor, there is a probability that 15 men released from duty on the committee because they refused to pledge their support to the party's presidential nominee will attend Saturday's meeting in an attempt to frustrate the aims of the committee to appoint a delegation to the state convention at Dallas.

The committee, shorn of the dissenters at Tuesday's meeting, passed a resolution declaring a delegation to represent Wichita county selected at the county convention of Aug. 4 to have been illegally chosen and voted to name a new delegation.

partment. It was ruled by the supreme court that such order violated the civil service laws and Hoover was forced to rescind his previous order.

Al of Sidewalks

"Any man who studied the record of Al Smith would indorse the statement of Dr. John Roach Straton that 'Al Smith is the worst foe of moral progress and political integrity in America today'," he declared.

"They sing this song about the sidewalks of New York. The trouble with Al is that he has never gotten away from the New York sidewalks."

Praise for Hoover

Ending his condemnation of Smith, Mr. Thomas launched in an ode of praise to the Republican candidate for president.

"'Hoover was good enough for Wilson,'" he quoted, "'and he is good enough for me.'"

"He sat in Wilson's cabinet for four years," Mr. Thomas told his audience. "He was favored by Wilson as his successor, and came near being chosen as that successor by the Democratic party in 1920.

"He is the world's outstanding statesman and humanitarian," he declared.

"Al Smith's very name is a stench in the nostrils of every self-respecting citizen of the United States. And he will be defeated by the biggest majority of any presidential candidate since the Civil war."

The meeting at Bellevue park was presided over by J. R. Ogle, who was released from the Democratic county executive committee at a meeting of that body last Tuesday. On the platform with the speaker were W. B. Coriett, another member of the executive committee, J. W. Nicholson, also ousted from the committee; W. W. Silk, Mack Thomas, Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church; Dr. Walter J. Johnson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district of the Methodist church, and Mr. Ogle.

Bolters Have Precedent

Dr. Johnson introduced the speaker. In his address the Methodist presiding elder compared the anti-Smith "Democrats" to Noah, to Abraham, to Moses, to The Christ and to St. Paul in chronological order.

Noah, he said, bolted a city and fled for his life in an ark. Abraham, he informed his audience, bolted the city of the Chaldeans and fled to other sanctuary. Moses, according to Dr. Johnson, bolted the Egyptian Pharaoh and slavery and fled into the wilderness with the children of Israel. Jesus Christ, he pointed out, bolted from the Scribes and Pharisees. And St. Paul, the speaker continued, bolted the "ways of th eworld" and followed after right.

Need Newspaper, He Says

Mr. Ogle in his opening address remarks deplored the need of Wichita Falls for a daily newspaper. "I believe we should have a new daily paper here," he said.

He exhibited a copy of an Iowa Park paper as an example of fairness and honesty and solicited his hearers that they send the editor of the paper $2.00 for a year's subscription.

Mr. Ogle then introduced Mr. Nicholson as a man who had stood for the right all his life, and asked Mr. Nicholson to address the meeting.

Mr. Nicholson made a brief talk telling of the petition for an injunction he had filed which would restrain Edgar Scurry from excluding him from the deliberations of the executive committee.

"If there is anything I can do to defeat Al Smith I will do it," Mr. Nicholson declared.

Prior to the opening of the meeting Paul Seeds' concert band played a number of musical selections. It had previously been stated that the Panhandle band would play at the Hoover rally.

5000 Children Attend Store's Movie Party

More than 5000 young Wichitans attended a special showing of the Douglas Fairbanks' super-picture, Robin Hood, at the Olympic theater Friday morning as guests of the Nathan Lynch stores. According to officials of the local store it was necessary to hold two shows, at 9 and 11 a. m., to care for the great crowd which responded to the firm's invitation. After the picture the youngsters reported at the firm's store on Indiana avenue where they were presented with favors.

Oil Fire Victim In Critical Condition

Editors Close Meeting Today

Falls in the boom days, and told of a visit here in 1918. He also invited the members to attend the state press convention and golden jubilee in Mineral Wells next June.

Bert King, Wichita Falls attorney, was the principal speaker at the banquet.

"A newspaper is what the personality behind it makes of it, and it reflects the owner's beliefs," said Mr. King. "The smartest men do not have opinions on everything, but they have their beliefs on whether a thing is right or wrong. A person's thoughts or beliefs naturally become a part of his action."

Mr. King also touched on free government, and said that it is pitiful to see how far and how fast America is drifting from free government. This condition, he declared, could be relieved greatly by the newspapers.

Con Hudson of Iowa Park won a box of cigars for telling the "biggest lie" of the evening. However, these laurels were bestowed on him after O. C. Harrison had been acclaimed winner but wouldn't take the prize as he did not smoke.

Ben Donnell presided at the meeting. Rev. W. D. Bratton pronounced the invocation, and Ed Howard expressed greetings.

Welcome to Visitor

"Success in a paper sometimes means what you keep out of the paper," said Mr. Howard. "Some things are printed in papers that kick up an awful dust that a change of wind, such as often comes, make a paper eat its own dust. We try to avoid printing things of this character."

Mr. Howard told of coming to Wichita Falls 37 years ago when the town had a population of 2400, and has had the pleasure of seeing it grow to its present size. He also expressed an ever open welcome to the visitors.

William Luther Donnell played two violin solos and was accompanied by his sister, Mary Elizabeth Donnell.

Mrs. Lois Parker sang several solos, and Mrs. H. S. Vaughn gave a reading accompanied by Mrs. Bentley Nelson.

George L. Inglish, president of the Northwest Texas Press association, gave the president's address at the opening session in the Kemp hotel Friday morning and told of his own experience in making a trip here many years ago to consider starting a paper in competiton to the Times.

Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, welcomed the editors to the city, and Lee R. McDonald of Denton made an address on "Systems in News Gathering. E. A. Carlock of Daducah discussed the paper and said that about all he used in his paper was news about his own county and people.

Radio Manager Talks

J. H. Allison of Wichita Falls invited the delegates to attend the convention of the Tenth district of the International Advertising association here Oct. 21, 22 and 23.

J. M. Gilliam, business manager of KGKO, the National Security Life Insurance company station in the Perkins-Snider building, invited the convention to present a program over the air from 9 to 10 o'clock Friday evening. The invitation was accepted and the program was presented.

Committees also were named as follows: E. A. Carlock, Paducah, chairman and B. L. McDonald, Burkburnett, and A. W. Cline, Bowie, members of the resolutions committee; R. H. Nichols, Vernon, chairman, and R. H. Wessell, Frederick, Okla., and Harry Koch, Quanah, members of the membership committee.

The afternoon session, which was originally planned to include a Spudder ball game that was postponed to Saturday, included a talk by Dick Collins of Decatur on "Original Editorials versus Syndicated Matter." Con Hudson, editor of the Iowa Park Herald, discussed this paper.

The afternoon session, which was originally planned to include a Spudder ball game, was featured by a talk by B. H. Nichols of Vernon. He said that every editor owes his community local editorials, and that at times he almost believed it would be wise not to use syndicated editorials. Con Hudson of Iowa Park discussed this paper.

Harry Koch of Quanah substituted for S. A. Roberts in talking on "Sources of Income and Community Service Neglected by Many Papers." O. C. Harrison of Seymour discussed this paper.
