Baby swap ruling

SARASOTA, Fla. — The biological parents of a girl switched at birth failed in a legal bid Wednesday to wrest the child from the man who raised her. Ernest and Regina Twigg's motion to be awarded custody of 13-year-old Kimberly Mays was rejected by Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan, who ruled the couple is still bound by a 1989 agreement to seek visitation only. "It was the right thing to do," said Robert Mays, who has cared for Kimberly since birth.

Thomas is freed

SULPHUR SPRINGS — A California man was freed Wednesday after serving nine months of a life sentence for a purse-snatching prosecutors now say he didn't commit. Rickey Dale Thomas, 29, emerged from the Hopkins County Jail minutes after District Court Judge Lanny R. Ramsay signed an order dropping all charges against him. "No, they can't make up the lost time to me," Thomas said. "Freedom is priceless."/2B

The heat is on — and it probably won't be shut off any time soon.

Balmy 90-degree-plus temperatures and sunny skies should continue through the weekend, possibly setting record highs, according to National Weather Service observers in Midland.

On Tuesday, a 98-degree scorcher broke the 93-degree high mark set two years earlier. More record-breaking temperatures may be on tap for the weekend, according to the National Weather Service.

A plethora of outdoor activities on Saturday should keep most Midlanders busy trying UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — Country music showman Garth Brooks, leader of the current country renaissance, won his second consecutive entertainer of the year and male vocalists trophies Wednesday from the Academy of Country Music.

Also winning two top awards was lanky Georgian Alan Jackson, who took awards for best single and album, both titled "Don't Rock the Jukebox."

"Thank God and the Grand Ole Opry for country music," said Jackson, who was last year's new male vocalist winner.

Reba McEntire won her sixth best female vocalist award and her video, "Is There Life Out There," won top video honors at the academy's 27th awards show.

Beating trial jury acquits L.A. officers

■ Community leaders express outrage that what seems on videotape to be a clear-cut case of police brutality goes unpunished.

N.Y. Times News Service

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. — Four Los Angeles police officers were acquitted of assault Wednesday in the videotaped beating of a black motorist, touching off a storm of anger in the city.

After hearing seven weeks of detailed testimony and studying the 81-second amateur videotape of the beating, the jury concluded that the policemen had not broken any laws when they clubbed and kicked the mostly prone motorist, Rodney G. King.

They remained deadlocked on one of the 11 charges, and the prosecution said it might seek a new trial on that charge, which affected only one of the defendants.

The beating on March 3, 1991, with its kicks and its 56 swings of the baton, was captured on 81 seconds of amateur videotape. Shown over and over on television, it immediately became the most visible police use of force in U.S. history and put the issue of police brutality on the national agenda.

Immediately after the verdict, an unusually impassioned Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles appeared on television to appeal for calm in a city where the videotape has come to symbolize complaints

Verdicts ignite violence; Calif. to send troops

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Violence erupted following the acquittals of four white policemen in a black motorist's beating Wednesday. Looters ravaged stores, motorists were beaten, several buildings were torched and demonstrators rushed police headquarters.

Gov. Pete Wilson agreed to send in National Guard troops at Mayor Tom Bradley's request, Bradley spokesman Bill Chandler said.

In the worst outbreak of violence, an intersection in predominantly black South Central Los Angeles was plunged into chaos, with looters running free and motorists pulled from cars and attacked. Police and paramedics were ordered to steer clear.

At least two dozen structures were burning throughout the sprawling south-central business and residential area, said Fire Department spokesman Bob Collis. Cars also were on fire, Collis said.

Pillars of smoke could be seen across a wide area of the city. Fire companies were called in from other cities. Police with shotguns

Reagan daughter says Nancy beat her, popped tranquilizers

NEW YORK (AP) — Mom beat her and popped pills and Dad didn't believe it, says Patti Davis, the daughter of former first couple Nancy and Ronald Reagan.

"He said I was lying and he said I was crazy and he, I remember feeling like there were miles between us," the 39-year-old Davis said in an interview scheduled for broadcast tonight on ABC-TV's "PrimeTime Live."

"I think it was the first time I really realized I was never going to know what it would feel like to have a father."

Davis said her mother existed in a tranquilizer fog and took up to five or six a day. "Yes, there was abuse in this family," she said. "There was emotional abuse. There

DiBona: Congressional turnover may bode well

By John Paul Pitts

A large turnover in Congress this year could have a positive effect on the oil industry, said Charles DiBona, president of the American Petroleum Institute, speaking Wednesday at the Sixth Annual Energy Appreciation luncheon.

"Overall we are expecting the largest turnover in Congress since 1947," said DiBona, who noted that as many as 150 members of Congress might not return this year. He said that 50 members already have indicated they would not seek re-election.

Voters to settle mayoral, key board races on Saturday

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

Warm, sunny weather is expected to draw thousands of Midlanders to the polls Saturday to choose city, school, college and hospital district leaders.

VOTE 92

Already 2,223 voters have made their choices in the election during 12 days of early voting. Polls will be open throughout the city from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

"Early voting was very light, when you consider the number of registered voters (49,384)," said Bettye Calvert, elections administrator. "But it was pretty good considering it was a local election."

In city government, the election will decide the new mayor from a field of four candidates — Robynne Fuller, Don Kyser, Michael Trost and J.D. Faircloth. District 4 residents will choose between incumbent Tom Johnston, James Radtke and Claudia Egan. District 3's contest is between current member L.D. "Buddy" Sipes and Hugh White.

For Midland Independent School District, the race will decide District 7's representative from a field of three — Wayne "Woody" Woodside, Lex K. Crawford and Michael Dobey. In District 1, James Fuller is unopposed for re-election.

Midland College's places 1 and 2 are contested. Incumbent Steve Kiser faces Kevin Skipper for Place 1. For Place 2, Joann Foster, Alan Wesley and Norma Viney Burke are competing.

Place 3 candidate William Howard and Place 6 candidate Charlene Wurtz are unopposed for college seats.

In the Midland County Hospital District, Charles Coffman faces Larry Lawrence for the District 7 seat. Jean Pittman and Jo Ann Viney are unopposed in their bids for districts 4 and 3, respectively.

City voters also will give their views on two issues in non-binding referendums — a change to six single-member districts for the council and mandatory elections for replacing council members who resign.

Calvert said, at most, she expects 10,000 people to vote in the election, compared with the recent Republican primary, which drew nearly half of all registered voters.

"There seemed to be a lot more going on out there during the primary," she said. "But there are a lot of local elec-

Questionnaires provide clues of jurors' views

N.Y. Times News Service

Six men and six women from Ventura County made up the Los Angeles Superior Court jury that deliberated the fate of four LAPD officers charged in the Rodney King beating. Jurors' names were kept confidential, but questionnaires they filled out before the trial provided biographical sketches and their views on law enforcement.

JUROR NO. 1: A 43-year-old white male who lives in Simi Valley. He is married and works as a service technician for Pacific Bell. His brother is a retired Los Angeles Police Department sergeant. His hobbies include remodeling his home. Quote: "Seeing the partial clips of the video on the TV, it had looked to me like excessive force was used in this arrest. However, I do not really know the whole story of what actually happened."

JUROR NO. 2: A 40-year-old Hispanic female who lives in Saticoy. She is married and works as a housekeeper at Ventura County Medical Center. She formerly worked as a security guard at a jewelry manufacturer, and favors gun control. Quote: "(Police officers are) just doing their job."

JUROR NO. 3: A 50-year-old white male who lives in Piru. He is divorced and works as a park ranger for the United Water Conservation District. He is a member of the National Rifle Association. Hobbies include snow skiing, boating and working on classic cars. Quote: "The police have a difficult job to do and for the most part do it well."

JUROR NO. 4: A 39-year-old Filipino-American female who lives in Simi Valley. She is married and works as a nurse at Olive View Medical Center in Sylmar. Hobbies include sewing, walking on the beach and reading. Quote: "Police officers are also human beings like us. And as human beings, they are not perfect. They also have feelings ... (But) I believe that anybody who breaks the law should be made to pay for it."

JUROR NO. 5: A 54-year-old white female who lives in Ventura. She is divorced and works as a printer. Hobbies include gardening. Quote: "(Police) are trained to ... make judgments that can affect their lives and those they protect ... on or off duty. All that pressure must be difficult on a continuing basis. It takes a special kind of person to make a good officer."

JUROR NO. 6: A 65-year-old white male who lives in Camarillo. He is married and is a retired teacher who served in the U.S. Navy as a shore patrol officer. He favors gun control, participates in Neighborhood Watch and his hobbies include gardening and exercise. His daughter is an attorney. Quote: "(Police) have a very tough and demanding job. ... (I) believe that LAPD is a fine organization."

JUROR NO. 7: A 38-year-old white male who lives in Thousand Oaks. He is married and works as a computer programmer. Twenty years ago, he was stopped by police and taken to jail because he fit the description of a robbery suspect, and was held briefly for outstanding traffic warrants. Hobbies include backpacking in the High Sierra. Quote: Police officers treat people differently in lower-income neighborhoods because "there is a much higher level of violent crime, which results in the use of greater caution. ... (But) as in any field, some officers shouldn't be there. The power can attract some who are on a 'power trip' ... An officer should not be allowed to 'punish' a suspect when it is not his job to determine guilt."

JUROR NO. 8: A 49-year-old

VERDICT: Decision follows year of uproar, months of trial

about police brutality, racism and the violence of the streets.

Community leaders expressed outrage that what had seemed on the videotape to be a clear-cut instance of police brutality had gone unpunished.

The absence of blacks on the jury — picked from mostly white Ventura Country near Los Angeles after a change of venue to avoid pre-trial publicity — was used to enforce their allegations of racism.

The prosecutor, Deputy District Attorney Terry White, said the verdict "sends out a message that whatever you saw on that tape was reasonable conduct."

The jurors said it had taken them only one day to reach their acquittals on the main charges against Sgt. Stacey C. Koon, 41; officers Laurence M. Powell, 29, and Theodore J. Briseno, 39; and former Officer Timothy E. Wind, 31.

The three officers have been suspended since the beating; Wind, a rookie without tenure, was dismissed from the department.

The charges included assault with a deadly weapon, excessive use of force as a police officer, filing a false report and acting as an accessory after the fact.

Jurors said they were deadlocked on a charge against Powell of use of excessive force as a police officer. White said his office would seek a new trial on that charge, but prosecutors later said they would reassess their plans. A hearing was set for May 15.

The jurors refused to be interviewed by reporters, issuing a brief statement that gave no indication of the basis on which they reached their verdicts.

The defendants sat motionless and expressionless, as they have throughout most of the trial, as a court officer read out 10 separate verdicts of not guilty. Then they rose and embraced their lawyers.

In an indication of the mood in Simi Valley, loud arguments broke out between white and black spectators outside the courthouse in this Los Angeles suburb.

"What race are you?" shouted a black man.

A white man shouted back, "I'm an American!"

The black man yelled in reply, "We're not judged as Americans!"

Stones were thrown at Powell as he left the courthouse, said Sgt. Dick Southwick of the Ventura County Sherrif's Department.

The jury's verdict flew in the face of the verdict of public opinion, which over the past year has condemned the videotaped beating as police brutality in its rawest form.

President Bush said the videotape sickened him, and police departments in other cities played it for their officers as a cautionary lesson. But many civil rights groups and black community leaders said that King's beating was unusual only in that it had been captured on videotape.

The tape became a symbol of what many critics see as a chasm between police officers and the communities they protect, of racial bias in law enforcement and of the bunker mentality of some police departments.

As a result of the publicity, U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh ordered a review of police-brutality complaints around the nation. An independent commission headed by Warren M. Christopher, a deputy secretary of state in the Carter adminstration, recommended broad changes in the Los Angeles Police Department.

Under intense pressure, Chief Daryl F. Gates announced he would resign his tenured position, and although he has continued to remain in office, his replacement, Willie L. Williams, the Philadelphia police commissioner, was announced this month.

The videotape was the central piece of evidence at the trial. As defense lawyers sought explanations for this or that baton swing or kick, the prosecutor, White, urged jurors simply to watch the tape and to believe their eyes.

The defense brought experts in police procedures to testify about the propriety of the actions shown on the tape, arguing that King was making potentially threatening movements as he rolled on the ground under the blows.

"If reasonable police minds could differ over the propriety of the use of force on March 3, 1991, then I suggest to you there is no proof beyond a reasonable doubt" that the beating was a criminal assault, argued Michael P. Stone, Powell's lawyer.

White, who presented his own expert to testify that the beating was unjustified, countered that at some point each juror would find himself saying, "Enough is enough."

"Once you decide reasonable force ends, you have assault," White said.

In their closing arguments, the lawyers focused on an issue at the heart of the controversy over the Los Angeles Police Department, what Christopher described as its "siege mentality."

House votes to turn over bank records

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic-controlled House buckled under Republican pressure Wednesday and voted to comply with a Justice Department subpoena for voluminous records from the chamber's bank.

The vote was 347-64, with Democrats casting all the votes against compliance.

The department's special counsel, Malcolm R. Wilkey, said he wants the microfilm records for his criminal investigation of check kiting at the bank, where House members wrote thousands of overdrafts.

"By turning over these records, we answer that final, that lingering, ultimately that very painful question: whether anybody here broke the law," said Rep. Scott Klug, R-Wis.

Several Democrats argued that the Republican resolution to comply with the subpoena was political and would come back to haunt lawmakers if information about their personal checks became public.

"During this '92 campaign, you'll be reading about the personal checks of individuals in this chamber," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Before the vote, Speaker Thomas S. Foley suffered an embarrassing defeat. The House rejected a Democratic leadership resolution to have the Justice Department subpoena tested in court.

The vote was 284-131 against the resolution, with the Democratic leadership barely winning a majority of its own members.

Despite defeat of that resolution, the subpoena might get a court hearing anyway. Democratic Reps. Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas and Sidney R. Yates of Illinois filed suit in U.S. District Court Wednesday night to invalidate the subpoenaes. Their brief argued the subpoena violated the House's powers as an independent branch of government.

Foley told the House the subpoena could be unconstitutional and should be tested in the courts. Wilkey said he's investigating check kiting.

Republicans argued in floor debate that the Democratic plan would be perceived as a coverup.

"The press is going to go on another feeding frenzy," said Rep. James V. Hansen, R-Utah, ranking GOP member of the ethics committee. "We're going to rip that scab off ... We're going to bleed, bleed, bleed, bleed all the way down to the first Tuesday in November."

Foley supporters said members should reject the political argument and uphold the House's constitutional powers as a separate branch of government.

"I don't care what public opinion says," said Rep. David Nagle, D-Iowa. "When I came to this House, I swore to defend the constitution. Let public opinion be damned."

HEAT: New records on tap?

(From 1A)

to beat the heat as organizers seemingly could not have planned the biggest weekend of the year at a better time.

Saturday festivities run throughout the day starting with the ninth annual Celebration of the Arts 5K road race at 8:30 a.m.

Other events include the annual March of Dimes walk-a-thon, the Energy Appreciation Week "Blowout" at the American Legion Hall at Midland Airpark, the Cinco de Mayo parade and the Celebration of the Arts extravaganza in downtown Midland.

On Saturday night, those attending the downtown street dance to see guest country music singer, Ronna Reeves and Midland Angels fans can look forward to a mild evening. Overnight lows that night are expected to drop to the upper 50s to lower 60s.

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies and south to southwest winds at 10 to 20 miles per hour and gusty. The high is expected to reach the upper 90s. The record high for April 30 is 96 degrees set in 1948. Tonight should be clear with a low in the lower 60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Friday should again be sunny with a high in the upper 90s. The record high for May 1 is 95 degrees set in 1936.

After an overnight low of 52, Wednesday's high reached 86 compared with the record high for that date of 95 set in 1947. The record low for that date is 41 set in 1960.

The extended outlook calls for sunny skies through Monday with a high in the lower 90s on Saturday and low to mid-80s on Sunday and Monday. The lows should be in the upper 50s to lower 60s through the period.

STATE

Clouds and showers lingered Wednesday in East and Southeast Texas, but the rest of the state had clearing skies in the wake of scattered severe thunderstorms that pounded portions of the state.

Temperatures climbed into the 70s and 80s with the lower readings below the cloud cover and a few 90s in the sunny west.

Winds were northerly at 10 to 15 miles an hour with occasional gusts. Breezes along the coast were brisk and southerly.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

guarded firefighters.

"The fires in many cases have been very difficult for us to get to because of the hostility in the area. We're apparently getting police assistance in every case now. ... We're maxed out now," said Fire Chief Donald Manning. "It's a very, very tense situation for us."

City officials, including Bradley and Police Chief Daryl F. Gates as well as leaders of the black community appealed for calm.

At the intersection, news helicopters captured the scene as a truck driver was pulled from his tractor-trailor rig, beaten and clubbed with a tire iron as looters went through a nearby liquor store, gas station and auto parts store.

Men who beat the truck driver raised their hands and smiled.

The man's pockets were picked and he was kicked before he was able to stumble to his truck and drive away.

In another attack, about 25 people stood around as looters pulled a man from a vehicle at the intersection, beat and kicked him.

The man staggered about in the street, his head bloody, looking for help or a way out. After several minutes, two good Samaritans emerged, their hands raised for a halt to the violence. They led the man away.

A man in a white truck had his window smashed and was pulled out of the cab and beaten.

A motorcyclist was seen shooting a shotgun at passing cars at the intersection, and at least one other person was wounded.

At Parker Center, the downtown police headquarters, demonstrators demanding Gates' resignation threw rocks and uprooted plants, breaking some glass doors and windows.

About 50 of the crowd of 200 menaced two police officers who were trapped outside the building, but no one appeared to be injured.

Police in riot gear later moved in and some officers were hit with what appeared to be rocks. Officers wrestled a demonstrator to the ground and formed a protective wall against the demonstrators.

Los Angeles' black neighborhoods were last wracked by such violence in the 1965 Watts riots, sparked by a Highway Patrol arrest of a black man. Thirty-four people were killed in the 1965 uprising.

REAGANS: Patti says mom beat her was substance abuse. That's what went down."

In Los Angeles, the Reagans issued a statement saying Davis' "charges of physical mistreatment and substance abuse ... are absolutely false."

"We have always loved Patti and hope the day will come when she rejoins the family," the Reagans said. "Toward that end, we see no useful purpose for further comment."

Davis, who has not spoken with her parents in several years, said the beatings began when she was a little girl and continued when she was in college.

"There was hitting," she said. "There was emotional tyranny in a way. I think the most prominent memory I have of my childhood is that I didn't measure up. I could never get it right."

She said she told her father about the beatings when he was California's governor.

Davis is promoting her autobiography, "The Way I See It," to be released today. It is her fourth book. Last year she published a novel featuring a domineering mother and a detached father.

TURNOVER: API chief sees indication of change

(From 1A)

"In some specific cases, we might lose some friends, but a lot of those in trouble are not our friends." said DiBona, who heads the 5,000 member API, the largest oil-and-gas group in the nation, "Overall, it could be positive, because of a growing mood against excessive regulation. I am hopeful the turnover in Congress will bring a shift away from regulation toward growth."

Asked if some of the congressional positions being vacated might go to environmental extremists, he said he did not think so, because of strong feelings about government and regulation. "Now seems to be the opportune time for those politicians who are coming out of nowhere."

DiBona said that after 20 years of being a watchdog for the oil industry, he finally is beginning to see an indication of change.

"I am not a born-again optimist, but we are finally seeing some inclination to consider the cost of regulation, by reviewing and repealing costly regulations," DiBona said.

He noted, however, that reviewing a few costly regulations is not sufficient, that the entire process of making regulations needs to be reviewed.

"There may be a temptation sometimes to say that bad policy has gone too far and we will never see a turnaround. But every cycle has the seeds of reversal contained within it. We may be seeing some turnaround. Meanwhile, we have to learn to survive," said DiBona, who in 1973 served as special consultant to the president and deputy director of White House energy policy.

The former Rhodes Scholar said that as the oil industry fights today's political battles it must not lose sight of the animosity toward the industry. "It's not fair, but we are still viewed with mistrust and contempt."

Very-much-alive political battles are the move by the Environmental Protection Agency to classify exploration and production waste as hazardous materials, and the need to repeal the Alternative Minimum Tax, he said.

"The industry needs tax relief from the AMT and it needs it as soon as possible," he said. He called the proposal to regulate drilling fluids and produced water, the "bill from hell" that could shut down 75 percent of all wells in the nation. "It would be laughable if it were not so serious. The best thing we have going against it is its absurdity."

music darling with record sales exceeding even Michael Jackson, was shut out of the awards he was nominated for.

"It was a very slow start for me," Brooks said, adding all the winners deserved their trophies.

Top vocal group honors went to Diamond Rio, and the Nashville team Brooks & Dunn won trophies for best vocal duet and best new vocal group.

"We're not worthy," Kix Brooks said of himself and partner Ronnie Dunn.

Florida's Billy Dean won best song for "Somewhere in My Broken Heart." He also won the new male vocalist trophy. The new female vocalist award went to Trisha Yearwood.

The academy bestowed its noncompetitive Pioneer Award on Willie Nelson for "outstanding and unprecedented achievement in the field of country music." Past recipients include Gene Autry, Johnny Cash, Buck Owens, Kitty Wells and Roy Rogers.

Results of voting by the 3,000-member academy were announced during a two-hour NBC-TV special from the Universal Amphitheatre.

Winners in instrumental, band country radio station, disc jockey and nightclub categories were announced earlier.

Instrumental awards went to Roy Huskey Jr., bass; Eddie Bayers, drums; Mark O'Connor, fiddle; John Jorgenson, guitar; Matt Rollings, keyboard; Jerry Douglas, specialty instrument (dobro); and Paul Franklin, steel guitar.

The band and touring band awards have been eliminated.

Kentucky's WAMZ was picked country radio station of the year and Nashville's Gerry House was the top disc jockey. The Louisville station won the top station award six years earlier, and it was the second consecutive win for Nashville's WSIX disc jockey.

The academy also selected the Crazy Horse Steak House & Saloon in Santa Ana as the country night club of the year, the sixth consecutive victory for the Orange County honky tonk.

McDonald's closes Taiwan outlets

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — McDonald's closed its 57 restaurants in Taiwan after a bomb went off in one of the fast-food outlets Wednesday, the third explosion linked to an extortion campaign.

Police and the chain offered $880,000 in rewards for clues leading to the capture of those responsible for the bombings.

In the Taipei suburb of Yungho, a McDonald's manager was hospitalized in critical condition after a bomb he was inspecting blew up. The bomb had been discovered by a worker on the ceiling in the restaurant's men's room. Flying glass from the explosion also hurt two children, police said.

Two hours later, police were called to defuse a bomb at a McDonald's in downtown Taipei.

On Tuesday, a policeman was killed when he tried to defuse a bomb inside the men's room of a McDonald's restaurant, and another bomb exploded in a telephone booth across from the McDonald's in Koahsiung, southern Taiwan.

Police said the two bombs that exploded Tuesday were mercury-tilt bombs. The bombs, used frequently by the Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland, are set off when moved.

Police discovered a soft-drink bottle in a Taipei parking lot Tuesday night containing an anonymous letter requesting $240,000 from McDonald's. The letter said six bombs would be planted at McDonald's restaurants.

Police discovered an unexploded bomb near the parking lot.

McDonald's officials Wednesday said they would close all their restaurants in Taiwan until "we are free of any security concerns." The chain offered $480,000 for any one who could offer any clues.

Taiwan has seen an upsurge in extortion and other violent crime since 1987, when martial law was ended. But few bombing have been reported.

Summit should deal with population, U.N. official says

LONDON (AP) — World population, rising faster than ever and headed for 6 billion, is a crucial factor in environmental destruction and must be considered at the Earth Summit, the U.N. Population Fund said Wednesday.

Dr. Nafis Sadik, the fund's executive director, complained that major summit documents barely mention population growth. She said she understood the Roman Catholic Church was involved in blocking inclusion of family planning.

"Unless you really deal with population, you can forget about environment or about development," she said.

Ms. Sadik said the first pre-summit meeting, last year, put population on the agenda, but the second meeting, this year, "diluted everything" in its proposed programs and in the Earth Charter, to be signed by heads of government.

"All mention of family planning has been removed. In fact, family planning has been addressed in the most round-about fashion. ... that was, I understand, at the very active participation of the Vatican and help by one or two governments ... Argentina and the Philippines," she said.

According to the fund's annual report, the State of World Population 1992, the population will increase by about 97 million annually until the year 2000, the equivalent of a United States every 2½ years.

"If we carefully husband them, world resources are adequate for the sustained development of the planet," Ms. Sadik said.

The report came five weeks before the June summit in Rio de Janeiro, called the U.N. Conference on Environment and Development.

Ms. Sadik said the fund has been talking to summit secretary-general Maurice Strong and to governments with strong population programs to see what can be done about adding to the agenda. She did not identify the governments.

"I think the population issue will be addressed," she said.

Ms. Sadik said the simultaneous explosions of population and consumption "heighten the possibility of future economic and ecological catastrophe, the nightmare of the 1990s."

The report publishes long-range population projections from the U.N. Population Division. According to the projections, the world population will be 5.48 billion in mid-1992, climbing to 6 billion by 1998 — two years earlier than previously forecast.

The next decade's projected growth — about 97 million annually — is the highest ever, with nearly all the growth in Africa, Asia and Latin America, the report said.

It said more needs to be done for the world's 1.1 billion poorest people, to improve health and education, and to raise the status of women. Special attention should be given to Africa and South Asia, where more than half the population increase occurs, it said.

Matching grant boosts charity

An outstanding five-year, $1 million matching grant from the Abell-Hanger Foundation should stimulate development of permanent funds within the Permian Basin Area Foundation, providing additional benefit from charitable giving in a community long known for its philanthropy.

Under requirements of the grant, Abell-Hanger will match on a 2-to-1 basis any new dollars added to existing or newly created permanent funds administered by Permian Basin Area Foundation.

The grant could result in tremendous philanthropic assistance for any number of non-profit organizations such as Casa de Amigos, Midland County Public Library, Midland Jaycees, Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, United Way of Midland, Big Brothers-/Big Sisters, and the Midland/Odessa Symphony & Chorale.

Abell-Hanger's generosity also will mean that a greater vehicle is available here for the charitable giving of Midlanders of all financial means which fulfills one of Abell-Hanger's goals, according to an announcement by Jim Trott, president of that foundation's board of trustees.

"We feel the greatest impact we can make as a private foundation is to provide resources to reduce the costs related to administering the funds within an already efficient community foundation," Trott said. "We are hopeful that the Abell-Hanger Foundation support will fuel the interest by others to help meet challenges that are most common to our area."

We're excited about the generous Abell-Hanger matching grant and share the foundation's hope that it will stimulate the interest of others in meeting this area's challenges.

Be sure to join this year's celebration!

The annual extravaganza, Celebration of the Arts, kicks off today in Midland with its typical "something for everyone" fare. This year's celebration — the ninth edition and sponsored by Arts Assembly of Midland — promises to be the best yet.

More than 15,000 people are expected to attend the celebration events this year and those throngs should find plenty to their liking during the event's duration. There'll be games, a street dance, entertainers, artists, a Cinco de Mayo parade and much, much more.

You see, Celebration of the Arts is not only about art and culture; it's about fun and living and enjoyment — all the things that make life not only palatable but downright exciting!

If you've never attended Celebration of the Arts before, make plans to do so this year. If you've been before, you probably are already making plans to grab the enjoyment again this year.

One thing is certain — if you do, you'll certainly be glad that you did. Celebration of the Arts is a celebration!

Readers' views on: City election

Kyser would add integrity to council

It is election time and once again the incumbents are trying to paint a more handsome picture of themselves than their records merit. As an example, let us look at J.D. Faircloth's "experienced leadership."

1. Faircloth conducts city business in "executive sessions:" (a) appointments without elections; (b) approved job to outgoing mayor (c) approved transfer of approximately $9,000,000 in city funds from high-interest CDs to Mayor Carroll Thomas' brokerage firm (1990); returned those funds to CDs AT A TIME WHEN INTEREST RATES ARE THE LOWEST THEY HAVE BEEN IN YEARS. How much was the return investment? Did we taxpayers lose or make money while it was under the control of Thomas' firm and how much did he or his company make in commissions while they MANAGED tax dollars?

2. Faircloth has experience in controversial issues: HE ALWAYS TAKES AN ANTI-CITY EMPLOYEE, ANTI-TAXPAYER STANCE. He opposes raises for city employees and endorses raises for already-overpaid management bureaucrats. Don't forget he pushed the last tax increase that the voters turned down.

3. J.D. is for economic development: he supports manufacturing with highly paid executives and minimum-wage employees. No one can live in Midland on minimum wage.

4. Whatever happened to the tar pit on the east side? It is unimportant to J.D. now that two minority councilmen are no longer sitting.

5. We will not get into the airport controversy. The old airport was fine until the CAF (which the taxpayers of Midland, through its City Council, including J.D., gave $6,000,000 tax-free benefits) came to town and now the airport needs to be rebuilt? For whose benefit?

J.D. Faircloth, as councilman-at-large, is experienced — at manipulation, double-speak, answering to special interest groups and NOT representing ALL the citizens and taxpayers. How would he act as mayor — NO DIFFERENTLY.

We need to put some integrity and respect into city government, we need a mayor who will represent ALL the citizens, we need to elect DON KYSER, who is neither a manipulator nor manipulated, and who speaks forthrightly and answers to no special interest group. Vote for Don Kyser on May 2 and retake control of your city.

Quality education is Crawford's goal

On Saturday, May 2, one school board race will offer the voters an opportunity to reject self-serving bureaucrats whose greatest contribution to this campaign seems to be the large number of giant campaign signs that can be seen littering the streets of our city.

I urge everyone eligible to vote in the District 7 school board race to cast their vote for Lex Crawford. Lex has a down-to-earth manner and sincerely desires to help the children of Midland obtain a quality education. His involvement with the youth of Midland in the Junior Baseball Program for years and his visits to schools to teach children about his profession are but two examples of his dedication to Midland's next generation.

Lex is not an ivory-tower candidate whose main ambition seems to be putting another notch in his resume to go along with multiple PTA memberships. Lex is a doer, not a delegator. Anyone can be part of a crowd or tell someone else what to do, but it takes a special person to seize the initiative and act on their own convictions. Lex Crawford will act in the best interests of the children of Midland and will do it in a fiscally responsible manner.

In conclusion, I will add that having been both a competitor and assistant to Lex on the baseball fields in Midland, I can attest to the integrity of the man and to the fact that he is a true gentleman worthy of your vote. Please, on May 2 break away from the old-line bureaucracy that has lowered our city, state and nation to second-class status and vote for someone who can make a difference for the future. Vote for Lex Crawford.

People fortunate Coffman candidate

A citizenry is fortunate when an individual with outstanding managerial skills that have been proven in a successful business career avails oneself for public service. Such is the case with Charles Coffman, a candidate for the District 7 seat on the Midland Hospital District board.

I have known Coffman personally and in business for more than a decade. In all relationships, I have found him to be of high moral character and always a gentleman whose word was his bond. I have no doubt that Coffman will do his utmost to accomplish exactly what he has advocated in his platform and that he has the managerial skills to make things happen.

You are to be commended for your endorsement of Coffman in your editorial of April 20.

Problem with dog misrepresented

In regards to Gail Riggan's letter of April 29, I find it rather interesting that she failed to mention the breed of dog. Sassy is a 12-pound miniature dachshund. I have a hard time seeing this dog attacking anybody, since the dog's best friend is a 2½-year-old neighbor, baby James.

Ms. Riggan stated that Don Kyser has never been pleasant to them. I am questioning that "them" is referring to her and her husband, Tim Riggan, the same man who stood in the middle of the street yelling profanities. Ms. Riggan has misrepresented the facts.

Sassy was picked up by Animal Control and held for 10 days. The Animal Control officer who picked her up said that Sassy did not seem to be a problem. While she was in custody, she was well liked by the professional staff at the Animal Control office.

The dog behaved while she was there. After receiving many more nuisance calls, Animal Control placed a sign on their switchboard saying, in effect, that they do not respond to calls from people concerning Sassy. The dog is not a problem. Again, Ms. Riggan misrepresented the facts.

I feel that this neighbor of Kyser's is placing her and her husband's dirty laundry out in the open because they cannot sit down like civilized people and discuss their perceived problem with Kyser.

Johnston serves community well

In the race for Midland City Council, District 4, we need a candidate like Tom Johnston who has served his community to the best of his ability.

His past accomplishments on the Planning and Zoning Commission along with training in the field of urban development proves to me that Tom is the person to sit on the City Council for District 4.

Tom Johnston has demonstrated his desire to get involved in the community and will continue to make important decisions regarding all aspects of our city government. Tom has helped Midland in so many ways, let's keep him on as our city councilman because "he is one of us."

J.D. Wallace
Midland

Johnston deserves to have 2nd term

Being a longtime resident of Midland, I feel Tom Johnston deserves a second term as city councilman for District 4. He is the only councilman with experience in Planning & Zoning.

He is a fair, qualified, conscientious and competent candidate who is an independent voice with no special interests to repay. We need these qualities in our elected officials.

It is important for District 4 voters to go to the polls Saturday, May 2, and vote for Tom Johnston.

Sue Brannon
Midland

Johnston cares about city's future

Tom Johnston has represented District 4 on the Midland City Council for the past three years in an exemplary manner! He is honest, intelligent, fair and truly cares about Midland's future. All issues are carefully studied by Tom before he votes and input is gladly received from his district.

Please join me on Saturday to maintain our representative voice on the council by re-electing Tom Johnston for a second term.

Jack Hightower
Midland

Johnston shows concern, interest

I urge the voters in District 4 to vote on Saturday to re-elect Tom Johnston to the City Council from their district.

He votes his convictions and I have found him to be honest and sincere in trying to help not only his district, but all of the citizens of Midland. We need more candidates of his concern and interest.

Hallie McCarter
Midland

Johnston has proven concern for Midland

Tom Johnston has proven his concern for all of the citizens of Midland during his first term as councilman of District 4.

If you agree that he has done a good job and deserves a second term, please vote May 2 for Tom Johnston.

John E. Reid
Midland

Johnston displays integrity, concern

We are indeed fortunate to have a man on the city council with Tom Johnston's integrity and concern for all of the citizens of Midland.

Please vote on Saturday, May 2, to keep him working for all of us.

CAF colonels not pompous people

In reading the letter from Russell Sexton in the April 24th edition of the Reporter-Telegram, it was clear from the first jump out of the chute that Sexton has a great big burr under his saddle blanket.

Would Coca-Cola pay $30,000 so the City of Midland could put their advertising just anywhere or did the Coke folks want their "real thing" with a well-known outfit like the Confederate Air Force (CAF)? There is only one CAF, but hundreds and hundreds of towns such as Midland.

I've been a CAF member only since October of 1991, but I have dealt with the acting director and several CAF department heads and employees as well as the chief of staff and scads of colonels and I haven't found them to be pompous. Quite the contrary! What makes Sexton think they are pompous?

In working with the B-29 group on "Fifi," I have met hangar visitors from Norway, Brazil, Australia, England, several provinces in Canada and about all of the states in the U.S. These visitors have been very complimentary of the CAF and its activities and have come to Midland to see the CAF. Some have discovered that the CAF is here now and have taken a break to drive down I-20 just to see the CAF. Some CAFers come to the CAF to work for up to a month. All these visitors left money in Midland at the CAF and at local restaurants, motels, hotels, RV campgrounds, gas stations, etc.

My city councilman, Tom Johnston, answers all the questions that I ask him; I know that Buddy Sipes and most if not all of the other councilmen would, too. Maybe Sexton needs to ask his city councilman about our City of Midland business that he doesn't understand. And get to know the CAF and the CAFers better. I think that he will feel better then.

2 giants have fallen from Midland forest

Several years ago following the death of one of Midland's leaders, someone wrote a letter, which was published by your newspaper, that stated the author "... hated to see the Redwoods fall" or something akin thereto.

With the passing of Murray Fasken and Tom Sealy two additional giants from the Midland forest of great leaders have tumbled. They will be missed.

Iraqi army drains swamps, builds roads in offensive against rebels

MASHMASHIYEH, Iran (AP) — The army is draining swamps and throwing roads across the vast marshes of southeastern Iraq so its tanks and heavy artillery can join an intensifying attack on Shiite Muslim guerrillas, the rebels said Wednesday.

Shiite leaders based in Iran said some 36,000 Iraqi soldiers launched a three-pronged attack April 15 into the expanse of swaying 10-foot reeds, date palm thickets and murky waterways meandering among thousands of islets.

They said the offensive was the third attempt in two months to crush the rebels, who fled to the swamps after the army defeated the Shiite rebellion following President Saddam Hussein's loss in the Gulf War.

Rebel commanders said they have about 10,000 fighters armed mainly with AK-47 automatic rifles and other light weapons captured from the Iraqis. They estimated 200,000 civilians also are hiding in the 6,000 square miles of marshes, living off fish and whatever supplies the guerrillas can get to them.

There was no way to verify the rebel claims.

A reporter visiting the marshes saw no rebel wounded being ferried to the rear, no reinforcements or supplies moving westward toward the combat zone. There was little sense of urgency.

Baghdad denied last week that it had launched an attack. But U.S. State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Tuesday that "there are indications of increased fighting in southern Iraq."

The marshes have been a sanctuary for brigands for centuries and the Iraqi army has never been able to completely pacify the region. Throughout the 1980-'88 war with Iran, it was a haven for thousands of army deserters.

Shiite fighters use flat-bottomed motorboats to zigzag blindly through narrow openings in the overhanging reeds, the only cover from Saddam's helicopter gunships.

"We know every inch of the marshes. We don't have to see where we're going," said Abu Haidar, one of the scouts who regularly slip into the swamps from Iran carrying messages or supplies.

The Iraqis apparently are trying to take away some of those advantages.

Sayed Abu Rahim, a field commander with the forces of the Tehran-based Supreme Assembly for the Islamic Revolution in Iraq, said the main road being constructed is from the north through Medina, about 12½ miles inside Iraq.

"They want to move their tanks and self-propelled artillery deep into the marshes so they can hit our forces," he said at this outpost on the Iran-Iraq border.

In some areas, the Iraqis are draining large areas of the marshes to facilitate the road-building, rebel officers said.

Abu Rahim said Saddam's forces also had razed villages around the edge of the swamps in retaliation for residents helping the rebels.

The Shiites make up about 55 percent of Iraq's 17 million people and have long bridled under Saddam's regime, which is dominated by minority Sunni Muslims.

The rebels said Saddam's latest offensive consists of attacks from Basra to the south, Nasiriyah on the Euphrates River to the west and al-Amarah in the north.

Hospital board awards construction contracts

■ Expenditures totaling $14 million will mean expansion at one site and a conversion at another.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The Midland County Hospital District's board of directors unanimously awarded more than $14 million in construction contracts Wednesday to expand Memorial Hospital and Medical Center and to restructure Memorial West.

The board, which earlier issued $26 million in revenue bonds to raise capital funds for expansion, authorized spending $12.8 million for renovation and expansion of the hospital.

The board awarded the two-year hospital expansion-renovation project to Faulkner Construction Co. of Austin and Midland.

Faulkner, which had submitted the lowest — $12,839,000 — of eight bids, is to begin construction of the four-floor expansion on the north side of the hospital in May. The high bid by White Construction Co. was for $14.2 million.

Expanding the hospital's support services, including the emergency room, testing & diagnostic services, same-day surgery, clinical laboratory, materiel management and central sterile supply and a shell for surgical suites, is expected to take 16 months.

Following that will be the 10-month renovation project of the hospital's radiology and pharmacy departments.

"This expansion is really necessary," said Dr. Stephen Wiesenfeld, president of the hospital district's board. "We will not be able to serve the population very well if we don't expand."

Wiesenfeld, a Midland allergist, said that no business is going to seriously consider moving to Midland unless the community offers f rst-class medical care.

"And that is my primary concern," he said. "Communities that don't are going to lose the population, lose the businesses and lose the doctors."

The hospital's administration and governing boards are trying to plan ahead, Wiesenfeld said. "It's hard to know where the oil business is going to go."

The hospital "has not seen a slowdown in the demand for medical services. If anything, we have seen an increase," Wiesenfeld said. "We are very crowded. We need to expand some of our basic services and to restructure the hospital and to expand the emergency room.

"I see nothing but an increased demand for (health-care) services."

Memorial Hospital, Wiesenfeld noted, is evolving into "more of a regional (medical) center because of Medicare changes and the closing of outlying hospitals. This is something beyond our control."

Outside of the $12.8 million for hospital expansion and renovation, the remainder of the $26 million raised in revenue bonds will go for new hospital equipment, including a linear accelerator for the Allison Cancer Center, toward retiring debt, for hospital furniture, and architectural and engineering fees.

The $1.19 million Memorial West project, awarded to J.W. Cooper Construction Co. of Odessa, is the conversion of the hospital's Memorial West complex from a 49-bed psychiatric-substance abuse facility to a 47-bed rehabilitation-skilled nursing facility.

Two foundations pledge Vietnam memorial money

Fund raising, which Philbeck describes as "in its infancy," has generated $150,000 toward the construction of the memorial on two acres at Midland International Airport.

More than two years after its beginning, the fund-raising drive to build the Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans' Memorial is picking up speed.

"I feel very enthusiastic about the fact that this dream is becoming a reality," said John Philbeck, president of the Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans' Memorial Committee. He announced two major gifts Wednesday that have propelled the project toward its $500,000 goal.

Fund raising, which Philbeck describes as "in its infancy," has generated $150,000 toward the construction of the memorial on two acres at Midland International Airport.

Much of that money is recent pledges from the I.A. O'Shaughnessy Foundation and the Abell-Hanger Foundation.

Supporters of the memorial association began their drive in November 1989, generating income mainly from the sale of souvenir items.

"We began to realize the memorial was not going to be built through the sale of tin cans, caps and other grassroots movements," Philbeck said. Two years later, they began to contact local foundations and received the two major gifts in the first three months of this year.

Smith bankruptcy fraud trial testimony begins

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

After filing for bankruptcy in March 1989, a Midland woman reported about $72,000 of personal jewelry stolen from her home the next year, according to testimony at her bankruptcy fraud trial Wednesday.

Lillian Wallis Smith, 49, faces charges of concealing assets and making false oaths in connection to filing bankruptcy, and making false statements to a government agency.

According to testimony before an 11-person jury in Judge Lucius Bunton's U.S. District Court, Ms. Smith was discharged from $311,000 of debts in June 1989.

A few months later, Ms. Smith took out a homeowner's insurance policy listing thousands of dollars of possessions and then reported the burglary a few months after that, testimony indicated. The insurance company paid Ms. Smith $4,500.

A sheriff's investigator was informed by Ms. Smith that most of the $72,000 worth of jewelry reported stolen she had owned for several years, testimony showed.

A sheriff's department investigation ultimately led to a search of Ms. Smith's home in June 1990 by the FBI, testimony revealed.

Items including jewelry and artwork were confiscated at that time. Appraisers testified the value of the jewelry to be about $4,800 and the some of the artwork at about $2,000.

C.G. Wallis, a former husband of the defendant, testified that he compiled a financial statement in 1983 showing Ms. Smith's assets in excess of $4.5 million.

Defense attorney David Greenhaw objected to the financial statement because it was made years before the bankruptcy and had been physically altered.

In addition, during cross examination of prosecution witnesses, Greenhaw's questioning implied that the value of Ms. Smith's possessions presented to the jury were misleading.

In his opening statement, Greenhaw told jurors that his client had valued her assets for bankruptcy according to an instruction sheet

ED TODD

Death of a sparrow becomes a reminder of mortality for all

Death.

It is always with us as surely as the life that embraces us.

It comes with living.

Funerals tell us so.

The other day, I was blessed at a funeral. It was marvelous in its celebration of a life and the promise of a wondrous life beyond the grave.

Todd

If we have drawn earthly breath, we surely will breathe our last.

And that's just the way things are. No judgment about that. It is a given.

So, "the deal" is simply to plow down your row as best you can for as long as you can.

In life's journey, you will encounter death again and again. It is unavoidable.

To mourn is good. There are tears of loss, tears of sorrow, tears of grief, tears of longing, tears of happiness, tears of joy, tears of gratitude, and tears of blessing. Are we not richer for having shared a heartfelt moment with another?

We are blessed indeed to experience camaraderie with another spirit at any level for any length of time.

And just being aware of life's changes and observing the rising and falling of life's tides in your own life and in the lives of others is a venture into spirituality.

A little sparrow, in the throes of death, told me so.

He had not been long out of the nest when he flew low to the ground and into the path of my pickup truck. He was impeccably groomed in his new flying suit. And there's no doubt that his parents were justly proud of their offspring.

The timing was fatal.

From the right, I sighted him flying slightly below hood level.

He almost flew by unscathed.

I heard the thump of feathers, flesh and bone impacting metal.

The little bird ricocheted and fell to the ground. He tried to fly, but he couldn't get airborne. His wings could not give him the power to lift off and again fly into his natural element.

I was no longer in a rush to go to work.

I stopped, picked up the injured bird, and took him to the morning quiet of the office.

A wing and a leg looked injured. I hoped that was all. I laid him on the desk and assured him that he would be all right.

He eyes were bright. He was silent.

So quickly, though, he started gasping. His beak opened and closed, opened and closed, opened and closed. Death was imminent. I hoped not.

He stopped moving. I picked him up and tried to revived him. The luster started leaving his eyes. His young life, which had hardly begun, was over.

I was sad. I had encountered this bird only minutes before and quickly felt a loss. Though a mere sparrow, the heavens would mourn his passing and celebrate his life.

The songbirds are singing.

And I thought of the deep sadness which befalls loving parents when their child dies. Their grief is as great as their love.

And, I suppose, they will always mourn, and they will always love. How can they not?

And somehow, I know, happiness must fill their hearts for the gift of that child and their ability to love.

I know that must be so. I want that to be so. Life continues beyond death.

California man freed from jail

SULPHUR SPRINGS (AP) — A California man was freed Wednesday after serving nine months of a life sentence for a purse-snatching prosecutors now say he didn't commit.

Rickey Dale Thomas, 29, emerged from the Hopkins County Jail minutes after District Court Judge Lanny R. Ramsay signed an order dropping all charges against him.

"No, they can't make up the lost time to me," Thomas said. "Freedom is priceless."

Wearing a pin-striped white shirt and tie that supporters had brought and carrying his 2-year-old daughter Simone, Thomas said he was "just happy to be free."

"I'm happy this time because she (Simone) won't be waving goodbye to me," he said. "She'll be with me."

He said he would never return to Sulphur Springs, a town about 75 miles east of Dallas.

"They've got a sign down here, 'Don't Mess With Texas.' They made a believer out of me," he said, referring to the state's anti-litter campaign slogan.

Thomas was to appear on the Phil Donahue show in New York before returning to San Diego.

supplied by her bankruptcy attorney, Glen Halsell of Odessa.

"It says on that sheet, you value it (possessions) on garage-sale prices," Greenhaw told jurors.

On cross-examination of Halsell's paralegal, Patricia Boone, who assisted Ms. Smith, Greenhaw asked, "You told Ms. Smith she could value it at those prices and it wouldn't be any problem?"

"Generally, yes," she replied.

Exceptions — such as for more valued items — were mentioned but not specific guidelines, testimony indicated.

"The bankruptcy system is really a system based on trust," testified R. Osherow, a San Antonio bankruptcy attorney, when asked about listing assets.

Osherow had acted as successor trustee in Ms. Smith's bankruptcy.

The trial will continue today with the government's case against Ms. Smith, prosecuted by assistant U.S. Attorney Jan Hartung, to conclude followed by Greenhaw's defense.

Various alleged incriminating exploits of Ms. Smith that were revealed at her detention hearing in December are not expected to come out at the trial.

In the Midland area, Ms. Smith has been known for starting the Midland-Odessa Earthquake Relief Effort for the Mexico City disaster in 1985, and her involvement in a Cancun Relief Fund for victims of Hurricane Gilbert in Cancun, Mexico.

BUILD: Hospital trustees OK construction version. Competitive bids were $1.211 million by Coats Construction Co. and $1.238 million by Campbell Construction Co.

The hospital purchased the former Clearview facility, now Memorial West, in 1988 for $5 million.

Memorial West, which then focused on treating alcoholics and those addicted to other drugs, had not shown consistent profits even after it expanded its services to psychiatry.

After the conversion, the hospital's Memorial West indigent patients will be treated by Glenwood, a private mental health hospital in Midland, under contract with Memorial Hospital.

"Basically," Wiesenfeld said, "psychiatry and chemical dependency are not being covered well or at all by most insurance policies, and we have been losing money."

Except for indigent patients, Memorial West is getting out of the psychiatry-chemical-abuse treatment business. "The only time we take a psychiatric patient for indigent care is if it is an acute crisis," Wiesenfeld said.

"We have made a contractual agreement with Glenwood for them to manage our indigent-care patients at a price we have agreed to pay."

In one instance, the per-day contracted agreement is about half of the almost $1,000-per-day care at Glenwood, Wiesenfeld noted.

"Actually, (the contracted price) is less than it costs us to deliver that same service," Wiesenfeld said.

Because of current profitability of Memorial Hospital's rehabilitation and skilled-nursing units, the hospital plans to transfer those services across town to Memorial West after the conversion is completed this year.

In other business, the board awarded an $80,827 contract to South Texas Construction Co. to build a hospital parking lot, $55,460 to Olympus for an endoscopy scope-video system, and $120,515 to Software Brokers Inc. for a computer system for the Permian Basin Regional Blood Bank jointly owned by Memorial Hospital and Odessa's Medical Center.

The cost will be shared equally by the two hospitals.

VIETNAM: Foundations offer memorial help

(From 1B)

Abell-Hanger's gift is a "top-out" grant, meaning the foundation has pledged to fill out the last $50,000 of the needed money. O'Shaughnessy gave $25,000 to the effort.

"We're 25 percent there," Philbeck said. "The momentum is really picking up."

Although he's not a veteran of the Vietnam War, Philbeck said the monument has become an obsession.

"It affects all of us," he said. "Everybody was there, whether they were there physically or not. It changed the whole United States."

The planned monument, a marble and bronze plaque, lists the more than 200 Permian Basin residents who were either killed in action or listed as missing in action. Behind it will stretch a brick wall, picnic tables and a sidewalk lined with trees.

The entire project is hoped to be funded by November 11, and the monument built by March 29, 1993.

Then, Philbeck said, the thousands of Permian Basin Vietnam veterans, families of those killed and missing, and interested others can begin to use and enjoy the monument.

"It's going to allow people, when they're ready, in their own way and their own time, to pick up the Pandora's box (of feelings) and deal with the demons," Philbeck said. "Then they can put the box back and go on with their lives."

Now the group has begun soliciting donations from individuals and reaching out into the 20 area counties — besides Midland and Ector — that will be represented by the memorial.

Interested persons can call 682-0461 for more information about the memorial plans.

Police seek two

Staff report

ODESSA — Police are searching for two men in connection with the Tuesday morning armed robbery of the La Bodega convenience store at 902 S. Crane Ave., police said.

Store clerk Lorenzo N. Garay, 29, was approached by two Hispanic men as he opened the door to the business at 9:55 a.m. The men pushed him inside and the first suspect grabbed him and put a knife to his throat, threatened to cut him and demanded money, police said.

Garay pointed to the register and the second man took $150 in cash and $40 worth of cigarettes. The men then fled on foot.

The first man is believed to be about 26. He is about 5-feet-6, 165 pounds and has short black hair. He was wearing a green ball cap, a black shirt and pants.

The second man is thought to be in his early-to-mid-20s. He is 5-feet-6 and 140 pounds. He has short, black, wavy hair and was wearing blue jeans, police said.

Driver calls police

The hit-and-run driver who struck and killed a 36-year-old Midland man last Friday night on Midkiff Road near Park Lane called police the day after the accident and told them he didn't mean to do it, police said.

However, the man did not identify himself and police are continuing the search for him and his truck, police said.

Jose Perez was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

Perez was walking across Midkiff Road near Park Lane in southwest Midland at about 10:55 p.m. when the truck skidded, struck him and sped away, police said.

Police are looking for 1982-'85 model white Chevrolet pickup with a rollbar and a damaged and partially missing grill.

Prosecutors are working for Satan, inmate claims

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Condemned inmate Justin May said Wednesday that prosecutors pushing to see him get executed next week for killing a Freeport couple nearly 14 years ago are doing "Satan's work."

May

"Any time you lie on someone, continuously keep lying, bringing up new stories — you tell one lie, you have to cover it up with another," May, 46, said. "It's Satan working through them."

May faces lethal injection May 7 for the June 27, 1978, shooting death of Jeanetta Murdaugh, 43. The woman's husband, Frank, 42, also was killed during the robbery at the couple's Western Auto store in downtown Freeport.

The Texas attorney general's office has said they expect May, who has acknowledged shooting at least two other people in other incidents, to be put to death. He would be the sixth inmate to be executed this year in Texas and the 48th since the state resumed carrying out capital punishment in 1982.

In November, May came within moments of execution when the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling blocking his death. In January, the court turned down his appeal, clearing the way for a new execution date.

"I'm willing to be executed now," May said.

Three men die while cleaning storage tank

NASH (AP) — Three workers died Wednesday inside a tank used to store paint at an aluminum plant, and 26 other employees were treated for possible effects of the fumes, a company executive said.

A worker was cleaning the inside of the 10,000-gallon storage tank at Alumax Mill Products Inc. when he was reported "down," said George Ohl, company vice president and general manager.

Two Alumax employees who came to the contract worker's aid inside the tank were also overcome, he said.

All three were pronounced dead and a coroner ordered autopsies, Ohl sais. He was uncertain whether fumes caused the workers' deaths.

"A co-worker in the area saw the first man was down and went and got help. The two Alumax employees were apparently involved in an attempt to rescue him," Ohl said.

He identified the two Alumax employees as Dean Dowdle, 29, of Texarkana, Ark., and Larry Wright, 38, of Texarkana, Texas.

The contract worker has not been identified.

Other company workers who were in the vicinity — but not inside — the tank "may have come in contact with fumes and we thought it appropriate that they be taken to a local hospital for precautionary checks," he said.

Most of the 26 workers were treated at Wadley Regional Medical Center in Texarkana and later released, Ohl said.

A Wadley Regional spokesman said two men were being treated for chemical inhalation Wednesday evening but were expected to be released soon.

Ohl said cleaning of the tank, which stores paint used for protective coatings of aluminum, began Tuesday. The process continued Wednesday, and the deaths occurred about 9:30 a.m.

Ohl said he could not confirm that any of the workers were wearing protective gear.

"That will be part of our ongoing investigation," he said.

Lawsuits dictate part of state budget

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas state government has been hit with so many significant court orders that nearly 10 percent of its budget is spent complying with them, the comptroller's office reported Wednesday.

"For two decades, Texas has been embroiled in litigation over some of the most basic services provided by state government," the report said. "It's no surprise that lawmakers feel outside forces are moving the budget-signing pen."

The comptroller's office, in its latest Fiscal Notes publication, studied the budgetary effect of lawsuits filed over prisons, treatment of the mentally ill and the mentally retarded, public schools and higher education.

Besides the massive costs of responding to the various court orders, the report said Texas also has been required to spend $24.4 million on fees for lawyers who sued the state, consultants and court-ordered monitors and masters in those cases.

"A generation of lawyers, judges and litigants have been involved in shaping these major segments of state government," Comptroller John Sharp said.

"Critics of 'judicial meddling' blame the courts for much of the state's fiscal woes. Others argue that judges merely have made the state face up to its responsibilities in providing basic services," Sharp said.

According to the report, none of the court orders has specified how much the state should spend on the various services.

However, it said, "The far-ranging decrees have complicated the budget-writing process" and analysts say that 9 percent of the typical two-year state budget goes for responding to the court orders.

Another 17 percent of the total is tied to formula-driven spending, such as Medicaid and state aid to schools, and 58 percent is earmarked for spending required by the Texas Constitution or existing laws.

That leaves the Legislature with discretion to make cuts or expansions in just 16 percent of the budget.

The report said budget experts have concluded that no other state appears to have its budget planning so influenced by lawsuits.

"While all these lawsuits have had a pervasive effect on budgeting, it would be inaccurate to attribute all spending increases in recent years to pressure from the courts," the report said.

Retiree says he didn't know voting in 2 primaries is illegal

HOUSTON (AP) — Retired ladder salesman William C. Fudge said he did not know he was doing anything illegal when he joined what could be hundreds of other Houstonians who voted in both Democratic and Republican primaries this spring.

Fudge voted for state Sen. Gene Green in the April 14 Democratic runoff for the new 29th Congressional District — after voting in the March 10 Republican primary. Such "crossover" voting is a Class C misdemeanor under state law.

"I thought I knew more about politics," Fudge told the Houston Chronicle Tuesday.

Houston City Councilman Ben Reyes filed suit Monday to overturn his primary loss to Green, D-Houston, in the 29th district.

Reyes, who lost the runoff by 180 votes, claims Republican voters were "solicited" to cast Democratic runoff ballots. His lawsuit says "several hundred" crossover votes were recorded in the district's 345 precincts.

By Charles Hagen
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Fashion is an industry based on fantasy, and nowhere is that more apparent than in the glossy, fantastic pages of fashion magazines. Photography, with its blend of fact and fiction, provides a crucial tool for presenting fashion's carefully calculated illusions.

More than simply depicting clothes for sale, the best fashion photographs hold out the promise of a life that is more dramatic, more exciting, than the humdrum realities of everyday existence.

"On the Edge: 100 Years of Photographs From Vogue," now at the New York Public Library, provides an intriguing if uneven picture of the central role photography has played in the long history of Vogue magazine.

Not surprisingly, there's a strongly self-congratulatory air to this exhibition, which is sponsored by Conde Nast, Vogue's publisher, and organized by a group of curators that includes Alexander Liberman, the magazine's editorial director and eminence grise; Anna Wintour, its editor in chief, and a number of other Conde Nast staff members.

But there's no denying the impact that many of the pictures here have had on the world of fashion.

The show is replete with photographs that have both recorded and defined shifting notions of style, from Baron Adolphe de Meyer's shimmering photograph of a backlit Ann Andrews in a horsehair-braid hat, taken in 1919, to Peter Lindbergh's 1988 photograph of a model in jeans and a bejeweled Christian Lacroix jacket.

In many ways the history of Vogue is a history of a few great photographers, among them Edward Steichen, who worked for the magazine from the mid-1920s to 1937; Irving Penn, whose sleekly elegant pictures have appeared in its pages since 1943, and Richard Avedon, lured away from Harper's Bazaar in 1965 and a star in Vogue's firmament ever since.

These three are well represented here, as is a host of others, including Cecil Beaton, Erwin Blumenfeld, Arthur Elgort and Herb Ritts.

For all the craft and style that goes into them, fashion photographs are in the end a form of advertising; their main purpose is to sell clothes. As such they are as important for sociological reasons as for esthetic ones. The air of luxe and delight they exude seldom allows for ambiguity or a sense of real emotion.

For all the craft and style that goes into them, fashion photographs are in the end a form of advertising; their main purpose is to sell clothes. As such they are as important for sociological reasons as for esthetic ones.

Most fashion photographers rely on clearly defined signature styles, whether the crisp, graceful intensity of Penn's work, as exemplified by his 1950 portrait of Lisa Fonssagrives in a black chiffon evening dress, or the moody expressiveness of Deborah Turbeville's 1975 photograph of models stretching and posing in a New York City bathhouse.

Moreover, the impact of fashion photographs comes as much from the staging of the scene, and the story the photograph tells, as from how it's shot.

While "On the Edge" proceeds roughly decade by decade, this is by no means a scholarly show. The period from 1913 to 1928 is represented by a paltry eight pictures, while most of the attention is on the years after 1950.

The pictures trace the twists and turns of style that Vogue and its photographers have led readers through, from the formal precision of Penn's photographs of the 50s and Avedon's quirky, kicky pictures of the 60s and 70s to the theatrical glitz and frank sensuality of the 80s, epitomized in the work of Helmut Newton and Bruce Weber.

Because so many of the pictures in Vogue are about fantasy, more than a few do not conform to approved notions of women's behavior.

A notable example of this is Avedon's 1975 photograph of a man angrily slapping a woman.

The caption notes, in deadpan fashion, that the woman, the fashion model Rene Russo, is wearing a jumpsuit by John Anthony; the accompanying catalogue lamely argues that with this image "a serious social issue had been raised in the magazine's fashion section."

But fashion magazines are not about serious social issues; they're about glamour. Vogue's rare attempts at social relevance, as in Kristine Larsen's artily scratched photographs of homeless people, inevitably come across as arch and a little silly.

Vogue has long been an important chronicler of celebrity, and featured here are a goodly number of portraits of stars of high and low culture.

The most successful pictures of this sort exaggerate their subjects to the point of caricature, whether it's Patrick Demarchelier's 1989 photograph of Madonna spilling out of a ruffled Christian Lacroix jacket or Weber's picture of a bare-chested Mike Tyson striding through a crowd on a 1989 outing to Coney Island.

In fact, it's hard to avoid the feeling from the selection of work here that fashion has become secondary to celebrity in the dream world conjured up by Vogue.

There's a bit of curious arithmetic behind this exhibition's grandiose title. True, Vogue was started in 1892, but Conde Nast, the dapper founder of the magazine empire that bears his name, didn't buy it until 1909 and didn't allow photographs to appear in it until 1913.

"Photographs From 79 Years of Vogue," though, wouldn't quite have the necessary sense of occasion; thus the fudging of numbers.

At the same time, given its corporate genesis, there's no mention here of Vogue's competitors, whether Harper's Bazaar, where Mr. Avedon began his career working with the legendary designer Alexei Brodovitch, or more recent rivals like Elle.

In fact, there's not even anything here from Vogue's more adventurous European editions. Despite its wealth of superb images, this exhibition is not a history of fashion photography.

Nevertheless, it offers a valuable and provocative consideration of the alluring blend of fantasy and commerce that fashion, and Vogue, represents.

'The Russians are coming, the Russians are coming'

AP Laserphoto

Models take the runway as a dozen Russian designers present their debut U.S. fashion show in New York's Fashion Institute of Technology. Bright colors, big hats and a lot of ingenuity marked the 60 outfits shown. "Perestroika affects the designers directly, because there is a shortage of everything — fabric, supplies, equipment," said Ludmila Bokov, a Russian native who hosted the show.

■ Russian fashion designers made their debut in the United States recently — and taught Americans a lesson in ingenuity when it comes to making the most out of what is available.

By Larry McShane

NEW YORK (AP) — Here's a little known fact about Russian fashion: it exists.

Though economic problems have severely cramped their style, a dozen Russian designers had their debut U.S. fashion show recently.

"Today we witness a historic event, the first show of Russian fashion in this country," said Ludmila Bokov, the show's host.

Nowhere in sight were the drab, grey, stereotypical outfits lampooned in the past as Russian fashion.

The 60 outfits shown at the Fashion Institute of Technology were marked by bright colors, big hats, and a lot of ingenuity — including shoelaces, bedsheets, fabric scraps and the former Soviet flag.

The crowded auditorium greeted each group of models with loud applause. With no celebrities in sight, the crowd seemed more proletariat than high and mighty.

A pianist provided the background sounds — in contrast to the pounding disco music of a typical American fashion extravaganza.

The models walked down a runway covered with a plain white sheet held down by silver electrical tape.

Bokov spoke in halting English at a beat-up podium as she introduced the work of such designers as Tatyana Smirnova and Laima Kygaite.

She is head of the non-profit Cultural Contacts International, which is sponsoring exchange trips for Russian and American designers.

"These are one-of-a-kind, museum-quality costumes," Bokov said, referring to the $2,000 outfits.

Bokov explained that the upheaval in the former Soviet Union has caused a shortage of fabric, supplies and equipment.

"The designers are using everything they can — burlap, fabrics that have never been used before," she said.

"Necessity is the sister of invention — that's exactly what the Russian designers are proving."

Elena Pelevina, described as the hottest designer in Moscow, created tapestries for the stage with recycled hammer and sickle flags of the former communist empire.

The dresses steered clear of the plunging necklines, rising hemlines and midriff-baring outfits of internationally-renowned designers. It seemed that what's risque in Russia is not even risky here.

During a slide presentation, Bokov introduced one design she described as a "naughty balloon dress."

It was a knee-length off-the-shoulder outfit — one that by Western standards did not require parental guidance.

'House dresses' like mom used to wear make fashion comeback in Big Apple

By Carrie Donovan
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Nobody dresses like this at home anymore, but among the styles making an impact this spring are "house dresses." These unassuming dresses, with their elbow-length sleeves, plain-Jane necklines and long, languid skirts, are now more at home in slick urban settings like city streets, offices, and restaurants.

Many women consider them a summer uniform for muggy days. Made of fabrics like rayon or silk, they are cool to wear, and their small prints of dots or flowers give them a fragile, feminine air.

Who remembers the way such dresses were worn in the late 1930s and 40s? Who cares, anyway, because what makes them work today are such accessories as minimal jewelry, big sunglasses, and sandals.

Chanel fashion shown in variety of styles

N.Y. Times News Service

A Chanel fashion show offers the challenge of extrapolating the latest wild double-C accessories from a ferocious mix of haute and street styles. This season there were tubular leather bicycle helmets with gold Chanel lettering, knit sailor's caps with double-C's, sunglasses trimmed in Chanel chains, and clunky, mid-calf infantryman's boots with gold buckles and double-C toes, worn with evening dresses. This style calls for women to step out not in slender pumps but in combat boots.

DEAR ABBY

Woman's peach of a guy is pits as a planner

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a gentleman who lives 350 miles away. We met at a family gathering six months ago. He has a business here, and comes to town to oversee it every three or four weeks.

Van Buren

He's divorced, and he's one peach of a guy, but here's my complaint: He never calls ahead of time or in between trips. I'm beginning to wonder if I'm a fool for being available and ready to go when he comes to town and calls me for a date the same night.

I know he likes me, and I really fell for him, but my head tells me one thing, and my heart another. He's a very busy man, but I can't help but feel a little used.

I'm afraid to mention this to him for fear he'll think I'm too demanding. I don't want to scare him away, but I have a lot of pride, and this bothers me. I've been divorced for many years and have never met anyone quite like him. He's fun, witty, intelligent, good-looking and thoughtful of me when we're together. My big complaint is I never know in advance when he'll be back.

Should I bide my time and see what happens? Or should I speak up the next time I see him — whenever that is! — YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: The "worm" in this peach of a guy is that he's taking you for granted.

The next time he calls at the last minute, don't drop everything and go. Tell him you're sorry, but you've already made plans for the evening and can't change them — even for someone as special as he is. And if he's as intelligent as you think he is, he'll get the message.

DEAR ABBY: Since the savings and loan fiasco, we are tossing around the word "billions" with seemingly less concern than we used to assign to the word "millions." A loss of hundreds of billions boggles the imagination, but I had no real understanding of exactly what the word "billion" meant until I read this explanation that appeared in the September 1975 issue of Reader's Digest:

DOLLAR SIGNS

Lou Erickson, Atlanta Journal

"It is difficult to comprehend what $1 billion could be, but at last I have heard an explanation that clears the air.

"A man gave his wife $1 million. He told her to go out and spend $1,000 a day. She did. Three years later, she returned to tell him that the money was all gone. She wanted more.

"He then gave her $1 billion. He told her to go out and spend $1,000 a day. She didn't come back for 3,000 years."

Abby, when this was first published 15 years ago, I don't think anyone would have believed, or could have comprehended, what is going on today! — MRS. ELIZABETH STURNS, DENVER

DEAR ABBY: I have had something on my mind for a long time, and I would like to hear what you have to say on this subject.

When a man is found guilty of rape or child molestation, why would it not be proper to have a doctor perform a little operation, so the man would not have the "urge" to commit that crime again?

They do it on young cattle. It would help the man, and maybe save a lot of lives and free up a lot of jail cells. — B.W. IN LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR B.W.: The "little operation" you suggest is called castration, which is not performed in civilized countries. The reason is obvious: Assume that a man is found guilty of rape or child molestation and is castrated. Then later, another man comes forward and confesses to the crime — then what? Does the law say, "Oops ... sorry"?

AT WIT'S END

Teens make good money with little work

By Erma Bombeck

A few weeks ago, I questioned the wisdom of marketing experts who had convinced TV advertisers that teen-agers had the big money and programming should be directed at them. I think I even laughed out loud.

Bombeck

Now a press release comes across my desk telling me a new magazine called DIRT is aimed at teen-agers, who have $60 billion to spend. Taking into consideration the buying influence the country's 22 million teen-agers have in households, this could have a $220 billion impact on our economy.

I didn't know kids made that kind of money for sitting around with their feet on furniture.

OK, so tennis pro Jennifer Capriati nailed down $8 million at age 14, and it was reported that 11-year-old Macaulay Culkin asked for $2 million plus profit participation for a sequel to "Home Alone," but these kids work.

Maybe investment expert Louis Rukeyser should have a panel of 14-year-olds on his show one night to tell the rest of us how this group remains fluid during a recession.

Most likely they would say they never invest in presents for the family that exceed what the family is able to afford.

They keep living costs down by never entertaining, paying taxes or investing in health costs. They never make charitable contributions to food or housing.

To lease or make payments on a car can be expensive. Teens usually borrow one from their parents, or if they're too young to drive, have their parents transport them.

They make up a portfolio that will get them to where they want to go and are bullish on their priorities: tennis shoes, snow boards, bungee jumping, video games and concerts. They invest heavily in C.D.s (Compact Discs).

They never loan money to someone who has given birth to them or who is related through accident of birth.

They spend money as if the entire economic recovery depends on them. It does.

Two hundred and twenty billion dollars is a real chunk of change for kids who sell teeth to the tooth fairy, take out garbage, pass something at school, feed the dog, make their own beds, and breathe in and out with some regularity.

Makes you wonder why they're in such a hurry to grow up. They'll have to take a real cut in pay to do it.

Erma Bombeck's column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

Foods rich in Vitamin E may prevent artery clogs

By Jean Carper

Vitamin E may help prevent arteries from clogging and even help unclog them. That remarkable conclusion comes from a new study of monkeys by Anthony J. Verlangieri, Ph.D., at the University of Mississippi's Atherosclerosis Research Laboratory

Carper

Verlangieri fed groups of monkeys either ordinary monkey chow, a high-lard-and-cholesterol diet with a "dummy" pill (a placebo) or a high-fat diet laced with a daily 100 international units (IU) of vitamin E.

After three years, the regular chow-eating monkeys had no artery blockage. The fat-eating monkeys who got the dummy pill showed 87 percent blockage. But the fat-fed monkeys who also got vitamin E had only one-third the blockage, or 61 percent.

More startling was the outcome of six monkeys given vitamin E for a couple of years after their arteries had become partially blocked. Their arteries actually became less clogged, "decreasing dramatically, from 33 percent to 8 percent." Studies are needed, says Verlangieri, to see if the same thing happens in humans. Foods high in vitamin E are vegetable oils, nuts and whole grains.

Butter vs. margarine

Which is better for you — butter or margarine? Actually you should ask, which is worse for you, says Andrew Weil, M.D., University of Arizona College of Medicine. He says both have serious health hazards. Here is his view:

Butterfat is the most saturated animal fat we eat, contributing to damaged arteries that promote heart attacks, strokes and other circulatory diseases. To avoid that, Americans have switched to margarine on a major scale.

But Weil predicts that "over the next decade medical research will demonstrate clear health hazards from eating margarine." It, too, is 100 percent fat and total fat in the diet, not just saturated fat, is linked to premature death and major diseases. Also, vegetable oils in margarine may be dangerous and indeed "saturated" when hardened by hydrogenation. Moreover, margarine fat is transformed into trans fatty acids — "unnatural forms that may be most unhealthy to eat."

Bottom line: Weil thinks neither butter nor margarine is good for you. He doesn't eat either. But in a pinch, if forced to choose, he would recommend butter in modest amounts over margarine.

Best food laxative

What's the best food to relieve mild periodic constipation? Cereal bran, says Nicholas W. Read, M.D., director of the Center for Human Nutrition at the University of Sheffield, England. He says bran works most of the time in 50 to 60 percent of people with such constipation.

Generally, his first choice is coarse, raw unprocessed wheat bran, also known as "miller's" bran. He recommends a daily heaping tablespoon sprinkled on cereal or other foods. If you don't find this to your taste, high-fiber cereals like All-Bran are also effective, though less so.

Surprisingly, rice bran, too, is an excellent bulk laxative — just as good as wheat bran and in some ways superior, says Read. In tests, he discovered that the fiber in rice bran stimulated more frequent bowel movements than equal amounts of wheat bran fiber did. Rice bran, the hull of the rice grain, is now sold in many health-food stores.

Thus, it's usually unnecessary to take harsh laxatives when "roughage" will do the trick naturally. However, Read cautions that if you have chronic constipation, unrelieved by a high-fiber diet, you should consult a physician.

Thin clads dream of state meet

Midland track athletes must qualify at Lubbock meet this weekend

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

LUBBOCK — For five Midland athletes, the Region I track meet at Texas Tech University Friday and Saturday will not be a new experience, but four of the five are hoping the end results turn out to be a new experience.

Midland Lee senior Traci Logan is the one who is hoping that last year's view of Region I competition turns out to be a replay of last year. Logan is the defending Region I champion in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles.

Midland Lee's Tanisha Mills in the 400, Tekeira Strambler in the long jump and Scott McLeod in the shot put, and Midland High's Cynthia Redic in the shot put also return to the Region I meet with hopes of finding that state berth for Austin in two weeks, like Logan did last year.

Also, Midland High's Chris Anderson in the 3200 and Freddie Stricklin in the 800 and Lee's Tony Olivas in the discus will be making their first Region I try with hopes of becoming a first time success.

The Lee girls will also have two relays in search of state berths in the sprint relay and the 1600 relay.

Region I Track

It took Logan a second try to find that state berth after finishing third as a sophomore in the 300 hurdles. Now she is the reigning Region I champion, but must put that title on line Friday in the preliminaries and finals Saturday.

"Winning the district championship three years in a row was a big goal, but now I want to go back to state and run better than I did last year," said Logan, who finished fifth at state a year ago."

Logan is the Region I favorite again this year. She has cracked the 45-second barrier once this year, which is competitive across the state with the exception of San Antonio Holmes' Anjanette Kirkland, who has posted a 42.75 this year. But Logan won't have to face Kirkland until the Austin state meet.

Mills has a lot in common with Logan. Last year as a sophomore, Mills was just beaten at the tape in the battle for second place and a state berth in the 400 meters. She has come back this year with that in mind, posting the fastest time in Class 5A this year with a 55.91, a District 4-5A record.

"I'm geared for this year," says Mills. "I have more experience than last year and I think I've learned from my mistakes. I'm going for it."

Even though Mills owns the best time in the 400, several others are close and most of them reside in Region I. Fort Worth Dunbar's Zenita Davis, 55.92, and Adeyinka Whiteside of Arlington Martin, 56.03, both have a chance to beat Mills.

"That's the tough part," noted Lee girls coach Bill Martin. "Tanisha will have some very tough competition in Lubbock. It will be the toughest region in the state. Still, I think Tanisha is stronger than a year ago and I expect her to compete well. She won't be scared of any of them."

McLeod, the two-time District 4-5A champion in the shot put, failed to make the Region I finals last year while watching teammate Jovan Tellez, who finished second behind McLeod in district, win a state berth with a second place finish.

"I wasn't happy with last year and I want to go to state," McLeod said. "It wasn't fun watching the finals last year, so I need to do well in the first three throws."

Plainview's Steve Shivers (60-7½) is the only Region I

Robinson honored

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — If statistics count, then David Robinson of the San Antonio Spurs was hardly a surprise winner Wednesday of the NBA's Defensive Player of the Year Award.

Robinson

Robinson was the only player in the league to finish among the top 10 in both blocked shots — he led the NBA with 4.48 per game — and steals — he was fifth with 2.30 per game.

That earned the San Antonio center 46 of a possible 96 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Robinson helped the Spurs' defense lead the league by limiting opponents to a .452 field goal percentage. San Antonio's 100.6 points allowed per game was fourth-lowest in the NBA.

No blind luck

STUART, Fla. (AP) — A 68-year-old golfer who hit a hole in one only six days after a cataract was removed from his right eye has done it again — hitting a second ace six days after cataract surgery on his left eye.

"This is blase now," Joe Graney of Stuart said. "I can see the ball now. I was walking around blind for years."

Both aces came at the 18-hole Heritage Ridge Golf Club.

Graney, with a handicap of 16, used a nine iron straight to the hole on the par-3, 110-yard 11th hole Feb. 6 after his first operation.

He used a five iron Monday to send the ball 160 yards to the par-3 seventh hole.

"I can't believe it," said Jana Glass, a tournament consultant with the National Hole-In-One Association.

Doubters remain that Arazi has what it takes to win.

Valenzuela confident in spite of doubters

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — After Arazi won the Breeders' Cup Juvenile, jockey Pat Valenzuela shouted "Kentucky Derby winner — 1992."

Valenzuela remains as confident as ever.

"Arazi, Arazi, Arazi, Arazi," Valenzuela said Wednesday when asked to size up the field for the Kentucky Derby on Saturday at Churchill Downs.

"I have great confidence in him," said Francois Boutin, trainer of the Kentucky-bred colt, who will be making only his second start outside France.

"But there's always a little bit of worry," Boutin admitted. "This time he carries the whole race on his back (meaning because he's the favorite).

"Last year, people didn't pay much attention to him. This time there are 19 starters, and 18 starters are going to have their eyes on him. So it's more difficult."

Of the large field, Boutin, who spoke through a translator, said, "I understand very well. The American trainers — it's their Derby, and besides, they only saw Arazi race once. ... And I think they all don't really believe in him."

One U.S. start was enough to make Arazi champion 2-year-old in North America and favorite for the 1¼-mile Derby.

On Nov. 2 at Churchill Downs, Arazi

Jordan's 56 helps Bulls turn off Heat

Associated Press

MIAMI — The Miami Heat took an 18-point lead. Then Michael Jordan took over.

Jordan scored no points in the first 10 minutes and 56 after that Wednesday night to help the Chicago Bulls beat the Heat 119-114 and complete a sweep of their first-round playoff series.

Jordan's point total tied the third highest in playoff history. He holds the record of 63, set in a double overtime game against Boston in 1986. Jordan scored 55 points in a regulation playoff game against Cleveland in 1988.

The defending NBA champions advanced to a second-round matchup against the winner of the New York-Detroit series. The Knicks lead 2-1 going into Game 4 Friday night at Detroit.

Miami, outscored by 49 points in the first two games, roared to a 33-15 lead in the first-ever playoff game in Florida. The Bulls pulled even in the second quarter but could never pull away.

Jordan, who averaged 45 points per game in the series, put Chicago ahead to stay by hitting a fallaway jumper for a 98-96 lead with 5:30 left. He added 12 more points down the stretch, including two clinching free throws with 9.5 seconds left for the game's final points.

Angels home after Wichita loss

Staff report

WICHITA, Kan. — The Wichita Wranglers overcame an early 3-0 deficit to defeat the Midland Angels 9-4 in the two teams' final game of a five-set series.

Pedro Lopez homered to tie the game at 3-3 in the fifth, and an inning later, Paul Gonzalez smashed a 420-foot homer to dead centerfield to push the Wranglers ahead to stay.

For the Angels, it was their fourth series loss of the season as they fall to 7-13 on the year.

Midland starter Steve Peck (1-1) was the loser; Pedro Martinez improved to 3-0 for Wichita with the win.

Ray Martinez had his second home run is as many nights for Midland while designated hitter Matt Stark added his second round-tripper of the year.

The blasts were not enough, though, as Wichita, leading 4-3 after six, broke the game open with a five-run seventh.

Midland returns home today to open a 10-game homestand. El Paso is in town for five games beginning tonight at 7; the Wranglers open a five-game series at Angels Stadium next Wednesday.

Paul Swingle (0-3) will start for Midland tonight, while Jim Hunter is the expected starter for El Paso.

Coach Royal hasn't forgotten Tom Sealy

Tom Sealy was eulogized Wednesday as a man who made great and long-lasting contributions to the city of Midland and its people.

Patterson

Lawyer, businessman, educator, philanthropist, Sealy even received the Boss of the Year award a quarter of a century ago by Midland's legal secretary association.

But there was one other legacy Tom Sealy left for the people of Texas. The 83-year-old Midlander left his mark on athletics by almost single-handedly naturalizing one of the greatest football coaches in the state's history.

"He was extremely instrumental in my coming to Texas," former Longhorn football coach Darrell Royal said from his Austin home Wednesday morning. "He was an excellent supporter and friend."

A graduate of the University of Texas where he received his degree in law, Sealy happened to be the chairman of the Board of Regents at UT when the school went searching for a coach in 1957.

And when Royal, a coach at Washington, stepped off the plane in Austin in the summer of '57, he had no idea he would call Texas home for the next 35 years.

"Heavens no," Royal said. "I don't think anybody can think they can stay with a community for 35, 36 years in college football. It's extremely political."

Sealy never intervened, never tried to pursuade Royal to do his job in any way. Royal said Sealy offered no pressure, with one exception.

"He did want to know when we were going to win our first game," Royal recalled. "He thought Oklahoma was our first game, but it was against Georgia. Never at any time was he anything but a supporter."

Royal did win his first game as Texas coach, 26-7 over those Georgia Bulldogs in '57. But it wasn't until a year later that Royal's 'Horns won their first game over Oklahoma, 15-14, in what was the first of eight straight victories over the Sooners that Sealy and other UT fans would enjoy.

"I have been indebted to him and will be forever," Royal said. "I've had a wonderful career, and Edith and I have enjoyed it all. We're pretty well sod in here after 26 years. And we're very much a part of Austin, Texas. Mr. Sealy was a large part of it."

Now an advisor to the president at UT, Royal expressed his regrets at not being able to attend Sealy's funeral Wednesday, and was saddened to hear of his death.

"It's been several years since I've seen him," Royal admitted. "He really wasn't looking very good then, and it was kind of depressing to see him, because I know I'm headed there, too.

"That's one thing about time. It gets all of us."

NBA: Phoenix eliminates Spurs in first round

(From 1C)

Pippen added 31 points.

Glen Rice scored 25 for Miami. Rony Seikaly added 22 points and 12 rebounds.

The series sweep was the third for the Bulls in the past two seasons. They've won 18 of their past 20 playoffs games.

Miami, making its first-ever playoff appearance, fell to 0-17 against Chicago. But the Heat made the Bulls look like an expansion team in the first 11 minutes, scoring on eight consecutive possessions (18 points total) to take a 33-15 lead.

Since the Bulls' worst loss this season was 15 points, the margin didn't figure to hold, and it didn't.

Jordan, held scoreless for the first 10:12, rang up 17 points in the second quarter. He hit a jumper to give Chicago its first lead, 44-43, but the Heat regrouped and led 56-51 at halftime.

The noisy sellout crowd of 15,008, armed with clackers passed out before the game, sounded the like world's largest infestation of crickets.

Jordan was even hotter in the third period, when he scored 19 points, including baskets on the Bulls' first four possessions. But the Heat led 80-79 going into the final quarter.

Suns 101, Spurs 92

SAN ANTONIO — It didn't come easy for the Phoenix Suns. However, it did come quickly.

The Suns completed a sweep of their first-round series against the injury-riddled San Antonio Spurs. Guards Jeff Hornacek and Kevin Johnson each scored 22 points, including 11 apiece in the fourth quarter, as the Suns defeated the Spurs to capture the best-of-5 series in three games.

Phoenix will meet the winner of the Portland-Los Angeles Lakers series. Portland, which won the first two games against the Lakers, tried to clinch it Wednesday night at Los Angeles.

"We have gained momentum for the next round. We did not want this to go to a fourth or fifth game," Johnson said.

The Spurs cut the Suns' lead to five points with 4:40 remaining on consecutive three-pointers by Sean Elliott and Trent Tucker. The Spurs pulled to within four points on a 3-pointer by Vinnie Johnson 35 seconds left, but never scored again.

"The Spurs came out really fired up and playing with a lot of adrenalin," Hornacek said. "You have to give the Spurs credit because they made every game close."

Phoenix won the first two games of the series in Arizona after fending off Spurs rallies in the final minutes of both contests.

Tom Chambers added 17 for the Suns in Game 3, and Steve Burtt scored 14.

Antoine Carr, who started at center in place of injured David Robinson, led the Spurs with 20 points and seven blocks. Terry Cummings and Elliott each had 17 points.

"We missed a lot of free throws and and our shooting percentage wasn't great, but we worked hard," Carr said.

Spurs coach Bob Bass said his team played hard, just not well enough.

"We shot poorly from the line and from the field, but our effort was there," Bass said. "You just can't complain about our effort."

The Spurs played without three of their usual starters.

Robinson, the NBA's defensive player of the year, has been out several weeks after surgery to repair a torn thumb ligament. Willie Anderson was sidelined with leg injuries and Rod Strickland was out with a fractured finger.

"We beat a short-handed team that played very courageously," Suns coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "We had some people really step up for us and play a good game."

The Spurs, down 72-61 late in the third quarter, closed the gap with a 7-0 run before the Suns ended the period with a 77-70 lead. Phoenix stretched its lead to 87-76 in the fourth before San Antonio briefly rallied back.

San Antonio led throughout the first quarter and ended the period with a 27-22 edge, boosted by Paul Pressey's nine points and the Spurs' six blocked shots.

Pressey, starting in place of Strickland, scored only two points in the first two games of the series.

The Suns took the lead with 2 minutes remaining in the second period and ended the half with a 53-50 advantage after outscoring the Spurs 31-23 in the quarter.

The teams played before a crowd of 14,853.

DERBY: Arazi may forego Triple Crown won the 1 1-16-mile B.C. Juvenile by five lengths in his first race on dirt and around two turns.

(From 1C)

Snappy Landing, third in the Juvenile; Dance Floor, who was sixth, and Pine Bluff, who was seventh, also will start in the Derby.

A large crowd watched Arazi gallop Wednesday under exercise rider Raymond Lamornaca.

While Arazi was galloping, 6-year-old Dr. Bizzare had a heart attack and died on the track.

"It bothered me more than Arazi," Boutin said.

Valenzuela wil be aboard when the Arazi works 7 furlongs Thursday.

"Five furlongs at a breeze and two furlongs faster," Boutin said. "A good canter."

"It will be the first time I've ridden him since the Breeders' Cup," Valenzuela said. "Other than that, only in my dreams."

Steve Cauthen, who won the 1978 Triple Crown with Affirmed, rode the colt when he won the Prix Omnium at about a mile on the grass April 7 at St. Cloud in his only start this year.

Arazi had raced in seven grass stakes in France, winning six of them, before coming over for the B.C. Juvenile.

Valenzuela will ride the colt when he races in the United States in the colors of Allen Paulson. Cauthen will ride Arazi when he races in Europe for Sheik Mohammed al Maktoum of Dubai.

Before the Breeders' Cup, Paulson sold a half-interest in Arazi to Maktoum for $9 million.

Paulson would like to see Arazi try for the Triple Crown. Maktoum would prefer the colt try for a Kentucky Derby-English Derby double.

"The decision will be made right after the race," Boutin said.

Entries for the Derby will be taken Thursday morning.

NHL Playoffs

PITTSBURGH — Mario Lemieux refuses to let the Stanley Cup champions die.

Lemieux scored twice and figured in all but one goal as the Pittsburgh Penguins rallied after allowing four straight goals to beat the Washington Capitals 6-4 Wednesday night. The defending NHL champs forced a Game 7 in their Patrick Division semifinal series.

Pittsburgh can become the ninth team in NHL history to win a series after trailing 3-1 by winning Game 7 on Friday in Landover, Md. Three teams in this year's playoffs — Detroit, Vancouver and Pittsburgh — have deadlocked series after trailing 3-1.

Lemieux had two goals and three assists as the Penguins, who trailed 4-2 after leading 2-0, stormed back behind Lemieux's playmaking and scoring for the game's final four goals.

Devils 5, Rangers 3

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Chris Terreri came back, and so did the New Jersey Devils.

Rebounding from a poor performance in Game 5, the Devils' acrobatic goaltender shut down the New York Rangers for a victory that forced a seventh game in the Patrick Division semifinals.

Sabres 9, Bruins 3

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Pat LaFontaine scored two second-period goals, his sixth and seventh of the playoffs, and the Buffalo Sabres set a club playoff scoring record with a thumping of the Boston Bruins.

The victory ties the best-of-7 Adams Division semifinal at 3-3.

TRACK: Local relay teams find themselves against stiff competition athlete to break the 60-foot mark and is the hands down favorite to win the shot put. McLeod, at 56-5, is in the running for the second state berth, but several throwers, including San Angelo's John Greene, are in contention. The boys shot put is at 11 a.m. Friday.

MHS' Redic also failed to place last year in the shot put. She won the 4-5A title last year, but finished second this year to Odessa High's Mary Daniels despite a career best 38-1. She hasn't beaten Daniels this year. This event, however, is expected to be a wide open affair in Region I.

"I had 37-feet last year, so I've done better this year," Redic says. "I just hope I can improve on that this year."

The girls shot put is at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Lee's Strambler qualified for the Region I meet last year in both the triple jump and long jump as a sophomore by winning both in the district meet.

This year Strambler had more trouble and landed only the long jump berth with a second place 18-1¾, her best jump this year.

"I've had some injuries to deal with this year and I didn't know if I was going to make it or not this time," Strambler said. "However, the long jump is my best event and I'm glad that was the event I qualified in."

A jump of less than 19-feet could earn a state berth, so Strambler could be in the hunt with some improvement. The girls long jump is 11 a.m. Saturday.

Lee's Olivas, a junior, had only one throw over 150-feet this year prior to the district meet and then he uncorked a 153-4 on his last district throw to earn his first region berth.

"That throw sure helped my confidence," Olivas said. "I hadn't been over 150-feet since the first track meet of the season. Now I feel like I can do even better."

Region I isn't extremely strong this year, but it will still take over 160-feet to earn a state berth. Olivas will have to crank out at least another seven feet at 9 a.m. Saturday.

MHS' Anderson, who suffers from asthma, will be in the 3200 after a 10:40.49 second place finish in district. This was a major accomplishment for Anderson to get to this level and it would be considered another major upset for him to earn a state berth.

One major hurdle is Hurst Bell's Andres Gomez, who has the state's best 3200 time with a 9:06.44.

"This is something I really wanted. It will be a thrill to run in the region meet," Anderson said.

MHS' Stricklin, with a second place 2:01.07, is another long shot in the 800, but he would like to break the two-minute mark.

"I think I can improve to under two minutes with a lot of hard work," Stricklin said after his race at district. "I just want to go out and run the best that I can."

Lee's 1600 relay team of Strambler, Tasha Franklin, Logan and Mills owns a 3:58.18 and has plenty of room for improvement and stands a chance at earning a state berth.

However, Fort Worth Dunbar (3:49.81), Arlington Martin (3:55.66) and Abilene High (3:57.45) all own better times.

Lee's sprint relay team of Tarshina West, Logan, Strambler and Mills had a season best 48.01 at district and was still punished by Abilene High's 46.84, the third best time in the state. Fort Worth Dunbar also has a 47.04.

Odessa High's boys and Abilene High's girls are the favorites to win team championships while Odessa Permian's boys, with 12 individuals and two relays, has some hope for a team crown.

Running preliminaries are at 1:30 p.m. Friday while running finals are at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Guzman two-hits Yankees

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jose Guzman took a no-hitter into the seventh inning and finished with a two-hitter, leading the Texas Rangers over the New York Yankees, 5-1.

Guzman (2-2) didn't allow a hit until Matt Nokes homered with one out in the seventh inning. Kevin Maas then blooped a single to shallow field. Guzman got his second complete game a third career two-hitter, striking out eight and walking three.

AL Roundup

Kevin Reimer drove in three runs with three hits for the Rangers, who have won nine of their last 12 against the Yankees.

Greg Cadaret (2-1) allowed five runs and seven hits in six innings. He struck out five and walked four.

Juan Gonzalez's sacrifice fly put Texas ahead in the first, and Reimer led off the second with his second homer.

Dickie Thon singled in a run in the fourth, and Reimer hit a two-run single in the seventh after Rich Monteleone relieved and issued four walks.

Orioles 5, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Randy Milligan, returning from a six-game layoff that followed a collision with a teammate, singled home the go-ahead run in the ninth inning Wednesday as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins.

Baltimore (13-8) has its most April wins since 14 in 1979. Minnesota (9-12) ensured its sixth losing April in seven years as John Smiley failed to win for the fifth time.

Storm Davis (1-1) pitched three perfect innings in relief of Bob Milacki and Gregg Olson got three outs for his third save.

Milligan returned after suffering a concussion, bruised cheek and stretched nerves in his right shoulder last Wednesday in his meeting with Bill Ripken while trying to field a grounder between first and second bases.

Smiley, a 20-game winner for Pittsburgh last season who was acquired in spring training, is 0-2 with three no-decisions.

Red Sox 6, White Sox 1

BOSTON — Frank Viola allowed five hits in 8⅔ innings for his second consecutive victory and Phil Plantier drove in three runs with a pair of doubles as the Boston Red Sox beat the Chicago White Sox.

Viola (2-2), signed by Boston as a free agent for $13.9 million over three years following 2½ seasons with the New York Mets, allowed one unearned run, struck out two and walked three.

Brewers 5, Royals 3

MILWAUKEE — Former Wichita Wrangler pitcher Ricky Bones allowed two runs and four hits in 6⅔ innings as Milwaukee dropped Kansas City to 3-17. He left after spraining the middle finger of his pitching hand in a collision with runner Jim Eisenreich while covering first base.

Bones (1-0), acquired from San Diego during spring training for Gary Sheffield, was replaced by Mike Fetters. Jesse Orosco, James Austin and Doug Henry finished the five-hitter.

Blue Jays 1, Angels 0

TORONTO — Pat Tabler, baseball's best hitter with the bases loaded, walked with the bases full in the ninth inning and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the California Angels behind Todd Stottlemyre's first major league shutout.

Jim Abbott (1-3), who pitched his first complete game of the year, allowed a two-out single in the ninth to John Olerud, his third hit of the game.

Indians 5, Athletics 2

CLEVELAND — Mark Whiten homered, tripled and singled twice as Cleveland won despite Mark McGwire's 10th home run of the season.

McGwire homered in the eighth off Rod Nichols, leaving him one short of the April record shared by Willie Stargell, Mike Schmidt and Graig Nettles.

Cubs blanked again, 8-0

Associated Press

ATLANTA — John Smoltz threw Atlanta's third straight shutout at the Chicago Cubs, scattering seven hits in an 8-0 victory that extended the Braves' winning streak to five games.

Smoltz (2-2) struck out nine and walked three in registering his first complete game of the season.

The Cubs, who have now lost six of their last seven games, managed only 11 hits in the 27 innings. Charlie Liebrandt and two relievers blanked Chicago 1-0 Tuesday night on three hits and Tom Glavine had a two-hitter in a 5-0 victory Monday night.

It also was Atlanta's fourth shutout victory in five games and extended the pitching staff's shutout string to 33 innings, a franchise record. The previous mark was 30 set by Milwaukee in 1959 and 1963.

Atlanta pitchers have allowed only two runs in their last 49 innings.

NL Roundup

Mets 1, Astros 0

NEW YORK — Bret Saberhagen pitched a three-hitter for his first victory in the National League as the New York Mets York beat Houston, blanking the Astros for the second straight game.

David Cone pitched a two-hitter — both infield hits — to beat Houston 4-0 on Tuesday. He lost a no-hitter with one out in the eighth.

Padres 7, Expos 2

SAN DIEGO — Greg Harris stopped a hard-luck skid with his first victory of the season and the San Diego Padres beat the Montreal Expos.

Larry Walker hit a pair of solo home runs and a double for Montreal. The Expos are 0-12 in night games and 8-2 during the day.

Cardinals 2, Giants 1

SAN FRANCISCO — Rex Hudler scored from second base on Dave Righetti's wild pitch and a throwing error by catcher Kirt Manwaring in the 12th inning as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Francisco Giants.

Hudler opened the 12th with an infield single off Righetti (0-2) and took second on Tim Jones' sacrifice. Hudler advanced to third on Righetti's wild pitch and raced home when Manwaring's throw got past Matt Williams at third base aqnd bounced into fouk territory.

Pirates 4, Reds 0

CINCINNATI — Zane Smith pitched a four-hitter and Steve Buechele hit his second homer in two nights Wednesday, powering the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Cincinnati Reds.

Smith (4-1) allowed just four harmless singles as he went the distance for the first time in five starts. It was Smith's 12th shutout in 199 career starts and the fifth shutout for the Pirates' staff in 20 games this season.

A mark of Smith's dominance: the Reds failed to get a runner to third base. The left-hander didn't walk a batter and struck out one.

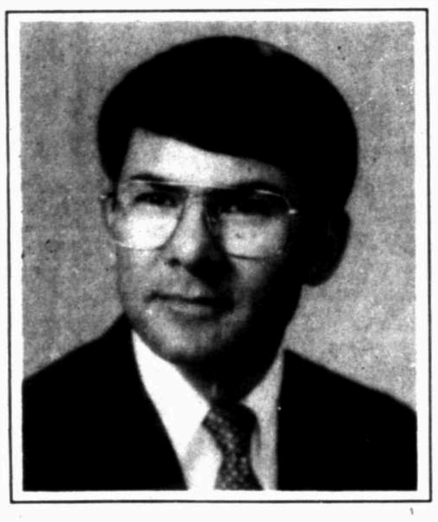
EXPERIENCED Leadership For Midland



"As Mayor, I pledge..."

- No increase in taxes
- Hold the line on spending
- No backroom deals
- Greater accessibility
- More citizen input
- More public meetings
- Reorganize City government

For the past three years J.D. Faircloth has consistently worked to hold the line on taxes, voted against two budgets, and voted against more spending items than anyone else on the Council. He voted against the half-million dollar parking lot purchase.

We can't afford inexperienced leadership during these critical times.

Elect J.D. Faircloth your next Mayor.

Prices climb

NEW YORK — Oil prices jumped from an early loss Wednesday to their highest levels of the year, leaving stunned traders grappling for an explanation why.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in June settled at $20.77 per barrel, up 36 cents, on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil for next-month delivery had not moved that high since Dec. 4, when the close was $20.76 a barrel.

Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian, Texaco Trading and Transportation and Navajo Refining raised their posted price 50 cents to $19.50. Phillips raised its price 35 cents to $20.

After the market closed for the day, about all many traders could point to was a vague rumor about international sanctions against Libyan oil sales.

Natural gas prices shot up sharply, with contracts for delivery in June settling at $1.450 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 4.1 cents.

At the New York Mercantile Exchange, lower-grade sour crude for delivery in June settled at $18.27 per barrel, up 41 cents.

Delta cutbacks

NEW YORK — Delta Air Lines, seeking to bounce back from the economic devastation that has swept the nation's air carriers, said it will slow its rapid expansion by purchasing fewer airplanes and eliminating jobs.

In steps similar to ones taken by rivals American Airlines and United Airlines, Delta said Wednesday it will cut planned spending by $5 billion as it buys 100 fewer planes through 2001.

Shearson fee

NEW YORK — Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., the nation's second-biggest brokerage, confirmed it is hiking a basic fee it charges customers, raising the possibility of a new fee frenzy on Wall Street.

The increase comes after Merrill Lynch & Co., the No. 1 retail brokerage, reported it had quietly begun charging about 1 million customers with standard accounts an annual $40 fee regardless of how frequently they trade.

Campeau sues

TORONTO — Robert Campeau, whose international real estate and retailing empire foundered last year, has filed a $1.02 billion lawsuit against the embattled property developer, Olympia & York Developments Ltd.

Campeau, who built a small construction company in Ottawa into a real estate and department store powerhouse before losing it all, filed the claim Tuesday in an Ontario court.

Exxon chief: U.S. drilling dries up

■ Oil giant's exploration shift may be felt most noticeably at company's Houston-based subsidiary.

Associated Press

DALLAS — The decline of oil exploration in the United States is likely to continue due to uncertainty over energy policies and a lack of places to look, Exxon chairman Lawrence Rawl said Wednesday.

"We've been drilling this country up for over 130 years or so. And it's just getting down to the end of the row whereas there's still lots of opportunities on the foreign circuit," Rawl told reporters after the company's annual meeting.

"With Russia maybe being available, with some of the Third World countries maybe feeling more comfortable with production sharing agreements and things like, there's still a lot of opportunities out there."

Like other oil companies, Exxon has increased its drilling emphasis overseas as prices for U.S. oil and gas have fallen below exploration costs, and congressional progress on a national energy policy is dubious.

For Exxon, the shift may be felt most noticeably at the company's Houston-based Exxon USA subsidiary, which is now making a formal review of costs. Rawl said he did not know whether the study would lead to layoffs.

"Exxon went through this exercise 10 years ago. We're way ahead of the curve," he said, noting a slimming at its headquarters from 2,200 people to just over 300.

Exxon earned a record $5.6 billion last year, the most of any U.S. corporation. About 75 percent of the profit came from overseas operations, particularly in Europe and the Far East.

Due to low prices and high costs in the United States, independent energy producers have made a stronger push to join the majors in exploring overseas.

Exxon president Lee Raymond told shareholders the company's international experience is an asset as competition intensifies.

"Exxon became an international enterprise long before words like 'global' and 'multinational' became popular," Raymond said. "In many countries, we've been part of the business scene for close to a century or more."

"I'm afraid the way some of this turns out when you talk to oil companies, they almost sound unpatriotic, because they're investing in the foreign circuit," Rawl said.

"The facts are that U.S. oil companies, the ones that operate in the foreign circuit, are the most competitive oil companies in the world," he said.

The shareholders' meeting was the least eventful for Exxon since the March 1989 Exxon Valdez tanker spill in Alaska, which drew much attention to the three sessions that followed.

Exxon last fall settled pending criminal and civil actions brought by the Alaskan and U.S. governments for $1.2 billion. Exxon spent about $3.3 billion in clean-up and litigation costs because of the 260,000-barrel oil spill, the largest in U.S. waters.

Shareholders turned back a proposal for the company to adopt the so-called "Valdez Principles." The principles, developed after the Exxon accident by a group called the Coalition for Environmentally Responsible Economies, attempt to set standard corporate practices in regard to the environment.

Explaining the Exxon board's opposition to the principles, Rawl said they are too vague and flexible. He noted the company had spent $20 billion on the environment in the past 20 years.

Incomes rise; consumers spend warily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' income in March rose at a healthy pace for the second consecutive month but their spending grew more slowly, the government said Wednesday, providing evidence that consumers remain cautious as the recovery unfolds.

"Consumers ... are not jumping in their cars and speeding off to the malls," said economist John M. Albertine, a Washington-based forecaster. They "were spooked by the recession and are not about to re-enter the marketplace by diving off the high board."

Personal income increased 0.6 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.99 trillion following an even stronger 1 percent rise in February, the Commerce Department said.

Meanwhile, consumer spending rose 0.3 percent to an annual rate of $4.04 trillion, the fifth advance in a row.

Rainfall, upswing key roofing boom

HOUSTON (AP) — Months of rain and an economic upswing have sent Houston's roofing business, well, through the roof, and caused a backlog for some residential roofing contractors.

"It's been an exceptionally wet year. And from what I hear, the contractors seem to think consumer confidence is pretty good," Terry Owens, residential sales manager for West End Lumber, told The Houston Post in Wednesday's editions.

Waits of two weeks or more aren't uncommon for homeowners who need a new roof. Manufacturers and wholesalers also have reported marked increases in demand for roofing supplies.

West End Lumber's residential roofing product sales reflect the better times.

"Premium product sales are pretty good right now, as opposed to low-end materials," Owens said.

John Marshall, residential sales manager for Roofing Supply Inc., said the months of rains not only showed people they needed a new roof; it also kept roofers from working.

"What you're experiencing now is a backlog of stuff that should have been done in January, February and March," he said. "We're selling a ton."

IBM, Time Warner negotiate global alliance

NEW YORK (AP) — IBM and Time Warner Inc. are negotiating a global alliance to link the computer maker's technology with Time Warner's cable TV systems and its library of movies and TV shows, industry sources said Wednesday.

A venture between the world's largest computer maker and biggest media concern could accelerate what many experts see as the coming merger of home entertainment, computers and communications.

It also could eclipse the alliances between Japan's big electronics makers and the Hollywood entertainment industry.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, cautioned that the talks, ongoing for more than a year, aren't close to completion and could fall apart.

Spokesmen for International Business Machines Corp., based in Armonk, N.Y., and New York-based Time Warner declined to comment.

The venture would rely in part on technology IBM developed to send "interactive" video signals over today's cable TV systems, without the need to rewire homes with high-capacity fiber optic cable.

Its features could include "movies on demand," allowing consumers to request a movie at any time on their TV sets from a huge library; interactive educational programs, in which viewers could answer questions posed on the TV screen; and interactive video games, in which a player could compete with someone across the country.

Businesses could connect networks of personal computers nationwide without using phone lines, and PC users could talk to each other through small video windows on the computers' screens, the sources said.

Time Warner's cable TV system, the nation's second largest, could provide these connections, the sources said.

"They're thinking about the whole spectrum of multimedia and computers and other electronic media," said one industry executive. "It's very visionary."

IBM Vice President Lucie J. Fjeldstad, who heads the computer maker's "multimedia" efforts, said several weeks ago the company was looking for ways to combine its technology with that of others. She declined to identify any potential partners.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Widow should invest inheritance carefully

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q: I'm 75 years old and have been a widow for 16 years. I just about handle all my living expenses on my small income. My beloved cousin passed away recently and left me $5,000.

My best friend's grandson is trying to make a living at his new position with an insurance company. This friend has asked me to invest the $5,000 with her grandson to help him get a start in his new career.

What do you advise?

A: Don't do it.

Because of your very limited financial resources, that $5,000 should be tucked away in a rock-solid safe place where it will earn some interest and be immediately available if you need it. An interest-paying bank account with check-writing privileges would be the logical place.

Your friend's grandson could come up with a number of places to put the money, none of which is suitable for you. It's clear you do not need any of the various types of life insurance available. You need income. You might get that from an "immediate annuity," and start getting money coming back to you. But sales commissions, management expenses and other costs in most annuities are quite high, leaving lower returns for annuity buyers.

Your friend's desire to help her grandson is understandable. However, she also should understand that you are in no financial position to put your $5,000 inheritance into any investment with even the slightest risk or with high costs.

Q: In 1989 and 1990, I bought 250 shares of stock in a book-publishing company at a total cost of $650. On Nov. 25, 1991, the company merged with a larger company, which took my 250 shares and gave me nine shares of its stock.

On the date of the merger, the larger company's stock traded at $17.50 per share. That made my nine shares worth $157.50. I was told I could not report a capital loss of $492.50 — $650 minus $157.50 — on my 1991 income tax return.

Why?

A: Because you have not established a capital loss. To do that, you will have to sell the nine shares you received as a result of the merger.

Your "basis" — cost for tax purposes — on the nine shares you now own is the same as it was on the 250 shares you purchased. If you sell those nine shares, the difference between that $650 basis and the proceeds from the sale will be either a capital loss or a capital gain.

Considering the low price of those nine shares, you're certain to have a capital loss when you sell. The market price of that stock would have to soar close to $28 per share for you to get out and get even.

Q: I'm retired, just getting interested in the stock market and need some information. Say I buy 500 shares of one stock at 50 cents per share, 500 shares of another stock at $5 per share and 500 shares of a third stock at $50 per share. Now say all three double in market value.

Do I sell then? Do I wait and see how high they go? Or, is there an accepted rule of thumb — or rule of logic — suggesting when to sell?

A: In that situation, there's neither a rule of thumb nor of logic to suit every investor and speculator. Nor is there even a slim possibility the market prices of three different stocks you buy will double in short order. It might happen over a period of years, but don't bet on it.

If you're looking for rapid-fire profits in the stock market, you're in for a rude awakening. Long-term investors do well but speculators looking for fast bucks usually lose their shirts.

Operation Rescue suspends protests

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Operation Rescue said Wednesday it had indefinitely suspended its campaign to disrupt the Buffalo area's four abortion clinics, but a spokeswoman said she expected protests to resume soon.

Abortion-rights advocates lined the streets outside the clinics, as they have each morning since the protests began, and said they would not let down their guard.

"This is not over," said Liz Silverberg of Buffalo United for Choice. "Until these people get in their buses and go home, we will continue to defend our clinics."

Police have made about 420 arrests of abortion opponents and 11 of abortion-rights activists since Operation Rescue's demonstrations began April 20. Many of the abortion opponents remained jailed in an armory because they refused to post bail.

The group originally said it intended to protest for two to four weeks, similar to last summer's siege in Wichita, Kan. Those protests lasted 46 days and resulted in 2,600 arrests.

But Operation Rescue leaders scaled back their comments as the Buffalo protests went on and appeared at times to be having difficulty finding volunteers to be arrested.

Unlike in Wichita, abortion-rights groups mounted vigorous counter-demonstrations that helped keep the clinics open. Police enforcing a federal court order kept strict control over the confrontations.

Karen Swallow Prior, a local spokeswoman for Operation Rescue, said the suspension was not the end to the anti-abortion group's protests in Buffalo. She said protests could resume as soon as Saturday.

"The Spring of Life is not over," Prior said. "We're just taking an indefinite period to pray and fast."

Operation Rescue leaders say their demonstrations deterred at least nine women from having abortions.

Abortion-rights supporters said they would remain vigilant as long as Operation Rescue remained in Buffalo.

"We don't trust anything they say," Silverberg said.

Prior said the decision to suspend the protests was made Tuesday night by the local Operation Rescue chapter. The decision was not based on a dwindling number of people willing to be arrested or on the arrests of several of the group's national leaders, she said.

"This is just standard procedure for rescues, to take some time out," she said. "We felt it was the best time to step back and reflect and regroup our forces."

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Richard J. Arcara ordered the arrests of five Operation Rescue leaders for allegedly violating his order to stay away from the clinics.

Three of the five were being held at a federal detention center on bail ranging from $3,000 to $5,000. A fourth was arrested Wednesday at his home on Long Island. Federal marshals were still looking for the fifth person, who lives in suburban Sacramento, Calif., officials said.

Clinton pays victor's visit to Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Likely Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton on Wednesday paid a victor's call on Congress, and triggered a flood of new endorsements following his Pennsylvania primary landslide.

The Arkansas governor, in private meetings with House and Senate Democrats, assumed the role of nominee and sought to unify the party behind him.

Clinton made the trip for both symbolic and political reasons — to present himself as leader of the party and to allay fears of skeptics who believe a series of campaign controversies have wounded his candidacy.

In private meetings with House and Senate Democrats, Clinton promised swift and cooperative action on health care and an economic growth plan if elected. Clinton said he raised differences in several areas but promised "to run with and campaign with any member of Congress committed to change."

After Wednesday's last meeting, about two dozen House and Senate supporters stood at his side, including many who only days ago were urging colleagues to stay neutral.

"What they want is a leader," Clinton said of congressional Democrats. "They've had three years now of a president with no plan, who governs by veto and blames everybody else for the problems of the country.

"I told them, look, I'm going to disagree with you, but I will take my responsibility," Clinton said. "I want to work with you to change the country."

All indications were that his message was well received.

The Clinton campaign said it had 30 new endorsements from House and Senate Democrats and expected many more. Among the converts was California Rep. Don Edwards, who had been urging colleagues to stay neutral but who threw his backing to Clinton on Wednesday.

Majority Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri predicted more endorsements would be coming soon.

"I think he'll pick up a sizeable number," Gephardt said. "I think this is really beginning to move. I think Pennsylvania may have broken the ice."

Rep. Robin Tallon, D-S.C., said Clinton's big Pennsylvania win a day earlier went a long way toward easing worries that questions about Clinton's character would make him a weak nominee.

"Bill Clinton is going to be the next president of the United States," Tallon said. "It is time for all Democrats to come together."

Clinton's lone primary challenger, Jerry Brown, promised to continue his Democratic campaign even while conceding it's unlikely he can deny Clinton the nomination.

"I've got to go into every state and give people hope that they can have a say again," Brown said as his shifted his campaign's attention to Nebraska, which votes May 12.

Exxon International chief missing, authorities say

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The FBI joined state and local police to search Wednesday for Exxon International's president, who failed to show up for work, authorities said.

Sidney Reso, 57, left his Morris Township home about 7:30 a.m. but never arrived at the office in nearby Florham Park, said Lois Ferguson, a spokeswoman for the Morris County prosecutor's office.

"We're counting it as a missing persons investigation," Ferguson said. "We're not counting out any possibility."

A law enforcement source who spoke on condition of anonymity said Reso's car was found running in his driveway.

"He was seen getting into his car at 7:30 a.m.," the source said. "At 8:50 a.m., a family member found his car in the driveway still running, with the car door open."

Ferguson said the FBI, state police, the prosecutor's office and the Morris Township police were investigating.

Exxon International is responsible for Exxon's oil and gas production outside the United States and Canada.

Amtrak train collides with truck, killing 1, injuring 53

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — An Amtrak train derailed Wednesday morning after colliding with a truck at a crossing, killing the truck driver and injuring 53 of the approximately 96 people aboard, authorities said.

The Colonial, bound for New York, slammed into a dump truck loaded with sand 10 minutes after leaving the Newport News station. The crash occurred at an intersection that was marked with warning signs but no gates, bells or flashing lights.

"It was a big chug like, and the train started screeching," said passenger Marcelina Morales of New York, who suffered minor injuries. "Then all of a sudden it started turning over, turning over. We thought it would never stop."

Several cars on the train overturned, but it appeared that they only turned once onto their side and did not continue to roll.

Fire Investigator M.F. Champ said the truck driver was killed and 53 people on the train were injured. Five hospitals reported treating 49 people, most for minor injuries.

Police Lt. Carl Burt identified the truck driver as Sam L. Chandler, 61, of Gloucester. He worked for the Sears Concrete Corp. of Gloucester, Burt said.

Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black said a ticket listing showed the train was carrying 92 passengers, but the actual number could have been a few more or less. There were four crewmembers.

Burt said speed recorders on the locomotive showed that the train was traveling at its authorized speed of 79 mph.

The train consisted of an engine and five passenger cars, all of which derailed. Three cars were on their sides, two were upright and the engine was in a ravine.

The impact sheared the truck in half, Burt said.

"It was just a quick, sharp bang," said Kevin Hayes, who was on one of the cars that flipped on its side. "Everybody tumbled over." Hayes was not injured.

Danny Terry of Newport News said he was on his way to a mall to get his glasses repaired and passed by soon after the accident.

"It was really bad, cars everywhere, debris everywhere, dirt and trees pushed up, lots of people running to see what was going on," Terry said. He said he saw people climbing out the windows of the train.

Bush seeks a vision for second term

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Although President Bush claimed his party's nomination Tuesday night, administration officials say he has recognized what many Republican strategists concluded long ago: that he has not given the rest of America a good reason why he deserves a second term. That is why the president has instructed his staff to focus on defining a broad agenda for the next five years, the officials say — an order that came as Bush shifted his attention to the general election and away from a primary season that has been much meaner than any of his advisers had predicted.

The political urgency of this effort was underscored by the latest New York Times/CBS News Poll. Fifty-eight percent of the 1,151 registered voters questioned on April 20-23 said the administration was drifting without clear policies. More than a third said it was moving carefully to develop its plans, a reversal from April 1989, at the start of the Bush presidency, when 61 percent said the administration was moving carefully.

The pressure on Bush also comes from the elders of his own party. At a fund-raising dinner in Charlotte, N.C., on Monday night, the president sat tight-jawed watching a videotape in which Sen. Jesse Helms chided him for not running an aggressive enough campaign and for the flip-flop on tax increases that led many Republicans to conclude that Bush did not have strong convictions on economic issues.

"Mr. President," the senator said, "tell them once again, 'Read my lips,' but this time with gusto."

Town adopts new cat law

NATICK, Mass. (AP) — Cats can no longer wander away from home without a chaperone or do their business on someone else's property. Or, at least, that's how a new law would have it.

Cat owners in Natick, a town of 40,000 some 30 miles west of Boston, are required to hold, leash or otherwise keep control of their pets in public or face fines ranging from $25 for a first offense to $100 for a fourth offense.

The law, adopted at Town Meeting two weeks ago, also requires pet owners to clean up after their pets on public or private property. It set fines of $100 for pets found unrestrained on school property or in parks and $300 for not having a pet vaccinated for rabies, the impetus for the regulations.

It's left some residents growling.

"This is a piece of absolute stupidity," said cat owner Dan Keohane, 28. "Trying to restrict the movement of cats — it's near impossible."

It amounts to a "de facto leash law," he added.

Many residents, including the police chief, argued that authorities would have a hard time enforcing the laws.

Mitsubishi redesigns the rugged Montero 4X4 wagon

By Bob Plunkett

It looks something like a crate on wheels, only this box smooths the sharp edges, as if all corners were filed to a certain sensuous shapeliness.

The statement seems modestly contemporary yet obviously functional to the nth degree.

That's Montero, with a 1992 remake of the four-wheel-drive sport-utility wagon by tenacious Mitsubishi of Japan.

It's quite a vehicle — a good around-town machine for hauling kids and groceries, or something more serious if you're inclined to tackle the rugged out-back environment.

Speaking of the out-back, you should know that Montero, which has only been available in this country for a few months, has already been named the preferred 4X4 wagon in Australia, outselling even Range Rover, which is one reason it delivers so much value.

But Montero is far more affordable, which is one reason it delivers such value.

Montero, like Range Rover, was also designed to take some rough treatment.

If features one of the highest ground clearances of all in its class, and contains not one but three skid plates to protect the vital underbelly.

The interior, obviously designed for comfort as well convenience, contains many thoughtful additions, down to a built-in tool kit and an emergency flare that plugs into the vehicle's cigarette lighter socket.

Seats feel plush and firm. The front buckets hug your body for a snug fit, while a rear bench — which folds for more storage space — has flip-down armrests with integrated cup holders.

For safety, Montero features four-wheel disc brakes that connect a three-channel multi-mode anti-lock brake system. A microprocessor regulates disc function at each wheel to prevent wheel lockup with sudden stops.

And that four-wheel drive system: It provides more options than you'll find on the other 4X4 wagons.

Think of it as a sophisticated wonder that allows the driver to choose between a conventional rear-axle two-wheel-drive mode, a full-time all-wheel-drive that modifies power to front and rear wheels as need may arise, or a 4X4 system with locked center differential for low and high range selections when attempting to clear rugged terrain in off-road situations.

The all-new Mitsubishi Montero debuts for 1992 with standard features that include Mitsubishi's exclusive Active Trac 4WD system, a 3.0-liter SOHC V6 engine, four-wheel power disc brakes, power steering, five-speed manual transmission and a refined front and rear suspension system. Mitsubishi's sophisticated Active Trac 4WD system combines the benefits of full-time and part-time 4WD systems, while allowing 2WD and 4WD transitions at speeds up to 62 mph. A four-speed automatic transmission with overdrive is optional.

Fast Facts

1992 Mitsubishi Montero

- Description: sport-utility wagon
- Model Options: Montero, RS, LS, SR
- Wheelbase: 107.3 inches
- Overall length: 185.2 inches
- Engine size: OHC 3.0-L V6 PFI
- Transmission/speeds: manual/5 and auto/4
- Rear/front drive: rear and on-demand 4WD
- Steering: power assistance
- Braking: ventilated 4-wheel disc, optional anti-lock
- EPA mileage estimate city/hwy.: 15/18 mpg

Called "Active Trac 4WD," Mitsubishi's mechanism features true shift-on-the-fly between 2WD and 4WD modes, even when traveling at highway speed.

A center differential, viscous coupler and automatic electronically-controlled synchronized free-wheel mechanism are the heart of this matter, with the latter automatically locking front hubs when a driver moves the shift selector into a 4WD stance.

Consider the Active Trac 4WD options:

- 2WD: Send power strictly to rear wheels for fuel-efficient motoring on paved roads.
- 4H: Select full-time four-wheel-drive, thanks to a viscous coupler that places varying degrees of traction at each wheel, as may be needed for maintaining stable pavement contact for wet or icy conditions.
- 4HLc: Choose an off-road 4WD mode with locked center differential so front and rear drive shafts rotate precisely at the same speed, delivering mid- to high torque.
- 4LLc: You must stop before activating this setting, which compares to 4HLc only at much lower speed — use it off-road for maximum power to steer steadily over muddy or steep terrain.

This impressive variety of 4X4 options on Montero ranks among the most complete in the industry, further pointing to Mitsubishi's engineering finesse with this vehicle.

Of course, some sport-utility wagoneers never intend to drive their machines through more challenging territory than the commuter lane — they simply like the option of 4WD and at the same time want all the comfort goodies inside.

Montero delivers the goods for this group, too.

Comfort, it seems, has been a paramount consideration when designing Montero. Score it among the best in class for providing all kinds of pamper gear.

Start with those front bucket seats. They were designed to support you in all the right ways, with side bolsters seeming to reach out to grip you firmly, holding you in position for the long haul.

In back, the bench seat this year brings more room for passengers, but there's even more space behind that seat for all kinds of cargo.

Instruments have been clustered in a revised dashboard design patterned after Mitsubishi's Galant sedan. For the plush LS and SR editions, dials expand to include an optional center-mount "Multi-Meter" group with LCD compass-thermometer, convenient altimeter and inclinometer.

Shoppers face an array of Montero models this year, beginning with the base unit rigged with manual five-speed transmission, power steering, cloth seat upholstery, a front console, tachometer, tinted glass, rear defogger and twin outside mirrors.

All things considered, you should move Mitsubishi's revised Montero to the head of its congested class of imported and domestic sport-utility wagons.

Auto designers look to the past in planning new model designs

By Esquire
AP Special Features

The slogan for automobile designers in the 1990s has switched from aero to retro as they stop imagining what the future will look like and start evoking the past.

New cars want to look like old cars.

The car they want most to look like is a classic Jaguar with a single, arching curve running from headlight to taillight, gently sloping hood and deck of almost equal length, and a shape with feline grace.

The look began with Sir William Lyons' Jaguar Mark X saloon of 1961, whose themes have dominated the look of Jaguars ever since.

The most successful reprise of the Jag is Infiniti's new J30, just out, designed at Nissan Design International in La Jolla, Calif., headed by Jerry Hirshberg's design team.

The rear deck sweeps down in an exaggeration of the Jag's, cascading to a slashing band of taillights extending across the whole back like a just-opened eyelid. The elliptical grille, floating between the wrapped headlights, echoes the Jag's mouth.

Hirshberg and his team — designer Doug Wilson is credited with the original concept — also integrated the bumpers into the body so the car reads as two shells, the larger topped with a slightly smaller one, exaggerating the length of the mid-size body.

"We didn't do it explicitly," Hirshberg said. "We didn't want a car that was backward looking. We wanted one that was aware of the evolution of auto form, aware — in subconscious ways — of the cars that have been."

There also is some Jag in the Mazda 929 and in the Ford Crown Victoria.

Mazda, whose Miata was the first car with explicit retro credentials, now has made retro the theme of its whole line. The new 929 is the work of Shunji Tanaka, who also is an artist and sculptor. Its vaguely Jag lines, with the hint of hips, and interior — no soft ergonomics or digitals here — evoke past grandeur.

Retro is an elusive concept — "It's more of a mood, a non-verbal thing," Hirshberg said — which was barely noticed when it began with the aero.

The landmark Taurus and Sable that began the popularity of aerodynamic cars were inspired in large part by the full-bodied 1940s Mercurys and Lincolns that Ford designer Jack Telnack admired.

In an era of downsizing, retro worked subliminally to make smaller cars look larger and appear as solid as those cars of the 1940s.

Now the latest edition of Ford's full-size sedan, the Crown Victoria, resembles the offspring of a marriage of a Taurus and a Jag. Ford, incidentally, owns Jaguar.

Today retro appeals because cars can no longer change every year. The longer you can keep a car from looking old, the longer you can sell it and the more you can resell it for.

Maybe that's why these days what appeals to us about even real Jaguars is what we see in them of the Jaguars of the past.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A new partnership could be the impetus for relocating or returning to school this summer. Children's needs must come before your own desires next fall. The home scene turns cozier as the winter holidays approach. Turn over a new leaf where family disputes are concerned. A close relationship could falter unless you lighten up in early 1993. Avoid criticizing someone who is already doing his best.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actresses Jill Clayburgh and Cloris Leachman, actors Gary Collins and Perry King.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Think before you speak or you could land in hot water today. Your business plans could suddenly change. Be flexible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A promising day for advancing your business plans. There is no shortage of brilliant ideas or good friends to assist you. Reach out with a loving heart to your relatives. Forget old grievances.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friends and family members offer strong moral support or shrewd money advice. Strike while the iron is hot. You can get what you want and name your own price. Romance turns the corner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Things are looking up financially. Tackle new tasks with gusto. What you accomplish now could take even you by surprise. Steer clear of hangers-on. Step up the pace of romance tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your coworkers may fret and fuss on the job today. Better be on your best behavior.

Resist the urge to share a secret. Welcome financial developments lie just ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Influential people may be unavailable. Come down out of the clouds and tackle routine tasks. A practical approach serves you better than get-rich-quick schemes. Keep an open mind about someone new.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A domestic or job situation reaches the crossroads. You may not be aware of everything involved. Wait until you have a clearer picture before making a final decision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put all the vigor and ingenuity you possess into the performance of your duties. Buy equipment that will boost your productivity. Accepting new responsibilities brings a bonus.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Utilize all of your knowledge and experience to land a great job. An unusual encounter could provide the answer to a puzzle. Loved one is right to urge thrifty measures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A splendid day for domesticity. Family connections or a property transaction bring you new financial security. The need for secrecy is again emphasized.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make full use of the confidential information you acquire now. A secret financial wish could come true in the very near future. The good will and cooperation of your family are assured.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not take what you read or hear as the gospel truth today. Nothing can replace your own good judgment when it comes to investments. Do your share around the house.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have an abundance of energy along with strong leadership skills. Other youngsters will admire these Taureans and seek to emulate them. True wordsmiths, today's children will get top marks in English class. A career in public relations or journalism would be right up their alley. Their instincts about people are usually right on target. Their ability to predict business trends makes them winners in the corporate world.

Opening lead: King of ♣ Bridge is an important part of shipboard activities, particularly on the longer cruises. This hand was played aboard the Royal Viking Sun on its Captain's Pacific Journey.

South wasted no time after North, a passed hand, jump raised the one-spade opening bid to three spades. It's difficult to conceive of a hand North could hold that would offer good play for a grand slam or poor play for 12 tricks. With first or second-round control in every suit, there was no need to check on aces, so South got to the small slam via the direct route.

West led the king of clubs and continued with the queen. The slam looked like it was laydown until declarer led a trump to the jack and East discarded a club. Now declarer's fourth diamond became a bit of a problem.

The simple way to avoid a loser in the suit was to hope for a 3-3 split, or that the jack would fall doubleton—a 55 percent proposition. Slightly inferior was to cash a high diamond in hand and then finesse the ten, which offered only a 51 percent probability.

The best chance was a dummy reversal; that depended on clubs breaking no worse than 6-3—a better than 90 percent prospect. Declarer simply ruffed another club in hand and drew trumps, discarding the fourth diamond on the fourth round of trumps. That gave declarer four trump tricks, two club ruffs and three tricks in each red suit for a total of 12 tricks.

Cavett admits depression and contemplating suicide

BALTIMORE — Dick Cavett says he struggled with depression throughout his life and even considered suicide while he was host of his popular public television talk show.

Cavett, 56, was smiling and relaxed Tuesday before his talk at an annual conference at Johns Hopkins Hospital on depression.

Describing depression, he said, "You're in a permanent state of dismal, worthless black despair that will not end no matter what anybody tells you."

"Everything turns sort of colorless. ... You find yourself not wanting to go out of the house. You lose all sense of self esteem. Your manhood is a casualty, and that's a nice way to put it."

Cavett is the third celebrity in the last four years to appear at the annual Mood Disorders Research and Education Symposium at Hopkins. CBS newsman Mike Wallace and novelist William Styron talked about their bouts with the illness.

About 10 years ago, Cavett said, he found relief with an anti-depressant medication.

"It was as if I woke up this morning and the curtain rose and there was color in the world and I could think of at least three reasons to live," Cavett said.

TULSA, Okla. — Anita Bryant, whose singing career was rocked by divorce and her stance against gay rights, says she survived by learning to forgive others, even herself.

"Even if you're right, you have to forgive," Ms. Bryant said Tuesday. "It's a principle that works, whether you believe in God or not. It's a freeing process that God wants for everybody."

Bryant

Ms. Bryant and her husband, Charlie Dry, were in Tulsa to talk about her book, "A New Day," in which she talks about the unraveling of her career and her personal life.

"It's the book I said I'd never write, because when I went through my very public divorce, I was fed up with everything — the public, the press, Christians, everybody," she said. "To be willing to take the first step of forgiveness took a long time, because at every level I was devastated."

Bryant's hits included "Paper Roses" in the early 1960s. Her career crumbled a decade later when she spoke out against a gay-rights ordinance in Florida.

The Florida Citrus Commission and Coca-Cola dropped her as a national spokeswoman. She divorced a few years later.

BATON ROUGE, La. — Gov. Edwin Edwards has lost several times to Buddy Roemer since taking the governor's mansion from the Shreveport Republican in last fall's election.

"I will agree that he is a better poker player than he is a governor," Edwards said Tuesday.

Edwards, whose passion for dice is as well known as Roemer's for poker, said he and Roemer have met at the card table three times since the fall election. "I don't play poker with my friends," Edwards said, smiling.

Edwards wouldn't say how much Roemer has won.

"That's between him and the IRS," he said. In 1986, Roemer reported $8,700 from poker on his federal income tax forms.

TACOMA, Wash. — Michael Jackson has offered a new home to Ivan the Gorilla, who has lived 25 years in a concrete cage at Tacoma's B&I shopping mall, a California official says.

A television documentary stirred public sympathy last year for the 28-year-old ape who has never seen or touched another gorilla since its capture in Africa.

Jackson

Several zoos offered to adopt the gorilla. But none of the offers could quite match Jackson's 2,700-acre retreat north of Santa Barbara that includes a zoo populated with chimpanzees, zebras, llamas, giraffes and a lion.

"Because of all the news articles, Michael all of sudden feels sorry for this particular critter and wants to give it a home," said Capt. Jim Zobel, exotic animal specialist for the California Department of Fish and Game.

Zobel said Jackson has applied for permits to build a new house for Ivan and possibly another gorilla.

SYDNEY, Australia — Despite the plethora of reunions for TV comedy series like the "Brady Bunch" and "Gilligan's Island," Danny Bonaduce says "Partridge Family" fans will never see them together again.

"Not a prayer in the world," said the dry-witted Bonaduce, who played the middle child in the 1970s series about five musical siblings. "Don't look at me — I'd do a Brady reunion. I have no pride. I'd play Shirley (Jones). I don't care."

Bonaduce, now 32, is touring Australia with his "Life As A Has Been" comedy show.

Defense minister enters Kabul to try and restore order

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Ahmad Shah Masood, Afghanistan's most powerful guerrilla commander and its new defense minister, arrived unannounced in Kabul Wednesday with 10,000 troops to impose order on the embattled city.

Masood drove after nightfall to the headquarters of the Kabul garrison, responsible for the capital's security, said American journalist Richard Mackenzie, who accompanied the convoy of jeeps, 100 tanks and truckloads of mujahedeen fighters.

Mackenzie, who has covered Afghanistan for seven years, said the guerrilla commander ordered his forces not to fire in the air to celebrate their arrival. Many of them had flowers in the barrels of their AK-47 assault rifles, he said.

Masood has said he would enter the city only after a new Islamic government was in place, a condition met on Tuesday with the formal transfer of power to new president Sibghatullah Mojaddidi.

Forces loyal to Masood and the day-old Islamic government have been fighting partisans of fundamentalist firebrand Gulbuddin Hekmatyar in Kabul.

The convoy assembled at Bagram air base, about 30 miles north of Kabul, and entered the capital at 8 p.m. after a three-hour drive to find the streets darkened by a city-wide power failure.

During the day, fighting tapered off between an alliance of pro-government forces and Hekmatyar's Hezb-e-Islami, but skirmishes continued on Kabul's southern outskirts where Hekmatyar's partisans had retreated. Occasional rocket blasts and gunfire rattled the city.

The city of 1.5 million fell under almost total control of Masood's men Tuesday night when Hekmatyar's fighters surrendered their stronghold in the Interior Ministry complex after a three-hour battle. About 260 mujahedeen were taken prisoner.

Mackenzie said Hezb-e-Islami forces, positioned on the new road between the air base and the capital, had dug trenches, apparently to harrass the convoy as it passed.

Masood shifted direction and came to Kabul along another route, bypassing Hekmatyar's men.

Civilians stayed off streets except to buy food and the international airport has not been open to civilian traffic since a control tower was hit by a rocket on Tuesday.

Najibullah was toppled April 16 after a devastating 14-year civil war in which at least 2 million people were killed and 5 million made homeless. The starkly beautiful countryside is a wasteland in many regions, poisoned with thousands of mines.

The new government has promised amnesty to all Afghans except Najibullah.

Militiamen allied with the mujahedeen, or Islamic fighters, captured a man they suspected of being an agent of the Khad, or former secret police. They beat him, shot him to death and left his body beside a burned-out building in the capital. There was no indication the gunmen were acting on government orders.

Pakistan Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif flew in for a surprise two-hour visit and said Hekmatyar told him by radio his guerrillas had been ordered to cease fire.

Kabul was generally quiet but far from normal: there was no fighting downtown for the first time in days. Water and electricity remained out.

Mojaddidi met with Kabul's diplomatic corps Wednesday to thank the United Nations, the United States and other countries for their support during the civil war.

On Tuesday, Secretary of State James A. Baker III said the transition from Communist rule was long overdue, with initial reports indicating "the respective mujahedeen parties are beginning to get together on the mechanics of a transitional government."

Iran, which harbored millions of Afghan refugees since the 1970s and was headquarters for a number of rebel groups, has recognized the provisional government.

Holocaust survivor says it was wrong to have kept silent

By Marcus Eliason
Associated Press writer

TEL AVIV, Israel — During the death march, Irit Wiznitzer remembers, onlookers threw bread to the exhausted, starving Jews. The guards threatened to shoot anyone who picked up the bread. But some were too hungry to hold back.

Wiznitzer

"The road became littered with rolls and bread and bodies," she said.

Mrs. Wiznitzer was sitting in a Tel Aviv University library, talking to a mix of students in T-shirts and older faculty members. Everyone listened raptly.

"I thought I had heard it all, that it was time to say 'enough already,' " remarked Professor Dina Porat, a Holocaust scholar.

"But the more I listen, the more I think there isn't a single testimony that can't teach us something new."

Oral memoirs like Mrs. Wiznitzer's are a fixture of Holocaust Day. Far from dimming over time, they are becoming sharper, more detailed. The Israeli survivors are dwindling in number, from one in three Israelis 40 years ago to one in 10 today. Those who remain don't want to die with their tale untold.

Spring is the season when Israel reminds itself why it exists. It begins with Passover, celebrating the Israelites' Exodus from Egypt; then comes Holocaust Day, which began Tuesday night; a week later is Memorial Day for fallen soldiers, followed immediately by Independence Day, which next month marks Israel's 44th year of statehood.

The daily Maariv saw special significance in this year's Holocaust Day "with neo-Nazis raising their heads in Germany, a French judge acquitting a Nazi murderer ... and Mussolini's granddaughter getting elected to Parliament on a fascist ticket."

Many Israelis say they believe the Holocaust could happen again.

That, said Mrs. Wiznitzer, is why she decided seven years ago to break four decades of silence — "to pass it on to future generations, so that the Holocaust is not repeated."

She is a cultured, well-groomed woman, a nurse by profession, still working at 66. Her soft, girlish voice vividly sketches herself at 13, when she was a frightened girl called Irka watching the German army march into her town in Poland.

Taken from her parents, she was sent to a forced labor camp to make parachutes. She loaded earth into trains, dug ditches and survived beatings, freezing cold and typhus. Near the end of the war she was one of 1,500 Jews who were death-marched around the German countryside for weeks until only 100 remained alive and she weighed 64 pounds.

Yet now she chooses to dwell on the small acts of kindness that broke the Nazis' rules.

She remembers the elderly boss at the parachute factory who smuggled a sandwich and fruit to her each day; the family that fed her after she escaped from the death march, and the people who threw bread from their windows as the procession passed through Czechoslovak towns.

These were faint points of light in the Nazi darkness that engulfed and orphaned her. Yet she feels they must be mentioned.

She immigrated to Israel, married a doctor and raised a family. But she and her husband resolved to keep her experiences a secret.

Years later, when she finally decided to talk, she felt relief, especially when her grandson told her how much her story had moved him. "Now, every Holocaust Day I have this need to pass it on, that it not be forgotten."

In retrospect, she says, "I think we were wrong to keep silent. But then everyone was silent. It was too painful to remember these things.

"Now it is so close to me, so real, as though it happened a year ago."

Shorter term or lower payments? (Pick any two.)

In leasing, as in life, you're often asked to give up one thing in order to get something else. Except at a Mercedes-Benz dealership. Where you'll find the 400E, a V-8 powered sedan built to uncompromising standards. And the equally remarkable Win/Win Lease,™ provided by Mercedes-Benz Credit Corporation through your authorized dealer. The Win/Win Lease doesn't force you to make a choice between a shorter term or lower payments. It generously offers you both. For more information, visit your local authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer. And then answer the easiest multiple choice question you've ever been asked.

The Win/Win Lease.™
Short term. Less cost.
