WHO'S GOT THE BALL?

That seems to be the question No. 65, Alvin Miller is asking during action as last Saturday's, August 16, controlled scrimmage for members of the Rockport-Fulton 1980 Varsity football team. In the background, No. 70 is Jon Shaw. The RFHS Pirates' 1980 football season will get off the ground ahead of the school season as the Pirates meet Ingleside's Mustangs in a scrimmage game Friday night here in Rockport.

Pirates Scrimmage Mustangs Friday

The unveiling of the 1980 version of the Rockport-Fulton Pirates takes place Friday night in Rockport when the Pirates of District 15-4A host the Ingleside

Mustangs of District 30-3A in a scrimmage. Both teams will be trying to iron out the bugs in their "machinery" and watch players react under game conditions. Brian Connolly, head football coach at Rockport-Fulton, will especially be looking for help in the middle of his defensive line and at middle linebacker. "Right now things are uncertain in the middle on defense, sort of a 'revolving door' effect with players going in and out until someone proves he wants to stay," said Connolly of the situation.

With Michael Henderson injured in practice Monday, the Pirates plan to open on offense with Jim Eaton at quarterback; Michael Simmons at tailback; Ernest Gonzales at halfback; George Solis at fullback; Mark Goodin and Dennis

Hull at ends; Mac Schmidt and Mike Arthur at tackles; Bubba Scott and Henderson at guards; and Gene McElveen at center. Defensively, the Pirates will have Scott Meyer and Scott at the ends; Joe Barrera at one tackle; Eddie Naro, Gonzales, and perhaps Alvin Miller at linebackers. Solis, Goodin, Tim Walker and Adam Hardin will be in the

Rockport Voters Elect New Alderman Saturday

Rockport's City Hall will open at 7 a.m. Saturday, August 23, as a special election gets underway to fill a vacancy on the city council. Absentee balloting ended Tuesday, August 19, in the election which was reset from August 9 because of Hurricane Allen.

City Secretary Herman Johnson said persons who voted absentee prior to the original August 9 election date are not eligible to vote Saturday, since those absentee ballots will be counted in the election.

Purpose of the election is to fill the vacancy created by the June 8 death of Alderman E.D. (Dan) Ward. Candidates in Saturday's race are Peter Lazidis -- who opposed Ward in last April's regular city elections -- and Betty Jean Ward, widow of the late alderman.

Ward represented Ward 1 on Rockport's city council. Only residents of that ward -- inside Rockport city limits and south of Laurel Street -- are eligible to vote in the special election.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Saturday, and the city council will canvass votes and seat the winner of the election at its regular meeting on Monday, August 25.

The winner of Saturday's election will finish the late Alderman Ward's unexpired term from August 25 until the regular city election in April, 1982.

A LOT OF WORK

Gene Holt works on repairs on the porch of the old Prophet Home -- formerly the Bracht homestead -- on Magnolia Street in Rockport. The house was recently leased by ABC Learning Center as a site for the school, but the organization must upgrade the structure before it will pass local and state standards for a preschool. ABC is trying to raise some $10,000 to help fund the repairs and "clean-up" work needed on the old house. [Pilot Photo by Pat Blair]

Revenue Sharing Hearing Scheduled

City Gets Set For Busy Session

Rockport's city council is set for a busy session Monday, August 25, with an agenda that includes a public hearing on proposed revenue sharing expenditures.

The revenue sharing hearing, originally set for Monday, August 11, was cancelled because of Hurricane Allen. It will get underway at the August 25 meeting at 7 p.m. at Rockport's City Hall.

Also scheduled Monday are a joint hearing with the city's planning and zoning commission at 7:15 p.m. followed by the regular city council meeting at 7:30.

Among items on the 7:30 p.m. agenda are canvassing of the Saturday, August 23, election results and seating of the new council member. The revenue sharing hearing is to give Rockport residents a chance to express their views on how the city should spend almost $36,000 in revenue sharing funds.

That is the amount the city has been told it can expect to receive during the 1980-81 fiscal year.

City Secretary Herman Johnson said the city usually spends the money on capital improvements projects. Revenue sharing money has in the past been used to purchase a police car and a garbage truck. Johnson said the city once saved two years worth of revenue sharing money to pay for a new fire truck.

These are needed items, he said, and by purchasing them with revenue sharing funds, tax money is saved.

"There are volumes of (federal) guidelines" on how the revenue sharing money can and cannot be spent, Johnson continued, "but we (the city) don't get too involved."

Vote Saturday

Saturday is an important day for residents of Rockport's Ward 1. Voters in that part of the city will be electing a person to represent them for the next two years on Rockport's city council.

Think about it. If you live in Ward 1 of Rockport, you will be helping select a person who, for the next two years, will represent your views, vote for your interests, in this city's government.

Even if you don't vote, you will still be contributing to that decision -- by default. If you're one of these people who say, "My vote isn't important, it doesn't matter" -- you're right. Elections are seldom decided by one vote alone.

But you aren't the only person who makes this decision...you aren't the only person who stays home...and when enough of "you" decide this election isn't worth your effort, then you have the sad spectacle of a representative's being elected by a minority of the people he or she is supposed to represent for the next two years.

You may think your one vote doesn't matter -- but all those "one votes" add up to many. Your choice is important.

And think about this: If you don't cast your ballot, if you don't care enough to make that much effort -- then you don't have a right to complain if the person you support doesn't get elected. If you disenfranchise yourself, you don't have the right to gripe if the person who does get elected doesn't represent your best interests. After all, you helped put that person there.

In a democratic society, the vote is not only a privilege, it is an obligation.

Fulfill your obligation Saturday. . .Vote.

We Can Learn From Allen

Hurricane Allen's fury has passed, leaving Aransas County battered and water-soaked in some areas along the waterfront, with varying amounts of damage to downtown businesses, homes and boating interests.

For the most part, however, this community was spared the total devastation delivered to many communities on the lower Texas coast. For this we are thankful.

In many ways this recent narrow brush with hurricane waters and winds can be used as a constructive and useful event in the life of this community in that each of our residents learned how to better prepare for the next hurricane threat.

Since the damage to our area was not severe, many residents who left the area in advance of the storm are now of the opinion to "stick it out" next time. This may be a little early to set one's mind against the advice of weather and county officials when an order to evacuate is given.

If the storm had made landfall 20 miles closer to Rockport the destruction could have increased tenfold and some loss of life could have taken place.

Each hurricane must be judged on its own conditions and all but emergency personnel should be ready to leave if conditions warrant such action.

We hope the county's law enforcement officials will establish some guidelines for the evacuation route for Aransas County citizens to help alleviate the considerable problems experienced by many residents with extremely heavy traffic from other cities.

This designation of the official evacuation route should include information and guidelines concerning the re-entry of our county's citizens after the storm's fury has subsided.

Several residents were turned back by DPS officers on North Highway 35 on Sunday night and Monday. Residents of our community must be allowed to return at the earliest possible hour unless there exists an eminent danger to life.

A radio station should be designated as the official information center for evacuation, current conditions and critical damage reports. This would keep citizens completely up-to-date as to the state of the county as well as giving the all-clear notice for the return of residents from other areas of Texas. A suggestion for consideration -- KTRH, the 50,000 watt Houston station which is strong enough to reach most sections of South Texas.

The law enforcement community did yeoman duty during the recent storm. Their efforts generally go unnoticed during these extremely critical periods, but the city and county officers worked around the clock to keep our community as secure as possible.

Let's hope Hurricane Allen was the last storm we will need to face for the next 10 years, but we should also learn from our experiences and be better prepared in case evacuation is again necessary.

Babe's Senate Report

By STATE SENATOR A.R. "BABE" SCHWARTZ

By State Senator

A.R. "Babe" Schwartz

Hurricane Allen certainly remained a disaster for all who suffered the $400 to $500 million dollars of losses, but a vast majority of residents of the Upper Texas Gulf Coast simply got a good lesson in hurricane awareness, preparedness and evacuation problems.

In spite of reports to the contrary, there was significant damage to some areas from wind and flooding and tornadoes. The real miracle was the near miss when the cities of South Padre Island and Brownsville escaped the full force of the already diminished hurricane.

In the face of what could have happened, the total losses were a fraction of what might have been the worst hurricane which threatened the Texas Gulf Coast in this century.

The Texas Coastal and Marine Council, which I chair, has recommended legislation and preached for eight years to influence coastal citizens to be prepared and evacuate. The State Disaster Team was organized as provided in legislation which I passed in 1973 and warnings were early and accurate.

City and county officials on the whole coast acted early and responsibly. I am told that only 81 persons remained in Port Aransas at the north tip of Mustang Island, and after seeing the damage there from a small storm you can be sure they all feel very lucky.

In my opinion, if the winds there had hit 120 miles-per-hour instead of 100, and the storm had lasted another hour, the whole area would have been devastated since it was obvious that the progression of windstorm damage had begun.

The most important lesson learned was that coordination and assistance with evacuees in place in cities and communities along evacuation routes.

Traffic was stalled bumper-to-bumper for miles because of the stop signals up Highway 6, at Alvin, Manvel and Arcola.

In Houston, much evacuation traffic got on the through-town routes instead of passing around the loops. I am going to push for legislation which would provide funds for cities and counties to recover money paid for overtime work by their officers during such emergencies as an incentive to have every intersection manned for speeding the traffic flow.

I will also ask the State Highway Department to have a plan of its own and prepare signs to designate evacuation routes so traffic will only have to follow simple signs.

No planning at all by any agency was in place and working to expedite traffic flow off the coast, and that situation must not occur again.

The Texas Coastal and Marine Council, in cooperation with other agencies, prepared and distributed some two and a half million Hurricane Awareness brochures during the past five years and it is my opinion that this literature, along with the excellent cooperation of the news media, promoted Gulf Coast area residents to respond when the need for evacuation arose. Now we need to make it even more effective.

There is still much to be done on a plan for coordinated evacuation on a regional basis, to expedite evacuation on a primary and secondary phasing so the people closest to the immediate threat may have first use of the evacuation routes, and the residents in the next tier will not be clogging the routes at the same time.

The resolution which I passed mandates such a study and Texas A&M is working on this regional evacuation plan and will have it ready before the 1981 hurricane season.

In the meantime we have scheduled meetings in Aransas Pass and Corpus Christi for August 22-23 to investigate the things that went wrong and improve on what we did that was right. Subsequent hearings will be announced in the Galveston and Brazoria County area shortly thereafter to devise some immediate plan for the remainder of our 1980 hurricane season.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor:

This is an open letter of appreciation to the law enforcement personnel and the many volunteers who assisted them during the Allen hurricane crisis. Many thanks from all the citizens, businessmen, and residents of this county for watching over and protecting our property and possessions while we were gone during the evacuation.

Your many hours devoted to us are deeply appreciated.

Thanks,
s/Bill Cory

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

by William P. Clements Jr.

AUSTIN—A return to the basics in public education is one of many recommendations for improving Texas schools contained in a comprehensive report submitted to Governor Bill Clements by the Governor's Advisory Committee on Education.

The Governor said that the report -- the result of an exhaustive year-long study by the blue ribbon group -- will be used as the basis of his recommendations to the Texas Legislature when it convenes in January.

"I have carefully studied this report and I think it is superb. I wholeheartedly endorse it and I predict that a big percentage of these recommendations will be acted upon by the Legislature in its next session," Governor Clements said.

"This report is a blueprint for making our secondary and elementary schools second to none in the nation," Governor Clements said, "and these recommendations could lead to the most significant and beneficial changes in our Texas public school system since the Gilmer-Aikin laws were passed some 30 years ago."

In their report to Governor Clements, the committee members state, "Texans are well served by their schools. Many goals of public education are being achieved. Yet, the schools can and must improve. The public, the policymakers, and the educators must be dedicated to reaching consensus and generating the will to act on important issues. Through combined efforts, education will be improved for all the students of Texas."

The report addressed the following areas and made these recommendations:

1) School Curriculum: The Legislature should repeal all existing laws that mandate elements, courses, or subjects to be included in the curriculum, and give the State Board of Education the authority to establish and implement "a state basic curriculum." This curriculum would give strong emphasis to reading, writing, and arithmetic.

2) Student Learning: Social promotions should be restricted and summer school programs should be developed for students who have not successfully completed designated course work during the regular school year.

3) Unique Needs of Students: Efforts to influence federal policy should be unified, particularly in the areas of bilingual education and special education, provide more effective programs in Texas schools.

4) Student Behavior: While existing laws are sufficient to allow authority and flexibility to discipline disruptive students, alternative learning programs should be developed for disruptive students and a procedure should be established to ensure that parents and students read and understand the discipline policy in advance.

5) Teacher Training: A state competency test should be required for all teachers before they receive a teaching certificate. In addition, there should be more rigorous and consistent enforcement of the standards for teacher education institutions.

6) Excellence in Teaching: A significant increase in salary and fringe benefits for teachers is needed to make teaching positions competitive with professions in business and industry requiring equivalent preparation and training. Also, a Master Teacher position should be created to recognize qualified, high performing career classroom teachers with higher pay and leadership duties.

7) School Operations: Schools, especially classroom teachers, should be relieved of excessive paperwork that reduce classroom time and effort.

8) State/Federal Relationships: State and local officials should work together to influence federal laws and regulations from a Texas position regarding educational matters. Local control of the public schools should be maintained. Federal decision making is not the key to meaningful school improvement.

In a letter to Governor Clements, Dr. Tate stated "This report represents the cohesive effort of a skilled and dedicated group of Texans who served as committee members. The committee met monthly and most members attended each of seven public hearings. In addition to the official functions, individual members spent many hours gathering information and analyzing and discussing ideas with people across the State."

Copies of the full report may be obtained by writing the Governor's Advisory Committee on Education, 112 Sam Houston Building, Austin, Texas 78711.

THE DAY THEY CUT THE RIBBON

Rockport and Fulton city and chamber of commerce officials are shown helping Connie Garcia cut the ribbon earlier this month when she officially opened her new Shoe Treasures store in Kingsbury Square. From left are Calvin Sholts, Shoe Treasures employees Joann Fowler and Robin Kiegly, Pat Brown, Gene Garcia, Connie, Zoe and Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline, Bob Albin, Donna Knox, Joyce Hill, Mrs. Pat Brown, Mrs. Walter S. Falk Jr. and Rockport Mayor Falk himself. The store is the third to open in Kingsbury Square, joining Hidden Treasures and Children's Castle.

Rockport's Party Line

By Betty Paul

Betty Jean Ward and her daughter Mollie Davis just returned from a trip to Jamaica, the West Indies and the Bahama Islands. The Cecil Phelps family returned home to Rockport after being away for four years. Mrs. Dale Rolland and her daughter Frances went to San Antonio for a short visit to see the Rollands' son Mike and visit old friends. Tammy Storey made a trip to Houston to visit her sister Ruby Gastauer for several days. Nancy Duggan spent several days in Tanglewood visiting her aunts and uncles. This column is being written after the storm had left our area, but so many people have praised our police department, the sheriff's department, our firemen, EMS, McMahon Security Service for doing a good job and staying and helping the people on the Island. THANKS TO ALL OF YOU FOR OUR PROTECTION. Mr. and Mrs. Al Da Costa had an opportunity to visit lots of friends in Dallas recently. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Welsh went to San Antonio to visit Jo and George Kenner for several days. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bent went to Dallas to visit Pat Brown, Coye Massey and relatives. Larry Martin spent some time in Austin visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bill Upchurch. Tucker Coxwell has returned from a trip to Oregon where he was vacationing, to check his home and secure his boat. Libby and Jerre Ledbetter and their families went to San Antonio for a short trip. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Johnson went to San Antonio to visit their son Mark and his family. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Greenfield went to San Antonio to visit their daughter and son-in-law, Thomasyne and Larry yardley. Nita Schmidt and her sons Mac and William went to Austin to visit the Jack Millers and Corine Pollan. Mac and William got to visit some friends while they were there, the Jimmy Anagnos family and Pat and Gene Gersback. The Gersbacks came back to Rockport with them to spend some time here. Dorris and Ted Gorton enjoyed a visit from their son Dr. Ted Gorton Jr., his wife Dr. Andree Gorton and their children Maya and Haig. The Ted Gorton Jrs. are moving from Tunisia to Oxford, England. Pat and Hand Bierds made a trip to Washington to visit their son. Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Hicks Sr. made the "trek" to San Antonio (as so many area people did) to avoid Allen's fury, but they encountered a different, unexplainable, "fury." They were visiting some friends on Park Street and around 8 o'clock in the morning "something struck or hit" their Honda car parked right outside the home. There was a Cadillac parked in front of the Honda but the Hicks' car was almost totaled by this "unknown." The windshield was broken and the rear view mirror was torn out. A rock weighing 75 or 80 pounds was wedged between the two seats in front. The Hicks kept the rock and the car was returned to Rockport. Weren't they living right — no one was in the car and no one was injured. Father Lambert, a Benedictine Monk, is helping out the Sacred Heart Church on Saturday and Sunday while Father Deane is in Ireland. Mrs. Lee Waggoner is home now after having surgery in Spohn Hospital. She was home for just four days and was rushed back to the hospital because a blood clot developed in her lung. Both trips were full of anxiety and excitement. She and her husband Lee can fill you in on all the details. Mr. and Mrs. John Hill from Dallas spent the weekend in Rockport and Fulton. HAPPY BIRTHDAYS! Joe Payne, August 12; Billy Meek, August 13; Terri Jones, August 14; Bill Poole, Michelle Payne and Bridget Brundrett, August 15; Mona Picarazzi, Elizabeth Troy, Marsha Brundrett and Dawn Robbins, August 16; Melba Mills, August 17; Jean Shipman, August 19; Henry Baugh, August 20; Russ Kyckelhahn, August 21; Dick Harrington, Gertrude Baugh and William Mann, August 22; Rose Jacoby and Cliff Cos, August 23; Jeannette Stalker and Jennifer Cox, August 24. Decor Score

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. Our daughter wants to do some redecorating in her room. She has picked out the wallpaper she wants to use. She thinks she would like some built-in bookcases, too. She does not have a headboard for her bed and we are trying to figure out what would look nice. The room doesn't have space for very much furniture and so built-ins probably are our best bet.

Please suggest some ideas for perking up her room. — T.P.

A. Let the wallpaper colors dictate how you will decorate. For example, let's say the colors are cocoa, yellow and white.

Design the bed wall so that it will dominate the room. You could build in chests topped with shelves (adjustable as youngsters' needs change). Tying bedside chests and bookshelves together with two-by-fours would create a built-in niche for the bed. You could add a section of mirror for a more dramatic look.

One of the chests could have a pull-out shelf that could function as a workspace if the room is too small for a desk.

With a cocoa, yellow and white wallpaper, yellow would be a good choice for the painted chests and shelves.

Q. We bought an old, six-room house with old oak woodwork stained a reddish mahogany. It has French doors between a center dining room and the front room.

I want the house light and airy looking with the same or some contrasting color throughout the house.

We have blue fixtures and white cabinets in one large white bath and a half-bath has pink. The trouble is I love kelly green and blues. — D.M.

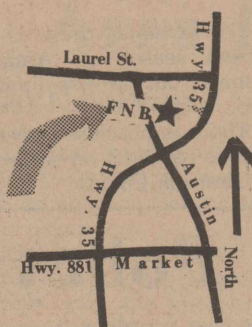

A. I am assuming you wish to keep the oak woodwork as it is and lighten the walls and ceiling.

Since you like kelly green, why don't you treat your living room as a sort of Edwardian drawing room. Choose a light green and white treillage patterned wallpaper for the walls. Paint the ceiling white for maximum airiness. This will give you a garden effect.

Dates Announced For Hunting Season In Aransas County

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has released dates for the 1980-81 hunting season in Aransas County.

Earliest opening is the special deer season in Aransas Natural Wildlife Refuge, September 16 through October 15.

No antlerless permits are required during this time and the bag limit is three deer (white-tailed) of either sex but no more than two bucks may be taken. All deer must have a metal tag attached before they may be taken from the Refuge. On October 4, the archery season for white-tailed deer and turkeys is open. The archery season extends through November 2. During the archery season, the limit is three deer either sex (but no more than two bucks) and no antlerless permits are required. Turkey hunters may take two gobblers or bearded hens during the archery season. Regular deer season gets under way on November 15 and continues through January 4. Limit is three deer, buck or antlerless, and antlerless may be taken by permit only. The regular season for turkey also is October 15 through January 4 with the limit again being two gobblers or bearded hens. Quail season -- for bobwhite, scaled and Gambel's quail only -- is from October 25 through February 1.

For javelina, there is no closed season in Aransas County, but the bag limit is two. There is no closed season and no bag limit on squirrels in Aransas County.

Information on the 1980-81 hunting season is from the Texas Parks and Wildlife 1980-81 guide to "Texas Hunting & Sport Fishing Regulations."

Marine/Offshore Coast Guard Policy Is Topic

COLLEGE STATION-U.S. Coast Guard policies regulating offshore supply and service vessels, mobile drilling rigs, and inland barge and towing operations will be reviewed at a marine/offshore regulations and policy seminar September 11 in Houston.

The seminar, sponsored by Texas A&M University's Sea Grant College Program and the Marine Services Association of Texas, will be held in the Marriott Hotel, Greenbriar at South Braeswood near the Astrodome. Registration is $25.

Marine and offshore industry representatives and Coast Guard personnel will discuss the 8th Coast Guard District policy as related to licensing and manning requirements, training and upgrading programs, industry compliance with standards, certification requirements, and current legislation affecting marine/offshore personnel.

Dewayne Hollin, marine business management specialist with the Sea Grant Marine Advisory Service, is seminar coordinator. Further information about the one-day meeting may be obtained by contacting Hollin, Marine Advisory Service, Sea Grant College Program, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843; telephone 713-845-3854.

Air Control Board Outlines Provisions For Burning

AUSTIN-In the wake of Hurricane Allen, Texas Air Control Board (TACB) Executive Director Bill

Stewart has outlined circumstances under which residents of stricken areas may burn storm debris.

Stewart hopes the burning can be accomplished within 60 days in the storm areas.

Outdoor burning of lumber, trees, and other vegetation in a rural area (outside the corporate limits of a city or town) may be done during certain hours and weather conditions.

Before conducting outdoor burning within city limits, persons should request authority from the nearest TACB Regional Office. Telephone number for the Regional Office in this area is (512) 855-4816 in Corpus Christi.

school, Live Oak Elementary, Fulton Elementary and Rockport Elementary schools.

Also included under Proposition 1 is replacement of roofs, installation of 1½ inch insulation, replacement of exit doors and "panic hardware," installation of new ceiling and replacement of windows in the high school.

Other work to be done in the high school if this proposition passes is "minimal" remodeling of the principal's office, remodeling of two rooms into an additional biology lab, construction of a new high school library and remodeling of the existing library into three classrooms.

Additional work at the junior high school under this proposal includes enlargement and air conditioning of the kitchen and dining room and seal ceiling material.

At Live Oak and Rockport elementary schools, additional work includes seal ceiling material and Proposition 1 also includes funds for a new ceiling and paneling in the main building and new ceiling in the red wing at Rockport Elementary.

Random asked any clubs or organizations that want to present a program on the school bond issue to contact him or Delmar Hiller.

The bond election was called during last Monday's, August 11, meeting of the Aransas County School Board.

Wessely Energy Corporation of Dallas will drill a 10,000-foot wellcat offshore in Aransas County, 7.6 miles west-northwest of Rockport.

New Students Must Register Now

All new students who are planning on attending Rockport-Fulton High School, grades nine through 12, should have their registration completed by now.

Those who have not registered should do so now.

The office will be open from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m.

New students are those students who did not attend any of the Aransas County Public Schools, such as Rockport-Fulton Junior High School or Rockport-Fulton Senior High School.

Students who owe for school obligations from the previous year should pay these obligations to be properly registered to pick up schedules.

New students should bring their report cards, book card and health record showing proof of having immunization for tetanus, diphtheria and polio in the last 10 years.

Students schedules will be ready for distribution to all students Thursday, August 21. Schedules may be picked up in the high school principal's office.

All new students should be enrolled before September 1. School will begin on September 2, and students should be prepared to meet all their classes the first day of school.

Fogging Underway In Aransas County

Mosquito fogging to rid the area of those pests spawned after Hurricane Allen is underway now in Aransas County.

County Judge John Wendell said the fogging operations began this past weekend, although rains Friday night and Saturday night have delayed things a little.

Rain washes out the insecticide, Judge Wendell explained, so if an area is sprayed — and then rain falls — the area must be sprayed again.

He added that even when the weather is dry, it takes two sprayings to reduce the mosquito population.

He said all the fogging machines are in operation, covering the county "from one end to the other" but the mosquito population is thick and it will take time to get rid of the pesky insects.

Anything that can hold water is a potential mosquito-breeding site, including old tires, flower pots, clogged gutters and even bird baths.

BUDGET

(Continued from Page 1) million, with the remaining revenue to come from other sources, mainly state and some federal.

Estimated expenditures for the year include $76,519 for debt service.

The largest expenditure is for "Instruction Service," which includes teachers' payrolls — amounting to $2,648,035 — and supplies and materials. Total expenditure for instruction service comes to just over 2.8 million.

Another $570,308 is budgeted for administrative costs, including salaries in that area, and $534,447 is earmarked for "plant maintenance and operation."

Some $123,671 is budgeted for salaries and supplies for guidance and counseling services provided for the students.

In other action Monday night, the school board approved payment of some $54,530.85 in bills for the month of July.

Superintendent Randow reported the school district collected $27,832 in delinquent taxes during July. He also informed the board that Bruce Mayes has finished painting Rockport Elementary and said the building looks "real good."

Beginning the second week of practice, Connolly pointed out that there are nearly 100 young men in uniform, with hopes of more to come as the opening of school grows nearer.

Coach Bobby Davis, formerly of Odem, will be bringing his Mustangs to Pirate Stadium Friday, instituting a completely new system at Ingleside, so the Pirates will have to make some adjustments as the scrimmage moves along.

Elderly Should Ta

Editor's Note: Experienced travelers generally agree that tourists—especially the elderly—should take copies of pertinent medical records with them on vacation.

You can, of course, buy U.S. insurance to cover hospitalization in foreign countries. And a credit card can usually serve as ready cash in a medical emergency.

But there is no insurance policy now available in this country that would have prevented the near-tragedy in French Polynesia that Dr. DeVore has called a "horror show."

First of Three Articles
By Dr. Gregory R. DeVore
The phone rang at 6 a.m. I answered it, wondering which patient was calling.

The voice was barely audible: "Greg, it's Mom, how are you?"

"Fine," I replied as my thoughts quickly came into focus. My parents had left for Tahiti three days before for their dream vacation. My father had served in the South Pacific during World War II and had always wanted to return and share the beauty of the islands with his life-long sweetheart. I wondered why she was calling, and then, before the words were uttered, I knew something was seriously wrong.

"Your father had a massive heart attack a few hours ago and was flown from a small island to Tahiti. He is in a French hospital and only two people speak English, one nurse and a hostess. I would like you to call the French doctor and speak to him. Your dad is in a lot of pain, and they are not giving him much medication."

Because I had lived in France 13 years ago working for the Mormon Church, I speak French. "Mom, I will catch the next flight to Tahiti and be there as soon as possible," I replied.

The plane landed at 2:30 a.m. in Papeete, Tahiti. I met my mother, who looked ashen, for she had not slept in two days. I was whisked through customs in less than five minutes and then driven to the hospital.

As I entered my father's room, it reminded me of many pictures I had seen of hospitals at the turn of the century in the United States. It was dark gray. The urinal, smelling of old urine, was lying open on the tray next to a glass of water.

The bed was ancient, supported by pieces of plywood in case cardiac resuscitation were needed. The room had an odor of musty alcohol. There was an antiquated cardiac monitor with no alarm if the heart slowed or increased to dangerous limits.

A portable cardiac defibrillator was in the corner of the room, a gift from the family of a former passenger on a Pan Am flight.

I beheld a once-healthy, strong 55-year-old man lying in bed with sunken eyes and an aura of impending death on his face, agonizing in pain, pleading for me to do something. It was a pitiful sight. I was his son, and yet I was a physician and could not let my emotions interfere.

I quickly turned to the nurse, asked her in French what he was receiving for pain and when was the medication last given?

She explained that he was given a mixture of different drugs, one being a narcotic that in reality was no stronger than codeine, which one takes for headache. The last dose had been five hours before.

With anger seething from within, I calmly asked whether, even though my father did not speak French and she did not speak English, she couldn't tell that he was in agony. She shrugged her shoulders and said, "I don't know what to do."

I asked her to give him a narcotic, stronger than what he was receiving. She did and in a short while he began to relax and then sleep.

I then went to the hotel, showered and returned for a 7:30 a.m. appointment with his doctor.

We met in the doctor's office, and he explained what had happened and what his plans were for management. Although we discussed some alternatives, I did not want to offend him, knowing that I would only make things difficult and would accomplish nothing at the moment.

I asked for permission to read the medical record and to examine my father. This was granted. We went to my father's room, where the doctor examined my father. He then left.

I began to review the records and noted that he was hypertensive with a blood pressure of 200/130, and had evidence of an inferior wall myocardial infarction on the electrocardiogram.

On examination of his heart and lungs, I found that he was in florid congestive heart failure (water filling the lungs because the heart could not pump the blood from the lungs efficiently).

This explained why my father felt short of breath. I asked for the doctor, but he was not available. I asked to see the chest x-ray taken on admission, and found out one had never been made.

I requested that the nurse contact the doctor and tell him of my findings so that adequate medical treatment could begin. A few hours passed.

While I was out of the room the doctor returned with an interpreter and told my mother, "Tell your son that this is my hospital, my patient, and he will not tell me what to do." My mother's reply was, "Tell him yourself."

I was angered because this had taken place in front of my father. I found the doctor in the hallway of the hospital and had a "long talk" with him about appropriate conversation in front of a sick patient as well as the appropriate management of myocardial infarction and congestive heart failure.

After we resolved our "cultural and professional differences," we returned to my father's room, where Dr. Auger, the French physician, examined my father and concurred with the diagnosis of congestive heart failure.

He then ordered the appropriate medication, and changed the pain medication order to morphine.

Dr. Auger later became a dear friend and was extremely helpful in the weeks that followed. My father's condition improved slowly.

On September 18 my mother returned home on her scheduled Pan Am flight, which originally was to conclude her "dream" vacation in French Polynesia.

She went to take care of the financial arrangements for my father's transportation home.

Before she left, we had spoken with the three airlines providing service to Tahiti from the United States, which informed us that we would not be able to transport my father until six weeks had passed and that he would be accompanied by an airline physician on a stretcher without monitoring equipment.

When my mother returned to the San Francisco Bay area, that information was confirmed with the offices in San Francisco.

This triggered a costly, unfortunate and distasteful sequence of events that left me wondering how the government really functions.

A family friend, a professor of political science at Morehouse College in Atlanta, recently had told my mother who to contact in Washington, D.C., if she ever needed assistance with the military (since she had been instrumental in changing Army enlistment policies as a result of a lawsuit she initiated during the late 1960s).

After she made a few initial phone calls to congressional offices, the White House and finally the Defense Department, she was told that a med-evac plane could evacuate my father with no difficulty and that the price would be approximately $2,000.

The next day she was told that it would cost $6,000, and the following day $10,400.

Pet Talks

TRAVELING WITH YOUR PET

[First of Three Parts]

Planning and preparation are necessary when traveling with the family dog or cat. Consider whether your pet is comfortable and happy when traveling.

Some animals, like some people, function better in familiar surroundings. A car-sick unhappy animal can make a trip miserable for everyone. Some ill or physically impaired dogs and cats cannot withstand the rigors of travel.

If this is the case, leave your pet with a relative or friend or at a clean, well-run boarding kennel.

If you will be staying with friends along the way, be considerate. Find out in advance if the pet is welcome. The same goes for hotels, motels, parks and campgrounds.

Check if pets are allowed or kennel facilities are available. Don't permit the animal to sleep on beds, chairs or bedspreads.

If the animal must be left alone in the room, place a "Do Not Disturb" sign on the door and inform the maid or front desk.

A few general tips apply whether you travel by car or plane. Be sure your pet wears a collar with complete identification and license tag. Have a rabies vaccination certificate if you will cross state or international borders.

Be prepared to present a health certificate, prepared by a veterinarian, especially if you travel to Canada or Mexico.

Be sure to take your pet's favorite food, toy(s) and dishes.

Before undertaking a long trip, it would be advisable to have your pet examined by a veterinarian.

Next week: If You Travel By Air.

Accent On Health

with patients every day. They must be aware of the patients' need for confidentiality. Too, they must demonstrate insight regarding the need for human respect and straightforward communication. Staff priorities are not just related to "casefinding"—they want to help people.

The VD Control Program has been busy communicating with people about the extent of the VD problem. During the first six months of 1980, infectious syphilis cases increased by 14 percent. A total of 3,316 cases of syphilis were reported. Gonorrhea, on the other hand, only 38,124 cases were reported. This is compared to 39,150 cases of gonorrhea reported for the same period last year.

All health problems related to VD are handled discreetly by TDH clinic staffs. For example, a married couple recently visited a public VD clinic. They were given a routine registration form to complete and a number—no names are called in the clinic. The husband, who was suffering with symptoms of VD, was directed to a laboratory technician for testing. The wife, who had no symptoms at the time, was seen by a public health nurse.

Following a 10-15 minute screening process for syphilis and gonorrhea, it was confirmed that they both had VD. Each saw a physician, who prescribed the appropriate medication and made an appointment for a return visit. The purpose of this follow-up visit was to provide the patients with results of additional laboratory testing.

A staff counselor talked with the husband and wife separately. The counselor educated the patients about venereal disease. Another important duty of the counselor, however, was to insure that all sex partners of these two people were informed of their risk of infection and that all partners received proper medical evaluation.

This is the process followed with every patient visiting a public clinic. They are confidentially examined and treated. Staff counselors talk to them about the diseases and how to avoid reinfection. They stress to the patient the importance of seeing that all sex partners are treated.

"The emphasis now in VD clinics is to motivate patients to inform their own sex partners about their exposure to disease," said Harry Bernhardt, program manager at the Austin-Travis County Health Department VD clinic. He added, "We talk to patients about their health and answer their questions. We encourage them to care just as much about what happens to their untreated partners as they do about themselves."

Another counselor said, "We work with people of all ages." He shared an experience regarding a time when he had only the name and address of one female. After he discovered that she was only 15 years old and that her father was home, he made an excuse and left. He contacted the girl later, upholding her right to confidentiality. Minors in the state of Texas may be examined and treated for venereal disease without parental consent.

The counselor added, "When we are trying to locate someone, we don't disclose the reason we are looking for them." Often the counselors may have only a first name or brief description of a person who may be infected. They visit bars or other places where a patient has frequented. Seldom do they visit places of work, and only sometimes do they visit homes. They attempt to reach persons at risk by telephone or confidential letter.

People are often angry when they learn that they may have VD. Counselors have to point out that this is not a shameful thing, but a health matter. People are told that they have been exposed to venereal disease and a test is required to see if infection has occurred.

Joe Webb, U.S. Public Health Advisor with the Infectious Disease Control Division of TDH stated, "About 4,000-5,000 people visit public VD clinics weekly in Texas."

He had the following advice for those using the clinics: "Be sure to take all medicine the doctor gives you. Patients sometimes take only half of the medicine, their symptoms disappear, and they give the remaining portion to their partner in an attempt to save him or her a trip to the clinic. You need to take all your medicine—even if you have no remaining symptoms. Also, medication for one type of venereal disease may not influence another type."

Webb suggested that the public should call to find out clinic hours. VD clinics sometimes have different hours on certain days or evening hours. Most VD clinics are listed in the telephone directory and may be located by contacting local health departments.

For further information, contact: Joe D. Pair, Director, Infectious Disease Control Division, Texas Department of Health, 1100 W. 49th Street, Austin, TX 78756.
