Deadly Gas To Be Shipped Cross Country by Rail

Shipments Resume To East Coast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon plans to ship huge quantities of deadly nerve gas cross country by railroad next week. An official of one town along the route called the idea "too grisly to think about."

The Pentagon revealed its tentative plan Wednesday after Rep. Richard McCarthy, D-N.Y., disclosed it to newsmen. The purpose of the shipping operation, which McCarthy said will involve 20 trains of 45 to 60 cars each, is to bring the gas to Earle, N.J. for eventual disposal at sea.

At the same time the Transportation Department revealed there have been three spillages of poison gas—two of them from railroad trains—within the past year. The leakages, from which no injuries resulted, happened twice at Kansas City and once at St. Louis.

U.S. Rejects Red Contention On Vietnam War

PARIS (UPI)—The United States today rejected Communist contentions that U.S. forces have intensified the fighting in South Vietnam.

"We think that it is definitely not so and that it is important to make the record clear on this point," said Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris talks on Vietnam.

Lodge spoke to newsmen as he entered the 16th session of the talks.

He said the United States "seeks to set the record straight concerning the charges the other side has made that the United States has been intensifying the war in Vietnam."

Lodge made the statement to reinforce reports that the U.S. delegation was looking to the Communists to come up with a new offer toward progress in the talks.

U.S. sources said the American delegation was hopeful high Communist officials may have brought back new offers to Paris from their trips home. Since last week's session senior members of each Communist delegation has returned to Paris.

Neither Le Duc Tho, a North Vietnamese politburo member, nor Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, deputy Viet Cong negotiator, would comment as they arrived (See REJECTS, Page 3)

U.S., South Viet Forces To Observe 24-Hour Truce

Forecasters See More Rain for Parts of State

By United Press International
Continuous thundershowers soaked Texas again Wednesday causing rivers to escape their banks and at least one dam to burst in areas where devastating and killing rains and winds have hit the state for the past four days.

Pampa has received .31 of an inch of moisture through 11 a.m. and for the month has received 2.31 inches of moisture.

A funnel cloud was spotted about 10 miles south of Pampa by Pampa police Lt. John Thomas shortly after 11 p.m. last night.

Police units watched the cloud and it moved southeast away from Pampa.

More scattered thundershowers were forecast for parts of the state today as a new cold front moved into the Panhandle.

Five inches of rain deluged Dallas Wednesday while neighboring Fort Worth was drenched by three inches. Lufkin, Longview, Tyler and Texarkana also reported heavy downpours.

Police, fire department and other rescue units evacuated an undetermined number of families in South Dallas today when waters from the Trinity River began to threaten the neighborhood.

Happened Before
A police department spokesman said the evacuations were "a precautionary measure taken all the time when the water gets a little high."

The families were taken to buildings on the Texas State Fair grounds.

Between 40 and 50 families were evacuated from their homes late Wednesday in and east of Livingstone when rising waters from Crystal Lake destroyed about 25 feet from an earthen dam. A Livingston police department spokesman said the evacuations were a precaution.

Cong Terrorist Hit Saigon Post Office

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu's office announced tonight that South Vietnamese armed forces will observe a 24-hour truce May 30 in honor of the anniversary of Buddha's birth. A U. S. command spokesman said American forces would join in the ceasefire.

The announcement came less than 24 hours after a series of Viet Cong terrorist attacks on Saigon's streets in an offensive that coincided with the 16th session of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

At least five persons died and 43 others suffered wounds in the Saigon terror spree. The 8:15 a.m. post office—blast caught the building bustling with activity, killing four South Vietnamese civilians and wounding 19.

Three grenade attacks late Wednesday and early today against U.S. and South Vietnamese military trucks killed one civilian and wounded six American-GIs, 13 civilians and three government soldiers. All the terrorists escaped on motorbikes.

It was the first time in almost six weeks that Communist terrorists have launched widespread attacks inside the capital. This time, it served to underscore the guerrillas' military ability to allied negotiators in Paris.

Renew Attack
The renewal of attacks against South Vietnam's major cities included a six-round rocket attack early today—two Hue, killing three Vietnamese civilians and wounding two, military spokesmen said.

Not since March 15 had Communist gunners hit Hue. South Vietnam's third largest city. Today's attack was the first shelling of a major city since Da Nang was hit April 17.

Although the level of Communist shelling has tapered off, the level of combat increased along the Cambodian border last week as reflected today in (See U.S., Page 3)

School Board Votes Okay on 90-Foot Poles

By WANDA MAE HUFF

Pampa school board voted 3-2 today to authorize purchase of 90-foot lighting poles for the Pampa High School football field, instead of the 100-foot poles authorized in a special meeting Tuesday.

The change was authorized because the board learned yesterday the 100-foot poles would cost an additional $600. The estimate might go over the one budgeted for lighting.

Vote was split with John Gikas, John Spearman and Warren Hasse voting for 90-foot poles. Dr. R.M. Hampton and Jimmy Thompson voted no.

Superintendent Dr. James F. Malone explained the Meyer Machine Co. of Red Wing, Minn. the firm which submitted the low bid, said the six, 100-foot poles would cost an additional $600 because they need to be stronger to support added lights in the future, and if they were not strengthened with additional steel they could not add more than the 24 lighting fixtures already authorized.

"If we are going to change and go back to the 90-foot poles I have to let the company know today. If we are going to get the poles within eight weeks in time for the football season," Dr. Malone said.

The Meyer Machine Co. Representatives Tuesday submitted a bid for $13,500 plus freight charges estimated at $1,600 to $2,200 after changing their appearances.

Among cities besides Dallas and Fort Worth where some of the cars were stolen were Grand Prairie, Big Spring, Garland, Pampa, Midland, in Texas, and Glendale, Ariz., and Lawton, Okla.

Lumpkin said the garagemen were alleged to have altered numbers of wrecked cars in their possession. Some transmissions and engine blocks were switched, seats changed and cars painted in efforts to disguise them, detectives said.

Promotion Signs Go Up To Help Cancer Drive

"At Your Service" reads the new signs being placed in strategic spots in Pampa, according to Mrs. Jack Foster, services chairman for the Gray County Chapter, American Cancer Society. The signs are a new service of the ACS to publicize the Pampa telephone number for interested persons.

"There is a story about how we got our signs," says Mrs. Foster who has spent 15 years in her present position with the chapter.

Howard Sublet, warden of the Wynne Unit, Texas Department of Corrections, Huntsville, should get most of the credit.

Mrs. Foster noted that when the prison reform journalist, Harry McCormick, died of cancer two years ago, the prisoners at the Unit formed a chapter of the ACS in his memory. This is the only prison chapter in the United States, Mrs. Foster noted.

This year, as one of their contributions to the ACS, the prisoners made 300 small roadside signs. The inmates did all the work, the only expense to the Society being the small masonite boards on which the signs were painted.

When anyone sees the new signs, Mrs. Foster notes, he will be reminded that "The American Cancer Society is at Your Service."

The first ACS telephone information center was established at McAllen, Tex., Mrs. Foster notes.

"Today," she added, there are more than 90 such information centers in the state. We are happy to have these public notices of services available to cancer patients."

Services rendered her, as elsewhere to cancer victims are purely voluntary. Mrs. Jackson pointed out, and calls are referred to chairmen who suggest appropriate action.

"Such service often reduces delay in diagnosis and treatment of the disease," the service chairman added.

The signs have been placed in First National and Citizens banks, at Coronado Inn, Baker School and elsewhere at Coronado Center, Mrs. Foster notes.

Former President Truman Is 85 Going on 100 Today

INDEPENDENCE. Mo. (UPI)—Former President Harry S. Truman is "85 and going on 100" today.

Although a few relatives and close friends may give the former chief executive birthday wishes at his large, white frame house on Delaware street, Truman was expected to spend the day quietly.

There is a possibility—depending on the weather and the way he feels—of a birthday walk along the streets of Independence during the early morning hours.

Miss Mary Jane Truman the former president's sister, planned to visit the home and there may be others.

Phone calls are a certainty, especially from Margaret Truman Daniel, the Trumans' only child, Mrs. Daniel, wife of New York Times Managing Editor Clifton Daniel, is starring in a play summer stock play near New York and was unable to visit.

In the past, other calls have come from fellow Democrats such as Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphrey.

Despite having reasonably good health for a man his age, the former president no longer mingles with crowds. Consequently, for the third straight year, Truman will bypass a traditional luncheon in his honor at a hotel in nearby Kansas City.

About 250 lifetime friends are expected to attend the gathering which again will have the theme, "The Man of Peace."

The words have been inscribed on special labels on wine to be served. Below that is another line reading, "85 and going on 100."

The luncheon, which has been (See FORMER, Page 3)

President's Wife Near Shoot-Out In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With Mrs. Richard M. Nixon only a short distance away, a policeman and a suspected thief shot it out Wednesday afternoon. A passerby was killed.

The First Lady was leaving the Washington Club on busy DuPont Circle as police sirens began to fill the air. Secret Service agents quickly whisked her into her limousine and speeded off along an alternate route.

Police said Pvt. Paul J. Grasso was questioning a Western Union messenger about a purse snatching several blocks away when suddenly the suspect grabbed Grasso's revolver.

He fired five shots. Grasso was struck in the leg. Another shot went through the Western Union office doorway and struck Coast Guard Cmdr. Warren D. Andrews, 40, father of six, who was walking by. He died almost instantly.

Wagoner, immediate past president of the association, stated the mock hearing also will take up some controversial assessment on personal property applicable to the whole area.

The day-long chapter meeting will be attended by city, school and county tax officials from over the Texas Panhandle.

Spanish Church Holds Mass for Hitler's Soul

MADRID (UPI)—More than 200 Nazi sympathizers filed into the Roman Catholic Church of San Martin Wednesday for a mass for the soul of Adolf Hitler. As the mass ended, they raised their arms and shouted "Heil Hitler!"

Among the group were members of the Blue Division, a Spanish unit that went to the aid of the Nazis against the Soviet Union.

Many wore swastika armbands.

A Roman Catholic source said the church could not refuse a mass for anyone's soul. The sympathizers paid for the mass.

It was the 24th anniversary of the death of the Nazi dictator, who killed himself in the Reichs chancellory bunker in Berlin as Soviet armies closed in.

Too Many Guns Kill Time for Jailbreak

CORSICANA, Tex. (UPI)—Two youthful prisoners jumped a Navarro County jailer Wednesday, locked him up and armed themselves before they were surrounded and recaptured in the jailer's office.

Jailer Frank Chapman said the two 16-year-olds armed themselves with several old rifles and his pistol before they were subdued.

The break occurred while Chapman was cleaning the boys' cell.

Austin Unhappy With Governor's Tax Proposals

AUSTIN (UPI) —The legislature revolted against Gov. Preston Smith today on the question of taxes, and a Senate committee "crippled" a Smith proposal to create a new medical school in his hometown.

While Smith was in Washington attending a federal housing conference, Lt. Gov. E. Barnes and Speaker Gus F. Mutscher decided—with only one "if"—to ignore Smith's insistence that the legislature pass a tax bill this year.

The "if" was whether they could take enough money from other budgets to give teachers a pay raise of some $70 million this year without new taxes. Both said they thought it could be done, and promised a final decision today.

Meanwhile, the Senate State Affairs Committee so severely amended a bill to create a new medical school in Smith's hometown, Lubbock, that the bill's sponsor said it is "crippled if not dead."

The committee approved a bill authorizing the new medical school Smith has recommended for Texas Tech, but added provisions to make it "impossible to finance," according to the bill's sponsor, Sen. H. J. Blanchard, D-Lubbock.

Under the committee version of the bill, no state general revenue could be used to finance the school. Smith had recommended $8.3 million, all from general revenue.

Smith, due back in Texas late today, may have the last word, however, at least on taxes.

He has always opposed the one-year budget, no-tax-plan favored by Barnes and Mutscher, and has held open the possibility that he might veto it.

Associates say they believe he will do so, even though that would force him to call a special legislative session this summer and recommend another $250-$300 million tax bill.

Barnes and Mutscher say the $318 million tax package Smith recommended this session is dead.

U.S. Secretary John A. Volpe and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird to investigate the dangers involved. He said the tanks of gas, which will ride in open gondola cars, should be sealed before shipment.

But Edwin E. Edell, a spokesman for the Federal Railroad Administration, said it was safer to leave the tanks alone. "We felt that to empty them (for testing) would create a much more hazardous situation."

The Pentagon said the gas tanks would be packed in gerrimulicite, a mineral sometimes used as insulation, which could absorb the liquid if it leaked. It said it has conducted casualty figures released by the U.S. Command.

Bus Thief Caught In Border Town

LAREDO (UPI) — A man dressed in a bus driver's uniform stole Continental Trailways' "Silver Eagle" bus Wednesday from the station in Monroe, La., and drove it 650 miles before he was apprehended near this Texas border town.

The bus was stopped about 2 p.m. Wednesday 17 miles north of Laredo, a city on the Texas-Mexico international boundary.

The driver was identified by a driver's license as Ronald Bradford Patterson, 27, of Augusta, Ga. However, Webb County sheriff's officers said they do not believe the man is Patterson.

Post Office Lets Big Python Pass

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) —That saying, "the mail must go through," still applies in the Post Office Department, even if the mail is a nine-foot python from Vietnam.

Asst. Postmaster A. F. Whittier said mailing a snake was against the rules, "but we're going to make an exception in this case and go ahead and give it to the boy it was addressed to."

The orange-yellow-brown colored snake was mailed by Pfc. Julian Fuller two weeks ago to his lifelong friend, Bobby Turnknett of rural Jacksonville, at a cost of $7.25.

tionary measure and no homes were flooded.

Danger Past

"The water is backing up now and most of the danger is past," the spokesman said shortly before midnight. "No roads have been closed and it doesn't look as if the flooding will be bad."

Eight deaths have been attributed to the weather since the turbulence began Sunday.

Mrs. P. B. Ellis, 45; Susan Breeden, 9; and the Rev. Bruce Hornell, a Methodist minister, were drowned in Mustang Creek near Cleburne. Rescue workers recovered their bodies Wednesday.

Four Escape

Mrs. Ellis and the little Breeden girl were caught by the creek's raging waters as they were trying to cross the creek.

Four other persons escaped death in the same creek by clinging four hours to a willow tree. Rev. Hornell tied a rope around his waist and tried to rescue the four, but was caught by the waters and swept to his death.

The body of Robbie Joan Watson, 35, of Dallas, was discovered Wednesday 400 yards from her car on the eastern edge of Dallas County. The field in which she was found was under water Tuesday night.

Water Ditch

The body of Bras Lester Martin, 58, of Troup, was found in his automobile in a ditch filled with water. He had been dead 12 hours.

A Cleburne policeman stood helplessly as flood waters swept a screaming man under a bridge. His body has not been recovered.

for more spectators or in case night track events were held.

Gikas said, "I'd hate to go over the budget on the first item in the district's school bond issue."

Hasse said, "I agree, we shouldn't get out of the budget on extra curricular activities. We might need this money later for educational facilities."

Thompson said he would hate to learn later the 100-foot poles were needed and not added because the board didn't spend an additional $600 in 1969.

"I don't think we know enough about lights to decide on this matter. We've got a professional architect (Hebert Brasher) of Brasher-Goyette and Rapier of Lubbock," Hampton said. "I think we should rely on his opinion in this matter," he added.

After a suggestion by Hampton that Brasher's status on supervising the construction projects be clarified, the board agreed and unanimously passed a motion that Brasher supervise the entire project and approve submitted specifications on the construction of the entire project. The motion included a statement that a fee arrangement be negotiated with Brasher for additional supervision.

The board was still in session at noon.

Allied officials cautioned that any changes in the stands taken by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong might take weeks to become evident if they occurred at all.

Xuan Thuy, chief North Vietnamese negotiator, again called for unilateral withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam.

Thuy spoke with the newspaper Le Figaro, accusing the United States of "pursuing and intensifying its war of aggression in Vietnam."

Low Calorie Appetite Appeaser

With more and more people wanting to reduce, diets have become a favorite topic of conversation. The smart dieters know that even though their choice of foods is somewhat limited, the way in which it is prepared and served, can be most attractive and appetizing as well.

For instance, take cottage cheese. Long the dieter's staple, it no longer need be bland. By using Chive Cottage Cheese which is available in dairy or delicatessen departments of food markets, lunch becomes a treat. The bright green of the chives enhances color appeal as well.

An unusual and interesting way to serve Chive Cottage Cheese is in a ring mold. In this recipe, the tangy flavor of chives is rounded out with a dash of mustard, a nip of vinegar and a blend of mayonnaise. This mold then becomes a perfect centerpiece for fresh or canned fruit.

CHIVE COTTAGE CHEESE RING MOLD

- 1 envelope gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 2 cups chive cottage cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar or honey
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- Iceberg lettuce
- Fruit, fresh or canned

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Place chive cottage cheese in mixing bowl. Mix together mustard, sugar or honey and salt. Stir in vinegar. Stir mixture into chive cottage cheese. Blend in mayonnaise. Stir in gelatin. Pour into 3 cup ring mold and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce and surround with fresh or canned fruit of your choice. Serves 6.

Canned Pears In Popular Baked Salad

Baked salads are a popular choice for a guest luncheon. This delicious Hot Pear Seafood Salad is certain to become a favorite and one you'll want to serve often when entertaining. Easy on the hostess, the salad can be assembled in advance, then popped into the oven when the guests arrive. Complete your menu with assorted relishes and hot fluffy biscuits. Lemon-filled meringues would be a perfect choice for dessert.

Tiny pink shrimp are combined with crisp celery, green onion and green pepper. Sliced water chestnuts add extra crispness and a touch of curry imparts a special flavor to the mayonnaise dressing. Canned Bartlett pears, sparkling with a glaze of French dressing, are the base for the salad. Delicately flavored and bursting with juicy, they are a perfect complement to the shrimp mixture.

Baked Pear Seafood Salad

- 2 (1 lb.) cans Bartlett pear halves
- 1/4 cup French dressing
- 1/2 pound small shrimp
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons finely sliced green onion
- 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 1/2 cup sliced water chestnuts
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon curry powder

Drain pear halves. Marinate in French dressing 1 hour. Combine shrimp, celery, green onion, green pepper and water chestnuts. Add mayonnaise and seasonings and blend thoroughly. Remove pears from marinade. In each individual ramekin or baking dish place 2 pear halves. Spoon shrimp salad in the center. Bake in a 350-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cut Steak Veal Cubes For Skewers

"What's a different thing I can do with veal steaks?" asks a homemaker who uses this meat to punctuate her menus with something new.

Veal steaks may be cut into inch cubes easily, answers Reba Staggs, meat authority with the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Slightly beaten eggs and crushed cornflakes give them a coating that's called "breading."

After threading and dipping in the coating, the skewers are

VEAL CUBES ON SKEWERS

- 2 lbs. veal shoulder steaks
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 2 eggs, slightly browned slowly, then cooked until the flavor develops.

Sandwich Supper For Two Equals Grilled Cheese

By GAYNOR MADDOX

We lunched with a French family recently on their terrace overlooking Central Park. Our hostess turned a familiar, rather commonplace, grilled cheese sandwich into an epicurean treat.

She used slices of excellent ham and two French cheeses — Roquefort and Bonbel. Port Salut can be used in place of the Bonbel if desired, she explained.

Here's her recipe for one sandwich. Multiply it as much as you want. It was served with a delicate mixed green salad with oil and wine vinegar dressing. Dessert was fresh strawberries with sour cream and thin French vanilla wafers, then black coffee.

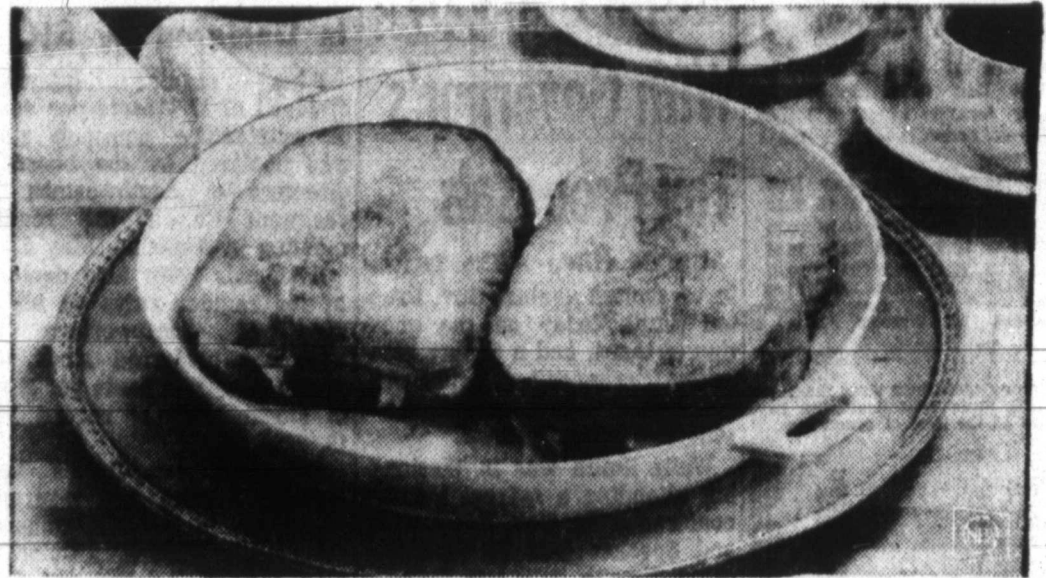

Two of these would make a perfect luncheon or supper dish for a newly married couple.

CROQUE-MONSIEUR

- 2 slices bread
- 1 thin slice Roquefort cheese
- Thin slices Bonbel or Port Salut (mild semisoft French cheese)
- 1 slice Ham
- Butter . . .

Cover one slice of bread with thin slices of Bonbel or Port Salut, then a slice of ham, then a slice of Roquefort, and the second slice of bread. Fry in butter over low heat, turning once, until golden brown on both sides.

NOTE: This can also be dipped into a milk, eggs, flour batter before frying if you prefer.

FRENCH TWIST to a grilled cheese sandwich.

Barbecued Rock Lobster Tails Spice Summer Cookout

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor

The barbecue season is about to begin. So let's include rock lobster tails along with meat and poultry for the grill. Also a word about indoor cookery of the tails, should it rain. Run frozen tails under cold water to thaw sufficiently. Grasp tail in both hands and crack shell firmly lengthwise,

To Barbecue Outdoors:

Place tails flesh side toward heat first and grill from 4 to 8 minutes. Turn, brush with desired butter sauce, and continue grilling on shell side for an additional 5 to 20 minutes. When rock lobster meat loses its translucency and becomes opaque, it is done.

To Broil Indoors:

Thaw tails. With kitchen shears cut between the hard upper shell and the soft underside membrane. Lift the membrane off. Preheat broiler 10 minutes. Place tails shell side up, 4 inches below heat. Broil tail from 3 to 5 minutes. Turn and broil flesh side from 2 to 3 minutes until meat loses its translucency. Serve in shell with these butter sauces:

CARAWAY CHEESE BUTTER

2 teaspoons caraway seeds
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup melted butter or margarine
Combine all ingredients and serve hot with barbecued rock lobster tails. Yield: 1 one-third cups.

LEMON PARSLEY BUTTER

Juice of 2 lemons
1/2 cup chopped parsley
1 cup melted butter or margarine
1 tablespoon soya sauce
Combine all ingredients and serve hot with barbecued rock lobster tails. Yield: 1 1/2 cups.

MUSTARD BUTTER

1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 cup melted butter or margarine
1/4 cup vinegar...

Combine all ingredients and serve hot with barbecued rock lobster tails. Yield: About 1 1/4 cups.

Sausage and Boston butts may be abundant in some areas. Maine sardines, canned pink salmon, and fish sticks and portions continue to be the fish buys to watch for, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Cabbage, carrots, onions, and potatoes are fresh vegetables in best supply. Fresh fruit in this category are bananas, grapefruit, oranges and strawberries.

On USDA's plentiful food list for May, in addition to turkeys, onions, and Maine sardines, are canned and frozen corn, canned beets, and canned tomatoes and tomato products.

Vest With Dress

For a variation of the dress and jacket, try a long-sleeved dress with a three-quarter sleeveless vest or a sleeveless bolero—a dress in a neutral color can have its whole appearance changed simply by adding a different-colored vest or bolero.

FULL STOMACH

HORNCHURCH, England (UPI)—Mr. and Mrs. Terry Hann took their daughter, Alison, 4, to have an X-ray after she complained of stomach pains. Doctors later found she had swallowed 28 beads, bird seed, a dog's bone, three plastic toy bricks, a deflated balloon, a toy dog, sand, leaves and eight coins. "The doctors said she didn't need treatment," her mother said. "Her digestion will take care of the objects."

Bucher Will Try For Normal Life

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI)—For the first time since the USS Pueblo was captured by North Korea Jan. 23, 1968, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher can look forward to a normal life. The 41-year-old Navy career officer, smiling and appearing relaxed, pleaded laryngitis at a news conference Tuesday and spoke only a few words. Bucher was asked if he had anticipated the findings of the court of inquiry, which included recommending him for a general court-martial. "I tried to anticipate a lot of things," the Pueblo skipper replied. "I have to say the findings of the court had been anticipated by myself. Over a larger spectrum of possibilities, the findings certainly were there." Bucher, who has put on 55 pounds since he and the 81 surviving Pueblo crewmembers were released from a North Korean prison last December, appeared tan and trim as he stood next to his civilian attorney, E. Miles Harvey. Harvey read a prepared statement to newsmen that he and Bucher worked up after they received the news from Washington, D.C. Although he had criticized the Navy sharply for failing to equip his spy ship properly for its mission and for failing to provide protection, Bucher had no word of blame for anyone Tuesday. "Pleased With Result" Harvey said on behalf of Bucher that he was pleased "certain corrective measures have been taken" as a result of the investigation. "The lawyer cited a switch to water-soluble paper for secret documents, new methods to destroy secret equipment and improvements in determining the risks of such surveillance missions. He said the capture, imprisonment and investigation were not considered prejudicial to Bucher's career in the Navy. The graduate of Boys Town, Neb., rose through the ranks to his present status. "As far as we are concerned," said Harvey, "Cmdr. Bucher has been cleared. There are no charges. We feel this is final." Bucher said he was expecting reassignment soon and his attorney said the skipper's "chances for promotion and success depends on how he performs in his next assignment."

Colorado Students Honor State's Only Known Cannibal

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI)—More than 250 University of Colorado students turned out and tuned on to honor Alfred E. Packer, the state's only convicted cannibal. The day marked the first anniversary of the renaming of the Student Grill in honor of Packer, who 95 years ago Rockies with the help of five escaped a blizzard in the unfortunate friends. Packer was sentenced to die for his unusual appetite, but beat the hangman's noose and died a quiet death in 1907.

Abe Fortas' Law Firm Is Under Fire

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI)—U.S. authorities denied that a federal grand jury has been impaneled here to reopen a two-year-old case involving Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas' law firm. "We're not in a position to impanel a jury because we have no U.S. attorney here," said Federal Judge Frank Kloeb said. "We have a very crowded docket. We have enough to do, let alone adding something like this." "It just could not be done right now." U.S. Atty. Harry Pickering of Cleveland, who is handling federal cases in Toledo while the city is without a U.S. attorney of its own, echoed Kloeb's denial. "We don't have a grand jury impaneled at Toledo," he said. Pickering added that he would be notified of any plan to call a grand jury here. He conceded, however, that the Justice Department might have ordered an investigation of the case without letting him know. "We never know what they're investigating," he said. "We don't ask. They don't tell us. We prefer it that way." The New York Times reported in a Washington dispatch today that the Justice Department had begun a grand jury investigation into an action taken in 1967 by Fortas' firm. The Times dispatch said the action "delayed the production of documents sought by federal antiracketeering attorneys from one of the firm's clients." The newspaper said the investigation had been under consideration for months. John Mattimore, the former U.S. attorney in Toledo who resigned when President Lyndon B. Johnson's term expired in January, said the Fortas firm, Arnold and Porter, represented one of several steel companies involved in a price-fixing case he prosecuted in 1967. Four steel executives were indicted, but only Irwin Fruchtman of the Fruchtman Steel Co. was convicted. Arnold and Porter represented the Donovan Steel and Wire Co. Reports of a grand jury reinvestigation of the 1967 case circulated Tuesday in Washington, where some Republicans were demanding that Fortas resign because he received—but later returned—a $20,000 fee.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The surprise of the national television ratings for the two weeks ending April 20 is not that the Academy Awards Show on ABC-TV finished on top. What is surprising, however, is that CBS-TV's one-hour special with Dick Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore gave the Oscars a real run for its money in placing second. The ratings, in short, are rather tight at the top. Van Dyke and Miss Moore, of course, were very large video favorites in their old CBS-TV situation comedy series, and it was quite a blow to the network when Van Dyke quit his weekly program while it was highly rated.

Reteaming Did Trick The reteaming with Miss Moore, however, really did the trick for him and for the network in the latest special. That show, to no one's surprise, relied heavily on memories of their old series, and the public was ready and waiting. Future specials continuing to reteam Van Dyke and Miss Moore would seem logical. CBS-TV, meanwhile, must be shaking its corporate head when contemplating how many of its top stars quit their series while doing well. Van Dyke was only one example.

This past season, Andy Griffith bowed out of his series when it was No. 1 in the ratings. Furthermore, Jim Nabors, whose "Gomer Pyle" series is right near the top of the ratings, is quitting after this season to attempt an hour variety show each week on the same network starting this fall.

Worthy of Note Several other specials in the latest ratings are worthy of note because of their great success. One is NBC-TV's Bill Cosby Hour, which came in third behind the Oscars and the Van Dyke-Moore outing. An indication of Cosby's prestige in the video industry that he will be the Hollywood host for CBS-TV's Emmy Awards Show June 8. Merv Griffin, who starts a late-night talk-and-entertainment series on CBS-TV Aug. 18—competing with Johnny Carson and Joey Bishop—will be the New York host for the Emmys.

Dinah Shore, meanwhile, finished ninth among all shows in her recent NBC-TV special with Lucille Ball, Rowan and Martin, and Diana Ross of The Supremes. Any television executive will tell you that the underrated factor of audience warmth toward an entertainer was almost certainly a pivotal item in the success of the specials of Miss Shore, Mr. Van Dyke, Miss Moore and Mr. Cosby.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Studying short interest as an indicator of market direction, Moody's Investors Service observes that no sustained price advance takes place without a substantial buildup in short interest prior to or in the early part of the upward movement. Discounting for the seasonal distortion which occurs toward the end of each year, and another distortion related to the "torrid pace of mergers and acquisitions in recent years, Moody's says the current level of short interest is considerably lower than it has been reported. Short sales would have to increase "explosively" considering the extremely heavy volume last week, in order to offer much support for a sustainable market rally at this time, the firm points out.

The number of individual new highs declined for two consecutive days at the end of last week, E. F. Hutton & Co. notes, perhaps signaling that an increasing number of issues were meeting upside resistance.

GERMANS DEFECT
TRELLEBORG, Sweden—Three East German youths defected to Sweden in a sailing yacht Wednesday, authorities said today. The trio, 21 to 23 years in age, left Wolgast, East Germany, and sailed 100 miles across the Baltic Sea to Trelleborg en route to eventual asylum in West Germany.

FIRST OF ITS KIND, reportedly, to be seen behind the Iron Curtain in the world, brought to Russia by Joseph Hoban, a U.S. sportsman from Racine, Wis. Hoban plans to use the vehicle in hunting Siberian bear. He is seen here testing the machine in front of the impressive Moscow University.

Washington Window

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The suffering of Associate Justice Abe Fortas is not producing noticeable tears at the White House. Instead there appears to be icy involvement.

Having an established record of being an ardent liberal, Fortas is not about to be thrown any sort of life preserver from 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., or for that matter, from the Justice Department and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The collective Nixon administration attitude seems to be that if Fortas is in trouble with certain powerful congressional elements, then so be it—it is his problem, not that of the White House.

The President was described as determined to stay out of what he regards as peripheral problem to the greatest extent possible. He knows that any new administration inherits a certain amount of difficulty from the preceding administration, but he does not want to take credit where credit is undue.

Therefore, if Fortas made mistakes in personal or extraneous relationships prior to the advent of the Nixon administration, this becomes the heated pool of Justice Fortas and he can swim out of it entirely on his own.

President and Mrs. Nixon have not completed the legal details involved in selling their Fifth Avenue apartment in New York City and purchasing a California residence at San Clemente.

Friends say both arrangements are relatively close to completion but certain legal details have delayed closing either deal.

The Nixons may be going to California soon, after this upcoming weekend at Key Biscayne, Fla. It may be that they will stay somewhere close to San Clemente, but not the house they are in the process of purchasing. This may have to do with the present owner not being ready to vacate, or it may be that the Chief Executive wants to look over another possible site. In any case, he has evidenced a desire to visit somewhere in the same area of the Southern California coast where he can walk directly from a hotel or private residence to the beach.

NAMED HEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Gov. John H. Reed of Maine has been named head of the National Transportation Safety Board to succeed Joseph H. O'Connell Jr. Reed, 48, has been a board member since 1967. O'Connell, whose term continued until January, said he would resign effective June 15.

MIKE REPAIRS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After minor repairs to two boilers, the cruiser Boston will leave for Vietnam May 22, according to the Navy. A spokesman said the missile system also has been aligned. The Navy made the statement in response to reports that two of the four boilers and the missile system malfunctioned during a Caribbean test.

Army Deserter Accused of Starting Fire

MIAMI (UPI) — Police said an Army deserter hired last week as a bellhop had started a $10,000 hotel fire then warned some of the 106 guests to flee the eight-story building.

Michael Van Valkenburg, a 21-year-old deserter from Ft. Benning, Ga., was arrested Wednesday morning after officials began questioning employees of the Patricia Hotel about the pre-dawn blaze.

Valkenburg, who had worked as a Patricia bellhop for eight days under the name Robert P. Henderson, broke down during a lie detector test and told police he had thrown lit matches into a third floor linen closet.

Nixon Turned Down Several Requests From Fortis' Friends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon turned down several requests from members of Congress who tried to intercede on behalf of imprisoned financier Louis E. Wolfson, key figure in the latest controversy around Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, according to congressional aides.

A short time before he went to jail last month for stock manipulation, Wolfson attempted to gain presidential intervention in his case by writing to several congressmen. Some of those to whom he wrote said he was after an executive pardon; others thought he was merely after a delay.

In Toledo, Ohio, U.S. District Court Judge Frank Klobb grand jury had been impaneled to reopen a 1967 case involving Fortas' old law firm. U.S. Attorney Harry Pickering of Cleveland, handling the Toledo area temporarily, said "We don't have a grand jury impaneled at Toledo."

The case involved price fixing by several steel firms, one of which was represented by the Washington law firm Fortas was a partner in before he was appointed to the court.

The Florida millionaire's name was linked with Fortas through a disclosure in the current issue of Life magazine that Fortas received, but returned, a $20,000 fee from the Wolfson family foundation in 1966 — three years before he went to jail.

Sen. Spessard Holland and Reps. Claude Pepper and Charles Bennett, all Florida Democrats, said they would have attempted a White House meeting on Wolfson's behalf if one was arranged. But Nixon rejected attempts to set up such a meeting.

Dear Abby

By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is widowed and spends a lot of time with our family. She's a good soul and we wouldn't want to hurt her for anything.

The problem is that she is about 60 pounds overweight, and she's not very careful about the way she sits. Her dress hikes up and she shows more than people care to see.

Last night our sons (ages 10 and 12) had some friends over, and they were all sitting on the floor supposedly watching TV. Grandma was there in her usual position, and those kids barely took their eyes off Grandma.

She sits "side saddle" at meal time, instead of putting her knees together under the table. She says it's more "comfortable."

We keep telling her to watch how she sits. She'll be careful for a day or two, but then she goes back to her old ways.

How can we effect a permanent cure without hurting her feelings?

NO NAME

DEAR NO NAME: You probably can't. But just keep "reminding her" gently — and often. And by the way, this lady is old and obese, but what excuse can there be for some of those young, slim gals for sitting that way?

DEAR ABBY: We are having a family argument. If a 16-year-old girl has a date with a boy she has never dated before, should the girl be expected to take the boy down in the recreation room to meet her father? Or shouldn't the father come upstairs? This was a formal, and the girl would have had to take the boy through a rather messy kitchen and down the basement stairs. The mother came up to meet the boy, the father stayed downstairs. Who was right?

THE GIRL: DEAR GIRL: If the father really wanted to meet the boy, he'd have come upstairs. Perhaps the father was "relaxing" — shoes off, unshaved, engrossed in reading or watching television, in which case, he obviously chose to pass the introduction, which is his privilege. Who's complaining? If the father complains because his daughter didn't bring the boy downstairs shame on him. If the daughter complains because her father didn't come upstairs, shame on her.

DEAR ABBY: Please be fair and print this for "DISGUSTED": I realize that you are young and glib as you are only 16, but if you actually believe that the army reserve turned down a volunteer because his hair was too long, you had better do some further checking on your armed services.

If this volunteer qualified in every other way, the army would have given him the oath one minute and had him sitting in the barber's chair the next.

If you swallow hogwash like this (which you supposedly saw in the newspaper), then I am not so sure we wouldn't be better off if you did pack your bags and move to Australia. — R.C.G. (Proud Navy Man)

DEAR ABBY: I would like to reply to the 16 year-old girl who was indignant about a man who wanted to fight for his country but was turned away because his hair was too long.

If a man truly wants to "fight for his country," he can always join the regular army. A man's civilian hair style is one problem the army solves most easily.

Very truly yours, "RESERVIST" (FOLEY, ALA.)

Parents Should Screen Children's Summer Camp Choice For Safety

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—L'era-ture on summer camp is full of superlatives. It talks about adventures in the great, healthful outdoors for the child, the opportunity to learn and compete in sports from archery to swimming, the manner in which a camp develops responsibility, individuality, independence, skills and physique.

adjectives, face these facts: A camp, without careful screening from parents, could be a summer booby trap for your child.

So let the buyer beware is the word from the nation's safety experts, as the season begins either for day or resident camp for six million children, or one in seven of the six to 16-year-old age group.

Thousands Injured
"There are no national figures on how many campers and counselors are injured each year, but the number would be in the thousands if all injuries were reported," says "Family Safety," a publication of the National Safety Council.

In its current issue, the publication states that the American Camping Association (ACA), interested in camp safety certainly, has developed a set of specifications over the years that must be met and adhered to by its 3,000 member camps. But of the 10,000 to 11,000 youth camps in the nation, fewer than one third are accredited by ACA, which sends out a pair of inspector-advisers to each camp before giving an okay.

Further, says the publication, only 17 states require that a camp operator be licensed, only 26 states have general regulatory guidelines, only four states prescribe age requirements for counselors.

"What do you know about your kid's camp?" asks the author, Harris Edward Dark. Then he gives some guidelines for selecting the summer home away from home.

Don't attempt to judge a ny camp merely by its literature. Visit the site and make up your own mind or rely on the recommendation of someone in whom you have implicit confidence. This applies to day camps as well as regular resident and specialty camps.

Know Director's Age
Is the camp director at least

25 years old with camping training within the last three years and at least 16 weeks of active experience in administration or supervision of an organized camp?

The site, the facilities and equipment all should be checked. Find for instance, whether the waterfront area shelving is safe, adequately roped and free from treacherous currents and underwater hazards. Or, are all sleeping

White Deer 4-H Member To Enter Round-Up Events

Galen Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Phillips, White Deer, will represent Carson County in the Senior Meat Division of 4-H Roundup at College Station June 2 and 3 and will be in competition for a $500 scholarship.

Phillips won the right to compete on the District 1 level in a 4-H Food Show held in Amarillo recently at Bonham Junior High School. He prepared a meat dish, and served it from a table appointed with linens and a place setting of china, silver and glassware coordinated to his dish. His color scheme was gold and brown accented by a gold and orange floral centerpiece.

Contestants were judged on the basis of the dish prepared, appropriate table setting, menu suggestions and their record books.

Practical

One of the most practical things for a girl-on-the-go to own is a culotte jump suit—it's great for quick trips to the market, an all-day hike, a walk on the beach, a drive, a last-minute date.

YOUTHFUL—Twice as cute as any button is this princess-styled jumper dress with U-shaped bodice. The black and white cotton blouse with big puffy sleeves and high collar is the perfect foil for the all white cotton pique tummy.

accommodations either at the ground level or alternatively, are fire escapes and protective devices provided on all other floors?

If the camp is a resident one, is there a doctor or registered nurse in residence at all times? Or on-call, if it is a day camp? Are all staff members drilled on standard procedures in event of health emergencies? Is there someone over 21 who holds a current American Red Cross water safety instructor's certificate?

The parents also should check a camp's sanitation and transportation facilities.

And if a parent gets evasive answers, says the publication, it may be "a sign that all is not high caliber."

Create Your Own "Look"

To make the most of your accessories, be an individualist about wearing them. Mix and match accessories: Use belts as necklaces and long beads as chains as belts. Combine plastic, silver and gold for an interesting effect. The important thing is that you create your own "look."

Wants Alain Poher French Center Party

PARIS (UPI)—A campaign to draft acting President Alain Poher, 60, as Center party candidate picked up speed in the presidential election battle to succeed Charles de Gaulle.

Several French morning newspapers reported he would accept. With seven days before nominations close for the June 1 election, Gaullist Georges Pompidou, 57, faced three leftists and a Trotskyite. The Center party, whose votes both Pompidou and the Socialists were wooing, had not yet nominated a candidate of their own.

Poher, who took over from De Gaulle when he resigned and will be acting president until election of a new chief of state, was reported reluctant to run.

He already was under strong pressure to join the race.

The radical Socialist party, once one of France's leading political groups, announced Tuesday it was backing Poher for president. Poher himself had two long political talks at the Elysee Palace Tuesday, which political observers interpreted as part of the pressure campaign on him to run.

The first was with Jacques Duhamel, center party leader in the national assembly. The second was with former Premier Antoine Pinay, at 78, still one of France's most respected elder statesmen.

At the same time, formation of "Poher-for-President" pressure committees was announced in various parts of the country.

The drive to push Poher into the race was masterminded by Center party politicians who believe the French voters would rush to support a man who opposes Gaullism but has no leftist connections.

The other leftist candidates in the fight were Communist Jacques Duclos, 72, and Michel Rocard, 38, nominated by the small left-leaning Unified Socialist party (PSU).

Alain Rivine, 27, also was nominated Monday by the tiny extreme leftist Trotskyite party.

Prominent Drug Expert Denounces Big Drug Firms

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A prominent physician and drug expert accused a big pharmaceutical firm today of "a bold, unscrupulous and selfish attempt" to stop the government from banning a drug rated "ineffective."

Dr. William L. Hewitt, head of the Division of Infectious Diseases at the University of California Medical School in Los Angeles, leveled the accusation against the Upjohn Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., for its promotion of a combination drug trademarked Panalba. He said Upjohn took in $16.8 million from Panalba sales last year despite its rating by the National Academy of Sciences as "ineffective."

Panalba is out of about 80 drug combinations — two or more drugs capsuled together — which the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has proposed to ban unless drug firms can prove their value.

Hewitt was one of 30 scientists whose evaluation of drug combinations for the National Academy of Sciences prompted the FDA action. He appeared today before the Senate small business monopoly subcommittee, which is in the midst of a long investigation of alleged drug industry abuses.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said 83 drug combinations rank among the 200 most widely prescribed drugs in the United States — despite scientific warnings that they are usually useless, often dangerous and occasionally fatal.

In his prepared testimony, Hewitt said that despite repeated "entreaties to the industry" by scientist drug firms kept promoting drug combinations "because of the economic rewards of pharmaceutical gimmickery."

Pravda Credits Russian Inventor With First Radio

MOSCOW (UPI)—It was a Russian who invented the radio, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda informed the Soviet people.

"On this day, May 7, 1895, the Russian inventor Alexander S. Popov demonstrated for the first time in the world a wireless receiving apparatus," Pravda said. "This marked the birth of radio."

Italy's Guglielmo Marconi is credited with inventing the radio. He took out the first patent in June of 1896.

Popov, an engineer who experimented with electromagnetic waves.

Point of Order Stops Teacher $1,000 Pay Hike

AUSTIN (UPI)—A Rio Grande Valley lawmaker delayed a $1,000 a year teacher pay raise proposal in committee on a point of order.

Rep. A. C. Atwood, D-Edinburg, challenged consideration of the bill by the House Education Committee under a House rule which prohibits consideration of spending bills until the general appropriations bill is passed or until the 120th day of the session.

"We don't know what kind of tax program will be presented to the House," Atwood said. "Consequently, if this bill reaches the floor prior to the time we know how much money is to be available, we would in effect have to be writing a hot check to the teachers to pay for the raise."

Rep. George Hinson, D-Mineola, sponsor of the pay raise bill, said Atwood's move will delay consideration of the measure by the full House possibly as much as a week. It will be eligible for consideration next Wednesday.

"He's created a delay here that would be disastrous this session," Hinson said. "He's always voted against this kind of stuff though."

He said he doubted Atwood's move would endanger passage of the bill.

Guerrillas Attack Lebanese Army Base

By United Press International Syrian-backed guerrillas attacked a Lebanese army base today with mortars and small arms, Lebanese radio said. Lebanon's president proclaimed support for the Arab cause.

The commando raid on fellow Arabs began and went on through the night. Guerrillas were killed and at least five were injured in the clash, at Hasbaya, and at two other points nearby in South Lebanon, a Lebanese army communique said. Hasbaya is six miles from the Syrian border and ten miles north of the Israeli frontier.

The guerrillas also shelled the village of Kabr Neiha and mines blasted a column of Lebanese reinforcements moving along the road between Markaba and Tallouza, in the Hasbaya region.

The fighting was the latest violence over what commandos said was Lebanon's refusal to support the Arab guerrilla movement with deeds rather than words.

In Beirut, President Charles Helou told his countrymen in a nationwide broadcast that "we have been faithful to the Arab cause and will remain faithful."

High Lebanese army officers conferred on ways to curb the violence and frustration over the commandos but sources refused to reveal details of those talks.

Some progress was reported in talks between the Big Four over a Middle East settlement. A U.S. spokesman said after the latest Big Four session Tuesday that there had been movement toward agreement but he would not elaborate.

Israeli sources reported that the Soviet Union was ready to agree that Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands need not be the first step in such peace.

LBJ's Brother Writes Book

HONOLULU (UPI)—Sam H. Johnson, brother of Lyndon B. Johnson, says he's avoiding the former president while he puts the finishing touches on his book, "My Brother Lyndon."

"I'll tell things about Lyndon that I can tell, but he can't tell himself. Lyndon isn't too anxious to see the book," Sam Johnson said.

He said the book, which will be published in serial form by Look Magazine, was bought in advance by Cowles Communications Corp.

And Another Thing

By RUTH LEWIS

I wonder what a Special Education teacher does? I waved one down at Junior High Tuesday, having gone past that building trying to get across the street to reach the courthouse. She told me what her job is but, fortunately for her, we reached my destination before I had time for further questions. I suspect the answer would have been interesting.

Take a look at the plantings in front of the downtown Fire Department. Rosebushes are about to bloom and it looks as though they are American Beauty.

The Rev. Dan Cameron tells of a little boy who had just realized that he too could say no, as his parents had been doing all his short life. He began trying out the new-found knowledge.

"Grandmother," the boy would announce, going next door, "I WON'T DO IT!"

Do what? she would ask mildly.

He didn't know exactly, but anyway he WOULDNT.

This stage, I believe, is what child psychologists call the "negativistic period." But some of us become arrested in development right there, never outgrowing the habit.

Still, these people, aged anywhere from eight to 80, who are forever "agin" whatever most persons are for, do have their place. They provide a balance wheel and all societies need such.

Our family used to know a brilliant little 6-year old in Manhattan, Kan., who questioned everything. Once I was declaiming the deliciousness and healthfulness of buttermilk. The child broke in, "I just don't understand buttermilk; I think it's stupid!"

For him that settled that. Even some adults think everything they do not like is "stupid."

I have heard that a university student, probably a freshman wrote on a paper, "Sinclair Lewis was awarded the Nobel Prize."

It took the instructor quite awhile to decipher the hidden meaning but he did. And this column is offering the biggest lollipop in town to anyone here who can translate. (Remember, in decoding, that the sentence, as he saw it, is not even Tac-tually true. Not quite. When the meaning does dawn it will be amusing.)

There is a thing, you know, called an "audilism," i.e., a word or phrase learned by auditory means only. It often causes difficulty for persons who are non-readers. That is, those who read only when required to do so.

One does, after all, learn many things by simply hearing them. But learning is more accurate, and faster too. If both the eye and the ear agree.

Barber Favored In Texas Open
 SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A field that contained only a moderate amount of golf elites opens play today in the $100,000 Texas Open on the overhills fairways of Pecan Valley Country Club. Past-healing Miller Barber and local hero Lee Trevino rank as co-favorites to win.

Barber, Trevino and Bunky Henry are the only three members of golf's top money winning list who will tee up over Pecan Valley's par 36-35-71, 7,138-yard layout, meaning the eventual winner could well come from the depths of the unknown. Those depths have already produced six new champions this year—including Henry.

Pecan Valley came in from some criticism from many pros last year during the PGA event. Some felt that the layout was not fair to the long hitters, because they had to hit irons on a few of the narrow, par-4 holes. That could explain the non-appearance of such performers as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf.

Julius Boros, who won the PGA here last year, did not show up either, and joined top money winner Gene Littler, Billy Casper and Master's champion George Archer among the ranks of the missing.

Pro Football Future Cloudy

NEW YORK (UPI)—The future of pro football in the United States remained clouded today as the owners resumed their meetings in an attempt to find a suitable realignment for 1970.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle

huddled with the National Football League owners Wednesday before today's joint meeting with the American Football League owners opened.

Rozelle apparently had little success in trying to persuade three NFL owners to move their teams over to the AFL to create two 13-team divisions.

Our Capsule Policy

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Beleaguered Campuses

There has been much in the press these last few weeks about the riots and confrontations which have turned so many university campuses into battlegrounds. Historically, springtime has been a time for much gentler riots, largely kindled by collegians with an excess of adrenalin coursing through their veins. This was mischief only, a letting-off of steam. Certainly, there was no real malice underlying them.

How sad that what was once a sophomore rite has turned into sinister and malevolent actions in a dozen different places. In trying to spot the main differences between the present upheavals and earlier protests, one comes inevitably to the presence, in the case of Cornell University, of armed demonstrators. Though the group protested that they were armed against anticipated attack, no acceptable evidence has yet been furnished to document the claim.

It is difficult, at this distance, to understand why the Cornell administration gave way to the main demands of the rioters, not to mention its tacit acceptance of guns and ammunition as persuasive instruments. It is clear now that such permissiveness has been widely interpreted to mean that if a minority group wants to get its way, it has only to take up its weapons and scare its way into acceptance. Militants at

Battle Crime on Its Grounds

Crime is one of the major domestic problems of the nation, but like most other problems — pollution, traffic control, housing or whatever — it is not a crisis of equal proportions in every community. Although crime can and does occur everywhere, it is, essentially, a big-city problem. Critics are complaining that the government is ignoring this fact by adopting a scattergun approach in implementing the 1968 Safe Streets Act in the form of "block grants" to state governments. The funds should, it is argued, go directly to the cities where the problem is worst.

The money—$19 million for planning and $29 million for programs based on the planning in this fiscal year — does not start flowing until April, but one group already predicts that it will have no practical effect upon crime because it won't reach high-crime areas. The National League of Cities studied planning in 31 states and charges that: —The states have created a whole new level of bureaucracy. In 24 states

Now, 'War On Hunger'

The War on Poverty was — continues to be — a flop, but now we have the War on Hunger, which reminds us that consumption is another name for tuberculosis. We spent $2 billion a year under LBJ to get rid of poverty. Who got all the money? Nobody can expect the OEO to be the first to volunteer the answer, just because it was in charge of the cash, but darned, if it hasn't come clean on what happened to more than half a million, and would you believe it, the recipient was the National Student Association, formerly of the Central Intelligence Agency.

What the NSA was doing with OEO funds might be as mysterious to the average person as is $150,000 given the NSA to get students in Pennsylvania to do volunteer work for local anti-poverty programs, which the OEO said was "a failure," according to the April 2 National Review Bulletin. Another $440,000 in OEO funds was given the NSA "to encourage college students to one South Carolina college have already proceeded on that premise. Any student of history knows that the door to anarchy and revolution has very often been first pried open by students. Many of the Cornell faculty members who spoke out against the university's handling of the dissidents were, not surprisingly, professors of history and government. They know best the hard lessons of the past, and see violence for the dark threat it can become if it goes unchecked and unpunished.

Dr. Allan Bloom, a teacher of government, said that "those who make the revolution do not cease their demands with the accession to power," and warned that Cornell is in for difficult days. "The resemblance on all levels to the first stages of a totalitarian take over are almost unbelievable," Dr. Bloom observed.

The last few days have seen growing unrest and turmoil at high school level. It is not unlikely that much of the thrust of such disorders sprang from study of the permissiveness so widely visible on college campuses. President Nixon has expressed himself with clarity on the issue. He, along with the majority of Americans, feels that disorders, violently conceived, should be firmly and quickly dealt with. There can be no other answer.

there are a total of 211 regional crime-control bureaus. Ohio is cited as an outstanding bad example. That state has set up 15 regions to plan the fight against crime, with major cities merged with all other governmental units. Many State allocation formulas favor rural areas disproportionately. Some of the biggest cities are getting inconsequential sums — for instance, Nashville, $7,000; Tulsa, $12,000; Boston, $2,000. —The league foresees spending leaning heavily toward items like new patrol cars, while the recruitment of Negro policemen and making more efficient use of present forces or improving police-community relations will be ignored.

It is to be hoped that the critics are premature in their pessimism. The war against crime is too urgent a matter to be permitted to develop into another one of those Washington — statehouse pork barrels where everybody gets a little something but nobody gets as much as he needs.

volunteer to tutor poor children," according to the Bulletin, which commented almost $600,000 was "quite a lot of money to spend encouraging students to do volunteer work." But $500,000 or $600,000 is not very much out of billions, so what has happened to the rest of the OEO cash, and how fared the programs sponsored by it? The OEO is not doing much saying and it may turn out that the little — such as the NSA report — means strewn in the path of the OEO inquirers were meant to detract from the over-all report, commissioned and made by a private corporation for the government, but so far kept under seal by the OEO.

The report, if it ever is made public, is expected to be the most embarrassing thing that ever happened to OEO: Failure persist despite the sum and the sentiment expended. But "liberals" never change their theories, in spite of any proof of their error. Instead, they just change the name of the program and continue to dream that we can have

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

This is a continuation of the editorial of last week, quoting Gary Allen of AMERICAN OPINION Magazine on SIECUS, the "sex education" organization, and how its program is corrupting American youth and, ultimately, undermining American strength.

"SIECUS was born in Anaheim, Calif. public schools in 1965. The magazine TODAY'S HEALTH reports that in recent years venereal disease has increased 78 per cent in this country, and 123 per cent in California. In 1966, the year after SIECUS started in Orange County, Calif., 300 Orange County girls had to drop out of school because of pregnancy — 30 of them from junior high schools. The sexologists have found an 'answer' to this though; pregnant girls are now encouraged to stay in school. The Orange County Health Department says that venereal disease in the area is 'out of control.'"

"According to THE ANAHEIM BULLETIN editor, Sam Campbell, 'the premise that sex information is the pathway to morality... if pursued to its rational extremity, would elevate Sodom to the Puritan capital of the universe and substitute Paris for Jerusalem as the Holy City.'"

"A housewife recently wrote to a Phoenix newspaper: 'We just received our Nov. 6 issue of THE AMERICAN. I noted the article on the front page about sex education — which might better and more accurately be termed "obscenity education" in the Phoenix schools. We just moved from Phoenix — and for that reason. We have a 12-year-old son who was taught this smut last spring, and about nine weeks thereafter we had a near disaster in our home. I walked in and caught him sexually molesting our four-year-old daughter. He had been taught all about intercourse at school and wanted to "try it out" on his sister. (I caught him before he actually committed the act.)' "Recently a visitor to Palo Alto watched an 11-year-old girl unselfconsciously drawing on a blackboard a detailed sectional view of the male sex organs. On the wall of a senior classroom hung a montage, the homework assigned to a 17-year-old student, composed of the main contraceptive devices, each with a neatly typed card beneath explaining how it worked. A boy the same age read the class a paper he had written which summarized the psychological, legal and moral aspects of homosexuality."

Allen points out: "Some courses feature plastic human figures with interchangeable male and female sex organs, clay modeling sessions in which little children fashion the human phallus. Sexually integrated toilet facilities are in vogue to promote, as one sex fanatic puts it, the "celebration of sexuality."

"It seems that every 'expert' and sexologist associated with the SIECUS program rejects traditional Judeo-Christian concepts of sexual morality. Again and again we hear from its proponents that SIECUS maintains sex education 'must not be moral indoctrination,' and that 'it is not the job of SIECUS to make moral judgments: SIECUS can be neither for nor against premarital sex.' Many of us find it ironic that our youngsters can be given instructions in our schools on various positions for sexual intercourse — or, as McCALL'S noted, shown how to apply 'a contraceptive to a life-sized plastic phallus' — but a student saying a prayer in that same school would be violating the law."

Dirksen Outmatched In Patronage Play

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen is headed for a licking in his latest patronage squabble. William Hill Brown, 41-year-old Philadelphia Negro lawyer, will be confirmed by the Senate as a $36,000-a-year member of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, notwithstanding Dirksen's opposition.

The Nixon Administration not only has the votes to put over Brown, but is emphatically determined to do it, for several reasons: (1) The White House is thoroughly fed up with Dirksen's persistent highhanded blocking of important appointments. The inside word is the Administration is looking for an opportunity to publicly rebuff Dirksen, and his hostility to Brown opens the way for that.

(2) While Brown is a Republican, he has influential Democratic support. One of his leading backers is Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont. Also, the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee unanimously approved Brown's appointment; with Democratic committeemen joining the GOP in acclaiming it.

(3) Assistant Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., is Brown's principal sponsor. Joining Scott in that is Pennsylvania's other Republican senator, Richard Schweikert. Both are bluntly affirming their determination to put over Brown regardless of Dirksen's opposition.

Thus the Senate is witnessing the unusual spectacle of the GOP floor leader being openly fought by the assistant GOP floor leader — who in turn is fully supported by the White House and reinforced by potent Democratic backing.

As a consequence, all the cards appear to be stacked against Dirksen, and if he doesn't back down, he is headed for a stinging defeat.

The chances are the sonorous, gray-haired lawmaker will throw in the sponge. A face-saving stratagem to enable him to retreat is already in the works. Insiders are predicting that Dirksen, seeing the handwriting on the wall, will take the opportunity to drop his opposition to Brown.

THE LIFESAVER — Sen. Scott, noted for his astuteness, is utilizing Dirksen's own proclaimed reason for blocking Brown to provide the Senate Republican leader with a face-saving way to get off the hook. Dirksen claims he is against Brown because of needing a "better look at his appointment" — whatever that means. Senate insiders are saying the real reason is that the Illinoisan wants the $36,000-a-year job for a selection of his own. But Scott is adroitly taking Dirksen at his own word and has arranged for him to

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BFANSTADT

Sudden Drug Withdrawal May Cause Side Effects

Q—What are the effects of cortisone pills? Why must one discontinue them gradually? What are their side effects? A—All drugs of the cortisone group reduce the pain and swelling due to inflammation. When taken for a prolonged period they may cause moon face, hair on the face, acne, weakening of the bones, especially of the spine, and peptic ulcer. Sudden withdrawal of these drugs is likely to cause headache, loss of appetite and blurring of vision.

Q—Are prednisone and prednisolone the same as cortisone? A—Prednisone is a synthetic cortisone and prednisolone is a synthetic hydrocortisone. They all have similar action.

Q—Although you said in a recent column that cancer of the uterus is rare in women who are under 30, my doctor says he has seen cervical cancer in women who are under 20. Please comment. A—Recent studies have shown that uterine cancer, once thought to be rare in young women, occurs in about 125 of every 100,000 women who are between 15 and 30. It appears that being over 30 is not as important a cause as early sexual activity and early child-bearing. Every premarital examination should include a Pap smear.

Q—My daughter lives in South America. She wrote that she has amebiasis. What are the symptoms? Is it serious? Can it be cured? A—Most amebic infections start with vague abdominal cramps and loose stools. As the disease progresses there may be blood and mucus in the stools and the victim loses weight. In untreated cases, the chief danger is liver abscess. Fortunately, this complication is now rare because specific drugs that will cure the disease are available and well-known to physicians in tropical countries where the disease is common.

Q—How can we find a good family doctor — one who will make a thorough examination and give us a check-up when we're not sick? A—Since many general practitioners are overworked and must often treat you on the run, finding the type you are looking for may be difficult. Perhaps your best bet would be to have your local medical society give you the names of two or three internists who are known to provide this kind of service.

Roof Over Its Nest The weaverbird, found mainly in Africa, builds a roof over its nest and has been known to fashion a doorway leading to the nest.

HUNT FOR TRUTH

By H. L. HUNT

LOVE OF FREEDOM

Love of freedom is the extreme opposite of bitterness or hate. Love of freedom means that you have the highest respect for your fellow-man and want to give him every possible chance to make good in the world, to do whatever he most wants to do, to be what he wants to be and to live the kind of life he wants to live, so long as he injures no other person. Love of freedom is the most constructive attitude a person can have. That is why these columns have always stressed that the best name for Friends for Freedom is not "conservative" or "right-wingers" but Constructives. But if we are to earn the right to call ourselves and to be called Constructives, we must stress what we are for much more than what we are against.

Nothing is easier than being against all the forces in the world that work to destroy freedom, but to be against these forces is not enough. We must learn more about freedom and more about our country, why they are worth saving, why none of our lives would be worth anything in an enslaved land which had once been called free Republic USA. Apathy, ignorance and blind refusal to think are far greater enemies than any others which confront us. If America can be aroused now it can be saved for an aroused citizenry will find out and know how to save their country and their freedom. The enemies of freedom are not apathetic. Fellow-travelers are people who "want to get in on the act." They are deceived rather than uninformed. Ingenious Freedom-enthusiast could convert many of them. Converts are known for their zeal, and when imbued with accurate knowledge become valiant troops in the fight for freedom.

WASHINGTON: Teen Rebellion Next? SDS Infiltrating High Schools

By RAY CROMLEY Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Students for a Democratic Society is now moving into the high schools.

This loosely knit youth group, responsible for some of the most violent college riots of the past year, aims at adapting some of its more effective techniques for precollege youngsters.

SDS is writing operations pamphlets for the teen-agers. SDS college groups are sponsoring junior chapters in public schools near the campuses. THE SDS leaders are acting as advisors to help students develop effective attacks on high school principals, teachers and school regulations. They're giving advice on what techniques will cause the most disruption in the schools.

They are pushing the publication of teen-age underground newspapers on the high school campuses. One SDS pamphlet for the high school set reads in part: "Even such seemingly destructive actions as starting trash can fires and pulling fire alarms are actually forms of protest directed at the school as it is now constituted."

"Not only the defense of hair and clothing styles against administration attack, but the adoption of such styles themselves indicates a general disgust with the values and attitudes that our generation has been force-fed."

It's impossible to determine at this writing how successful the SDS recruiters will be on the high school campuses. But in this reporter's experience in Asia, the very young, when aroused, are much more violent than their elder brothers. Mao Tse-tung made heavy use of his high school and pre-high school youth in the Red Guard. The high school group is very violent in Japan.

In South Vietnam's turbulent period of antigovernment riot a few years back, the great bulk of the demonstrators frequently were youngsters from 8 to 17. Many were sub-teens. The oldest member of one very effective rioting group was 11, its spokesman 10. In North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have made widespread use of youngsters, 8 to 16. The adventure — and possession weapons — has appealed to them.

Castro in Cuba found very young boys extremely valuable — reckless in their enthusiasm, once indoctrinated very difficult to sway, and ready to die for what his men had taught them.

In a high school near my home sometime back, a group of many students participated a sitdown strike against an injustice. Students told their reporter later that they had joined in, even though they weren't sure what the strike was about, because they had sympathy for their fellow whatever the problem was. They found out later that the act of injustice being protested had never occurred.

"I say, we are about to away for a holiday," says a welfare mother. "Erasm! attenuate yourself. Gather our 16 youngsters and prepare them for the trip as we proceed northward with much haste."

"What didst thee say?" ejaculated Erasmus, "dost thou truly believe we may travel your countryside without rural amidst undue hardships?" "Do as I say, my worthy son. Get thee off to yond Welfare Union office and so ye socialistic chart which lists states offering the utmost remuneration for thine idleness. Dost thee know the Suprem Court hath proclaimed by law that welfare recipients may move about unrestricted residency requirements?"

"How didst thou come up with this data?" "Mrs. B. ambled over early morn. She received news via her large stereophones. We may collect checks all along wayside in each state we travel in our quest for higher sums. Away with thine now, whilst I accumulate thine 16 offspring and ensconce them in our new Caddy-lax."

"How long dost thee think the devine U.S. taxpayers will continue our welfare support?" "Oh, thine devine taxpay are too stupid to ever quit. Truly, I perceive they sh raise welfare stipends till we are boundlessly rewar with more lucre than they b for themselves."

Wit and Whimsy

George (a visiting Englishman to an American friend) — The increasing divorce rate is rapidly making America the land of the free, all right.

Harry (the American, a somewhat henpecked husband) — Yes, but the marriage rate is increasing too, showing that America is still the home of the brave.

Two small boys, aged 7 and 2, were waiting in line at an ice cream stand. The little brother was announcing loudly: Little Eddie — I want vanilla. I want vanilla.

The supply of vanilla had given out. Interested parents stood by to see how the 7-year-old would handle such a crisis. With finching, he ordered two strawberry cones and handed one to his little brother.

Young Johnny — Here you are, Pink vanilla.

The mod youth turned to his dinner companion and inquired in a bored tone. — Mr. Dobbs — Who is that odd-looking man across the table who keeps staring at me so intently? — Miss Davis — Oh, that's Doctor Brown. Haven't you read about him, the famous authority on insanity?

Pricing Ourselves Out Of World Markets?

By M. E. CRAVENS
(The Freeman)

Dr. Cravens is Professor of Agricultural Economics at Ohio State University.

Whether or not we're pricing ourselves out of world markets is a moot question. But there's no doubt that competition from foreign producers has intensified. We may hold an edge on quality, but foreign products often are cheaper. Auto manufacturers, for example, are re-evaluating their policies in an effort to meet competition. Like many other industries, they are building plants abroad and hiring foreign labor to produce for sale in other countries and also in the U.S. market. A number of U.S. industries are asking for increased tariff or quota protection against imports.

Foreign competition plagues agricultural as well as industrial producers. Currently, some 20 per cent of our agricultural exports are subsidized in some way. Some other countries also follow the practice; but it is ironic that the U.S. farmer, who is producing enough for himself and 40 other people, cannot compete with less productive farmers elsewhere. For instance, in cotton, the U.S. is now a net importer instead of an exporter; in tobacco, we have been losing ground rapidly in world markets since 1949.

Actually, the inability to compete in certain things is not necessarily a sign of lack of productivity in our economy. It happens all the time. For instance, in 1889 Ohio was the leading apple-producing state with 14 million bushels, and ranked fifth in the production of potatoes with 16 million bushels. Today, Ohio is eighth in apple production and sixteenth in potato production with about 3 million bushels of each—less than enough for its own use.

Shifts of Production

So it is with specific agricultural and nonagricultural products in other states and areas in the U.S. and among countries of the world. Shifts in production, no matter where in the world, occur in response to certain factors. The advantages of specialization and voluntary trade are world-wide.

As economies develop, as transportation systems improve, as demands change, the most profitable combination of resources in a given area may change. The land, labor, capital, and management are shifted to the use that will pay the highest return. This flexibility of adjustment to changing conditions is one of our major advantages. A market-oriented economy provides the mechanism to signal needed shifts.

Today, however, there is widespread belief that the government can and should do something to prevent these economic "laws" from working to the hardship of present businesses and employees. We are encouraged to reject the possibility that someone else can grow peanuts more efficiently than we can. Because peanuts was the most profitable crop for our grandfathers and our fathers and they made a living growing peanuts, we should be secure in the right to do this too!

In the past 30 years we have about convinced ourselves that we can "eat our cake and have it, too." In other words, that we can have foreign aid and foreign trade without foreign competition. Recent trade and payments problems have brought us face to face with the fact that the rules still apply to us.

Why Are Costs Higher?

If prices and costs are rising in the United States relative to those of our foreign competitors, how does this happen? Several reasons have been suggested. Labor leaders say profits are too high. Spokesmen for management say wages are too high, labor is unproductive, and taxes are too high. Some say that the rate of investment in new plants is too low. And each factor is likely to be so well satisfied with its own answer that it ignores the answer given by others.

In the world of business, it's not uncommon that a firm may find it is operating at a loss. There's no doubt that lack of profits in many domestic industries is a major problem. And the typical result is a reduction in operations and the laying off of laborers. The reason often given is that foreign competition has taken customers by offering products for lower prices.

On the other hand, the business firm that successfully sells much of its output abroad is likely to show profits higher than average for that industry. The fact that some business firms are losing money because of inability to compete in foreign markets, while others with above average profits can compete, suggests that high profits are not the basic cause of the inability to meet foreign competition. Since business profits are what is left over after meeting business costs, high profits in themselves mean only that the business is efficiently operated and competing successfully. Low profits mean the opposite.

Wage Levels

Wages in the United States have been higher for many decades than those in most countries. High-wage industries are our major exporters. This was true even before the United States had widespread unionization or minimum wage laws. The parents and grandparents of millions of us migrated here in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries partly because of attractive wages plus the fact that work was available for all at going wage rates. Let us hope for still higher wages in the future because this is a major indication of our level of productivity.

Regarding the productivity of labor, there appears to be no question that some so-called "featherbedding" and other labor inefficiency exists. This is a net drain on the real wages of the gainfully employed wage-earning worker, as well as on everyone else. The "featherbedding" worker receives wages, and has a claim on goods produced, yet produces little himself. However, a limited amount of featherbedding has existed for many years, and there is no evidence that it has increased enough in recent years to explain the increasing pressure of foreign competition.

Why are American workers more productive than most foreign workers? Why does one American farmer produce enough food for himself and 40 others while the Russian farmer produces enough for himself and only 5 others? Do American farmers work harder or longer or what? The higher output per man in the United States is due primarily to the use of more and better tools and equipment, the superior know-how and management ability of the American farmer and his greater freedom to make decisions. Nonfarm workers also have more and better tools. Business management is more skilled and has more freedom to make decisions in the United States than in Russia and most other foreign countries.

This dependence of labor productivity on the availability of modern tools and equipment and the funds to finance them poses another problem. Any policy, government or private, that prevents or discourages the purchase of new and improved tools also reduces the efficiency of labor.

Taxes and tax policies are probably the greatest governmental hindrance to the financing of new and better tools, although restrictions by licensing, franchising, and exchange control are also important. Taxes which bear most heavily on the growing and more efficient firms tend to penalize and discourage such efficiency. Inflation also creates special problems in retooling for firms that fail to allow for it.

In recent years taxes often have had a double-barreled effect. They not only have reduced the ability of individuals and business firms at home to finance new and improved equipment but also have been shunted as "foreign aid" to help the foreign competitor buy equipment. The result is that today the foreign competitor sometimes has a plant quite as modern as any in the United States, he pays a corporate tax rate lower than that of the U.S. business firm that helped finance him.

A major cause of inflation is the spending by the government in excess of its income and the resulting need for creating new money supplies. Inflation can stop only when voters quit expecting more services from the government than they are willing to pay for in taxes.

Our Competitors

Competition from foreign producers seems likely to increase. Our urge for protection and security leads to more and more intervention by government in the affairs of our farms and factories and family life. This intervention on behalf of the inefficient producer in agriculture and industry weakens our capacity to compete.

We are becoming increasingly prone to consider present prices or perhaps a bit higher than present prices, as the "just" or "fair" price. It follows that we consider the present producer as having a "right" to continue to produce. If either of these "rights" is challenged by a competitor, the inefficient producer is encouraged to look to the government for help instead of trying to find better ways to serve consumers.

Future pressures of foreign competition will depend in large measure on domestic policies concerning price supports, import quotas, tariffs, and other interventions; on other "welfare" measures of the government; and on the extent of inflation in the United States. High tariffs, high supports, market quotas, and other such practices may hide the problem for awhile, but will not solve it.

Is THAT Flight Being Hijacked?

The 'Other' Student

(Chicago Tribune)

"Youth" wrote Robert Louis Stevenson in 'Letter to a Young Gentleman,' "is wholly experimental." And so most members of the "over 30" generation must feel as they observe the ferment on the campus, the commitment to causes which they do not share, and the drive toward a formlessness somehow identified with change.

So it was—a heartening story which Patricia Krizim contributed to the Sunday Tribune—the story of unsung students who are trying to help to improve society within its existing framework. There were examples of constructive work from a dozen campuses. These young people have a better-use for their time than picketing, demonstrating, sitting in, or trying to promote revolution.

The range of their activities extended from volunteer work in mental hospitals, the rescue and relief of victims of a fire in a convalescent home and raising funds for the relief of starvation in Biafra, to community service, tutoring of children, and supervision of science clubs for children. Some student volunteers teach language classes to the deaf, conduct therapy for the handicapped, rebuild rundown playgrounds, and serve as missionaries in acquainting younger people with opportunities and financial aid in acquiring a college education.

During summer vacations students work with the poor in the depressed Appalachia region. There are student volunteers in orphanages and in children's wards in hospitals. Students of the Northwestern university medical school operate a volunteer clinic. Clothing drives are conducted for homeless children and funds are solicited for research into crippling diseases.

Both black and white students are contributing to such enterprises, and in number they undoubtedly exceed the handful of radicals who are dedicated to tearing down. A Southern Illinois university student said that students doing constructive work resent the image brought upon the majority by a few malcontents carrying banners and working out their energies in "protest."

"We have students who say there is a problem," James Hodi of Chicago remarked, "and we're going to do something about it. The demonstrators don't do anything to solve problems."

Responsibility is far from lost on the campus. It has always been there, and the rise of a noisy minority should not deceive us that it has ever departed. The development of counter-insurgency forces among students on many campuses shows that students are as restive as many parents and the public in general about movements to reduce the colleges to anarchy.

At Michigan State university more than 10,000 students signed a petition condemning intimidation, violence, and disruption. At Wichita State university a group called the Society for the Prevention of Assinine Student Movements (S.P.A.S.M.) has been formed to perform constructive tasks. At Purdue university a group of marines studying there organized a drive to collect 500 pints of blood for local hospitals. Instead of spending its money on a homecoming float, the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity at Vanderbilt university put a sign on the lawn of the chapter house saying the money would be used to help a state-supported hospital for the mentally retarded.

Much is said of the idealism of the younger generation. These are some manifestations of what it accomplishes when it is channeled into helpful work. We trust and hope that the disposition will grow.

Wage Realism

(Baltimore Sun)

Labor economics and its practitioners get more realistic all the time. We have just had two examples. An AFL-CIO statement from the annual convention of Bal Harbour complains of high industry profits, but not on the old naive ground that the bosses are getting fat at the expense of the wage-earners. The modern union complaint is that high profits generate too much investment; which acknowledges that the true role of profit is to supply much of the investment money on which economic growth depends.

Of course here is a corollary in economic realism which the labor economists do not always stress. One of the most powerful stimulants to new investment is the ever-increasing cost of wage. Some economists even argue that the major virtue of trade unionism is just this constant goad on imaginative employers to come up with new labor-saving equipment.

This, the economists says, is for the advantage of consumers in general, assuming, which is not always true, that labor and management allow machine-generated productivity gains to show in lower retail prices.

Another variation on this basic theme appears in recent testimony by the labor economist who has just become Mr. Nixon's secretary of labor. Explaining the other day why he was against new boosts in the minimum wage right now, Mr. Schultz said he wanted more information on the extent to which artificially high minimums kept unskilled workers out of jobs.

Employers are apt to shy from paying $2 for services worth $1.60. Here, too, they may buy a machine — perhaps an automatic elevator.

Wit And Whimsy

Two political job holders were discussing their plans for the future.

Ben — I'm going to leave this job soon and I want you to come with me. I know a place in Africa where there's a lot of gold just lying around waiting for someone to pick it up.

Bob — I knew there was a catch in it.

Ben — What's the catch?

Bob — You've got to bend over.

"As far as we know the U.S. is the only country that finds victory just as expensive as defeat."

A young Texan passed away and upon arriving at the gates of eternity, remarked "Gee, I never thought heaven would be this much like Texas."

John (the man at the gate sadly) — Son, this isn't heaven.

PORTUGAL

Enjoying The Last Laugh In Africa

By GEORGE SCHUYLER
(American Opinion)

Fifty years before their erstwhile protege, Christopher Columbus, "discovered" America, the Portuguese established their presence in West Africa; and, at the turn of the Sixteenth Century, they were a terror to the Asiatic bosses along the East African littoral who had for half a millennium been exploiting and selling the natives.

Today, after weathering five centuries of domination, envy, warfare, and derision of Africa's poverty, ignorance, weakness, and ineptitude, the much-maligned Portuguese are rapidly approaching Easy Street there. In the early centuries (like everybody else) they eked out a living and maintained their African presence by selling the most readily available product: slaves. Now they are the first coffee exporter in Africa (the third largest in the world), and a major marketer of diamonds. They have some of the largest hydroelectric schemes in Africa, tremendous mineral resources, gushing oil wells, and an African territory a third the size of the United States.

Living Higher

The Third World since its emergence has evil-wished the Portuguese empire, denigrated it, maligned it, conspired against it in the United Nations, invaded it with guerrilla mercenaries bankrolled indirectly by the Russian and Chinese Communists, and mobilized the vast propaganda machine of the "Liberal" West against it. The Portuguese have endured the psychological and military attacks, tolerated the defection and treason of their N.A.T.O. partners, rolled with the juridical punches of the black conspirators in the U.N., and are today living higher on the hog than all of their Third World detractors.

The politico-military lineup against Portuguese Africa has been formidable. Communist Holden Roberto's People's Movement for the Liberation of Angola launched the initial attack from the new Congo Republic eight years ago, hitting northern Angola on March 15th. The initial slaughter was terrific, an orgy of butchery and mutilation unprecedented in this side of the Iron Curtain, and using the innovation of sawmills in disposing of victims. The latter were not only white but colored farmers. A month later when your correspondent was in Luanda and toured the affected area, I saw hundreds of the impoverished refugees. They were of all colors, rich and poor.

As soon as Guinea's Sekou Toure celebrated his independence by giving Khrushchev his first foothold in Africa, and the brilliant Communists supplied quantities of tanks, anti-aircraft guns, and snow shovels, the African Independence Party of Portuguese Guinea and Cape Verde was born. Portuguese Guinea, sandwiched between Senegal and Guinea, seemed particularly vulnerable. The initial surprise attack swept a large area of country, and the Communists were jubilant, predicting early ousting and - or slaughter of the Portuguese. It didn't happen.

Guerrilla 'School'

Three years later the Mozambique Liberation Front was formed by the ex-Syracuse University professor. Eduardo Mondlane—well-oiled with contributions from the elite of the American Left. Eduardo set up headquarters in Dar-es-Salaam at a "school" — for "Mozambique refugees" financed by the Ford Foundation — where the curriculum consisted of courses in revolution and guerrilla warfare. The warriors are generally under the Afro-Asian People's Solidarity Organization (A.A.P.S.O.) headquarters in Cairo and dominated by the minions of Mao. Arms for the guerrillas are delivered through Zanzibar, and training and leadership are supplied by Chinese officers. No doubt their help will be needed as Mondlane opened a package containing a bomb early this year and disappeared. I do not know who was the world benefactor, but Eduardo Mondlane has been gathered to his fathers — via a vacuum cleaner.

The Red terrorists maintain two staging areas in Zambia, where Kenneth Kaunda, the "pacifist," is President. Several heavy infiltrations have been made through the Zambezi valley of Rhodesia and the Caprivi Strip of South-West Africa. These have been regularly attended by disaster. It will be noted that occupancy of the Caprivi Strip would threaten southern Angola as well as Botswana, and hence Rhodesia.

But the Portuguese were not born yesterday, and they have known Africa and the Africans intimately for five hundred years. Where younger and more cruel imperialists imposed white racism on the conquered blacks and insulted them with discriminatory practices which particularly offended people of position and education, the Portuguese pronounced and practiced interracialism from the Fifteenth Century. So after Roberto's and Mondlane's failure to penetrate Angola and Mozambique, the Portuguese redoubled their social work in border areas, put up model villages to replace those bombed during the warfare, bought off venal rebel leaders, and soon had things back to normal. All can vote, schools have been greatly increased, and universities have been established.

So, while racism soars everywhere else in the continent, it declines toward nadir in Portuguese Africa. This reporter has traveled 5,000 miles in the two big departments, and if there had been any manifestations of racism, he would have detected it.

Today, those who evil-wished Portugal are grinding their molars to the quick over her new African prosperity. Offshore discoveries, spouting wells, and a busy refinery in Angola's Cabinda area are now producing 20,000 to 25,000 barrels daily.

This sulphur-free oil will be increasingly in great demand as delivery of oil from the Middle East grows more uncertain because of politics. Production will be 150,000 barrels daily by 1970. As Robert F. Ward of Cabinda Gulf says: "This represents one of the major growth areas in the corporation." No wonder Texaco is trying to get in on the action.

Diamonds totaling 1,268,140.45 carats showed an annual increase of 9.7 per cent. Geologists report that the Cassinga district in southern Angola is so rich in top grade iron ore (with reserves of 123 million tons) that it bids fair to become one of the world's major producing areas. The Benguela fishing industry is one of the world's biggest.

At Cahora-Bassa on the Zambezi in Mozambique a huge dam is being built which will establish a hydrographic basin covering an area of 1,300,000 kilometers — a bigger project than Aswan. The Cuena River project along Angola's South-West African border is almost equally promising with possibilities of settling 500,000 inhabitants, thanks to irrigation and giant power. Labor is sharing in this new prosperity, with improved housing and plentiful food. Volkswagens (dubbed "Hitler's Revenge" in Portuguese Africa) scamper all over the place, and all major U.S. automobile companies have agencies.

With prosperity busting out all over and the highest African wage rates outside South Africa and the copper districts, long-maligned Portugal is having the last laugh.

How Much Is Enough?

(The Wall Street Journal)

In 1944, a group of well-meaning economists and statesmen assembled at Bretton Woods, N.H. to assure world monetary stability for all time. What they did instead was to usher in a quarter-century of seemingly incessant money crises.

A prime error of the Bretton Woods conferees, it should be clear by now was to confuse stability with almost total rigidity. Oh they agreed that exchange rates could move all right, but the setup insured that the changes would be sudden, sharp, and to many observers would look cataclysmic.

So it is now that French President Charles de Gaulle insists that the rigid value of the franc will be defended "firmly." No national leader and certainly not the imperious general, enjoys the prospect of plunging his country into even seeming cataclysms.

At the moment it appears that France may be able to avoid devaluation at least for a time. Yet if many workers defy the French leader and finally manage to win big pay increases through a prolonged strike, the value of the franc probably will have to be cut.

It and when that point arrives, France will face the same question that confronts a nation considering devaluation under the present system: How much of a cut will be enough?

The answer naturally depends to some extent on the reactions of other nations. If France devalues by 15 per cent, and all other major countries devalue by precisely the same figure, France will be no better and no worse off than before; everyone will be back where he started. So a country that decides to devalue has to try to pick a figure that it can, in effect, get away with.

If France were allowed to devalue on its own, its exports would be relatively cheaper in world markets and its imports would be more expensive. Other nations will never be exactly enthusiastic about allowing France thus arbitrarily to turn the terms of trade in its favor.

The question of "how much," however, involves more than what other countries will sit still for. Though the fact has been to some extent obscured by 25 years of devotion to exchange rigidity, the foreign exchange market still is a market like any other market; the forces of supply and demand continue to operate. Market forces, moreover, are difficult for anyone to outguess. It's quite possible that France would settle on a devaluation of, say, 14 per cent—and then find that the franc at its new level was still overvalued. The upshot would be that Frenchmen and other holders of francs would continue to try to unload them for marks dollars or gold bars.

Should that happen, the franc probably could be held at its new level—even as it is at the present one—by an assemblage of controls alone, special credits and the like. The longer that nations try to preserve exchange rigidity where no true stability exists, the more cluttered and cumbersome international financial relations will become.

What's the way out? Well, if France the U.S., Britain or any other country wants to avoid crises of confidence in its currency it has to demonstrate that there are no reasons for such loss of confidence. To state this ought to be obvious, it has to pursue a policy of responsible domestic finance.

Even the most circumspect financial policies though, won't prevent a rigidly fixed rate from coming under either upward or downward pressures at times; markets just happen to work that way. These pressures can be handled either by resort to some of the same old manipulative measures—or by injecting somewhat more flexibility in the system.

The latter course appeals to us. If a country is keeping domestic inflation in check, the pressures on its currency should not have to be either great or long-lasting. Modest day-to-day fluctuations in exchange rates would add some new uncertainty to international trade but traders could adjust to it more easily than they can to the present predilection for controls and the recurring fear of massive devaluations.

Western nations have endured a great deal as a result of inflexible insistence on rigid exchange rates. The question is: When will they decide they've endured enough?

And I Quote

LOYALTON, CALIF., BOOSTER: "Welfare costs to taxpayers could be drastically reduced, some quarters claim, if names of those who receive public charity were made public. The thought behind that is that some would be ashamed to have it known they were feeding at the public trough at the expense of their neighbors."

You, Your Child and School

Education Today
By FREDERICK H. TREESH
UPI Senior Editor

Summer education for high school students designed not for grades or credit but for intellectual experience, is a fast-growing part of the American educational spectrum.

It is estimated that at least 30,000 youngsters will go abroad this summer in overseas study programs.

Untold thousands of others will participate in enrichment programs at home—many of them on the campuses of prep schools or universities; the majority under the auspices of their own high schools.

Joseph Curry, director of the summer program at Mount Hermon school which offers students nine different summer abroad programs, thinks students participating in them should be "taught the language, talk only the language and live in the language" of the country in which they are studying.

The overseas programs conducted by Mount Hermon, a prep school at Mount Hermon, Mass., require a three-week stay by the student in a family home in the country he visits. Believing a student of 15 to 18 years of age still is young enough to really become a part of the host family, Curry describes the experience as "the most significant thing we do."

Curry expresses concern that parents helping their children select a summer abroad program don't know what questions to ask—and, in fact, may not know what it is vital to ask questions.

He thinks these should be among the key ones:

—Does the program offer a period in this country in which the basic culture and language of the host country are taught?

—How is the faculty selected? he says—some programs are staffed by teachers who know little of the language and culture of the country to be visited. Some are selected as a payoff for recruiting a number of student junketers.

—Is a payment of $100 or $200 required with the application? This, Curry says, is a tip off that the company is travel industry-oriented and possibly not motivated to emphasize the intellectual aspects of a summer overseas.

Angry Solon Rips Students, Campus Riots

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An angry congressman reacting to campus riots told a hearing into student unrest today that "the Fascists are crawling out from under their rocks."

Rep. Dan H. Kuykendall, R-Tenn., asked a House special subcommittee on education "could a more dangerous situation exist anywhere in the United States?"

His comments were prepared for testimony as hearings before Chairman Edith Green's subcommittee resumed. The Oregon Democrat planned to hear from congressmen and the presidents of Harvard and the University of Michigan.

Kuykendall, a Memphis businessman, has introduced a bill to cut off all federal aid to a school where riots have occurred and to withhold such aid until the college restores order and prosecutes the rioters.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Regretably, the Pulitzer Prizes announced this week did not include an award for journalistic prescience.

Had there been such a category, I feel certain the judges would have given me at least an honorable mention for the accuracy of a prediction I made more than two years ago. It was based on some testimony presented at a congressional hearing on the supersonic transport plane. Supporters of the project were attempting to allay concern over possible damage from sonic booms the SST would create during overland flights.

SST Opponents
They gave me the impression that SST opponents mainly consisted of a few cranks and soreheads who objected to having their composure, if not their eardrums, shattered by man-made thunderclaps.

Indeed, they discounted the menace to such an extent that I predicted someone eventually would discover that sonic booms were good for us. And now it has happened.

H. H. Wiggins Jr., a geophysicist who conducted a government-sponsored study, recently reported that occasional mild sonic booms "slow down deterioration and aging of houses."

He theorize that the shaking a house receives from a sonic boom prevents structural defects from developing by relieving accumulated stress.

Heartened by having my prediction borne out by Wiggins, I shall now venture another prognostication. As I crystal ball it, future studies will show that sonic booms also slow down deterioration and aging of people.

Accumulates Stress
Look at it this way: the stress that a house accumulates is really nothing compared to the stress that the owner of the house accumulates.

I've got structural defects all over my anatomy, thanks to the stresses of owning a house.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The main factor prompting the current market rally seems to be the lack of evidence that economic restraints are taking hold, Shearson, Hammill notes.

Some consolidation of recent gains could well be expected at this point, according to E. F. Hutton & Co. Another broad gain or two would carry the market "into a short term technically overbought condition and make a consolidation even more logical."

The Family Lawyer

"I thought it was a deer"..... Thousands of times during the average hunting season, a bullet meant for an animal strikes a human being instead.

A long term position in the market should continue to reflect "the inevitable impact of monetary restraint," Bache & Co. says.

WHITE HOUSE call is made daily by Dr. Walter R. Tkach, who is the President's physician.

The victim later filed suit for damages, and a court upheld his claim. The judge said: "The care required of a person increases with any increase in the likelihood of harmful consequences to others if adequate care is not used."

Thus, a hunter was sent to prison for manslaughter after he shot down a companion crouching in high grass.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — People who have been out of college a good number of years probably know someone like my friend Alfalfa Romero.

Romero was reading a newspaper the other day when he suddenly leaped to his feet and clapped his hands over his head in the manner of a cheerleader.

"Let's hear it for the University of Wisconsin!" he cried. "Hip, hip, hooray!"

"What's this all about, Alfie?" I said. "Why did you lift your voice in a gladsome halloo?"

Expresses Gratitude

"I'm expressing my gratitude to the Wisconsin students who have been rioting this week," he replied.

The statement left me aghast. Romero was about the last person I would expect to approve of student rioting.

"I didn't say I approved," he retorted. "I said I was grateful. Those Wisconsin rioters have made me feel almost young again."

"Could you clarify that a bit, please?"

"Be glad to. Ever since this wave of campus demonstrations started, I have had the feeling that I was hopelessly stranded on the far side of the Pentagon gap.

"I was unable to relate to any of the issues raised by the students. They all seemed irrelevant to me. Now, at last, I have developed a sense of identification."

Real Nitty Gritty

"At Wisconsin, the students are demonstrating for the right to hold a street dance. That is what I call getting down to the real nitty gritty."

I said, "Do you mean to tell me that you regard a street dance as a more pertinent issue than the academic and administrative problems besetting our institutions of higher learning?"

"Well, at least it's more understandable. I can understand students wanting to stage a block party. What I can't understand is students wanting to run a university."

"If anybody had tried to saddle me with running the university when I was a student, I would have protested against it. I had enough trouble learning how to jiggerbug."

I said, "The Wisconsin students obviously have given you a touch of nostalgia."

Larry Sloan Seaman's Parents Receive Thanks From Captain

The parents of former Pampan Larry Sloan, 19, have received a letter from Capt. J. R. Ward, the boy's commander at Fleet Air Wing Three in Brunswick, Spain.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Sloan, Jr. were told by Capt. Ward that Seaman First Class Sloan was doing an outstanding job for his base and was the only member of the staff to accompany the commander to Rota, Spain for a conference.

Sloan's wife is Ellen Sloan of Freeport, Maine and his grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Sloan Sr., Route 1, Pampa and Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Brannon, 2541 Christine.

In his letter Commander Ward pointed out that seaman Sloan was assigned to the Logistics Division, which is responsible for monitoring the aircraft maintenance efforts of the squadrons.

He also maintains the technical library to ensure that all changes in maintenance procedures are expeditiously incorporated into the Navy publications.

Pampa Pastor Talks on Rebels

By RUTH LEWIS
EDITOR'S NOTE — The following interview with the Rev. Dan Cameron is the follow-up of a sermon preached last Sunday and heard via radio. The topic was so pertinent to today's world conditions that it was considered of interest to readers generally.

There are two kinds of rebels, good and bad.

Starting with that thesis, the Rev. Dan Cameron of First Baptist Church turned his attention recently to rebellion that is taking place throughout America and the world.

Rebellion in itself is not bad, the Pampa pastor noted.

"Some people think the very word is to be feared," said the clergyman. "But, man was created for defiance. If we lose our independence we surrender our creativity as men."

Even in children this spirit of defiance and assertiveness is found, said Cameron. Copernicus refused to believe that the world was flat, a belief that in his time was general. He was a scientific rebel.

Martin Luther, a religious rebel, asserted and defended the thesis that the Established Church had no authority to sell indulgences to members.

"Through rebels like these the world has been blessed," said the minister.

Cameron pointed out that George Washington himself rebelled against a foreign authority and led his nation to victory against a foe that threatened freedom.

"In today's world we have reached an age of extremism, in which we are asked to make a choice between stuffy resignation and violent revolution." No middle ground; just an either-or thing. Today's rebels are rebels without a cause. They are bored, beaten, defiant. They live in a state of negativism, forever in the objective case."

The revolt of youth today produces nothing, said Cameron. Generations ago youth rebelled, yes, then settled down. "Now we have nothing to settle down to," it was noted.

"First they were rebels without a cause, such as the late James Dean. Now they are rebels without a chart, knowing neither where they are going nor why."

The Rev. Cameron pointed out that this phase can be seen in today's art, literature and music. He mentioned an exhibit of modern art with its scrambled figures and crazy angles. Two youths looked the show over for a few minutes, then one said urgently, "Boy, let's get out of here before they say we did it!"

All this leads to being rebels without a creed, the minister added. "The spirit of rebellion has become demonic. And the eventual end of such a spirit is pointed out in the Book of Romans where it is said, "They did not like to retain God in their knowledge" and they were lost.

In the theological field a new spirit of rebellion is needed, the Baptist minister believes; "Rebels with a Cross."

Jesus was just such a rebel, Cameron notes. He was a radical, which means going to the roots. He did just that. No shortcuts to peace and good will to men exist, said Cameron.

"We cannot get non-Christians to live as Christians." Our business is to preach change from within, not without, as the "social gospel" would have us do.

Satan has been called the "great counterfeiter" and many persons today have been deceived into belief that a Christ, with no redemptive

Utopia can be achieved without process in the individual.

"If we don't cooperate in this we are called un-Christian, but there is no Utopia here apart from Christ," the pastor noted.

The Rev. Cameron has been pastor of Pampa First Baptist Church for the past two and one-half years.

He came here from Fort Smith, Ark. and prior to that assignment was pastor at Borger.

"I've been in the ministry 25 years," he says, "that is, since age nineteen."
