DEMOS DRAFTING PLATFORM; LAUREL BRANCH IS HELD OUT

WOODWARD URGES ALL TO ASSIST

GOP Silent Early in Afternoon; Meet In Angelo

GALVESTON, Sept. 9. (P).—D. W. Wilcox, Georgetown, chairman of the outgoing executive committee, called the state democratic convention to order at 11 o'clock this morning to draw up the platform and conduct the formality of nominating Ross S. Sterling, Houston, and other successful democratic primary contestants.

Sterling, Governor Moody, and United States Senators Connally and Sheppard were among the prominent active democrats attending.

Early indications presaged no contests, leaders believing a harmony meeting was inevitable.

Senator T. J. Holbrook, Galveston, welcomed the delegates. Senator Walter C. Woodward, temporary chairman, was chosen to deliver the keynote address and Murphy Townsend, Dallas, was the choice for permanent chairman.

Offers Olive Branch

GALVESTON, Sept. 9. (UP).—Senator Woodward, keynoter of the democratic convention in session here today, offered the symbolic olive branch in an address that pleaded for party peace and reconciliation with the Fergusonites.

The address also scored republicanism, "which is the rule of an aristocracy rather than a democracy of men. We come not to create strife or confusion but to remind those who followed the banner of a defeated candidate that though they were honest in their convictions, they were misled and misguided by false propaganda and deceitful promises. I would be happy if the great democracy of Texas would again become reunited and we could forget an unhappy past. For years we have enjoyed an era of governmental honesty."

Hits Tariff

"We are not in sympathy with the outrageous republican instrument of greed, the Hawley-Smoot tariff. We protest encroachments of the federal government into matters ordinarily reserved for the state."

Woodward pledged the best efforts of Sterling to working out a fair method of refunding counties a just proportion on money being expended on state highways and by which future highways are to be paid by users of highways and federal aid, seeing that no obligation shall rest as a lien upon the farms and homes of people.

No Issues Anywhere

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. (P).—Maine yesterday approved of the Hoover regime, the republicans being solidly victorious over the democrats for governor, United States senator and congressmen. This was the only final election this week.

Maryland's primaries were largely formality yesterday, issues lacking, interest small and the vote the lightest in years.

Eight states were holding primaries today. Louisiana's bitter democratic primary was pitting Governor Huey P. Long against Senator Ransdell for Ransdell's place.

Arizona's republican Governor Phillips was unopposed for renomination, but George Hunt, Arizona's democratic governor almost continuously from statehood to 1928, (See DEMOCRATS page 8)

CHAMBER MOVES TO HALL SENTENCED;

KEEP TRAFFIC COMING

Directors of the Midland chamber of commerce Monday night voted to pay $10 a year for erection and maintenance of a sign, which several chambers of commerce will co-operate in building at a point west of Albany. This is calculated to hold Carlsbad cavern traffic on the Bankhead highway through Midland. Ground for the sign will be leased for 10 years. The sign will set for the advantages of the route through Midland to the cavern.

The directors endorsed the proposed appointment of H. L. Birney of El Paso on motion of J. E. Hill for membership on the state highway commission. Birney was the first president and one of the organizers of the Broadway of America Highway association, and is known as a state authority on good roads.

The road sign committee composed of Marion F. Peters, Marion M. Seymour and Claude O. Crane, was authorized to take action on authorizing an improvement for the 24 road signs ordered by the chamber of commerce. Reports were made on street signs, railway communications, successful fight for Midland's common point rights, and other work done.

Directors present were: Ralph M. Barron, James Noland, J. E. Hill, M. M. Seymour, W. Edward Lee, M. F. Peters, Jack Hazlettine, and K. E. Ambrose.

Others present at the meeting were V. E. Jackson, Spencer Jewell, J. J. Kirby and Bob Martin.

Louis Doyle was to have been tried this morning, but the state announced it was not ready.

Hall pled guilty to having attempted to pass a check he said Curry had forged.

Thirty-three prospective jurors were examined before the jury was completed for the case. The jury follows: A. J. Florey Jr., Fred Barron, W. F. Hejl, W. D. Godby, B. G. Grafe, W. H. Need, E. I. Head, J. D. Bartlett, A. F. McKee, W. A. Eason, G. N. Donovan and Paul Rountree.

BULLDOGS VS. AUSTIN THAT DAY

Ticket Buying Urged At Once; Need 150 To Make Trip

Operation of a special train to El Paso account of the Midland High School football game with Austin high school of El Paso Sept. 27, will be sponsored by the Midland chamber of commerce.

Directors voted at the regular meeting Monday night to sponsor the trip on motion made by W. Edward Lee and seconded by Bob Hill. On suggestion of Hill it was decided not to stage a high pressure ticket sales campaign, and this idea was approved by Superintendent W. W. Lackey.

Tickets for the Midland-El Paso game special train are $6.15 for the round trip. The train will leave Saturday morning, Sept. 27 at 5 a. m. and arrive in El Paso at 12:15 p. m.

The Midland special will leave El Paso for the return to Midland at 1 p. m. Sunday, arriving in Midland at 8:50 p. m. This schedule obviates the payment of a Pullman fare, and allows two full half days and one night in El Paso. The schedule is arranged for a 15-minute parade in Pecos and a 15-minute parade in Odessa on the return journey.

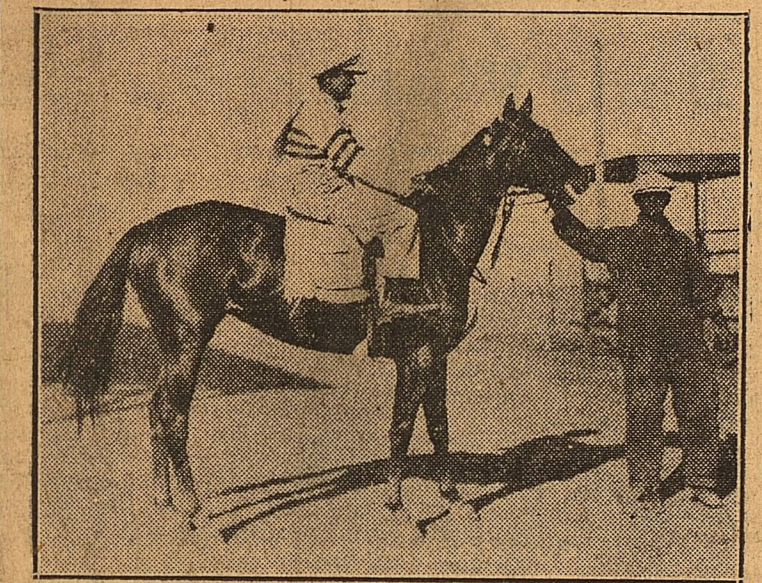

The special train will be operated for school boys and girls, Bulldog fans, school patrons and those interested in the Midland football team. Those who expect to stage "parties" on the train, or do any liquor drinking whatever aboard the train will be unwelcome, and are asked not to buy tickets, it was said. What they do in El Paso is their own business, but they will be expected to respect the school boys and girls on the train, and special officers aboard the train will ask any who might be thoughtless enough to not consider the young boys and girls must leave the train, it was further said. In other words, this special is to boost the Bulldogs, modestly advertise Midland, give Midland people an opportunity to take advantage of a low priced excursion to El Paso, and give Midland people a chance for a good time.

Supt. Lackey is this week taking the matter up in the schools to get the reaction of students as to whether they will buy the tickets. He and the board point to it to parents that the special train is too big a matter for them to assume responsibility, and the chamber of commerce, of course, can assume none. Hence, parents who give consent for their sons and daughters to go must either chaperone them, arrange for some friend or teacher to chaperone them, or make other arrangements for which they take full responsibility. No organization could well assume authority over 150 boys and girls in a large city for an overnight stop, it was further said.

The chamber of commerce opens its ticket sales today. If people do not get behind the movement, there will be no special train run.

The ticket sales are voluntary. No one will be "high pressured." If the people want the tickets and want the train, they must buy the tickets at once, so the railway company can be notified. Purchasers are safe. Receipts will be issued for each ticket bought at $6.15. Tickets can be bought now from the chamber of commerce. All school children must have written consent of parents and must have the agreement of Superintendent Lackey. It is necessary to sell 150 tickets in advance (See SPECIAL TRAIN page 8)

Sheppard was viewed by the jury in his cell today after testimony had been presented.

OIL MEN FLOCK HERE BECAUSE OF 2 WILDCAT WELLS

Activities of the two feature wells of the Permian Basin within the past few days have brought hundreds of oil men to Midland, and hotels and cafes today assumed the "boom" aspect of two years ago.

Although reports on the northern Ector wildcat producer, the Southern Crude No. A-1 Cowden, ranged from water in the hole to more oil, the latter report was verified at noon by Chunky Cowden who had just come in with news of more frequent flows. He estimated that the well is good for approximately 1,000 barrels as it stands. The hole had been deepened to below 4,220, with plans for going to 4,260.

No change was reported in the Fuhrman Petroleum Corporation No. 1 W. T. Ford, southern Andrews county gasser, decision having been announced to run pipe to shut off gas pressure so that drilling could be resumed from the 4,155 foot level.

Dealers Asked to Chamber Meeting

Every retailer in Midland is invited to the meeting Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock to arrange the next goodwill excursion, discuss the special train to El Paso, allot space in the County Fair exhibit booth and attend to other business that may come up.

Details of the bus trip, which is startlingly low priced, will be given at the meeting.

Chairman R. D. Scruggs of the chamber of commerce auto and retailers committee, is asking every member, and all other retail dealers to attend the 30-minute session in the chamber of commerce office.

ACTION FOLLOWS ON ROAD PLAN REFUSAL

City Dads to Take Such Steps as Necessary To Petition for Division According to Population

Following hard upon the heels of the refusal of the county commissioners court to accept a city proposed plan for constructing a 20-foot concrete road through Midland from the east to west limits, the city council at noon voted to authorize the mayor and city attorney to take such steps as might be available and necessary to re-district Midland county into precincts cornering more on the center of population.

Action followed the explanation of the proposed road plan by the mayor and the giving of the results of voting of the commissioners, voting that unanimously went on record as being against the plan.

It was shown that representation in the commissioners court is not on an equal population basis, that the minority of population, in proportion, is represented to excess and that the majority is not able to get sufficient support in the court.

Tells of Procedure

The mayor had gone before the commissioners with a plan for the county and city to pay 37 1-2 per cent each of the total cost for the proposed construction, estimated at $50,000. With the state aid money taking care of the other 25 per cent, the property owner would not be required to assume any of the burden. He further made the provision that the county would not be bound to the agreement if the cost should exceed $50,000. The recommendation of the court that the road be re-conditioned and that curbs be built is impracticable from an engineering standpoint, the mayor said he had been assured by state and consulting engineers. This would cost $17,000 and would offer an inadequate remedy for the situation, he said.

The greater per cent of the population is centered in Midland, the Mayor said, further stating he had told the commissioners court that for years the city has paid road taxes without getting proportionate benefit from them. The court replied that the farmer spends his money in Midland and that, therefore, the city gets most of the advantage from its road tax money.

No Counter Move

"The court made the city no counter proposition," the mayor said, "and I do not deem it expedient to go before the court again with the proposal."

"Here is my suggestion: I believe I would not be justified in going before the court to ask for another hearing. The city represents from seventy-five to eighty per cent of the population of the county, and yet the city has only one representative of the four that make up the court."

"I propose that the city proper, since it is not adequately represented in the commissioners court, and for the city's benefit, without disregard for the interests of the county, the city should feel that responsibility rests upon its shoulders and that the steps should be taken to re-district the county so that the entire citizenship shall more centrally be represented."

No 'Unfairness'

"I am not saying that the commissioners are unfair; but, as the county is now districted, there are too many interests of their own precincts to properly administer to the needs of the majority that live in the city of Midland."

"This may sound radical for a city council to take up," the mayor said.

Here he was interrupted by serving (See RE-DISTRICT page 8)

'42' AFFILIATION FATAL TO GANG HOODLUM TODAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 9. (UP).—Peter Nicastro, gangster, was shot four times through the head and tossed from a speeding auto into the street at the center of the west side gang stronghold early today. Powder burns and scratches indicated that the victim had fought with his assassins. Police said he was a member of the notorious "42" gang.

Rotary Governor To Arrive Today

Ray H. Nichols, Vernon newspaper publisher and district governor of Rotary International, will arrive here this afternoon from Big Spring, accompanied by Malcolm Meek who met him there, and will spend two days in Midland. On Wednesday evening he will confer with committee chairman and directors of the local Rotary club, and on Thursday will make his official visit to the club.

Staff Writer Here On His Vacation

Byron C. Utecht, staff writer for a Fort Worth newspaper, found Midland county had suffered less considerably from the drought of a few weeks back than many West Texas and Southwest Texas counties, he said while on a visit here Thursday.

Utecht was on his vacation, and was not writing a "single line of copy."

SANTO DOMINGO'S CURSE

It sometimes seems as if an unkind providence had decreed that the sunlit regions about the Caribbean sea should be the permanent home of turmoil and disaster.

This is especially true of the island that the Spanish adventurers called Hispaniola—the island which is the home of the Dominican Republic. From the moment of its discovery to the present day it has had a turbulent history, and misery and desolation have been visited on its people times without number. The hurricane is only the latest in a long list of catastrophes.

Perhaps the earliest Spanish conquerors began it when they systematically exterminated the native inhabitants and replaced them with ruthless blacks, dragged from their homes in Africa by slave-traders. Before the white men came Hispaniola was probably peaceful, save for an occasional hurricane. But Columbus' arrival seems to have signaled the beginning of a new era—an era in which battle, murder and sudden death were to be regular, anticipated events in the lives of the islanders.

St. Francis Drake swooped down on Santo Domingo once, took the city by dint of hard fighting and looted it of all valuables that the retreating inhabitants had forgotten to take with them. Other pirates followed; indeed, Hispaniola was the very center of the buccaners' stamping ground for nearly two centuries.

The island passed from Spanish rule to French; and in the last decade of the 18th century some faint echoes of the French revolution hit a responsive chord in the breasts of the islanders and they rose to massacre the whites, carrying through the job with thoroughgoing savagery. There were wars and rumors of wars; Spain took charge once more and was ousted by a successful civil war; an army came over the mountains from Haiti to lay waste and despoil the land around Santo Domingo; peace was established and a dreary succession of minor civil wars followed, punctuated with sporadic murders and culminating in an unusually bloody uprising that finally brought the United States marines to the scene, bringing law and order on the burning points of their sharpened bayonets.

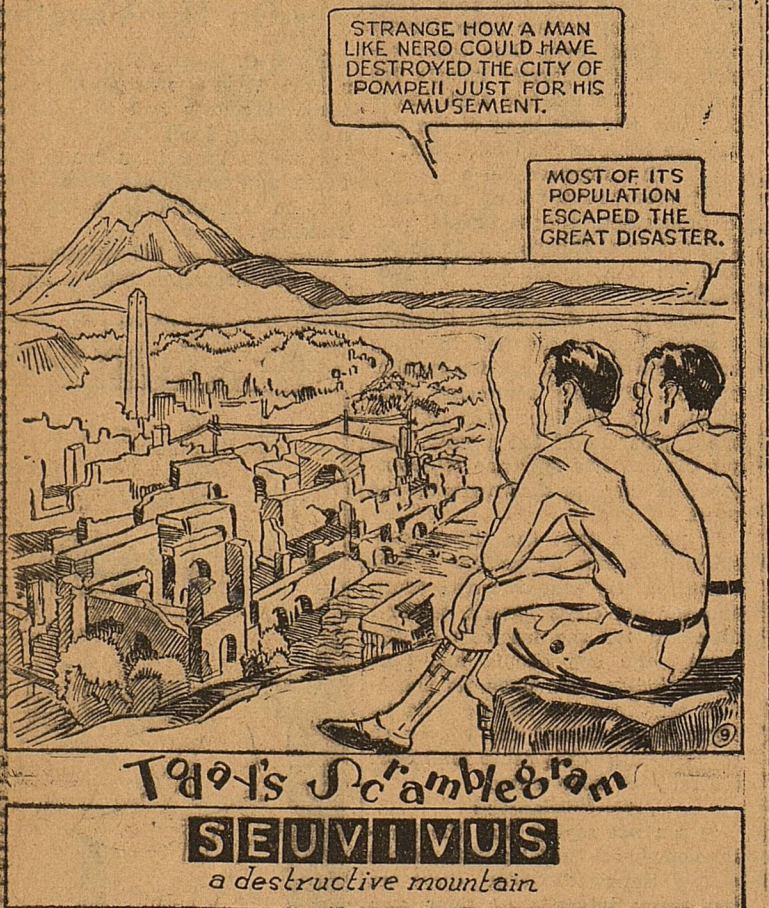

And now, as a final period to this long tale of trouble, comes the hurricane—suddenest and sharpest blow of all, with the ancient city of Santo Domingo nearly destroyed, and with hundreds of people struck dead in an hour's time.

There is little that one can say about the hurricane. It is the embodiment of the threat and perpetually hangs over the West Indies; the final curse that lies perpetually in wait for the people who live about the lovely Caribbean; the last chapter in a story of disasters.

Value of the Run-Off Primary Indicated in Various States—Candidates Who "Lead the Field" Are Not Always Elected

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A very few states provide for run-off primaries, but the large majority of them do not. Recent political news appears to demonstrate the frequent value of the run-off as a method of most accurately attaining the desires of the voters.

Texas, South Carolina and Oklahoma are going in for run-offs this year. Texas and Oklahoma have had theirs.

Other states find themselves with duly nominated candidates who probably could not have received the primary votes of the voters of their party in any straight-out two-man contest.

The Case of Blease

Here is how the run-off system has worked in a few states: In a three-cornered primary fight the other day Senator Cole Blease had a plurality, but no majority. In most states that would have meant Blease's nomination. But under South Carolina law Blease must now fight it off in a run-off with his nearest opponent, former Congressman James F. Byrnes. The other candidate, who ran far behind both, was a vigorous anti-Blease man named Leon W. Harris. The combined Byrnes-Harris vote exceeded the Blease vote by a comfortable majority. Now the South Carolina voters will have an unhampered chance to decide between the two leading candidates.

In one of those grand Texas free-for-all primaries with 10 candidates for governor Ma Ferguson led the list by about 65,000 votes in about 750,000 cast. But her single opponent, Ross Sterling, the next man up, beat her by 100,000 votes out of about 900,000 in the run-off. Obviously Texas didn't want Ma for governor again, but if there had been no run-off that's just what they would have had.

The difference between the size of the total votes cast in the two primaries indicates that many voters are content to wait for the run-off before casting a ballot. In Oklahoma's Democratic senatorial primary ex-Senator Thomas P. Gore had a tiny plurality in a field of five candidates. His majority over C. J. Wrightman in the run-off, however, was comparatively enormous. Instances where the candidate who runs third in the count is found to have determined the result between the two strongest candidates by pulling votes away from one or the other are rather common in primaries and general elections. In California this worked out so as to assure the state a wet governor.

A NOTABLE PERFORMANCE
Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, by virtue of their latest feat, ought to stand pretty well up toward the head of the list of men who have flown across the North Atlantic.

The east-west crossing, because of adverse winds, is far more perilous than the flight from America to Europe. The army flyers made it, years ago, by stopping at Iceland, Greenland and Labrador. The Germans now in this country also split it up into short legs. Two other planes have got across, but each had to come down long before reaching its destination.

Coste and Bellonte, however, followed their schedule with Lindberghian accuracy. They deserve all the plaudits this country and their own are giving them; and it is especially gratifying to reflect that they come from the land that sent Nungesser and Coll out on the same One of Chaney's greatest make-ups—the clown in "He Who Gets Slapped."

error and in Pennsylvania it did the same for a dry. The two California candidates for the Republican nomination who had the official dry support, Governor C. C. Young and Byron Pitts, polled a combined vote of more than 200,000 above that of the wet candidate, Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, who won the nomination. In Pennsylvania the moist machine candidate lost to the dry Gifford Pinchot because 275,000 wets voted for a third candidate.

It might reasonably be inferred that California is dry and will have a wet governor and that Pennsylvania is wet and will have a dry governor—although your correspondent seeks no arguments as to the wetness or dryness of either state. Ohio Democrats appear to have nominated a wet senatorial and a dry gubernatorial candidate on the same ticket because Robert J. Bulkley, the former, was good and wet, whereas a much larger vote than his was divided among four other dry or straddling candidates. For a while prior to the New Jersey primary it appeared that the dry Congressman Franklin Fort was very likely to win the Republican nomination because Dwight Morrow and Joe Frelinghuysen would split up the wet vote. Morrow won by an overwhelming margin, but in a dryer state the result might have been different.

How Wadsworth Was Beaten
The best example of how an independent candidate with no chance at all can nose into an election and deprive one candidate of enough votes to enable the other to win was given in 1926 when Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York ran for re-election as a wet. The drys entered an independent candidate who pulled away enough dry Republican votes to retire Wadsworth to private life.

In like manner the Illinois Anti-Saloon League is now promising to support a dry senatorial candidate against James Hamilton Lewis and Ruth Hanna McCormick, whom they have turned against since she agreed to abide by the result of a state referendum. Of course, the straight-out wet-dry fight which everyone expected in the Illinois contest was ruined as soon as Mrs. McCormick spoke up.

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

From other secretaries, he admits, he isn't a loafer because he even works on sundays.

A local drug store cowboy says he began figuring as he dragged his cotton sack. "By the time I get through, I'll drag this sack 84 miles," he said. Computing his haul at a maximum price of $6.25 a hundred, he decided it wasn't worth the drag and gave up cotton picking.

Harry Tolbert, being an experienced tailor as well as a farmer and cotton picker, designed his cotton sack so that as soon as he picks enough of his crop to make a pillow, the sack spreads out like a bed, then laps back over him for cover. Solid comfort in that cotton sack.

Boy, how I laugh when I think how badly Harry McClintock will get beat in that foot race tonight. I've found out who the Rotary club runner is. Sled Allen didn't have a faster man on his 1925 Denver Post championship team, and when I say "get-away," that boy has it. All you lions had better keep your money in your pockets.

Fred Guthrie met three Barron boys in a bunch the other day. All but Ralph who had just finished with him. Holding up both hands, he surrendered, but said, "I've got a brother back in Arkansas who is 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 240 pounds. I'm going to send for him just to clean out this gang."

merely brush on collodion, which draws the skin. If you want a deeper scar, apply a second coat of collodion. To remove, just put on a little more collodion, which will soften the earlier coats and permit them to peel right off.

A false beard? The best are made with crepe hair, a little lighter than the natural hair. Just take a hank of it, comb wet, press between the leaves of a book, out off straight at the edge, apply spirit gum to the face, attach the hairs and trim with scissors to get the desired effect. Gray hair? Starch or aluminum powder will do it. Aluminum powder is better, but much harder to wash out. To make a blond of a brunet, use "polished brass" bronze powder which is sold in paint stores.

Suppose you want to play the part of a very old man. Apply a thin coat of putty to your face and trace wrinkles thereon with a sharp pointed instrument. Lay out not a trace lines around the eyes, use paint of a little darker color, and where the face would sink most make the shadows darker.

To look like a Chinese—as Chaney so adroitly did in "Mr. Wu"—use adhesive tape to draw back the corners of the eyes, thus giving an Oriental slant to them. Paint the eyebrows with an upward lift, make slanting black lines downward from the inner corners of the eyes and upward from the outer corners to accentuate the slant.

A black-face impersonation? Do use burnt cork; use medium brown grease paint instead. Cover the lips with "ground color" and build them up with cotton or false teeth in the mouth. Don't use a wig; clipping hair, covered with a brown grease paint, is better.

Of course, all these color instructions are meant for movie actors—not for those on the stage. Colors often photograph differently from what they seem.

For example, red, orange and brown photograph as black or nearly so. Blue, pink and yellow and mauve photograph as white.

Therefore, a movie actor performing under the relentless eye of the lens, must be careful. Gold filling in the teeth appear as black specks, freckles stand out like a house afire and pinked cheeks become a dirty gray.

Since blue photographs better, lots of stars use a make-up that appears almost purple. Women, especially, paint their upper eyelids green and thus their photograph as a light gray. A tint of red causes an offending double chin to melt into the shadow.

To shade the eyes, use blue or violet lining pencils for soft shadows. For the eyelashes, many women use mascara; a few, a heavy black grease paint.

The nose, if broad, may be narrowed by drawing a high-light down the ridge with light paint. Be careful to shade with red at the sides to determine the contour. To widen small nostrils, insert red around the edges; to narrow wide ones, high light the same way.

Lips can be remade by reshaping with lip rouge. To enlarge a small mouth, extend the red beyond the corners; to make a small mouth of a large one, do just the opposite.

Such are the fundamentals of the art that Lon Chaney left behind. But no one will—or can—really succeed him, Hollywood believes, because the exquisite technique that was Chaney's died with him. The star whose reputation for facial make-up and character portrayal spanned the world has lots of imitators but probably no successors.

Like all men who are really in a class by himself.

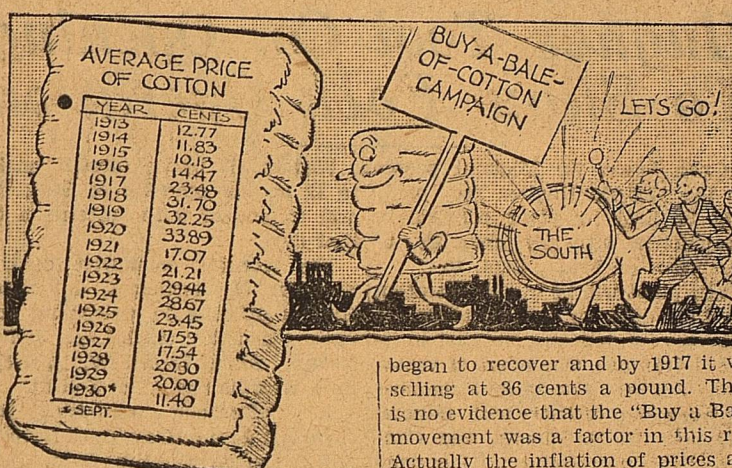

NEXT: Chaney was one of a group of movie stars whose particular art died with them.

COTTON GROWERS FIND MARKET IN BAD WAY

By ALLARD SMITH

Executive Vice President, Union Trust Co., Cleveland, Ohio

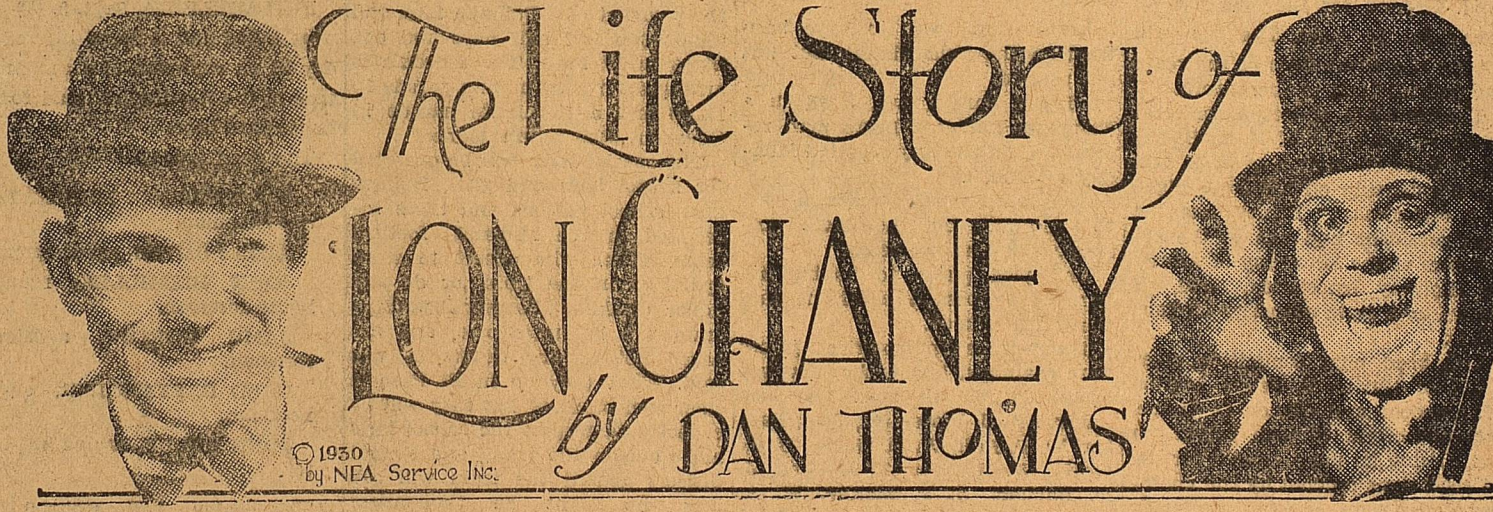

"Buy a bale of cotton," the slogan of 1914, is being revived throughout the south in an effort to bolster present depressed cotton prices. This year's unusually large crop combined with the world-wide business depression has caused cotton quotations to drop to about 11-12 cents a pound compared with 19-22 cents one year ago.

In 1914 the cotton plantations of the south raised a phenomenal crop of 16,000,000 bales. Then came the World War bringing dislocation of all markets and cotton plunged to 7-12 cents a pound. The "Buy a Bale" campaign swept over the country for a time. Before long the price of cotton began to recover and by 1917 it was selling at 36 cents a pound. There is no evidence that the "Buy a Bale" movement was a factor in this rise. Actually the inflation of prices and industrial activity engendered by the war brought about the revival. In the present instance cotton is subject to the recession which has depressed practically all commodities. The crop of 15,000,000 bales for the season was not so great as in 1914, 1925 or 1926, but it exceeded all other years and was 10 per cent over the average output.

Meanwhile the consumption of American cotton this year by foreign and domestic spinners has fallen off 2,000,000 bales from the two preceding seasons.

The strong possibility of a reduction in acreage for next year's crop and the prospect that the level of general business will be higher next year, forecast improvement over current cotton prices, whatever may be the fate of the "Buy a Bale" campaign. World consumption of cotton cannot fail to be stimulated by the present low price.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth installment in the series of six articles revealing the unusual life story of the late Lon Chaney.

By DAN THOMAS, NEA Service Writer. (Copyright, 1930, NEA Service, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9.—When Lon Chaney's biggest picture were being filmed his dressing room at the studio often looked more like a carpenter shop or the dissecting room of a medical college than anything else.

Long-haired wigs . . . strange braces and jackets, mean to deform the body . . . glass eyes, of milky whiteness . . . lumps of putty for building up a nose or the cheek bones . . . human hair, to be clipped and glued to the face, in individual strands, perhaps for the scraggly beard of a Chinese . . . face paints, wax, cold cream, face powder—and goodness only knows what else.

It was a simple dressing room, with all the lack of flourish that marked the great actor's private life. Just a long shelf with a mirror in the center, the brightest of electric lights converging at angles before it, a few drawers filled with odds and ends of his peculiar trade and all sorts of garish clothing, medieval robes, false eye-brows and whatnot scattered around.

Such was the workshop of the master character actor of the generation—the man who could change his face into a thousand others.

Some of Chaney's remarkable art in make-up was secret and will remain so, but a lot of it is known. Because of his unusual ability along this line, he was selected to write the article of character makeup in the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Every member of the theatrical profession knows the basic essentials. But the directions Chaney gave will prove of keen interest to every layman who has watched this master of a character impersonation on the screen and wondered how he achieved his grotesque and hideous make-ups.

Use putty of plastic wax if you want to build up the nose, heighten the cheek bones or blot out the eyebrows.

If you want to puff out the face—as he did in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—cotton wool should be inserted between the teeth or in the cheeks.

To achieve that baggy appearance under the eyes—who doesn't remember that hideous character in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—you should put a little putty, cut in to a crescent shape, paint it and fix it tight with spirit gum.

The nose may be broadened—as was his as the greasy-faced Sergi in "Mockery"—by inserting the clipped end of a rubber cigar holder in each nostril.

False teeth—like the jagged ones he wore as the vampire in "London After Midnight"—can be made by fitting dental rubber over the natural teeth, carving the sort of teeth wanted on this dental rubber and painting the whole with tooth enamel to make it glisten.

Scars are easy to simulate. You

At Prairie Lee

By D. Boone Laceywell

The Rev. Smith delivered a very interesting sermon last Sunday night to the folk of the Prairie Lee and Stokes communities at the Greenwood church house. Most of the community folk were present. Mr. Smith has been pastor of the church for two years, but declines re-nomination.

Booster Bame, a well known bachelor and truck peddler of this community was beaten up and robbed by two masked men last Saturday night. It was known that he had been watched for several days as he returned from his daily trips, although his loss was not much. He was physically damaged more than anything else. At last report he was doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. Douglas of this community has recently moved to the tank farm. He formerly resided two and three-fourths miles north west of Prairie Lee.

John Livingston and family of Midland visited Livingston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Livingston, prominent farmers of this community.

Jim Perry of this community has been visiting relatives in San Angelo. He returned to his home here last week.

Miss Bobbie Mullins of Midland and Miss Vera Mae Douglas, Altha Mae Gee, and Lerlene Truelove, all of this community, spent this week end with Gettie Dawkins.

Mr. Eason and daughter, Mrs. Fred Truelove, have returned from a visit in Lubbock. A nice time was reported.

LONDON READS PAYNE

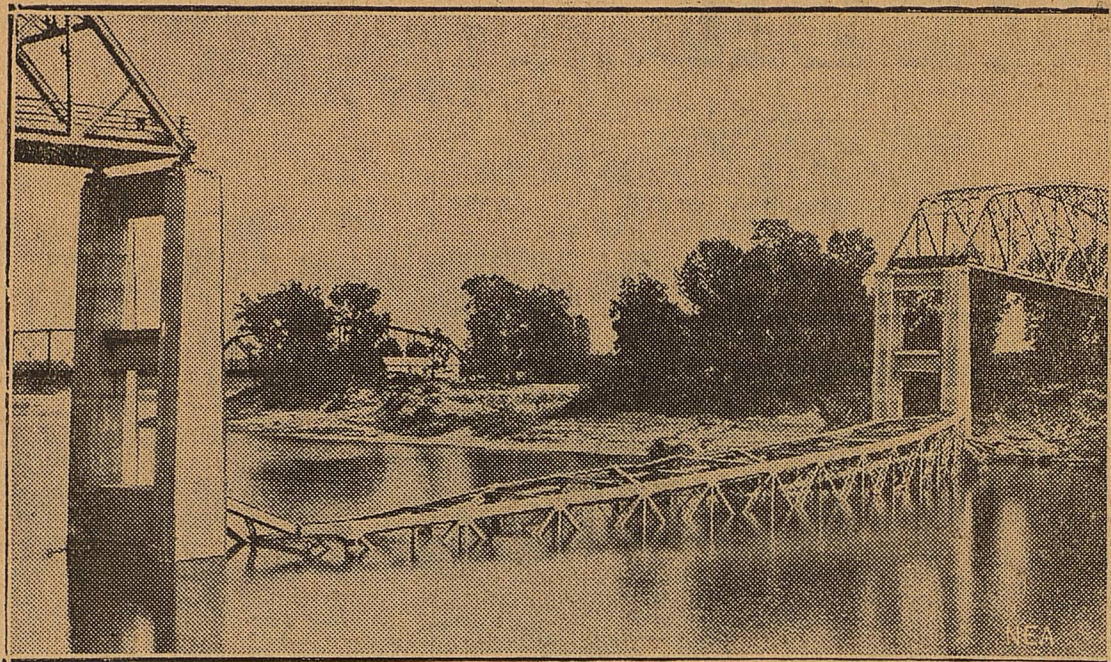

SAN ANGELO. (AP)—San Angelo talked to London recently. It was the first trans-Atlantic telephone call ever handled by the telephone exchange here. The call was to the Standard-Times from its publisher, Houston Harte, who was in Europe on a vacation trip with his family.

Harte said the suicide of A. D. Payne in the Amarillo jail was as big news in England as in West Texas, the London dailies displaying the story prominently and carrying long accounts of it.

How Mystery Blast Wrecked New $500,000 Bridge

This is the scene that confronted repair crews after the new $500,000 concrete and steel highway bridge across Red river at Garland City, Ark., was wrecked by four explosions. Note how the explosives, placed under each corner of the center span, and set off simultaneously, clipped off the 303-foot section as neatly as if it had been severed by a huge pair of scissors and tossed it into 35 feet of water. Damage was estimated at $250,000. Preliminary investigation failed to establish the motive for the blast.

Flying "Boneheads" Wear Brass Bells

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—There is one trophy at Kelly field for which there are no aspirants and for which no contest is made. The trophy is awarded automatically and the hapless "winner" is subjected to much kidding.

The trophy is a heavy dumbbell and there is no rivalry for the doubtful honor of being appointed its custodian. The trophy is given into the custody of the newest member of the dumbbell club and the presentation is always made under propitious circumstances, amusing to everybody by the recipient.

The club is patterned after the famous Golden Dumbbell club of Kelly Field, composed of officers who have made flights and manipulated their planes in an unexplainable and unauthorized manner without serious injury to anyone.

Membership in the club is involuntary and the selection of the "honoree" depends upon the perpetration of some "boner" on the part of the pilot. One member was initiated after he had taken off down wind, while another gained the uncoveted bell when he landed down wind. A third received the award when he landed for fuel and then took off again without turning on his gas supply.

Recently the club was presented with a new trophy, a brass dumbbell to replace the wooden one in use when the club started. The custodian of the trophy wears it around his neck, suspended from a chain, during the time he is on the line. He may take it off when flying.

The trophy is the property of the "bonehead" until some one of his mates pulls something to bring himself to the attention of his instructors.

Rabbit Growing Is Big Industry

By ROY L. FEATHERSTONE
In Fur Animals

Always having been interested in animal husbandry, even when I was a boy growing up, and as the breeding and raising of this wonderful little animal comes in this department, so having never gotten away from the desire to be among those that are striving to see the reproduction of all animal life come to much higher plane and desired results, there being so many things that we all can learn in our daily life, if we only will stop long enough to observe what our fellowmen are really doing towards the advancement in everything for our benefit, this same thing applies in the propagation in all animal life. There are breeders that are scientific in their chosen fields of action, they are skilled to such an extent that through the reproduction and with the assistance of nature that the various productions in their fields of endeavor are crowned with great achievements. All this applies to this Great Rabbit Industry, this little animal serves in numerous ways, as a matter of fact there are no waste to contend with, even the by-products are consumed in various commodities that man deals with.

There being several breeds of rabbits, and glad to say that all have their places to fill, in fact there is no one breed for all things, so therefore it takes all breeds to fill what man has conceived their uses for. From the food standpoint alone, that this little animal produces, could you imagine just how many breeders, with enough that it would require to furnish just one dressed rabbit for each family, only one day each week in this great United States, our country alone, besides our neighboring countries and all the foreign countries? Why, just think, there are not enough breeders anywhere that could begin to get started for such an opportunity that's before us now. This delicious, nutritious food that the rabbit furnishes us, it is rapidly being placed on the menu of the leading hotels in our country, just think what we are going to face, when the general public becomes regular users of this wonderful palatable food in the summer as well as in the winter, when all has had the privilege to taste this luxury. Why, one can hardly comprehend the magnitude of wonderful industry, even here in our country, the field is unlimited for us.

So with this great issue that is confronting us, as breeders, it will be very necessary and imperative that only the choicest specimens are kept, used or sold as breeders. This demand for breeding stock from the breeders is enormous, most all breeders of good stock are being taxed to the limit to even supply a part of the demands for breeders. Most any one can see what this industry is going to come to, the returns are attractive enough on the investment that is required to be associated with the rabbit industry, but remember and always bear in mind, to produce good merchandise the breeder must start with good foundation stock, from the herd of the quality breeder.

When rabbits are raised by skilled and modern methods they are one of the cheapest, cleanest food-producing animals produced for the consuming public. They are very delicious to eat more nutritious than pork or beef, contain a greater percentage of protein, can be eaten in the summer as well as in winter. Rabbits are marketable as friers at six to eight weeks old, dressed, or kept until five or six pounds of weight are reached then ship to the market live weight, or contracted to the hotels, restaurants, cafes or to the meat market at very profitable returns to the producer. Preview of New Motion Pictures to Be Given Once a Week by This Newspaper

Do you go to the movies just on the spur of the moment, or do you like to know what's coming, pick out the good ones and make special plans to see them?

Probably you're in the latter class. Most movie goers like to get advance information about forthcoming pictures.

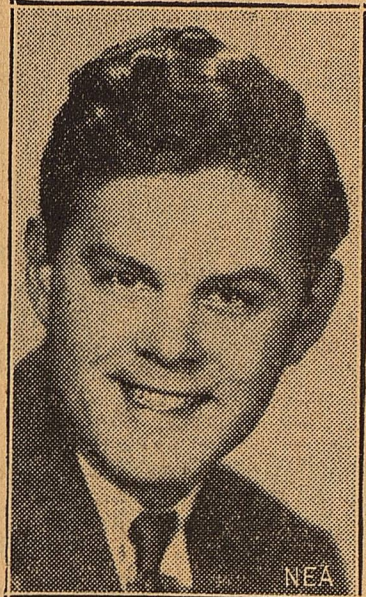

You'll be interested, then, in a new feature started today by The Reporter-Telegram.

On page 5 today, The Reporter-Telegram presents the first of a weekly series of articles by Dan Thomas, special correspondent in Hollywood, in which the notable film releases of the season will be previewed for you.

Being constantly in the movie capital, Thomas sees the pictures before they are shown elsewhere and knows about them in advance. Each week he'll write an article telling you what pictures are coming, and sizing each one up for you. He'll tell you, for instance, what sort of a picture a given film is, what stars are in it, what its music (if any) is like, and how it shapes as a whole; in other words, he'll give you a pretty clear idea whether it's a picture you want to see.

In today's story, for example, he discusses three of the big pictures released for the fall season—"Monte Carlo," "The Rap" and "The Sea God." Turn to page 5, read his story and you'll have a pretty good line on those three pictures.

Then remember—every week he will contribute a similar story. They'll be worth watching for.

foundation breeders, proper housing feeding and care that the progressive producers of other food-producing domestic animal breeders give to their vocation, and by following the fundamental principles of the department of animal husbandry, and with the demand that is already created, which is daily increasing by the consuming public for this highly nutritious food, there will be no need to fear but that there will be a market for all that every breeder will be able to produce, at a quotation that will be enough attractive to be an interesting vocation to seriously consider. Even though the breeder should just operate as a side line, there is a nice revenue to be realized in this

"I HAVE never bought or sold a share of stock speculatively in my life, except one small lot that I bought early in life. I determined to sell all my interests in every outside concern and concentrate my attention upon our concerns in Pittsburgh. Such a course should commend itself to every man. For a business man especially the rule must be kept calm and free if he is to decide wisely the problems which are continually coming before him. Nothing tells in the long run like good judgment, and no sound judgment can remain with the man whose mind is disturbed by the mercurial changes of speculation. It places him under an influence akin to intoxication. What is not, he sees, and what he sees, is not. He cannot judge of relative values or get the true perspective of things. Speculation is a parasite feeding upon values, creating none."—ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Desiring to possess that also he made a snap at it, when lo and behold! the bone he was carrying dropped into the water and straightway sunk to the bottom.—An Old Fable.

Let Household Needs Govern Your Purchases

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN
Author of "The Shopping Book"
Written for NEA Service

Look to your household to determine your real needs. Price is the factor we think of most often and most unintelligently. Price is always secondary to need. High prices are by no means assurance of quality. Low prices are often associated with most expensive "bargains."

Sales are no more honest than the merchants who conduct them. Price reductions may be fictitious and inferior goods may be mixed with those described in the sale.

Federal and state courts may order sales in bankruptcy, closing of estates, etc.; but the courts in no way take responsibility for the merchandise honesty in such sales.

The sales clerk is your only direct contact with the world of merchandise. Make the most of that contact.

New Photoplays...

By DAN THOMAS,
NEA Service Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Sept. 9. — Business is picking up along moviana's "White Way" which is just another way of saying that cinema audiences are due for some good entertainment this fall. During the last week I have "caught" previews of three pictures, all of them good. These three pictures are really worth seeing:

"Monte Carlo."
"The Rap."
"The Sea God."

"Monte Carlo" is Ernst Lubitsch's last contribution, and a very worthy one, too, as is nearly everything directed by this master mind. The film is very much on the order of "The Love Parade," in which Lubitsch directed Maurice Chevalier, only Jack Buchanan, prominent English actor, has the leading role in it.

But, being a musical production, we doubt very much if "Monte Carlo" will be a box office success despite its high quality. For some reason—obviously because of the number of poor musical films—theaters seem to be steering clear of this type of production these days.

However, the music is well as the acting in this film are handled as only Lubitsch seems capable of handling them. There is one selection, which Jeanette MacDonald sings to the accompaniment of a speeding railroad train, that really is marvelous. And the other songs, while we thought some could easily have been eliminated, never become boring. Miss MacDonald is equally as lovely and her voice is every bit as good as in "The Love Parade." And Buchanan proves himself very capable in this type of picture.

Fun in a Penitentiary
In direct contrast to "Monte Carlo" is "The Rap," Laurel and Hardy's first feature length talking film. No, these comedians have not given up the idea of making two-reelers. They merely wanted to experiment with a full-length film to see how the public would like them. If the preview audience the other night can be taken as a standard, the two comics have nothing to worry about.

"The Rap" is a satire on "The Big House," one of the most successful dramatic films of the year, but it's a question in our mind as to which will do the biggest business. As a rule a prison setting in itself is sufficient to kill almost any comedy because there just isn't anything funny about being in prison—and if you don't believe that, try racing a speed cop some time. However, Laurel and Hardy seem to have their own method of having fun wherever they may be, and a prison is no exception to the rule.

Hokum, but Entertaining
If you like thrills and aren't too particular about the hokum that is injected into a picture, "The Sea God" should give you a good evening's entertainment. The story is that of a young sailor and trader in the South Seas who is sort of a bum—that is, a nice movie bum. Of course there is a villain, too, who tries to win the girl but can't. And there is a race for new pearl fields which provides a setting for all kinds of exciting events.

Richard Arlen plays the role of the youthful trader, and of course he gets the girl, Fay Wray, in the end. Arlen always gets his girl these days. If quality in acting means anything, he deserves her, though. The third principal character is a newcomer to the screen, Robert Geckler, who has the makings of a very good screen villain.

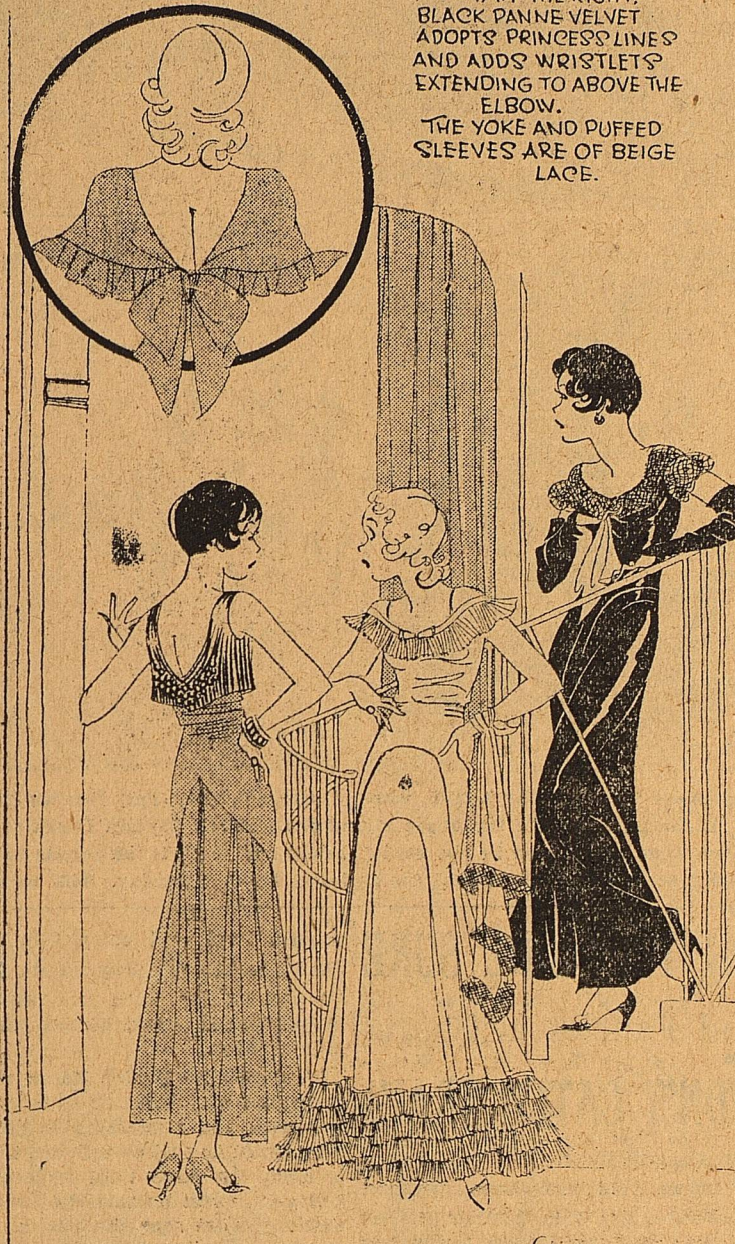

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Holley were visitors in Midland this morning. Mr. Holley, who was formerly with the Stanton chamber of commerce, is now of Lubbock and Mrs. Holley is holding his former position in Stanton.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Patterson have gone on their vacation which is to be spent with her people in San Angelo and his relatives in Mineral Wells.

Personals

Mrs. S. M. Halley and Miss Faye Halley of Kermit are visiting in the home of Mrs. Halley's daughter, Mrs. Fritz Estill.

Wallestien Warren has returned to his home in Rule, Texas, after a visit with his brothers, S. M. and Joe Warren.

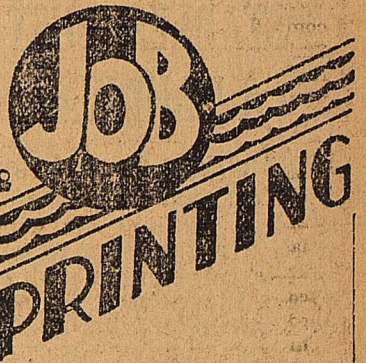

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Romer left yesterday morning for Neenah, Wis., where his mother has recently undergone a serious operation. Mrs. Romer is county and district clerk.

Mrs. J. O. Vance and daughters, Gertrude and Darleen, have returned from a visit with relatives in Oklahoma City. They were gone about two weeks.

MIDLAND TO TRY A COME-BACK IN SECOND TEXON POLO GAME

BETTER HORSES IN STABLES; DUST A HANDICAP

With their hosts holding the first game over them as a win, Midland malleteers will go into the second game of the three-game series at Texon Wednesday afternoon, determined to win.

Texon Sunday afternoon, riding hard behind the strong offensive pair, Farrington and Chaffin, stroked out a 11-9 win over the red jerseys of Midland, but the Wednesday and Sunday games likely will be contested sharply at every turn.

Midland players have decided to be mounted on better horses for the other two games, finding that their ponies Sunday were not capable of holding the grueling pace set by the rangy horses of the Texon four. Several choice mounts that were being saved for the San Angelo tournament, Sept. 22-27, have been sent to Texon to augment the strength of the remuda.

It is believed that the Midland riders will be able to do better on the dusty Texon field Wednesday.

In Sunday's encounter they missed several chances to score when the ball became enveloped in clouds of dust. Used to playing on the perfectly oiled field at Midland, they found the dust a decided handicap.

Up until the sixth chukker Sunday the Midland boys were out ahead, but Texon's green-striped riders swept in co-ordinated team play through the Midland defense to score five goals in that fatal period.

Midland will be one of six teams to enter the San Angelo polo tournament at the West Texas exposition the fourth week of this month, according to press dispatches sent out by the publicity committee of the exposition.

Announcement that a West Texas polo tournament will be held as a part of the exposition program has just been made, with more than half a dozen teams expected to enter. Already Menard, Abilene, Brady, Fredericksburg, Midland and San Angelo teams have been entered, according to John P. Lee, who is in charge of the tournament.

Already a few stables are represented with race horses at the fairgrounds, and Jess Elrod, superintendent of speed for the four days racing program which will open Tuesday, Sept. 23, to continue thru Friday, Sept. 26, has announced that more than 100 race horses will be brought here to compete for the liberal prizes that have been offered. The crack Midland horses will be entered.

CY TO QUARTER FOR TCU; GIRL SURE A Medley of Facts and Fancies in Sports LUCKY WHEN SHE DIDN'T CATCH TRAIN

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 9. (P)—A few facts and fancies, some of which might even be news.

Cy Leland, a great halfback last year, will play quarterback for Texas Christian university this fall. Coach Schmidt expects to develop him into a capable passer.

Hap Morse, the veteran Dallas infielder, has been lucky since he entered professional ball some 18 years ago. He has played with eight pennant winners, which might be a record for all we know.

Howard Fitzgerald, Spud center-fielder, has been with the same club longer than any player in the Texas League. Six straight years, and the former Southwestern university star still is much of a ball player. Less capable players, but with more color, have gone up to the big tent and stayed there.

Some kind providence, perhaps, caused Mary Zita McHale, Dallas tennis star, to get on the wrong train at St. Louis on her way home from the eastern tournaments. The train she should have caught was wrecked, killing six and injuring many others.

President Alvin Gardner did not award Wichita Falls the disputed game with Beaumont and then reversed his decision. The first ruling was made by the second in command at Texas League headquarters while Gardner was on a fishing trip. Upon his return he reversed it, pronto, which was a popular move, indeed.

Football players are going to find it plenty warm in the State Fair association's new stadium here. That is, at least, in the early games. The grass will be some 15 feet below ground level and completely encircled by the sweeping stands. Not an opening for even a vagrant breeze. But it should be nice along in November.

They say that Weldon Mason, versatile Mustang halfback, is returning from the mountains weighing 170 pounds and fit as a fiddle. That is about 10 more than he scaled last year, when he was the Southwest's greatest sophomore back. He and Bruce Kattman should give the Ponies' opponents plenty to think about.

Dick Whitworth, whose great pitching has featured the Cats' climb to the top in the second half, twirled in 47 games for Austin in the Texas association a few years ago. He was then, as now, a railroad brakeman in the off season, and he arranged his program so he could work his regular job at night and pitch in the afternoon.

The ocean is said to contain three layers of water. The upper layer contains animal and plant life, the middle is a region where decomposition of organic remains takes place and the bottom is water from the polar regions.

PASO'S PEP SQUAD BEGINS SALE TICKETS

Midland high school is not the only educational institution making frenzied preparation for the inter-sectional football game to be played in El Paso on Saturday, Sept. 27, judging from reports coming out of Austin high school, the Bulldog foe.

Austin high is to enroll 1,500 students and finishing touches on the painting and completion of tile work are being done on the main building, called "the most beautiful high school building in Texas." The building will be showed Midland fans who journey to El Paso to see the game to be played on the lighted gridiron.

Forty-seven students last Saturday formed a pep squad at a breakfast at Hotel Hussman. They admitted two more members and called themselves the Forty-Niners.

Immediately, the squad organized activity for a canvass of El Paso for selling tickets to the Midland-Austin high game. They will have an unprecedented number of fans out to see the Midland district champions, according to El Paso newspapers.

In the meantime, Head Coach Barry is realizing much from new mechanical and equipment features. With two new blocking dummies and a tackling dummy, straight-arm posts, bucking machine and other equipment, the coach has put his men into a daily grind that is gradually putting them into the pink. Fifteen formations are being run, and passing, tackling, dummy scrimmage and other work all making the team take on the aspect of a veteran eleven.

The squad is to be split, with letter men arrayed against each other. Starters in the El Paso game will be re-assembled in time to get the maximum of teamwork.

Over the district, other teams are going through the same growing pains. Barry is not optimistic of the chances of his team against some of the tough competition, but he doesn't stop long enough in his coaching to get despondent or to sing misereeres.

"We'll make someone fight us for it," he says, meaning the championship.

And to see those charges work, one is apt to believe him.

RADIUM HEATING PAD

VIENNA.—A radium ray heating pad is being used in the surgical clinic of the famous General Hospital here, under the direction of Prof. Anton Eiselsberg. These radium rays, supplied by layers of powdered residues of radium, give off just enough heat to stimulate the circulation of blood without causing serious radium burns.

ORDERS THUMB OFF

CHARLESTON, Ill., (UP).—When Edward Perry, Decatur, caught his hand in the wreckage of a burning freight car here recently, he was able to extricate all but his thumb. After repeated efforts to dislodge the lone member had met with failure, Perry ordered a companion to cut the finger off. No knife being at hand, his companion severed it with several blows of a spade.

the Woman who wouldn't Talk*

*If there was one thing of which Mrs. Julian was firmly convinced, it was that "she could not hear over long distance."

Even the thought of attempting it disconcerted her.

So her daughter was not surprised one evening, after the telephone had rung, to hear her call excitedly:

"Dorothy! It's long distance—Philadelphia! You take the call. You know I can't hear over long distance."

Dorothy smiled. "Yes you can, mother, if you try yourself. It's as easy as any other call. Try it."

Mrs. Julian shook her head, but turned again to the telephone.

"Hello," she ventured, doubtfully. . . .

A pause, during which her perplexed expression gradually gave way to a delighted—and wondering—smile.

"Martha!" she exclaimed at last. "This is a surprise! You'll be here day after tomorrow, for a whole week's stay? I am so glad!"

And then, the wonder of it overshadowing even the joy of the coming visit, she continued, "You know, Martha, I can hear you just as well as if you were telephoning from across the street!"

Next day her son-in-law (name and address upon request) wrote a letter to the telephone company.

"Mrs. Julian," he concluded, "is far from being an old fogey, but somehow she didn't know how easy it is to talk and hear over long distance. Don't you suppose there are still many who feel as she did?"

Undoubtedly there are. Long distance service has improved so rapidly in the last few years that those who have not used it recently cannot be expected to know how much like local service it is.

But the "proof lies in the eating." One actual call will tell you more about the ease, speed, and clarity of long distance than we could in a whole book.

For long distance is not only clear. It's speedy. In most cases you are connected with the distant telephone while you hold the line, particularly if you can give the number of this telephone.

It's personal. It is the only way whereby question and answer may be exchanged between distant persons as if they were talking face to face. And it's low in cost. You can telephone 100 miles for 60c—for 35c if you call after 8:30 in the evening!

May we prove it to you?

Send us names of three of your friends in other cities. We will mail you an out-of-town number book giving their telephone numbers, and the cost of a three-minute telephone visit with each.

Then call by number to one, or to all three. We'll let the service speak for itself.

HEAD "WHIRLED" NERVES UPSET

Texas Lady Took Cardui for Middle Life Troubles and Says She Got Better.

Kemp, Texas.—Mrs. Mat Howard, who lives near here, tells about her use of Cardui, in middle life. "About twenty years ago, my health was very bad. I was passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal. I was not at all strong and my nerves got all upset.

"I had hot flashes, and sometimes would get suddenly so faint I could not stand up. My head would whirl, and I could not see a thing. I would have to lie down for hours at a time. I felt mighty bad. "One day I was reading about a lady who had suffered like I was, and how she had been helped. So I made up my mind to give Cardui a trial.

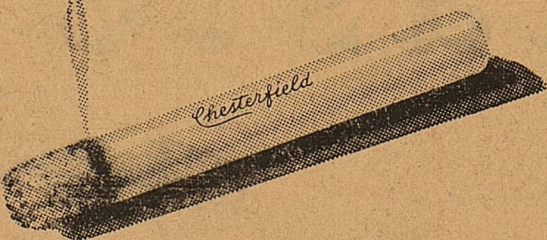

"I improved so much, after I had taken Cardui for a while. I continued the medicine for some months until I had passed the critical period.

"I have recommended Cardui to a great many people since I first took it. I never hesitate to tell any woman about it."

Road Meeting Is Definite Failure

The road meeting last night was a complete dud.
None of the citizens who have been critical about the road from Midland to Hobbs appeared at the meeting, and it was called for their special benefit and to get their ideas, a civic leader declared.
The meeting was an open one called for everybody in Midland, and two good notices and special notices to citizens specially interested were given, yet only three people besides men who were called to another meeting appeared.
The truth is, a citizen said today, everybody knows the road is needed, but nobody knows how to pay for it.

Good Program at Meeting of Aggies

Twenty-four people attended the A. & M. banquet held in the private dining hall of Hotel Scharbauer last Saturday night. Five of those present were boys who are to enroll at the Aggie school for their freshman work.
Marcos Gist of Odessa, president of the West Texas A. & M. club, presided at the banquet.
Coach L. K. Barry, local mentor, and two of his Midland high school Bulldogs who attended the training school for coaches at A. & M. recently, were in attendance. Barry gave a descriptive talk of the physical athletic equipment at A. & M.
The next meeting of the organization will be held at Odessa on the night of October 4, on which day the Nebraska-A. & M. football game will be played.

Missionary Here
For Few Days' Visit

The Rev. Bruce A. Cumming of Mokpo, Korea, has been visiting among the Presbyterians of Midland since Sunday night. He delivered an enlightening address Sunday night at the Presbyterian church on mission work in Korea.
Discussing the difficulties in the way of mission work he mentioned the Red propaganda of Russia, which is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in that country. He said that if all mission support were withdrawn from that work today it would go on, but that it would be a great blow. He praised the heroic type of Christian character that gospel missions have produced in what was once known as the "Hermit Kingdom."
Mr. Cumming came to Midland Sunday from Big Spring where he spoke Sunday morning in the First Presbyterian church. He was in Big Spring to meet and confer with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Settles, wealthy people who are supporting him in his mission work. He will return today to Big Spring for further conference with the Settles before returning to his home in Baltimore to join his family.
He, with his family, will sail from Seattle on October 15 to resume work in his chosen field. His visit to Midland has definite personal interest to the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy because he lives in Mokpo in the house occupied by the Murphys during their five-year missionary period of service in Korea.

Judge R. B. Weaver of Waco and Mrs. Jim Burdette of Goldthwaite have returned to their homes after a short visit with their sister, Mrs. M. D. Long.

First Picture of Vessel That Found Andree

The Norwegian sealer, Bratvaag, now back from arctic wastes with the grim secret of the ill-fated Andree polar balloon expedition, here is pictured for the first time. You see the ship as she lay trapped in a far-northern ice field. The crew of the history-making ship, commanded by Dr. Gunnar Horn, discovered on White Island the bodies of Salomon August Andree and his fellow explorers, who disappeared 33 years ago, and brought them, with relics of the expedition, to Tromsø, Norway.

Buenos Aires Quiet
After Night Fight

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 9. (AP)—The city is quiet today following night fighting. An ominous air is attending heavy concentration in the capital.
The deposed president and members of his cabinet have been jailed. The government announced that last night's fighting was the result of extraordinary misunderstandings at a time of tense alertness over rumors of a counter revolution.
Observers found discrepancies between the government's account and other events of the night. The city showed effects of shrapnel fire, several were reported dead and an undetermined number wounded.

LAMESA HAS INCREASE

LAMESA, Sept. 9.—Enrollment in both the high school and elementary school in Lamesa show a slight increase this year, according to V. Z. Rogers, superintendent of public schools. The enrollment in the elementary school is 715 pupils, according to G. M. Roberts, principal. The first grade holds a class roll of 170 pupils, including 30 in the kindergarten department. This is the largest class in the two schools, since the age limit for entering was lowered one year. The high school has an enrollment of 370.

Joe Pyron, E. Russell Lloyd and R. B. Mitchell were in the foursome.

EXPENSIVE AGREEMENT

MADISON, Wis., (UP).—George W. Mason, retired lumberman here, is wondering just how expensive a bargain he has entered into with his daughter, Elizabeth Ann Mason, will be. Elizabeth Ann had literary ambition. Mason agreed to reimburse her dollar for dollar each time one of her stories resulted in financial returns to her. Miss Mason's initial effort netted her $75 and her father made good his promise. Her next literary effort was accepted and she was paid $500. Mason lived up to his contract a second time, but he is beginning to wonder just how long Elizabeth Ann is going to dip into the family treasury for her bonuses.

CATTLE, SHEEP AID

SAN ANGELO, (AP).—The Texas Livestock Marketing association, a co-operative formed under the federal farm board, will make loans for the purchase of feeder calves and feeder sheep after Sept. 1, Harry Kahn, sheep representative, announced.
Kahn said a number of applications had been received for loans to feed sheep in other states and to feed some cattle and sheep in Texas. The company will make loans up to $8,000,000, he said.

DOUBLE SPROUTING

TROY, Ohio, (UP).—The long drought brought a phenomena to potato growers of this part of the state. Their potatoes, undeveloped for lack of rain, began sprouting like new plants. An Ohio State University specialist was called in to study the reproduction in plants.

First Picture of Finder
of Andree

Here is the first actual photo to reach this country of Dr. Gunnar Horn, chief of the Norwegian expedition which discovered the bodies of Salomon August Andree and his companions of the lost polar balloon expedition of 1897 on White Island.
