Bodies Scattered Across Sea...

Jetliner Crashes With 81 Aboard

PALERMO, Italy (AP) — Searchers today found wreckage of an Italian jetliner and the bodies of at least 33 of the 81 persons aboard scattered across a wide swath of the Tyrrhenian Sea about 90 miles southwest of Naples, rescue officials said. There was speculation the plane may have exploded in flight.

The crew of a small motor launch found part of the aircraft's tail, while other rescue vessels found the bodies, life-preservers and remains of inflatable rafts floating on wind-tossed seas in an area where a large oil slick had been spotted earlier, officials said.

The DC-9 jetliner, operated by Italy's domestic airline Itavia, vanished Friday night during a flight from Bologna to Palermo.

The wrecked tail section was found about 20 miles from the bodies, leading officials to believe the plane had exploded in the air, scattering wreckage over a wide area.

"The most likely hypothesis is that the plane blew up in mid-air but we still don't know why," Itavia spokesman Iatlo Govoni said.

He said it was possible that a bomb had gone off aboard the plane, but he noted that no group had come forward to claim responsibility for a terrorist attack.

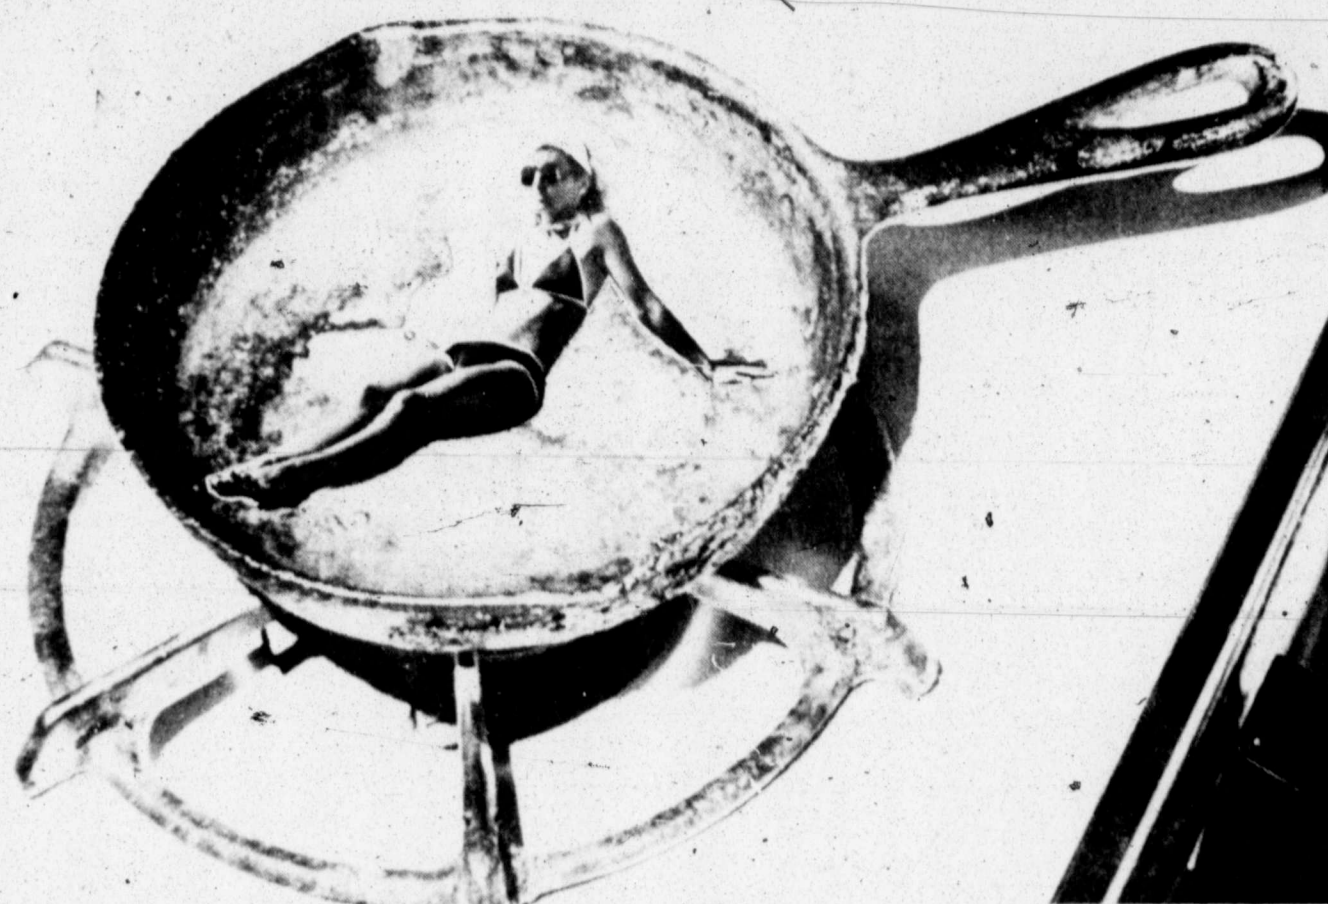

There was no immediate indication of what caused the crash or whether anyone had survived it.

An armada of ships and helicopters, battling high winds and 12-foot waves, began combing the Tyrrhenian Sea north of here shortly after the twin-engine jetliner was reported missing.

"The plane either has

IT'S THAT HOT!!—With Snyder temperatures reaching above 100 degrees for five days in a row now and still rising, residents feel like they are in the same predicament as this local beauty who was transposed from Towle Park Swimming pool to the frying pan with a bit of trick photography. Snyder is not suffering alone in the sweltering heat. Wichita Falls recorded 116 degrees Friday and Dallas 114 which made our own 105 degrees comparatively cool. There is no indication in the forecast when the heat will be turned down. (SDN Staff Photo By John Dunnam)

Fifth Sizzling Day...

Heat Here Hits 105°

Snyder's weather finally got off the 103-degree mark Friday, but it went in the wrong direction.

The high mark hit 105 degrees on the official thermometer at the city water plant. This followed three consecutive days when the maximum had been 103 degrees. It also was the fifth day in a row for the thermometer to reach 100 degrees or higher and the ninth day this month the century mark has been reached or exceeded.

Forecasts indicated little hope that the heat wave would abate over a big portion of the country's mid-section. Hot weather has prevailed for a week from Nebraska southward to the Texas coast.

Wichita Falls had the top honors Friday, with a reading of 116 degrees, an all-time high for that city. It was 113 degrees in Dallas, 114 degrees in Oklahoma and into the 100s in Kansas where heat buckled roads and strained power supplies.

In Snyder, heavy demands for water continued. The city's water treatment plant continued to operate at near capacity 24 hours per day. Although supplies are adequate, mechanical equipment is being put to a severe test to keep the distribution system filled as water use continues well above normal.

A few showers fell in the northwest corner of the Texas Panhandle on Friday night, but no significant amount of rainfall was reported. Scattered thundershowers were forecast for Southwest Texas late Saturday, but forecasters indicated that it would not break the heat wave gripping most of the state.

The SDN Column

For the second time since it began back in 1961, yours truly will be absent when the annual July 4th Celebration is held next Friday in Towle Memorial Park.

This year, as was the case the other time we missed it, we will be out of the state on Independence Day. We must travel all the way to the land of the Pilgrims (Boston) to see a son married off.

The other time we missed the Independence Day event here was in 1966, which turned out to an eventful year. Our better half was a delegate to the National Education Association's convention that year in Miami Beach, Fla., and there was no way we could get back to Snyder for the fourth.

It also was the year we kicked the cigarette habit.

By 1966, the July 4th Celebration was firmly entrenched in this community's summer routine. It began rather tentatively five years earlier when city and chamber of commerce officials got a bit nostalgic, perhaps, in talking over some "old-time" fourth of July celebrations they recalled. One thing led to another, and finally it was agreed that some type of community event should be held for the benefit of local citizens who stayed home on the holiday, and with hopes that it might keep some off the highways.

Nobody expected several thousand people to show up, but they did. Even more came the next year.

Soon, July 4th had become established as a giant homecoming, with former Snyder residents from over the world timing their vacations so that they could be in Snyder for the fourth. It also attracted people from other cities and towns, and still does.

Of course time has taken its toll. Some of the regulars you could always expect to see in Towle Memorial Park on the fourth have passed on. Immediately coming to mind are Bentley Baize, who worked harder on more July 4th celebrations than anyone else we know, and Pat Moore. We used to meet Pat at the Kiwanis Club's hamburger concession on the fourth. Of course he would eat two hamburgers while we ate one, but it was an enjoyable occasion and gave us a chance to visit.

Other traditions have emerged in connection with the fourth in Snyder, but we don't have time or space to dwell on them here. We hope all who attend this year will enjoy it as they have in the past.

When Saigon Surrendered...

Snyderite One Of Last To Get Out Of Vietnam

By JOHN LONG

Ray Pruitt remembers Vietnam as one war he almost didn't make it home from.

Pruitt, a civil servant working with the defense attaché in Saigon, didn't get out of South Vietnam until April 29, 1975, the very day the country surrendered to the North Vietnamese. His helicopter was one of the last dozen or so to ferry Americans and selected pro-American South Vietnamese out to sea where they were picked up by aircraft carriers.

"It was real chaos there, I tell you," he said. "Gen. Homer Smith kept it from being a complete rout by being so calm and cool. What complicated everything was that it was not just Americans being evacuated."

In a phased evacuation, not everyone can be on the first flight out, Pruitt noted, and his eleventh-hour exit was "just a matter of someone having to stay."

Pruitt joined the Civil Service in 1940, but took time out in World War II to join the Coast Guard and serve in both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. In 1965 he was sent to Seoul, South Korea, and from there to South Vietnam in 1973.

By 1973, the American military presence had ended, and his job was to help the South Vietnamese manage and maintain the military equipment the Americans had given them. In the final months and weeks before the country fell, he helped sort out pro-American Vietnamese for evacuation.

The situation in South Vietnam deteriorated until on that final day, as he was leaving his apartment, he bumped into a Marine Corps major who ordered him on a bus for the final evacuation. The bus took him to a helicopter which then ferried him and other Americans to a waiting ship.

Once on the helicopter "the only thought in our minds was were we going to clear the perimeter fence," said Pruitt. "The helicopter was overloaded."

Onboard the ship the next day, Pruitt said he learned that Saigon had surrendered the day he left.

Pruitt noted there is today a Saigon Mission Association whose membership is limited to those final-day evacuees from Saigon. The group meets every April 29.

Now retired, Pruitt resides in Snyder. He has lived here about three months.

Shah Reported In Serious Condition

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The cancer-stricken deposed Shah of Iran, admitted to a Cairo-area military hospital after suffering a relapse, is in "very serious condition," President Anwar Sadat said today.

"I am receiving hourly reports on his condition," the official Middle East News Agency quoted Sadat as saying in Alexandria. "I hope here will be an improvement or else I will leave Alexandria and go to Cairo."

An Egyptian presidential source in Cairo reported earlier that Mohammad Reza Pahlavi had been readmitted to the Maadi military hospital, where the former Iranian monarch underwent surgery for the removal of his cancerous spleen last March 28.

That source gave a relatively optimistic report, saying Pahlavi was being given a checkup after a two-week bout with fever, that his temperature had been returned to normal and that his condition "is not deteriorating. He is keeping well."

But later Sadat said he had received an urgent message "saying he was in very serious condition.

Thus we should all pray for him."

Sadat was asked by reporters whether Pahlavi's death was imminent.

"Only God knows that, and I wouldn't want to hear of such a thing," he replied.

Since the splenectomy, Pahlavi had been undergoing chemotherapy treatment for cancer that doctors say has continued to affect his liver.

Sadat, who invited the ousted shah to Egypt and granted him asylum, told reporters June 17 that Pahlavi had suffered a relapse attributed to complications resulting from the chemotherapy.

Asked today whether the cancer was causing Pahlavi's new problems, the Egyptian leader said the ex-shah's condition is related to pneumonia that afflicted him two weeks ago.

Sabotage Eyed

HOUSTON (AP) — A fire which trapped about 20 persons in a 22-story office building and destroyed some computer tapes may have been industrial sabotage, authorities said.

American Exports Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—American exports dropped sharply last month as the U.S. trade deficit rose steeply, the Commerce Department says.

Figures released Friday showed U.S. firms exported $17.6 billion worth of merchandise in May, a drop of 4.3 percent from April and the biggest one-month decline in almost two years. Imports rose 6.4 from April to May.

Alarms Interrupt Gas Venting

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP)—Venting of radioactive krypton gas from the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear plant began on schedule today at 8 a.m., but was halted four minutes later when two radiation alarms sounded. Tests showed no excess radiation, officials said.

The venting of gas trapped in the reactor containment building during the nation's worst commercial nuclear power accident was scheduled to resume at mid-afternoon.

Draft Legislation Signed

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 4 million men born in 1960 and 1961 will have to register for the draft later this summer.

President Carter signed legislation Friday at Camp David reinstating the registration system, although the draft itself will not be reactivated.

Carter had called for registration in his State of the Union speech in January, saying it was needed to show U.S. military resolve in the wake of the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Fire Does About-Face

EAGLE, Colo. (AP)—Crews fighting the largest forest fire in Colorado history were sent scurrying to other battle positions when the 7,000-acre blaze did a sudden about-face and consumed another 1,000 acres.

The fire had burned northeasterly since breaking out Wednesday, but on Friday afternoon turned around and raced back through the steep, rough terrain of the White River National Forest. Before the fire turned, forest officials had reduced estimates of destruction to about 7,000 acres.

Snyderites Set For Big Fourth

The stage is set for annual July 4th Celebration in Towle Memorial Park.

The July 4th Committee of the chamber of commerce has lined up the usual array of special activities that will keep the park busy from Thursday through Friday night. The carnival will be on hand again, and the July 4th Arts and Crafts Show will launch actual celebration on Thursday night in the National Guard Armory.

Other activities will continue in the park Friday, beginning with opening ceremonies and the traditional parade. The first session of the tractor pull is set for Friday evening at the rodeo grounds. It will be completed Saturday evening.

The art show in the Towle Park Barn, entertainment by various groups, the crowning of the Independence Day Queen and the annual fireworks display will round out the general program.

There will be concessions booths, a fishing rodeo and a tennis tournament, which will use school tennis courts as well as those in the park.

The queen will be selected from a field of candidates nominated by clubs and organizations. The winner will be determined by the sale of July 4th tickets.

This circumcision necessary

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My doctor told me I have paraphimosis and must be circumcised but I don't have the $175 for the operation. I'm 46 years old and would not care for this circumcision and my wife has stated she won't stand for it. Can you tell me what causes this condition? I can't skin back without a soapy shower.

I had this same condition a couple of years ago but it disappeared after daily soaks in tonic water.

Is the circumcision an operation and what is really done? What about the aftereffects? What is actually cut off and will I be bedridden?

DEAR READER: Your problem is relatively uncommon today because most male infants are circumcised, although not everyone agrees that this should be a routine procedure.

The trouble begins with having a foreskin that covers the glans (head) of the penis. Sometimes this skin becomes very tight and cannot be adequately retracted. This can be a complication of local inflammation but it may occur just in the course of time. This makes it difficult to provide proper hygiene.

Not being able to retract the skin adequately is called phimosis. In very young children gradually moving the skin backward on repeated occasions will stretch the skin until this condition is alleviated. It's important, however, to replace the skin back in its normal position at once. If not, the tight skin might be caught behind the glans and cause constriction.

When the skin is caught behind the glans, it may swell and this is paraphimosis. The skin accumulates fluid (edema) and makes it impossible to move the skin back to its normal position.

That's apparently what happened in your case before. Sometimes it can be cleared but there's always the risk that it won't be and the trapped glans can be damaged because the circulation is shut off. When the skin is particularly tight in paraphimosis, it's sometimes necessary to make an incision in the constricting ring of skin in order for the skin to go back to its normal position.

The common treatment for this problem is a circumcision, which merely means cutting off the excess skin that covers the glans. It's a fairly simple operation. There's no reason why you shouldn't have normal function after the procedure is done. In older or debilitated patients sometimes a dorsal slit is performed. The skin is simply cut at the far edge over the top of the glans so that it's no longer like a tight-fitting sleeve.

Since apparently you've had paraphimosis twice, you will need to have something done about it. You will continue to have hygiene problems unless the condition is corrected. Without adequate hygiene, the risk of infection is significantly increased.

Texans Going All Out To Beat Searing Heat

By The Associated Press
DALLAS (AP)—Sweating Texans are trying extraordinary measures to cope with searing heat wave that has left nine dead and power generators groaning from the strain of over-taxed air conditioners.

In Wichita Falls, where a scorching 116-degree reading set a new all-time high Friday, swimmers dump huge blocks of ice in city pools to lower the tepid water from 80 to something more refreshing.

The temperature in Dallas soared to 113 degrees for the second straight day Friday, prompting city fathers to open three air-conditioned recreation centers to house elderly and handicapped residents endangered by the killing heat. "People have died because they don't have air conditioning," said city spokesman Noel Watson. "So cots and air will be available."

Less extreme solutions cropped up around the state.

"I cut my hair and shaved off my beard," said a perspiring Abilene man out to enjoy nearby Albany's "Fandangle" festival in the 104-degree heat.

Houston, with a relatively cool 101 degrees, saw ice skating doing a brisk business in the Galleria shopping mall rink.

A Dallas man delivering ice left the door of his truck open for a moment and returned to find a woman reclining on the bags of frozen merchandise.

"That was a quick cool-off," she told the bemused trucker as she left.

North Texas retailers reported sales of fans and air conditioners were booming.

And beer is still holding its own, Dallas suds merchants said. "We're so busy I can't hardly answer the phone," said a salesman at a Dallas drive-through beer retailer. "The heat's helped us, you could say."

Forecasters said there was no relief in sight from the searing temperatures.

Dallas Power & Light Co. spokesman said Friday electricity usage hit another record high - 2,809,000 kilowatts and that the possibility of major outages looms in the city that already has tallied a grim toll of heat-related deaths from heat stroke.

At least nine people have died from heat-related causes. Among the dead are Dallasites David Michaelson, 72; his sister Sadie, 86; Alejandro Parra, 50; Gertrude Forrester, in her 60s; Arthur Wygant, 59; Helen Isley, 49; and Clyde Millican, 78. Also, Odell Lang of Fort Worth and Willie Mae Dunn, 73, of Austin.

In the Dallas suburb of Garland, 100,000 residents were without electric power Thursday in the worst blackout in the city's history. City officials blamed the blackout on overloaded circuits and a tree limb that struck a power line.

Dallas Power & Light Co. spokesman Ray Ward said that while the company had "sufficient reserves and sufficient fuel" to cope with record usage, neighborhood transformers all over the city were overloading and going out under the strain.

Also Merit Pay...

Panel Suggests Hike For State Employees

AUSTIN (AP) - State employees - many of whom have a second job to make ends meet - got a boost Friday from a special House committee.

The committee reiterated its support of a state employee proposal for salary increases of nearly 29 percent over a 32-month period, with better workers also getting merit pay.

The committee, however, recommended that state agencies be required to set up grievance procedures and systems for evaluating their employees before they can grant merit pay raises.

"Merit pay has been discarded by the Legislature and abused by the agencies. We had to tie it to some measurement," said Chairwoman Mary Jolie Bode of the House Select Committee on State Employee Productivity. In hearings around the state "the main thing we heard was the need for recognition," said Ms. Bode, D-Austin. "The Department of Human Resources and the comptroller have good merit programs. We know it can be done."

Of 1,341 state employees contacted in a random committee survey, 18.1 percent said they held another job. Texas has more than 107,000 state employees.

Only 29 percent felt there was a "good chance" they would be promoted if they performed "especially well." Fifty-four percent do not.

Nearly half - 48 percent - believe people in their organization are becoming fearful of losing their jobs. The committee recommended an emergency pay raise of at least 5.1 percent, effective Feb. 1, as well as annual pay hikes of 13.6 percent and 10.2 percent proposed by the Texas Public Employees Association.

The annual pay increase would cost taxpayers $264.2 million in 1982-83.

The increases are part of a TPEA package totaling up to $443.2 million, which also includes cost-of-living adjustments for retired employees, state payment of employees' entire Social Security tax, and merit pay increases - all supported by the committee.

The committee's other recommendations would cost an additional $131.3 million over the biennium.

Included are additional merit pay, payment for one-half an employee's unused sick leave upon retirement, establishment of an Interagency Training Council, an extra $10 a month per employee for group health insurance, $10 per employee for dental insurance, the additional Social Security payment, a 10-cent a mile increase for mileage expense and an increase in per diem while on state business.

The 12-member Training Council would include three representatives from agencies with from 251 to 900 employees, three from the "super" agencies that have more than 900 employees and three public members.

The committee also recommended: -Posting job openings in all 254 counties instead of only Travis County.

-Creating the job of employee's assistance officer in the governor's office.

-Longevity pay for Texas 1,937 regular part-time employees.

CONGRESSMAN CHARLES STENHOLM

Colonial Hill Sets Patriotic Service

A special patriotic worship service is being planned for the Independence Day weekend at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Guest speaker for the 11 a.m. worship service on Sunday, July 6, will be Congressman Charles W. Stenholm, who represents the 17th District of Texas in Congress.

The public is invited to attend the special service, and those unable to attend may see it on Channel 2 of the Snyder television cable (SCAT).

Stenholm, a native and life-long resident of Stamford, was elected to Congress two years ago, succeeding the veteran lawmaker, Omar Burleson.

He is a life-long member of the Bethel Lutheran Church at Ericksdahl, a rural community six miles east of Stamford where the family farm is located. While serving in Washington, he and his family attend the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in McLean, Va.

He serves on the Agriculture Committee and the Small Business Committee in Congress and was elected treasurer of the 96th Congress New Members Caucus. A graduate of Stamford High School, Tarleton Junior College and Texas Tech University where he received both bachelors and masters degrees, Stenholm has been actively involved in agriculture, business, civic and political affairs, but lists "farmer" as his principal profession.

His subcommittee assignments for the Committee on Agriculture include Cotton, Dairy and Poultry, Livestock and Grains, Oilseeds and Rice. His subcommittee assignment for the Small Business Committee is Special Small Business Problems.

GIBSON'S

Stanton Cheerleaders Named Grand Champs

Varsity cheerleaders from Stanton High School won the lion's share of the honors announced at the close of the Western Texas College cheerleader clinic Friday afternoon.

The squad was honored as Grand Champions, best in the varsity division, and Most Spirited. In addition, one squad member, Nancy McCalister, was named a Senior All-Star. DeeDee Woodson, a member of the Lamesa High School varsity squad, was named a Junior All-Star.

The junior varsity cheerleaders from Snyder High School were recognized as the Most Improved Squad.

Other winners in the high school division were Spur and Lamesa. Junior high winners were Runnels from Big Spring, Haskell Junior High and Dawson Junior High.

Personnel from the All-Star Cheerleader conference in Kansas City, Mo., conducted the clinic with the assistance of Mickey Baird, Student Activities Director at WTC and sponsor for the WTC cheerleaders. The All-Star personnel made the awards, and presented Mrs. Baird a special award for her efforts and outstanding assistance throughout the week.

Miss McCalister will be a senior student at Stanton High School this fall. As an All-Star, she will receive a recommendation for a spot in the All-Star Cheerleader Conference clinics staff next summer. Kathy Brozowski, who was named an All-Star when she attended the WTC clinic as a student at Wylie High School, was selected to join the staff and is helping hold clinics this summer.

Only four girls have been honored with the All-Star award at WTC. (Lisa Brakebill from Dawson Junior High was cited as an All-Star last year.) Only girls who are ready for their senior year in high school are eligible for consideration as All-Star staffers.

"The All-Star award isn't given at every clinic," Mrs. Baird pointed out, "and we feel especially honored that our girls have received four of these awards."

Schools represented at the clinic this year were Sweetwater High School (JV), Klondike, Wylie High School, Ropes High School and Junior High, Midland Christian, Big Spring Goljad and Big Spring Runnels, Dawson Junior High, Haskell Junior High, Lamesa Middle School and Lamesa High School, Spur High School and Stanton High School.

VA Pensioners To Get Raises

More than 300,000 veterans and their survivors will be getting larger VA pension checks on July 1 as the result of a 14.3 percent increase in the government's cost of living index. E.H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said. Some 2.4 million VA pensioners are affected in some way by the cost of living index. Those persons who will receive increases this month (payable July 1) are those who have switched to the "improved" VA pension rates to adjustments in social security payments. Before the change, an individual's pension was subject to reduction each time social security increased. "Old plan" recipients may request transfer to the "improved" plan at any time, VA officials point out.

Veterans who would like information about veterans benefits may contact Dever's office in the Administration Building at Western Texas College. The office will be closed Friday in observance of the July 4th holiday.

WTC Offices To Close For Fourth

Offices at Western Texas College will be closed Friday for the Independence Day holiday.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the campus of WTC, will also be closed.

ALL-STAR—Nancy McCalister from Stanton High School was honored as an All-Star Cheerleader at the WTC camp. She will be a senior student this fall, and will be recommended for a spot as instructor with the All-Star Cheerleader Conference next summer. DeeDee Woodson, a junior at Lamesa High School, was also named an All-Star.

Exhibit Gets Second Look

"Second lookers" are the style at the Scurry County Museum these days at the Old Master Paintings exhibit continues.

The 23 paintings are on loan from the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation of Houston, and will remain through July 25. The paintings are completing a three-year tour of the state as part of the Blaffer Foundation's "museum without walls" program which makes art exhibits available to museums outside major cities.

Hours at the Scurry County Museum are 9 a.m. to 12 noon Monday through Friday, 1-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 1-4 p.m. on Fridays, and 1-5 p.m. on Sundays. There is no admission charge.

Gets Home Back Only To Find It A Wreck

By SUSAN STOLER

Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE (AP)—Social workers say a 105-year-old woman driven from her modest frame home two months ago by unruly relatives returned to find it "in a shambles."

Evarista Serrata, a partially blind widow, regained possession of her small house Friday when her great-granddaughter failed to appear at an eviction hearing.

Mrs. Serrata had sued the younger woman, who had moved in with four children for "a few days" and then refused to leave. Mrs. Serrata claimed the younger woman slapped and kicked her and let the young children "tear up the place."

Luis Flores, a social services worker who helped Mrs. Serrata file the suit, said the home needs between $500 to $1,000 worth of repairs. The unwanted occupants had torn off screen doors and possibly caused other damage hidden by the wreckage of the interior.

"We would appreciate anything that could be donated to Mrs. Serrata," said Flores, who works for the Community Development Corp.

He said two contractors were willing to donate time and labor but that materials still were needed.

Furniture in the one-bedroom house was strewn in piles around the interior and the outside was littered with trash, clothing and toys.

"It's a very sad situation to find things like this," said Manuel Serrata of San Antonio, one of Mrs. Serrata's three adopted children.

Relatives said Mrs. Serrata had always kept the house and yard tidy.

Mrs. Serrata, accompanied by family members and Cameron County Justice of the Peace Alex Perez, returned to view the wreck of her home of 12 years, but plans to stay with nearby relatives until the place can be cleaned and repaired, her son said.

Perez told her to make a list of what was missing. Flores said Mrs. Serrata said she was "depressed and afraid because these people might come back and harm her."

Her son said he hoped another relative would be able to stay with her fulltime to guard her.

Mrs. Serrata, speaking in Spanish, thanked Perez and the news media for helping her. She said she had been in court before only to be married when she was 15 back in 1885. Her husband died in 1939.

Perez refused to identify a celebrity who he said contacted him this week and offered to provide legal assistance to Mrs. Serrata if needed.

Ax Killer Suspect Released On Bond

McKINNEY (AP) — An attorney for Candice Montgomery says circumstantial evidence led to his client's arrest in connection with the ax murder of a Wylie woman.

Robert Udashen of Dallas said Friday an arrest warrant was issued for his client on the strength of a fingerprint found on a blood-smeared refrigerator and "that is circumstantial."

Mrs. Montgomery, 30, was released Friday from the Collin County jail on $100,000 bond after spending the night in jail for questioning in the brutal ax murder of Wylie schoolteacher Betty Gore.

Mrs. Montgomery surrendered to authorities Thursday night, eight hours after a warrant was issued for her arrest.

Her bond was posted by Bob Hendricks' law firm, said Collin County Sheriff's Lt. Joe Stewart. Hendricks, a McKinney attorney, also is the state representative from Collin County.

Mrs. Gore, who sang in the First Methodist Church of Lucas choir with Mrs. Montgomery, was killed by an ax-wielding assailant in her Wylie home June 13. The attacker struck the 30-year-old mother repeatedly, then apparently washed off her blood in the family shower.

Small bloody footprints were found on the floor of the utility room and traces of blood were discovered on the faucets, soap dish, shower curtain and tub.

Investigators also were able to lift a fingerprint off a blood-smeared refrigerator.

Neighbors discovered the mutilated body in the blood-smeared utility room. The Gore's 1-year-old daughter Bethany was found crying but unharmed in her crib.

The Gore's 5-year-old daughter was staying with Mrs. Montgomery in her Fairview home the day of the slaying.

"That she would be guilty of what they say she is, is incomprehensible," said the Rev. Ron Adams, pastor at the Lucas church. "She's not capable of committing murder. She's a very creative, very talented, very highly intelligent person."

Dallas County medical examiners said Mrs. Gore's skull was crushed in front and back, one of her arms was nearly severed and there were several deep lacerations on her face, indicating she was struck repeatedly after she fell to the floor.

Wylie Police Chief Royce Abbott said there were several holes in the floor that indicated some of the killer's blows missed.

Mutinying Afghans Kill Ten Soviets, Sack Camp

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Mutinying Afghan troops killed 10 Russian soldiers and burned several Afghan and Soviet tanks at a Russian armored division's base camp recently, according to a report received here from a reliable source in the Afghan capital of Kabul.

The source, who insisted on anonymity, said the mutiny occurred June 20 at the base of the Soviet 4th Armored Division at Pol-i-Charki, just outside Kabul.

About 15 Soviet soldiers and some 30 Afghans were wounded in the rebellion, and a "large number" of Afghans were killed, the source said. In addition, the source said Afghan and Soviet tanks and armored cars were destroyed when the mutineers sacked the Soviet camp's arsenal.

The Afghans who survived the mutiny fled into the countryside and joined Moslem rebels battling the Soviet-backed government of Marxist President Babrak Karmal, the source said.

An estimated 100,000 Soviet troops have poured into Afghanistan since December when the Soviets came to the aid of the Afghan Marxists floundering under pressure of rebellious Moslem insurgents.

There was speculation here that the Soviet division might have been regrouping for the partial withdrawal of Soviet units announced by the Kremlin June 22. Western diplomats and travelers have said that heavy armored units are among the forces being pulled out because they are ineffective against the anti-communist guerrillas.

The same sources said the Soviets have sent other units into Afghanistan this month that are better trained for fighting guerrillas in their mountain

As Chief Of Immigration Service...

Garcia Says He Will Accept Post

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—State Rep. Matt Garcia has cast aside his earlier reservations about the job and says he will accept unconditionally an appointment as director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"I will accept the president's nomination and will participate in the Senate hearings no matter whether they are scheduled next week, next month or in the fall," Garcia said Friday.

Garcia expressed reservations about the job last week after special presidential assistant Rick Hernandez said the appointment was forthcoming. He said he feared national party conventions this summer could delay his confirmation hearings until after the Labor Day congressional recess. And he said such a delay could block his participation in Carter's re-election effort in Texas.

Garcia had said Sunday he would ask the White House if it was possible to postpone scheduling Senate confirmation hearings on his nomination until after the November general election.

The request was discussed in a flurry of phone calls between Garcia and the White House during the past week, and culminated in the San Antonio Democrat's announcement Friday.

"I am appreciative of the tremendous honor that President Carter has bestowed upon me by announcing his intention to appoint me to this most important position," Garcia said in statement released Friday.

He said after the appointment was made and confirmed by the senate he would be "ready to undertake what I consider to be the greatest challenge of my life."

Garcia said June 20 that one of the reasons he had wanted time to consider the nomination was his concern he would have to serve as interim director, with the possibility the confirmation process might come close to the November election.

He said his concern should not be construed as a lack of confidence in Carter's ability to win re-election. But that he wanted to be able to serve long enough to make policies consistent with those of former director and fellow Texan Leonel Castillo, who resigned the post last spring.

Border Governors Form Task Force

By BILL GREER
Associated Press Writer
CIUDAD JUAREZ (AP)—Governors meeting here from states along the U.S.-Mexico border didn't solve any problems, but they ended up with plans to attack the touchy international issues.

During their historic conference here Thursday and Friday, the governors decided to form a task force to look into sensitive problems of undocumented workers, drugs and pollution. The "master task force" also would work on issues involving border commerce, tourism, energy, ecology, agriculture and cultural exchange.

The governors agreed to meet again within a year. At a private meeting Friday, nine governors spent most of the morning talking over a revised proposal involving illegal aliens.

All agreed in principle to Texas Gov. Bill Clements' plan to allow "visiting workers from Mexico" to obtain "guest passes" to work and live for specific periods of time in the United States.

"The plan has to be polished," according to New Mexico Finance Director David King, who attended the closed-door sessions.

King said Clements and Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who previously has not agreed with Clements' proposal, finally got together on the alien issue. "Some points need refining" before the suggestions are sent to the State Department, King said.

Clements pulled off of some points and Babbitt pulled off of some points and finally Babbitt called it a "magnificent proposal," King added.

Babbitt had earlier said the proposal did not deal with ensuring humane treatment of the Mexican workers in the United States.

At Friday sessions, temperatures in this area hit 100-plus for the 18th straight day. Governors in the motel ballroom felt little relief from the dozen electric fans. Some Mexican and U.S. governors traded their dark, three-piece suits for traditional Mexican embroidered thin cotton shirts.

More than 175 Mexican journalists covered the event.

Although all issues were discussed at length, no specific problems were solved.

Babbitt said the governors would "develop procedures and not reach specific conclusions" at the conference.

Babbitt - the only governor to speak in both languages - was the most popular politician at the meeting. He received several standing ovations for his remarks sympathetic to Mexican causes.

"No one is educated until they know two languages," Babbitt said.

Rain Still Plagues Wimbledon...

'New' McEnroe Looks Good

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - John McEnroe defeated Tom Okker, the 36-year-old Dutch star, 6-0, 6-1 in intermittent rain Saturday and became the first man to reach the last 16 of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

The American left-hander is seeded to meet four-time defending champion Bjorn Borg in the final.

Rain, which has seriously disrupted the tournament, fell all night and play started late. Light rain began several times during the match, but the umpire ordered the players to continue, despite appealing gesutres by McEnroe.

The American was in devastating form with his service in the first and third sets. But in between he faltered and Okker, playing his 17th Wimbledon, roused the Center Court crowd with some delightful shots.

Okker hit two delicately angled returns and broke McEnroe's service for the first time at 3-2 in the second set. McEnroe finished that game with a double fault.

The American broke back, took the set to a tiebreaker and was in trouble again. Okker hit a magnificent looping forehand that clipped the baseline, and went to set point at 7-6. He had another set-point at 8-7, but McEnroe volleyed his way out of trouble and went on to take the tiebreaker 11-9.

McEnroe regained his serving touch and raced through the third set.

Seven women's seeds won in the third round on Saturday. Top-ranked Martina Navratilova struggled to oust Tanya Harford of South Africa 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. Billie Jean King, seeded fifth and chasing her seventh singles title - she's won 20 overall - blasted fellow American Peanut Louie 6-2, 6-2. No. 6 Wendy Turnbull of Australia beat Sherry Acker of the U.S. 6-3, 6-2. No. 9 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia ousted Rose Fairbanks of South Africa 6-2, 6-4; American Kathy Jordan, seeded 10th, defeated countrywoman Pam Tee-guarden 6-4, 6-3; No. 11 Greer Stevens of South Africa topped American teen-ager Bettina Bunge 6-4, 6-3, and 15-year-old American Andrea Jaeger, ranked 14th, walloped Jane Stratton of the U.S. 6-1, 6-1.

Despite his protests Saturday about playing in the rain, McEnroe seems to have taken a new approach to the championships this year. Dubbed "Superbrat" and booed by spectators last year, McEnroe is the new hero of Wimbledon's teenybopper fans.

That's in sharp contrast to the problem behavior of Ilie Nastase here. Nastase, tennis' perennial bad boy, is in trouble again.

The 1980 version of John McEnroe is a far cry from the brash, arrogant youth who used to alienate crowds and officials on both sides of the Atlantic and was regularly vilified by his hometown crowds in New York.

No more scowls, no angry outbursts at umpires, McEnroe is a changed man - thus far.

But Nastase, bane of many an official, got himself into trouble with the police Friday after being involved in a brush with reporters that ended with one newsman's glasses being smashed.

Ironically, Nastase's on-court behavior had been impeccable as he carved out a 4-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2 second-round victory over American Dick Stockton.

Hintnaus Soars 18-4 1/2 To Win Vault Trials

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - With only two days left in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials, there still hasn't been a world record pole vault height. He thought he was close on three of his bids at 18 feet, 11 1/4 inches. The world mark is 18-10 1/2.

Hintnaus, runnerup in the national collegiate championship meet for the University of Oregon this month, said he thought he had the world mark "on my last two attempts."

He added, "I was really close on both of them. I know I'm capable of a world record now. I know I can do it. I didn't know it before today but I know it now."

Hintnaus, 22, of Manhattan Beach, Calif., won with a personal best 18-4 1/2 while favored Mike Tully and veteran Dan Ripley tied for second at 18-2 1/2. Former professional Steve Smith, who got into the meet on fewer misses, was fourth at 18-2 1/2.

"This was icing on the cake," smiled Smith. "Just getting into the meet was a victory." "I really think I can do 19 feet in Europe this summer," Hintnaus said. "It's something I'm really going to shoot for now. This really gave my confidence a shot in the arm."

Friday night's other men's winners were 30-year-old Pete Shmook in the shot put at 68-4 and University of Southern California freshman Bill Green at 45.85 seconds in the 400-meter dash.

In the women's 200-meter dash, veteran Chandra Cheeseborough won in 22.70 seconds. In a special women's 10,000-meter finale, Kristen Bankes won in 33:45.6.

Brownfield Hosts

Tennis Tourney

BROWNFIELD - The annual Brownfield Open Tennis Tournament will be held July 9-12 here. Deadline to register is the evening of July 7.

Events include 10 boys-girls singles, 12 boys-girls doubles and singles, 14 boys singles and girls doubles, 18 boys-girls singles and doubles, 19-29 A-division mens-womens singles and doubles, 19-29 B-division mens-womens singles and doubles, 30-39 mens-womens singles and doubles, 40 and above mens and womens singles and doubles, A-division mixed doubles, B-division mixed doubles and C-division mixed doubles.

To enter, call Virdie Montgomery at (806) 637-3496.

Awards will be given for first through third place in 10s, 12s, 14s and 16s and first and second in all other divisions.

Each player may enter three events.

Californian Leading Olympic Diving Trials

AUSTIN (AP) - For Megan Neyer, the Californian who surprised herself by carving out an impressive lead after the qualifying round at the Olympic Diving Trials, the strategy off the three-meter springboard is elementary.

"All I really wanted to do was be consistent and land on my head on all my dives," she said after the Friday night opening event at the five-day trials.

The 18-year-old landed on her head all night at the Texas Swim Center and pulled away from a strong field that includes two Olympic medalists.

Neyer piled up 497.54 points. Jenny Chandler, her teammate from Mission Viejo, Calif., and the 1976 gold medalist in the event, was second with 460.68 points.

Chris Seufert of Ann Arbor Mich., was third with 458.73 points. Fourth was Cindy Potter of Dallas, 1976 bronze medalist at Montreal, with 445.10 points.

Also qualifying for the Saturday night finals were Kelly McCormick, Mission Viejo, 442.50 points; Michele Hain, Dallas, 426.36; Christine Look, Dallas, 424.62; and Carrie Irish Finneran, Columbus, Ohio, 416.01.

This is Neyer's first try for the Olympics. She took the lead for good after the sixth dive, and clinched the qualifying round win with her eighth dive. That dive, a reverse two and one-half somersault in the tuck position, usually is unpredictable for her.

"I'm always very nervous about it. It can go most any way," she said. It went the right way Friday night. She hit just right, drew cheers from the crowd and earned 73.08 points from the judges. It was the night's best dive.

Neyer, who graduated from high school two weeks ago, credited the veteran Chandler for helping her along.

"She's taught me a lot," she said, recalling watching her friend win the gold in Montreal.

Neyer moved to Mission Viejo two years ago to work on her diving. She finished third in the 1980 U.S. Indoors off the springboard, and took fifth in the 10-meter platform.

Wilson shared one of only two hits given up by losing pitcher William Robinson. Gary Don Edmiston got the other.

Winning hurler Shawn Ragland allowed three hits, including a triple to Kyle Short. Perry Echols and Robinson added a single each.

Texas Blanks Minnesota, 5-0...

Perry Finds Success In Speed

ARLINGTON (AP)

Richie Zisk insists his comment to Gaylord Perry a few days ago was made in only a joking way. But the 41-year-old Texas Ranger pitcher took him seriously.

"All I did was mention that it's easier to stay alert and play better defense when the pitcher is working faster," said Zisk.

"I think now maybe I should become a pitching coach," he added.

Perry, 4-6, who normally toils for three hours or longer, ignored 109-degree temperatures Friday night and threw only 82 pitches in beating the Minnesota Twins 5-0 in a game that lasted only an hour and 49 minutes.

"We're gonna wake 'em up now, buddies," laughed Perry after the game.

He allowed only four hits, struck out two and walked none. He retired nine batters on one pitch and seven more on two pitches.

The victory was Perry's second shutout of the season and the 52nd of his 19-year big league career.

"Do I pitch better when I work faster? Give me a chance, it's only the second time I've done it," said Perry, who enjoyed a 5-1 lead after seven innings last Sunday night while pitching faster. He didn't get the win in that game, however, because of a collapse in Texas.

bullpen staff after Perry took himself out.

The Texas defense performed flawlessly behind Perry, with second baseman Bump Wills pulling off three plays that drew oatations from the crowd. The Rangers jumped on Minnesota starter Pete Redfern for five hits and four runs in the first inning, with Pat Putnam's two-run homer the big blow.

"When you've got things going for you, you try to keep your pace. It made me more aggressive, which is what you have to be. Anything to get those guys happy and get those runs in early," Perry said.

Zisk said when he approached Perry before his last start, "I told him I'd never try to tell him what to do, as successful as he's been."

"But I asked him to take note of all the good plays made behind Jon Matlack and Ferguson Jenkins, who work faster. It's easier to stay alert when you know the pitcher is ready to go. You have to stay on your toes," Zisk said.

Redfern, 6-6, lasted only one inning. Mickey Rivers and Wills singled and Al Oliver drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly. Wills stole second and slid under the throw at home for the second run when Rusty Staub singled. That set the stage for a home run over the center field fence by Putnam, who started his first game in 10 days.

Oliver hit a solo homer in the third to wrap up the scoring.

Shortstop Roy Smalley got three of the Twins' four hits. He doubled in the fourth and added singles in the sixth and ninth. Perry retired the first eight hitters before John Castino singled in the third.

Gene Mauch, manager of the Twins, called Perry "a master craftsman," but noted "He's working faster than he used to."

Wiser Houston Rallies To Defeat Cincinnati

HOUSTON (AP)

Houston pitcher Joe Niekro figures Friday night's 5-4 comeback victory over Cincinnati was a demonstration of what a difference a year of maturity makes in the Astros.

The Reds peppered Niekro for six hits and four runs in the first inning before the Astros battled back and finally won it in the eighth inning on Jose Cruz two-run triple.

A year ago, when Houston frittered away a 10-game lead over Cincinnati in the National League Western Division race, the Astros might have folded. Not this game.

"Last year we walked around the dressing room in awe of ourselves, like we didn't belong in the race," said Niekro, who survived the shaky start for his eighth victory.

"This year we went to spring training knowing we could win it all. A year of maturity made the difference."

Although the hard-pitching, light-hitting Astros aren't known as comeback kids, Cruz said he never doubted a rally.

"We're not going to make a lot of comebacks but they got their lead early so I knew we had a chance," Cruz said. "If it had been in the eighth inning, we'd have had a harder time."

There will be five events in each division: softball throw, standing broad jump, 25 and 50-yard dashes and a 220-yard relay in the Pee Wee and Bantam classes; and softball throw, running broad jump, 50 and 100-yard dashes, and 440-yard relay in the Midget and Junior classes.

JUST ANOTHER STEP—Cardinal runner Tracy Brazier comes in fast, trying to beat the throw to first baseman Terry McCreavey in Pee Wee baseball action this week. Tracy need just one more step. He was out by a fraction of a second. Pee Wee action concluded Friday afternoon. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

LA Blasts Giants, 7-0...

Reuss No-Hits 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)

For Sandy Koufax, Vida Blue and even Dave Bristol, it was deja vu. But for Jerry Reuss, it was a brand new feeling.

"I just threw a no-hitter, what could be a bigger thrill," Reuss said between swigs on a champagne bottle after he left the San Francisco Giants without a hit Friday night in an 8-0 Los Angeles Dodger victory. "I started thinking about it in the first inning, but I didn't start thinking seriously about it until the eighth."

"Sure, I felt the pressure. I knew what was going on. I didn't want to make a mistake. When you are just trying to get someone out, you have a little leeway. But this was a no-hitter. I came close once or twice before and I wasn't going to make a mistake this time."

Reuss, 9-1, made few if any mistakes, striking out two and walking none in tossing the first no-hitter since Houston's Ken Forsch did it against Atlanta on April 4, 1979. All that kept Reuss from the ninth perfect game in modern baseball history was Bill Russell's, throwing error on Jack Clark's routine grounder in the first inning.

"I just threw it away," it's as simple as that," Russell said. "Later, I thought, 'There's nothing I can do about it now. He can't get a perfect game, so let's go after the no-hitter.'"

Catfish Hunter, then of the Oakland A's, threw the last perfect game in the majors in 1968. The last perfect game in the National League was in 1965 by Sandy Koufax, now a coach with the Dodgers.

"It will probably be hard to get the smile off his face for a while," Koufax said of Reuss. "He was totally in command—there wasn't one ball hit well through the whole game. In the eighth and ninth of a game like this, pitchers tend to get a little overcautious but Jerry didn't do that. He was great."

Losing pitcher, Vida

Blue, 9-5, was another admirer who knows how Reuss feels.

"As a pitcher, I appreciate what he did," said Blue, who had his own no-hitter with the Oakland A's in 1975. "Personally, I'm glad for him, but as far as the San Francisco Giants go, I hate his guts."

That feeling went double for Manager Dave Bristol, who once saw Jim Maloney pitch a no-hitter for his Cincinnati Reds in 1969 and then Don Wilson of the Houston Astros throw one back at the Reds the next night.

"I never want to get no-hit," Bristol said sharply. "I was pulling like mad for somebody to get a base hit. Nobody likes to see a no-hitter pitched against them. But Reuss was outstanding, he had super stuff."

Research Centers Plan For Tests Of Laetrile

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The much-debated question of whether Laetrile cures cancer finally will be put to the test next month by the National Cancer Institute.

Institute officials announced Friday that four cancer research centers across the nation will use the apricot pit derivative to treat 200 to 300 cancer patients whose cancers have not responded to other treatments.

The cancer institute first announced almost two years ago that it would test Laetrile in an effort to settle the question.

Laetrile proponents claim it is effective in treating cancer although the medical community generally disagrees. Doctors say there has been no accepted research showing the treatment to be effective.

Laetrile has long been banned by the federal government, although a federal judge in Oklahoma ruled two years ago that cancer patients can use it under controlled conditions. Meanwhile, 20 states have legalized its use under certain conditions.

The biggest Laetrile treatment centers are in Tijuana, Mexico, just south of the United States border, where the treatment is legal. A number of clinics are operated in Tijuana and thousands of Americans have crossed the border for treatment.

Paul Van Nevel, a spokesman for the National Cancer Institute, said the trials can finally begin because researchers at the Mayo Clinic have completed their own preliminary testing program to determine whether patients receive dangerous amounts of cyanide from Laetrile. Apricot pits contain cyanide.

The test involved six persons treated with Laetrile. Van Nevel said Five showed no toxic effects and the sixth showed some traces of toxicity after eating large amounts of raw almonds, which apparently stimulate the release of cyanide.

The Mayo researchers concluded the side effects are not serious enough to interfere with the institute tests.

The tests will be on patients at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, the University of Arizona, and the UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles.

Researchers will be trying to determine whether Laetrile relieves pain or reduces the size of tumors, one of the claims made by some patients who have been treated in Mexico.

Only patients who have measurable tumors and for whom no other treatment, such as chemotherapy, has been effective will be considered for the tests, Van Nevel said.

No patients have yet been picked. Persons wishing to volunteer can call a cancer hotline for referral. In the 48 contiguous states except Maryland, the number to call is 800-638-6694 and in Maryland the number is 800-492-6600. In Alaska and Hawaii, the number to call is 800-638-6070.

In 1288, a law was enacted in Scotland, permitting spinsters to propose to bachelors during leap years.

The Keys

The Church was first established and the door of salvation opened in the Book of the Acts of the Apostles. This fact no one can truthfully deny. The New Testament Church was founded on the day of Pentecost, Acts 2. We follow that original plan of salvation, therefore we are called Pentecostals. Please remember that the New Testament Church was not founded in the four Gospels. Important as they are, we must go to the Book of Acts to locate the door into the Kingdom of God. Neither can we find the beginning of one single church in the Epistles. These are letters written to churches or individuals who had already experienced the Pentecostal "born again" salvation. If this simple truth will be remembered, no one need ever be confused as to the correct plan of salvation.

THE GOSPELS

If you are interested in the ministry of Jesus and his wonderful work in laying the foundation for the New Testament Church which was established on the day of Pentecost, then please read the Gospels. Please remember that "the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified." The calling of the Gospel writers is found here, and their individual manner in presenting Christ. Some method or form of baptism is suggested by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and all carry the same weight of authority, but none were ever used, because the Church was not established until after Jesus was crucified, rose from the dead, ascended on high and baptized his followers with the Holy Ghost. Acts 2:4. Don't forget that neither the Gospels nor the Epistles opened the door of salvation. If you are hungry for God's way you will find it in the Book of Acts.

THE BOOK OF ACTS

Matthew, Mark, Luke and John were all present on the day of Pentecost when the Holy Ghost was given. Acts 2. They were all witnesses to Peter's marvelous sermon as he opened the door of salvation. He alone could do this, as Christ had given him the "keys." Matt. 16:19. None disputed his plan or authority, as their understanding was then opened to the identity of Jesus, i.e., that He was the Mighty God manifest in the flesh. They then realized that He alone was the embodiment of the Holy Spirit which he called His Father. Therefore, there was no argument when Peter demanded that "water baptism should be administered in the Name of Jesus Christ." Acts 2:38. Peter also opened the same door of salvation to the Gentiles in Acts 10. The city of Samaria received the plan of salvation by being baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, and Paul re-baptized the disciples of John the Baptist in that wonderful name. Acts 19. If you are hungry for God's plan of salvation you will find it in the Book of Acts.

THE EPISTLES

If you wish to read the instructions given to various churches, such as Corinthians and Ephesians, and also to individuals such as Timothy and Titus, then please turn to the Epistles. These were written after they had entered the door of salvation. The churches had been founded in the Book of Acts. Opponents of this Pentecostal truth will attempt to lead their followers astray by referring them to the Epistles instead of holding steadfast to Acts, where the door of salvation is found. Clever clergy, knowing the limited Bible knowledge of the average lay member, can easily keep him from the Pentecostal experience, especially if there is only a lukewarm interest on the part of the enquirer. Such scriptures as "We know we have passed from death unto life because we love the brethren," or "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God" are substituted for Acts 2:38.

The gift of tongues mentioned in Paul's Epistle to the Corinthian Church (saints) is one of the nine gifts that a saint (not a sinner) already possessing the Holy Spirit, may or may never receive. No one could possibly receive the gift of tongues or any of the nine gifts who had not previously received the Holy Ghost, speaking in other tongues as the Spirit gave utterance. Acts 2:4.

THE CONCLUSION of the matter is this: The Gospels point to the way of salvation and the Epistles confirm it, but the door of salvation is found in the Book of Acts. This "born again" plan of salvation, consisting of water baptism by immersion in the name of Jesus Christ and the infilling of the Holy Ghost as evidenced by the heavenly witness of speaking in other tongues (Acts 2:4, 38), has never been changed since the day of Pentecost. No man dare change it, no, not even an angel from Heaven. The gates of Hell shall not prevail against it. This experience is imperative if you are to be ready for the soon coming of the Lord.

Two level response usage

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

When you go to the two level with your first response you intend to get to game unless your partner merely rebids his suit, in which case you can pass with an 11- or 12-point minimum.

Or you may respond two clubs with S-x-x H-x-x D-x-x C-A-Q J 9 8 6 4 and rebid three clubs to show this sort of hand and give him a chance to quit.

In standard American when the minimum for a two-level response was 7, 8 or 9 points the requirement for bidding past two of your suit was to have much more than a minimum. Thus the rebid to two notrump on a sequence such as 1 S, 2 D, 2 NT was at least 15 high-card points. Today it merely shows a hand such as S-A-Q 9 8 4 H-K 10 4 D-J 2 C-K 9 7. A minimum opening bid of notrump pattern.

Similarly, when you open one diamond and partner responds two clubs you should now rebid two spades with a minimum such as S-A-Q 10 8 H-7 5 4 D-A-K 6 3 C-10 7.

Another unusual feature of playing two level responses as game forces is that you can do a lot of slam prospecting without getting past game. Thus, take the partnership sequence 1 S, 2 H, 3 H. This merely shows a minimum hand with good hearts. Maybe S-A-K x x x H-K Q x x D-J x C-x x. It says "Partner, we've found home."

The three-heart bid here might also be a minimum without very good hearts, but it could also be a good hand. In either case partner will bid a new suit to show slam interest and just go to game with a minimum.

Suppose you have opened one spade with S-A-Q x x x H-K Q x x D-A x C-x x. Partner responds two hearts, you just raise him to three. If he goes to game, you pass. But if he bid four clubs, you bid four diamonds.

What do you do if he bids four diamonds? You jump to five hearts. This shows two quick club losers with a solid hand outside.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 1) Take those blunders off when shopping today, or you could end up buying unnecessary items and assuming unwise financial obligations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think for yourself and make all your own decisions today. Pour on the charm and be tactful if another offers an opinion, but politely disregard it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could cause a problem for yourself if you offer unsolicited advice and it doesn't work out. Help with your muscles, but let the other guy direct the mental efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid topics that cause disharmony with friends today. It won't matter who's right, if the friendship suffers over issues that can't be resolved anyway.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might start out like a ball of fire today, but unless you establish definite goals you're likely to drift off-course and accomplish little or nothing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) Try to see things from the other fellow's point of view today, not just from your own. You'll be amazed at just how much you failed to grasp from your position.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Neither you nor your mate should make any large expenditures without first talking things over. If you're not in accord, trouble could arise.

Joint ventures hold particular promise for you this coming year, especially those with members of the opposite sex. Collectively, you should be able to put rewarding projects together.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's important to make your needs known to others today, but do so without being demanding. They'll want to help if they understand your wants. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're adroit today at horse trading or putting complicated deals together. It's easy since you're not just looking out for No. 1.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Business and pleasure mix well today, so if you have a client you're working with, do so in a congenial atmosphere. Turn the sale into a fun happening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It may be necessary to play a little politics today in order to fulfill your ambitions. You'll know how to do it without being phony.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your financial aspects are promising today, but you'll have to use your imagination to carry things off to the best advantage. Don't restrict your thinking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It shouldn't prove too difficult today to motivate allies or associates regarding things for your mutual good. Point out the advantages.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be prepared to make adjustments or compromises today in monetary matters. You won't come out on the short end if you're cooperative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone you know socially can prove helpful to you in commercial areas as well. Strengthen your bonds today with this valuable contact.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Events could appear to get a little out of hand today, but if you keep your cool everything will work out fine in the long run.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Friends will be very sensitive to your needs today. They'll do what they can to remove roadblocks from your path.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) It may be necessary to take a calculated risk or a slight gamble today in order to achieve your goals. Be daring, but keep both feet on the ground.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though you may be materially motivated today, you should be able to get what you want without being forceful or selfish. Care and share.

Groom's Attendants...

Wedding Day Tradition

Long ago, when a young man fell in love, he didn't stand on ceremony—he just stole into the girl's house and kidnapped her! But he played it safe by bringing along a strong-armed friend to deal with any pursuers.

If his lady love had more than one brother, he brought along several stalwart friends. Hence, the tradition of a "best man" and "ushers" was born.

Nowadays, the best man and ushers perform equally important—if less dramatic—functions.

Aside from getting the groom to the church on time (properly, one quarter hour in advance of the ceremony), his attendants perform such tasks as seating the bride's and bridegroom's family and friends, having the clergyman's or judge's fee and the marriage license ready at the appropriate time, and acting as toastmaster at the bridal table, paying special attention to the bride's attendants.

As an expression of his gratitude for their help, the groom traditionally presents the best man and ushers with commemorative gifts.

According to Reed and Barton Silversmiths, an ideal way to mark the occasion is to present male members of the bridal party with new sterling Atra razors.

This elegant shaving system features Reed and Barton's rich sterling silver handle, finely crafted in a flared and faceted design that fits a man's hand comfortably.

Bonded to the new Gillette Atra automatic adjusting razor head—the same Atra that has received such high acclaim for smooth shaving performance—it creates a luxurious shaving experience.

Handsomely gift boxed with extra blades (and infinite prestige), the sterling Atra shaving system assures fond memories, plus the enduring pleasure derived from a gift of fine sterling silver.

Empty suitcases or cardboard boxes can be used to store out-of-season clothing if closet space is short.

Dear Abby

"No Fool" Bachelor Must Stop Fooling Around

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after we were married, my husband's brother came to live with us. It's been five years now, and I am a nervous wreck.

He's a bachelor with a good job, money in the bank, a new car, yet he has no interest in sports, women, church or anything. He spends hours in the bathroom getting ready to go nowhere. He's an authority on every subject and has his nose in everything that goes on in this house. We have absolutely no privacy.

When I suggest he find some nice girl and get married, he says only fools get married.

My husband says we can't ask him to leave because he has no place to go. What do you say?

SICK OF HIM

DEAR SICK: I say you should tell Bachelor Brother that two "fools" who have provided a home for him have had it. And if he's not "foolish" enough to take a wife, he should take an apartment.

DEAR ABBY: I'm an adult woman, employed as an office manager. I take classes at college at night and work weekends as a volunteer in a nursing home. I am also the mother of three fine teenagers.

I am happily married to a wonderful man who adores me. By the way, I am fat, I know I am fat and I've been that way for years.

Last night I was offended by a slim, well-meaning acquaintance who said, "You don't need that," when I reached for a pretzel.

Abby, I am sick and tired of people who feel compelled to tell me what I should and shouldn't eat. I am fully aware of my problem, and will handle it—or not handle it—as I see fit.

I am convinced that thin people do not understand fat people. I know this person meant well, but if she and others like her knew how their fat friends felt, they would keep their comments to themselves. Please convey our feelings of frustration, anger and humiliation.

Overeaters Anonymous has a rule about not pushing a person into the program until he/she is ready. Please appeal to your readers to honor that philosophy. It's the only one that works.

HEAVY IN HICKSVILLE, N.Y.

DEAR HEAVY: Strange you should mention Overeaters Anonymous. I read the following letter immediately after yours:

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago you recommended Overeaters Anonymous in your column, and it was the best thing that ever happened to me. It saved my life.

At that time I was grossly overweight and no longer cared if I lived or died. (I was strongly leaning toward the latter.) Even with a fine husband and four wonderful children needing and loving me, I felt there was no reason to go on living. I looked like a fat slob and didn't have the willpower to do anything about it. Every time I looked in the mirror I came away hating myself. Then I read an article in your column that turned the tide for me. I had tried all sorts of diets but nothing lasted. I wasn't totally convinced that Overeaters Anonymous was the answer, but as an ardent fan of Dear Abby, I had to try.

Today I am 75 pounds lighter, maintaining my ideal weight, feeling great, looking terrific and loving life.

Please keep plugging this marvelous group. I found people at O.A. who were exactly like me with the same kind of problems. We all worked together, helping each other overcome the desire to eat compulsively. Thank you, Abby.

GRATEFUL IN KENTUCKY

DEAR GRATEFUL: I, too, am grateful for another opportunity to tell my readers to look for Overeaters Anonymous in their phone books. Or write to Box 1640, Torrance, Calif. 90504, for information about the chapter nearest you. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CURIOUS ABOUT CONSCRIPTION: Conscriptio varies from country to country, and the laws change with time, too. For example, the following order was issued in Ethiopia in 1935 by the then-emperor, Haile Selassie:

- 1) All men and boys able to carry a spear go to Addis Ababa.
- 2) Every married man will bring his wife to cook and wash for him.
- 3) Every unmarried man will bring any unmarried woman he can find to cook and wash for him.
- 4) Women with babies, the blind and those too aged and infirm to carry a spear are excused.
- 5) Anyone who qualifies for battle and is found at home after receiving this order will be hanged!

ENERGY SAVERS, MEET THE INDUCTION RANGE.

Energy savers, meet the induction range, the "something new" that's "cooking" in the kitchen. Induction (cool heat) countertop ranges are unlike any conventional range -- mainly they're highly energy efficient, since they turn the cooking utensil itself into a burner. Also, they wipe clean, and the surface "doubles" as a cutting board or countertop. In addition, they feature several safety precautions -- they won't let a pot burn if it "boils dry," for example.

EXTREME ENERGY EFFICIENCY

Cooking without the usual heating elements, the induction range induces heat directly into the cookware -- rather than the usual method of heating up a cooktop and then transferring heat to the cookware.

Specifically, here's how it works, an electromagnetic coil beneath a ceramic cooking surface creates a magnetic field.

When iron or steel cookware is placed within the field, it heats up instantly and cooks the food in the cookware.

Because the cookware itself becomes the burner, the only heat generated is the heat in the pan, although the pan might reflect a small amount of heat back to the counter-top.

Consequently, the induction unit is extremely energy efficient, and this method of cooking is cooler and safer than conventional methods.

TYPES AVAILABLE

Two types are available -- a free-standing range with the induction cooktop and a drop-in cooktop for built-in counters.

VERSATILE HEAT CHOICES

Controls are permanent magnets of the slide-rule type, and they activate power switches inside the range -- so you get infinite heat selection from "high" to "off."

Cooking starts rapidly and the heat decreases quickly at the end of the operation.

USUAL WIRING NEEDED

Induction ranges operate on standard 220-volt, 60 ampere, AC power -- the same needed for conventional electric ranges.

SAFETY FEATURES

Several unique safety features guard against misuse of the induction range.

A pilot light indicates when a unit is on. Also, the range will automatically shut off if no utensil is over one of the units or if a pot "boils dry."

If the homemaker accidentally uses copper or aluminum cookware -- and the current in the induction coil begins to climb, the current is limited automatically to a lower safe value.

USE IRON, STEEL COOKWARE

Induction ranges do need special cookware -- steel or iron ONLY.

This includes stainless steel and porcelain enamel steel, along with cast iron or enameled iron.

These materials give a desirable range of cooking

Advance Planning A Must For The Perfect Wedding

You're in love and you've promised to marry him. You're feeling as sentimental as old lace and in a bit of a tizzy wondering what to do first. You want your wedding to be a beautiful start to your life together.

"Every wedding is unique because of the bride and groom involved," says Barbara Doebele of Hallmark Cards, a leading manufacturer of keepsake wedding albums.

The key is organization, she says. A beautiful, formal wedding involves plenty of behind-the-scenes planning. She recommends a headstart of six months to a year.

"Once the date is set, the bride usually sits down with her parents to discuss the size, style and budget allocated, taking their personal wishes into consideration."

Wedding expenses are traditionally divided between families of the bride and groom, but the bride's family is entirely responsible for the ceremony and reception expenses.

Six months before the wedding is not too early for the groom to choose his ushers and finalize honeymoon plans. The bride will be busy making the appropriate reservations and shopping for wedding attire for herself and her attendants.

Three months before, the bride and groom should have completed their guest list, taking care to include important members of both families.

This detailed record will be useful later for writing thank-you notes and inviting friends to visit them in their first home.

At this point, the bride should register with the local stores and select her china, silver and crystal.

This is also the time to order the wedding cake if it's not included in the caterer's package. (You can determine if it's more economical to take the cake offered in the caterer's reception package rather than purchasing heats, since they possess enough resistance to the flow of current to provide an easy path for a magnetic field. On the other hand, glass and ceramic materials offer to great a resistance to current flow, so they will not heat on induction ranges.

Also, aluminum and copper have too little resistance to the current flow, so they don't provide enough heat for cooking, either, although they are good conductors in conventional cooking methods.

Wipe-clean work surface. Since the range top never becomes hot, any spills or stains cannot burn on them simply wipe off. Also, the magnetic controls lift off for easy cleaning.

In addition, you can use the entire top as a counter work surface -- even as a cutting board. Ceramic is so tough that it isn't damaged if utensils are dropped on it.

elsewhere.)

Next, the unlikely chore of choosing the bridal bouquet and going away corsage belongs to the groom. Two months before the wedding, he should visit the florist and arrange for corsages for the mothers and grandmothers, and boutonnieres for the attendants, as well.

"There are so many things to remember in planning a perfect wedding," says Doebele, "many couples find it useful to buy a wedding memory album."

It not only serves to record the actual day, but the myriad details leading up to it. Memorabilia such as snapshots, newspaper clippings, even a matchbook from the restaurant they visited, will revive all the joys leading up to the wedding.

Meat Helps Improve Diet

One of the best examples of a food with a high number of nutrients for the calories it contains is beef. A 3-ounce serving of lean, cooked beef supplies significant amount of high-quality protein, iron, zinc and the B vitamins niacin, thiamine, riboflavin, B₆ and B₁₂, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Yet this serving contains less than 160 calories, making it a nutritional bargain.

A thoroughly modern old-fashioned wedding

Just about every bride-to-be thinks about having an old-fashioned wedding and capturing the spirit of yesterday for a little while. But not many would like to live that way all the time.

It would be difficult to live without the technical advances that help make life in today's world comfortable and convenient.

Zenith Radio Corporation shares this feeling and has introduced a line of color TV sets with the technical advances of the space age, in cabinets of varying design -- from streamlined Ultramodern to the warmth and charm of Early American and Colonial styles.

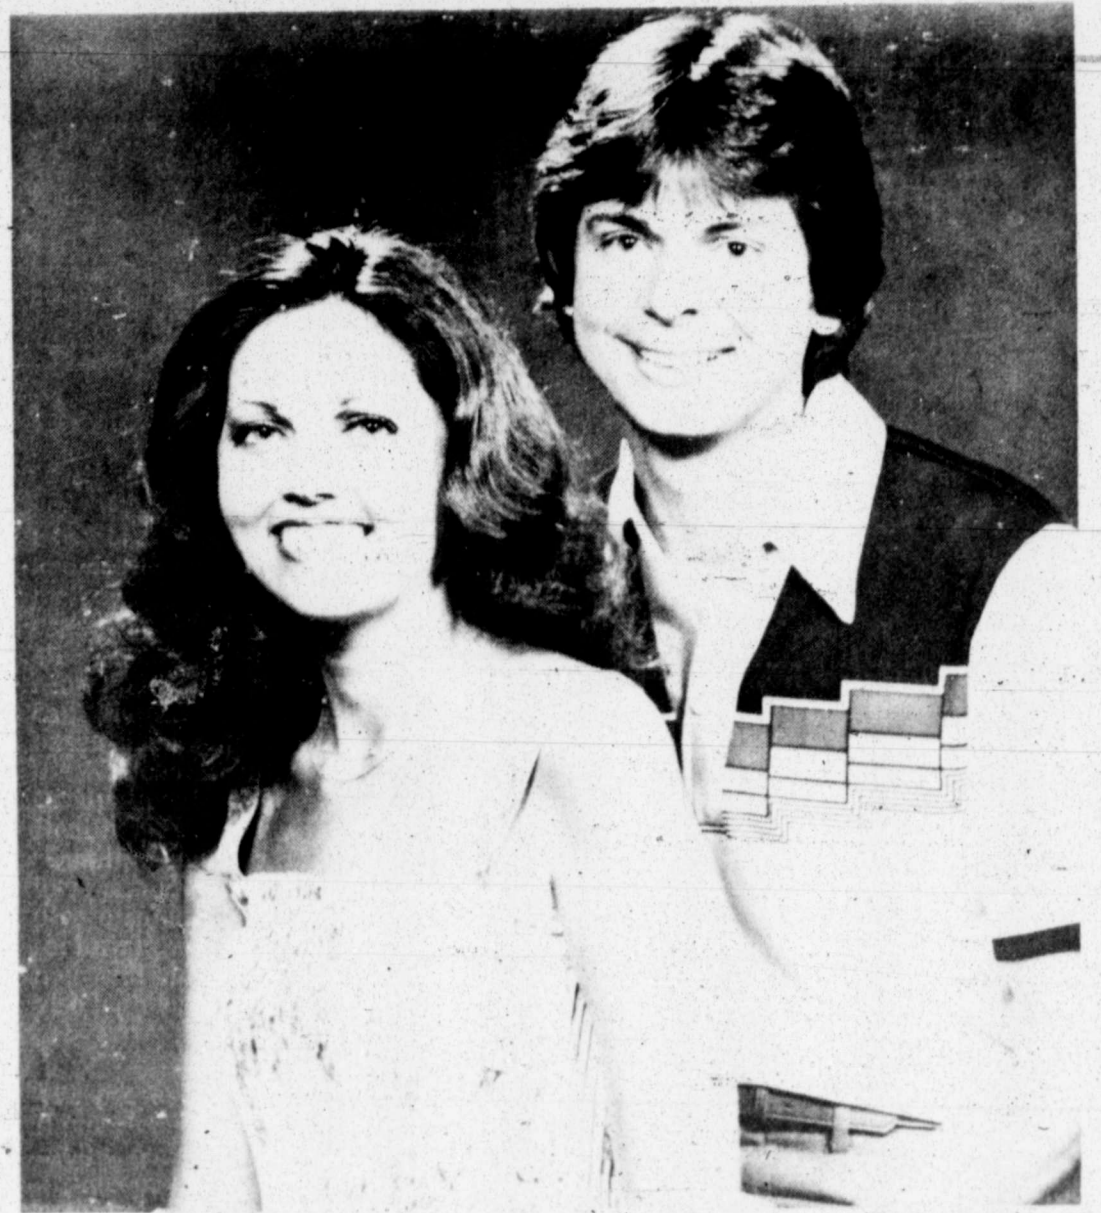

These sets, all System 3 models, feature a micro-processor-based tuning system. Keyboard Touch-Command stores channel frequency information and recalls it upon demand.

It provides random and direct access to any of 105 channels -- VHF channels 2 through 13; UHF channels 14 through 83; and the 23 mid- and super-band cable TV channels.

To select a channel with Keyboard Touch-Command, the viewer simply presses the number of the channel desired, then the Enter button, and the station is programmed instantly.

At the flick of a switch on the set, the cable channels can be selected using the keyboard, and non-scrambled programming can be received without the use of a converter or adapter.

Keyboard Touch-Command also comes in a remote control version. Computer Space Command allows the viewer to turn the set on or off, change channels directly, change volume up or down through a continuous range, mute the sound completely, or ZOOM in for an in-ENGAGED-Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Stokes of Ballinger announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Kay, to Tim Tarkenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Tarkenton, of Mineral Wells. Miss Stokes is a graduate of Tarleton State University and is presently employed by Palo Pinto General Hospital, where she is a medical technologist and laboratory supervisor. Tarkenton is a graduate of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston and is a physician assistant in Snyder. The wedding will be at the First Baptist Church, Ballinger, Aug. 16.

Many of the higher priced cuts of beef require the least amount of time to prepare. This contributes to creating an increasing demand for sirloin, T-bone and Porterhouse steaks as more and more women enter the labor force. Steaks have special time-saving appeal for the woman who works outside the home and has to prepare family meals. Hence is on the lookout for ways to save time in the kitchen. The additional demand for the limited supply of popular steaks is one of the factors behind the current price of beef, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Search Underway For "Face Of The 80's"

A worldwide search for a young woman whose face most typifies the beauty and fashion "Face of the 80's" was launched here today by Merle Norman Cosmetics and Ford Models, Inc.

"We are pleased Merle Norman is sponsoring this international search with Eileen and Jerry Ford, whose agency has been responsible for discovering such famous models as Cheryl Tiegs, Suzie Parker and Beverly Johnson," said Irene Brooks, owner of Snyder's Merle Norman Studio.

The "search" begins this month and will end in Monaco in September.

A two-year Ford Models agency contract, valued at $50,000, goes to the young woman a jury of fashion experts identifies as having the "Face of the 80's."

The search is open to all women from the ages of 16 to 21, who have or have not had professional modeling experience.

To enter the search, applications must be picked up at the Merle Norman Studio. The deadline for submitting applications is July 31.

The original elimination will be based on photographs submitted by applicants. Two head shots (one in black and white, one in color) and one full length color in a bathing suit is required.

A "Face" will be selected from each of the 50 states. From that group, 12 finalists will be identified for a trip to New York where a panel of fashion experts will select the "U.S. Face of the 80's."

The U.S. "Face" will receive an all-expenses-

FCC Putting Stereo AM On Hold

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission is having second thoughts about a decision clearing the way for stereophonic AM broadcasts. The Associated Press has learned. The FCC has put on hold the decision it made two months ago to pick the stereo AM system developed by Magnavox Consumer Electronics Corp. over four competitors.

Face lift
Sally Kellerman told Beauty Digest magazine how she revives her looks after a hard day. "I go through my routine of special face exercises for five minutes. First, I open my mouth wide, then move it up and down, alternating with broad smiles. This tightens the muscles around the cheekbones and makes my face feel more relaxed."

Sunny face
Because of evidence that too much exposure to the sun can damage your skin, smart women are getting into the habit of using a sun block or sunscreen every day in spring and summer. If you're fair skinned, you might want to try one of the new products designed especially to protect faces. If you tan easily, you'll need one with a protective factor of 2 or 4. Very light skinned women require a factor of 15.

too much play money

The government is obviously growing faster than the rate of increase of its employees. Lately, the federal government has been contracting with consulting firms rather than hiring new employees. In theory it looks good; in practice it is proving extremely wasteful.

Recently Rep. James Collins, R-Texas, obtained a Government Accounting Office report on the cost of consultants. Collins analyzed the GAO report and read it into The Congressional Record. For those who believe government is inherently wasteful the report was not surprising.

The GAO determined that it was impossible to tell exactly how much money was spent on consultants by executive departments and agencies. Talk about government spending out of control. The GAO estimated that consulting costs are between $1 and $2 billion per year. However, because so many contracts go unreported, the cost could top $5 billion - that's about $14 million per day.

Trying to fathom the situation, the GAO studied 111 randomly selected contracts. The financial watchdog agency found that 74 of the contracts were awarded with competitive bidding. The 74 contracts were worth $12 million, or 61 percent of value of all the contracts studied. If that figure holds true throughout the entire system, an enormous amount of money is going into private hands with no competitive bidding.

Further, many contracts were found to have been totally useless, especially in the Department of Education. Little was ever done to find out if the information collected by various studies were ever put to use. Even more damning, 23 of the 24 contracts studied were awarded on the last day of the fiscal year 1978. That was for a study of the effects post-secondary schooling has on a person's attitudes toward himself.

Collins pointed out that 70 of the 111 contracts reviewed by the GAO were revised after the contract was awarded. The revisions increased the cost by 43 percent, from $10.9 million to $15.6 million. In 58 cases changes were made to permit late delivery, some of them as late as 15 months. The federal contractors are not exactly honeycombed with efficiency.

With all this in mind, Collins concluded that the only way to change the situation was to give less money to executive agencies and departments. We heartily agree. It appears the federal government has been playing loose and free with consulting contracts. If it has that kind of money to pay around with, it should be provided less money.

a deal for canada

Canada supposedly exists in some concern of eventually being absorbed by the United States. So a Toronto resident has come up with a novel suggestion for turning the concern to the profit of Canadians.

He is one Ben Pich, appropriately in real estate. According to a recent brief in the Wall Street Journal, he proposes nothing less than selling Canada outright to the United States. For $15.6 trillion. Which, he figures, split among all Canadians 18 and older would work out to $1 million each.

There's a precedent on the American side, he observes, since Manhattan Island, the Louisiana Territory and Alaska, among the more notable examples, were all acquired by purchase.

Canada, considering what's happened to the dollar since those transactions and even at the multi-trillion proposed price tag, would probably be the cheapest deal in real terms of all.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Economize... eat money!"

We always return from the big city with a greater appreciation for the quality of life here.

We generally enjoy those short trips and especially enjoy the visits to Dallas-Fort Worth area, San Antonio and Austin.

We just returned, however, from Houston and that giant jungle doesn't deserve to be considered part of the state. About the only thing we could find to like about Houston is Earl Campbell.

The surly attitude of those working in the stores, motels and service stations of Houston - far exceeds any arrogant New York cabbie.

The only explanation that we can figure is that the bulk of folks in Houston are transplanted yankees and haven't yet learned to act like people.

One exception was a shine man in the hotel barber shop. He too was from the northeast, and had moved his family from Pittsburgh in search of jobs and the good life in the sun belt.

Because of congestion, lack of public transportation, crime and high prices, this nice man in August plans to return to Pittsburgh. He wasn't bitter, but he was telling the truth.

Common courtesy that Texans are known for just isn't practiced in Houston. Several years ago, someone reported that Houston is sinking into the ocean. We say bon voyage.

One amusing incident occurred at the hotel swimming pool. We left one of the meetings and decided to find the family. We passed by the pool registration desk and walked around the pool only to be apprehended by one of the life guards to say that I must first register.

Even an explanation and street clothes didn't convince the young man that I didn't intend to take a plunge. So, as a path of least resistance, we signed.

A few hours later we again decided to look for the family. We remembered the attendant's alarm and decided to register first.

This time another young man was at the desk and told us coolly: "If you're not swimming, you don't register."

atom on trial

If the atom were on trial in any court of law, its accusers would allege that it is potentially explosive, it poisons the environment, it is a hazard to the health of this and future generations.

The defenders of the atom would try to prove the atom "not guilty." It can't be done.

The unleashed atom has killed people, it does poison the environment, it is a hazard to health.

But before we condemn the atom and sentence it to death, be careful.

Because on precisely the same grounds - "explosive," "poison," and "a continuing health hazard" - we would also have to convict coal and gas and oil and water - and even the sun, itself.

There are five hydroelectric dams in the United States, any one of which could fail, causing tens of thousands of deaths.

In the Vioant Valley in Italy in 1963, a dam failure did kill 2,000.

Coal contains uranium, thorium and other radionuclides. Some are soluble in water and chemically active. The radiation levels of these elements in coal are up to 50 times greater than that of the radioactive elements produced by a nuclear power plant.

The Congressional Office of Technology Assessment computes that the coal cycle costs 50 lives a year for each 1,000 megawatt coal-fired power plant.

Burning coal for electric power costs 37,000 premature deaths each year.

And this does not include the victims of coal mine disasters, nor does it include the 50 to 100 lives lost each year in transporting half a billion tons of coal from mines to power plants.

Waste disposal from coal burning plants is, by volume, several million times the problem of nuclear waste disposal. In toxicity, nuclear waste decays in 600 years. The toxins, including carcinogens and mutagens from burning fossil fuel, will be in the biosphere forever.

The ease of waste disposal from nuclear power is one of its greatest advantages.

This is not an indictment of fossil fuels. The only thing worse than coal - is no coal. For world history shows that the lack of energy correlates with infant mortality, shorter life spans, lack of education, lower GNP.

What it all boils down to is that all technology involves certain calculated risk.

Put politics, superstition, hysteria and intellectual laziness aside - and nuclear power, per billion megawatt hours, costs less in deaths, injuries, disease and environmental impact than any other way of generating electricity yet invented.

While low level radiation, used every day in the treatment of disease, has extended tens of thousands of human lives.

The defense rests.

If there is anything more welcome to authorities faced with civil disorder than successfully quelling the disturbances, it is someone to blame for their initiation or aggravation.

South African authorities have their culprit in the current bloody rioting at Cape Town and elsewhere. "It is - surprise! - the press. Foreign reporters, it is charged, incited stone throwing that brought retaliatory police firing during demonstrations in Soweto, Johannesburg's all-black twin city. As a consequence, news coverage of the widespread disturbances is being restricted."

And not only for foreign reporters. South African journalists need special approval and official escorts to approach the action. Television crews are banned completely.

Not that this is likely to put a lid on the story. It is already out, to the world and certainly to South Africans - of all colors.

Surfacing at several points, the current unrest has several immediate causes. In Soweto, it was a case of anniversary observances of the 1976 uprising that cost some 600 lives getting, from the police point of view, out of control.

In Cape Town, a two-month protest against unequal education opportunities for mixed-race students escalated into a general protest against racial discrimination.

But the real origins are in the basic structure of a society founded on inequality and dedicated to its perpetuation. South Africa is a racial Mount St. Helens, a volcano threatening to erupt with potentially devastating consequences far beyond South Africa.

This is what has given rise not only to Soweto and Cape Town but, within the last year or so, to organized guerrilla violence.

Police have killed and police stations attacked. A supersensitive plant for conversion of coal to oil sabotaged. Arms caches discovered, suggesting many more undiscovered.

The white minority, in government and out, tends to be paranoid on the subject of subversion, seeing a communist hand in every incident, a Cuban, Russian or Mozambique

Marxist behind every challenge to its continued dominance.

Perhaps. It would at the very least be surprising if the world's foremost specialists in unrest were not taking fullest advantage of the opportunities.

But their input is not essential. There is more than enough natural nourishment for rebellion in South Africa itself. The white regime has no need of imported enemies when it is so effective at creating them at home.

This is beginning to be recognized even within the ruling majority of the dominant white minority. Beeld, an Afrikaans-language newspaper and staunch supporter of Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha, recently editorialized that while white South Africans must resist terrorism resolutely they must also recognize that "conditions exist in this country in which terrorism can find a breeding ground."

To give it some credit, Botha's government has been making gestures toward reform, facing down the hardest of the hardliners within its own National Party in the process. But the key proposal is for a cumbersome multi-level governmental structure in which the races would be associated but remain separated. And whites would remain dominant.

In this context, the Cape Town disturbances may be taken as a particular blow to the putative reformers because the "Cape coloureds" have been regarded as potential allies of the whites in heading off any possibility of majority black rule resulting from governmental changes.

Back to the role of the press in the disturbances, a police official has said the alleged troublemakers have been identified but that it is top soon to act against them.

Maybe. But if South Africa's authorities are really interested in identifying those responsible for the country's serious and worsening situation, they would do much better to look to themselves.

And far from being too soon for remedial action, it is probably already far, far too late.

To The Daily News:

We have just concluded another of our "Happy Family Gatherings," this time at the Union Community Center. I think our niece plans to write a review of same. We had visitors from far and near. One State Representative from Colorado was among our group. She asked us "who, what, where and when" about our centers and she was amazed at the convenience of the centers and free of charge. I, myself continue to be amazed at the facilities furnished, even after using them these many years. Almost any sized crowd can be taken care of, or provided for in these centers.

Our commissioners are to be commended again and again for providing them, even though at our, the taxpayers', expense. And seemingly, our people are all proud of them and continue to help keep them nice and usable.

Please tell us who is 1-2-3, etc., of the 7-8 centers built in the county, will you?

We would like to set the record straight concerning a reference in the court records a few weeks back in the matter of the reformation of a contract between Drew and Carol

Bullard and John Bailey. This court proceeding was necessitated entirely due to a technicality concerning incorrectly recorded boundary lines on some property recently decided to me. Before the Federal Land Bank would accept the mechanic's lien in my loan application as valid, I had to have the court approve the corrected deed.

John Bailey is building our house and we have nothing but the greatest admiration and regard for him and his craftsmanship. Not only does he maintain the highest standards, but his unfailing good humor and creativeness make him a joy to work with. Of all the decisions that we have had to make while building our house, the one that we are most pleased with is that we had Mr. Bailey as our contractor.

"Dad and I made a deal. He pays me $2000 a year NOT to go to college!"

TIME IS RUNNING OUT

Let's Work Together Before It's Too Late

For two decades, the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, along with other concerned organizations, has waged a continuing battle to save our free enterprise system from the indifferent liberals, inefficient bureaucrats, and insensitive politicians who love power more than America.

The fight gets harder everyday, and we're losing ground. Washington D.C. now has more control over our homes, schools, towns and businesses than we do, but the federal intrusions into the private sector with excessive regulation, punitive taxation, and constitutional violation of individual rights, goes on and on. You can help us stop further intrusion.

Together, we can work to halt this abuse of power and the punitive legislation and taxation aimed at the oil industry. In the past few years the oil and gas industry has been stripped of many incentives, necessary for the exploration and development of new oil and gas reserves. We have lost, ABC carved out production payments, full deduction of intangible drilling costs and percentage depletion, but the biggest robbery of incentive came with the Windfall Profits (Excise) Tax. This unfair tax removes 227 billion from the oil and gas industry that should have been used to find new oil and gives it to the federal treasury to be used to finance grand social schemes. The tax hits hard the budgets of all segments of the oil industry, but more particularly the independents and royalty owners, who supply much of the risk capital aimed at finding more oil and gas.

PBPA is totally opposed to the Windfall Profits Tax Bill, which singles out one industry for punitive taxation and keeps our nation under the OPEC boot. Even the amateur economist knows that when you want more of something which is already in short supply, you don't increase that supply by over taxing it. The number one goal of PBPA in 1980 is the repeal of this onerous tax.

Our aim as an oil and gas association is to preserve the free enterprise system and build a viable oil and gas industry in the Permian Basin of Texas and New Mexico. To do this we need your support. Help us fight them—before it's too late.

What Is PBPA?

Founded in 1960 with only 27 members, the Permian Basin Petroleum Association is today one of the largest and most influential regional oil and gas associations in the nation. Its almost 1700 members are comprised of independent oil and gas producers, royalty owners, oil-related industries, banks and other businesses and individuals who feel a need to positively support programs for the betterment of the Permian Basin petroleum industry. The Association is a non-profit organization.

What Does PBPA Do?

The main functions of PBPA are political lobbying in Washington, Austin and Santa Fe; public relations aimed at bettering the image of the oil industry and the Permian Basin, and education of the public and media in oil related matters.

What Is The Permian Basin?

While some may consider the Permian Basin to be only the Odessa-Midland area, the scope and representation of PBPA goes far beyond that narrow description. PBPA is the voice of a petroleum producing and trade area of 100,000 miles extending from Roswell on the west to San Angelo on the east, from Lubbock on the north to Van Horn on the south. There is an oil and gas well for every square mile in that area.

Who Can Join PBPA?

Anyone who earns his living directly or indirectly from the production of oil and gas, or has a vital stake in the prosperity of the Permian Basin may join PBPA. It is not limited solely to members in the oil industry.

What They Say About PBPA...

"I hate to think what the state of the domestic petroleum industry in this nation would be today, if not for the efforts of such outstanding associations such as your own PBPA"—Congressman George H. Mahon, retired

"The close support of A.W. Dillard, your association president, during the past two years is but an extension of the help PBPA has given me in all my years in office."—U. S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen, Texas

"PBPA is a very effective force and has been a great help to me in my battles to preserve the free enterprise system and stop federal intrusions into our personal lives."—Congressman Kent Hance, D

"Our firm considers membership in PBPA to be a very sound investment, because we are investing in the prosperity of the Permian Basin and the preservation of the free enterprise system."—Harold Clifton, general manager Watson Packer Inc., PBPA member.

THE WRONG WAY!
By Ken Branam

Back in July of 1938, a pilot by the name of Douglas Corrigan attempted to fly from Brooklyn, N.Y. to Los Angeles, Calif. However, due to some mix-up, and much to his surprise, he wound up in Dublin, Ireland! Corrigan apologized by saying he intended to fly west, but headed east instead. Nevertheless, history remembers this man as "Wrong Way Corrigan."

On the west coast, a dazed football player ran the wrong way and scored a touchdown for the other team. Many football fans know about that. What they don't know is that, after the embarrassing and frustrating first-half that he had, he came back and played a simply outstanding game, almost single-handedly winning the game for his team. He had a tremendous second half.

I have talked to many people who feel like they are going to wrong direction in life. If the truth were known, many of us may be going in directions we know are wrong. Not necessarily by car, ship, or plane, but by the drift of our daily living.

If you are going in a wrong direction and wonder if there is hope for you, may I remind you that the Bible is full of examples of people who made great comebacks after having a bad start.

Simon Peter denied Christ and later became "the rock." The prodigal son wasted his inheritance but came back home to later live in high style. These are but a few examples of the many, many people who were going in a wrong direction in life, but got their lives turned around. They turned around and headed in the "right direction."

If you are headed in a wrong direction and wonder what is the right way, the answer is found in the person of Jesus Christ. Jesus said of himself in John 14:6: "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me." If you are going in the wrong direction in life, why not turn around and go in the right direction—"THE WAY!"
