WTC adopts budget, lowers tax rate

By Wade Warren
SDN Managing Editor

Western Texas College adopted the school's budgets and set the tax rate for the 2000-2001 school year.

Approved was a $7.6 million current fund budget, as well as a student services fee budget of $111,000 and an auxiliary-enterprises budget of $729,086.

Trustees set the tax rate at 30.67 cents, a rate 7.9 percent above the effective rate of 28.41 cents. A public hearing was held last week, but no one appeared to comment.

An almost 60 percent increase in mineral values and increases in personal property and industrial values prompted the lower effective rate.

On the expense side for the 2000-2001 year, the college is budgeting for six new positions — including a public information coordinator, computer technician, a part-time employee in the business office, speech instructor, part-time welding instructor and an assistant rodeo coach.

Total expenditures for the six positions are $121,064.

Also included in the budget is a salary increase for all full-time employees. The increase will be the same as last year — two percent plus $500 for full-time staff with a salary above $18,000 and two percent plus $700 for full-time staff with a salary below $18,000.

Three new programs are also budgeted. These include an early childhood program with a planned expenditure of $28,870, an allied health program with a full-year budget of $35,583 and a networking program with a start-up cost of $41,683.

The budget also includes a $100 increase in the prison incentive for faculty members — from $250 to $350.

Currently when faculty members go into a prison unit for instructional purposes, they receive an additional $250 per course.

WTC president Harry Krenek prefaced the vote on the budget by noting the board had discussed it at length in previous meetings.

"Does it balance?" questioned trustee Eddie Peterson.

Krenek replied that it did, and then Peterson made the motion to approve the budget. The vote for approval was unanimous.

During the discussion of this semester's enrollment, Dean of Student Services Jim Clifton noted that there are 27 rodeo scholarship students on campus, as compared to around 50 in the previous two years.

Clifton said several schools had upped their scholarship funds, including Howard College in Big Spring, and some prospects had changed their minds after being offered larger scholarships elsewhere.

Dr. Krenek, noting that the women's rodeo team had won the national championship this past year, said "When you're number one, people will come after you."

It was also noted that some 77 students are residing in the dorms, as opposed to more than 100 in the past few years.

Trustee Jay Kidd attributed that loss to the school no longer fielding girls basketball or men's golf teams.

The college is showing an increase in concurrent enrollment classes where students take a course for high school and college credit.

Dr. Jim Palmer, dean of instruction, said 20 high schools in the area now have concurrent classes and they involve over 450 students.

Dr. Palmer said Snyder High School is now offering 10 concurrent classes, twice as many as last year.

Some other schools participating in concurrent classes include Ballinger, Anson, Miles, Patton Springs, Stamford, Rotan, Post, Jim Ned and Spur.

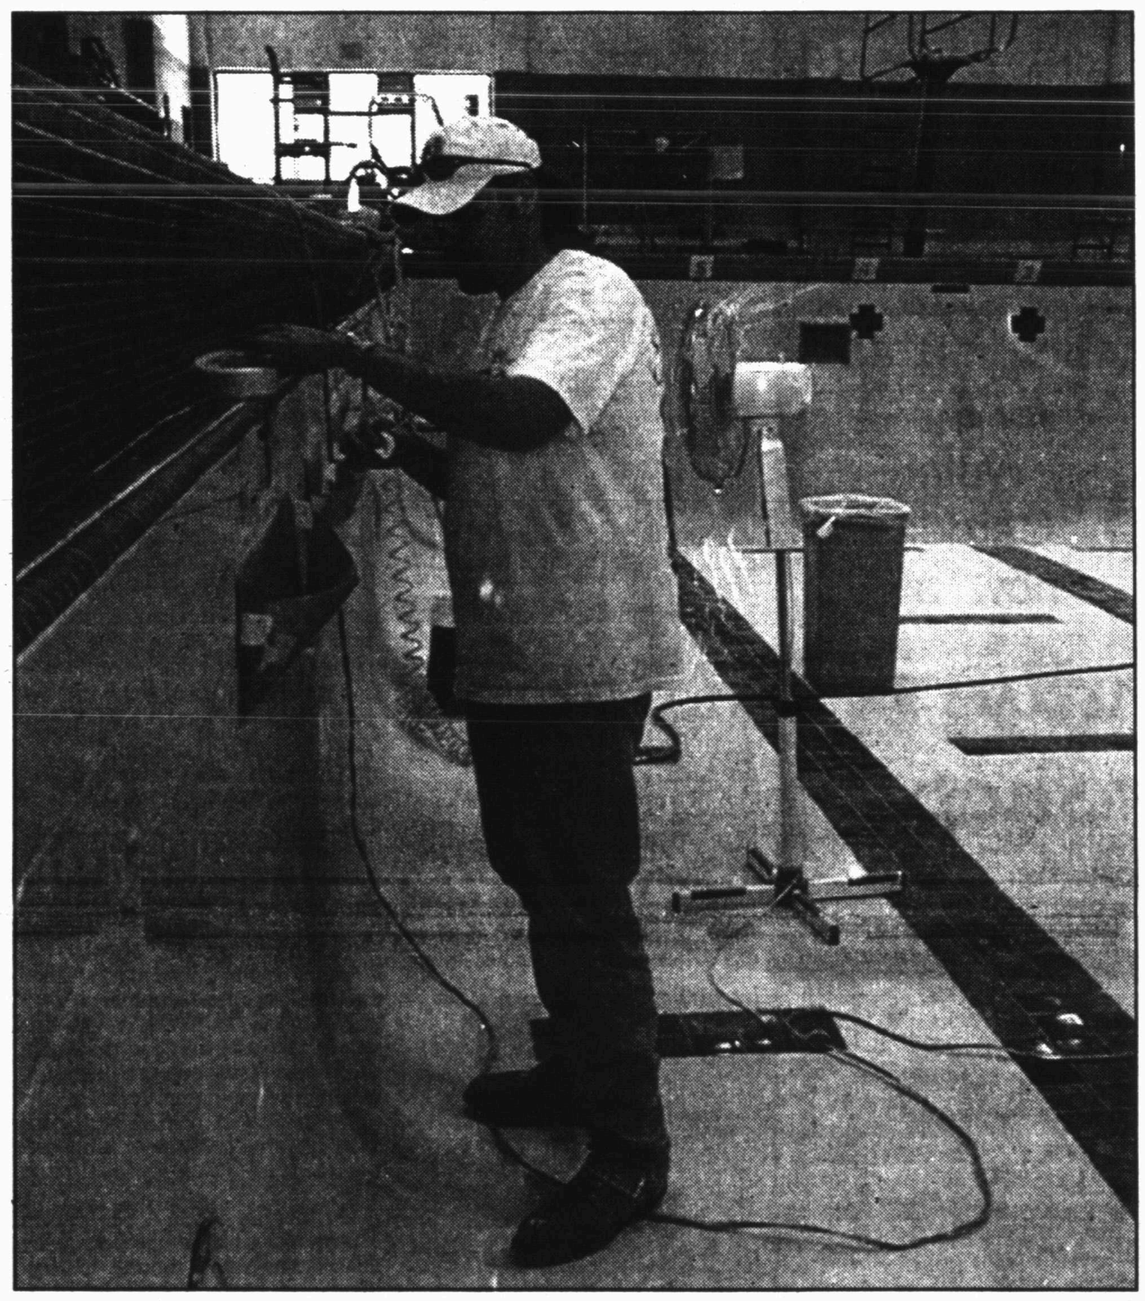

Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education, also addressed the board on the new manufacturing technology program.

Thornton said YZ Industries currently is participating in the program where its employees can take manufacturing courses and core education courses for an associate's degree.

"We hope to get more companies involved," Thornton said, adding that YZ pays for all tuition costs and books for its employees.

Thornton said 12 employees of YZ are enrolled in the program.

Board president Lee Presswood presided and all board members were in attendance to include Kidd, Peterson, Carolyn Barbee, Drew Bullard, Scott

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Success seems to be largely a matter of hanging on after others have let go."

Just odds 'n ends stuff...

Surely there are more important things to be concerned about?

A statue in Santa Fe depicts the innocence of a little boy and girl having a water fight. Now the statue is deemed as politically incorrect.

The reason given for the flap is the boy has a squirt gun in his hand, which critics say looks like a real gun if the fountain is turned off.

Protestors even got the artist to agree. The sculptress will soon perform surgery on the statue. She will chisel off his hand and give him a new one.

Where is the National Water Pistol Association when we need 'em?

And speaking of statues...

In a statue of a person on horseback, if the horse has both front legs in the air, the rider died in battle.

If the horse has one front leg in the air, the person later died as a result of wounds received in battle.

If the horse has all four legs on the ground, the rider died of natural causes.

If we are striving to be politically correct, then all statues of horses with riders should be removed so as not to promote fighting and violence.

And this should really get the dandruff up of any self-respecting southerner.

Choir sponsors trip and Friday pre-game meal

The Snyder High School Choral Department is taking a trip to New York City from April 26-30. There will be several available positions for families in the community that are interested in the trip.

Interested persons may contact Ronda Haire, choir director, at 573-6301. The first payment toward the trip will be due Sept. 8.

The trip will include:

- Admission to first-run Broadway shows such as "The Phantom of the Opera" and "Lion King."
- The choir's performance at St. Patrick's Cathedral.
- Admittance to the Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island.
- A tour of West Point Military Academy.
- A tour of Carnegie Hall.
- One-half day guided tour with a licensed NYC tour guide, covering many aspects of Manhattan and New York City, with guided tours as time allows to Wall Street, Soho, Greenwich Village, Chinatown, the United Nations, Rockefeller Center, Central Park, Fifth Avenue, and many other sites.
- Free time to explore New York City on your own, shop Fifth Avenue or visit New York Museum Mile, Central Park, Soho, South Street Seaport and other attractions.

The choir's first fundraiser of the 2000-2001 school year will be a Fiesta Stack-up dinner before the football game with Monahans on Friday. Serving will be from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Tickets are $5 each and can be purchased from choir members or at the door.

The choir's booster club sponsors the stack-up dinner.

Trustees approve 2000-01 budget...

Ira ISD aims to improve quality of food

Ira ISD trustees adopted the district's 2000-01 budget Monday night, including in it additional help for the cafeteria that will allow the facility to serve home-cooked meals.

A part-time maintenance person and a part-time cafeteria worker are included in the $1,396,000 district spending plan.

"We are going to try to get back to cooking from scratch in our cafeteria," Supt. Jim Rumage said. "I don't like the processed food, so we are going to get back to the basics. We're going to have some home cooking."

The 2000-01 budget is down from last year's $1,407,924. The year prior to that it was $1.6 million.

In other business, trustees also approved amendments to the 1999-00 budget in the amount of $30,000. Rumage said most of the amendments deal with facility improvements made during the summer.

The hiring of a kindergarten and first grade aide also was approved, contingent upon the district receiving funding from the state's accelerated reading grant.

Football coach Toby Goodwin presented the board with a request to purchase a therastem machine, which is used to stimulate muscles or joints to speed up the healing process.

Rumage said the item would be addressed further at the next regular board meeting on Sept. 18.

"The main discussion is do we have $6,000 to purchase the machine," Rumage said.

"They are giving us a bargain there," he said of the company. "That is almost at their cost. The retail on the machine is about $9,000."

All trustees were present to include Lance Autry, Keith Clements, Bo Robinson, Shane Smith, Dennis Taylor, Sid Wall and Doug White.

Low occupancy cited...

Apartment unit closes

The 48-unit Eastridge Apartments in Snyder have been closed due to low occupancy.

Kelly Miller with KMR Management of Fort Worth said Monday that only 16 units were occupied when the decision was made to close the apartment complex.

And of the 16, 12 families were receiving rental assistance by the federal government, added Miller.

"No one was displaced by the closure," emphasized Miller. "We also have the Kingswood Apartments and we were able to transfer the occupants there."

Miller said the company hopes to eventually re-open the apartment complex, located on Brick Plant Road.

"We were having a struggle keeping Eastridge safe and sanitary with the low occupancy, but if economic times get better, look for it to re-open," Miller said.

Military fighter jet down in Panhandle

TULIA (AP) — An Air Force pilot on reserve duty died when his F-16 clipped a barn and slammed into a field in the Texas Panhandle.

The single-seat fighter jet went down Monday night near Tulia, killing pilot Maj. Stephen Simons, 41, of Fort Worth.

Simons was returning from Hill Air Force Base, near Ogden, Utah, on a solo training mission when his plane went down about 6:20 p.m., said Maj. Clayton Church, a spokesman for the Naval Air Station Fort Worth.

"The aircraft was returning from a cross-country mission when the accident occured," Church said. "It's certainly tragic that we've lost an F-16 pilot."

The F-16, part of the 457th Fighter Squadron stationed at Fort Worth, was not carrying any bombs or live munitions, officials said.

There was no immediate word on what caused the crash. The jet went down in a plowed field, scattering debris for about a quarter of a mile, said Trooper Wayne Beighle of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Some pieces of the jet apparently damaged a nearby pig barn after the crash, Beighle said.

A disaster control team from Cannon Air Force Base near Clovis, N.M., were on the scene hours later, along with emergency crews from Swisher County and Tulia, which is located about halfway between Amarillo and Lubbock.

Simons' relatives declined interview requests late Monday.

But a neighbor of the killed pilot, Joyce Mayes, said she talked to Simons over the weekend while he watched one of his two daughters in front of their Fort Worth-area home.

"Every moment he was home, he seemed interested in caring for his girls and his wife," Mayes said. "He was the most wonderful caring young man I've ever met."

The crash Monday was the first of a jet based in Fort Worth since Nov. 6, 1997, when an F-16 fighter lost control during a training mission and crashed in rural Comanche County. The pilot ejected safely before the plane went down, Church said.

Between January 1999 and March of this year, 16 F-16s have crashed in "Class A" crashes — accidents that cost $1 million or more, result in destruction of an Air Force aircraft or a fatality or permanent total disability.

The F-16C Fighting Falcon is a single-seat, single engine $20 million airplane used in air-to-air combat and air-to-surface attack. The Air Force received its first F-16 in 1979.

Besides serving as the 457th home base, Fort Worth is the place were Bethesda, Md.-based Lockheed Martin builds its best-selling F-16 fighters.

Questions about two different name brands of engines used on the F-16 have prompted the military to take action on detailed inspections of some Fighting Falcons.

Urban decay in Philadelphia lets buildings collapse

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Years of urban decay are taking a serious toll on Philadelphia's once vibrant neighborhoods. Twenty-two buildings have collapsed since Thursday, and the city believes more than 3,100 others could fall down at any moment.

The most recent collapse happened Monday night in a rowhouse that was occupied, but the residents were away and no injuries were reported.

All of the buildings that collapsed were rowhouses in and around poverty-stricken North Philadelphia. Most were abandoned, and only minor injuries resulted from the collapses. Two men were hurt when a large wooden awning fell as they were walking by.

Experts are not sure exactly what caused the rash of building collapses but think it might have something to do with this summer's wet weather. Water can erode joints and weaken foundations, especially in houses with leaky roofs or inadequate downspouts.

"You would be surprised at how certain things such as having a downspout on your house, having your roof inspected — that is what keeps these properties from collapsing," said Andrea White of the city's Department of Licenses and Inspections.

The problem, though, was years in the making. Philadelphia's housing stock has been deteriorating for three decades, largely the result of a population exodus that cost the city 550,000 residents. Philadelphia is now down to 1.4 million people.

10-year-old boy said charged with voluntary manslaughter

MARION, Ind. (AP) — A 10-year-old boy accused of fatally shooting his father in the chest has been charged with voluntary manslaughter.

Officials offered no motive and few details about the slaying in Fairmount, a town of 3,100 about 60 miles northeast of Indianapolis. The fifth-grader, charged Monday in juvenile court, was being held in a detention center.

"The charge speaks for itself," said James Luttrull Jr., chief deputy prosecutor for Grant County. "It's an appropriate charge based on all the circumstances." He refused to elaborate.

Wayne Salyers Sr., 36, was found dead in the boy's bedroom Friday night by officers responding to a 911 call, police said. The boy's mother and stepsister were in another part of the house at the time.

Police said they found the boy walking a few miles from the home about an hour later. He told them he had taken his father's .44-caliber revolver from a cabinet in his parents' room, authorities said.

A petition filed in court alleges the child knowingly killed his father "while acting under sudden heat."

The boy's attorney, Martin Lake, denied the charge at Monday's hearing. "He wants to go home with his mother," said Lake, a public defender.

A child must be at least 14 to be charged as an adult in Indiana. If found delinquent, the boy could be under the court's jurisdiction until he reaches 21.

The father, a mechanic, and son spent much time together fishing, hunting, shooting BB guns and working on the father's truck, according to neighbor Gary Hurst, who lives across the street.

"He was a good boy. He'd say, 'Yes, sir,' to you, 'Yes, ma'am,'" Hurst said.

Town Marshall Brian Reneau said he knew of no police calls or other problems at the boy's home.

But neighbors in this small town best known as the birthplace of actor James Dean told The Indianapolis Star they often overheard loud arguing at the house, and described the boy's father as a stern disciplinarian.

"He was just angry with the son. He'd get loud," said neighbor Margarita Thompson.

The boy's next court appearance was scheduled for Oct. 16.

Woman doubts she can find compassion for cruel in-laws

DEAR ABBY: I know you have heard in-law horror stories for decades, but I believe mine takes the cake. My in-laws actually threw a second wedding reception for our guests because they didn't feel ours had enough food. It was a catered affair in their home immediately following ours.

When I had children, they told me they knew their daughter's children were their "real" grandchildren, but they could never be too sure mine were! They save their cruelest words for me and our children for when my husband is not around.

They call my husband "henpecked" because ours is an equal partnership, and he shares in the child-rearing, cooking, cleaning and shopping.

My mother-in-law complained last year that my husband is "too close" to his children. She says if my husband has time to coach our son's soccer team, he should have time to fix their storm windows.

My in-laws have repeatedly returned gifts to me saying, "I never cared for that scent of perfume" or "This shirt makes me look long-waisted."

They have also overindulged my husband's sister's children to such a degree that neighbors and other family members have commented on it over the years. My husband has truly supported me throughout these in-law tribulations. We have a fantastic marriage.

My problem is, after 18 years of being on the receiving end of these absurd in-law antics, my elderly in-laws expect me to assist them. They are now in their 80s and infirm. My husband feels obligated to assist his parents, however I don't think I can.

Am I a small person, or is there a limit to what I or anyone should give to people who have been mean and miserable for years on end? — RESENTFUL IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR RESENTFUL: You are not a small person — your feelings are more than justified. Your in-laws are so self-centered they do not consider how their words and actions affect other people. However, resentment can do more damage to the person who harbors it than it does to the target.

Should you help these people? Under no circumstances should you be expected to tolerate any more abuse. However, since your husband feels obligated to help his parents, and he has "truly supported you" throughout the years, I think you'd feel better if you returned the favor and supported his efforts. He's sure to need the help. If "helping" conflicts with something that is important to you, call an attendant care agency and let someone else help for a day or two. To do otherwise will only add to your resentment.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when your best friend knowingly names her dog the name that you had picked for your future daughter (should there be a daughter)? Am I being silly to feel upset? — HURT IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR HURT: What your friend did was doggone insensitive, and could create real problems should you have a daughter during her pet's lifetime. What does she think will happen if she calls her dog within earshot of your daughter?

Tell her you have a bone to pick with her. If she refuses to rename her dog, consider that a clue about how she prioritizes your feelings.

University tells how cow cloned

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — University of Tennessee researchers have announced the birth of a cloned dairy cow using a quicker and less complicated method than that used to clone Dolly the sheep.

The researchers said Monday that a brown and white calf named Millie, short for Millennium, was born full-term on Aug. 23, weighing 62 pounds. She is the third bovine cloned from adult cells born in the United States, but the first Jersey and the first using standard cell-culturing techniques.

"Cloning procedures are more simple than we first thought," said Dr. Lannett Edwards, who studied as a visiting U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist with researchers in Scotland who cloned Dolly in 1996. She led the effort here with her husband and colleague Dr. Neal Schrick.

The two other cloned cows born in the United States have been produced by researchers at Texas A&M and the University of Connecticut within the past year.

Payday loans are short term

Consider for a moment that you need a small amount of cash (say $100) for an emergency that can't wait. You won't get your next paycheck for over a week. You go to a company and they give you $100 in exchange for your personal check of $112. After two weeks, they cash your check or you pay for an extension.

Essentially, payday loans are small, short-term cash advances using your check as collateral for the loan. These types of loans should only be used to meet immediate short-term cash needs. Renewing the loan is an option, but it will require the payment of additional fees. Longer-term cash needs are usually best addressed with more traditional loan products.

If you decide this type of loan is the way to go, find out what the fees are up front, and shop for the best deal.

If you find that you are taking out these loans week after week or are failing to keep up with the debt because of the fees, look into other loan products possible from a different lender. Even if you have a poor credit record, you likely can find a cheaper source of money.

Cash advances on credit cards;

Loans from regulated finance companies; and

Pledging and redeeming goods at a pawnshop.

Beware of businesses that threaten to have their customers prosecuted under Texas' hot check laws. The threats are illegal; furthermore you cannot be prosecuted for a bounced check if the check was given with the understanding that it would not be cashed immediately.

Consumer Credit Commissioner Leslie Pettijohn reports that, "Compared to other available options, payday loans can be expensive. Prospective borrowers, even those in an unexpected financial crunch, should explore all alternatives: this includes asking creditors for more time to pay bills. If it becomes necessary to obtain a payday loan, you should borrow only as much as you can afford to pay with your next paycheck."

Did you really believe it?

The best time for a Lightner Slam Double is when you know the opponents cannot run to a different slam that can be made. However, even experts can have problems. This deal occurred during last year's Cap Gemini tournament in the Netherlands.

East-West were Alain Levy and Paul Chemla, world champions from Paris. North was Zia Mahmood, a Pakistani who divides his time primarily between New York and London. South was Tony Forrester, from England.

Over Chemla's three-heart weak jump overcall, Zia settled for three no-trump. However, when Forrester bid a natural four no-trump over East's four-heart sacrifice, Zia showed his true colors by jumping to six diamonds. That contract would have gone one down, but Forrester curiously corrected to six no-trump. As you can see, this would have failed by either two or four tricks, depending on the defense's expertise in running the club suit. However, feeling he was on firm ground, Levy doubled. Guessing what that meant, Forrester ran to seven spades. Now East was in a quandary. Would a double be Lightner, asking for a nonheart lead? After some thought, he passed.

West, not realizing what was happening, led the heart king. Immediately Forrester claimed 15 tricks: seven spades, one heart and seven diamonds!

Perhaps West should have led a club, but East was maybe doubly (sorry!) wrong. Maybe he shouldn't have doubled six no-trump, the slam he could beat. And maybe he should have bid four clubs over three no-trump to direct the lead. Yet then his opponents might have stopped in game.

HE SETS US FREE

Jesus said, "And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). Those who had been enslaved in this country were set free by the Emancipation Proclamation. Some who had developed a deep relationship of love chose to remain as employees of their former masters.

Christ came to the world and showed us His love by dying on the cross so we could be free from sin. He gave His life so we can live eternally. Just as some former slaves remained in the employment of their former masters, we also serve Christ because He has set us free. Our service to Christ is not a burden because we know that we have life in Him. Our service to Him is a joy because of our gratitude for what He has done for us by setting us free from sin.

New rules take effect this season

When high school football kicks off around the state on Friday, teams and fans will have to adjust to a few rule changes.

Among the rules amended are those regarding intentional grounding, offensive substitution, crack-back blocks, and movement of defensive linemen.

"I think the new rules are going to be alright," said Snyder coach David Baugh. "Most of t' em are put in there to protect the kids. They really won't effect the way we do things."

Under the new intentional grounding rule, a quarterback can get rid of the ball to avoid a sack, as long as two criteria are met. The passer must be five yards, laterally, from the original spot of the ball, and the pass must cross the line of scrimmage.

Another new rule that takes effect this year addresses the substitution of offensive players.

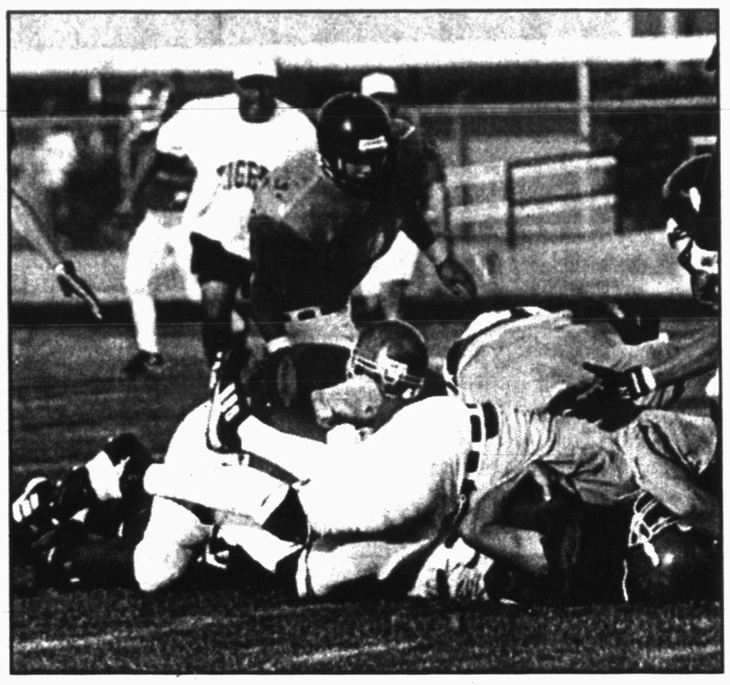

Starting this season, it will be illegal for an offensive team to substitute players, in order to gain an advantage. An offensive team that substitutes players, must give the defense time to substitute, as well.

During any game, the first infraction of this rule carries a five-yard penalty. Each infraction there after will be a 15-yard penalty.

Regarding crack-back blocks, under the old rule, it was only illegal for a player in motion toward the ball to crack-back, up to five yards downfield. Under the amendment, it is illegal for any player in motion (toward or away from the ball) to crack-back on a defensive player, and the area has been extended up to 10 yards downfield.

On the defensive side of the ball, a new rule stipulates that a defensive lineman cannot make a "non-football move," such as stomping his feet or slapping the ground, in an attempt to draw an offensive player offside.

All new rules will be in effect for non-district and district contests.

First time in eight years...

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Football Writer

Penn State's eight-year run in the Top 25 is over.

For the first time since the end of the 1992 season, the Nittany Lions are not ranked in The Associated Press college football poll.

Soundly beaten by USC 29-5 in Sunday's Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium, Penn State's streak of appearing in 119 consecutive polls ended Monday.

The Lions, who had the fourth-longest run of consecutive rankings behind Nebraska, Florida State and Florida, entered the game at No. 22. Penn State was 7-5 in '92 after a loss to Stanford in the Blockbuster Bowl.

Nebraska and Florida State remained 1-2 in the first regular-season poll as the top 11 were unchanged from the preseason poll.

The Cornhuskers, who open Saturday against San Jose State, collected 35 first-place votes and 1,728 points from the 71 sports writers and broadcasters on the panel. The Seminoles, 29-3 winners over BYU in the Pigskin Classic, had 30 first-place votes and 1,723 points.

Alabama, which opens Saturday at UCLA, was third with three first-place votes and 1,577 points, followed by No. 4 Wisconsin and No. 5 Miami.

The Badgers, who had one first-place vote, and Hurricanes open Thursday night. Wisconsin plays Western Michigan, while Miami goes against McNeese State.

Michigan was No. 6, followed by No. 7 Texas (two first-place votes), No. 8 Kansas State, No. 9 Florida and No. 10 Georgia. K-State opened with a 27-7 win over Iowa in the Eddie Robinson Classic.

Virginia Tech, which had its opener against Georgia Tech postponed by violent thunderstorms and lightning, was No. 11, followed by No. 12 USC (up three spots), No. 13 Tennessee, No. 14 Washington, No. 15 Purdue, No. 16 Ohio State, No. 17 Clemson, No. 18 Mississippi, No. 19 Oklahoma and No. 20 TCU.

Illinois was No. 21, followed by No. 22 Southern Mississippi, No. 23 Colorado, No. 24 Michigan State and No. 25 Texas A&M.

The Aggies, the only new team in the poll, open at Notre Dame on Saturday.

Nebraska's streak of consecutive poll appearances is up to 310, followed by Florida State's 184 and Florida's 178.

In the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll, the top five were Nebraska, Florida State, Alabama, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Cowboys' new tight end has to learn on the run

IRVING (AP) — Before trying to teach the Dallas Cowboys any new dance steps, O.J. Santiago has to learn the offensive playbook.

Santiago went through his first workout with the Cowboys on Monday, a day after he was acquired from the Falcons to provide needed depth at tight end behind David LaFleur and Jackie Harris.

"I'm learning on the run. They would whisper in my ear what to do," Santiago said. "There are a lot of the same things here. I'll be ready to play."

The Cowboys faxed Santiago some information to read on his flight Sunday night to Dallas.

After he arrived at the Valley Ranch practice facility about 8 a.m. Monday, he met with tight ends coach Les Miles, got a short briefing on the offense and hit the field for the only Cowboys' practice until Wednesday.

The 6-foot-7, 264 pound Santiago had 15 catches for 174 yards in 1999, but caught 27 passes for 428 yards and five touchdowns in 1998, the year his blocking helped Jamal Anderson lead the NFC in rushing and Atlanta reached the Super Bowl.

While also credited with inventing the "Dirty Bird" dance that became the Falcons' trademark that NFC championship season, Santiago doesn't have any dance steps in mind yet for his new team.

"That's spontaneous. I hope I get a chance to show you something," Santiago said. "We've got to get in the end zone first."

Santiago got extra reps in practice Monday since the Cowboys are still being cautious with LaFleur, who missed the first four preseason games because of a strained groin. LaFleur played in the final preseason game and is expected to play Sunday.

Cowboys coach Dave Campo said Santiago would also play in the opener against Philadelphia.

"We will have packages with O.J. Involved in them. He gives us a tremendous bonus as a guy who can go down the field," Campo said.

Mike Lucky was expected to be the No. 3 tight end, and opposite LaFleur when the Cowboys used two tight end, until he suffered a season-ending knee injury the first week of training camp. The Cowboys then auditioned about six other players for the job before the Falcons called late Saturday night.

Santiago, who played all of his first three seasons with Atlanta, will be a free agent after this season.

Ailing Woods falls to Garcia

PALM DESERT, Ca. (AP) — Perhaps the PGA Tour should switch to night golf. For one night, at least, Tiger Woods seemed almost vulnerable under the lights.

Sergio Garcia put on a Tiger-like finish Monday night to do what no one seems able to do in regular day events — beat Woods down the stretch.

Garcia's four birdies in the last five holes was too much for an ailing Woods to overcome — though he nearly did by almost holing a pitch shot under the bright lights lining the 18th hole.

The made-for-television "Battle at Bighorn" paid $1.1 million to Garcia and $400,000 to Woods, who battled the flu.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Aug. 30, 2000
Because both your ambitions and talent blend together in the year ahead in such a harmonious fashion, conditions look extremely hopeful for you. You could do well in several areas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Look for signals of developments that could improve your lot in life, both financially and careerwise. They are likely to transpire today, so stay on top of things. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper. P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your Zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A project that has great potential but has been mismanaged by someone else may come under your direct control today. Take the assignment. You're not apt to make the same mistakes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concern yourself with long-range results rather than immediate ones, and you're likely to do a better job on the project than you would have otherwise. This solid foundation will yield benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The cultivation of a potentially important relationship may begin as of today. Of course, it won't be established overnight but could turn out to be a major alliance of significance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) With tenacious effort today, new heights can be achieved that'll stand the test of time. If you have the motivation and desire to do so, it'll be worth the exertion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Those around you today will see and appreciate the value of your ideas and suggestions, perhaps more than you do. Accept what they say as gospel and act on their encouragement.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may be asked today to team up again with someone with whom you were quite successful in the past. It could turn out to be an even bigger accomplishment than it was the first time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Utilize that natural gift you possess of being able to arouse enthusiasm in others today. To the amazement of even yourself, you can convert a negative-thinking pal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Sometimes we're rewarded for our hard work, other times we're not. Today is one of the days when the efforts you put out for others will be returned to you twofold.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A proposal brought to you by a friend may not look like much on the surface, but with some in-depth analysis, you could come to realize today that it is a unique opportunity of substance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Chances are you'll find today that it will be traditional methods rather than those that are unorthodox that'll prove to be more successful in getting a job done properly. Stand by the proven.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Information you receive from an insider could prove to be of great value if all factions, no matter how divergent, stick together for the collective cause. Everyone would profit.

Two dead in apparent murder-suicide at UA

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A longtime professor and a graduate student who had been taking classes for 10 years were shot to death Monday at the University of Arkansas in an apparent murder-suicide on the first day of the fall semester, authorities said.

Associate professor John Locke, 67, died in his English department office on the second floor of Kimpel Hall, a classroom and office building near the heart of the campus.

"I heard one gunshot followed by a young man's voice saying, 'No, I didn't do anything,'" said Bethany Edstrom, a graduate student who was in a nearby office. "Then I heard a second shot."

Officers responding to several 911 calls from the building said they spoke briefly with a man behind the locked office door, University Police Capt. Brad Bruns said. Less than five minutes later, another shot rang out. Officers found the two men dead inside.

Bruns identified the other victim as James Easton Kelly, 36, of Marianna, a graduate student in the comparative literature program in which Locke taught.

Police hadn't determined the motive for the shootings or who pulled the trigger, Bruns said. He said the gun found at the scene belonged to Kelly.

Kelly had been taking courses in a doctoral program for 10 years and had a pattern of enrolling in comparative literature courses and then dropping them, Bruns said.

On Aug. 21, a committee of six professors voted to dismiss him from the degree program but to allow Kelly to continue to take classes as a non-degree student.

Students humiliated, beaten to join even church groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fear and pride almost kept Chris Wall from talking about the hazing — a beating — he received from older football players at a Mansfield, Texas, high school. But then a greater worry took over.

"It just gets worse and worse," said Wall, a 16-year-old junior who reported the incident and later changed schools. "They know they can get away with it so they bring it up to the next level. It gets more and more physical and more and more abusive."

Almost half the high school students who answered a nationwide survey said they were made to eat disgusting things, abuse alcohol or drugs or perform humiliating or illegal acts to join athletic teams, the band, even church groups, researchers at Alfred University in Alfred, N.Y., reported Monday.

In the survey — a two-page mail-in questionnaire sent to 11th and 12th graders this spring — students said they were most likely to be hazed by a sports team or gang. They also reported being hazed for music, art and theater clubs and church groups. Every high school organization except school newspaper and yearbook staffs had high levels of hazing, the survey found. About a third said they wouldn't tell an adult of the hazing.

"Students may already be deeply immersed in the culture of hazing before they arrive on our campuses as freshmen," said Charles Edmondson, president of the private liberal arts university that is known for studies of hazing among college sports teams, fraternities and sororities. "Our challenge is much greater than anyone appreciated."

The university-funded survey does not represent the teen population at large. Only 1,541 of those mailed surveys returned them, just over 8 percent, but the project's lead researcher, Nadine Hoover, said further studies could build on the findings.

The results nevertheless further a debate over whether hazing is more a time-honored rite of passage or a dangerous trend that sends increasing numbers of children to hospitals or jails.

In Winslow, Ariz., six of eight high school athletes charged in the sexual assault of about a dozen basketball and track team members accepted plea bargains last week in the cases; the basketball coach was also indicted, accused of knowing about some of the abuses and failing to stop them.

Schools need to do more, said Linda Murtie, an Essex, Vt., parent who campaigned against hazing after her 16-year-old daughter, Lizzie, was forced to eat a banana protruding from a boy's pants zipper.

"They think their harassment policies cover hazing, but they don't," Murtie said. "There is such an issue about whether the kids are consenting to the hazing or not."

Some schools — institutions including the Upper St. Clair, Pa., school district and the University of Vermont — are cracking down on hazing, creating strict policies and punishments. More than 40 states have anti-hazing laws, although researchers said the laws do not appear to limit hazing significantly.

"Initiation rites are important. Groups need to bond," Hoover said. "How you do these initiation rites is at issue."

Hazing was defined by researchers as any humiliating or dangerous act expected of new group members, regardless of willingness to participate. Students said they were asked mostly to do humiliating things: pushing a penny across a school bus floor with the nose; sucking someone's toes; skinny dipping; or drinking foul mixtures such as urine, spoiled milk and eggs.

One in five respondents said they were put in harm's way or asked to break the law. Dangerous or illegal acts included being beaten, raped or sexually assaulted or assaulting others, destroying or vandalizing property, drinking alcohol until passing out, stealing, and destroying or vandalizing property.

Schools have a bigger reason to be worried over such reported behavior, said Norman Pollard, student counseling director at Alfred University.

"When we look at recent incidents in high schools, such as those at Columbine, Paducah and Springfield," Pollard said, referring to multiple shootings by students, "we see the dire consequences of teens feeling excluded, rejected and humiliated."

In his case, Wall said he was punched by older players in the locker room. He finally broke away and later quit the football team and left the school. Now on a new team at a new private school in Arlington, Texas, he said he tells the younger students they don't have to worry about hazing: "It's just wrong."

Don't even think about drinking

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can an alcoholic ever return to social drinking?

DEAR READER: Many alcoholics dream of the opportunity to return to social drinking. But this yearning is just that: a dream. What marks alcoholism is the inability to control the use of alcohol-containing beverages. Whether this unfortunate tendency is genetic or merely behavioral is unknown but hotly debated. One fact is clear, however: A major part of the alcoholic's recovery process is surrender. This means that alcohol-addicted patients must do more than acknowledge the disease — they must give in to it and believe in their hearts that they are utterly powerless over it.

In this surrender — which leads to a healthy sobriety — alcoholics gain strength and self-confidence. They really begin to get well. The alcoholic who holds a shred of hope that he or she can return to "normal" or "social" drinking is engaging in a virulent form of self-deception that is not surrender but a negotiated truce that will probably culminate in disaster. In short, this sort of "stinking thinking" does not work. For the alcoholic, social drinking is a myth: Such drinking is bound to soar out of control.

Nonetheless, some studies — notably in Britain — have shown that selected alcoholics are, in some instances, able to resume moderate drinking. The reasons for this are not understood, but such patients are decidedly in the minority.

Therefore, my advice to alcoholics is similar to those "don't even think of parking here!" signs posted in special reserved areas: Give up, surrender and turn your life over to a higher power. Your energies can be put to better use by avoiding a drink today, changing your attitude and committing yourself to a program of personal growth, such as Alcoholics Anonymous. To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Help If: Mental/Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been told that the can of Coke that I drink for lunch effectively blocks absorption of dietary calcium, even from milk. Is this true?

DEAR READER: Most modern soft drinks are devoid of anything but sugar, water, coloring and flavorings; some contain caffeine. Old-fashioned REAL Coca-Cola — the stuff with cocaine and God knows what other unhealthful ingredients — was said to interfere with the absorption of many nutrients, including calcium. However, to my knowledge, this was untrue.

Certainly, today's Coke, which is basically sugar-water, should not affect calcium. Therefore, you're safe to enjoy a soft drink without worrying about the nutritional consequences — except for the unnecessary "empty" calories provided by the soda.

Arnold Schwarzenegger became the latest recipient of a Boys Town youth service award Monday, following in the footsteps of Mother Teresa and basketball great Michael Jordan.

Clinton meets with Egyptian president

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Clinton and Egyptian President Mubarak, emerging as the two main mediators in Mideast peacemaking, committed themselves to finding a solution but indicated no breakthrough was near after meeting Tuesday.

The two met for an hour and a half at a lavish reception room at the Cairo airport after Clinton touched down in Egypt on the way home from an African tour that included a disappointing failure to reach a peace accord for Burundi.

They made no remarks after their meeting, but Amr Moussa, Mubarak's foreign minister, said the session was "good, positive and important."

Moussa said Clinton brought no new plan, "but there are ways and proposals and ideas" that could allow Israelis and Palestinians to move closer together in the next few days.

"But this will require a great effort," Moussa said.

Dennis Ross, U.S. envoy to the Middle East, said the two leaders reviewed the flurry of peacemaking meetings that followed a failed summit last month between Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak at the U.S. presidential retreat Camp David.

The Cairo meeting "was also a chance to consult about how best to be helpful to the parties and how the two of us (Egypt and the United States) can be working together to be most helpful to them in order to try to move toward an agreement," Ross said.

"We know ... that it is possible to reach an agreement, but the real question is how to translate that possibility into reality," Ross added. "There is a possibility and it shouldn't be lost ... there is a risk that it could be lost."

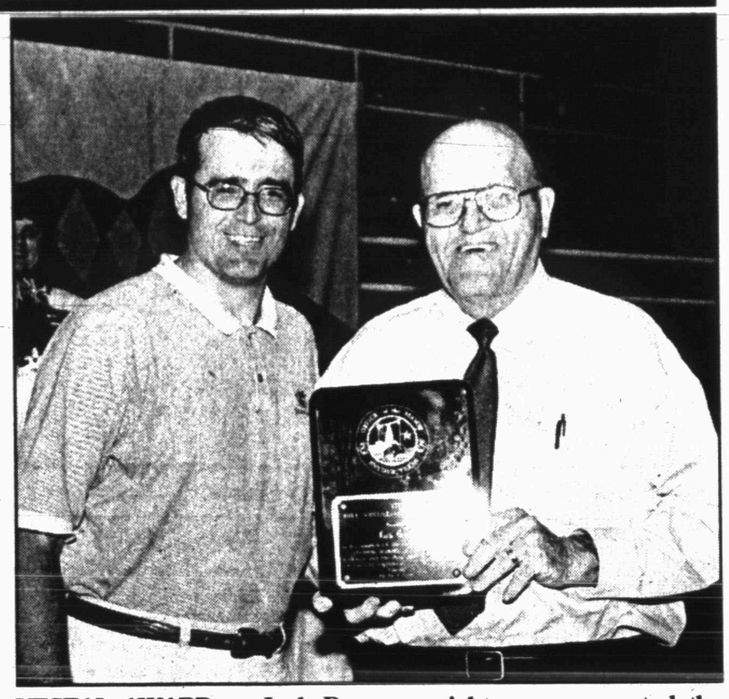

Moussa said it was impossible to say whether another Camp David style summit could soon be convened.

Clinton flew in from Arusha, Tanzania, where Nelson Mandela angrily lectured warring factions in one of Africa's bloodiest wars for failing to reach a peace agreement.

After encouraging democratic advances in a visit to Nigeria, Clinton had hoped to witness the signing of an accord in Arusha. He told ethnic Tutsis and Hutus: "When all is said and done, only you can bring an end to the bloodshed and sorrow your country has suffered."

It was similar to past U.S. messages for the Middle East, where Clinton has played an intense role.

Mubarak said before welcoming Clinton for their early-morning meeting that he is optimistic that Israel and the Palestinians can reach an agreement by next month.

Gusty winds still hamper firefighters

RED LODGE, Mont. (AP) — This is how bad it's gotten in the West: A wildfire ripping through a region here dotted with summer homes burns unabated, despite being named the state's No. 1 firefighting priority.

Some 150 dwellings have been evacuated near the south-central resort town of Red Lodge, while the 65-mile Beartooth Highway, which winds its way into Yellowstone National Park, has been closed.

With so many other blazes across the West demanding firefighters' attention, rescuers were just trying to keep the fire from consuming summer homes, some of them $1 million estates.

"Erratic fire behavior, steep slopes and gusty winds currently prevent direct attack of the fire with ground personnel," the U.S. Forest Service said late Monday.

In neighboring South Dakota, flames have burned 101 square miles of the Black Hills National Forest — the largest in the modern history of the forest.

Idaho's biggest blaze remained the 182,500-acre fire in the Salmon-Challis National Forest. Fires in the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness prompted more evacuations at ranches Monday.

In Red Lodge, fire information officer Jeff Gildehaus has requested 280 shovel-toting firefighters, a strike team of 20 engines to spray water and foam, and eight helicopters.

But even when the manpower and equipment arrives, it may not be enough to snuff the flames. "That's a good start but just an initial order," he said.

The fire was estimated at 3,500-plus acres, relatively small in comparison to the giant fires in southwestern Montana's Bitterroot Valley, but it became the state's top priority because of its potential for causing serious problems.

It was among 31 active fires on 674,000 acres Monday in Montana. Nationally, there are 84 fires burning on 1.7 million acres. So far this year, 6.2 million acres in the United States have burned.

Fire lines were widened Monday in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where a blaze has consumed 64,900 acres.

Hermleigh ISD to adopt budget

Hermleigh ISD will consider adopting the district's 2000-01 budget when the school's trustees meet at 8 tonight.

The district is proposing a budget of $1,173,000 as compared to the adopted budget last year of $1,235,000.

Also on the agenda are two amendments to the current budget to reflect actual expenditures of $1,186,000.

Trustees will also consider setting the district's tax rate. The present rate is $1.4142 per $100 valuation and it is expected to be adopted at $1.50 per $100 valuation.

The Hermleigh school district is the only taxing entity that lost value during the last assessment period. Supt. Jerry Church said the district's effective rate – the rate necessary to raise the same amount of money as last year – is $1.4594.

A public hearing on the budget will be held prior to the meeting.
