Country song poll

While much of the nation is just getting around to discovering country music, West Texans have long been fans of "the Nashville sound."

Country superstar George Strait has set a stop on his national tour for March 28 in the Ector County Coliseum, while Wynonna Judd has selected Midland's Chaparral Center as the site for her solo debut concert on April 2.

Both artists have been responsible for dozens of hits, but which are your favorites?

Would you rather make "Amarillo by Morning"? Or, is "The Chair" more your speed?

Was Wynonna on target when she sang "Mama, He's Crazy"? Or is your sentiment "Love Can Build a Bridge"?

The Cityline COMMUNITY PULSE wants to know. Call 560-2400 and select category 1890 to express your opinion on your favorite song by each artist.

One free call to the COMMUNITY PULSE will allow you to vote twice — once for each singer, as well as leave a brief comment about either artist.

This special survey will remain open through Thursday, and results of your calls will be tallied and reported in Friday's edition of the Reporter-Telegram.

Smith remarries

WASHINGTON — Rep. Lamar Smith, who was widowed last year, has been remarried in a small, quiet ceremony. The San Antonio Republican wed Elizabeth Lynn Schaefer on Friday in a "small" ceremony at St. Francis Chapel in Waring, Texas, his press secretary said Monday. It is the second marriage for Smith, 45, and the first for the 31-year-old Ms. Schaefer, a San Antonio native. Smith's first wife, Jane, died Jan. 2, 1991, at the age of 43. Smith has two children by his first marriage, Nell, 15, and Tobin, 12.

Deputy lassos man

LOS ANGELES — A sheriff's deputy used a garden hose to lasso an elderly man threatening his family with a knife, an official said. Oscar Campbell, 79, was taken to a psychiatric hospital for evaluation, Deputy Victoria Berenbau said. Campbell, who uses a walker, was in his driveway waving a knife at members of his family when deputies arrived Saturday, Berenbau said. He warned them to leave and taunted them to shoot him, she said. One deputy distracted the man while the other picked up the hose and threw it around him from behind, Berenbau said. The officers then disarmed him.

Investigators probe wreckage of Flight 405

Survivors tell of last minutes

■ Death toll rises to 27 in La Guardia tragedy.

By N.R. Kleinfield
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Robert Spear found himself boarding the plane unexpectedly when the intensifying snowstorm ruled out his original flight.

As the jetliner taxied down the runway in the blustery snow, some sixth sense told him to cinch his seat belt a little tighter, that this would be no ordinary flight.

At the last moment, a ticket attendant who recognized an actor, Richard Lawson, cheerfully promoted him to first class, one of those little courtesies that always tickled him. This time the gesture may have saved his life.

NEW YORK — A quick evaluation of the cockpit voice recorder yielded no clues on the crash of USAir Flight 405 at La Guardia Airport, a federal official said Monday. Twenty-seven people were killed.

Investigators were looking at several possible causes, including whether the plane should have been de-iced once more before it took off in a snowstorm Sunday night, said John Lauber, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board.

"At this point there's nothing that leaps out based on that very quick listen," Lauber said of the initial review of the voice recorder.

Twenty-four of the 51 people aboard the Cleveland-bound plane were injured when it slid off a runway into Flushing Bay and broke apart Sunday night.

Twenty-six bodies were pulled from the bay Sunday, and divers found the last body Monday night, said Sgt. Mary Wrensen, a police spokesman.

Plant manager fights to keep Dynagen open

■ General Tire gives synthetic rubber plant 30-day deadline for a final review.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

ODESSA — After years of controversy ended with the community fearing for Dynagen's future, manager Tim Gorman now has a 30-day deadline to keep the plant open.

Gorman announced Monday he has begun a series of meetings with city, county and state leaders aimed at studying alternatives to keep the synthetic rubber plant from a forced closure.

A subsidiary of General Tire & Rubber Co., Gorman said Dynagen is threatened by two factors — the high cost of environmental compliance and difficult economic times.

After a feasibility study, closure "appears to be inevitable," according to a press release from General Tire.

But the move was called a "scare tactic" by an inspector with the Texas Air Control Board (TACB), which since 1987 has cited Dynagen 781 times for polluting.

Gorman said he has 30 days to submit to company officials a plan to make Dynagen's operation viable. He would not detail his proposals or even hint at ideas, but said all options would be considered in the search for "substantial relief."

Judge unseals sheriff's plea bargain details

DALLAS (AP) — There were other persons working with the Presidio County sheriff in a $50 million cocaine smuggling attempt, according to the sheriff's plea agreement that was released Monday in Pecos.

The plea bargain, which kept Rick Thompson from going to trial, was unsealed Monday in Pecos after The Dallas Morning News sued to have the document opened.

The case was sealed last month when Thompson pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to import a load of cocaine that was found in a horse trailer at the Presidio County fairgrounds.

Perot's possible campaign makes both sides nervous

Perot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas billionaire Ross Perot's flirtation with a third-party campaign for president is making political veterans in both parties nervous. Analysts say a well-financed Perot campaign could easily change the dynamics of a close general-election contest.

President Bush's re-election campaign is suggesting Perot's potential challenge would hurt the Democrats more than the president.

Campaign spokeswoman Torie Clarke said Perot "may be having some fun" in considering a challenge to his fellow Texan. But, she said, "it doesn't make any difference to us one way or the other" whether he gets in.

She predicted Perot would take votes away from Clinton, citing Perot's support for abortion rights and gun control.

Other Bush aides were more wary. "You have to take seriously anybody who's got $2 billion who wants to run for president," said Bush senior campaign adviser Charles Black.

Democratic party Chairman Ronald Brown saw Perot doing damage to the GOP.

"My judgment is his candidacy will debilitate George Bush, will hurt him very badly

American sumo wrestler rocks Japanese tradition

By David E. Sanger
N.Y. Times News Service

TOKYO — For years now, Japan's tradition-bound sports world has neatly sidestepped the question of how to handle the country's most famous American import, a 576-pound behemoth more fearsome than a pack of angry trade negotiators, considerably more competitive than General Motors and more popular among young Japanese than jazz bars and delivery pizza.

The American invader is Salevaa Atisnoe of Hawaii, but to millions of Japanese sumo wrestling fans, some more adoring than others, he is known simply as Konishiki.

Sunday, with a hard shove, he toppled his opponent and took the coveted Emperor's Cup for the third time. And with that victory, which he acknowledged with tears in his eyes, he has forced the centuries-old world of sumo to face a vexing question: Is Japan ready to

CRASH: Investigators sift wreckage for clues

(From 1A)

Lauber said the possibility the plane needed a third de-icing before its takeoff was one of several things investigators were looking into. The plane had been de-iced twice, the last time about 30 minutes before it took off in a snowstorm.

Investigators also were studying a runway skid mark and the position of the plane's wing flaps for clues, Lauber said.

The plane had just lifted off the ground, witnesses said, when it crashed back onto the runway, skidded over an embankment into Flushing Bay and broke apart.

The nose, a wing and an engine snapped off and the rest of the plane exploded into a fireball and skidded into the water with its top sheared off.

The plane had been de-iced at 8:29 p.m. and again at 8:59 p.m., and passengers said the pilot told them the second de-icing was to ensure a safe flight.

When asked why the captain didn't ask for a third de-icing when another 30 minutes elapsed before takeoff, Lauber said, "I can't respond to that, we'll be looking at that."

He said there was no standard amount of time for ordering a de-icing and that such a decision depends on the captain and weather conditions.

A plane is de-iced by spraying it with a mixture of water and an alcohol-based liquid. If ice is allowed to build up on a plane's wings the plane has difficulty getting the lift needed for takeoff.

It appeared luck was all that separated the dead from the 24 injured survivors who waded ashore after Sunday's crash.

"I was amazed so many people survived," said Fire Capt. John Kurtz, who arrived shortly after the crash. "There were bodies burnt to a crisp and bodies cut in half, and then there were people walking around."

The survivors suffered injuries ranging from minor to severe burns in Sunday night's crash.

Patrick Silver, who watched from his home, said the plane appeared to flip over "three or four times before it went into the water. . . . It lit up the living room. It was a huge fireball."

Survivors included Richard Lawson, who plays Lucas Barnes on the television soap "All My Children." He escaped from a submerged section of the plane and walked ashore.

"I was completely pinned underwater. I didn't think I was going to live," Lawson said from his hospital bed.

Another passenger, Laura Trego of Solon, Ohio, said that in the instant after the crash she found herself "floating in the water, because those seats float. I opened my eyes, but there was no plane over me. I was next to it."

But inside the fuselage, divers repeatedly found dead passengers floating head down, still strapped into their floating seats. Some were charred; others appeared to have drowned.

The pilot, Wallace Majure II, was among those still strapped in.

"We tried to cut him out but couldn't," said diver Bill Lake. "We were working against the tide."

Bodies were taken from the shoreline to a hangar, where a Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Kevin Noone, said he prayed over them.

"It was just the most horrible conditions you can have for something like this," said police Sgt. Michael Collins. "The snow, the visibility, the fire, the smoke, the injuries. The dead. The water. The debris. The baggage floating. It was bizarre, totally bizarre."

At first, only the cockpit and first five rows were under water; but eventually the tide swallowed the wreckage.

PEROT: Bid might change dynamics of election and will therefore help us elect a Democrat president," Brown said.

Either way, Perot organizers received enough signatures on a petition to qualify the industrialist Monday to appear as an independent on the general election ballot in Tennessee, the first state he's qualified for so far.

Perot said last week that he would run for president if supporters put his name on the ballot in all 50 states. He said he would spend up to $100 million of his own money if he were to wage such a campaign.

Whether Perot would draw more votes from Bush or from Clinton is a hard question in this unpredictable presidential season, analysts suggest.

"It seems that at first blush, he would hurt the Republican side more than the Democratic side," said Bruce Buchanan, a political science professor at the University of Texas. "But if you look deeper into the situation, he's going to appeal to the same kind of disaffected voters that both Jerry Brown and Pat Buchanan are."

Still, Buchanan says, Perot "might hamper the Republicans slightly more than the Democrats because he attacks the Republicans' conservative base."

In any event, Perot could be a major factor in states where the vote between the two major candidates is close, Buchanan said.

Drives are under way in every state to have Perot's name placed on November ballots as an independent candidate.

Although an independent candidate has never come even close to winning the presidency, there has never been one backed with $100 million.

The last candidate to wage an independent candidacy was John Anderson in 1980. The former Republican congressman, whose campaign was severely short of cash, got just 6.6 percent of the vote.

With so many disenchanted voters, "There's room out there for a third-party candidate who could run stronger than Anderson did," said Democratic analyst Bob Beckel.

DYNAGEN: Officials fight to keep plant open

cials said they need details about Dynagen's requirements, but they expect an uphill battle nevertheless.

"Any challenge I put before our employees and the community in the past has always been accepted," Gorman said. "We're talking about a community with a lot of economic problems. . . . It's imperative we stand up and take notice."

With a history of years of citizen complaints and state citations, the company and the Texas Attorney General's office in September set an agreed judgment in state district court. It was a plan for high-dollar improvements and $1.4 million in penalties.

"We've bent over backwards for the company," said Neil Carman, TACB chief investigator. In the September agreement, the state cut $3 million from Dynagen's original $4.4 million in penalties to allow the plant to install pollution-reducing equipment.

"Never in any negotiation during the lawsuit did we ask Dynagen to close the plant," Carman said. "We cut that $3 million to show our commitment to keeping the plant open."

In addition, the agreement did not require Dynagen to remove sludge beds, a frequent source of odor complaints, Carman said. He said that was a major concession, while the ponds continue to be a source of citizen complaints.

Carman said the plant has been operating at near-maximum capacity recently, causing him to doubt it is has financial difficulties and is headed for closure.

"This company has used the same scare tactic since we've been dealing with them," Carman said.

Gorman, however, said closure is a very real possibility.

He said environmental compliance costs are estimated in the $30 million range, while competition in the tire market has increased and economic disadvantages multiplied.

Campaigns to save Dynagen have been active in the last several months, including a trip by city leaders to Austin, where Gov. Ann Richards gave the plant her support.

"Personally, I want Dynagen to survive the test of time," said Gorman, advocating long-term solutions.

Odessa Mayor Lorraine Perryman said city officials are doing "everything humanly possible" to help Dynagen stay open, but would not sacrifice the environment for the plant.

"It's not in anybody's best interest to shut that plant down, still have environmental problems and nobody have jobs," she said.

With Dynagen's renewed effort, however, the city will get the answers to vital questions about how it can help, Mrs. Perryman said.

"We wanted to know what . . . they want, what specifically do they need from us, and this way, we'll get a list," she said.

Mrs. Perryman said some type of agreement is possible. "We want those jobs in Odessa."

Gorman said he is taking the effort very seriously.

"I have 230 people's livelihoods in my hands," he said, referring to the plant's current work force. Total payroll is estimated at about $8 million.

An assistant with the Texas Attorney General's office confirmed that Dynagen officials have planned a meeting there later this week that will include TACB and Texas Water Commission representatives.

"They're under a gun, so to speak, to comply (with the agreement)," Carman said. He said even if the plant is closed, it would likely be required to abate some hazards to water in the area.

"It's going to be a multi-million dollar expense whether it's open or shut," Carman said.

SURVIVORS: Many describe eerie sensations

(From 1A)

There were 27 passengers killed Sunday night in the crash of Cleveland-bound USAir Flight 405, but another 24 people managed to cheat death in the ugly evening, some just barely.

Their memories are crowded with overlapping visions of mangled metal and balls of fire, of gushing water and the stench of jet fuel on their clothes. Some can still hear the anguished shrieks for help, not all of which were answered.

Some passengers described eerie sensations that something was not quite right with this flight, that the de-icing hadn't been done properly or the speed was errant.

In the twisted wreckage, as they lay submerged in icy water strapped upside down in their seats, as if part of a Houdini escape act, most thought they would die.

When Spear, 24, an auditor for Peat Marwick from Fairfield, Conn., left for the airport at 3:20 p.m. for a 7 o'clock flight, he allowed himself extra time. He knew snow lurked in the clouds.

He had an audit to do in Canton, Ohio, and was scheduled on a USAir flight out of La Guardia that would connect with a plane in Philadelphia.

Arriving at the airport with hours to spare, he settled himself at a bar, ordered a couple of hot dogs and some french fries and took in the NCAA basketball game between Syracuse and the University of Massachusetts.

When Spear got to his gate, he was told that delays in his flight made it impossible for him to make his connection in Philadelphia. It was suggested he take USAir Flight 405 to Cleveland. He had 15 minutes to get to Gate 1. When he got there, he was assigned seat 2A and was the very last to board.

Richard Lawson, an actor in his mid-30s who recently joined the cast of the soap opera "All My Children," in which he plays architect Lucas Barnes, was going to Cleveland to see some basketball players.

As a sideline, he does drug counseling for the National Basketball Association. On Monday, he had a date with the Cleveland Cavaliers. Originally, he planned to leave Monday, but switched to Flight 405 to try to beat the snow.

He was assigned seat 6D. But an attendant who recognized him (he had been in "Dynasty," "Molly Dodd" and the movie "Poltergeist") said he'd try to squeeze him into first class.

As boarding began, Lawson was upgraded to the first row. Later on that awful night, he learned that at least one passenger in the row farther back, where he had originally been assigned, had died.

After the passengers boarded, maintenance workers began de-icing the plane. Passengers described the sound as similar to passing through a car wash.

Then the pilot announced an odd mishap: the de-icing truck had stalled behind the jetliner, blocking its path. After a while, the truck was restarted and the pilot said the plane would be de-iced again.

The pilot also said, "For you flap watchers, don't worry. The flaps are up just so the wheels don't kick ice up onto the flaps."

Lawson was unsuccessfully trying to read the newspaper.

"I had these bad vibes," he said. "I fly 70 to 80 times a year and I only had this feeling once before, about 10 years ago, and the pilot aborted the flight. And so I started to pay attention. I was carefully watching the de-icing truck."

He said that the left side of the plane was never de-iced initially and that the right side didn't get de-iced a second time. The vibes got worse.

As the plane began to roll away from the terminal, the pilot mentioned that there were seven planes in front of it, so it might be a 10-minute wait.

"Yeah, right, 10 minutes," Lawson thought.

Nearly a half-hour later, about 9:30, the plane crept to the front of the line and was cleared for takeoff.

Several passengers said that in the moments before and after takeoff they sensed something amiss. "The speed seemed suspect to me," Lawson said. "It didn't seem fast enough."

Laura Trego, 23, who sat in seat 4A, said that as soon as the plane took off she felt compelled to crumple her body into the crash position.

Spear had buried his nose in his accounting books, for he was studying to take his CPA exam in May. Some extra sense spoke to him, too. He tightened his seat belt. "I thought to myself, 'Just in case,' " he said.

The snow was steady as the plane gathered speed and lifted off. It was barely 50 feet in the air, passengers said, when it veered sharply to the left. Then the nose began to ease back to the right.

The man next to Lawson said, "They're trying to abort the takeoff."

"Oh God," Lawson said.

Then, passengers said, the plane bounced hard several times on the runway. There was the screeching sound of metal tearing. A fiery light filled the windows. The plane began to flip, perhaps several times.

"I heard ground being chewed up," Lawson said. "The whole world was turning over in slow motion."

Oddly, Lawson said he never heard a peep out of any of the passengers. Spear, a row behind him, said he heard lots of screaming.

"They were saying, 'We're going to crash! Help us!' " he said. "They were screaming, 'Oh my God!' I thought about getting into the crash position. Before I did, we had already crashed."

The plane, snapped into pieces, slammed into the bay. "The next thing I knew I was underwater," Lawson said.

For a brief moment, he was convinced he would die. "I was thinking, 'I know that I'm dying,' " he said. "Something in my mind said, 'Just relax into this death. Die peacefully.' Then another part of my mind said, 'Forget that. Try to get out of there, man.' I felt the body of the man next to me struggling against mine. I grabbed my buckle and finally undid it and a surge of adrenalin came over me and I pushed everything aside and I finally breathed air."

Lawson looked about. "Over me was a hood of twisted metal and wire," he said. He saw a man's face peering at him through a hole in the metal. "Come toward me!" the man yelled.

Lawson clawed toward the opening and yanked himself through. He sat down. He thought he had swallowed fuel, because he was breathing fitfully. He lay down, gasping.

Spying flames dancing toward him from the back of the plane, he knew he had to get out, so he jumped into the water. It was only waist high. Twenty yards away, he saw the shore, and he waded toward it and pulled himself up onto layers of railroad ties, where other survivors had already gathered.

"I felt incredible cold," Lawson said. "I shivered for six hours afterward."

UNSEALS: Others involved, Thompson's plea pact says the pact made public because authorities are still investigating the drug smuggling case. Thompson also wanted the agreement to remain secret.

(From 1A)

The plea agreement shows that Thompson said he became involved in the smuggling case with co-defendant, Glyn Robert Chambers, and "with other persons to the grand jury unknown."

The bargain says that Thompson will cooperate with the government in the future.

Three of four charges against Thompson were dropped in the deal. The charges followed a 2,421-pound cocaine seizure in Marfa last year.

Also, the government agreed not to prosecute the former sheriff for any past narcotics or gun violations or for any perjury committed before the grand jury in the past in the Western District.

Thompson faces between 10 years to life in prison and a maximum $4 million fine, although the U.S. Attorney is recommending a reduction in the sentence for making the plea. The government is suggesting a 10-year prison sentence with no fine. Sentencing is set for May 8.

Thompson, who had been sheriff for 18 years, remains free on $5,000 bond.

Before his indictment, Thompson had said he moved the drugs from the Rio Grande to Marfa as part of a one-man reverse drug sting he was conducting. The cocaine's street value was estimated at $48 million.

Charges against the sheriff that were dismissed included conspiracy of possession with intent to distribute more than five kilograms of cocaine, possession with intent to distribute more than five kilograms of cocaine and importing and causing to be imported more than five kilograms of cocaine from Mexico.

Chambers, 37, remains jailed. He faced the same charges as Thompson, but pleaded guilty to conspiracy of possession with intent to distribute. He is awaiting sentencing.

SUMO: American shakes Japanese tradition

admit a foreigner to the sport's most exalted heights, the rank of yokozuna, or grand champion?

At a time when Japan is desperately trying to shake its image as a closed market, the country now faces a test of openness in an unexpected arena. Never before in the 300-year modern history of sumo has the issue of a foreign grand champion come up.

But in recent weeks, as speculation mounted that the heaviest wrestler in sumo's history could triumph in the 15-day tournament, the uncomfortable question has rumbled through the country's sports pages, its intellectual journals and the national psyche.

So for a moment forget about the fate of Detroit and rice imports and whether American workers are lazy and illiterate. In Tokyo's sushi bars and taxicabs, Konishiki's qualifications for the rank of grand champion are virtually the sole topic of conversation.

Sumo strategies are complex, but the rules are simple. The first wrestler to fall or to be forced to step out of the ring is the loser.

In the past 300 years only about 60 sumo wrestlers have become yokozuna, each of unquestioned Japanese heritage. The rank is considered so high in Japanese culture that in many ways in transcends the sport itself.

But with the sudden retirement last year of one of the greatest wrestlers in the history of sumo, Chiyonofuji, there is only one yokozuna now fighting.

And nothing has brought out the nationalistic instincts of Japan's old guard more vividly than the sight of a sweating Konishiki propelling his opponents out of the dohyo, the hard clay ring where giant rolls of flesh collide and national heroes are made.

"I cannot agree with the arguments of those who would allow foreigners to become yokozuna in the name of 'internationalizing' Japan," Noboru Kojima, a member of the committee that will decide Konishiki's fate, thundered this month in Bungei Shunju, one of Japan's most respected journals.

To become a yokozuna, Kojima insisted, a wrestler needs not only strength but a noble Japanese spirit, an aura of dignity known as hinkaku.

In short, Kojima said, there is a "unique notion of sumo that is exclusive to Japan, that does not exist in any other country." Foreign wrestlers trying to emulate this notion, he wrote, "might be confused and embarrassed."

Kojima is hardly alone. While Konishiki is beloved by many fans for a manner as mild as his matter is massive, over the years he has been the subject of scores of death threats.

In the mid-1980s a former Japanese sumo champion said Konishiki's success as the first foreigner to become ozeki, or champion, was a "shame for Japan," and a prominent novelist declared that if he ever reached yokozuna, "sumo tournaments should be called off."

That the 28-year-old Konishiki, whose name is pronounced ko-NISH-key and roughly means "small brocade," should become the center of such controversy is itself a bit odd.

For of all of the foreigners playing sports in Japan — there are two, for example, on every major league baseball team — he has blended in the best.

Konishiki, who was born in American Samoa and played football while growing up in Hawaii, now seems quite Japanese. He has been competing in Japan for about a decade and speaks the language with near fluency.

And a month ago he married his Japanese sweetheart, Sumika, a model a fifth his weight and a bit thinner than either of his legs.

It was a measure of the national fascination with Konishiki that his wedding ceremony was broadcast live around the country and was attended by some of the country's top politicians and business executives.

Konishiki reportedly is seeking Japanese citizenship, no easy task in a country that welcomes immigrants with the same enthusiasm that it greets foreigners meddling in the national sport.

He has an enormous following in Japan, particularly among the young, who may have more interest in the sport than in the ritual. There is a Konishiki fan club, and every detail of his life — from the state of his bad knee to his healthy appetite — is reported in painstaking detail.

The newspapers have concluded that nuptial bliss makes for a stronger sumo, and in recent days the words "Marriage Power" have been blared across the front pages.

Certainly he is eating well: When he won his first Emperor's Cup victory, in November 1989, he was a lithe 490 pounds.

Konishiki is credited with helping fuel the huge resurgence of popularity that sumo has enjoyed in recent years, making it virtually impossible to obtain — or afford — tickets to a match.

The Bosworth Company provides clean, pollutant-free air

According to a numerous experts, including The American Lung Association, the air we breathe in our homes can be more dangerous than the polluted outdoor air in our cities. Furniture, draperies, carpets and clothing contain chemical residue, pollens, dust mites and bacteria that are harmful to the respiratory system. And the central duct system in the home acts as a high-speed freeway to route these particulates through your home.

The Bosworth Company spent more than three years investigating all forms of duct cleaning methods, then elected to make a financial commitment to a state-of-the-arts duct cleaning system. (Some inferior systems only chemically seal the matter built up in the duct's interior. Over time, these sealers crack and deteriorate, sometimes releasing unhealthy chemicals themselves.)

Commonly known as "total source removal," The Bosworth Company's duct cleaning system is a high-powered vacuum truck. The vacuum system on this truck, 15 to 20 times more powerful than a furnace blower, is hooked up to the duct system of your home. Then, an "air sweep" is run to knock pollutants loose while the vacuum cleaner is running. By the time the Bosworth Company is through cleaning the ducts, 95 percent or more of the pollutants are gone. This includes dirt, dust, fungi, dust mites, viruses, bacteria and other contaminants.

"There are many ways of doing duct cleaning, but ours is the best and most thorough," says Randy Bosworth, of The Boswor h Company.

In most instances, The Bosworth Company can give home owners a free, no-obligation duct-cleaning estimate over the phone. Just call 683-5233 for information.

The Bosworth Company has provided the Midland/Odessa area with plumbing, heating and air conditioning sales and service for over 40 years. Their reputation is built on quality service at competitive prices. They deliver quickly and reliably — including after hours if necessary.

Also, they have built the most respected heating and air conditioning organization in the entire West Texas area. Bosworth service technicians attend factory training schools on a continuous basis to stay abreast of the ever-changing technology in the heating and air conditioning industry. Their reputation, service and design expertise ensures the most energy efficient and trouble-free cooling and heating systems available.

Additionally, The Bosworth Company installs attic insulation. In the summer, attic temperatures in West Texas can soar over 150 degrees. That's why all utility companies recommend that homes have R30 attic insulation to maximize operation efficiency. The Bosworth's Company's trained experts will visit your home at no charge to determine if additional attic insulation can prolong the life of your heating/cooling system.

The Bosworth Company is located at 2505 West Industrial in Midland. In addition to quality service, they have a large, professional showroom along with the most complete selection of repair parts for the do-it-yourselfer.

Give them a call at 683-5233 or 570-5233.

The Bosworth Company's giant "vacuum cleaner" removes more than 95 percent of harmful pollutants from the average home's duct systems

Chaparral Wash & Lube helps rekindle love affair with car

Chaparral Wash & Lube has many happy repeat customers. Pictured, from left, are service technician C.C. Banks, customer Craig Atchinson and owner Leon Jeffcoat. Atchinson says he's been coming to Chaparral since they opened. "It's the only place I can get my car washed the right way," he said. "And I feel comfortable that the service work is done accurately and professionally."

It was Springtime in Midland, a strong wind blew across the plains, wildflowers bloomed, everyone rejoiced. Everyone, that is, except a relatively new powder-blue compact car. Not that anyone could tell the poor car was blue, what with high Texas wind blowing so much Texas dust on it. It looked more like a muck-gray car. Its owner, who had once fallen in love with it at first sight on the showroom floor, was now barely civil to it. Why, he not only forgot their anniversary, but didn't even remember to get the compact its oil change.

Then, just as the car was reaching its most despondent state, the owner found out about Chaparral Wash & Lube. He learned that since 1984, Chaparral Wash & Lube had been enjoying a well-earned reputation as the best car wash and oil change service in Midland.

So the owner took the car to Chaparral, where they carry major brands of oil, including Pennzoil, Quaker State and Havoline. Prices for the oil change and lube range from $18.50 to $23.50. (But because the owner felt so guilty, he decided to use a synthetic oil such as Mobil One. The price was $36.50.)

Included with the oil change was a thorough examination under the hood. Technicians checked the battery, power steering, transmission and windshield-washer fluids. As part of the service, these fluids are replenished, if needed.

For an additional charge, technicians install transmission oil, freon, light bulbs and windshield-wiper refills.

By then, the compact was feeling much better. And it almost honked its own horn when it heard even more good news. A free car wash was included with each oil change.

By the time the car (who looked quite jaunty and powder blue again) and the owner left Chaparral Wash & Lube, they were both happy again. The car had received personal service from dedicated long-time employees like lube center technician C.C. Banks, car wash detail supervisor Guillermo Portillo and detail specialist Gilbert Guiterrrez. These men have a combination of more than 20 years' experience with Chaparral.

The owner also realized that a regular maintenance schedule for his car was good insurance against expensive future car trouble, not to speak of automotive depression.

Chaparral Wash & Lube owner Leon Jeffcoat recommends a minimum maintenance schedule of every 3,000 miles or every three months.

A full-service car wash, which includes a wash by gentle cleansers, chamois brushes and soft water is just $7.95. Add wax for $2. Standard vans and Suburbans are $2 more. Vacuuming, hand-drying and window cleaning are included in the price.

Customers who have their car washed also can have the tank filled with Texaco gas at the same stop. More than 18 gallons means a free wash.

Chaparral also offers professionally administered detail jobs. Prices start at $59.

Chaparral Wash & Lube Center is located at the corner of Big Spring and Scharbauer. Texaco, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover cards are welcome. Hours are 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Call 682-8013 for information.

Libya offers to surrender suspects in plane bombing

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Libya has offered to surrender two men suspected in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 to the Arab League for eventual trial in the United States or Britain, the Security Council president said Monday.

The offer marked a major Libyan concession as it seeks to avoid U.N. Security Council economic and diplomatic sanctions being pushed by the United States, Britain and France.

London and Washington seek the extradition of the two Libyans for bombing the New York-bound Pan Am plane over Lockerbie, Scotland, in 1988. France seeks four others for the bombing of a French airliner over Africa in 1989. A total of 441 people died in the attacks.

Libyan Ambassador Ali Ahmed Elhouderi announced the plan to turn over the accused to the Arab League while talking with reporters at the United Nations.

"We hope this can put an end to this unnecessary confrontation," Elhouderi said.

Elhouderi said it would be up to the 21-member Arab League to decide the fate of the Lockerbie suspects — whether to turn them over to the United States and Britain, or to a neutral country, or to the United Nations.

He did not say when they would be surrendered.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering was noncommittal on whether the United States would now stop pushing for further sanctions. "We are waiting to hear that these people will take the actions they are supposed to take," he said.

Libya's government previously has denied involvement in the bombings and said its citizens were not involved. It offered to hold trials in Libya, but that idea was rejected by the United States and Britain.

It was not clear whether the plan included the four men sought by France — which previously had offered to send a judge to Tripoli, Libya's capital, to observe their trial.

Countries blame U.S. for endangering Rio meeting

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — Rich and poor countries attending a five-week conference here say the United States is endangering prospects for the international environmental meeting planned for Rio de Janeiro next June.

These countries say that by refusing to promise more environmental aid to the Third World or to set limits for emissions of gases that contribute to global warming, the United States threatens to sabotage the two most important agreements to be taken up at the Rio meeting. The purpose of the Rio talks, which are expected to draw thousands of participants from more than 170 countries, is to plan for a world economy that can continue to grow without irreversible ecological damage.

The American stand threatens Agenda 21, an ambitious, international environmental cleanup plan for the next century, because of Third World requests for additional aid and new environmental technologies from industrialized northern countries.

The 12 European Community countries as well as Canada and Scandinavia, are all ready to provide additional aid, but have not committed themselves to specific amounts.

There has been no visible result so far of a meeting last week of the conference's secretary general, Maurice F. Strong, of Canada, with U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft, and the White House chief of staff, Samuel P. Skinner, in an effort to shift the American position.

On Monday, Sen. Albert Gore, a Democrat from Tennessee who will lead the Senate contingent to Rio, told delegates that the United States must exercise leadership to ensure the success of the Rio meetings, saying that a minimum agreement must be reached on the issues of "new and additional" aid to the Third World, and stabilizing emissions.

"The United States must use its moral authority, its political and economic strength and its leadership skills to resolve the impasses that are frustrating progress."

South Africa reinstates executions

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Opposition groups appealed to the government Monday to suspend plans to resume executions, saying the step could hinder talks on ending white minority rule.

The Justice Ministry announced Monday that executions would resume after a two-year moratorium with 17 convicted killers facing death by hanging. No date was given for the hangings.

The African National Congress and other opposition groups said executions would hamper talks on a new constitution.

"In order to enhance a climate conducive to negotiations, delegates appealed to the government to suspend all executions," 16 opposition groups said in a statement.

No details were made public on the race and sex of the condemned. However, the death penalty is applied to both blacks and whites. The most recent death sentence was that of a white right-winger for attacks against blacks.

Before the moratorium, South Africa had one of the highest execution rates in the world. The most recent execution was carried out in November, 1989.

The government plan to resume the executions appeared to be part of efforts to combat mounting crime. Robbery and assaults have become a major problem, prompting public demands for tough government action.

Straight talk may end rivalry

Russia and Ukraine, the core of the new commonwealth that replaced the Soviet Union only in December, are veering sharply apart. Ukraine wants to maintain an alarmingly large army of its own and is refusing to surrender all its nuclear arms to central control.

It is also bent on economic policies that could damage trade with its commonwealth neighbors.

Russia, not timid about asserting its own nationalism, is fomenting separatism in Ukraine's Crimea region and seeking a huge share of existing military resources.

Washington's plain interest is to keep heated rivalry between the republics from breaking into open conflict.

Washington can make clear that it won't waste aid on republics that maintain unaffordably large armies, proliferate arms or practice beggar-thy-neighbor economic nationalism.

And it can forge a common approach with its allies in Western Europe and Japan, to prevent the republics from playing them off against each other.

The Commonwealth of Independent States is a committee, not a confederation. It was created through uneasy compromise between republics like Ukraine, which saw it as a stepping stone to full independence, and others like Russia, which saw it as a path to reunion.

Ukrainian nationalists, who blame Russian misrule for all their troubles, seek the symbols of nationhood — their own currency, army, even nuclear arms — to underscore their separateness.

But symbols of nationalism exact a price. Ukraine can't afford 400,000 troops. Besides, that's too small a force to rival Russia's — and large enough to alarm other neighbors.

Ukraine, whose trade with other republics accounted for one-third of its gross domestic product, can't suddenly go it alone. Its economy is linked to Russia's, as is its power grid. Kiev can't expect to cut those lines and not be left in the dark.

Ukraine's President, Leonid Kravchuk, pursues gimmicky economic policies and blames Russia for the barren results. He introduces new currencies instead of reform. He distributes coupons to keep Russians from buying Ukraine's goods.

But the Russians just swap their rubles for coupons — at increasingly favorable rates. And Ukraine's soaring budget deficit will soon turn its new currency into wallpaper.

Washington needs to boost its aid to both republics substantially — and set stringent conditions before releasing it.

The U.S. can insist that economic nationalism yield to cooperation, that military forces be reduced, and that Russia cease encouraging separatism in the Crimea, which Moscow ceded to Ukraine in 1954.

Straight talk might induce even ardent nationalists to cooperate, for the good of their separate nations.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Here comes that third-party machine

A pair of puissant public men, Ross Perot and Pat Buchanan, has been scouting the possibility of running third-party bids for the presidency — Perot this year, Buchanan in 1996.

Murchison

We can safely predict that neither man needs to come up with a short list of interior decorators for the Oval Office. No third-party, however zealous and well-intentioned, is going anywhere — save onto history's rubbish heap. I say this not with satisfaction but with clinical detachment. This is how life is.

We keep wishing it wouldn't be that way, which is why third-party candidates keep popping up — Strom Thurmond and Henry Wallace in 1948, George Wallace in 1968 and 1972, John Anderson in 1980, the Libertarians every year since 1972.

A third-party candidacy is therapy more than anything else — a kind of primal political scream. How glorious and romantic to stalk off to the nearest hilltop and plan there the banner of revolt, the standard of I-won't-take-this-anymore. How glorious — and how futile.

Huzzahs go up from the multitudes at first. Oh, the courage, oh, the vision of this new man, who will save us from the business-as-usual pols! We yearn for Jimmy Stewart, drawling and aw-shucksing, to purify the political process through his devotion to American ideals.

In the real, rather than the cinematic, world, the new man finds himself hemmed in by the lack of grassroots organization, money, and, not least, personal experience and preparation. He doesn't get elected, in other words. Sometimes he's actually surprised not to get elected.

Ross Perot has deep pockets; he can hurdle the money problem. But well-meaning amateurs are not going to identify the vital precincts in Houston or Rockford, Ill., and get out the vote, or massage the right bosses and magnificoes in just the right way, or convince the ordinary voter that this new crapshoot is worth risking a week's pay.

Ross Perot is one of the most interesting men in America, but Pat Buchanan, whether or not he goes the third-party route, raises some of the most interesting questions about the future. Buchanan is trying to define for the '90s, inside or outside the Republican Party, one of the two great strains of political thought, conservatism. Perot is the charismatic man-on-horseback, Buchanan the man driven by ideas.

Buchanan asserts an older worldview — moral, religious, patriotic, nationalistic — as the answer to moral and economic decay. His primary interest is the soul of the Republican Party — presently the prize in a two-way wrestling match.

The Republican Party of George Bush is managerial, thumb-twiddling; its zeal for reform can be compared to a brothel-keeper's zeal for the sound of police sirens. A distinct minority of conservatives, even so, goes along with Buchanan. The movement brass have mostly stuck with Bush; some, such as former drug czar William Bennett, have committed verbal assault and battery on Buchanan.

The odds for November remain strongly in Bush's favor, but the famous Chinese curse — "May you live in interesting times" — takes on point. These are interesting times, restless and confused; people yearn for leadership and change yet don't know which leader or what kind of change.

Salaries raise some questions

Midland City Council members are paid $25 per month or $300 per year while the mayor of Midland receives $75 per month or $900 per year. Yet qualified, civic-minded engineers, accountants and others vie for these positions.

In the Midland County Commissioners' Court the starting salary for a new commissioner is $27,132 per year with some $28,000 per year being paid to experienced commissioners.

Thus, a Midland County Commissioner is paid from 90.4 to 93.3 times as much as the Midland City Councilman. Both jobs are considered to be "part-time" jobs.

Why do citizens of Midland pay over 90 times as much for county commissioners as citizens of the City of Midland pay for city councilmen?

Why should a Midland County Commissioner's job be on a paid basis while a city councilman's job is on a community service/token pay basis?

Are county commissioners 90 times as effective and productive as city councilmen? Do they work 90 times as hard? Are they worth 90 times as much?

What must be done to put county commissioners on the same pay scale as city councilmen?

Why is a county judge part of the county commissioners group when the commissioners are a county management group that can turn to the county attorney with any legal question they may have?

Is the county court docket not full enough that another county judge couldn't be used to move the caseload along faster?

What will it take to get the county judge in the county court full time?

Since the city's councilmen cost $1,800 per year (25 x 12 x 6) and the county commissioners cost taxpayers $108,528 per year (27,132 x 4) to $112,000 per year (4 x 28,000), we can save up to $110,200 per year (112,000 - 1800) by getting the Midland County Commissioners put on the same community service pay scale as the Midland City Councilmen.

Let the leader of the Midland County Commissioners group serve for three times what the county commissioners are paid.

Let us do what must be done to effect these savings as soon as possible.

Voters should beware of cons

Feeling that it is time for a change, I find it hard to participate in any Democratic "bashing." Having grown up in Texas, Democrats know more about bashing each other than beating Republicans, possibly due to the lack of Republican competition until recently.

But Jerry Brown may just be doing a "Ronald Reagan" in a Democrat suit. I think it's called going "Hollywood." Maybe it's time that Democrats addressed the issues and not the tabloids. Maybe it's time to study, dig up facts, and review the state of our education, economy, trade, world peace and drug problems. It's time to formulate solutions rather than tapes, videos, and debates that throw more mud than a rainy day backhoe. They're debates that degenerate into pitched verbal battles.

I think it's time that politicians start to contribute to the elevation of the American vision. Yeah, I like some of the things Jerry Brown is saying and proposing, but is it another "read my lips" or "Hollywood?"

If Jerry Brown is for real, great! Go for it! But if it's the old "con" game, voters should vote for Clinton/Tsongas.

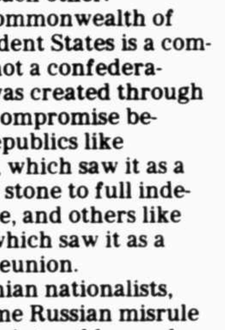
CHARLEY REESE

We have always been multicultural

One of the buzzwords floating around these days is multiculturalism. Well, it's nothing new and it's nothing to be afraid of.



Reese

For some reason in some quarters a myth has arisen that once upon a time America was all English, all white. It never was. It never will be. Africans followed almost on the heels of the Spanish, Portuguese, French, Dutch and English. And, of course, native Americans were already here.

Even when we were the original 13 English colonies we were a diverse people. The English part referred to the legal status of the colonies. There were plenty of Englishmen, of course, but also plenty of Africans, Dutch, Germans, French Huguenots and others. Nor, for that matter, did the Scots, Irish and Welsh immigrants think of themselves as Englishmen.

Our government institutions were derived mainly from the British, but we have always been a multicultural society, though you would never know it to hear some of the political bombast going on today.

The myth of the all-white, all English American came about mainly because white Americans came to dominate the government and intellectual areas of the culture and the rest sort of faded, not at all accidentally, from view.

In my childhood in the old segregated South, in my daily life, I was surrounded by black Americans and interacted with them every day. My first experience with grief came when a black man who worked for our landlord died.

Yet in education, not only were blacks physically absent from the classroom, they were virtually absent from the textbooks.

Native Americans were just the shadowy, savage figures Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone fought. Hispanics were a few conquistadors and the villainous Mexicans who killed Davy at the Alamo and were whipped good and proper by Sam Houston at San Jacinto. Asian-Americans, beyond the movie detectives, Charlie Chan and Mr. Moto, didn't exist at all.

In fact, of course, they all existed, had always existed, and had always played a role in the building of the United States and in developing its culture.

The bottom line is that an American is a multicultural, multiethnic, multiracial political creation and always has been.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

There are no bad checks in Fantasyland

There was a quote in the business section of a newspaper that should be framed and sent to every member of Congress.

Paul Bennett, a yacht-maker from Wilmington, N. C., said:

Grizzard

"It should be mandated," he began, "that you have to have had a career in business before you are ever allowed to be a politician. Right now, none of them knows how money works."

Congress, in an effort "to get the rich guys," as President Bush put it, ordered a luxury tax on such things as private automobiles, aircraft and boats. It was a stupid tax that didn't hurt rich guys. It hurt people who weren't rich. People who could afford boats quit buying them because of the tax, and boat manufacturers and workers took it right between the eyes.

The article reported one company, Californian Yachts of Rocky Mount, N.C., had to lay off 600 workers over the past 18 months.

What happens when somebody is elected to Congress, I am convinced, is he or she leaves the real world and forgets how it works.

Washington isn't the real world. Washington is Fantasyland. And just about everybody who lives and works there can be counted on to do something that will fall under the category of either Mickey Mouse or Goofy.

I'm like Paul Bennett. I would like to see a lot more people who have built and run successful businesses in Congress than professional politicians and lawyers. Fat chance.

"Right now," Paul Bennett had said, "none of them (politicians) knows how money works."

Where do you get that idea?

A lot of congressmen obviously don't understand or have forgotten how a checking account works.

The first thing one needs to know about a checking account is you're not supposed to write a check for more money than is in your account.

But in Fantasyland, Congress has ignored that little rule and now we've got the congressional banking scandal.

An 8th-grader knows if you've got $10 in your banking account and you write a check for $20, you have written a bad check.

Private citizens sometime get put in jail for such.

But not members of Congress. They ignored all that and because they are members of Congress, their bank allowed them to get away with it.

Damn right we should know just who did the check bouncing and for how much.

It's scary. Here are a bunch of ninnies who don't know how to deal with their own money but they are the ones who decide what happens to our taxes.

One reason they never do anything about the federal deficit is that perhaps members of Congress don't really understand it.

If you can constantly get away with writing checks for more money than you have in the bank, who's going to worry about the country being a few trillion in a hole that just keeps getting bigger?

In private business, you watch every dime. If you don't, you stand a good chance of being out of business.

But when you deal with other people's money, the taxpayer's money, it's like a big Monopoly game. It's play money and if you run out of it, you simply reach into the Monopoly bank and get some more.

Or you raise taxes.

I'd like to see the one-term rule for Congress. Let them serve their term, and then go before a panel to whom they are accountable.

If the panel decides they did a good job, the panel lets them live.

Fat chance, too. But I've got my own fantasies.

Federal mandates ravage state budgets, policy analysts say

By Michael deCourcy Hinds
N.Y. Times News Service

Against the background of a stubborn recession and mounting fiscal distress in the country, the federal government continues to create or expand domestic spending programs with little or no review of the financial burdens they will place on state and local governments, public policy analysts say.

In 1990 alone, the year the recession began, President Bush signed 20 bills into law, ordering programs that the National Conference of State Legislatures says will cost state and local governments billions of extra dollars, primarily for health care, the environment and Social Security payments for public employees.

Some mandates, like the Americans With Disabilities Act, were enacted without any reliable estimates of the cost to state and local governments.

The legislation, which requires businesses and state and local governments to provide the disabled with equal access to services, employment, buildings and transportation systems, is now expected to cost them millions of dollars annually to comply.

The most expensive regulations for any state involve Medicaid, the federally subsidized health-care program for low-income people that will cost $38.3 billion for the states to finance this year.

The next most expensive mandates involve environmental laws, primarily water purification, which will cost state and local governments $32 billion a year by 1995.

And three new studies show that despite the publicized efforts of President Ronald Reagan and President Bush to decentralize government, both contributed to a proliferation of regulations that meant enormous costs to states and cities in the 1980's.

No one can reliably estimate the cost of complying with many such programs, and Congress is required to make only preliminary estimates on some of the bills it considers.

But analysts say no federal law provides for complete reimbursement of any mandated program, and some legislative analysts estimate the burden to local governments of such spending at scores of billions of dollars a year.

"We are between a rock and a hard place," said Gov. Robert P. Casey, D-Pa.

Prosecutors seek to show Noriega seal

MIAMI (AP) — Manuel Noriega's police gathered up potentially damaging documents from all over Panama after his 1988 drug indictment in Miami, a former Panamanian narcotics officer testified Monday.

Evaristo Gomez said that later, after a failed coup in October 1989, the evidence was removed from his office and he was told it had been transferred to "a more secure place."

The prosecution testimony appeared designed to suggest Noriega coordinated a massive coverup after the U.S. drug and racketeering charges against him became public.

One of the vanished documents said Colombian planes flying cocaine-refining chemicals out of Panama had received a "special courtesy" and were allowed to take off from air force facilities, Gomez said. He said he took the papers to his boss, who took them directly to Noriega.

"I never saw them again," he said.

Gomez also said that any documents found on drug dealers connecting them to the Panamanian Defense Force were kept from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration liaison office in Panama.

"I don't know of any case where they were turned over," said Gomez. "None of these documents could leave our office."

Report marks tide of school budgets

■ Texas research group studies how tax dollars are spent on students.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

When the tide of tax dollars washes onto the shore of Midland Independent School District, waves won't break over the rocks of central administration costs, according to a recent report.

Tidemarks, the report produced by the Texas Research League in Austin, compared the 1990-'91 budgets of the state's 1,047 school districts.

The annual report, formerly called Benchmarks, provides information on how tax dollars are spent per student. The report attempts to indicate a "tidemark" or reference point for site-based committees and for the taxpayers to evaluate future budgets.

It should be noted that the research league's definition of "central administration" was broad and not limited to administrative costs alone. The central administration costs were defined as "those activities which have as their purpose the general regulation, direction, and control of the affairs of the local education agency and are system-wide."

The league defines classroom instruction as those activities dealing directly with instruction of pupils — teachers' salaries, equipment essential to the subject being taught, and furniture and supplies related to instruction.

The report indicates MISD spends less money for each child than the state average but spends significantly less for administration costs than districts of similar size.

Statewide, an average of $1,014 per student was budgeted for the central office in each school district.

MISD — with a 1990-'91 average enrollment of 21,082 pupils — spent $857 per student to operate the central office.

Ector County Independent School District — with a 1990-'91 average enrollment of 26,933 pupils — spent $1,043 per student in the central office, just above the state average.

Greenwood Independent School District, a smaller district of 1,283 students last year, spent $1,383 on administrative costs.

"That seems high," said Quentin Burnett, GISD superintendent. "Some of the numbers hinge on decisions the research league makes about coding and certain items may vary from school district to school district. I suspect some items have been lumped together into our administrative costs."

A spokesperson from the league said GISD was figured differently than other districts and the district's middle school figures were combined with its high school figures, rather than separating them as was done with other districts.

"Also, when items were not identified by the individual campus site in reports from each district, they were added into the central office category," the spokesman said.

Although MISD spends less money per student than the state average, it spends more on classroom instruction than the average Texas school district.

"This has historically been true for us," said Joseph Baressi Jr., MISD superintendent.

"I haven't seen that particular (Tidemarks) report, but it sounds on target. We are well below state average (of dollars spent per student) and usually below the 50 largest school districts," Baressi said.

According to information from Tidemarks, Texas school districts typically spent 30 percent more for operating high schools than elementary schools.

The report indicated that MISD spent a total of $3,196 per high school student last year, compared to the state average of $3,280.

Commissioners seek courthouse security officer

■ Sheriff Gary Painter agrees with need but not method the court is using to hire officer.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court's concern over courthouse security since the Sheriff's Department abandoned its courthouse offices for the new Law Enforcement Building (LEB) has prompted the court to seek a security officer not allied with Sheriff Gary Painter.

"We are dealing with a security issue," County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said at Monday's commissioners' meeting. "We don't need to discuss the underlying facts" that warrant an enhanced security system. "Security is the name of the game."

By Texas law, the sheriff "shall have charge and control of the county courthouse, subject to the regulations of the commissioners' court."

Painter on Monday said the Commissioners' Court is "probably going to create some regulations now. But at this point, there are none."

The Commissioners' Court, in a unanimous vote, authorized Seltzer to appoint a six-member committee to study the resumes of about 20 applicants for the full-time security officer's job, which, depending on qualifications, would pay between $26,000 and $31,500. The salary, based on the county's 1992 pay scale, would be equivalent to that of a sergeant in the Sheriff's Department.

The commissioners began discussing the implementation of a courthouse security system last year in budget study after the district and county court-at-law judges and other elected officials expressed concern over safety at the courthouse.

Sheldon Phillip, a Lee High School senior, spins records at Lee High Youth Center during lunch hour three days a week.

Lee senior spins plans for future

By Allen E. Howland
Assistant City Editor

For most high school seniors, decisions beyond a choice of college or a first job are things that are put off for another day.

But Lee High senior Sheldon Phillip has a 10-year plan with which he intends to make a real difference in his life and his community.

For Philip the message is in his music. Three lunch hours a week you can find him doing what he likes best — entertaining people with the music he mixes.

The affable 19-year-old plans to turn his love of music and entertaining into a career, starting at the Art Institute of Houston, where he plans to major in audio and video production. He hopes to find an artist or two for whom he can produce records and videos.

Once established in that field, he wants to return to Midland to open a youth center and an alternative radio station. "I hope it all falls into place within 10 years," he said.

For now, on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, he fills the Lee High Youth Center with a melange of rap, rock and country — enough of each to keep his diverse audience happy. Or at least content. "It's tough trying to play what everybody wants to hear with a crowd like this," he said.

As well as mixing the sounds from two turntables, a cassette deck and a compact disc player, Phillip uses his lunchtime repertoire as a rehearsal for his main event: as a weekend party-meister.

He records his noontime efforts and listens to them in the evening, critiquing himself on music choice, mixing and scratching techniques and other aspects of his overall entertainment.

"Sometimes scratching can take away from a song," Phillip

Council to review $1.6 million runway rehabilitation project

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

A $1.6 million runway rehabilitation project at Midland International Airport is ready for review by the City Council.

Today the council will consider approving the advertisement for bids on the work, scheduled to begin in May. Resurfacing the airport's runway 10/28, the major east-west path for aircraft, will be funded 90 percent by a grant from the Federal Aviation Administration with a 10-percent local match.

The council's briefing session begins at 4 p.m. in the basement conference room at City Hall.

Council members are to meet at Midland Center in the east bay room beginning at 6 p.m. — an experiment to determine if there is more attendance at evening meetings.

The runway, about 10 years old, will be closed three months this summer for the work — a change that is expected to have little effect on air traffic and not likely to be noticed by the traveling public. It is the facility's only runway equipped with an instrument landing system, which is used to guide planes during severe weather.

When complete, the runway's rough surface, known as porous friction course, will be replaced with grooved asphalt.

Engineers with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper have designed the construction project.

Among other council business, members will hold a public hearing at 6:30 p.m. to amend the city's Comprehensive Housing Affordability Study (CHAS) document to include mention of some new programs that have become available. The document is designed to help garner federal money from Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to address housing needs in the city.

Spencer takes over county 4-H program

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Ricky Spencer, who was involved in the 4-H educational program while growing up in Roby, has been appointed the county agent in charge of the 4-H program in Midland County.

Spencer

For more than two years, Spencer, whose appointment was announced at Monday's Commissioners' Court meeting, has been the assistant county agent for agriculture in Howard County.

"I'm really glad to be here," Spencer said.

He said 4-H offers boys and girls a "chance to learn responsibility, character (development) and sportsmanship through a variety of different projects," including the more traditional livestock projects.

Youngsters learn these lessons by buying, feeding and nurturing young farm animals, by showing them in livestock shows and then by auctioning the animals.

"Along with character and responsibility, this also teaches them valuable lessons in sportsmanship," Spencer said.

The livestock projects are "probably one of the stronger parts of the 4-H program," he said.

However, in recent years, the 4-H program, which is operated through the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) of Texas A&M University, has expanded and diversified to attract more urban boys and girls into the program.

"We offer projects in community development and economic education, as well as the traditional foods-and-nutrition projects," Spencer said.

Additionally, 4-H youngsters are taught techniques in public speaking to help them explain the diversity and benefits of 4-H to other students.

4-H offers projects for boys and girls as young as those in kindergarten and to those as old as 19.

4-H's "Clover Kids" program is for boys and girls from kindergarten through the second grade, Spencer said. The traditional 4-H program starts for youngsters in the third grade.

Spencer, 25, holds a bachelor's degree in agricultural business and a master's degree in animal science from Tarleton State University in Stephenville.

In his TAEX work at Howard County, Spencer offered guidance in "Farm Friends," Junior Leadership, 4-H Ambassadors, livestock judging and

State Treasury changes check policy

AUSTIN (AP) — In the wake of disclosures that some state lawmakers wrote bad checks without penalties, the Texas Treasury said Monday it plans to stop providing check-cashing services for legislators.

Instead, State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison said arrangements have been made with Texas Commerce Bank-Austin for it to cash the personal checks of state lawmakers and statewide elected officials.

Details of the service are being determined and will be outlined in a letter to officeholders in the next two weeks, officials said.

"For all intents and purposes, the Treasury will no longer be providing the service," said Mark Toohey, a spokesman for Ms. Hutchison.

However, he added that if a lawmaker was in town and hadn't heard about the Treasury's decision, "I'm sure we would cash their personal check" until the new service is up and running.

Toohey has said that the Treasury's check-cashing perk dates at least to 1980. Ms. Hutchison was elected in 1990.

He said that overdrafts were few, were repaid, and cost the state no money. No records of the returned checks were kept, Toohey said.

State Treasury officials took a look at the practice "in light of everything that's going on in Washington," Toohey said.

However, he has emphasized that the state's check-cashing service was not like the operations of the House bank in Washington, which was closed after revelations that members of Congress had written hundreds of bad checks.

That bank covered overdrafts with money from other congressmen's accounts. The congressmen often were not informed of them. Instead, the checks were treated as a salary advance.

In Texas, the checks were processed for the Treasury by First City Texas in Austin. When a check bounced, either the bank or the Treasury notified the lawmaker, who had time to cover it before the bank processed the check again.

The bank charges ordinary customers $20 for an overdraft. But Toohey has said it did not charge that fee to the Treasury, and that the Treasury did not charge lawmakers for bad checks.

Few checks were returned, Toohey said. About 300 checks were cashed for lawmakers and other elected officials last year, and about 100 in 1990, with most in the $100 to $200 range, he said.

Ethics leaders, who had urged an end to the Treasury's check-cashing practice, favor the new arrangement.

"This is a much better way to do it," said State Ethics Commission Chairman George Bayoud.

Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause, said, "That certainly makes more sense than the Treasury doing it."

COURT: Commissioners seek to hire security

working here, but for the citizens of the community that transact business in the courthouse and for the jury panels that report (to the courthouse)," said Judge John Hyde, who presides over the 238th Texas State District Court for Midland County.

"They are entitled to have a measure of security provided for them. The time to think about public safety is not after it (a tragedy) happens," Hyde said.

The courthouse security officer would be an armed officer who has at least five years experience in law enforcement and who would answer directly to the commissioners, according to the description of the position.

The presence of an armed officer assigned to the courthouse would serve as a "calming effect," Hyde said.

"I'm delighted that the commissioners have taken the initiative to provide some security," he said.

Serving on the screening committee to narrow the choices for the commissioners are Judge Dean Rucker of the 318th District Court for Midland County, County Court-at-Law Judge Al Wavoord, County Attorney Mark Dettman, Sheriff's Sgt. John McDaniel, District Attorney's Investigator J.D. Luckie and County Facilities Director Bill Decker.

A courthouse security officer is "probably needed, since the Sheriff's Office and the Constable's Office moved out," Dettman said. "We get some trial situations that are volatile sometimes."

Due to the nature of courthouse functions, Dettman said there are likely to be more emotions and "more at stake at our courthouse than in most office buildings."

People tend to get bent out of shape in murder trials and in divorce hearings, Dettman said.

District Clerk Vivian Wood agreed. "We do need the security."

The courthouse is not without a security-alarm system and other crime deterrents, including four bailiffs who are assigned to the district and county courts on the courthouse's second, third and fourth floors.

In addition, other certified peace officers, including four District Attorney's investigators, two County Attorney investigators, sheriff's deputies and other lawmen may, from time to time, have business in the courthouse.

Of the six investigators, only one, ex-Texas Ranger Jesse Priest, of the County Attorney's Office, has an office in the courthouse. The other investigators have offices elsewhere.

"The DA's investigators and myself may be out serving papers or whatever in the normal course of our jobs," Priest said. "And the bailiffs are tied up in court. They can't leave the prisoners unattended" in case of trouble elsewhere in the courthouse. "If everything goes right, it's all right," Priest said.

But it is for those times when order may turn into chaos that a roving officer might prove essential, Priest said.

"It you've got a roving security man, no one knows where he is going to be at any given time. He will know who is supposed to be in the courthouse. The beauty part of it, he would be available at all times," Priest said.

Decker, a certified peace officer and a former deputy sheriff, said the issue on courthouse security started "when the LEB opened up and the Sheriff's Department and the Constable's Office left the courthouse" in 1990.

At the direction of the Commissioners' Court, the LEB and the new jail, the Midland County Central Detention Center, were built just south of the downtown courthouse.

The relocation of the Sheriff's and the Constable's offices "virtually left the (courthouse) building unprotected," Decker said, even though the old jail, built on top of the revamped courthouse in the 1970s, is still used and manned by unarmed deputies.

In the early phase of the discussion on courthouse security last year, the sheriff was to provide a deputy to secure the courthouse.

'It started out . . . that the officer would work under me," Painter said. "Now it's switched, and I'm out. And now, all of a sudden, the Commissioners' Court is going to be the employer (of the security officer), and the County Attorney or the District Attorney is going to commission the individual, so they can carry a weapon."

Painter said he would not have a problem with providing a security officer. "I would have to hire an additional person."

Painter, who agreed with the Commissioners' Court on the necessity of a courthouse security officer, said "you cannot be too security-conscious."

"I don't think there is anything wrong with what is being attempted" by the Commissioners' Court's hiring a security officer, he said.

"The manner in which it is being attempted I certainly don't agree with," Painter said. "I think it's improper, but that's their business."

ECISD spent $3,305 while GISD spent $2,411 per high school and middle school student.

MISD spent $2,591 per middle school student and ECISD spent $2,501, compared to the state average of $2,645.

As for elementary pupils, MISD spent $2,277 per elementary school student; ECISD spent $2,347, and GISD spent $2,095, compared to the state average of $2,543 per student.

Figures for co-curricular and extracurricular activities indicated that Lee High School spent $49 per student on those activities, Midland High School spent $52, Odessa High School spent $364 and Permian High School spent $351 per student.

Although figures were not available for Greenwood High School students, Burnett said the district spends about $150 per student on extracurricular activities. "That figure may have also been lumped into our administration category," Burnett said.

The report was essentially provided as a guideline for persons involved in site-based management committees.

"Comparison of the campus figures in this report with future school budgets will help to further identify increases or 'cuts' proposed by school officials," the report said. "It offers a tidemark — the point to which something has attained or below which it has receded."

ECISD offices are closed for spring break and several officials were reported to be out of town and unavailable for comment.

other educational programs and activities for 4-H and other youth groups.

In Midland County, Spencer's primary responsibilities will encompass leadership development for youth, recruiting and training volunteers, advising 4-H youngsters and the TAEX Youth Committee, working with the 4-H Council and Adult Leaders Association, and developing educational programs.

Spencer, who has been "involved in 4-H ever since I can remember," grew up in a 4-H family in Roby in Fisher County where his father, Richard Spencer, is the TAEX county agent.

The younger Spencer said his first 4-H experience was attending a livestock judging contest with his father long before he was old enough to join the program.

After he joined 4-H, Spencer exhibited lambs and steers and was active in livestock judging and in public-speaking contests.

Earnest Kiker, the Midland County TAEX agricultural agent, said Spencer has a "tremendous amount of knowledge about the 4-H program and has good background and college record and is an outstanding individual. He is going to be very good for the total program."

SPIN: DJ plans to make difference in community with music

explained about the practice of manually starting, stopping and backtracking a record. "But the guys who are really good are great to listen to."

He first heard party DJs when he was in elementary school, more than eight years ago, and he was hooked.

On Friday and Saturday nights, he loads up his own equipment — turntables, mixing boards and speakers — and sets out for a spot somewhere in Midland where people are waiting to dance and party.

The fees he makes from his weekend jobs go toward replenshing his music stock as well as to help pay the bills at home.

The youngest of seven children, Phillip is the only one still at home to help support his parents, who are both disabled.

Phillip said he spends at least $100 a month on "new vinyl," the latest records — primarily 12-inch singles. With the advent of compact discs, vinyl records are harder to find, and he orders most of his music by mail from Dallas or Denver.

"I get enjoyment from making people happy and seeing that they're having a good time," said Phillip, who was born on the Caribbean island of St. Croix but has grown up in Midland.

Although his stock in trade for the weekend is primarily rap and rhythm and blues dance music, Phillip said his musical tastes are much broader — "I listen to everything from speed metal to pop and even some jazz."

"My biggest goal is to own a radio station — an alternative station with no real format . . . I just want to play what people want to hear."

Group reports Congressmen abuse mailing privileges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight Texas congressmen ranked among the top 100 users of taxpayer-financed mailings to voters last year, with Rep. Charlie Wilson among the 11 who exceeded their allowances, a watchdog group said.

Wilson, D-Lufkin, ranked sixth among members who exceeded their postage allowances for 1991, the National Taxpayers Union said.

Seven other Texans didn't exceed their allowances but were among the top 100 when ranked by percentage of allowance used.

The four Republicans and three Democrats and percentage of allowance used were: Reps. Sam Johnson, R-Dallas, 86.7 percent; Tom DeLay, R-Sugar Land, 82.8 percent; Martin Frost, D-Dallas, 82.5 percent; Jack Fields, R-Houston, 81.1 percent; Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, 79.1 percent; Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth, 77.9 percent; and John Bryant, D-Dallas, 70.6 percent.

Wilson spent $208,597, or 104.4 percent, of the $199,868 allocated to him for the year, according to the Washington think tank, which is devoted to reducing government spending and reform of House franking privileges.

Postage allowances vary by congressional district, based on population, area and number of households. For that reason, NTU focused on how much of their 1991 allowance members used.

"A major portion of our franking budget is used just for constituent correspondence," Elaine Lang, Wilson's press secretary, said Monday.

"Our policy's been to always answer every piece of mail the constituents send us. That tends to boost your stamp budget."

Wilson used money from his office account to cover his additional franking costs, she said. House members are allowed to supplement their mailing allowances with up to $25,000 from their office accounts.

Quarter of Texas children live in poverty, study finds

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Nearly one of every four children in Texas lives in poverty, according to a study released Monday showing that children nationwide are worse off today than youngsters were in 1980.

Across the country, "the child of 1992 leads a less safe, a less secure and a less privileged life than the child of 1980," said Douglas W. Nelson, executive director of the Annie E. Casey Foundation, which co-sponsored the study with the Center for the Study of Social Policy.

The study examined such factors as children living in poverty, births to unwed teenagers, juvenile arrests, violent deaths of teenagers, babies whose weight is too low at birth and children living in single-parent households. In each of those categories, conditions deteriorated nationally and in Texas during the 1980s, the study said.

The results "constitute a trend of national child and family neglect," said Judith H. Weitz, the study's coordinator. "While the economy may be in a temporary recession, American children are in a decade-long depression."

Nelson added, "The 1980s were a decade in which politicians preached family values, but it was also an era in which public policy in this country utterly failed to meet the real needs of real families."

The study, which analyzed U.S. Census and other government statistics, showed that Texas was one of 40 states in which poverty for children increased during the decade.

In the Lone Star State, the jump was particularly stark, going from 19 percent in 1980 to 24 percent in 1990, the study reported. Only seven states — Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, New Mexico, Arkansas, West Virginia and Tennessee — and the District of Columbia had higher percentages of children living below the poverty level, the report said.

Nationwide, 12.7 million American children lived in poverty in 1990, a 22 percent jump from 1980 level, the report said. In Texas, it showed, the boost was 28 percent.

Across the country, nearly 44 percent of black children and more than 37 percent of Hispanic children are poor, compared with 14.7 percent of white children, the study said. It did not give separate figures for Texas.

Nationally, the number of unwed teenagers having babies grew from 4.5 percent to 5.8 percent, a 14 percent jump during the decade. In Texas, the number soared from 6.1 percent to 7.4 percent — a 20 percent hike.

In several categories, the report showed that conditions for Texas children deteriorated but not as dramatically as they did on average nationally.

For instance, nationally, the number of children living in households headed by a single parent went up 13 percent. In Texas, it rose 12 percent.

Nationally, the teenage death rate from suicide and murder jumped 11 percent during the 1980s. In Texas, the rate went up 3 percent.

Republicans criticize Mauro's use of plane

AUSTIN (AP) — State Republican Party leaders Monday called for state and federal investigations into Land Commissioner Garry Mauro after accusing him of using taxpayer dollars to run Bill Clinton's presidential campaign in Texas.

"Using Texas taxpayers' offices, phones, and airplanes to promote a presidential candidate is an arrogant and shocking abuse of power," Texas GOP chairman Fred Meyer said.

Mauro, who chairs Clinton's presidential bid in Texas, apologized last week for telephone calls and fax transmissions from his state office to Clinton campaign headquarters in Austin and Little Rock, Ark.

Mauro said he was paying the costs, which he described as nominal. But he said it was inappropriate to have used state phones to make the calls.

But Republicans hit Mauro with more criticism Monday over the use of state aircraft.

A businessman wrote a letter to Texas Attorney General Dan Morales complaining about Mauro's conduct March 4 at a Wichita Falls airport.

H.B. "Ted" Roe Jr., a Fort Worth oil, gas and cattle investor, said Mauro and his staff were at the airport, wearing Clinton campaign buttons, and talking about the campaign. They had been flying on state aircraft.

But Ron Calhoun, a spokesman for Mauro, gave this explanation:

Earlier in the day, Mauro spoke on Land Office issues in Memphis, Knox City, and Seymour, Calhoun said. This was on state time, he said.

Mauro then took a private helicopter to open a Clinton office in Wichita Falls. While there, the weather worsened, and the state aircraft pilot decided to move the plane to Wichita Falls because he was afraid it could be damaged on the landing strip at Seymour, Calhoun said.

The pilot, with Mauro's staff already on board, then picked Mauro up after the Clinton office opening, he said.

TUESDAY, MARCH 24, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Lessons learned in the past help you salvage an important relationship. Simplify your life beginning in early summer. A home improvement project will boost its resale value. Business contacts will be easier to make next fall, thanks to a busy social schedule. New office skills or specialized knowledge could bring you a promotion as 1992 draws to a close. Travel for business or pleasure in early 1993.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: writer Malcolm Muggeridge, actor Norman Fell, actress Donna Pescow, costume designer Bob Mackie.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Straying too far from familiar activities could prove unnerving today. Stick to your normal routine. Reassess a relationship that has become too close for comfort.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Once you know what you want, go after it. You have the vision that many people lack. Trust your first impressions when it comes to love or money. Refuse to be manipulated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep your feet on the ground in an affair of the heart. Although you can mix love and work at times, doing so is always risky. Secret deals and bullying tactics are taboo.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You could find yourself right in the middle of a family confrontation where just about anything goes. Count to 10 before expressing a personal opinion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Guard your physical and emotional well-being today. Roll with the punches to come out swinging. A feeling of loneliness may overtake you. Getting involved will banish the blues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you seem unusually quiet, it is because you are sorting out your thoughts. Try to decide the best way to proceed with a pet project. Financial rewards come from an unexpected quarter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Exercise special restraint in financial matters to avoid mishaps. This is not a good time to seek favors; rely on your own efforts. A candid chat sets you at ease tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Faulty advice and half-baked communications are possible now. Keep important matters in your own hands, particularly where money is concerned. Become a decision-maker who knows the score.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Impulsive spending could cause regrets. Return a purchase you do not really need. Channeling nervous energy into work tasks could help you find that elusive pot of gold.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Joining forces with a shrewd business associate could mean new prosperity. Share expenses to save money. Seeing the world through the eyes of a child changes your perspective.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those who are in the limelight always risk drawing unwanted attention. No matter where you are, be discreet. Recycle an old project or idea to make new profits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Focus on contacting people who have power and wealth today. You can reap big dividends in the form of praise or money. The tides of change begin to benefit you in a tangible way.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: New ventures are a joy to these confident and curious youngsters. To them, school is never dull! Born leaders, these Aries prefer giving orders to receiving them. Since details bore them silly, they invariably try to delegate life's mundane chores to others. Their usual self-confidence seems to desert them when it comes to romance. They need constant reminders of their mate's loyalty and affection. Frugal and self-disciplined, these Aries tend to have healthy bank accounts.

Opening lead: Six of ♠

A defensive ruff need not exist to force declarer into a losing line. The illusion that it might exist is often enough. To illustrate what we mean, follow East's defense on this hand.

South did not have the values to act freely over East's overcall. However, once North reopened with a double, not even pre-emptive tactics by East could keep South silent.

West led a low club against four spades, and East did not think much of the defensive prospects. West was unlikely to bring more than one trick to the cause, so a trick would have to be conjured up out of thin air if four spades was to be defeated.

East won the first trick with the queen of clubs and found the devastating shift to the six of hearts, won in dummy with the ten. So what, you say? Consider the matter from declarer's perspective.

It seemed East had shifted to a singleton heart in an effort to get a ruff. To prevent that, declarer led a trump. West grabbed the ace and returned a heart. Declarer was quite prepared to lose a heart ruff and, convinced by the earlier play that the king of hearts was with West and that East was short, finessed the jack.

South had an idea what was in store when East won with the king and returned a heart. Sure enough, West ruffed with the only outstanding trump for down one.

Yes, we know declarer could have made the contract by rising with the ace of hearts on the second lead. Would you have?

Crossing the village, Mowaka is overpowered by army ants. (Later, bystanders were all quoted as saying they were horrified, but "didn't want to get involved.")

Vatican considers annulment request by Princess Caroline

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican said Monday it hasn't reached a "definitive verdict" in Princess Caroline of Monaco's request for an annulment of her marriage to Frenchman Philippe Junot.

Caroline

In a one-line statement, the Vatican said the request was still under study. It stopped short of denying a report by an Italian news agency, ADNKRONOS, that the annulment has been approved by a special commission and was awaiting final confirmation.

An annulment would let the princess marry again in the Roman Catholic Church.

Three years after divorcing Junot in 1980, she married Italian businessman Stefano Casiraghi in a civil ceremony in 1983. He was killed in a speedboat crash in October 1990.

The grounds on which the princess is seeking an annulment have never been dislosed.

NEW YORK — Take me out to the ... concert hall?

Forget the baseball-card collection. Make way for a lineup of "All Stars" cards featuring 38 instrumentalists, signers, conductors and ensembles, from Itzhak Perlman to Placido Domingo to the Emerson String Quartet.

The Deutsche Grammophon recording company on Monday issued a set of 38 classical-music cards to record retailers and radio stations. Listed on the back of the color photographs are the artists' birth date, hometown, where they studied and highlights of their career.

A section titled "Did You Know?" contains quirky facts.

Did you know the Emerson String Quartet was named after poet and essayist Ralph Waldo Emerson? That the late composer Leonard Bernstein could never choose from his many Swatch watches, so he often wore more than one? That Perlman, the violinist, appeared on "The Ed Sullivan Show" at age 13? That the absent-minded British conductor Trevor Pinnock once took to the stage with two different shoes on?

"A record label should create loyal fans who follow their 'players' just the way people root for a particular baseball team," Albert Imperato, Deutsche Grammophon's media relations manager, said in a statement.

BONN, Germany — About 2,000 of Germany's political, cultural and business elite joined in celebrating the 65th birthday Monday of one of the world's longest-serving foreign ministers, Hans-Dietrich Genscher.

French horns blared as Genscher arrived for his birthday party at the government's palatial mountaintop guesthouse outside Bonn.

The crowd snaked through in a receiving line to congratulate Genscher as others sipped champagne and nibbled on shrimp and other delicacies at the lavish spread.

Genscher, in his 18th year in office, is the current longest-serving foreign minister in the world, his office says. Andrei Gromyko, the former Soviet foreign minister for 29 years, holds the record.

A native of Halle in former East Germany, he has been celebrating his birthday since last week, and the country has treated it with the pomp expected of royalty. Genscher's actual birthday was Saturday, and he was feted then in his hometown.

Among Germans, Genscher is arguably the most popular politician. Along with Chancellor Helmut Kohl, he is credited with unification. But he's spared the fallout of domestic decisions that often dampen Kohl's popularity.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday let stand a $400,000 award Bette Midler won against an advertising agency that used a "soundalike" singer for a television commercial.

The justices, without comment, rejected arguments by the ad company Young & Rubicam that the award should have been pre-empted by federal copyright law.

A federal jury in Los Angeles, applying California tort law, awarded the actress and Grammy-winning singer the $400,000 in 1988 after finding that her exclusive right to her vocal style had been violated.

The ad company originally had asked Midler to perform her version of the song "Do You Wanna Dance?" for a Ford Motor Co. commercial aired in 1986. After she turned down the offer, it asked Ula Hedwig, who once worked as a backup singer for Midler, to mimic Midler's voice in the commercial.

The ad company acknowledged it intended to imitate Midler's rendition of the song as recorded in her album "The Divine Miss M."

Midler's lawsuit, initially dismissed, led to a significant federal appeals court ruling that "when a distinctive voice of a professional singer is widely known and deliberately imitated in order to sell a product, the sellers have appropriated what is not theirs and have committed a tort in California."

In the appeal acted on Monday, lawyers for Young & Rubicam argued that such practices are allowed by federal copyright law.

Officials excavate forgotten undeveloped Civil War trenches

By Stuart Eskenazi
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Obscure slices of Civil War history — forgotten trenches believed to be a Confederate fort — have been discovered at a road construction site in South Austin.

Historical accounts indicate the trenches were dug in anticipation of a Battle of Austin, which ultimately never occurred.

Texas Department of Transportation officials excavated part of the undeveloped site last week to confirm the existence of the trenches — which are labeled as "fortification" on an 1875 subdivision plat called "Fortview" — at the northwest corner of West Ben White Boulevard and South Congress Avenue.

The workers found bands of dark fill dirt among the light clays — evidence of the trenches.

"I called the Texas Historical Commission, the State Archives — nobody knew about this fort," said Ron Thrower of Carson Planners, who started researching the property six weeks ago under a contract with the Texas Department of Transportation, which is in the process of buying it as right of way.

When Thrower saw the plat, he was intrigued. Subsequent research found deeds that corroborated the existence of a Fort Magruder.

Thrower kept digging and found two brief references to the fort in published histories of Austin and Travis County.

"Located about three miles south of Austin on the San Antonio Highway on a high bluff overlooking the entire country, Fort Magruder was established by General John B. Magruder (in late 1862 or early 1863)," one pamphlet says.

The old San Antonio Highway now is South Congress Avenue.

Magruder, who led the Southern Division of the Confederate Army, was based in Galveston. After Union troops captured Galveston, Magruder came to Austin with troops and supplies upon hearing rumors of a full-scale invasion of Texas.

"The detachment of troops dug a series of trenches and a large enough dugout to hide about 200 men on the crest of the hill," the pamphlet says.

The troops stayed for about two weeks before returning to Galveston, which had been reclaimed by the Confederacy. The Union troops never came to Austin as rumored.

"Magruder chopped down all the oak trees and used the logs to help fortify the trenches," Thrower said. "There is a commanding view of just miles around from this site. That's why he built here."

The pamphlet says historical markers once stood at the site to tell passing travelers of the fort's existence.

Like the fort, the markers, too were forgotten.

Today, a street called Fort McGruder Lane is nearby. Fort View Road is just west of the site running from Manchaca Road to Ben White.

Edith Williams, of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, said she has known about Fort View Road forever, but never really thought about where the name came from — until now.

"We're just very excited about this discovery," she said

Where To Begin When Choosing Life Insurance

by
The Midland Area Association of Life Underwriters, Inc.

When buying a life insurance policy, consumers should exercise the same care they would use when making any sizable purchase. It is wise to do your homework. Here are some helpful steps to consider when buying life insurance.

• Choose the right agent. Choose an agent who will offer the best combination of price, coverage and service. As an insurance advisor, the agent can provide information and resources to help answer your questions. If you do not have an agent, contact your local life underwriters association. It can provide information on professional health and life insurnace agents in your community.

• Inquire about the insurance compan y. The best place to begin your research is with your agent or the insurance company. Ask how long a company has been in business, where it is licensed and how it invests policyholder money. (As a general rule, life insurers diversify their investments between government and private bonds, mortgages and other securities across geographical regions.) If you are buying a participating policy, one that pays dividends, ask about its dividend-paying record.

• Check guaranty and coverage. All states, Puerto Rico and Guam have life insurance guaranty funds. Call your state insurance department to confirm coverage with your insurance company. These funds are regulated by individual state commissioners and monitored by state guaranty associations. If an insurer becomes troubled, solvent insurers provide the funds necessary to honor the threatened insurers' claims.

• Confirm the insurer's financial status. Inquire about any rating your prospective company has been given by independent rating services.

Rating agencies keep investors, policyholders and other market participants informed of a company's relative financial strength or claims-paying ability. Consumers can consult these agencies to determine the health of an individual company.

During periods of economic fluctuation, life insurers may be upgraded or downgraded from one report to the next. A slight downgrade should not cause concern.

The most widely respected and well-known rating firms are A.M. Best Company, Duff & Phelps, Moody's Investors Service and Standard and Poor's Corporation. When determining a rating these firms consider several factors including 1) profitability, 2) capital adequacy and operating leverage, 3) liquidity, 4) investment performance/asset quality, and 5) management quality. But keep in mind that each rating firm varies in its analytical methods which may cause one company's ratings to differ from one rating company to another.

Companies may choose to be rated by some, but not every service, since the rating services usually charge a substantial fee for a comprehensive review. Look for published ratings in your local library.

• Contact your state insurance department. Insurance departments monitor the financial status of the companies licensed to do business in your state. It is a good idea to ask the department if your company, or a prospective insurer, is currently under investigation or in financial trouble.

State regulation is designed to protect the consumer. Each insurer selling policies in a state must be licensed by that state to ensure that it can meet minimum capital and surplus requirements. Not every company is licensed in every state. Companies are required to submit an annual, comprehensive statement of financial condition, in addition to filing independent audits, to every state in which the company is licensed.

Some departments offer toll-free consumer numbers to respond to requests. Feel free to ask for complimentary brochures they might offer on assorted insurance topics.

• Call the National Insurance Consumer Helpline (NICH). For general information about insruance, call (800) 942-4242. This toll-free information service is staffed by trained personnel and licensed agents to answer consumer questions and provide printed brochures upon request. Customer complaints will be referred to appropriate sources. NICH operates Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern Time.

• Learn the basic facts of life insurance. Contact the National Association of Life Underwriters (NALU) to receive free brochures on a variety of topics, such as "Term and Whole LIfe Insurance: What's the Difference?" "Is An Annuity in your Future?" Medigap Insurance," "Shaping Your Financial Fitness," among others. Call the NALU order desk at (202) 331-6087 to request a free copy.

Flutie moves

CALGARY, Alberta — Doug Flutie, who set several CFL passing records in 1991 with the B.C. Lions, signed a four-year contract believed to be worth about $1 million a year with the Calgary Stampeders on Monday.

The Stampeders are looking to the league's outstanding player last season to help them win the Grey Cup. Flutie says he saw Calgary as the team most likely to do so in the next several years.

"One of my concerns in coming to Calgary was that the only way to improve is to win it all," he said during a nationally televised news conference. "There's nothing else I want out of football than to be a champion and win championships and the Grey Cup."

The Stampeders won the West Division title last year and appeared in the Grey Cup game for the first time in 20 years, but lost to the Toronto Argonauts.

Flutie is the CFL's second million-dollar man. Last year, Toronto signed former Notre Dame star Raghib "Rocket" Ismail to a four-year contract worth between $18 and $26 million.

Flutie, 29, set league records for passing attempts, completions and yardage while playing out his option with the Lions. He became a free agent in February and signed with the Stampeders after rejecting B.C.'s only offer.

Alzado worsens

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former NFL star Lyle Alzado, suffering from inoperable brain cancer is in the hospital, but his family has asked that little information be released.

Oregon Health Sciences University Hospital spokeswoman Lee Lewis Husk said Monday that Alzado's family would say only that he was in the hospital for routine chemotherapy, is in fair condition and is expected to go home in a day or two.

Husk said that he wasn't admitted into the hospital Monday, but couldn't say when he was admitted. Why he would be in a hospital in Portland and why he would be hospitalized for several days for routine therapy was unclear.

Alzado, a defensive standout with several NFL teams, has said he took steroids for many years.

Lee wins 2-0

ABILENE — The nets were abnormally hard to locate Monday night at the Lee Soccer Complex.

The start of Midland Lee's bi-district soccer game here against Burkburnett was delayed some 20 minutes as the staff searched for the missing goal nets. And once installed, those same nets escaped discovery by the Rebels and Bulldogs for almost 63 minutes.

1966 on UTEP fans' minds

■ Texas-El Paso's advancement into the 'Sweet 16' round of the NCAA tournament has El Pasoans recalling the school's lone national title.

By Suzanne Gamboa
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas — It's 1966 all over again.

After a 66-60 upset of top-seeded Kansas, Texas-El Paso is in the "Sweet 16" of the NCAA Tournament for the first time in 26 years and this city is believing the Miners can repeat history.

"Our win was no fluke," said Margaret Heard, an elementary school teacher spending her first day of spring break watching the Miners practice.

Radio call-in shows were jammed Monday morning with voices of fans, including 1966 UTEP alumni, who remember what it was like when a young Don Haskins guided his squad to the NCAA title.

In that tournament, the Miners beat Kansas and Cincinnati to take the Midwest Regional Championship and head to the Final Four. The Miners face Cincinnati (27-4) on Friday in Kansas City.

After taking care of Utah, 85-78, the Miners shocked the nation using an all-black starting lineup to snatch the NCAA tournament crown with a 72-65 victory over No. 1 Kentucky.

"I remember the '66 team," Heard, 43, said. "I remember watching the whole tournament on television. I listened to the radio all the time. I remember that so clearly."

Heard was among a throng of people who packed the El Paso International Airport to greet the 27-6 Miners when they returned home shortly after midnight Monday.

Airport Manager George Perry estimated the crowd's size at about 3,000, but other estimates were as high as 5,000.

"Even during the Gulf War when we were required by federal regulations to keep the concourse closed, we never saw congestion like this," Perry said.

It was quite a turnout for a team whose coach had spent much of the regular season pleading with fans to shell out $11 to fill the 12,000-seat arena. Miners' game attendance averaged about 7,100 this season.

Some of the fans had been at the airport for two hours, first arriving to greet another area team that is headed for the Sweet 16, New Mexico State which defeated Southwestern Louisiana 81-73.

"We believed all year they could do it. This shows the East Coast that the Southwest has basketball teams that can play with them," said Heidi Wilcox, 29, a season ticket holder and physical education teacher.

Olajuwon out indefinitely on suspension

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets suspended center Hakeem Olajuwon indefinitely Monday, accusing the six-time All-Star of failing to suit up after a doctor cleared him to play.

Olajuwon

Leonard Armato, Olajuwon's agent, said he planned to file a grievance against the Rockets after further talks with the NBA Players Association.

"We've agreed that we're going to file the grievance," Armato said. "It's like when Saddam went into Kuwait, they've been lobbing in those scud missles and we've been trying to duck. Now we have to respond."

The suspension will cost Olajuwon $46,900 per game, based on his $3.8 million annual salary.

"You'd think they would call and say, 'We've got a problem here,' but I haven't heard from them," Armato said. "It makes you wonder if there's a hidden agenda here."

Rockets owner Charlie Thomas said in a statement that Olajuwon, who says he sustained a hamstring injury on last Tuesday, had failed to render his services under terms of his contract. Olajuwon will not be paid during his suspension.

The Rockets accused Olajuwon of faking his injury as a ploy to get his contract renegotiated.

"All we can do is refer to the ongoing pattern of renegotiation demands," Rockets general manager Steve Patterson said. "Those talks came to a head earlier this week.

"He says he can't play, therefore he's suspended. If he

MHS, Lee baseball teams try to rebound

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

As the District 4-5A baseball teams ready for the league's third round, Midland High is pretty much in a "must-win" situation while Midland Lee hopes to rebound from a calamitous loss to Abilene Cooper Saturday.

The Bulldogs entertain Odessa High at 4 p.m. today in Angels Stadium, while the Rebels play at Odessa Permian at the same time. In other 4-5A play today, San Angelo hosts Abilene High while Cooper takes the day off.

MHS is now 0-2 in district play (4-11 overall), and is trying to shake the hangover from a 17-16, eight-inning loss Saturday at Odessa High. In that game, the Bulldogs out-hit the Eagles 19-14, but allowed 17 stolen bases and lost on a home run by AHS' Tony Vasquez to start the bottom of the first extra inning.

"It was by no means the catcher's (Mike Melzer) fault," Rick Wood, MHS' head coach, said of the plethora of stolen bases allowed. "The pitchers have to hold runners on base, and we just didn't do that. It's definitely something we're going to work on in today's (Monday's) practice."

Rice basketball coach resigns

Associated Press

WICHITA, Kan. — Scott Thompson, who coached Rice to its first 20-victory season since 1953-54, resigned Monday to take over at Wichita State.

"We're hoping we can get things turned around and headed in the right direction as soon as possible," Thompson told a crowd of more than 200 Wichita State students and boosters after he was introduced at a news conference at Levitt Arena late Monday night.

He promised his teams would play tough, exciting basketball.

"I like pushing the ball. I like playing tough defense. I like shooting 3-pointers," he said as the audience burst into applause.

Thompson and Wichita State Provost Rex Cottle declined to discuss the terms of Thompson's contract, but KHOU-TV in Houston reported the deal was worth between $1.5 million and $2 million.

"It was with regret I've accepted Scott's resignation," Rice athletic director Bobby May said. "In the past five years, Scott and his staff have given Rice fans some of the best and most exciting basketball in school history."

Rice players emerged from a 20-minute meeting with Thompson on Monday night with somber faces.

"Deep down, you have mixed feelings," senior guard Marvin Moore said. "You're sad to see him leave, but it was just too good of a situation for him and his family. You have to wish him well."

WEST LAFAYETTE, — Craig Riley scored 12 of his 18 points in the second half as the Purdue Boilermakers beat Texas Christian 67-51 Monday night in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

NIT

The Boilermakers (18-14) broke the game open in the second half by hitting free throws against foul-plagued Horned Frogs (23-11).

Purdue scored eight consecutive points to take the lead for good. Brandon Brantley ignited the spurt by musceling in for a layup, giving the Boilermakers a 43-41 edge. Cuonzo Martin and Matt Waddell each made one free throw before Waddell and Woody Austin scored to give the Boilermakers a 49-41 lead.

The Horned Frogs cut the deficit to 51-47 with 5:10 remaining but the Boilermakers, who got into the free throw bonus with 10:01 to play and started shooting two shots with 5:01 left, pulled away by scoring 13 of their final 18 points on free throws.

Two Waddell free throws with 5:01 to play gave Purdue a 53-47 lead. Ian Stanback made two free throws with 4:21 to play. Linc Darner followed with a 3-pointer and the decisive spurt ended with two free throws apiece by Darner and Riley.

Texas Christian was led by Reggie Smith with 21 points, but his team went scoreless for more than four minutes in the second half and shot just 36.7 percent in the period.

Austin contributed 14 points to the victory and Waddell had 13 for the Boilermakers. Al Thomas had 13 for Texas Christian, but had only two in the second half when his team made 11 of 30 shots.

Thomas, with three baskets from 3-point range, scored 11 points as the Horned Frogs opened a 19-12 advantage in the first 10 minutes. But he picked up his second foul early and his team began struggling on offense. Texas Christian, which made just nine of 23 shots in the first half, scored a single point in the 6:39 Thomas sat on the bench.

Purdue used a 10-1 run to take its first lead at 22-20 behind two straight jumpers from Austin.

Austin's 3-pointer tied the game 25-25 with 2:31 left in the first half, which ended 27-25 on a tip-in by Smith with 50 seconds left.

Virginia's Bryant Stith flies over Tennessee's Carlus Groves (33) in the Cavaliers' 77-52 win.

Virginia 77, Tennessee 52

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Bryant Stith scored 19 points and Virginia's defense limited Tennessee to a season-low 32 percent from the field as Virginia beat the Volunteers.

Virginia (17-13) dominated the game with its man-to-man defense and control of the boards. Tennessee (19-15) hit only 20 of 63 shots, including 12 consecutive misses to open the second half.

Virginia shot just 46 percent, but the Cavaliers compensated with 14 offensive rebounds. Virginia won the overall battle on the board 43-33 with Stith also grabbing 8 rebounds.

The Cavaliers took command late in the first half as Junior Burrough ignited a 13-2 run with back-to-back three-point plays. Burrough drove the baseline for a dunk and followed that with a drive down the middle for another score, hitting both free throws after getting fouled.

Manhattan 62, Rutgers 61

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — Chris Williams dribbled the length of the court and made a layup at the buzzer to give Manhattan a victory over Rutgers.

It's the first time Manhattan (25-8) has ever won two NIT games and the Jaspars' first trip to the quarterfinals since 1965, when it was a 16-team field.

Rutgers (15-14) hurt itself by missing 6 of 10 free throws in the final 2:40.

Trailing by three at halftime, Rutgers used a 10-2 run to take a 36-31 lead early in the second half. Manhattan battled back for a 42-41 lead before Rutgers ran off seven seven straight points to make it 48-42 with 9:34 left.

Notre Dame 64, Kansas St. 47

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Daimon Sweet scored 16 points as as Notre Dame easily beat Kansas State.

Kansas State (16-14) had advanced on an 85-74 victory over Western Kentucky. But against Notre Dame (16-14) the Wildcats played raggedly and were unable to recover after shooting 26 percent from the field in the first half.

The Wildcats' Askia Jones scored 19 points, and LaPhonso Ellis added 15 for Notre Dame, which beat Western Michigan, 63-56 in the first round.

Florida 77, Pittsburgh 74

PITTSBURGH — Sophomore Craig Brown scored 17 points, including four free throws in the final minute, as Florida advanced to the National Invitation Tournament quarterfinals.

Brown, a native of Steelton, Pa., had 13 points in the second half for Florida (18-12).

Pitt had one last chance when Florida's Dan Cross missed the second of two free throws with 4 seconds remaining. But Sean Miller's desperation jumper from just inside midcourt clanged off the rim as the buzzer sounded.

New Mexico 79, Washington St. 71

ALBUQUERQUE — Steve Logan hit the tying and go-ahead baskets late in the game and New Mexico survived ten 3-pointers by Washington State for the win.

Dawkins instrumental in 76ers' 105-92 win over San Antonio

Associated Press

NBA Roundup

PHILADELPHIA — Johnny Dawkins scored 11 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter as the Philadelphia 76ers snapped a five-game losing streak with a 105-92 victory over the San Antonio Spurs on Monday night.

The 76ers, who fell into 11th place in the Eastern Conference with the losing streak, pulled into a ninth-place tie with Miami with the victory. The top eight teams in each conference make the playoffs.

The Spurs, who won six of their seven previous games, fell three games behind first-place Utah in the Midwest Division despite 30 points and 15 rebounds by David Robinson.

Hersey Hawkins led Philadelphia with 21 points, while Armon Gilliam scored 20. Terry Cummings had 19 for San Antonio, which managed just one field goal and eight points in the final 8:28.

Dawkins gave the Sixers a 96-87 lead with a jumper with 4:56 left, then added a 3-pointer with 2:34 remaining for a 99-89 advantage.

The third quarter seesawed back and forth until Charles Barkley's two free throws with eight seconds left gave Philadelphia a 82-77 lead heading into the final quarter.

Cummings kept the Spurs in the game with 11 third-quarter points as Robinson sat out a portion of the period to get his injured left hand taped.

Trent Tucker's pair of 3-pointers helped the Spurs open a 41-38 lead with 6:08 remaining in the first half before Hawkins scored seven straight points to help the Sixers take a 57-55 advantage at halftime.

Robinson finished the first half with 19 points and seven rebounds. Hawkins topped the Sixers with 15 points on 7-for-10 shooting.

Behind Gilliam's eight points, the Sixers went on a 16-2 run to take a 19-8 lead midway through the first quarter. But Robinson's 12 first-quarter points enabled the Spurs to close to 29-24 at end of the period.

Nets 123, Hornets 120

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Derrick Coleman had 37 points and 12 rebounds and Tate George had six free throws during a decisive 10-0 run that carried the New Jersey Nets to a victory over the Charlotte Hornets.

The victory, the Nets' 14th in 16 home games, boosted them a half-game ahead of Miami in the race for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Larry Johnson and Kendall Gill scored 24 points apiece and Dell Curry had 22 for the Hornets, who won 10 of their previous 13 games.

Trailing 103-93 early in the fourth period, the Nets got close with a 10-3 burst that included five points by Drazen Petrovic, who finished with 22.

A jumper by Dell Curry boosted Charlotte into a 110-105 lead with 5:57 to play before New Jersey took the lead for good with the 10-0 run that Coleman started with a short bank shot.

George then posted up 5-foot-3 Muggsy Bogues three straight times, was fouled each time and converted six consecutive free throws. Chris Morris followed with a dunk, giving the Nets a 115-110 edge with 3:07 remaining.

Charlotte closed to 121-120 on a 3-pointer by Gill with 14.4 seconds remaining. Chris Dudley, who had 15 rebounds, then hit one of two free throws and Morris blocked a layup attempt by Johnson with 3.3 seconds to play to preserve the victory.

Nuggets 100, Timberwolves 95

MINNEAPOLIS — Reggie Williams scored 19 points, including six free throws in the final 2:01, as the Denver Nuggets rallied from a 13-point fourth-quarter deficit to hand Minnesota its 13th consecutive defeat.

The victory was just the sixth in 34 road games this season for the Nuggets, who made 17 of their last 18 free throws in the final quarter after beginning the game 6-for-13.

The Timberwolves led 85-72 with 8:05 remaining after a 16-3 spurt that included eight points by Tony Campbell and two baskets by Mark Randall.

Hawks 126, Warriors 125

ATLANTA — Alexander Volkov's layup at the buzzer gave the Atlanta Hawks an overtime victory over Golden State, snapping their five-game losing streak in overtime games this season.

Tim Hardaway, who joined with Chris Mullin to score 25 points apiece for the Warriors, gave them a 125-124 lead on a 10-foot bank shot with six seconds left. With two seconds to go, Rumeal Robinson's 22-foot shot missed everything, but Duane Ferrell tipped the ball to Volkov, who got off the game-winner in time.

Hardaway's jumper with 37 seconds left in regulation tied the game at 114. Both teams then missed shots to win.

Stacey Augmon, who had a career-high 32 points for Atlanta, including the NBA's six millionth point on a layup in the second quarter, scored 12 points in the fourth period.

OLAJUWON: Hakeem says the issue is his hamstring gets out on the court and plays, then the suspension is lifted."

(From 1C)

Olajuwon worked out in the training room while his teammates worked out in a closed door session Monday prior to beginning a three-game road trip.

"They are trying to shift the blame to the contract," Olajuwon said. "That's not the issue here. It's my hamstring. That's the issue. Don't blame it on the contract. The issue is whether or not I'm injured."

The drama started in the fourth quarter of the Rockets' game against the Los Angeles Clippers in the Summit on March 17. Olajuwon told trainer Ray Melchiorre he felt something wrong with his left hamstring but finished the game without any obvious problems.

Olajuwon said his leg stiffened overnight and he did not play in Thursday's loss to Seattle, with whom the Rockets are battling for playoff positioning.

Patterson said there was no point in the taped replay of the game where Olajuwon appeared to be injured.

Team physician Dr. Charles Baker cleared Olajuwon to play in Saturday night's game against Sacramento, but the center refused to suit up, saying his hamstring was still tender.

Following the game, Patterson said there was no medical reason for Olajuwon not to play, and wondered if he was using the injury as leverage in his demands for a contract renegotiation.

REBELS: El Paso team up next for Lee of the Burkburnett goal with 17:31 left in the game, and the Rebels road that drive to a 2-0 victory that sends them into the area round of the playoffs for the first time ever.

(From 1C)

"I'd passed up a couple of shots before, so I just took one and it went in," Perkins said.

"We had some opportunities before that hadn't gone in and that one finally did, so it worked out in the end."

Perkins' game-winner ended a Rebel playoff scoring drought that began last year when Lee's first postseason experience came to an abrupt end, 1-0, against Wichita Falls Rider.

This time — as District 3 champions for the first time — the Rebels advance.

With their second shutout win over Burkburnett this season, the Rebels (15-1) await the winner of today's bi-district game between El Paso Hanks and El Paso High.

A Hanks win would mean a home game for Lee, while a win by El Paso High would put the Rebels on the road to Mountain Time. Either area-round game would take place at 2 p.m. Saturday.

But it was just such a Saturday excursion that the Bulldogs were after as they took the field against the same Lee team that had tamed them, 5-0, in the early-season Abilene Invitational at this same site.

Burkburnett, which ended its season at 14-5-3, held the Rebels at bay for the first 40 minutes and had an equal share of the scoring chances along the way to a scoreless intermission. Lee's final tally did not come until Jason Gotcher punched a penalty kick past Burkburnett keeper Rob Turner with one second left in the game.

"They (Bulldogs) had to be a good team to get out of that district," Lee coach Eddie Bull said about District 4 runner-up Burkburnett. "They played hard. They've come a long way since we saw them the last time.

"But we were out of control and didn't do a very good job the first half. Still, I wasn't concerned about scoring. We dominated the second half like we should have, and that's what it took to win."

It also took a little extra work by junior keeper Freddie Silva, who made seven saves — a couple of them spectacular — as the Rebels recorded their 10th shutout of the campaign.

"Freddie played superb. He deserves a lot of credit," Bull said.

Silva's diving save robbed Burkburnett's Jared Miller of a goal from close in just eight minutes into the fray. And he later got a hand on a Burkburnett blast that had all the makings of a goal midway through the first half.

"It was just a fast reaction. I just popped it over (the net)," Silva said. "I tried to focus during the whole trip up here. I knew it was going to be a tough game.

"We started picking it up in the second half, though, and I had a feeling that we were going to get a goal somehow."

Lee appeared to have scored late in the first half when Tim Tucker went into the deep left corner and cross-passed in front of the Bulldog net. But the flurry of activity that followed pushed the ball just halfway across the plane of the scoring area.

The goal that finally gave the Rebels the lead came when Perkins took a short pass from Brett Ramsey, pivoted in a crowd and smashed one off his left foot beyond the reach of the stunned Turner.

The Bulldogs did not relent, and Dent Keltner, who shared the Bulldog scoring lead with 14 goals, forced Silva to make saves with 14 and three minutes remaining.

But with time ticking away, Lee's Jason Meyers passed across the midfield stripe to Todd Meade, who got loose on a breakaway. Meade was hauled down near the goal mouth by Nat Carter, and Gotcher supplied the final margin of victory when his penalty kick bounded into the right corner of the goal with the last play of the game.

Lee ultimately outshot the Bulldogs 13-6.

4-5A: Bulldogs bats reappear at Abilene to take, the Bulldogs did see their offensive performance rise. In district games, MHS took its team batting average from .167 to .333. Now it just has to be able to handle an OHS team that is 0-2 and 4-8, and just as certain as MHS this is one of its better chances for a 4-5A win.

(From 1C)

"It goes without saying that we have got to win, for several reasons. One, it will give us a chance in the district race, and two, for the kids to feel good about what they're doing," said Wood, who will give the pitching nod to Dewayne Culpepper (1-3).

"We are looking at it as a chance to get back on a winning note and I'm sure they are too. It's their opportunity as well as ours."

For Lee, today's game not only features the traditional Lee-Permian rivalry, but the chance for the Rebels to bounce back from a 24-7 demolition at the hands of Cooper Saturday. That affair was a close game with Lee leading 5-3 until a fatal fifth inning, when the Cougars exploded for 13 runs.

In the Panthers, Lee will see a team it has beaten once already, 13-5 in the Del Rio tournament. The Rebs faced pitcher Efran Moreno in that game, but Brian Bavousett (4-2) is in the rotation for today's matchup.

Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez was uncertain of his probable starter as of Monday, with both Jimmy Patton (2-1) and Julian Urquidez (3-0) logging more than 40 pitches against Cooper. Urquidez also threw a complete game last Tuesday against MHS.

"Permian is going to have an incentive because we beat them in Del Rio. So we have got to get the Cooper game off our minds and get ready for Permian," Benavidez said.

Regular-season loss propels Hoosiers

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Little more than a week after Indiana's regular season ended with a humiliating loss to Purdue, a reborn offense has propelled the Hoosiers into the NCAA West Regional semifinals.

The Hoosiers (25-6), seeded No. 2 in the West, play No. 3 seed Florida State (22-9) Thursday at Albuquerque, N.M.

After averaging 37 percent shooting over the final regular-season four games and blowing the Big Ten Conference championship and a possible No. 1 seed, Indiana responded by shooting 58 percent in its first- and second-round NCAA victories over Eastern Illinois and Louisiana State.

But there was extra motivation, guard Damon Bailey said.

"We had the thing outright and then we didn't even end up with a share," he said about the Big Ten crown, which went to Ohio State after Hoosier defeats at Michigan and Purdue over the final four games.

West

"I think that opened our eyes to what can happen if you don't play hard every game," Bailey said.

The Hoosiers overcame 36 points by LSU's Shaquille O'Neal and beat the Tigers 89-79 Saturday night. Florida State advanced with a 78-68 victory over Georgetown.

The regional semifinal Thursday will be a rematch of a second-round tourney game last year, when the Hoosiers beat the Seminoles 82-60 by shooting .576 from the field, including 7 of 13 on 3-pointers.

"We did the things coach (Bob) Knight wanted us to do, which is something we haven't done in a few games this year," Bailey said of Indiana's game against LSU. "I think the best thing that happened was getting down by 14 points and coming back. I think that's going to help us. We just kept doing the things we wanted to do.

"They were hitting shots early, but we were giving them shots. We stuck with our game plan."

This is the fourth time in the past six years the Hoosiers have reached at least the regional semifinals. Indiana won the NCAA title under Knight in 1976, 1981 and 1987, along with two earlier championships, and beat LSU en route to the title both in 1981 and 1987.

Calbert Cheaney's 30 points against the Tigers Saturday was the sixth time an Indiana player scored that many in an NCAA tourney game, and the first since Steve Alford in 1987. They also were a season-high for the 6-foot-6 junior.

"He did a good job moving to get the ball," Knight said. "He's been getting the ball and then trying to do something with it. ... He got in position to do something before he even got the ball, and that's a big difference."

Aggies play David to ULCA's Goliath

By Pete Herrera
AP Sports Writer

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — The contrast, says New Mexico State coach Neil McCarthy, is wider than a Southwest desert and as imposing as a Los Angeles freeway.

When the home-state Aggies — (25-7) and the longest shot still alive in the NCAA tournament — take on UCLA (27-4) in Thursday night's West Regional semifinals in Albuquerque, it will be David vs. Goliath revisited, McCarthy said Monday.

"Want to guess who's David?" McCarthy asked during a news conference at a local restaurant. "They're the uptown guys who hang out at Westwood. We hang out in Las Cruces, New Mexico, the garden spot of the Southwest."

While UCLA's offense is built on the considerable talents of its forward tandem of 6-foot-10 Don MacLean and 6-8 Tracy Murray, New Mexico State's go-to guy is 5-foot-8 point guard Sam Crawford.

"They have a pair of legitimate All-American forwards and first-round draft picks. We don't have anyone that even made the first team of the Big West All-Conference," McCarthy said. "We can't get anyone UCLA has and they don't want anybody we have. They have the greatest freeway system in the world. We have have the Rio Grande running through town."

But there's no need for sympathy cards.

New Mexico State, unranked throughout the regular season despite winning 13 of its first 14 games and now working on an eight-game winning streak, knocked off fifth-seeded DePaul and Southwestern Louisiana to reach the final 16.

Led by Crawford's floor magic (14 points, 10 assists and just one turnover) and some unconscious free-throw shooting — 17-for-17 in the final minutes — the 12th-seeded Aggies outlasted the bigger, athletic Ragin' Cajuns.

"We can play with anyone in America," McCarthy said. "No one plays harder, and I wouldn't write us off just yet."

Never one to cushion his sentiment, McCarthy lashed out at the pollsters who have ignored the Aggies and Interstate 10 neighbor Texas-El Paso, which also is in the final 16 after stunning No. 1 seed Kansas, 66-60, in the Midwest Regional.

"We're the only team in the country to beat UTEP on their home floor this year and look at where they're at. UTEP and New Mexico State have proven what kind of teams they are."

With the West Regional finals at The Pit in Albuquerque, just 225 miles up the interstate from Las Cruces, McCarthy and the Aggies are banking on considerable home-state support. And while the Aggies and Albuquerque-based New Mexico Lobos are fierce rivals, the Aggies are confident the Lobo fans will rally behind them.

Oklahoma St. Suttons return to Lexington

Associated Press

STILLWATER, Okla. — Oklahoma State guard Corey Williams finished off his homecoming weekend at Atlanta by making 10 of 12 shots and scoring 27 points in leading the Cowboys into the NCAA's Sweet 16.

Southeast

Now if only coach Eddie Sutton and son Sean can have the same kind of success when they return this week to Lexington, Ky., site of the NCAA Southeast regional finals.

Sutton coached Kentucky four years before resigning in 1989 amidst a recruiting scandal. Sean, the Cowboys' playmaker, was a freshman in 1988 when Kentucky won the Southeastern Conference and reached the final 16.

"My only concern in going back to Kentucky is that the media will forget the purpose of the tournament and the fact that you have four teams trying to make it to the Final Four," Eddie Sutton said.

Oklahoma State (28-7) will play Michigan (22-8) Friday, and the Cowboys appear to be the hottest of the four teams left in the Southeast. They shot 80 percent, an NCAA tournament record, in beating Tulane 87-71 Sunday to reach the final 16 for the second straight year.

"I've never had a team, even when I coached high school basketball, that shot 80 percent," Sutton said. "You probably see it in the playgrounds, but I've never seen it at this level."

Williams, who grew up in nearby Macon, Ga., made amends Sunday for a so-so first-round game with friends and family — all but his grandmother — watching.

"Friday was the first time she had ever seen me play," Williams said. "She was sorry I played so bad. She told me she could not come (Sunday) because she had to go to church. But she said she would pray for me. The Lord must have answered.

"I had a great homecoming. Now Sean gets to go back to Lexington."

The fact the Cowboys' road to the Final Four takes them through Atlanta and Lexington has not been lost on either Williams or his backcourt mate Sutton.

"Last week, before the pairings were announced, I told Corey Williams that for our sake I hoped we would be placed in the Southeast in Atlanta, so Corey could ho home for the first two rounds and that hopefully we would win so I could go to Lexington," Sean said.

Sutton was the starting guard for Kentucky in 1989 when the Wildcats went 13-19, their first losing season in 62 years.

"I am very happy to be going back to Rupp (Arena)," he said. "I have great memories of playing there. I have many close friends there. I don't view it as a problem."

Coach Sutton also is looking forward to the return, saying, "99 percent of the people there treated me well."

It doesn't hurt to be going back with a team he says is getting back to the same level as when it opened the season with 20 straight victories and climbed to a No. 2 national ranking.

Friendship put aside for Seton Hall and Duke head coaches

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Friends don't let friends win, meaning Duke's game against Seton Hall in the NCAA East Regional semifinals should be a test of maturity and concentration, Blue Devils coach Mike Krzyzewski said Monday.

The top-ranked Blue Devils (30-2) hope they can avoid distractions in Philadelphia against the Pirates (23-8), win the region and move on to their fifth straight Final Four.

The defending national champs lost to Seton Hall in the semifinals of the Final Four in 1989, but are 13-1 in NCAA postseason competition since.

Krzyzewski and Pirate coach P.J. Carlesimo have also become close friends, and the relationship between their teams has grown.

Duke point guard Bobby Hurley will face his younger brother Danny, a backup freshman point guard, and two former high school teammates in leading scorers Terry Dehere and Jerry Walker.

And Carlesimo coached Hurley this past summer in the World University Games, while Dehere was a teammate of Duke's Christian Laettner, Grant Hill and Thomas Hill on the U.S. national Team.

"You have to block it (the friendships) out," Krzyzewski said. "... Pretty much when I am watching tape of them ... I don't get emotional or anything, but I'll say to myself, 'P.J. your beard looks a little bit different.'

East

"You just have to be professional about it," Krzyzewski said. "I'm happy for them that they've advanced this far, too. You want your friends to do well."

But Hurley, Duke's all-time assist leader after just three seasons, must remain his calm self while running the Blue Devil offense, Krzyzewski said.

"Bobby has to stay in character and be as tenacious and competitive as he always is," Krzyzewski said. "The thing that Bobby realizes is that those kids playing against him will be that way.

"It's nothing personal, but their standards are high. They are going to try to play well no matter what. I want Bobby Hurley to be Bobby Hurley and not get caught up in everything."

Hurley agrees.

"It's going to be a weird situation for me," Hurley said. "I've always played on the same team as those guys and I'll always consider them teammates just because of how much we achieved at the high-school level together."

Hurley, Dehere and Walker, coached by Hurley's father Bob, won four state titles at St. Anthony's (N.J.) High School, including the mythical prep title with a 32-0 record in their senior season.

'Jackets thankful for rest

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Coach Bobby Cremins woke up Monday thankful for two things: that his Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets are in the NCAA tournament's Round of 16 and that they won't have to play again until Friday.

The Yellow Jackets (23-11) advanced to the Midwest Regional semifinals against Memphis State when freshman James Forrest hit a desperation 24-foot, 3-point shot as time expired Saturday, edging Southern Cal 79-78 in a second-round game in Milwaukee.

The victory left Cremins and his team on an emotional high.

"The one nice thing is that we're not playing today," he said Monday after returning to Atlanta. "I don't think we could have played today. We've got to get down quickly and go to work, but it's going to take at least another day."

Cremins planned to have a late afternoon practice Monday to begin preparing for Memphis State (22-10), which advanced to the semifinals in Kansas City by beating Arkansas 82-80 on Saturday. Tech will fly to Kansas City on Wednesday.

Midwest

"If we don't get down, then we'll lose," Cremins said.

Fourth-seeded Cincinnati (27-4) will face Texas-El Paso (27-5), the No. 9 seed, who upset second-ranked and No. 1 seed Kansas 66-60 on Sunday, in the other Midwest semifinal. The two winners will meet Sunday and one will go on to the Final Four in Minneapolis.

Cremins said he never expected to go this far after a 7-7 season in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"It's been a bumpy season, a season of ups and downs," he said. "But the one nice thing is that we're going to have a Final Four team come out of our region that was not expected to do so. It's nice that there's going to be at least one Cinderella team."

Forrest's game-winning shot was his first 3-pointer of the season, and Cremins said it brought back memories of a similar basket in the 1990 NCAA tournament by then-freshman point guard Kenny Anderson.

Prices gain

NEW YORK — Energy futures prices settled higher Monday in slack trading as the market recovered somewhat after Friday's selloff.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in May rose 4 cents to settle at $19.31 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Other contract months also rose. On Friday, the now-expired April contract for light sweet crude lost 39 cents.

Lower-grade sour crude for delivery in May settled at $16.38 per barrel, up 9 cents.

Natural gas for delivery in April settled at $1.346 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 7.8 cents from the previous session.

Rates mixed

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities were mixed in Monday's auction.

The Treasury Department sold $11.5 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.08 percent, down from 4.09 percent last week. Another $11.5 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.27 percent, unchanged from last week.

The three-month bill rate was the lowest since they sold for 4.02 percent on March 9. The six-month bill rate was the highest since they averaged 4.39 percent on Dec. 2.

Dollar falls

NEW YORK — The dollar was mostly lower in slow trading Monday as dealers adjusted their positions in anticipation of new data on the U.S. economy. Gold was unchanged.

The dollar ended the day in New York at 133.45 Japanese yen, down from Friday's 133.85.

The U.S. currency was also lower against the German mark, closing at 1.6665, down from 1.6730 late Friday.

The greenback fared no better against the British pound, closing at $1.7190, compared with $1.7120 Friday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late rate Friday, included: 1.5145 Swiss francs, down from 1.5190; 5.6515 French francs, down from 5.6755; 1,252.75 Italian lire, down from 1,257.00, and 1.19175 Canadian dollars, down from 1.19825.

Market slips

NEW YORK — Stock prices fell slightly Monday in an uneventful session, with investors resuming cautious trading habits.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 4.25 to 3,272.14. Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Banc One to acquire Team Bank

■ Companies plan a simple stock swap, with shares presently valued at $82 each.

Associated Press

DALLAS — Bank One Texas, the state's second-largest bank, said Monday it plans to acquire Team Bank, the fifth-largest, in a $782 million deal aimed at bolstering Bank One's consumer orientation.

The proposed transaction, subject to regulatory approval, would be the largest in Texas banking since Columbus, Ohio-based Banc One Corp. entered the state in 1989.

"Team Bank strengthens our presence in Texas where it has the characteristics we have traditionally favored, including being a retail and middle-market lending organization," John B. McCoy, chief executive of Banc One, said in a statement.

"This does fit the scheme of things that Bank One has been emphasizing," said Herbert Jones, banking analyst for the Principal-EGT brokerage firm in Dallas.

"Team is a good franchise," said Sandra Flannigan, analyst for Alex. Brown & Sons in Baltimore. "We think it is a very nice addition to the stronghold Banc One has in Texas."

Banc One has built its reputation on innovative consumer services and lending to small- and medium-sized businesses. It ranks among the nation's 15 biggest banks and had assets of about $46 billion at the end of 1991.

The companies plan a simple stock swap, one share of Banc One stock for each share of Team Bancshares, the Dallas-based holding company of Fort Worth-based Team Bank. The shares are presently valued at $82 each.

The number of shares involved will, based on market value when the deal is finished in six or seven months, equal $782 million as long as Banc One's stock price doesn't fluctuate more than 10 percent up or down.

The number of Banc One shares involved in the deal may be adjusted based on market conditions.

Bank One Texas operates 146 branches in Texas and assets of about $13.5 billion. Team Bank has 56 branches and assets of about $5.5 billion. Consolidation of some branches seems likely but is not certain, representatives of the banks said.

"As is the case with all of these kinds of affiliations, we are going to go in and assess the organization," said Dick Bryant, a spokesman at Bank One-Texas. "This will be first chance we've had to go in and take a look at the resources" of Team Bank.

Rumors about the deal had circulated among regulators for a couple of weeks. Team Bank spokeswoman Carol Hall said work on the transaction had not gone on for long.

Ronald Steinhart, chief executive of Team Bank, will stay on with Banc One. He formed Team Bank in a 1989 federally-assisted takeover of the failed Texas American Bancshares, Fort Worth's largest bank. Steinhart owned a small Dallas bank at the time.

Ironically, Banc One's entry into Texas was with the 1989 purchase of a business-oriented institution. Banc One bought 20 banks of Dallas-based MCorp, which was the second-largest bank company at the time of its failure.

Later acquisitions, notably large thrifts like Bright Banc Savings Association and Benjamin Franklin Savings Association, more closely matched Banc One's consumer orientation.

Texas' largest bank, Dallas-based NationsBank Texas, has nearly $35 billion in assets.

Economy picks up steam, Fed officials say

■ Worries remain that incipient recovery could peter out.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve officials say recent data indicate that the economy is picking up steam, but they remain worried that the incipient recovery could peter out.

In interviews last week, two Federal Reserve governors who agreed to speak on the record said that recent reports showing upturns in retail sales and housing starts were the most convincing evidence so far that the stubbornly persistent downturn was ending.

But they also said that the manufacturing sector remained subdued and that employment growth was likely to lag.

"Taken together, the picture is pretty encouraging, but it is not definitive yet," said David W. Mullins Jr., vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. "There are still concerns about sustainability."

Mullins said that a few weeks ago, many economists were expecting a flat first quarter, but he said recent data suggested that first-quarter growth "would squarely be in positive territory," although it would still be slow.

He said "the pattern of data bode well for a stronger second quarter and a return to moderate growth by mid-year."

Many analysts say the recent positive data make it unlikely that Fed officials would cut interest rates in the near future because they think the Fed no longer believes that additional monetary easing is necessary to insure recovery.

Some Fed officials have said they worry that the markets might view any additional cuts as inflationary.

In an interview Sunday on the ABC News program "This Week With David Brinkley," Richard G. Darman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, agreed that the economy was recovering.

"We in the administration are assuming each quarter throughout this year will be slightly better than the one before," he said, referring to the growth rate of the economy.

Fed approves BankAmerica, 'Pacific' deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve on Monday approved the largest bank merger in U.S. history, clearing BankAmerica Corp. and Security Pacific Corp. to combine into the second biggest bank in the nation.

The 7-0 ruling from the Fed is the last major regulatory obstacle to the deal, which would create a bank with $192 billion in assets and hundreds of branches scattered across 10 Western states and Hawaii.

The agency conditioned its approval on the merged bank's agreement to meet lending goals in poor neighborhoods and divest branches to abide by antitrust commitments.

Last month, to meet concerns raised by the Justice Department, the combined bank agreed to sell 213 branches in five states: Washington, California, Arizona, Nevada, and Oregon. The new holding company will retain the BankAmerica name.

Credit markets: Economists split on path of rates

By Sylvia Nasar
N.Y. Times News Service

Now that everyone agrees that the economy is reviving, economists are arguing over whether long-term interest rates — which determine how much it costs to build a factory or finance a three-bedroom ranch house — will head higher or lower.

Take the spirited exchange recently at the World Economy Lab, a new forum in Cambridge, Mass., where executives from Wall Street, banking and industry can mingle with some of the brightest lights of the economics department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Rudiger Dornbusch, one of the department's international economists, set off sparks by confidently predicting that rates on long-term government bonds would fall a percentage point or two.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Heir finds tracing bonds an impossible task

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q: I am stymied trying to trace U.S. Treasury bonds that should be in my late father's estate. I wrote to the Bureau of the Public Debt in Parkersburg, W.Va., and filled in the forms I was sent, to institute a search for the bonds.

Unfortunately, I do not have the bonds' serial numbers or the dates they were purchased by my father. Dad died at age 94 and was always very defensive about his financial affairs. The bank of which he was a longtime president says it has no record of his purchase.

A lawyer suggests he might have bought "bearer bonds." Can you give me any clues about finding bearer bonds?

A: We'll assume you have searched every place your father might have tucked away those bonds and his financial records – any safe-deposit boxes he had, his house from attic to basement and all his likely hangouts. That being the case, unless you know the bonds had been reported as lost, stolen or destroyed, you might as well give up your search. There is virtually no hope you will ever find them.

As the term indicates, a bearer bond is considered owned by the person who has it in his or her possession. Except in unusual circumstances, there is no permanent record of a bearer bond's ownership.

Bearer bonds came with interest coupons attached and are also known as coupon bonds. To collect interest when it came due – semiannually, for most such bonds – the owner cut off the appropriate coupon and cashed it. If your father did own bearer bonds, it seems likely he would have cashed the coupons at the bank with which he was affiliated.

The problem of lost bearer bonds is becoming a thing of the past. No bearer bonds have been issued in the United States since 1983. The Treasury last issued bonds in bearer form in 1982.

Until August 1986, newly issued Treasury bonds were available in "registered" form, with the owners' names on the bond certificates and on the government's record books. Since then, all new Treasury securities have come in "book entry" form, with ownership kept on computers and no engraved certificates printed.

Q: The "Treasury Direct" system for buying Treasury bonds, notes and bills usually goes off without a hitch. I have made a number of purchases that way -- by submitting a tender to my district Federal Reserve Bank. Last year, I bought a 52-week "T bill."

I wanted to buy another 52-week T bill this year, so I filled out another tender and sent it along with my $10,000 certified check. The check was returned with a notification that there was no offering of 52-week T bills at that time. I phoned the bank and was unable to get an explanation.

What is the proper date to send in my check?

A: Tenders must be postmarked by midnight of the day preceding the date on which Treasury securities are auctioned off.

The 52-week T bill auction is held once a month, usually on the fourth Thursday. Auctions of 13-week and 26-week T bills are held every Monday, unless that's a bank holiday, in which case the auctions take place the preceding Friday or following Tuesday.

Notes, which have maturities of from one to 10 years, and bonds, which have maturities of as long as 30 years, are auctioned off at various times and are announced in newspapers.

Q: Will I know, in advance, what interest I will get on a Treasury security purchased via the Treasury Direct system?

A: No, not if you submit a non-competitive tender, which is the wise way to go. You then buy at the average price and get the average yield determined by competitive bids made by institutional investors.

If you submit a competitive tender – naming the price or yield you are willing to accept – you might be stuck paying too much. Or the Treasury Department might reject your bid, meaning you do not get the security.

Cotton Bowl among nine 1994 World Cup venues

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Nine U.S. cities were selected Monday as sites for soccer's 1994 World Cup, including the Pontiac Silverdome in Michigan, the first indoor stadium in the history of the tournament.

Foxboro Stadium outside Boston and the Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Fla., were picked, as were Solider Field in Chicago, the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., Stanford Stadium outside San Francisco and RFK Stadium in Washington.

"The decision in the Florida cities was the toughest we had to make," World Cup USA chairman Alan Rothenberg said.

Orlando won out over Joe Robbie Stadium and the Orange Bowl in Miami, and Tampa Stadium, partly because of the facilities available to tourists in the Disney World area.

Each site will get four first-round games and eight of the nine are likely to get second-round games, according to Scott LeTellier, chief operating officer of World Cup USA 1994. FIFA will announce in July which cities get specific games. Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles and New York are bidding for the final, the most-watched sporting event in the world.

Giants Stadium, the Silverdome and possibly Foxboro Stadium may require fields narrower than the 110 yards-by-75 yards required by World Cup rules. FIFA general secretary Joseph Blatter sidestepped questions about dimensions, saying only that the fields would conform with soccer's more liberal overall rules, which allow fields as narrow as 70 yards for international matches.

"For FIFA, it was a must to play in New York," Blatter said. "We could not bring the World Cup to the United States and not play in New York."

Giants Stadium and the Cotton Bowl will convert from artificial turf to grass for the World Cup. In addition, grass will be put over the field in the Silverdome; an exhibition game probably will be played there next summer to test the surface, LeTellier said.

U.S. organizers originally preferred 12 sites, the most allowed under World Cup rules. But using only nine sites will save at least $10 million, LeTellier said.

Twenty-six communities originally applied for the 52-game tournament, which will be played from June 17-July 17, 1994. Eight were ruled out in December. The others who were not selected included Atlanta, Columbus, Denver, Kansas City, Miami, New Haven, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Seattle and Tampa.

Denver, Miami and Philadelphia were eliminated from consideration because the National League would not permit the baseball teams in those stadiums to make road trips of longer than 17 days. Denver and Miami were awarded NL expansion franchises last June.

"There's no question our thought processes underwent different thinking after major league baseball made its expansion decisions," LeTellier said.

There is a possibility the games in Washington may be moved from RFK Stadium to the new stadium the Redskins are planning to construct. If the stadium gets a go-ahead by June, LeTellier said Washington would be allowed to bid for the final.

The World Cup's opening round is divided into six groups of four teams. Two groups will be assigned to three-city clusters and each team will play its three first-round games in at least two cities. Teams will not be assigned to specific areas until the draw in December 1993, but Germany is known to prefer Chicago and Italy almost definitely will be assigned to New York if it qualifies.

"Italy has said strongly and unequivocally that it wants to be in New York. We've had input from people in New York that they want Italy here," LeTellier said. "Subject to those caveats, no decisions have been made."

Quick test can alert diabetes risks

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please help the American Diabetes Association find 7 million Americans who are missing vital medical treatment and who may be at high risk for heart disease, kidney disease, stroke, blindness and amputation.

Van Buren

There are 14 million Americans who have diabetes, and half of them do not know they have the disease. These people need to be reached before they suffer from one of these life-threatening complications.

You can help by running the Diabetes Risk Test in your column during the American Diabetes Alert on March 24, as we urge Americans across the country to "Take the Test, Know the Score." This simple test can help determine if there is a risk for having diabetes, and if a doctor should be contacted.

With your help, we can improve and save lives by enabling people to find out if they have diabetes. — JAMES S. SKYLER, M.D., PRESIDENT, AMERICAN DIABETES ASSOCIATION

DEAR DR. SKYLAR: Since early intervention can make a critical difference in the quality of life for a person with diabetes, I am printing the Diabetes Risk Test you recommend for my readers:

"Take the Test, Know the Score"

1. I have been experiencing one or more of the following symptoms on a regular basis:

Excessive thirst Yes 3
Frequent urination Yes 3
Extreme fatigue Yes 1
Unexplained weight loss Yes 3
Blurry vision from time to time Yes 2

2. I am over 30 years of age. Yes 1

3. I am at least 20 percent over my ideal weight. Yes 2

4. I am a woman who has had more than one baby weighing more than nine pounds at birth. Yes 2

5. I am of native American Indian descent. Yes 1

6. I am of Hispanic or black American descent. Yes 1

7. I have a parent with diabetes. Yes 1

8. I have a brother or sister with diabetes. Yes 2

Now, add up your score. If you scored three to five points, you are probably at low risk for diabetes. If you scored more than five points, you may be at high risk, or even have diabetes. See your doctor, and don't delay.

For more information on diabetes, contact your local American Diabetes Association or send a self-addressed, stamped (29 cents) envelope to The American Diabetes Association National Center, 1660 Duke St., Alexandria, Va. 22314.

And now, an update from a reader who saw the Diabetes Risk Test last year.

DEAR ABBY: You may have saved many lives last year by publishing the Diabetes Risk Test of the American Diabetes Association. You also published my letter about the close call my daughter Jeannette had because of her delay in seeing a doctor about some of the symptoms given on that test.

I'm happy to tell you that Jeannette is managing her diabetes well and plans to use her degree in drama to spread the word about the risks of diabetes and the help which is available to those who have it. Gratefully ... JOHN B. d'ARMAND, JUNEAU, ALASKA

AT WIT'S END

Equality in kitchen can be frightening

By Erma Bombeck

A few years ago my husband, in a burst of understanding and appreciation for my long days, offered to do the dishes every evening. It was a thoughtful thing to do.

Bombeck

The good news is that he has not compromised his masculinity. The bad news is that I am losing my mind.

The first hint I had that the tranquility of my domain was about to change was that it used to take me no more than 10 minutes to do the dishes. It takes him an hour and a half. What is he doing all that time, you might ask. He's busy.

He's lining up seven empty plastic oleo tubs that he has plucked from his plastic oleo-tub warehouse and is filling each with a tablespoon of something that I will throw away in three days. After he snaps on the lids, he will return the tubs to the refrigerator, where I will be tricked into thinking there is butter in one of them and will have to break each open before I realize the butter is in the butter keeper, where it hasn't been in 20 years.

He is consolidating. Consolidating is a major verb in his life. He consolidates all the cereal into one box, all the ice cream in one carton, and all the pickles and olives into one jar.

He's washing every cup, dish and pan in soapy water in the sink and dripping the excess moisture from them into the adjoining sink BEFORE he puts them in the dishwasher.

Man and woman were meant to share children, beds, toothpaste, relatives, mortgages and luggage. They can even live in harmony in the same living rooms and bathrooms. They were never meant to share a kitchen.

I have heard stories from other women whose husbands have invaded their kitchens. Some are coffee can savers. Some are brush collectors.

So what do we do about it? Absolutely nothing. It has taken 200 years to get men to stay in the kitchen after they have put down their knives and forks. No one said equality would be easy.

Lazy summer afternoons, lemon phosphates, courting on the backyard swing ... you can revive that era by building this glider swing. It's as popular today as it was then. We used rough fir, but any lumber will do. Trace the full-size pattern parts onto wood, saw out and follow our step-by-step directions. You'll find lots of diagrams to guide you in construction.
