NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—Spurred by apparently well-founded reports that Gov. Allred will call a second special session shortly after adjournment of the present session, Oct. 27, provided a pension revenue bill is enacted this time, both houses went into final ten-day period with every indication of producing results.

The situation at the weekend showed the house having passed the omnibus tax bill, and sent it to the senate, where debate on amendments and substitutes was under way. Both houses had finally enacted and sent to conference unemployment compensation bills, thus covering the second of two purposes for which the session was called. Final passage of the bill will follow the conference report, reconciling minor differences in the house and senate measures.

The bill to transfer $480,000 in the permanent old age pension fund to the available pension fund also was finally passed, and sent to the governor, and the house completed passage of the bill authorizing issuance of not more than $500,000 of 3½ interest bearing warrants to pay pensions until March 1, if necessary. This was in furtherance of the plan devised by Gov. Allred and bankers of the state, to avoid suspension of pension payments until new tax revenue becomes available.

PENSION REVISION UP?

If another special session is called, it will be to pass enabling acts under constitutional amendments adopted last year, authorizing temporary confinement of insane persons without lunacy trials, and setting up a system of probation for adult offenders. It will also permit legislators to pass local laws, which have been strictly withheld by the governor, in order not to muddy the pension revenue waters. The lame duck house has proved extremely tractable, and the senate, if it can get past the hurdle of Sen. Roy Sanderford's sales tax, and Sen. Clint Small's gross receipts tax, which has been described as an "inverted sales tax," should produce some pension revenue well within the time limit.

Revision of the pension law, to eliminate payments to all except those actually in need, and cut the present potential pension list of 150,000 to about half that number, may be submitted at the next special session. The lobbyists are unanimously for it, and it is likely their lack of opposition to the omnibus tax bill the result of some sort of understanding with the governor. They feel that unless the "lame ducks" deliberate the law, the new legislature will never accomplish it—and they are afraid the new members might even pass legislation "opening up" the restrictions substantially.

ORDER GAS RATE OUT

Chairman Ernest Thompson announced a hearing by the Railroad Commission, for Oct. 28, at which the Lone Star Gas Co. is ordered to show cause why it should not immediately reduce and pass along to consumers, thru its subsidiaries, the 8-cent gas rate reduction on natural gas, in over 300 Texas towns and cities, with 2,500,000 population. The order followed the ruling of the Texas supreme court upholding the commission's right to regulate gas rates. It is by far the most important utility rate case yet handled by the Railroad Commission, offering a saving of $1,100,000 a year to the man who pays the gas bill in the affected territory. The court decision marks a notable victory for Thompson, who instituted the rate reduction fight in 1933, and has fought unceasingly since, to make it effective. The gas company will doubtless seek a rehearing, and may appeal to the U. S. supreme court.

She Wins!

Miss Mary Frances Woods of San Benito smiles triumphantly as she looks over the "spoils" from the recent freshman presidential election held at Texas State College for Women (CIA). After a vigorous campaign, approximately 1000 freshmen chose this diminutive brunette to guide their class activities.

but the Texas decisions leave little ground for hope of overturning the decision, and delay will be unprofitable, as the company is under bond to refund overcharges since the date of the original order, if it is finally upheld.

RED PROBE A FARCE

As fantastic bit of legislative horseplay as has been seen in Austin in years is the so-called "red" investigation of Texas university. The probe, reputedly inspired by a powerful lobbyist, with strong political connections in Washington—as well as Austin—has centered, not on Reds, but on the activity of the progressive Democrats, a student group who pulled out of the regular Young Democrat organization last year, when a faction of the latter group began attacking President Roosevelt, thru a fight on his son, Elliot Roosevelt. The Progressive Democrats protested bitterly by resolutions, appointment of Roy Miller, sulphur company representative, as Democrat campaign director for Texas. They called Miller a "sulphurcrat," and several of their members ran for the legislature on anti-sulphur platforms, none being elected. They also were advised by Dr. R. H. Montgomery, author of the ill-fated bill to regulate public utilities in the regular session—and the lobbyists don't like Montgomery.

But Montgomery and the bright young men associated with him, proved more than a match for the committee members, and by their apt answers, made the committee look rather silly. They all specifically denied they were Communists, or had ever heard of anybody teaching Red doctrines at Texas U.

Then they turned the table on the committee, demanding to know where it got photostatic copies of letters they said were stolen from the files of the Progressive Dems. They even hauled the committee into a justice court to make them answer, but the committee won a delay. A near riot ensued when 1000 cheering students were ejected from the galleries by the committee at one session, but the house adopted a resolution instructing the committee to hold open sessions. The general opinion here was that the committee, having a lion by the tail, was ready to drop the matter, and that the lobbyist who reputedly inspired it, was as unhappy as Brother Crawford's wife over the way it was bungled.

RESUME ROAD BUILDING

Serene again, after suffering from jitters at proposals to use its road money for paying pensions which apparently had failed, the Highway Department resumed contract letting this week, with $1,200,000 of clean-up contracts from last year's state-federal program to be awarded.

Bulldogs Go To Snyder Friday Nite

The Loraine Bulldogs will journey to Snyder Friday night of this week to engage the Snyder Tigers in the third conference game of the season. The game is to be called at eight o'clock.

The Bulldogs will go into the game at full strength with the exception of Truman Walker and W. F. James. Walker is still going on a crippled ankle and James is still not able to do much on his injured knee. Coach Pratt is hoping that these two will be able to go into the game for at least a part of it. Their loss to the team is a hard blow.

The two weeks rest for the team has been a wonderful help. The players have had a chance to recover from injuries and Coach has had an opportunity to drill the team on their duties in the game.

The Snyder Tigers are tough. Last week they defeated the Roby Lions 7 to 2 and earlier in the season defeated Rotan. They are full of tricks and have some ball carriers that are hard to handle. The Bulldogs, however, are going into the game to give them everything they have and are going to do their best to bring home a victory.

Should Chubby James and Walker not be able to play in the game Friday night Simmons, Baird, Brians and Bob James will probably get the back field assignments. James, Simmons and Baird are light but fast. Brians is one of the hardest hitting backs we have seen in action this season. He did a good job against Roby, and is expected to do better at Snyder Friday night. He's got the stuff when he uses it.

The Loraine-Snyder game is holding the spotlight in district 6-B this week. Roscoe is to go to Merkel where they are expected to take the game with ease. Colorado goes to Rotan and Rotan is the favorite. Snyder is supposed to be the favorite against Loraine but sometimes the favorites get spilled.

Team	Standing	W	L	T	Pct.
Snyder		2	0	0	1000
Roscoe		1	0	0	1000
Loraine		1	0	1	750
Rotan		1	1	0	500
Roby		1	1	1	375
Merkel		0	2	0	000

Austin, Texas, Oct. 19.—A drive to interest out of state industries in Texas minerals was launched this week by The Texas Planning Board's Mineral Resources Committee.

The committee, armed with 33 volumes of maps showing the location of practically every important mineral deposit in the state, will search out those industries using minerals similar to those found in Texas and then will attempt to induce these industries to help develop the state's mineral resources.

Data contained in the 33 volumes was collected by the committee's mineralogists the co-operation of several state and civic agencies and of the landowners themselves who have, in many instances, brought the attention of the committee to deposits of rare minerals.

While the drive to "sell Texas minerals" is on, the committee will continue to probe the state's great underground treasure vaults for additional minerals and new deposits.

W. M. S.

The Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met at the church Monday nine members present. The meeting was opened by singing "Count Your Blessings." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Ed Williams. Bible study was conducted by Mrs. T. C. Wilson. The lesson was the 17th to 20th chapters of Acts. We were dismissed in prayer by Mrs. W. E. Honea. Next week the local circle will meet. Lets have a good crowd.

Follow Bulldogs To Snyder Friday Nite

Every football fan who possibly can should make the trip to Snyder Friday night of this week to witness the Bulldogs-Tiger melee. The Bulldogs are going to need every bit of backing they can get and a large following of fans along with the pep squad and band will help their morale more than anything. Lets all go to Snyder. The game starts at 8 o'clock.

Most dopesters have Snyder picked to win but this editor is going to pick Loraine to win. The way we see it the game is going to be a tough battle and one team is about as apt to take the game as the other nevertheless we are picking the Bulldogs to have the most stuff.

ATTEND FUNERAL OF WRECK VICTIMS

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hale attended the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Middleton and their daughter, Mrs. Whitley, at Merkel Monday. Mr. Middleton was a cousin of Mrs. Hale.

The three were killed in a car-truck accident near Big Spring early Sunday. The driver of the truck was also killed, W. A. Whitley was critically injured in the accident, but the year old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Whitley escaped the crash with a few scratches.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Margaret Nell Wilson entertained a group of her little friends Saturday afternoon with a party in honor of her eighth birthday. The afternoon was spent in hilarious games and laughter.

At the refreshment hour punch and birthday cake, along with apples and chocolate bars was served to Melba Mahon, Kathryn Price, Dorothy Schimmer, June Loree Cranfil, Ramona Wright, Ruth and Merle Manly, Margaret Nell and James Carol Wilson. Suckers were given as favors.

All expressed themselves as having a delightful time and wished for Margaret Nell many more happy birthdays.

REV. SAM YOUNG HELD QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

At the "round-up" or adjourned fourth quarterly conference of the Loraine Methodist Church, held last Wednesday evening at which Rev. Sam H. Young, presiding elder, preached, the following stewards were elected upon the nomination of the pastor, Rev. Ham Wright:

Marion Mahon, Earl Brown, Bill Honea, K. L. Taylor, C. F. Glass, Otis Muns, Marvin Martin, Frank Beights, T. R. Bennett, Loy Edwards, Ed Williams, Lester Jarratt, Marshall Bruce, S. E. Meadow, N. J. Brians.

The new board of stewards will assume office November 9 for the succeeding conference year. They will meet shortly thereafter, elect a president and secretary-treasurer, and have complete charge of the finances of the local church.

Next Sunday has been designated "Benevolences Sunday" at the Methodist Church. All the proceeds of the day will be given to carry on the benevolent work of the church outside Loraine, such as missions, both foreign and home; church extension, hospitals, superannuate preachers, widows, orphan children; Bible distribution, temperance work, etc.

Following the Sunday School an old-fashioned Methodist "love feast", prominent half a century ago, will be held. It is hoped to make this a great spiritual feast. The Lord's Supper will be administered.

All members of the church are requested to double their givings on that day to the end that the benevolent work of the church may be brought to the maximum.

Thornhill Store Is Burglarized

The Thornhill dry goods store was entered some time between Saturday night and Monday morning and approximately $100 worth of merchandise taken. A thorough check had not been made by Mr. Thornhill Wednesday but he estimated the loss at around $100. The loot consisted mostly of dresses, shirts, etc. and possibly a few blankets.

Entrance to the store was gained by cutting a hole through the roof and ceiling of the building. From the ceiling someone was let down onto the top of the dressing room. The print of the shoe in the dust on the top of the dressing room looked like that of a child or a very small man. It is supposed that after entering the store others were let in through the door which is closed with a night latch from the inside.

MOCKING BIRD MILES WINS AT SWEETWATER

A. R. (Mocking Bird) Miles of Loraine won first place and $15 in cash at the first Sweetwater amateur contest Saturday night. Little Ernestine Sue Quast of Sweetwater won second place and $10, and the Arkansas Hillbillies of Matador won third place and $5. Elmo Fayer and Miss Edith Freeman of Fluvanna were awarded fourth place for their duet.

The three winners of the first contest, and the three winners of the second contest on October 31, will give a 30-minute broadcast program over Station KRBC, at Abilene on November 5. Mr. Fayer and Miss Freeman are alternates and will likely be used on the broadcast program.

Gene Heard, program director of Station KRBC, served as judge and selected the winners strictly on their merits as suitable radio entertainers. He will also serve as judge in the next three contests.

Entries for the third contest, to be held November 14, are being received now at the office of the Sweetwater Board of City Development, sponsoring organization.

HIGH SCHOOL HONOR ROLL

An unusually small number of high school students made the "A" honor roll during the first six weeks, according to Ed E. Williams, superintendent. Only 7.5% of high school students made the A honor roll, 11.2% made the B honor roll, and 13% failed.

Below is the A and B honor roll for high school:

Eighth grade: "A", Doris Mahoney, Maxine Hooker, "B", Frances Robertson, Wonnola Martin, Billie Joe Hale, Howard Tarrt, Wylene Brown.

Ninth grade: "A", J. W. King, Jr., Jo Dena Wright, Quita Richards, "B", Oma Richburg, Doris Meadows.

Tenth grade: "A", Dell Johnson, "B", Nina Pearl Brown, Margaret Bennett, Robert James, Ronel Thomas, Doris Glass, Lonice Land.

Eleventh grade: "A", Byron Bennett, Billie Jean Barron, Ruth Anne Hall, Billie Marie Rowland, "B", W. F. James, Opal Martin.

AMERICAN LEGION TO MEET IN SWEETWATER

An unusually large attendance of ex-service men and their wives are expected at the seventeenth district American Legion convention at Sweetwater this Saturday and Sunday, according to officials of the Oscar McDonald Post, host organization. A buffet supper Saturday night for the men and women registered will be followed by a dance on the roof of the Blue Bonnet Hotel. Church services will be held Sunday morning, a luncheon Sunday noon and the business session Sunday afternoon. Legionnaires from two or three adjoining districts are expected to attend.

Cheap Fare To Centennial By Rail

If you and your children have not yet visited the Centennial in Dallas, November 5th and 6th will be a good time for you to do so. On these dates the Texas and Pacific Railway is offering a round-trip fare of $2.55 for each student, and adults are to get the same rate. This fare will be possible only, according to station agent A. J. Graham, if as many as 25 make the trip.

To make the offer still more attractive the Centennial officials have provided a tent city to take care of visiting students in groups. For a charge of $2.50 to $2.85 students and their sponsors may get their lodging for one night, their meals while on the grounds, main entrance ticket, a ticket to Cavalcade of Texas and other shows. The entire trip can be made for an expense of only five and a half or six dollars, per person. If you are to stay in the tent city you must take your own cover.

The trip will be worth a great deal to school children, as well as adults, and if possible every school child should visit the Centennial. If you are interested in making the trip or sending your children give the information to Superintendent Ed E. Williams as early as possible so that plans can be made for the trip.

With two more Sundays the fiscal year of the local Methodist church will be ended. On Nov. 18, at the annual conference at Houston, Bishop Hiram A. Boaz and his cabinet will make the appointment of the pastor for the succeeding year.

The church is still considerably in arrears on the finances, both on pastor's salary and the benevolences, but it is hoped that before Nov. 8 the membership will have brought this up. All monies for the church should be placed with Tom R. Bennett, secretary-treasurer.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Old Men Still Useful
Fists and Razor Blades
Youngest Grandfather
Science Works Two Ways

Even in this day of flaming youth, mature age still has its usefulness.

Arthur Brisbane

The average age of our Supreme Court justices is seventy-one years. Twenty-six years ago Chief Justice Hughes took his seat on the Supreme Court bench. President Taft rendered public service by appointing him to succeed Justice Brewer.

He left the bench to run for President against Woodrow Wilson, and would doubtless have been elected had he not gone to California. Had he been elected he would have remained in the United States and probably would have saved the country ten thousand million dollars that Woodrow Wilson shovelled out in his ecstasy of self-approval.

Rioting in London's "Mile End Road," in which the faces of men and women were slashed with razor blades and one man was thrown through a shop window, etc., seems rather "un-English," to put it mildly. Fists fighting has been encouraged by distinguished Englishmen, including judges, on the ground that it is "better than using knives."

It is better, doubtless, but what about the razor blades?

Germany honors its youngest grandfather, Herman Jahnke, farm laborer, thirty-six years old. Married at seventeen, his eldest daughter became a mother at seventeen.

If all you want is children, that record is satisfactory, although any mouse family could beat it by 25,000 per cent, and almost any microbe by a billion per cent.

If good children were desired, it would have been better for Mr. Jahnke to have his first child at 36, and his first grandchild at 60 or 70; at least that was Plato's opinion.

Justice uses science—the electric chair, the lethal chamber—to punish criminals. The criminal uses science to carry on his trade. An SOS signal, purporting to come from a yacht in distress, drew the coast guard away from the coast of Hawaii, making it convenient for smugglers of narcotics to bring in their cargo. Tear gas, comparatively modern, was used to empty a New York theater where there was labor trouble.

Japan, until recently convinced, mistakenly, that this country is her enemy, and for excellent reasons keeping close watch on Russia and her anti-Japanese Vladivostok airplane and submarine base, now turns suspicious attention on dear old John Bull.

Britain is supposed to have asked nine nations to protest against Japan's demands on China. That should not worry Japan too much. The same old John Bull got fifty-one nations to protest Mussolini's attack on Ethiopia; but, paying no attention, the able Italian went ahead swallowing Ethiopia; sending the little Haile Selassie to live in Switzerland.

In his villa at San Remo, the Duke of Boreas D'Orno celebrates his one hundred and sixth birthday in excellent health. He has been active in Italian court circles since 1841, before the beginning of the United States-Mexican war.

Mussolini tells 200 farmers and industrialists to prepare for a "decisive conflict" that will be necessary "to preserve order against anarchy."

Those that favor the "present civilization," he said, will have to preserve it. "We are at the dawn of a decisive conflict between the representatives of order and anarchy."

Dr. Irving Langmuir, brilliant Nobel prize winner, announced a "counterpart of life," produced chemically; interesting, probably not important. Until some professor can produce "some counterpart of life" able to think, manufacture telescopes, explore the universe and run for office, man's domination will not be threatened. A cigar store Indian is a "counterpart," but not an Indian.

European nations are preparing to recognize the Spanish rebels when they take Madrid and set up a national government.

The idea is to take prompt action and forestall the victorious insurgents' giving Spanish territory to Italy or Germany; the Balearic Islands to Italy for instance, to use as naval and air bases, with Cotea for Germany. This would upset the balance of power in the western Mediterranean and disturb old England, with Egypt and the Suez Canal on her mind.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

New "Temporary" Gold Standard Adopted—Russia
Accused of Using Spanish War to Rouse International Discord—Belgium Abandons Alliances.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

"IT IS a new gold standard, a way of doing business which has never been tried before," was Secretary Morgenthau's characterization of the agreement just entered into by the United States, Great Britain and France, whereby, subject to 24-hour cancellation, they will exchange gold for each other's currencies. Financiers, economists and business men were taken by surprise by the move and immediately gave it close study. Some were disposed to label the maneuver "political expediency," but experts generally said it was a logical step in the sequence of monetary events but not positively in the direction of stabilization.

The new plan, Mr. Morgenthau said, differs from the old gold standard in that it will permit the export or earmarking of gold only to and between governments instead of private business institutions and traders.

"The door is wide open," said Mr. Morgenthau. "We're not going out drumming up business, but we'll welcome all other countries which want to participate."

According to the Treasury department, the United States alone will announce a selling price for gold. France and England will keep their selling prices secret, though there will be a free flow of gold between the stabilization funds of the three nations.

It was believed that Great Britain was the prime mover in this new pact. As one commentator put it: "The agreement was made necessary when France debased her currency and placed an embargo on gold exports, because Great Britain suddenly discovered that nowhere in the world was there left a fixed yardstick against which to measure international commitments and handle international exchange."

SOVIET RUSSIA made a second determined effort to aid the beleaguered government of Spain, and sustained a second rebuff. Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to England, handed to Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the non-intervention committee, a virtual ultimatum demanding immediate convocation of the committee to consider blockading the coast of Portugal against arms shipments destined for the Spanish insurgents. It was understood in London that Lord Plymouth replied that if the proposition were seriously made, it should be presented through diplomatic channels to the governments concerned. The Russian plan was for a blockade by English or French warships.

Observers in Europe are convinced that the Soviet government does not expect the powers to agree to any such blockade as is suggested, but is chiefly interested in stirring up discord among the nations.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, after hearing of Lord Plymouth's reply, made a speech at Sheffield in which he pledged Great Britain's unwavering support to the policy of nonintervention in Spain. He declared the government was determined "to confine that tragedy within the boundaries of that country."

Leaders of the Fascists were reported to have planned a steady, steam-roller advance on Madrid, and this offensive was already under way. The defenders of the capital were hastily building fortifications in the suburbs and surrounding the city with trenches. In Oviedo the dynamite-armed force of loyalist miners was still battling with the garrison and rebel troops sent to the rescue were about to enter the city.

MAURICE THOREZ, French Communist leader, made a speech in Strasbourg that is causing a lot of trouble. He was charged with deliberately insulting Adolf Hitler, and the Berlin government entered formal protest. The official Nazi organ, Der Angriff, says the speech was an attempt to precipitate war between France and Germany, and also that it was an attempt "to overthrow the German Reich and to achieve the definite bolshevization of France for the benefit of the Soviet Communist international."

The French rightist newspapers declare the Thorez incident was part of the Russian Communist scheme to throw France against Germany so that Russia will not be left alone to face "any eventual German attack." The rightists were even more vigorous in their accusations when it was learned that Maxim Litvinov, Soviet foreign commissar, was secretly in Paris.

FIGURES made public by the American Navy Department show that since July 1 last every great naval power except the United States has increased the number and tonnage of its war vessels.

In the 2½ months from July 1 to September 15, the United States reduced the number of its ships from 324 vessels totaling 1,080,715 tons to 306 vessels, totaling 1,062,875 tons. Great Britain increased ships from 37 to 309 and tonnage from 1,224,329 to 1,232,854.

Japan increased ships from 213 to 217 and tonnage from 772,797 to 776,397. France increased ships from 178 to 187 and tonnage from 558,452 to 571,734.

Italy increased ships from 191 to 195 and tonnage from 403,865 to 406,333. Germany increased ships from forty-nine to fifty-three and tonnage from 113,708 to 125,458.

The British foreign office announced that France and Italy had agreed to sign that protocol of the London naval treaty forbidding the use of submarines except under strict limitations.

BELGIUM, which since the close of the World war has been tied tight to France by a military alliance, has decided to drop that and all similar alliances and to rely for her safety on strict neutrality and a larger army. King Leopold so informed the cabinet, telling the ministers that Germany's reoccupation of the Rhineland "practically puts us back where we were before the great war." Belgium's geographical position, he said "makes it imperative for us to maintain a military machine of such size as to dissuade any neighbor from using our territory to attack another state." The period of military service was extended from twelve to eighteen months.

"Belgium must pursue a policy exclusively and wholly Belgian," Leopold said. "In any case our engagements should not go beyond keeping off war from our own territory. Belgium must remain outside of its neighbors' conflicts." "Any policy of alliance with a single country would weaken our position abroad. A purely defensive alliance would not meet the case because, however prompt the intervention of our ally, it would only come after the invader's blow, which would be crushing."

AUTHORITY of the national maritime commission to declare a permanent truce in current contract controversies is challenged by the negotiating committee for the Pacific coast maritime unions, and members of those unions are instructed to vote on a proposal for a coast-wide waterfront strike. The maritime commission had peremptorily demanded that the Pacific coast ports be kept open while it sent an investigator to San Francisco to discuss the conditions which have long threatened to bring on industrial warfare.

In telegrams to President Franklin Roosevelt and the commission, the committee said the commission had caused "great unrest" among the workers through its participation in negotiations between ship-owners and dock and shipboard employees.

The seven unions, claiming a membership of nearly 37,000 workers, are the International Longshoremen's association, the American Radio Telegraphists' association, the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, the Masters, Mates and Pilots of America, the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, Marine Cooks and Stewards, and the Marine Firemen, Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers' association.

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH of Idaho, whose attitude in the Presidential campaign is a matter of great interest to all parties, has declared he would confine his attention to state matters; but then, being irked by some criticism from Republicans he went further and said he was "going after the Republican party." The veteran said he had been accused of not being regular.

"Well, what is a Senator Borah regular?" he asked. "A regular is a man with no ideas, who waits for someone to tell him what to do. My idea of being regular is in doing what you believe to be right in the interests of the people you represent. 'Let this be understood—I'm telling all parties, Republican, Democratic, Union—I'm going to advocate the things I believe in whether they cross party lines or not.'"

Lesson for October 25

CHRISTIANITY AS LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:1-4; I Corinthians 13.

GOLDEN TEXT—And now abideth faith, hope, charity (love), these three; but the greatest of these is charity (love). I Cor. 13:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Paul Was Not Afraid.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Courage in the Night.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Christian Love Is and Does.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Love, the Law of Life.

By way of Athens the apostle Paul and his co-workers came to Corinth, one of the great commercial and social centers of Greece. It was a city known for its magnificent architecture and its patronage of the fine arts, but even more widely known for its abandonment to vice and wickedness. Here Paul, the apostle of faith, demonstrated that his faith was rooted in love, and it was to the Christians who were dwelling in this infamous spot of corruption that he addressed his supremely pure and beautiful discourse on love.

The first portion of our lesson finds Paul at Corinth, and provides an introduction to the study of the love chapter from I Corinthians by showing from his experience that

I. Love Is a Fact, Not a Theory (Acts 18:1-4).

The man whom we now recognize as perhaps the greatest preacher and teacher of Christian truth who ever followed the Lord Jesus Christ "came to Corinth." That great and busy city in all probability knew nothing of his arrival and cared nothing for his message. No one met the distinguished messenger of God and received him into a home of comfort and honor.

But God had not forgotten him. For we read that Paul "found a certain Jew"—a convert to Christ, and his noble wife, and "abode with them." Persecution had sent Aquila to Corinth, and he was there for Paul to find.

And the humility of loving service expresses itself further in the fact that the one who was to bring Corinth the glorious message of the gospel did so at his own cost. He labored with his hands at the trade which he, as every Jewish boy, had been taught by his father. Christianity does not ask, "What will ye give me?" but "How much can I give?"

In his first letter to the church which grew up at Corinth we find the exhaustively rich chapter in which Paul so fittingly describes true Christian love. It is impossible in any short discussion of this passage to make a complete study of it, but we note

II. Four Truths About Love (I Cor. 13:1-13).

1. Love is superior to the other graces (vv. 1-3).

Life has many excellent gifts and men seek after them. How do they compare with love? Glowing eloquence, the far-seeing eye of the prophet, mountain-moving faith, self-sacrifice—without love they all lose their worth; in fact they are nothing. All the attainments of men apart from Christ are vain and empty.

2. Love is necessary to the other graces (vv. 4-7).

There is a sense in which love is not so much a grace in itself as the underlying and motivating power, which shows in every fine and noble expression of Christian character. Study these verses to see how patiently and unselfishly love works.

3. Love is permanent; other graces fail (vv. 8-12).

Some gifts will cease, for there will no longer be any need for them. They are temporary in their value or simply a means to an end. But love—it began with God in eternity and will go on with him through eternity. Why then do we labor and seek after these other graces so diligently and neglect the one grace which is above them all, for

4. Love is supreme (v. 13).

Even over those other graces which with love abide, namely, faith and hope, love stands supreme. It is the fundamental of all fundamentals. Without it all else is empty and futile. And let us remember, this is not pious theory; it is fact and to be translated into daily life.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. He is able to anticipate what people say before they utter a word; occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room, his eye falls on a marble statuette which he dislikes. He picks it up, wishing he could smash it to bits. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and burst asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor makes light of it.

"He's a pauper, always will be. Or the next thing to it."

"Do you think that makes so much difference, Ned?" she urged gently. "And—after all, isn't that Nancy's business?"

"I won't have it," he insisted. "I shall make it my business."

"It's possible, you know," she reminded him gravely, "that you can't do anything about it. Nancy has a will of her own, and an income of her own, later, apart from you. From my father."

He said tensely: "Myra, what's got into you? You've always stood shoulder to shoulder with me."

"You've always done things I could agree with, and support," she replied. "But I think you would be wrong to oppose Nancy, if she loves Dan, without a better reason than the fact that he has no money. After all, his family is fine."

And she urged: "Finish dressing, Ned. We must go."

He started to speak, then held his tongue. He returned to his own room for vest and coat; and when he came back, she was ready.

"Twenty minutes past seven," she said. "We're supposed to be there at a quarter of, and it's half an hour's drive."

He said: "The others will be late. Wait." He had decided to

"He's a Pauper, Always Will Be."

He went forward to where the policeman had dragged the driver out of the wrecked machine. The man lay limp, motionless.

"I'm a physician," said Doctor Greeding briefly, and the policeman gave way to him. Doctor Greeding made a swift examination.

Then he stood up and brushed his hands; he spoke in a voice scarcely recognizable as his own.

"Nothing to be done. His neck is broken, Officer."

The man was dead. He was a middle-aged man, a little shabby. His was an inexpensive car. It was crushed and battered, now fit only to be junked. The man, fortunately, had been alone. Doctor Greeding, looking down at him, felt terror and contrition—and a dizzying sense of power!

The policeman asked at large: "Anyone see what happened?"

Doctor Greeding cleared his throat, steadied his voice. There was no more anger in him; but rather a quick caution.

"He was driving very rapidly," he explained to the officer. "He passed us at the last traffic-light, and cut in on me pretty sharply. Drunk, do you think?"

"No smell of booze on him," the policeman replied. "His front tire blew out when he hit the turn. I guess that's the answer." He produced his notebook and took Doctor Greeding's name and address, then turned to the others who had pressed around.

Doctor Greeding, at the first opportunity, returned to his car, took the wheel and moved away. He said nothing; but Mrs. Greeding watched him, saw his deep distress. "Was he killed?" she asked.

The Doctor nodded. His brow was moist, his tones shaken. "Myra, his neck was broken!" he said unsteadily, and tried to laugh. "That makes me feel—curiously guilty, almost responsible!"

She touched his hand reassuringly. "Ned, dear, don't be absurd! I feel as though I'd wished it on him," he admitted.

"You're perfectly ridiculous," she urged loyally. "He was driving like an idiot. It just happened to happen right before our eyes."

"Poor devil!" Doctor Greeding muttered; and she looked at him in a secret astonishment. It was not like her husband to be thus senselessly disturbed; and she sought to turn his thoughts into another channel.

"You'd better hurry, Ned," she reminded him. "We're late already!"

So he drove on in silence; but he could not so easily dismiss this tragedy from his mind. Common sense told him that this was no more than one of those incredibly apt coincidences which occur in the life of every man; yet something deeper than common sense, something rooted in the very base and foundation of his soul, cried out against accepting such a simple explanation. He was trembling and shaken with a vast and perilous excitement, like one who stands before a closed door, long locked, in which now the key is fixed, waiting only for him to turn it, and open the door, and enter in.

Suddenly his hands wavered on the wheel, so that Mrs. Greeding caught and steadied it; and she cried sharply:

"Ned!"

"It's all right," he said huskily. "I'm upset, that's all." And he added: "I've a mind to turn around and go home. I don't feel like seeing people."

"Nonsense!" she insisted. "It's what you need."

"Oh, I suppose so," he assented. But she watched him thereafter with an alert attention, till they came to their destination, where other cars were already parked, and alighted and went in. On the way up the walk to the door, she held his arm, her eyes full of solicitude, till he smiled at her reassuringly.

"I need a cocktail," he said. "That will pick me up."

And in fact, once in the house, greeting a dozen people in succession, he was swept out of his own distracting thoughts. He gulped a cocktail and another, and felt new strength flow into him. In the drawing-room he recognized, standing with Mrs. Jordan and two or three others by the hearth, Professor Carlisle, who was young Dan's father. The professor was a small, lean, gray old man with clear blue eyes; and Doctor Greeding, with an impulse to cultivate the other as a possible ally against Dan and Nancy, crossed to speak to him.

As he did so, a young woman by the professor's elbow turned to watch him approach; and Doctor Greeding unconsciously paused as he saw her countenance. She was tall, her glance serene and steady. As though she marked his hesitation, there was a faint amusement in her eyes; but after that momentary pause, Doctor Greeding went on, and Mrs. Jordan welcomed him into the group and made introductions.

"You know Professor Carlisle, Doctor Greeding? And Mary Ann? I've put Miss Carlisle beside you at dinner. Doctor, so you can talk shop as much as you please!"

He shook hands with Professor Carlisle and with the girl. Mary Ann's hand in his had a strength which pleased him. He found her deeply, stirringly beautiful. At Mrs. Jordan's word, she smiled again; and Doctor Greeding echoed: "Talk shop?"

But before Mary Ann could reply, Mrs. Jordan swept her away. Doctor Greeding and Professor Carlisle were left together. Doctor Greeding said casually:

"I've met your son, of course, Professor; but I didn't know you had a daughter too."

Professor Carlisle smiled fondly. "She doesn't—circulate as much as Dan does," he assented. "She's a registered nurse—takes her profession rather seriously."

"That is apt to be a—sporadic occupation," Doctor Greeding suggested.

"She was Doctor Homans' surgical nurse until he died," Professor Carlisle explained. "But since then—"

The exodus toward the dining-room began. Doctor Greeding found himself placed at Mrs. Jordan's right, Mary Ann on his other side. Mrs. Greeding was at the other end of the table, beside Professor Carlisle.

The effect of the cocktails the Doctor had taken began to pass, and memory of the tragedy he had witnessed so short a time ago returned to disturb him. By and by he heard Professor Carlisle at the other end of the table utter a word at once strange and vaguely familiar. The word was poltergeist. It touched some chord of memory in him, and he tried to hear what the other was saying; but Mary Ann just then released herself from the man beyond her, and smiled and suggested:

"We don't actually have to talk shop, I suppose, Doctor Greeding; but we ought to say something to each other!"

He forgot his interest in Professor Carlisle. "Mrs. Jordan contrives these things so carefully," he assented in an amused undertone. "Gives us our cue. You worked with Doctor Homans, your father says?"

"For three years," she assented. He chuckled, curiously stimulated, forgetting for the present that man with a broken neck limp on the turf beside the road.

"I know your brother Dan," he remarked. "See him around the house occasionally. I expect you know Nancy."

"Oh, yes," she agreed. "Of course, I'm older than she." She laughed softly. "And our orbits don't cross very often."

She continued to talk to him, in a pleasant and diverting fashion, of a variety of matters; and Doctor Greeding responded, stimulated by her beauty and her wit. Once at something she said, he threw back his head and laughed so heartily that for a moment everyone else at the table was silenced.

He enjoyed this talk with Mary Ann, but when they rose from the table, he lost her; and thereafter, abstraction descended on him like a cloak. Mrs. Greeding came at last to his rescue, and they made their farewells. He was not anxious to go, had hoped to find himself once more near Mary Ann; and in the car, he said almost resentfully:

"Leaving early, aren't we?"

"I saw how tired you were," she replied, and added with a curious sidelong glance: "Though you seemed to enjoy yourself at dinner."

"Miss Carlisle is attractive, interesting," he assented.

She seemed about to speak, hesitated, said then: "I suppose you're still worrying about that poor man who was killed. But that's just silly, Ned. Forget him." He nodded silently, and she sought some topic to distract him.

"Professor Carlisle was explaining to me about poltergeists," she volunteered in a sprightly tone. "I had told him of the statuette in my room being broken so mysteriously; and he said we probably had a poltergeist in the house!"

Doctor Greeding remembered. "I've heard the word, somewhere."

"It comes from the German," she explained quickly, grateful for his attention. "It means 'a racking spirit'; and when there is one in a house, it throws stones, crockery, furniture—all sorts of things—all around everywhere."

And she went on hurriedly: "Professor Carlisle said usually these things happen where there is a young girl who is sick, or half crazy, or something."

"So I told him Nancy certainly wasn't either sick or crazy; and Ruth may not be so awfully well, but she's over forty and perfectly sane, and cook's fifty if she's a day!"

Doctor Greeding, in a sudden startled interest, asked in a careful tone: "Did Professor Carlisle offer any explanation of these phenomena?" His pulse, absurdly, pounded.

"Oh, he says there isn't any," she assured him. "He says such things probably don't really happen; that they're imagined, or faked, or something. Pictures can't just fall off walls, of course; and fires don't start by themselves."

He nodded vigorously. "Of course not," he agreed. "All nonsense!"

But he had a sudden, vivid memory of a sultry summer day, a day in haytime. Himself a small boy in the mow, stowing away the hay as it was tossed up to him, his nostrils full of choking dust, stifled, miserable. He hated the work, the barn, the hay; he wished furiously for any manner of rescue from this toil. And suddenly there was smoke in the air, and flames about his feet, and he leaped down out of the mow—and had need to work no more that day, but only to watch the barn burn merrily.

Mrs. Greeding's voice went on, an undercurrent to his thoughts: "Things don't just fly around for no reason."

And he said, surprisingly uneasy: "Of course not! All those yarns are pure fraud, or superstition, Myra! Old wives' tales! Or trickery! That sort of stunt is the stock-in-trade of professional mediums; but Houdini demonstrated that he could achieve, by natural physical means, every effect the mediums produce."

He exploded the whole fable!

"I know he did," Mrs. Greeding assented; but she added with inconsequent and maddeningly logical stubbornness: "And of course I don't believe in them—in mediums. But the fact that Houdini could do such things by trickery doesn't prove that others couldn't do them by spiritualism. Does it, Ned? I mean, just because I can tip a chair over with my hands doesn't prove that you can't tip it over by just looking at it!"

He said harshly, feeling himself accused, a sudden clutch at his throat: "I, Myra? Nonsense! I don't pretend to any psychic powers!"

"Of course not!" she cried. "I didn't mean you. I meant—anyone." And she added: "Professor Carlisle says there are so many things which couldn't happen, and didn't happen—and yet they did happen!"

"Tosh!" he protested.

"Well, anyway," she declared, "I wish this poltergeist, or whatever it was, would put my statuette back together again."

Doctor Greeding did not like this conversation. It struck too close home. He turned into their own drive with deep relief.

At the door of her dressing-room Mrs. Greeding kissed him good-night. "Now, don't worry about that poor man who was killed, Ned," she insisted.

He smiled ruefully, and he said: "I know it's absurd, but—I do feel responsible. I think I'll check up, find out whether his family is left in straits."

She said fondly: "You'd carry all the world's burdens on your shoulders if you could. Good night."

Till she slept she could hear him moving about in his room next to hers. He had, in fact, no inclination for sleep. In pajamas and dressing-gown, he sat for a while trying to read, but the book failed to hold him. . . . It was of course absurd to suppose that his own wish could have caused that man's death; and yet Doctor Greeding was disturbed. There were emotions which poisoned a man's soul and his body too; could it be possible that hate and anger might sometimes be like deadly shafts projected into the world?

He himself was almost immune to these passions; he prided himself on this fact, and he thought regretfully of his anger of a while ago. So, seeing the cause of it, he remembered Nancy, and the problem she presented. There was a new kindness in Doctor Greeding tonight. Of course, he decided, if Nancy truly loved Dan, Mary Ann would become like a member of the family; and that prospect had attractions. But his thoughts in the end returned to the dead man, and to the broken statuette; and he remembered at last what Mrs. Greeding had said about this absurdity of poltergeists. It was an absurdity; and yet he wished suddenly to be informed on the subject, and with this purpose in mind he went downstairs to select as the only ready source of information a volume of the encyclopedia.

Nancy came home while he was there, met him in the lower hall. She exclaimed: "Why, Father! Still up?"

He put his arm around her, proudly kissed her. She was beautiful, straight, slender, young and strong. "I wasn't sleepy, Nancy," he confessed. "Came down to get a book."

She looked at the volume under his arm. "The encyclopedia! That will put you to sleep, certainly."

"Theater tonight?" he asked.

"Yes," she agreed. "With Judith Plank."

Magna Charta Signed by King John's Royal Mark

Every schoolboy knows that Magna Charta was signed by King John at Runnymede on June 15th, 1215, observes a writer in London Answers Magazine.

But every schoolboy happens to be wrong! Magna Charta was never signed at all—for the very good reason that King John was quite unable to write even his own name.

In this he was not alone. Most of the British rulers of that time—and those on the Continent, for that matter—were ignorant of the use of a pen.

And so Magna Charta bore at the foot an apparently meaningless mark which was called, perhaps to the secret delight of his Majesty, "the royal signature."

However, the barons made sure that there were plenty of witnesses to the "signing," and John would never have dared to repudiate his mark.

Only fragments of the original Charta remain, most of it having been destroyed by fire 200 years ago.

HYMN TO ROOSEVELT
The Republicans are all enthused
And they are making lots of noise
They are trying to elect Landon
Like a bunch of country boys.

They are getting all excited
For they sure want to win
They have got "Oh! Susanna"
A-trying to sing him in.

"Oh! Susanna" is awfully pretty
But I am sure proud to say
She will never land Landon
Where Roosevelt sits today.

"Oh! Susanna" is very popular,
For they sing it everywhere
But the Democrats won't listen
There's better things to hear.

I haven't any education
And I am not good in elocution
But Roosevelt fed the hungry
And he saved a revolution.

They talk about the billions
That Roosevelt threw away
But he had to spend that money
Or they would be hungry today.

Anyone saying he's extravagant
Is a dirty trifling skunk
When Roosevelt took the throttle
The ship was almost sunk.

You will hear his opponents talk
And tell what they could do
But Roosevelt fought the battle
And he surely pulled us through.

If he had not spent the money
And have spent it in that way
Our cities would have been
Just a pile of debris today.

Mother, I can't Study—My head hurts!

AS A USUAL THING, he is "such a regular guy." He comes home from school full of pep and energy. Of course you want him that way always. But are you protecting his health and safety during the few short months of winter when he must spend his evenings indoors?

That uncomfortable "stuffy" feeling . . . dullness . . . lowered vitality . . . headache—these are some of nature's ways of complaining against improper heating and insufficient ventilation. These are the warning signals that America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, has found another fertile field in which to attack. For your health's sake and that of your loved ones do not wait for these definite signs of warning that the air indoors has become stale. Keep the air you breathe constantly purified with fresh oxygen through adequate ventilation in every room in the house.

Without oxygen man cannot live. Without oxygen, fuel cannot burn. Therefore, if your family "huddles" in one or two rooms around an open flame heater during cold weather with the doors and windows tightly closed, you are violating all the rules of nature, good health and good heating. Sooner or later the occupants of the room and the burning fuel reduce the oxygen content to the point where the room air becomes stale. Without adequate ventilation and circulation the air indoors may become as foul and unhealthy as that of the tenement slums of large cities, even though your home may be the most beautiful in the neighborhood.

A simple and easy method of providing a constant circulation of fresh air is found by opening a window in each room slightly. Connecting doors left open between adjoining rooms when the entire house is adequately heated provide a natural circulation of pure warm air from one room to another.

Guard the health of your loved ones with adequate heat and proper ventilation of pure, warmed air in every room in the house.

—LONE STAR GAS SYSTEM

The common cold germ is responsible for more than two hundred million illnesses each year.

WEEKLY COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE REPORT

Many important changes were revealed in this week's grade and staple report for Texas over last week. The proportion of Strict Middling and higher grades decreased moderately this week to 4 percent, whereas to date this season, the proportion is 28 percent. Middling cotton also decreased to about 12 percent from 16 percent the previous week and 27 percent to date. Over one-half of the cotton this week was Strict Low Middling, which is an increase over 43 percent of the former week. These grades to date represent 23 percent of the State crop. The grades Strict Good Ordinary and Good Ordinary continue to increase proportionately, representing 12 percent for the current week, compared with 7 percent last week and 3 percent for the season thus far. Less Spotted grades were reported this week than last week, the percentages being 19 and 26, respectively.

Exactly one-third of this week's cotton was shorter than 7-8 inch in staple; 26.5 percent was of these lengths last week and 15 percent two weeks ago. The proportion of staples 15-16 inch and 31-32 inch decreased sharply this week to 15 percent from 24 percent the previous week. Smaller proportions were also shown for the lengths 1 inch longer, representing 4.3 percent for the current week.

GEO. H. MAHON VISITS NATIONAL DEM. HEADQUARTERS

According to word received by his Colorado office, Congressman George Mahon went to New York this week to spend a short time at Democratic National Committee headquarters before going out on another speaking assignment in the interest of President Roosevelt's campaign for re-election. He spoke in several cities of New Mexico last week on a similar assignment.

He spent Monday of this week in Washington, stopping over en route to New York.

Mr. Mahon proceeded to New York at the request of Congressman Sam Rayburn, Member of Congress from Texas and candidate for Majority Leader in the next Congress, who is serving as Chairman of the Speaker's Bureau of the National Committee. He has asked Mr. Mahon to give his full time to the National Campaign until the election, November 3rd. Immediately after the conclusion of the campaign, Mr. Mahon will return to his Colorado office.

John B. Mahon became general superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School last Sunday succeeding Ed Williams, resigned, who had held the post the last three years. Mahon will serve for one year. Shortly selections of superintendents for the children, the young people's and the adult departments will be made.

Ed Williams has served efficiently in the office. His great work has been appreciated by the membership of the school.

Yanks Are Tops But Giants Rate Medal for Valor

PLENTY of people will tell you that the world champion Yankees are going to stay on the top of the baseball heap for some years to come—like their predecessors of the Ruthian age. And it looks as though plenty of people are going to be right.

The boys from the Yankee stadium are young and healthy. There's hardly a creak in a carload of them. The only spot where age insurance might be in order for Joe McCarthy is at second base and even the supposedly fading Tony Lazzeri drove in 111 runs during the American league season and had a batting average of .287. In the World Series he handled 30 fielding chances without a bobbie. While his series batting average was a pallid .250, he can grin when he remembers that bases-loaded homer.

Only Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey among the other regulars are older than twenty-eight. Dickey is a year under thirty, while Lou tops that age by three years. Of the pitchers, Ruffing and Hadley are thirty-two; Pearson twenty-seven, Gomez twenty-six and Fordham Johnny Murphy whose pitching stopped the Giants in the last game and who should be a 20 game winner in '37 is twenty-eight.

So the Yanks can give Old Man Time a race for his mazzuma for a few years at least. Incidentally Marse Joe doesn't have to be ashamed of the trades he made last winter when he decided to strengthen his club. He picked up Jake Powell and Bump Hadley from the Washington club and Monte Pearson from Cleveland. How would the Yanks have looked in the World Series without them?

But on the other hand, the vanquished Giants need a lot of overhauling. Last June owner Stoneham said they wouldn't do. But the rest of the league by being woefully weak made a liar out of him. He can't take a chance with the truth another year, though.

Some so-called prognosticators go so far as to say that in their present condition the Giants will be lucky to finish in the first division next year. That five-run Yankee blast off Fitzsimmons in the final game proved he needs plenty of rest betwixt starts. He'll be thirty-six next year and Hubbell thirty-four. Manager Bill Terry is playing on borrowed time. So is Travis Jackson. Sam Leslie's future is a question. The club will need more secondary pitching and some additional extra base punch somewhere in the lineup.

While the praise for the World Series is being handed out, though, don't overlook the Giants. They did a magnificent job considering what they had to work with. Colonel Bill Terry battled as desperately for a lost cause as did that ancestor who fought for the Confederacy.

On paper the Giants were woefully outclassed by the Yankees, just as they were supposedly outclassed by two clubs in their own league—the Cubs and Cardinals. But they made a daring start by winning the opening game behind Hubbell's pitching. Then in the next they were treated to a drubbing the like of which has never before been seen in a World Series. Almost any other club would have given up. But what happened? The Giants came up with a swell pitche: game by Fred Fitzsimmons and were out-lucked in losing. The third game found McCarthy starting his best bet, Monte Pearson, who fairly out-pitched and won from Hubbell.

That left one game to go for the Yanks to sweep the series. Even that didn't stop the Giants. Terry rallied his veterans and behind the lion-hearted pitching of Hal Schumacher, won the fifth game. The Yanks couldn't figure out how they did it. In the sixth and final game, for seven innings the Giants withstood an early display of Yank power, which would have been enough to stop almost any one else cold. They were right in the thick of the argument. In the interests of efficiency, Terry made all the shifts the book called for, but in the pinch the Giants were stopped by Fordham Johnny Murphy.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

ON PHILADELPHIA'S Sansom street the gossip is that Coach Harvey Harman will get the gate in his Christmas sock no matter what happens to Penn's football team this fall. Lou Young will return to the Alma Mamsie as athletic director and Bert Bell will be the new H. C., they say.

Mrs. Carl Hubbell was the most tensely nervous of the Giants' wives no matter who was pitching. She always looked as if she wanted to root out loud but just couldn't. Mrs. Gabler was the smartest dressed of the ladies who gathered by themselves in the stands when the club was in town and who visited one another's apartments to listen when the National league champions played in a town where games were broadcast.

Jock Whitney won $8,000 from the Guests (Winston and Ray) when his Greentree team won the National Open polo title. He made one $1,000 wager while riding down the field three goals behind in the fifth period.

Dave West of the Rutgers Targum now does a column called Not in the Box Score.

Like Gellis, the eminent writer and promotion expert, is the voice with the smile announcing events at Bill O'Brien's new sports club in White Plains.

Before his hair had turned to silver Walter Winchell used to be a left-handed first baseman on the One-hundred and Tenth street lots. He was a sweet fielder but no Lou Gehrig up at the plate and if he doesn't like it he can sue his Uncle Frank Bakst.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sisson of Roby visited their daughter, Miss Lois Sisson, at Bauman Sunday. The best writing papers in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades last week were handed in by Wanda Moates, Sarah Frances Kelley, Sue Landers, Jestene Lee, Margaret Watson, and Dorothy Hall.

We are enjoying our Friday afternoon with novelty games. We have these games every Friday afternoon after recess.

Mr. Roy Davis Coles, our county superintendent, and Miss Madge Stanford, our supervisor, visited the school last week. Both highly praised our school. Our school was highly honored in being selected as a model three-teacher school. We are proud of this distinction and are going to work harder to merit the honor.

Several from Bauman attended the football game in Colorado Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. McCarley and family and Miss Roberta Hamrick of Longfellow visited Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Moore last Wednesday night.

BEAST OF BORNEO

FOR OCTOBER 30th

Jungle terrors from the green hell of the Borneo wilds will leap at the patrons of the Riato Theater on Friday Oct. 30, only when the special road-show attraction, "Beast of Borneo," is shown.

Filmed on action located by an intrepid crew of Hollywood technicians and actors, including the popular Mae Stuart and John Preston, "Beast of Borneo" is one of the most exciting pictures ever produced and includes, among its authentic thrills, the actual capture of a giant orang utan.

The story is that of a mad scientist, crazed in his quest for forbidden knowledge, who seeks a giant ape on which to perform a brain operation as an experiment.
